Ghanians Study Extension Work

Two representatives from Ghana, tiny republic on Africa's Atlantic coast, arrived yesterday for a week-long look at the methods used by Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service.

Henry E. Thompson and W.F.K. Christian, both representatives of the Ghana government, arrived in Pitt around noon yesterday and began their study of the county's extension program in the office of Negro County Agent James M. Goode.

The two Ghanians are among 19 representatives from Ghana, Nigeria and Liberia who arrived in Washington, D.C., March 14 on a study tour.

Comedienne Joan Davis Dies Of Heart Attack

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Joan Davis, whose wacky cracked-voiced comedy boosted her from vaudeville to stardom in movies, radio and television, died today of a heart attack. She was 48.

She was stricken Monday at her home in this desert resort, where she had lived in retirement in recent years. She died at a hospital at 3 a.m.

Tall, blonde Joan, whose zany antics tended to divert attention from what was a pretty face and shapely figure, was last seen in a successful TV situation comedy, "I Married Joan." Her costar was Jim Backus.

She had a long career in movies, before turning to television, and had her own radio show, "Leave It To Joan."

She was the second star to die in 10 days, the other being Gary Cooper.

At her side when she died was her mother, Nina Davis, and a Catholic priest.

Signs Indicate Probable End Today Of Local Gas Price War

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

With at least two dealers raising gas prices back to normal, the gas price war may end in Greenville today.

T.E. Carawan, owner of ESSO Heating Oil, said prices went back to normal in this district effective this morning. Leon Moore, the Atlantic dealer, reported prices for his brand were to rise this morning.

ESSO prices had been down four cents a gallon, while Atlantic prices had been down 3.3 cents per gallon. Moore said he noticed only a slight increase in business, but not a great deal, as a result of the gas price war.

At her side when she died was her mother, Nina Davis, and a Catholic priest.

time during the week-long visit showing the men the methods he uses in conducting his extension program in the county.

Thompson and Christian say they are interested mainly in the methods used and not the subject matter being taught in Pitt. Ghana plans, in the near future, to establish an extension service of its own, patterned after the programs used in America.

Ghana, about twice the size of North Carolina, has a population of nearly seven million. The eastern Africa republic's growing season last for 12 months. Its chief export or "cash" crop is the cocoa bean.

In addition to cocoa, however, Ghana produces coffee, tobacco, cotton, corn, rubber and many vegetable crops.

More Fingerling In Pitt Waters

An estimated 125,000 rockfish or striped bass fingerlings were released in waters of Pitt County last week, according to J. O. Teel, Wildlife Protector for Pitt County.

Teel reported 50,000 striped bass fingerlings were released in the Tar River and an additional 50,000 were set free in Tranters Creek.

Twenty-five thousand were released in Big Contentnea Creek, Teel added.

The Wildlife Protector said the fingerlings came from the State Fish Hatchery at Weldon.

The City Council is scheduled to meet tonight for consideration of a Public Housing Authority resolution.

Approval of the resolution would enable the Authority to make application for a federal preliminary loan to carry on its work.

The meeting will be held in the council chambers at city hall beginning at 8 p.m.

At the Quality Oil Co., Shell distributors, Charles Gaskins said prices remained down 3.3 cents per gallon, but would go up if notification is received. He commented that, regarding any business increase resulting from the gas price war, there had been a

President Plans Ask More For Space, Defense

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic congressional leaders reported today that President Kennedy will propose this week substantial increases in government spending on space, military ground forces and aid to Southeast Asia.

Kennedy will send a message—and possibly two—to Congress on Thursday, they said. The President left open the chance that he will deliver a separate message on space in person. The other two proposals, at least, will be combined in a written message.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas told newsmen after the weekly breakfast session with Kennedy that the President's recommendations will cover the space program, Civil Defense, retraining for unemployed workers, some additional funds for the armed services and a supplemental appropriation for foreign aid.

Whether the retraining proposal would be the only one in the labor field was not specifically stated. Other sources had reported earlier that a modest set of new tools to try to curtail hard-core unemployment was in the works.

Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., said he understands Kennedy will ask for about $285 million to put more muscle into Army and Marine divisions.

He said this money would be used immediately. Rayburn said no definite money total was discussed, but the increases sought by Kennedy would be "rather substantial."

Smathers, who is secretary of the conference of Democratic senators, said the President's proposals would entail a "sizeable money request."

The United States handed over six AD6 fighter-bomber planes to the South Viet Nam air force today. They were the last shipment of 25 replacement planes, a U.S. Embassy source said.

few calls from commercial accounts requesting gasoline in order to take advantage of the cheaper price, but there has been no great increase.

The Cities Service brand distributors, Bell's Coal and Oil Co., had not been notified to raise their prices back to normal either, as of press time, Rodney H. Robinson said. He stated that some of the Cities Service dealers have had substantial increases in business from customers who filled up, contemplating a savings in prices.

The majority of the regular prices during the gas price war here have been 27.9 per gallon. Most dealers were down 3.3 cents per gallon, wholesale prices. The gas price war started in the Charlotte area about 10 days ago and spread through the Piedmont and eastern North Carolina, as well as into parts of South Carolina. Prices in Charlotte revealed low of 19.9 cents per gallon.

Increased Outlays For ECC Are OK'd By Appropriations Body

Purchase of more than 70 acres additional land, air-conditioning Joyner Library and new athletic facilities for East Carolina College were approved by the Joint Appropriations Committee in Raleigh yesterday.

The committee also approved Appropriations Committee in Raleigh. Improvements funds, recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission, for the local college. The three additional projects, totalling $355,000, are in addition to the Advisory Budget Commission's recommendations.

Practically all the capital improvement projects will be included in a state bond issue which will be voted on by the people.

The proposed additional appropriation provides $217,000 for purchase of land west of N.C. 43 and north of U.S. 264, $88,000 for air-conditioning the library and $50,000 for football and baseball fields along with a "modest fieldhouse," Pres. Leo W. Jenkins said this morning.

Included in the $3.2 million Advisory Budget Commission recommendations which received committee approval were: replacement of Austin building, $905,000; replacing Wilson dormitory, $800,000; dormitory for 520 men (with cafeteria), $737,750; addition to library, $335,000; addition to Wright building, $274,000. These items would be placed in the bond issue to be submitted to the voters.

Items to come from bonds to be issued by the Legislature include: repairs to Wright building, $38,500; air-conditioning for Rawl building, $70,000.

Direct appropriation capital improvement items for the college include: laundry equipment, $13,000; replacement of equipment in two science laboratories, $24,000. All the appropriations have yet to be approved by the full Legislature.

New athletic facilities would be constructed on the Branch property which was recently purchased for the college. This property is located south of the Norfolk and Southern tracks and adjacent to the Elmhurst school campus.

Dr. Jenkins said a new Austin classroom building is planned for the present athletic fields area between Fifth and Tenth St.

Thus the funds for new athletic facilities were needed to carry out this plan since it involves moving the present football and baseball stadiums to the Branch property.

Old Austin would be razed if the $905,000 for a new classroom building is made available through the bond issue. Construction of the building on the present athletic facilities site would place all the college's classroom buildings in the Wright Circle area between the women's dorms on the west end of the campus and the men's dorms located on the campus between Tenth and 14th Sts.

Purchase of the 70 acres of land west of N.C. 43 will increase the overall campus area to 293 acres, Dr. Jenkins said. The new section joins the Branch property just across N.C. 43.

Dr. Jenkins said the state now holds an option on the Lloyd Tucker land for which the Joint Appropriations Committee yesterday approved purchase funds. The tract of land "will make possible future development of the college," the president stated.

Arguments Begin On Airline Route

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two days of argument on proposals to grant Piedmont Airlines a new north-south route, including service to the coastal areas of North Carolina and Virginia, opened today before the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Six airlines have filed objections to recommendations by CAB Examiner James Keith. They are Capital, Eastern, National, Delta, Lake Central and Allegheny.

