Not Pressing For License Tag Hike

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Sanford today will not press for passage of a bill now before the General Assembly that would boost the cost of auto license tags by 50 per cent.

The bill to boost cost of license tags was introduced recently with administration backing. However, its sponsors described it as an alternative plan to be pushed if no other ways were found to boost the amount of highway funds available for secondary road construction.

The governor announced last week that some $19 million addition for paving secondary roads had been found—mainly through transferring the support of several state agencies from the highway fund to the general fund.

However, estimates of the amount expected for secondary roads were reduced later because of a pay increase approved for highway workers by the joint appropriations subcommittee and reduced estimates of highway fund revenues.

Sanford said he hopes that with money available and through practicing "all available economies" the Highway Commission will be able to meet secondary roads needs until the 1963 legislative session.

In answer to other questions at his news conference, Sanford said:

1. He thinks there "is a lot of merit" in a proposal to increase the size of the State Senate in order to solve the problem of senatorial redistricting. However, the governor was non-committal on a bill introduced last week by Sen. Lunsford of Halifax to increase Senate membership from 50 to 53 with the extra three senators going to the state's largest counties—Mecklenburg, Guilford and Forsyth—giving these counties two senators each instead of one each.

2. That he is not satisfied with any of the proposals made to tighten regulation of small loan companies. He said a bill approved by a Senate Banking subcommittee to lower interest charges on small loans from levels proposed in a House-passed bill was "easing toward a solution."

3. The governor defended, although he did not specifically endorse, a Senate-passed congressional redistricting bill that would place Republican Congressman Charles R. Jonas in the same district with Democratic Rep. A. Paul Kitchin. Sanford said no redistricting plan would be satisfactory to everyone, but "I have no sympathy with those who are shedding tears for Mr. Jonas."

4. He hopes to have a recommendation this week designed to settle a school row in Madison County where the firing of a principal touched off a week-long strike of pupils at the Mars Hill School. The pupils returned to school after Sanford agreed to refer the dispute. His administrative assistant, Tom Lambeth, was in Madison County over the weekend to interview representatives of all factions in the school dispute.

He said he thought the redistricting plan was "eminently fair" to Jonas. He also asserted there was "less gerrymandering" in the plan than in the present congressional district setup.

5. He hopes to have a recommendation this week designed to settle a school row in Madison County where the firing of a principal touched off a week-long strike of pupils at the Mars Hill School. The pupils returned to school after Sanford agreed to refer the dispute.

Accused Assassin Shot Down

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Soldiers and police shot down retired Gen. Juan Tomas Diaz, the accused chief assassin of dictator Rafael right in the heart of this city. An alleged accomplice was slain with him.

Diaz, 52, was ripped by machinegun fire and died on the street. His companion, Antonio de la Maza, died soon after in a military hospital.

The two had been trying to find refuge in the neighborhood when a house-to-house search squad of 100 men, acting on a tip, came upon them.

Authorities said De la Maza was carrying a gun that Generalissimo Trujillo had with him during his fatal ambush last Tuesday night on a road outside the capital.

An army communique said Diaz and De la Maza jumped from their car and began shooting after security agents had chased them to the edge of Independence Park and Bolivar Avenue. Police casualties were not mentioned.

The police got a tip that Diaz and De la Maza had been seen on a downtown street. The gun battle began 30 minutes after the two fugitives stopped at a house and were refused entry by the owner.

Police held back crowds of on-lookers during the intensive neighborhood search. A Puerto Rican correspondent and a Berlin photographer were momentarily detained by police.

Diaz had been a friend of Trujillo during much of the slain dictator's 31 years of power. Gen. Rafael L. Trujillo Jr., who took over as armed forces chief when his father died, said Diaz led the assassination plot because his forced retirement from the Dominican army had made him bitter.

Earlier the government had reported one of the eight members while resisting arrest, three in of the assassination band killed custody and four at large.

Marines Leave Morehead City

MOREHEAD CITY, N. C. (AP)—Maj. Gen. J. P. Berkeley commander of the 2nd Marine Division, and hundreds of combat-equipped Marines sailed from this port for an undisclosed destination over the weekend.

Reports have indicated that the United States is building up its military strength in the Caribbean. But Marine spokesmen declined to say whether the troop movement was related to those reports.

"It is not an alert," said Capt. Robert R. Mecker Jr., information officer for the 2nd Marine Division at Camp Lejeune.

But Mecker and other official spokesmen declined to say how many Marines were involved, the identity of the units or the destination. The movement was not announced in advance, as is customary in the case of routine amphibious training exercises.

Mecker said it was a training exercise designed to test the "capabilities for rapid deployment."

At least six amphibious ships loaded troops, tanks, artillery and truckloads of explosives at Morehead City Saturday and Sunday. Two LST's and an amphibious transport left the docks Saturday and two transports and one LST left Sunday.

LONDON (AP)—President Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan today weighed Western strategy in the wake of the Vienna conference, and announced they see eye to eye in pursuing common policies throughout the world.

Kennedy at the same time was beginning to shape up a half-hour report he will make to the people of the United States Tuesday night by radio and television.

Today the President met for four hours with Macmillan, at lunch and in private conversation. This was the windup of a sort of four-power summit conference by stages.

First Kennedy spent three days with President Charles de Gaulle in Paris, then he was with Soviet Premier Khrushchev for two days' conversations in Vienna. That meeting ended Sunday night with a statement raising hopes of peace in Laos but reporting little concrete progress in other areas.

A statement issued after the conference said the two leaders noted with satisfaction the Vienna agreement for an effective cease-fire in Laos. They expressed belief this should lead to progress at the 14-nation Geneva conference on Laos, but such progress was not evident in today's meeting at Geneva.

Communist delegates there continued to brush aside any talk of cease-fire violations by the Communist side.

Kennedy and Macmillan also announced "full agreement on the necessity of maintaining the rights and obligations" of the American, British and French governments in Berlin. This was one of the major issues discussed in Vienna by the President and Soviet premier.

The communique said the two men reviewed the world situation in the light of Kennedy's talks with both De Gaulle and Khrushchev.

The President and Mr. Macmillan were thus able to continue the close personal contact begun in Washington two months ago," it added.

Khrushchev rushed home to welcome President Sukarno of Indonesia, a neutralist Asian leader whose government has contracted for more than $300 million worth of Soviet military aid.

Khrushchev told the Viennese in a farewell statement he hoped his talks with Kennedy would lead to peace, understanding and cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Reds Brush Off Truce Violations

GENEVA (AP)—Communist delegates to the East-West conference on Laos continued today to brush aside talk about cease-fire violations despite the announcement by President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev that they recognize the importance of an effective truce in the Southeast Asian kingdom.

The Communists hailed the Vienna conference as historic but there was no indication so far what effect the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting would have on the deadlocked Geneva meeting.

The conference, which had been marking time until after the President and the premier met, resumed today.

The first Communist speaker, J. Michalowski of Poland, expressed belief the Vienna meeting will help the Laotian conference in its work but gave strong support to the Soviet demand that the conference get to work on plans for a political settlement in Laos.

Michalowski urged the conference to spend no more time on the Western demands for new instructions to the international truce commission to prevent cease-fire violations.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Georgi Pushkin also brushed aside the cease-fire as a minor issue. He asked the non-Communist delegates what parts of the Soviet political proposals were unacceptable and urged them to present proposals of their own.

At Vienna, the Soviet leader sought to get across the idea that, despite setbacks in Laos and Cuba, the United States must fulfill its defense commitments to other nations around the world.

Today in London, President Kennedy and Macmillan spent nearly three hours mapping Western strategy in the East-West cold war. They dispensed with all advisers and officials for most of their session.

It took place in an austere study in Admiralty House. Outside, American and British security men and London policemen kept a watch on a crowd which at one time numbered nearly 5,000.

The nub of the President's report to Macmillan, diplomats said, amounted to this: "The Vienna exchanges produced better understanding of the rival positions—but no firm agreements beyond a decision to keep on talking."

U.S. television networks and the Mutual Broadcasting System radio are scheduled to carry President Kennedy's report to the American people Tuesday night. He will speak from 6 to 6:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time, from the White House. Wednesday Kenne-

The President, whose father was a target of bitter criticism as ambassador to Britain at the outset of World War II, had luncheon with Macmillan.

Tonight he is receiving the highest hospitality the nation can offer, dinner with Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace.

Guests at the luncheon included U.S. Ambassador and Mrs. David Bruce; the British foreign secretary, Lord Home, and the Countess of Home; the chancellor of the exchequer, John Selwyn Lloyd; the British ambassador to Washington, Sir Harold Caccia; the British ambassador-designate to Washington, David Ormsby-Gore; and Prince and Princess Radziwill.

Fountain School District Tax Is Authorized Today

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County's Commissioners today authorized a voter-approved special Fountain School District tax and recommended a ban on deer-hunting for three years in northern Pitt in a comparatively uneventful session.

Gathered for their regular June meeting, the commissioners canvassed a May 20 vote in Fountain School District and approved a resolution authorizing the levying of a 23-cent special supplemental tax effective for fiscal 1961-62.

The canvass showed Fountain District voters approved the 13 cent increase by 41 to 3. A total of 76 voters registered for the special referendum and a majority of actual voters was required for approval.

Previously, the Fountain district had been authorized to levy a special tax up to 10 cents per $100 valuation.

A request was presented to the commissioners to redistrict the area in Pitt County north of the Tar River to deer hunters. It was pointed out that an attempt is being made to establish deer herds in the county and, at this point, the game animals could be annihilated in one season.

The commissioners recommended that the General Assembly close that section of the county for three years to deer hunters. The N. C. Wildlife Commission is authorized to close particular areas to hunting, but only for one year at a time.

—Set Canvass—

The commissioners set Monday, June 19, as the canvass date for the bond election on establishment of a technical training school in the county.

Election day on the $395,000 issue is set for the preceding Saturday. Registrars from the county's precincts will gather at the courthouse June 19 to canvass the results. The Commissioners will also meet that day to authorize issuance of the bonds if the issue is approved.

Pitt County Soil Conservationist Roy Beck appeared before the board to explain in detail the laws and regulations under which the county SCS work unit operates.

