This graduating class. It was announced last night that Philip Coleman has been awarded two scholarships to the University of North Carolina, one for $250 and the other, a sort of blanket scholarship with a ceiling. The announcement did not come in time for the awards night program.

Recognition was accorded Miss Estelle Greene, retiring from the faculty of Rose High School this year; Miss Frances Wahl, retiring as principal of Wahl-Coates Training School this year; and to Mrs. Elizabeth Mims, taking a year's leave of absence.

Cannon Is Again Voted President Tobacco Board

W. T. Cannon was re-elected president of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade yesterday and B. B. Sugg, Sr. was re-elected vice president.

The tobacco officials discussed plans for operation of the Greenville tobacco market during the coming year. It was pointed out that the market showed a 30 gain in 1960 over 1959.

W. T. CANNON . . . re-elected ard, Jr., president of Greenville Tobacco Co., reviewed market conditions for the cured tobacco in foreign markets. Both emphasized that in order to hold the export trade growers must continue to produce high quality tobacco such as has traditionally been produced in order to compete with foreign grown tobaccos.

Venezuela Says Plot 'Crushed'

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Romulo Betancourt's government today hunted fugitive leaders of a rebel band it said planned an uprising backed by an old enemy—slain Dominican Dictator Rafael Leonidas Trujillo.

The government said the revolutionists were armed by Trujillo, who Betancourt charged tried to have him assassinated in June 1960. The Venezuelan leader escaped but was badly wounded.

Kennedy Tells NATO To Look At Rest Of Globe

PARIS (AP) — President Kennedy urged members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today to concern themselves "with the whole southern half of the globe, where we and our freedoms are now in peril."

The President, addressing a special session of the NATO council, cautioned there should be no less attention to the protection of the North Atlantic area. He had just come to agreement with France's President Charles de Gaulle on a tough Western posture to the Communists on the issue of threatened West Berlin.

But the President, advising a broadened NATO outlook, added that "the other side of the table," referring to the Communist bloc, has been making advances in the southern half of the globe, including Asia, Latin America and Africa.

Earlier, Kennedy and De Gaulle began their second day of talks on world issues, agreed that the West must stand firm in Berlin but still divided on France's demand for an equal voice with Britain and the United States in the direction of Allied policy.

Kennedy arrived at the Elysee Palace shortly after 10 a.m. for the first of two extended conversations today with the French president. De Gaulle was on the steps of the palace, waiting to greet his American guest.

En route to his morning conference with De Gaulle, Kennedy stopped at the U.S. Embassy and told 500 cheering employes he plans to "take every measure to strengthen common ties" between France and the United States.

From his morning session with De Gaulle, Kennedy went to the Hotel de Ville—Paris' City Hall—for the capital's official, ceremonial welcome.

A huge, enthusiastic crowd awaited him. A great cheer went up from the crowd outside as Kennedy arrived and a band struck up flourishes. A mounted contingent of Republican Guards in red-plumed, golden helmets brought their glittering sabers to salute as Kennedy entered the ornate main salon. It was packed with invited spectators.

Interior Minister Roger Frey escorted Kennedy down a reception line. The President, smiling and looking fit despite his long round of activities, shook hands cordially with city officials and guests.

Mrs. Kennedy entered the salon a few minutes later and the spectators burst into spontaneous applause.

Trim in a tailored gray suit with a pearl necklace and two diamond brooches on her lapel, she bowed smilingly to her admirers.

The President was greeted by the mayor of Paris, Argentine-born Julien Tardieu, and, after the playing of national anthems, seated himself in a gilded chair. Behind the President, on a huge, draped American flag was an immense seal of the U.S. presidency.

Responding to the mayor's speech of welcome, Kennedy thanked Paris for its hospitality to himself and Mrs. Kennedy and told the audience the "interests and policies of France and the United States" are directed toward supporting the widespread desire for freedom and liberty in the world today.

"Our two countries," Kennedy said, "share ideals of liberty, equality and fraternity, which are in accord with the basic aspirations of people around the world. The desire for freedom and liberty is the strongest tide in the affairs of the world in the 20th century, and the interests and policies of France and the United States are directed to that goal."

Some said the plan could result in election of 3 or 4 Republican congressmen and a Republican governor.

One of these was T. C. Hoyle of Greensboro. He said redistricting planned with the idea of "getting Jonas" would tend to drive independents away from the Democratic party.

"If Jonas beats Kitchin, you have made a king out of Jonas, and if Kitchin beats Jonas, then you've made a king out of Jonas, and either one would be bad," Hoyle declared.

Bryce Holt, also of Greensboro, declared that "if the idea is to beat Jonas, beat him at the polls, but don't beat him by gerrymandering."

Hoyle asserted that the Jonas-Kitchin redistricting plan could result in the election of 3 or 4 Republican congressmen and possibly a Republican governor.

The committee agreed to hold another public hearing next Tuesday morning. Chairman Ed Kemp of Guilford said he had requests from people in 14 counties, some just received, to be heard.

Seek Test Case For N.C. Pupil Assignment Law

RALEIGH (AP) — Attorneys for 66 Raleigh Negroes have asked a federal court test case that North Carolina's pupil assignment act be declared invalid and unconstitutional.

The suit, filed Wednesday against the Raleigh Board of Education, charged the pupil assignment law uses race as its "controlling standard." It asked the court to issue a permanent injunction against the enforcement and operation of the statute.

The plaintiffs include Ralph Campbell, president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; and Dr. Grady D. Davis, a member of the Shaw University religion faculty.

The suit accused the Board of Education of purposely assigning children to schools in accordance with a policy "of maintaining a racially segregated school system and a racially segregated pattern of public school education."

There was no confirmation of the report from American sources and Preston Grover, chief of the AP bureau in Moscow, said neither Thompson nor other embassy officials had given newsmen there a hint of any such conversation.

France and the United States. "This country is extremely vital to the common cause," the President said, adding that Frenchmen have a special voice and special prestige.

The agreement on Berlin strengthens the policy basis for Kennedy's exploratory talks with Soviet Premier Khrushchev this weekend in Vienna, Austria. The French indicated they were confident Kennedy would take a firm, no-compromise line.

From his morning session with De Gaulle, Kennedy went to the Hotel de Ville—Paris' City Hall—for the capital's official, ceremonial welcome.

A huge, enthusiastic crowd awaited him. A great cheer went up from the crowd outside as Kennedy arrived and a band struck up flourishes. Iran Landowners Told Must Share

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's new reform government plans to let the country's big landowners each keep only 864.5 acres of irrigated land or 1,729 acres of dry land.

Agriculture Minister Hassan Arsanjani said the landowners will be forced to sell the rest of their holdings for treasury bonds. The land will be distributed among the country's 1.6 million peasants.

Land redistribution is one of Iran's gravest economic needs. The big landholders have refused to follow the example of the shah, who has been parceling out royal estates to tenant farmers who have been kept in dire poverty by having to give most of their crops to landlords.

In Tehran, about 200 soldiers and policemen occupied the telegraph office early today and forced out 300 operators on strike for higher pay. The strikers had ignored an order from Premier Ali Amiri to return to work while he studied their demands.

The strikers charged the occupying soldiers and police wounded several with bayonets and clubs and arrested between 30 and 40. A government spokesman denied that weapons had been used or that anyone had been hurt.

The strikers had occupied the main telegraph office since they quit work Tuesday.

Britain Names New Ambassador

LONDON (AP)—David Ormsby-Gore, No. 2 man in the British Foreign Office and frequent envoy to the Geneva nuclear test ban talks, is Britain's new ambassador to the United States.

An announcement Wednesday night said he takes over the Washington assignment in October from Ambassador Sir Harold Caccia, who will become the Foreign Office permanent undersecretary of state, its highest non-political office.

Soviet Photos Are Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP)—A top U.S. space official says "every one" who has looked at Soviet Russia's photographs of the back side of the moon believes they are composites of many pictures.

"No one is quite sure as to how much touching up has been done," said Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, deputy director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Trujillo's Heirs Retaining Control

By HORST BUCHHOLZ

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP)—Strongman Rafael Leonidas Trujillo's political heirs appeared today to be still in control of the Dominican Republic after the assassination of the dictator. But a power struggle was generally expected.

The dictator's hand-picked government proclaimed "the continuity" of his policies and declared nine days of mourning for the generalissimo who ruled the eastern half of the island of Hispaniola with a tyrannical hand for 31 years.

Lt. Gen. Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Jr., the Dictator's playboy elder son and some believe his father's choice to succeed him, rushed from Paris by special plane.

A dispatch from Ciudad Trujillo said high government officials were among the crowd that greeted the plane Wednesday night. With him were his younger brother, Rhadames, and the Dominican ambassador to France, Porfirio Rubirosa.

A communique announcing the assassination was signed by President Joaquin Balaguer, whom Trujillo installed as a figurehead president last August when the dictator's brother Hector resigned.

The communique extolled the generalissimo, who was 69, and said he had been the victim of a "treacherous attack" Tuesday night, more than 19 hours before the assassination was announced. But it gave no details of the killing and no clue to the identity of the assassins.

