"Was My Mother Correct To Say Drycleaning Wears Out Clothes?"
—Mrs. A.R.P.

Dear Mrs. A.R.P.:
There are many "Old Wives Tales" in all businesses and professions. This is one that plagues drycleaners and laundresses. Not long ago the National Institute of Drycleaning conducted a two-year wear study which proved that it is not the cleaning, but the abrasion a garment receives that wears it out.

If you would like to conduct a test yourself, ask your friends where their garments wear out first. You will find that garments of different people wear out in different places. The man who stands all day will wear out the back of his trouser cuffs first. The man who toys with the keys or change in his pocket will wear out the pocket and the facing of the pocket that leads to the change or keys. The salesman who works behind a counter will wear out the area just below his belt as he leans against the counter. The National Institute of Drycleaning reported that a scientist who wore a large stop watch on his left wrist wore out his left trouser pocket first. A newspaper man wore out the inside of the rubber against his typewriter table. A night watchman wore out the collar on his uniform first because the bristly hairs on his neck rubbed against his coat collar whenever he turned his head, which was very often in his inspection work.

These incidents in addition to scientific tests show that it is abrasion, not cleaning, that wears clothes thin. In the drycleaning process all clothes receive the same amount of flexing. If they wear out where they have been pressed it is only because that is where they have been subjected to abrasion in wear. Frequent cleaning removes the tiny, sharp particles of soil which chaff a fabric. Actually, cleaning will help preserve the life of your garments. —(Adv.)

Administration's Difficult Period

President Kennedy's first four months in the White House apparently have brought to an end the "honeymoon" that normally a new administration expects to last considerably longer when it comes into office.

In international affairs particularly, the administration which started out on the offensive four months ago now finds itself and the nation decidedly on the defensive. Tension has mounted throughout the world since the Kennedy administration has come into office. In recent weeks the new administration has suffered serious set-backs in the international arena and there appears no escaping a mounting pressure to put President Kennedy and his top aides to harder tests in the near future.

The ill-fated invasion of Cuba, which President Kennedy sanctioned, represented the first and most serious defeat for the United States under the new administration. There can be little doubt that it caused a drop in U.S. prestige around the world. At the same time, Laos, the tiny Asiatic country the United States had pledged to protect, was being gobbled up by communist while the U.S. stalled for time which obviously was working in favor of the Reds.

In Africa, new trouble has been brewing in the Congo, and in the Portuguese province of Angola a full civil war appears in the making with the United States in the middle between its ally—the recognized government—and the nationalists.

During these recent months the Kennedy administration has talked a tough policy to the Soviets, but in the case of Cuba and Laos, the talk has not been backed up with action that was as decisive as might have been expected. If the situation encourages Moscow to push ahead with ventures in other parts of the world, we may see another crisis in Berlin, and dangerous incidents in other sections of the world as well.

On the home front, the Kennedy administration obviously is finding it more difficult to push the President's program through Congress than had been anticipated. In spite of the fact that the Democrats control Congress, the congressional branch of the party has not been content to serve as a rubber stamp for the President. There have been some administration victories—as in the case of the minimum wage legislation—but progress in this direction has lagged far behind the timetable that was contemplated in January.

All things considered, these factors lead to a questioning of the initial Kennedy plan whereby the President would personally make practically all policy decisions rather than delegating this authority as was done under Eisenhower and other Presidents. Many of the theories advanced by the Kennedy braintrust of professors at the outset of the new administration obviously have been exploded in actual practice in the past few months. It remains to be seen now whether the new administration will follow through with its original plan of organization, or will make alterations to better adjust to the conditions it faces.

These first few months—and particularly the last few weeks—have been a difficult period of adjustment for the new administration. The success of the administration in the years ahead may well depend upon how well it stands up under reverses such as it has suffered in recent weeks, and how well it learns from some of the glaring mistakes which have been made.

Major Issues Yet Unresolved

By LYNN NISBET

RECORD — The 1961 General Assembly is going into its 13th full week. Monday marks the 91st calendar day, the 77th legislative day since the session convened on February 8. The twelve and a half weeks which have gone before have seen some definite accomplishments written into the record. But an inordinately large percentage of the major issues which were recognized when the Assembly convened remained unanswered.

Many of the legislators are beginning to think and talk about adjournment. According to the calendar and the clock it is time for such consideration. In view of the status of many important measures any talk of adjournment is premature.

Another favorite topic for off-side conversation is the extent of Governor Sanford's influence in the Legislature. On nearly all minor matters he has been accorded the cooperation and support which has been traditional for the first session in an administration. Practically every request of reorganization of government agencies has been granted.

He experienced no difficulty in getting approval for terminating tenure of all members of the Highway Commission, the Board of Conservation and Development, the Wildlife Resources Commission, and giving him a free hand to appoint not only replacements but to materially increase the number of appointments. Also he was given authority to appoint four additional special superior court judges.

The same legislators who went along with Governor Hodges in reducing membership on some of these boards, just as cheerfully acceded to Governor Sanford's request for enlarging them.

MAIN ISSUE — On the main issue of the Sanford program, during his election campaign and in the General Assembly, Governor Sanford is definitely ahead — although final decision on appropriations and taxes has not been made.

The full joint appropriations committee, comprising half the membership of the House and Senate, voted several weeks ago to add the $70 million requested by the Governor over and above the Advisory Budget Commission recommendation for education to the biennial appropriation bill. The vote on that point was close enough to justify continuing pressure from the Governor, but adequate for the purpose of getting the blanket amount included.

Last week when that part of the big appropriations bill was before the committee, and some four million dollars had been whittled off, a motion to quit item by item consideration and approve the whole business carried — again by a relatively small but adequate majority vote.