He explained that his office is a branch of the federal agency while the Coastal Plain Soil Conservation District is a unit of state government established under state legislation.

—Art Center—

Officers of the East Carolina Art Society asked the commissioners for a contribution to the operating budget of the Greenville Art Center.

T. I. Wagner, a vice president of the society, presented the art center's $7,100 budget for 1961-62 and asked the board to "help us all you can on this thing."

Commissioners Chairman Robert G. Little told the delegation the matter would be taken under consideration as the commissioners formulate the county's budget.

Wagner said the society has also asked the City of Greenville for a contribution.

The commissioners commended the county departments involved in the recent administration of Pitt's participation in the surplus food program.

J. T. Fisher, pastor of the Bell Arthur Methodist Church was this morning's guest minister, who led the morning prayer.

Local Driver Severely Hurt In Sunday Wreck

Investigation is continuing in a collision at Stokes early yesterday, which saw a 25-year-old Route 3, Greenville man receive serious injuries when his speeding car crashed broadside into a tree.

Billy Grifton Godwin was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital suffering from two broken legs, a possible fractured skull and severe lacerations of his scalp and forehead, following the 3:30 a.m. mishap.

Luther Long of Bethel, investigating highway patrolman, said the Godwin car was headed north on N. C. 903, went out of control on a curve at Stokes and slammed sideways into a tree, demolishing the car.

The officer added that Godwin was thrown from the vehicle and was pinned between the auto and the tree for a short time before being freed and taken to the hospital.

The skidmarks left by the auto were visible for over 300 feet, Pitt Long stated.

H. C. Haddock of 1902 Myrtle Ave., Greenville, an eyewitness to the crash, was quoted by Pitt Long as saying the Godwin car passed his auto at a "high rate of speed" just before it went out of control and crashed.

The value of the 1959 model auto was placed by officers at $1,700.

In a second weekend mishap, an 18-year-old Route 1, Grimesland girl, Sally Sutton, was examined at Pitt Memorial Hospital for possible injuries, received at the intersection of U.S. 264 and Evans Street Extension, Saturday night.

Patrolman W. K. Chapman of Ayden, said Miss Sutton was seated in a car, parked at a service station at the intersection, when a second vehicle crashed into the rear of the car.

The force of impact knocked the parked auto, owned by Marion Clenton Robinson, 25, of Route 2, Ayden, 63 feet. The car was listed as a total loss.

Miss Sutton, who had been seated in the front seat of the car was knocked into the rear seat.

Driver of the car which struck the Robinson vehicle was identified as Samuel Westhington, 57-year-old Negro of 417 Wyatt St., Greenville.

The patrolman said the Westhington car was headed South on Evans St. and failed to stop for the stop sign at the intersection.

The car crossed two highway islands tearing down at least one highway sign and one warning post, then crossed the service station drive, before striking the parked vehicle and coming to a halt.

The auto traveled for 237 feet out of control after hitting the first safety island before stopping.

Witnesses were quoted as saying the Westhington vehicle "came through" the intersection at a "high rate of speed" according to Ptl. Chapman.

The officer noted Miss Sutton was complaining of pain to her head and neck but was released after an examination at the hospital.

Damage to the Westhington car was set at $600. Value of Robinson's 1961 model car, which was listed as a total loss, was set at $3,300.

Westhington was arrested on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and failure to stop for a stop sign.

The patrolman explained that Robinson was inside the service station when the collision occurred.

Board Okays Principals, Teachers, Bus Drivers

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

Approval of teacher, principal and bus driver assignments for the coming year and settlement of accident claims dominated morning business for members of the Pitt County Board of Education, holding their monthly meeting today.

The list of principals, teachers and bus drivers was read to the board by Mrs. Ethel G. Tucker, secretary, and approved by board members as presented. The list will be completed later.

A certificate of merit, in appreciation of "fine services rendered through the years to the schools of Pitt County" was awarded to Charles M. Sugg, past principal of North Fountain Elementary School in Fountain.

Three accidents involving school buses were reviewed with the board, Leon C. Forlines, in charge of school transportation, presented the claims.

The board approved a claim of $120.35 submitted by Mrs. Ruth Burdum Whichard of 112 Virginia Rd., Edenton. The accident involving Mrs. Whichard's automobile and a school bus driven by Harvey Ray Lewis occurred March 24 near Bethel, as the bus was backing up, Forlines said.

An estimate of $72.71 required to repair a second automobile involved in a separate accident on Big Oak Road near Flat Swamp Primitive Church on March 31 was also approved by the board. This accident involved school bus driver Philip Manning of Robersonville and the automobile driver Vernon L. Harvey, 20, of Robersonville.

It occurred when the bus, backing up to re-enter the highway, struck the parked automobile behind it, Forlines reported.

A third accident involved a Winterville school bus driven by James Allen Braxton and Leighton Jones of Pitt County, driving an automobile. On May 26, near the Hugh Winslow home outside Greenville, the bus was backing up after picking up school students, and struck the Jones automobile which had stalled behind it, Forlines explained that Jones said he could not start his car to move out of the bus' way.

The board approved a claim of not over $40 and agreed to reopen the case if the claim submitted is over $40. The proper form and blanks had not been completed and returned to the board as of this morning, which resulted in a tentative action.

Graduates

Superintendent of County Schools D. H. Conley reported to the board that some 436 high school students had graduated from county schools this year, including 282 white students and 154 Negro students.

The board approved a request from the Grimesland School Committee that they be made a part of a school survey to be carried out early in the fall. The survey primarily includes schools north of the river. The request was approved so that the school will be entitled to the services of the survey, it was pointed out.

Student protection insurance was approved to be renewed with The Walkes Agency, Inc., of Charlotte, at a cost of $150 per student or employe.

Other items on the agenda included a review of the special election held in Fountain and registration for the upcoming industrial school bond election. Voters of Fountain approved 41 to 3 a special tax in a special bond election on May 20.

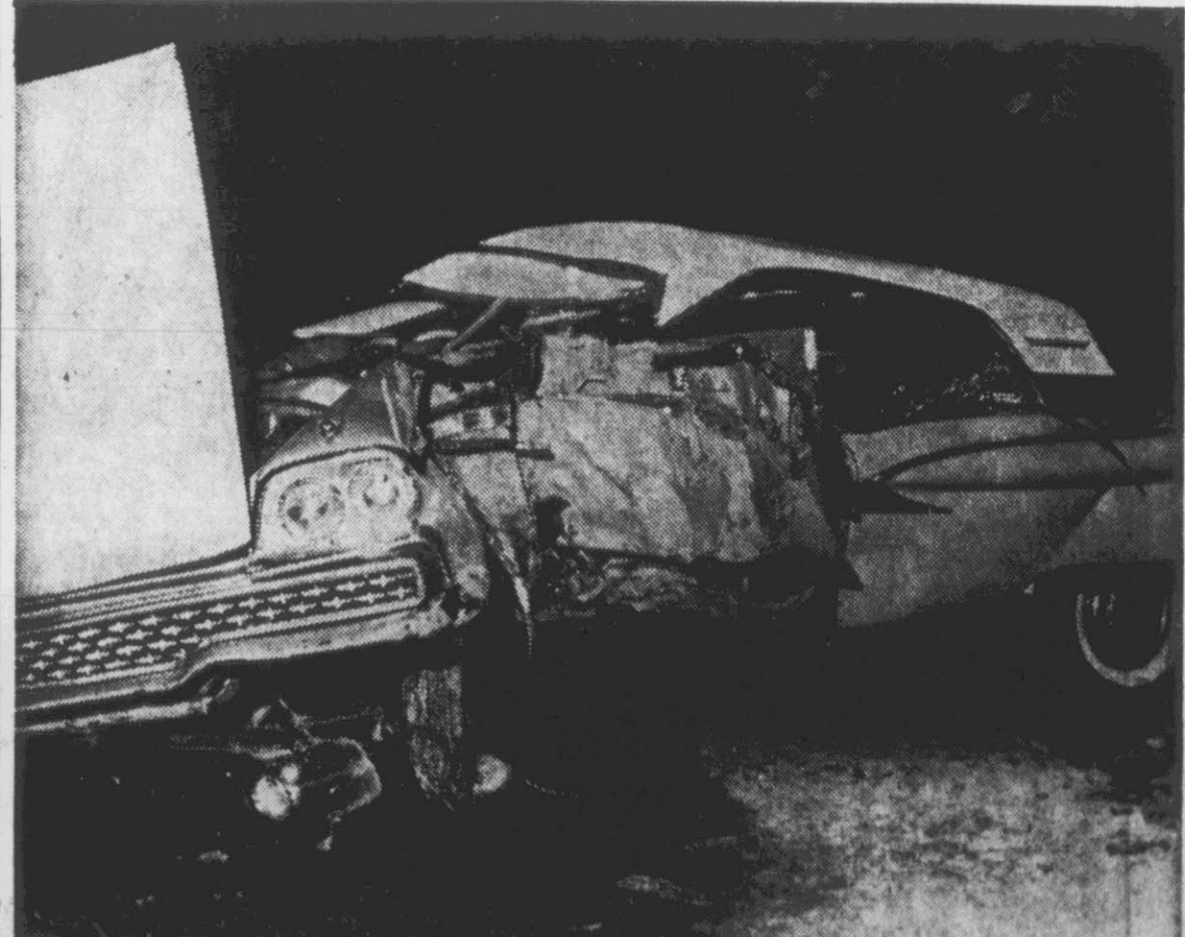

In routine business, members approved the 23rd of each month to be continued as pay day for county school personnel. Reports from Supervisors Arthur Alford and F. D. Sledge were distributed to board members. Activities for closing days of schools were also discussed. Financial reports for Pitt County Field Day and from the Pitt County Unit of the North Carolina Education Association showed that they are in the black.

Balance on hand for 1959-60 for the Pitt County Field Day was $58.01 with the amount collected for 1960-61 from refreshments as $216.65 totaling $274.66. Expenditures were $185.15, leaving a balance of $89.51. Supervisor Mrs. Edna Earle Baker reported that $6.28 of the $58.01 was deposited in 1960 for Negro Field Day.