Piedmont objects to being required to serve between Washington and Winston-Salem, N.C., its headquarters, and one intermediate point between Atlanta and Winston-Salem. And the CAB's Bureau of Air Operations objects to expansion of Piedmont to Salisbury and Wilson-Greenville, N.C.

The bureau said Salisbury now has reasonable access to three airports — Charlotte, Greensboro-High Point and Winston-Salem. The bureau also objects to the examiner's recommendation that Southern Airways be required to make two intermediate stops between Atlanta and Charlotte, one between Atlanta and Greenville, or mandatory stops at Athens, Ga., or Greenville, S.C., between Atlanta and Charlotte.

The bureau said Southern's new routes should be consolidated with its present system for greater schedule flexibility and united at Spartanburg, S.C., instead of Greenville, S.C.

Eastern opposes extension of Piedmont service south of Myrtle Beach, S.C., north of Washington, or beyond Knoxville, Tenn., to Nashville, Tenn. It objects also to wanting Piedmont a route between Baltimore and Atlanta by way of Danville, Va., Greensboro-High Point and other points; or between Charleston, W.Va., and Atlanta through an extension beyond Asheville, N.C.

Delta said neither Piedmont nor Southern Airways nor any other local service airline should be certified to the Atlanta - Augusta, Ga.-Columbia, S.C., market which Delta serves. However, Delta does not oppose a recommendation for Piedmont to serve Atlanta from Asheville and Hickory, N.C.

National said its ability to serve New Bern, N.C., would be seriously affected by Piedmont being permitted to serve Jacksonville-Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Keith's recommendations would authorize Piedmont to fly north-south routes between Atlanta and Washington-Baltimore via the North Carolina towns of Lumberton, Fayetteville, Goldsboro, Kinston, Wilson-Greenville, Elizabeth City and Norfolk and Newport News, Va.

Other routes between Atlanta and Washington and Baltimore would be via Myrtle Beach, S.C., and the North Carolina towns of Wilmington, Jacksonville, Kinston, Goldsboro, Rocky Mount and Richmond, Va. The proposed route would link these communities with major trunkline routes running north and south, and also to the Midwest and West coast.

The Greensboro-High Point Airport Authority objects to its designation as an alternate intermediate point with Winston-Salem and asked that each be considered separate points for local service.

Also, the authority said, any new points to be designated for Piedmont service should be confined to the airline's new north-south route.

The Raleigh-Durham, N.C., airport is opposed to its proposed exclusion from the north-south local service routes which would bypass it by about 70 miles.

Rumors Spread Kozlov Is Ailing

MOSCOW (AP)—Rumors circulated in the diplomatic colony today that Frol Kozlov, one of Premier Khrushchev's close associates, is seriously ill with heart trouble.

Asked about the rumors, a spokesman for the Soviet Foreign Ministry said, "We know nothing about any illness."

Kozlov, a secretary of the Communist party's Central Committee who has occasionally been mentioned as a possible successor to Khrushchev, was last seen in public April 17, when he attended a "Freedom for Africa" reception and a dinner for Prince Souvanna Phoua of Laos.

Police Nab Man Accused In Montgomery Beating

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Police today announced the arrest of a man accused of beating two newsmen in the outbreak of race rioting that put this city under martial law.

Roving bands of white youths, bomb threats and reports of new attempts at racially integrated freedom rides caused an uneasy night in this Alabama capital city ruled by National Guardsmen with a firm hand.

The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) said it was trying to make bus reservations for another freedom ride. Such a trip Saturday touched off the bloody riot and led to Sunday's attempted mob assault on a Negro church.

Assistant Police Chief E. P. Brown said a man identified as Claude Henley, 37, of Montgomery was jailed and then released under $200 bond on charges of attacking NBC cameraman Maurice "Mac" Levey and soundman H. W. Riser.

A mob jerked cameras from photographers and beat the newsmen before savagely attacking nearly two dozen white and Negro freedom riders just after they stepped off a bus in the Greyhound station Saturday.

Also beaten was John Seigenthaler, an assistant to Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy. Seigenthaler had come here as President Kennedy's emissary to ask Gov. John Patterson to guarantee the safety of the freedom riders.

Five persons were fined from $25 to $100 Monday for failing to obey officers at the bus station riot. Police said the five did not take part in the violence.

National Guardsmen, who took over the city under Gov. Patterson's order of qualified martial law, Monday night quadrupled their guard at the Greyhound bus station to keep away loitering white youths. City police arrested seven youths who surrounded two Negroes in a car.

Another element in the building tension was the expected arrival of 12 American Nazi party's "hate bus" riders. Party head George Lincoln Rockwell described the bus as a protest against communism and integration.

A spokesman said the Nazis hoped to make speeches in Montgomery.

Integration leaders, including the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta and National CORE Director James Farmer, kept in seclusion after a lengthy siege in a Negro church under protection of the National Guard and state patrolmen.

Guardsmen in Jeeps, or on foot in squads with fixed bayonets, patrolled the streets. City police aided, but the hundreds of federal marshals ordered here by Atty. Gen. Kennedy were no longer on the streets.

The marshals, who kept the Sunday night mob at bay at the Negro First Baptist church until state patrolmen and guardsmen arrived, were withdrawn by the Justice Department. They are standing by at Maxwell Air Force Base on the outskirts of the city.

Deputy Asst. Atty. Gen. Byron White, who came here to head the federal force, said the marshals would stay here as long as necessary to protect civil rights.

Anonymous telephoned bomb threats were made to the bus station, radio station WAPX, two white junior high schools, a white college and a Negro college. Investigating National Guardsmen, city police and firemen found no bombs.

While CORE headquarters in New York was announcing new freedom ride attempts by six members who arrived here Monday, a spokesman in Tennessee said the Nashville Student (non-violent) movement still planned to send its "freedom riders" all the way to their original destination — through Alabama, across Mississippi and on to New Orleans.

2nd Surplus Food Distribution Set

Pitt County has scheduled its second round of surplus food distribution to needy families for June 1, 2 and 3, it was announced today.

County Welfare Director J. S. Grimes said the food would be distributed on the three designated days to around 1,500 needy families that include some 5,700 persons.

Pitt's participation in the program—administered by the State Department of Agriculture using federal food surpluses—began May 10 and 11 when some 800 needy families received the staple commodities.

Grimes said today the distribution next week will mark the final round for all but public assistance cases until fall, "according to our tentative plans."

He said the other needy families could more easily care for themselves during the summer and harvest season when agricultural employment is plentiful.

Grimes said current plans are that the distribution of food to families not receiving welfare grants may be resumed in the fall when farm job opportunities drop.

He pointed out the county plans to continue administration of the distribution to aged and disabled public assistance cases during July, August, September and October. New certification for needy, unemployed families will probably be undertaken by the welfare department again in October, the director indicated.

Grimes emphasized his staff will conduct no more interviews with applicants for the surplus food after Monday, May 29. "That will give us one day to clear all applicants before we set up next week's distribution."

Distribution will be handled again by the county auditor, H. R. Cray, with assistance from Grimes' department at the Pitt County Fairgrounds. The welfare department, according to Grimes, will again send appointment letters to each family certified to receive the surplus food.

Ample Room Left For Sports Fans

Severe limitations on recruitment of athletes and intercollegiate basketball competition imposed on the University of North Carolina and State College are certain to bring protests from sports fans and partisan supporters of the two schools. In the interest of preventing further involvement of players of the schools in game-fixing scandals, however, the severe rulings imposed by President William Friday are justified.

It seems clear that the new rules that apply to Carolina and State will in effect bring about a shift of emphasis in their sports programs, if indeed it does not result in a de-emphasis of athletics on the two campuses. Limiting recruitment of players from outside the area of the Atlantic Coast Conference will restrict the number of potentially outstanding players from which the schools will be able to build their teams. Taking the representative teams of the schools out of tournament competition other than the conference tourney and the National Collegiate tournament will restrict the exposure of the teams not only to possible gamblers, but to nation-wide attention as well.

