Miss Rutledge Bride Of Mr. Whitehurst

Mrs. Charles McLawhorn Whitehurst

On Sunday, June 11, at four o'clock in the afternoon, Miss Bonny Lee Rutledge, daughter of Mrs. Sauls Rutledge of Ayden and the late Archibald Rutledge Jr., became the bride of Mr. Charles McLawhorn Whitehurst. Mr. Whitehurst is the son of Mrs. James Clarence Whitehurst and the late Mr. Whitehurst of Ayden.

Officiating clergymen were the Reverend Bennie E. Pledger and the Reverend Louis Aitken, both of Ayden. The double ring ceremony was used.

A program of organ music was presented by Miss Virginia Belle Cooper prior to the wedding. Mrs. Sam Pierce, aunt of the bride, sang Mozart's "O Lord On High," and as a part of the benediction, "The Prayer Perfect" by Stenson. The church was decorated with standing baskets of yellow and white gladioli and stock, flanked by yellow cathedral tapers against a background of springer, acacia palms and ferns.

Given in marriage by her brother, Sheridan Rutledge, the bride wore a formal gown of pale ivory satin. The basque bodice was designed with bateau neckline. A deep yoke of French Alencon lace extended over the shoulder into the long sleeves, tapered to bridal points over the hands. The skirt, enriched with baroque-rolled appliques of Alencon lace, extended into an aisle-wide cathedral train. Her full length mantilla type veil was of imported Brussels lace, extending beyond the train. She carried an arm bouquet of Calla lilies.

Mrs. Raymond S. Pierce of Kingston, cousin of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a street-length dress of mint green chiffon. The sleeveless fitted bodice was fashioned with a cowl neckline, panels floating from the shoulders were looped in the back. The gathered skirt was banded at the waist with matching satin, bowed in front. Her picture hat, in the same shade of green, was open-crowned and trimmed with velvet ribbon. She carried a cascade bouquet of simulated violets and French ivy, tied with matching satin.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. William R. Stroud of Ayden, sister of the groom, Mrs. Stuart Holland of Greenville, Miss Suzanne Taylor underskirt. A color scheme of green and yellow was followed in the flowers, the food and favors. Floral arrangements of green and yellow graced the bride's table as well as the living area where a number of auxiliary tables held similar small bouquets. At each place was a miniature corsage of green and yellow attached to a green pencil. After she was seated, each guest gave a toast in verse to the honored bride. Lunch was begun with lime ice in apricot nectar and cheese straws. The main course was a colorful salad plate arranged to resemble a bridesmaid. Peach ice cream topped with creme de menthe and decorated cake squares composed the dessert.

Each of the attendants was remembered with a present from Miss Rutledge. Among the guests were the bride; her mother, Mrs. Sauls Rutledge; the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. J. C. Whitehurst; Mrs. Raymond Pierce of Kingston; Mr. Stuart Holland of Greenville; Mrs. William Stroud; Miss Henrietta Taylor; Miss Suzanne Taylor; Miss Mary Virginia Langston; Miss Brenda Davis; Miss Virginia Belle Cooper, and Mrs. J. C. Whitehurst, Jr. of Greenville.

Dinner Party

On Friday evening, June 9, Miss Bonny Rutledge and Mr. Charles McLawhorn, who were married on June 11, were guests of honor at a dinner at the Silo Restaurant given by Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McLawhorn of Winterville, Mrs. Ralph Worthington of Ayden, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Byrd of Bunn Level, all relatives of the groom.

Miss Rutledge was presented with a corsage of white asters, while Mrs. Sauls Rutledge, mother of the bride, and Mrs. J. C. Whitehurst, mother of the groom, were remembered with yellow chrysanthemum corsages. Massive artistic arrangements of pastel summer flowers, all arranged by one of the hosts, Mr. Byrd, graced the bride's table and the other flanking tables. The bride and groom received a silver and crystal relish compote from the hosts.

