Mayor And City Council Sworn Today; McGowan Chosen Mayor Pro-Tem

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor

Charles M. King this morning took office as Greenville's new mayor along with four city councilmen.

King was sworn in by Municipal Judge Charles H. Whedbee. This was followed by the swearing in of Councilmen Ford McGowan, James W. Lee, Dr. M. W. Aldridge and Dr. Ralph Brimley.

In a second session immediately following the swearing in session the City Council elected Ford McGowan as mayor pro-tem in what might be the first test of the new council's alignment.

McGowan replaced Dr. Aldridge, who has served as mayor pro-tem for the past two years.

Mayor King offered his thanks to the citizens of Greenville for electing him mayor.

"I fully realize the responsibility that is on me but I feel that with the cooperation of the council and citizens of Greenville we will be able to carry on."

At the outset of the meeting, King welcomed the new council. "I hope we can carry on and add a little something to the credit of Greenville."

"I congratulate Mayor West and the council, excluding myself, for the fine work they have done in the past two years in carrying out the city's business."

King replaced S. Eugene West, whom King defeated in the May 2 election.

West expressed his congratulations and best wishes to King and the new council. "I hope their service for the next two years will be pleasant." He offered his services to the new administration.

French Airliner Crash Kills 69

ALGIERS (AP)—A French airliner carrying 69 persons crashed in the Sahara today and Air France said there were no survivors.

At least five Americans were aboard. Search craft found the wreckage smashed into lonely sand dunes of the Sahara about 75 miles north of the oil field of Edjele.

The plane had last reported at 1:10 a.m. when it was directly over Edjele.

An Air France spokesman said the mother, wife and three children of Alan Lukens, U.S. charge d'affaires in Bangui, Central African Republic, were aboard the four-engine plane.

Names of the passengers and crewmen were not available, but the Lukens were known to be aboard, he said. U.S. Embassy officials said Lukens apparently took a vacation trip.

mayor pro-tem unanimously on a motion of Dr. Aldridge.

This was done after King called for nominations and Councilman Lee nominated McGowan.

Councilman Brimley said he understood that in the past the mayor pro-tem post had been offered to the high man in balloting.

"Based on that I would move that we elect Dr. Aldridge as mayor pro-tem."

"Since I've been in that has sort of been discarded," Mayor King replied. "I don't think that would have any bearing."

It was then that Aldridge, who ran high among the council candidates in the election, offered his motion.

He explained that it had been the custom to offer the mayor pro-tem post to the high man. He said he had enjoyed being mayor pro-tem but he could see little or no prestige that goes with it. Aldridge stated in offering the motion that he "wanted to see this council get off on a good footing."

Brimley seconded the motion and it passed unanimously.

The mayor pro-tem acts in the absence of the mayor. He corresponds to a vice president.

Only two members of the old

City Council remain. King moved up to the mayor's seat and Aldridge was defeated in the race and W. S. Stafford did not seek reelection. They joined West in stepping down today.

Makes Appointments Mayor King made several appointments this morning to various boards on which councilmen normally serve. He named Lee to the Sheppard Memorial Library board and Aldridge and Lee to the Planning-Zoning Commission.

Brimley and McGowan were appointed to the Airport Commission and McGowan was named to the Recreation Commission.

The council also went on record this morning as favoring the upcoming bond election which would finance construction of an industrial school building.

Councilman Lee brought up the matter. He explained that, even though it is a county election, he felt the council should act. Lee offered the motion and it was passed unanimously.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam reminded the council that a public hearing has been set for tomorrow night on the question of rezoning certain property from residential to commercial. The public hearing is to begin at 8 o'clock.

Favor Increased Sums For Colleges

RALEIGH (AP)—The Joint Appropriations subcommittee has recommended restoration of nearly $2.5 million to the 1961-63 budgets of the Consolidated University of North Carolina and the nine state-supported colleges.

The committee nearly completed work on most of the half-billion dollar education budget Tuesday, adding $40 million to the amount already tentatively approved.

Of the $40 million total, $17.7 went for the nine colleges and another $10 million went to the consolidated university budget, bringing it to $56.6 million.

The subcommittee recommended adding $1.5 million over what the Advisory Budget Commission approved for the consolidated university. It recommended adding $47,984 for the nine other state-supported colleges.

The breakdown for the nine colleges:

East Carolina $4.3 million or $86,000 over; North Carolina A&T $3.3 million or $117,000 over; Western Carolina, $1.8 million or $166,000 over; Appalachian State, $2.4 million or $182,000 over; Pembroke State, $477,408, including $6,800 which will be offset by an expected tuition increase; Winston-Salem Teachers $1 million or $36,000 over; Elizabeth City Teachers $871,000 or $85,000 over; Fayetteville Teachers $948,000 or $33,000 over; and North Carolina College $2.7 million or $147,000 over.

Meanwhile, the newly formed House Finance subcommittee decided to discuss the tax bills and delay a vote until — as Rep. Ed Kemp of Guilford put it — "Thinking this subcommittee has crystallized enough to have a choice to offer."

Fire Severely Damages Trailer

GRIFTON—A house trailer was almost completely destroyed by fire of undetermined origin this morning about 3:30. Fire Chief Wilbur Murphy said.

A family of three, Edward Earl Davenport, his wife and child were trapped inside the burning trailer but managed to break a window at one end and escape without injury.

The trailer was parked in Mrs. L. Smith's trailer park on Pitt Street.

Chief Murphy commented that very few personal belongings were saved in the fire. He said no injuries resulted from the fire.

Ministers Of NATO Again Pledge Defend West Berlin

OSLO, Norway (AP)—North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers promised today to preserve the freedom of the 2 1/2 million residents of West Berlin and to meet the Communist bloc's challenge throughout the world.

In a communique ending their three-day spring meeting, the ministers expressed confidence that the combined resources of NATO are adequate to prevent Communist aggression.

"In the world as it is today the unity and strength of the Atlantic alliance is essential to peace and the survival of liberty," the communique said.

"Its collective resources—moral and material alike—are fully adequate to this task. Confident in their strength, in the will of their peoples, and in the truth of the ideals they uphold, the 15 Atlantic nations dedicate themselves anew to building a world free from the false doctrine of continuing and inevitable conflict."

This represented a rejection of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's doctrine of so-called peaceful coexistence.

The communique stressed that the NATO countries are willing to negotiate just settlements of international problems but do not intend to be bullied.

The communique made no specific mention of Laos, the Congo or Cuba but referred in general terms to world trouble spots.

"Aware of the intensified efforts of the Communist bloc to foment and to exploit conflicts and to extend its domination over an ever increasing area, the ministers reaffirmed their resolve to meet this challenge," the communique said.

"For their part the Atlantic nations are ready to make their contribution toward achieving an equitable and just settlement of outstanding political questions. They deplore Soviet unwillingness to reciprocate."

The communique took an unequivocal stand in support of the people of West Berlin who live 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain.

The ministers also declared that American, British and French troops to maintain troops in West Berlin could not be nullified by the Soviet Union alone. The Soviet Union is expected to sign a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany soon, giving the East German regime control of the Allied supply routes to West Berlin.

The communique quoted the NATO declaration of Dec. 16, 1956, to emphasize the alliance's determination to stand fast on Berlin.

The Atlantic ministers also declared the related problems of German reunification and Berlin can only be solved on the basis of self-determination of the German people, meaning a free election.

The ministers expressed hope that the prolonged nuclear test ban talks in Geneva and general disarmament negotiations this summer will produce agreements based on effective international control.

Stress was placed on the importance of full consultations between the allies.

The ministers asked the NATO Permanent Council to study all aspects of the military structure of the alliance "with a view to improving its deterrent and defensive strength."

Completion of the communique was carried out quickly to allow some ministers to rush off to Geneva to participate in an East-West conference on Laos.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk gave the conference a psychological lift Tuesday with a pledge to back up the defense of Western Europe with Polaris nuclear submarines.

Utilities Accept Bids On New Cars

Greenville Utilities Commissioners last night commended its employees for a safety award which was recently announced.

The commission won third place for their group in the nation for safety. A plaque was presented at a recent meeting of the Pitt County Safety Council in recognition of the safety accomplishment.

"I feel very proud of our employees," Superintendent Bloxam said. "We try to keep safety in the forefront."

Commissioner J. Ed Waldrop offered the motion of commendation for the utilities employees.

Commissioners accepted bids replacing three vehicles. A Ford Falcon station wagon was purchased for $1,802.09 to replace a 1955 Plymouth. Other bids received for the piece of equipment were Chevrolet Corvair, $1,778.44, Chevrolet Brentwood, $1,954, and a standard Ford, $2,020.

A 1953 pickup truck was replaced with a one-half ton Corvair ramp side Chevrolet at a cost of $1,802.09.

A third vehicle was replaced with a Chevrolet Corvair at $1,533.94. There was also a bid for a two door at $1,781.

The commission voted to return $10,000 each to time deposit at the State and Wachovia banks.

Salary for Supt. Leonard Bloxam was set at $1,000 for the month of June and the City Council is to supplement this with an amount to compensate for working with the new city manager.

Bloxam has been receiving salaries from both the utilities and the city for his combination job. However, when a new city manager reports in June, Bloxam will become full time utilities superintendent. His Utilities salary for the coming year will be determined when commissioners make up the new budget.

Commissioners set May 17 as the date for their annual inspection. That afternoon they will tour utilities facilities, have supper and that night there is to be a workshop session in City Hall.

Commissioners decided against renting spare building space to Coastal Electronics. This firm services two-way radio equipment and it had been using excess building space at the Utilities plant on a rental basis.

Chairman Charles Horne offered congratulations to Charles M. King, the city's new mayor, who was present at last night's meeting.

King expressed his appreciation and told the commission "We will get along fine together."

Bloxam reported that utilities crews have completed rebuilding electrical lines that will serve the VOA receiving station site west of Greenville.

Work on the underground electric system at Five Points is complete and a vault on Evans St. is under construction. Bloxam reported that a traffic light is to be installed at Tenth and Washington St. Street lights on Fifth St. in front of the college are to be replaced with mercury vapor lamps.

Bloxam also reported that 30 gas customers were connected to the city's distribution system in the west end section.

Grifton Board Orders Go-Ahead On Planning

GRIFTON—A motion to have the L. E. Wooten Company move ahead in preparing permanent plans for a new water well, sewer and water lines and sewer disposal plant was approved by members of the Grifton Town Board last night.

Meeting in regular session, the board discussed the water and sewer proposals. A bond issue for $105,000 water bonds and $130,000 sewerage bonds was approved in the May 1 election here. Members decided the water well will come first in improvements.

Meeting with the board was William Barlow of the Wooten company Town Clerk Joyce McCoy was authorized by the board to contact Dr. R. Hollowell to prepare the 1961-62 budget.

In other business, members approved a motion to set aside money paid on cemetery lots into a special cemetery fund. The money that has been paid for the lots has been going into the general fund, Mrs. McCoy explained.