The Pitt County unit of the N.C.E.A. reported a balance of $132.36 from 1959-60 with income this year of $4,770.50, making the total income $4,902.86. Expenditures were $4,578.55.

Balance for 1961-62 including the contingency fund, NEA delegate and general fund was $24.31.

Couple Married At High Noon Branch-Perley Vows Said In Richmond

MEBANE — Miss Peggie Ann Thigpen and James Edgar Moore were united in marriage in a 12 o'clock noon ceremony in the First Presbyterian Church in Burlington Sunday, June 3.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Dr. Chester Alexander.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard McAdoo Thigpen of Route 5, Burlington, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nathaniel Moore of 208 Meade Street, Greenville.

The couple were united in a setting of Areca palms, seven branched candelabra with lighted pink tapers, altar vases and floor baskets of pink gladioli, orchid chrysanthemums and pink and orchid pom poms. Pews were marked with pink satin ribbon and orchid maline.

Organist — Mrs. Tommy Lewis.

The bride's father gave her in marriage, and she was wearing a bridal gown of white organza styled in the princess line. The bodice featured a scoop neckline and short bertha collar extending over the shoulder and three quarter length sleeves. The neckline was edged with Swiss lace and the empire midriff also featured the Swiss lace. The bouffant skirt was formed over pleats which opened from a fitted waistline and flowed into a full chapel train. The veil of imported tiered illusion tulle was attached to an Alencon Shell embellished with tiny seed pearls and appliques of lace. Her bouquet was a colonial style with white purple throated orchid surrounded by stephanotis and moline and streamers of white satin with shower ribbon.

Maid of honor was Miss Phyllis Moore of Greenville, sister of the groom. She wore a delicate pink chiffon over taffeta dress. The bodice had a square neckline and short sleeves and a fitted midriff with the top softly pleated and gathered chiffon. The bell shaped skirt had soft unpressed pleats and was accented by a soft bow at the back waist. Pink shoes dyed to match were worn and the headpiece consisted of pink chiffon over taffeta with a short tulle veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of large chrysanthemums of pink with pink and white roses and maline centered.

Bridesmaids were Misses Diana Miller of Salisbury, Linda Enderbark, Sue Smith of Dudley and Willie Howard of Ingold, all students at Woman's College. Also Miss Nina Matlock of Elon College, cousin of the bride, and Miss Ann Matlock, cousin of the bride of Elon College, served as junior bridesmaid.

Their dresses were styled identical to that of the maid of honor but in different shades of pink and lavender. They carried flowers of pink and lavender chrysanthemums, colonial nosegays and pink maline and matching ribbon streamers.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Judy Vernon of Raleigh and Miss Lillie Sasser. They were attired in spring pastel colored dresses with matching shoes.

The bride's father was best man. Ushers were Ned Everette of Robersonville, Don Lassiter of Chapel Hill, Glen Briley of Greenville, Bob Mathews of Chapel Hill and Billy Barnhill of Greenville and Bill Adams.

Wedding directors were Miss Frances Prichett and Mrs. Chester Alexander.

The bride's mother wore a pink and white eyelet sheath with matching pink shoes and white gloves, pink hat and added a natural orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother chose a beige linen eyelet sheath with white accessories and a natural orchid corsage.

After September 4 the couple will reside in Glen Lennox in Chapel Hill. For their trip to Morehead City, the bride wore a baby blue and white linen eyelet sheath dress with white shoes and gloves. Her hat was white and she lifted the orchid from her bouquet.

For the reception, a wedding breakfast was held in the Green Room of the Alamo Hotel. Several palms were behind the receiving line forming the background.

The bride's table was covered with white lace and a centerpiece of candelabra with epernettes filled with pink and white flowers with pink streamers.

Refreshments consisted of rolled chicken salad sandwiches, hamcream puffs, New Orleans sticks, cheese-bells and hearts, green and white sandwiches, bride's pink and white mints, petit fours and ice mocha.

The catering was done by Mrs. R. E. Harden and those attending were the 80 relatives and friends of the bride and groom. Miss Foy Matlock poured punch and Miss Edith Brannock and Mrs. Brenson Rouse assisted with refreshments.

The bride attended Woman's College and the University of North Carolina. She was a home economics major and was elected Miss Mebane of 1961. She is presently employed as teller at Wa-

The Reverend Matthew Knight of Greenville, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Delano Ervin Russell

Vows were exchanged before an altar flanked by four seven-branched candelabras. Two tall baskets of white gladioli and pom poms, interspersed with baby-breath, adorned each side of the altar. Floor arrangements of fern graced the scene. Pews were marked with white satin ribbons.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Randolph Fleming, organist, and Elbert Bennett, vocalist, who sang "O Promise Me" by R. De Koven, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" by R. M. Stults, and "The Wedding Prayer" by Fern Glasgow Dunlap as the benediction. Traditional wedding marches by Tchengrin and Mendelsson were used.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Alton O. Spain of Greenville. She wore an Alfred Angelo original formal length gown of white Chantilly lace and tulle over taffeta. It was fashioned with an elongated bodice, wide scalloped sabrina neckline and the traditional long sleeves ending in calla points over her hands. Her voluminous skirt featured alternating tiers of ruffles of lace and pleated tulle, cascading into a chapel-length train.

Her two-tiered fingertip veil of illusion extended from a Swedish crown of lace and pearls.

She carried a white lace covered Bible topped with a white purple-throated orchid and baby-breaths. Ribbon streamers used with baby-breaths extended from the center.

The bride wore a string of pearls and single pearl earrings, gifts of the groom.

Miss Nadine Garris of Greenville was maid of honor. She wore a blue chiffon over taffeta dress, styled with a scooped neckline and sleeveless. The dress was accented by a taffeta cummerbund and featured a draped neckline, which was caught at the back with two rosettes, before extending to the hemline. She carried a blue and white nosegay. She wore a matching headress which featured a large rosette and a net veil. She wore blue satin shoes and white wrist-length gloves.

Bridesmaids were Miss Linda Spain of Greenville, niece of the bride, Miss Sandra Sutton of Ayden, cousin of the bride, Miss Joyce Coggins of Winterville, cousin of the bride, and Miss Joan Harris of Greenville. Their dresses and headresses were of pink and styled identical to that of the honor attendants. They carried pink and white nosegays, also identical to that of the maid of honor.

Little Miss Nancy Sue Spain, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a pink nylon and taffeta dress, trimmed in white lace, with white wrist-length gloves. She wore a pink rosette and net veiled headress, and carried a white flower basket filled with pink rose petals, tied with white taffeta ribbons. She scattered rose petals in the path of the bride.

Little Miss Cherry Lynn Spain of Conover and Master Allen Oliver Spain of Greenville, niece and nephew of the bride, served as ringbearers. She wore a blue dress and headress, identical to that of the flower girl and wore gloves, hat and matching jewelry. She wore the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Pre-Rehearsal Dinner
 Miss Elizabeth Spain and Miss Sandra Sutton entertained the Russell-Spain bridal party and relatives at a pre-rehearsal dinner Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sutton in Ayden.

Cake-Cutting
 Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Spain Sr., Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Spain Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Milton R. Spain entertained the Russell-Spain bridal party and close friends at the Mt. Pleasant Community Building near Greenville immediately following the rehearsal on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Spain chose for her daughter's wedding a powder blue nylon lace dress over taffeta and wore matching accessories. She wore a lavender orchid corsage.

Mrs. Russell, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a navy blue nylon lace over rayon and wore matching accessories. She also wore a lavender orchid corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple received in the vestibule of the church.

Mrs. Russell is a graduate of Belvoir-Falkland High School and plans to continue her education in the fall.

Mr. Russell is presently employed at Cox Armature Works in Greenville.

The couple plans to reside at Route 6, Greenville, after a wedding trip to the western part of North Carolina and various sections of Tennessee. For traveling the bride chose a beige eyelet dress over pink with a matching bolero jacket. She wore a beige shoes and carried a beige bag. The outfit was accented by pink

"Are Imported Fabrics Up To Our Standards?"
 —Miss M.E.D.
 Dear Miss M.E.D.
 Your question is timely. International trade brings not only fabrics but many other products into this country. The fashions, fabrics, and colors are very attractive and the glamour of foreign labels appeal to us all. However, foreign manufacturers do not all meet our standards for color-fastness and cleanability.

Typical, were complaints heard not long ago about Italian tweed suits. Some were black and white tweed, some hard red, yellow, blue, and green yarn flecks in them. These tweeds were of reprocessed wool, nylon, rayon and cotton. The chief complaint was against the black dye of the wool yarn. Moisture from stains caused the black to "bleed" over the white nylon, cotton and rayon fibers. The owners of the suits attempting to remove stains quickly with water only increased the "bleeding," causing the white fibers to take on a gray appearance. In two-piece suits, when one piece was cleaned and the other not, the pieces did not match.

To test a garment for color-fastness, moisten an inside seam and blot it with a white blotter. If the black dye shows on the blotter, beware! And don't blame your dryer cleaner if your fine imported tweed "bleeds" to accepted stain and spot removal procedures.

Our growing international trade will reveal more and more of these problems. Foreign fabrics are often beautiful, long-wearing and practical, but remember standards are not as rigid abroad as at home.

Delay Won't Make The Job Easier

The tough problem of redistricting North Carolina's congressional districts will not be any easier for the legislature in the fall or any other time than it is now.

Those who would put off the matter to a special session later in the year appear to us like the ostrich who sticks his head in the sand hoping that whatever is bothering him will go away.

The legislature has the responsibility in this session to carve 11 congressional districts out of the 12 which now comprise the state. The fact that two of the present congressmen will find themselves in the same district when this is done is inevitable. Postponing consideration of the matter will not change the picture. And neither is it likely that further study of the possible composition of the 11 potential districts will result in any easier course for the legislature in resolving the problem.

It has been known for almost a year that the state would lose one of its seats in the House of Representatives in the next session of Congress. Even before the legislature convened in February considerable time and effort had been put into studying the possible realignment of the state's congressional districts to comply with the new conditions. Since the legislature convened a wide variety of proposals have been offered both officially and unofficially for bringing about the redistricting. From these plans, or a combination of the plans so far presented, the legislature should be able to decide how to realign 11 districts in the place of the present 12.