A three-course dinner was served to members of the wedding party, out-of-town guests present for the wedding, and other close friends and relatives.

Rehearsal Dinner

Following the rehearsal on Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. William Stroud and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitehurst, Jr. were dinner hosts at the Stroud home for members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

Upon her arrival, the bride was presented with a corsage of pink roses. After being served juice cocktails, the bride and groom were invited to lead the guests to the dining room where they served themselves from a buffet table overlaid with cut lace and holding silver candelabra holding white candles and flanking an all-white arrangement of roses, daisies and gypsophelia in a silver bowl held by a silver stand that was surrounded by frosted grapes and ivy. The guests were seated in the living areas at smaller tables covered with white linen and holding silver candleholders with white candles to which tulle, lily-of-the-valley and pink butterflies were attached. Colored roses were used predominantly for decorating, except for the living room mantel which had an arrangement of magnolia blossoms.

Red Oak H.D. Honors Brides

One-dish meals was the topic of the demonstration given by Mrs. Carl Crawford at the Red Oak Home Demonstration Club on Monday.

The meeting was a luncheon and Sue Allen and Betty Lane Evans, brides-elect of the community, were honored guests. They were presented corsages of yellow and red rosebuds. The club presented each of them a cookbook.

The luncheon was composed of Pork Hawaiian (a one-dish meal), tossed salad and peach mousse. Mrs. Crawford began her demonstration by conducting several contests on foods and nutrition. She explained that a good one-dish meal should contain protein food, starchy food, and watery food. It should be pretty, have a good texture and have a good flavor. Guests were Mrs. F. D. Bissette and Mrs. Red Mullins from Spring Hope and Mrs. Jay Boswell of Greenville.

A business session was held following the luncheon. Mrs. Charles Jackson, president, presided. Mrs. Joe Joyner Sr. gave the treasurer's report.

The club unanimously decided to discontinue renting the Community Building to anyone unless he or she lives in the community or is a member of the local club or church.

A nominating committee was appointed to select officers for the coming year. It is composed of Mrs. Lucy Allen, chairman, Mrs. Tom Manning and Mrs. Doc Smith.

Mrs. W. T. Page gave a report on a pickling process. She explained that putting the cucumbers in salt brine and then in your favorite recipe of vinegar solution is the best method.

The club has had a series of educational meetings to balance their program of "Character, Courage, Culture, Citizenship." In April, Dr. Harold Hoke spoke on cancer research and a film was shown. Mrs. James Sydney Allen was in charge of this program. In May "Table Setting and Service" was studied.

Workshops have been held on picture framing, furniture refinishing, tin can craft, pickle making, jellies and jams to round out the program before the busiest season on the farm begins.

Mrs. Karl Hardee Leads H.D. Meeting

Mrs. Karl Hardee was leader for the Red Banks H. D. Club meeting. The hostesses, Mrs. L.S. Hardee, Mrs. R. B. Starling and Mrs. Ola Kittrell used arrangements of summer flowers for decorations.

Mrs. Hugh Hardee, Jr. gave the devotional. Mrs. Worth Hardee reported a new balance of $21.51 for the building fund. Members were reminded of the picnic to be held June 16 at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Karl Hardee gave information on "Know Your Foods". Several recipes were given for "Skillet One-dish Meals."

Since June is the month for emphasis on dairy products, the hostesses served chocolate milk with ice cream, ritz crackers and other dainties with soft drinks.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to Mrs. W. A. Cherry. She also received the door prize, a dresser scarf, made by Mrs. L.S. Hardee. Mrs. R. B. Starling led in games of action for recreation.