Meanwhile the joint finance committee split on the proposition to send the tax bills to a joint subcommittee, and House and Senate groups agreed to act separately. The administration forces were able to get approval for appointment of subcommittees. Whether they will sit together or continue to have independent courses had not been determined. Chances are much better than even that they will get together before a final report is made.

There is evident strong objection to a sales tax on basic foods and prescription medicines — which Sanford advocates. As recently as last week new substitute sources were proposed. Governor Sanford has often said he is not nearly so much concerned about the source of the money as about getting enough to effectuate his program.

OTHER MATTERS — The "court reform" bill which was enacted into law fell short of the Governor's goal, but he has endorsed it as a long forward step toward an adequate system of inferior courts. However, that act requires a vote of the people to put it into the constitution.

A time it appears that the small loan regulations to be written into the law will also fall short of the Governor's wishes. There is serious doubt that he will obtain the extension of the minimum wage law which he advocates, and a bill is pending to repeal the whole minimum wage act. Several traffic safety bills which the Governor favored are in doubtful status.

Whether failure of some of these measures can be charged against the prestige of the Governor is doubted, because up to now he has not "put out" for anything except his school program. With that big item virtually assured of passage, he has indicated he may give closer attention to others.

In a formal statement read at his news conference last week he pledged all our concern for traffic safety. At the same conference, but less formally, he indicated that he might move into the field of restricting for seats in the State Senate and the National House of Representatives. This has been recognized all along as one of the most bothersome and time-consuming problems facing the General Assembly. And honest reporting compels the statement that it is not much nearer solution after three months than it was when the legislators came to Raleigh early in February.

Opinion grows that a special session may be necessary to dispose of the matter.

U.S. Future In Space Needs More Than Cash

The successful space flight Friday by the first U.S. astronaut has brought from both the administration and from Congress the expression that more funds must now be spent to accelerate the nation's space program.

While funds are a key factor to the rate of advancement of the United States in the space field, money is not the only need. The inter-agency conflicts and rivalries which have been evident in the U.S. space program have sapped off a part of the strength the American space program might otherwise have had. Duplication of effort and lack of coordination in space research and development have taken their toll of tax dollars already devoted to space projects and will continue to do so unless more effective organization of work on the program is achieved.

Allotment of more funds for the space program is only a part of what is needed for the United States to forge ahead. Greater efficiency in using the funds already designated for the program, plus other funds that will be forthcoming, is also an important factor in the future rate of space accomplishments by the United States.

Consumer Price Rise Continues

By RALPH ROBEY

One of the disturbing items for the past many months has been the upward creep of consumer prices. The rise has not been rapid, but its persistence has had unhappy implications. The figure for March has just been released and it is the same as that for February. Too much, however, must not be read into this stability.

The figure we refer to is the Consumer Price Index compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. This is a compilation of the prices of many hundreds of commodities and services, and the index is weighted by the spending habits of both white- and blue-collar workers in a selected group of cities across the nation. This is the nearest thing we have to a cost of living index, and in many wage contracts it is used as a basis for bargaining on the amount of an increase, but also for adjusting wages during the life of a contract.

The index is prepared with the utmost care, and there is no ideological bias involved. None the less, there is a constant stream of criticism directed at the bureau for the manner in which it handles this assignment.

It is charged that the index does not take adequate account of changes in quality. The bureau admits that there may be something to this complaint, but emphasizes that whenever an improvement of quality can be priced it is taken out of the index. Beyond that it is not possible to go, although everyone wishes there were not such a limitation. A perfect example is provided by automobiles. As cars get larger and had greater horsepower, it was not practicable to price out these changes. Then with the introduction of compacts, and their much lower prices, the question immediately arose of how they could be put into the index without causing serious distortion. The only answer was to "phase" them into the index gradually over a period of months.

It also is charged that the index does not take proper steps to allow for such developments as medical services becoming more and more expensive, while stays in hospitals have become much shorter. This gives an upward bias to the index, and there is no really effective manner for eliminating this consistent slight error.

Finally it is charged that the weights used no longer are accurate—that many new items are on the market, and some things have disappeared. The answer to this is a new expenditure survey, and that is now in process. This new survey was undertaken, not because of the criticism, but because it is generally recognized that every index needs to be updated every few years.

In spite of these and many other accusations the index is as good as can be compiled with the budget allocated to this function. Granted the figure may not be absolutely accurate, and it may have a slight upward bias, but any change from month to month may be taken at face value. Only when a comparison is made between, say, today and the figure of some years ago, are the claimed defects of importance.

Now what of the fact that March showed no change from February, and why do we say too much should not be read into this?

The lack of change was not the result of all prices remaining constant. It was caused by the increases being exactly balanced by declines. That, of course, is always the case when an index is stable. And the bureau thinks April also will show stability, or perhaps a slight decline.

But there is no certainty about such a showing for April. The programs of the Kennedy Administration are just getting started, we have a substantial federal deficit ahead of us for both this and next year, and whenever possible business must increase prices to offset the growing cost of production. This is unfortunate, but there is no other way to read present signs.

An Eye Dropper Won't Save It

No Monopoly In Wisdom

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

This is in response to a letter from a lady in Louisiana, who writes:

"Without knowing much about the Russians, I am sure that their development and accomplishments are spotty and I think we should be told about it."

"I know that their development has been remarkable but what about theirs in comparison to ours."

"I imagine that they lack aesthetic sense. Their interests are limited in their scope. They set a goal and achieve it, but there are more goals than are heard of in their philosophy."

"Do you realize how wonderful we are? I would hate to turn a middle middle class (sic) Russian loose among the second hand stores and tell her to develop at home. The result would be horrid. An American woman can develop a charming home with soap boxes and a little paint. Our working girls have the grooming and good taste of debutantes. Things like that are not superficial. They require admirable qualities."

