East Carolina Going Into NAAIA Finals With 4-Leaf Clovers In Their Pockets

By ROY MARTIN Reflector Sports Writer SIOUX CITY, Iowa — The cafeteria of Morningside College is situated atop a clover-covered hill at the south end of the campus. Yesterday afternoon, those passing this location turned their eyes with curious glances as they saw a group of men, attired in baseball garb, crawling on their hands and knees, seemingly sifting through the expanse of clover shoots which covered the earth.

to the national finals. I just wanted to win," said the hefty righthander, "and I wanted to prove to the guys on the squad that I could do it." "Country" as he is called by his mates, in addition to striking out 15 Indian batters, at one point in the game last night, had retired nineteen men in succession. One of the major hurdles which Boykin had to overcome was the big bat of Jack Vaccaro, Omaha's centerfielder, who led the NAAIA in hitting this year. Boykin struck out Vaccaro twice during the course of the contest, causing the Indian big gun to go hitless for the evening. As far as Vaccaro was concerned, Boykin remarked coolly, "I threw the first pitch high and tight, and he swung and missed. So I figured that that pitch was his weakness, and threw him two more high and tight and he swung at those too."

was a good pitcher," he said. "He's worked hard and against Omaha, he did a tremendous job." By virtue of their win last night, the Pirates move into the final play tonight, meeting Sacramento State College. The action is slated to begin at 8 p.m. (EST) in Soos Stadium. In this game, should the Pirates, with a tournament record of 4-0 be defeated, another game will follow between the two teams. This is due to the fact that the tournament is a double elimination affair. Should the Pirates win the first game Sacramento, with a tournament record of 3-1, will be eliminated, and the national championship will belong to East Carolina College. Mallory, in speaking of the California baseballers, said, "I think they are the best club we will play. They are good on defense, and they are tremendously strong physically. Also, they have good pitchers. I think that it will be a hard fought game." Mallory has already named his pitching choice for tonight's championship game, Lee West, a righthander, was the victor in the win over Sam Houston. According to the EC head coach, with the injuries prevalent within his squad, he plans possibly to shift Larry Crayton to left field to cover the gap left open with West on the mound. "We're pretty well battered," remarked Mallory. "They're going to have to beat us twice."

June 17th Target

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislative leaders have their sights firmly fixed on final adjournment of the 1961 session on June 17. To push along towards the adjournment date, House Speaker Joe Hunt is spending the weekend here. He presided this morning as the House ground through a calendar of local bills, clearing them out of the way to speed up things next week. Both Hunt and Lt. Gov. H. Cloyd Philpott, who presides in the Senate, are expected to call night sessions beginning Tuesday to keep the legislative machine humming. Philpott has called the Senate to start off the work at 7 p.m. Monday. The House is set to take up the important tax bill at 8 p.m. Monday. Philpott is scheduled to go with Gov. Terry Sanford to Hawaii for the national governors' conference, departing Raleigh June 19.

Move To Break Geneva Deadlock

GENEVA (AP) — A possible break in the deadlocked international conference on Laos appeared in the making today—at least in the talking stage. U. S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman Friday delivered to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko a note President Kennedy personally approved. Then Harriman spent an hour backing it up. American sources said Gromyko responded to the extent of expressing eagerness for going on with the 14-nation talks but he offered nothing specific in the way of compromise. British Foreign Secretary Lord Home planned to fly here from London Sunday to see Gromyko.

Violations of the cease-fire in Laos by the pro-Communist rebels caused the Western powers to call an indefinite postponement of the conference last Thursday. The decision followed the rebels' capture of Padong, a mountain village 20 miles south of rebel headquarters at Xieng Khouang. American sources understood that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev instructed Gromyko to indicate a desire for resumption of the Geneva conference as a result of his talks with President Kennedy. Khrushchev and Kennedy were agreed on the importance of a cease-fire when they met last weekend in Vienna, though some observers doubted that the words in their joint communique held the same meaning for each. Gromyko told Harriman Friday that U. S. parachute supply drops to Padong's defenders had provoked the attack by the rebels. The Soviet foreign minister suggested that an effective cease-fire would be simple to get if Washington and Moscow merely told both sides in Laos "to behave themselves."

Castro Prepared To Meet With Tractor Delegates On Trade

By CARLOS M. GUTIERREZ Correspondent of El Pais, Montevideo. HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro said early today he will receive a four-man bargaining team from the United States to work out details of swapping 1,200 captive Cuban rebels for 500 tractors. But the bearded prime minister raised anew his alternate proposal to trade the rebels captured in the April invasion for "political prisoners" held by the United States, Puerto Rico, Nicaragua and Guatemala. Castro notified the U. S. Tractors-for-Freedom Committee that he would receive its technicians, provided they have full power to negotiate the tractor-prisoner deal as "spelled out" by the Cuban prisoners' mission sent to the United States to broach his offer. The freedom committee announced in Detroit its bargaining team will fly to Havana Monday. In his note to the freedom group, Castro said he would have preferred leading members of the committee itself. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Milton Eisenhower, come to Havana, "but that is not indispensable."

He insisted, however, that the bargaining mission "must have powers to discuss the quality and amount of indemnification Cuba is asking. Your committee cannot decide by itself what kind of equipment Cuba is going to accept as compensation for all the material damage done by the aggressive actions launched from the United States against our country," Castro declared. "Your committee ought to know that we are the ones to decide over our own business and that we only accept technical advice when we ask for it beforehand." The note, signed by Castro, also called for an answer to his proposal for exchanging the invasion captives for Cubans held in the United States and elsewhere. "In this case," he said, "Cuba would be willing to surrender all her claims for material indemnification." Castro has insisted repeatedly during his overtures that the exchange should be on a "freedom for freedom" basis. The prime minister has said he would exchange Manuel Artime, the invasion leader for Francisco (the Host) Molina, pro-Castro Cuban convicted in New York in the slaying of a 9-year-old Venezuelan girl. Castro insisted he had no ulterior motive in suggesting that Mrs. Roosevelt and Dr. Eisenhower come to Cuba to take a personal hand in the negotiations. "Some people in your country have seen in our invitation to

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt or Mr. Milton Eisenhower a political motivation," he said. "Please let me express to you that the Cuban government never entertained such intentions." "Cuba has reached the highest honors knowing well how to defend her sovereignty and her revolution," he declared. The freedom committee said its bargaining team will fly from Miami, Fla., Monday at 2:30 p.m. EST on a regularly scheduled flight and indicated newsmen could go along. The plane ordinarily flies empty to Havana to pick up passengers for Miami. The committee said it had asked the Czechoslovakian Embassy in Washington for Cuban entry permits for team members. The Czech Embassy has been handling Cuban affairs in the United States since the diplomatic break between the two nations. The bargaining team consists of Prof. Roy Bainer, head of the University of California Agricultural Engineering Department; C. H. Hansen, assistant professor of agricultural engineering at Michigan State University; J. B. Lillard, professor of agricultural engineering at Purdue University, and Duane P. Greathouse, director of the United Auto Workers' Agricultural Implement Department.

More 'Freedom Riders' Are Moving On Jackson, Miss.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Eight more Freedom Riders were en route from Nashville, Tenn., to Jackson today to raise the number testing segregated travel facilities over the 100 mark. The five white riders and their three Negro companions left Nashville after receiving instruction in "non-violence" technique from the Nashville student non-violent movement. Meanwhile, a petition asking for a three-judge federal court to protect Freedom Riders from arrest, and police interference was expected to reach U. S. Dist. Judge Sidney Mize in Biloxi today. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People filed the bill in U. S. District Court Friday. It was the first NAACP move to align itself directly with the Congress of Racial Equality in tests of Deep South "Jim Crow" laws and traditions. The NAACP has favored legal action, rather than the more direct CORE-sponsored rides, although supporting the goal of desegregated travel facilities. In the wake of legal moves, strong rumors filtered through Jackson that most of the Freedom Riders would be transferred this weekend to the 16,000-acre state penitentiary at Parchman, 150 miles north of Jackson. Heretofore, arrested riders have been held in city jail while convicted riders have been placed in Hinds County Jail or the next door city jail. Mrs. Constance Baker Motley and Thurgood Marshall, New York attorneys for the NAACP, and R. Jess Brown of Jackson, and Vicksburg, filed the petition that charges harassment, intimidation and coercion of Freedom Riders. Judge Mize must refer the bill to Chief Judge Elbert P. Tuttle of the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans for consideration. Since May 24, there have been 98 riders convicted on breach of the peace charges stemming from failure to obey an officer's order to move on.

Three Jackson Negroes, Samuel Bailey, Joseph Broadwater, and Burnett L. Jacob, are complainants in the bill attacking what they call unconstitutional state laws requiring segregated railroad cars, buses, rest rooms, and waiting rooms and the posting of segregation signs at terminals. The defendants are State Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson, Mayor Allen C. Thompson and the Jackson City Council. Police Chief W. D. Rayfield, Trailways and Greyhound bus lines, Illinois Central Railroad, Jackson City Lines and an airport restaurant. Missing CIA Clerk Is Hunted WASHINGTON (AP) — Police today sought a clerk from the hush-hush National Security Agency who has been missing since Monday. The FBI declined comment on whether it was taking part in the search for William Covington, 28, conducted by Maryland state police at the request of NSA. Defense Department officials said Covington had no access to secret material. NSA—so secret its employees are not supposed to tell their friends where they work—engages in communications intelligence. Located at nearby Ft. Meade, Md., it maintains a round-the-clock monitoring of all signals and messages on the air waves, including those in code form. Officials said Covington had been on sick leave for two months following an operation. He returned to work May 31, but after working two days asked to be off June 2 because he said he needed additional medical treatment. Last Monday and Tuesday Covington telephoned that he was sick. Wednesday, his wife called the security agency to learn where he was and was told he hadn't been in. The Covingtons live at Laurel, Md. NSA listed Covington as missing Thursday. He was reported seen at the race track at Charles Town, W. Va., and also in Arlington, Va. Last summer, two NSA code clerks fled to Moscow and have since been used by the Soviet Union for propaganda blasts at the United States. Evidence Points To Space Shot BOCHUM, Germany (AP) — The Bochum Observatory reported unusually heavy traffic today on the Soviet radio frequency normally used for space satellites. It speculated the Soviets might be preparing a new moon shot or space flight. Observatory Director Heinz Kaminski said the frequency had been silent for eight days but was full of traffic this morning.

