Bucs Take Title, MVP Honor And Sportsmanship Trophy Of Tourney

MAKING FINAL PLANS . . . for the motorcade in honor of the national champion ECC Pirates baseball team, which returned today from Sioux City, Iowa, are: Harry Rainey, Director of the Student Supply Stores at the college; ECC President Dr. Leo Jenkins; Dr. James W. Butler, Assistant Director of Public Relations and Foundations, and Highway Patrolman J. B. Surles, who was to escort the caravan of Pirate-carrying convertibles and well-wishers from Beethle.

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP)—East Carolina College, which came here with the smallest squad, picked up all the marbles Saturday night in the NAI A national baseball tournament. The Pirates won the championship, the sportsmanship trophy, the most valuable player award, and placed three men on the all-tournament team. Coach Jim Mallory, a former star football player at the University of North Carolina, said "We were tired and lost the first game Saturday night to Sacramento State. But the fact that we bounced back to win the second game, and the title, is typical of the determination this team has shown all season long." The Pirates won four straight games en route to the Saturday night final, then lost 14-5 to Sacramento, which had previously lost a game in the double elimination tournament. A second game then was necessary, and the Pirates promptly struck down the Californians 13-7 to stow away their first national baseball flag. The tourney's most valuable player award went to pitcher-outfielder Larry Crayton. The pint-sized Crayton won two games during the tourney, and in the Pirates' victory over Grambling Thursday night he set a new NAI A tournament record of 19 strikeouts. Crayton had pitched and won only the night before. Crayton naturally, was picked on the all-tournament team. So were Larry (Cotton) Clayton, who plays almost any position, and Floyd Wicker, third baseman. Crayton's strikeout feat was all the more remarkable because Grambling, an all-Negro team from Louisiana, was considered the best hitting team in the tournament. Crayton gave up only three hits and his left-handed slants had the Grambling hitters fanning the air all night. He fanned Tom Acee, the nation's No. 2 hitter with a .500 season average, three times. Crayton put the finishing touch on his tournament performance in the final game Saturday night. After Sacramento, trailing 13-1, picked up six runs in the ninth against Nathan Green, Mallory called in Crayton to put out the fire. Crayton promptly struck out the last Sacramento batter and assured the trophy for the Pirates.

Army Rebukes General For Allegations Of 'Pink' Label

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army today rebuked Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker for labeling as pinks or Communists former President Harry S. Truman, other leading Democrats, and segments of the U.S. press and radio-TV industries. Announcing findings of an investigation ordered by President Kennedy, the Army said the 24th Infantry Division's troop information program put into effect by Walker "was not attributable to any program of the John Birch Society." Charges that Walker had subjected troops of his command in Europe to propaganda from the militantly conservative society touched off the inquiry. Along with rebuking Walker, the Army canceled his pending assignment to command the 8th Corps at Austin, Tex., and ordered him to remain in his present post "pending eventual reassignment within the United States." Secretary of the Army Elvin J. Slahr Jr. announced "the admonishment" of Walker for "taking injudicious actions and for making derogatory public statements about prominent Americans while in command of the 24th Infantry Division in Germany." The Army said the admonition was administered to Walker by Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, commander in chief of Army forces in Europe. The investigation stemmed from charges published by the Overseas Weekly, a privately owned tabloid newspaper widely read by U.S. servicemen in Europe. Walker denied the paper's charges and called the Overseas Weekly unscrupulous. President Kennedy then ordered an inquiry. The Army said the administrative admonitions are not intended as punishment or penalty, but are "corrective measures more analogous to instruction." However, the Army said the significance of an admonition "in this particular case is greatly increased by public announcement that such action is being taken." At the time Kennedy ordered the investigation in mid-April, Walker was relieved as commander of the 24th Division and assigned to the staff post at Army headquarters in Heidelberg. He had been scheduled, before the storm broke, to take command of the 8th Corps in Texas in August.

ASC Starting 6th Week Of Measuring Acreage

Pitt County's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office today swung into its sixth week of measuring county crop acreage—a task that has doubled since last year. A tabulation last week showed the Pitt ASC staff—ballooned from 10 to 112 for the performance season—has completed measurement of and mailed notices to 1,225 of Pitt's 2,734 farms. However, the tabulation showed measurement alone had been completed on a total of 1,910 farms with 1,480 farms planned. A total of 1,311 farms had been summarized. The 112 members of the office staff include 80 ASC reporters, 22 temporary office workers and the 10 members of the year-round office staff. The federal feed grain program that drew participation from 51 per cent of the county's farms has doubled the performance job this year. Instead of last year's total acreage to be measured of 43,000, the local ASC office this season must measure a total of 89,252 acres. A breakdown of the total figures shows: 25,181 acres of tobacco; 47,865 acres of land diverted under the feed grain program; 8,974 acres of cotton; 6,633 acres of peanuts; and 699 acres of wheat. Office Manager Wayne L. Wang today called on Pitt farmers to be alert for your notice in the mail. Wang said his office has begun mailing notices of the results of the crop measurement program. "A farmer has seven days from the date of the notice to make a request for disposition or re-measurement," he said. Cost to the farmer for disposition is $5 plus $1 per place, and the cost for re-measurement is $8 plus $1 per acre whichever is larger.

Niagara Mishap Kills Four People

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (AP)—Four persons died Sunday night when a small motorboat carrying them on an outing capsized in the rapids above Niagara Falls and plunged over the edge. Two women and a man were swept over the brink of the cataract and dashed into the mass of rocks and churning water 162 feet below. The other man was sucked through the intake of a power plant. Killed were George Stewart, 49, a druggist from Ridgeway, Ont.; his wife, Jean, 44; and Stanley Tessman and his wife, Gladys, of 252 Leroy Ave., Buffalo, N.Y. Crowds of sightseers at the famous tourist attraction watched in helpless horror as the tragedy began to unfold two miles up the Niagara River. The boat, apparently hit by engine trouble, drifted through a gate of the Ontario hydrocontrol dam which stretches more than half way across the river from the Canadian side. In all the history of the falls, only one person is known to have survived an accidental plunge over the brink—a boy who fell over last year. IN BOSTON HARBOR BOSTON (AP)—A Soviet flag flew today in Boston harbor—the first one seen in years. A Soviet trawler came into port Sunday to land its captain, Artsev V. Grigorovich, 33, for treatment for gastritis.

Hurricane Season Starts Thursday

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Another hurricane season starts Thursday with forecasting, tracking and warning machinery primed for a quick fix on any potentially dangerous gale. The season is an arbitrary period, extending to Nov. 15, in which the U.S. Weather Bureau's records indicate hurricanes are most likely to form. The first hurricane of 1961 will be called Anna in accordance with a series of names that goes through the alphabet to Wendy.

Host Of Abuses In Federal Surplus Program Unveiled

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—A host of abuses of the federal surplus property program in North Carolina has been revealed in a federal audit completed in April. As a result of the audit, 14 North Carolina city and county governmental agencies—health departments and school systems—have been removed from the list of agencies eligible to receive the surplus federal supplies. Under the program, surplus federal equipment and supplies are made available to schools, school systems, colleges, universities, medical institutions, hospitals, clinics, health centers and civil defense organizations at a fraction of their original costs. These agencies are the only ones eligible to receive the supplies. However, the audit showed large quantities of the equipment had been given, rented or sold to city and county governments, private corporations or individuals. Some 33 other agencies were cited in the report for "mis-use, non-use or unauthorized disposal of federal surplus property in varying degree." The audit covered the period from July 1, 1958 to June 30, 1959. Col. J. R. Smith, former controller and now assistant director of North Carolina's Surplus Property Agency, which handles the federal surplus property program in the state, said "we are working to bring about quickly as we can compliance and clearance of these cases." He said the state agency was gathering information on the cases and reporting to Dan A. Dollard of Charlottesville, Va., regional representative of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The 14 agencies suspended as a result of the audit findings are: Beaufort County Board of Education; Wake County Board of Health; Cherrystone City Schools; Gaston County Health Center; Monroe City Schools; Anson County Board of Education and Anson County Health Center; Wadesboro City Schools; Brunswick County Board of Education; Onslow County Board of Education and Onslow County Health Center; Wilkes County and County Health Center and Hoke County Health Center. Col. R. W. House, who heads the State Surplus Property Agency, said the 47 agencies mentioned in the report—the 14 suspended and the 33 others—have been contacted and have "expressed willingness to make all reasonable effort to comply with the requirements." House said some of the violations occurred because those receiving the supplies were not familiar with regulations. He said he feared bad publicity would endanger the program which "means so much to schools, medical institutions and civil defense." Col. Smith said much of the property involved had been returned to the state agency, transferred to other eligible donees or allowed to remain with the original donee. Col. House said "the audit sounds worse than it is . . . we're steadily clearing up a lot of it. We've been busy at more than two months." He said his agency has insufficient personnel to enforce regulations or use and disposition of the property. The audit showed that some of the surplus property had been diverted to individuals or to ineligible local governments and that many items could not be located at the time of the audit. Others had been "cannibalized" (stripped down to provide parts for other equipment). Equipment involved ranged from binoculars and cameras, to trucks and $30,000 motor graders. Most of the violations covered in the report were of school systems obtaining surplus equipment for use by other local governmental agencies. One county school superintendent was quoted as saying he was "under constant pressure of county commissioners" to obtain vehicles and other machinery for use by the county. Included in the report was the copy of a contract between a city school board and a municipal council setting forth terms by which the school system would obtain equipment for the town. The report cited records which showed that a state official had received two hydraulic presses valued at $13,801.26. House explained that the state official had been authorized by his home county school officials to pick up property for them. He said the state official and local school officials disclaimed any knowledge of the presses. House noted that not every person receiving identification cards entitling them to pick up equipment were officials of the school system or health department for which the card was issued. He said that at times "I'll get a call from a school principal or superintendent or health officer asking me to let so-and-so come in and get property for them." He said at times it was not practical for these officials to come in person, especially when long distances were involved. The audit report contained recommendations for tightening up on issuance of identification cards.

