Senate Approves Congressional Redistricting Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — A congressional redistricting plan passed the Senate by a 35-11 vote today, but supporters lost an effort to rush it on to the House immediately.

The bill would reduce the states congressional districts from 12 to 11 by placing Republican Rep. Charles R. Jones in the same district with Democrat A. Paul Kitchin.

After it passed second reading on the roll call vote, Sen. J. W. Hoyle of Lee objected to third reading.

Sen. Lindsay Warren of Beaufort called on the Senate to override Hoyle's objections and finish action on the bill. "This will expedite adjournment. The House committee meets Tuesday, and it should have this bill then," Warren asserted.

However, he got only 18 votes on a standing count, to 25 against suspending the rules. This means the bill will be up for final action Monday night.

Sen. Max Thomas of Union, who had proposed that two Eastern Democratic congressmen be placed in the same district, was one of those speaking against the bill. He said it was "not for the best interest of the state as a whole."

By tampering with Jones' district, Thomas said, "I see the greater danger of creating additional Republican districts."

The bill was defended by Sen. John R. Jordan of Wake. "This is not a 'get Jones' bill," he asserted. "By the same token, by what right is the Republican congressman entitled to immunity from redistricting?"

Sen. Warren asserted that the bill "is entitled to support from those who sit at the Democratic table and eat its bread, and those who will ask favors from it. It has the support of the leader of our party, the governor, and the lieutenant governor."

Sen. Ben Summer of Rutherford said, "I will support this bill against my better judgment. I believe we in the Piedmont will live to regret it."

Warren, who helped steer the bill through a Senate committee Thursday, had predicted it would receive a minimum of 38 votes in the 50-member Senate.

President Asks For Foreign Aid Change

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy asked Congress today for a drastic overhaul of the foreign aid program, a $4.75 billion effort for next year and a multi-billion loan system for future years.

Kennedy said the proposed long-range program is of "paramount importance" for protection of the free world against the Communist threat.

The President made his proposal in a letter to Congress transmitting the legislation he wants enacted.

A number of influential legislators have shown coolness to parts of the Kennedy package, however, and what type of bill Congress will finally approve remains uncertain.

In what would be the most drastic shakeup since the aid program got under way on a large scale after World War II, Kennedy proposed establishment of a single aid organization combining previously separate units.

The new master aid agency would be called A.I.D. (The Agency for International Development). Its head would have the rank of secretary of state and would report to the secretary of state and the President.

Under Kennedy's bill arms aid would be separated from economic aid in the future, and would be treated as part of the regular U.S. defense budget.

Kennedy set out these figures for the program in the fiscal year starting July 1:

$1.69 billion for economic aid to countries around the world. The sum includes $500 million for a presidential contingency fund for flexible use in emergencies such as recent developments in Southeast Asia, twice the amount Kennedy estimated for that purpose earlier.

$1,885,000,000 for arms assistance. This is the amount Kennedy mentioned in Thursday's message which outlined much of the program presented today.

$900 million in borrowing authority for funds to make long-term loans for overseas economic development projects.

$300 million additional, to come from repayments by foreign countries on previous loan-aid programs and to be reused for new projects. Kennedy also asked for authority to use such funds for the same purpose in future years, estimating them at about $300 million annually.

For the four years starting July 1, 1962 Kennedy requested $1.6 billion a year in further borrowing authority for long-term economic development loans.

This plus the $900 million for the coming year would bring the requested borrowing authority to $7.3 billion over the next five years.

In asking for this core of his new long-range program, Kennedy said:

"Real progress in economic development cannot be achieved by annual, short-term dispensations of aid and uncertainty as to future intentions. These (long-term) methods are essential to our new approach to development assistance to the effectiveness of that approach."

The long-term borrowing authority could be used to make loans repayable in up to 50 years, at low rates or no interest charge.

Kennedy asked for early passage of his proposal "in the earnest hope and expectation that the United States will meet its challenges and responsibilities in this decade of development in a forthright, affirmative manner which can engender the respect and confidence of nations."

School Aid Bill Faces House Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's $2.55 billion public school aid bill, having vaulted the Senate handily, heads today into an expected bitter showdown in the House.

The Senate passed the measure Thursday night 49 to 34, climaxing eight days of debate. It is one of the "big five" bills in Kennedy's 1961 legislative program.

Its supporters said today they expect the school bill will clear the House by a slim margin, although it may be trimmed before it passes.

All in all, federal aid to education advocates believe this is the best chance they have ever had to get such legislation enacted.

The bill's Senate sponsors were a little disappointed in the final vote. It was lower than they had expected because of many absentees.

The tally would have been 59-41 if all 100 senators had been present to vote their announced positions. As it was 41 Democrats and 8 Republicans voted for it, 22 Republicans and 12 Democrats against it.

A similar bill has been approved by the House Education and Labor Committee. It may reach the floor in the week of June 4.

$73 Million Tax Bill Ready For Finance Committees

RALEIGH (AP)—A tax bill that would raise $73 million during the next biennium to finance Gov. Sanford's education program faces action by the full Senate and House Finance Committees next week.

The Senate and House finance subcommittees hammered out differences and came up with identical tax bills in a joint three-hour session Thursday.

Both subcommittees had approved the governor's proposal to place the 3 per cent sales tax on food, but there were differences on smaller provisions in the tax package recommended by Sanford. The proposal to tax food would bring in $50 million during the next biennium.

At earlier sessions, the subcommittees had deleted from the governor's plan proposals to tax livestock and poultry feed, seeds, artificial limbs and other orthopedic supplies.

One of the items on which the subcommittees came to agreement was a proposal to place a 2 per cent tax on autos and commercial vehicles, with no limit on private passenger cars and $120 limit on trucks, buses and airplanes. This would bring in $9,770,000 during the next biennium.

Other items on which the subcommittees reached agreement were:

- 1. A proposed 3 per cent sales tax on purchases by city and county governments.
2. Taxes on laundries and dry cleaners. The subcommittees agreed to charge a 3 per cent tax on gross receipts of the firms. A 1 per cent tax on fuel and supplies, a 1 per cent tax with an $80 limit on purchases of equipment and a 50 per cent reduction in state privilege license taxes.

3. The concept of placing a 3 per cent tax on retail sales of newspapers, but with more consideration to come regarding wording of the law.

4. The groups agreed to eliminate a proposed 3 per cent sales tax on ice. The tax would have brought in $20,000 a year.

5. The groups agreed to eliminate a proposed 3 per cent sales tax on ice. The tax would have brought in $20,000 a year.

6. The groups agreed to eliminate a proposed 3 per cent sales tax on ice. The tax would have brought in $20,000 a year.

7. The groups agreed to eliminate a proposed 3 per cent sales tax on ice. The tax would have brought in $20,000 a year.

Girl Injured In Traffic Mishap

A 14-year-old Rose High School student was injured yesterday in front of the school when struck by a vehicle being driven by a 17-year-old Rose High junior about 2:15 p.m.

Nancy Tribble, of 213 Lewis St., received a compound fracture to her lower right leg, a fractured collar bone, and multiple abrasions when struck by the vehicle, officers reported. She apparently stepped from between two parked cars, they said.

Officers quoted the driver, Harold Stanley Bowers Jr., 17, of 1308 East 10th St., as saying he was traveling north on Elm Street at about 35 miles per hour, and did not have time to stop.

He was charged by investigators with exceeding a safe speed. Police explained that construction work is being done on the street to widen it, and added that signs, limiting the speed on the streets around the school to 15 miles-per-hour during school hours, are posted on the approaches, and yellow warning lights at the signs were in operation at the time.