Aging Rah-Rah Boys Given Blame

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges said today some colleges are more interested in sports than education, and he blamed "aging rah-rah boys" among the alumni. In an address prepared for commencement exercises at the University of Maryland, Hodges said that "through some strange, immature quirk" many college graduates "seek the prestige of association" with a winning athletic team. "Thus we apply pressure on the old school to build up its athletic plant, and the school, mindful of alumni contributions, may not be strong enough to say no." Hodges said, "It's about time the aging rah-rah boys grew up, and let up." He said that if they need to borrow prestige, "let them borrow the best there is — the reputation of a school where education, quality education, comes first, last, and always." The commerce secretary said he played intercollegiate sports and favors athletics in their proper place. "But their place is secondary."

he said. "And when you start buying basketball teams, for example start handing out scholarships for brawn and physical skill rather than brain and a desire for education, you are mixing values badly and heading for trouble." He said the current scandals in intercollegiate basketball have demonstrated again "the sort of thing that can happen — the gamblers get in, and the fixes begin." Hodges said that the nation never before in its lifetime "needed so urgently a supply of talented, educated minds." Hodges is a former governor of North Carolina, where basketball fix scandals have hit both the University of North Carolina and North Carolina State. Three N.C. State players have been accused of shoving points for gamblers. A former North Carolina player is charged with offering bribes to two players at his alma mater. Both rejected the offer but failed to report the bribe attempt. Plan Welcome Jaycees plan to welcome the East Carolina Pirates when they return from Sioux City, Iowa where they have reached the finals in NAAIA playoffs. Harry Rainey is to be chairman for the welcome. It was not known definitely Saturday morning whether the team would return Sunday or Monday. However, a Jaycee spokesman said announcements as to the return time will be made on television and radio. Tentative plans are to form a motorcade at the city limits and escort the team through the city and the college campus.

Sanford Asserts Patriotism Not Beneath Dignity

CHARLOTTE (AP) — "Too many Americans in recent years have apparently come to regard open displays of patriotism as beneath their dignity," said Gov. Terry Sanford. Speaking to the 43rd annual American Legion state convention in Charlotte Friday, the governor declared: "I am not one of those people who seem to feel there is something old-fashioned about being publicly patriotic." He added, "Let us hope that we have not grown complacent about our freedom." Today, politics was the order of business for the Legionnaires with six candidates in the running for election as state commander to succeed S. Marvin Burton of Charlotte. Candidates included W. W. Green, Durham; B. B. Halterman, Wilmington; Eugene L. Smith, Fayetteville; W. D. Starling, Jacksonville; Charles W. Swoope, Pinehurst; and Richard A. Clack, Rocky Mount.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Adial Stevenson faced the threat of more demonstrations today in Brazil, major trouble spot in his Latin American tour, after catching a blast here from supporters of Fidel Castro. The chief U. S. delegate to the United Nations came under the first attack of his tour Friday night when speakers at a university rally denounced him as an "envoy of Wall Street" and demanded that he leave Uruguay. The Uruguayan government also made clear to Stevenson—a special mission for President Kennedy—that it opposed any action against the Castro regime in Cuba. It was especially firm against armed intervention. Stevenson was due in Rio de Janeiro in midafternoon to seek understanding with Brazil's new president, Janio Quadros, on Cuba and other issues. U. S. officials, who have been worried by some policies of the Quadros government, are anxious to line up his support for a program to improve working conditions in Latin America. Stevenson planned to see the Brazilian foreign minister and other officials, then fly to Sao Paulo Sunday for private discussions with Quadros. Stevenson's associates played down the importance of Friday night's demonstrations, but it was further proof that South American sentiment, both official and private, is pretty solid against anti-Castro action. Stevenson found this feeling both in the Venezuelan and Argentine governments and again in Uruguay. Meeting privately with Uruguay's nine-man ruling government council, Stevenson said the Americas "must find new ways to improve the defense of our inter-American system against (Communist) subversion and intervention."

The U. S. envoy said the hemisphere needed "efficient machinery of defense against intervention of the Soviet bloc as illustrated by the conquest of Cuba by communism." Council President Eduardo Victor Maedo replied that Uruguay "is not yet ready to drop its long tradition in defense of the principles of non-intervention." He said Uruguay realizes the seriousness of the Cuban situation but "armed intervention goes against the most inner feeling of our country." Stevenson replied "we would appreciate any suggestion to avoid non-intervention from becoming our tragedy." Births outnumbered deaths in Pitt County during May by more than 4-1, according to figures released this week by the Pitt County Health Department. A total of 165 births—72 white and 93 Negro—were recorded by the county vital statistics department. Thirty-eight deaths went into the record book. Of the 165 live births, 32 were illegitimate. Of the illegitimate total, 30 were Negro. Other statistics showed a total of four deaths under one month, and five deaths under one year and a half-dozen deaths blamed on cancer.

Ex - Dominican Official Accused

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Dominican Republic's former defense secretary was held for questioning today in the government probe of Dictator Rafael L. Trujillo's assassination. Maj. Gen. Jose Rene Roman, 60, a career soldier, was fired from the top defense job two days ago without explanation. The mastermind of the assassination plot, retired Gen. Juan Tomas Diaz, reportedly tried to contact Roman just before intelligence agents shot him dead on a city street. Roman's accuser was Dr. Roberto Reid Cabral, who police said committed suicide after four accused plotters seized his home as a hideout.

One of the captured assassination band had told reporters at his prison that the plan was to kidnap Trujillo and force the 69-year-old dictator to abdicate. Rumors circulated in Ciudad Trujillo that on the night Trujillo was slain Gen. Roman was visiting a Dominican official's home near the scene of the ambush. Roman and his host went to see what the shooting was about. Leland Roseberg, civilian aide to Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr., new armed forces chief and son of the late dictator, said Roman has been replaced as defense chief by Maj. Gen. Santos Melido Marte Picchardo. Roseberg also has been serving as the new regime's liaison man with the special team sent here by the Organization of American States to investigate the status of civil liberties in the Dominican Republic, which Trujillo ruled with an iron hand for 31 years. The OAS committee will report on whether the past nine months' trade boycott and broken diplomatic relations with the republic should be continued or mended by other hemisphere nations. Arango said he was optimistic about the investigation's outcome, a sentiment he also expressed when his team of U. S., Colombian, Panamanian and Uruguayan diplomats got here last Wednesday. "Some points need clarification, but it is not a question of doubt—just one of clarification," Arango said.

Service Station Robbed In Night

Greenville Police officers, on regular patrol, discovered a break-in at Wingate's Esso Station at the intersection of Fifth and Elizabeth Sts. about 1:23 a.m. today. Officers reported the burglars gained entrance to the building by breaking out the front door glass with a brick. Three cartons containing cigarettes were missing, investigators reported. They listed the value of the missing merchandise as $5.70. Investigation is continuing in the case, according to police.

Four N.C. Cities On Critical List

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four North Carolina cities — Fayetteville, Kinston, Lumberton and Wilson — are on the first list of unemployment areas to receive special federal aid. The 114 areas on the list, announced Friday, are scattered among 29 states and Puerto Rico. They will be eligible to share in nearly $400 million in federal loans and grants under a program to help root out pockets of heavy and persistent unemployment. To get the money, said administrator William L. Batt of the Area Redevelopment Administration, a community first must devise an approved plan for reviving its own economy.

Roadside Check Nets 8 Drivers Carrying Drugs

STURBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Eight truck drivers were arrested Friday in a roadside check of about 200 trucks on Route 15. Seven were charged with possession of harmful drugs, identified by police as benzadrine. The eighth was charged with possession of a revolver without a permit. State police and Interstate Commerce Commission inspectors said they set up the roadblock in a search for drugs. Charged with possession of drugs were John Freeman, 34, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Edwin R. Johnson, 50, Brighton, Minn.; Kenneth A. Reese, 40, Utica, N. Y.; Daniel Cole, 42, Malden, Mass.; Emery J. Brown, 33, Calhoun, Ga.; and Earl Huff, 49, Marion, Fla. Franklin R. Suggs, 37, of Providence, was charged with illegal possession of a gun.

Pitt Blood Program Chairman Kenneth Whichard has urged citizens of Greenville and Pitt County to give to the bloodmobile during its two-day visit which begins here Monday at the Greenville Moose Lodge. He asked that donors give early Monday afternoon and early Tuesday morning, to avoid late day rushes. After the bloodmobile leaves Greenville Tuesday afternoon, it will make a donor stop at the Kinston DuPont plant. Hours of the bloodmobile are 12 noon to 6 p.m. Monday and 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday. For the benefit of those who work, information about good times to donate blood may be obtained by calling the Moose Lodge office at PL 2-3669 or PL 2-3882.

Congressmen And Aides Attend Reading School

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of congressmen and congressional assistants has gone back to school on Capitol Hill. Every Tuesday at 5 p.m., 26 of them file into the blue-and-gold hearing room of the House Ways and Means Committee, sit at a long baize-covered table and for 2½ hours listen in rapt attention to a school marm. She teaches them to read. At first they tackle simple things, like the "Hardy Boys" books. Later the teacher leads them gently on to tougher stuff. This is a speed-reading course, and the congressmen were driven to it by something akin to desperation. Aside from politics, printing is Washington's largest industry. A good chunk of the Himalayas of reading matter it turns out every day ends up on the desks of Congress members.