Perhaps the weakness in our position as regards Soviet Russia is that we have underestimated the Russians. The assumption in the above letter is that the Russians are barbarians, although there is a history of more than a thousand years of culture and civilization of a very high order. As long as we believe that every Russian is a moujik, we shall continue to underestimate the peoples who live in the vast area which is marked Russian on the map.

How can anyone say that the Russians lack an aesthetic sense, by which, I assume that my correspondent means that the Russians have produced nothing in the various fields of art. One need only know Russian music, Rimsky-Korsakov, Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, to mention only a few pre-Bolshevik composers; or in literature, Tolstoy, Gorki, Chekhov, merely to scratch the surface of the subject. In science, the Russians and Poles have a long and important history, including Copernicus (a Pole), Mendeleev who worked out the table of valences, and among moderns many others.

I am not listing the wonders of Russia. That is their job. I am denouncing the ignorance of those who believe that wisdom and knowledge can be the monopoly of any one people. After all, Avicenna, (born in Bukhara in 980), one of the great philosophers of the Middle Ages, came from a country which is now become weak and backward.

It is not lessening the structure of the United States to recognize that there have been about 8,000 years or more of written history. Whereas we have been on this continent only three centuries. We have inherited from others because the culture of man is continuous. Greece and Rome and Palestine are the long ancestral history of England have played an enormous role in the development of the United States.

The assumption of exclusiveness is distorting. It leads to false conclusions. We exaggerate the significance of Sputnik because we assumed that the Russians could never do what we could not yet do. Some folks, even yet, refuse to believe that there has been a Sputnik and a Lunik and it is this lack of understanding which is partly responsible for our failures in Cuba, the Congo, Laos and elsewhere. Someone spread the notion that there is some extraordinary gift called know-how which is exclusively American. We have been shocked to discover that know-how is exclusive to no people; that what one people knows is soon known to all.

In the 1920's we spoke of the United States as "God's own country," which was both unhistorical and sacrilegious, for surely all the universe is God's. The metaphor, however, meant that this was the best country on Earth to live in, which is true for Americans but not for Hindus, Chinese, Weishmen or Scandinavians. They like their own country as we like ours.

Therefore, when the 1929 Depression appeared we morally dropped dead. When Roosevelt tried to convince us that a third of the nation were economically disabled, we forgot about

Biggest Merger Problem

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — The biggest headache of any corporation official in the United States will be suffered, not by General Electric officials, or even those of the AT & T, but by a man who must operate a Northern Pacific-Great Northern-Burlington Railroad Merger.

ATTITUDE OF NORTHERN PACIFIC STOCKHOLDERS

First, this man may sometime have the ill will of the former Northern Pacific Stockholders who may feel they have been robbed. I will not brag of the railway traffic of the Northern Pacific. Like most railroads, the passenger business is a big loss; even the freight is declining. But the Northern Pacific has very valuable mineral, oil, gas, and other properties with great potential wealth. The only real hedge against inflation is land, of which the Northern Pacific has some of the most valuable.

Second, let me refer to the size of the planned merged railroad. I roughly figure that this will have the greatest mileage of any railroad in the United States. A large part of this mileage should never have been built. Yet with millions of bonds outstanding on these rails, it will be very difficult to get the necessary agreements by bondholders to dismantle a major part of a railroad and liquidate the rails, bridges, and rights-of-way. A legal merger is simple, but a division of the "spoils" is exceedingly complicated.

LABOR AND SMALL TOWNS

The only way to prevent such a great merged railroad system from going into bankruptcy is to dismantle at least one-third of the mileage and reduce the number of employees proportionately. This thought causes great consternation among the labor unions. They will not only fight for their own jobs; but will feel in doing so they are fighting a battle for every railroad of the country which is now talking merger. But the expected discharge of railway workers like Tolstoy, Gorki, Chekhov, merely to scratch the surface of the subject. In science, the Russians and Poles have a long and important history, including Copernicus (a Pole), Mendeleev who worked out the table of valences, and among moderns many others.

As the abandonment of a railroad's main line or branch lines usually means that the roadbed will revert to the county, state, or Federal Government, the newly merged lines will continue to operate such portions of the Northern Pacific as have the mineral rights. This creates another paradox. Handling of the freight by trucks would ordinarily be the answer; but trucks would not enable the Northern Pacific to hold ownership of all its valuable mineral and oil assets.

WHAT NORTHERN PACIFIC STOCKHOLDERS MAY DO

Such a merger awakens a sentimental recollection in my life which should be a lesson to all investors. An uncle of mine was once the operating Vice President of the Northern Pacific, with his home in St. Paul. Paul when I was going to St. Paul to visit the family of my late wife, Grace K. Babson, my father, Nathaniel Babson of Gloucester, Mass., asked me to call on my "Uncle John" and ask his opinion as to the value of Northern Pacific securities. My uncle replied:—"Tell Cousin Nat that the Northern Pacific bonds are good; that the preferred stocks will probably work out fairly satisfactorily; but that the common stock today is worth the certificate upon which the certification is printed." Yet within two years this common stock sold for one thousand dollars per share!

With this personal experience it is difficult for me to advise a present holder of Northern Pacific what to do. I think, however, that a good many Northern Pacific holders will sell their stock and switch into the stock of Union Pacific. The latter is at about 32 and pays $1.60 dividend per year. Union Pacific is both rich in management and has great mineral, oil, gas, and other hidden assets. It is the shortest line between Chicago and the Pacific Coast and has the least mileage to maintain when making the trip largely on double track. I do not recommend any railroad or other stocks in this column; but I can report what I think large stockholders are doing.