While the new ground rules set forth by President Friday appear severe by past standards, they offer ample leeway. It seems to us, for UNC and State College to continue to produce and enjoy major athletic teams. It may take the schools several years to adjust to the new restrictions and it may be that some of the new rules will be altered in the future. At the moment, however, the new rules—severe as they appear—will serve the best interest of assuring sports programs carried out in the best tradition of the colleges. It is better for the institutions to operate their intercollegiate sports programs under the restrictions President Friday has announced, than to risk losing their intercollegiate programs altogether, or having them ruined by racketeering.

Major Achievements Simply Not Expected

A summit conference on the informal basis such as that announced by President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev cannot be expected to produce immediate and tangible results in the form of removing some of the most important problems that face the world.

At best the conference can only provide the impetus for creating an atmosphere in which there will be less East-West tension and an atmosphere in which work toward practical and reasonable solutions to some of the world's problems can be worked out.

According to the official announcements which confirmed the forthcoming meeting between the President of the United States and the Soviet Premier, there will be no specific effort in the talks to reach agreement on major international problems that involve the interest of other nations. With such a limitation on the talks, there are very few fields in which agreement could be sought at this practical meeting without involving the interests of other nations of the world.

The general exchange of ideas between the leader of the free world and the leader of the communist world may produce points of interest on which negotiations can later be carried out, but the summit conference itself cannot be expected to iron out major international problems.

In that the conference will bring about the first face-to-face meeting of the new President of the United States with the Soviet leader, it should be helpful to the international situation. It may well produce a basis for future summit conferences at which negotiations between East and West can be carried out at the highest level in an effort to resolve issues which are causing international tension.

Beyond this, however, the free world can hardly expect concrete achievements in the June talks between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev. For the world to expect that the talks will immediately ease international tension on many major points would be a mistake indeed. For Premier Khrushchev the problems will immediately be solved, can only be viewed at folly.

The meeting between the two leaders can be realistically construed to be a healthy sign, but it should not be expected that miracles will come about immediately as a result of the conference.

Looking For A Goat In Failure?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Joint Chiefs of Staff, the nation's top military planners, have been blasted since the Cuban invasion disaster.

This writer has been told reliably that President Kennedy is burned up at them and also at Allen Dulles, head of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

It will be no surprise if he removes Dulles and shakes up the chiefs. But there is reluctance in the Defense Department from the top down to see the chiefs get clobbered — for this reason:

Defense Secretary Robert McNamara himself approved the decision to let the invasion be made.

What follows is the story of what happened, made timely once more because of what occurred over the weekend after Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, testified before a Senate committee behind closed doors. Sen. Albert Gore, Tennessee Democrat, said the chiefs had "blundered incredibly" and should be thrown out. A milder reaction came from Sen. Styles Bridges, New Hampshire Republican.

He said it's an American habit to look for goats when things go wrong.

Those taking part in the decision on the invasion to overthrow Fidel Castro were Kennedy, McNamara, Lemnitzer, Dulles, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk* with McGeorge Bundy, Kennedy's special assistant on security, sitting in on all sessions.

These men had numerous meetings, went into all phases of the invasion exhaustively, including the possibility of failure. They not only studied yards of maps endlessly but even went into the problem of invading on various beaches.

Generally speaking, the decision to go ahead with the invasion was unanimous among all those mentioned.

1. It was thought this was the last time the American government could assume Castro could be overthrown by anything short of direct American intervention.

2. Continuation of the Castro regime is a danger to the United States in its relations with other Latin American countries.

They made this decision knowing only about 1,200 men would be the invading force and that Castro had 35,000 tons of Soviet-bloc equipment and many thousands of men under arms.

Nevertheless, the White House group thought the odds were in favor of the invaders. Why?

They thought only one-third of the Cuban population was loyal to Castro and that the other two-thirds, once the invasion began, would rise up against him.

In retrospect it seems incredible the decision for the invasion was primarily based on the assumption there would be an uprising, an uprising which never took place. The assumption had to be based on information about the Cuban people.

Dulles' CIA, which would be responsible for information on the mood of the Cuban people, says its information was perfect. If it was, in view of the invasion failure, what went wrong?

This is the CIA's explanation: that the invasion had to be sustained to give the Cuban masses time to respond by an uprising. But it wasn't sustained. Why not? That's a part of the story which hasn't been revealed at all yet.

These were some of the reasons behind the White House decision to go ahead with the invasion:

1. It was thought this was the last time the American government could assume Castro could be overthrown by anything short of direct American intervention.
2. Continuation of the Castro regime is a danger to the United States in its relations with other Latin American countries.
3. There was some puzzlement about what to do with the rebels — if they didn't invade since they had been in training for a year. For instance: where, if they did not hit Cuba, could they have been absorbed?
4. There was a "marginal" chance of overthrowing Castro.

Strength For Today

GUIDANCE

St. Paul was required on one occasion to appear as a prisoner before King Agrippa and his wife Queen Bernice. He recited the circumstances which had led up to his conversion. Christ had appeared to Paul in a vision as he was on the road from Jerusalem to Damascus. Paul's description of that profound vision ends with the stirring declaration: "Whereupon, Oh King Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision." (Acts 26:19).

Visions have not ceased. The validity of objective visions today is too lengthy a subject to be discussed here. But the inner vision, the illumination, the intuition — this type of vision is as real today as it has ever been.

We can be quite sure that God did not go away and leave the world after He had created it. Likewise we can be sure that after He had created our souls He did not forsake us. We can have just as definite and profound guidance today as did the saints of old. The Holy Spirit is God's presence in the world guiding men into the way of all truth.

If you are anxious about any event of life, do not hesitate to bring it before the Lord in prayer. You will be guided, illuminated, just as believing and faithful people have always been. The next move is always up to you. Do not be disobedient to the heavenly vision — to God's unfailing guidance.

What Price Glory?

Linda Wasn't Forgotten

Death is pretty well accepted by the human race since it inevitably comes to all of us. Normal humans accept the fact that it will come some day and thus put it out of their minds.

Occasionally, however, death takes a child. Then it is distressing, indeed, for there is a tendency among people to be more sympathetic with the loved ones of a lost child. It is truly heart-rending to see a young life cut short because of disease or accident.

Time has a way of softening the blow and, with the passage of time, even the death of a child is eventually forgotten, except by the closest loved ones.

But, wait. Perhaps the child who has passed on is not completely forgotten after all. At this time of the year they are remembered again. Their friends, schoolmates of past years, seldom fail to recall them at graduation time. Thus it is that in many high school yearbooks, pages are found dedicated to classmates who didn't make it to graduation. Death or accident ended school and life, itself, for them somewhere along the way.

That happened to Linda Bowen of near Winterville five years ago. Sure enough, her classmates didn't forget as they graduated this year. There was this letter to Linda in the annual:

"Dear Linda, 'Well, it looks as if we have finally made it. Yes, in a couple of months we will be graduating. We are sorry that you will not be here to walk down the aisle with us. We miss you a great deal, Linda. When we started back to school that year it just didn't seem right not seeing you there. You were usually a rather quiet girl, but your sparkling eyes and friendly smile could say more than words.

Twelve years ago when we entered Winterville High School we were a group of scared little boys and girls. Now, after twelve years of hard work and much fun we have grown and developed into young men and women. We are now ready to go out into the world, to marry and settle down and to become Christian men and women and good citizens of our great country. Pray for us, Linda, that we may obtain each of these goals.

"We, your classmates, have decided to dedicate this page to you as a token of our love and friendship for you. Now, you will not only be a part of our memories but also a part of our annual. Bye now, Linda."

Linda's mother, Mrs. Hergel L. Bowen of Rt. 1, Winterville, was touched by the dedication. So much so that she wrote this reply on behalf of her daughter:

"Dear Classmates, 'As I sat by the windows of Heaven today, I saw boys and girls, now young men and women on their way, to a great day in their lives. It is graduation time. Classmates live on, live on. Life is such a joy. As you walk down the path of life, take love, courage and most of all, take God. Someday we'll meet in this beautiful place called Heaven. Then as classmates and friends, we'll always be together.'