To cope with it a man has got to read fast. The 350-words-a-minute pace of the average college graduate won't do at all. The operators of this particular speed-reading system say they don't feel satisfied if their pupils are reading less than 1,000 to 2,500 words a minute at the end of the 12-week course. If a student is particularly adept and does his homework, at least an hour a day, he might even read 6,000 words or higher. How is this done? If you stand in front of a brick building and examine it brick by brick, it would take you a long time to get to know the building. But if you let your eyes sweep over it you grasp the idea of it pretty fast. Similarly with words and the printed page. The teacher is Mrs. Harold G.

Carlson, a gentle but firm lady. Cooperating with her is another instructor, Maurice Nugent. Today is the second lesson and the pupils have graduated from the "Hardy Boys." The text now is "The Story of George Gershwin" by David Ewen and a paperback called "Archie" by Rodney Carlisle. The heads bow over "Archie." A voice from the green table says with a mock groan: "Oh boy, that Hardy book was a lot easier than this stuff." Then Nugent dims the lights. A projector flashes numbers quickly on the wall. The pupils are supposed to write them down, while chanting an altogether different series of numbers. This is supposed to show that if you don't subconsciously vocalize your reading matter, you can read faster. Later the class thumbs through the Gershwin book rapidly, trying to spot some familiar landmark—like George's brother Ira. After a minute or two, one pupil cries triumphantly: "I see Ira." The teacher beams and calls a five-minute recess. "What I want to know is this," Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., says. "While we are taking this course, are we supposed to read our constituents' mail by the old method or the new?" This prompts Carlson to make a confession. "Some people," she says with an embarrassed smile, "find that when they reach a certain point in the course, they can't read by either method." "Oh my gosh," exclaims Rep. Boggs. "Will I have to tell my constituents I can't read?"

First Church of Christ, Scientist

The mental nature of fatigue will be explained at Christian Science services Sunday in a Lesson-Sermon on the subject "God the Preserver of Man." Isaiah's comforting assurance of divine strength will be read from the Bible (Isa. 40): "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint." A corollary selection from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states in part (p. 217): "The scientific and permanent remedy for fatigue is to learn the power of Mind over the body or any illusion of physical weariness, and so destroy this illusion, for matter cannot be weary and heavy-laden." The Golden Text is from the first chapter of Joshua: "Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest."

More Such Talks Will Be Sought

The most significant result of the feeling-out process in Vienna is the probability of a second such face-to-face meeting between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev. Beyond that stretches the possibility of still more such conversations. In the long view, "summitry" is the easiest and most desirable means of negotiation for Nikita Khrushchev and his cohorts. To the West, it is neither trusted nor a fitting means of diplomacy. Our choice of international relations rests on men specifically assigned to that role in Washington, Geneva, the United Nations and in embassies all over the world. It is on this multitude of scattered fronts the Free World holds an advantage. As a nation we are prone to disparage our workers in diplomacy; but in point of fact they are dedicated, able and second to none. They have a freedom of maneuver, responsibility and adaptability that must at times be very discouraging to satellite and Russian representatives. Iron Curtain diplomats, by their very origins and conspiratorial atmosphere, are everywhere suspect. It requires no great skill for them to be obstructive, belligerent and to simply follow orders in the monolithic structure of Soviet foreign relations. In essence, Russian diplomacy is a one-sided "summit" maintained by the Kremlin in each of the many capitals and major cities wherein Soviet diplomats function. It is close to the truth to say a Soviet ambassador can smile only on instruction from the nerve-center of policy-making. This concept largely explains Mr. Khrushchev's distaste for major international dealings between intermediaries. To him it is cumbersome and unsatisfactory. He is a man in a hurry. The Premier is no longer a young man, and it is a trait of elderly leaders to seek stability in a world wherein their off-times caused unrest and tension. In Mr. Khrushchev's mind must be the hope of cementing present Communist holdings and setting the course for ultimate unquestioned dominance. For these reasons, and possibly a supreme confidence in his own wiles, this country is going to be pressed for more meetings between Nikita Khrushchev and President Kennedy. It does not follow we must abide by the Russian's choice. To begin with, our President personally objects to this procedure; there is a national lack of faith in such irregularities; the President lacks the power to speak with full authority on what the Congress will or will not approve in the way of treaties and agreements. At any "summit" meeting we are at a disadvantage in many respects. The most we can hope from such conferences is that they may help avoid future dangerous miscalculations leading to irrevocable acts.

The Food Tax 'Label' Is A Little Misleading

It's referred to as "the food tax"; and when historians look back on 1961 it will be known as the year North Carolina did or did not institute a tax on food. Actually, the "food tax" label is a misnomer. More properly the proposed plan for raising needed revenues is an expanding of the present sales tax program. More than food is involved. But news writers and headline-writers (as well as headline-seekers) call it the food tax. It is more dramatic, more pointed; too, it underscores the most important single item in the broadened scope of the sales tax. North Carolina is setting no precedent among the 50 states in considering inclusion of food in the sales tax field. Others have gone that far and it is taken as a matter of course. To them, it was simply a choice of meeting responsibilities of state government through a generalized sales tax or not meeting their responsibilities. Early impassioned protests in North Carolina over Governor Sanford's revenue-raising proposal are reluctantly and slowly facing up to the same choice other states confronted. Governor Sanford's confidence in acceptance of the food tax (Ooops, we said it too!) is closer than ever to being realized.

Just Waiting For Next 'Bolt'

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) — The last half of this century is like living through a perpetual thunderstorm, waiting for the next lightning bolt. And for President Kennedy, now nearly five months in office, there's been steady rain on the roof, with few patches of sunlight. He's gotten along well with Congress. But he inherited multiple dilemmas overseas and he's solved none of them. It is difficult now to point to a single Kennedy achievement in foreign affairs unless perhaps in establishing better relations with the European allies. Take a look: 1. He inherited the problem of Fidel Castro's Cuba — a constant trouble spot for the United States, if not a menace. Kennedy approved the rebel invasion against Castro. It ended in disaster. And just because of it and because the United States lost prestige and is unlikely to try rough stuff again soon, Castro looks more solid than ever. 2. Kennedy inherited the dilemma of Laos where the Communist-supported Pathet Lao forces were slowly taking over the country. They stepped over their pace since Kennedy took office and he has found no way to stop them. 3. He hoped through a conference with the Russians and others at Geneva at least to get a cease-fire in Laos and agree to a neutral government. The Communists have made hash of that notion in a way most bitter for Kennedy. Just this week, in his TV broadcast immediately after returning from a talk with Soviet Premier Khrushchev, Kennedy said they had agreed Laos should be free and neutral and that both wanted a cease-fire. But in Laos the pro-Communist forces kept fighting until at Geneva the United States

A Bank That Means Life

Believe me, Dr. Ferguson, we are so grateful for this. "We have a 15 year old son with Hemophilia. I feel that I must write to you and tell you how grateful we are for the wonderful assistance that the Tidewater Blood Center has given us. "As you probably know, we have just recently experienced a terrific bleeding episode at Duke University Hospital. They gave our son, Robin, 60 units of plasma, which you have just replaced from your own supply. "Were it not for the Blood Program of the Red Cross, our son would not be alive today; for in hemophilia there is only one therapy, at present, and that is fresh plasma — an endless flow. How very fortunate we are that the Red Cross cares and stands behind us in every bleeding emergency. We could not face each new day without knowing that you were there — no farther away than our telephone, and able to supply the clot forming, life giving substance that minimizes the excruciating pain and subsequent crippling of each hemorrhage. "It seems that we are always the recipients and never your contributors and yet our very existence depends on these countless bottles. What can we do to let you know our gratitude? "No one ever realizes the true worth of the Red Cross until they are in trouble and need it and then they, so often, take it all for granted. But we do not. We thank the Lord and we thank you each day for what you mean to us. The letter, of course, is from the youth's mother, and it is "for real." It might be sneaky, but it's another way of urging people to visit the Greenville Moose Lodge Monday between 12 noon and 6 p.m. or on Tuesday between 10:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., while the Bloodmobile is stationed there. The quota — as much as possible — Pitt County actually has overdrawn its account with the blood bank as much as 500 pints of blood, and this is the last visit of the fiscal year. As far as the banker is concerned that isn't good business. Actually, the two-day quota is 240 pints, but that isn't enough to make up the deficit. The people who are working with the bloodmobile are giving their services, doctors and members of the Women of the Moose and the Greenville Service League. Somebody needs your blood.

Other Editors Saying ... New Robber Barons

(Richmond News-Leader) Last week a Federal jury found a union guilty. Guilty of what? Not of gangsterism, not of the misuse of funds, not of depriving a worker of his civil rights. A U. S. District Court jury in Knoxville found the United Mine Workers guilty of that old capitalist crime, monopoly, and imposed $270,000 in damages for the sin. Labor's gruff old King Lear, John L. Lewis, appeared to testify for the union; but not even his dramatic appearance, eyes flags out of the past battles for the plain facts. The union, in order to secure a widespread standard contract, has entered into a conspiracy with major producers to force the Phillips Brothers Coal Company out of the bituminous market. The company sued. For two years, the union had labored under this most heinous label of all, but without effect. The verdict is important for several reasons. It puts on record, in a Federal court, the false basis from which nationwide unions work. Although the unions cry down "big business" out of rhetorical habit, they drive small businesses out of the field of competition. In theory, unions concentrate their efforts solely on the achievement of higher wages and fewer hours of working time for their members. But there come times when management, if it is to give these advantages, must be secure in its possession and control of the market. That is why the small businessman, with few workers, unable to tie himself down by sweeping contracts meant for giants, is pushed aside. The union goes after spectacular gains for the large groups that work in large companies. This process goes on all the time; the UMW's deliberate suppression of small competitors is merely the logical outcome of the process. In order to keep their supremacy, these super-unions have blocked attempts of small locals to adjust their demands in terms of the ventures and profits of individual employers. The old "class-war" attacks are still made on capitalists for retaining total ownership of productive tools; but let a group of laborers try to tailor its contract to local conditions, and the workers will soon discover the real force blocking satisfactory agreement. Total control at the level of the international union imposes a terrible hardship not only on the individual small company, but on the individual workers themselves. In the UMW case, the effect of an agreement among giants was to destroy a little fellow altogether. Perhaps, if the judgment sticks on appeal, the Phillips Brothers Company may get back into business. Meanwhile, the unprecedented verdict adds weight to the argument that Big Unions on their own (and not merely in collusion with Big Business) should be made fully subject to the anti-trust laws. If the consequences of monopoly are a social evil coming from management's side of the table, they are a social evil coming from labor's, too.