Doctors today said Miss Tribble is suffering from "an extensive fracture of her leg and fractured collar bone." They commented that her condition, while "not serious," is "bad," explaining that the fracture to her leg is serious.

Local Legion Auxiliary Ready With 5,000 Poppies For Sale

Millions of red paper poppies—memorial to America's war dead—will be bought and worn throughout the nation tomorrow.

Poppy Day in Greenville is sponsored by the local American Legion Auxiliary which uses volunteer workers to distribute the memorial flowers made by disabled veterans in hospitals throughout the nation.

Greenville Mayor Charles King has proclaimed tomorrow to be Poppy Day and has urged citizens to participate in the auxiliary's poppy sale.

"Poppy Day enables every citizen to wear a memorial to the nation's war dead," King said. Mrs. W. C. Eagles, Poppy Day Chairman for the auxiliary, pointed out this observance has been held here for many years. Since the American Legion and the auxiliary originated the idea of Poppy Day after World War I the program has had two basic objectives: to serve as a memorial to the nation's war dead and to pay tribute to all disabled veterans.

Mrs. Eagles said, "Making poppies provides gainful employment and needed work therapy for thousands of our servicemen still hospitalized with wartime injuries. These replicas of wild poppies which lined the battlefields of Europe during World War I have become the emblem for personal remembrance of our servicemen's sacrifices."

Temperatures will average 3 to 6 degrees below normal Friday through Wednesday. Cooler Saturday, somewhat warmer Sunday, cooler Monday and warmer thereafter. Scattered showers tonight and along lower coast Saturday and again about Monday will average one-half inch or more.

This year, more than 25 million poppies have been made for the auxiliary by hospitalized veterans of both world wars and the Korean conflict. Mrs. Eagles explained that making the poppies has provided beneficial employment for these veterans during the winter and spring months.

The local auxiliary has received more than 5,000 of the red crepe paper replicas of the flower.

In North Carolina, the making of the poppies is directed by the state auxiliary with the N. C. Department in charge of the project at the Veterans Hospitals.

Registration Books Again Will Be Open For Voters Tomorrow

Registration books will be open at regular polling places again tomorrow so that qualified voters can register to vote in the special June 17 election on a $395,000 bond issue for the Pitt County Industrial School.

A new registration is necessary in order to vote in this election. Prior registrations will not count. Registration books will be open at the polling places between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

On all other days between now and June 3, inclusive, except Sundays and legal holidays, registration books will be open at homes of registrars. Registration books will be open on Saturday, June 3, for the last time, Saturday, June 10, is challenge day.

The State Board of Education approved the establishment of an industrial training school for Pitt on March 2. At the same time, the board turned down 42 requests for technical schools in other locations. Pitt's was the 20th and last school to be authorized by the state for an indefinite period of time.

An industrial school would permit high school graduates and others qualifying, who do not desire further academic training by attending a college, to prepare themselves for a career of specialized training. Sen. Robert Lee Humber of Pitt has previously stated that advantages of such a school here would encourage students and residents to remain in this county and work here. Training from such an industrial school would "enable our young people to obtain technical training which would permit them to receive skilled wages," Humber stated.

The county would furnish the land and building as an initial investment towards the project. Beyond that, the county would be responsible for janitorial fees, secretarial fees and utilities.

The state would acquire, install and maintain the necessary machines and would assume expense for members of the faculty and instruction, since the industrial school would be part of the statewide system of education.

Several such schools already operate in the state. Plans for others have been approved at Raleigh, Asheboro and Kinston as well as in Pitt County.

Bathtime Gadget Serves Three Ways

One of the handiest bath accessories ever is a jumbo sponge pierced by a 13-inch plastic bar. Slide the sponge to one end of the bar, and it serves as a long-handled bath brush for scrubbing your back and legs—with soapsuds. Or center the sponge and "stick" it to the bathtub via the suction cups at each end of the bar—now this inexpensive gadget serves as a bath pillow so you can lean back to soak in luxurious comfort. Finally, this same sponge-on-a-stick will do triple service by helping to scrub the tub clean.

Jr. Auxiliary Holds Service

The Junior Girls Auxiliary of Immanuel Baptist Church culminated their Focus Week activities with a Coronation Service, Sunday evening.

A large portion of an open Bible with the words "A Story to Tell" focused attention on the theme. Other decorations in the sanctuary included white candles, flowers and greenery.

Mrs. R. J. Gilbert directed the services while charges to those girls participating were made by Mrs. Floyd Warren and Mrs. A. S. Johnson, G.A. leaders.

Music was furnished by Mrs. Moye Dail, organist, and Marvin Buck, trumpeter.

A reception given by Woman's Missionary Society was held immediately following the service. The table had for its centerpiece a crystal crown studded with yellow, white and green flowers, the G.A. colors. Mrs. Alex White, W.M.U. president, poured punch.

Those receiving recognition as Maidens were: Ann Carroll, Ellen Heidenreich, Ann Horne, Becky Knight, Trilliss Paul, Jane Shearin and Lou Wilkerson.

Ladies-in-waiting were Betsy Everett, Tanya Porter and Ann Wilkerson. Princesses were Elizabeth Boone, Becky White and Susan Sumrell. Barbara Taylor was crowned Queen with Marcie Silvers as her crown bearer.

Memo To Mustached Men

With mustaches now more popular than during the last few decades, it's well to remember that they need washing as well as the face. Since the hair collects dust and grime—and retains it close to the nose and mouth—mustaches should be "shampooed" with plenty of warm soapsuds and rinsed once or twice every day.

Long Gloves Need Elbows Sudsing

Traditional directions for laundering gloves have always advised pre-treating knuckles and fingertips. Now that daytime gloves extend practically up to the shoulder, you also need to pay special attention to the elbow areas—both outside and inside the bend of the arm.

Because these spots become extra soiled, be sure to scrub them with a well-lathered soft brush before washing the entire gloves in clean soap or detergent suds and rinses.

Once Again--Register For Election

Those Pitt County citizens who have not yet registered for the special bond election on the proposed industrial training school for this county should take advantage of the opportunity to do so tomorrow.

Registration books will be open at the 25 precinct polling places throughout the county tomorrow from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. for the purpose of allowing people to register. It is important that citizens of the county be aware of the fact that this is a special registration, and only those who register for the election will be allowed to vote. The fact that a person has previously registered for a county election does not make him eligible to vote in the forthcoming bond election.

The proposed industrial training school offers many opportunities for the people of Pitt County for the future economic development of the county. Because the number of these state-supported industrial training schools is limited to approximately 20 the schools themselves may be expected to grow into sizeable industries in the years to come for the counties in which they are located. At the same time, the presence of such a school provides a facility where a county can offer to supply any prospective industry with trained workers it needs for almost any job. This greatly enhances the attractiveness of a county to industrial prospects and increases the chances of industries seeking locations in the counties which have these schools.

These schools also offer the opportunity for people within the county to learn new skills and thus take advantage of better employment opportunities.

The best way to assure that Pitt County will have this industrial training school which has been approved for it by the state is for the citizens of the county to register in large numbers and vote in favor of the proposed bond issue on election day.

We urge the citizens of the county who have not yet registered for this special election to do so Saturday to assure their eligibility to cast a ballot in the bond issue referendum.

Some Basis To Think Chances Are Improved

It is too early to jump to the conclusion that the Civil Aeronautics Board will approve air service for the joint Wilson-Greenville petition, but at least there is sound ground for thinking that chances of the joint effort succeeding are much better than in previous years.

W. W. Speight of Greenville, who has been the spearhead for the idea of area air service for Eastern North Carolina for the past decade, pointed out upon his return from the CAB hearings in Washington that there are factors working in favor of the joint effort for air service that have not been present in previous similar attempts.