The Dominican armed forces, which are investigating the murder of the 69-year-old strong man, gave this story:

A group that had planned the assassination three months ago attacked as Trujillo and his personal driver, Capt. Zaccarias de la Cruz, were motoring from Ciudad Trujillo to the dictator's estate in his home town of San Cristobal.

The driver and Trujillo were wounded by the first burst of gunfire. Trujillo ordered the car stopped, drew his revolver and returned the fire.

The driver used one of the tommy guns usually carried in the car. The driver said Trujillo had no time to use his.

Trujillo fell out of the car and the attackers beat him, seriously cutting his face and injuring his left arm. Trujillo was killed and his body taken to a nearby car and put in the trunk. The body was found there later.

One of the attackers was seriously wounded and another was presumed injured. The exact number of attackers was not known.

The armed forces said one of the conspirators against Trujillo was a former brigadier general, Juan Tomas Diaz.

Dominican exiles in Mexico City said Diaz was a career soldier whose sister and her husband fled to Brazil last year. But Diaz reportedly continued as army commander of the country's central zone, at least until last January.

Communications were broken with Ciudad Trujillo most of Wednesday but were restored Wednesday night. Dominican citizens apparently were banned from leaving the country, and planes from Ciudad Trujillo had many empty seats. A tight censorship also appeared to be in force.

For the moment the Dominican masses appeared to be stunned by the removal of the man who had dominated their lives for so long. One report said, "The people are very sad—the streets are deserted."

Trujillo—hated by the Communists, fighting with Catholics and bitterly denounced by liberals—has been a storm center of international relations in recent years.

Cuba's Fidel Castro once charged him with financing an invasion to overthrow his regime but the two dictators were reported lately to have been drawn together by the U.S. opposition to both of them.

An estimated 5,200 American citizens live in the Dominican Republic. Even though the United States broke off diplomatic relations with the Trujillo regime, a consulate is maintained there and reports reaching Washington said no Americans had been harmed as a result of the assassination.

Housing Issue On Council's Agenda

Consideration of a Public Housing Authority resolution appears on the City Council agenda for tonight's meeting.

Scheduling of the Authority's resolution comes as a surprise. The matter was considered at a special session of the council last month. It failed to pass on a 2-2 vote with Mayor Charles M. King not voting.

Mayor King had indicated that it might be reconsidered during June, although he said at one time he felt the regular June meeting would be too soon.

Neighborhood conservation, a proposed ordinance which provides for upgrading local housing, is also on the agenda for tonight's meeting. This item is to be considered just ahead of the Public Housing resolution, according to the agenda.

The meeting tonight, the usual first Thursday of the month council meeting is set for the council chambers to begin at 8 o'clock. However, City Manager Leonard Bloxam said that the city court room on the third floor of city hall will be available if it is needed to accommodate the audience.

This was the case at last month's special session. The council meeting was moved to the court room when more citizens showed up than the council room would hold.

The Public Housing Authority's resolution was presented at the special session by C. W. Howard Jr., chairman of the authority.

Approval of the resolution by the City Council will allow the Authority to make application for a preliminary loan from the federal government. With these funds the Authority would make a study of local housing needs. If no public housing is requested, the city is not obligated to pay back the loan.

Neighborhood conservation was proposed during the bitter campaign which led up to the May 3 referendum on urban renewal and public housing. Opponents of these programs offered the proposed neighborhood conservation ordinance as their plan for improving local housing conditions.

The ordinance would set certain minimum standards for housing with the requirements to be enforced by the city.

Urban Renewal Involved The Public Housing Authority resolution also involves the Shore Drive Redevelopment area, the city's urban renewal project. Further work on this is being held up until the resolution is passed by the council since the city must provide adequate standard housing for families displaced by the project.

At the special meeting where the resolution was considered, Councilmen James Lee and Ford McGowan voted against a motion to approve it. Councilmen M. W. Aldridge and Ralph Brimley voted in favor. Mayor King did not vote and asked more time to consider it.

Councilmen will also consider annexation of Brentwood subdivision on Evans St. Ext.

Under new business is consideration of a drainage problem in Forest Hills, appointment of members to the Recreation Commission and a resolution concerning transfer of property from the Utilities Commission to the city for use as cemetery property.

DIED IN FLAMES FLINT, Mich. (AP)—Two men died today in a fire that swept a three-story rooming house near the downtown area of Flint.

Sixteen other roomers escaped from the flames which broke out on the first floor about 2 a. m.

Khrushchev Said Planning Inject Big Issues

By JOHN O. KOEHLER VIENNA (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev at his meeting this weekend with President Kennedy is expected to put disarmament, the German peace treaty, the Berlin question and abolition of colonialism at the top of his discussion list.

This was indicated Wednesday night by Antonin Novotny, Czechoslovakia's president and Communist party chief, as he welcomed the Soviet leader on his arrival at Bratislava, just across the border from Austria. Novotny said many "dangerous open questions" will make the Khrushchev-Kennedy meeting a difficult one.

"Among the problems," he continued, "are disarmament, the conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany, including a solution of the West Berlin question, and a definite liquidation of colonialism."

Khrushchev in reply said he did not want to "make any prior judgment on the result of the meeting but we will strive for a relaxation of world tensions and to secure peace."

"Our delegation will intercede for not only what the people of the socialist countries want, but what the people of the entire world want, namely peace," the Soviet premier said.

Khrushchev is due in Vienna Friday. There had been speculation he would hold a Communist bloc summit meeting in Czechoslovakia before his meeting with Kennedy. But reports from Prague said such a get-together might be held after the Vienna conference, not before.

While it was generally expected that the Soviet premier would bear down hard on his longstanding demand that the allied garrisons withdraw from West Berlin, authoritative Austrian sources reported Khrushchev had indicated otherwise to Llewellyn Thompson, the U.S. ambassador in Moscow.

The Austrian sources said that Thompson, in one of his recent talks with Khrushchev, had told the premier that Kennedy was not ready so early in his administration to discuss such a critical issue as Berlin. Khrushchev indicated he "understood" Kennedy's position, the Austrians said.

There was no confirmation of the report from American sources and Preston Grover, chief of the AP bureau in Moscow, said neither Thompson nor other embassy officials had given newsmen there a hint of any such conversation.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

A while back the lot of the gardener wasn't an easy one. Almost all of the tools he used were powered by muscle. Standard spray materials were Arsenate of Lead, Lime-sulphur, Black Leaf 40, and Bordeaux mixture. Effective as they were and still are in some cases, they left many loopholes in the protection of the garden plants. Weeding was entirely a matter of chopping, stooping, bending and pulling. Transplanting had to be done only in certain seasons. The gardener was often the itchy victim of the "green vine" and target of gnat and mosquito. And when you had to do some work under a shrub or in a bed of ivy or in a like situation, you had snakes on your mind.

But today the picture has changed. No longer is mowing the lawn a sweaty, huffing and puffing event. Power mowers do the work a lot faster and neater. On large areas, the gardener can use a riding mower. Roto-tillers break up the ground for flowers, vegetables, shrub bed and lawn areas. Power sprayers give better coverage, reach higher and last longer, if taken care of in proper manner, than the hand pumping job. Electric hedge shears take care of the longest hedges in stride and are useful in trimming.

Powerful weed killers kill off weeds in garden and lawn areas. 24D knocks off the wild onion and can control nut grass in paved areas. Dowpon (Dalaphon) is useful in eliminating Bermuda grass in asphalt, along curb and if care is taken can be used to kill off grass along edge of sidewalk.

Insecticides and fungicides with more potency take care of pests and diseases that seemed beyond control a few years back.

Transplanting of trees and shrubs is less chance taking when you use Wilt - pruf on foliage. Plants that were once discarded because some summer time work on grounds required that they be moved, can now be moved to other locations in comparative safety.

Slow acting fertilizers that last much longer and won't burn plants or grass are on sale at local seed stores. One feeding of lawn and plants is usually enough for the entire season.

As for the gardener, he can protect himself against poison ivy by having his doctor give him shots or by taking pills (upon physician's advice). He can work in comparative comfort and freedom from gnat and mosquito torments by using repellents on his skin.

And now to round it all up, some company has put out a material called Snake-Stop.

Industry, chemistry, medical research and others have helped the gardener build himself a new garden wall. And horticulturally at least, man has made his way back to Eden or nearly so. It seems that the only things that could affect the gardener of today are: boredom, laziness and a chance case of sunstroke.

Beach Jacket, Well-Named Shrug

WHITE CONTRASTS TO TAN Fringe is ticklish trim

ROMAN STRIPES SIDEWAYS It's a fetching style

The sun isn't fun all the time. Whether darling daughter goes near the water or not, she had best shrug off some of it, some of the time if she knows what's good for her complexion.

Since bathing suits do not cover as much of the subject as they could, the well dressed beach miss must cover the rest herself. The newest idea in a beach jacket, therefore, is a well-named shrug. A shrug reaches at least from elbow to elbow with sleeves wide enough to give the breeze a break. Taking a really close look, as a matter of fact, you find that the design is mostly one long sleeve with a neck hole in the middle. Happily shrugs are as easily homegrown as a shawl, almost. Thanks to big needles and bulky yarns, the rows add up fast enough to finish one in time for the heat of the season.