Departed classmates are often remembered in high school yearbooks at this time of year. Just thought you'd like to know about one of them.

Other Editors Saying Annual Report On Waste

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Reports on excessive spending by the armed forces aren't new, and it has been a long time since such a report offered something different from the usual wasteful spending habits of the military. In fact, the regularity of such reports tend to support the suspicion that the armed forces are by nature a wasteful necessity. That may be true, but we can't help but believe that such irresponsible activity can be curtailed.

The latest such report has been tendered by the General Accounting Office in the testimony of a hearing before the House Appropriations Committee. Some of the items listed have a familiar sound, since most of the examples of wasteful spending are merely repeated year after year. Nevertheless they must be extremely painful to Mr. Average Taxpayer who has to foot the bill. Ironically, it isn't the brass who pays, yet the brass seems to have the big hole in the pocket.

An idea of how our tax money is thrown down the drain is the notation that the Air Force wastes $12 million a year on aircraft maintenance, and $71 million more on flight pay to keep nearly 27,000 officers flying who either are excess to stated Air Force requirements or who are occupying positions where flying skills contribute nothing to effective performance of required duties.

The commanding officer of the Army Chemical Corps base at Edgewood, Md., wanted his house tidied up. The house was done over at a cost of more than $60,000, as compared to the legal limit of $22,000 for the cost of a new house. The Navy changed its contract for the construction of bases in Spain from a cost-plus-fixed-fee basis to a fixed-price basis. Why this was done is not explained. What is explained is the contract conversion cost $9 million more, without providing any material benefits to the government.

At a Marine Corps air base in Japan it was found that high percentage of aircraft (ranging from 13 to 50 per cent) were out of commission because needed parts were not available in the Navy supply system in Japan. This condition was found to exist even though the air base in Japan had on hand an inventory of aviation material and parts amounting to over $6 million, and over $1.2 million worth of additional material on order from the U.S. that was not even needed.

Now this type of report goes on and on with monotonous regularity. The point to get across is the monotonous regularity with which this kind of vast waste is carried on by the military. Pinpointing the blame isn't easy, since the armed forces are famous and skilled in the art of passing the buck. But an effort should be made to pin the blame in order to reduce future costs to the taxpayer. Of course, it is, in a sense, merely a matter of dollars and nickels, but at the same time a cleanup and the efficiency of our armed forces, something that might be needed desperately later on.

No Claims For Curing Economy

By ELMER ROESSNER

There now seems to be no doubt that the economy has turned upward; there is little doubt that it will continue to flourish through the rest of the year and that new highs will be seen on most of the charts.

Dun's Review will report in its June issue that 67 per cent of 1,537 executives interviewed expect sales in the third quarter of this year to top sales a year earlier. Even discounting the natural tendency of executives to be bullish, the prevailing optimism, even if little more than wishful, will have an effect on business generally. That is, an executive who convinces himself that his company will sell an extra million units in the fall will be inclined to start ordering materials and hiring workers in the summer.

But with all the improvement, note this, well: The Kennedy Administration will be highly cautious in claiming that Kennedy measures have cured the country of the Eisenhower recession.

REASONS WHY

These are rumors that top Democrats have been warned against making such claims. If they have not been, they should be. The reasons:

1. Most of the Kennedy remedies are still lagging in Congress. The economy recovered without them.
2. Despite the improvement in business, improvement in employment is slow and any claims that the Administration rescued the country from the recession will be met by a doleful, unemployed chorus.
3. The fact that the economy would recover by midyear was freely predicted before John F. Kennedy took office, and these evaluations are a matter of record. (In my New Year column I wrote, "Sometime before fall, perhaps by midyear, the turn will come.")

4. This is most important of all: If the Administration should claim credit for curing the 1960-61 recession, it would be vulnerable when dips occur during the next four years — as they certainly will. If the Democrats should claim the glory for the emergence from the recession, when the next dip comes nasty Republicans and carping, unlabeled critics would say, "You claimed to have restored prosperity in 1961, so restore it now!"

OTHER LOOK-AHEADS

- Here are more business predictions:
- Cheaper air cargo: Agreement of lower air freight rates across the Atlantic July 1 now appears certain. Some cuts will be more than 60 per cent.
- Continuing housing boom: Marriages over the next five years, plus the trend toward vacation homes, plus the increase in demolition of older buildings, means America will need 6,500,000 new homes or apartments in the next five years, or more than 1,300,000 a year. This means brisk sales for furniture, home furnishings and thousands of other products.
- No top-bracket tax cut: Administration proposals to cut income tax rates on top bracketers should take no action in Congress. Labor and liberals are against the proposal. Besides, people in the 90 per cent bracket are not worried. They can escape the tax by investing in tax-free securities, or by using various devices to convert ordinary income into capital gains.
- OLD PROMOTER BEMOANS OLD FERTILITY RATE: A card from the Old Promoter: "The May 15 Advertising Age's photo coverage of magazine and advertising conventions shows 14 people in 12 pictures holding high-ball glasses. Isn't there one advertising man with enough imagination to carry a brandy snifter with him to these festivals? Or a bottle of milk?"

Change In Type Of Ads

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

By accident I came across the singular fact that the Timken Roller Bearing Company has had the courage to put up a fight for freedom of speech and freedom of the press against the Internal Revenue Service which acts as a censorship agency.

Timken is suing the Government for $1,500,000 which it claims it has overpaid for income taxes, the Internal Revenue Service having taken upon itself the duty of deciding that advertising is not a cost of running a business. This expenditure was taxed, although it were profit not an expense.

The Treasury objects to institutional advertising, that is, the use of advertising space paid to attract attention but delivering a message instead of directly advocating the use of a product.

Institutional advertising is used because the advertiser finds that a message attracts greater attention to the product than boosting the product itself. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has for many years used its advertising space to tell about health. Its object is to prolong life. It is possible to say that the insurance companies are charitable organizations which love mankind and therefore seek to prolong life. On the other hand, these advertisements are keenly read because they are informative and are good business because they keep the name of the company before the public in a favorable manner. Whether it is a noble act or a gimmick is of value.

In the case of Timken, the Government objected to advertisements which "...hailed the Spirit of Christmas, urged gifts to the United Fund, presenting the company's side of a controversy with a union, and promoting the city in which the company's plant was located in the hope of attracting other employers to that area."

The Internal Revenue Service apparently sets up a censorship of the contents of an advertisement, assuming that it can determine the motive for the employment of the space for something more than directly pushing a product. Timken, I read, sponsored broadcasts by Fulton Lewis and George Sokolsky. These, too, were disallowed as tax deduction, presumably because we did not tell the listener to buy bubble gum. Also small newspaper advertisements proclaiming such broadcasts were disallowed.

Perhaps Timken should have broadcasted roller bearings are not to be eaten or chewed or fed to babies because they might kill the creature, but when used in machinery, no one could be hurt. Or maybe, the Internal Revenue Service prefers singers to speakers. I do not know what Fulton Lewis' singing voice is like, but the good Lord when he made provisions for Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr., probably felt that they were enough for one country and left me without a singing voice. I can always tell when another is off-key, but I have been told that I am always off-key. So I cannot do my piece in song which apparently is permissible, particularly if no one understands the words. The Internal Revenue Service's censor must be very weary of such words as moon and June which are deductible because they are not controversial.

Businesses are taxed 52 per cent of net profit. Naturally, the accountants take off expenses of all kinds before they determine the net profit. The President has been appealing to business to provide more jobs, but the Treasury has been taking steps not only to price American goods out of all markets, including the American, but to give the European and Asiatic competitor every possible advantage. This is particularly true as regards expense accounts. A West German salesman can afford to make the prospective customer to feel salubrious and willing by the normal processes of capitalistic sales procedures, namely, an excellent dinner, theater parties, flowers for the customer's wife, etc. etc. The American salesman is forced to justify his expenditures, providing details of the process, which can be embarrassing. We may be very virtuous but goods will not be sold that way and never were.

School Officials, Parents Confer This Week On Placing Of Pupils

City school officials are continuing their conferences this week with parents about pupil placement on the eighth grade level for next year, it was reported today.