Earned Liking Abroad

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc. Personal popularity has the political value of making it smoother for a President to carry his program to completion. An unpopular President may be the rightest man in all this world but Congress always responds to the voice of the people, as it should, and if the people do not like the President, for one reason or another, Congress will fight him. John Kennedy, as a candidate, was particularly popular. Neither was his opponent, Richard Nixon. Their debates, while novel, were not too exciting. Such a display of forensics will not likely be tried too soon again. Kennedy was elected by a small popular vote, which translated into political terms ordinarily would mean that he would not exercise much influence over Congress. Then came the first hundred days. John Kennedy developed a personal popularity of major political significance. The general sentiment was that he ought to be given a chance. His press interviews, in contrast with President Eisenhower's which were extraordinarily dull and ambiguous, were exciting and informative. Jack Kennedy answers questions with certainty and sparkle. The spell of popularity continued to swell until the Cuban fiasco which hurt President Kennedy's reputation, particularly as he assumed full responsibility instead of firing those who were really responsible for errors of judgment and of commission. His decision to invade Cuba looked like indecisiveness. Many who had looked upon Kennedy as a possible second Moses, took a second look at him and critics became numerous. The White House sped up its public relations program, emphasizing the glorious womanhood of Mrs. Kennedy, the charm of Caroline, the brilliance of Bobby. But it did not work and had there been someone with the sharpness of William Randolph Hearst to shout "Remember the Maine!" no one could have known what might have happened. But Kennedy remained adamant. He would not risk a war over Berlin because of any action he might take in Cuba. Again many stepped back to ask whether Kennedy was strong enough, mature enough to head this nation. Criticism was no longer only political; it became personal. Then he went to Europe, to Paris, Vienna and London and conquered a continent by his personality, his culture, his charm, his surprising knowledge and his wit. He was a public relations job but an extraordinarily brilliant one. Without a single misstep, without an iota of cheapness, President and Mrs. Kennedy captured the hearts of the masses. In Great Britain, this was particularly fortunate, because the British have been moving away from us in many directions. It is more important for the United States, from a practical standpoint, that half a million Londoners came out to show themselves hostile to Jack and Jackie, than that Khrushchev should have behaved like a gentleman, which he did. Londoners do not shout for foreigners very readily. What Kennedy actually accomplished was to overcome the froth of minor antagonism and to re-establish himself as Winston Churchill produced during the worst days of World War II. And this was accomplished without saying one word or making a single gesture. Mass popularity is a major quality in international relations. Winston Churchill could do no wrong, could say nothing untoward, so far as the American people are concerned. He was a master of public opinion in his hey-day and could do more with the wave of a hand than most politicians could accomplish with profound speeches. Apparently John Kennedy possesses this same quality — a warmth of personality which (Continued on page six)

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS Part Of The Vast Creation Can we really make contact with God? Every syllable of the Bible indicates that we can. God did not create the world and go away and leave it. Neither did he create individuals and then abandon them to the struggles of life unaided. One of the most significant statements Jesus made was that the hairs of our heads are numbered. By this he meant that the universe in every particular hangs together. The hairs of our heads are part and parcel of a material order which includes the farthest star. The God who made the hairs of our heads created also the gigantic stars and the planets in their orbits. Everything hangs together in God's universe. Accordingly, God is in everything. This is not pantheism which holds that God exists only amid the particles of His created universe. All who believe the message of the Bible hold that God is objective to His universe—that is, He stands over against it, apart from it, and yet His power is to be found in its most minute particle. Prayer is the greatest means by which we make our connections with God. He does not always grant us our petitions. Often He provides something much better than we had knowledge to request. Prayer, Bible, Church, meditation, Christian service — these are the avenues by which we approach God and by which God approaches us.

Plastics In The Container Field

By ELMER ROESSNER One of the most impressive facts disclosed at this week's National Plastics Exposition in New York is the extent to which the plastics industry is taking over a large part of the industrial container field. The industry, which has already taken over a large part of the detergent packaging in the consumer field, is not competing with glass carboys and steel drums and pails in the industrial market. All-plastic shipping containers — up to 55-gallon drum capacity — are now being produced by the blow-molding technique. These drums are for uses where chemical and corrosion resistance are essential and saving in weight can be profitable. Such large containers are also specially made for missile packaging. Blow molding, a modern day version of the ancient art of glass blowing, is the fastest growing part of the entire plastics industry. It is the technique used to produce the new all-plastic detergent containers. High density polyethylene containers of suitable fabricating equipment point to a possible 40-million-pound market for industrial containers in 1965. High density polyethylene provides the blow molder with rigidity and toughness. It can be molded with thin walls, thereby realizing raw material savings and fast production cycles. Available in an unlimited color range, this plastic has excellent chemical resistance, is unaffected by temperature extremes, is resistant to moisture vapor transmission and has good tensile and impact strength. SEEKING BLEACH-CONTAINER MARKET "The rapid growth and near-saturation use of high density polyethylene for packaging light duty detergents appears to be the key that will unlock the entire area for packaging retail household chemicals in blow-molded high density polyethylene containers," Mr. Winne said. "Such products include bleaches, heavy duty detergents, disinfectants, ammonia, waxes." He said laundry bleaches are the most promising market. "For some time, leading producers of household liquid laundry bleach have test-marketed high density polyethylene containers with overwhelming success. It now appears likely more than 75 percent of the half-gallon and one-gallon sizes of household bleach containers will switch from glass to high density polyethylene before the end of this year. This will mean a market of 40 million pounds on an annual basis." Market testing of liquid bleach in plastic containers shows housewives like them because of safety from breakage and lightweight. Other advantages are much less breakage in the store and freight savings from lighter weight. A case of four one-gallon conventional glass containers weighs 54 pounds as compared to 38 pounds for the same case of plastic containers. Lighter weight also makes possible more units per load by either truck or rail shipment. SHOROT AND SIGNIFICANT BITS OF BUSINESS Announcement of a coming cordless electric drill has slowed sales of regular drills. However, the new drill will be expensive and its power limited by the capacity of its battery pack. Sarah Coventry, Inc., which sold $27,500,000 in jewelry through living-room fashion shows last year, expects to sell $100 million worth in 1970. A survey showed that boards of directors' messages get through to only 97 percent of company presidents and only 20 percent get through to workers. New antennas for TV broadcasters, giving more power and greater direction flexibility have been unveiled by General Electric. Plastic lifeboats 30 feet long and able to hold 78 passengers have been approved by the U.S. Coast Guard. The typical resident owner of a one-family house spent $283 for upkeep and improvement last year, a Genus study shows. There has been a sharp rise in the sale of American cigarettes in Japan since October, 1960, when the state monopoly extended sales from hotels and a few other places to 1,000 retail outlets.

East Carolina Sweeps To Fourth Straight NAIA Win

Top Omaha, 11-3; Could Wrap Up Tourney Tonight

By ROY MARTIN
Reflector Sports Writer

SIoux CITY, Iowa—The five-hit pitching of Earl Boykin, and the booming bats of Lacy West and Floyd Wicker spelled defeat for the University of Omaha here last night, as East Carolina defeated the Indians, 11-3, and clinched a crack at the NAIA baseball crown.

The win moves the Pirates into the finals tonight against Sacramento State College of Sacramento, Calif. The action is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. (EST) in Soos Stadium.

East Carolina's Boykin, in his second starting performance of the year, held the Omaha batters to five hits, striking out a total of 15 for the night. West, a pitcher inserted into the lineup in a shuffle to compensate for the loss of Buc shortstop Glenn Bass to the injured list, tripled in the first inning, scoring three runs and thus was responsible for the majority of the scoring in the big five-run first inning.

Wicker, a freshman from Snow Camp, N. C., homered in the third inning with no one on base and tripled in the seventh inning, scoring two runs, to lead the Bucs in RBI's with four.

The Pirates scored five runs in the first inning, three on West's triple. The other two tallies came when Wally Cockrell reached home on a triple by Merrill Bynum, and a series of walks given up by Indian hurler Harry Miller, who later walked in Bynum.

Omaha came back in the second inning, scoring three runs. The first two scores came when, with the bases loaded, Omaha leftfielder Ken Smith rapped a grounder through the hands of Spencer Gaylord at second base, allowing two runs to cross the plate. The third tally occurred when Dave Aden, Miller's relief on the mound, raced home on a fly ball by Jack Vaccaro.

East Carolina scored once in each of the second and third innings, and in the seventh and eighth frames the Bucs drove across four runs, two in each inning.

In the seventh, Wicker's triple scored Cotton Clayton, who had singled, and Charlie Johnson, who had walked.

In the eighth frame, an error and a pair of singles scored Gaylord and Cockrell.

Cockrell led the Pirates at the plate with three hits, Wicker had a homer and a triple in three attempts at the plate, while Bynum collected a single and a triple off four trips.

Stan Macalitis, the Omaha rightfielder, led the Indians with two hits in four attempts.

Anti-Gambling Bills Introduced

RALEIGH (AP) — Bills which even sponsors have indicated may need a bit of toning down have been introduced in both General Assembly Houses as means of combating gambling on college athletic contests.

They were part of the Legislature's full-scale attempt to get at the source of the present nationwide basketball game-fixing scandal.

Both bills, sent in Friday, attempt to eliminate the handicapping of athletic contests. One would prohibit persons from having tickets which could be used for gambling purposes and the other would make it unlawful to transmit handicap information.

However, sponsors said the bills probably would be revised in committee to make the inapplicable to news media. Newspaper sports pages carry much news which could be construed as handicap information in the language of the bills.