A bright knitter can stitch up a variety of styles, improvising as she goes along. Giddy gaudy colors, the kookie kinds which require sun glasses to look at are cinches. But easier are feminine pastel hues which flatter tans.

Breakfast: Grapefruit and coffee.

Dishes Washed The 'Mom-Saver' Way

Clearing the dinner table and stacking dishes for a family of seven is quite a job—except for one enterprising family which has the system down to a time- and mother-saving science.

Before eating, mother lines up at the sink a garbage pail, a deep pan of water for silverware, and a dishpan of sudsy water. Afterwards, each child and parent quickly scrapes and soaks his own dishes in assembly-line style, so that the final sudsing and rinsing are completed in minutes.

One Of Five

Pitt Rep. Frank M. Wooten was among five legislators who Wednesday voted against a measure designed to clear the way for Tar Heel municipalities to redevelop downtown business areas.

The measure passed the House, 104-5, on second reading and must pass another House roll call before it can be sent to the Senate.

Rep. D. G. Bell of Carteret County, one of the bill's advocates, said it would "amend the State's urban redevelopment law to authorize the redevelopment of non-residential areas." The proposed amendment would open the way for federal financial participation, Bell said.

Reps. W. C. Harris of Wake and Ned Delamar of Pamlico spoke in behalf of the amendment. Rep. Roger Kiser of Scotland attacked the bill on grounds that it would allow the redevelopment of areas which are "50 per cent blighted."

In addition to Wooten and Kiser, Mrs. W. N. Cook of Macon, Mrs. Treasie P. Fletcher of Alexander and Rep. John Kerr of Warren voted against the amendment.

The seminar offers, according to Executive Secretary G. Kerry Smith of the Association for Higher Education, "an exceptional opportunity for a small group of leaders in American higher education to learn at firsthand about governmental and private agencies in Washington which serve their institutions and for the Washington agencies to learn from this highly informed group the needs of America's public and private colleges and universities."

Eyes Of World On Kennedy's Trip

The eyes of the world are on the young American President as he goes to Europe for the first time as the head of the most powerful nation of the free world to talk with one of his staunchest allies and also confer with the head of the communist world.

For President Kennedy meeting President de Gaulle of France and the summit conference with Soviet Premier Khrushchev will be his first fling at top level personal diplomacy. He has met with high officials of other nations since becoming President of the United States in January, but for President Kennedy these previous conferences were of little importance compared with the conferences in Paris and Vienna.

The talk with de Gaulle will be a test for the ability of the new President of the United States in keeping close ties among the Western nations on matters of international concern where unity is an absolute necessity. The talks with Khrushchev, although they are supported to be informal, will test the skills of President Kennedy in dealing face-to-face with the Soviet leader in an effort to ease international tension between East and West.

How well Kennedy does in these tests may well determine the respect he has in the months and perhaps years ahead when he attempts to speak for the Western powers. At the end of those European conferences he will not be looked upon at home or abroad in exactly the same manner that he is looked upon today. In the eyes of the Western Allies and the rest of the world he will either be a stronger leader in international affairs or a weaker link as a result of the outcome of these conferences. His ability to lead the free world will be evaluated anew in the United States and elsewhere following the meetings with de Gaulle and Khrushchev.

Although the summit conference between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev has been termed an informal meeting for informal discussion of world problems, it must be recognized as a major conference in shaping the future of East-West relations. Although it is not expected to produce results that are immediately tangible in terms of erasing international problems, it will produce tangible evidence of the ability of the two men as individuals to represent their respective ideologies which are engaged in a struggle to win world-wide support.

Upon the ability evidenced by President Kennedy may well depend the manner in which he is regarded in the future as he plays a major role in shaping the course of East-West relationships.

Encouraging Report On Industrial Safari

The favorable report of Gov. Sanford's recent industry-hunting jaunt to the Ohio Valley area should encourage community and county development organizations to boost their efforts to attract new plants and payrolls into their immediate areas.

The fact that the visit of industry hunters from the Tar Heel state "achieved more initial success and more promise of new industry than any previous tour in the history" of the State, according to Gov. Sanford, does not mean that a great number of Ohio Valley industries will be fighting for locations in North Carolina.

It does indicate, however, that industries apparently are indicating greater interest in new plant locations now than they did last year on the year before. If that is the case in the industrial region of the Ohio Valley, it is probably the case with industry in many other areas of the nation.

The downturn of the nation's economy in 1960 caused many industries which had plans for expansion to delay those plans. With the upturn in the economy that has taken place since the first of the year and with prospects of future improvement in the economy, it is likely that many industries are taking a new look at expansion programs. The greater the number of industries which are interested in expansion or new locations, the greater chance North Carolina—and other states, too—has of attracting new plants.

Whether or not the industrial prospects developed by the Ohio Valley jaunt materialize into new plants in North Carolina, the time appears ripe for greater effort toward attracting industry on both the state and the local level. In a period in which some industries are taking a new look at delayed expansion plans, and others are developing new expansion programs, the local development groups throughout the state should likewise be taking a look at their plans for attracting new industries. The efforts to attract new industries must be stepped up to keep pace with the increased interest among industries in new plants and new locations.

DeGaulle Dream Can Be Obstacle

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy must wrestle with another man's dream in his conversations with President Charles de Gaulle in Paris today.

His De Gaulle's dream of a new, great and grand France, the enormously dignified, some might say vain — Frenchman is 70 now. And for the rest of his life, even if he lives to 90, it's a dream not likely to be realized.

Although the United States and Russia are the only two great powers now, it's Red China, not France, which is moving up. Except as De Gaulle sees it, there is no likely spot for France in the top echelon of world powers during the next quarter century. So the two presidents are not apt to settle much. At best they may understand each other more.

At worst De Gaulle may be hardened a little more by his dreams and his obstinacy. Neither man can walk into the meeting room and lay a bowl of recent triumphs on the table to impress the other.

Fresh in De Gaulle's memory is Kennedy's disaster with the Cuban invasion, the erosion of American power and prestige in Laos, the Russian space flight which made the American space flight look secondary.

Kennedy, in turn, will be facing a man, 26 years his senior, whose own recent troubles may in the end overwhelm him.

De Gaulle barely squeaked through the generals' revolt in Algeria where the possibility of a new, wider and bloodier revolt is still very real. De Gaulle still has not brought peace there.

Because De Gaulle is 70 and the history of France since World War II has been a history of instability and unpredictability, Kennedy must feel as he talks to the French president: What will any promises from me to him or from him to me mean if he should disappear from the scene tomorrow? Will the generals take over? Will France even remain a democracy?

It's this very uncertainty and long instability which would make Congress reluctant to let France have American atomic weapons or a say-so on the use of those weapons, both of which De Gaulle would like. Kennedy therefore can hardly soothe him by promising either. After the war, when America had both an economic and nuclear monopoly, it was convenient for De Gaulle and needy France to accept U. S. help and unquestioned leadership. Now France is back on her feet and is developing her own nuclear power. American nuclear monopoly, broken by Russia, no longer exists. Therefore, it is politically realistic for De Gaulle to assert French power and concern about American leadership since the United States no longer can (Continued on page five)

Here We Go Again!

Sleeping Late—A Luxury

At least a segment of our population—maybe a minority—has dreams of a luxury afforded on a regular basis to few.

Some, in open conversation, will readily admit they are adherents to the "There's-nothing-like-it" philosophy of the late-sleepers.

Like we often find themselves dreaming of the time when they can join the clan blessed by that luxury.

Only yesterday, we had a brief discussion about this business of sleeping past 7 or 8 a.m. Casually we decided it is definitely a luxury. But it can be much more enjoyable when enjoyed occasionally. And then only on very special occasions.

A few hours before our conversation up here at the office, two people very dear to us had visited our home. Their welcome visit had been eagerly anticipated.

As a matter of fact, we attempted to persuade them shortly before midnight to spend the remainder of the night with us and rise early in time to travel to their ultimate destination, some 250 miles away.

But, try as we might, we could not succeed in our persuasion. "We really must go along to-night," we were told with finality.

While there were perfectly legitimate and logical reasons for their midnight departure of which we were well aware, the reason given was amusing... and interesting.

"We'd rather make the trip now, late as it is, so we can sleep late in the morning," they said.

With that we could hardly argue.

Everybody knows that eight hours of sleep a day totals eight hours of sleep a day regardless of when it's caught.

Still, proponents of the late-sleeper philosophy will tell you that there are ways to manipulate those eight hours to make them more enjoyable.

Perhaps they're right about it. The danger is: when the enjoyable formula is discovered and put into practice, the irresistible urge arises to s-t-r-e-t-c-h those eight hours.

That's the luxury of it.

Saturday should be a day when Pitt Countians—even those who can afford to call themselves late-sleepers—should enjoy the invigorating experience of rising early.

All chores should be done early to allow ample time to sit down and think for a few moments to decide whether anything has been left undone.

And for those who have not yet done so, it'll be high time to visit the proper registration place to get lined up for the county-wide referendum on the municipally-owned Industrial Training Center.

After thinking for a moment, folks will remember that Saturday is definitely the last chance to register. They'll also remember that this one is a special registration and that each voter must register in order to vote.

