Textile Union Abandons Harriet-Henderson Strike

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — The Textile Workers Union of America is formally ending the costliest strike in its 24-year history June 1, the 2½-year strike against the Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills.

But for token pickets, the strike has been over for many months and by any yardstick it was a failure for the union. The cost to the TWUA included: Strike relief amounting to $1,250,000. The loss of the union's Carolina director, Boyd Payton, sentenced to jail with seven TWUA members for a dynamite conspiracy.

Williams said that the TWUA had not organized a single North Carolina plant since the Henderson strike began Nov. 17, 1958, but explained "we haven't been in too much of an organizing campaign in the last several months." The 22-member TWUA Executive Council, meeting in New York Friday, officially brought the strike to an end because of a need "to face up to the harsh facts of life in Henderson."

Army Preparing Flexible Set-Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Next year the Army begins casting its 14 divisions into flexible battalions that can be swiftly shuffled and retooled for fighting either in Europe's plains or in Southeast Asia's jungles. They will be armed with more conventional weapons and at the same time have nuclear power. Details of the new "building block" plan were discussed by Army officers after President Kennedy told Congress Thursday he was directing Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to undertake complete revision of the Army's divisions.

Nikita Leaving Moscow Tonight On Vienna Trip

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev leaves by train tonight to meet President Kennedy in Vienna next Saturday, the foreign minister said. Diplomatic sources said they understood Khrushchev would make a series of speeches in Czechoslovakia en route. If these speeches are of a pronounced anti-Western character they could cast a chill over the Khrushchev-Kennedy talks, Western diplomats here said.

Committee OKs Law Library Bill

RALEIGH — A Senate committee took a long look at a proposed Pitt County bill frowned upon even longer, but finally gave a scarcely audible vote of approval to the measure. If Pitt Sen. Robert Lee Humber hadn't come in while the measure was being discussed, there might not have been anyone to make the motion for a favorable report. As it was, Chairman Dallas Alford had a hard time finding anyone willing to second the motion.

A bill to establish a public law library financed by an additional fine of $1.00 upon those convicted in every Pitt County criminal case had been introduced at the request of the Pitt County Bar Association and approved by the County Commissioners, according to sponsors of the bill, Reps. Frank Woolton and Clifton Everett.

Objection of the Senate Local Government Committee was evident, though several members said they "would not vote against it." Several members of the committee voiced a question of constitutionality, though they said they were aware that a few other counties were financing their law libraries in the same manner.

Advanced Atlas Scores Success

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An advanced Atlas missile designed for heavier payload and greater range has scored its second straight success on a 5,000-mile test flight. The flight Friday night is further evidence that the Air Force has solved problems which beset the new Atlas "E" rocket in early test firings. Five of the first six launchings of the improved missile failed. The trouble was traced to a faulty hydraulics system. The system was modified and on May 12 an Atlas successfully flew the course. The E rocket, which features a built-in inertial guidance system and more powerful engines than the operational D Atlas, is being developed to deliver a nuclear warhead to targets up to 10,000 miles away.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plans to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Nothing quite compares with the exhilaration of that final day at high school.

The drudgery of note-taking, the monotony of assignments and recitation, the tedium of term papers, the nights of cramming, the toiling tension of exam week... it's all behind them.

And ahead... graduation... the promise... college... a job.

But as an earnest parent, pause to take stock of your son's spiritual maturity. Has the soul's growth kept pace with the mind's?

The firmness of the bond between the Home and the Church holds the answer. Strengthen that bond every Sunday. In a world that constantly tests the faith of men... the last exam is not over.

All About Town

With Anne Keziah

An Ayden girl, Henrietta Mackinnon Taylor, was introduced to Donald Bruce Flier of Atlanta, Georgia after they attended the 1957 Debutante Christmas Ball in Durham. They were introduced by a sorority sister, whom he was dating at the time. Two years later, they began dating, the courtship eventually led to an engagement.

Henrietta will graduate from Queens College May 28, where she was a member of the Phi-Mu Sorority. Don is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity at Wake Forest College from which he will graduate this year.

Mr and Mrs. Ted Daniel of Raleigh were overnight guests Thursday of Mr. and Mrs. Don Calloway and sons at their home in Forest Hills.

East Carolina senior LaVerne Coughlan of Greenville is attending a houseparty at Atlantic Beach. Also with her are classmates Judy Bledsoe and Barbara Pleasants of Raleigh, who graduated in May from East Carolina College.

HOME DECORATING TODAY

By MRS. R. W. DAVENPORT

Our first lady, Mrs. Kennedy, will influence our designers. You will see homes everywhere take on the elegant air.

You don't have to be rich to go elegant. If not rich, you will have to be a careful shopper. Compare values, train your eye and develop your taste.

You must have courage to carry out your convictions.

Get in your head that good design is not determined by cost. Choose your accessories wisely.

The 4-H Club motto is a good one: Have nothing in your room that you do not know to be useful, or believe to be beautiful.

Never forget that color costs less than any of the decorating elements and has the biggest results.

Above all, be courageous; faint heart never accomplishes much to speak of, and it will do nothing at all for a run of the mill, uninspired box of a room.

If you want to be in line with the new decorating scheme. Do as Mrs. Kennedy, go elegant.

Need help? The Home Furniture Store will send someone to your home to help you. Call them anytime.—(Adv.)

Become A Space Race Contender?

The American people and the rest of the world have long recognized that the United States and the Soviet Union are engaged in a race for the exploration of space. It is also generally recognized that the nation which ultimately maintains consistent leadership in the race will be looked to for leadership in other fields.

It should not have come as a surprise, therefore, that President Kennedy has set forth to Congress a program which is calculated to put the United States in a more favorable position to compete with the Soviet Union in the space-age race.

Specifically, the President tied his space proposals to the effort to put a man on the moon. Although there is disagreement among some experts on the scientific value of such an achievement, the moon has become a symbol of the next major space conquest. As such it is of immense importance, and the United States must either compete effectively to reach this objective first, or it must concede to the Soviets.

Certainly this nation can ill afford to choose the latter. The President's program, we believe, recognizes the fact that the United States still has to make up for the lag in its space program dating back a number of years before the first satellite was put into orbit by either this country or the Soviet Union. If we are to forge ahead, we must first catch up in the development of some phases of our space program. To continue at the rate of progress previously followed in our space program is not enough to hold hope to catching up and forging ahead. Greater emphasis must be put upon the program.

While the President's spending proposals for the space program will place a burden upon the nation and its people, it is necessary if we hope to achieve the goal. The burden must either be accepted by the people, or we must expect to have other bitter pills to swallow as the Soviets out-distance us in future space accomplishments.

It should also be recognized by the President and other government leaders, that the lag of the United States in the space race is not altogether due to the fact that an insufficient amount of money has been spent in this field. There have been delays in the program which have been extremely costly both in time and money. There have been shifts in authority that have severely handicapped the overall space efforts of the United States. There has been an apparent lack of complete understanding of what various development programs were seeking to accomplish, where there was duplication of effort and where there was worthwhile complimentary work being done.

If Congress approves the accelerated space development program proposed by the President, both the executive and legislative branches of the government should insist that waste of time and effort in the program be eliminated insofar as possible. They should insist not only that the new funds be spent as wisely as possible, but that the obvious squandering of funds that has previously taken place in the space program be stopped.

The United States has no choice but to try to compete effectively in the space program. But along with spending more money on the program it is essential that it get more nearly a dollar's worth of value for each dollar spent than has been the case in the program in the past.

Assembly Gets Into High Gear

By LYNN NISBET
PRESSURE—The easy-going tempo which has maintained in the Legislature almost since its beginning took a rather sharp turn this week to frenzied haste under heavy executive pressure.