For the General Assembly to come back in a special session this fall for the purpose of handling this matter which should be handled in the regular session would be a waste of the state's money and a waste of the legislators' time.

Whatever plan is adopted will not suit all of the people of North Carolina or all of the sections of the state. That will be true whether the redistricting legislation is passed in the current session or in a subsequent special session. The legislators, we believe, owe it to the people of the state to make their decision on congressional redistricting during the current session rather than postponing the matter until a special session.

Absolute 'Must' For Two Items

By LYNN NISBET

MONEY!—The General Assembly has understanding sympathy of most housewives in its current battle over imbalance between anticipated revenue and proposed spending. The householders extend sympathy but not much help, because they don't know how to balance the books, either.

As the Legislature goes into 17th full week — it passed the 100th legislative day, 11th calendar day last Saturday — the relationship between appropriations and revenue bills is reminiscent of the 1933 and 1935 sessions. Since 1939 there has been no really serious problem of balancing the budget.

In the depression years legislators spoke respectfully of total budgets in the aggregate amount of $30 to $40 million a year. Now they talk glibly in terms of $300 to $900 million. The total number of dollars involved does not affect the basic necessity of bringing the estimated spending within the scope of anticipated revenue, nor the necessity for the House and Senate to agree on both figures.

As the 1961 session goes into its 101st legislative day there is about $7 million difference in estimated revenue provided in the House and Senate plans, and a spread of $6 to $12 million between the anticipated revenue and the approved appropriations.

Actually, the situation is more complex than that. Because of technical bookkeeping distinction between general and special funds, and efforts to eliminate highway fund diversion by adding items heretofore charged to that account to the general fund bill, expert accountants confess inability to keep up with just what is going on.

CONFUSING — News stories have reported, for instance, that the joint appropriations committee has added more than $97 million to the amount recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission. Other news stories report that the Senate finance committee has added some $72 million, while the House committee has approved only $65 million. On face of these stories it would appear there is gap of $25 to $32 million.

It isn't that bad. The "juggling" of figures — and the juggling is entirely ethical and legal — among general, highway and other special funds reduces the margin to a sort of common denominator of around $10 million. That is a right size sum, but loses significance when considered in relation to the total budget of around a billion and a half dollars — representing about two-thirds of one percent. Adjustment should not be too difficult.

The trouble is, of course, that neither in appropriation or tax items can the adjustment be based on percentage. Some items not included in the bill must be taxed, or some items included in appropriations must be deleted. Either process steps on somebody's sore toe. It was just this sort of thing that old-timers remember prolonged the sessions in the early thirties.

Then, as now, there were many close votes — with frequent reversals of majorities by switching one member. Last week the chairman of the House finance subcommittee had to break the votes two or three times. On one key vote in the full committee the tally was 27 to 26 (in a group with 61 votes) in favor of the administration sponsored sales tax on food against an alternate levy on tobacco.

PROSPECTS — The administration has won every major contest in committee voting on money bills, but by very narrow margins in many instances. Betting odds around the sidelines of legislative circles are that the Sanford administration will win on all major points in final votes. But the victory will not be easy and will not be achieved without some losses and some concessions. As of now there is serious doubt that the compromise agreements can be worked out in time for sine die adjournment on June 17, the target date of the administration which is less than two weeks away.

There is an added question mark about sine die adjournment this year. Heretofore the money bills have controlled the date of adjournment, which has usually come within a week or ten days after agreement on the budget. This year the matter of congressional redistricting is an almost equally important factor.

Despite hasty passage of a bill by the senate without public notice or opportunity for citizens to be heard, the fact is the problem of redistricting is not much nearer solution after 100 days than it was when the Legislature convened in early February. Many citizens throughout the state have asked to be heard on the subject. Chairman Ed Kemp of the House committee has promised to hear as many of them as possible, although the first opportunity for such hearing was given last week — on the 98th legislative day of the 1961 session.

An appropriations bill must be enacted before July 1, or all agencies of State government will have to suspend operations. A redistricting bill must be enacted before the 1962 election or all eleven congressmen will have to run at large. Except for those items there are no absolute "musts."

The Staggering Toll Is Casually Accepted

If two airliners were to collide over the United States claiming several hundred lives, there would be an immediate cry of public indignation and demands for full investigations, new safety measures and far-reaching revisions of regulations to assure such a tragedy would not recur.

The same reaction would be forthcoming if a train or ship accident suddenly snuffed out a large number of lives.

But when the highway death toll soars to more than 450 on a holiday weekend such as the recent Memorial Day Weekend, the staggering loss of life is accepted almost as a matter of course. The American people who become greatly concerned over loss of life in some kinds of accidents shrug their shoulders at the highway massacre which takes place on a holiday.

So long as such an attitude of public apathy toward the staggering highway death toll prevails, there is little hope that an appreciable reduction in the toll will come about. There is little hope that the holidays throughout the year will not be marred by the ugly spectre of death on the highway.

Perhaps the reason for the apathy toward the tragic highway death toll is that it is not possible to pinpoint responsibility for the great loss of life. In the case of airliners, ships or trains, it is usually rather easy to point a finger at a relatively few people. In the case of a highway death toll of some 450 on a holiday weekend it is impossible to place the blame on a handful of people. The entire motoring public must share in the blame to some extent.

The greater tragedy of such a holiday weekend as the recent one is that it does not shake the public from its apathy toward greater highway safety. We look forward to the July 4th holiday, to Labor Day, to Thanksgiving and to Christmas with the full expectation that many more lives will be snuffed out as automobiles jam the highways.

There is little hope of eliminating the unreasonable highway death toll until the public as a whole shakes off its apathy toward the situation and joins in a genuine, concerted effort to make the highways safer.

Only Question Is On The Rate

By RALPH ROBEY

About the only question now concerning the business upturn is whether the recovery will be fast or slow. Majority opinion is that it will be slow. That view may well be wrong.

Actually both the adjectives, fast or slow, are ill-suited to an appraisal of the business curve. They are used merely as a shorthand expression for distinguishing between a situation where, having hit the low point, we ride along at that level for several months before turning up, and a recession from which there is an immediate and sharp upturn.

It is the difference between a saucer-shaped recovery and a v-shaped recovery. Those who maintain that this will be a slow, saucer-shaped recovery defend this view by saying that history shows that a gentle downturn is always followed by an equally gentle upturn. Whether history actually shows this depends upon what statistical measure is used, and there are many that may be employed — industrial production, employment and unemployment, gross national product, business profits, national or personal income, retail trade, government revenues, and so forth.

Each of these series has advantages and disadvantages, and no one can be picked out as necessarily the best. Most analysts probably use industrial production as measured by the index of the Federal Reserve Board. The great advantage of this is that it is based upon physical units and hence price changes do not affect it. The high of this index was in January of last year at 111. This means that production in that month was eleven percent above the average for 1957. The index was 102 for each of the first three months of this year, and then in April it jumped three points to 105. For this particular index that is an unusual monthly change, and it does not lend support to the thesis that the upturn will be slow.

Gross national product also is widely used for judging the business trend. This is the broadest economic measure we have. It is the monetary value of all the goods and services produced in the nation. Since it is expressed in dollar terms, a change of prices does affect it, but there is a correction for this. Government spending for goods and services is included in the total, and this can have an important, and at times a dominant, influence on gross national product. This is one of our most serious drawbacks from the viewpoint of measuring the basic health of the economic system.

The all-time high for gross national product was $505 billion in the second quarter of last year. In the first three months of this year the figure was just a shade under $500 billion, and between these two dates government outlays for goods and services increased over $6 billion. In other words, the private sector declined enough to offset this increase by government and some $5 billion in addition.

It will be some time before we have even a preliminary official estimate for the gross national product for the current three months, but it is widely expected that it will be at least equal to the previous high, and some persons think it may be close to $510 billion. For the final quarter of the year, present estimates are that gross national product will be around $525 billion. Almost all of this increase will come from the private sector of the economy.

If this expectation for gross national product proves true, this will not be a slow, saucer-shaped recovery. Rather it will mean that we have had a broad and rather amazingly rapid upturn. There still will be quite serious problems, both domestic and foreign, and some of them may be just as pressing as they are today. But the outlook today eliminates every possible justification for government action to end the recession or speed up the recovery.

That First 100 Daze

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Distinguishing Good, Bad

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The assassination of Raphael Trujillo must not be taken as an attack on a dictator. That is not true. Trujillo was the strongest anti-Communist force in Latin America. That he was also a dictator is not all surprising because most who gain power in Latin American countries are dictators. Only the State Department and the CIA can distinguish between a good and a bad dictator. Only the doctrine experts who labor in those government offices can perform such psychological wonders. To the rest of the Americans, a man is to be judged by his attitude toward the United States. Who ever is against us is no good. It is as simple as that.

The CIA doctrine of intervention is intolerable from the standpoint of American history and American tradition. When this country decides policy on the basis of the virtue of those who govern a country, we should have no country to be friendly with. For virtue is differently regarded in different cultures. No Latin American would ever think of judging American public men by their virtue. The investigation would be as disappointing to them as it is disappointing to us to look into the biographies of some of our allies and the nations to which we have been giving millions in aid.

The test then is not virtue and cannot be. The younger men who sit on the fourth floor of the State Department or who prowl the Earth seeking righteousness for the CIA do not serve this country. The American doctrine has been one of non-intervention in the internal affairs of other countries. The United States has heretofore avoided attempting to enforce its concept of government upon other peoples. It is only since Woodrow Wilson that the United States considered world leadership and actually no great effort in that direction was made until Franklin D. Roosevelt became President. World Leadership has become a very expensive and unsatisfying toy for us.

The United States has assumed since the Presidency of James Monroe (1817-1825) that it has solved any problem that might arise in Latin America by the Monroe Doctrine. This was a statement of policy which appeared in a Message to Congress and which was acknowledged throughout the world as binding, although during the Civil War, Napoleon III attempted to violate it by placing Maximilian of Austria on the throne of Mexico. It is worth recalling what the Monroe Doctrine actually said:

"In the wars of the European powers in matters relating to themselves we have never taken any part, nor does it comport with our policy so to do. It is only when our rights are invaded or seriously menaced that we resent injuries or make preparation for our defense. With the movements in this hemisphere we are of necessity more immediately connected, and by causes which must be obvious to all enlightened and impartial observers. The political system of the allied powers is essentially different in this respect from that of America. This difference believe that our Southern brethren adhered rigidly to the principles proceeds from that which exists in their respective Governments; and to the defense of your own, which has been achieved by the loss of so much blood and treasure, and matured by the wisdom of their most enlightened citizens, and under which we have enjoyed unexampled felicity, this whole nation is devoted. We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety."

