South Korea Junta Given Rusk Demands Withdrawals In Further Military Backing Laos; Claims Truce Violation As Country Remains Quiet

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Radio Seoul said today Lt. Gen. Lee Han-jim, commander of South Korea's powerful 1st Field Army, has pledged full support to objectives of the military junta now running the government.

If true, this is a setback for both the elected regime of Premier John M. Chang and for U.S. Lt. Gen. Carter B. Magruder, the commander of United Nations forces who had urged the rebel junta to return power to the regular authorities.

The radio station, controlled by the military committee of Lt. Gen. Chang Do-young, broadcast what it said was a statement of full support by Lee.

The statement declared all officers and men under Lee's command, which helps guard the Korean truce line as part of Macruder's forces, would wholly cooperate to complete the junta's revolutionary task. That task, as outlined by the junta, is to wipe out political corruption and incompetence and rebuild South Korea.

The radio said the statement was issued through the information officer of the 1st Field Army's headquarters in Wonju, 60 miles east of Seoul.

Unconfirmed reports said Lee made the statement after he held separate conferences with Macruder and with Brig. Gen. Yoon Pa-il, a member of the junta.

It came out after a Seoul newspaper said Lee had ordered his men to remain neutral in the crisis.

The junta met today with some captive members of Chang's Cabinet while troops backing the coup took up defensive positions on the outskirts of Seoul.

Premier Chang was still missing but was believed safe. Unconfirmed reports in Seoul newspapers said six of the 12 members of Chang's cabinet were under arrest.

The junta took command of the national and Seoul police, whose members clashed briefly with the rebel troops that seized control of Seoul before dawn Tuesday.

were deployed on a hill overlooking the city.

U.S. Gen. Carter Magruder, the U.N. commander in Korea, tried to minimize the effect of the coup with a statement Tuesday night that it appeared to have little public support. But no open opposition was reported from outside Seoul and Chang's forces continued to claim control of the entire country.

The U.S. charge d'affaires, Marshall Green, reiterated his opposition—as the chief U.S. diplomatic representative in the country—to the overthrow of the elected government. But he added: "It will be a matter the Koreans, of course, will have to and will decide."

U.S. officials in Washington refused to comment until the situation in Korea clarified.

Seoul newspapers reported the rebel junta had instructed the foreign ministry to order all diplomatic missions abroad to inform foreign governments there would be no change in South Korea's pro-American foreign policy. The junta had said one reason it moved against Premier Chang was because his government had not been vigorous enough in its anti-communism.

Gen. Chang conferred with President Yun Po-sun, who rapidly was discarding the figurehead role allotted the president by the post-Syngman Rhee constitution. The President appeared trying to reconcile the rebel leaders and the nation's politicians.

Green also met for three hours late Tuesday with President Yun. Apparently the embassy had made no direct contact with Gen. Chang or his aides.

The army revolt began to attract some civilian support.

One group of students that helped oust Syngman Rhee last year issued a statement in support of the junta. They called on Premier Chang's regime to step out formally without delay.

A minor political party, the Republicans, also issued a statement in support of the military coup.

stores open. Banks and schools also reopened.

Authoritative sources said the small Korean air force and navy were taking a hands-off attitude, leaving the rebellion to the army, marine and paratroop participants.

'Open House' At Reserve Center Here Saturday

Open house will be observed at the Reserve Training Center on U.S. 13 Saturday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

The open house, with Greenville's two national guard units participating, is a part of the local observance of Armed Forces Day, sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees.

National guard equipment including howitzers and the latest rifles will be on display at the Reserve Center. In addition a 82nd Airborne squadron of 20 men from Ft. Bragg will be present to demonstrate their equipment.

They will explain parachute equipment and there will be opened parachutes and dummies with parachute packs in addition to other exhibits.

James W. Boykin, Jaycee chairman, said Lt. Col. J. G. Dodson, area coordinator for the Reserve, is cooperating in staging the activities.

Warren Whitehurst is in charge of special events and window displays for the day. The Rev. Terry Agner is in charge of the speaker bureau.

The National Guard Batteries A and B will serve coffee and cookies to visitors at the Reserve Center which is located near the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

GENEVA (AP)—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk today demanded the withdrawal of all military forces from troubled Laos and charged the Communists are violating the cease-fire there.

Rusk told the East-West foreign ministers' conference on Laos that the United States is willing to pull out its military mission from Laos if Communist North Viet Nam does the same.

Rusk offered the conference a three-point plan to turn Laos into a neutral country removed from the pressures of the cold war so it can make "progress toward more stable political institutions, economic well-being and social justice."

In calling for Laotian neutrality, Rusk insisted that absolutely all foreign military personnel should be withdrawn.

"There is no problem about the withdrawal of the limited U.S. military personnel assisting with the training and supply of government forces," Rusk said. But he insisted that the Communists from North Viet Nam who have been assisting the rebels must also leave the country.

He said the United States does not want to see Laos "as a staging area or as a thoroughfare for agents of subversion, saboteurs or guerrilla bands to operate against Laos' neighbors."

Rusk called for effective international machinery to insure the cease-fire and charged that the Communist led Pathet Lao is repeatedly violating it.

The meeting was told that a new report from the Canadian-Indian-Polish control commission had been received. A British spokesman said it confirmed that "some sporadic fighting is continuing." But he said it was not immediately clear whether this is significant.

Rusk said the fighting must be stopped "as a matter of first importance," and "proper instructions" must be issued to the control commission so it can get out in the field to observe the truce.

"Information from Laos indicates that rebel forces continue to attack in a number of localities and that rebel troop movements are occurring which are prejudicial to an effective cease-fire," Rusk said.

After considerable diplomatic dickerings, the conference finally opened Tuesday on the basis of a report from the control commission that in general fighting had ceased between the Pathet Lao and the pro-Western royal Lao forces of Premier Boua Oum.

Rusk made his charges as news dispatches from Laos said royal government and rebel delegates reached a surprise compromise agreement to form a coalition government and set up a joint military committee to police the truce.

But protracted negotiations are likely to be required before first the government and then the military group are actually formed.

The report also raised the possibility that a single Laotian delegation might eventually be sent to Geneva, to replace the separate delegations here representing the three rival factions.

Rusk took only slight notice of the attack on American policy made by Communist Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi, saying Chen's statements about the United States "were not true and not new—we have heard them often before."

Chen Yi had charged the United States was fomenting war in Southeast Asia and had sent Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson there for that purpose. He demanded the disbanding of the U.S.-dominated Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Rusk said the threats to Southeast Asia come from the North and the South. If these threats were removed, he declared, "SEATO itself would wither away for it has no purpose but to maintain the peace in Southeast Asia."

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home appealed to both the United States and the Soviet Union to stop supplying arms to the warring factions in Laos.

He proposed a four-point program aimed at removing Laos from the big power struggle.

1. A declaration by the Laotians to follow a policy of neutrality, unattached to either of the big power camps.

2. Assurance from members of the Geneva parity that they would respect such a declaration of neutrality.

3. An embargo on delivery of arms to Laos and international machinery to prevent violations.

4. Agreement on methods of supplying economic aid to Laos.

all and try to get one passed in 1963.

Before it was amended in the Senate, the redistricting measure would have given Mecklenburg, Guilford and Forsyth counties two Senate seats each in addition to giving Cumberland a senator every session plus other changes in the present Senate districting setup.

Meanwhile, Sen. Henry G. Shelton of Edgecombe moved for a showdown vote on the congressional redistricting issue — a redistricting that is made necessary because the state will lose a congressman as a result of the 1960 census.

Shelton offered the committee a motion to adopt as a principle not to adopt any redistricting plan that would force two Democratic congressmen to run against each other — by placing them in the same district. This would result in the adoption of a plan that would pit Republican Charles E. Jonas against a Democrat — probably Rep. Basil Whitener.

Shelton reluctantly agreed to postpone a vote on his motion until after Sen. Robert Morgan of Cleveland pleaded for a delay until Thursday night.

Meanwhile, there were two other developments on the subject of legislative representation.

The Senate Committee on Constitutional Amendments gave its blessings to a measure to amend the state constitution so that the task of reapportioning the House would be taken out of the legislature. It would turn the job, which the legislature has frequently neglected, over to the Speaker of the House and charge him with reapportioning House seats after every federal census.

Meanwhile, Rep. Bunn Frink of Brunswick and other House members tossed in a bill that was discussed Tuesday at a meeting of the House Committee on Elections and Election Laws. It would amend the constitution to provide (1) for a 100-member state Senate, so each county would have one senator, (2) a 150-member House, that would give each county one House seat and leave 50 seats to be apportioned on a population basis. The measure would also call for automatic House reapportionment every 10 years.

OTTAWA (AP)—President Kennedy met today with Canada's Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker to outline what the United States expects of its neighbor by way of helping protect Latin America and other areas from Communist designs.

The two leaders left behind the pageantry of the President's state visit for a brass-tacks discussion of the aims of the Kennedy trip. Those are known to include a request for Canadian money and moral support to help shore up Latin-American nations.

There were indications that Canada would balk.

Kennedy and Diefenbaker went into their huddle in the prime minister's office after the President had laid a wreath at the base of Canada's National War Memorial.

Prior to that, Kennedy had talked briefly with U.S. Embassy employees and told them they served not only their country but the cause of freedom.

About 200 members of the embassy staff and their families packed the small marble-walled lobby of the embassy office building opposite Ottawa's Parliament to hear the chief executive.

Kennedy drove from Government House, where he and Mrs. Kennedy are staying, to the embassy building in an open car. He wore a black topcoat and carried a hat, but did not put the hat on for the 10-minute ride on a sunny, but chilly, morning.

School children waved and cheered as Kennedy and U.S. Ambassador Livingston T. Merchant drove by.

Differences between the two governments will show up today when the President and prime minister get down to business. The conflicts are slight in comparison with those dividing the free and Communist worlds, but they affect the unity of the Western Hemisphere.

Bowles Reveals JFK Considering Summit Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under Secretary of State Chester Bowles said today President Kennedy has "under consideration" a meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Bowles told the Senate Foreign Relations meeting that "the decision is up to the President."

He said no decision has been made.

Bowles talked with the Senate committee members in a closed session. Word of what he said was given to newsmen later by Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark.

Fulbright said it was his first official confirmation that negotiations looking to a conference between the two leaders were under way.

Bowles himself had told reporters when going into the committee meeting that he couldn't say anything about the matter.

"You've got to let the President handle that one," he added.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said the committee itself would "seek some answers" from Bowles.

While Bowles is scheduled to brief the committee on crises in Laos, the Congo, Cuba and elsewhere, members said they also would demand some official light on published reports of efforts to arrange an informal conference between the two leaders early next month.

"We have read a good deal in the papers that such a conference is being talked about, but our committee has not been informed," Gore told newsmen.

"I, for one, intend to ask Mr. Bowles if the reports are correct and whether, if there is to be a conference, it will be without a plan or agenda or any real hope for success."

Kennedy received a personal message from Khrushchev Tuesday in reply to one of Feb. 22, in which the President expressed hope for improvement of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Khrushchev's letter was delivered by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov who spent 30 minutes with the President. But neither Menshikov nor the White House would disclose its contents nor say whether they talked about a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Senate Democratic leader, who talked with Kennedy prior to Menshikov's call, said he could shed no light on it. Mansfield professed to have no official knowledge of negotiations for a conference.

Senate Redistricting Bill Dies In House Committee

RALEIGH (AP) — Redistricting—both for seats in the State Senate and for seats in Congress—made news in the General Assembly today.

A House committee put to death a State Senate redistricting plan which the Senate had amended to such an extent that its own sponsors turned against it. As amended the measure would have done little more than provide Cumberland County with a full-time senator.

Rep. Ed Kemp of Guilford told the House Senatorial Districts Committee that if "we pass this, there's no chance of getting a fair redistricting bill for the next 10 years. I'd rather have nothing at all and try to get one passed in 1963."

Before it was amended in the Senate, the redistricting measure would have given Mecklenburg, Guilford and Forsyth counties two Senate seats each in addition to giving Cumberland a senator every session plus other changes in the present Senate districting setup.

Meanwhile, Sen. Henry G. Shelton of Edgecombe moved for a showdown vote on the congressional redistricting issue — a redistricting that is made necessary because the state will lose a congressman as a result of the 1960 census.

Shelton offered the committee a motion to adopt as a principle not to adopt any redistricting plan that would force two Democratic congressmen to run against each other — by placing them in the same district. Found Man Dead In Farmville Jail

FARMVILLE—"Natural Causes" was listed as the cause of death of a 42-year-old Greene County man found dead in his cell at the Farmville Police Department Sunday, according to Pitt County E. W. Harvey.

Coroner Harvey said the preliminary report of an autopsy performed Monday on the body of Joseph M. Newton, 42 of Route 1, Farmville, said the man's death was due to natural causes.

Harvey explained that he is awaiting the full pathologist's report of the postmortem, which was conducted to determine the exact cause of death.

Newton was jailed Saturday night by Farmville officers and was being held for investigation. He was found dead in his cell about 6:30 p.m. by Policeman Curtis Martin, who was making a regular jail check, the coroner stated.

Newton was last seen alive about 2 p.m. Sunday when he was given his lunch, and was apparently "okay" at that time. He had been dead about two to three hours when found, the coroner estimated.

'Meddling' By Embassy Charged

LONDON (AP) — A Laborite member of Parliament today accused U.S. Embassy officials of meddling in British domestic affairs.

The complaint will be aired in the House of Commons next month. Tom Driberg, a leader in the Labor party's left wing, addressed the complaint to Edward Heath, No. 2 man in the Foreign Office.

MacArthur Will Visit Philippines

MANILA (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur has accepted an invitation to visit the Philippines in July, an aide of President Carlos P. Garcia said today.