The Senate passed and sent back to the House for concurrence in several changes a bill providing one to 10 years prison terms for persons convicted of offering bribes to players to influence the outcome of a game.

Cleveland Has Slender Edge Over Tigers With Their One-Run Wins

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cleveland Indians, once more springing a last-inning ambush and backing their shaky starting pitchers with the best bullpen brigade in the business, have gained a 1½-game edge in their battle of one-run decisions with Detroit for the American League lead.

They knocked off the second place Tigers 5-4 on a ninth-inning home run by Bubba Phillips Friday night for a 2-1 lead in the four-game showdown. The Indians now are sure of riding out of town in first place no matter what happens today's series windup at Detroit.

It was the ninth time this season the Tribe has won a game in the last inning. Barry Látman won this one, his fifth victory without defeat, with 4-2-3 innings of one-hit relief—giving Tribe relievers a record of four victories and five saves while Cleveland has won 11 of its last 12 games.

Third place New York stayed within three games of Cleveland by beating the Kansas City A's 8-5. Washington swept a two-night doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox, winning 1-0, in 10 innings, and 10-9. Boston defeated Los Angeles 5-3 in the first game of a two-night pair, but the Angels took the nightcap 5-1, with Ryne Duren striking out seven in an AL record. The Minnesota-Baltimore game was rained out.

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat Philadelphia 3-1 and moved back on top by a half-game over Cincinnati after St. Louis beat the Reds 8-4. San Francisco bombed Pittsburgh 9-6, and the Chicago Cubs defeated Milwaukee 11-10.

Phillips' winning shot came on a 3-2 pitch by Paul Foytack (3-4), the loser in relief. Willie Kirkland delivered a three-run homer as Cleveland scored four in the third inning off starter Phil Regan. Látman had just one lapse, giving up a tying double by Rocky Colavito after relieving Bobby Locke in a two-run fifth inning.

The Indians won with the help of a rookie's running error. The game ended with an odd-double play when catcher Johnny Romano grabbed a foul pop by Steve Boros, then nailed pinch-runner George Thomas as he attempted to go from first to second after the catch.

Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle, each crashing home runs, batted in six runs between them for the Yankees. Maris' 18th homer, tops in the majors, came with a man on base and broke a 5-5 tie in the seventh against Ray Herbert (3-6). Luis Arroyo (2-2) won it in relief.

The Senators beat the White Sox on a pinch-single by Harry Bright in the opener as Dick Donovan, a Sox castoff, blanked his ex-mates on six hits for his second victory. Reliever Warren Hacker (1-1) was the loser. In the nightcap, Washington came up with four runs in the ninth, beating Frank Baumann (4-5) in relief with an unearned run on Danny O'Connell's pinch single. Dale Long and Willie Tasby hit consecutive home runs in the rally, 9-6, and the Chicago Cubs defeated Milwaukee's Max Surkont in 1953.

Duren (2-6), making his first start, began his record string by fanning Frank Malzone for the final out in the first inning of the second game at Boston. He then added Pete Runnels, Jim Paganoni, Don Buddin, Joser Mike Fornieles, Chuck Schilling and Gary Geiger, falling one short of the major league record set by Milwaukee's Max Surkont in 1953.

The Red Sox beat Art Fowler (0-2) in the opener on a pair of two-run singles by Schilling and Vic Wertz in the fifth inning. Billy Muffett (2-5) was the winner.

Play Tonight

Greenville Post 39 American Legion Junior baseball team, boasting a 1-1 record to date in league action, will host Ahsokie tonight on the Guy Smith Stadium field. Game time is set for 8:00 p.m.

The locals have split in their first two games, losing to Rocky Mount by a score of 3-1, then coming back to defeat Roanoke Rapids to the tune of 9-7.

Next week the locals travel on a two game road trip, making stops for return matches against Roanoke Rapids on Monday and Ahsokie on Wednesday.

Duren Fans 7 Red Sox In Row

BOSTON (AP) — Rhyne Duren made one of his rare starts Friday night and struck out seven Red Sox batters in a row for an American League record, but he isn't too impressed over the feat.

The Los Angeles hurler, winner in the second game of a doubleheader, added:

"I like to win, rather win than set records, even though all of us like 'em (records). I've had lots of strikeouts and I've pitched in World Series."

His SO total was 11 and he received credit for a 5-1 victory. Duren's record is one under the modern National League record accomplished in 1953 by the Milwaukee Braves' Max Surkont.

Aging Archie Is Again 'Favorite'

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A sleek if aging Archie Moore gets down to business tonight in defense of his piece of the light heavyweight title against young, husky Giulio Rinaldi of Italy.

If Rinaldi, the graying, 44½-year-old marvel hasn't lost too much in the battle of the scales and with father time; he figures to knock out the Italian from Anzio within five rounds of their scheduled 15-rounder at Madison Square Garden. Rinaldi is 26.

Archie's vitality is the only question mark in this television scrap. If he's got enough left it will be arranged for a 10-rounder early. Moore is favored at odds ranging from 8-5 to 2-1.

This will be Moore's ninth defense of the title he won 8½ years ago and his first since he flattened crude but powerful Yvon Durelle of Canada at Montreal 22 months ago. He weighed 174½ pounds for that return fight. Since then the National Boxing Association has stripped him of his title. He is accused and Europe.

Moore, holder of the world record of 130 knockouts, has flattened his last six challengers in title fights. Only Joey Maxim has gone the distance with him at the 175-pound division limit.

The strong-armed, master boxer and puncher wrested the crown from Maxim at St. Louis Dec. 17, 1952 on a lop-sided decision.

Rinaldi, solidly built and deep-chested, earned his big chance by outpointing Moore in a 10-rounder in the Olympic Sports Palace in Rome, last Oct. 29. Moore was a plump 190½ to Rinaldi's 181½.

Although Moore was given a mandatory eight-count while leaning back against the ropes in the last round, Rinaldi was awarded the verdict by only a slim margin.

The black-haired Italian, who was only one-year-old when Archie started boxing pro a quarter-century ago, has a 25-3 record with eight knockouts. He is the Italian light heavyweight champion.

After his victory—even if disputed and close—he has to be conceded a chance to beat the old man. But Giulio has not shown to advantage in his workouts here.

He has displayed little power and appears wide-open. If he presses Archie—as he must to win—and leaves an opening, it could be disastrous.

"He can't punch hard when he's going back," said Giulio. "I noticed that in my fight with him and I saw what Rocky Marciano and Floyd Patterson did to him when I watched the films. They pressed him and they knocked him out. I think I can too."

"All I hope is that he comes after me like he says he will," said Moore.

Moore's record in 212 fights is 181-25-6. He has been stopped six times. Rinaldi has been stopped once—on cuts—and supposedly never has been floored.

With the light six-ounce gloves in use, Rinaldi's no-fall record will be put to the test. As customary for title fights in New York, the three-knockdowns-in-one round rule will be waived along with the mandatory eight-count rule. Scoring will be by the rounds system.

A supplementary point system also will be used to help break draws.

Although the fight will be shown on television in the city as well as coast-to-coast, garden officials expect to attract a crowd of 10,000 as a gross gate of $50,000 at prices ranging from $3 to $15. The big money comes from TV, which is paying $150,000.

Moore has been guaranteed $100,000 plus $12,000 expenses. Rinaldi will collect $25,000 plus expenses.

Lions, Security Life And Exchange Take Victories

In Little League action yesterday, the Lions Club overcame a four run deficit in the third and fourth frames to gain a victory over the Optimist Club by a 6-4 margin on the Guy Smith field.

The winners scored three runs in the third, added two more in the fourth, and pushed another across in the fifth.

Bert Bennett put the Lions back in the ball game with a two run homer in the third. In the fourth, the winners scored on a series of walks by losing pitcher Howard Aycock.

Pete Lautares and Mike Aldridge combined their pitching talents to throw a nifty one-hitter at the Optimists. Lautares was the starter, pitching the first three innings. He had his only trouble in the first when the losers scored all four of their runs, but he settled down after that. Aldridge came in in the fourth, and received credit for the win.

In a make-up game yesterday Kenneth Beamon pitched a no-hitter at Security Life, while his mates pushed 12 big runs across the plate, with the Elks winning, 12-0, on the Elm Street field.

The winners scored six of their runs in the second inning on eight walks and a Security Life error. The Elks added five more in the fifth, and one in the sixth.

Beamon struck out nine Security Life batters, allowing only three men to reach base. He struck out the sides in both the second and third frames. Beamon issued only one free pass in going the distance.

Getting hits for the winners were Dave Fowler, Bobby Lee, Richard Jackson, and Speight.

In another game on the Elm Street field, the Exchange club downed the Greenville Tobacco team by a score of 9-3.

The winning pitcher was Gary Bostic who gave up all three runs in the first inning. After that, Bostic had things well under control, striking out seven losing batters.

The losing pitcher was Bonnie Rhodes, who went the distance for the Greenville Tobacco Company team.

The big hitter for the winners was third baseman Richard Gaylord with two hits in four trips to the plate, including a solo home run in the fourth inning.

Only Light Damage In 3 Traffic Accidents Friday

Three traffic mishaps yesterday and last night caused only light damage, police said, noting that two drivers involved were charged with law violations, however.

Franklin Angustus Bendall, 71 of 406 Biltmore St. was charged with making an improper turn as he was headed West on Dickinson Ave. at the intersection of Truman St., about 2:17 p.m. yesterday.

According to officers, the Bendall vehicle collided with a car being driven by William Henry Hollowell, 75 of 402 West Third St.

Damage to the Hollowell car was set at $85 while damage to the Bendall auto was estimated to be about $5.

As the result of a collision at the intersection of Ficklen St. and Dickinson Ave. about 7:27 p.m., police charged Tony Ray Mayo, 16 of Route 2, Greenville with reckless driving.