Four-Man Team Leaves Tonight To Meet Castro

WASHINGTON (AP)—A four-man American team leaves for Havana tonight in hopes of closing a deal with Prime Minister Fidel Castro to swap 500 tractors for 1,200 Cuban invasion prisoners. The U.S. technical team representing the Tractors-for-Freedom Committee cabled Castro Sunday night that it would arrive in Havana at 8 a.m. Tuesday after an overnight stop in Miami. The path to Havana seemed cleared of any official obstacles. Representatives of both the U.S. and Cuban governments said the team could get the necessary travel permits in Washington this morning. But it remained to be seen whether Castro would agree to the terms the committee is offering. The pro-Communist Cuban has been talking publicly about deals the Americans say they will not accept. A spokesman said the U.S. team of four non-government farm machinery experts hopes to complete arrangements in Havana in about a day, returning to the United States Wednesday. In its cable to Castro, the group said it had power to negotiate only on details of the committee version of a swap and is in no position to discuss any other matter. The Tractors-for-Freedom Committee is headed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, labor leader Walter P. Reuther and Dr. Milton Eisenhower, brother of the former president. The group of private citizens was set up with President Kennedy's help after Castro's May 17 offer in a TV speech to exchange his captives from the U.S.-aided invasion for 500 tractors. The committee has been soliciting donations to pay for the tractors. One principal difference between Castro's proposal and the committee's counter-offer so far has been in the type of tractors involved. Castro also has talked about political prisoner exchanges, a subject unacceptable to the committee. He has been vague about what prisoners he would return. The members of the technical team are Prof. Roy Balner, head of the University of California agricultural engineering department; C. H. Hansen, asst. professor of agricultural engineering at Michigan State University; J. B. Liljedahl, agricultural engineering professor at Purdue University; and Duane P. Great-hous, director of the United Auto Worker Union's agricultural implement department. An interpreter will accompany the group.

Western Nations Return To Geneva Laos Session

GENEVA (AP)—The Western nations returned to the East-West conference on Laos today after winning a comparatively meager concession from the Soviets. The International Control Commission also reported it had appealed to the rival factions in Laos to get truce terms to the scene of reported fighting. The pro-Communist rebels previously had refused, but one report said a team now would be allowed to visit Padong, which Pathet Lao troops took from the royal government's forces Wednesday. The Soviets agreed to join the British in another appeal to the warring factions in Laos to stop the sporadic fighting and cooperate with the International Control Commission. The Soviets and British, co-chairmen of the conference, made a similar appeal April 24, before the cease-fire was proclaimed. At American insistence, leaders of the Western delegations had said earlier they would not take up the talks again until there was an effective cease-fire. One Western diplomat said it was a concession on the part of the Soviets to admit the cease-fire is not effective in Laos. Some observers said the West was back where it was when it broke off the talks last Wednesday after forces of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao overran a royal government outpost at Padong. The decision to resume the conference was reached in discussions between Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and the chief Western delegates—American Averell Harriman, France's Jean Chauvel and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home. A British spokesman said developments had taken place in Laos which indicated that the International Control Commission is operating on its own initiative. He would not explain. The truce group has been unable to operate effectively in Laos because the Pathet-Lao has refused to let it move freely in territory the Reds control. The three princes who head the contending factions in Laos agreed to meet in Zurich toward the end of the week. They are Souvanna Phouma, who calls himself a neutralist but is backed by the Communists; his pro-Communist half-brother, Souphanouvong, who heads the Pathet Lao, and Bouin Oum, who heads the pro-Western government in Vientiane. They will discuss the cease-fire violations and formation of a coalition government representing the three factions. Representatives of the three have been meeting in Laos but their conference has deadlocked on the same issue that has stymied the Geneva meeting: Communist refusal to discuss cease-fire violations and their insistence on getting down to discussion of the political future of Laos.

Tale Of 7 Murders In Six States Calmly Told

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Two calm teen-agers, swapping quips about the electric chair; offhandedly spun a tale Sunday of murder in half a dozen states. "It didn't seem to bother them one way or the other," said Colorado Sheriff W. H. Terrill. "I mean, no more than what you'd think about going out and shooting a rabbit." The two, George R. York and James D. Latham, said there had been those two women in Florida, that man in Louisiana, the man in Tennessee, two men in Illinois, one in Kansas, then that girl in Colorado. They reckoned it eight people, six states, eight notches carved in the handle of one of their pistols. Except that the man in Louisiana—they only learned this last weekend—survived. Terrill was one of the law officers who talked Sunday with York, 18, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Latham, his 19-year-old Army chum from Mauriceville, Tex. So did two men from the Kansas Bureau of Investigation. So did FBI agents. To all, the AWOL youths talked freely and willingly signed statements. The two are held under $10,000 bond apiece, on federal vehicle theft charges. "They talked as if they might have robbed a peanut machine," said one law officer who questioned them. "There wasn't any remorse. They even laughed at some of their victims." Sheriff Terrill agreed. "They joked about the death penalty," he said. "One said to the other he'd have to go first to that hot seat. The other said, 'No, we'll both go together.'" York and Latham were arrested Saturday, at a roadblock west of Salt Lake City, in a bright red car which had belonged to one of the victims. Here's the chronology, as officers pieced it together: May 27—Edward J. Guidroz, 43, was slugged with a wrench and left for dead beside a graveyard near Baton Rouge, La. Motive robbery. He survived, though he is hospitalized in critical condition Sunday night from his hospital bed he identified an Associated Press wirephoto of York as one of those who attacked him. May 29—Mrs. Althea Octavio, 43, and Mrs. Patricia Anne Hewitt, 25, both of Valdosta, Ga., were found strangled by some of their own clothing near Jacksonville, Fla. They had been robbed. June 6—The two tried to stop a car near Aiken, S. C., but the driver kept going. Four shots were fired at the car. June 7—John A. Whitaker, 71, a Negro railroad porter, was robbed of about $40 and his car, then shot to death at Tullahoma, Tenn. Guidroz' truck was found abandoned near the body. Litchfield, Ill., was shot near Edwardsville, Ill., and robbed of his pistol and bright red car. Seven miles away, service station operator Martin Drenovac, 69, Granite City, Ill., was found beaten to death. He had been robbed. June 9—Otto Ziegler, 62, a railroad roadmaster, stopped to help two youths apparently having trouble with their car. He was forced to drive to a lonely spot, robbed, walked to a railroad track. Then he was asked if he had any more money. He said no, and was shot. June 10—Rachel Marian Moyer, 18, doing summer work as a hotel maid, met two boys at a carnival in Craig, Colo. She offered to show them a good fishing spot and, once there, was robbed and told to start walking. As she strode angrily away, she was shot three times.

U.S., Canada To Exchange Planes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Canada are negotiating an exchange of military planes. That was confirmed Sunday by the Defense and State departments after the Canadian press said the two countries would sign an agreement within 48 hours. The Canadian Press said the planes were worth $320 million. According to Canadian Press, the agreement included these provisions: Canada acquires 66 American-made F101 Voodoo jet fighters; the United States places orders for Canada to produce 200 F104G Starfighter jets to be shipped to North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies, and Canada takes over operation of the Pine Tree radar line, running across Canada just above the border between the two countries. The financial arrangements are complicated. In all exchanges, the United States will pay 75 per cent of the total costs. Thus the U.S. share of the deal is $240 million, while Canada puts up $80 million, mostly by manning the radar line. WASHINGTON (AP)—The House today voted to extend Ayden's town limits is scheduled for roll call vote in the House Wednesday night. Introduced by Pitt Rep. Frank M. Wooten Jr., the bill would add a subdivision known as Sunrise Park to the town of Ayden. The area to be annexed into the city is approximately 700 feet by 600 feet and is bounded by the present eastern city limits of the town, Boulevard St., New Road, and Colonial St. According to the bill, the new section of Ayden will be subject to property tax levies beginning July 1, 1961 and the "citizens residing in said territory shall be entitled to all the privileges and benefits of other citizens of Ayden." ## Homemade Soaps Cannot Compete

A hallowed tradition is being broken this year at the Illinois State Fair. Women will no longer be awarded prizes for home-made soap!

Even in this "do-it-yourself" era, everybody recognizes that modern soaps and detergents are something special. The homemade varieties just can't begin to compete with quality-controlled commercial products—either in cost or in efficiency.

Stone - Quinn Marry In Wilson Miss Smith Is Saturday Bride Of Mr. Harris

WILSON—Miss Martha Howard Quinn of Wilson became the bride of James Garrett Stone of Reidsville in a doubling ceremony in St. Timothy's Episcopal Church Saturday at 4 p.m. The pastor, the Rev. John A. Gray, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carl Quinn of Wilson. Mr. Stone's parents are Mr. Pinkney W. Stone of Reidsville and the late Mr. Stone.

The wedding music was presented by Mrs. Herbert Carter of Greenville, organist, and Mrs. C. J. Bradner, also of Greenville, soloist. Mrs. Bradner sang "O Lord, Most Holy," "The Song of Ruth" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father the bride was wearing a wedding gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with a fitted bodice, scooped neckline and long sleeves ending in points over the wrists. The bouffant skirt extended into a cathedral train. Her veil of imported bridal illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white roses and stephanotis, centered with a purple-throated orchid.