MacArthur, hailed here as liberator of the Philippines in World War II, will be guest of honor July 4 at the 15th anniversary of independence.

Cooper's Friends Pay Last Honor

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Eulogized as an unparalleled movie star of quiet integrity and great artistry, Gary Cooper was laid to rest Tuesday.

The simple, dignified rites for the actor, who died Saturday of cancer, was in keeping with the humble yet heroic movie characters he portrayed for more than three decades.

The greatest assembly of film stars in modern times—many weeping openly—attended the Solemn Requiem Mass at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Beverly Hills. Hundreds of ordinary citizens stood silently outside the church under leaden skies, respecting the family's wishes for a dignified service in contrast with the mob scenes that marred funerals of other matinee idols.

Neither his widow, Veronica, nor his daughter, Maria, 24, wavered during the services.

At the brief graveside rites, Cooper's mother, Alice Bracia Cooper, 87, widow of an English-born lawyer who became a Montana Supreme Court Justice, sobbed openly. Tears also streamed from the eyes of comedian Jack Benny, one of six pallbearers.

NcNamara Sees No Basis For Zeus Missile Speedup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara is on record with a statement that he can't conceive of any new facts that might delay his decision to hold up production of the Zeus anti-missile missile.

In testimony before the House Armed Services Committee, he said development of Zeus is proceeding at "the maximum possible rate."

McNamara conceded that the decision to defer production of components until after the missile has been thoroughly tested and evaluated "will delay the date by which the system could be operational—if it later it should be decided to put it into operation."

Asked whether he would change his mind on production if research and development yielded new and favorable information, McNamara replied:

"Only if facts that have not been available to me during the time of my consideration of these projects become so available, and I can't conceive of any such facts that may come to me within the next 12 to 15 months — say 12 months."

McNamara testified that Zeus development is on schedule, that the first complete missile will be fired late this year and that first tests against an Atlas missile will begin in the Pacific next year.

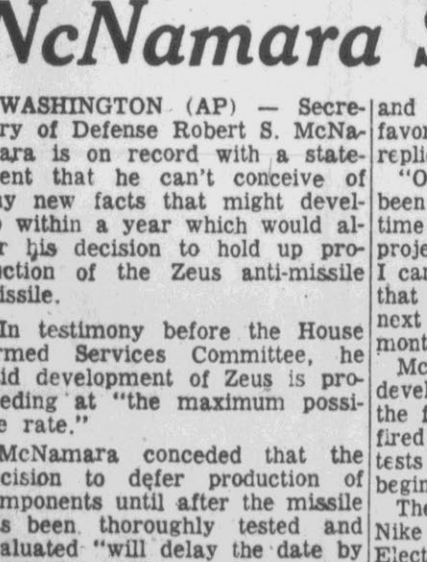

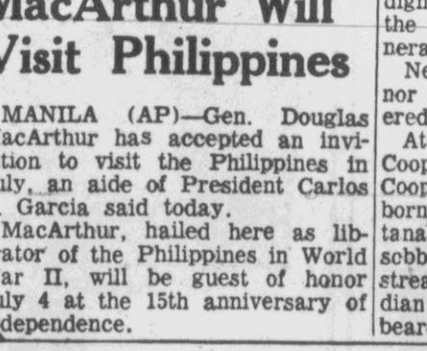

The hold up in production of the Nike- Zeus will affect Western Electric plants in Burlington, Greensboro and Winston-Salem, N.C. The research and development of this missile has been headed up by the North Carolina Works of WE at the Burlington plant, where S. C. Donnelly is project manager.

McNamara made his statement on the production holdup on April 11.

He indicated to the Senate Armed Services Committee the decision is postponed and he will be ready to make it when the system is further developed.

He added, "It is a point that I have made a point to review monthly, and will continue to do so monthly."

Prom Dilemma Time

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Problems about high school proms and graduations fill the mailbox this time of year.
Girls worry about, "What if a boy turns me down for a prom?" Most boys want to go to a prom. So be there first with the invitation. If he sounds like a hold-out, saying, "I'll have to think it over," or "I'm not sure, but I might be tied up for the prom," say "Thanks, but I'd better ask someone else. Time's awastin'." If he is waiting for one particular invitation, it serves him right if he gets left out in the cold. Don't be second best in that respect.
If a boy says directly, "No, I'm tied up," ask someone else. Prom time is not the time to snare an elusive boy. Invite one who has dated you before even though he may not be a football hero.
Graduation Gifts
"Is it proper to give a boy a graduation gift? I have dated him for eight months, and he gave me three handkerchiefs for Christmas. I didn't give him anything."
It would be a nice gesture providing you do not give him anything personal. Pens, pencils, dictionaries and other items useful to him at college are appropriate.
"Is it proper to inscribe a book you give to a boy, or is it better to put a card in it?"
Settle for the card if it is reference book. Nothing would throw a boy more, even though he liked the giver very much, than to have his roommate or friend find a silly inscription. Paste an envelope on the back page enclosing

Supervisor Of City Schools Is Speaker

FARMVILLE — Featuring the program of the May meeting of the Major Benjamin May chapter, DAR, held Saturday in the chapter house, was report of the Society's 70 Continental Congress held in Washington, given by the regent, Miss Elizabeth Lang, who, with Mrs. J. O. Pollard, treasurer, represented the chapter at this congress.
Echoes from the reports of the national officers and chairmen, and excerpts of addresses made by guests, participating in the program, brought to the membership a conception of the wide scope of accomplishments of the past year and an insight into projects of the coming months.
The regent announced the theme adopted by the national society for the year—"For evil to triumph, good men need only do nothing," an old adage made immortal by Edmund Burke.
Miss Lang told of the musical program presented at the Centennial, and of the pleasure of chapter representatives derived from their role as hostesses in the North Carolina room at Continental Hall on a special occasion, and displayed the honor roll certificate awarded the chapter for past year's achievements with the coveted gold ribbon attached as a special award.
During a business session, Mrs. C. H. Mazingo, Approved Schools chairman, reported 80 lbs. of used clothing having been sent to Cross-nore for its store, and Miss Lang read a note from the school expressing appreciation for the $50 scholarship sent from the chapter in April. Having attended a recent District Regent's Workshop, held in Greenville, Miss Lang reported on some of the State projects called attention to the week being observed as National Music Week.
The opening ritual was followed by a meditation, by the chaplain, Mrs. G. Alex Rouse, based on the part Science and Religion have in the Christian way of life and how they may be reconciled in relation to the Creator.
Miss Christine Smith, program leader, presented Mrs. Ellen Lewis Carroll, a past regent, and the present Supervisor of Greenville City Schools, as a local woman who had brought signal honor to the community in her accomplishments in the field of education and as a mother.
Mrs. Carroll reviewed the life of Charles Brandley Aycock, North Carolina's famous Educational Governor, as portrayed by Oliver H. Orr, Jr., in his biography, a recent publication.
The speaker traced the late Governor's career from a small boy, comparing present problems in education, of overcrowded classrooms, teacher shortage and insufficient funds with those prevailing at the time Aycock was elected.
Mrs. Carroll conducted a round table discussion at which members spoke freely and interestingly of their parents' regard and incidents connected with Governor Aycock's activities in the field of education. She concluded with excerpts from the Governor's inaugural address, and by declaring that she had chosen not to dwell on his passing, but would join the many North Carolinians who "regard him as a man whose vital interest and accomplishments in the education field will ever keep him alive in the hearts of citizens of this State."
Following adjournment, the hostesses, Mrs. H. B. Baker and Misses Christine and Hulda Smith served strawberry shortcake, nuts and coffee. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Archie Spright, Mrs. Ollie Grey Gay and Mrs. R. E. Bagley.
Sprays of red rambler roses, peonies, gladioli and irises were used with artistic effect on the colonial mantels and tables.

But Today, Comfort's A Cinch: Grandma Had Firm Foundation

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

Just before the turn of the century, the big news in unmentionables was rust-proof corsets. Today it's the new synthetic fibers that, when woven into three-ounce underpinnings, are stronger than whalebone and more supple than a second skin.

Between these two milestones recommended for wear beneath bathing costumes at the seashore. Steel was cheaper than whalebone, which soon was used only in luxury garments; boning from East Indian buffalo horns disappeared altogether. But the shape was inexorably that of the prevailing fashion: tiny waists (18 inches preferably), balloon hips, bulging stomach. Corsets kept their shapes because they were put over cast iron steam-heated molds from which they were removed rigid. And the ladies, when they poured themselves into the corsets, kept their rigid shape too.

Swing, started the other way in the Thirties. The bosom gained new respect along with other feminine curves. Lastex was developed in 1931 and a two-way stretch gir-die was shown in that year. From that time on, the big changes in foundation garments have been in fabric; shape has remained mostly faithful to nature. Nylon came along in 1940 — lightweight, durable, easy to wash and dry—and today we have Ly-cras and the other spandex fibers. Girdles weigh a few ounces, are machine washable, and perspiration resistant, but they give the kind of figure control formerly possible only with heavy, bulky garments. Women today don't question the ability of their featherlight foundation garments to shore up sagging sacroiliacs and bulging beams, and still be as comfortable as wearing next to nothing at all.

Suddenly in 1900 time ran out for the hourglass figure. Within a few months women were ruler-straight in front, camel-curved in back, and forced into a gait only a kangaroo could envy. It was progress though. For the first time hose supporters made an appearance. Before that the only corset anchorage was at the waist and necessitated lacing tight enough to induce suffocation. By 1905 the Gibson Girl fashions reached their height of popularity, and the rubber reducing girdle was introduced. No figures are available to indicate how much "superfluous flesh" — as the ads terms it—was lost as a result of its attrition. (Later, in 1924, a sheet rubber reducing girdle also enjoyed a brief vogue.) The corset kept extending its control and by 1915 reached so far down the thigh the big question became "Can she sit down?" But the silhouette softened and grew more practical during World War I. But the flapper era of the Twenties slim girls didn't bother with girdles, flattened themselves at the top when necessary. The fine figure of a woman type wore corsets to give a straight line from shoulder to hem. But fashion, ever on a pendulum

Melt butter in clean saucepan over low heat; stir in flour; add the 1/2 cups reserved bean cooking liquid; cook and stir constantly until slightly thickened. Add the apples and cook until they are mushy. Stir in the sugar and lemon juice. Add the drained cooked beans and reheat. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Emotional Objections Are Fading

The heated objections to Gov. Sanford's proposed three per cent tax on food that were often heard six weeks ago have gradually died away as the legislature has gotten down to committee work on the revenue and spending proposals for the coming biennium.

That is not to say that there still does not exist in North Carolina strong objections to the proposed sales tax on food. Certainly many people still are just as determined against such a means of raising state revenue as they ever were. For the most part, however, the highly emotional objections which the governor's proposal initially provoked have about disappeared.

In the place of these there has developed gradually an increasing awareness that if the proposed educational program offered for the state is to be realized,

Four Steps To Sanford's Goal

By LYNN NISBET

DEVELOPMENT — At his news conference this week Governor Sanford listed four steps toward overall development in which he is vitally interested. He is sponsoring legislation that will enable two or more counties or municipalities to organize regional development and planning councils. A number of communities have that authority now under special local acts.

not draw interest and there is usually a right hefty balance, which makes the account highly profitable to the bank.

COME-BACK?—Word filtering in from the central piedmont indicates that C.V. Henkel of Iredell may be organizing a come-back campaign. Henkel served several terms as State senator and last year was runner-up in the race for lieutenant Governor. He gave full time support to the Democratic ticket last fall. Since then he has devoted his energies to business interests, mostly real estate. He bought and is completely remodeling the Vance Hotel at Statesville. His friends say that if he doesn't get into a campaign for himself, he will likely have considerable influence in the outcome of the 1962 and '64 primaries.

JONAS — Democrats in the General Assembly, particularly those on the congressional district committees, do not have much love and affection for Charles Raper Jonas, only Republican in the congressional delegation, but they have a wholesome respect for political prowess. They do not accord him quite the same inherent property right in his seat that they insist upon for Democratic members, but the western legislators are wary about pitting an incumbent Democrat against him. Two bills now pending would put Jonas in a new district with Rep. Whitener of the present 11th district. Plans are being discussed to put him in a district with Rep. Hugh Alexander of the present 9th.

What bothers many of the Democrats is that they are not at all sure whether these schemes would make a martyr out of Jonas or sacrifice the Democrat pitted against him. The prospect of hazardous operations gerrymandered so that a lot of his familiar present area is taken out of his district, and a Democrat wins the congressional seat in 1962.

Then, contend many experienced observers, Jonas will be drafted as the Republican candidate for Governor in 1964, with prospects of winning better than any Republican has had in their century. Furthermore, he probably would be able to carry along two or three Republican congressmen because in most instances the incumbent Democrats would be running in new territory where they had not had opportunity to build organizations.

County Democratic organizations are tied in pretty closely with the congressional line up. Local Republican organizations are not, except in Burke, Catawba and Mecklenburg counties presently in Jonas' district.

Partisan political considerations have been paramount in nearly all the discussion over congressional redistricting. And these factors have influence far beyond the one district in which two incumbents will be included.

funds must be provided to pay for the program. There has also been an increased recognition that without the food tax many other sources would have to be found to equal the amount of revenue anticipated from the food tax. So far there has been little indication that the legislators have found sources satisfactory to themselves for replacing some sort of tax on food.

The tenor of activity in the legislature in Raleigh points up the fact that legislators already are giving consideration to an adjournment date about a month from now. Committee efforts at ironing out the problems of revenues and expenditures for the coming biennium have so far followed closely the budget recommendations made by Gov. Sanford. The fact that no major break from the governor's recommendations has been made either in appropriations or in revenue estimates suggests that most legislators are inclined to use those recommendations at least as a basis for the final committee recommendations to the House and Senate.