First, there is the policy made clear only this month by a joint-announcement of the CAB and the Federal Aviation Agency stating that the two agencies feel that area airports would be more practical in that they would allow improved scheduling of flights, and better quality of service and other advantages. Secondly, for the first time an air carrier, in the case of Wilson-Greenville it is Piedmont Air Lines, has requested reaffirmation of the hearing examiners' decision that an airport to serve Wilson and Greenville would be feasible.

With these new factors on the sides of Wilson and Greenville's joint effort to obtain air service, they could well prove to be the balance that throws the CAB's decision in favor of service for the towns on a joint basis. They are factors that have not been present in the past in CAB hearings in which Greenville and Wilson have been involved.

There is reason to be encouraged by the course events have taken so far in the joint undertaking of Wilson and Greenville to obtain air service. Certainly the outlook is much brighter at this particular stage in the undertaking than it has been at any other time since the idea of joint efforts for air service first was undertaken by communities in Eastern North Carolina.

Foreign Aid To Reach Masses

WASHINGTON (AP) — This country is building up the realization that clean-hands foreign aid must reach the masses in backward countries to give them a reason for preferring the West to communism.

This was the message Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson returned with Wednesday from a 15-day tour through seven countries in Red-threatened areas. It was a theme made to order for President Kennedy's foreign aid broadcast today.

Johnson said: "Give something for which to fight, the people of Asia will man the ramparts of freedom and they will man them with valor. But the people do not fight in steaming jungles to preserve hunger and squalor and oppression."

Johnson made clear the Asian leaders now understand that U. S. economic aid must be matched by sacrifices and reforms by the receiving nations to make sure the benefits "go directly to the masses rather than to the dictators and aristocrats."

President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles talked of helping the masses around the world with foreign aid. But the need to do so takes on new meaning as Russia and Red China grow stronger and increase their pressure on the backward countries, particularly in Southeast Asia.

This country recently realized with a shock — in Laos — that just dumping aid, particularly if it is mostly military aid, is not enough.

There the American government, supporting a right-wing regime, gave mostly military aid. The Communists, with promises of a better life, began to sweep the country.

This writer believes that if the American government made public all the information on Laos it would show that there were hundreds perhaps thousands of desertions from the American-backed regime to the Communists.

Don't Let It Get You Down
Do worry and anxiety ever lead you to the brink of despair? The word despair means hopelessness or the relinquishing of all happy expectation. It is a fearful word. It is something to be feared and shunned.

But we should remember that the word despair comes from a Latin word "spes," which means hope. This is significant. Even despair has hope in it. In fact, it is the twisting of a word of something good, something hopeful, something full of happy expectation until it has turned sour and we find ourselves sick of mind and soul.

There is never any reason for despair in a world created by a good God and presided over by that same Creator. Things can get rough. They can get so grim at times that we wonder whether or not we can really take it. But behind everything is God. "God is love." (1 John 4:8). "God is light and in him is no darkness at all." (1 John 1:5). So the basics for hopeful living are built into the universe in which we find ourselves.

We may not understand why certain things happen. We may despair. We may cry out in pain. But do not despair. The word despair is based on a word which means hope.

Despair is hope gone sour. Despair is hope which has fallen ill. "Hope thou in God; for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance and my God." (Psalm 42:11).

Some Are For It

By HENRY HOWARD

An Annual Social Affair

It's an annual affair that has been around for a good long while now. About 45 years or more, they say.

That's the John Pierce Fellowship Dinner that attracts several hundred Pitt County and others to the shady banks of Contentnea Creek every May.

Wednesday was no exception. More than 300 politicians, officials and just plain friends gathered for the annual barbecue feast at Camp Contentnea.

It was quite warm and sunny. The muddy waters of the Contentnea streamed lazily by.

Everybody gathered outside the small lodge 'neath the oaks. Handshaking, backslapping, and wondrin' when the barbecue'll be ready were the order of the day. That is, the early part of it.

After everybody had eaten and had wiped the last traces of the meal from their lips, the business session commenced.

The presiding officer climbed onto a bench in the shade and called the meeting to order. After election of officers, the new president recognized attending dignitaries.

At the outset, he recognized Pitt County's Commissioners. All were present but one. That meant, of course, there were four of them.

And, as they always do at the fellowship dinners, the crowd formed a huge circle surrounding the dignitaries. Each dignitary recognized, in turn, steps into the opening to receive his applause.

The meeting's chairman waited patiently to allow the commissioners what he thought was ample time to put in their collective appearance.

After a few moments, however, a nose count showed only three commissioners. "I was sure there were four of them here," said the chairman, "I saw them."

Heads turned, voices called out. And coming up the hill behind was the fourth commissioner, Bruce Strickland.

Later, at a meeting of the commissioners Wednesday night, Bruce was ribbed for going fishing during the fellowship gathering.

"But," Bruce protested, "the weather was so fine. The sun was so warm. And that other gentleman... Did you see him sittin' down there on the creek bank?"

From where he sat, it looked like Bruce was about three or four jumps ahead of the crowd instead of being tardy.

We dare say, if the fellowship gathering had lasted a little longer and the boys had brought their poles, any stragglers would have had a tough time finding room to wet a hook.

It was a perfect day for it. Bruce had the right idea.

Other Editors Saying Proves Friday's Points

(The Raleigh Times)
Reaction to de-emphasis of basketball at State and Carolina was predictably swift—and the first reaction simply proved the reason which President William C. Friday gave for discontinuing the far-famed Dixie Basketball Classic at State College.

In his statement, President Friday gave this reason: "Holiday tournaments, of which the Dixie Classic is a prominent example conducted at a time when college is not in session, exemplify the exploitation for public entertainment or for budgetary and commercial purposes of a sports program which properly exists as an adjunct to collegiate education. These tournaments subject the students, the coaches and the colleges to unnecessary demands and unwelcome distractions."

It is significant that the first reactions to discontinuation of the Classic simply served to emphasize Friday's point that such tournaments are for public entertainment or for budgetary and commercial purposes. Business leaders here protested, noting that the Classic meant a business boom for hotels, motels, restaurants, service stations and a host of other businesses here. Of course the Classic meant just that, and it is unpleasant to see that much business lost to Raleigh. But that business for Raleigh's merchants and innkeepers has nothing to do with the prime business of a college, which is education. The concern over loss of business simply emphasizes Friday's point that such a tournament exemplifies exploitation of a sports program for commercial purposes.

Under present tax laws, the purchase of a typewriter is a capital investment. There is no immediate deduction for capital investments. The company buying a typewriter can deduct a small amount each year for its depreciation until, at long last, the full cost can be deducted, at which time the machine is theoretically worthless.

The law covering depreciation of capital equipment is complicated. It is quite possible that the cost of accounting and record keeping on the cost and depreciation of a $998 electric typewriter may be more than the resultant tax savings over 15 years.

Furthermore a typewriter sold today may be outmoded in ten, five or even one year. If so, tax laws permit realistic depreciation deductions. But this, too, means added bookkeeping and accounting costs, proof of framed in dollar marks: "Naturally, we hate to see the Classic go. It is financially beneficial to our basketball program."

That proves President Friday's point about tournaments being exploitation of a sports program for budgetary reasons.

The flurry of criticism over cancellation of the Dixie Classic is just the first which will be directed at President Friday and Chancellors John Caldwell of State College and William B. Aycock of Chapel Hill. They can weather this criticism without too much trouble, but they will need help and support from all their friends during the long and lonely months and years ahead. Make no mistake about it, the wolves will begin howling loudest when the national ratings come out and State and Carolina aren't on them. The wolves will howl when State and Carolina begin losing regularly to Duke, Wake Forest and other close rivals.