Whether or not Pitt's taxpayers are in favor of making the last of 20 state-allocated technical schools a reality here is not the most important consideration.

The main thing is: every taxpayer should take advantage of the opportunity of expressing himself at the polls—an opportunity not universally enjoyed in this world.

The main thing for Saturday is: every taxpayer should be on his feet early enough to remember whether or not he's registered. Because, before he can have his "Say-So" in this election, he's required to register.

Should Be Kept Public

By GEORGE E. SKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The French have not been too happy that President Kennedy's visit to President de Gaulle was a halfway stop on the trip to Khrushchev. Although the De Gaulle journey was announced first, the impression is that it is second in importance. De Gaulle does not like to be second. It is not to the glory of France.

This is a small matter of etiquette but it is not trivial because a state visit is undertaken to accomplish some major purpose and is usually surrounded by pomp and circumstance to make both host and guest happy. We do not know what was accomplished by President Kennedy's state visit to Canada. From outward signs, nothing in particular was accomplished. The Canadians are still going their own way as regards Red China and Cuba; they show no interest in a joint foreign policy with the United States, although the two countries are supposed to be allies.

De Gaulle unquestionably wants a larger role for France in NATO. Although the United States saved France from the Nazi, it was the United States that has been largely responsible for France's loss of her empire, particularly Indo-China in Asia and the African colonies. De Gaulle is a profound nationalist who will not do anything to weaken France's moral position in the world.

What the visit with Khrushchev can accomplish, it is possible to estimate. Kennedy and Khrushchev will talk endlessly and Khrushchev will be excessively pleasant in a peasant-like way. Kennedy will ask many questions which Khrushchev will take hours to answer. When all the conversations are over, the entire matter will go back to the Teheran Conference of 1943 during which Roosevelt and Stalin reached a series of secret agreements which are still secret as to words but not as to effects. So secret were these agreements that no copies of them were deposited in the State Department and Secretary of State Hull knew nothing about them. Some documents found in the White House files may be the record. However, there have been leaks and some, if not all, of the documents have been scanned. They are very bad from an American standpoint. When the report of the Russian violations of agreements, we do not have all the facts as long as the Teheran documents remain secret — as long as any of them remain secret.

So it would be overly optimistic to expect much to come of the Kennedy-Khrushchev visit but whatever does occur should be made completely public. The habit of keeping the affairs of the American people from the American people is a dangerous one. The assumption that a little clique of great minds is wiser than the whole American people is untenable. Mr. Roosevelt was the Great White Father who knew everything but when we reached the year 1961, the United States finds itself in a very awkward position and very little trouble can be traced to the international relations of the Roosevelt Administration.

Presidents since Woodrow Wilson have been anxious to be their own Secretaries of State and to advertise themselves as the most brilliant men in the world. When John Hay, Elihu Root and Charles Evans Hughes were Secretaries of State, they conducted the foreign affairs of their government and the Secretary of State was an outstanding figure in the country. Neither Robert Lansing nor Cordell Hull was of their calibre. Presidents did not leave this country during their terms of office. The advantage was that no irrevocable arrangements were made such as Franklin D. Roosevelt made at Teheran and Yalta. Even Woodrow Wilson's major effort at Paris — the treaty providing for a League of Nations — was rejected by the United States Senate, but Roosevelt avoided treaties and while the United States has been faced by a fait accompli on many occasions, this country is neither legally nor morally bound by any promise which is not included in a treaty.

Other Editors Saying Commencement Day

(Greensboro Daily News)
Commencement day is, among other things, a day when graduates fling their hats into the air. This flinging of hats into the air means that in the eye of the young graduate the anchorages of the past are to be left behind. He is embarking on new seas of "freedom" from many restraints, and most commencement speakers rightly flatter this notion.

Occasionally, like Lord Chesterton writing to his son, they edge a cautionary word or two into the extolling word of freedom, suggesting that knowledge should be clothed in manners "that will smooth its way through the world."

Such commencement speakers are wise to suggest the complexity of "freedom"; for very quickly, as their experience deepens, new graduates learn the truth of Lord Chesterton's observation. Manners are necessary, as well as truth that makes one free. Character is as powerful as intelligence. Discipline must buttress liberty. The collective wisdom that is inherited in time comes to compete rather favorably with the iconoclasm of the self-sufficient individual.

The graduate today has every reason to discover the truth that wisdom has two sides, like a magnet with two poles. He has just left a school where there is real combat between freedom and authority. If he started to school 17 or even 21 years ago, he brushed against the progressive education vogue which is now quite unfashionable, in which it was supposed that individual inclination was a completely trustworthy beacon in learning. The present drive back to basic disciplines represents a swinging away from a perhaps excessive freedom towards authority.

The same tug exists in the arts. The experiments in form that marked the earlier years of the century in literature are turning now, once again, towards discipline. Music and painting do not exactly overlap this trend but there are signs of a turning back from the extremes of "freedom."

In politics, whether the example is as close as an Alabama city or as far away as the Congo, the tension between freedom and constraint, the law and the individual conscience, is at its most explosive. There are no final rules by which this tension can be relaxed to everybody's satisfaction. It is true that Thomas Jefferson declared that the government have the right to protest and even revolt against oppressive government; but like the temperate man he was, he also added that governments long established should not be changed for light or transient reasons.

After the brief celebration of freedom on commencement day, the new graduate usually finds himself confronted very quickly with this ancient need for finding a satisfactory blend between the two great themes, not only in the realm of public issues but in his religion, his relations with other people, his personal standards. Even if he is so foolish as to put his books away on commencement day, concluding that formal learning may safely come to an end, he will find the two tugs, freedom and authority, whispering their conflicting advice in each ear for a long time — and here, at least, his education will merely be beginning this week.

letting out a secret, pretend I didn't tell you.

Here are the people and organizations fighting hardest against limitation of deductible expenses:

1. The credit card industry. It was born of deductible expense; it is a transmission belt for deductibles; without generous business deductions it will fade.

2. The restaurant industry. Cafeterias and lunch counters will survive, but the Forum of the Nineteen Caesars, the Sixteen Seasons and La Fonda de la Orbit may be pressed for free-spending customers.

3. Night clubs. Few of the high-price saloons will survive if spending there has to come out of income after taxes. If a drinker can't lay off the price on a company expense account, or if the company can't lay it off against Federal and other taxes, it's cheaper for everybody to drink at Nick Martin's tavern.

OTHERS OPPOSED

4. The hotel industry. The great rise in the cost of rooms, and of the building of new hotels, has been underwritten by people on expense accounts. Many hotels profit on annual rentals of suites to corporations. They are united against the proposal to shoot Santa Claus, the man on an expense account.

5. Live theaters. Much of their patronage comes from people entertaining prospects (and who isn't a prospect?) on expense accounts.

6. Professional sports. A large part of the sale of season boxes is made to corporations. A sports editor tells me you can't get a good seat in Yankee Stadium unless you are on a corporation's executive or guest list, or unless a season reservation has been in your family for some time, or unless some box-holder dies. For expense — countless peasants, there are the upper stands.

7. Unions. A large segment of organized labor profits from expense-account spending: the hotel, restaurant and entertainment workers; sports employees; cab-drivers and others in transportation, and many others.

8. Airlines and other travel industries. Jets, as one wag said, are divided into two sections: the front one for people on expense accounts, the rear one for people paying their own way. Fortunately, both travel at the same speed and arrive at the same time. If expense deductions were limited, only a few of the filthy rich would ride first class.

Advertisers and television stations appear to have blocked the reorganization of the Federal Communications Commission and the clearing of the wastelands of TV. If that small economic bloc can exert that much power, what can the much more massive group living on expense account spending do to the other Kennedy proposal: that of limiting expense-account deductions?

Parents Of Boy Scouts To Hear Camp Discussion

Boy Scout Troop 124, sponsored by Battery A of the local National Guard, has scheduled a parents' meeting for 7:30 tomorrow night to provide an opportunity for troop members' parents to hear a discussion about Camp Charles.

National Guard spokesmen, who serve as scout leaders for Troop 124, have urged all parents to attend the meeting to ask questions about the scouts' summer camp program.

Troop 124, with 44 members, represents the largest Boy Scout troop in the Pitt District. It is also the youngest, being organized in early February of this year.

Films on Camp Charles will be shown at Friday's meeting. Battery A scout leaders have said they hope "as many of our boys as possible can attend camp this summer."

Two Americans Killed In Laos 'Copter Crash

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Two American civilian helicopter pilots killed in a crash Tuesday while on a supply mission to embattled pro-government Meo fighters in the mountains at Pa Dong were identified today.

Air America, which operates transport planes and helicopters assisting the royal government, said they were pilot Waller L. P. Wizbowski of Polk, Ohio, and copilot Charles H. Master of Charlotte, N.C.

Flight mechanic Dale Kloch was slightly injured, but did not require hospitalization. Kloch's home town was not determined.

The helicopter crashed when its rotor struck a tree. The deaths brought to 19 the number of Americans killed, missing, or taken prisoner by the rebels since the battle of Vientiane in December.

DONALD BARR CHIDSEY'S New Historical Entertainment THE WICKEDEST PILGRIM

CHAPTER 11
At six bells Captain Jones sent for sundry of the leaders among those who would settle this drear land. At the same time, Sal Boyd went to the poop cabin.