Mrs. Carroll Youngkin of Durham, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore an aqua dress of crystal peau de soie, fashioned with a full, street-length skirt and fitted bodice. A bustle of matching material accented the back of the skirt. To complete her costume, she carried a bouquet of Shasta daisies.

Bridesmaids were Miss Charles Anna Walker of Reidsville, cousin of the bridegroom, Miss Jewel Callihan of Elizabethtown and Miss Elaine Brewer of Silver City, sorority sisters of the bride, and Miss Frances Evert, Miss Vicki Stott and Miss Elaine Batts of Wilson. Their dresses were fashioned similar to the matron-of-honor's and each carried a bouquet of Shasta daisies.

The Rev. Tucker G. Humphries of Franklin, Va. was best man. Ushers were Cecil Stone of Reidsville, cousin of the bridegroom; Walter Worthington of LaGrange and Wayne Willard of Washington, fraternity brothers of the bridegroom; Kenneth Briggs of Reidsville, and Robert and Tom Quinn of Wilson, brothers of the bride.

Following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in Anderson Hall.

Mrs. James Garrett Stone of the church, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Champion greeted guests and introduced them to the receiving line, composed of the bride couple, their parents, and the bride's attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Stevenson of Fremont directed everyone to the register.

White bridal arrangements and greenery were used throughout the hall. The bride's aunts, Miss Mary Hester Lewis of Tarboro and Mrs. Daniel Huffines of Greensboro, presided at the refreshment table serving fruit punch and wedding cake. Ham biscuits, sandwiches, nuts, cheese straws and mints were also served.

When the couple left for a wedding trip the bride was wearing a black and white suit with box coat, matching accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Stone attended Wilson schools while the bridegroom attended Reidsville schools. Both were graduated from East Carolina College in May, where they majored in mathematics. They will be members of the faculty of Breckenridge Junior High School in Roanoke, Va., this fall. The bride was a member of the Chi Omega Sorority, Chi Beta Phi

Saturday afternoon, June 10, 1961, at the Arthur Christian Church, Miss Tribby Lee Smith became the bride of Mr. David Bently Harris. The Rev. Carlton E. Best of LaGrange performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Mark H. Smith of Rt. 1, Greenville, N. C. and the late Mrs. Smith. Mr. Harris is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Chester Harris of Rt. 1, Greenville, N. C.

The music was rendered by Miss Joyce Jackson, soloist, and Mrs. Bruce Strickland and Mrs. Kenneth Jackson, pianists.

The church was decorated with areca palms. Wrought iron baskets with white gladioli and chrysanthemums were used with seven branched candelabra holding cathedral candles.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an original wedding gown designed by Vene of white imported, hand applied Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over lustrous slipper satin. Lace molded the fitted bodice and long, tapering sleeves. The scalloped neckline had a delicate tracing of seed pearls and tulle yoke. A billowy lace tunic cascaded over the full tulle skirt which fell into a demure chapel train.

Her fingertip veil of imported French illusion with hand-rolled scalloped edges was attached to a tiara of iridescent sequins and seed pearls. Her veil was sprinkled with cultured pearls. The tiara was scalloped into a leaf effect with lace appliques.

Mrs. Mark H. Smith Jr., sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a street length dress of nylon chiffon over taffeta in Nile green with a matching picture hat. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses and yellow satin streamers.

Acting as honorary bridesmaid was Miss Patricia Trivellin of Hampton, Va. She carried a yellow, long-stemmed rose.

Jesse Harris, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Mark H. Smith Jr., Jimmie Harris, Tony Trivellin and John, Cheek.

The stepmother of the bride wore a beige imported love lace dress with matching accessories.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a blue lace dress with white accessories. Both mothers wore rose corsages.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina College and is teaching in Greenville City Schools. The bridegroom was graduated from East Carolina College and is assistant manager of Greenville Production Credit Association. Wearing a two-piece navy dress with white accessories and using the orchid from her corsage, the bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip to Nags Head. The couple will make their home near Greenville.

Mrs. David Bently Harris

A child should brush his teeth four times a day! That's the recommendation of a noted California dental specialist, Dr. Francis William Summers, who is concerned about the bad effects that improper diet and lazy cleanliness habits wreak on youngsters' teeth.

Pointing out that dishes are washed after every meal in most homes, Dr. Summers comments: "If teeth were on the outside of people, like dishes, they'd be cleaned after every meal, too."

Freedom Riders Defeat Own Goals

A lot of sympathy self-styled Freedom Riders may have inspired in the early phases of their campaign is being lost. And oddly enough, the reversal of public opinion is largely due the zealots' own bad tactics.

Their campaign deteriorated from a testing of state laws to a public relations counsellor's nightmare gone wild. They were on sound ground testing state laws; but the evidence grows their planning got out of hand and no longer represents an organized program but a rallying point for crackpots and publicity-seekers.

One can understand that in the beginning it was necessary to announce travel schedules in advance, so that when and if their Southern invasion was interrupted it would become a point in legal arguments. They overlooked something: it was like waving a red cloth in the face of a bull. It not only inspired, but invited an angry and violent reaction. For a little while the Freedom Riders almost wore the mantle of martyrs. Provocation is risky.

Then a counter-reaction set in. Under protection of hundreds of marshals and Guardsmen and police they rode where and when they pleased. It became almost ludicrous. How could they effectively test state laws with a near-army guarding them and escorting them wherever they would go? So much protection was embarrassing. Too, there could be no more violent demonstrations which brought great, black headlines North, South, East and West.

But those same headlines and televised scenes inspired other hot-heads to seek a share in the ready-made publicity mill, and the original purposes of the campaign fell by the wayside. Dozens of jumpers on the Freedom Riders' bandwagon have been since arrested for breach of the peace.

On at least two recent occasions, the executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has indirectly rebuked the Freedom Riders. Once when he reminded it served no purpose to simply be put in jail; and later, on saying that while testing and challenging are necessary, but "affirmative action by judicial, legislative and executive means is indispensable."

Too, responsible sources have suggested it was no accident that the Riders' campaign was planned immediately prior to the Vienna meeting between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev.

A churchman, the Monsignor Patrick J. Malloy, of St. Louis . . . founder of an interracial group there . . . observes "You don't diminish racial tension by increasing it, and that is what the Freedom Riders are doing."

It is held by many that eventually the forces opposing segregation are going to prevail, despite the handicap of Freedom Riders, etc. The Washington (N.C.) Daily News opines that "Today more and more young people of the South are re-examining the moral side of the issue, and whether we like it or not, these young people are coming up with answers somewhat different from those held by the fathers. The present generation in the South will continue to resist, to be uncompromising, and to look upon freedom in terms of the definition by which they have been reared."

All of which is quite probably true. But deliver us from those who would incite mobs, raise new tensions, hatreds and provocations. They are no assets to the country at large nor to any segment thereof.

State Financing Of Local Needs

By LYNN NISBET
NEEDED STUDY—For many years counties and municipalities, particularly cities, have felt the burden of providing local government services to property which paid no taxes.

A bill sponsored by the N.C. Association of County Commissioners and the N.C. League of Municipalities, and introduced by Rep. Dave Britt of Robeson, seeks an approach to a solution of the problem.

The bill would create a commission to study the impact of State sovereignty upon financing of local government services of functions. Three members would be named by the President of the Senate from that body; three from the House named by the Speaker, and three from the state at large named by the Governor. The commission is required to study the whole problem, and report with recommendations to the Governor not later than December 1, 1962, for transmittal to the next General Assembly.

SERIOUS PROBLEM—Every incorporated town has to deal with this problem to some degree, because all of them have churches, schools, hospitals or other facilities which require services but pay no taxes.

The situation is especially acute and serious in Chapel Hill and Raleigh. The University at Chapel Hill perhaps controls larger share of property inside the corporate limits of the town than is true anywhere else. But in return the University-owned public utilities—electric power, telephone, water and hotel—serve the entire community at perhaps less cost than private enterprise could do the job.

Every city in which a large State institution is located has to deal with the problem of equitable compensation for services rendered.

RALEIGH—The City of Raleigh benefits more than any other from concentration of State government facilities. At the same time, the City of Raleigh is more heavily penalized in providing services to the non-paying State agencies.

One can stand at the head of Fayetteville street on the south side of capitol square and look north, east and west, and see upwards of fifty million dollars worth of property which pays not one cent of taxes. In front is the capitol itself, and partially visible through the trees the old YMCA and adjacent buildings, now owned by the State; the Agriculture and Insurance-Labor buildings. On the immediate right is the Justice building and just beyond the Highway and Art Museum buildings occupying almost a whole block. Turning leftward and looking west there is the Library building and just across the street the Revenue building. Interspersed among these State owned buildings are First Baptist Church (Negro), Christ Church Episcopal, First Presbyterian Church Baptist. Not quite in sight but in close proximity are five other large churches. Raleigh perhaps has no more church and non-State college property than other cities of comparable size, but it has as much.

The Capitol Square area represents only a small part of all State owned property within the corporate limits of the City of Raleigh. The Governor's Mansion and the Old Mansion Park hotel, the health and employment security buildings and others added up to many millions.

State College and Dorothea Dix Hospital Campuses with multi-million dollars in buildings lie almost wholly inside the city limits, require police, fire and sanitary services—but pay no direct taxes.