The things these three men did yesterday had to be done. If anything, they were late in taking their action, and there are those who feel that they did not go far enough.

The actual truth is that they did go far enough. They went as far as they could go and expect to make their decisions stick during all the years to come. They were wise in going that far and no further.

The trustees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina virtually unanimously approved this action yesterday. That support was heartening.

Such two-fold support from the Trustees will be needed even more this time next year, however. It will be needed each day during this coming year, too. It must be forthcoming.

Quote

"At long last it appears that the government is going to do something about deceptive packaging. A manufacturer makes his intentions obvious when he puts a plastic bag of breakfast cereal inside an out-sized box twice as large as the contents. Deception is the main purpose. But, rather curiously, the Food and Drug Administration's decision to investigate is being attributed not to the complaints of consumers but to those of retailers anxious to ease their shelf space problems. This tells something about consumer complacency or any rate about the consumer's reluctance to express his resentments."—Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman.

More Would Censor

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

For some reason, all of a sudden, more and more public officials are proposing some form of censorship of the press. Apparently, they are becoming increasingly fearful that the people will, in due course, know what goes on and will protest. Such a protest could swell into anger. An angry people can do unpleasant things to politicians, particularly in this country. They can and usually do throw them out of office.

John A. Fanning, a member of the National Labor Relations Board, was making a speech before the Southern Newspaper Executives' Clinic. He said that the N.L.R.B. tries to conduct bargaining rights elections without undue pressure. In a word, he prefers a vacuum. Fanning did not say so, but he apparently believes that only management and labor are concerned in a strike situation. He does not recognize that the consumer is equally affected by the outcome; that the general public is worried what a strike will do to the town, to the small businessmen, to grocers, butchers, beauticians, etc.

Fanning, not being concerned with the public interest, can say:

"In the midst of labor disputes, the immediate parties may be torn by various loyalties, desires and even fears. They may look for guidance to any voice that speaks with authority—and the editorial page is such a voice."

Apparently, because the newspaper may speak in the name of the public interest and may be believed, the newspapers should be silent, should say nothing about what may be the most important question before that particular community.

The report does not say that those who attended this meeting of newspaper executives booed and hissed this bureaucrat when he proposed that newspapers be silent about the news. The probability is that when Fanning was through with his speech, he was duly applauded and perhaps even invited to dinner.

There is too little anger in the country, too few of us who have decided not to listen to nonsense, not to be pushed around by politicians and bureaucrats. Too many of us sit back and applaud whatever we listen to, even if it is a direct insult to our rights and our intelligence.

What is the value of a newspaper if it does not provide the truth in the news "guidance" in understanding the course of events? Is it just a jumble of words and pictures that are unrelated to each other and that provide neither meaning nor guidance?

It is because of lack of indignation on the part of our people that the Teheran papers have not yet been published. It is because of lack of indignation that the American people do not yet have the whole story of what happened in Cuba. Senator Gore opened the window a little bit but not enough to give the American people a full view of the confusion and bad thinking that produced what has come popularly to be called the Cuban Fiasco.

But what about the Laotian Fiasco and the Korean Fiasco? How many fiascos must we have before Congress asks for explanations? Executive sessions hide nothing from our enemies; they were there and know what happened. Executive sessions of a congressional committee only fool the American people. They make them believe that much is being done; actually nothing is done about errors, stupidities, political backscratching until the public gets really angry. And the press tells the whole story, honestly and completely. The Cuban story has not yet been told honestly and completely.

Whenever a public official wants the press to establish any form of censorship, his plea is not in the public interest. Freedom is preserved only through the people, and the people have moral and constitutional right to know what is being done to their country by their officials. (Continued on page five)

Taxes Induce Leasing Equipment

By ELMER ROESSNER
One of the most significant announcements of the day is that leasing accounts accounted for 25 per cent of Royal McBee's commercial electric typewriters last year.

In 1959, 18 per cent of this production went into the leasing market. Royal McBee expects to lease 35 per cent of its new typewriters.

This represents a remarkable change in business practices. A generation ago a businessman bought his typewriters outright, or scratched his notes in long-hand. Now, it seems, a third or more are leasing them.

It is true that modern electric typewriters cost considerable more than the old three-shift Oliver, the hidden Remington or the early Underwoods (which helped me raise a family).

It is also true that there has been a broad trend toward leasing instead of buying in recent years. Trucks, salesmen's autos, earth-moving equipment and even mining equipment is leased as often as it is sold. But leasing something like a typewriter seems as curious as leasing paper clips.

A big reason why companies lease autos, machine tools and typewriters is the tax laws. The purchase of a typewriter is a capital investment. There is no immediate deduction for capital investments. The company buying a typewriter can deduct a small amount each year for its depreciation until, at long last, the full cost can be deducted, at which time the machine is theoretically worthless.

The law covering depreciation of capital equipment is complicated. It is quite possible that the cost of accounting and record keeping on the cost and depreciation of a $998 electric typewriter may be more than the resultant tax savings over 15 years.

Furthermore a typewriter sold today may be outmoded in ten, five or even one year. If so, tax laws permit realistic depreciation deductions. But this, too, means added bookkeeping and accounting costs, proof of depreciation and so on.

Under tax laws, as enforced on taxpayers today, leasing may be cheaper than buying. When a bulldozer or a typewriter is leased, the full cost of leasing is deductible in the year met. It's a straight business expense, deductible and without legalistic questions.

But if bought out of capital funds, only a small part of the cost may be deducted each year. The costs of maintaining accounts (often over 20 or 30 years) are considerable, and there is always the costly liability of being called upon to prove that the depreciation rate conforms to the law and to the Internal Revenue Service's interpretation of the law.

Shortage of capital and fast growth may also prompt many firms to lease instead of buy. But the major reason is the application of tax laws that tend to make leasing easier and cheaper than buying.

WAY TO MAN'S POCKETBOOK IS THROUGH SOFT HEART
Sure, every kid should have a chance to go to camp during the summer and that fact is being exploited by the spring crop of swindlers.

All over the country, new organizations are springing up "to send a kid to camp." Few businessmen will resist their appeals for funds.

Most of the organizations do operate camps, and harbor a few underprivileged youngsters. But most of the take is whacked up by the promoters.

The St. Louis Better Business Bureau reports on one organization operating camps for boys and girls. A man, the head of one and the promoter of the other, drew $46,000 for his work, and the income of his wife, head of the girls' camp, was not disclosed.

To save money, and to make sure what you do give sends more kids to camp, check every appeal with your local Better Business Bureau, your Chamber of Commerce or with local charity coordinating organizations. In that way, you can send kids to camp, not promoters to Miami.

Installing officer, Mrs. S. H. Mitchell, outgoing president, in an impressive and dignified service stated: "The quality of an organization is determined by its leadership. Because of previous experience each officer is thoroughly prepared to assume the responsibilities, duties and opportunities of the office to which she has been elected. To us comes the wise advice of St. Paul: "Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honor preferring one another. Officers installed were: treasurer, Mrs. James O. Bond; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. T. Fleming; second vice president, Mrs. H. R. Rogers; first vice president, Mrs. W. E. Roseveare; president, Mrs. Dink James.

The Susie Moore Ragsdale Achievement Award for the most outstanding clubwoman of the year 1960-61 was presented to Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Jr. This is the second year this award has been given. Last year's recipient was Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell. Mrs. S. H. Mitchell, president, presided over the meeting. She recognized Mrs. Tige Gardner and Mrs. S. L. Daughtridge, honored

Rogers, American Home Chairman, presented checks from departments to be used for club house improvements. A letter was read concerning the Pitt County Industrial Education Center from the Pitt County Development Commission. Members were urged to be sure they are registered and vote on June 17.