Reports were heard from the police department, court and the Grifton Library. The police report revealed 31 arrests during the month of April, with 26 found guilty and five cases not prosed. Police worked 910 hours, attended six fires, two funerals and three accidents in their work schedule.

The Recorder's Court report showed a balance of $1,533.55.

The library report revealed that 526 books were issued during the month of April, an increase of 100 books over those circulated during the previous month. Fines collected totaled $5.86.

Board members were also informed that the most called for books during the recent month were history during the Civil War period, children's books and fiction, in that order.

Prowler Shoots Into Bed; Three Children Hurt

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP)—A prowler terrorized a family in the dark early morning hours today, before firing a random, ambush shot into a bed where seven children lay huddled in fear. Three of the children were wounded, none seriously.

Grimes told the sheriff he then heard the man crawl under the house, where his own gun discharged. This blast apparently struck nothing, officers said.

Grimes said the man then shouted, "I want your wife. Send her out or I'll kill the whole family."

Thinking the man was firing through the floor, Grimes said, he huddled the children into a single bed.

The blast that struck the children was then fired into the bed from a closed window. The window was one yard from the bed. Deputies said the man was standing on the ground when he fired into the window, and that the angle of the shot apparently saved the lives of some of the children.

Hinson said neither Grimes nor his wife could give a reason for the attack.

Masons Salute New Grand Master

Grand Master of Masons in North Carolina James W. Brewer of Greenville last night reaped of the laurels the two local Masonic lodges could muster as some 400 Masons and wives honored him at a two-hour reception in the local Moose Lodge auditorium.

Past Grand Master Robert L. Pugh of New Bern, who placed Brewer in the Grand Master line in 1953, praised the 49-year-old Greenville insurance man in a 20-minute address to the group.

Climaxing the two-hour reception was the presentation of a 1961-model automobile to the newly-elected grand master by Greenville Lodge No. 284 and Crown Point Lodge No. 708, sponsors of the reception. In addition to the new car, the two lodges handed Brewer a check for $850 to help with his expenses during his one-year term as grand master.

Brewer was elected and installed grand master at a statewide

Masonic meeting in New Bern April 19.

In his eulogy, Pugh described Brewer as the "little man with a big heart." The past grand master praised the program Brewer has adopted for his one-year in office as head of some 63,000 Tar Heel Masons.

Pugh expressed confidence in Brewer's capability as grand master. "I predict that it is going to be one of the most successful and profitable years the Grand Lodge of North Carolina has ever known."

He continued, "Our grand master has come forward with a program which bids fair to elicit the approval of every enthusiastic Mason in North Carolina."

Brewer, in a brief speech, following the presentation of the automobile, vowed to "live up to what you, my friends, expect of me."

Ayden Board Sets Deadline On Sewer Facilities Connections

AYDEN—A deadline of July 15 has been set by the Ayden Town Board for residents to make use of the sanitary facilities provided by the town.

At its monthly meeting this week, the board learned that the sanitary sewer facilities of Ayden are complete and have been tentatively accepted by town officials.

Accordingly, they asked that all residents who are presently on septic tanks or who have not made use of the sanitary facilities will be required to do so on or before July 15. On that date, the ordinance requiring that connection be made will be enforced. Town Manager Cleveland Taylor said.

The board, in other important action, named Larry Davis as vice judge of the Ayden Recorder's Court, to serve in the absence of the regular judge.

Members agreed that bids would be received on an underground tank of sufficient size to hold a tank wagon of gasoline. The town already buys its gasoline in bulk, but storage facilities are not adequate to purchase tank wagon lots. Purchase of the gasoline in tank wagon lots would be more advantageous in affecting a better price, Taylor explained.

A plan of land and subdivision of lots in connector with the Sunrise Park subdivision, located in the eastern section of town, was approved by the board.

In other action, members accepted the report of the registrar on the May 1 election. The audit for the coming year was awarded to Williams and Wall of Raleigh.

It was also agreed by members that the interior of the community building be painted. The color will be selected later.

She played the piano and sang "Bonnie Blue Flag" as an example of Southern music and "Rally Round the Flag" as an example of Northern music.

She also sang other Civil War songs as "Yellow Rose of Texas," "Tenting Tonight on the Old Campground," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Dixie." The latter two are known as patriotic songs of today.

PLEASANT HILL CLUB PLANS PROJECTS — Do you like brunk stew? If so, you should have been around when members of the Pleasant Hill Home Demonstration Club in Edgecombe County cooked and sold 408 quarts. The money received for the stew will be used to finance community projects.

Mrs. Eugenia P. VanLandingham, home economics agent, says the club members also sponsored their annual stunt night. Through the use of local talent numbers, wholesome fun and entertainment was provided for the entire family.

PATTERN EXCHANGE — Why not exchange patterns? Eureka Home Demonstration Club members in Alamance County have been exchanging shrubs for years but had not thought of exchanging patterns.

"Several women have children's patterns which can be used again," reports Miss Katherine Millsaps, home economics agent. "The women think they can save on their clothing bills — by exchanging patterns."

FURNITURE REFINISHED — "Of the 17 pieces of furniture brought to the refinishing workshop, 12 were completed," says Miss Fleta Harrelson, home economics agent in Bladen County.

"Mrs. J. S. Melvin brought two drawers from an old piece of furniture that had been stored in an outside building for ten years," reports Miss Harrelson. "After cleaning and finding a beautiful walnut wood, she went home and finished the piece of furniture."

FABRIC FINISHES — "The wearability of many fabrics have been increased or decreased because of the finish," said Mrs. Ann Davenport, home economics agent as she discussed fabric finishes at club meetings. "Study your label so you will know how to take care of the material."

"This information is so important to me," declared Mrs. R. S. Knight, Jr., Columbia, Rt. 1. "Now we will be able to save on our clothing dollars by knowing what type of material to buy."

PLANNING FAIR BOOTH — The Joyner Home Demonstration Club in Iredell County has decided to get a jump on the fair season and start to work on their fair booth. After a brain storming session which produced many ideas, they decided to have a booth on pure water.

Mrs. Nancy Myers, home economics agent, says club members plan to carry out a pure water educational program through the various clubs in their community so they will have background material for their booth.

Bethel Students In Spring Recital

BETHEL — Mrs. Robert Beverly will present a group of piano students in their annual spring recital at the Bethel Elementary School Auditorium May 15 at 7:45 p.m.

The following pupils will participate in the program: Jim Taylor, Dwan Thomas, Sandra Nicholson, Sally Ann Whitehurst, Sue Ellen Cannon, Bobbie Lee Tetterton, Eleanor Weeks, Betty Faye James, Cynthia Manning, Beth Manning, Teena Thilpen, Mary Agnes Hammond, Marsha Philfer, Sue Carson, and Sandra Lassiter.

No Easy Task Confronts These Five

New officials of the city of Greenville today have taken their oaths of office and upon their shoulders for the next two years will rest the primary responsibility for operation of the government of the city.

A little more than a week ago these five men were candidates for election to office along with others who sought the posts these five have won. Today, however, these five men are not candidates, but rather they are the elected representatives of all the people of Greenville.

It is not to be expected that their every decision during the next two years will meet with the approval of all of the citizens of Greenville. It is not expected that these five men will unanimously agree on what is the best solution to each matter of business which confronts them as city officials during the coming two years. Insofar as possible, however, it is their job to operate the city's government in keeping with the wishes of the majority of the citizens of Greenville and in an effective and efficient manner.

It is not an easy task these five men have assumed today. The job of providing good government is never an easy task. It is one which requires considerable time and effort on the part of the elected officials.

During the next two years Mayor Charles King and Councilmen Aldridge, McGowan, Brimley and Lee will face many problems as the representatives of the people of Greenville and as city officials who will have to make final decisions on matters of government. In the future as in the past the problems will not be insurmountable so long as the elective officials give their careful study, consideration and diligent effort to the task of resolving the problems.

As the elected officials of the city, these five men will need the cooperation of the citizens of Greenville as a whole in carrying out the wishes of the people. They likewise should have the benefit of the thoughts of the citizenry as a whole on matters pertaining to the city's government and its operation.

We wish for Mayor King and the members of the City Council who serve with him every success during their term of office, for we are well aware, as are these officials, that the successful operation of the local government is essential to the continued progress of Greenville and the betterment of its citizens as a whole.

Sharing Of Opinions Is Important To U.S.

Former President Eisenhower's decision to speak out as a private citizen on public issues is a decision which is in keeping with the finest American traditions and one which has been followed by other former presidents to the benefit of the nation.

During the Eisenhower administration former President Truman did not hesitate to speak out on major issues of national importance, and while his statements were often controversial, they made an important contribution to the cross-section of opinion held throughout the nation. The same thing may well apply to what Gen. Eisenhower has to say in the months and years ahead as various issues and important questions face the government and the American people.

Certainly the American people do not expect a former president to try to determine policy or give orders to the administration which succeeds his. At the same time it is generally recognized that a man who has held the highest office of the land is certainly one of the most qualified persons in the nation to speak as a private citizen on public issues. He has a first-hand appreciation of the problems and an understanding of the issues that few other persons have had the opportunity to acquire. The fact that he shares his opinions with the public—whether they agree or disagree with what he says—is of importance to the nation and the decisions which will determine the course the nation follows.

A former president, in our opinion, not only has the right to speak out as a private citizen on major public issues—but indeed it is his obligation to do so for the welfare of the nation.

How Can U.S. Best Use Power?

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the major dilemmas of the Kennedy administration is not lack of military power, which it has to enormous degree, but how to use what it has to stiff-arm the advance of communism.

It can't in any situation use that power without risking war. In some places it doesn't want to take the risk—as in Laos; in others it appears willing to—as in West Berlin.

Where it is unwilling to take the risk it needs programs to win the allegiance of people who will otherwise buy communism if it seems to fit their needs.

Just because Americans despise communism, it doesn't follow that backward peoples also despise it if it offers more than they have now or can look forward to. In short, in some places ideas are better than tanks.

The administration says it is determined to defend West Berlin if the Russians try to shut it off, but it has to. The city is both the gateway to Western Europe and a symbol of Western unity.

Thus Secretary of State Dean Rusk at Oslo Monday was able to join with other foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in a firm resolve to stand up for Berlin against expected Russian pressure.

This could mean war. But unless Berlin is defended, the Western alliance probably will fall apart. If so, the individual European nations will have to make their separate peace with Russia and this country will be left alone and isolated.

But the Kennedy administration has shown none of this determination in moving into Laos against the Red-led Pathet Lao guerrillas who have taken over two-thirds of the country while the United States gnawed its nails and waited for a cease-fire.

The eventual loss of all Laos to communism seems inevitable. But Laos, in an inside pocket of Asia, is a bad place for the United States to get involved militarily. There was no support for such a move in this country.

But the next and much more important effort of communism, is in South Viet Nam. Again the United States may face the choice of intervening or seeing all Viet Nam go down the Communist drain. If it does, all Southeast Asia is open to Red pressure.

The administration talks of training guerrilla fighters and sending them into backward countries to train natives in that kind of warfare against potential Red guerrillas.