WORTH IT—It is quite obvious to citizens of Raleigh and throughout the state that these government facilities are worth all they cost to local taxpayers. Government is still the chief industry at Raleigh, despite the industrial growth of the past few years. The government payroll sustains the business life of the community. To take State government away from Raleigh would have comparable effect as taking Haynes and Reynolds industries away from Winston-Salem.

There remains, however, a serious question in equitable distribution of the government service load. Should the other property owners in Raleigh pay for more adequate fire protection and sanitary services for State buildings than they can get for their own premises? Should the resident on a back street, who is willing to pay a fair share of paving costs, have his tax money for city-paid paving diverted to streets fronting State-owned property?

These are questions which need answering, and the answers cannot be given on basis of casual surface information. Thorough study of the problem is overdue, and is provided for in the Britt bill.

The study might develop a more sensible approach to the whole problem of tax exemption for churches, hospitals and schools. There are many inequities now, and there is no general or comprehensive formula for taxation among the counties.

They Will Avoid Losing Revenues

By RALPH ROBEY
There will be a tax bill passed by this session of the Congress. This can be stated dogmatically because in the absence of such action the corporation tax of 52 percent would decline and various excises, such as those on alcoholic beverages, tobacco, and so forth, also would drop to a lower level. Neither the Administration nor the leaders in the Congress are willing to permit such a reduction of revenues to take place. But the program which President Kennedy submitted a few weeks ago does not have a chance of enactment, either now or later.

All legislation having to do with taxes has to originate in the House Ways and Means Committee. This committee has been holding elaborate hearings on the Kennedy program and, aside from Administration spokesmen, the opposition has been almost unanimous.

The President's suggestions, it will be recalled, fell basically into two parts. On the one side was a recommendation designed to get business to increase its investment in plant and equipment. This was a most complicated formula that was offered and business spokesmen have made it clear that they want no part of it. What is wanted, and what is badly needed, are more liberal depreciation laws. The President's plan made no change whatever in the rate at which depreciation may be charged off, but rather offered credit based upon the extent by which investment in capital equipment with a life of at least six years exceeded a company depreciation allowance under existing laws.

This tax credit plan was estimated to reduce government revenues by $1.7 billion, and the second part of the Kennedy program consisted of various reductions of various types. Almost none of these make any practical sense. For example, it was proposed that the deductibility of expenses for entertainment, travel, gifts, and so forth by business be limited by law. In the case of gifts, it was suggested that a maximum of $10 be established; and $30 a day was proposed as the limit for expenses while traveling—and this would include entertainment.

Now there is no doubt that some business men live handsomely, and some even lavishly, on expense accounts—and money is spent for activities which have no visible or real relation to their making a living—and no one approves of this. But the proper way to handle such excessive spending is by more strict auditing of tax returns. Under present laws the Internal Revenue Service has the authority to disallow anything which in its judgment is improper, and this decision can be upset only by court action. Further, a limitation of $30 a day or any other amount, is completely unrealistic because of the difference in prices from one section of the country to another. What would be reasonable in, say, New York, would be excessive in a small town, and what might be excessive in a small town would be quite inadequate in one of our large cities.

Another example of superficial reasoning is the recommendation on dividend income. We have an estimated fifteen million holders of stock in the United States and presumably almost all of them get a dividend. Under the present law each dividend recipient is freed from any tax on the first $50 of such income, and he is permitted to reduce his tax by 4 percent of any dividends over this amount. Kennedy proposed that all such dividend credits be eliminated.

In the hearings there was widespread support for the Herlong-Baker bill. This is the only complete tax rate reform measure before the Congress. It is a five year program and would reduce the income tax of all persons by not less than one quarter, would gradually lower the corporate tax, would revise the present system of handling depreciation, and so forth. The country would be much better served if the Congress would forget the Kennedy program and enact the Herlong-Baker bill.

Opinions In Brief

"Security against foreign danger is one of the primitive objects of civil society. It is an avowed and essential object of the American Union."—James Madison.

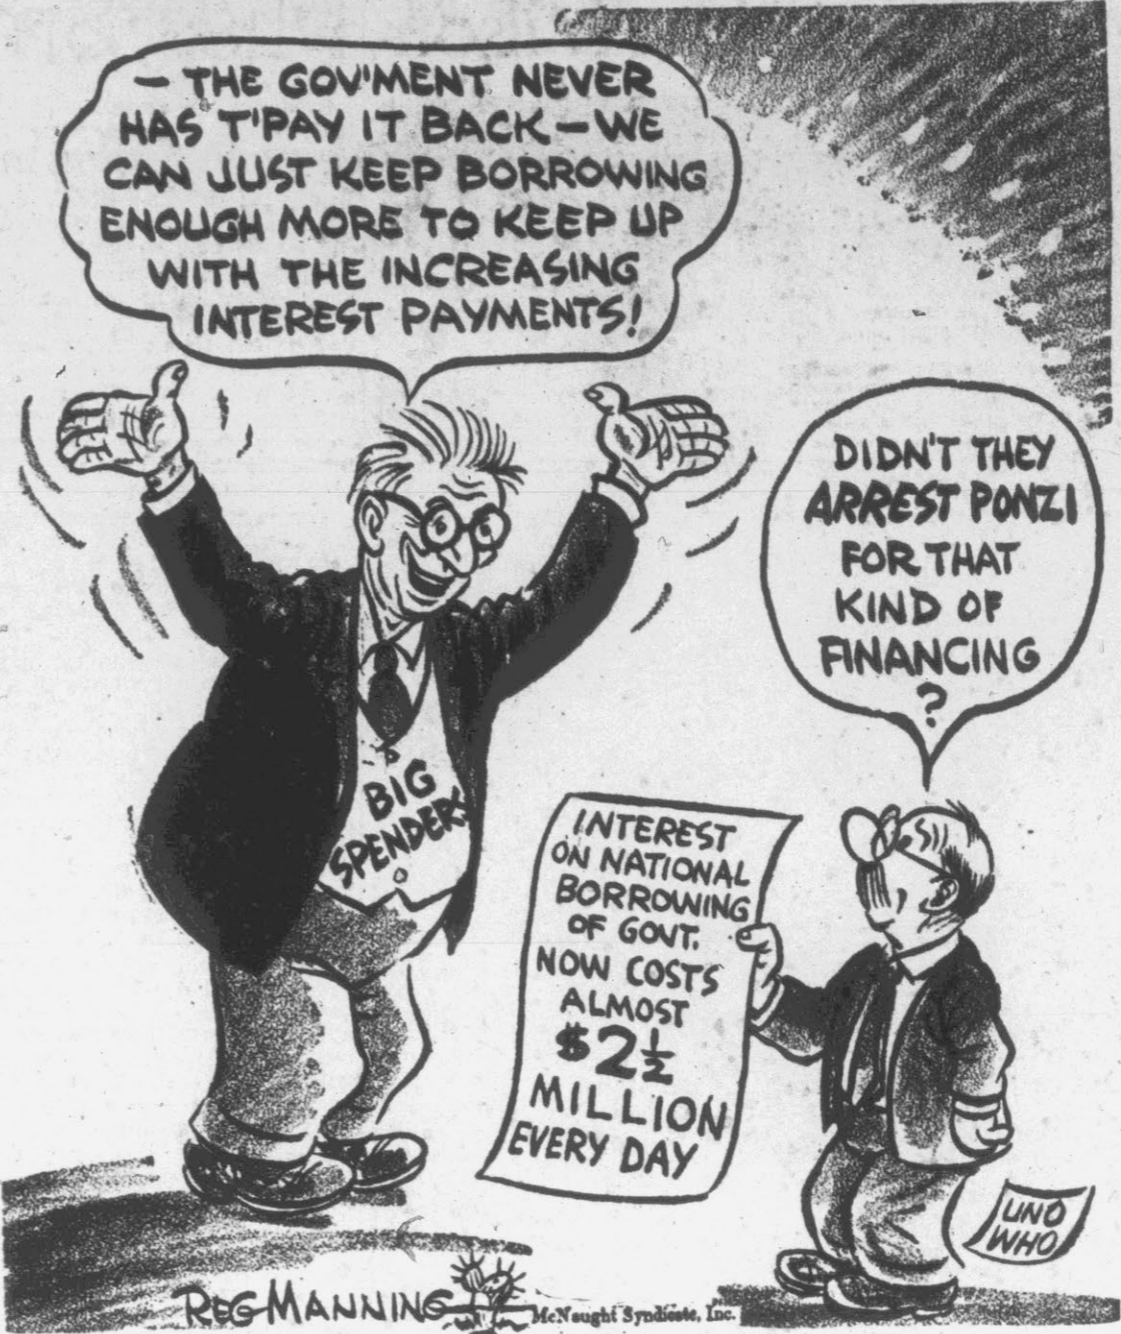

"The truth is that blue laws are a combination of religious, economic and traditional influences varying from state to state. We happen to believe society may be better served by a law that provides for a day of rest than by an absence of regulation that allows, even encourages, business to go full tilt seven days a week."—The Charlotte News.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
QUESTIONS
Children sometimes annoy us by the insistence and persistence with which they ask questions. They keep a barrage of questions directed toward us all the time. We may indeed, grow impatient. But we must remember that they are encountering for the first time situations to which we have long become accustomed. They must know about these things. They learn by asking questions.

This, of course, is a truism—everybody realizes this. But so often we find it hard to entertain questions with the child into this enterprise of discovery. Let us remember that it is the nation or the race intent on asking questions which makes discoveries and gets ahead in the world.

Why Worry About the National Debt?