He wanted to see Priscilla — he believed that he would know when he looked at her whether or not she wished that they had kissed—and he had as an excuse that he could offer again, to return Mistress Bradford's cloak.

He did not fear that Mate Clarke would intervene. Clarke and the other pilot mates, Coffin, William Parker, were much too busy on deck, keeping their eyes and ears peeled.

Dorothy Bradford had been weeping. Sal saw this instantly—though the light was dim—and he wished he hadn't come. Priscilla Mullins sat by her side, an arm across her shoulders.

The cabin not only was dim, it was hushed, which seemed odd on a day of excitement. There were mostly women there, the men, including William Bradford and William Mullins, having been called to the Captain's cabin.

Mistress Bradford shook her head, smiling determinedly, and looking, Sal thought, worse than ever, with her hair half down, her eyes red.

"No," she whispered. "You must keep it."

"But when we go ashore—"

"Even then, I have clothes enough."

She did not explain her fears, though she did try to control them; but Priscilla, as though in defense, passed on to Sal the rumor from the Captain's cabin of Hudson's River, as planned, nor were they anywhere near that; they were much farther north. Captain John Smith's map of six years ago showed bad shoal conditions just south of the land that they were passing, which Captain Jones believed was what had been called, after the fish, Cape Cod.

Christopher Jones was warning the leaders of this, it was believed. He feared to continue south, but what with Mayflower's strained condition he feared as well to put out to the open sea again. They might have to land, they might even have to settle, in this savage place north of the territory covered by the Virginia Company's charter, the district marked on John Smith's map as New England.

What their rights would be then.

since they would not be operating under any charter, he didn't know. Now these were grim news, but to Sal, who never had had much truck with navigation anyway, they were not grim enough to induce tears. Still, it was none of his business. Priscilla was giving him a significant look, and he rose, muttering apologies.

He was about to step out on the half deck when there came a shout of "Breakers!" from half a score of throats.

They were dead ahead this time, not to starboard, where they had been throughout the morning. It looked as though the sea had gone mad. Water raced and spat, whirling in eddies, throwing out spume, steaming, hissing. There must have been a strong current there — they were drifting right toward it — and thousands of rocks just beneath the surface.

Christopher Jones burst out of his cabin, shouting orders. Mate Clarke ran across the half-deck, bumped into Sal, and grabbed him by the shoulder.

"What were you doing in there? Well, never mind now!" He pointed to the mainyard not fully manned. "Hop it!"

They yawned, as skittish as a camel going downhill. In a real blow it would have been chancy; but there was little enough wind, and they made it, though they were drenched with spray.

That night they stayed outside, and with the dawn there was nothing of land to look at. But they put in again, as carefully as before, and raised a low sandy point a little distance north of their hilly landfall of the previous morning, as near as Sal Boyd could make out. He was on deck all the while. He hadn't even slept.

Again Mayflower might have been a cat, a crouching one, as she approached that small low sandy spit. It looked like an island, though Sal was told by Robert Coffin that it was in fact the tip of a long sandy peninsula.

They moved upon it from the east, then swung around to the north, then to the west, where obviously they were under the lee of a headland and the water might have been that of a lake.

And there at last, at seven bells of the morning watch, there came a shriek of cable and a great thumping splash, which told that they had let go the anchor.

It was Saturday, November 11, 1620.

Closer, the coast was no less desolate. You might have said that here was a land forgotten by God. Once canvas had been struck and the cable made fast, the skipper relaxed his restrictions, permitting hatches and ports to be thrown open, so that sunshine and fresh air got to places unvisited by fresh air and sunshine these many weeks, while the passengers once pointing out plants that they could identify at this distance — scrub oaks, boxberry, aspen, beech, wild plum, juniper.

Despite these familiar growths, however, the tip end of Cape Cod in no way resembled Kent. Under a glum sky the trees and bushes showed stunted, grotesque.

The shore itself, humped in dunes, was decorated by nothing more than a dry, dull, brittle, juiceless grass or sedge that none

Nazi Eichmann Being Tried In Language Of Moses

By ANDREW MEISELS
Associated Press Staff Writer
"In sinne der anklage, nicht schuldig," says the defendant in crisp German tones.

"B'ruah ha-ashamah, eneni ash-em," the official intones, translating the words into Hebrew, the language of the court.

The television interpreter puts it into English for the benefit of those watching the proceeding in English-speaking lands.

"In the spirit of the indictment, I am not guilty."

But the words that echo through the Jerusalem courtroom where Adolf Eichmann is being tried—the German and the Hebrew—are clearly audible to the television audience.

They represent a major irony in this trial of a man charged with attempting to blot out the Jewish people. Adolf Eichmann does not speak Hebrew, contrary to one of the many fables he spread about himself in Nazi circles.

On the other hand, his three judges and the prosecutor who reads the roll of his alleged crimes all speak German. Yet they do not use it, nor do they seem even to recognize its sound as they sit solemnly in the Jerusalem court.

This is protocol, of course, but it also serves as a final slap at the accused architect of Hitler's "final solution."

The language Adolf Eichmann hears about him is the language of Moses and King David. Ironically, for the most part it was not the language of the Jews the Nazis killed. It had not been the everyday language of the Jews for millennia until it was revived as the official language of Israel.

Ironically, too, the language in which Adolf Eichmann is charged with being history's arch anti-semitic is the only Semitic thing about the Jews.

Contrary to popular belief, "Semitic" does not denote a racial or ethnic group. It is a linguistic term. The Jews, like the Arabs, are a mixture of many stocks.

Only their languages are classified as Semitic, as are Aramaic, ancient Syriac and Ethiopian Coptic.

Historically, Hebrew was the Semitic language spoken by that group of tribes which left Egypt under the leadership of Moses some 3,500 years ago.

The Bible had a tremendous impact on the Hebrew tongue—the same kind of impact the King James translation of the Bible had on English some three thousand years later. It froze the language so that there was little change in it afterward.

By about 100 B.C., however, Hebrew had fallen into general disuse. While still the language of scholars and of the temple service, it was supplanted in the marketplace by Aramaic, a similar Semitic tongue common at the time to all the nations of Syria-Palestine.

It was in Aramaic that Jesus delivered his sermons, since he was directing them to the common people, and some Jewish prayers of the period are in Aramaic rather than in Hebrew.

With the destruction of Judaea in 70 A.D. the dispersed Jews tended in their daily affairs to speak the languages of the countries in which they lived.

Often, they would mix corrupted Hebrew words into their new languages and write the resultant product in Hebrew characters. A series of jargons thus arose among Jews living in various parts of the world.

The Jews of Medieval Germany evolved a jargon consisting mostly of German with a few badly pronounced Hebrew words thrown in. They called this language Yiddish, or "Yiddish," and it persisted to this day as colorful, locally Germanic tongue.

Yiddish spread with the wanderings of the Jews and became, for a time, almost an international language in eastern and central Europe.

Most of the Jews killed by the Nazis during World War II spoke Yiddish either as their mother tongue or as a secondary language. It is probable that Eichmann understood this language. Most Germans can.

Hebrew remained in the synagogue and the talmudic academy pure and uncorrupted as only a dead language can be until the 19th Century and the birth of the Zionist movement.

The early Zionists sought a return to Israel's former glory, and a return to the nation's former tongue seemed as logical to them as the revival of Gaelic later seemed to Irish patriots.

Due to the efforts of the first colonists in Palestine, Hebrew today is the official language of the state of Israel. New immigrants learn it in special state-run schools, and it is the mother tongue of all children born in Israel.

Hebrew is about as different from Yiddish as Tel Aviv is from an east European ghetto of a century ago.

The traditional self-deprecating humor that helped the Jew survive centuries of persecution does not translate well into Hebrew. It is as Arthur Koestler once noted, an idiom not fitted for telling the story of the two Jews in a railway car.

To the outsider, there seems a solemn quality to the very sound of Hebrew. It is hard even to order a meal in the language without making it sound almost biblical.

Part of the reason is that there is essentially no difference between modern and ancient Hebrew. An Old Testament prophet could return tomorrow, sit in at the Adolf Eichmann trial and understand what is going on.

Of necessity, some new words have had to be created or borrowed from foreign languages to designate modern innovations ranging from the telephone to the gas chamber.

Another new word is "milyon," meaning million.

The ancient Israelites had no need of a word to denote so huge a sum, but it is needed now, if for nothing else than for the trial of a man charged with six million murders.

ACCUSED—Defendant Adolf Eichmann is sketched by Israeli artist J. Ross as he listens to the charges against him. Charges are read in Hebrew but Eichmann hears them in German over his headset.

ACCUSER—Israel's Atty. Gen. Gideon Hausner is sketched by Israeli artist J. Ross as he ticks off in Hebrew the indictments against Adolf Eichmann.

School Board Objects To Integration Decree

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)—The New Rochelle Board of Education plans to appeal at once a federal judge's order for an immediate start on measures to desegregate the predominantly Negro Lincoln Elementary School.

Rukeyser said compliance with the order would cause chaos in the school system.

The board will go to the United States Court of Appeals in New York City in an effort to upset Judge Irving R. Kaufman's final decree.