But the basic question remains: Are the backward people anywhere going to show any interest in fighting Communists if they offer promises and programs which seem better and more immediate than anything the local government backed by this country proposes?

Last Sunday in the Washington Post reporter Warren Unna, after a trip to Southeast Asia, wrote of the war in Laos where this country backs a right-wing government and Russia backs the Pathet Lao guerrillas.

"By general acknowledgment of both American and British officials on the spot, the Pathet Lao is capable of winning any nationwide election hands down," Unna wrote.

Unna didn't say why the Laotians prefer the Pathet Lao to the American-backed right-wing government. But a guess can be made: The Pathet Lao has a program that makes more sense to the Laotians.

The story of Laos is likely to be repeated again and again in Southeast Asia and elsewhere unless this country can push the government it backs into doing more for the people than the Communists promise.

All Very Space-Conscious

With the recent U.S. achievement in the Space Race, it is probably safe to guess that Americans in general have begun to perk their ears more quickly and exhibit more attentiveness when space-related subjects are at hand.

And it is also probably safe to guess that the majority of Americans are laymen only. That is, a great many of us can get ourselves lost in spacious terminology of space.

Still, it's quite interesting to the average American to sit quietly and listen to the space vocabularies of the nation's experts in that field. We are eager to learn.

One term we have learned to recognize appears a good example of how astronaut lingo can baffle. It's a common, everyday word that we've been using for years and years. But whoever wrote the six-letter word into our language probably never thought it would be applied to leaving this earth.

A little booklet we scanned through the other day was entitled: "Escape from the Earth." Its contents explained what is meant by "escape velocity." It also outlined the basic steps in generating enough force in the proper direction to "escape" from the earth.

As we expose our earth-bound minds to such a brand new idea, it may well be difficult to understand why we should consider a journey into space an escape. "Escape" usually means hasty departure from something undesirable. That's for prisoners and the like, we always thought. And, even with all the space activity nowadays, it's hard for us to honestly believe this old earth is really undesirable.

It's been several days now since it happened, but it was indeed an unusual event. Pitt County Clerk of Superior Court D. T. House Jr. explained to us he was performing a portion of his duty—safeguarding the efficient operation of his office in the courthouse.

It was on a Monday morning just after House and his staff had arrived to begin another week of keeping tabs on the business of the clerk's office.

It was a normal Monday morning. That is, it was normal except for one thing. When House and his crew entered the office that morning, they were not walking into an empty room.

No indeed. A visitor was in- sisted already. Maybe he had been there all weekend. Nobody ever knew.

Minutes after the regular occupants arrived, the intruder suddenly made himself known as he dashed madly across the floor toward the nearest exit.

Judge House caught him half-way across and crushed his escape effort. The intruder died instantly.

The clerk explained: "I had to kill him. My girls in here always do a good job. But we wouldn't have gotten anything done with that mouse loose in the office."

One of the misfortunes of the professional writer is that he is often too verbose to be interesting, too bogged down in the jargon of his discipline, as he calls his profession, to be readable. He writes for a handful of colleagues who will praise him and for a faculty which will vote him a full professorship. But his impact upon his community and his time is nil.

I do not read many scientific journals because some of those subjects are closed to me, but I do read many learned journals in fields with which I am familiar and take ideas from them and often quote from them. But I must admit that much of it is hard to pin down. The academician is fearful lest he be suspected of being a layman; therefore he writes in a style which will make him sound like a translation from the German. That was not true of an earlier generation of learned men, such as Charles A. Beard, James Harvey Robinson, John R. Commons, or even Woodrow Wilson

An Idea Clearing House

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Recently General David Sarnoff discussed the problem of communicating scientific knowledge. Some comments were made on this subject in these writings and have received an interesting comment from a young scientist, part of which I quote you:

"I was very interested in your article on Dave Sarnoff's suggestion for an idea clearing house; I thought of this idea several years ago but dismissed it as being too expensive. Nevertheless, the entire scientific community needs such a system imperatively. If competent, highly trained brainpower is the nation's most valuable, and rarest, resource, it is surely a waste to have it spend its time thumbing through indexes in libraries. With the every increasing flood of literature, a scientist can spend more time doing paper research than the lab research he is paid for. If, while looking through his microscope, he sees a green spot in a cell, he ought to be able to dial 'green spot' into a computer and be supplied within a minute with a bibliography covering everything that has ever been written on the subject of green spots. Then he will have time to do his work."

"The problem, however, doesn't end here. At the present, the only way a new fact or theory can be given circulation is through the professional journals. At one time when little work was being done in the sciences, the journals were adequate for the task. Today, however, with tens of thousands of laboratories cranking out endless rivers of data, the professional journals are unable to do their job. Some of the better ones are publishing material submitted as far back as three years with the backlog growing each month. Even more appalling, important contributions are being published in little known periodicals which no one reads simply because the line is too long at the bigger journals. These important works are completely without notice only to be rediscovered much later by duplicated effort which could have been avoided by such an institution as Sarnoff's clearing house.

"The worst problem, though, is the politics of getting published. Many scientists rush into print to save their university positions. Others wear public relations like a general wear, his ribbons, and crowd the journals at the expense of better work by newcomers. On the other hand, many young men will fight to get published just to get a better initial job, even if their theses aren't of sufficient scope to interest an entire profession. These and other abuses pervert many periodicals from their proper purposes, thus making them even less efficient means of transmitting scientific advancements."

Young men come straight to the point because they have nothing to lose but their youth. Excellent thinking is done by young scholars, even in the social sciences. This material is likely to be in the very samll circulations and are often passed over unnoticed for years, until some popularizer brings them to the fore in a newspaper or magazine article.

One of the misfortunes of the professional writer is that he is often too verbose to be interesting, too bogged down in the jargon of his discipline, as he calls his profession, to be readable. He writes for a handful of colleagues who will praise him and for a faculty which will vote him a full professorship. But his impact upon his community and his time is nil.

N.C. Newspaper Circulation Up

By LYNN NISBET
NEWSPAPERS—There are almost enough daily newspapers printed in North Carolina to provide one paper for every family in the state.

The population of North Carolina in the 1960 census was 4,556,115. These people are distributed among something more than a million families, the average family including about four people.

The Editor & Publisher Year Book, which is the "bible" for newspaper statistics, lists 47 daily newspapers published in North Carolina in 1960, with aggregate circulation of 1,051,768. A few of these papers go outside the state. Actual figures are not available, but it is believed that a lot more daily papers come into the state than go out. The big stacks of New York, Washington, Atlanta and other metropolitan papers at the newsstands is evidence of this fact.

News stand sales of Sunday papers from out of state exceed sales of in-state papers, because large percentage of the in-state papers are delivered on regular circulation.

MORNING—"There are nine morning dailies published in North Carolina with aggregate circulation of 504,715—in ranking from the Little Tryon Bulletin with slightly more than 2,000 circulation up to the Charlotte and Raleigh papers with more than 125,000 each.

Morning papers are published at Asheville, Charlotte, Durham, Greensboro, Raleigh, Thomasville, Tryon, Wilmington and Winston-Salem. (The Thomasville paper is in fact a morning edition of the High Point Enterprise, is new and circulation of less than 5,000.) Every point except Thomasville and Tryon that has a morning paper also has an afternoon paper.

AFTERNOON—There are 38 afternoon newspapers with aggregate circulation of 547,053—nearly 43,000 more than the total morning figure. The range is from slightly above 3,000 for the Tarboro Southerner to about 65,000 for the Charlotte News.

Afternoon papers are published at Asheville, Asheville, Burlington, Charlotte, Concord, Dunn, Durham, Elizabeth City, Fayetteville, Gastonia, Goldsboro, Greensboro, Greenville, Henderson, Hendersonville, Hickory, High Point, Jacksonville, Kinston, Kinston, Lenoir, Lexington, Lumberton, Morganton, New Bern, Raleigh, Reidsville, Roanoke Rapids, Rocky Mount, Salisbury, Sanford, Shelby, Statesville, Tarboro, Washington, Wilmington, Wilson and Winston-Salem.

The afternoon papers at Asheville, Concord, Fayetteville, High Point, Kannapolis, Roanoke Rapids, Rocky Mount and Salisbury have Sunday morning editions. At Asheville, Wilmington and Winston-Salem the morning and afternoon papers combine for a joint Sunday edition.

NON-DAILY—The North Carolina Press Association directory lists 145 non-daily newspapers published in this state—113 weekly, 29 semi-weekly, and three tri-weekly. The circulation range of these papers is from a few hundred to more than 5,000. The figures have not been added for purpose of this story, but the total will go above a quarter million.

Comparing current newspaper statistics with figures of a quarter century or more ago, shows fewer newspapers in the non-daily field, but larger aggregate circulation and greatly enhanced presence for those presently published. Many of the non-dailies have editorial staffs and mechanical facilities far above the average of the daily papers between World Wars I and II.

SERVICE—The newspapers published in North Carolina are dedicated to serving their local constituency. Every daily paper and a great many of the non-dailies have "big wire" facilities of the Associated Press, the United Press International, or some other—or both—including wire-photo service. This enables them to give their readers first hand news from all corners of the globe—and from outer space.

Primarily the North Carolina papers devote attention to "local" news, matters of chief concern to North Carolinians and of less importance to people living elsewhere. With few exceptions the North Carolina papers are owned and operated by citizens of North Carolina. In those exceptional cases, the men and women who do the actual writing and management are native to the soil and indigenous to the customs of the state.

A casual glance at the editorial and news pages of the state papers will show that despite this local primacy, they are not "provincial." The diversity of feature stories and columns presenting all sides of almost every issue afford opportunity for general appraisal on other than localized basis.

This variety of coverage and the fact that North Carolinians spend some $20 million a year for newspapers—plus other millions for magazines and trade publications—would seem to belie the accusation sometimes made that Tar Heels are ignorantly provincial.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
BETTER PAY ATTENTION
Alcoholism is becoming one of the most serious problems in our national life. The cause of alcoholism is beverage alcohol although people sometimes try to make it appear that the cause of alcoholism is not alcohol at all but psychological tendencies which lead men to drink immoderately. To be sure, these tendencies complicate the situation but only in a small percentage of cases do they actually cause alcoholism to occur. And of course, alcohol comes into the picture eventually. There can be no alcoholism without alcohol.

One hundred deaths occur on the highways of our country every day. In the case of half of these, alcohol is in some way involved. Two-thirds of all the arrests reported by the F. B. I.

are in some way associated with drinking. As a homebreaker and as the cause of discord between husband and wife, friend and friend, alcohol clearly holds a place of first importance.

Why do people drink? The best answer is, "Because they want to." Other things may enter in to complicate the situation, but the desire for temporary relief from frustration, tension, and despair leads people to seek the solace of alcohol.

In the case of an amazing number a habit is formed, and all too frequently this habit becomes an addiction.

We may not like to face this problem, but face it we must. It becomes increasingly so serious that we will do something about it or it will do something about us and to our civilization.