Up to now Governor Sanford has observed, to greater degree than most of his predecessors, a hands-off. He let it be known early in the session what he wanted with respect to government organization—and he got most of his objectives without pressure. He experienced no difficulty in getting most of the boards and commissions enlarged and in having tenure of incumbents canceled, enabling him to name entirely new and larger boards.

He proposed an enriched public school program, calling for some $70 million more than budget recommendations, and new taxes of about $83 million above budget figures. He suggested specific sources for this extra revenue, but said he would not insist on any particular plan so long as the money was provided. He maintained almost hands off policy with respect to redistricting and other issues—until a few days ago.

Then the Governor and his advisers decided the time had come to crack the whip. He has set a target date for adjournment as June 17, so he can get away for the National Governors Conference in Hawaii on June 23. In calling the signals for committee and subcommittee action, Governor Sanford has exhibited the same canny sense of timing that made his election campaigns successful. Only a few of his close friends knew that a vote in the joint appropriations committee approving the school program would be called when it was. Similar surprise was manifested at timing of the vote in the Senate finance committee on the tax bill. And the Governor flew back from Ohio to press for a House committee vote on the same subject. All these votes went like he wanted them.

WHIP—Chairman Shelton Wicker told newsmen Wednesday that his committee would not vote on the bill that night, but wait until next day. Then word got around that the "chief wants a vote tonight." So the vote was taken, and went for the administration plan—although the chairman had to break two or three tie votes.

The Governor indicates at a news conference Wednesday that he favored the redistricting plan that would put Republican Charles Jonas in a new district with Democrat Paul Kitchin. A bill to effectuate that arrangement had been introduced earlier in the day. Next morning the Senate committee met and gave the bill a favorable report—over protests of Sen. Van Landingham of Paul Kitchin's district and Sen. Claude Currie of Durham, who objected to such unseemly haste. They noted that bills which had been pending for three months had not been voted upon. But the administration wheels were greased and the committee vote was 8 to 2 for a favorable report.

The cracking of the whip has angered some legislators who do not favor all of the Sanford program, and from time to time there are intimations of open revolt. At time of this writing no such revolt has developed, and chances are it will not be successful.

There is a substantial number of members in the House who favor increasing the sales tax on present items to 45 rather than extending coverage of the 3 per cent levy to basic foods. The amount of money to be collected will be nearly the same. The issue is developing not one of just getting the money, but of getting it the way the Governor suggested in his budget message. The fight is for prestige and recognition. Presently betting odds favor the Governor to win on major points.

CONTRAST—Sen. Thomas White of Lenoir offered a traffic safety bill in the Senate which would fix minimum as well as maximum speed or motor vehicles. Except under specified conditions passenger cars and light trucks would be required to maintain at least 40 miles an hour speed in 35-mile zones, and 45 miles in 60-mile zones. The highway patrol is charged with responsibility for enforcing minimum speeds in the same way it enforces maximum speeds.

The same day Rep. Tom Newman of Sampson introduced a bill in the House which would permit the movement of oversized farm machinery on the public highways without special permit "when such machinery or equipment is being used in connection with farming and agricultural purposes, or is being delivered to a farm for such purposes."

The reason for requiring special permit for movement of oversized equipment is so that the patrol or other officers could police the operation for the safety of the public users of the highways. These general users fail to see the difference between a piece of farm machinery or a piece of cotton mill machinery blocking traffic on the open highways. Concessions have been made for the use of slow moving farm tractors on highways, which often add to traffic hazards.

Important Inquiry Into Selecting Grand Jury

Pitt County's Grand Jury inquiry into the selection of persons for jury duty in the county is a matter which should be of concern to the County Commissioners as it is to the Grand Jury and apparently to a number of citizens of the county.

The Grand Jury this week called on Commission Chairman Robert Little to appear before it at its "next meeting" to "explain in detail the current system of jury selection."

In its January report the Grand Jury recommended that the County Commissioners review the system of juror selection in an effort to devise a more equitable system of selecting persons for jury duty. The Grand Jury said in January and again in its report this week that it has heard of cases in which citizens who have spent their entire lives in Pitt County have never been called for jury duty while others are repeatedly called for jury duty.

If this situation is a product of the method now used for jury selection, then certainly consideration should be given to modifying the method used in order that some citizens will not escape the responsibility of serving as jurors, and others will not be called on time and again to render services as jurors. The situation apparently has not improved since the Grand Jury called attention to it in January. Perhaps it will not improve following the meeting between the Chairman of the County Board of Commissioners whose duty it is to select jurors and the Grand Jury. It may be that legal restrictions governing the selection of persons for jury duty leave little leeway for the County Commissioners to modify their present method of selecting persons for jury duty.

In spite of these possibilities, however, it appears to us worthwhile for the County Commissioners and the Grand Jury to jointly consider the problem which the Grand Jury has brought to the attention of the Commissioners, and seek a reasonable solution which will eliminate the inequities which the Grand Jury has pointed out.

How Fast Does He Plan To Go?

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy—while walking a cautious military path—acknowledged in his talk to Congress the need for a bold dash down the social and economic road around the world.

But he still has to show by performance how far and how fast he intends to go.

His caution on the military side shows up in instances such as these: When Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson returned from Southeast Asia he said, in Kennedy's name, he had promised the backward nations there this country would make "any sacrifices" in the fight against communism.

But he said there are no plans to send U. S. troops. Kennedy could have sent troops into Laos to try to stop the Communist push there, but he didn't. If he had, the Red Chinese undoubtedly would have moved in, thus creating another Korea.

American-backed South Vietnam is plagued by Communist guerrillas. The United States will help the Vietnamese with military supplies and training and with economic aid. But there has been no public promise American troops will be sent in.

In short: Although Kennedy talked Thursday of increasing and streamlining America's non-nuclear fighting forces, he mentioned no specific place where he intended using them.

His whole talk was anti-Communist. It was also non-belligerent, which is perhaps a requirement if his meeting with Premier Khrushchev in Vienna in June is to have any success. But Kennedy sounded more ac-

Nearby Deserted City

There is a city I know which became a ghost town almost overnight recently.

Its thousands of citizens stampeded over the city limits and scattered to other areas far and wide. Only a few hearty souls remained behind, sufficiently attached to their town that they would not leave it when their neighbors deserted.

This very day the streets of the city are lonely and empty. Only an occasional car passes along the thoroughfares that once were thronged with vehicles. And the cars that do move down the streets generally come from other towns.

Stores in this ghost town now stand dark. Their front doors are locked. No clerks stand behind their counters, for, you see, the clerks left, too and even if they were still present there would be no customers.

This city had several restaurants which once bustled at mealtimes. They were bright, clean and cheery eating places. But today they, too, are silent. The tantalizing smells which once came from their kitchens are no more. Modern restaurant equipment is unattended.

There is a post office in the city which at one time handled a heavy mail volume just as any bustling small city post office would. But it is a rare day now when even one letter is dropped in the mailing slots. And the many post office boxes hold no incoming letters.

There is a city auditorium and an elementary school in our deserted city and, of course, housing for its thousands of former citizens. All of it idle.

This city is not a gold rush type ghost town in which buildings were quickly thrown up to accommodate those who came to seek wealth—only to fall in decay when the people left. This city was carefully planned and its buildings well built. Uniquely it had no slums. This was true because it numbered no poor among its citizens. Few were rich, but all had a decent place to stay and three square meals a day.

Its population loss was terribly sudden, though. Consequently even today its buildings are modern and well-kept. Its streets, all paved, are in good condition and there are no potholes to fracture the springs of passing vehicles.