The Circus Has Gone Commercial

By ELMER ROESSNER

Time was when the circus was the fun peak of the year, even topping watermelon — stealing time. Today the circus is an advertising medium, shot through with commercials. Some day youngsters and their dads may object to paying for circus tickets, feeling they should be able to see the show free, like Paldin; simply by turning a knob.

The circus has become an old prostitute. Its charm is now for sale. Youngsters of all ages, filled with love of the circus, can now get pseudo affection for which some advertiser has paid with a brass check.

This is no secret. For years the circus, like every other enterprise, has been importuned to allow plugs to get by. Artful publicity men tried to get bands to play certain numbers, to get clowns and ringmasters to refer to or mention certain products.

CIRCUSES TURN HARLOTS

For years, circus owners resisted. The clown who tried to sneak in a plug for a shoe polish or a soft drink was sometimes left in the freight yard when the circus train moved on.

But now the circus itself has succumbed. It takes money like a streetwalker. Radio and television carefully identify commercials; newspapers and magazines clearly indicate advertising material. But the circus hides it in the folds of a wanton's skirt—or a clown's act.

In one circus, a clown races around the rings shooting a tube of toothpaste as if it were a gun at another clown carry a toothbrush. It's what's-its-name toothpaste, of course, and the manufacturer's advertising agency is paying through the nose for the stunt.

HOW TO CROWN DOWN HAIR

In one circus, a clown races around with outstanding hair. Another clown runs up with a huge bottle of hairdressing and spritzes it on the hair, transforming the first one into a handsome fellow.

Walter Geis, an old-time clown, has walked around circuses for 20 years seemingly balancing a board on his head. It remained erect no matter how he turned. This year there's no board, but a replica of a candy bar. Another clown—you've seen him and remember him well—walks around with oversize, roach-crushing shoes. This year, when you'll see him, those big shoes will advertise a certain kind of sneakers.

In the program for the circus in New York, there's a picture of a lion saying that, if he were people, he'd drink a certain brand of coffee. In the circus itself there are two clowns, dressed like lions, carrying jars of the same coffee. What a paid-for coincidence!

Circuses are also dicker with makers of appliances, cigarettes, food products and others, offering to sell the hallowed tradition of the big top for advertising dollars. Soon it may spread to the shows and the fat lady and the thin man will become merely before-and-after for a diet drink!

SHORT AND SIGNIFICANT NOTES ON BUSINESS

Tobacco Tips

Some farmers will soon be through transplanting their tobacco crop and will begin cultivation. Most farmers usually apply their fertilizer top dressing at the first cultivation.

As I passed a tobacco field recently, I saw a worker broadcasting nitrate of soda as top dressing. The use of nitrate of soda as top dressing for tobacco is a good practice provided the amount used does not build up the total amount of nitrogen too high. The total amount of nitrogen used should not exceed the amount required for the proper growth and development of the tobacco plant.

The information obtained from soil tests can be very helpful in determining the rate and analysis of fertilizer to use on a specific field for tobacco production. Observations that you have made when different rates of plant nutrients were used on a specific field are also important.

Before applying top dressing, either in the form of nitrate of soda or 8-0-24, first determine the amount of nitrogen that has been applied in the form of mixed fertilizer, such as 4-8-12 or 3-9-9. For example, if you want to apply a total of 56 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre where 1,200 pounds of 4-8-12 fertilizer has already been applied per acre, you would need only to apply 50 pounds of soda or 100 pounds of 8-0-24 as a top dressing.

The amount and form of organic matter, texture of the soil, and depth to the subsoil, are important characteristics influencing the quantity of nitrogen required for best tobacco production.

For sandy loam soils of average fertility, the following quantities of nitrogen have generally been found adequate:

In fields with topsoil 12 inches or less in depth (depth of soil to clay), 30 to 40 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre; when top soil is 12 to 18 inches in depth, 40 to 50 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre; when top soil is 18 to 24 inches in depth, 50 to 60 pounds of actual nitrogen is generally adequate. On sandy soils that are more than 24 inches to the clay 60 to 70 pounds of nitrogen may be necessary.

On the other hand, when tobacco is grown on heavy textured, very fertile soil, 20 to 30 pounds of nitrogen per acre will generally be sufficient. The rates suggested include nitrogen furnished by both preplant and top dressing fertilizer.

Soils differ in their productive capacity and in their fertility level. When determining the total amount of nitrogen to use, careful attention should be given to the physical and chemical characteristics of the soil.

We need a more realistic attitude toward ourselves and toward the rest of the world. We need to recognize that we are one fact in a vast geography and a long history and that we dare not exaggerate our own importance or underestimate the values of other nations. There is no greater peril than ignorance overlaid by emotions particularly when we reject knowledge to prove an assumption. The error of the past 40 years in our relations with Soviet Russia and Soviet satellites is that we have been unwilling to believe the truth about them because the proof did not sound true.

Fellowship Awarded James W. Hendrix

James W. Hendrix, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Hendrix, Sr., 2101 Evans Street, Greenville, has received a 1961 E. G. Moss Fellowship at North Carolina State College.

Two Moss Fellowships, each valued at $300, are offered annually to outstanding graduate students who are working on problems in tobacco. The second fellowship this year was won by Bruce W. Byrd Jr. of Hartsville, S. C.

Dr. Kenneth R. Keller, in charge of tobacco research at State College, says the fellowships were established by friends of the late E. G. Moss, superintendent of the Oxford Tobacco Research Station.

Hendrix, who is 23, received his B. S. degree from State College in 1959 and his M. S. degree from the University of Arkansas in February of this year. He is now working on his doctorate in plant pathology at State College.