Wedding Breakfast

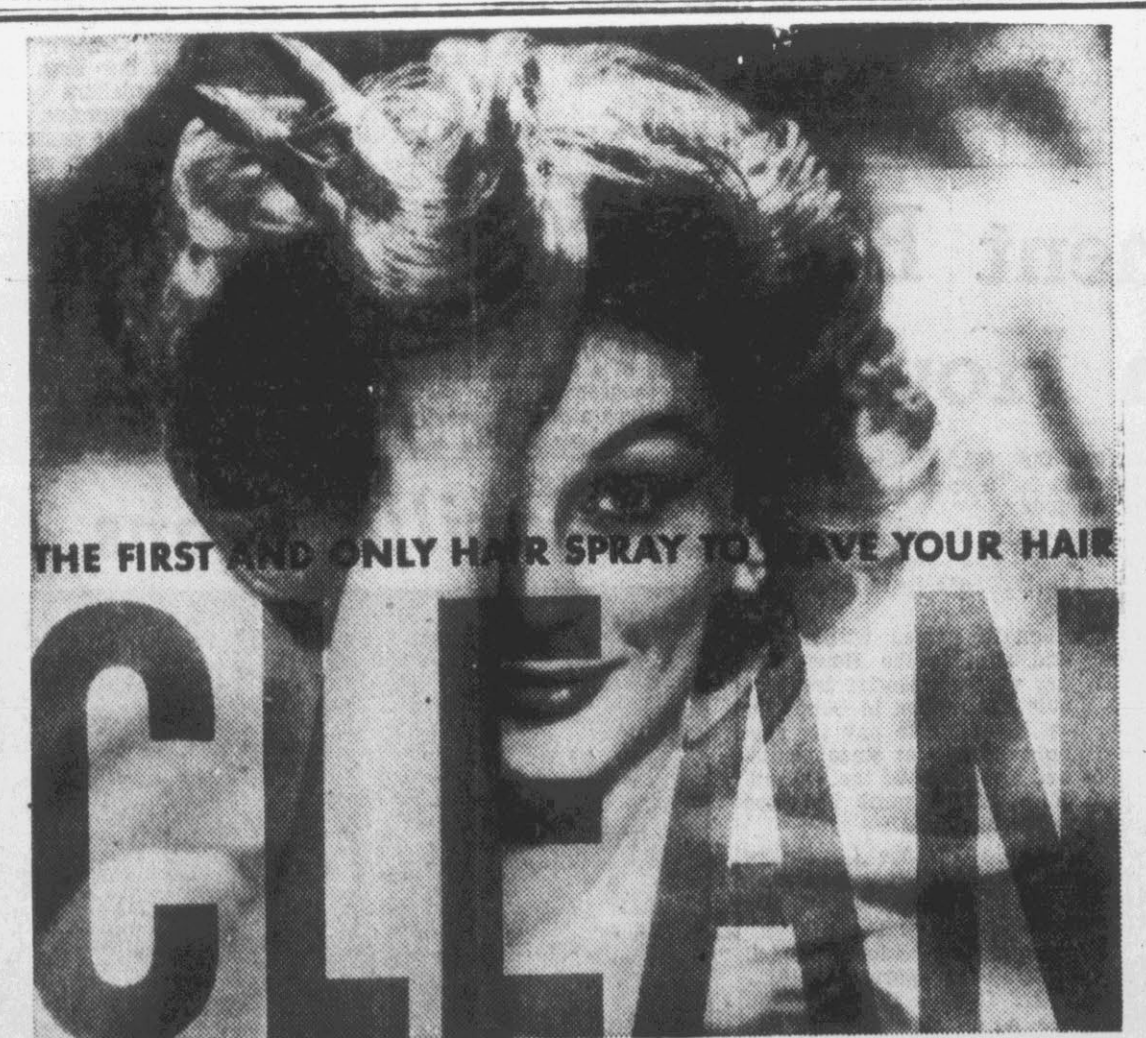

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Stallworth, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Langston and Miss Mary Virginia Langston were hosts Sunday morning to members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a wedding breakfast held at the Roanoke Country Club in Williamston.