Kaufman had ruled four months ago that Lincoln School—which has 29 white pupils among its enrollment of 500—must be desegregated.

Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, president of the Board of Education, announced here Wednesday night that Kaufman's decree will be appealed.

The case went before Kaufman in the form of a suit by a group of parents of Negro children in Lincoln School.

Rukeyser said in a statement that the school board will ask the court of appeals for a stay of Kaufman's decree pending the outcome of the appeal.

"To the best of our knowledge, no higher court has yet ruled on the issue of so-called desegregation of a biracial school. It is important not to fall into the intellectual booby trap of equating the New Rochelle situation with that in the South, where the problem is totally different and where the courts have dealt with school districts which maintain 'separate but equal' schools for the two races."

Rukeyser added that "it has to be borne in mind that the Lincoln School . . . has at present 29 white pupils."

"In New Rochelle," he said, "two-thirds of our elementary Negro pupils are in schools other than Lincoln. We have no all-Negro schools and we have no 100 per cent white schools."

Rukeyser said that compliance with Kaufman's order would disrupt the neighborhood school policy. The city is divided into districts for elementary school pupils and a school is operated in each district.

Primary children will be led by Miss Oleva Zahmsler as they study Love One Another. Teachers will be Mrs. W. E. Brinkley, Mrs. Foster Eubanks, Mrs. Ralph Garrett, Jr., Mrs. John Shanonhouse, Mrs. Richard Spear, and Misses Corinne Joyner and Louise Moss.

By 1850, only about 30 per cent of the state's 5 million acres were still covered with forests. Trees began their march back at the opening of the West. The latest survey shows trees cover 85 per cent of the area of the state.

Let's bring the U.S.S. NORTH CAROLINA HOME!

A Great Ship is Ours for the Saving!

THE U.S.S. NORTH CAROLINA, a great battleship named for the State of North Carolina, is scheduled to be demolished for scrap July 1, 1961, unless $250,000 can be raised to establish the historic vessel as a permanent educational exhibit and memorial. A special commission has been appointed by the Governor of North Carolina, in accordance with an act of the General Assembly, to acquire and maintain the ship as a memorial to the men and women of all branches of the U. S. Armed forces who served during World War II.

RECORD—THE U.S.S. NORTH CAROLINA, at the time of her commissioning on April 9, 1941, and for many years thereafter, was the greatest sea weapon ever built by the United States. Her battle record included participation in every major offensive naval engagement in the Pacific during World War II. Beginning with battle support to the Guadalcanal landings and continuing through the Third Fleet operations against Japan, the mighty "Showboat" earned 12 battle stars.

SITE—The Battleship Memorial will be located on a 36-acre tract on the west bank of the Cape Fear River near five well-traveled U. S. highways at Wilmington, North Carolina. Aside from its inspirational, historic and educational values, the U.S.S. NORTH CAROLINA BATTLESHIP MEMORIAL will be self-supporting through modest admission charges and is expected to become one of America's major travel attractions.

GOAL—A minimum of $250,000 is needed to assure the preservation of the NORTH CAROLINA, in addition to the site, which is being purchased by the citizens of Wilmington and New Hanover County for $30,000 and transferred without cost to the State of North Carolina. A breakdown of the $250,000 minimum required is: towing $50,000; site preparation $100,000; and conditioning the ship for display $100,000.

FUND ORGANIZATION—Each county in North Carolina is represented by an Admiral of the Fleet appointed by the Governor to work with the Governor's Office and the U.S.S. North Carolina Battleship Commission.

SCHOOLS—Special Admission tickets to the U.S.S. North Carolina Battleship Memorial will be given to students in elementary and high schools where each member of the student body gives, or has given for him, as much as 10¢ to the Battleship Fund. Special ticket offers will terminate at the end of the drive for funds, and apply only to those schools where as much as 10¢ is received from every member of the student body registered for the 1960-61 school year. This student ticket plan has been approved on local option basis by Governor of North Carolina, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and President of North Carolina Congress of Parents and Teachers.

HOW TO BE AN ADMIRAL—The Governor of North Carolina will present commissions in the North Carolina Navy for rank of Admiral to each person who contributes as much as $100, or to each person who raises as much as $500 for the Battleship Fund. This includes certificate for framing, as well as wallet card covering lifetime free admission.

TAX DEDUCTIBLE—Gifts to the U.S.S. North Carolina Fund are fully tax deductible by rulings of the Federal and North Carolina revenue officials.

The defeat dropped the Dodgers a full game behind the Reds and Giants, who defeated St. Louis 3-2 in an afternoon game.

two-run shot off losing reliever Dick Farrell (4-4), made it 7-5 in the eighth. But Jay (6-3) then gave up a two-out home run by John Roseboro in the bottom of the eighth. The Dodgers next sent up left-handed swinger Duke Snider, but when Henry looped in they replaced Snider with right-handed hitter Frank Howard. It made no difference to Henry. He fanned Howard.

In the ninth, Henry gave up a single and two walks that loaded the bases with none out. That's when Brosnan hustled in.

The Giants, coming from behind with two unearned runs in the sixth for a 2-2 tie won it with two out in the ninth when Joe Amalfitano beat out a dribbler down the third base line with the bases loaded. Curt Simmons (2-4) was the loser, while Stu Miller (4-0) won it with three innings of no-hit relief.

In the American League, Detroit's lead was shaved to two games over rain-idled Cleveland when Kansas City beat the Tigers 6-4. New York regained third place by beating Boston 7-6. Chicago's White Sox rapped Baltimore 9-4 and the Los Angeles Angels defeated Washington 5-3 in 12 innings.

The Reds blew three leads at Los Angeles before Henry and Brosnan moved in. A two-out single by Jerry Lynch brought home the winning run in the ninth.

Gene Fresser's second homer, a

Southpaw Joe Gibbon (4-2) gave up six hits, one a homer by Hank Aaron in the eighth inning as the Pirates ended their losing string at five. The Bucs swung for nine hits and six runs off Spahn (5-4), chasing the southpaw ace in a four-run fifth inning.

Foyt Takes Home $117,975 Purse

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Young A.J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., picked up an extra $6,575 today—a personal gift from owner Tony Hulman of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway that rounded out the total purse for Tuesday's 500-mile race at an even $400,000.

The total purse was a record, and so was Foyt's winner's share, hiked to $117,975 when Hulman announced his gift at the victory dinner Wednesday night.

The first place winnings topped by $7,975 the money won last year by Jim Rathmann. The total purse was $30,850, more than the $369,150 paid out in 1960.

Raising Meat-Type Hogs Profitable On Small Scale

Raising meat-type hogs can be a profitable venture — on a small or large scale — if the operation is handled wisely and efficiently. That's what Hugh Winslow of Greenville says. And he pinpoints the profit in marketing good-quality, meat-type swine in rather exacting terms.

"If a hog operation is handled right," he says, "as much profit can be realized from the pigs produced by two sows as from an acre of tobacco in one year."

Winslow isn't just guessing. He has the records from his three-year-old swine production operation to back him up. He started his swine-raising venture about three years ago with 36 top sows. Since that time, he has increased his operation at his home to 72 sows and has added another 36 at a brand new farrowing house near Belvoir.

"Figuring a farmer grosses about $1,200 per acre of tobacco," he explains, "a man with two good sows can expect two good litters of about nine pigs apiece from each sow. He'll sell them at about 200-210 pounds each. That'll bring him about $1,260 for the total of 36 marketed pigs since they average about $35 apiece."

Winslow remembers three years back when he accepted his invitation of Assistant County Agent

C. J. Goodman to tour a successful hog operation. "I asked myself on that tour, 'Now, why can't I do that, too,'" Winslow recalls.

And so his operation had its beginning. Since then, he has expanded his production, and his income from it, three-fold. His buildings and equipment include adequate farrowing houses, an automatic feeding system, special clover pastures for bred gilts, a laboratory and an accurate system of record-keeping.

He plants about 200 acres of corn to feed his multitude of animals. "I haven't sold a bushel of corn since I started this thing. And I haven't had to buy any, either," he points out.

Organization, among other things, has played a major part in Winslow's successful operation. He conducts his hand-breeding operation on a monthly basis so the sows will be farrowing at approximately the same time. This allows ample time between litters for complete disinfection of the farrowing houses.

And his organization is carried farther than that. His monthly litters alternate between his Greenville farm and the new Belvoir operation to allow adequate attention to each sow as it farrows.

Asked about the number of market hogs he sells them after about five and one-half months he can expect, Winslow estimates, "I'll have around 1,800 or 2,000 hogs marketed between next November and November of 1962."

Winslow and Goodman agree on five basic "musts" for a successful swine operation:

1. Good breeding stock. (Winslow is no stranger to the area's top swine shows and sales. "I go after the grand champion at every one," he says.)

2. Timely and adequate cholera vaccination. (Winslow says he has never lost a hog to the dread disease. "There's no reason to lose hogs to cholera," he says. "All you need is that vaccination. He vaccinates his animals when they're six weeks old. Breeding stock is vaccinated annually.")