Winning a Moss Fellowship is the latest in a series of honors received by Hendrix. He has won an Alpha Zeta National Graduate Scholarship, Gamma Sigma Delta Sophomore Scholarship, Alpha Zeta Freshman Scholarship Cup, National Plant Food Institute Award as outstanding junior in agronomy, and 1959 award for having the highest average in agronomy.

He is married to the former Janet Powell of Winston-Salem and they live at 1518 Asburton Rd. in Raleigh.

"5 WAYS TO A PERFECT FIT" At 5 Points

The Farm Scene

By S. C. WINCHESTER
Pitt County Agent

Processing of sweet potatoes may hold big economic potential for Eastern North Carolina, one of the area's top leaders said recently.

Dr. Robert Lee Humber, speaking at a meeting at Bethel High School several days ago said he is seeking an intensive investigation of the possibilities for more farm production and more processing of sweet potatoes in the Pitt County area. Dr. Humber is a State Senator and a member of the Pitt County Development Commission.

About 125 businessmen, farmers and county agents from Edgecombe, Martin, Pitt and Wilson counties attended the meeting. It was called to initiate an educational program in sweet potato production and marketing. Rep. Clifton Everett of Bethel presided.

J. C. Williamson Jr., assistant director of research and extension at N.C. State College, told the group that housewives are turning more and more to convenience foods—easy to buy and prepare, always available and of uniform quality.

"Raw potatoes haven't had these qualities until recently," he said. "Sweet potato consumption in the nation has decreased by almost two-thirds since the end of World War II as a result."

Williamson described sweet potato research work at State College on post-harvest handling, processing, plant breeding and cost analyses. Local citizens should make full use of research and extension assistance from the college in determining opportunities for increased income from sweet potato production and processing," he said.

Growers must set their sights on producing 500 bushels of sweet potatoes per acre, said Henry Covington, extension horticultural specialist at State College. "From this yield, 300 bushels would be fancy potatoes for fresh market," he said. "The other 200 bushels should go into processed products, such as canned potatoes or flakes."

Six production practices usually make the difference between average and high yields," said Covington. They are:

1. Use of best soil types—the best tobacco soils are also the best sweet potato soils.
2. Fumigation of the soil to control nematodes. Row treatment is usually sufficient.
3. Control of wireworms by broadcast treatment with Aldrin.
4. Selection of one of the newer varieties to obtain higher yields than from the Porto Rico variety.

5. Good fertilization. Use 350 pounds of 6-12-6 in the row, plus 400 pounds of 8-0-24 as a top dresser.

6. Plant early and closely. For May plantings, space plants eight inches apart in 42-inch rows.

Six one-acre demonstrations have been arranged in Pitt County to show that farmers can produce 500 bushels per acre. Development at State College of a process for "instant sweet potato flakes" was discussed by Dr. M.W. Hoover, professor of food processing research at the college. "This product can be made from all sizes and grades of sweet potatoes—from the small canning size to the jumbo," he said.

"For the first time, it appears that it will be possible to utilize the whole crop at prices which are profitable to both farmers and processors."

mers and processors."

Sweet potato flakes are produced by drying on a drum dryer after the potatoes have been peeled, cooked and pulped. The flakes may be reconstituted in one minute by adding enough hot water to bring them back to their original moisture content.

"The flavor and texture of the reconstituted flake is excellent, and resembles mashed sweet potatoes produced from cooked fresh roots," said Hoover. "One pound of flakes makes as much as seven pounds of fresh roots."

From preliminary estimates, it appears that sweet potato flakes will have wide acceptance by consumers, Hoover said.

The meeting was preceded by a free barbecue supper, supplied by Bob Cullifer and others in the Bethel community.

Soviets Harvest Blood From Dead People

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union is harvesting blood from dead people on a large scale, the journal of the Flying Physicians Association said today.

Dr. Henry Swan of Denver, Colo., told of a visit to the Sklifovskiy Blood Institute in Moscow last year as the guest of a leading Soviet surgeon named Petrov. Swan said blood was being taken from an aged man who had died suddenly in a subway two hours before.

"Apparently, all sudden deaths in the city are brought to the Sklifovskiy by law," Swan said, and two to four liters of blood are taken from a single cadaver.

They preserve it with sugar, water and antibiotics—"no anticoagulants, since blood after sudden death does not clot." Swan said blood can be taken up to six hours after death, is sometimes stored for five days, and is used for transfusions.

Oil Paintings Of 2 Art Students Being Shown

Oil paintings by two students of art at East Carolina College are now hung in the Planters Bank and Trust Co., of Greenville and will be on view through May 12. Joanne H. Lackey of Roanoke Rapids and J. Lynn Burgess of Taylorsville are the exhibiting painters.

Each of the young artists is represented in the current show by three canvases. Semi-abstract paintings by Mr. Burgess are entitled "Pink Figure," "Bed," and "Green Lady." Presenting actual objects in abstract, Miss Lackey's works are "Domine," "Composition II," and "Catiz."

Miss Lackey, a junior at East Carolina, is majoring in art, with painting as her major interest.

She has entered her work in campus shows at the college here, including student exhibits and a showing of artifacts staged in the College Union by members of the professional art fraternity Delta Phi Delta. Her paintings have also been exhibited in Roanoke Rapids, Greenville, Raleigh, and Wilmington.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Lackey of Roanoke Rapids.

Mr. Burgess is an East Carolina senior scheduled for graduation next July. At present he is instructor of several classes at the Greenville Art Center. He plans to teach and do graduate work at ter receiving his degree. His works have been exhibited during the past few years in Lenoir, Greensboro, Raleigh, Greenville, and Taylorsville in North Carolina; and in Ocean City, Md.; Seaford, Del.; Montgomery, Alabama; and Columbia, S. C. He is a member of the Associated Artists of North Carolina.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Burgess of Taylorsville. His wife is the former Annette McDonald of Seaford, Del.