The hosts, the bride and the bridegroom greeted the guests at the door. Mrs. J. C. Whitehurst, mother of the groom, invited them to have fruit juice served from a table presided over by Mrs. Sauls Rutledge, mother of the bride, and Miss Langston.

Miss Rutledge gave a corsage of white carnations, worn by the hosts. The breakfast table held arrangements of pink gladioli and gypsophelia in milk glass.

Bridesmaids Luncheon

Mrs. Sam Pierce entertained Miss Bonny Rutledge, bride of June 11, and her attendants at a luncheon on Thursday, June 8, at the home of Mrs. Lat Purser, Mrs. Pierce, aunt of the bride, presented Miss Rutledge with a corsage of lavender carnations that complemented her dress of white organza over a lavender-flowered

Today's Menu

FAMILY DINNER
Fruit Cup
New England Style Pork Butt With Vegetables
Homemade Mustard Bread Tray
Gingersnaps Beverage
PORK BUTT WITH VEGETABLES
1 boneless smoked pork butt (3 to 4 pounds)
1 teaspoon leaf sage
1/2 teaspoon dried savory
Whole cloves and allspice
1 bay leaf
6 small new potatoes (pared)
1 pound large carrots (pared)
1 small head green cabbage (cut in quarters)
Remove any covering on butt and cover with hot water in a large kettle; add sage, savory, several cloves and allspice and the bay leaf. Simmer according to time specified on butt wrapper until very tender when pierced with fork—usually 35 to 40 minutes per pound. About 30 minutes before butt is ready, add whole potatoes and carrots; about 10 minutes before, add cabbage. Drain meat and surround with drained cooked vegetables. Makes 6 servings.

OATMEAL JAM SQUARES
1 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats
3/4 cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar (sift if lumpy)
1/4 cup sweet butter or shortening
1/2 pint tart fruit preserves
Sift together the flour, soda and salt; mix in oats and sugar. Cut in butter or work in with fingers until particles are fine. Turn 2 cups of the mixture into a buttered baking pan (9 by 9 by 1 1/4 inches) and pat down evenly; spread with preserves. Sprinkle remaining flour mixture (about 1/4 cups) over preserves; pat down lightly so jam is pretty well covered. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 25 minutes or until lightly browned. Place pan on rack to cool. Cut in squares in pan and remove with wide spatula. These may be served warm as a fork dessert or cold as cookies. They store well in a tightly covered container.
Note: We used rhubarb-strawberry jam for the preserves called for.

We Must Move To Just Stand Still

With the North Carolina General Assembly's machinery apparently geared to adjourn this weekend, and with anticipated passage of the required revenue measure to meet budgeted needs, there is an inclination to breathe a sigh of relief.

The Sanford "quality education" program, running to over $65 millions, is almost assured; as is the money to meet the costs.

So we can relax? Not by a long sight! It has long since been made clear that North Carolina's step forward in the educational field does not represent moving into the forefront but a simple matter of getting off the ground floor.

The money involved is great, of course. But the increased pay for North Carolina teachers still will leave us below the national average; the building program and increased services and facilities for modern teaching needs will remain at basic minimum needs. In a word, we are just beginning.

Lengthy List Of Appointments

By LYNN NISBET
APPOINTMENTS — If Governor Terry Sanford suffers an attack of heebie-jeebies or may-be even a complete nervous breakdown it can be attributed mainly to the mass of selective appointments he is required to make. The current legislature has added about 75 new places to the list, and may put on more before adjournment.

The Governor and his staff compile a list of vacancies already existing and to which appointments have not yet been made. The list includes more than 500 positions. Each of these appointments is considered important by the General Assembly, else it would not have wasted time in setting them up. All are considered vitally important by the persons named to fill them, else the appointments would not be accepted. But any sensible study of the matter will show that many of them have very little relationship to the overall welfare of the state.