North Carolina needs the improved education program which has been proposed by Gov. Sanford. The vast majority of the people of the state recognize the need and are anxious for the program to be implemented by the legislature. At the same time there is also general recognition that if no satisfactory substitute for the food tax can be found, the decision must be made either to have the educational program with a food tax, or to have neither.

The sentiment for the improved educational program at present far outweighs sentiment against a reasonable tax on food. Though the situation may change before the legislature finally acts on its revenue and appropriations measures, major shifts appear unlikely.

Those Who Will Vote Must Be Registered

When a public issue is to be decided by an election, it is decided only by those people who are properly registered and who take the necessary time to cast a ballot on election day.

A month from Thursday, June 17, the people of Pitt County will decide in a bond election whether the county will construct a technical training school which offers important opportunities for the county. During the next three weeks those who want to vote in the $395,000 bond election for establishment of the school will have to get their names on the special registration books to be used in the election.

The fact that persons have previously been registered on the county's voting rolls will have no bearing on this forthcoming bond election. Only those who register anew during the current registration period will be allowed to vote.

It is important, therefore, that every person in the county make a special effort to register during the period which ends June 3. Each of the next three Saturdays the registration books will be open at the 25 precinct polling places throughout the county. During the week persons may register by contacting the precinct registrars at their homes.

If Pitt is to have this technical training school which is sorely needed, it is essential that each citizen register in order that he can vote for the bond issue. It is not enough that the individual citizen leave the matter of registering and voting to his neighbor.

We urge the citizens of the county to take advantage of the registration period in order to get their names on the special registration books which will be used for this special bond election.

Time Is Running Against U.S.

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time is running against the American desire to induce backward people — and some not so backward — to be more sympathetic to the West than to Communism. President Kennedy put it another way last January: "The tide is unfavorable. The news will be worse before it is better." And it has been worse since January. His unsolved dilemma is how to turn the tide, improve the news.

One year ago today the United States suffered one of the greatest embarrassments in its history when Premier Khrushchev broke up the summit meeting in Paris and insulted President Eisenhower.

It was repeated the next month when Eisenhower had to call off his trip to Japan because students and leftists rioted his visit to protest the American-Japanese security treaty. And that attitude is still so strong that this month the State Department advised Eisenhower — wanting to visit Japan now as a private citizen — not to go because of recent anti-American demonstrations.

And since that ruined summit conference of 1960 the Russian-backed rebels in Laos have taken over more than half the country; the United States is deeply worried about the push of Communist guerrillas against the American-backed government in South Viet Nam. In Cuba the American-backed invasion failed when, contrary to this government's expectations and misinterpretation of the Cuban people's feelings, the people did not rise up against their left-wing dictatorship.

There is a deep pool of anti-Americanism in Latin America, despite the U. S. aid given there. And in South Korea, where the longman Rhee was overthrown last year, the army overthrew the government of his successor because, among other things, of its corruption. Kennedy's military advisers put great emphasis on military force as a pacifier of an area.

But it isn't proving good enough, at least in all cases. And neither is American money which goes to back reactionary regimes.

Kennedy is faced with this problem: 1. When the Communists move in, they offer a program to benefit the masses. 2. How can the United States push the governments it supports into broad social and economic programs that will seem just as attractive or better than what the Communists offer?

This may require pressure of an intense kind — since people with great wealth in backward countries, as elsewhere — are reluctant to part with it. This includes land, even though the owners know a Red revolt may take it all away from them.

Here's an example of what this country is up against in supporting a government which, in a poor land, offers none or little of the ambitious Communist programs.

Say a man of 35, in a backward country where his life expectancy is only 40, has three children. None of them has education, all of them have sicknesses and little or no medical care, and all work the land belonging to someone else.

Freedom doesn't mean much to them if they've never really had much more than the freedom to die. And suppose their American-backed government doesn't offer them quick hope of improvement but the Communists do.

In a situation like that real democracy, which they never had or don't understand, and freedom, which in their case didn't mean much, is going to have to compete with Red promises of a better life-quickly.

Kennedy may feel compelled before too long to begin putting the heat on the recipients of American aid to 'move a lot faster for the benefit of their people. This can be a tough nut to crack. But in some cases they face a grisly alternative: If American aid were withdrawn they'd face revolution.

High Time for A Quarantine

Rolled Up Their Sleeves

The Public Housing Authority at its first meeting Monday night took the unusual action of adopting a resolution proclaiming high ideals.

The body declared it was ready to work "with and for" the city's governing body and the people-at-large throughout the community.

The resolution also pledged "to the people we serve that our conclusions, recommendations and actions shall always be associated with the utmost logic and sincerity" and "that the work of this agency shall never be influenced by such forces as coercion, malice or selfish purpose."

These were indeed high purposes which the city's new Authority set for guidance. Coming after a bitter campaign which finally saw the people approve creation of such an Authority in a referendum, this resolution seems a commendable act on the Authority's part.

The resolution was prepared by Dr. Andrew Best, a physician member of the Authority, and approved unanimously.

The Housing Authority rolled up its sleeves and went right to work at its first meeting. There were a number of legal documents to be read and approved. Chairman Charles Howard directed this very carefully with advice from Attorney Kenneth Hite.

Chairman Howard, incidentally showed he had given considerable study to public housing regulations since he was named chairman by outgoing Mayor S. Eugene West on May 4.

It is on his shoulders that the bulk of the Authority's work will rest until federal funds are made available. Then the Authority will be able to hire an executive secretary, retain an attorney and take care of other necessary expenses.

What can be if the city's Shore Drive project is carried out is indicated by a look at the banks of the Tar River east of the Greene St. bridge these days.

Weeds and underbrush have been cut down by crews installing a sewage pipe along the river bank, and despite the slum housing in the background, the area has a serene appearance.

Included in the preliminary Shore Drive plans is a riverside park to be constructed in that area. A beautiful park would give life-section an entirely new look.

Some of the confusion between the breaking and the reshaping of men comes from the fact that certain physical pressures are sometimes used in the early stages of brainwashing. In a kind of middle world, between a hypnotized and a hysterical state, men grow bewildered, introspective, their familiar thought-processes are jumbled into weird distortions of themselves. But after this "unfreezing" follows a stage in which the prisoner acquires again an ordered world of the mind and will. This stage is called the "changing," and it is followed up by a "refreezing," in which men are encouraged to become independent agents of the new order they have adopted.

Is it possible to tell who will or will not be brainwashed? Of course not. Nevertheless, certain kinds of pressures, and certain vulnerabilities to them, have been identified. For instance, the Communists can best deal with those who make knowledge and opinion a means of "adjusting" to society, and "reflection" of reality's objective structure. For this reason, the cell-mates are more important than the jailor, interrogator. Also, those who were brainwashed usually had feelings of guilt or inferiority about their Western civilization; and many had been sympathetic with the intentions of the "agrarian reformers" of China. In other words, these men's brainwashing began in the Liberal schools and circles of opinion. Education for "life adjustment," ignorance of or disloyalty to the tradition of the West, and Liberal sympathies are the Communist's best friends.

Other Editors Saying Bending Without Breaking

(Richmond News-Leader)

The recently captured British spy had intrigued the world's curiosity. Bearded George Blake had been a Communist prisoner in Korea, one who could not, apparently, be broken or brainwashed. He returned in good health and good spirits, was thoroughly examined, then entered the secret service, where for years he supplied the Communists with British secrets. Was George Blake "brainwashed"? And if he was, is there no way for the free world to identify those who return from Communist prisons with maimed minds?

How do brains get washed? A popular notion has grown up that, by various tricks; Communists can "break" a man's mind, reduce it to a putty-like plasticity, then mould it to whatever shape pleases them. Because Pavlov, who made dogs respond with such automatic precision, was a Russian, people have thought that the Russians can put men in such a Pavlovian trance.

It is true that man can be broken or put in a trance, by drugs, torture, and delusion. They can be made to sign confessions, or parrot the party line. But they are broken or blacked-out; their faculties are suspended, half human, in what is only the shell of a man. If these poor remnants of themselves ever recover full consciousness, they hate and recoil from their nightmare of terror. Brainwashing, a term Mao Tse-tung first used, refers to the successful recruiting of Communists under coercion, the astonishing art of making willing and active servants out of unwilling prisoners. The process changes forced attention to firm conviction.

A new and objective study of men who have undergone this process has just been published, called "Coercive Persuasion."

Here are more look-aheads in business, based on analyses of developing trends and other deductions:

Cheaper mortgages: The Administration has not given up efforts to lower interest rates on mortgages on new homes. The FHA rate may be cut again and steps will be taken to reduce carrying charges in other areas.

Dialing by card: The Bell System will introduce card dialing later this year. The caller has commonly used numbers coded on plastic cards; when a card is inserted in a slot in the phone, the number is called automatically.

CIA shakeup: When the Cuba fiasco quiets down, look for a big change in the Central Intelligence Agency, with Allen Dulles probably out. The only business connection is this: if your company needs some slightly fuzzy cloak and dagger boys, they'll be ready or fall openings.

MORE PROSPERITY: Faster recovery is ahead;

Source Of The Trouble

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Having read of General Edwin A. Walker's troubles, I thought it might be well to have a look at "The Overseas Weekly" which was responsible for the fracas. The newspaper accused the General, in effect, of brainwashing American troops with American doctrines.

I got two copies of this newspaper which says that "A Touch of Home, Away From Home." So, it is full of pictures of bosomy girls. On page three, I came upon the General Walker story. The newspaper asserts that the General is to be investigated because "The Overseas Weekly" accused him of exposing American troops. The philosophy of the controversial John Birch Society. The Weekly itself reports that General Walker had referred to it as, "Immoral, unscrupulous, corrupt and destructive."

Men may differ as to policies and ideas, but no law forbids anyone from joining the John Birch Society or from advocating its policies. This organization does not propose to overthrow the American government by force and violence. The issue of "The Overseas Weekly" at which I am looking, gives the impression that membership in this society is a crime of sorts.

In an editorial, the editor of "The Overseas Weekly" says: "The issue is not whether or not the John Birch Society is dangerous, controversial or even ridiculous. That is a decision for the proper authorities—the Congress, the Attorney General and the public — to make. The issue is whether or not the philosophy of any political group should be disseminated by a military commander."

The principle set forth by this newspaper is embodied in this sense:

"We don't pretend to know how to operate militarily and we have never thought we had a right to dictate the thought of others. No man has a right to do harm to another human being."

This is utter nonsense. This country is engaged in war with the Soviet Union. The United States is doctrinally opposed to Communism. Every Communist is an enemy of the United States. It is the function of every official of the United States to dig out those who advocate Communism and to drive them out of the armed forces. The assumption therefore that a man has a right to any opinion is nonsense. A man may not advocate treason. He may not advocate the overthrow of our government by force and violence or by any other means.

The theory that the editors of "The Overseas Weekly" may say what they please but not the General responsible for the physical, mental and moral being of the troops is nonsense. The tone of the paper may best be described by two pictures on page 28 of a German girl hardly clothed. The caption reads:

"Angelika Gesemann, Miss Hesse of 1960, is an aspiring 21 year old actress whose favorite pastimes are travelling and meeting wealthy men. Sounds cold blooded, well... Is this news from home?"

In another issue on page one is a photograph, captioned: "She's lovely, young and single." In this issue, General Walker's crimes seem to be that he is pro-American. This is a quotation:

"Gen. Walker said that Communism has infiltrated every institution in the U.S. in an open attempt to overthrow our way of life. Pro-Blue is designed to acquaint every man in the command with the Communist threat and the vital role each man must play in its defeat. . . the Communists and fellow travelers. . . are all around us working for our destruction."

"The Overseas Weekly" states its purpose in this instance: "But it is the responsibility of this newspaper to bring to public attention any Government official in uniform who uses his power and authority, Government means of communication to influence or dictate the beliefs of subordinates."

"It is furthermore our responsibility to point out officials who propagate beliefs in direct opposition to those upheld by the (Continued on page five)

Lookaheads In Business World

This week government and private economists were eager to point out that the recovery from the recent recession would be slow. Some of these statements may be inspired by an effort to put brakes on the recovery, lest it go too far too soon. But the recovery is for real and will soon be full-winged. Indeed, it can go too far too soon.

See U.S.A.—cheap! Government and private agencies agree that the "Visit 'U.S.A.'" campaign, originally intended to help the U.S. balance of trade, will be a thumping flop. The stumbling block is not questions asked by U.S. consuls abroad, but the terrifically high prices from European standards. So look for promotions of new economy tours by private agencies, with government encouragement.

But, detouring fancy hotels and restaurants, and by leaning on buses, motels, hotels on full weekends, off-beat restaurants, public resorts, national parks and monuments, and people-to-people-contacts, reasonable tours are not being planned. Such tours may cost twice as much as tours in Europe, but they'll still be half of costs of first-class sea-America trips.

Jam in Washington: Make reservations early if you want to attend the centennial of the first Battle of Manassas, first major engagement of the Civil War, near Washington. The District promises enough hotel rooms, but most cities always do.

Fibre fight-back: Synthetic fibres are winning so much acceptance in so many new fields that the processors of cottons and wools are preparing a counter-attack. Expect promotions of more wool and cotton "wash and dry" fabrics; look for greater efforts to make fine wools and best cotton "high fashion" textiles. And don't be surprised at ugly word-of-mouth rumors about certain synthetics.

More price-fixing cases: The Administration would not be talking so tough about new actions against price-fixers if it did not have a number of cases ready. It has such cases and they will be popping out in a matter of days or weeks.