EC Trims Catawba To Again Clinch Conference Title

By LEONARD LAO Reflector Sports Writer

East Carolina clinched its third consecutive North State baseball title Saturday night at Guy Smith Stadium, defeating Catawba's Indians by a 4-2 score.

The Bucs host Atlantic Christian on Wednesday night, and Elion on Friday night, both contests to be played under the lights of Guy Smith.

Larry Crayton won his seventh game of the year against one loss, limiting the Indians batters to only four hits, three of them coming in the second inning when Catawba scored both of its runs.

The Indians got their other hit off Crayton in the fourth, a single with two men out. The runner was left stranded.

Second baseman, Larrell Forbis led off the second frame for the losers with a pop fly to left which fell between three Pirate defenders for a double, and advanced to third on a wild pitch.

The Pirates scored one run each in the third and fourth frames to tie the score.

In the fourth, an error and back to back singles by Floyd Wicker and Spencer Gaylord loaded the bases for the Bucs.

which sacrificed the run across. After two men were out, East Carolina pushed across two more runs in the fifth, providing the winning margin.

Cockrell got things started with a free pass, then stealing second. A double to left by Gary Pierce scored Cockrell.

The leading hitter for the Bucs was Wicker, a freshman from Snow Camp. The slim stickler got two hits in four trips to the plate.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Is Carry Back a great horse, a good one or just the best of an ordinary lot of 3-year olds?

This question was hashed and re-hashed by experts and laymen today as they ran and re-ran the smashing come-from-behind victory of one of the turf's greatest bargains in the 87th Kentucky Derby Saturday at Churchill Downs.

The consensus was that a gamer race horse never came roaring down the Derby's heart-break final one-quarter mile, which has tested most of the nation's greatest since 1875. Carry Back, who trains Carry Back for his wife, Katherine, called him "best of a poor lot."

But he had a twinkle in his eye and admitted he said it with tongue in cheek.

"I would say he's great," said Price admitting he was prejudiced. "He astounded me in the last 70 yards. At the five-eighths pole, I thought he didn't have a shot at any of the money. With one-half mile to go I thought maybe we would get a piece of the money. At the quarter-mile, I knew we had at least third. An eighth-of-a-mile farther I thought we would be second. Then he really surprised me."

"But I shouldn't be surprised at anything he does. He has been doing it ever since he came to the races."

Price had nothing but praise for Fred W. Hooper's Crozier, who apparently had the race won and then dropped the decision by three-quarters of a length as jockey Sellers brought Carry Back down the middle of the track.

Crozier is going to take another crack at the champ in the May 20 running of the Preakness at Pimlico, the second jewel in the triple crown, the final is the Belmont Stakes June 3 in New York.

Carry Back will go down as one of the greatest bargains. Price paid $300 for Joppy, Carry Back's dam who died recently at Ocala, Fla. He bred Joppy to Saggy, called an unfashionable stud whose chief claim to fame was victory over Citation in a sprint race in 1948.

"Saggy's stud fee was $500," said Price, "but I got a discount by breeding three mares at the same time." The total cost was $1,200. That makes Carry Back's original investment $700. He picked up $120,500 of the $163,000 Derby purse to boost his bank account to $612,868 on 10 victories, 5 seconds and 5 thirds in 29 starts. In addition to Crozier at least three other Derby starters will oppose Carry Back in the Preakness. They are Globemaster, who finished sixth; Jacob Sher's Sherruck, fifth after moving into contention at the top of the home stretch and Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' fast closing Dr. Miller, who was fourth. Mrs. V. E. Smith's Bass Clef, a surprise third, in a belated run from last place, will be shipped to Chicago.

The Alberta Ranches' entry of Four-and-Twenty (seventh) Flutterby (eighth) head back for California within a few days after Four-and-Twenty undergoes an operation for a quarter-crack in his left fore hoof.

"It wasn't serious enough to hamper his Derby chances," said trainer Vance Longden. "He just didn't have it after taking the belated run from last place, will lead."

Wake Forest's Roger Coon last week broke the Atlantic Coast Conference record for runs batted in and helped the Demon Deacons into first place in the conference baseball race.

Saturday, Wake beat South Carolina 9-7 with Coon knocking in two runs to boost his total to 36. The old record of 35 was held jointly by Wake Forest's Frank McRae (1955) and Clemson's Bud Spiers (1958). Coon has five more games this season to better his mark.

The Deacons moved into the top spot with a 9-2 league record and 22-4 over-all as North Carolina lost twice in three games. This week, Wake Forest must protect its lead twice against third-place Duke, playing the Blue Devils today and Wednesday.

North Carolina slipped to second with a 7-2 loop mark and an 11-4 over-all. Duke is third (8-3 and 10-8) and North Carolina State (7-4 and 11-4) is fourth.

Wake Forest is at Duke and Maryland at Georgetown today. On Tuesday, Georgia is at Clemson, North Carolina at N.C. State and The Citadel of the Southern Conference is at South Carolina.

Duke beat Clemson 3-1 in Saturday's only other game. Two contests, North Carolina State at Maryland and North Carolina at Virginia, were rained out.

Clemson is leading the second division with a 6-8 conference record and 10-9 over-all. Maryland (5-8 and 7-12) is sixth, Virginia (2-7 and 5-8) is seventh and South Carolina (1-11 and 3-13) is in last place.

Other games this week: Wednesday — Duke at Wake Forest; Thursday—Rollins at Clemson, Virginia at N.C. State, Wake Forest at Davidson.