The list includes superior court judges, members of highly important control and regulatory boards and commissions dealing with agriculture, conservation and development, educational institutions, health, highways, public utilities, wildlife resources and other activities vital to the progress of the state. It includes also members of examining and licensing boards covering trades and professions all the way from replacing a light bulb or tightening a faucet up to numerous phases of the practice of medicine.

And there are some 250 to 300 appointments to groups which are advisory to the regulatory boards, or which deal with such matters as observing the Confederate War Centennial or the 300th birthday of the North Carolina charter and boards of director for railroads which are operated under lease by competent companies and where the main duty of the directors is to accept the rental check.

PERSONAL — Because of the peculiar close relationship that has always existed between the people of North Carolina and their chief executive, the burden of selecting appointees for these positions is a personal responsibility of the Governor. It is a heavy responsibility which no Governor has regarded lightly.

The President of the United States appoints thousands of people whom he has never seen nor heard of — and perhaps never will see. Selections are made on nominations and recommendations from members of the Congress and other officials. It is an important relationship so far as the president and the appointee are concerned.

Most of the Governor's appointees are recommended by mutual friends but in nearly every instance before the appointment is made there is direct contact and the appointee feels a personal relationship. The signed commission is cherished not so much because ers still will leave us below the national average; the building program and increased services and facilities for modern teaching needs will remain at basic minimum needs. In a word, we are just beginning.

This "starter" toward quality education will have to be maintained through the years to come; indeed, to keep a state of parity with the modest goals now established will require continuing additional outlays of money. It is going to cost more to simply stand still.

It is important, we think, that in contemplating the future we remember that in education the goal is not more money, but the things we can accomplish with money.

Grade schools and high schools are going to greatly benefit from present planning. The field of higher education, always expensive, is going to become even more so in the near future.

An educator, Dr. O. C. Carmichael of Asheville, speaking at a higher education conference sponsored by the Southern Regional Education Board, says the nation's colleges must grow at a much faster rate in the next ten years than they ever have in their history. And he notes the price this involves will be higher than ever.

"Building costs are three times what they were 20 years ago," he says. "The equipment we need is much more expensive — nuclear reactors and electronic computing centers, for example. We need to double our faculties, and the mounting cost of the teaching staff has not yet ceased."

He questions whether institutions of higher learning are justified in continuing business as usual, with "such outmoded practices as the three-month summer vacation."

Carmichael concludes that "adoption of a three-semester plan with a 12-month academic year has its obvious drawbacks," but it would be a powerful means of dramatizing our problems to the public.

Therein lies the heart of his worries—that the public is not yet aware of present and ever-growing problems confronting higher education in this country and in this, our state.

The Daily Reflector strongly suspects the 1961 educational step forward is going to look, in retrospect, not overly impressive to the N. C. legislature in 1963.

There is every reason to believe the same challenge of revenue-raising for quality education will have to be faced again and yet again.

We hope and we believe the necessity for better standards of education in North Carolina will assume an even greater importance in the minds of parents and citizens and lawmakers.

It is incumbent on us all to remember the goal. If we really want to attain it, there is no doubt but that we shall.

Doing So Much By Himself

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON REP. — President Kennedy's fast these past few days with his aching back gave him time to wonder whether he is trying to do too much by himself.

He is a must-do and must-see kind of president. In his case it means reading four newspapers a day, going through reports himself, rounds of conferences with his aides, using the telephone to get answers, endlessly meeting people, making speeches and, more recently, going places.

But in doing so much by himself he has used up a good deal of time which might have otherwise been spent reflecting on problems here and overseas.

His European trip, made primarily for conferences, took an extravagant toll of his hours and energy with speeches, banquets, public appearances, and wrangling.

President Eisenhower took a more relaxed view of the presidency. He said he didn't read the papers much. He depended a lot on his staff to keep him informed and bring him proposals for yes or no decisions. Kennedy promised action and he is providing it.