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Probable, Not 'Possible'

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It is clear from President Kennedy's speech and from the continued fighting in Laos that whatever President Kennedy and Chairman Khrushchev said to each other was introductory. Neither side had prepared itself for decision and no decisions were reached. Our President recognizes the continuing dangers that this country faces in the presence of world Communism. It is impossible not to be realistic. The most comforting statement that he made concerning his visit with Khrushchev in Vienna is contained in these carefully chosen words:

"I will tell you now that it was a very sober two days. There was no discourtesy, no loss of tempers, no threats or ultimatums by either side. No advantage or concession was either gained or given. No major decision was either planned or taken. No spectacular progress was either achieved or pretended."

Further, the President said: "No new aims were stated in private that have not been stated in public on either side. The gap between us was not, in such a short period, materially reduced, but at least the channels of communications were opened more fully."

The essence of our difficulties with Soviet Russia is that neither people understand the other. To Soviet Russia, our materialistic capitalism is without historic meaning at the present time; to us, their atheistic materialism is without humane meaning. What we call faith, they call superstition; what we call democracy, they call monopoly. Marxism is not only a complex of new ideas but a distortion of old ones. For the first time, an American President stated the enormous differences between the Western and Communist mind in precise and accurate terminology:

"For the facts of the matter are that the Soviets and ourselves give wholly different meanings to the same words: war, peace, democracy and popular will. We have wholly different views of right and wrong, or what is an internal affair and what is aggression. And above all, we have wholly different concepts of where the world is and where it is going."

Further President Kennedy said: "We believe in a system of national freedom and independence. He (Khrushchev) believes in an expanding and dynamic concept of world Communism. "And the question was whether these two systems can ever hope to live in peace without permitting any loss of security or any denial of the freedom of our friends."

Ultimately the conversation between Kennedy and Khrushchev came down to a conflict of threats, gently given on an historical basis in most polite terminology. Khrushchev believes in the eventual and inevitable triumph of Communism. He believes that nothing can stop the advance of Communism and that he does not need wars as an aid. He believes that all the new nations of the Earth will be Communist. On the other hand, Kennedy takes the position:

"Yet all this does not mean that our nation and the West and the free world can only sit by. On the contrary, we have an historic opportunity to help these countries build their societies until they are so strong and broadly based that only an outside invasion could topple them. And that threat, we know, can be stopped."

"We can train and equip their forces to resist Communist-supplied insurrections. We can help develop the industrial and agricultural base on which new living standards can be built. "We can encourage better administration and better education, and better tax and land distribution, and a better life for the people."

"All this and more we can do because we have the talent and the resources to do it if we would only use and share them." Let us face this speech frankly, it is a warning to the American people.

Utility Stocks Review

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — At one time electric light and power stocks were as popular as electronic stocks are today. The favorite was Electric Bond & Share, which shot way up in the stock-market boom of the 1920's and then plummeted down to practically nothing. There were so many similar cases that President Franklin Roosevelt had Congress pass legislation to take the "electric" out of these stocks and dissolve electric utility holding companies.

WHY SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION
It was at this time that the Securities & Exchange Commission was formed, with President Kennedy's father as Chairman. And it was as a result of this housecleaning that Electric Bond & Share dropped almost out of sight. In fact, instead of a "stock dividend" there was a "reverse split" which forced stock owners' shareholdings virtually out of existence. I fear that the present exaggerated craze over "electronics" may later run into similar troubles for some of the companies.

Electric light and power stocks have since become safe and popular. This has been due to the growth in population and also to the numerous new uses for electricity in every home, store, and factory. Furthermore, such public plans as the Tennessee Valley Authority's and the semi-publicly owned plants of the Northwest have served to keep rates from becoming too high and hence retarding growth. Electric rates are the lowest in history and consumption per family has increased 3 times. I believe that much more growth is ahead with the greatly expanded use of electricity for heating and air conditioning.

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS AND PREFERRED

The safest electric utility securities for the small or large investor to buy today are the first mortgage bonds of an electric light and power company. Your local bank will be glad to select such a bond for you. Otherwise, purchase from your broker such a bond issued by the company which sends you your bill each month! You should then get a yield of about 4 1/2 percent. You must, of course, pay regular taxes on the income from the bonds and for other securities of an electric company (with a few exceptions).

In addition to the bonds, most electric companies issue both preferred and common stock. The preferred stock carries a fixed dividend, if earned, which usually yields over 5 percent. Be sure that any preferred which you buy is "cumulative" and, if possible, "non-callable." A cumulative stock means that if the dividend is not paid in any year, it must later be made up and surely paid before the common stockholders get a penny. "Non-callable" means that the company cannot call in the stock and pay you off for it if money rates go down. A "callable" preferred is a case of "heads or tails"—with the odds in favor of the company. If the stock is "callable" and money rates go down, the company pays you off; but if money rates go up, the company leaves you "holding the bag," so to speak. Other things being equal, you can buy the preferred of your local company.

ELECTRIC UTILITY COMMON STOCKS
If you are young and patient, the best investment may be in the common stock of your electric power company. This has no fixed or cumulative dividend; but you are entitled to all the earnings (less proper reserves) after the fixed interest is paid on the bonds and the accumulated interest is paid on the preferred stock. Such common stocks are "growth" stocks. They do not yield much income when you buy them; but the income should increase every year with the growth of the population and the prosperity of the country.

There is an exception to all rules, and it may now be too early to sell and take your profits on electronic stocks and investments in electric power stocks. Much depends upon the international situation. The chief potential customer of the electronic companies is the U.S. Government. Electronic devices are an important part of every missile.

6 Minutes; Half-Million Dollars

By ELMER ROESSNER

If it takes you six minutes to read this column (some people throw the paper away without ever looking at it) during that time Americans will pay half a million dollars in interest charges.

Figures compiled by the Department of Commerce show that at the end of 1950, the total net public and private debt was $82.9 billion. The net figure does not include money owed by one government agency to another, or money owed by subsidiaries to corporations.

In actuality, the total is probably even greater, because the government figures cannot include money owed among families, debts among individuals and unincorporated enterprises, including ambulatory loan sharks.

TWO ASSUMPTIONS
But assuming the figure is correct, let's assume that this indebtedness is drawing 5 percent interest a year. The average is probably higher. Federal state and local governments usually borrow for less. So do prime businesses, which could borrow at less than 3 percent at the start of the year. Rates on mortgages, farm loans and small business borrowings are 5 percent or higher. And interest on consumer indebtedness ranges up to 24 percent.

If the total is 5 percent, then this indebtedness means the transfer from borrowers, including governments, to lenders of $4,145,000,000 a year. That's $120,943,000 a day, or a little more than $5,000,000 an hour, day and night.

That comes to about $500,000 every six minutes. Your own arithmetic can tell you how much changes hands every time you sigh.

BIG CHUNK PER PERSON
The Census Bureau estimates there were 182,018,000 Americans in January, this year. That works out to a $4,301 share of governmental and private debt for each man, woman and child. And every person who does not owe on any mortgages, promissory notes or installment accounts, still owes a $1,558 share of Federal, state and local government debts. That goes for Carolina, Kennedy, too.

Here is how the debt is divided, in billions of dollars: Federal government and agencies . . . . . 241.0 State & local governments 60.0 Total public debt . . . . . 301.0 Corporations . . . . . 295.0 Residential mortgages (1-4 family urban) . . . . . 134.7 Consumer . . . . . 56.0 Business and farm . . . . . 98.1 Total private . . . . . 581.9 The figures do not add to $82.9 billion because of rounding.

Totals in each of the above classifications except one were substantially higher than for the end of 1959. The exception (prepare for a surprise!) was the Federal indebtedness, which was $243.2 billion a year earlier. However, the Federal indebtedness was $282.7 billion at the end of 1958, showing a net rise of $39 billion in two years.

LABOR, MANAGEMENT UNITE ON TAX PLAN

One of the curious consequences of the Administration's proposals to limit tax-deductible entertainment expenses is the united front developed by certain unions and their employers.

Unions of cabaret, luxury restaurants, sports and entertainment industry employees are joining to pressure Congressmen to oppose the proposals. However, J. S. Seldman, accountant, tax authority and angel of many Broadway shows, has come out strongly in the change. He said it will be "one of the finest things ever to happen to the theater. . . Then the theater will go back to the public. The public despairs about getting good seats for hit shows because so often the seats are gobbled up at premium prices by care-free, tax-deductible spending."

Couple Marry In New Bern

In a double-ring ceremony performed Saturday night, June 10, Miss Caroline Winder Ashford, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hall Ashford of New Bern, became the bride of Mr. Kirby Hart Smith Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Smith of Ayden. The wedding took place in Christ Episcopal Church of New Bern, with Rev. Charles E. Williams officiating.

Mrs. James B. Ringgold was organist and played "Because," "Serenade" by Schubert, "Ave Maria" by Schubert, and "O Promise Me." Solos were "I Love Thee" by Greig, "Whither Thou Goest, I Will Go," and "The Lord's Prayer," sung by Miss Catherine Latta.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length dress of French allusion with rosepoint lace applied on the bodice and around the skirt, with embroidered sequins throughout. The dress had cap sleeves and ended in a chapel train. She wore a mantilla veil, made of the same lace and allusion as on the dress. She carried a cascade of stock, snapdragons, roses, and centered with an orchid.

Miss Octavia Susan Ashford, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Katherine Sawyer of Windsor, Miss Elizabeth Dunn of Winston-Salem, Miss Alice Johnson of New Bern, and Mrs. Ashe Exum of Snow Hill. Flower girl was Miss Susan Jones of New Bern. They wore floor-length dresses of white velvety over green taffeta, with a cummerbund of the taffeta looping over to the floor. They wore green picture hats and carried bouquets of red roses.