Other Editors Saying U.S. Has Saved Face

(Henderson Dispatch)

It would have been a calamity of the first magnitude had Commander Shepard's dash into outer space failed. United States prestige rode with him 115 miles into the heavens and more than 300 miles down the testing range over the Atlantic Ocean.

Shepard's recovery in apparent perfect condition demonstrated that this country at long last is on the road to achievements in the space race greater than anything yet attempted. What was accomplished, however, did not equal the Russian astronaut's orbiting the earth in an hour and a half, if he did that, last month, as the Kremlin proudly boasted.

There can be no doubt about the reality of the United States test. All communications agencies were on hand to describe and photograph the take-off and likewise recovery of the Redstone booster rocket far out in the ocean. In contrast, the Russians not only did not permit photographs of their man circling the globe, but thus far have offered no details as to where his flight began nor where it ended. Withholding of such information has created doubt in many minds that the space flight actually took place. To be on the safe side in recognizing Russian capability, however, we had best assume that the claim is on the level.

No attempt the United States has ever made was as well prepared as this one. Nothing was left undone to assure success in the venture. Fortunately, it clicked to approximate perfection. Shepard was in communication by radio with ground forces most of the time he was aloft. Moreover, the landing was in the precise spot planned, indicating possibilities in development of rockets of this type in the future.

Assuming that the Russian Gagarin made the orbit credited to him, what Shepard has now done is rather tame by comparison. But at least there is no conjecture of its reality. It will be a starting point for greater things in the conquest of outer space. It was the first American attempt to send a man aloft and return him safely to the surface.

How many times the Russians tried the same stunt before succeeding the world has not been permitted to know. There may have been a number, and human life may have been lost in the undertaking.

For the United States this was an absolute must. It just had to succeed, for the sake of morale here at home and for maintaining American prestige. Later this year it is planned to orbit a man around the earth, and for that the preparations will be equally as meticulous down to the last infinitesimal detail.

In this success, the United States has saved face in scientific achievement. It has been demonstrated beyond any doubt that, while we may have trailed the Russians, there is the capacity to equal their feat and possibly in the near future to exceed it. There is full justification for the rejoicing that is felt throughout this country, as much for what will be done in the future as to what Shepard did Friday.

By ELMER ROESSNER
The increase and expansion of minimum wages will build into the American economy even more pay rises, price increases and inflation.

There will be far-reaching effects of the law that brings 3,600,000 more workers under Federal minimums and gives them and 24,000,000 others a minimum of $1.15 an hour this year and $1.25 an hour in 1963.

No one, except perhaps the unemployed can fall to sympathize with a worker getting less than $50 for a 40-hour week. Yet the nation cannot escape reckoning the cost of such a minimum. It has a cost, too—otherwise why not make the minimum $1.50 an hour, or $2.50, or $5?

One of the costs arises from the fact that when the least skilled and least apt workers are raised to $1.25, the more skilled will want equal, and perhaps even proportionate, increases.

If Good Old-Joe, the plant sweeper, gets a raise from $1 to $1.15 an hour, then Good-Young Marty, who has been getting $1.15 an hour as an apprentice machine operator, will want $1.30 an hour. And the machine operator now getting $1.30 will want $1.45 or $2 an hour. And so it will go through shop after shop. Some will be content with equivalent raises; others will want proportionate boosts. Even foremen getting $160 a week will feel they are worth $200.

Wage differentials for skills, responsibilities and other elements are an integral part of the economic system, and the increase in minimums—as it has in the past—will exert an upward pressure on all pay.

The added money to pay these increases must come out of prices. Wages are one

A Lasting Quality In Sophocles' Play

During the fourth century B.C. Sophocles, one of the greatest of Greek playwrights, wrote a trilogy of plays dealing with the Theban saga, the story of Oedipus and his family.

The action of the plays ranged from Oedipus' killing of his father and his marrying his own mother, to the deaths of Polynices and Eteocles, who died in hand to hand combat, fighting over the throne vacated by Oedipus.

Sophocles wrote his "Antigone" about 442 B.C., and in 1943 M. Jean Anouilh, France's greatest living playwright, adapted the play in a contemporary language that still retains the full force of the intense desires and beliefs of Antigone and Creon.

The conflict between these two people is presented in simple terms. Creon has inflicted upon the dead Polynices a punishment which the Greeks looked upon with peculiar terror.

Both playwrights, and certainly Anouilh, universalizes the conflict until it becomes basically a question of whether man-made and tyrannically enforced law should take precedence over what any individual conceives in his heart to be divine law.

Anouilh's translation, adapted into English by Lewis Galantiere, opened at the Cort Theatre in New York in February, 1946, with Katharine Cornell and Sir Cedric Hardwicke in the leading roles.

In the Playhouse production, many familiar faces will be seen in the leading roles. Lois Garren and H.D. Rowe will portray Antigone and Creon; Ralph Rives and Tom Hull will be seen as the Chorus, a familiar and necessary element in Greek drama.

Claude Garren is directing and staging the production. The play will be presented in McGinnis Auditorium tonight, Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m. There are no reserved seats and no tickets are necessary.

Write-In Votes For 5th Grader In Mayor's Race

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—Doug Parker, 11, a fifth-grade student, polled 16 per cent of the votes Tuesday as a last-minute write-in candidate for mayor.

He got 48 votes to 251 for Democratic nominee A. D. Cudd.

The whole thing was a stunt cooked up by Spartanburg Herald newsmen to point up the apathy among the city's 14,000 registered voters.

Observing the small turnout in the well-publicized municipal election, the news staff decided to see just how difficult it would be to elect a write-in candidate in the face of such voter apathy.

They started a telephone campaign in Doug's behalf at 4 p.m. The campaign lasted an hour. In the next two hours before the polls closed, Doug got his 48 votes.

Heated Protests At School Meet

MARSHALL, N.C. (AP)—Protests over the firing of Mars Hill School Principal Ralph E. Neill Jr. grew heated Tuesday, taking the form of a noisy demonstration by mothers and a strike by school bus drivers.

More than 600 persons crowded into the courtroom of the Madison County Courthouse here for an impromptu meeting with school officials while the demonstrations continued at the school.

Zeno Ponder, member of the county board of education, and Fred W. Anderson, school superintendent, told the crowd that the Mars Hill School Committee acted within the law last month when it fired Neill and subsequently elected Erskine Bailey to succeed him.

The meeting, punctuated by heated discussions, eventually broke up without any apparent results. However, six women stayed behind and asked Ponder to arrange a meeting of the Mars Hill School Committee and a select group of parents from the school district. The meeting is expected to be scheduled for this week.

Only about 75 of the 383 students at the school attended classes Tuesday, chiefly because of the strike by school bus drivers. The meeting at the courthouse stayed in an uproar. At one point while Ponder was speaking, the crowd became noisy and Ponder said, "Apparently no one here believes anything I say."

The crowd responded with a loud "hooray."

nor. The 100 extra patrolmen would cost the state $1,354,000 during the 1961-63 biennium.

Experience resulting from a similar inspection measure enacted in 1947 was recounted by opponents to the 1961 bill. A strong wave of criticism from Tar Heel motorists who encountered long delays while their cars were inspected under the old bill resulted in its repeal in 1949.

In spite of those memories, the bill had passed the Senate and had received a favorable report from the House Roads Committee. It came closer to success this year than in any other legislative session since 1947.

Gov. Sanford, who strongly endorsed the proposal, told his news conference he was disappointed in the vote.

One Member Of CORE Tourists 'Roughed Up'

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP)—One member of a bi-racial group making a bus tour of the South to test segregation in transportation accommodations reported that he and two companions were roughed up at a bus station here Tuesday.

Police said they had a report of a disturbance at the bus terminal, but that no charges were filed against anyone.

Albert Bigelow, a white architect from Cos Cob, Conn., said he and a Negro companion, John Lewis of Nashville, Tenn., declined to press charges.

Bigelow told newsmen he and Lewis were attacked by several white men at the Greyhound terminal when they started to enter the waiting room for white people. Another member of the group, Genevieve Hughes, white, of Chevy Chase Md., was knocked to the floor when a white man brushed past her, Bigelow said. The group, traveling under auspices of the Congress on Racial Equality (CORE), was to leave by bus today for Columbia and Sumter, S.C.

Meanwhile, Joe Perkins, 27, a Negro, of New York City, faces trial today at nearby Charlotte, N.C., on a trespass charge. Police said he refused to leave a barbershop Monday when asked by the operator to do so. A companion, Edward Blanker, heir of Tucson, Ariz., remained in Charlotte as a witness.

Bigelow said Lewis was attacked by two men after one of them told Lewis he couldn't go into the white waiting room. Bigelow said he stepped between Lewis and the two men and that three other men jumped on him.

Police arrived then, Bigelow said, adding that he and Lewis were asked if they wished to press charges. "We don't think that's the way to settle these things," Bigelow said he told police.

Bigelow said he received a cut on the cheek and a bruise on the face, and that Lewis had a lump over one eye.

Other members in the party of 12 arrived at the Trailways bus terminal to find the rest rooms locked. Bigelow told newsmen there were no incidents there.

After leaving Sumter, the group plans stops in Atlanta, Ga., Birmingham, and Montgomery, Ala., Jackson, Miss., and New Orleans. They left Washington Sunday. Their first stop was at Greensboro, N.C.

During a short meeting, members also approved payment of the bills. No new board members attended the meeting, it was learned.

Board Accepts Election Results

GRIMESLAND — A report on results of the May 1 election was accepted by the Grimesland Town Board at its regular meeting last night.

Earlier, Sen. W. M. Eubank of Pender and 13 others sent in the fifth redistricting bill. It would place Democrat Basil Whitener in the same district as Charles R. Jonas, the state's only Republican congressman.

However, Eubank's bill differed from another somewhat similar measure in that it would place Mecklenburg County, a Republican stronghold, in the Whitener-Jonas district.

Production Peak Hit By Holstein

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (AP) — Ever wonder how much milk a cow produces?
The Holstein-Friesian Association of America has announced a production record by a 5-year-old Holstein in this western Pennsylvania area. The Holstein, owned by McChesney Brothers, produced 18,073 pounds of milk and 750 pounds of butter fat in 324 days. It was milked twice daily.

One citizen, Mrs. Marcus T. Smith, is less enthusiastic over the "new" tax bill. She figures it'll cost the family about $12 on its home and 20 acres of land.

for road tax from the 20 or 50 male citizens living inside the town limits.

A post office, a federal government-maintained boat ramp and picnic area and a Baptist Church are just about all there is to Parkville's "business and public" enterprises.

city, not all citizens are against new taxes even though it'll take more out of their pockets.

Womack speaks with authority. He's one of the town's councilmen. As the saying goes — big or little, taxes like death, are hard to avoid.

Paralyzed, Near Blind, & Happy

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I can still read my Bible. I have a wonderful family and friends who care. What more can a man want?"

Bob Hope wrote a letter that will go with the record to every disc jockey in the country. Everybody hopes it will sell a million copies. It should.

Allen; onetime featured pianist with Kay Kyser and Freddie Martin, hasn't been able to do much but pray in recent weeks. His prayers apparently have been answered.