At this early point in his presidency — when it's of the utmost importance that he learn the problems as best and fast as he can — he alone can say whether he is spreading himself too thin.

Eisenhower was criticized for not doing enough. It will be ironic if Kennedy winds up being criticized for trying to do too much.

It may or may not be significant that all the major programs Kennedy has offered since entering the White House were ideas he expressed and supported earlier: medical care for the aged, a higher minimum wage, the Peace Corps, long-term foreign aid, and more reliance on conventional military weapons.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
"PRAYING WHILE WORKING" — One of the most famous schools in England Rugby School, has the Latin motto "Grando laborando," which might be translated as "Prayer while working." This certainly is a very good motto for a dedicated educational institution. It might also be an excellent motto for all workers.

"Praying while working" suggests two important things about work. One is that if work is worth doing, it ought to be done in a spirit of prayer. If it is work of a kind not suitable to that spirit, then probably it is not worth doing — perhaps it should not even be done at all.

If Castro Finally Agrees

Worse Off Than Before

"Say you feel a little sick?" the man wanted to know. "Yup," I said. "You musta went out to the bloodmobile place," he said. "Yup," I said again. Then he went into this long spiel about how weak he felt that time he went out and donated a pint of blood to the program. "I've been sorta skittish about goin' back again," he confided. More questions he asked. "I bet they were glad to see you come walkin' in out there, huh?"

"Indeed they were," I answered. "Did they give you coffee and donuts like they did that time I was there?" he wanted to know. "Coffee and cookies, this time," I told him. "Bet that made you feel better," he guessed. "Nope," I said to his dismay. "Well, then, what was the trouble?" he questioned. "They musta took more than just a pint." Then I told him why I was feeling a little sicker than usual. "Nope," I told him. "They didn't take any of my blood. I was a reject."

"And that made you sick?" he asked in amazement. I said simply, "Sure did," and thought again how much worse I felt yesterday than I had on my last previous visit to donate to the Bloodmobile. Sure, giving a pint of blood may make the strongest feel weak for an hour or so, but what about the poor fellow they say is too sick to even donate blood? As a matter of fact, I might just go to bed for a few days. People who get turned away NEED to recuperate.

Public Forum

TO THE EDITOR: The only thing I remember any of the advocates of urban renewal to have said with which I agree is what Chairman M.E. Cavendish was quoted as having said when he reminded the advocates of the neighborhood conservation proposal that their proposal, if adopted, would be even more treacherous in its results than even the proposed urban renewal project.

Greenville? This is what the literature of its advocates tells us about it: "This program was developed by The National Association of Real Estate Boards and is being suggested as the answer to Greenville's needs for Urban Renewal by the owners of rental property, realtors, realty loan groups and those in the building trades." It is therefore the program of the special interest of the majority of the home owners of our town.

The fabulous Pirates' return to Greenville yesterday emphasized again how insignificant details can attain tremendous stature. . . but only after the supreme test has been attained.

However, it was not necessary for Mr. Cavendish to remind me of that fact. It was only necessary for the ordinance proposed by the advocates of the neighborhood conservation project to detect how abominably un-American, how socialist, and how communistic this proposal is. And it vexes me that, after my sympathies had gone out for such people as Mr. Charles Cobb, and after I had put up the fight I had put up to defend his rights against the urban renewalists, and after I have warned him of the treachery coiled up in his proposed neighborhood conservation ordinance, he still tried to get the City Council to adopt the abomination.

In my opinion, the brief that these special interests hold against urban renewal is not the fact that if adopted it will drive widows and orphans out of their homes and take them from them, but the fact that said special interest may not themselves be able to make the "financial killing" out of such project. For they have been careful to put forward a proposed ordinance that will be far more far reaching in its confiscations of the private property and homes of the aged and unfortunate than even the urban renewal proposal promised to do.

After the first rush on the steaks, there was time for some more talk. And the topic of conversation was anything but the fact that the Bucs brought home the championship trophy, the most valuable player award and three all-tourney siols.