Further, it says:

"It is impossible that the allied powers of that time should extend their political system to any portion of either continent without endangering our peace and happiness; now can anyone believe that our Southern brethren, if left to themselves, would adopt it of their own accord. It is equally impossible, therefore, that we should behold such interposition in any form with indifference."

This Doctrine made it clear that the United States would not permit a foreign power to gain territory or to control peoples on this continent. From 1823 until Wilson's Administration, we adhered rigidly to the principles of the Monroe Doctrine. Since then our policy has changed. The results have been unfavorable. The Soviet Universal State has moved right in, setting up headquarters in Havana.

Other Editors Saying Why A Special Session?

(Kinston Free Press)

The current fight over the redistricting of North Carolina by the General Assembly has taken a new turn with Rep. Pat Taylor of Anderson County urging a special session of the Assembly to consider the matter. Piedmont leaders are resentful of Eastern Democrats for seeking to place GOP Rep. Charles Jonas with Democrat Rep. Paul Kitchen.

They say it will backfire in the next general election to the ultimate gain of the GOP in a number of districts in the middle of the State.

It is time to ask some cold, analytical questions about this matter and to move ahead with the best possible solution. In the first place, if the majority party decided to make concessions now and be easy on Rep. Jonas and his constituency in the next general election, is there any concrete evidence that there would be reciprocal consideration by the GOP?

Has there ever been a majority party in this State or other states that voluntarily penalized itself? In New York State now the controlling GOP leadership is busy with redistricting efforts that certainly will penalize the Democratic Party in the next general election.

What should be avoided in North Carolina as much as possible, as we see it, is any illogical effort to make the district in which GOP Congressman Jonas has to run an unwieldy conglomeration of gerrymandered counties that could not be considered fair play for the incumbents.

In its final analysis this whole issue will be fought out at the polls the next time the voters have a chance. If competent public servants compete for the seats and the full electorate expresses itself, then the result is likely to be the outcome, regardless of the outcome. After more than 90 days of consideration of this matter in the current session of the General Assembly, it would be wasteful and foolish to set up another session to consider it. The issues will be no different next Fall than they are today.

Figuring On Cost Of The 'Bite'

By ELMER ROESSNER

Search of business libraries and government publications fails to turn up an authoritative writing on the cost of "the bite" on business.

Countless books tell about determining overhead, ratios of advertising to sales, sales analysis, cost accounting, management ratio, allocation of fringe benefit costs and every other large and small, facets of American business.

But there is no trace of any book or study telling how much a business must or should pay in "honest graft," "friendship gifts," "benefit tickets," tips, contributions and whatnot.

This is passing strange. Somewhere in this hallowed land there may be a town in which the cops on the beat don't expect gifts, where the firemen don't sell tickets to balls, and where inspectors turn down presents. If you know of such an uncivilized hamlet, let me know.

SECRET COST OF DOING BUSINESS
Every businessman and every city official from Hell, Me., and Breakfast, Calif., knows about the bite. College economics professors should know about it too, or turn in their Phi Beta Kappa keys.

The blunt truth (and Moscow papers, please don't copy), is that almost every business in the United States is paying tribute to police, to inspectors and to other officials for one or two reasons: they are operating with minor law violations or they haven't got the guts to say no when a government employee walks in with a hand out.

In many cities, the laws are so contrived that it is utterly impossible for a company to stay in business without violating one or more laws. These laws are not intended to drive businesses out of town; they are fessod by local politicians to put businesses into the position of paying heavy fines in court, or cheaper gifts to officials.

LET'S RECOGNIZE IT
In many cities, the cop on the beat gets his $2 a week whether the business obeys the law or not. Building inspectors get larger gifts for inspecting work even if perfect. Firemen get $3.50 each for tickets to balls that no one ever attends. Sanitation men get their presents or you never see the lid of your garbage can again.

It is not the purpose of this column to discuss the ethics or morals of these practices. The basic point is this: the professors, writers and government people pretend the bite does not exist.

There are no warnings that certain allowances must be made for the civic squeeze; there are no schedules that show how much a prowl car driver should expect each week if your store is not to be broken into; there is no scale as to how much more a safety inspector should get than a police sergeant.

Business is grown up now. Let's turn some of our research to the question of how much honest graft costs business; how much a company should plan to spend for the bite as well as for fringe benefits; and what are normal ratios between squeeze gifts and say, rent or employees' health benefits. Let's just stop pretending that

Motels Become 'Big'

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Perhaps it continues to be America's fastest growing industry from a money-invested standpoint; but the number of new individual motels declined in 1960. Motels are becoming "big business" and from an investment standpoint may now be classified with hotels. Motels, now, are hotels laid on their sides! Let me venture to say that real estate has become our fastest growing industry.

The first English translation of Sir Isaac Newton's Law of Action and Reaction — upon which the theory of the Economic Cycle and the business of most Investment Counseling are based — was made in 1728. In those days, this Cycle practically applied only to gold and real estate. The price of gold has since become controlled by the Federal Government; but the cycle theory still applies to real estate. I personally believe that we may have passed the peak of the present real estate cycle.

Of course, the general condition of business always has a profound effect on the real estate situation — housing in particular. Since I fear that no great economic boom is now probable, the immediate future of real estate must depend upon other factors. One of these is the availability and cost of money. Another is the cost of new building. Neither of these factors is now helpful to real estate.

Another thing to remember is that the regularity and balance of cycles in real estate activity are especially pronounced. Upward and downward swings tend to match, in both intensity and duration. But according to Sir Isaac Newton's Law, it is the product of the intensity and duration which must be in balance. The American doctrine of the allied powers is essentially different in this respect from that of America. This difference believe that our Southern brethren adhered rigidly to the principles proceeds from that which exists in their respective Governments; and to the defense of your own, which has been achieved by the loss of so much blood and treasure, and matured by the wisdom of their most enlightened citizens, and under which we have enjoyed unexampled felicity, this whole nation is devoted. We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety."

Overextension and retrenchment are psychological human forces which cannot be measured. Another human factor is the large number of people reaching the age of 20, which means more marriages. This will call for more rented houses and small apartments. The big home-buying age is 30-35. The percentage of Americans reaching these ages has begun to decline. There is, however, a growing trend toward home ownership, especially homes in the suburbs. This figure is now 60 per cent. Hence, rental price rises have fallen below the cost-of-living advance. Foreclosures have been increasing in certain new subdivisions. Office buildings continue in demand, with vacancies of not over 5 per cent.

Since the Kennedy Administration's policies should result in higher income for the farmer, I expect a further rise in farm land values and prices in near cities, both large and small. The old advice: "Buy the acre and sell by the foot" is still good. Also remember that each city is growing fastest in some one direction — it may be "east" or "west" or "south."

Before speculating in vacant land, there are certain facts you should get. Determine the current land values and prices in the area, tax rates and appraisal methods, new roads and highways approved for construction (as well as those in the proposal stage), all pertinent construction plans by government and private enterprise, the growth rate in the area as compared with other sections of the country. You must guess: The length of time before land appreciation will take place, the possibility of being isolated by highways not yet proposed, the danger of sharp tax-rate boosts, the future cost of utilities, likelihood of industrial expansion, and future prospects for existing industries.

In Summary: Real estate investment at this time can still be sound — particularly in relation to many other profit ventures — but the absence of any evidence of a great new boom makes it more important than ever for you to select your vacant - land investment with great care. Final thought: Remember how fast interest and taxes pile up!

Tour Arrangements Being Made For New York Assembly

According to W.R. Nichols, Presiding Minister of the Greenville congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, travel arrangements have been completed for several delegates to attend the "United Worshipers Assembly" at Yankee Stadium, New York City, June 20-25. Nichols said that most of the local residents who plan to attend the convention will be leaving on June 19th so as to arrive in time to get in their accommodations and attend the opening sessions of the convention. Many of the delegates will stay in private homes. He reported that members of the congregation had made up several car groups for the trip to New York.

Pirates Open NAIA Play Tomorrow

DEPARTING BUCS . . . This was the scene Sunday morning as the East Carolina baseball team made preparations for its trip to Sioux City, Iowa where the Pirates will participate in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament tomorrow, when they lock horns with Winona State College of Minnesota. Game time is set for 12 noon, EST.

By LEONARD LAO
Reflector Sports Writer

East Carolina's North State Conference Baseball Champions open play in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament tomorrow, when they lock horns with Winona State College of Minnesota. Game time is set for 12 noon, EST.

The Pirates left for Sioux City, Iowa, the site of the National playoffs, Sunday morning. Buc veteran coach, Jim Mallory, leads the party of 16.

Other first round pairings find Sam Houston against Defiance, Sacramento against Omaha, and Grambling against Slippery Rock. If the Pirates are successful against the Minnesota team, they will meet the winner of the Sam Houston-Defiance contest in a 7 p.m. game on Wednesday.

Should the locals lose to Winona State, they will meet the loser of the Sam Houston-Defiance game at noon on Wednesday in the double elimination tournament.

East Carolina posted an 18-3 regular season record, then added two more victories last week in the Area playoffs, defeating St. Bernard of Alabama and Carson-Newman of Tennessee to run their record up to 20-3.

The Buc carried a trio of the best pitchers in the state to Iowa in Larry Crayton, Lacy West and Nathan Greene. Crayton and Greene were both named to the All-Conference team, and Crayton has been an All-Stater for the past two seasons. West, in his first season as a Pirate baseballer, has posted a 5-0 record this season, and has established himself as somewhat of a "rookie of the year" in the North State Conference circle.

The Pirates are not lacking in the hitting department, either. They boast six men who carry better than 300 batting averages into the national playoffs. They are catcher, Charlie Johnson, first baseman, Jimmy Martin, shortstop, Glenn Base, third baseman, Floyd Wicker, right fielder, Cotton Clayton, and left fielder Merrill Bynum.