3. The best of sanitary conditions. (Winslow's two farrowing houses are thoroughly disinfected after each group of litters. Both are well-drained. The piglets are treated with iodine at birth to ward off early infections. Pig parlors are kept immaculately clean.)

4. Correct feeding. (Winslow's automatic feeder keeps corn and supplement in the pig parlor feeders at all times. Fresh clover pastures provide adequate feed for bred gilts. Sows with young litters are turned into separate pastures for a short time.)

5. Keeping of accurate records. (Records show Winslow how he's doing. "I couldn't tell how to improve my outfit without them," he says emphatically. He has devised a system of ear-marking so he can tell which market animal came from which sow. His records also show him what type of cross-breeding produces the best kind of market-type hog.)

Winslow's breeding stock includes Yorkshire, Hampshire, Poland China, Duroc and others. He is the only Tar Heel swine-producer that uses the Virginia Black, a new breed just developed by the Holland, Va., experimental station.

Radiation Study Class Scheduled

CULLOWHEE—A special short course in studies in radiation protection will be offered during the second summer term at Western Carolina College, in cooperation with the Office of Civil Defense.

The course is designed primarily for teachers and other personnel who are concerned with instruction in radiation and fall-out protection. Professor Julian Hirt, WCC physics instructor, will conduct the course at the college. He is scheduled to attend a school operated by the Office of Civil Defense in Brooklyn, New York, during the first week in June, for intensive study in the detection of hazards and in monitoring procedures. Upon completion of this week, he will be licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission to teach the course to others.

Dr. W. N. Turner, director of WCC's graduate division, said the course at WCC will be offered for both graduate and advanced undergraduate credit. Classes will meet for four hours daily except Saturday and Sunday during the period July 31-August 11.

AUTOMATIC FEEDER SYSTEM . . . that services Winslow's clean pig parlors keeps swine adequately fed. Here Winslow watches healthy animals feed.

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sounds from animals, sound from humans, and the piano tones that appeal to humans are subjects for science at work: Voices of the Sea. Dolphins, those remarkable animals of the sea, have a large and changeable repertoire of sounds that vary from clicks and whistles to quacks and blats. Furthermore they control these sounds and use them to communicate, scientists report.

Now scientists have studied the noises of restrained dolphins to see what sounds come from which situations.

A whistle from a human, for instance, brings a chorus of whistles from the dolphins. Manipulating the dolphin's body brings whistles, quacks or blats. Yet left alone dolphins seldom quack or blat.

In violent play or courtship the squawks come fairly often. Two whistles, one in crescendo, the other in decrescendo, repeated over and over are a distress signal, silencing neighbor dolphins and setting them all on a search for the distressed source.

The Sound of Music. A study of soprano voices indicates that the more trained the voice, the greater its vibrato — a warbling effect — say Norwegian scientists. They studied both untrained singers and those of world fame.

When a highly trained soprano holds a note, there is also evidence that the note has irregularities in the overtones and that this too is a product of training. Untrained sopranos without any great vibrato hold notes with more harmonic regularity.

Do-Re-Mi. Piano tuners tend to stretch the scale when they tune the piano by standard methods — making the upper tones higher and the lower tones lower than in a precise scale of pure tones.

Research engineers with some appreciation of music and music students were asked to listen to pianos tuned by such human methods and those tuned more precisely. The precise or perfectly tuned piano sounds were rejected by both groups.

Seeds of History. Tiny spores, the soft, wax-like seeds of primitive plants, can outlast the ravages of 100 million years. Now an Emory University scientist is looking for tiny seeds in the ancient rocks of the earth to help date the rocks in the earth's history.

But, so far, he has found only small carbon particles the size and shape of spores. Says Dr. James G. Lester: These may be spores laid down in ancient days and changed by heat and pressure in the development of the earth.

Where Man Began? It is now 100 per cent certain that man originated in Africa, says Dr. L. S. B. Leakey of the Coryndon Museum, Nairobi, Kenya.

Fossils from all over Africa support the theory that man evolved from the families of apes in Africa, he told a recent conference of the New York Academy of Sciences.

Tells Of Eichmann Highway Of Death

JERUSALEM, Israel (AP)—Adolf Eichmann's final roundup of the Jews of Hungary turned the road from Budapest to the Austrian border into a highway of death, an eyewitness testified today.

Attorney Arie Breslauer said that he worked with the Swedes and the Swiss to save the Jews from the Gestapo chief's last big pogrom in November 1944 but was unable to talk the Germans and the Hungarian fascists who collaborated with them enthusiastically.

The Israeli prosecution, nearing the end of its case against Eichmann as the high priest of the Jewish slaughter, developed the death march story first with documents showing Eichmann initiated it.

The evidence showed that Hitler ordered the Hungarian regent, Adm. Nicholas Horthy, deposed for defeatism, seized complete power, installed a new Hungarian regime and sent Eichmann back from Berlin to complete "the final solution of the Jewish problem"—extermination.

Total mobilization of the remaining Jews in Budapest—about 200,000—ensued, Breslauer said the streets were black with them, shoved along, herded like cattle.

A document left by the late Dr. Rezsio Kaszner, a Jewish leader in Budapest, quoted Eichmann: "You see I am back again. My arms are long and my arms can reach the Jews of Budapest as well. This time they will be driven out on foot."

Breslauer said he saw the roundup of the vanguard of 50,000.

The Jews were marched 137 miles over seven or eight days to the Austrian frontier where they were turned over to Dieter Wisliceny, Eichmann's deputy in that area.

"Thousands died," Breslauer said. "The weak were shot."

Policymakers Await Post-Trujillo Dominican Moves

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. policymakers watched anxiously today for clues on whether the post-Trujillo Dominican Republic will move toward democracy or erupt in revolution with dangerous results.

The United States wants to be able to throw its weight behind a reform Dominican regime dedicated to democracy, economic improvement and anti-communism. It doesn't want an oppressor of either right or left who would further torment hemisphere relations, and it hopes to avoid links with such a rule. Scant information on Tuesday's assassination of strongman Rafael Trujillo seeping out of the tightly censored Caribbean land so far suggests the new rulers, for the time being, are carry-overs from the rightwing Trujillo nest.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk put off his trip to Paris for the Kennedy-De Gaulle talks to take charge personally of U.S. strategy at a Dominican moment of change which could have heavy impact on the future. President Kennedy and Rusk, in telephone contact between Paris and Washington, were said to be agreed that the Dominican situation was of such top priority that Rusk could do more by setting the U.S. course as the situation clears than by speeding off to the summit talks.

Informed sources said both the President and the secretary of state had the recent Cuban invasion fiasco very much in mind and were determined to avoid any mistake on the neighboring Caribbean island. They feel the outcome will affect the whole of U.S.-Latin American affairs. Aides said Rusk was keeping a military transport plane ready for departure later today, but he might delay again. He postponed a takeoff for Paris at the last minute Wednesday and skipped a New York date with Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion.

Balking Washington strategists was a scarcity of solid information. Officials said they did not yet know who engineered the assassination or who might be behind the figurehead president who continued in office, Joaquin Balaguer. They said their evidence did not point to pro-Communist Cuba or other foreign manipulators.

The only post-assassination communication from the U.S. Consulate in Ciudad Trujillo reported by late Wednesday was a brief message from Consul General Henry Dearborn saying the capital was calm and he knew of no injury to the 5,200 citizens in the country.

Some U.S. authorities foresaw a struggle for power, both within the Trujillo group and between it and the large elements of Dominican society persecuted during the dictator's 31-year rule. A continued harsh fighting regime with-out Trujillo's personal leadership, they reasoned, would set off revolt—perhaps pro-Castro the next time.

The United States had several lures to attract Trujillo's successors down the democratic path, a main aim of Kennedy's "alliance for progress" Latin American program. One is resumption of U.S. aid cut off when Washington joined the other American Republics last year in breaking diplomatic relations and normal commercial ties with Trujillo. Another is a boost in U.S. sugar purchases. The Dominican economy has been sagging.

The United States could also take a leading role in a move by the hemisphere organization, the Organization of American States, in readmitting a progressive Dominican regime to the American family.

Washington congressional reaction was mixed. Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., recommended that U.S. Marines be landed in the Dominican Republic to prevent a Communist takeover.

Sens. Homer E. Capehart, R-Ind., Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., and Allen J. Ellender, D-La., saw a Red Castroite takeover in prospect as a result of Trujillo's death.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., doubted Cuba's prime minister was involved. Sens. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., deplored the act of violence. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said U.S. concern should be for the freedom and welfare of the Dominican people.

Turncoat Fined After Collision

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Claude Batchelor, former soldier imprisoned as a turncoat after the Korean conflict, was fined $500 in County Court Wednesday on a charge of negligent collision.

Batchelor, formerly of Kermit, Tex., entered a nolo contendere—neither guilty nor innocent—to the charge filed after a traffic accident Nov. 4 in which Simona Barrera of San Antonio died.

A court martial sentenced Batchelor to life imprisonment on a collaboration charge in 1954. The sentence subsequently was reduced to seven years and Batchelor was paroled after serving five.

Elected To Post In State Ass'n

Jack Edwards, director of placement at East Carolina College, has been elected vice president of the North Carolina Institutional Teacher Placement Association, recently organized at Duke University.