The bridegroom's father was his best man and ushers were Mr. Charles H. Ashford, Jr. of New Bern, brother of the bride, Mr. Ashe Exum of Snow Hill, Mr. Patrick Morgan of Raleigh, Mr. Lamar Fleming of Augusta, Ga., Mr. Robert Johnson of Ayden, and Mr. James Handley of Wallace. Mr. Walker Hodges served as crucifer, and acolytes were Mr. John Dunn, Mr. John McCotter, and Mr. Glenn Dunn, all of New Bern.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with a reception at Trent Pines Club. It was decorated with mixed summer flowers, the wedding cake being topped with gardenias.

The couple left for a trip to unannounced points, the bride wearing for traveling an Italian silk three-piece green suit with bone accessories and the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

Mrs. Smith graduated from St. Mary's School and Jr. College and from Pan-American Business School in Richmond, Va., where she has accepted a position to teach next year.

Mr. Smith graduated from the University of North Carolina and is entering the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond in September. He is presently employed at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill.

With The Farm Women

By MAIDRED MORRIS
READ AS A HOBBY — Miss Katherine Millsaps, home economics agent in Alamance County, reports the Home Demonstration Club women in her county do find time for reading.

Recently the Highland club met with Mrs. H. C. Walker, Burlington, Rt. 1. She had a basket of library books on display so the women could easily pick up their books. She tries to have books available at each club meeting.

GOOD MANAGEMENT PRACTICES — Could one be more economical than Mrs. Joe Davenport of Roper? Mrs. Frances Darden, home economics agent in Washington County, says Mrs. Davenport has good ideas about conserving food.

Her daughter sent her some oranges and grapefruit from California. Some of the fruit was eaten, some made into marmalade, some of the rinds were candied while some were grated and dried to flavor cookies, cakes and sweet potatoes.

FURNITURE ARRANGEMENT — Is your problem furniture arrangement? If so, why not try arranging it for convenience and best use of space. Mrs. Ruby Corpening, assistant home economics agent in Madison County, says "livability is the first and final rule of furniture arrangement."

Mrs. Corpening has been encouraging the homemakers to group their furniture according to activities followed by family members such as reading, sewing, and television viewing.

MAKE - USE OF PAINT SAMPLES — Have you tried painting sample boards before painting the rooms in your home? Realizing that paint sometimes looks different after it is put on the wall, Mrs. Virginia Evans, home economics agent in Sampson County, decided to do something about it. Mrs. Evans had some samples of wall board painted by one of the local stores so she could show the samples when working with families in planning color schemes. You may want to try this method before investing in paint.

COUNTY WOMEN HONOR HOMEMAKER — The Pitt County Home Demonstration Club women honored Mrs. J. Brandley Speight recently at a reception at the home of Mrs. Obed Castle, Winterville, Rt. 1. Mrs. Sue May, home economics agent, says the women were honoring Mrs. Speight for having won one of the A P leadership awards. Mrs. Speight won for showing outstanding leadership in her club, church, and community activities.

WHY GROW STRAWBERRIES? — Mrs. Fetzter Blalock of Norwood, Rt. 1, has adapted a unique system for growing strawberries. When she desires strawberries for breakfast, she goes only a few feet from her back door to reach her strawberry garden.

Mrs. Rebecca T. Mooney, assistant home economics agent in Stanly County, says the portable strawberry gardens are grown in three metal rings which are graduated in size and stacked in tiers. The plants require little care and furnish enough berries for Mrs. Blalock's use.

Whites Now Shine — In this era of easy washability, white home furnishings, rugs, and accessories can always look immaculate. Even large families — who once considered it necessary to be "practical" — can live with gleaming whites, now that only soap or detergent suds upkeep is needed!

mean people that war is not only possible but probable. In fact, as things stand, war may be inevitable because neither side can move from its ideological base. Here is something novel in recent American life. John Kennedy is not a pragmatist; he is an idealist who totally believes not only in the American concept of the life of man in freedom but who also believes that it is his responsibility and destiny to assure the survival of this way of life. Of this, he says:

"I bear the responsibility of the Presidency of the United States and it is my duty to make decisions that no adviser and no ally can make for me."

The Farm Scene

By S. C. WINCHESTER
Pitt County Agent

Many growers are asking what to do with acreage diverted from grains this summer. There are many things that can be done depending on what your own wishes are in connection with your acreage.

Some growers will want to use this opportunity to destroy objectionable weeds or grass in certain fields. This is a good opportunity to destroy undesirable growth such as Johnson Grass, Bermuda Grass, or Nut grass. Continuous discing or use of chemicals can destroy these pests in fields with no crop growing.

Other growers with no particular problems on the area should probably let nature populate the area with native grasses and weeds to stabilize the soil this summer and destroy by discing and breaking either this fall or next spring. On good land this method is the cheapest path to follow.

Growers leaving out deep sandy fields may find it advantageous to seed the acreage in a summer soil building crop such as cowpeas or soybeans. Particularly is this true if you have the seed on hand.

If this decision is made, you should consider the application of 200-400 pounds of a fertilizer such as 0-14-14 or 0-10-20 to promote additional growth for soil building.

Many years ago we thought land needed to be fallowed each second to third year. Since learning to use adequate amounts of nitrogen in the production of grain crops we know that fallowing is no longer needed or desirable.

Weather Balks Integrationists

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—An attempt to break segregation barriers at a municipal swimming pool failed Sunday when the Negroes found it and three others closed because of bad weather.

It is city policy to close swimming pools when thunderstorms are in the area, according to George G. Robinson, director of the Recreation Department.

A spokesman for the Jacksonville Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said the Negroes would try again to integrate city pools.

Degree in the ceremonial at Mooseheart (the Child City) in Illinois; two of these were from the Greenville lodge.

The local lodge now counts four Pilgrims in its membership, but Stauffer and Rowland are the first to receive the honor for work wholly within the Greenville lodge. Pilgrims E. M. Baldree and J. D. Smith received their honors for services largely performed prior to association with Lodge 885.

The degrees were conferred in the House of God, at Mooseheart, by Rodney H. Brandon, of Batavia, Ill., the oldest member of the fraternal order and current Pilgrim Governor.

Stauffer is a charter member of the Greenville Lodge and a Past Governor. ## President Keeps Using Crutches

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy, still on crutches although his ailing back is better, heads back to Washington today to face a busy week. Kennedy, traveling by jet plane, was due back in Washington in time to play host at a White House luncheon in honor of Premier Amintore Fanfani of Italy.

Assistant White House press secretary Andrew T. Hatcher said he expected Kennedy to be on crutches for several more days. The crutches, prescribed by Dr. Janet Travell, the President's personal physician, lessen the discomfort from his back injury. Kennedy took another long dip Sunday in the heated salt water pool at the villa where he stayed while here. Afterward Hatcher relayed word from Dr. Travell that Kennedy "continues to improve."

The President missed Mass for the first Sunday since he entered the White House. Hatcher told newsmen, "I imagine it had something to do with his back." Kennedy spent his final full day here reading and relaxing.

One story he read quoted Tass, the Soviet news agency, as saying Premier Khrushchev proposed to Kennedy at their recent Vienna meeting that a German peace conference be held at once. Tass also said Khrushchev handed Kennedy a memorandum assailing as a dictatorship a Western proposal that nuclear test controls be put under a neutral director.

Hatcher reported there was no reaction and no comment from Kennedy.

ECC Wins NAIA National Baseball Tourney Crown

By ROY MARTIN, Reflector Sports Writer

MOUK CITY, Ia.—East Carolina's Pirates roared back in the second of two games against Sacramento State College here Saturday night, bombarding four Sacramento pitchers for 14 hits, and defeated the Hornets, 13-7, to take the NAIA baseball title for 1961.

The Pirates, who had been undefeated in tourney play prior to the first game, suffered a stunning 14-5 loss which drew the finals of the fifth annual NAIA baseball tournament into an extra game.

In the first game, Sacramento swept to a quick 8-0 lead in the second inning, beginning when two walks and a single loaded the bases.

East Carolina came back in the bottom half of the second inning to score two runs. The scores came when leadoff batter Jimmy Martin walked, as did catcher Charlie Johnson.

East Carolina's only other scoring in the game came in the sixth inning when Floyd Wicker singled and was brought home on a single by Spencer Gaylord.

2-1. The Bucs then scored two runs in the third and fourth innings and three in the sixth frame.

The big inning for East Carolina was the seventh, in which four runs were driven across. In this frame, Lacy West walked, followed by East Carolina pitcher Pathan Greene, who reached first base on a throwing error by the Sacramento third baseman.

Sacramento was held scoreless until the ninth inning, in which they managed to drive across six runs. Andoe led off the inning for Sacramento, reaching first on a throwing error from third base.

Sacramento used the services of four hurlers, with relief pitcher Bud Addington receiving credit for the loss. His record now stands at 2-3.

Nathan Greene pitched the bulk of the game for the Pirates, being relieved by Larry Crayton in the ninth inning. Greene, whose record now stands at 5-1, received credit for the win.

For East Carolina, Gaylord homered in the sixth, the only round tripper of the game. Box scores:

Greenville Junior Legion Team Takes Second Win

Greenville's Post 39 American Junior Legion team racked up its second win against a lone loss Saturday night at Guy Smith Stadium, drubbing Ahsokie, 12-4.