Seven-Game Win Streak Enjoyed By Greensboro

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Greensboro has become the hottest team in the Carolina League putting together a seven-game winning string and climbing to within 1/2 game of fourth place Durham.

Greensboro topped Burlington 3-1 Sunday while first-pitcher Wilson was defeating Durham 6-3 and second-place Winston-Salem was trouncing Raleigh 11-2.

Greensboro won its contest behind the two-hit pitching of Jerry Heintz, who lost a no-hitter when Burlington's Fred Krase singled in the sixth.

Powerful Chuck Weatherspoon and Joe McCabe each hit two run homers to spark Wilson's offensive against Durham. Righthander Jim Rantz supplied air-tight pitching in relief.

Winston-Salem, leading 3-2 after six innings, rallied for five runs in the seventh and then added three more in the ninth to swamp Raleigh.

Greensboro entertains Raleigh tonight. Durham is at Winston-Salem and Burlington at Wilson.

Cleveland's Big Drive Is Still Short Of Detroit's

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland is making a big move in the American League race by winning 18 of its last 22 games, but it can't match the home run boom of the front-running Detroit Tigers.

The secret of Detroit's ability can be read in the Sunday box scores. The Tigers' eight home runs were hit by eight different men.

Sure, the big men hit a few Rocky Colavito got No. 15, Norm Cash No. 12, and Dick Brown

No. 9. But the list also included Chico Fernandez, Bubba Morton, Mike Roarke, Jake Wood and Billy Bruton.

The Tigers now lead the league in home runs with a total of 61, a statistic that is almost as startling as their long tenure in first place.

Detroit took two falls out of the groggy Minnesota Twins Sunday 10-4 and 9-3. The Twins now have lost nine in a row and 14 of their last 15.

Cleveland continued to streak along on the trail of the Tigers by sweeping two from the Los Angeles Angels, who can't seem to do much when they get out of Wrigley Field. The Indians won 5-3 and 8-4.

New York finally found a pitcher besides Whitey Ford who could go the route in Bill Stafford. He proceeded to hold Chicago to seven hits while the White Sox chipped in with five errors, easing the Yanks' way to a 10-1 romp.

Boston beat Baltimore 6-5 and Joe Ginsberg's pinch two-run single in the last of the ninth. It was Ginsberg's first hit of the year.

Jim Archer, who escaped from the Kansas City bullpen on the suggestion of owner Charlie Finley, went all the way to top Washington 8-5 although he gave up 15 hits, five in the ninth.

In the National League, Los Angeles remained a half game in front of Cincinnati and San Francisco, who are tied for second.

The Giants knocked off the Dodgers 4-2 on Felipe Alou's two-run homer. Cincinnati split with Chicago, the Reds taking the first 3-1 but losing the second 8-2.

Warren Spahn won his 294th as Milwaukee beat St. Louis 7-1 and Philadelphia's Don Ferrarese blanked Pittsburgh 5-0.

The Tigers rally exploded the power to back up Frank Lary en route to his eighth victory in the opener. Brown, Wood and Fernandez hit their homers in the eighth inning. Bob Bruce gave way to Paul Foytack, the eventual winner, in the second game of a doubleheader played before 32,761 at Detroit.

John Romano continued his streak, hitting safely in his 18th and 19th games in Cleveland's sweep over the Angels. Jim Perry needed help from Bob Allen and Frank Funk in the first. Wynn Hawkins, all of whose five victories have come on Sunday, got a hand from Bobby Locke in the late innings of the second. The Yanks got four runs off Billy Pierce in the first on three walks, an error by Aparicio and a three-run homer by Elston Howard. Later, Paul Maris hit his 15th homer.

Ginsberg, winning hit in Boston off Hoyt Wilhelm came after the Red Sox had failed three times to bring home the tying run from third base. Jim Gentile hit No. 14 for the Orioles.

Kansas City climbed past Washington into fifth place on Archer's victory. Among the 13 hits by the A's was Andy Carey's third homer.

On The Scene

A member of the Sports staff of the Daily Reflector is on hand at Sioux City, Iowa to give followers of the East Carolina baseball team special coverage on the results of the Pirates' play in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament.

Roy Martin, sports writer, left with the college baseball team yesterday to fly to Sioux City.

Falkland Tops Hobgood By 16-8

Falkland came from behind Sunday and shelled three Hobgood pitchers for 17 hits and defeated the league leaders by a score of 16-8.

Haywood Outland was the winning pitcher for Falkland. Autry Hamill and Earl Tripp each had homers for the winners, while Kenneth Vanderburg was busy rapping out triples and singles.

In other Eastern County league action, Greenville dropped a pair of games to Oak City. The winners return to Greenville next Sunday for a doubleheader, while Falkland travels to Hobgood for a pair of games.

Billy Dunn and Haywood Outland will be scheduled to handle the mound chores in these two games.

COURSE RECORD

LINVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Bill Duckworth of Orlando, Fla., set a course record of 3:02.1 for the 2.5-mile Grandfather Mountain Sports Car Hill Climb Sunday. He drove a Siata-Corvette.

The San Francisco Giants pitching staff turned in 16 shutouts during the 1960 season.

Local Legion Team Tops Kinston By 5-1 Score

Greenville's Post 39 American Legion team dropped Kinston Saturday night to close out their pre-season games with a 5-1 victory.

The locals open their regular season schedule tonight when they make tracks for Rocky Mount. Billy Wynn, a husky moundsman from Williamston is set to handle the mound chores against Rocky Mount, according to Post 39 coach, Bud Phillips.

The locals scored four big runs in the eighth inning to secure the win over the Kinston nine. A hit batsman, a pair of walks, and a single by Post 39 catcher, Riley produced two runs. A fielder's choice and a passed ball accounted for the other two.

The winners scored one tally in the sixth, on three walks by losing pitcher, Dail and a single by Wynn.

The losers scored their only run in the seventh, on a pair of singles by Tommy Mattocks and Bill Jenkins.

Post 39 will open their home schedule next Wednesday against Roanoke Rapids.

Locals Drop Two To Oak City Club

OAK CITY—Greenville dropped two games to Oak City 12-1 and 3-2 here yesterday.

However, Greenville Manager J. H. Harris said he was protesting the games. He claimed that an Oak City player is under contract to Greenville. The protest will be forwarded to the league president.

In the first game Greenville got one hit. Malcolm Griffith was the losing pitcher. He was relieved in the fourth inning by Carl Pollard.

In the second game Tommy Dunn pitched for Greenville to the sixth inning when he sprained an ankle. He was relieved by Billy Cooper.

Recent heavy rains have leached portions of the plant food from corn and other crops just the same as it has from tobacco fields.

Most growers have attempted to replace this plant food in their tobacco fields but few growers have considered replacing the leached fertility on their other crops. The main crops to be concerned about at this time would be corn, cotton, and cucumbers.

A high percentage of the corn is showing considerable abuse from excess water and cool weather.

It would be well to consider the application of 15 to 20 pounds per acre of nitrate nitrogen immediately to all corn not showing proper growth.

Then at the proper time, apply the regular amounts of side dressing that you had previously planned to use. This is on the assumption that you have a full stand of corn. If the stand has been reduced you should reduce the amount of top dressing accordingly.

A similar approach should be taken regarding the cotton. A small amount of nitrate nitrogen immediately will help to restore growth potential to the cotton crop.

If you have not already sidedressed your cucumber acreage this should be done immediately. Use at least 25 pounds per acre of a nitrate nitrogen.

Rules Changed On Gift To Dad

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"I bid a dime," said Jim Ezell, 13, as the auctioneer held up a 17-jewel wrist watch.

The bidding went up to $1.25, but Jim stopped at $1, disappointment on his face.

"Why did you want the watch, boy?" asked auctioneer Leo Proctor.

"To give to my dad on Father's Day," said Jim.

"The watch is yours," said Proctor.