The Mayo vehicle was traveling North on Ficklen St. and collided with a car parked on the West Side of the Street, headed South. Investigators reported that Mayo apparently applied his brakes before the collision, and left skid marks for 33 feet, before striking the parked car.

TB Vaccine's Pioneer Dies

PARIS (AP)—Prof. Camille Guerin, 89, who in 1908 proved it was possible to make a vaccine against tuberculosis, died at his home Friday.

Beginning with studies in veterinarian medicine, Guerin devoted his life to vaccination research, both for smallpox and tuberculosis.

In 1906 he showed that the resistance to tuberculosis was related to the presence of living bacteria. He later proved it was possible to grow a bacteria that could serve as a vaccine.

At his death he was honorary director of the Pasteur Institute at Paris.

Farmville Extending Its Recreation Program; More Personnel Hired

FARMVILLE—The town's recreational program will be extended this year and additional personnel has been employed with this in view. Elbert Moyer, coach and member of the high school faculty will again be director of the program.

Assisting Director Moyer will be Joe Flake Jr., in charge of the swimming pool, with assistants, James Henry Bundy, Ronnie Webber and Monty Pickett. Linda Chesson is in charge of games and activities in the gym. Jerome Evans, coach at H. B. Sugg high school, and Nesbia Phillips will direct recreational activities for Negro children. Having secured additional land at the Sugg High school for an adequate athletic park, Farmville's Board of Commissioners has been petitioned by the school for a lighted field. Town officials are offering to provide the same percentage of assistance as other communities in the County and are seeking help from the County which it has been stated, has provided funds for other schools lighting their athletic fields.

As a feature of the summer recreational program, men and boys beyond high school age, will have a softball league organization. A softball league for girls will be organized also.

The Farmville High School gym will be open five days each week for basketball, volleyball, badminton, shuffleboard, horseshoes, table tennis, and other games, with Linda Chesson as director.

Nothing More Than Teen Fight

TRINITY, N.C. (AP)—A Negro leader asserted that the trouble which almost caused a race riot in this community Monday night was "nothing more than what would have been called, 10 years ago, a teen-age fight."

Donald A. Gray made the statement Friday night in announcing that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People had called a meeting of Negro residents for Sunday evening in St. Mary's Church here.

Gray's written statement to newsmen cited incidents which he said preceded the fight and added:

"Negroes of Trinity feel that violence for violence will not attain anything but more violence, but they do not intend to let their property be destroyed without defending it."

He said that Authorities "have afforded protection to this Negro community."

Robert Parris, 20, was beaten by some Negroes Monday night when he closed the Trinity Grill where he had refused service to Negroes earlier in the day. The State Highway Patrol and Randolph County sheriff's deputies rushed here to head off a riot and have patrolled the community each evening since then.

Gray denied that 40 Negroes attacked Parris and his companions, as the white youths had claimed. He said about 17 Negroes participated in the "retaliatory attack."

Gray, chairman of the West Randolph branch of the NAACP, said the Sunday night meeting followed an investigation of the incident in this community of 1,000 by the NAACP.

At the meeting, Gray said he will thank local Negroes for avoiding contact with whites since the incident. The main speaker will be Charles McLean of Winston-Salem, state field secretary for the NAACP.

As an example of incidents when he said preceded the fight, Gray said that two Negro elementary school pupils were pushed and shoved June 1 by two white teenagers while they were at a store to get school supplies. Gray said the incident was not reported to law enforcement authorities.

Allegedly Struck A Fireman; Arrested

A 20-year-old Greenville man was arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and assault after he allegedly struck a Greenville Fire Department officer at the scene of a fire alarm last night.

Travis Earl Stepps of 1408 North Washington St., was arrested at the intersection of Church and Allen Sts. by officers about 9:30 and accused of striking Fire Department Cpt. Lyman Nethercutt, head of the department's fire prevention and inspection bureau, said he was hit by Stepps after the man had started an argument ordering the Fire Department car out of the way.

Nethercutt explained that he had responded to an alarm from Box 423 at the intersection of Church and Allen Sts., and was in the process of turning around when Stepps drove up in a pickup truck.

Stepps jumped out of the vehicle, the fire officer continued, started arguing, then struck Nethercutt, the officer claimed.

Stepps was placed in jail under a $500 bond and had not been released at midmorning today.

Nethercutt pointed out that one fire unit was still at the scene at the time of the argument.

According to the Code of the City of Greenville, it is illegal for the driver of any vehicle, unless on official business, to "drive into or park such vehicle within one block where fire apparatus has stopped in answer to a fire alarm."

U.S. And Allies Again Divided On Vote In Council

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—U.S. popularity with Asian-African nations—particularly the newly independent African countries—got another boost today as the result of the latest U.N. Security Council action on Angola.

But relations with Portugal, an ally of the United States in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, was subject to more strain.

This was the consensus of diplomats in the wake of the council's call Friday night upon Portugal to end harsh measures against the native population in its big West African territory.

The vote on an Asian-African resolution containing the harshest U.N. criticism to date of Portugal on the Angola situation was approved 9-0 with two abstentions—Britain and France.

This was the third time the Kennedy administration found itself on the opposite side of the fence from its Western allies on Angola, and voting with the Soviet Union.

Launch Study Of Africanization

ELIZABETHTOWN, Katanga (AP)—The United Nations Command Friday announced a successful start in its plans to study Africanization of the Katanga army.

The Katanga government has agreed to cooperate in the study, it was reported by Lt. Col. Bjorn Egge, the Norwegian officer who heads the study mission.

"The Katanga Cabinet's denial yesterday that such an agreement had been made with the United Nations appeared to have arisen from misunderstandings," Egge told newsmen.

He met the Katanga Cabinet and explained that his first task was merely to study the training of Africans with the United Nations with the eventual aim of replacing white personnel in Katanga's army.

FALSE ALARM
Greenville fire units responded to a false alarm from Box 423 at the intersection of Church and Allen Sts. about 9:20 o'clock, according to fire department records.

Fire officers said children playing around the box apparently turned in the alarm.

Children Enjoy College Reading Clinic

SUMMER READING CLINIC . . . at East Carolina College is again underway. This year students will come from throughout the state and further. Dr. Keith Holmes, director, and Mrs. Edna Earle Baker interview prospective students. (Reflector staff photo.)

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

Some children actually want to come to school in the summertime. And they have a reason.

The school is the Reading Laboratory and Clinic sponsored by the Education Department of East Carolina College and directed by Dr. Keith Holmes.

The reason is varied. It might be that the student has trouble with reading, spelling, understanding what he has read, or that he can hardly read at all. Sometimes he has been held back a grade, because of some reading difficulty.

Interviews with prospective students and their parents were conducted Thursday by Dr. Holmes and Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, supervisor of Pitt County schools, a volunteer worker. Assisting was David Thrift of Pittsboro, a senior in education at East Carolina College. Classes begin on Monday.

These children are generally very capable, healthy and normal. Some excel in areas of science and arithmetic, but still, a reading problem can eventually hinder the best math student.

The children are the first to recognize their difficulties, in many cases, and they want to improve. Some of them have enough of a reading problem not to enjoy a comic book.

A typical example of the student concerned is an 11-year-old from Pitt County who had never expressed any interest in reading before he attended the reading clinic last summer. He had difficulty with spelling and reading and had been held back in school, though he is good in arithmetic.

He suggested to his mother that he return to the clinic this summer because "it helps me a lot." His mother, Mrs. Willard Ellis of Farmville, said he had been held back because of his problem with reading.

Mrs. Ellis has noticed a definite improvement in her son's school work since last summer, though both hope it will improve further with another session at the clinic.

And the son can now pick up a book and read for leisure, something he had never been interested in before, presumably because he had the reading problem.

Clinic's Aim

The aim of the clinic, according to Dr. Holmes, is to locate the areas of weakness in the language arts program and then build up those areas so that the child can become a more competent writer and communicator. There are many facets involved, he commented.

Results of the program have been recognized around the country as significant. Generally the child who has attended the reading clinic improves in his class work. Further proof of a successful program is the fact that other programs are being organized in communities throughout the state, such as at Lewistown.

It has removed stumbling blocks which very likely would have prevented many a student from completing high school and college.

This year there will be 40 teachers from over the state, composed of college seniors, graduate students, teachers renewing teaching certificates and a few parents. Dr. Holmes explained that some parents' make good teachers, since they learn more about reasons for their own child's difficulty and are understanding about other children's problems.

Teachers who are trained for teaching in the clinic are prepared to go back to their own communities and better meet needs in their own classrooms, or to tutor. These clinical assistants have come from as far as Florida to participate in the program. This year there are some from Norfolk, Va., Plant City, Fla., and Cocoa, Fla.

Students, too, have come from long distances. This year, one student is from Mississippi, while many are from Pitt County, eastern North Carolina and spreading into the Piedmont sections. Approximately 50 students will be accepted for this summer.

Their acceptance is generally based on a willingness to work, potential and desire. The program is geared to boys and girls who will be able to take immediate advantage of the training. Dr. Holmes stated the program has taken some slow learners and retarded children, but usually the students have mental ability to take advantage of the program immediately.

There have been exceptions, of course. Dr. Holmes referred to one student who has had encephalitis and who is recovering. He said that a child's personal needs are considered as well as other factors. Interviews and screening provide Dr. Holmes and Mrs. Baker with a "pretty thorough diagnosis," he commented.

It is conceded that individual attention given at the clinic is largely responsible for meeting the child's needs and encouraging his improvement with his own difficulty.

Dr. Holmes is directing the clinic for the 10th year, assisted in coordinating by Mrs. Baker, who has volunteered her services for nine years.

Pitt's Top Credit Rating Proves To Be Big Asset

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County as a governmental unit possesses a credit rating that ranks with the best.

Financial experts agree that this fact—and it is a well-substantiated fact—is an invaluable asset and can be attributed directly to the efficient and economical handling of Pitt's tax dollars by the county's management.

Pitt enjoys the distinction of a rating that will compare with any county in the state. It is rated with the top. And North Carolina governmental units—aided by the Local Government Commission's very existence—are generally rated higher than counties and municipalities in some other states.