Greenville hits the road this week in two traveling assignments. The locals skipped over to Roanoke Rapids for a contest tonight, and on Wednesday, Coach Bud Phillips carries his boys to Ahsokie in a return match.

Greenville socked three Ahsokie pitchers for 11 hits in their 12-run assault. Alan McArthur, Post 39 first sacker, led the Greenville attack with three hits in four trips to the plate, including a double.

The locals jumped off to an early lead in the first inning, after Ahsokie had grabbed a 1-0 lead in their half of the opening stanza. Leadoff man, Hobgood drew a walk and moved to second on a fielder's choice.

Californian Wins Le Mans Ordeal

LE MANS, France (AP)—For a man who had just finished one of the most harrowing endurance auto races of the year Phil Hill talked like he'd just been driving around the block.

But the Santa Monica, Calif., native did a little more than that during a 24-hour period from Saturday through Sunday morning. He and Belgian Olivier Gendbien won their second Le Mans 24-hour endurance race as a team when they piloted their Ferrari 2,782.19 miles, 49.39 miles further than has ever been covered in the event.

Two other Ferraris finished 1, the second and third spots. Willy Mairesse of Belgium and Mike Parks of Britain were second, covering 2,738.66 miles, also over the record, and France's Pierre Noble and Jean Guichet were third.

Two Americans, Dick Thompson of Washington, D.C., and August Pabst of Milwaukee finished fourth in a Maserati.

Three Named To All-Star Game

CHICAGO (AP)—Three Atlantic Coast Conference football players have been named to the 55-player squad to face the Philadelphia Eagles in the All-Star football game here Aug. 4.

Otto Graham will coach the college stars in their appearance against the professional team. The college squad includes Norman Sneed, quarterback from Wake Forest; Rip Hawkins, center and linebacker from North Carolina; and Claude Gibson, halfback from N.C. State.

Hill, who had teamed with the Belgian to win in 1958, said there was nary a hitch.

'Disaster' Proves Blessing For Torrid Cleveland Tribe

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

When a team is hot even a near disaster can turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

The Cleveland Indians, the hottest thing since the great Chicago fire, are a prime example.

In the fifth inning of their first game with Kansas City Sunday, trailing 3-2 Jimmy Piersall, the Indians' brilliant center fielder and the American League's leading hitter, injured his heel and had to be helped off the field.

A much-traveled outfielder, Chuck Essagian, was substituted. All this part-time player, who couldn't stick with five other big league clubs, did was smack two home runs in the first game, driving in five runs to give the Indians a 7-3 triumph. His double in the ninth inning drove in Cleveland's last run in a 4-3 second-game victory.

The two triumphs increased the Indians' first-place margin to 1 1/2 games over Detroit which was held to a split by Washington. The Tigers had to play 11 innings to win the second game 7-6 after the Senators had won the opener 7-4.

New York's Yankees climbed to a half game back of the Tigers.

beating Los Angeles twice 2-1 and 5-1. Baltimore turned back Chicago 8-2 but the White Sox gained a split with a 7-1 second-game victory. Minnesota also earned a split, defeating Boston 10-5 after the Red Sox had won the opener 8-2.

Cincinnati took over the National League lead—by four percentage points over Los Angeles—with a 6-2 and 9-3 sweep of their twin bill with St. Louis. The Dodgers downed Philadelphia 6-3. Pittsburgh defeated San Francisco 8-4 and Milwaukee was held to a split by Chicago. The Cubs took the second game 5-3 after the Braves had won the opener 8-4.

Both Cleveland decisions were gained by relief pitchers. Dick Stigman, making his first appearance after being carried on the disabled list, pitched one-hit ball in four innings of relief, to register the first-game victory. Barry Latman, who surrendered the tying run in the eighth, pitched 1-1-3 innings of relief in the night-cap to gain his sixth victory.

Second baseman Danny O'Connell helped Washington right-hander Joe McClain gain his sixth victory, driving in two runs with a single and two doubles in the opener. Steve Boros drove in Detroit's winning run in the second game with a bases-loaded single in the 11th. The Tigers smashed seven home runs in the twin bill. Norm Cash hit his 15th and 16th in the first game and added his 17th in the night-cap.

Home runs were responsible for the Yankee victories. Yogi Berra smashed two in the first game for both Yankee runs. Roger Maris hit his 19th and 20th in the nightcap and Mickey Mantle hit his 18th. Right-handers Ralph Terry (4-0) and Roland Sheldon (3-2) were the winning pitchers.

Chuck Estrada of Baltimore stifled the White Sox with three hits in the opener, one until two out in the ninth. Ronnie Hansen drove in three Oriole runs with three singles. Billy Pierce hurled a six-hitter and first baseman Roy Sievers got four hits and three RBIs in the White Sox second game victory.

Rookie Don Schwall pitched his fifth Red Sox victory without a defeat although he had to leave in the seventh inning of the first game because of a muscle spasm in his back. Two home runs by Don Buddin and one by Jackie Jensen accounted for all Boston's runs. Harmon Killebrew and Bob Allison homered and drove in three runs apiece as the Twins won only their third game in the last 20.

then Johansson, the former world heavyweight champion.

"If we get past Johansson, we might wind up with Floyd Patterson again." (Moore was knocked out by Patterson in 1956 for the vacant heavyweight title).

How about Harold Johnson of Philadelphia, the NBA's light heavyweight champion?

"If they come up with the right kind of money, about $100,000 or so, we'd fight him or anybody." Moore knocked out Johnson in the 14th round Aug. 11, 1954, and has beaten him five times in six fights.

Archie, in his first defense of the 175-pound crown in 21 months, had one streak broken. He had flattened the last six of his title opponents.

Going the distance was the only feat to Rinaldi's credit, outside of his prodigious ability at the dining table. The 26-year-old Italian looked like a rank amateur against a sub-par Moore. After gaining the lead through the first four rounds against the slow starting champion, the young husky from Anzio showed nothing but gameness and a post-fight appetite.

Greensboro Halts Durham Rampage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greensboro halted Durham's rampage into the Carolina League's first division by sweeping a doubleheader from the Bulls at Durham Sunday, 6-2 and 7-2.

The games featured six Greensboro homers, including three by outfielder Dennis Corti. The defeats snapped Durham's winning streak at five.

Raleigh edged Burlington 3-1 in an abbreviated schedule. A double header with Wilson at Winston-Salem was rained out.

Durham fell into third place, one-half game behind Winston-Salem and five games back of league leading Wilson.

Norm Shanahan tossed a two-hitter for Raleigh and gave up only one unearned run.

Tonight, Wilson plays two at Winston-Salem and Greensboro plays another doubleheader at Durham. Burlington is at Raleigh.

Skylines Conf. Being Dissolved

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The Skyline Conference officially broke up here Sunday, paving the way for four of its eight member schools to pursue a more ambitious athletic future in a new league.

The long-rumored breakup becomes effective June 30, 1962, although football schedules will be played through 1963.

The unanimous decision to break up the 23-year-old league, known formally as the Mountain States Athletic Conference, came at a meeting of the president's council, the policy-making body for the circuit.

Thus, Utah, Wyoming, Brigham Young University and New Mexico will be free to affiliate in a new league with Arizona and Arizona State.

The action makes orphans of Utah State, Colorado State University, Denver and Montana. However, Denver has already dropped intercollegiate football. Montana announced a sharp de-emphasis last year and Utah State indicated it has offers of new affiliations.

The official statement announcing the breakup hinted at the long growing gulf between the four orphans and the four schools which went into a more prestigious affiliation.

Praises Lawmen Keeping Order

TRINITY, N.C. (AP) — Charles McLean, state field secretary of the NAACP, says "the entire South should be proud" of law enforcement officers who headed off a threatened racial riot in this rural community last Monday night, and have kept order since.

McLean, addressing a rally of 250 Negroes and several white men and women in a Negro church here Sunday night, added, "I wish that there could be officers of their caliber throughout the South."

However, he described as discriminatory a police request that Negroes stay home in the evenings following a fight a week ago between a dozen white youths and a group of Negroes that first reports put at 40 but NAACP reports put at 17.

The fight was touched off after Robert Parris, 20, white operator of the Trinity grill, refused to serve Negroes, and they said they would be back to see him when he closed that night.

Parris was missing overnight after the fight. He said he had hidden under a house, then passed out. He bore welt marks on his back, inflicted, he said, by a leather belt.

McLean told the meeting in St. Mary's Methodist Church that police had not asked white residents of this community of 1,000 near High Point and Greensboro to stay home at night.

CHAPTER 20

Certainly some of the men had not been asleep when the sentries had given the Indian alarm, for at least three reached the palisade even before Sal Boyd, who had been; and each, like him, carried a musket.

Sal blew on his match, squinting over the wall. There wasn't a touch of the moon, and in the light of the stars he could see nothing but low weeds and sedges between this camp and the black wall of the wood, a distance of perhaps a hundred and twenty yards. No human being could have hidden in those reeds.

A musket went off with a terrible blast, at his left ear. There was a flash of fire.

"Don't, you fool!" Sal cried. "Your gun won't carry that far anyway."

"They don't know that," the man pointed out, as he started to reload. "Ain't you going to shoot?"

"Not till I see something to shoot at."

There was another explosion, on the other side. Then another. By this time a frantic Captain Standish was running back and forth behind the line, pleading with the men not to fire. But they continued for some time. The night rang with bangs.

And when at last the men were quiet, Miles Standish announced, "This is an example of how not to meet an attack. You've wasted a lot of powder, and you haven't scared anybody but yourselves. Who were the sentries?"

"Here, sir."