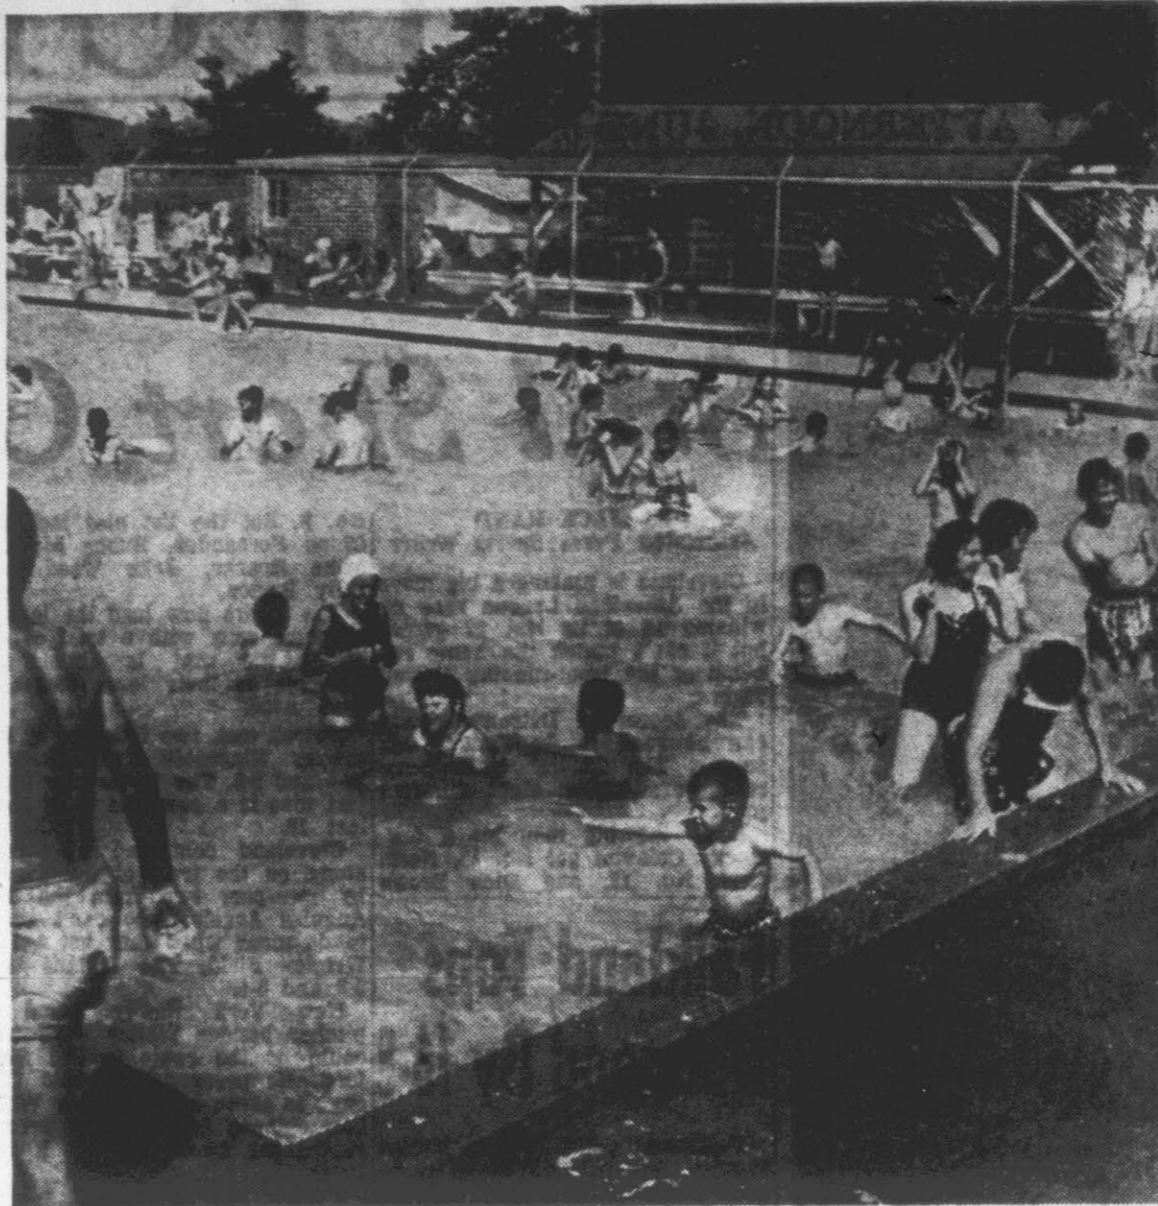

The trimmings auction of unclaimed merchandise held Saturday by the Los Angeles Police raised about $10,000 for fire and police pension funds.

FOR WIVES ONLY

The degree is given for the women's efforts in "putting hubby through" college.

Summer Term At East Carolina Starting Today

East Carolina opened for the 1961 Summer Term today with registration of students. Classes will begin Tuesday.

The summer term is divided into two sessions. The first extends from June 5 through July 11, and the second from July 12 through August 17.

Enrollment for the first session is expected to exceed 2500 students. Registrar John H. Horne stated today. Last summer approximately 2250 students registered for courses during the first session.

Major events of the 1961 Summer School include a series of workshops, conferences, and clinics in various areas of educational interest. A travel-study tour to Europe and a geography tour through the Southwestern states are slated to begin early in June.

Other events include the regional Gregg Methods Conference for teachers of business in the eastern states of the nation, June 28-30; the eleventh annual East Carolina College Summer Music Camp, July 16-29; and the 1961 state-wide conference of the N. C. English Teachers Association, August 4-5.

Courses are offered in fifteen departments of instruction during the summer term. An expanded curriculum, allowing students to schedule courses conveniently so as to complete their college work in three years, includes for the first session 82 courses in addition to those taught in previous years and for the second session 48 additional courses.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation 89. At all drug counters.

Last Rites Held For Mrs. Clyde Bellamy

VANCEBORO—Mrs. Vula Bland Bellamy, 66, died at 6:40 Sunday morning at her home in the Epworth community of Craven County. She had been ill for several months. Funeral services were conducted Monday at 4 p.m. at the Epworth Methodist Church and burial was in the church cemetery. The Rev. A. C. Regan, pastor, will conduct the service, assisted by the Rev. Ellis Bedsworth, a former pastor. The body will be taken to the church an hour before the time of service.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Velvin Dennis of the home; five sons, Shade I. Bland of Bridgeton, Glasco S. Bland and Wesley E. Bland of Epworth, Rodman B. Bland of Norfolk, and Carlton W. Bland of New Bern; 21 grandchildren; and two brothers, Ellis Peterson of Epworth, and Norman Peterson of Harlow.

Mrs. Bellamy spent all of her life in the Vanceboro community and was a member of the Epworth Methodist Church. She was married to Shade Bland, who died in 1942. She was later married to Clyde Bellamy, and he died in 1958.

Four In Car Killed Instantly

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP)—The air-conditioned car's windows were closed to keep out the Sunday afternoon heat. They also kept out the blasts of a passenger train's whistle as it approached a crossing.

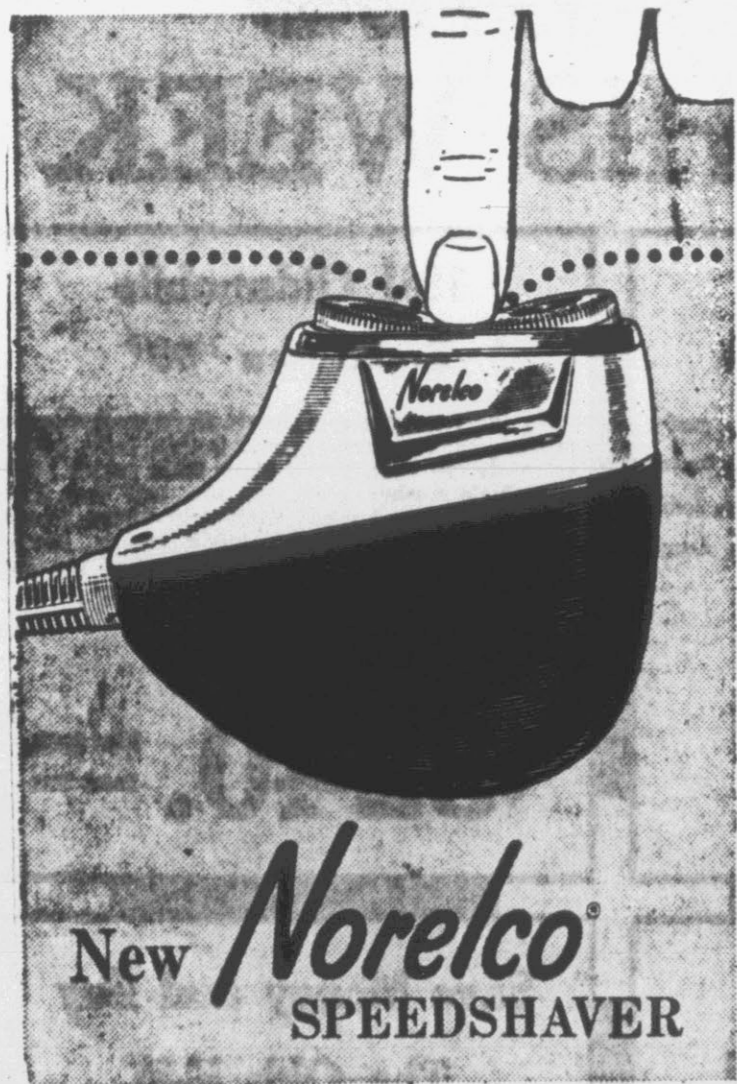

The train rammed the car, state troopers said, and dragged it about 60 feet down the track. The four passengers were killed instantly.

FATHERS:

How much Social Security will your wife get? Have you unintentionally "disinherited" a child? Find the answer to these and other vital questions with a

FAMILY SECURITY CHECK-UP

Now you can check up on your family's financial health, just as you check up on your physical health. This service is more than an interview. It is a review every father should have regularly—whether he needs insurance or not.

service makes sense. Remember, Metropolitan is as local as Main Street—as close as your phone. Call your Metropolitan man today.

There is no obligation—except to those you love.

What you could lose without one
There are mistakes, oversights, gaps in the average man's financial security program. Too much of it is haphazard. Too much of it is left to chance. It lacks a plan. Or, too often, it simply falls behind the times.

For example, the Social Security law has been changed nine times since its inception. And the Social Security benefits your wife and children could get may not dovetail efficiently with your pension or insurance programs. Then too—you can unintentionally "disinherit" a child, in effect, if you have overlooked naming him among your beneficiaries.

More than an interview—a service
Metropolitan, the Company you look to for authoritative information on physical health, offers a way to check up on your family's financial health.

Metropolitan representatives have been trained in Metropolitan's own schools and are qualified by solid experience to bring you this Family Security Check-Up service. They are equipped with businesslike charts and tables that show you exactly where you stand.

Whether you need insurance or not, this

WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT DOES FOR YOU

With the help of your Metropolitan man

1. You check the facts: your Social Security, your home, your life insurance, your pension plan, your savings and other assets. You may be surprised to learn how much you're worth.
2. You weigh your responsibilities: mortgage or rent payments, education, retirement, accident and sickness emergencies; how much it would cost your family to live without you.
3. You learn where you stand. You determine your weak and strong points... whether the provisions you have made for your family will do what you intend. You get the facts in front of you.
4. You plan for the future. Based on these facts, you decide what action, if any, may be needed to give you a family security plan, tailor-made to your own needs and ambitions—one which makes good sense for you.

DONALD BARR CHIDSEY'S New Historical Entertainment THE WICKEDEST PILGRIM

CHAPTER 14

It was good to be aboard the Mayflower again. Miles Standish was summoned to the main cabin, from which the others were excluded. But the others were summoned there too, or most of them, later. Sal was the last to go, along with Edward Dotey and Edward Leister. He thought the connection was significant, and was prepared for insult.

Brewster, Carver, Winthrop, they were all there, looking portentous; and not only the principal saints but some of the strangers as well. William Mullins for one, and Miles Standish, and even John Billington, who looked sulky, dissatisfied.

Elder Brewster smiled upon the newcomers, and delicately cleared his throat.