Rather than the old west ghost towns, the city has the appearance of cities in Nevil Shute's "On the Beach" where the world's metropolises were left deserted, but undamaged, after nuclear war.

Our city, however, actually exists this very day, and not far off. Sound improbably and, if probable, sad?

Well, it's not so sad as it might seem. For soon this city of 5,000 persons will be bustling again. Its shops will come to life; its restaurants will reopen and its post office will resume normal volume.

The ghost city is really very close to readers of this column. For many, it is in walking distance and a look will show it to be in very good condition, indeed.

Its name is familiar. We all know it as East Carolina College.

Other Editors Saying Warning In The West

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

North Carolina Democrats have decided the easiest way to handle the unpleasant redistricting task is to involve the state's only Republican congressman. In this manner the North Carolina Democrats figure they might get two birds with one stone; namely, they will avoid squeezing out either of two veteran legislators from the Second and Fourth Districts, and they might hit it lucky and get rid of Rep. Charles R. Jonas, the GOP congressman.

Well, that type of thinking is bound to prove mighty popular from a partisan viewpoint. But the repercussions could prove unpleasant and disconcerting. For example, the state's Republican headquarters foresee such a move as a sure way of electing at least three additional Republican congressmen. But the keenest analysis of the situation was provided by the Winston-Salem Journal in editorial comment on the touchy subject:

"They (meaning Democratic leaders from the East) blithely insist that the state's congressional districts be redrawn to pit a Democrat against Republican Representative Jonas in the 10th District. They claim the East has been the savior of the Democratic party in North Carolina and therefore is entitled to be left alone.

"And these Easterners, by virtue of the power accorded them by malapportionment of the General Assembly, have the votes to back up their desires. Their plan now is to pit Mr. Jonas against Democrat Paul A. Kitchin by splitting up the Ninth and Tenth Districts and the juggling congressional alignments in the entire Piedmont.

"Mr. Jonas is not through if he is legislated out of Congress. He will have a leg up on the governorship as the 'martyr' candidate. If he wins, the 'two-party millennium will have arrived. And the Democrats of the East will have switched from saviors to crucifiers of the party, all in the name of misguided party loyalty."

That is strong medicine, but could well fit the situation if the plan is carried through. Gov. Sanford, who earlier this year had declared he would have no part in such a back-door scheme to get rid of Jonas but would rather try to beat him at the polls, apparently has had a change of heart; he now favors the current plan. This switch in sentiment by the chief executive leads one to wonder just how much control Sanford has over his lieutenants in the General Assembly, and just how much weight his opinion carries within the party, for the group favoring the Jonas plan goes merrily on its way, blithely disregarding Sanford's previous declaration that it is far more desirable and proper to beat Jonas at the polls.

Embezzlement is big business. It's not as big as bootlegging used to be, and it doesn't rank with the auto and restaurant industries, but it is fairly large. It flourished so much in 1960 that companies writing fidelity insurance for financial institutions were lucky to break even, reports the "National Underwriter."

There were 110 bank embezzlements of $10,000 or more last year, with a total of more than $10 million. Other financial institutions suffered comparable losses, and embezzlements in nonfinancial institutions ranged higher. When pilferage is added, the total business losses may have been in the billion-dollar range last year. And many of the 1960 embezzlements still have not come to light.

The "Report on Credit Unions and In-Plant Banking Services" lists some of the Financial shenanigans in the credit union field. Among the items: "Embezzlement of about $25,000 from the Atlanta Teachers No. 2 Federal credit union was charged to three suspended or ex-teachers. A shortage of about $65,000 has been found in the Chrom Craft employees credit union in St. Louis. The treasurer of the Oak Ridge, Tenn., Hospital Federal credit union was arrested by the FBI and charged with embezzling.

"A former treasurer-manager of the Statter Hotels employees credit union in Detroit was sentenced to five years in prison for embezzling $31,000. A treasurer of a Torrington, Conn., credit union of American Brass Co., was sentenced to two years for making false entries totaling about $40,000.

"Funds of the Victory credit union in Winston-Salem (N.C.) were frozen early this year. The credit union is said to be one of the largest Negro financial enterprises in North Carolina. Assets were supposed to be $650,000. The main trouble was delinquent loans and some 'discrepancies.'

"The treasurer of a Bridgeton, N.J., Coca-Cola bottling plant credit union was charged with embezzling $1,000. He used the money to pay blackmail to some crooks he hired to kill a lodge brother."

There were many other cases. There was no pattern. Embezzlement appears in the giant financial institutions as well as in the small organizations of friends and fellow workers.

There are three precautions: 1. Check carefully the references and the background of people put in charge of money; check them thoroughly; check them all the way back. But even this is not enough; men have lived with impeccable honesty for 60 years and have been tempted in their 61st. So:

2. set up dual controls. Arrange constitutions, incorporations, etc., so that at least two persons bear the responsibility for the disbursement of any funds—including petty cash! Of course, two or even more can conspire to bleed an institution, so:

3. Insure, insure, insure! Insist that every handling funds has a fidelity bond. Make sure the bond provides adequate coverage. Carry insurance that will protect the organization from losses outside of surety bonds. This is so important that if no other appropriation has been made, embezzle enough money to pay for such insurance!

WORLD EATS MORE STEAKS, BURGERS
The world is eating more beef, the Foreign Agricultural Service reports.

Meat packing facilities are being added in Africa, the northern parts of South America and Central America. Outside of North America and Asia, the number of cattle increased. The decline in North America was largely due to the seizure and killing of herds.

The largest grower of cattle, including buffalo, is the United States with 97,139,000 last year. Russia had 75,000,000.

Crime Largely Ignored

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The annual report of J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the FBI, is a sociological review of the United States. This report comes in the form of testimony before the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives. The FBI pays for itself in the dollar value of fines, savings and recoveries and therefore really costs the American people nothing.

As one reads the testimony, the question must arise as to why crimes continue to increase in this country. What is wrong with our people? Is crime due to the shift from rural to urban life? Is it due to lack of parental influence? Is it due to broken homes? For instance, the FBI reports that in 1960 17,430 stolen automobiles were located. This represented $26,500,000. Most automobile thieves are teenagers. What causes a teenager to steal an automobile? Hoover told the congressional committee:

"Preliminary figures for the last calendar year, 1960, reflected a twelve per cent increase in crime over 1959. This is a shocking situation when we realize that the year 1959 registered a record-high volume. Each major crime classification showed an increase in 1960. Auto thefts surged upward 7 per cent, forcible rapes and murders increased 4 per cent.

"While the population increase is one of the factors to be considered in the rising tide of crimes, in reality we can trace our increasing crime rates today primarily to two malignant conditions—public apathy and moral deterioration or decay of our population."

Public apathy is a frightful condition. Recently, sometime after midnight, I heard a woman shriek, "Help!" I looked out of my window and saw a tall, dark man seize the woman's purse. Considering that I live on the eighth floor of a tenement and that I can not run much, I tried to call the police on the telephone but could not reach the operator. It used to be so easy to dial "0," get an operator, say that you want the police and be put right through. But not these days. By the time she arose she was in need.

So I put on a coat and went downstairs, six or seven minutes later. The superintendent of our building had tried to capture the purse-snatcher and failed. The fellow was too fast, but he was finally caught in a subway station and identified. The police, on this occasion, did very good work.

But there were men on the street when the purse-snatching occurred. They minded their own business. The woman screamed. There were plenty of taxi-cabs moving back and forth but none stopped. A driver once told me that to interfere might cost him a day or two of earnings while he sat around being questioned by time-wasting police and then he would have to testify in court. He is no hero. He moves on. Some cab-drivers like to be heroes, but not this one who was talking to me. So the woman might have been mugged.