Of real value, in terms of dollars and cents, is the high credit rating when it comes to selling bonds.

Pitt—with its "A" rating by Moody's, its 90 rating by the N. C. Municipal Council and its Group I rating by the N. C. Security Advisory Committee—finds itself in the enviable position of commanding bargaining power in selling its bonds.

With the upcoming possibility of preparing $395,000 worth of industrial school bonds for sale, Pitt can anticipate as low an interest rate as could be reasonably expected by any like-sized governmental unit. The lower interest rates represent a savings in tax dollars for the county's taxpayers.

During a brief session this week, top officials of three Greenville banks expressed their viewpoints of Pitt's financial structure and condition.

R. Wallace Howard of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., Frank L. Little Jr. of Planters National Bank and Trust Co., and J. T. Marston Jr. of State Bank and Trust Co., gathered in the office of Pitt County Auditor H. Reginald Gray.

All three pointed to the ability to save interest as a valuable product of the county's high and highly-respected credit rating.

Howard said, "the people of Pitt County should be indeed grateful for the type of management this county has. Mr. Gray here is doing an excellent job of handling the county's affairs."

In concurring with Howard, Little pointed out that investors, after reviewing credit ratings, are drawn in numbers to Pitt's bonds "because it is obviously a sound and sure investment."

Marston, in agreement with Howard and Little, emphasized the willingness of investors to "accept a lower rate of interest in return for the opportunity to buy the bonds of an organization with a high rating."

The three financial authorities explained that rating agencies keep their list of ratings current. They pointed out factors involved in obtaining high ratings.

In the eyes of investors, Pitt County has a long history of financial responsibility. It has never defaulted on a debt. And, according to Gray, doesn't intend to.

As of today, Pitt's total debt amounts to $966,800 with sinking funds—put aside for payment of the debt—of $124,875.

Its net debt ratio is 1.1 per cent and considered excellent. The ratio is based upon total valuation of property within the county and is considered carefully by investors before buying the county's bonds.

Potential investors also study the county's past record of tax collections. A brief glance will show that the county has collected above 95 per cent of its ad valorem levy during the last two complete fiscal years.

For the fiscal 1958-59 levy of $1,268,745, Pitt had rounded up $1,237,703 by January 1, 1961—leaving a total of 2.4 per cent delinquent. Fiscal 1959-60's levy of $1,434,122 was 95.7 per cent complete by the same date with a total of $1,371,924 collected.

On the same day, the $1,509,499 levy for fiscal 1960-61 was 67.8 per cent complete with $1,027,181 taken in.

Gray, reluctant to accept credit for Pitt's efficient management, sees wise budgeting on the part of the County Commissioners and cooperation on the part of the various county agencies as the factors to which Pitt's high rating can be attributed.

"We have darn good government in this county," Gray declares.

If next Saturday's bond election for the erection of a technical training school is approved by the voters, they can rest assured the money they spend on it will be handled as efficiently and as economically as possible, the trio of bankers believe.

With the universally high rating of the county by recognized financial institution rating agencies, salability of the required bond and a reasonable rate of interest on them can be anticipated by Pitt's taxpayers.

Several weeks ago, there were some remarks here about artistic creativity in college.

Now, Robert Frost, who seems to be getting more talkative as the classes come up with a new insight into the subject, comes to the Washington Post. "College is a refuge from the world," he writes. "It is a judgment. It's also easy to be a family. If a boy goes off to college, he goes to a village to paint the poetry, his family is still in college, they can still be in college," and it is his right.

Coyote's Howl Heard In East

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The coyote, that crafty predator of the Western plains, is invading the northeastern United States.

The northern third of New York State is now listed as coyote country by the Academy of Natural Sciences.

A number have been reported killed or trapped in Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Massachusetts, too.

Where did they come from? Some mammologists think the coyotes may have been imported by trappers to create bounty prizes.

"The Schools" One of the most promising of the multitude of new books on the schools seems to be Martin Mayer's "The Schools," from which a selection that was most impressive appeared in "Harper's" a month or so ago. The best feature of Mayer's work is the care with which he has studied his subject over several years in both Europe and America. He also has the advantage of having begun the work with an open mind instead of a position to defend.

Mayer believes that one of the worst features of contemporary American schools is a sense of defeatism, the belief that children are uneducable or educable only in a very limited way. He presents example after example to show that in schools where the mastery of difficult material is made a desirable goal the response of children, even of those with a "low I. Q.," is remarkable.

A NIGHT OUT, By Edward Peple; John F. Blair, Publisher — Winston-Salem

This bit of inconsequential nonsense was first published in 1909, and is now in its 28th printing. For genuine cat lovers, or for anyone who enjoys deviating from the usual routine, even vicariously, "A Night Out" will be well received.

The story centers on Omar Ben Sufi, a "splendid tiger-marked feline of purest Persian breed" who lives with a family of humans in a little eighty thousand dollar cottage, and is fed from Dresden china on flaked fish, raw sirloin, and pasteurized cream. One night Omar Ben has the good fortune to meet Ringtail Pete in the thirty-thousand dollar flower garden belonging to the humans. During the ensuing evening Omar discovers the thrill of catching "frags," and the blood-lust which might have been washed out of him by luxury is re-awakened. Omar proves that luxury has not made a weakening of him, for he fights Ash-Can Sam, wounds his pugilistic pride, and forces retreat of the bully.

The escapade with girl-of-the-street Lizzie is not quite so successful, only tantalizing. To summarize: a story to share and enjoy. Margerytay Cramer

N.C. 2nd In Nation As Cucumber State

By WADE LUCAS

AYDEN — Did you know that North Carolina ranks second among the 50 states of this nation in processing of pickled cucumbers?

Well, it does, and only the State of Michigan packs more pickled cucumbers than does North Carolina.

In fact, cucumber pickling is very big business in North Carolina and there are indications it can and will get larger as farmers and others make maximum use of Tar Heel soil, which in 1960 produced vegetables for the fresh market and for processing that has a value of $30,378,000, according to figures compiled by the Department of Conservation and Development for use in pointing up the food processing potentials that still exist in North Carolina.

Ranking highest of any North Carolina grown vegetable for the fresh market and for pickling is the majestic cucumber, a vegetable that is contributing much to the economy of the areas in which they are grown as well as to the entire State.

Last year, for example, 21,600 acres were planted in cucumbers in North Carolina. Of these, 16,000 acres were planted for processing by farmers growing them under contract.

Cucumbers grown in North Carolina last year had a total value of $2,994,000, with those processed having a value of $2,400,000. More than 80 per cent, in fact the figure was 80.2 per cent, of all cucumbers grown in the State last year were processed.

At Mt. Olive, Too Mount Olive in Wayne County has long been famed for its pickle packing plants, but little—and certainly not enough—has been written about the pickle processing plant of Lutz and Schramm Co. here in Ayden in Pitt County.

This company, a part of Beatrice Food Co., Chicago, said to be the nation's third largest food processor, has been quietly operating here for the past several years and the jobs it provides mean much to the economy of this area as well as to

Town Spirit Earns An Ambulance For Wilds

By DON SPIRE

DETROIT, Ore. (AP) — The number 7-11 can work almost magic over a rugged 1,000 square miles of central Cascade Mountain wilderness.

Dialed on the telephone, it can bring aid to the sick and injured and, thanks to an outburst of community spirit and cooperation, it can also send an ambulance on a mercy mission through the wilds.

Detroit is a tiny town (pop. 206) in the Santiam Pass of the Cascades but it is the metropolis of the wilderness and headquarters for some 8,000 vacationers at the summer peak.

It has no drug store; no nurse. The nearest doctor is 20 miles away; the nearest hospital is 37 miles. Until last year, there was no one to turn to in case of sickness or accident.

This is what Detroit did about it: First, the men of the town started first aid classes, directed by the Red Cross and the Oregon Industrial Accident Commission.

Then, incorporated under the name Detroit Mobile First Aid burgh in the beefing-up operations of this long established company as vice-president and general manager was C.M. Cavalier. W. G. Griffith, a native of North Dakota, is plant superintendent.

Within the next week or so pickle packing will be at its peak in the plant here. There will be jobs for about 200 workers during the height of the season. Lutz and Schramm Co., however, is no seasonal operation. It operates all year, though employment is down somewhat during the months the cucumbers are not being brought to the plant here.

"We manufacture 52 varieties of cucumbers in our plant in Ayden," said Cavalier. "We have from 1,800 to 2,000 acres of cucumbers grown by farmers in this section of Eastern North Carolina under contract."

The unusual weather that has prevailed throughout much of the growing season this year has reportedly had its effect on the cucumber crop. In normal growing seasons, an acre of good Eastern North Carolina land planted to cucumbers will yield an average of about 100 bushels.

Lutz and Schramm Co., whose total varieties of pickles almost total that of a well-known soup company (Heinz), and its nation-wide advertised "57 Varieties" ships its North Carolina-pickled cucumbers throughout the free world.

And as all pickle lovers know, and as practically all admit, North Carolina cucumbers are simply unexcelled in their field in taste and quality regardless of whatever claims Michigan may make.

Tornado Collapses Church; Score Of Children Injured

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

RAVENNA, Ky. (AP)—A tornado perhaps the same one which killed a little girl south of here, ripped up Ravenna Friday, collapsing a church where 23 small children were studying the Bible.

Her father, Floyd Bush, was at their home across the street when the twister hit. As he rushed out of the house, the church was collapsing and rubble was falling in on the children.

Some of the children buried under mounds of brick and timber. Most of the children were taken to the Estill County Hospital at Irvine, Ravenna's sister city along the Kentucky River here.

Her uncle, Daniel Collins, and some other children at the scene were only bruised. Officials said the Collins girl tried to run and was hit by a falling beam.

The tornado here opened its havoc by tearing the roof from the Louisville & Nashville Railroad roundhouse on the edge of town. Then it acted like a mammoth ice cream scoop, cutting across the business and residential areas of the town.