Allen's spinal cord and neck were broken in a 1950 auto accident at Lake Tahoe, Nev. Discouraged, he shunned the world and his friends for a year.

He is a candidate for the A. B. degree and is slated for graduation next fall.

At the college he is majoring in art and specializing in commercial art.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Irvin B. Parker of Whitakers.

Indian Souvenir Industry Meets Japanese Rival

MACY, Neb. (AP) — To the Omaha Indian tribe, trying to build up a local industry, the idea of making Indian souvenirs looked like a natural.

An adult education class in arts and crafts started the business last year and made a profit disposing of handwork through local outlets.

But when the Indians branched out they found the market glutted with "Indian souvenirs—made in Japan."

"They're just able to make things cheaper than we can," said craftsman Wilson Wolfe.

The Indians haven't given up, though. With some of the white man's sales promotion and a shift to low-cost items, the Omaha has hope to boost sales this year.

The souvenir business is part of a self-help program designed to get the Omahas away from their dependence on agriculture.

FARMVILLE GRAIN MILL SITE—Construction of a mammoth feed mill and grain storage facility by Farmers Cooperative Exchange, Inc., is expected to begin on this site within three weeks. Test boring operations to determine the type of foundations required for the FCX installation have recently been completed, according to company officials. Actual construction of the project—including facilities for storing some 300,000 bushels of grain—will require an estimated six months. The giant feed mill will be located on S. Fields St. in Farmville, just south of the Formica Flakeboard plant. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Thousands Of Midwest Families Homeless In Floods

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Thousands of families in the Midwest were homeless today in the wake of costly spring floods which inundated parts of Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas and Southern Illinois.

Damage was counted in the millions. River town dwellers and flood crews continued to fight the rampaging waters. Hundreds of schools were closed in the nation's midlands, communities were isolated and some major and secondary roads were impassable. Officials in some communities feared outbreaks of typhoid fever from contaminated water. Red Cross shelters were kept busy aiding the homeless.

Near Washington, Ind., the west fork of the White River spilled over an earthen levee, but weary workers hoped that a two-foot wall of sandbags would hold the flood crest. Thirty National Guardsmen and volunteers filled breaks as they developed.

The sandbagging crew totaled almost 400 during the night as personnel from Crane Naval Depot helped volunteers.

Flood conditions paralyzed business operations in many Midwest towns and hamlets.

But there were a few bright spots in the murky water picture. No rain splashed across the drenched flood belt and fair weather was the immediate outlook for most areas. The worst appeared over in some sections in Ohio and Oklahoma, many streams and rivers were bank full but the threat of major flooding appeared easing.

As the rains halted in the midlands, soaked with heavy downpours for four or five days, stormy weather spread into eastern sections of the country.

Rain, hail and strong winds Tuesday hammered areas in New York, Virginia, Vermont, Florida, Pennsylvania, North Carolina and the District of Columbia. The gusty winds caused property damage in some places.

Thousands of persons in river towns in the flood-stricken sections joined in the fight to stem the surging waters.

Soldiers, sailors, civil defense workers, school boys and women worked to hold back the muddy waters from lapping into the lowland homes or spreading into business districts. The Red Cross and the Salvation Army were at the flood scenes to give aid and comfort and shelter.

Thousands of acres of farmland are inundated. In Illinois, the Kaskaskia River, which is fed by many streams in the central part of the state, burst through weakened levees near Vandalia. The water spilled over more than 40,000 acres of land, including 700 acres of the Illinois State Peni-

Farm. Several families along the river were evacuated. Several other rivers in southern sections were on the loose.

Hardest hit in the St. Louis area were Cahokia, Ill., the Meramec Valley region in south St. Louis County and the bottomlands of the Missouri River in St. Charles County, north of St. Louis.

In Indiana, 360 volunteers, national guardsmen and Navy personnel sandbagged the earthen levee in Elnora, threatened by floodwaters of the West Fork of the White River. The river was four feet above the town level and civil defense officials said the entire population of about 900 would be endangered if the levee broke.

In Centralia, Ill., near the nation's population center, residents were without drinking water Tuesday after the city's water pumps were submerged under 20 feet of water. The city's sewage disposal plant was destroyed by fire after floodwaters caused a short-circuit in a switch.

In Kentucky, floodwaters from the Salt River covered two-thirds of Shepherdsville but no casualties were reported. Uncontaminated drinking water was reported in critical supply in the town of 1,500 in the west central part of the state.

A Relaxed, Wise-Cracking Nixon Is On Political Tour

By ARTHUR EDSON
DETROIT (AP) — There is a new Richard M. Nixon political in about the land.

It's a Nixon most people never saw, a Nixon relaxed and quick with the wisecrack.

Nixon moves on to Columbus, Ohio, to wind up his weeklong tour tonight. Although he will continue to whack away at Democrats, he may occasionally drop the deadly seriousness that has become almost a Nixon trademark.

You will remember the tone of the last presidential campaign. Grim was the word for John F. Kennedy, even grimmer were the words for Richard M. Nixon.

What jesting there was usually came in set jokes or comments that were repeated over and over in town after town.

Nixon still follows that pattern. But the former vice president shows he also has unrehearsed flashes of humor.

Tuesday at a Detroit Press Club news conference Nixon was asked the inevitable question: has he closed that door on running for governor of California in 1962?

"The answer is yes," Nixon said with a grin, "but many people in California are saying, 'Open the door, Richard.'"

This is the title of a vaudeville song popular a dozen or more years ago. It brought an appreciative laugh.

Nixon is fresh from defeat. He says he isn't running for anything. The next presidential race is far off.

There are no bands for Nixon, few banners, no parades.

But the crowds have been large, and the talks sound like midseason campaign talk.

Nixon drew 550 persons to the Detroit Press club luncheon, and Tuesday night, at a combination stage spectacular and Republican fund raising spree, 12,500 tickets were sold, at from $5 to $50 apiece.

By moving the show about Michigan for six successive nights, with a different Republican speaker each night, the Republicans hope to pick up $400, Monday night in Flint Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., spoke after two hours of entertainment, and found the crowd evaporating.

Nixon took no chances, and restless.

The hall was about two-thirds filled when he came on first. Nixon took note of his position. "It's the act you throw away," he said cheerfully. "He's the one who warms up the audience for the stars who are to come."

Doughnut Man Helped Missile

OLEAN, N. Y. (AP)—A doughnut salesman helped the Air Force show off its Minuteman missile recently.

A 60-foot display model of the missile was supposed to be raised on a truck at a downtown intersection but its crew couldn't get it up because of a power failure in the lifting device.

Along came doughnut salesman Richard Lord in his truck. He offered the use of his truck's spare generator.

The Air Force accepted and in a few minutes the Minuteman was pointed skyward.

Mild Stroke For Edmund Hilary

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A message Tuesday said Sir Edmund Hilary of New Zealand, conqueror of Mt. Everest, suffered a mild stroke Sunday on his current Himalayan expedition.

The radio said there was no cause for anxiety and that he was walking back toward Mingbo base camp at 19,000 feet. Lady Hilary, in Auckland, N.Z., has been informed.

Hilary had hoped to top the 27,937-foot Makalu Peak without oxygen this month.

The heat of a lightning bolt causes nitrogen to combine with oxygen. The nitrogen oxides dissolve in rain, forming dilute nitric acid which reacts with minerals in the earth to form nitrate fertilizer.

Minor Overhaul At Sewage Plant

AYDEN — Iron work at the sewage disposal plant here is receiving a minor overhaul, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said yesterday.

The iron work is being cleaned and sanded and is being painted. The job will probably be finished about May 15.

Reform Candidate Believed A Victim

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP)—George Ratterman, former Notre Dame and pro football quarterback tapped by reform groups as candidate for Campbell County sheriff, calls his arrest with a woman in a Newport hotel a frameup.

Ratterman, 38, said "the decent citizens cannot help but deplore these underworld tactics."

State Control Of Art Society Seems Assured

RALEIGH — A public hearing of Senate and House State Government Committees found the North Carolina State Art Society in harmony with proposed legislation to vest control of the organization in the State.

With controversy apparently ironed out prior to the hearing, Sen. Robert Lee Humber of Pitt, speaking for the Art Society, pointed out only minor amendments his group wishes to suggest.

The bill, introduced in the Senate by Claude Currie of Durham and J. C. Eagles Jr. of Wilson, and in the House by Dave Britt of Robeson, provides that the North Carolina Museum of Art be designated as a State agency.

Under the bill, the Board of Trustees of the Museum would consist of the Governor, Superintendent of Public Instruction, a member designated by the Art Society, and eight members appointed by the Governor.

The Board would have power to adopt rules and regulations for the Museum, elect a museum director and prescribe his duties, and appraise, purchase, exhibit, lend, or receive on loan any works of art.

Unless contrary to the terms of acquisition of the piece of art, the Board could also sell the object.

Works of art, library, equipment, and other properties would be transferred to the Museum of Art by the Society.

Sen. Humber explained that the State's seeking control of the Society was "reasonable" since the State would be putting up money for the Museum.

Sanford Asked Aid Desegregating

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Gov. Terry Sanford has been asked to help desegregate hotels and other facilities here before the opening Oct. 12 of the International Trade Fair.

The request was made in a letter to Sanford from Dr. R. A. Hawkins, a Negro dentist and chairman of the Mecklenburg Organization on Political Affairs.

Dr. Hawkins said he sent copies to President Kennedy and former Gov. Luther Hodges, now secretary of commerce.

The letter read in part: "In your consideration of the potential site, we wonder if it occurred to your board (State Board of Conservation and Development, which is in charge of the fair) that public accommodations, such as leading hotels, motels, restaurants and theaters of this city, whose facilities will be greatly needed to make the fair a success, refuse to honor colored citizens in the use of their accommodations."

The letter continued: "With colored people being invited here from other parts of the world, we assure you that this humiliation will be quite an embarrassment to our community, state and nation."

"We, the Negro citizens of Charlotte, beg of you to use your leadership in high office to put an end to this evil and human injustice before invitations are extended."

Order Raised As Family Slept

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP)—A Laramie family couldn't understand why its dairy bill suddenly took a sharp increase.

Police investigated and got a confession from a 14-year-old neighbor boy.

He admitted slipping over to the home after dark and changing the meter. Then he would set his alarm clock for 5 a.m. and pick up the extra ice cream, chocolate milk and orange drink before the family awoke.

RHEE RELEASED

HONOLULU (AP) — Former South Korean President Syngman Rhee was released from Tripler Army Hospital Tuesday after three weeks' confinement for an abscess on his back. His health was described by hospital spokesmen as good.

Fought Flames In Sunday Best

NAVARRE, Ohio (AP) — When the house of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Baechel caught fire, one of the best-dressed fire departments ever to battle a blaze answered the call.

The alarm went out at 11:45 Sunday morning, catching many of Navarre's volunteer firemen in their Sunday best.

Chief William Evans said their finery didn't detract from their diligence. They confined the fire to one room.