Near where I live is a beautiful park, which cost the city millions of dollars to create and care for. But the children will not play there and adults are frightened children and who abuse that parks should be occupied by drunks and homosexuals who frighten children and who abuse women. And there are packs of hoodlums who move about the parks, molesting girls, seizing clothes and committing mayhem and in the darker hours rape. Central Park in New York City is one of the most beautiful parks in all the world, but no one enters it after dark, except in a few protected spots.

Does the public complain? Do they make crime a campaign issue? J. Edgar Hoover says of this:

"The rising crime rate is ample evidence of the unfortunate spread of moral deterioration among the growing segments of our population. This condition not only exists within the criminal element itself, but has also corrupted millions of our Nation's citizens who are willing to compromise their ideals if an easy dollar can be made."

Warren Spahn Seven Wins Short Of 300 Victory Level

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Warren Spahn is just seven shy of the charmed 300-victory level today after beating the Los Angeles Dodgers.

When he beat the Dodgers 10-2 at Milwaukee Friday night it was his second decision over Los Angeles this season and the 293rd victory of his 17-year career in the National League. But it also marked the first time in 10 years he has won two in one season with the Dodgers, the only club with a lifetime edge (31-16) over the Braves' superb southpaw.

He has a 643 winning percentage against the other six teams in the league. If he could have replaced that Dodger jinx with something like the success he's had against the other clubs, Spahn's career record against the Dodgers would be 30-17, not 16-31. That would give him 307 victories over-all.

a virtual tie for second place with the Pittsburgh Pirates, who were drubbed 12-2 at St. Louis. San Francisco padded its lead by a full game with a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs in 13 innings. The Philadelphia-Cincinnati game was postponed because of cold.

In the American League, Detroit's lead was shaved to three games when the Los Angeles beat the Tigers 5-4. Washington defeated Minnesota 4-3 in the only other game played. Kansas City-Cleveland, Chicago-New York and Boston-Baltimore were postponed because of rain and cold.

Spahn, now 5-3, nailed his sixth complete game while allowing seven hits, three of them bunt singles. The fifth place Braves backed Spahn with four double plays, also had seven hits, but two were home runs. Frank Thomas hit the 200th of his career, a two-run jolt, and the other was a solo shot by Hank Aaron, who was saved by his plastic helmet when hit by a pitch by loser Stan Williams (3-5).

The Dodgers are .003 behind Pittsburgh on a percentage basis, but because of a difference in games played, they trail San Francisco by only 1 1/2 games while the Pirates are two games back of the Giants.

Ken Boyer, after going 15 games without driving in a run for the Cardinals, hit a pair of homers and collected six RBI against the Bucs. He hit a three-run shot that wrapped it up in the first inning against Bob Friend (5-5), who now has lost five in a row as a starter. The Pirates had 10 hits, just one less than St. Louis, but gave up five unearned runs on six errors. Southpaw Curt Simmons' (2-3) won it, pitching his first complete game on the eighth try.

The Giants scored a pair of unearned runs in the 13th off reliever Don Elston (5-4) for their sixth in a row over the Cubs. Hargy Kuenen drove in a run for a 1-1 tie in the eighth inning, then singled home the lead run. The clincher scored on an error by outfielder Billy Williams. Sam Jones (4-3) was the winner in his first relief job of the season.

NO DAMAGE DONE—Second baseman Johnny Temple, right, of the Cleveland Indians, clutches his throbbing head as he rolls over in short right field at Los Angeles where he and right fielder Willie Kirkland collided while catching Gene Leek's pop fly. Neither was hurt as Kirkland managed to hold onto the ball to retire the Angels with the bases loaded. Cleveland won, 13-5. (AP Wirephoto)

Senators, Angeles May Change Label

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

A couple of pigeons. That's the way the Washington Senators and Los Angeles Angels were pegged when they started the season as the new entries in the expanded American League.

So who are the only two clubs to beat Frank Lary, the right-hander who leads the majors with seven victories for first-place Detroit? Yup, the Senators and the Angels.

The Angels did it Friday night, making the most of three unearned runs and a tie-breaking double by Earl Averill for a 5-4 decision over the Tigers at Los Angeles.

That trimmed Detroit's lead to three games over idle Cleveland and hoisted the Angels out of the cellar, a half-game ahead of the Chicago White Sox.

Washington won the only other game played in the AL, beating the old Senators, now the Minnesota Twins, 4-3. Rain and cold weather knocked out the other games scheduled.

In the National League, San Francisco defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-2 in 13 innings; St. Louis rapped Pittsburgh 12-2 and Milwaukee walloped the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-2 as Warren Spahn won his 293rd. Philadelphia-Cincinnati was postponed because of cold.

The Angels collected nine hits off Lary, who struck out six, and twice came from behind before Ken Hurlburt singled and came home on Averill's double in the eighth. Ryne Duren, relieving starter Ronnie Kline after Rocky Colavito's two-run homer had tied it in the seventh, blanked the Tigers without a hit over the last 2 1/2 innings for his first victory in four decisions. Duren struck out

Al Kaline and Colavito after putting the tying run on base with one out in the ninth.

Norm Cash drove in Detroit's first two runs, with singles in the first and third innings. The Angels scored one in the first, on a triple by Leon Wagner and a single by Ted Kletzowski, and then went ahead with the three unearned runs in the sixth. Klu started the rally with a two-out single. An error by rookie third baseman Steve Boros and a walk followed, then Gene Leek and Rocky Bridges brought in the runs with singles.

The Senators, just a game behind the fifth place Twins, also came from behind twice, handing lefty Jim Kaat (1-4) his fourth straight defeat on a two-run single by Harry Bright in the sixth inning. Washington now is 2-2 against Minnesota and right-handed rookie Joe McClain (5-3) has pitched both victories, getting this one with a seven-hitter.

Lennie Green of the Twins doubled and extended his hitting streak to 23 games, longest in the majors since Ken Boyer hit 29 for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1959.

Tests Today Mark End Of Pre-'500' Events

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—It was carburetion test day on the Indianapolis Speedway today, a final shakedown for the 33 daredevil pilots who will defy death or destruction in the golden anniversary 500-mile auto race Tuesday.

Between 30 minutes and an hour, one of the best collections of sleek, snarling machines ever entered in this classic motor event will swirl around the 2 1/2-mile "brickyard" as anxious crews look for failings.

There never has been a fatal accident in this final warmup for the big Memorial Day race, although in 1941 Sam Hanks, now speedway director of competition, flipped when his engine locked up and his car was knocked out of the race. However, Hanks escaped unharmed.

The preliminaries to this year's 500 have been grim with veteran Tony Bettenhausen, trying for his first triumph in 15 starts, killed in a May 11 practice spin. In all, 11 cars hit the wall since the track opened for practice May 1.

With the track running during the carburetion trial almost under regular race conditions—with perhaps the entire 33-car field roaring at the same time—a lot of attention will be paid Jack Brabham, Australia's world road racing champion, driving his rear engine Cooper-Climax speedster.

Brabham, who qualified for 13th position in the time trials at 145.144 mph, is seeking to become the first foreign winner of the 500 since Dario Resta, the Italian-born Englishman triumphed in 1916.

While Brabham is highly regarded, so is Parnelli Jones, 27, of Torrance, Calif., a clever driver who last year won the tough Midwest sprint circuit title. No rookie has won the 500 since George Souders triumphed in 1927.

Jaycee Tourney Opens Play Today

Approximately fifteen youngsters tee off tomorrow at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, beginning the first round of a 36-hole medal play tournament which could possibly lead to one of the young golfer's participation in a national tournament in Denver, Colorado.