Reports from Convention of N.C.F.W.C. held in Pinehurst last week were given by delegates, Mrs. W. E. Roseveare and Mrs. Dink James. They expressed the feeling that every clubwoman should attend a state convention to understand and appreciate the strength of our organization. Their reports were inspiring and informative.

Mrs. James, on taking the gavel from the outgoing president, showed a club yearbook for 1942-43 when she was president of the club before. She again dedicated herself to "This age when we must continue to learn and to grow."

Luncheon Given Bridal Couple

Miss Helen McPherson and Mr. Crowell Pope, whose wedding will take place Sunday in Littleton, were honored at a luncheon Sunday.

Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Vance Perkins and Mr. and Mrs. Wilkie Carlos Burt.

Miss McPherson and Mr. Pope greeted the guests with the hostesses.

Chilled fruit juice was served as the guests arrived.

The dining room table was covered with an imported linen cut work cloth centered with an arrangement of pink roses, snapdragons, sweet peas and baby's breath in an antique glass punch bowl. From the chandelier hung white miniature wedding bells and nosegays of sweetheart roses and baby's breath. The bride's place was marked with a corsage of white mums.

A three course luncheon was served to the bridal party, relatives and close friends of the couple.

Individual tables placed in the living room and on the porch held miniature bridal bouquets.

Sponge Cake
SPONGE CAKE

1 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
5 eggs (separated)
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/4 cup sugar
3/4 cup light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift together the flour, sugar and salt 3 times. Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until slightly mounded when beater is raised; gradually beat in sugar, then corn syrup; continue beating until whites hold straight peaks. Beat egg yolks and vanilla until thick and lemon-colored; fold into egg white mixture. Fold in dry ingredients, sifting about 1/4 cup at a time over surface. Turn into 2 ungreased 9 by 1 1/2 inch layer pans; cut through batter with spatula to remove large air bubbles. Bake in slow (325 degrees) oven 35 minutes. Invert pans and let hang until just slightly warm—about 20 minutes. Loosen sides with spatula and ease out cakes.

Cut large marshmallows into small pieces and add to chocolate fudge just before pouring the candy into the pan; small fry and teen-agers go for this.

As our bank moves forward, we can sometimes say that its progress is due to this thing or the other. More often, however, our success is accounted for by something said or done by one of those associated with us in operating this bank.

Our employees have an uncommon devotion to this organization. Vivian Clark illustrates the point. Secretary, receptionist, teller, switchboard operator, she has had experience in bookkeeping, installment loans, and in our Trust department.

On her own time, she has been attending courses at night given by the American Institute of Banking, and was recently elected Secretary of the Greenville chapter for the coming year. We are proud of all of those on our team, and real proud of Vivian.

The Virtue of Self-Discipline ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Genesis 26:12-32; Proverbs 2: 7:1-5; 14:29-30; 16:32; 17:27; 20:1; 23:19-21, 29-35.

Isaac, living in the land of the Philistines, had become wealthy. The envious Philistines filled his wells with dirt and Abimelech, Philistine king, banished him. Four times did Isaac patiently move and re-dig his wells.—Genesis 26:12-21.

Finally Isaac found a spot where a profitable well could be dug without being contested. There he built an altar, thanked the Lord and pitched his tent. Abimelech, seeing God was with Isaac, came with two aides to renew his friendship.—Gen. 26:22-32.

Solomon also illustrated the virtues of self-discipline. He admonished his son to stick to the "paths of righteousness," eschewing those "whose ways are crooked . . . the strange woman . . . which forgetteth the covenant of her God."—Proverbs 2:13-17.

"Guide thine heart," advised Solomon. "Be not among winebibbers . . . for the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty; and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags."—Proverbs 23:19-21. GOLDEN TEXT—Galatians 5:22, 23.

The Virtue of Self-Discipline

THE CULTIVATION OF SELF-CONTROL AND SOME TRAGIC CONSEQUENCES WHEN THIS IS NEGLECTED

Scripture—Genesis 26:12-32; Proverbs 2: 7:1-5; 14:29-30; 16:32; 17:27; 20:1; 23:19-21, 29-35.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL THE IMPORTANCE OF THIS lesson on self-control is pointed out by the statistics showing the shocking increase in America lately of major crimes, juvenile delinquency, lawlessness, dope addiction and alcoholism.

A magnificent example of self-control is found in the experience of Isaac and his wells (Genesis 26:12-32). When the envy of the Philistines for Isaac's business success drove them to plug up his wells with dirt, making it impossible for him to survive here, he did not storm in anger as most men would have done.

When Abimelech, king of the Philistines, asked him to move away, he did so quietly.

Four times his wells had to be re-dug before the situation was resolved. In the end, Isaac's self-control not only avoided warfare; it also brought Abime-lech to him as a friend. In his Proverbs (2) Solomon exhorts his son to "stay on the straight and narrow," as we would say, avoiding evil companions and seeking always understanding.

Other specific examples of self-control are listed. One should try to be slow to anger (Proverbs 16:32), to avoid envy (Proverbs 14:30), to restrain his tongue (Proverbs 17:27) and to be very cautious in the use of alcohol (Proverbs 20:1; 23:19-21, 29-35).

Six evil results of intoxication are enumerated in the Proverbs cited—deceitfulness, (20:1), poverty (23:19-21), quarreling (23:29-30), derangement (23:33-35), the other moral sins which so often accompany intoxication (23:31-33), and the fact that the use of alcohol so often leads to helpless addition.

"They have beaten me and I felt it not; When shall I awake? I will seek it yet again." (23:35)

In this day and age one more profoundly evil result of liquor has been added to Solomon's list—the carnage on our highways. The crime of murder is thus all too often the concomitant of drink. Dr. Smith cites the striking decrease in all crimes in Kingsport, Tenn., after the outlawing of beer recently. In New Jersey, our heaviest-drinking state, "it is indicated," according to Governor Meyner, "that an alcohol factor is present in from 30 to 50 per cent of (traffic) fatalities."

By keeping God's commandments, as Solomon tells his son, by applying our hearts to understanding, by "crying after knowledge," then shall we understand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God.

"When wisdom entereth into thine heart, and knowledge is pleasant unto thy soul, Discretion shall preserve thee, understanding shall keep thee." (Proverbs 2:1-11)

Conley, Farley To Meet In Championship Match

By ROY MARTIN
Reflector Sports Writer

There seems to be positive evidence as to the coaching abilities of Bo Farley, for it seems that more often than not, his opponents in the important golf matches turn out to be his former students. This seems to be the case once again, due to the fact that the Rose High golf coach is meeting Don Conley, a former member of Farley's high school golf team, this weekend, for the Greenville Golf and Country Club Championship.

The circumstances as far as opponent were the same for Farley in last year's championship play—the only difference was in name. Last year, Farley was faced by another former student, Dallas Clark. That match proved to illustrate the effectiveness of Farley's coaching, due to the fact that he was defeated by Clark for championship honors.

Both Conley and Farley are past champions of the Greenville club. Farley is a two-time winner, taking the laurels in 1966 and 1959. Conley, an East Carolina College student, was the championship winner in 1957.

In qualifying for the finals, Farley defeated another former club champion, Reynolds May. Farley's win came on the final 18 holes of play, and he went on to defeat May 4 and 3.