OLD PROMOTER NOTES

ANOTHER SWINDLE
A postcard from the Old Promoter, now out in the country trying to recoup his fortunes: "In recent exposure of termite swindlers, you overlooked salesmen who leave appliances on trial. The receipt suckers sign is really a binding agreement to keep the appliance and pay for it in 18 or 24 instalments." So we did. And we wonder just what the Old Promoter is selling today.

"THE FOG MACHINE" . . . or "Big Smoky" is now at work. It started operations for another year this week. It is pictured here blowing its bug-killing fog into a wooded area between Rose High School and Elm Street Park, on Elm St. Parents are urged to warn children not to play or run behind the bug killing apparatus because they cannot be seen in the fog and might be hit by a car or be injured in other ways.

Bank Bandit Is Captured Just 2 Hours Later

CLIFFSIDE, N.C. (AP) — A bandit held up the Haynes Bank here shortly before noon Tuesday, stuffed $9,510 into his shirt, and fled, dropping money to the street in his haste.

Just two hours later, agents of the South Carolina Law Enforcement Division arrested Garman Marshall (Jimmie) Spicer, 22, near Gaffney, S.C., about 20 miles from here.

A few hours after that, the FBI had charged Spicer with bank robbery. Spicer was arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Ben W. Craig of Gastonia and held in lieu of $30,000 bond, pending trial at the October term of federal court at Shelby.

The FBI said neither the money nor the gun used in the holdup had been recovered.

Spicer, unemployed, is married and the father of one child. He lives about 12 miles from this Western North Carolina community.

Bank Cashier Bill Jenkins said a man came to a teller's window and asked for change for a $5 bill. "I started to give the bills to him," Jenkins related, "when he withdrew the bill and pulled a .45 automatic."

"This is a stickup. I don't want to do it but I go to," Jenkins quoted the bandit as saying.

The bandit ordered Jenkins and Mrs. Betty Cromer, a teller, into the lobby area of the bank, along with a customer. Then he began stuffing the money in his shirt.

His pistol fired by accident and the bullet struck a card index file and ricocheted into the floor.

He then ordered the three people in the bank to lie on the floor, and threatened to fire if anyone followed him.

As he hurried toward his car, several bills dropped to the street. He didn't stop to retrieve them.

The robbery was the fourth this year in North Carolina, and the largest. The first occurred at Charlotte on Jan. 3. A branch bank was robbed of $1,450. It remains unsolved. The second occurred Jan. 14 at Welcome, N.C., where a bank was robbed of $5,443. That one and a $3,664 robbery March 21 at Marion have been solved.

Tasmania Devil Now Increasing

HOBBART, Tasmania (AP)—The Tasmania devil — a prize exhibit in the big zoos of the world — is becoming a worry to some farmers in Tasmania.

The devil is a small flesh-eating animal peculiar to this island state of Australia.

Earlier this century there were fears it would become extinct and it is completely protected.

But today the animal is increasing in numbers, and some farmers have blamed Tasmania devils for the killing of lambs and chickens.

Eichmann Called Nazi Sparkplug

JERUSALEM, Israel (AP) — Adolf Eichmann was described in court today as the sparkplug of the Nazi machinery that confiscated three billion dollars worth of Jewish property in Europe.

The Israeli prosecution of the Gestapo leader assigned to "Jewish affairs" in the Third Reich produced a pile of 80 documents, linking Eichmann to the most minute details of the property gobbler-up.

It was Eichmann, Deputy Attorney General Ya'akov Bar'or said, who directed the precise methods devised to strip the Jews of all they had and even to make it appear legal in German eyes.

Letters from Eichmann to Gestapo offices in Nuernberg, Wuerzburg, Kiel, Bremen, Prague, Vienna, and other major centers outlined the procedures and in some cases contained admonitions against laxity.

The confiscation is the lesser charge against Eichmann, compared to the broad indictment that he supervised the extermination of six million Jews. The prosecution gave this phase importance to show that the property seizure was a definite sign that the Gestapo and the Nazi SS Elite Guard were well aware the victims never would survive.

HE'LL SHOOT?

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Mrs. Frank Morrison, 38, wife of a garage operator, gave birth to triplets today, one boy and two girls, to bring the family total to nine children. Laughed Mrs. Morrison after the successful delivery: "My husband's gonna shoot me."

Didn't Have The Proper Attire

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — R. L. McKeighan, a farmer called for jury duty in U.S. District Court, has sent his regrets to Judge Frederick O. Mercer.

He said he didn't have the proper attire for a courtroom—and in fact had very little attire at all.

Court aides investigated and found McKeighan had told the truth. A tornado Sunday had carried away most of his farmhouse, including his clothing.

McKeighan was excused. Judge Mercer observed that in a long career of listening to reasons why people should not serve on juries, this was a new one.

Who has set this newspaper up as an agency to monitor the thinking and the expression of thought of officers in the American Army? Surely this episode calls for an investigation by a Congressional Committee to discover what really happened in the Walker Incident. Was the General committing an offense or was he persecuted for loyalty?

Meat Inspection Awards-Night Program Is Lively, Amusing Affair

RALEIGH — A large volume of the meats and meat products sold in North Carolina have no inspection, according to Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine.

As he addressed a joint session of the Senate and House Agriculture Committees in support of proposed legislation providing for compulsory meat inspection, Commissioner Ballentine charged that there is, in North Carolina, a tendency to "cause diseased and unfit animals to be sent to slaughterhouses having no inspection."

He explained to the legislators that about 20 meat plants in the state are operating under voluntary state inspection, and three under federal inspection.

The Commissioner believes that in the remainder of the state's meat plants there is probably a concentration of the state's diseased and unfit meat animals, he said.

However, in those plants already undergoing inspection by veterinarians before, during, and after slaughter, Ballentine told members of the legislative committees that in a recent six-month period nearly 10 per cent of the cattle livers were condemned.

Loss due to bruises, local inflammation, parasites, and other local conditions totaled nearly 25,000 pounds in this same period for the 20 plants now having voluntary state inspection, he said.

A purchaser can usually detect spoiled meat, Ballentine told the committee, but what is more important is a careful veterinary inspection of all carcasses at the time of slaughter, to exclude those which are diseased.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The television industry demonstrated Tuesday night that it is possible to turn out a lively and amusing awards program.

A total of 24 "Emmy" statues were handed out. The telecast switched back and forth between Hollywood and New York. There were seven or eight bright sketches—all kidding the medium, commercials, rating systems and surveys. Stars by the score were seen, but none was overdressed or overwrought.

Concededly, the most recent season has not been the industry's most brilliant and some of the award categories were ridiculously all inclusive. Generally, however, members of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences used judgement and discretion in casting their votes.

NBC's great two-hour production of "Macbeth" received the largest number of awards, five. It received the top award—program of the year—and also was named as the best dramatic show. Its stars, Maurice Evans and Judith Anderson, won for the outstanding single performances and George Schaefer received the directing award.

Fred Astaire and Leonard Bernstein tied for second place, with two awards each. NBC's team of Huntley and Brinkley ran off with the news award, while CBS' "Twentieth Century" won in the public affairs category.

There was irony in the award for outstanding performance by an actress in a series. It went to Barbara Stanwyck—whose anthology series will not return next season.

Raymond Burr picked up his second Emmy for his acting in "Perry Mason."

Dick Powell in Hollywood was a competent host who kept things moving smoothly; Joey Bishop in New York was a funny one.

All in all, it was a satisfying, entertaining program. Maybe next year the Oscar awards people will copy the techniques.

NBC has nailed down the elusive and controversial Robert Welch for its May 21 "Meet the Press" program. Welch is founder and president of the John Birch Society.

Recommended tonight: Perry Como Show, NBC, 9-10 (Eastern Daylight Time) — with Frances Langford and Don Ameche; Steel Hour, CBS, 10-11—"The Leonard Code," mystery with Sally Ann Howes.

CHAPTER 34

"Would it help any if I went down and talked to your people, explained why we're here?" Fairlie asked Thrayne.

He hoped fervently that Thrayne would say, "No, it wouldn't. He didn't want to go down there. But as the only one of them who could speak the language, he felt he had to make the offer. He was relieved when Thrayne shook his head.

"No—they don't care why you're here," Thrayne said. "They just want you to go, to leave Ryn, to take your ship away before you bring the Lorn here."

Fairlie could not sleep. He was cold, and he was scared. The ring of fires down at the base of the mountain had an ominous look.

At daybreak, DeWitt was on the radio to Thomason, explaining the situation. "I want the 'copters to come and flush them out of here. Buzz them, fire a few shots. They'll run."

Thomason's voice sounded worried. "And if they don't?"

"They will."

But they did not. The 'copters came droning through the yellow glare of rising Altair, and roared low down over the little knots of men around the smoking fires, and the flat crack of shots came through the roar. Back and forth went the unaimed skitter-planes, making one pass after another.

The men down there left their campfires. They ran into the cattered clumps of trees, and stayed low down over the little knots of men around the smoking fires, and the flat crack of shots came through the roar. Back and forth went the unaimed skitter-planes, making one pass after another.

The men down there left their campfires. They ran into the cattered clumps of trees, and stayed low down over the little knots of men around the smoking fires, and the flat crack of shots came through the roar. Back and forth went the unaimed skitter-planes, making one pass after another.

There was a silence. They all looked at DeWitt. His face was hard and angry, but when he turned and met their gaze, he smiled.

"So they didn't scare," DeWitt said. "All right, the devil with them. We'll just let 'em wait down there and freeze their feet."

Nobody answered that for a moment. The men looked at each other unhappily, and then, as though by a common impulse, they looked toward Raab and Fairlie. They had heard enough of the arguments between those two and DeWitt to know where the real opposition to DeWitt lay.

Fairlie thought, "I suppose I've got to step out now and say what they expect me to, what Christensen told me to when he was dying, and a lot of luck I'll have bucking against DeWitt, but I've got to."

He took the step toward DeWitt but before he could speak, Raab's incisive voice anticipated him.

"Let us be clear about this, DeWitt," said Raab, using one of his favorite phrases. Behind his eyes-glasses his eyes were cool and impersonal. "Are we to stay here, in increasing danger, to continue this futile search?"

"Why, yes, we are," said DeWitt heartily. "We certainly are." And humor dropped away and he said savagely, "And the hell of a scientist you are after all, Raab. You say the search will be futile. What kind of a large unscientific assumption is that? How do you know it will be futile?"

Raab said calmly, "I say that that is a logical estimate of the probabilities. This Hall of Suns is a monument. Nothing else. The weapons and machines and secrets that have obsessed you wouldn't even have been here. As I've said before, they would have been down in the starports and arsenals of that city, where the Lorn destroyed them long ago."

"I agree," said Fairlie. "I think that we ought to break out of here and return to the ship."

"And I certainly agree," squeaked Winstedt hastily. "For Heaven's sake, DeWitt, use your common sense. We haven't found anything, and there's no need to throw away our lives."

DeWitt looked around at their faces, and then at the other men. "You're all of the same mind?" There was a silence. "I see you are." His face was calm now, almost triumphant.

And in a sudden flash of intuition, Fairlie thought he could see into DeWitt's thinking. He was the leader. He had brought them here, to this far world, by forcing the issue. They would not have come without him and now they were scared, they wanted to quit. But he would never quit that easily. He would hold them to it, until success rewarded their search in spite of everything, because he was the leader.

"We stay right here," said DeWitt, deliberately. "And I want to remind you that I have a gun and you don't and that as commanding authority on this expedition I can punish mutiny." He folded his arms and smiled at them.

Yes, thought Fairlie, I was right. He's savoring this, the strong man against the weak ones.

"How about food and water?" demanded Raab.

"We've enough for a day or so."

"And then—?"

"Then," said DeWitt, "we'll worry about it. Right now we've other things to worry about. Smith, you and Muirhead keep watch, and watch them too." His thumb jerked toward Thrayne and Aral. "The rest of you will resume the search-programs I've already outlined."

There was another silence, and the cold yellow sunlight fell upon their faces and the cold wind whispered.

Raab said slowly, "Christensen was wiser than we knew. He said that you were unbalanced, dangerous, obsessed. And you are."

"Oh, bosh," said DeWitt contemptuously. "Chris was a humanitarian in a world that can't afford humanitarians any more. And I'm not more obsessed than you are. I've just got more guts, that's all. Now get to work." And he turned his back on them and went back through the broken golden doors into the Hall.

They looked at each other, and they could find nothing to say. It was the old situation, thought Fairlie, the reasonable men who could perceive realities against the one man who refused to admit realities, but the one man would fight to the death for his obsession, and that was what gave them pause.

"He'll come to his senses before long," said Raab. "He'll have to when the water gives out." All that day they went on with the search-programs that not a one of them believe in. Fairlie went on with his translations, and they were ringing and splendid tributes to the Vanryn star-captains, but there was nothing in them that would satisfy DeWitt.

Thrayne and Aral sat in a shadowy corner and did nothing, and talked little. They looked crushed. They evinced no desire at all to escape, and Fairlie could guess that escape to their people down on the plain would be no escape at all.

Night came and the watchfires of the Vanryn down there blazed out in their scattered ring. The wind blew moaning through the Hall of Suns and the little mock-sons of the shattered universe lit the dark and sullen faces of the men as they ate their reduced ration and drank their bit of water and crawled into the sleeping-bags. Fairlie did not think that they would take this much longer.

Yet, incredibly, DeWitt's voice roused them in the morning and drove them back to the senseless program. Search for vaults and

Protecting Stock Buyer Can Be A Big Headache

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Protecting the stock buyer can be a headache—especially today when so many novices or part-time investors yearn to make a big killing fast.

Many are victims of their own bad judgment, although brokers say they do their best with advice and information. But many of their customers, and those of the over-the-counter market, are bent today on speculating, in the worst sense of that term.

Some are clipped by the sharp practices of manipulators, although both the government and the stock exchanges have taken steps since the market scandals of the 1920s and 1930s to police the market.