The local competition, The Greenville Jaycee Junior Golf Tournament, will begin this afternoon. Eighteen holes will be played, and the final eighteen holes will be played tomorrow.

The four low scorers in the local tournament will travel to Lumberton, N. C., June 26-28 to play in the state Jaycee Junior Golf Tournament which will be held in that city. The four low scorers in the state tourney will then head for Denver, Colorado, to participate in the National Jaycee Junior Golf Tournament, which will be held July 20-26.

This year's local tourney will have two returnees from last year's Greenville team which participated in the state tournament held in Morganton, N. C. Bobby Thomas and Wally Howard, the two, will again be in contention for the local honors, while the other two Greenville representatives, Chappy Bradner and Dallas Clark, will be ineligible due to age.

Thomas, son of Harold Thomas, Greenville professional, was fifth in last year's state tournament, and was first alternate for the trip to Waterloo, Iowa, where the national tournament was held.

The Greenville tournament is open to all boys who have not reached their 18th birthday prior to August 15. The medalist at the conclusion of the action on Sunday, will receive a trophy from the Pepsi-Cola Co. The nationwide Jaycee Junior competition is co-sponsored by Pepsi-Cola Co.

Palmer Leads Field In '500 Festival' Competition

By DALE BURGESS
Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Arnold Palmer, cut off after three rounds of the first "500 Festival" Open Golf Tournament last year, today was in little danger of that humiliated-millennium in the renewed $50,000 event.

He led the field with 67-70-137, 5 under par, midway in the frost-bitten tourney over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway course, half of it inside the big track.

The U.S. Open champion stood 141 at the same point last year and shot an eliminating 73 in the third round.

After Friday's round 141s were good for a 9th place tie.

Gary Player of South Africa, leading money winner on the U.S. pro circuit, wore four sweaters while shooting his second straight 1-under-par 70. He was 3 strokes off Palmer's pace.

Player and Palmer made a joint statement after they came off the course, saying they couldn't afford the 6-month probation the PGA had promised them if they played in the Canada Cup matches in Puerto Rico June 14. So they wouldn't play there. But they also said they would not play on the same dates in the Memphis Open, whose sponsors could have released them from the PGA commitment.

Doug Ford, winner of the first Speedway tourney last year with a 14-under par performance, trailed Palmer by a single stroke today after shooting a pair of 69s.

Another stroke back with 139s were Peter Thomson of Australia, Mason Rudolph and Johnny Pott.

Terps Lead In ACC Selections

RALEIGH (AP)—Maryland, the Atlantic Coast Conference's sixth-place team, led the league's other members by placing three men on the All-ACC baseball team. Champion Duke placed only one man.

The 11-man team (including two pitchers and a utility infielder) was chosen by ACC players for the Atlantic Coast Conference Sports Writers Association. The players were not permitted to vote for teammates.

North Carolina, Wake Forest and N.C. State placed two men each on the team, announced Friday, and Virginia placed one.

The first team:

Don Brown, Maryland, first base; Bill Timberlake, Virginia, second base; Lynn Fader, Duke, shortstop; Ferg Norton, North Carolina, third base; Vern Strickland, N.C. State, utility infielder; Jim Mooring, North Carolina, outfield; Tom Brown, Maryland, outfield; Jay Franklin, Wake Forest, outfield; Phil Rogers, Maryland, catcher; Joe Gibson, N.C. State, pitcher; Bob Plemons, Wake Forest, pitcher.

Meetings In Possible Finale

NEW YORK (AP)—Paolo Rost takes on lightweight contender Len Matthews tonight in what could be his last stand before a national audience.

The 33-year-old Italian-born New Yorker is a 12-5 underdog to the 22-year-old Philadelphia for their 10-round television (ABC TV, 9 p. m., EST) fight at Madison Square Garden.

This is a must-win-or-else scrap for Rost, no longer ranked among the top 10 contenders.

In more than 10 years as a pro he has had only 43 fights for a 34-7-2 won-lost-draw record, including 14 knockouts.

Matthews, a pro only 3 1/2 years, has a 31-5-2 record, including 19 knockouts. Lenny is ranked fourth by Ring and fifth by the NBA. Scoring will be by the rounds system.

Longden Seeks Fourth Track Win

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Veteran jockey Johnny Longden would feel perfectly at home in the winner's circle at Hollywood Park today if he won the $100,000 added California.

This was the seventh running of the California and 54-year-old Longden has been aboard the winner three times.

Today Longden had the ride on the C. R. Mac Stable's T.V. Lark, the probable favorite.

Chief threat to the Longden-T.V. Lark duo appeared to be Rex C. Ellsworth's Prove It, with skilled Willie Shoemaker in the saddle.

Major League Stars

Pitching—Ryne Duren, Angels, beat first place Tigers 5-4 with 2 1-3 innings of hitless relief, fanning Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito for final outs after putting tying run on base with a walk.

Hitting—Ken Boyer, Cardinals, walloped two home runs and a single for 6 RBI in 12-2 romp over Pirates.

Score In Minors, Hopes To Return

NEW YORK (AP)—Herb Score, once a million-dollar pitching ace, is back in the minors today, hopeful he can shake the wildness that has been a monkey on his back since he was all but knocked out of baseball four years ago.

The Chicago White Sox, stumbling along at the bottom of the American League, optioned the 27-year-old left-hander to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League Friday night.

"We had a long talk with Herb," said Manager Al Lopez, "and we told him we thought this would be the best thing for him. We feel he has to be somewhere where he can pitch every fourth day, somewhere where if he gets into trouble, he can stay in and pitch himself out of it.

"We couldn't afford to let him do that up here."

If Score has had one "beef" in the past couple of seasons it has been over the excuses sportswriters have made for him. "I appreciate what they're trying to do for me," he has said, "but I want no alibis. I don't deserve them. I'm just not pitching the way I used to."

The "alibis," as Score chose to call them, concerned, of course, his injury in 1957—when he was pitching for Cleveland and was struck in the eye by a line drive by Gil McDougald of the Yankees. There was, at first, serious concern over whether he could retain sight in the eye, much less return to the mound.

Juniors Inducted By Honor Society

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON

Dennis Eagan, Elbert Felton, Shirley Harrell, Tracie Hooper, John Lansche, Dalton Owens, Phillip Savage and Theresa Wilson—all Rose High juniors—were inducted into membership in the Haskett chapter of the National Honor Society at semi-annual induction ceremonies Monday.

Ben White, president of the club, welcomed the students to the assembly and explained the purpose of the society. Betsy Bryant gave the devotional.

Danny Smith introduced the speaker for the morning, the Reverend Richard Gammon, minister from the First Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Gammon's talk concerned the four principles of society membership—character, scholarship, leadership, and service. The main point which he made was that all of the other three traits are useless in a person, even dangerous, if he does not possess character.

As an example, Mr. Gammon cited one of the atomic scientists who had developed his mind to a high level of scholarship, but who showed his lack of character by betraying the secrets of his country to the enemy.

Reputation, as Mr. Gammon explained it, is what people think someone is while character is actually what a person is deep inside when he is alone.

After the short message, Sara Collier Webb, secretary, distributed the sealed envelopes containing the names of the eight juniors to be inducted. The four seniors who were inducted at the first induction this year as well as four of the other seniors chosen at random tapped the eight new members.

Each new member received the club rosette of purple and yellow with the NHS pin as the center. Holding lighted candles given them by the old members, the inductees recited as a group the NHS pledge. Afterwards, new members signed the adviser's book of club members.

Members of the faculty and the new members of the society were honored at a picnic that night by the old NHS members.