Conley defeated Joe Exum to move into the finals against Farley. In this match, Conley had Exum three down going into the 18 holes of play. However, Exum came blazing back with a four-under-par 68 to chop Conley's winning margin to one.

The defending champion, Dallas Clark, a Rose High Senior, was knocked from contention in the first round of play, thus losing his chance for a repeat of his last year's performance.

The match is slated to include 18 holes on Saturday and 18 holes on Sunday. The action is expected to begin about 1 p.m.

Jake Gibbs Signs Deal With Yankees

NEW YORK (AP)—Jake Gibbs, a rebel rouser as an All-America quarterback at Mississippi, starts to get "indoctrinated in Yankee atmosphere" tonight when he checks in as a $100,000 bonus third baseman with the New York Yankees.

Gibbs, 22, was signed by General Manager Roy Hamey at his home in Grenada, Miss., Thursday after completing final exams at Ole Miss. He is to arrive here today and work out for two weeks with the Yanks, who never have shelled out a 100 grand bonus before. Then he'll be assigned to their Richmond farm in the international League.

"We want to have Frank Crosetti (the all-time Yankee shortstop now a coach) work with Gibbs around third base awhile," said Hamey, "and have the kid indoctrinated in Yankee atmosphere. He'll make the next road trip with the club."

Every club in the majors, and the two new National League outfits that aren't officially outfitted yet, were in on the bidding for the 6-foot, 185-pounder who admits to being a left-handed swinging "line drive hitter."

As the sparkplug of Mississippi Sugar Bowl champs—scoring both touchdowns in a 14-6 victory over Rice—Gibbs also was pursued by pro football. He was the sixth draft choice of the Houston Oilers in the American Football League, and was the No. 9 pick of the Cleveland Browns in the NFL.

There have been reports that Gibbs lacks power with the bat. But Jake, speaking in a heavy drawl by telephone from Grenada to a press conference here Thursday, was confident he can make it.

"I feel I got enough power to be all right," he said. "I'm more a line drive hitter. Doubles and triples."

The previous high for a Yankee bonus was $80,000 for pitcher Ed Cereghino in 1952. He never made it. The top bonus buys in the majors brought Baltimore outfielder Dave Sichelson, the Chicago Cubs' outfielder, pitcher Danny Murphy and the Los Angeles Dodgers' first baseman Frank Howard.

Nicholson's price originally was tagged at $150,000, later downgraded to $100,000 or so. Murphy signed for $125,000 with the Cubs last year. And Howard's price has settled around $118,000.

Pre-Season Favorites Edge Towards Tigers' AL Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It begins to look like the pre-season favorites finally are on the move in pursuit of Detroit's front-running Tigers in that American League pennant race.

While the Tigers still are 15 games over .500, the second place Cleveland Indians now have won eight of their last nine, the defending champion New York Yankees have won four of five and the Baltimore Orioles have won four straight.

The Injuns walloped four home runs and whipped the Los Angeles Angels 13-5 Thursday trimming Detroit's lead to 3½ games after the Tigers lost 7-6 in 11 innings at Minnesota. New York defeated Boston 6-4, and Baltimore won it for the Twins and beat Tiger reliever Jim Donohue (1-1). Detroit scored five in the first on homers by Al Kaline and Norm Cash and got the other run in the 10th on Paul Giel's homer. Reliever Paul Giel won his first for the AWARDS

Kubek belted two-run homers. Whitey Ford gave up only five hits, but needed relief help from Luis Arroyo.

The Orioles got all six runs in the first two innings off loser Herb Score (1-2) and relievers Juan Pizarro and Frank Bauman. Steve Barber (6-2) was the winner, but needed reliever Hoyt Wilhelm to nail it.

Johnny Romano, Woody Held, Willie Kirkland and ubba Phillips rapped the homers for the Indians, who had 17 hits against loser Ron Mueller (0-4) and five relievers. Mudcat Grant (4-0) won it with relief from Barry Latman.

A double by Lennie Green and a single by Jim Lemon won it for the Twins and beat Tiger reliever Jim Donohue (1-1). Detroit scored five in the first on homers by Al Kaline and Norm Cash and got the other run in the 10th on Paul Giel's homer. Reliever Paul Giel won his first for the AWARDS

ELKS POST WIN

Russell Fleming and Gregory Jones collected three hits each yesterday, to lead their Elks teammates to a 17-4 win over Pepsi-Cola.

The win moved the Elks into a three way tie with Greenville Tobacco Co. and Pepsi-Cola for first place. All three of the teams are one-half game from the first position in the Tar Heel League standings.

The Elks' two big innings were the third and fifth. In the third frame the Elks tallied 6 runs while in the fifth they managed to collect 5 runs.

Pepsi-Cola scored 1 run in the first inning, two runs in the third inning and one run in the final frame, being held by Elks pitcher Kenneth Beamon to five hits for the afternoon.

Beamon was the winning hurler, while Jerry Boyd was charged with the loss.

COCA-COLA WINS

Catcher Donnie Taylor collected two hits yesterday afternoon, one of which was a home run, to lead his Coca-Cola nine in handing the Kiwanis their first defeat by a score of 8-2.

The win moved Coca-Cola into a tie with the Kiwanis for the lead in North State League competition.

Coca-Cola flumped off to an early lead on the strength of Taylor's two-run homer in the first inning. However, the Kiwanis, also scoring one run in the first, came back in the third frame with another tally. It was not until the fourth frame that Coca-Cola sailed away the victory by scoring four runs.

The winning pitcher was Ken Merritt, while James Manning received credit for the loss.

For What Price Will Cage Stars Sell Their Future?

Roberts Secures Position No. 11

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Fireball Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla., grabbed off the No. 11 starting position Thursday by qualifying for the World 600 late model auto race at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Roberts' time of 136.320 m.p.h. for four laps of the mile and a half track was the best of the eight drivers who won starting positions 11 through 18.

Today, positions 19 through 26 are to be filled with the final 29 of the 55 starting field to be determined Saturday.

The 600-mile race begins at 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Rogers drove a 1961 Pontiac. Earning starting positions behind Roberts, in order, Thursday were Ned Jarrett, Conover, 1961 Chevrolet, 135.721; Bobby Johns, Miami, Fla., 1961 Ford, 135.177; Bob Burdick, Omaha, Neb., 1961 Pontiac, 134.974; Bob Welborn, Atlanta, 1961 Pontiac, 134.881; Buck Baker, Charlotte, 1961 Chrysler, 134.764; Roscoe Thompson, Atlanta, 1961 Pontiac, 133.953 and Emanuel Zervakis, Richmond, Va., 133.737.

In his continuing investigation of corruption in basketball, together with charges brought by North Carolina authorities, the price is about $1,500.

That's about what a graduating engineering student can expect in his first three months on the job. Some come higher. Others will permit themselves to become entangled for as little as $75 "spending money."

But to what lengths will a game fixer go to buy services to affect the outcome of a game? So far, the new basketball mess resulting from the indictment of Aaron Wasman and Joseph Hacken of New York has counted off alleged bribes totaling $37,185. Offered but rejected bribes have totaled $13,750 more.

It follows that $50,000 in bribery or attempted bribery probably was meant to buy gamblers protection on bets totaling at least 10 times as much.

Thirty-nine basketball games have been chronicled in the disclosures that engulf 28 players and 17 colleges and universities from coast-to-coast.

And a spokesman in the New York district attorney's office hints "only the surface seems to have been scratched" so far.

The "surface," according to details of indictments by Hogan, has revealed alleged bribes to players ranging from the $4,750 Hogan said was accepted by Jerry Graves of Mississippi State and the $4,450 apiece by Mike Parenti and Bill Chrystal, former teammates at St. John's to the $75 North Carolina star Doug Moe admitted accepting as a gift.