Halle Selasie traces his ancestry to Menlik I, son of the Queen of Sheba.

Honor AF-ROTC Cadets At College Presented Awards At Ceremonies

Cadets of the Air Force ROTC at East Carolina College selected because of their outstanding service and performance received recognition Tuesday, at the annual awards day program of the Department of Air Science at the college.

At a noon ceremony on the campus athletic field, awards were presented by East Carolina President Leo W. Jenkins; Dr. Wellington B. Gray of the college faculty member of the Reserve Officers Association; and Lt. Col. Norman F. Merritt, Jr., professor of air science at the college.

Republicans Fail In Try To Change Voting Oath

By AURORA DOLLEY

Ass'n Afternoon Dalles

RALEIGH — A Republican attempt to change the oath taken by North Carolinians who change their party affiliations has been grounded before it left the House Committee on Elections and Election Laws.

Minority Leader Bill Osteen, sponsor of the bill, told the Democratic committee that the present oath goes too far, requiring voters who re-register their party affiliations to swear to support all nominees of the party to which they will belong.

Laughingly, Rep. Osteen said that he wished "everybody would vote a straight Republican ticket", but added quite seriously that "a man should have the alternative of voting for members of either party."

The present oath requires a newly-registered Republican to vote a straight Republican ticket if the voter had been previously registered as a Democrat, Osteen explained.

The Guilford Republican said that, although the law had not been tried in the courts, he felt that it would be unconstitutional to require a man to swear "so help me, God" to support all party nominees.

Rep. Osteen accused the present law of putting undue pressure on a free citizen or forcing him to break his oath when he voted a mixed ballot.

Another Guilford representative, Ed Kemp, Democrat, told the committee that election returns in his county were evidence that many voters don't believe the oath binds them when they get behind the curtain.

"If Methodists supported the Baptist Church, wouldn't they be considered outcasts?" questioned Winston-Salem's Bill Wood.

"No, just Christians", retorted the bill's sponsor.

Bickering among the committee members followed, with Democratic charges that they didn't want a voter to be Democratic in the Spring and Republican in the fall.

Duplin's Hugh S. Johnson Jr., explaining that he believed in "strong party affiliation", made

A Stomach Ache In Line Of Duty

CASPTER, Wyo. (AP)—It cost attorney Clarence Cypreans a stomach ache—but he got his client freed on a drunken driving charge.

Cypreans challenged the validity of an alcohol meter which indicated Charles Zimmerman was intoxicated when he was arrested.

Cypreans stuffed a handful of garlic in his mouth, chewed it and demanded he be given an alcometer test in the courtroom. The judge overruled Zimmerman's police court conviction.

"I don't like garlic and it made me sick," Cypreans commented. "but we sure made a monkey out of that machine."

Score And Gentile Prove Worth In American League

STEADY FAN — Larry Bisceglia, Long Beach, Calif., is first in line at Indianapolis Speedway for the 13th straight year. He's waiting for 500-mile race on May 30.

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
For a couple of guys with things to prove, Jim Gentile and Herb Score have put their points across but good in that American League pennant race.

Gentile, a sluffed-off slugger who made the grade last season but figures he has to prove he isn't a one-year wonder, became the first major leaguer ever to crash two consecutive grand slam homers Tuesday in Baltimore's 13-5 romp against the Minnesota Twins.

Score, the southpaw who has been trying to come back since that tragic injury of 1957, pitched a two-hitter as the Chicago White Sox defeated Cleveland 4-2 and fled the cellar after losing seven straight.

Detroit padded its first-place bulge to three games, although splitting a two-night doubleheader with Washington. The Tigers won their sixth in a row, 7-2 in the opener, but lost the nightcap 5-4. Second-place New York blew a three-run lead at Kansas City and lost 5-4. The Los Angeles Angels beat Boston 8-7.

In the National League, Pittsburgh belted San Francisco 9-6, Los Angeles defeated Philadelphia 5-2 in a game called after 5½ innings because of rain, and Milwaukee rapped Chicago's Cubs 8-5. St. Louis at Cincinnati was rained out.

Gentile, 26, a lefty hitter who wallowed 21 home runs last season after his conditional purchase from the Dodgers' farm at St. Paul, returned to Metropolitan Stadium at St. Paul-Minneapolis and hit his slams in the first and second innings. They came off loser Pete Ramos (2-2) and reliever Paul Giel.

The two shots, both 410-foot slams, gave Gentile a major league record with eight RBI in two innings. He finished with nine runs batted in, taking the AL lead with 30, and tied Mickey Mantle of the Yankees for the home run lead with nine.

Only three other players, all American Leaguers, ever hit two slams in one game—Tony Lazzeri of the Yankees, while setting the AL's one-game RBI record with 11 in 1936; Jim Tabor of Boston in 1939, and Rudy York of Boston in 1946.

Ron Hansen also homered for the Birds, who had 11 hits, eight for extra bases. Bob Allison, belting two, Hal Narason and Harmon Killebrew homered for the Twins off winner Chuck Estrada (2-1) and Gordon Jones.

Score, 27, making his first start of the season, had control trouble but pitched the sixth two-hitter of his career. It was four years ago—almost to the day—that he was struck in the eye by a line drive on May 7, 1957. A one-time 20-game winner, he has a 17-24 record since. He didn't allow the Indians a hit until the sixth inning.

Ortiz won the crown by knocking out Kenny Lane in 1959 and defending it once before beating Lol last June by a split decision in San Francisco. Lol won the return match last September.

Ortiz, 24, has a 33-3 record in six years as a pro. Lol, eight years older, has a 104-2-6 mark.

Junior Welter Title At Stake In Milan Tonight

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Dulio Loi of Italy and Carlos Ortiz of Puerto Rico stop their war of words and go after each other with boxing gloves tonight in a 15-round bout for the world junior welterweight title, now held by Loi.

The bout, attracting thousands of late ticket buyers, will be held in outdoor San Siro Soccer Stadium.

The fight originally was set for April 23 but rain washed it out and a busy soccer schedule at the stadium delayed it until tonight. The delay opened a torrent of words and threats from both fighters.

"I can beat Loi once a week," Ortiz, who held the title last June when the two first met, was quoted by a Milan newspaper. "I hate him," he added.

"Likewise," Loi shot back from the pages of another paper, adding he would thrash his Puerto Rican opponent worse than he did last September when he won a close decision here.

That loss spurred the war of words. Ortiz claimed he had been robbed, and criticized the officials.

He refused to fight again until the promoters brought in an American referee, then objected when they picked Frank Carter of San Francisco. He also objected to one of the judges but relented on Carter when the judge was replaced.

Ortiz won the crown by knocking out Kenny Lane in 1959 and defending it once before beating Lol last June by a split decision in San Francisco. Lol won the return match last September.

Ortiz, 24, has a 33-3 record in six years as a pro. Lol, eight years older, has a 104-2-6 mark.

Winner-Take-All Bout Proposed

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Sid Flaherty, manager of second-ranked heavyweight contender Eddie Machen, Tuesday challenged world champion Floyd Patterson for a winner-take-all fight.

Patterson in a news conference last Friday said that Machen and England's Henry Cooper did not figure in his 1961 title defense plans.

Patterson repeatedly has said he will not fight Sonny Liston, the No. 1 ranked challenger, until Liston "is clean" of alleged underworld connections.

Flaherty was in New York last week, attempting, he said, to get his boy into the picture.

"We will fight Floyd in any state where a winner-take-all arrangement is possible. We are willing to let D'Amato select an associate manager to work with me . . . also he can pick a man to work in Machen's corner the night of the fight."

"And in the meantime should my presence as Machen's manager prevent Eddie from getting a shot, I will gladly follow the same procedure as Liston's manager withdraw if necessary," Sid added.

Machen outpointed Mike DeJohn in nearby San Francisco in his last start, a 10-rounder, and lost to Liston in 12 rounds by decision last September.

It was Machen's one-round knockout loss to Ingemar Johansson in Sweden in 1958 that vaulted the Swede into a dramatic three-bout series with Patterson.

California Bars The PGA Open

LOS ANGELES (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk says the Professional Golfers Association open can't be held in California so long as non-whites are barred.

The title event is scheduled for July at the Brentwood Country Club.

The Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce asked the PGA last week to cancel its contract as sponsor of the event if Negroes were excluded from the contest.

Mosk said his office would act to force the PGA to eliminate the restrictive clause or "cease its activities within this state."

The White Sox had only four hits off Jim Perry (2-2), but got the job done on the hitting of Jim Landis. He had two hits, one a tie-breaking, two-run homer in the seventh, drove in three runs and scored two.

Southpaw Don Mossi won his fourth without defeat for the Tigers with a four-hitter. He gave up the runs on consecutive homers by Willie Tasby and Gene Green in the tenth inning. Joe McClain was the loser for a 3-2 record.

Tasby also homered in the second game for the Senators along with Gene Woodling, whose seventh-inning shot wrapped it up. Bennie Daniels (1-3) won his first in the AL with Dave Sisler's relief help. Paul Foytack (1-2) was the loser.

The A's, held to one run and four hits for seven innings, chased Whitey Ford and beat reliever Luis Arroyo (1-1) with four runs in the eighth. Singles by pinch-hitter Don Larsen and Hank Bauer, both ex-Yanks, and an infield out brought them home. Ray Herbert (2-1) won it with a no-hit popup by Jim Archer in the ninth. Tony Kubek and Bill Skowron homered for the Yankees.

The Angels won four in a row for the first time with an unearned run in the ninth on an error by rookie Carl Yastrzemski of the Red Sox. Boston, twice coming from behind and blowing a 4-2 lead in between, had tied it 7-all in the ninth on a two-run double by Jim Pagliaroni. Ell Grba (3-2) won it and Ted Williams (1-1) lost it, both in relief.

Starting pitcher Jerry Casale, Leon Wagner, Earl Averil and Gene Leek homered for the first seven runs by the Angels, who have belted 26 in 13 games at Wrigley Field. Yastrzemski's first major league home run made it a total of 42—an average of four a game—for the cozy home of the Angels.

Pitt ASC Office Begins Big Crop-Measuring Chore

Pitt County's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office this week embarked on its annual task of measuring acreage of allotted crops. It's an annual task, but this year the acres to be measured are double the number measured a year ago. Office manager Wayne L. Wang says ASC personnel must measure approximately 85,000 acres this year compared with about 43,000 in 1960.