The Securities and Exchange Commission, government watchdog of the offering and sale of stocks, is launching an investigation of the second largest exchange, the American in New York, to see if tighter policing is needed.

It grows out of an SEC order for expulsion of two American Exchange members, Jerry and Gerard Re, after charges of long and widespread price rigging and illegal stock sales.

All of the nation's 13 exchanges have rules governing member activities and requirements that stocks must reach before being listed.

Much reliance is placed on public information. Companies must report their condition. Broker members must comply with exchange rules and their books are open to inspection. Spot checks are taken and publicized.

Poetry—Even In The Trash Can

CINCINNATI (AP)—If you put your mind to it, you can even wax poetic about a trash can.

The Student Council at Walnut Hills High School, campaigning to make trash receptacles attractive so more students will use them, has decided to decorate them with the school colors and emblem—and possibly include this poem by senior Karen Roe.

"These halls will be cleaner than ever before; if you'll use the trash can instead of the floor."

The crisis came in mid-afternoon when the last bit of water was doled out. They drank it, and then they looked at DeWitt.

"I'd say that does it," said Winstedt anxiously. "You see that we can't stay here any longer now, DeWitt? Surely you see that we have to break out of here now?"

"We stay," said DeWitt. "I am going to call Thomason. I'll have the 'copters drop us food and water as long as we're here."

The Lorn are coming! The shadowed ones! the voice cried, choked with terror. The story continues here tomorrow.

Even Toothbrush Is Motor-Driven

NEW YORK (AP)—Sleepy-eyed, you get out of bed, stumble to the bathroom and plug your toothbrush into a wall socket.

No, don't go back to bed and start all over again—at least not if you use an electric toothbrush. It's a new item for care of teeth and gums. Initial reports of trials in clinics indicate it is useful, especially in care of the gums.

The toothbrush, which costs $19.75, is not in drugstores generally as yet.

It consists of a motor-driven handset with brush heads which fit on one end. In this way one handset can serve a family, each member having his own brush. The brush head is smaller than regular toothbrushes. It moves up and down, covering a 60 degree arc, to brush the teeth in the vertical stroke as suggested by dentists.

Dr. J. Phillip Norris of the University of Maryland tried the brush on 15 patients and said it proved highly effective in cleaning dental areas, including those difficult to reach. Its effectiveness in massaging the gums could not be equalled by usual hand methods, he said.

Other researchers said it was effective in the treatment of inflamed gums and other oral problems.

"Patients with poor home dental care appear to favor it because of its 'gadget impact' and because its use is easier than manual brushing," said Dr. I. Michael Harris of Seton Hall College of Medicine and Dentistry.

It also helped patients reach badly positioned teeth and crown and bridge work. Handicapped patients including the mentally retarded have also used the brush with good results, clinicians said. The rapidly moving brush head gives a feeling similar to a gentle machine cleaning by a dentist.

Tiny Glean Of Hope Is Shining In Old Belgian Colony Of The Congo

EDITOR'S NOTE — Are things ever going to get better in the Congo? Here is the situation brought up to date by a correspondent whose 1960 reporting from Africa brought him the Pulitzer Prize for international reporting.

By LYNN HEINZERLING

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—A tiny gleam of hope is shining through the political jungle of the Congo. But it is still very dim.

The old Belgian colony which never really achieved nationhood despite 11 months of freedom still teeters on the edge of anarchy. The tribe is still more important than the nation.

But there appears to be a growing revision against the record of political double-crossing, violence, assassination and backwardness.

Huge billboard signs all over Leopoldville erected by the Leopoldville provincial government, say: "If the politicians agree, if national unity is realized, if tribal fighting is stopped, there will be an end of unemployment."

The Congo is still divided, on the brink of bankruptcy and almost leaderless. Yet there is an air of expectancy here. Diplomats who have watched the whole incredible performance since last June 30 are beginning to express a faint optimism. They point to a slow improvement of relations between President Joseph Kasavubu's government and the United Nations. Another sign is the frank admission by some Congolese politicians that the Congo cannot afford to be regarded as the world's backward child much longer. Perhaps the most important sign is the emergence of Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko as a force in shaping policy.

"Our merchants felt like patriotism should be shown every day and not just during special events," explained Dr. John R. Jones, president of the East Brainerd Community Service Association.

Bomboko is only 33, but he is one of the most sophisticated of Congolese. He was foreign minister in Patrice Lumumba's government. He served in the same capacity under the interim government apparatus established by Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu last September. He has remained close to Kasavubu throughout.

Bomboko works very closely with Mobutu, whose methods have been questioned, but whose idealism and patriotism are not generally doubted.

Together they brought about the arrest of Katanga leader, Moise Tshombe, at Coquilhatville. Tshombe had chosen to issue an ultimatum to President Kasavubu about his cooperation with the United Nations rather than cooperate in the work of the Coquilhatville conference.

Kasavubu has ordered Tshombe detained indefinitely while a commission decides whether he should be tried for treason. Tshombe also is threatened with prosecution for the murder of Lumumba, who was killed soon after he was delivered to Katanga authorities by the central government.

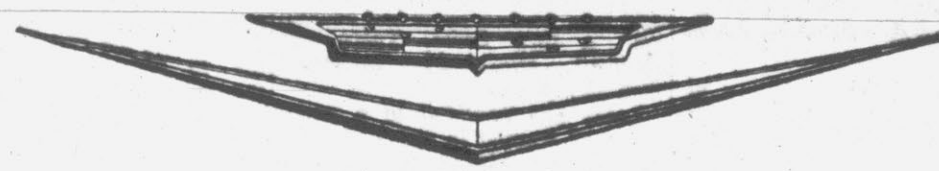

Bomboko is a pleasant, gregarious person, one of the few Congolese who was allowed to study in Belgium before independence. He studied political science at a Brussels University and became a follower of the Liberal party there.

He has no important political following but, working through Kasavubu, he could exert a powerful influence on future policy. Kasavubu's closer relations with the United Nations and his decision to summon Parliament after the Coquilhatville conference undoubtedly were pushed by Bomboko and Mobutu.

Motorists Can 'Earn' Back Three Points For Record At Driver Clinic

By AURORA DOLLEY
Reflector Bureau, Assn.
RALEIGH—The Department of Motor Vehicles has a "remedy" for Tar Heel motorists who are getting too many points against their driving records.

A school for drivers who are putting on too much weight via the point system—accumulating too many points, that is—is called the Driver Improvement Clinic, and is held in 34 different locations across the State.

In order to be "eligible" to attend this school, which meets once a week, nightly, for a two-hour period, till eight hours of schooling have been absorbed by the driver, a motorist must have accumulated at least seven or eight points against his record.

Drivers can be assigned to the school nearest them by either a court or a hearing officer in the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Instructors do not try to give motorists driving skills; instead they concentrate mainly upon trying to change the attitude of careless drivers.

O. D. Griffin, head of Driver Education and Accident Records at the Department of Motor Vehicles, says that without the clinic North Carolina would have had more accidents.

"We think we are offering the people of the State a very fine service", states Griffin.

Driver responsibility is another object which the Driver Clinic strives to teach its students.

Though not all of the drivers assigned to the Clinic are trying to remove three points from their records, it is possible for this to be accomplished, explains Griffin.

Volunteers may also attend the clinic, says Griffin, but they are not eligible to "remove" three points from their total without recommendation of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

During the first three months of 1961, there have been nearly eight hundred drivers across the state enrolled in these clinics.

The total number of drivers attending during 1960 was nearly 3500; and approximately 3000 of these completed the course successfully.

Smallest of the clinics in the State appears to be at Lumberton, where last year only 15 drivers were enrolled in the driver-education course at the clinic.

Largest clinic is at Charlotte, where 411 motorists passed the clinic's course in 1960, and which is the only clinic in the state not open to volunteers.

According to Griffin, approximately 23 states and provinces of Canada have a point system similar to North Carolina's, and in North Carolina only 332 licenses were suspended in 1960 under the point system.

However, there were 32,000 other motorists whose licenses were suspended or revoked through other convictions or charges, he states.

The Driver Education Division plans soon to prepare a study of the records of motorists who have attended its clinic to see statistically the improvement in driving habits.

Safe Burglars Did Him 'Favor'

LA SALLE, Ill. (AP)—Burglars lugged a 1,000-pound safe 40 feet through two doors of the Utica Stone Co. office to a parked truck Tuesday. There the safe fell and its door flew open.

Said manager Bob Harvey: "I've been wondering how to get that safe out of here but didn't want to spend the money for it."

Apparently Won In Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Negroes apparently have won their campaign to be served with white persons at Jacksonville lunch counters—a campaign that erupted into three days of racial violence last August.

Some variety stores Tuesday served small groups of Negro young people, but at least one department store continued to refuse them service.

The move apparently was organized by store managers and other spokesmen refused to comment on it. Most white persons paid no attention when Negroes were served.

Try The Laundry Something Lost?

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—If you're missing a bottle of ketchup or $1,000, try your neighborhood laundry. Chances are you dropped them in the last bundle.

One local laundry says their pre-wash checks produce everything from false teeth to bow ties, not to mention Social Security cards, baggage claim checks, plane tickets, credit cards, groceries, cuff links, snapshots, and automobile license plates.

"Just as long as they're small enough to fit in the laundry bag," says Elmer A. Pickard, service manager of a local laundry and dry cleaning firm.

Once a cat jumped out of a pile of shirts.

In another bundle, workers found a tennis racket.

Groceries appear too, everything from a five-pound bag of sugar to a half-used bottle of ketchup.

Money is the common item. Even coin collections turn up in the wash. One of his workers found $400 stuffed in the pockets of a pair of white duck trousers, Pickard reports.

"There was the time that one of our girls found $300 in a man's shirt pocket," he says. "He was so happy to get it back he gave her $20."

Some customers aren't so grateful. One worker found a roll of $10 bills in the laundry. The roll was banded with a paper wrapper from a bank.

"We counted the money when the man came for it," Pickard recalls. "I'm short," he told us. "There was $1,100 in this bundle." Pickard said the bank band read $1,000.

Macbeth Wins 5 Emmies; Steals TV Awards Show

By JAMES RACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Macbeth, William Shakespeare's tragic play, won five Emmies Tuesday night and stole the 13th annual TV awards show.

Barbara Stanwyck, who has lost her sponsor, won her first TV award, and—in the excitement—stole her dress. Bob Hope, nominated for the first time, suffered a stunning disappointment—but bore up manfully.

George Schaefer, best actor—Maurice Evans; best actress—Judith Anderson; outstanding drama; and program of the year. Miss Stanwyck, nominated for four movie Oscars but never a winner, won on her first try in television.

Mars Hill School Fight Is Continuing Unabated

MARS HILL, N.C. (AP)—The Mars Hill School hassle—touched off by the ouster of Principal Ralph Neill Jr.—raged today without a sign of a compromise.

The Board of Education members then conferred with the representatives of the faction backing Neill. The board members suggested that the Mars Hill citizens meet with the school committee and encourage pupils to attend the school. Whether efforts would be made to try to arrange such a meeting was not indicated.

The meeting of the committee with the Madison County Board of Education and citizens protesting the ouster of Neill was suggested by Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of education. Committee members Oscar Anderson Jr. and Brown Ammons met with two members of the Board of Education and two leaders of the Mars Hill group. After 20 minutes, Dr. Bruce Sams of Mars Hill announced that the meeting was stymied because of the absence of three school committee members. One of the three was out of town.

Pupils have been boycotting the school for a week to protest the firing of Neill. Only 31 of the 900 students were on hand Tuesday. Carroll has said no further action will be taken by his office. He said it is the responsibility of Madison officials to get the students back to school.

Besides the protests of the Mars Hill citizens' group, 30 of the 35 teachers of the school have said they will quit unless Neill is hired for next year. Members of the school committee have said they will not compromise on this.

Hope, nominated for the first time in his 25 years of stardom on talent alone, lost out in the humor category to Jack Benny, who has won before.

Benny, a pallbearer at Gary Cooper's funeral Tuesday, didn't show up to accept his award. It was accepted by Irving Fein, executive producer of the Benny show.

Hope quipped that he should move from the San Fernando Valley to Beverly Hills—where all the votes are concentrated.

Her anthology series has not been renewed for next year. Raymond Burr, the defense attorney who never loses a case on the Perry Mason TV show, was named best actor in a series.

Fred Astaire, who has nearly as many Emmies as the television academy, won two more to make a total of 11 in his collection.

The veteran dancer seemed embarrassed to win again for outstanding performance in a variety show and outstanding variety program.

Observers In U.S. Concerned About Korea Events But No 'Statements'

By ENDRE MARTON
WASHINGTON (AP)—Official observers here are watching events in Korea with extreme concern, but have declined to issue any statement beyond saying that the situation is "unclear."

President Kennedy, now in Canada, is keeping in close touch with the State Department on events in Korea. Before he left he called Walter P. McCaughy, former U.S. ambassador to Korea and now assistant secretary to the Far East, to the White House for consultations.

U.S. military and embassy representatives in Seoul have called upon Koreans to support the government of Premier John M. Chang, and have claimed that only a small part of the Korean army took part in Tuesday's coup.

Officials here have said that such statements are within the scope of authority of the U.S. representatives in Korea, but they have cautiously refrained from subscribing to them.

The reason for this—having U.S. officials in Seoul making strong statements and officials here making cautious ones—is not lack of information, because the State Department is in constant communication with the embassy in Seoul.

The reason is that although the junta in Korea claims full control of the government and the country it may not be able to hold onto that power. This depends on several factors.

One is what the 600,000-man army does. Reports reaching here indicate only about 4,000 soldiers took part in the coup.