In the New York investigation, these sums have been charged: Frank Majewski, St. Joseph's (Pa.), $2,750; Jack Egan and Vince Kempton, St. Joseph's, $2,750 apiece; Pete Kelly, Connecticut, $750; Glenn Cross, Connecticut, $1,000; Dick Fisher, Tennessee, $2,000; Ed Bowler, LaSalle, $2,000; Jerry Graves, Mississippi State, $4,750; Art Hicks, Seton Hall, $1,500; Hank Gunter, Seton Hall, $1,500; Doug Moe, North Carolina, $75; Ray Paprocky, New York U., $2,300; Mike Parenti, St. John's, $4,450; Bill Chrystal, St. John's, $4,450; Connie Hawkins, Iowa, $210; Roger Brown, Dayton, $250; Al Saunders, Bradley, $200.

All of those named were given immunity from prosecution for testifying in the investigation.

In the North Carolina investigation, these alleged payments: Dutch Muehlbauer, North Carolina State, $1,250; Stan Niewierowski, N.C. State, $1,250; Terry Litchfield, N.C. State, $1,000. All three are liable to prosecution.

Hodges Urges Control Of Highway Billboards

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges today urged the states to control billboards along new interstate highways. He said billboards can turn a fine road "into a causeway of commercial blight."

Hodges, former North Carolina governor, discussed billboards in an address prepared for the dedication of a segment of Interstate 40. The ceremony coincided with National Highway Week.

"The control of outdoor advertising in areas adjacent to our highways is extremely important not only to safety but to the preservation of the beauty of this country," the secretary said.

"Billboards have a way of proliferating and when they do they can turn a perfectly lovely stretch of road into a causeway of commercial blight."

Hodges noted that Maryland and North Dakota are the only states so far which have agreed to meet federal standards for controlling outdoor advertising. States which accept the standard get a bonus of 1/2 of 1 per cent toward the cost of the new express roads. President Kennedy has asked Congress to increase this bonus to 1 per cent. The federal government automatically pays 90 per cent of the cost whether or not billboards are controlled. Hodges said Interstate 40 will, for the first time, directly link North Carolina and the industrial centers of Ohio and Pennsylvania and "open up unprecedented opportunities."

Hodges said that North Carolina will gain direct access to a Northern market of more than 60 million people within a range of 500 miles. "The potential for growth is immeasurable, not only for industry and commerce in this state, but for agriculture and recreation as well," he said.

The secretary reported that 769 miles of interstate roads will be built in North Carolina by 1972. He said about 190 miles have been fully completed and that an additional 100-plus miles are open to traffic although needing further improvement.

Desegregating 4 More Schools

By BOB HARING

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The Little Rock School Board, acting under the shadow of a federal court order to expand school integration, will desegregate four junior high schools and the city's last all-white high school next fall.

The board Thursday night assigned 25 Negroes to four of the city's five all-white junior high schools. At the same time, it upped from 11 to 24 the number of Negro students in once-white high schools and desegregated all-white Technical High School.

Action on the assignments under state pupil placement procedures was swift and appeared routine. There was no discussion, but board member J. H. Cottrell Jr. voted against the motion to approve assignments at all school levels.

Later Cottrell would say only, "I object to 25 assignments to the junior highs."

Board action came only four days before a U.S. District Court hearing under a ruling by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals which suggested that Little Rock expand its desegregation efforts. The board sent 12 Negroes to West Side Junior High, a 900-student school only four blocks from Central High School, where violence followed the first court-ordered desegregation in 1957.

Nine Negroes were assigned to East Side Junior High, while Forest Heights and Southwest Junior Highs were each assigned two Negroes.

Board members said no Negroes applied for admission to the other junior high school, Pulask Heights.

All the Negroes assigned to junior highs will be eighth graders next fall.

Campbell College Yearbook Editor Receives Praise

A Bethel native has received recognition and praise for heading the development and publication of the "Pine Burr"—yearbook of Campbell College.

Betty Lynn Cooper, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Thomas N. Cooper of Bethel, served as editor-in-chief of the Baptist college's yearbook that was released recently.

The college sophomore headed a staff of around 15 students who put together the 1961 edition of the yearbook. The "Pine Burr" celebration of the Civil War.

An editorial in the Bues Creek school's student newspaper, "Creek Pebbles," praised the '61 "Pine Burr" for "adding the finishing touch to a successful year" "under the capable editorship of" Miss Cooper.

This year's yearbook marks the final edition of the publication for a junior college. Campbell, next fall, enrolls its first third-year college class in its history.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Time: 1620. Scene: Outward bound from Plymouth, England, where various sorts of ships had been riding anchor. One of them, its true character masked while in the harbor to take on supplies, was a pirate craft, the Meerrmin. Her master gunner, Sal Boyd, who went ashore for a bit of fun, enjoyed himself too fully. He fell into sudden sleep after giving indistinct directions to the boatman hired to row him back to the Meerrmin in the night. Next things Sal heard coherently were children dancing and singing around the spot where he lay on deck, blinking up into a rising sun. He was on the wrong ship, which was moving away from Plymouth under full sail. He learned this was the Mayflower, bound for America.

Captain Christopher Jones made Sal a prisoner-at-large and called a conference of the leaders of the two divisions of Puritans "Saints" or separatists, and "strangers," to decide what to do about the intruder, whom the ship's company did not want to have to feed. Kindly Elder Brewster of the "Saints" befriended Sal and let him share the sparse Puritan stores. Sal was bewitched over at his first sight of pretty Priscilla Mullins and incurred the jealousy of the ship's big and burly cooper, John Alden, when Priscilla was attentive to Sal.

CHAPTER 6

Sal crawled out from under the longboat of a brisk October morning, and he felt very good indeed, expansive. He flexed his arms, grinning as he felt the blood pound. It was good to be alive. It always astonished him. They were booming along—six knots maybe. They must have been halfway over, the middle of the ocean. It was cold, but it was clear and bright. Soon Priscilla would come out of the cabin. He wished that he could greet her with something more substantial than a smile, with some gift suitable for a pert young miss aboard ship, even if it was just a piece of ribbon. He sighed, his shortcomings as a swain oppressing him. Though he had been all beams a moment before, now despite the weather's glint he felt sad, sorry for himself.

"All right, pirate, now I'm going to rip your guts out!" Sal whirled, stepping backward, in a crouch; and his hand grabbed the hilt of his knife. The man who faced him was tall and gaunt, with dark hollows for eyes and hair the color of moldy hay. He had lately been sick, as his complexion testified; yet there was sarcasm, there was mockery, a challenge, in his mouth and in the way he held himself, swaying against the motion of the ship, his feet spread wide, fists on hips. "Toughy, eh? But quick. Just like old times, eh, Sal?"

"Sawn Matthews! What the Devil are you doing here? I thought you was shut of the sea?" The other shrugged. "A man's got to live if you could call this living. But what are you doing here, with this gaggle of psalm-singers? You leave Oosterlinck? Or did he throw you out, the way he did me?"

"It was an accident. I got drunk." "It was never an accident before, when you got drunk. You always meant for it to happen." "I woke up on this vessel, different, eh?"

Matthews laughed as though it hurt his mouth, but his eyes shone still with mockery. "Aye, a good bit different. Remember that place we careened in—Bahia Verde or something like that? Remember them bousling bouts? And the palm trees? And how you used to go swimming every afternoon? Damnedest thing I ever saw—a seaman that can swim!"