He questioned them closely. Why had they given that alarm? They'd heard voices in the wood. Voices? They had both heard the voices, they said, but had decided to confer, checking each other's evidence, before they shouted.

"What voices? How'd ye know they were Indians? What did they sound like?"

One of the sentries obliged, conscientiously.

"Woah! Like that! Woah! Woah!"

Standish snorted.

"Of course. Wolves. I've heard em in Sweden. You'd better get used to it."

All the same, he doubled the guard.

At first light, before the real dawn, they were up and active. The men were eager to get away from this place. Even before breakfast, even before prayers, they started to haul the gear, including the guns, down to the shallop, which had been pulled close in to dry land. Sal saw them doing this, and immediately awakened Captain Standish.

"They're taking the muskets too! See?"

Standish saw; and he bounded to his feet with the agility of a squirrel. He did not shout an order, as Sal expected, but instead sought out William Bradford, who was standing on the beach.

Standish grabbed his arm, starting him.

"You've got to order them to bring those guns back! Right now! They should never be out of reach!"

Bradford nodded.

Standish turned to Sal.

"Call the men. Send 'em to the boat."

He himself made for the shallop, his long snaphance slung over his shoulder.

Sal started toward the palisade at a trot, shouting. He too had a gun across his shoulder, and his sword was at his left hip, his dagger at his right.

"Come back here! Captain's orders are that very—"

There was nobody near him, yet it felt as though some one had given a sharp rap to the upper part of his left forearm. He pulled up short, starting at it. There was a ragged groove in the leather. Something to his right went "thunk!" into the sand. Then the screaming started, and the air was filled with a waspish whine. Sal turned, bending his knees. The savages already had come out of the wood, thirty or forty of them, sometimes discharging their bows as they ran, sometimes stopping for this purpose.

Salathiel Boyd did not need to be told what to do. If the Indians could surround that rickety palisade, penning in the colonists with none of their guns, it would be the end. Moreover, they were running not at the stockade itself, he saw now, but as though to go around it to the north, as though they were intent upon taking the boat, which had been beached.

Crouching, his musket at his shoulder, Sal ran right toward them. He wouldn't shoot until he got close enough to make it count. He hadn't the slightest doubt that behind him Miles Standish was doing the same.

In the lead was a tall Indian, hideously painted, virtually naked. Sal felt his face go hot at the sight of him. This man was not discharging his arrows but waved his bow above his head. His mouth was open wide: he must have been yelling.

Sal went to one knee. He pointed his musket at the leader. The breeze was off the land, so he turned his head away, rather than risk having his eyes put out by a flareback. There were no sights on the barrel anyway.

He pulled the trigger—and got a flash in the pan.

It was loud, it was bright, but it wasn't an explosion.

The leader paused, looking perplexed.

Sal whipped out a toothpicker that he kept behind his ear, and goosed the touchhole, working some more powder into the pan. The match still was lighted at both ends, glowing bravely. Sal pushed back the serpentine, fastened the catch, turned his head away again, and again pulled the trigger of his musket.

This time there was a shot, and a very loud one. The whole beach seemed shattered by that tremendous sound, and the recoil all but threw Sal on his back.

The leading savage sprang into the air, terrified. The others behind him stopped. None could have been hit, for that ball weighed close to two ounces and at this distance would have knocked any man over backward; but the orange-red flash at the muzzle, the billow of smoke, most of all the noise, paralyzed them for a moment.

Immediately there was another.

Cardinals Open Ten-Day Meet

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A central committee of cardinals opens a 10-day conference here today to prepare for the Ecumenical Council of the Roman Catholic Church. Pope John XXIII heads the committee and expects to preside at most of the sessions.

The Ecumenical Council, which will be the church's 21st such worldwide gathering, is still at least a year away.

It will be the first since 1870, when the church lost the city of er shot, close behind him and a little to his left. That would be Standish.

Still on one knee, Sal started to reload.

This would take more than twice as long as the simple refilling of the pan and recocking of the serpentine, since he had to pour in powder, ball, and wadding, and ram it home. On impulse, he looked up.

The second shot too, though from farther back, had had its effect. The Indians wavered. Sal raised his empty musket to his shoulder. He pointed it at the leader. The leader screamed and turned and ran back into the wood. And all the others ran after him.

Now there were more shots from behind Sal Boyd, but not thoughtfully to one side. Indeed, one sang past his shoulder so close that he thought he felt its heat. The boys back there at last had retrieved their guns from the shallop and were using them, wily-nilly. Standish was yelling at them now, and the shooting ceased. Soon they were pressing toward the wood. Sal finished his reloading and followed, cursing them.

Amazingly, they saw not the slightest sign of Indians or any other beings, animal or human, in the wood. They searched for more than an hour, and then, hungry, returned to camp back into the wood. On the beach, in the boat, stuck to the palisade, there was plenty of proof that it hadn't all been a nightmare. These places were peppered with arrows. The discoverers took out no fewer than nineteen—ungraceful things, short, not too straight, skimpily feathered, and tipped only with bone.

Not a man had been blooded. Two others, like Sal, had had their sleeves slashed, and one had suffered a hole right through the top of his black steeple hat; but that was all.

Sal shook his head, thinking it over, a little later as they were piling into the shallop to resume the shore-sail. He wondered: Wouldn't these gowks ever learn to do anything right?

The Indian episode was nothing compared to the nightmare that was to follow. Continue the story tomorrow.

Rome to invading troops of what was becoming modern Italy. The 20th council, then in session, was adjourned.

Despite the loss of Rome and of the papal states that once were spread over a large part of central Italy, the power and influence of the church has grown.

Today, it has a membership of nearly a half billion and diplomatic relations with about 50 nations. The Roman Catholic Church stands as one of the major forces against the threat of atheistic communism.

The church's senate—the College of Cardinals—has, under Pope John, been expanded far beyond its old limit of 70. It now has 84.

Since the last Ecumenical Council, the college has seen the addition of Negro, Japanese, Chinese, Indian and Filipino cardinals—making it representative for the first time of all the major races.

All of this group are among the 50 cardinals on the central committee. Others include Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market continued to give ground slightly in very dull trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 50 at 250.40 with industrials off 1.00, rails off .30 and utilities unchanged.

Losses of fractions to a point or two among key stocks outweighed an assortment of gains. Steels, metals, rails, oils, non-ferrous metals, chemicals, and electrical equipments were among the losers. Rubbers and tobacco were higher. Utilities, building materials and airlines were mixed.

Sentiment was dampened by a loss of more than 2 points by General Electric.

A drop of more than a point by Lockheed was an unsettling element among the aircrafts.

Du Pont, off about 3 points, was the worst loser among chemicals. American Telephone lost more than a point but a string of small gains among other utilities kept this section of the market on a dead level.

U.S. Steel dropped a point.

Gulf Oil was about a point higher. American Tobacco advanced well over a point. Fractional gains were made by Goodrich, General Dynamics, Johnsonville, Consolidated Edison, Goodyear and Sears Roebuck.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 3.04 at 697.36.

Approximately Seventy In Rose High Summer School

Approximately 70 students are registered in regular academic courses at Rose High summer school, and about 85 have enrolled in the driver's education courses. Principal O.E. Dowd reported today.

The high school is offering courses in English, math and history, grades nine through ten, English, and nine through eleven in math and history. Summer school opened June 7.

These students will attend summer school for three weeks for several reasons, including making up work they are retarded in; to take work in order to make their schedules more flexible next year; and to take refresher courses to gain additional knowledge in subject matter.

The summer school operates on standards set up by the State Department of Public Instruction and the Southern Association of College and Secondary Schools.

Regular members of the high school faculty are teaching three courses in driver's education, which began the same date as summer school. These classes, also, are under the supervision of the State Department of Public Instruction.

Students between the ages of 15 and 16 are taking the driver's education course, which makes it possible for the student to receive classroom instruction in techniques of driving an automobile and also 10 days or two weeks' instruction in actual driving of the car under observation by the teacher. This course is free and paid for by the extra dollar included in the license plate fee for the automobile.

Regular faculty members teaching in summer school are Miss Deanie Boone Haskett; Mrs. Ruth Bing; Charles Ross; Roland Farney; R. G. Phillips; and James Rodgers.

Tobacco Tips

By S. J. WEEKS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

Black shank is one of the most destructive tobacco diseases. It spreads rapidly and a large portion of a crop can be destroyed in a short time when susceptible varieties are grown.

Serious losses often occur when resistant varieties are grown, especially when tobacco is not grown in rotation with crops that are resistant to the black shank fungus.

Black shank was first identified in North Carolina in 1930. In 1936, it was found on the Sam Worthington farm near Winterville. Since that time it has spread to all sections of Pitt County and Eastern North Carolina.

The use of resistant varieties has reduced the losses caused by this dreadful disease; but, it still costs growers millions of dollars each year.

The several black shank resistant varieties that are being grown vary in the level of resistance to the disease. The available black shank resistant varieties are rated according to their level of resistance as carrying a high, moderate, or low level of resistance.

It is very important for the tobacco grower to know as much as possible about the level of black shank infestation on his farm. One way to obtain this information is to observe closely the amount of tobacco that is lost from black shank with varieties carrying different levels of resistance. The type of rotation being followed and the prevailing weather conditions are also factors to consider when making an appraisal of your black shank infestation.

For example, if you are growing Vesta 5 variety this year in a two-year rotation, and black shank losses are heavy, you should consider growing a variety with a higher level of resistance when tobacco is planted in this field again.

If you are not sure which disease is killing your tobacco, I will be glad to visit your field and help determine which disease is present.