Another is what the students do. The high school and university students are Korea's intelligentsia, and have a strong influence on the people. Last year it was the students who toppled the government of strongman Syngman Rhee. If they support the junta, its success is likely. If they oppose it, Chang's return would be possible.

The United States, which has poured aid into South Korea as a bulwark against the Communist tide, has no desire to see Korea's democratic institutions founder. Neither has it any desire to antagonize a new regime which—despite the fact that it seized control by force—has emphatically stated its desire to cooperate with the West.

Thus, if the junta succeeds in holding onto its power, the high echelon of the State Department will not be on record as having opposed it—despite the statements of U.S. officials in Korea. The issues Washington experts realize are local: Alleged government corruption, lack of social progress, poor conditions on the farms.

Magruder's friend, who received a letter from the general within the past month, said Magruder has no definite plans after retiring.

The general and his wife, Lucia, have a home in nearby Arlington, Va. and there Magruder, a Civil War buff, will be able to indulge his interest in military history.

U.S. General In Korea Has Back The Civilian Govm't

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP)—A Pentagon official who has known Lt. Gen. Carter Zowie Magruder for years said today "anything he says he has thought through time and time again."

"He talks slowly and deliberately and acts that way, too," this official told a reporter.

So, Magruder, 61, U.S. and U.N. commander in Korea, wasn't shooting from the hip when he sided publicly with the regime of Premier John M. Chang against a rebel military junta.

So far, the U.S. government hasn't taken any such stand. The State Department called the situation unclear and declined comment. The Defense Department refused to say whether it felt Magruder went too far or whether it agreed with him.

The general will close out his 47-year military career at the end of next month. Upon his retirement, he will be succeeded in the important Korean post by Lt. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, 57.

The defense official, who counts himself a friend of Magruder, described the general as the ideal military type—erect, soldierly and with an air of "great strength and sternness."

Magruder was born on April 3, 1900, in London where his father, a U.S. health officer, had been sent to help in preventing the spread of the United States of an epidemic of bubonic plague.

Leaving the University of Virginia during World War I, Magruder drilled at the officers' training camp at Plattsburg, N.Y., and was commissioned an infantry reserve second lieutenant two months before the armistice.

The next year, he won a competitive exam and was appointed to the U.S. Military Academy, graduating with a commission in the field artillery in 1923.

Many of Magruder's between-wars years were spent in the artillery, with time out to earn a masters degree in mechanical engineering at Purdue. He also attended the Army War College here and the Command and General Staff Schools at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

At the time of the Pearl Harbor attack, Magruder was on the War Department General Staff. During and after World War II, he saw duty in North Africa and Europe, becoming chief of staff of the U.S. Army in Europe in May 1948.

Magruder was detailed to Korea in October 1953 to command the 24th Infantry Division, next the 9th Corps, and finally to move in as chief of staff for the Far East Command.

A four year tour in Washington as armed deputy chief of staff for logistics interrupted Magruder's Far East duty. In June 1959, he was sent back to Korea, this time as the top commander in that theater.

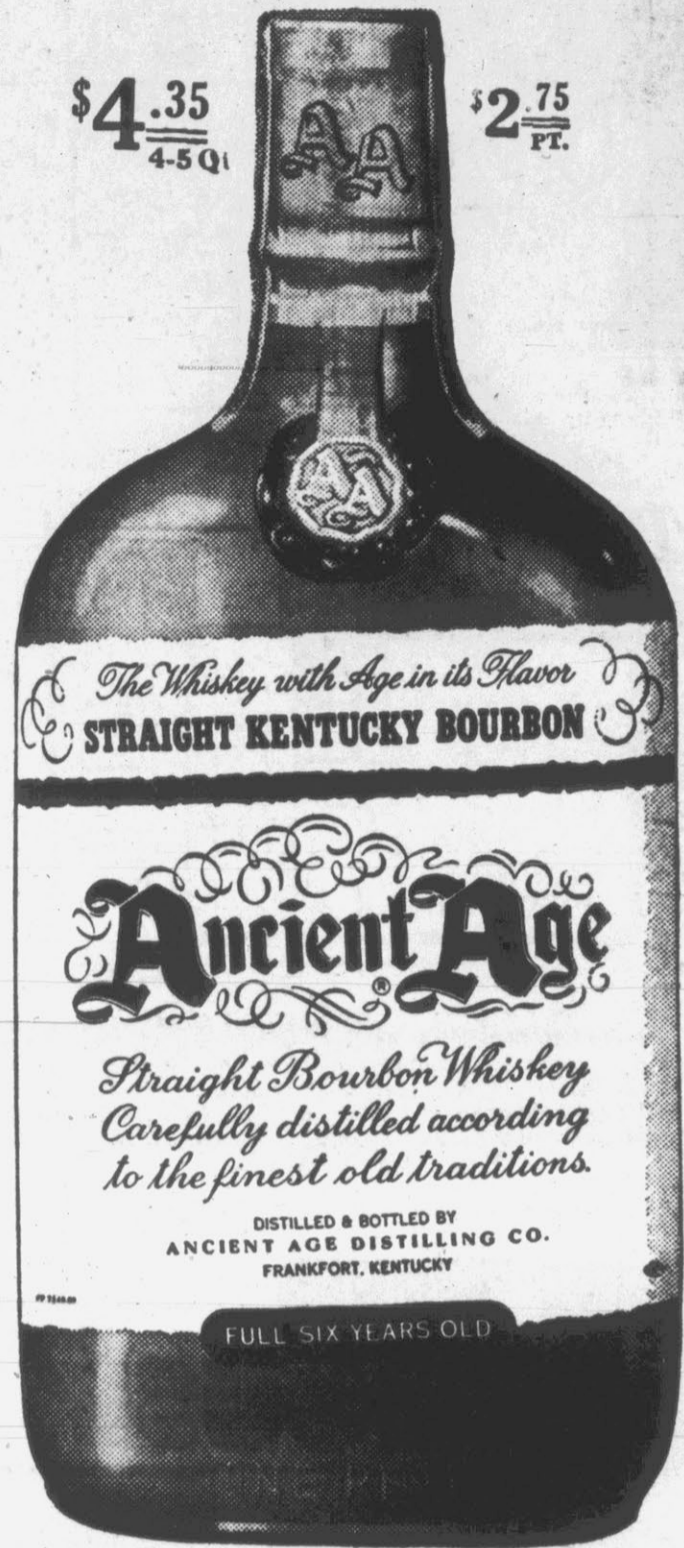

Magruder's friend, who received a letter from the general within the past month, said Magruder has no definite plans after retiring.

The general and his wife, Lucia, have a home in nearby Arlington, Va. and there Magruder, a Civil War buff, will be able to indulge his interest in military history.

Elephant's Appetite Is Big Problem In Circus

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Everybody likes to watch an elephant eat. Everybody, that is, except Rudy Bundy. As treasurer of the Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey Circus, he'd like to see some elephants go on a voluntary diet—the ones he buys hay for.

"We have 20 elephants and they eat 30 bales of hay a day—plus all the free peanuts they can mooch. They eat all the time," he said.

"Elephants even eat at night while they're standing up sound asleep. They never quit eating."

The treasurer of "The Greatest Show on Earth" has problems strikingly different from the financial officers of most business corporations.

Feeding 30 bales of hay a day on the road for the elephants is easy, Bundy said, compared to the task of buying 550 pounds of horse meat daily for the lions and tigers.

"That is getting harder every year," he remarked. "Sometimes we have to feed them beef. But that's more expensive—and besides, the big cats don't like it as well. They prefer horse meat."

Bundy said getting out the payroll for circus people was simple compared to meeting the varied menu demands of the circus animals.

In addition to the elephants, lions and tigers, the circus carries 35 horses, 30 dogs, 2 chimpanzees, 2 gorillas, 3 camels, 3 llamas, 4 bears, 15 cats, 12 white rats, 3 roosters, an ikapi, 2 giraffes, 2 zebras, a fox, a hippopotamus and a goose.

"The big problem is that we've never been able to train the animals to stop eating when we're not showing," Bundy said.

"But at that the animals are less of a worry than the people. They aren't as temperamental."

Bundy, a cheerful, blue-eyed man of 54, is a close friend of circus president John Ringling North. He worked his way up to his present post after more than 30 years as a clarinet player and touring band leader. He played at the old Palace Theater here and says he feels he did as much as anybody to kill vaudeville.

"The only financial background I had was a commercial course I took in high school," he said.

"The rest of it I had to learn on the job."

At one time there were 130 circuses in America. Now there are only a dozen of any real size.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

BUDGET BEAUTY: This fine example of a basic split level house is designed to achieve the ultimate of space and efficiency with a budget that can be met by the average American home buyer. A series of cantilevers produces a vast living floor area on a small basic foundation. The architect is Samuel Paul, 89-51 164th St., Jamaica 22, N. Y. and the plan is HA178P.

By ANDY LANG
AP Newstextures

If you want to keep the elements out of your house, you have to be sure that it is caulked thoroughly. And the caulk should be inspected annually to be sure that it is in good condition. An extra inspection should be made just before the start of an exterior paint job.

Calking is necessary where two dissimilar materials meet, in the spaces between butt joints and in the areas around pipes and utility openings. Typical places are the junction of siding with windows, doors and eaves; junctions of porch floors with walls and pillars; junctions of wood siding with masonry of any type; and joints between masonry areas.

Before any type of caulk compound is used, the surface must be free of dirt, dust, moisture and oil or grease. Calking should not be applied when the temperature is less than 40 degrees. Gaps deeper than 1/4 of an inch should be filled with oakum before the caulk is used.

Most home owners find that the easiest way to apply caulk is with a caulk gun, of which there are two types. The first is loaded with bulk compound from a container. Easier and less messy is the cartridge type which is loaded with a pre-packed cartridge of compound containing about 1-10th of a gallon.

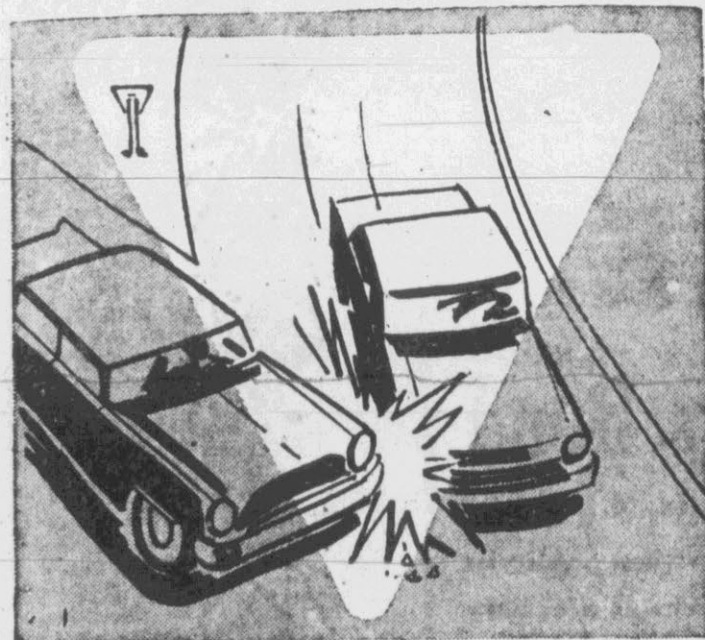

In applying gun caulk, hold the gun at about a 45 degree angle to the surface. The nozzle is beveled to insure the proper angle. Also hold the gun in the same installation.

plane as the crevice you are filling—not at right angles. All joints or beads of caulk should be at least 3/8ths of an inch deep. To estimate the amount of caulk needed for a job, figure about 10 to 15 linear feet per cartridge or 100 to 150 feet per gallon.

There are two other types of caulk that can be used. One is available in a rope form in various dimensions and a number of strands are coiled in a roll. One or more strands are used for temporary or permanent protection around windows, screens, louvers and miscellaneous joints in the home. This type can be easily removed if the seal is to be temporary and retains its tackiness indefinitely when used as a permanent seal and can be painted. No tools are necessary with this type; just unroll the amount of rope needed, separate the number of strands necessary to fill the gap and press firmly into the crack with the fingers.

A third type of caulk is known as knife grade and is applied with a putty knife or spatula. Dig out enough material from the container to fill the crack. Press firmly into place with the knife and smooth off until flush with the surrounding surface. This type is particularly adaptable to medium-sized irregular cracks or crevices.

The most common caulk colors are white, off-white, natural and gray. While caulk does not have to be painted, research shows that its life can be extended considerably if it is painted on.

East Carolina Places Six On All-Conference Team

Little League Season Opens Here

LITTLE LEAGUERS GET UNDERWAY . . . Pepsi Cola hurler fires a fast one at Greenville Tobacco Company batter as the two Tar Heel League teams opened the 1961 Little League season yesterday afternoon at Guy Smith Little League field.

By LEONARD LAO
Reflector Sports Writer

East Carolina's North State Champions placed six players on the All-Conference team as selected by the coaches of the league to dominate the star-studded squad.

The Pirates, who compiled a 13-1 conference slate, laid claim to the North State crown for the third year in a row.

Three of the Pirate members of the team were repeaters from last season, while the other three were named for the first time.

Larry Crayton, Glenn Bass, and Wally Cockrell were all holdovers from last season. Crayton and Cockrell were also named to the All-State teams last year. The former finished this season with a 7-1 record, the best in the Pirate camp. In his three years at toting the rubber for the Bucs, Crayton has compiled a 23-4 record to establish himself as the winningest pitcher in the North State history books. Incidentally, the ace lefthander has been a member of the All-Conference and All-State teams all three years in a Pirate uniform, and still has no other season ahead of him.