Joseph Smith Jr., principal of Greenville Junior High School, Mrs. Ellen Carroll, director of instruction for city schools, and the parents involved are holding the conferences, which are designed to acquaint parents with the program and to place qualifying students in accelerated courses if they and their parents so desire.

The areas under consideration are algebra, Latin and television science. Students taking these accelerated subjects are introduced to them on the eighth grade level, if they qualify by their report cards and certain tests, and upon the recommendations of the teacher and the parent. The above subjects have been confined in the past to the ninth grade.

These conferences have been held for a period of two weeks and will conclude Friday. Individual conferences with the parents are highly desirable, Mrs. Carroll said, since the school officials want to work with the parents and have their backing in the program.

She expressed the opinion that if the parents understand the program, it will be more successful. Exchange of ideas between the parent and the teachers will enable the teachers to work more successfully in the classroom with the pupil.

Before a conference is held, students are tested. Then students have an opportunity to confer with parents before the conference and express their ideas and preferences.

By the time the parent confers with Smith and Mrs. Carroll, school officials have test results and the teacher's recommendations as to what the student is best suited to take. Together, the parent and school officials decide what best suits the student, with the student's wishes taken into consideration.

For instance, if a student, by tests, report card grades, desire and favorable opinion of his teacher, is qualified to take algebra and Latin, the situation is discussed. If the student wants to take one of these subjects and his parent expresses this opinion, then he takes the subject he wants.

If the student feels he would rather concentrate on one subject and excel in that area, rather than risk too much of a load and have his grades fall, he is allowed to do so, providing he qualifies for such work.

"We want to be sure when we place children in an accelerated class that parents are behind us," Mrs. Carroll stated.

Enrichment Classes
She pointed out that another reason for the conferences is to inform parents that there will be enrichment classes as well as accelerated classes.

Smith said that the greatest value of the conferences with parents is "that so often, we forget that the performance of the child at home is so important. If parents can give us a picture of the home, we can work better with them at school."

To qualify for the accelerated classes, a student must have a certain report card average; a qualifying result of the Standard Test score; consistent daily study habits; earnest desire to take the course; favorable teacher opinion; and the prognosis test after the other tests. Then the student talks with his parents about his plans.

Parents have been sent information blanks, which they were requested to fill in and return to the school. The blanks relate the purpose of the conference and when returned have a date and time of meeting. The conferences are being held at the high school from 10:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. and from 2 to 4 p.m.

Wooing Of Grads By 3 Fields Is Stepped Up

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Wooing is more intense this spring in that triangle—industry, science and education. Industry is spending more in recruiting likely skills with many top companies saying that the mild recession dampened their ardor not one whit. Universities confirm that the added interest in the burgeoning nuclear and space age and in science in general has made seniors in technical fields more sought after than ever.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of 25 cases in Municipal Recorder's Court on May 19.

And many firms are looking carefully at nearby education facilities before locating their research laboratories or specialized plants.

A General Electric official says that his company is increasing education facilities within the company and that more such facilities in nearby colleges and universities are being made available to GE technicians.

A Jersey Standard Oil official says although the petroleum industry may have "oil running out of its ears" right now, "We need chemists and chemical engineers and physicists and mathematicians all the time, and expect to continue this need indefinitely."

Schools reporting to Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. in Minneapolis that the demand for their engineering and scientific grads is excellent and often better than a year ago include: University of Pennsylvania, Georgia Institute of Technology, Michigan State, University of Minnesota, University of Washington, University of California at Los Angeles, Scott Hill, manager of engineering services recruiting for GE says "The current swing is toward electrical engineers and solid state physicists."

New specialties develop. He mentions bionics, the science of adapting nature's processes to engineering.

"In many cases," he adds, "GE plants have developed their own educational courses or made special arrangements with neighboring colleges and universities to produce the kind of education needed for technical people."

Hill thinks this is why the electronics industry has settled plants "near highly regarded educational institutions in the Boston, Los Angeles and San Francisco Bay areas."

The need for more scientists in the oil industry has not been cramped by the current excess of production facilities over demand, David A. Shepard, an executive vice president of Jersey Standard Oil, says. The industry is branching out into many technical fields. He notes that "oil companies currently are building or expanding around 50 petrochemical plants" and will go on breaking into new markets with new products.

"Our scientists are devoting a great deal of time to fundamental research," Shepard says, but "even the research scientist has to be aware of the economic stakes involved." He says the need is for "more, not fewer people with a taste for new ideas and with solid economic sense."

All of which may be why each year many companies pay higher starting salaries and provide additional training to improve the skills of men and women in many varied fields of specialization.

Passport statistics indicate France is the country most popular with American tourists.

Wants Probe Of Freedom Riders

COLUMBIA (AP) — Gov. Hollings wants the so-called "Freedom Riders" whose appearance has brought on Alabama riots investigated "for premeditation of breach of public peace." He made public Monday at a news conference a telegram he sent U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy asking a probe "to determine their record of disobedience to law and order."

Hollings told Kennedy: "One arrested in South Carolina, James Douglas Peck, official in Congress of Racial Equality and editor of CORE newspaper 'Corelator,' has record of eight arrests, including draft-dodging, disorderly conduct, picketing embassy, trespassing Nevada test site, and contempt of court."

More Warrants In Flogging Case

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Twelve additional warrants were taken out Monday against eight white men held in recent floggings in northeast Alabama, Circuit Solicitor W. E. Hollingsworth Jr. announced.

The men were arrested following incidents in Talladega County the night of May 13, when three white persons were flogged for associating with Negroes.

Sheriff Luke Brewer said all eight men were members of the Ku Klux Klan. They are being held under bond on charges of assault with intent to murder and flogging.

Drivers License Renewal By Mail Sought In New Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — Most drivers in North Carolina would be able to get their licenses renewed by mail under legislation introduced Monday night in the State House of Representatives.

Rep. Earl W. Vaughn of Rockingham, who sponsored the bill, said it could mean a saving of "millions of dollars" in the time of Highway Patrol examiners and drivers who have to give renewal tests every four years.

Under the proposal, patterned after a program in Virginia, the Motor Vehicles Department could require a personal test of anyone it "has good cause to believe... is incompetent or otherwise not qualified."

Drivers who had been involved in an accident which caused personal injury or property damage over $100, or who had been convicted of a moving traffic violation would have to appear before a license examiner to take the test.

Meanwhile, the Senate enacted into law a bill designed to speed up the flow of unofficial election returns to news media on election night.

The measure would require that precinct officials call the returns to the chairmen of the County Board of Elections who would then relay them to the news media as soon as possible.

A bill was introduced by Rep. Robert Calder of New Hanover to exempt from the sales tax sales to ocean-going vessels. Unless a food tax is approved, the amount involved would only be negligible, Calder said he had been informed by tax authorities.

The House passed and sent to the Senate two resolutions. One requests that North Carolina's congressional delegation support a bill in Congress to raise pensions of World War I veterans.

Other calls on the Kennedy Administration and Congress to use their power and influence to steer the use of atomic and nuclear energy toward peaceful purposes.

Rep. A. A. Zollicoffer of Vance introduced a bill calling for an amendment to the constitution to allow a legislature to change the salaries of state executive officers, effective during the term of the General Assembly which is acting on the proposal.

Emergency Insurance Fund Urged In House

RALEIGH (AP) — The House received a bill Monday night calling for the setting up of a trust fund to pay off claims in case insurance companies handling auto liability insurance go broke.

The measure, carrying the endorsement of State Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold, was introduced by Rep. Stedman Hines of Guilford who was joined by several other members.

The measure proposes that insurance companies pay into a security trust account one-half of 1 per cent of the premiums collected from motor vehicle liability insurance during the preceding year.

The payments would continue until funds collected totaled $750,000. Payments would then cease until insolvency depleted the fund and it had to be built back up to $750,000.

Gold stated, "In view of the fact that injured parties with valid claims have not been paid off, it is apparent that there is need for a system which can result in prompt payment of valid claimants."