After a traditional picnic supper in the cafeteria, Bill Wade, vice-president, on the behalf of the society, presented a token of thanks to the adviser for the Haskett chapter of the National Honor Society, Miss Frances Ringgold Smith.

Newspaper Staff

Esther Johnson and Jimmy Estman will work as co-editors of "The Green Lights" next year. Esther has served this year as a reporter while Jimmy worked as associate editor this year and a feature writer last.

Jake Gaskins and Sherry Everett have been selected to work as associate editors. In this position, they will actually work with the editors in the direct responsibility for the paper.

Jimmy Jenkins will edit the entire sports section next year. His duties this year were confined largely to one of the two-page section.

Mrs. Lucy M. Worsley, adviser, has announced that other staff members will be chosen from among the students who have signed up for journalism next year.

Those members of the paper staff who graduate this year include Ruth Clark, associate editor; Betsy Bryant, news editor; John Behr, art editor; Melinda Coleman, advertising manager;

Annette Stokes typist; and Craig Worthington, editor-in-chief.

Gigi Guice, rising senior, has been elected by the varsity cheerleaders to serve as head next year.

The group chose Ross Clark as assistant head, Barbara Minges as treasurer, and Linda Davenport as secretary.

The Junior Varsity squad chose Nancy Harrington as its chief for next year.

Commencement

Commencement activities will begin Sunday night as 136 seniors enter the gymnasium to the professional "God of Our Fathers" for the Commencement Sermon.

The Reverend W. J. Hadden, Jr., minister from the Eighth Street Christian Church, will deliver the sermon. The Rev. Mr. Hadden will be introduced at this 8:00 ceremony by class president Bill Wade.

Ben White, vice-president, will give the invocation. Mr. Hadden will pronounce the benediction.

During the course of the evening, the congregation will sing "Fairest Lord Jesus" and the glee club will render "Hear Our Prayer O Lord," "Psalm 150," "Prayer" and "Benediction."

Lane Ferris, Robert Hardee, Peter Hunt, Ed Peaden, and Bernard Willis will sing the spiritual "Ride the Chariot."

Awards Night will feature more than 40 awards to be presented by Junius H. Rose, superintendent of the city schools. Marie Gibbs and Craig Worthington have been selected as student speakers.

In addition to scholarships, awards, and cups, the evening will include the presentation of SCA officers, senior class officers, and editors of "The Green Lights."

Special music will include "It's a Grand Night for Singing" and "While We're Young" by the glee club, two numbers by the dance band, "The Music of Life" (Pat Carter, Anna White, and Martha Henderson) and a clarinet solo, "Meditation from 'Thais' by Massenet, (Jan Coward, acc. by Jake Gaskins).

Dr. E. B. Ayeock and Orren E. Dowd will present diplomas at the final exercises Wednesday night. Mr. Rose will also speak.

Bill Wade will give the invocation. Special music for this evening will include numbers by the band, which also plays the professional: "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "Send Forth Thy Spirit" (glee club with alumni joining in on the later); and "Madame Jeannette" by the octette—Janice Hardee, Janice Waters, Myrtle Bilbro, Donna Gammon, Jimmy Dail, Kenneth Wilson, Henry Hoell, and Bernard Willis.

In addition to these special ceremonies, the seniors will present an assembly program "That Wonderful Year" on Senior Day, next Tuesday. Ruth Lark and Melinda Coleman are directing plans for this program.

4-H Club Camp To Open May 31

The annual 4-H Club camp will begin for Pitt County club members on Wednesday, May 31, it was announced today.

Library Reading Club Registration Is Set

Registration for the Tom Sawyer Reading Club, which is the summer reading program for children at Sheppard Memorial Library, will begin Monday, Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian, announced today.

Registration will continue for three weeks, closing on June 17. The reading club will last for two months.

Last year, some 400 children registered for the program and many of them received certificates at the end of the club for reading the required number of books.

The Tom Sawyer Reading Club is carried out for children who have been promoted to the second grade up through those promoted to the seventh grade, and consequently embraces six grades.

The purpose of the club is for reading improvement, Miss Copeland explained. The children are required to read a variety of books, each child reading on his own level. Books they take out for credit on the club are checked by the librarians to see that children are varying their programs and not reading books that are too easy.

Children are encouraged to read all they want, but must comply with requirements in order to receive the certificate at the end of the book club, which is the latter part of July.

No written or oral reports are asked. Each child is given a record book in which he includes the title of each book he reads. His parents signify that he read each book by signing the record report.

Children who read 15 books in the two-month period receive a reading certificate. Those who read more receive a gold seal on their certificates to show that they exceeded the requirements.

In connection with the Tom Sawyer Reading Club, the library has a display of Tom Sawyer with his girl friend in the children's section of the library. Tom Sawyer is painting a fence, which is now unpainted. As each child completes the first five books for the reading club, his name is placed on a white strip on the fence. Thus, the children are helping Tom to paint his fence white.

This summer reading program has been carried out at Sheppard Memorial Library for several years and has been successful every year.

Those interested may inquire or register at the library.

Truce Violations Charged To Reds

GENEVA (AP)—The United States charged today the Communist-led Pathet Lao rebels are engaging in a systematic violation of the cease-fire in Laos.

A statement issued by the American delegation to the 14-nation conference on Laos here said there had been "at least 30 breaches" of the cease-fire by Pathet Lao forces between May 13 and Friday.

"Some of the violations were isolated incidents, but many reflect a pattern of premeditation," the statement added.

The American charges raised grave questions about the future of the international conference.

The United States entered the negotiations here only after the Indian-Canadian-Polish International Control Commission certified on May 11 that a cease-fire prevailed in Laos.

Britain wants new instructions to the control commission so that it can police the truce more effectively.

The American statement handed to newsmen, contained a list of dates and places of alleged cease-fire violations.

It maintained the pro-Communist rebel forces in Laos are attempting to improve their positions "in cynical disregard of the cease-fire agreement."