Cockrell, a native of Falls Church, Va., has been one of the best outfielders in East Carolina history. The husky righthander, who bats from the left side of the plate, started things off with a bang this season, getting three home runs in the first three games, but after that he went into somewhat of a slump, not being able to shake it until last week's conference finale against Elon when he went three for three against the Christians. Cockrell finished the season with a 276 average, lower than his 333 clip last season.

The third repeater, Bass, a native of Wilson, is getting to be an old hand at being named to all-star teams, having been chosen to the All-Conference teams twice in football as well as baseball. Last season, Bass led the Pirates in hitting with a .390 average. This season he carries a hefty .329 lead. The speedy righthander leads the Bucs in stolen bases with six to his credit.

The three Pirate members for the first time are Nathan Greene, Jimmy Martin, and Cotton Clayton. Greene compiled a 3-1 record on the mound for the Bucs, with the one loss being his first in college competition. The tricky righthander, has speed and breaking stuff for the makings of an outstanding professional prospect.

Martin, the man who laid down the difficult job of first base for the Pirates, had probably his best season of his career this year, hitting at a .357 clip and driving in 24 runs. Martin's 25 hits were tops for the Bucs, and among them were three doubles, two triples and a pair of grand slam home runs. A Senior, the fancy fielding Martinsville, Va. native failed to make a miscue the entire season.

Clayton, who throws right and bats left, is the only EC sophomore on the all-star team. In his first season on the diamond for the Bucs, the tow-headed native of Zeb Vance finished with the second best batting average in the Pirate camp, hitting the pill at a .358 clip. Post-season honors are also getting to be a habit with Gotton, who was just recently named to both the All-Conference and All-State teams for his play on the basketball courts. As a freshman, Clayton was named to the All-Conference team in basketball, thus making him a repeater this winter.

Though the Pirates dominated the All-Conference selections, it is hard to leave off some of the individuals who have made the 1961 baseball season a successful one for the Jim Mallory coached team.

Among those outstanding players who were not mentioned, but who will gain recognition here, are Gary Pierce, a senior outfielder, Charlie Johnson, a junior catcher, and Floyd Wicker, a freshman third baseman. All three carried better than a .300 batting average.

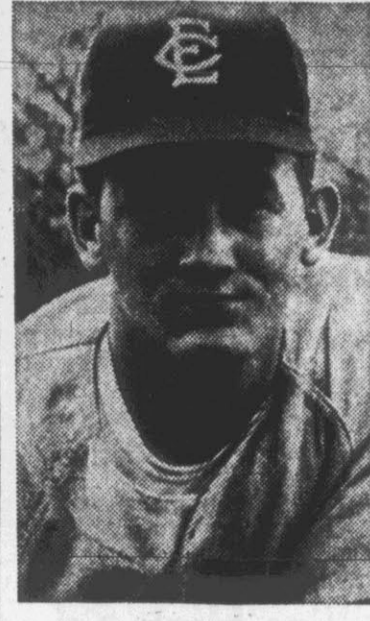

Pierce led the EC batters with a .383 average. He also led the Bucs in home runs with five, and runs batted in with 27. The burly New Castle, Delaware native, no other season ahead of him.

Johnson improved at the plate perhaps more than any other player on the East Carolina squad. The burly backstop picked up his average from .227 last season to .357 this year, along with being one of the better catchers in the league.

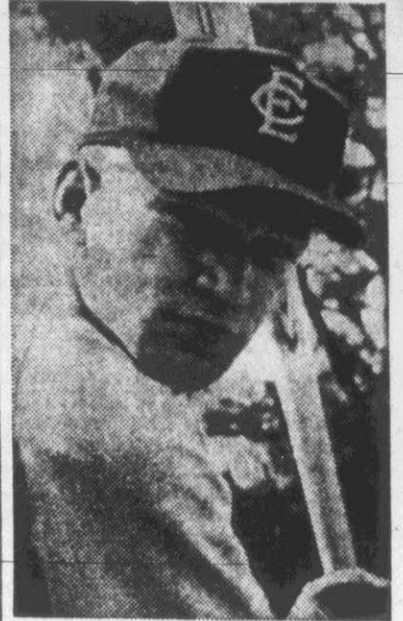

Wicker, a native of Snow Camp, came through with flying colors in his rookie season for the Bucs. When the season started, Pirate Coach Jim Mallory was worried about who was going to handle the vacant third base job, but Wicker put Mallory's mind at ease with his smooth ability to field the hot ones with seemingly little effort. Wicker also managed to carry a .304 batting average.

State Player Ready To Make New York Trip

RALEIGH (AP)—A North Carolina State basketball player was standing by today to go to New York with two SBI agents if needed in connection with a probe of the basketball fix scandals.

Anton (Dutch) Muehlbauer of Brooklyn, N.Y., one of three N.C. State players charged with bribery in the fixing of games, volunteered to make the trip with the authorities.

His presence presumably would be for the purpose of identifying the contact man in the conspiracy here.

District Solicitor Leser V. Chalmers flew to New York Tuesday night to confer with New York District Attorney Frank Hogan concerning the basketball fix scandals.

John Boyd and E. B. Pearce, State Bureau of Investigation agents, were expected to go to New York, possibly today, to join Chalmers.

Meanwhile, President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina planned to confer again today with State College Chancellor John Caldwell and UNC Chancellor William B. Aycock about the basketball scandal which has hit both schools.

In addition to Muehlbauer, State team Capt. Stan Niewierowski, also of Brooklyn, and Terry Litchfield of Louisville, Ky., were charged with bribe-taking. Louis Barshak of New York was charged as being the contact man. Chalmers announced Monday he had issued warrants charging Joseph Green of New York with bribing two N.C. State players to fix the State games at Duke and North Carolina.

Friday met for two hours Tuesday with Caldwell and Aycock, but said "we did not reach any final conclusions."

Carolinas Open Qualifying Set

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Local qualifying play over 36 holes will be held Monday for Carolinians at Pinehurst and the Green Valley Golf Club, Greenville, S.C.

Sixty-four players will compete for 11 places in the sectional tests, scheduled June 5 at Atlanta and June 6 at Washington.

The Pinehurst field of 35 will have six places, with five alternate spots. At Greenville 29 players will seek seven amateurs.

Last year, with only one site, 51 players tried for nine positions at Greensboro.

The Open will be played June 15-17 at Birmingham, Mich.

Pepsis Defeat Tobs By 12-8 In Opening Contest

A five-run uprising in the sixth inning fell short for Greenville Tobacco Company yesterday and Pepsi-Cola downed the Tobs, 12-8, in yesterday's Greenville Little League season opener.

Pepsi-Cola pitcher Ed Flanagan limited his Tar Heel league opponents to eight hits while his mates collected an even dozen off losing pitcher George Garrett. Flanagan, who received credit for the win, aided his own cause with a solo homer in the third.

Pepsi-Cola's catcher, Jerry Boyd, had a perfect day at the plate, connecting safely four times in as many trips.

Billy Calloway led the Tobs at the plate with four for four, including a three-run homer in the sixth-inning rally. Pitcher Garrett had two safeties in four trips.

For Pepsi-Cola, Ray Cannon also had two for four and center-fielder Jack Gordon had two hits in three official at-bats.

Score by innings:
Tobs 012 005 — 8 8
Pepsi-Cola 261 03x—12 12

Shoemaker Nears Exclusive Circle Of 4,000-Club

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—The exclusive "4,000 club" of race riders awaited its fourth member today—jockey Willie Shoemaker.

The mighty mile was just five winning mounts away from the charmed circle as he entered the afternoon action at Hollywood Park.

Shoemaker had mounts booked in the first seven of the eight races on the card.

Members of the "4,000 club" are: Johnny Longden, at 54 still going strong—he's riding here—and earlier this spring passed the 5,000 mark.

Sir Gordon Richards of England, who retired with a total of 4,780.

Eddie Arcaro, also very prominent in racing in his mid-40s, who scored his 4,000th victory in 1958, and is approaching 4,700 at Aqueduct.

Shoemaker is only 29 and the remarkable part of his brilliant career is that he will reach 4,000 in approximately 12 years, on the race track, and before his 30th birthday next Aug. 19.

One-Hitter Tops Wolves By 6-0

FARMVILLE — Ben Monk hurled a neat one-hitter at Winterville's Wolves here yesterday and his mates tagged James Braxton for six big runs as the Red Devils stormed to their ninth league victory of the season, 6-0.

Monk allowed only three Wolves to reach first base, two of them on two Farmville errors. Winterville's Bobby Hobgood got to Monk for a single to left and Winterville's lone safety. No Wolves reached second base as Farmville wound up its season atop the Pitt County Standings.

For Winterville's Braxton, it was the first defeat of the season. The big blow came in the fourth when Alec Corbett chased two Red Devils across the plate with a booming triple to left. That put Farmville out front, 5-0.

John Tugwell and J. Y. Monk collected two hits apiece for Farmville.

In going the route, Monk wrapped up Farmville's 10th victory of the season. In an early-season encounter, the Devils dined Snow Hill of Greene County.

Score by innings:
Winterville 000 000 0-0 1 1
Farmville 102 210 x-6 6 2

Player May Top Palmer's Best Year For Prizes

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—If Gary Player keeps booming along professional golf's money trail the way he has in the past, he stands to better Arnold Palmer's annual winning record of more than $80,000.

In round figures, Player's total of $48,954 matches Palmer's winnings on the tour this time last year.

However, Palmer isn't to be counted out in the race for king of the money winners. Palmer's total so far this tour is $40,065.

Holding up third spot in the Professional Golfers Association official list is Doug Sanders with $26,703. Fourth is Tommy Bolt with $19,991. Jay Hebert is fifth with $18,725.

The rest of the top 10 in order are: Bill Casper Jr., $18,150; Paul Harney, $15,855; Ken Venturi, $15,430; Sam Snead, $14,940; and Don January, $14,167.

Alvin Dark Just Used Psychology

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A neat bit of applied psychology by Manager Alvin Dark may have resolved the troubles of Jack Sanford, the only one of five starting San Francisco pitchers with big problems.

Sanford, who won 12 games for the Giants last season and was the major league shutout king with six, hadn't finished a game in five starts this season until Dark sent in Hobie Landrith Tuesday night to catch him. That did it.

Landrith not only kept the easily-tired Sanford on even keel for nine innings but singled in the winning run of a 2-1 decision over the Chicago Cubs. The win pushed the Giants three games in front of Cincinnati, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh in the National League.

Dark said afterward he recalled that Landrith had caught and counseled Sanford during two previous seasons and so decided to give Ed Bailey the night off after catching 14 straight games.

Sanford was quick to emphasize that "Bailey is one helluva catcher" but he lauded Landrith—also second sacker Chuck Hiller whose deft double play snuffed out the Cubs in the ninth when two were on and only one out.

Today, with Sam Jones pitching, Bailey goes back behind the plate. Prof. Dark has recessed the psychology class.

Senators Provide Big Surprise Of American League

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Okay, so no one expected the Detroit Tigers to be out front with a four-game bulge. But if there's really an unexpected twist in the expanded American League, it has to be Washington's surprising Senators.

For a club that had just one established starter, Dick Donovan, and reliever, Dave Sisler, the Senators' pitching has been a pip.

In the last five games, the Senators have sputtered from 10th place to seventh, passing Boston and the Chicago White Sox.

After taking three out of four from the then-slumping Red Sox, the Senators proved it was no fluke by beating second place

New York 3-2 Tuesday night as southpaw Hal Woodeshick and Sisler combined for a two-hit job on the Yankees.

That made it four in a row for Washington, and it pushed Detroit into the four-game lead when the Tigers again battered Baltimore, 10-4. The White Sox ended Minnesota's winning string at four, beating the Twins 5-4. Boston broke loose an 8-7 decision over Cleveland and Kansas City dropped the Los Angeles Angels 6-4.

The Yankees scored a run in the third inning on two walks, a wild pitch and an infield out, but didn't get a hit off Woodeshick until Mickey Mantle cracked his 10th home run with one out in the sixth. Their only other hit was an eight-inning single by Bill Skowron off Sisler, who had come on in the seventh and fanned pinch-hitter Yogi Berra with the bases loaded.

The Senators had 10 hits and scored all their runs in the third on consecutive singles by Danny O'Connell, Chuck Hinton, Jim King and Willie Tasby and a clinching sacrifice fly by Dale Long. Bill Stafford (0-1) was the loser. Detroit scored 10 runs for the second night in a row at Baltimore, with this barrage backing right-hander Frank Lary for his 100th victory in the majors.

Steve Barber (4-3) was the loser, giving up a two-run homer by Rocky Colavito and a two-run triple by Bubba Morton in a decisive four-run fourth. Norm Cash also homered for Detroit.

Early Wynn (4-1) nailed his 288th victory with a two-out, tie-breaking single for the White Sox in the eighth inning. Minnie Mi-noso's seventh-inning home run had tied it 4-all for the Sox, who three times came from behind.

Loser Pete Ramos (3-3) had three of the Twins' six hits, one a home run.

Frank Malzone and rookie Jim Pagnionari homered for the Red Sox. Ike Delock won his second with relief help in the eighth. Wynn Hawkins (3-2) was the loser.

A single by Dick Howser gave the A's the winning run in the sixth inning against Eli Grba (3-4) while rookie Norm Bass blanked the Angels on four hits for eight-innings. Jim Archer relieved in a four-run ninth, and saved it for Bass (2-1).

Jack Sanford Producing As Giants Expected He Might

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a long time coming, but Jack Sanford finally has shown the kind of pitching he was expected to produce as one of the accepted aces of the San Francisco Giants' staff.

The Giants have been getting along right well without much help from Sanford, but with the right-handed veteran—coming through for a six-hit, 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday night, they now have a three-game lead in the National League race.

While Sanford was putting away his first complete game and second victory in six starts, the Los Angeles Dodgers skidded from second to fourth with a 5-3 defeat by Milwaukee. Pittsburgh jumped into second by beating St. Louis 2-1, and Cincinnati moved into third with a 4-2 victory at Philadelphia.