Friday — Rollins at Clemson; Georgetown at Maryland, Virginia at North Carolina.

Saturday—Clemson vs. North Carolina at Belmont, N.C.; Duke at Navy, Wake Forest at East Carolina.

Addition of Houston and New York to the National League in 1962 marks the first increase in membership since 1892 when the senior circuit went from eight teams to 12. The league included 12 teams until 1900 when it went to eight.

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Auto race fans can expect to see a literal slam-bang battle in this year's Southern 500 between Rebel 300 winner Fred Lorenzen and runner-up Curtis Turner, if both enter the big Labor Day race.

The two staged a bumper and fender banging tussle here Saturday. It didn't end exactly when the race was over with Lorenzen pocketing the $8,860 winner's check.

The 26-year-old husky blond from Elmhurst, Ill., out-banged Turner in the final 25 laps to judge the Charlotte, N.C. driver into second place in the final three laps. Both drove Fords.

Turner didn't like it one bit and Lorenzen poured on the gas to keep away from Turner on the final two go-rounds. Then, as both coasted around the track after the checkered flag, Turner's car slammed into Lorenzen's. The only damage appeared to be hurt feelings.

Lorenzen kept sliding right and left in the final 25 laps to keep Turner from passing. Once Lorenzen managed to slip ahead but before he could barrel well in front Turner caught him on the next turn and blasted Lorenzen out of the way.

Lorenzen's car kept bumping into Turner's in the back stretch as the Midwest driving ace tried to get around. Finally Lorenzen faked an outside pass, then whipped to the inside and shot past coming off the fourth turn on the third lap from the end. Turner tried to force Lorenzen out of the groove—the high outside part of the track—but Lorenzen refused to move out of it and Turner's car was almost caught between the rail and Lorenzen. His car did bump Lorenzen's going into the first turn and Turner fishtailed twice before regaining control—with Lorenzen ahead.

A crowd of 32,000, watched in 89 degree clear weather as 22 of 32 starting late model convertibles survived the 300 mile grind for a total purse of $50,000.

Lorenzen ran the race in record time, 1:19.52 miles an hour. He started on the pole, and held the lead for most of the first third of the race.

Then Glen (Fireball) Roberts took over for much of the rest of the race, only to have a tire failure some 30 laps from the end put him out of contention, although he came in fifth for $1,840. He won in 1957 and 1959. Turner, who won in 1958, got $4,840 for his second place in a Ford.

Roberts was in a Pontiac, as was fourth place Bob Burdick of Omaha, Neb., who won $2,340. Third place Johnny Allen of Atlanta, in a Chevrolet, picked up a check for $3,140.

Texas Produced Tourney Leaders

BURNEYVILLE, Okla. (AP)—Texas played a big part in the Waco Turner Open Golf Tournament. It produced the winner Sunday and the runner-up.

Young Butch Baird of Galveston captured the $2,800 first prize with a pair of 5-under par 68s after opening rounds of 73-72 for 281.

Another Texan, 23-year-old Rex Baxter Jr., of Amarillo, missed a 35-foot putt on the 18th green by inches in the final round and took a par 73 for a total of 282, one stroke behind Baird.

GREG STEEL . . . Top man in Section IV track competition leaps to win first place in the broad jump event in a sectional track meet here Saturday. Steel's first place jump was twenty feet and five inches, about two feet short of the Jacksonville boy's own previous record.

Running on a wet track and jumping into a slight wind, New Bern emerged as the top team with a total of 21 points in a sectional track meet here Saturday.

Close behind the Bears in the first Section IV meet were Jacksonville with 18 points, Tarboro with 17 1-3, Rocky Mount 16 1-3, and Greenville with 14 points.

Saturday's events marked the first time Greenville has been host to a sectional track meet and was the first meet for Section IV which was added to state semi-final competition this year. Previously, teams from this area had participated in one of three sectional meets in the state.

The top four men in each event Saturday have qualified to participate in state finals competition in Raleigh Friday. The first four places are as follows:

SHOT PUT: G. Sasser (Tarboro), 53' 1/2"; Pratt (Jacksonville), 51' 1/2"; and Edwards (Rocky Mount).

only New Bern and Greenville will be eligible to participate in the event Saturday due to a pulled muscle from an earlier event. His broadjump record is a little over 22 feet, but a strong wind held him to just over 20 in this meet.

Since the Saturday meet was the first one for Section IV, all the times recorded there will be rescored until they are broken in later sectional meets.

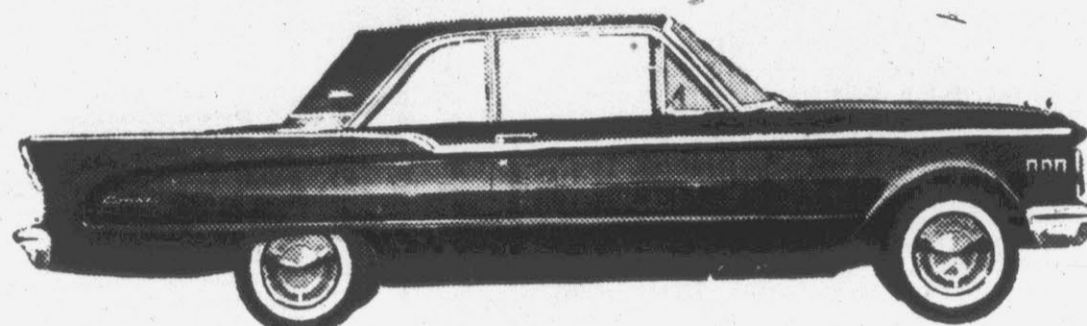

The top men in the meet were assisted by Phillips. East Carolina College coach Glen Sasser and Greg Steel who tied for top honors with 10 points each. Steel, who usually runs in the meet also.