Streams Carry Large Role In Early Local History

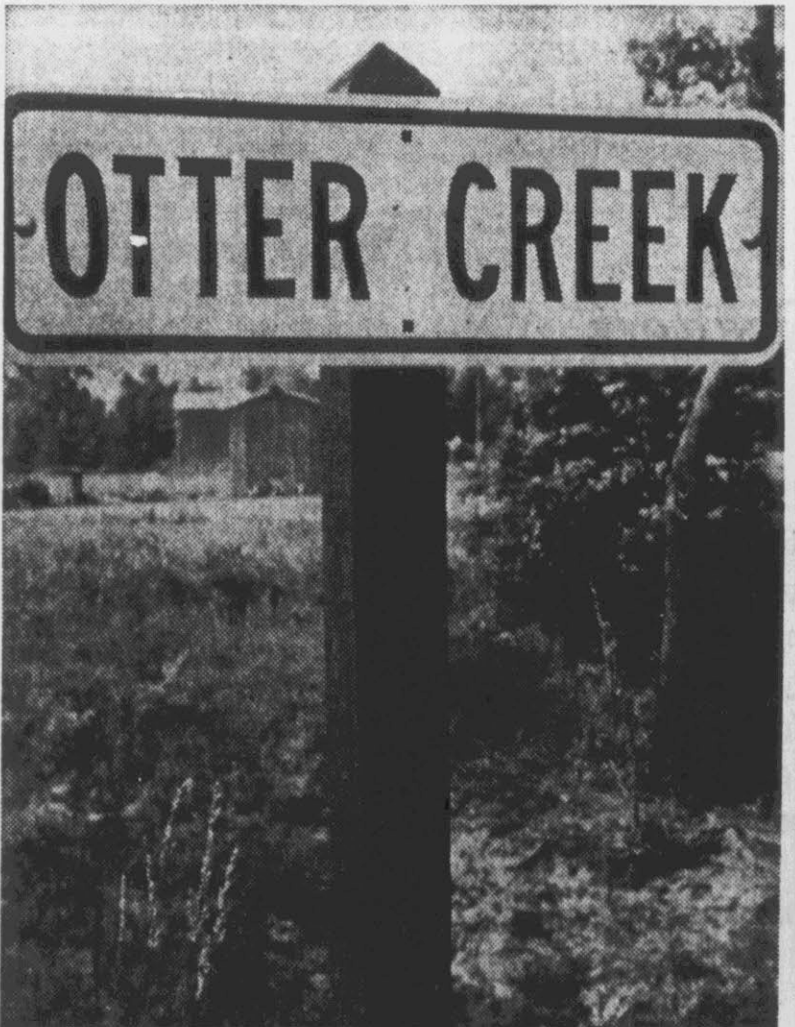

TRANTERS CREEK AND BRIDGE . . . forms the Pitt-Beaufort County line on N. C. 30. The creek, noted for its fishing, forms over six miles of Pitt boundary line with Martin County, then serves as the Pitt-Beaufort line for over 12 miles (as the crow flies) until it empties into the Tar River.

LOOKING UNDER . . . the Grindle Creek bridge on N. C. 30 at Pactolus, one views a section of the 30-mile long, $300,000 project designed to change the once "little crooked liquid finger, catching the rains" into a 70-foot-wide drainage and flood control canal which will serve one seventh of Pitt County's land area.

THIS SIGN . . . marks the spot where Tyson's Creek and Lawrence Run flow under N. C. 43 near Falkland, on their way to the Tar River.

KITTEN CREEK . . . has been "lost to the world" as far as motorists north of Falkland on N. C. 43 go, for only the name "Otter Creek" appears on the bridge sign just below the junction of the two.

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

When the lands in the county were being settled back in the 1700's, the most sought after places were those areas that were on the banks of a stream or river. These water roads were, in most cases, the only way for the settlers to get their products of farm and woodland to the larger places where they could be shipped to other parts of the colonies or overseas.

They comb the countryside, these little crooked liquid fingers, catching the rains and run off from the land. Today, in most cases, they are overgrown with vegetation and made shallow by the washing in of soils—almost in the same condition that they were found when white men first came to these parts. However, some are being dredged out so that the land will drain and crops have a better chance to grow.

Back in 1745 an act provided for the commissioners to "make mend and repair all bridges, roads and water courses." So it can be assumed that streams such as Tranters' Creek, Tyson's Creek, Conetoe Creek, Grindle Creek and others that in some manner reach the Tar were cleaned out and cleared so boats could reach the river. And the flat boats made their way down river to Bath, carrying with them the products loaded at small stopping places.

The story of the county is told by peoples and events that happened along the small runs, and creeks—stories of violence and tragedy, stories of war, want and revenge.

John and Sibbey Tyson lived up on Little Contentnea Creek, a few miles from where Farmville stands. They had two slaves named Rose and Shade. It seems that their mistress was cruel and Rose and Shad murdered her. Shade was taken South and sold for his part in the crime. As for Rose, she was brought to Martinsborough (Greenville) and burnt at the stake.

For years, the small streams played an important part as transportation routes. But as roads improved and other means of hauling things came into being, they slipped more and more into the background.

Things Happen On Banks

Now and then, they come to the public notice by something that happened on their banks or nearby. The fact that Charles Harris was baptised in Swift Creek. This transplanted Englishman, who came here in 1760, fought in three wars for his adopted land. He never gave out the reasons for his unusual span of years but he must have had one. For each of his nine children lived long, "none dying earlier than 86 years."

On Jan. 5th, 1862 Col. Singletary was killed in a skirmish on Tranters' Creek. In 1863 there were skirmishes up near Tyson's and Otter's Creek. While no great battles were fought in Pitt County, little hard clashes occurred here and there and the men who were killed died as bravely as those that fell at Cold Harbor, Gettysburg or in the Bloody Angle at Spotsylvania Courthouse.

The war ended and the men came back to their homes. But over near Grindle Creek, the war never ended for Riddick Carney. His oldest son was killed during the war and he hated the Yankees. He was charged with defying Federal authority. The Federals sent a squad of men under the command of a lieutenant to arrest him. The Federal officer was wounded and died later at Pactolus. The end came for Riddick Carney and his son George one Saturday night. Militiamen surrounded the house and in the fight that followed both of the Carneys died. Their home was burnt to the ground.

In peace and in war, in good times and in bad, the small streams follow their way—never mindful of happenings and yet always a part of what happens to the land and to the people that live on the land.

And men have called them by names that sometimes have a touch of nostalgia—sometimes a touch of music, and sometimes everyday names of everyday people.

Creeks Join

Otter and Kitten Creek join together and flow into the Tar up a short way north of Falkland. Tyson's Creek and Lawrence Run merge to flow under route 43, down through the tall trees where the honeysuckle hangs.

Fork Swamp, Creeping Swamp, Clayroot Swamp and East Branch work over low grounds, pulling in to their paths the waters of the wood-land and run off from the plowed fields.

Indian Wells Swamp flows into Clayroot Swamp and combined they twist and turn down toward the county line.

Chicod Creek picks up Cow Swamp and then flows in a snake like course, picking up Juniper's Branch some short distance from the Norfolk and Southern tracks and goes on under 264 out to the Tar.

The Grindle Pocosin is drained by Great Swamp, Johnson Mill Run and other little streams.

Waters from Black Swamp,

Little Contentnea Creek and Pinehog Branch end up across the county line in the Neuse. Contoe, Harris Creek, Cannon Swamp and Greep Mill Run lose themselves in the Tar River.

"Out to Pasture"

So it seems that creeks and runs have been "put out to pasture." In most cases returning to the condition they were in the years ago—left to wander through the countryside and in the deep cool woods—left to flow through fields of tobacco, cotton and corn—left to slip around the knees of the cypress tree and push through the grasses that take root in their shallow paths.

They have become drinking places for cattle, a part of the hunters run, and a testing place for the fisherman. These little streams—home of the bass and bream, choir place of the bullfrog—gone back to their intended chores of draining the land, catching the rains and melted snow and carrying them down to the river.

Millions In Japan Still Follow Creed Of Shinto

By KENNETH ISHII

TOKYO (AP)—Not so long ago, "Shinto" conjured up visions of millions of Japanese worshipping the emperor, then the symbol of the might of militarist Japan.

Today, Shinto is no longer an instrument of the state, but millions still accept it—a mixture of ancient ritual and belief that has survived the centuries.

Officials say there are six million households today that accept Japan's indigenous religion, and who contribute $560,000 a year to shrine coffers.

But Shinto is not a religion in the strict sense of the term. Shinto means "the way of the gods." It has no organized teaching, no dogmas, no images or idols. Practically, it is the worship of anything mysterious, superior to anything that inspires awe. Such things are considered "kami," or deities.

Thus, the ancients worshipped important ancestors, a custom the militarists seized on to propagate the emperor's "divinity" and rally national unity.

There also are deities of food, wind, fertility, storms, good fortune, and so on.

At the apex of them all stands the goddess Amaterasu, the mythical ancestress of the Japanese nation whose spirit is enshrined at the grand shrine at Ise—the mecca of Shintoism.

Shinto mythology has it that Amaterasu (the heavenly shining goddess) was one of the many offspring of god Izanagi and goddess Izanami who created the world. Amaterasu ruled the realm of light, and Takehaya-Susanowo (valiant - swift-impetuous-hero), another offspring, ruled the nether regions.

Few if any Japanese take this legend seriously any more, or the myth the militarists fostered that the emperor was a direct descendant of Amaterasu.