Sanford (2-3) walked none and struck out five. Orlando Cepeda, with three of the Giants' hits off loser Dick Drott (0-1) and reliever Don Elston, tied it with a single in the fourth. He singled and scored the winning run on Hobie Landrith's single in the sixth.

The Braves beat Dodger southpaw Sandy Koufax (3-2) on a three-run homer by Frank Bolling that made it 5-0 in the fourth inning. Don Nottebart (2-2) and reliever Moe Drabowski held the Dodgers to four hits.

A sixth-inning home run by Dick Stuart broke a 1-1 tie for the Pirates against Cardinal lefty

Curt Simmons (1-3). Vern Law, out since April 29 because of shoulder trouble, gave way to a pinch-hitter after shutting out the Cards on four hits for five innings. Elroy Face (2-1) then came on and won it.

Defending champion Don Hedrick of Lexington finished in a five-way tie at 153.

Durham won the team title with a 608 cumulative score. Wilmington was second at 618 and Myers Park of Charlotte was next at 624.

Boxer Dies Of Injury To Brain

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Lightweight boxer Harry Campbell, 23-year-old former Olympic star who turned pro, died Tuesday night—24 hours after suffering a brain injury in a 10-round main event.

Campbell, who underwent surgery for a hemorrhage, never regained consciousness. An accumulation of hard, but not devastating punches was blamed for the injury.

The San Jose State sophomore and member of the 1960 Olympic team collapsed in the Kezar Pavilion ring Monday night after losing a 10-round decision to Al Medrano, Sacramento, Calif.

Doug Hayden, San Francisco member of the state athletic commission, said he would start an investigation to determine whether any negligence was involved in Campbell's fatal injury.

Referee Verne Bybee said he was surprised to learn that Campbell had collapsed.

The anxious Medrano accompanied Campbell to St. Luke's Hospital and awaited a report by Dr. Don Lastreto, physician for the California Athletic Commission.

Army's Request For More Men Reportedly Scuttled

EDITOR'S NOTE — What's become of the Army's request for more men? Bem Price, veteran Associated Press writer who specializes in military affairs, examines the Army's manpower situation in the following article. And — using unclassified figures and information — he analyzes the Pentagon's air lift and sea lift problems.

By BEM PRICE
WASHINGTON (AP) — A high Army source said today the Army's request for 35,000 men to beef up the nation's limited war capability had been scuttled "somewhere above the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

This placed the decision with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara or in the White House.

The interview with the Army source was the first hint that the Army intends to fight for the manpower increase despite administrations orders to shut up. Meanwhile, the Army is circulating extracts of President Kennedy's special message to Congress on defense to its top brass as a reminder of what the President said about the need to meet non-nuclear war threats.

Presumably the Army intends to use Kennedy's own words to support its position that an increase is needed.

Nearly eight years ago Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, then chief of staff, said the Army's minimum need was 925,000 men if it intended to sustain its current military commitments and meet limited war threats.

This estimate of Taylor has been accepted by the two succeeding Army chiefs of staff — Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer and Gen. George Decker.

The Army is now authorized a total strength of 875,000 men including a 5,000 man increase in guerrilla warfare forces.

Most of the Army's proposed manpower increases would be used to bring below-strength divisions up to par and to add one extra combat division.

Among the selections from the Kennedy speech bring distributed by the Army are these words: "Strengthened capacity to meet limited and guerrilla warfare."

"Increased flexibility of our conventional forces: our capacity to move forces in sizeable numbers on short notice and to be able to support them in one or more crisis areas could avoid the need for a much longer commitment later."

Since Kennedy became President, the Air Force has been authorized to acquire 129 additional aircraft in 1962 to improve air lift.

Even so, the source said, the air lift and sea lift picture remains dismal.

He pointed out that an unclassified briefing on air lift capabilities given in the administration of President Eisenhower by Army officers concluded that it would take at least four weeks to transport two Army divisions from the United States to Southeast Asia by air.

He noted, too, that if one division were to be committed to Southeast Asia and the second to the Middle East the move could not be accomplished by air in much less than two months.

There are 700 transport aircraft in the airlift inventory, the source said, and 500 are classed as operational at any one moment.

The movement of the two divisions by air, he continued, would use not only all available military aircraft but would force the Army to dip into the civilian reserve air fleet—commercial airliners.

Both completion dates for the movements, the source said, are predicated on the assumption that the Strategic Air Command would have no need to use any of the planes during the crisis period.

If SAC had a use requirement, he said, the time schedules would have to be stretched.

To move one airborne battle group—1,832 men—requires C124 aircraft. Once these men are placed in an assembly area it takes another 120 C130 cargo aircraft to drop them and their equipment in the battle zone.

As for sea lift, the Navy has the ability to carry only 1½ reinforced Marine divisions—about 40,000 men.

Further, most of the Navy's troop carriers are incapable of maintaining the 20-knot speed the Navy believes is necessary to avoid submarine threats.

The Navy and Marine Corp would be hard put to place a combat division aboard ship and transport it 10,000 miles in less than 30 days. If the division departed the East Coast, where there is sea lift for only half a division, it would take much longer, of course.

The source noted that none of the foregoing information is secret, that it would be almost impossible to conceal anyway.

Union Cancels Assistance Pact

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The Executive Council of the International Longshoremen Association has canceled its agreement to form a mutual assistance pact with the Teamsters Union and the maritime workers.

The action was announced Tuesday by Louis Waldman, general counsel of the I.L.A. The council met here in connection with a convention of the association's South Atlantic and Gulf Coast District.

In New York City, it was reported Waldman attributed the cancellation to the 60,000-member union's desire to stay in good standing with the AFL-CIO, which forbids any alliance with the Teamsters Union.

The agreement was signed in Washington Friday by James R. Hoffa, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters; Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union; and William V. Bradley, president of the I.L.A.

Hoffa's union was ousted from the AFL-CIO more than three years ago on grounds of alleged corrupt domination. Since then the AFL-CIO has forbidden its affiliates to enter into mutual aid pacts with the Teamsters.

Fellowship, But Had No Diploma
CHATTANOOGA (AP)—A young mother of four children, who never received a high school diploma, has won a $2,800 fellowship for graduate study at Peabody College in Nashville.

Mrs. Mary W. Headrick, passed an entrance examination to gain admittance to the University of Chattanooga, where she graduates this spring with honors.

Kennedy Rules Out Heavy Spending, Income Tax Cut

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has ruled out any massive spending efforts or income tax cuts to speed the reviving U.S. economy.

Kennedy has told Democratic congressional leaders he is going along with a group of his economic advisers who believe the recovery is solidly based despite a hard core of unemployment. This was represented as a presidential decision to gamble on the effect of measures he already has recommended to Congress—some of which have passed, some still pending.

Some of the President's advisers are convinced that Kennedy's programs for housing, aid to education, highway construction, Social Security expansion, depressed areas and agriculture will give the economy's climb sufficient impetus.

Comic To Assist Birthday Party

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedian Jerry Lewis, who actively supported former Vice President Richard M. Nixon in the 1960 presidential campaign, will entertain at President Kennedy's birthday party May 27.

Lewis said he got a personal invitation from the White House Tuesday and accepted immediately. "He's President for all of us," said Lewis, a Republican. The $100-a-plate affair, sponsored by the Democratic National Committee, will be held at the armory in Washington. President Kennedy will address the gathering.

opinion among his advisers, however. Some contend the recovery bears signs of weakness that can only be overcome by increased government spending or by tax cuts. This group argued that even though factory sales and personal incomes showed gains, steel production remained at only about 68 per cent of capacity and little progress had been made in reducing unemployment. But Kennedy, described as much more optimistic about the economy than he was a couple of months ago, overruled these

President And Vice President Out Of Country

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in more than four years both the President and vice president of the United States were out of the country Tuesday. President Kennedy arrived in Ottawa for a two-day goodwill visit. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson flew to Thailand on his six-nation goodwill tour of Southeast Asia, which began May 9.

The last time the nation's two top leaders were outside the United States was in March, 1957, when former President Dwight D. Eisenhower went aboard the cruiser Canberra for a six-day rest cruise that took him to Bermuda for talks with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Richard M. Nixon, then vice president, was in Africa on a goodwill tour. There will be no acting president during the Kennedy and Johnson trips. Kennedy is still the President wherever he may be.

arguments. This apparently means he will try to hold the budget deficit for the year beginning July 1 to $2.1 billion—the amount estimated last month by Budget Director David E. Bell — or even to reduce it slightly.

Such a decision would be welcome news to many Democrats in Congress, for a big spending program would likely get a mixed reception there when the economy at last appears to be pulling out of its slump.

Before he takes off for Paris May 31, Kennedy has told the Democratic leaders, he will send a message to Congress surveying the economy in relation to the nation's international commitments. He is expected to say that a high rate of industrial production must be attained if the commitments are to be kept.

The message will represent belated fulfillment of Kennedy's promise in his Feb. 2 economic report. He said then that if he found the initial anti-recession measures he was proposing were inadequate he would submit further suggestions within 75 days. The 75 days were up April 18. But the argument within the administration over the need for further action, plus a desire to look at the April figures, contributed to the delay in the final presidential decision.

NO QUAKE DAMAGE
VALPARAISO, Chile (AP)—An earthquake of moderate intensity shook this port city at 5:40 a.m. Tuesday causing alarm but there was no reported damage.

The largest city of Spitsbergen, the Arctic island group 400 miles north of Norway, is called Longyearbyen, which means Longyear City.

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gorillas, Mosquitoes, and a star atlas are news items from scientific studies:

Gorilla Lore
Gorillas lead a peaceful social life, and beat their chests not in threat but just to let out emotional tension. They sleep 15 hours a day, spend five more eating, and hike about half a mile daily in search of food.

Most popular ideas about gorillas are in error, reports George Schaller, University of Wisconsin zoologist who spent 18 months in close observation of gorillas in the Belgian Congo.

These largest primates depend primarily on facial expressions and gestures to communicate among themselves, and use only a few sounds. They pout when sad, bite their lips when nervous. They have individual personalities, and Schaller found himself able to recognize more than 100 of the animals by their looks and mannerisms.

Mosquito Bait
Entomologists are experimenting to learn why mosquitoes bother some people, but not others, and just what attracts mosquitoes to their human dining table.

Answers aren't simple, but if found could lead to more effective repellents, or insecticides.

Spaceman Cocoon
Dangerous radiation threatens future space travelers. Heavy shielding could protect them, but that kind of weight is a drawback.

One possibility is to devise an electrical cocoon around a space vehicle, to deflect radiation much like the earth's magnetic field deflects cosmic rays and other radiation pouring at the earth. This

Has A Way Of Making Friends

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Ohio (AP) — Deputy Sheriff Charles Malterer apparently has a way of making friends even when he makes an arrest.

There were 17 prisoners in Tuscarawas County Jail, many taken into custody by Malterer, when the deputy's wife gave birth to twins.

The inmates took up a collection and bought flowers for their captor's wife.

possibility is being investigated now at General Electric's Space Sciences Laboratory in Philadelphia. The goal is to devise a lightweight "cocoon."

Star Atlas
Using special sensing equipment, astronomers are preparing a new type of star atlas charting the infrared or heat radiation of known stars.

One purpose of the project is to determine the relation between a star's visible radiation and its infrared radiation, which can be useful in developing systems for space navigation. Eastman Kodak Co. is preparing the atlas.

Word Of Caution To Stock Buyers

NEW YORK (AP)—A rush to buy low-priced stocks and new issues of unseasoned companies has brought the second warning in six weeks from Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange.

Funston said Tuesday such a concentration of demand "makes a mockery of the word 'investing'."

And he cautioned in a statement that the person who invests on vague tips is "courting financial disaster."

As experienced investors have long known, neither low price nor new issues are guarantees of anything except perhaps a proportionately greater degree of risk," he said.

The demand for speculative stocks has built up on both the New York and American exchanges in the last six months as prices and volume of trading surged. More low-priced issues are listed on the American Exchange.

A spokesman for the New York Exchange said Funston's statement had no connection with a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of the American Stock Exchange, announced Monday. Nor, he said, was there any connection with a projected survey of Securities and Exchange Commission operations by the House Commerce and Finance Committee.

Gas Price War Seen Spreading

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Retail gas prices have tumbled in many areas of both Carolinas. A spokesman for a major oil company said "we're meeting competition."

The spokesman told The Associated Press this morning that the firm was selling gas to retailers in the Charlotte area at 17.5 cents per gallon, including tax. This was the lowest wholesale price for the company in North Carolina, the spokesman said, but the retail price could be higher in some areas.

The gasoline price war apparently developed in the Charlotte area about five days ago. Price cutting was reported today in South Carolina.

At Columbia, S.C., retail regular gas was down to 25.9 cents a gallon. "Distributors are cutting," one retailer said, "and we're passing the cuts on to customers."

Dealers in the Asheville, N.C. area said retail prices were slashed as much as six cents a gallon.

Prices in Greenville, S.C. have been fluctuating erratically for several days. Prices there were reported down to 25.9 for a "name-brand."

'Beat The Heat' In A Mud Puddle

The hot sunshine yesterday brought out the "boy" in three Negro youths, two of them were found "swimming with no clothes on" in a big mud puddle at the West End Circle Trailer Park. They were just trying to "beat the heat."

Greenville Police, who were sent to investigate the complaint, said two of the three were swimming in the nude in the two-foot-deep mud hole, while the third was swimming with his clothes on. The time was 12:05 p.m.

The boys, two 10-year-old and one nine, were taken to their parents, the report explained, "who whipped them," and said, "they would be in school tomorrow."

Well, boys will be boys.