THE HAUNTED STARS

by EDMOND HAMILTON

CHAPTER 26
Fairlie took his position at the edge of the camp where he could look down at the valley and be on the night watch. He felt a deep sadness. He had known when they left the ship that Christensen could not live. But he had discovered long ago that knowing a thing like that in advance did not entirely soften the shock and pain of it when it actually happened. He supposed that they would bury Christensen near the ship. Whether or not any of them ever got back to Earth, Christensen would stay here. It seemed odd that he should have come so far to find a grave. Suddenly Fairlie sprang to his feet and looked wildly off into the darkness. The heavy wind had brought a sound to his ears, rising and falling, faint and sweet, and it was a sound he knew very well, one that set his skin to prickling. It was the sound of a woman's voice and it sang the wordless song he knew. Fairlie stood up listening, with an eerie thrill on him colder than the wind and his heart beating high and fast. The voice called to him out of the darkness and he saw her standing on some high place with the stars wheeling around her like bright birds and he knew that he could go to her and she would be warm flesh and not a memory and a dream. The wind sighed over the dark valley. The camp slept. The song came faint and sweet and silver-clear from somewhere far down the slope, calling, calling, and now the sap was not three hundred centuries of time but only a few hundred yards of land, easily crossed. Fairlie began to cross them. The woman sang and a very great hunger possessed Fairlie, a longing that had been with him since first that little silver sphere gave up its music all that time ago on Earth when this had all started. The hunger and the longing had driven him on this insane voyage, had brought him here to this alien planet under a foreign sun, and now they were about to be satisfied. His feet pressed quietly against the sodden leaves, making no sound. The cloudy sky cast little light. He moved in the night, among the very dark shadows of the trees, between the black solid trunks and under the branches of them, and the song led him. No, the song was not the same. The elation, the high eerie beautiful thrill, began to go out of him. He moved more slowly, listening, wondering, trying to understand why.

remember an execution. But this time I don't know. If anything should happen—" "Like what?" "Anything bad. Anything at all. They're afraid. She moved close to Fairlie again, clinging to him. "So am I. We've been safe and peaceful for so long and now everything's different and it's exciting but I can't help being afraid. I thought I didn't believe in the Lorn. But now I'm not sure." Fairlie put both arms around Aral and held her close. "You really think they may kill him?" "If he was free we could go to another community a long way off and everything would be all right. Please help me. Please." "Hush up," he said, "and let me think." He and the other Earthmen were certainly responsible for what had happened to Thrayn. He had not wanted to lead them here, and they had insisted. It might have been partly Thrayn's fault for being curious about the ship in the first place. I feel doubly responsible. Fairlie thought, because I was the one who did the talking, no matter whose idea it was. And now I have opened my big stupid mouth about the Hall of Suns and DeWitt will never rest until he finds it. Which means that he has to have Thrayn, who has been there. Which means that if I know DeWitt there will be the devil to pay in that town if they don't give up Thrayn to him. It wasn't good. Any way you looked at it it was not good. But anything was better than having DeWitt deal with Fairlie's mind raced ahead, seeing DeWitt and his gun coming into the town, and some people dying, and the inevitable reprisals and more people dying. Perhaps in the end their whole party, even possibly the whole expedition. It would be much better if Thrayn simply escaped right now, quietly and without fuss. And that meant that he, Fairlie, had to do it. He shook his head and groaned. Her chilly little hands were on his face again, her cold little muzzle shoved passionately against his neck. "Please? It isn't that I'm in love with Thrayn. You understand that?" "I understand completely," Fairlie said. He told her briefly what he thought of her in English, which she did not understand, and hauled her roughly to her feet. Fairlie's eagerness to rescue Thrayn lessens when he sees who Thrayn's jailer is. Continue the story tomorrow.

HONG KONG (AP)—Peasants in Red China are complaining that state-produced movies put them to sleep. Their 'Mecca' Is Target Of Hate

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP)—South Africa, a target of black African hate because of its racial segregation policies, is ironically also the economic mecca for Negroes from other parts of Africa, the government claims. One cabinet minister says thousands of black Africans annually pour into this country looking for work at wages unequalled in Africa. The minister of Bantu affairs, Michiel Daan de Wet Nel, reported to parliament recently that in the last three years an average of 233,653 Negro migrant workers per year had been admitted to this country. He said this did not include thousands of Africans entering South Africa illegally.

FAMILY SECURITY CHECK-UP

Every year millions of fathers have health check-ups. Yet, millions of fathers don't check up on their family's financial health. Metropolitan Life Insurance Company now offers a service which lets you do just that: The Family Security Check-Up. It is a service which can bring you new information and correct mistakes. It lets you make sure you've planned your family's future with your head as well as your heart.

Whether you need insurance or not, this service makes sense. Remember, Metropolitan is as local as Main Street—as close as your phone. Call your Metropolitan man today.

There is no obligation—except to those you love.

What you could lose without one

There are mistakes, oversights, gaps in the average man's financial security program. Too much of it is haphazard. Too much of it is left to chance. It lacks a plan. Or, too often, it simply falls behind the times.

For example, the Social Security law has been changed nine times since its inception. And the Social Security benefits your wife and children could get may not dovetail efficiently with your pension or insurance programs. Then too—you can unintentionally "disinherit" a child, in effect, if you have overlooked naming him among your beneficiaries.

More than an interview—a service

Metropolitan, the Company you look to for authoritative information on physical health, offers a way to check up on your family's financial health.

Metropolitan representatives have been trained in Metropolitan's own schools and are qualified by solid experience to bring you this Family Security Check-Up service. They are equipped with businesslike charts and tables that show you exactly where you stand.