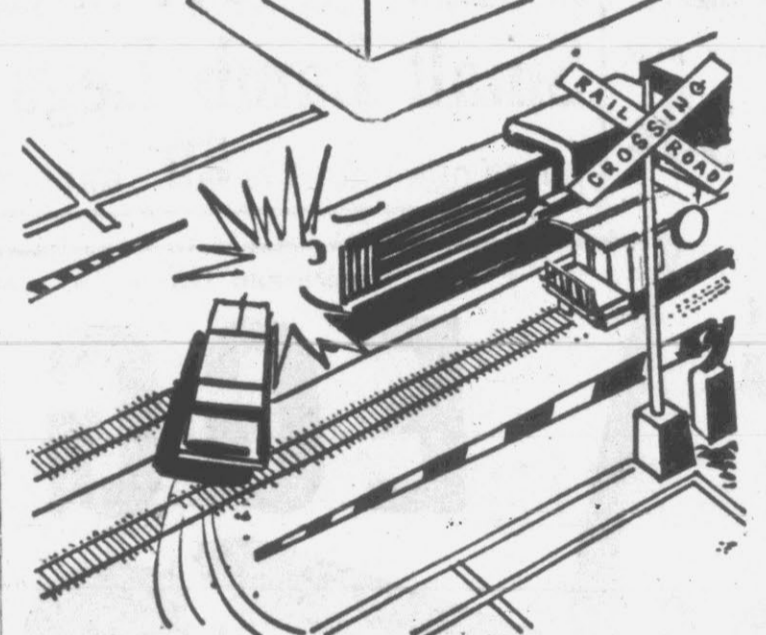

Extra help at the office has increased proportionately. Instead of the 65 reporters used in the field last year, the ASC performance program is demanding employment of some 85 to 90 reporters this year. Office personnel in 1960 totaled 17 additional clerks. This year's force has grown to 25.

The county's 40 per cent participation in the federal emergency feed grain program has caused the double amount of acreage to be measured. Already, Pitt farmers have entered a total of 42,000 acres of cornfields in the program. This acreage, Wang points out, must be measured along with allotted crops.

Field work on the new season began yesterday and the entire operation should be completed by July 15. The first measurement is scheduled for completion by June 20. Wang estimates the performance season this year will require about one week to 10 days longer than in previous years.

In addition to the 42,000 acres of emergency feed grain program fields, reporters will measure a total of 25,180.65 acres of tobacco land on 2,734 Pitt farms. The county's cotton allotment totals 9,200 acres; its peanuts, 6,633; and its wheat, 698.7. Kenneth Allen of Greenville is county performance supervisor. Under his supervision are four area supervisors—John Cherry of Stokes, Medius Teel of Greenville, Kenneth Mills of Greenville, and Curtis Lee of Greenville. Wang has called on Pitt's farmers to cooperate in assisting the reporters in measuring the allotted crops and the emergency feed grain program acres. He has urged farmers to "please have some reliable person available to assist the ASC reporter when he visits your farm." "Since our job this year has about doubled in size, we need the cooperation of the farmers more than ever before," Wang says.

DON'T DRIVE AROUND 'EM!

Sad but true picture. This sad driver has ignored the advance railroad warning sign and is driving around the gate put there at great cost to keep him alive. Red lights are flashing—warning bells ringing. He saw a standing train down the line, but not the 90 MPH express on the other track that hit him. In a hurry, he died in a hurry.

Fountain Board Agrees To Hire An Accountant

FOUNTAIN—Fountain's newly-elected Board of Commissioners last night agreed to hire a Tarboro accountant to audit the town's records.

In session for the first time, the new mayor and board favored a motion by Commissioner Carter G. Smith to retain the services of W. C. Ranes as town accountant. In the brief session — Fountain's regular May meeting of the board — the new commissioners discussed employment of a Greenville engineer to prepare maps of Fountain to submit to Powell Bill Fund officials in Raleigh.

No action was taken on the matter, pending further discussion at a later date.

All three commissioners—Smith, E. E. Ellis and W. C. Redick—and new Mayor J. L. Peele attend their first meeting since last week's election.

At intervals, frequently seven years, a warm current streams along Peru's coast and marine life perishes, sea birds die by the millions and hydrogen sulfide bubbles from the sea.

PTA Picnic

The annual family picnic of the Elmhurst Parent-Teacher Association will be held Thursday at 6 p.m. at the school.

In the event of rain, the picnic will be held on the porches of the school building, it was announced.

Each family will bring their own picnic lunch, and drinks will be provided by the school. The annual family school picnic will be the last meeting of the year for the Elmhurst P.T.A.

'Quiet Meeting' Of Bethel Board

BETHEL — The Bethel Town Board held a "very quiet" meeting last week, Mayor Joe Butterworth reported.

Members are waiting for prices on a new six-inch water line that will be run to the new area north of Bethel, which is being considered for annexation. The water line would provide fire protection for the area, Butterworth explained.

The board previously approved the annexation move, with the people involved also in favor. The matter is now before the N. C. General Assembly. Approval is expected from the legislators in about a week.

The board also approved payment of the monthly bills.

BISHOPS ELECTED

BOSTON (AP) — College of Bishops of the Methodist Church's Northeastern Jurisdiction has elected Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke of New York as president, and Bishop John Wesley Lord of Washington as secretary.

Newly independent Sierra Leone got its name, which means Lion Mountain, from an early description by Portuguese sailors.

Truman Receives Many Greetings

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman, still chipper on his 77th birthday Monday, received greetings from all over the country.

About 200 friends gave a luncheon party to express their esteem.

President Kennedy, in a telephone call from Washington, congratulated Truman and said: "I don't understand how you look so well after seven years here."

Dry ice was first manufactured commercially in Long Island City, N.Y., in 1925.

CHAPTER 28

Fairlie looked at Graham, who sat guarding the door and with his back to Fairlie.

He seemed to be a man in the prime of muscular middleage and the cloak-wrapped shape of him appeared as uncompromising as a block of stone. Thrayn, quite obviously, had not had any desire to come out and tackle him.

Fairlie did not have any either. "Well?" whispered the girl Aral impatiently.

Fairlie said, "I'm planning."

The open door and window were an illuminating sidelight on this peculiar culture. It meant that they had no regular facilities for restraint, in other words no jail, which meant that there was not enough crime to bother about.

The reaping-hook got longer. Stray gleams of light from the door and window glinted on the sharp edge of it, the thin curved point.

Fairlie was fascinated by it. He could not take his eyes away from it. He started violently when Aral came back soft-footed as a shadow and put something heavy into his hand.

He waited a minute longer but now there was nothing to wait for and so he moved forward out of the passageway into the open square.

His feet were freezing, wet socks cold against the chill wet pavement. He ran. He felt clumsy, his legs and arms were awkward sticks. He did not make any noise. The heavy thing Aral had given him weighed his hand down. He ran with a million dark windows peering down at him, he ran naked and obvious if anyone should look, and all at once Graham was right in front of him. In a frenzy of haste he lifted the weighted hand and Graham began to turn around. He must have heard something, a rustling or a hard-drawn breath behind him.

Fairlie knew it must all be happening in a split-second but it seemed to be drawn out very slowly and deliberately. Graham's head turning and showing part of a hard-featured face gone slack with surprise and alarm, the great curved blade lifting in the first segment of a sweeping arc that would end at Fairlie's throat. A raw wild panic leaped in Fairlie but it had the effect of steadying him. His eye was suddenly keen, his hand unerring. Graham fell. The reaping-hook fell with him.

And it was easy.

Aral came running. She went inside the building. Fairlie put down the thing he had had in his hand and picked up the reaping-hook instead. Graham lay still. As an afterthought Fairlie bent to see if he was breathing. He was.

Fairlie began to shake violently. How easy it is, he thought. I might just as well have killed him. I didn't consciously not kill him. So easy when he swung the hook at me.

Thrayn and Aral came out of the house. They ran back to the passageway and Fairlie ran with them. "Here," he said to Thrayn, "you take this." He handed him the hook. He scrambled his shoes on again. "Let's go. Let's get the devil out of here."

He glanced back at the dark lump lying in front of the building. It dawned on him that he was making a lot out of nothing, simply because he had never done anything like that before. DeWitt had done precisely the same thing to him and never turned a hair.

It was easy.

"You could have done that yourself," he said to Aral. "Why did you need me?"

"I might have been caught," she said, and gave him a gamin smile.

"So might I. But better me than you, is that it?"

"We'll all be caught if we don't clear out of here," Thrayn said. He pushed Aral in front of him. They ran, and Thrayn carried the reaping-hook over his shoulder.

Again they clung to the most deserted streets, and again Fairlie lost all sense of direction. After a while he began to hear noises somewhere behind them, a large muttering punctuated by sharp cries. The three of them stopped to listen.

"They've found Graham," Thrayn said. "The whole town will be after us now."

The muttering surged and grew, moving through waken streets, clamoring against distant walls.

"We'll have to make a big circle around," said Aral.

"Well, make it then. I don't want to have to use this," Thrayn shook the reaping-hook.

Aral whined, "I'm tired."

The muttering swelled, then roared, grew menacing.

"You haven't got time to be tired," Fairlie said. He said to Thrayn, "Get on. You'll be safe in camp."

The noises behind them lessened. The edges of town were passed. There was a very long period of stumbling and scrambling about in the wet and mire, the cold wind and the dark. Aral began to whine again and Fairlie handled her so roughly that she was glad to go back to depending on her own legs.

Thrayn didn't whine, but he cursed a good bit and his cursing didn't strike Fairlie as much better. Thrayn was in a mess and he didn't like it. So far Fairlie had not heard one word of thanks from either of them for getting Thrayn free.

He was about out of patience when at long last they saw fires ahead of them and came into the camp, Fairlie shouting ahead good and loud so there wouldn't be any doubt about who it was.

DeWitt was waiting for him, looking angry. Behind him the camp was waking up and men were putting more wood on the fires and blinking nervously around. "What the devil—" snarled DeWitt, and then he saw Thrayn and Aral and stopped. Aral collapsed like a rag doll onto somebody's blanket and Thrayn dropped beside her.

Fairlie sat down on a log and looked at DeWitt. "I have your Hall of Suns for you," he said, "and I'd advise you to start for it just as fast as you can." He nodded toward the valley and the town. "They don't like us. Not at all."

The man who had replaced Fairlie on lookout duty turned around from where he was standing at the edge of the camp and said, "There's an awful lot of lights down there. I can see 'em in the mist moving around."

"What did you do?" said DeWitt to Fairlie.

Fairlie told him, briefly, while Raab listened and weighed him coldly from behind DeWitt's shoulder. And DeWitt stared at Fairlie as though he didn't believe what he saw.

"I didn't think you had it in you. Oh, I know you didn't do it for

"And the trouble you'd made in that town."

"Sure, sure. But I still didn't think you had it in you." He grinned at Fairlie, a grin of honest approval, and turned away to give orders about breaking camp.

Tax Cheats Said Keeping Budget Out Of Balance

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon said today Uncle Sam each year is cheated out of taxes on nearly $25 billion of income—more than enough to balance the federal budget.

Dillon told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee that the Treasury believes $24.4 billion of taxable income was not reported in 1959—the latest year for which an estimate is available.

Mortimer M. Caplin, commissioner of internal revenue, told reporters that at least 20 per cent of this amount—or nearly $4.9 billion—would have been collected in additional taxes had the income been declared.

Dillon urged the subcommittee to restore $16.9 million cut by the House for the appropriation which the Internal Revenue Service. Most of the money would go for hiring 2,300 more tax agents.