Meanwhile, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill which would cut Durham County from the 10th Solicitorial District and make it a district itself. Durham would become the 10th district.

Three counties in the present 10th—Alamance, Orange and Person—would be placed in District 10A along with Graham from the Fourth District.

The House approved an amendment by Rep. Joe A. Watkins of Granville to remove his county from the proposed 10th and put it in the Third District.

Sen. Thomas White of Lenoir and Rep. Byrd Satterfield of Person introduced bills calling for the state's present legislative halls to be preserved as historic shrines when the General Assembly moves into its new building.

Orioles' Pennant Dreams Sinking Country Club Hosting Tournament

By ED WILKS
Associated-Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles, one of the pre-season favorites for the American League flag, are no better than fifth, seven games behind first-place Detroit. And if the Orioles' pennant hopes are dying, it's strictly a case of suicide.

What else would you call it when they can chase a starting pitcher with six hits, four of them doubles, and two walks in four innings, but score just one run while leaving six on base?

That's what they did Monday night as right-hander Jack Fisher pitched perfect ball for five innings yet wound up with his third straight defeat in an 8-2 loss to the Yankees at New York.

The victory left the third place Yankees 5 1/2 games behind Detroit. The Tigers walloped Kansas City 10-2, protecting their 3 1/2 game lead over the second place Cleveland Indians, who beat Minnesota 7-5 in 15 innings. Boston beat the Chicago White Sox 4-1, and the Los Angeles Angels defeated Washington 6-4.

In the National League, San Francisco retained a .014 percentage-point edge by beating St. Louis 3-1 while the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers won 2-1 in 10 innings at Cincinnati. Pittsburgh beat Milwaukee 2-1 in the only other game.

Clete Boyer broke up the perfect game by Fisher (1-5) with a leadoff single in the sixth inning for the Yankees and came around with an unearned run for a 1-1 tie.

Boyer also hit a three-run homer in the eighth—with all the runs unearned—off Fisher, who finished with a five-hitter.

The Yankees, with Jim Coates (4-2) winning in relief of Art Ditmar, put it away in a four-run seventh. Two walks and a single by Yogi Berra broke the tie, and the clinching run came home when second base umpire Larry Napp ruled second baseman Marv Breeding had trapped a liner by Elston Howard. After the Orioles gave up their argument that Breeding had caught the ball, Tony Kubek capped the inning with a two-run, two-out single.

The Tigers came from behind on a tying, solo homer by Norm Cash in the fourth inning, then flattened the A's with six runs in the fifth off Norm Bass (2-2). Right-hander Phil Regan (5-0) allowed just five hits, one a pinch homer by Don Larsen.

Cleveland, 4-0 in extra-inning games, made it six straight on Willie Kirkland's tie-breaking single in the 15th off losing reliever Ted Sadowski and eight innings of two-hit, shutout relief by Frank Funk (5-2). A pair of two-run homers by Woody Held overhauled a 5-1 lead by the Twins.

Bill Monbouquette put away only his third victory in seven decisions for Boston, but reduced his earned run average to 1.93 for 60 2/3 innings while beating the White Sox with a seven-hitter. Frank Baumann (2-3) was the loser, giving up a walk and singles by Carl Yastrzemski, Jim Pagliaroni and Frank Malzone as the Red Sox broke a 1-1 tie in a three-run fourth.

CHECKING . . . over the greens of the Golf Course in preparation for tomorrow's Eastern Carolina Golf Association Championship Tournament are Simon Moye, Association President and Harold Thomas, GG&CC professional.

The greens and fairways of the Greenville Golf and Country Club will be the scene of much activity tomorrow, as the local club hosts to some of the state's leading amateurs in the annual Eastern Carolina Golf Association's Championship Tournament.

The tourney, which will be entered by golfers from Kinston, Rocky Mount, Wilson and Greenville, will be an eighteen-hole medal play affair.

Simon Moye, of Greenville, who is serving as President of the Eastern Carolina Golf Association for the current year, has indicated that the tournament is expected to be entered by a large number of prominent Eastern Carolina golfers. According to Moye, an estimated field of 130-140 golfers are expected for the one-day competition.

The tournament, which is played annually on the home course of the current president of the association, includes many features besides the actual competition on the links. According to Moye, there will be a large professional scoreboard to tally the scores of the competing linksmen, a prize for the longest drive on hole number 9, a prize for the tee shot closest to the pin on number 13, a prize for the fewest number of putts on the entire eighteen holes, and additional awards for various other achievements during the day of play.

According to Association President, no starting time for the tourney action is necessary, and players will not be paired. However, local players are urged to play early due to the anticipated large field of players, said Moye.

The presentation of trophies to the winners will take place at 5 p.m. on the clubhouse terrace.

To Atlanta

East Carolina's Pirate baseballers, winners of their third consecutive North State Conference diamond title, will travel to Atlanta, Georgia, this weekend, to compete in the NAIA Region 7 playoffs.

The NAIA's Region 7 includes teams from the Carolinas, West Virginia, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Florida, and Louisiana. The teams competing in the tourney will include, other than the local college nine, Carson-Newman of Jefferson City, Tennessee; St. Bernard College of Cullman, Alabama; Concord College of Athens, West Virginia, and Oglethorpe College of Atlanta.

East Carolina, in the preliminary tournament pairings, drew a bye. The opening round pairings pit St. Bernard vs. Concord, Oglethorpe vs. Carson-Newman.

The Pirates finished the season in North State play with a 13-1 record, and posting an overall record of 16-3. The lone conference loss came at the hands of Pfeiffer College.

Suggest Louis Collie On Board

The Greenville Recreation Commission, at a special meeting last night, recommended to the City Council that Louis Collie, local business man, be appointed as a member of the commission to replace Ford McGowan, who was recently elected to the City Council.

Collie would replace McGowan as a "citizen" member of the Recreation Commission. However, McGowan will still serve on the commission as a representative of the Council.

The council will take action on the recommendation at its next regular meeting.

The commission also voted last night to install curb and gutter along the Brookgreen Ave. side of Elm Street Park. Cost of the installation would amount to about $500, which would be paid by the commission from bond money the commission has on hand.

Curb and gutter is being installed on the Elm Street side of the park in conjunction with the four-laning of Elm Street.

Plan Field Day Program For Wednesday

A field day, sponsored by the Junior Advisory Recreation Committee will be held on the New Town Recreation field tomorrow afternoon.

According to Dennis Norris and Woodrow Wilson, Directors of New Town recreation, the beginning events will include the 100 yard dash, the 220 yard dash, the mile relay, and discus and javelin throws.

The highlight of the afternoon will be a baseball game between the New Town Giants and the 'Bama Bulls'. The game will begin at 3 p.m. on the New Town field.

Since moving from Boston to Milwaukee in 1953, the Braves have never finished worse than third in the National League race.

BOSTON (AP) — Surprised but pleased Paul Richards will make his debut in the All-Star baseball games — as American League manager.

Richards was named Monday by American League President Joe Cronin as pilot for the two games, July 11 at San Francisco and July 31 here.

Richards had never made an All-Star appearance.

Richards, named the AL manager-of-the-year when he directed Baltimore to a second-place finish in 1960, commented in New York:

"I feel it is a great honor, with grave responsibility which is generally recognized. The games mean a lot to all the players and we shall do our best to try to win."

"I am surprised I got the job. I thought it would go to Ralph Houk. But it is not for me to reason why."

Richards' selection marks only the third time since the late Connie Mack led the junior circuit players into the 1933 All-Star inaugural that the previous year's pennant winning manager has not automatically directed the team.

Cronin said the retirement of

Everett Case Takes De-Emphasis Action In Stride

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—A long series of basketball troubles at the University of North Carolina and N.C. State College culminated Monday in a dramatic program of athletic de-emphasis decreed by the administration and trustees.

Involvement of players from both schools in the basketball gambling scandal was the spur for the action.

The man credited with bringing big-time collegiate basketball to the Tar Heel state, veteran coach Everett Case of N.C. State, reacted philosophically.