But the hold of tradition still is strong and hundreds of thousands of Japanese every year make the pilgrimage to Ise.

Shinto officials explain this is because of Shintoism's emphasis on purity and cleanliness. The shrines were last rebuilt—for the 59th time—in 1953 at a cost of $1,667,000.

TRANTERS CREEK . . . is Washington's "life's blood" or at least the city's "life water" for the city gets about 60 per cent of its supply from the creek at the county line, eight miles away.

IF CREEKS COULD TALK . . . they, most probably, could reflect many interesting happenings and much history which has taken place on their banks, just as this creek reflects the trees and foliage growing there.

7,000 Candidates For Peace Corps Take Test

By LOUIS G. PANOS
WASHINGTON (AP)—The "silence, please" signs went up today in 350 test centers across the nation as some 7,000 candidates buckled down to the first written examination for the Peace Corps.

From these will be picked the initial trainees for the dramatic U. S. program to lend underdeveloped nations the human talents and skills of this country.

Candidates began filing into the centers, post offices, courthouses and other federal buildings—at 8:30 a. m. local time. With a break for lunch, they were due to finish about 3 p. m.

Regular civil service examiners are conducting the tests under the usual stiff ground rules.

The test was prepared under contract by two non-profit agencies specializing in such work. It is designed to give an idea of the candidates' background and aptitude in English, mechanical skills, health sciences, U. S. history and institutions, and farming.

Two sections of the examination also deal with biographical data and leadership experience.

Peace Corps officials think nearly 1,000 volunteers will be overseas or in training on college campuses by the end of the year.

Nearly 400 already have been contracted for 300 as education aides to help the Philippines improve instruction in general science and the English language. The others will go to Tanganyika as engineers and geologists on a road construction project and to Colombia for a farm and community development program.

More volunteers are sought for Ghana, Nigeria, India, Pakistan, Burma, Malaya and Thailand.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

Several weeks ago, there was a word of praise here for the "Rebel," ECC literary magazine.

Now, a word more, particularly about Dr. Robert Williams' article called "No Time for Generals, GSA."

This is a collection of excerpts from letters written home by Confederate private Isaac Affleck. As Dr. Williams points out in his perceptive comments, the remnants, the not that Affleck remained a private throughout the War, but that he continued one even in post-war days when honorary promotions to colonel or at least to major were as frequent throughout Dixie as mint juleps.

Howdy, General

Behind this absence of titles lay, perhaps, Private Affleck's amazing self-esteem. On Sept. 18, 1864, he writes his mother: "I don't think I shall show myself at Hd. Qrs. again for some time at least. I went up the other day to mail my letter, but I got very few of the Staff to take any notice of me, and when I spoke to Gen. Wharton he only recognized me with a nod. What it meant I don't know nor care; I would not speak first to any of them except two or three, to save them."

A month later, Private Affleck was again able to demonstrate his spirit of independence by flatly refusing to obey an order which was distasteful to him: "This morning I was detailed to chop wood and burn coal something I had never done in my life before, and I told the Captain that I could not do it, but was willing to allow Alex (his body servant) to do so and chop in my place; he saw I was determined, and he told me to send Alex there."

Earned Income

In the recent issue of the "American Scholar," Joseph Wood Krutch, the writer and retired Columbia professor, reports his shock upon being informed by the government that he and his wife stood to draw one hundred and eighty dollars per month if he would stop writing and cease realizing "earned income."

This leads Krutch into a rather melancholy meditation on our problem of overproduction and the advantages which accrue to society from workers' retiring. He doubts, however, that there is actually any overproduction in the field of letters. Qualitatively, certainly, he is right.

And Surplus

Another old-timer who has recently turned his talents to an exploration of the dilemma of overproduction is David Low, the great British cartoonist. He has a series of drawings on the subject in his latest book, "The Fearful Fifties." One of them is labelled "Pressure of production: compulsory exports for the backward people," and it

Among many other new works there is James Mitchener's "Report of the County Chairman," an account of the author's experience as Democratic leader last fall in one of the tightest Republican strongholds in the country, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. Mitchener's man lost there, but the story of how it happened makes good reading. For example, Mitchener thinks that the strong anti-Catholic sentiment which was voiced in Bucks County cost JFK nine thousand votes locally but gained him fifty thousand in nearby Philadelphia.

Etc.

More on the new books next week. Meanwhile, an odd odd-end or so. There is a notice in Richmond Park, London, which says: "Dogs May Not Chase Deer." A new primer boasts that it introduces 243 new words. Included are "oo-oo-oo," "blub-blub-blub," "b-r-r," and "plumply - plump." And the dumbest title of the year may be that of a book on music entitled "Alice in Orchestra."

This is a frightful indictment of our civilization. Essentially it means that morality and decency are not being impressed upon young people as vividly as vice, immorality, the fast buck are impressed upon them. The movies and television show, in the end, that crime does not pay, but it is amusing and exciting before the punishment comes. That can have something to do with what is wrong.

UILD IN VICTORVILLE, Calif. (AP)—Most Air Force maintenance men are trying to get rid of squeaks, but Sgt. Charles E. Cloney and Airman Thomas Salski invented one to keep George Air Force Base pilots happy.

The base has a Link trainer in which pilots go through all the motions and most of the experiences of flying without ever leaving the ground. Used to keep fliers proficient in use of instruments, the trainer simulates airplane motion, engine noise and other flight sensations.

But pilots complained that "landings" in the trainer lacked realism because there was no squeak as tires supposedly made initial friction contact with the runway. Cloney and Salski fixed that by constructing an electronic gadget that's connected to the trainer's electrical system to give a realistic squeak at the appropriate moment.

Newspaper Advertising Readers Are Ready To Buy!

Newspaper readers are attracted to your advertising because it interests them. They are more apt to be live, "ready-to-buy" prospects than is the case with readers and viewers of other advertising media.

Live prospects are easier to sell. They actually shop the newspaper ads—they want to be sold, and are looking for information to help make a buying decision. Take housewives, for example—research* proves that 75% of them check the ads in the daily newspaper before making their main shopping trips of the week.

It's that kind of readiness on the part of newspaper readers that can mean ready sales for you!

FLOODLIGHT CHECK STATION—A North Carolina Highway Patrol Floodlight Check Station, similar to this one near Farmville last weekend, will be in operation in Pitt County over this weekend, according to Highway Patrol officials. Officers who manned the check point between Farmville and Joyner's Crossroads last Saturday night corrected 15 defective lights and made several arrests for other defective equipment. The check point is lighted with a portable generator and floodlights, for the safety of the officers working in the area.

cast out that philosophy by saying:

The revolutions of the backward peoples in search of a fuller life is one "which we would support regardless of the cold war, and regardless of which political or economic route they choose to freedom."

Since he considers communism the negation of freedom, it can be assumed he meant a country choosing communism would be excluded from his wide-ranging promise of help.

But he left the door open for American aid to a variety of social and political systems: democratic, socialist, capitalistic, or even strong-man governments.

He added: "Too often we have let ourselves appear as friends of the status quo — and the status quo may be $50 a year."

But what is he going to do so that America will no longer be the friend of such a status quo?

For instance: Will he insist the rich in a Latin-American country getting U.S. aid must divest themselves of enormous land holdings so more of the poor people can own their own land? He didn't say.

This new program of Kennedy's — if he tries to make it a reality in the years ahead — will have to take many forms and need a lot of explaining. He didn't explain it in his talk to Congress.

He added: "Too often we have let ourselves appear as friends of the status quo — and the status quo may be $50 a year."

But what is he going to do so that America will no longer be the friend of such a status quo?