Three Million Gallons Of Fuel Each Month Required For Jets At Base

By TOM WILSON

SEYMOUR JOHNSON AFB, N.C.—Jet fuel only costs 10 cents a gallon, but it takes $300,000 worth of the stuff each month to keep the thirsty B-52s and other jet aircraft flying at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base. That's three million gallons of fuel every 30 days—an average of 100,000 gallons every 24 hours.

An underground pipeline feeds the fuel from bulk storage tanks at the base fuel supply area to the runway ramps on the flight line. Refueling crews are on duty 24 hours a day to service the planes. With hosecart and pumper, they funnel up to 40,000 gallons of fuel at one time into the big, gaping tanks of a Stratofortress.

The fuel pipeline, 10 inches in diameter and two miles in length, is literally the lifeline of Seymour

Johnson Air Force Base. Without gas, planes don't fly; aircraft crews don't get off the ground; combat wines are reduced to immobility and impotence. Fuel is the lifeblood of every air command.

To keep 'em flying, the POL (petroleum, oil, lubricants) section operates around the clock, Sundays and holidays included. Fuel dispatch crews work on staggered shifts, never more than 8 hours call away from an emergency.

POL has five bulk fuel storage tanks with a total capacity of three and a half million gallons. The three largest tanks are 60 feet in diameter and 40 feet high. The other two are 42 feet wide and 40 feet high. It takes an average of 20 railroad tanker cars a day to keep the huge storage tanks up to required levels.

Jet fuel, designated as JP-4, is transported here by rail from a civilian petroleum terminal at Beaufort. Within the next several months, however, the base may be getting pipeline delivery from ports of entry. The pipeline service probably from Wilmington will go into effect in July, according to Capt. Henry C. Hines, Base Fuel Supply Officer.

In addition to pipe delivery from storage tanks to flight line, POL operates a fleet of 18 tanker-trucks that transport fuel on call—and the calls come in at an average rate of 120 a day. Some of the trucks haul regular aviation fuel to the flight line to service propeller-type aircraft, including transients. Others service the F-105s and other fighters with jet fuel. The underground fuel line is reserved for the use of the big B-52s and KC-135s.

JP-4 has low vapor pressure, which means that it is more highly combustible—and more dangerous—than other petroleum fuels, and ordinary precautions such as rules against smoking and the use of electric motors are not enough. Personnel assigned to POL are not permitted to wear nylon jackets because of the possibility of producing static electricity that could ignite the vapor and set off an explosion.

The building used by refueling crews on the flight line is warmed with vapor-proof heaters. The bulk storage tanks have floating covers that rise and fall with the level of fuel in the tanks, an arrangement that reduces vapor fumes to a minimum. The tank storage area is restricted to POL personnel who know the hazards of JP-4.

Maintaining the fuel supply lifeline is routine work for the 100 men assigned to POL. But they are quietly aware of their all-important role in support of flying operations and they are quietly serious about their job as the lifeline crew.

Offer A Guide In Setting Fees

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—An American Medical Association plan to guide doctors in setting fees is being mailed to doctors now, a spokesman for the AMA says.

The plan, still subject to change, does not set fees but suggests a relative value for each service.

For example, says Dr. Waring Willis, each service is given a certain number of units. A house call might be worth one unit and a minor operation 10 units.

So if a physician charges $5 for a house call, he would charge $50 for a minor operation, Dr. Willis said.

The plan was announced Monday at the opening session of the Medical Society of New York convention.

Stories About The Other Side Of The TV Screen

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Last television became too heady about its accomplishments, herewith a few stories about TV-related incidents on the other side of the screen:

An elderly lady of my acquaintance is slightly hard-of-hearing, but like millions of others was tensely watching the televised Project Mercury space shoot last Friday. When word came that the astronaut and the capsule had been recovered, she hurried next door with the happy tidings: the manned shoot had been a success and the space ship had landed in Lake Champlain.

Garry Moore uses his real surname, Morfit, in his private life and it is his habit to lounge around his suburban New York home on many weekends in pajamas and dressing gown.

Recently his wife summoned a garageman to the Morfit home to fix a flat tire on her car. Garry answered the door bell and accepted the garageman's bill.

A few days later, a friend reported the garageman was circulating a choice bit of gossip: "You know the Morfits? Well, I went up there Saturday to fix a flat. Guess who answered the door—in pajamas? Garry Moore."

Many household and grooming aids advertised on TV these days come in squirt bottles: furniture polish, starch, insecticides, shaving cream, tooth paste and deodorants.

My mother, a little late for an afternoon bridge party last week, grabbed what she thought was her bottle of hair spray and applied the lacquer thoroughly. Then she discovered she had given her hair a heavy dose of black shoe polish. A neighbor made the same mistake, except that she snatched the container of liquid used to make a room smell like a pine forest.

Men Sought By Pitt Draft Board

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Fallacies are a dime a dozen in the do-it-yourself area. They're especially numerous in the painting and finishing category.

For instance, it is NOT true—— That all paint products should be shaken vigorously and then stirred before applying. Latex paints should not be shaken, but should be stirred carefully. Shaking will cause the latex to foam. Varnish should neither be shaken nor stirred, especially right before using, since excessive movement of the varnish will create bubbles that will spoil the finish.

— That all paint products should be brushed out. Enamels and varnishes should be flowed on with a full brush, with stroking kept to a minimum for best results.
— That exterior house paint can be used on outdoor furniture. Modern house paints are formulated to be self-cleaning by wearing away slowly by a process known as chalking. If such paint is used on furniture, the chalk will come off on clothing.

— That varnish is varnish and can be used wherever a varnish finish is specified. There are many different kinds of varnish, each designed for a particular purpose. Regular interior varnish will not stand up outdoors. Spar varnish is fine outdoors, but is not good for floors. Furniture varnish also is unacceptable for floors. Before buying varnish, tell your dealer what its use will be and ask him for the proper type.

— That a primer is unnecessary and is merely a product sold to add to your painting bill. A primer is a special paint which seals porous surfaces so that the decorative topcoat will be absorbed properly. When the paint manufacturer (or the maker of the product being painted) specifies the use of a primer, follow his advice. You'll get a more pleasing result and one that will be more durable.

— That radiators are best painted with silver or gold-colored paints. Research has shown that metallic paints reduce the heat emission considerably. Painting radiators with flat wall paint, generally the same color as the walls, will permit them to give out more heat as well as make them less noticeable.

Wreck Damaged Cargo Of Pigs

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A tractor-trailer taking 216 pigs to slaughter upset on a sharp curve in Fairmount Park Tuesday, tying up city traffic on a busy parkway for five hours.

About 80 of the pigs, weighing 200 to 220 pounds each, were either killed or so badly hurt they had to be destroyed by a veterinarian.

WHY...

GREENVILLE?

We're a steadily growing consumer finance company with offices in five states. After considering several areas in the South, we selected eastern North Carolina as the most promising.

If we are correct, this area is due for remarkable economic growth and for a high level of prosperity.

Our business is to lend cash to people who need it for worthwhile purposes. However, we like best to lend it to people who are on the way to better times — to people who need a temporary boost.

Our firm and other regulated consumer finance companies have a definite place in any modern community. In particular, we can help in areas that are growing with the leadership of citizens who have ambitions both for themselves and for their communities.

We think this is such a community. We're happy to be here.

Turkish Leaders Say Plot Crushed

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Turkey's ruling military junta claims it has smashed a plot by supporters of deposed Premier Adnan Menderes to topple President Cemal Gursel's government. About 80 persons were reported under arrest.

Sources close to the junta said arrests were made in three Turkish provinces including Istanbul and Ankara.

Officials said the plotters sought help from an unidentified power "with a foreign ideology."

(A report from Damascus said Turkey had closed her frontier with the Syrian region of the United Arab Republic following anti-government riots in southern Turkey protesting tax hikes and a boost in army salaries.)

Menderes, the chief officials of his regime and members of Parliament from his Democratic party were ousted by the junta last year and are now on trial for crimes against the state on Yassada Island off Istanbul.

A military court in Istanbul is also trying 49 members of the outlawed democratic party on charges they tried to sabotage Istanbul's power plant as a preliminary to an invasion of Yassada to free Menderes.

Kennedy On Notice Some Potential Friction Ahead

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy is on notice that there is some potentially annoying friction in the relations of his State Department with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

If Kennedy needed any new evidence of this, he got it Tuesday with the denunciation by Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of what the senator called the "idiotic policy" of shifting ambassadors around.

The system of rotating diplomats from one post to another has peeved Fulbright and other members of the committee. They have complained that an ambassador hardly gets settled down to his job before he is sent packing in a couple of years to a new and possibly unfamiliar assignment.

Since Kennedy took over the presidency there has been a seemingly endless stream of nominees parading before the committee. Kennedy has made more than 50 ambassadorial appointments. All but about a score went to career diplomats.

About 40 ambassadors appointed by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower are still on the job. While some of them will stay put, others obviously will hop the diplomatic merry-go-round.

While Fulbright's complaint against these transfers is not new, his sharply worded form seemed to indicate there is more irritation with State Department policies involved than meets the eye.

Associates know that the committee chairman — who was reported considered and passed over for appointment as secretary of state — has not been pleased by some of the diplomatic nominations.

For instance, Fulbright was said to have had another appointment in mind for the ambassador-ship to Iran that went to Julius C. Holmes, a veteran of about 35 years in the Foreign Service.

The committee chairman voted for Holmes when the latter was confirmed by the Senate Monday on a 63-17 count but let others carry the ball in the fight over confirmation.

Fulbright wasn't asked about some of the major appointments, such as those to London and Paris. However, he is credited with talking the administration into sending Edwin O. Reischauer to Tokyo.

While he said little about it publicly, Fulbright was just as irked as Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., that the committee was not consulted in advance about the decision to let the ill-fated Cuban invasion go ahead. Morse made an issue of it in the Senate.

One of the complaints of Fulbright and other committee members is that consultation with them is spotty.

Fulbright obviously wants to go along with the administration where he can — and he usually resolves his doubts in the President's favor. But colleagues know from past experience that the Arkansian is a spirited fellow not inclined to endure in silence the ignoring of views he regards as vital.

His Job Is Safe, Nobody Wants It

ORLAND, Maine (AP)—In his 62 years as town clerk, Ernest O. Sugden figures that "I've recorded more deaths than there are people in town now."

That would be more than 1,195, which is the 1960 Census total for this eastern Maine community.

At 89, Sugden is the oldest man in town. Besides being town clerk, he's a notary public, insurance agent, surveyor and repairer of watches and jewelry.

He's also a bachelor because he says, "I never had the time" to get married.

The Southington, Conn., native plans to stay on as town clerk as long as he is able, despite the fact that the job requires more of his time each year. Why?

During his tenure as grand master, Brewer's duties will carry him throughout the state to attend and preside over Masonic events. He will also preside over meetings of the Grand Lodge in Raleigh, state Masonic headquarters.

He is associated with the Greenville insurance firm, Hooker and Buchanan. He is married to the former Louise Clark and they have three children, Clark, Ann and Judy. The Brewers reside at 1001 Colonial Ave. here.