"We must remember, these men are running, first of all, educational institutions. This thing was starting to run away with itself. An evil influence was getting into the game," Case said.

In announcing the de-emphasis to the consolidated University of North Carolina's 100 trustees, President William Friday, explained, "Our aim is to save athletics."

With but three or four exceptions, the trustees stood up to signify approval of the program that:

1. Kills the 12-year-old Dixie Classic basketball tournament sponsored by N.C. State College and matching State, UNC, Duke and Wake Forest against four top intersectional teams.
2. Limits UNC and state basketball competition to the 14 conference games required by the Atlantic Coast Conference, participation in the ACC tournament and only two non-conference games.
3. Curtails player recruiting by allowing only two athletic grants-in-aid a year to basketball prospects outside the ACC states of Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina. Friday said the same principle would apply to football.
4. Bars basketball players from participating in organized competition during the summer months.

The Dixie Classic had hardly been killed, however, before there were hints of rebirth. Wake Forest Athletic Director Bill Gibson said Monday night that since Colgate, Illinois, Tulane and Stanford had been scheduled to participate, Wake Forest and Duke would talk about staging the Classic in another city, possibly Winston-Salem, Greensboro or Charlotte.

N.C. State Athletic Director Roy Clogston said he would have no objections, but couldn't be a part to encouraging it.

The limitations on non-conference games sent State and UNC athletic officials scurrying to telephone to cancel games scheduled for the coming season.

North Carolina had to cancel games with UCLA, Southern California, Louisiana State and participation in the Kentucky Invitational Tournament at Lexington, leaving only Notre Dame and Indiana as non-conference opponents for the 1961-62 Tar Heels.

State canceled games with LaSalle, UCLA, Southern California, Michigan, Villanova and George Washington, but will play Tennessee and West Virginia outside the conference.

One of the few athletic figures who publicly disagreed with the program was basketball coach Bill McCann of Virginia, an ACC school.

"I think the decision is entirely wrong," McCann said. "Why punish the game of basketball for the conduct of a handful of bad actors?"

Two players from North Carolina, reserve Lou Brown and star Doug Moe, were implicated in the game-fixing scandal being investigated by the New York district attorney's office. Charges of accepting bribes to shave points for gamblers have been brought in Carolina against three N.C. State players: captain Stan Niewerowski, Anton (Dutch) Muehlbauer and Terry Litchfield.

The gambling scandals followed the answer. "It doesn't make much difference where a boy comes from...I don't think any particular section has a monopoly on good or bad people."

Dr. Forrest C. (Phog) Allen, former Kansas basketball coach, used the action to repeat his oft-voiced plea for a czar to police college athletics. "The answer lies with the college presidents... The college presidents must surrender their powers to a commissioner and then back that commissioner to the hilt," he said.

Dick Harp, University of Kansas basketball coach, said, "We feel that for North Carolina, this is a step in the right direction since they took it. However, we don't know whether this would be the answer or not."

Duke Athletic Director Eddie Cameron remarked: "It's too early to tell what effect it will have on the Atlantic Coast Conference... Frankly, I don't think the quality of basketball and football at these two schools will drop considerably."

Reviving Dixie Classic By Duke, Wake Forest Talked

By REESE HART
RALEIGH (AP)—The rich Dixie Basketball Classic, canceled Monday by two of the four host schools to conform with a de-emphasis sports program, may be revived by Wake Forest and Duke.

This was hinted by Athletic Director Bill Gibson of Wake Forest. He said he will discuss the Dixie Classic open dates with Duke at the earliest possible opportunity.

Firstbaseman Cleve Branch pounded out four hits, yesterday afternoon, as his Jaycees rolled to a 10-1 victory over the Optimists.

The Jaycees jumped to an early lead in the first inning, scoring seven runs. They added two more runs in the third and one in the fourth frame, while the Optimists lone run came in the second inning.

Tom Trevathan was the winning pitcher, while Wayne Heath received credit for the loss.

any objection to the Classic being moved. I want to say though that we wouldn't be a part of such a venture."

Surprise and regret over the loss of the tournament were voiced by fans, sports writers, coaches and athletic directors.

At Birmingham, Ala., Southeastern Conference Commissioner Bernie Moore said "I'm very sorry, indeed, to learn of the discontinuation of that tournament. I thought it was one of the real fine tournaments of the country."

At New Orleans, a Tulane athletic official said "I guess we're about as surprised as anyone. We simply received a long distance call telling us the tournament had been cancelled."

South Carolina Coach Bob Stevens said "The loss of the Dixie Classic must come as a severe blow to the city of Raleigh."

Clogston was among those who regretted to see the Classic fold. "It was the greatest tournament in the country," he declared.

No outside team ever won the Classic. Coach Everett Case's State Wolfpack won it seven times, North Carolina three, Duke and Wake Forest once each.

Trustees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina voted Monday to cancel the Classic to conform with a sports de-emphasis program in the wake of basketball scandals which have involved five players at the two schools.

Roy Clogston, athletic director at N.C. State, said he would have no objection to the Dixie Classic being moved and continued by Wake Forest and Duke.

"I wouldn't want to be a part to encouraging it," he added, "but I personally wouldn't have

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Time: 1620. Scene: Outward bound from Plymouth, England, where various sorts of ships had been riding anchor. One of them, it's true, was a pirate ship, but it was a pirate ship, the Meermin. Her master gunner, Sal Boyd, who went ashore for a bit of fun, enjoyed himself too fully. He fell into sudden sleep after giving indistinct directions to the boatman hired to row him back to the Meermin in the night. Next things Sal heard coherently were children dancing and singing around the spot where he lay on deck, blinking up into a rising sun. He was on the wrong ship, which was moving away from Plymouth under full sail. He learned this was the Mayflower, bound for America!

Captain Christopher Jones made Sal a prisoner-at-large and called a conference of the leaders of the two divisions of Puritans, "saints" or separatists, and "strangers," to decide what to do about the intruder, whom the ship's company did not want to have to feed. Kindly Elder Brewster of the "saints" befriended Sal and let him share the sparse Puritan stores.

CHAPTER 3

Mayflower might have been 170 or 180 tons, which was a lot of ship; but she was stocked with a pinnaque, an assortment of settlers' supplies, wood for a long journey, and many hundreds of barrels of salt pork, water, beer; and she carried more than a hundred persons besides a crew of thirty. This made for elbow-bumping.

Sal was used to short and rancid rations, a hard bunk, dirt, disease; for these were the ordinary conditions of life at sea. Especially was he accustomed to overcrowding. But he never had seen anything like Mayflower.

"Growl you may but go ye must" was an old saying among seamen, and the mariners who handled this vessel were no exceptions. Dour of visage, sarcastic of voice, underpaid, overworked, most appallingly did they curse the conditions; yet they got their jobs done, as seamen will; and in a few days, Sal knew, they would settle down to the routine resigned disagreeableness of the forecastle, blasphemous only as a matter of habit, complaining only because complaint was expected of them.

It was in no wise unusual for mariners to be queasy, even sick, the first day out. They had swamped their stomachs with the rich food of landmen, laced, of course, with wine, ale, Geneva. They had spent all their money. The first few days at sea, then, made up a time for bellyaching.

But—the passengers! They were the ones who should have howled their woes, like a dog baying the moon. They should have trumpeted their grievances. Yet they were silent. They permitted themselves to be pushed about, and even apologized for getting in the seamen's way. Without games or any means of amusement, they occupied themselves in the waist, the only place topside where they were permitted, by preaching to one another, reading from the Bible, and intoning psalms, everlastingly, it seemed to Sal.

They did not sit for these sessions, and neither did they kneel, but simply stood with their hands on their hands clasped before them like those of schoolchildren about to recite.

Clark, the first mate, was fond of breaking up those gatherings in the waist, using as his excuse that the space was needed. Sal Boyd, who knew this to be nothing but meanness, always refused to go below.

"—might remember what the Captain said," Clark would say. "I could clap you into the garbles."