"It has been thought by some of us, may most of us, virtually all," he started, "that before we go ashore, wherever that may be, and whenever, we would do well to have a distinct understanding as to our government. I mean, how we should rule ourselves."

"Rule ourselves?" cried Sal, flabbergasted.

"How else? We are three thousand miles from Court and King, and three thousand miles from the remainder of the adventurers. We must needs make out our own court. Surely you see that?"

Sal was frowning.

"Go on," he said.

Elder Brewster picked up a paper. It was a simple thing, with no seals or stamps, no ribands attached.

"We have framed this, uh, well, charter."

"Only the King can grant a charter," Sal pointed out.

"Why I suppose you'd call it a compact, then. Anyway, all of us here have signed it, and some others. That does not mean, you understand, that you three young men will be expected to do the same. It's entirely up to you."

Dotey and Leister, their master's eye upon them, and realizing that it was too late to object nodded submissively.

"Why don't you read it?" Sal asked.

"I was about to do that."

There was some silence after. Elder Brewster finished reading and put the paper down.

Everybody looked at Sal, excepting John Carver, who looked at his servants. After a moment Dotey and Leister, all fire gone, stepped up and signed. Then they left.

Elder Brewster sanded the signatures, and proffered the pen to Sal, who shook his head.

"It is not necessary that you write your name," the elder said in a kindly voice. "Somebody could write it for you, and you could make—"

"Oh, I can write my name all right. But—I'm not going to write it on a paper like that. It sounds against the King."

"Boyd, it is not meant to be."

"Well, it sounds that way. It sounds illegal."

"But if—"

"It ain't natural. How could we set up our own government?"

"It may not be natural, but it's needed. You'll not sign?"

"No, sir. I'll do almost anything else that most of you others think is right, but I won't put my name on something that speaks against the King."

"But—it doesn't."

"I think it does," said Sal, and he went out.

The next day no work was done, for it was the Lord's Day. Even Captain Jones, though there would be repairing, refitting, refitting, allowed his men to loaf. The weather held, grim, unpleasant, but not severe; wet, smelling of snow that never did fall.

The saints, when they were not holding services, clustered around their braziers in a cabin that now was redolent of the sweet smell of juniper.

Nobody went ashore. Few even looked in that direction, so chill was the prospect, making them feel excruciatingly lonely.

An exception to the general reluctance to gaze upon the New World was Dorothy Bradford. Sal saw her on the high poop deck, seated on the taffrail, looking toward shore. That was also toward England. Was she thinking of her son at home?

This was a place withdrawn, now that there was no watch, and a place moreover where she had no right to be. Either she had not been seen, or, having been seen, she'd been so pitied, what with her pale pinched face, her red eyes, the hands folded in her lap, that even Christopher Jones did not have the heart to shoo her away.

It came on colder, and there were complaints. For several days they toiled willingly, even enthusiastically, the women at a fresh-water pond near the beach washing clothes and bedding, the men on the shallop which had been stored in the hold. Meanwhile Miles Standish and Sal and others stood guard, and the longboat piled back and forth between ship and shore. An outsider, viewing this scene, might think that all was well.

An outsider would have been wrong. They were split not only into strangers and saints, with the strangers resenting the control

Places First In Display Contest

John Archie (Jay) Alphin, Jr., of Rt. 5, Fayetteville, East Carolina College business student, has been announced as first-place winner in a national contest in merchandising displays staged by the Student Marketing Institute of New York City.

Alphin's window display "Relax for Exams" was entered in the American Tobacco Company Campus Campaign of the Institute, and received a $50 prize. Dr. William H. Durham of the college business department acted as advisor to Alphin in the project.

"Relax for Exams," on view in a display window in the Rawl building on the campus here, is described as follows:

That was exercised by the saints, the Leyden separatists who though not overweighing about it, were determined to keep their grip upon the company; they split as well into masters, Goodman, employed artisans like Alden, and indentured servants. That they had signed their names did not make them acquiescent.

Those who were left on the ship croaked because they were not permitted to go ashore, while those who went ashore to work on the shallop croaked because the guards only stood about, hauling nothing, hammering nothing, holding nothing heavier than their muskets, and whenever they felt like it making pleasant converse with the women. Even the women themselves might be expected to whine, once the dirty laundry ran out.

The first fine welling of elation, the initial sense of achievement, had signed their names did not bring to ask themselves where they were, how they had got there, and what they ought to do about it. "Cape Cod" meant little. They did have John Smith's map, as well as a copy of his book, A Description of New-England, but these, though recent, were of no real help.

Some of the leaders had talked with the doughty Captain himself, in England, just before the sailing, but they had declined his offer to go with them as an expert, for they had pointed out that his book was cheaper than his services might be. Now perhaps they wished that they had not so decided.

Surely they could not settle in the horrid land, yet neither could they explore the shore of the bay until their shallop was ready. And work on the shallop dragged. There was a great deal of quiet but dogged bickering. It was supposed at first to take three days, that operation; then five days; but now, at the end of a week, they were still slogging at it.

The wind rose. For the most part the sun stayed away, and when it did shine its light was watery and wan. Soon the snow would fly. Before that time came they must select a site for their colony, clear it, fortify it, build huts, and land all their tools and supplies.

There was yet another quarter from which complaints were made, and these increased. The mariners of the Mayflower never had liked their passengers, whom they esteemed to be mealy-mouthed, smug, always in the way. At Cape Cod the mariners developed a more definite objection.

They had crossed the ocean sea, and their supplies were low. They'd get nothing here, in this New England or North Virginia or whatever it was. Soon—but how soon?—they would be obliged to cross back to England, in the middle of winter, on short rations, the beer souring. It was not a prospect calculated to please them; and if they had muttered before, they growled and grumped and grumbled now, giving the passengers many a dark look.

They had completed their work hadn't they? Why couldn't they dump these damned psalm-singers, gether with all their gear, and then hurry home—before they froze, or starved, or both?

Jones and the mates wee frankly worked. Over at this end of the world there were no high sheriffs or King's commissioners, there was no Royal Navy to be called in.

"A moral issue had been raised, and a moral issue to these settlers was a red rag to a bull." The story continues here tomorrow.

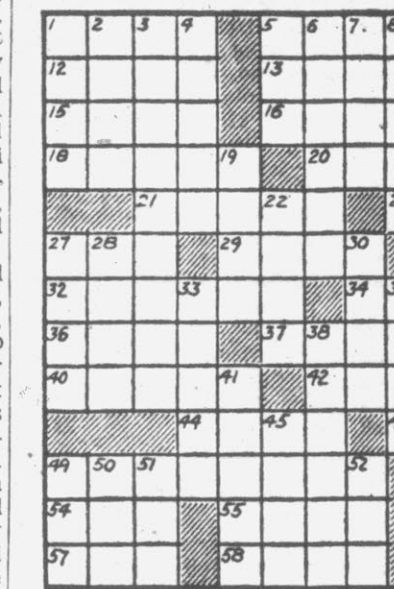

scribed in an announcement from the Student Marketing Institute as a "traffic stopper" which merited the admiration of passers-by.

Arranged as a boys' dormitory room, with a "lived in look" the display focused attention on two mannequins in casual collegiate dress—one sitting at a desk and the other standing between two single beds. "They both appeared to be in the act of lighting up a Dual Filter Tareyton as they took a break to relax," the announcement stated.

Computer Being 'Miniaturized'

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A computer one-tenth the size and weight of a conventional transistorized computer with the same capabilities is under development at the Westinghouse Electric Corporation's Air Arm Division, a spokesman said Sunday.

Dr. Patrick Conley, manager of the Air Arm Division, said the computer — dubbed Mol-E-Com — would weigh less than 15 pounds and occupy less than one-third of a cubic foot. The present model weighs 175 pounds and is three cubic feet in size.

The set has no tubes or transistors, Dr. Conley said, but in-

NEW FLORENCE - MAYO SUPERJET 100% Automatic The King Of The Tobacco Curers

Now Larger - More Power Thousands in use from Florida to Canada PATENTED! $295 for 16x16 Barns F.O.B. Farmville, N.C.

THERE IS ONLY ONE SUPERJET CURER - THE FLORENCE-MAYO SUPERJET

The most modern oil-fired curer ever marketed. Completely automatic! Outside thermostatic controls let you cure an entire barn of tobacco without entering the barn. Eight extra-large galvanized heat-spreaders provide even temperatures throughout the barn, and last 5 to 10 times longer than black stove pipe. Above-ground installation makes the Jet Oil Curer easy to install. Economical, too! Burns low-priced No. 2 fuel oil. Curing costs $10 to $20 per barn.

The curer with a proven performance record in more than 50,000 barns. Simple to operate - easy to maintain. Automatic safety valves provide utmost safety. Economical to own and operate. Curing costs $12 to $15 per barn. NOW AVAILABLE! Automatic safety valves for each unit, at slight extra cost.

Florence-Mayo curers are 5 to 10 times safer than old-fashioned independently spaced gas burner curers (with side port burners and small heatspreaders) using 9-12 or 16 burner units per barn that are expensive to operate. In fact, such gas curers have burned several hundred barns in the past 8 years.

MODERN TOBACCO CURERS USE ONLY 1 TO 6 BURNER UNITS Why burden yourself with operating tobacco curers that use 9 to 16 burner units per barn? FLORENCE-MAYO CURERS PRICED $175 AND UP F.O.B. DEALER

Florence-Mayo curers replaced free if barn burns during first curing season. Florence-Mayo, Manufacturers of Gas and Oil Curers Curing Cost $10 to $20 Per Barn

Speeding Ticket Slightly Revised

LEBANON, Ind. (AP)—Patrolman Ross Pauley had to make a minor adjustment on a speeding ticket he issued to a motorist ordering him to appear before Judge Eugene B. Burns in City Court.

Pauley made it a justice of the peace court after noting the name of the motorist—Eugene Burns, age, 44, occupation: city judge

Red Guerrillas Sent To Border

ATHENS (AP)—A Greek Foreign Ministry spokesman Sunday confirmed reports that former Greek Communist guerrillas are being moved by the trainload from Poland into Bulgaria near the Greek border. Infiltrations by Communist ex-guerrillas into Greek Macedonia from Bulgaria have been reported several times in the last few years.