IT MADE ME SO MAD TO THINK ANYONE WOULD BE SO INCONSIDERATE—I CHECKED HIS LICENSE. AND IN THE LIGHT OF WHAT IS HAPPENING, I THINK YOU OUGHT TO KNOW, MR. TRACY.

HIS NAME IS "TRUSTY" HUBBUB. "TRUSTY" HUBBUB? HMP? YES—I RECALL THAT NAME. HE'S A HOOD THAT WAS SENT UP FOR INCOME TAXES IN THE FORTIES.

OF COURSE, MR. TRACY, THERE MAY BE NO CONNECTION— BUT— GET ME THE LATEST INFORMATION ON ONE "TRUSTY" HUBBUB, AND RUSH IT, PLEASE.

I'M NOT ALLOWED TO TELL YOU THAT! BUT I HAVE A RIGHT TO KNOW, SIR.

HOW COME? WELL, IT WILL ALL BE MINE BY TOMORROW MORNING.

CHAPTER 19
 The morning was bitter, December 6, the coldest yet, and the wind was high, cruel. Aboard Mayflower at least it had not been raining, nor yet had the exploratory party known rain while they were alongside in the shallop; but as soon as they were clear of the vessel the air was filled with a million angry pinpricks, spray that had been snatched off the top of the waves and was slammed against their unprotected faces. They winced, but carried on.

Sal sighed, and settled back. "Well, let's hope we ain't all drowned," he said.

The wind rose, shrieking. The spray redoubled, thick as a fog and twice as malicious. Already they were straining the not-too-skilfully stepped mast, and they had to shorten sail a task in which Sal Boyd gladly helped.

There was no sort of protection. The tools and provisions had been stowed forward, under the half deck, and the cockpit, bare except for that possessive large tiller, was scarcely big enough to hold the men. The best they could do—but they had to do this anyway—was huddle close together.

They had appeared to be moving fast when they left Mayflower, but thereafter, looking at what they could see of the shore, they crawled. To keep that shore even intermittently in sight they had to stay close to it, and the bang of breakers was hardly a soothing sound to hear.

The spray slashed them like knives. They could scarcely move when, in a routine shift of position calculated to stir the blood, pressure was taken from one of them, young Edward Tully, he actually toppled forward in a swoon; and they had to use some of their precious aqua vitae to revive him.

There was a long jutting sandy point, a point that marked the farthest the foot expedition had gone. After that, all would be mystery. But at least it would block off some of that murderous wind. Blinking, shivering, afraid, they rounded it.

Immediately they saw the Indians, ten or twelve of them, on the beach several miles away. They were doing something to a large black object, of indeterminate shape.

"Go right for them," Miles Standish cried.

He had always been in favor of an immediate contact. If there was to be a fight, let it be right now, before the savages got accustomed to the noisy guns and bright swords. The first blow is always the best.

"Perhaps we should signal first," William Bradford demurred.

"Just as you want," said Robert Coffin. "But—make up your minds."

That was it: "minds." Coffin was the ranking mariner after Clarke, and as such the skipper of the boat, since Clarke had waived the command. Standish was the captain of the army, and couldn't this order he had given be called a military one? Bradford the saint was in general, social political charge, the active representative of the Holy Discipline.

The whole arrangement was ridiculous. Fledgling militiamen in a back-country hamlet would have thrown together a more efficient unit.

And there was still another voice to be heard—that of John Carver, the gentle small man who after all was Governor of the whole colony-to-be.

Deacon Carver shouldn't have been with them. He was too old. Yet they all knew that whatever command he gave would be given without any thought of his personal comfort or safety.

Now he paused, gasping a little. As always, he was unwilling to take his own feelings into account, and he looked around, staring into their faces. The men he saw, in all truth, were in pitiful condition, as bad as he was, though this was only the middle of the afternoon.

"Look! They've seen us!"

The Indians had. They had backed away from the black mass on the beach, and they ran for the woods, soon to be lost from sight. "Make for the shore," John Carver murmured. "Some—some of you need—fire, food—rest."

"There was no dispute. They made for the shore.

Plenty of wood lay about, but they were so stiff and sore, and so weary that it took all of two hours to build a flimsy barricade of branches and broken logs, in the middle of which their fire belowered.

That fire was the only pleasant thing. Night closed in upon them like a band of sneaky thieves. They saw no more savages, but they did see fires twinkling erratically several miles down the beach, and three columns of smoke waivered against a darkening sky.

Captain Standish promptly proposed that they build five or six fires of their own, and keep these going as long as any shred of daylight remained, an old scouting-party trick intended to dissuade an enemy from attack.

Nobody paid any attention to him. The proposal wasn't even discussed; they were too tired to care. It did not good to sleep there or to plead with them. They weren't men; they were mutes, without resistance. One by one, after they had eaten, and without waiting to be assigned to sentry duty, they flumped upon the ground like corpses, not even making a groan.

"I guess we'll have to do it ourselves, Boyd," Miles Standish said.

"I guess we will, sir."

The black object that the Indians had been grouped around, on the beach several miles away, next morning proved to be a fish, or perhaps a whale. It was all of fifteen feet long. It had bristly hair, like a swine, and like a swine too it had a thick coat of fat fully two inches of it all around. They cut away some of this fat, as patently the Indians had started to do, and they tasted it.

"Not bad," pronounced Edward Dotey, as well as he could from wincing.

The others agreed, and they proceeded to cut away every bit of the fat, meaning to pack it into sacks and take it with them. Sal Boyd did not participate in this theft, for he was back in camp, catching up on his sleep; and when later they offered him some of the fat—which had a disgusting odor—he refused.

He did, however, go prowling with a company that afternoon. They found nothing to show that land, or this part of this land, would support them. The soil was as before, mostly sand. The trees were stunted. The grass was dry. And there was very little fresh water. They did find the remains of last night's Indian fires, which told them nothing.

Meanwhile the shallop had been sailed to a point several miles south, where there was a small fresh-water stream, and thither the land party, having found nothing worthy of mention, and certainly no site for a colony, later repaired; and there they made their second camp.

They were careful about this one. They set it up some sixty yards back from the edge of the water, where the ground was more substantial, and they drove into that ground stout stakes, between which they wove green branches, making the whole thing shoulder high. It was not a wall that would have withstood a well-handled battering ram, but it would stop an arrow. Within its circle—the one opening was on the beach side—at last they snuggled down to sleep. Nevertheless, and though they

Satellites Disclose High-Speed Space Dust

By VERN HAUGLAND
 WASHINGTON (AP)—Two U.S. satellites that stopped broadcasting last December—Explorer VIII and Vanguard III—have warned scientists that future space travelers may be bombarded by large numbers of high-velocity dust particles.

This cosmic dust—fast-moving clouds of micro-meteorites near the earth—appears to be in orbit around the sun, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday.

Analysis of the tapes of telemetry information sent back by the two satellites showed that most of the particles "could be associated with a major meteor stream," NASA said.

"For the first time we are starting to get a definitive picture of the very small particles moving at high velocity in the vicinity of the earth," said Wesley M. Alexander, a NASA micrometeorite expert.

"The particles observed have been too small to represent a hazard, but they do not have to be much larger before people will start to worry about them. Just a little bigger and they would get us into trouble."

If big enough, the particles presumably could puncture a spaceship. Also, they may have a corrosive effect.

The two satellites, operating a year apart, apparently probed the same meteor stream—the Leonid star shower that occurs every Nov. 14. The Leonids as shooting stars so named because they seem to move in lines radiating from a point in the constellation Leo.

Vanguard III, launched Sept. 18, 1959, picked up a large number of micron-size dust particles on the following Nov. 15-17. NASA said it had not reported this previously because it had just completed the unraveling of data from the satellite.

A micron is a millionth of a meter, or 0.000039 of an inch.

NASA said Vanguard III detected as many particles during the 70-hour period in November, 1959, as were found during the remainder of its 78-day broadcasting life. "Explorer VIII, in November, 1960, may have again seen this stream when one of its detectors sampled a different size range of particles than did Vanguard III," NASA said.

The team of NASA scientists assigned to the Explorer VIII experiment told a news conference that data on the average number of micrometeorite particles that can be expected near the earth will be of great assistance in designing the amount of satellite shielding that will be required to protect astronauts and their delicate instruments.

Their radios dead, both satellites are expected to remain in orbit for more than 50 years and possibly for hundreds of years.

Three Art Students Earn Extra Awards

Three students of art at East Carolina College have been awarded scholarships or fellowships for summer study in leading art schools in this country. Recipients are Edward E. Lancaster of Vanceboro; Alvin S. Dunkle of St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Robert D. Schmitz of Erie, Pa.

Lancaster, who was graduated last month with a bachelor of science degree in art, has been awarded a scholarship to the University of Oklahoma to work toward the master of fine arts degree. The award is the second such scholarship granted to an art major outside the University of Oklahoma.

Word has been received that Lancaster has also been awarded the top scholarship amounting to $250 by the Alumni Scholarship Foundation of Delta Phi Delta, national honorary fraternity.

Dunkle has been awarded a fellowship to study at the Intaglio Workshop in New York City by its director, Mr. Letterio Calapai. The appointment is the first such recognition that has been awarded a student by Mr. Calapai. Mr. Dunkle is now in New York City studying Intaglio printmaking and assisting in the studio.

During the spring quarter ceramics majors in the department of art established a scholarship fund to enable an undergraduate student to spend a summer at another institution studying ceramics. The purpose of the fund is to widen the student's approach to the field of ceramics and to enable the recipient to bring back to his fellow students ideas, methods, and techniques used at other institutions.

The scholarship has been awarded to Schmitz, who has completed his junior year in the department of art as a ceramics major. He is currently using this scholarship as a student in ceramics at Pennsylvania State University.

They were better palisaded than last night, and had posted sentries, they were apprehensive, twitchy. The night was silent, save for the spick-pick of a sinking fire, and perhaps it was half over when the two sentries gave an alarm. "Indians-Indians!"