"You're, uh, you're crew here?" "Do I look as if they'd made me sailing master?" Sal nodded. The mariners of the Mayflower were only beginning to appear in their entirety. The first few days, even the first week, a good half of them would be laid up in the forecabin, too sick to work, hacking at their pluck, and weak. That was usual in merchant ships. It was not so in privateering craft like the Meerrmin. Captain Oosterlinck had made it clear that he wouldn't tolerate such inefficiency. He simply couldn't afford to. A man in that business had to be ready for anything at any time. This was the reason why Sawn Matthews here had lost his post; he was an honest man not because of his heart but because of the wambling of his guts perforce. You never could advise mariners of that sort. If you asked them why they suffered so, voyage after voyage, and why didn't they stay on land, they just didn't know what you meant.

Mayflower, it would seem, had somewhat more than her share of these unfortunate seamen; and this meant that at first the able-bodied, the ones who could get around, were seriously overworked. No doubt this was why Sal Boyd had not seen Sawn earlier. "Saw you day before yesterday. Yes, and yesterday, too," Sawn reported. "But I didn't get a chance to say hello. They're drivers, these mates. Say, yesterday I looked down and what did I see but you singing with these bloody Brownists. Singing! Right as though they was real people!"

He startled himself, and was abashed by what he had said. "I—I mean," he stammered, "that they aren't half as upsy as you might suppose, Sawn. Really."

"Oh?" Matthews, fists still on hips, looked slowly around. The waist was filling with passengers who stumbled up, blinking, thick with yawns, from below. Sawn's mouth was magnificently curled. "They look to me," he said at last, "as if they spit marble." Sal had seen Priscilla Mullins come from the poop cabin. He touched Sawn Matthews' forearm. "Well, it's been good to see you. We must get together again some time, eh?—and talk about the old days at Bahia Verde. But just now, excuse me." Sawn stood there for some time, teetering on the balls of his feet, even though Clarke was bellowing for him aft. He shook a sad head. "Poor Sal," he muttered. "It just don't seem possible."

Peace was not for the likes of them, though they were peace loving and would have worked for it. With what a sudden savagery, with what a barbarous abruptness, did the change come! It was as though the Lord sought to scatter them with a whirlwind such as look Elijah into Heaven. At one moment all was serene, but the next was chaos, it was Pandemonium.

It started in the middle of the night, catching them when they were weakest, least prepared. Sal, who as was his wont was wedged between the mainmast and one of the knights just aft of it, Dorothy Bradford's cloak wrapped around him, was popped out of that place like a cork from a bottle, and went skittering across the waist, a starfish, all legs and arms. He was slammed into the scuppers on the larboard side, and there he lay stunned, gasping, so that the great sea that came tearing across the waist reared over a prostrate man. Sal saw it. He might have screamed; he did not know. He couldn't have heard himself anyway, what with the howl of the wind and the crack of canvas as sails were being whipped away. He really thought that that moment was his last. The weight of water smothered him—it all but cracked his bones—and it knocked out of him what little wind had been left. He felt himself rise on that sea, back away from the gunwale a bit, and then he was propelled right toward it. He couldn't struggle. There was no question of resistance. The next instant he was over the side.

The water was so cold that it burned. It hissed around him like steam. A touch of Hell beforehand? A hint of what would come? Something struck his cheek a stinging blow. He grabbed it and found that he had hold of a rope. It was as though somebody had seen him being washed over and had thrown him this line. That couldn't, of course, be. The only other persons topside when the blow hit were an officer on the half deck and a lookout in the crow's nest, and those two, even if they knew of Sal's presence, and cared, would be having all they could do to hold on. All he knew was that he gripped a rope in both his hands and hoped it would tighten. (To Be Continued Tomorrow)

Test Pilot Flies At 3,370 MPH

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Technical delays had begun to bother test pilot Joe Walker. Then finally, on his seventh flight in the X15, he flew the rocket ship to a winged record of 3,370 miles per hour.

"I almost had a phobia about it," Walker, 40, told his wife later. Grace Walker said her husband was referring to long periods of waiting in the cockpit of the stubby-winged craft, sometimes only to have the flight called off at the last moment.

But the test came as planned Thursday. Walker's new mark is 296 m.p.h. faster than an X15 flight last April 21 by Air Force Maj. Bob White.

Only space men Yuri Gagarin and Gherman Titov and Shepard Jr. have traveled at greater speeds. Walker, veteran of fighter pilot service with the 15th Air Force in World War II, was dropped from a B52 mother ship at 45,000 feet Thursday. For 73 seconds he held the X15's throttle wide open. His peak speed—nearly a mile a second—came during a steep climb at 90,000 feet. Then he switched off the powerful engine and coasted to 110,000 feet before nosing over and gliding back to base.

By comparison, Gagarin hit 17,000 m.p.h. during his orbit around the earth April 12 and Shepard sped 5,100 m.p.h. during his 115-mile rocket climb May 5.

Walker, who earned the Distinguished Flying Cross during his wartime service in Europe, now works at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Snow Shovels Back Into Action

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich. (AP)—Most Iron Mountain residents put their snow shovels away Wednesday when thermometers climbed to 81. Oldtime residents, used to long winters, were convinced spring had arrived.

But the weatherman refused to cooperate. Snow shovels reappeared Thursday to combat a heavy, wet snowfall and residents bundled up against 32 degree temperatures.

Weather Bureau officials said the fast-melting snow brought a heavier accumulation than was recorded in January. No snow fell that month.

FOREIGNERS UNWANTED
 SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—The government announced Thursday it will not grant visas to delegates from the Soviet Union and Red China who planned to attend the National Farmers' congress opening here Sunday. The reason given was that the meeting will be political, and Chile does not want foreigners participating in such activities.

NEW YORK (AP) — Some issues move widely in response to special news as the over-all stock market was mixed in moderate trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 20 at 248.10 with industrials unchanged, rails off 40 and utilities off 10.

The three blue chips which have depressed the market this week—Du Pont, General Motors and American Telephone—were fairly steady.

Texasco spurted more than 2 points.

Ford was down 4 1/2.

The general atmosphere was one of caution prior to the Memorial Day weekend which will mean a four-day stock market holiday this year. Changes of most key stocks were narrow. There was no group leadership in either direction.

After dragging down the market averages all week, Du Pont, GM and AT&T showed signs of steady-ness. Du Pont advanced 1/2 at the opening but traded unchanged in early afternoon.

AT&T was unchanged in early afternoon.

AT&T was unchanged at the opening but showed a net gain of 1/2 as the session wore on. GM was up 1/2.

International Business Machines jumped 4 points.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 20 at 690.36. Corporate bonds were mixed. Some U.S. government bonds took losses.

Measure Aimed At Poison Booze

RALEIGH (AP) — A Forsyth County legislator, whose section of the state has been hit by several poison liquor deaths, has taken steps aimed at halting the flow of poison whisky.

Rep. William Wood introduced a bill Thursday that would make it a felony to manufacture poison whisky, or to knowingly sell it or possess it for sale. Stiff penalties would be set out in the law.

"As many people as we've had killed, a person knowingly selling (poison liquor) is just like committing premeditated murder almost," Wood said.

Meanwhile, Sen. Thomas White of Lenoir introduced a bill aimed at slowpokes on highways. His measure would set a 40-mile-an-hour minimum on highways with a 55 m.p.h. zone, and 45 in a 60 m.p.h. zone. White said slow drivers can be a hazard to traffic.

Other developments in a busy legislative day included:

The House approved a Senate-passed bill to regulate the transportation of migratory farm workers. The bill goes back to the Senate for concurrence in amendments.

House Judiciary 2 Committee killed a bill that would have set up a state board to regulate the license the practice of psychology.