"Aye, you could. But you wouldn't have many teeth left by the time you got me there."

"Listen, if you—"

"Want to try?"

The saints and strangers, though they must have sensed persecution, obeyed. Meekly they went below, meekly (when permitted) returning.

They were the sufferingest lot Sal had ever seen, determined martyrs. They never moaned, no matter what the pressure. The sickness among them all but caused Sal's own guts to wamble. Though the weather day after day went on being bland, and Mayflower moving with little roll, the extent of seasickness was appalling.

On deck the wretches spent most of their time lining the gunwale on the leeward side, so that there was not always room for all of them.

"Won't you join us?" was what Sal heard most often in the waist. It meant: wouldn't he participate in a prayer meeting or listen to a preaching? For they'd assemble for worship, these curious travelers, at the drop of a hat. They didn't need church, chapel, meeting-house; the very sight of an altar would have scandalized them; and they numbered in their midst no clergyman, only Elder Brewster, a man of God, surely, but not an ordained priest; yet they were forever holding assemblies.

Sal, when sober, was an amiable man. He strove to please. For the most part he liked these mild, earnest passengers, even though he'd be hanged if he ever got to comprehend them. It was instinctive with him to make friends, ingratiate himself. And he didn't really mind the services, though the singing was nasal, monotonous.

There were a couple of mariners who were not members of the crew but had been hired by the saints to serve them for a year in the New World, and these, one named English, one Allerton, Sal found standoffish; they distrusted him professionally, as a pirate. Webster the gunner was a glum suspicious man with whom it was impossible to spin yarn. Nor did Sal hanker after the other members of the crew, who, like Allerton and English, eyed him askance. He thought them too gruff with the passengers.

Sal had, however, gone out of his way to make up to the cook, a saturnine scarecrow called Harris, and from the galley he gleaned many bits of food—and of information.

Soon it would be cold. Sal had been sleeping on deck, as though this was the tropics. He had thought to try the hold, which held largely, barrels; but the cooper, who had some sort of special authority there, or thought he had, put a stop to this. The cooper hated Sal.

The answer to this problem came unexpectedly from a Mrs. Bradford, a woman who had no children aboard—though she had left a five-year-old boy at home—and who perhaps for that reason took a special interest in Sal Boyd. Surprisingly, almost as though she was doing a shameful thing, she lent him a long woolen cloak. It was warm in the poop cabin where she and her husband and eighteen or twenty others, besides the officers, had their quarters; so she told him. She would not need the cloak, she said. Wrapped in it nights seated on a soft pine deck, his back against a mast, Salathiel Boyd was as snug as a bug in a rug.

Weather never had meant much to him, who had led an unsheltered life, and only in the worst of rains would he consent to crawl under the longboat lashed on the larboard side of the hatch. For the rest, he kept to the open, his natural habitat.

The attitude of Mrs. Bradford was typical. Soon others too were offering him articles of clothing, but doing this secretly so that he needn't feel silly to accept. He never did accept. The cloak was all he needed.

Just at first it was difficult for Sal. For this there were two reasons: most of the passengers were unaware of his status, if he could be said to have a status, and all of them were so sick that the very mention of food, even for somebody else, was a stab of pain.

But after a few days, as soon as word got around that this genial if hairy ruffian was aboard the vessel by mistake, and was penniless, offers to share food poured in upon him.

The saints would not make these offers in such a way as to embarrass him, treating him much like a dog that prowls around a table. They did it quietly, with no smirk. And they did it again and again.

Sal began to fear that his "only worry would be to keep from gaining weight. He began to think that perhaps this wouldn't be such a bad voyage after all.

Then too, there was the Mullins girl.

No Prisoners To Trade With Cuba

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Gov. Louis Munoz Marin Monday swept aside a suggestion by Fidel Castro that Cuban invasion prisoners be exchanged for Puerto Rican political prisoners. "We have no political prisoners in Puerto Rico," Munoz Marin said. Nationalist leader Pedro Albizu Campos, one of the men singled out by Cuban officials, was sent to prison in 1954 after being convicted on multiple charges in connection with an armed attack on the governor's palace in San Juan.

Claim Conning in Embassy Raid

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union Monday night accused the Argentine government of conning in a gangster attack on the Soviet Embassy in Buenos Aires last Thursday. The charge was made in a formal protest note.

A gasoline bomb was hurled at the Embassy during an anti-Communist demonstration by several dozen youths. No damage was reported.

Informants said the demonstration was in retaliation for a series of terrorist bombings against Roman Catholic churches in the Argentine capital.

The population center of the United States in 1790, the first year of the census, was 23 miles east of Baltimore. The population of the nation that year was 3,929,412.

Shell test drivers add a "fifth wheel" to their cars for precise distance measurement during mileage tests. It helps them record performance to a decimal point.

Shell reveals how to increase your mileage up to 30 extra miles per tankful

Here are some tips from Shell's experts on how to get maximum mileage from your car. If you practice these good driving habits—and if you use today's Super Shell, with 9 ingredients for top performance—you may well save a pretty penny on gasoline bills.

1. Don't race a cold engine. When your engine is cold, it uses up more fuel. Today's Super Shell contains Pentane mix—for fast warm-up. (A properly operating thermostat helps.)
2. Use a light touch with the accelerator. Tromping down on the pedal is an expensive habit. Starting up, it holds your automatic transmission in a lower "gear" longer. This makes the engine turn faster, wasting fuel. Under way, uneven pedal pressure is costly, too. Instead, feed just enough fuel to maintain even speed.
3. Drive "ahead of your car." Watch for slowing traffic and red lights as far ahead as you can see. You'll be able to coast up to the stopping cars, instead of braking heavily when you get there.
4. Don't let fuel costs creep up. If your car "creeps" when idling

- fuel, oil whenever manufacturer recommends.
 - Have automatic transmission or clutch checked regularly.
 9. Get regular oil changes and lubrication—including transmission and differential. Your Shell dealer knows what to do. He has the finest equipment and lubricants to do it with. There's a good chance your car and your gasoline will last longer.
 10. Show this advertisement to everyone who drives your car—especially if you pay their gasoline bills. Insist that they stop for service at the sign of the Shell.
- While we can't guarantee 30 extra miles per tankful, the closer these suggestions are followed the better your mileage is likely to get.
- To start off right, fill up with today's Super Shell. Its nine ingredients mean top performance.
- Super Shell's 9 ingredients
- #1 is TCP for restored power, added mileage and extended plug-life.
 - #2 is "cat-cracked" gasoline for power with a purr.
 - #3 is Butane for quick starts at all times.
 - #4 is Alkylate, noted for knock control in hot engines at high speeds.
 - #5 is anti-knock mix for knock resistance.
 - #6 is an "anti-icer" to check the cold-weather stalling that can occur even at 45° F.
 - #7 is Pentane mix for fast warm-ups.
 - #8 is gum preventive—to help keep carburetors clean inside.
 - #9 is Platformate—to add the extra energy that shows up as extra mileage.
- Try Super Shell. You'll soon feel and hear the difference in the way your engine runs. That difference is top performance.

A committee seeking ways and means to obtain a nursing home for Pitt County is busy looking for available building sites for the proposed replacement for the County Home.

County Commissioner B. Alton Gardner of Ayden, chairman of the committee that was appointed by the commissioners' Board yesterday his seven-member committee is seeking "any information from any interested citizens concerning possible sites for the rest home."

Gardner, chairman of the committee since he is chairman of the commissioners' County Home Committee, reported his group feels the site should be between five and 10 acres and should be within "reasonable" proximity to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Gardner heads the committee that includes another commissioner, Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur; Dr. S. L. Bartlett, Greenville physician; J. Herbert Waldrop, retired Greenville banker; Mrs. Jarvis Tripp of Greenville; Mrs. Albert Bell of Fountain; and Mrs. James Poindexter of the East Carolina College staff.

The chairman said the committee has divided itself into three groups for the purpose of visiting "as many existing nursing homes as possible to see how other counties and areas have obtained such facilities."

Gardner said the committee plans to meet again next week.