The purpose of the new organization is to promote a close relationship among people engaged in the placement of teachers so that they may work more effectively together for the benefit of students, prospective employers, and member colleges and universities.

Officers, in addition to Mr. Edwards are Mrs. Eugene Smith, teacher placement director at Duke, president; and Dr. Ben Fountain, Jr., teacher placement director at the University of North Carolina, secretary-treasurer.

North Carolina teacher training institutions represented at the organizational meeting at Duke were Guilford, North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering, Appalachian State Teachers College, Salem College, Duke University, Belmont Abbey, Meredith, East Carolina College and the University of North Carolina. Eleven other institutions have indicated an interest in joining the organization.

Plans are underway for the organization's first annual convention.

No Help Given To Truce Enforcers

By TOM OCHILTREE
GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union has again blocked a Western attempt to strengthen the hand of truce supervisors in Laos to stop violations of the cease-fire.

The Soviets countered by charging the West with trying to avoid getting to the main issue of changing the future of the Southeast Asian kingdom along the path of independence and neutrality.

The East-West conference was still bogged down today on what to discuss first after more heated exchanges on whether peace has really been restored in Laos.

U. S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman charged the Communist-led Pathet Lao with daily attacks. He said the rebels refused to let the truce teams investigate behind their lines.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Georgi Pushkin insisted a cease-fire has been in effect since the beginning of May. He brushed aside the charge the truce supervisors were being hamstrung and declared they did not need any more authority.

Britain's Malcolm MacDonald backed Harriman and declared he did not see how the Indian-Polish-Canadian control commission could do its job unless it is free to carry out its investigation whenever and wherever it so desires.

The Soviet Union and Britain, as cochairmen of the 14-nation conference, must both approve any new instructions to the commission.

Switzerland's famous Matterhorn was first climbed in 1865. But the British-led expedition ended tragically when three members of the party fell to their deaths during the descent.

Big Question Is Impact Of Coming Summer Letdown

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—May was kind to business. And June should be too. After that comes the problem of the usual summer letdown—or, specifically, whether it will be severe enough this year to halt the recovery trend.

Vacations mean closed mills and factories in many industries. More troublesome, labor unions will be squaring away, trying for a new contract and hoping to avoid a crippling strike.

But many now think the recovery trend is building up enough momentum to carry business through with less of a slowdown than usual.

The steel industry, for example, normally shows a stable drop in output during July and August, with vacations getting much of the blame. But steel demand is continuing to improve. And many steel executives now think these new orders will give them enough to work on so that the summer will see a leveling off instead of the usual letdown.

The better steel demand has been responsible for a run of 11 straight weeks of increasing output prior to the Memorial Day holiday.

This helped give May better employment statistics. Unemployment apparently shrank a bit further, as it did in April.

The construction industry also helped. Spending for new buildings rose in May to $4.8 billion, up 11 per cent from April and 3 per cent better than May 1960. Public construction did the trick, as private building outlays so far this year have trailed 1960 by 3 per cent. Home building in particular has been disappointing, builders say, in spite of official efforts to make more mortgage money available and at lower interest rates.

Other outdoor jobs have been opening up. Many businessmen are counting on the slowly rising total of personal incomes to give all recreational outdoor activities a nice boost in spending this summer.

Needed A Bomb To Oust Skunks

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho (AP)—The army corps of engineers radio operator at flood headquarters in Bonners Ferry could hardly believe his ears Wednesday. A message from the Dixie District 6 distinctly said: "Send bomb for skunks."

It seems that the sector engineer, Roy P. Erickson, and his crew had run into a family of skunks living in the dirt dike which protects rich farmland from the swollen Kootenai River.

The animals were interfering with movement of equipment and sandbagging so a gas bomb was needed to chase the little stinkers out of their holes.

Much of the recovery noted thus far has been in manufacturing. And part of that has been in the statistics that include inventories. Just as cutbacks in inventories late last year and early in 1961 made the recession look bad at the manufacturing level, so the end to cutbacks and in some cases the return to building up of stocks is making the picture brighter now.

106-Year-Old Is Buried Yesterday

ANSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Matthew McLendon, born a slave 106 years ago, was buried here Wednesday. The Negro had recalled that he was "about big enough to plow" when the Union Army came through Anson County.

The last survivor in a family of 27 children, McLendon used to wear a robe and layers of loose-fitting clothing as he roamed Anson County. He said his dress symbolized Christ's mode of dress when he awoke on earth.

Researchers Get $252,323 Grant

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Le Bonheur Children's Hospital here has been awarded a research grant of $252,323 to develop and test a miniature artificial kidney.

Ralph W. Burger, president of the John A. Hartford Foundation, Inc., of New York City, announced the grant Wednesday. He said the artificial kidney would be useful in treating certain serious illnesses of new born infants and small children.

Again Plant Is Safety Winner

KINSTON—For the ninth time since the start of operations and the seventh time in a row, employees of Du Pont's Kinston Plant have completed sufficient man-hours of exposure without a major on-the-job injury to earn the Company's highest safety citation, the Board of Directors' Award. Winning the award, entitled employees to select their choice of a gift, compliments of the Company.

The award became official at 12:01 a.m. May 26. At that time, Plant employees had recorded 1,455 days, or 14,789,000 exposure hours, without a disabling injury while on the job. This accomplishment has preserved the employees' outstanding record which stretches back to May 31, 1957, or just five days short of four years without a lost-time Plant injury.

An even more outstanding point about the Plant's record is the comparison with the record of the chemical industry as a whole for the same period. Had the over-all industry frequency rate been experienced at the Kinston Plant, employees would have been the victims of 49 major injuries as compared to the spotless record they have established.

As is the usual custom when the coveted Board of Directors' Award is won, more than 50 gifts were unveiled in a special display. This display will remain open to employees and their families for the next three weeks.

Oklahoma Boy Is Spelling Champ

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Capenhart, 12, Tulsa, Okla., won the 1961 National Spelling Bee today.

The calm young son of a neurosurgeon outspelled Mary Lukes of Oxnard, Calif., in the 25th round for his victory over more than five million other youngsters who started in regional competition.

John's triumph was set up by correctly spelling "distichous," which means arranged in two vertical rows, after Mary had misspelled it "distichous."

He then clinched the championship by spelling "smaragdine," as his extra required word.

He did not even pause for the pronouncer to define the word, which means of or pertaining to emerald.

The field, which started out at 73 Wednesday, was cut to 17-12 girls and 5-boys—in those rounds.

Then today's first round of blockbusters trimmed the list to 9. Eight finalists fell in the first round of the second day of competition.

The contest is sponsored by Scripps-Howard newspapers in 18 cities and 54 other newspapers and radio and television stations.

Ex-Castro Aide Held Deportable

NEW YORK (AP) — Herman Frederick Marks, 39, Milwaukee-born adventurer known as the ex-ecutor for Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's forces, was ruled a deportable alien today by the New York office of the U. S. Naturalization and Immigration Service.

Marks has 10 days to appeal to the service's Washington headquarters.

He defected from the Cuban army and re-entered the United States via Mexico last July 22 at El Paso. He was arrested in New York last Jan. 25.

The immigration service contends he lost his American citizenship by serving in Castro's armed forces. The Cuban army has listed him as a deserter. Military sources in Havana have said he possibly would face a firing squad if he returned to Cuba.

Marks faces possible deportation to Cuba, or to Mexico, because he entered this country from there.

If neither country agreed to accept him, it would be necessary to find some other country willing to do so, immigration authorities have said.

Immigration officials said Marks has a record in the United States of more than 30 arrests. The charges included rape, draft dodging, assault, auto theft, vagrancy and drunkenness.

They said he had made jail breaks from a Wisconsin reform school, an Ohio prison and a California penal farm.

Seedmen Will Hear Sec. Hodges, Horace Godfrey

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges and Horace D. Godfrey, administrator of the Commodity Stabilization Service, are scheduled featured speakers for the annual convention of the N. C. Seedmen's Association to be held at Nags Head June 18-21.

J. Brantley Speight of Winterville, NCSA president, announced plans for the annual seedmen's assembly here today.

Speight said, "We are delighted to have these two distinguished officials of our federal government to address our convention."

Hodges and Godfrey both were drafted for top jobs in the Kennedy administration from positions in North Carolina. Godfrey served as administrative officer for the Tar Heel Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation organization. Hodges was Gov. Sanford's predecessor.

Other speakers for the four-day convention include Dr. John T. Caldwell, chancellor of N. C. State College in Raleigh, and A. Pierson Hassell, N. C. ASC administrative officer.

Judge Says He Can Feed Pigeons

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — A judge says Louis Dufek can feed the pigeons in a downtown square and let the litter fall where it may.

Dufek, 75, was arrested May 23 when a group of merchants complained he threw popcorn around, drawing hundreds of pigeons to the heart of the city. He appeared in court Wednesday.

"If you have the love of God in your heart," Dufek told Municipal Judge Walter McGovern, "you don't want to see a living thing go hungry. I have fed the pigeons for 35 years. Is it so wrong?"

Said the judge: "I fail to see where a gentleman like this can be found guilty."

Dufek left the court, bought a bag of popcorn and returned to the square. The pigeons were waiting.