But in doing so much by himself he has used up a good deal of time which might have otherwise been spent reflecting on problems here and overseas.

These insignificant details to the Pirates now are a luxury. Since they brought home the marbles, they're unique with that luxury.

It's a safe bet that the losers, all seven of them, still remember all those small mistakes, too. The difference is: to them they're nightmares.

What Felony Here?

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It is easy for an advertising man to write a sensational advertisement. It takes no great skill. When one sees a lot of swastikas, it attracts attention immediately. Such a title as "Will There Be a Fourth Reich?" is fetching. Immediately one thinks of Hitler and gets excited.

So when in "The New York Times" Book Review, I saw such a combination of unpleasantness in an advertisement I looked further. It seems that John Dornberg is the uncovers of "Major General Edwin A. Walker's alleged attempt to indoctrinate American troops in the principles of the John Birch Society." So says the advertisement of the publisher. Mr. Dornberg is also advertised as the News Editor of the Overseas Weekly where General Walker has now become a person in controversy, which only means that he is talked about pro and con.

So, we are back to the question of what crime, felony or misdemeanor, General Walker committed. The man should be court-martialed if he committed a crime. If he is only a nuisance because of Left Wing embarrassment, the Defense Department should say that it is its policy to slay every officer who becomes unamenable to the "Wingers" or to any other effective pressure group.

The advertisement of Dornberg's book goes on to say that "over 40,000 German youths belong to para-military groups." In front of this statement is a swastika, the emblem of the Nazi. Are we MacMillian Company knows that all the 49,000 Nazis or is the swastika there only to attract attention? Then the advertisement, also with a swastika as a forerunner. He says: ". . . there may be an underground ring — operating with the tacit co-operation of German authorities — to help ex-Nazis escape trial and arrest."

This is an offensive statement about one of the nations most friendly to the United States. Are there Americans in Germany who are working clandestinely to overthrow the government of Chancellor Adenauer? Do we have an American Fifth Column in West Germany, as there was one to help Castro, as there were Americans in the Caribbean to destroy Trujillo, using the radio station "Dawn" to do the job? Congress, incidentally, might investigate that station to discover what precisely it has done during the past year and what it has cost the American taxpayer and how offensive it is to our neighbors.

The advertisement in "The New York Times" also with a swastika announces that "as many as 685 anti-Semitic incidents have been officially recorded in one month alone." Anyone who has followed the news at all knows how actively Chancellor Adenauer has been fighting anti-Semitism in West Germany. It must be noted that the Communist movement is now universally anti-Semitic; that Soviet Russia is officially anti-Semitic, placing serious limitations upon all Jews. It is to be expected therefore that wherever Communists are at work, they will stimulate anti-Semitism if they can. In Germany, West and East, it is normal that vestiges of anti-Semitism should continue to exist. Such a colossal propagandistic effort as Hitler and Goebbels let loose upon the German people will not disappear in a generation. It will die slowly.

The question that is paramount is whether the West German Government is anti-Semitic. Chancellor Adenauer has proved that he and his government are not only not anti-Semitic but their relations with Israel have been excellent. As long as the West German Government battles against anti-Semitism, those who are opposed to anti-Semitism must regard Adenauer as a friend. This has been the attitude of David Ben-Gurion, Israel's Prime Minister.

Quote . . .

"Internationally, the Chinese Communist regime does not conform to the practices of civilized nations; does not live up to its international obligations; has not been peaceful in the past, and gives no evidence of being peaceful in the future. Its foreign policies are hostile to us and to our Asian allies. Under these circumstances, it would be folly for us to establish relations with the Chinese Communists which would enhance their ability to hurt us and our friends." — John Foster Dulles.

More Foreign Travel Spending

By ELMER ROESSNER
Foreign travel spending in the United States will rise this year. It will not go up enough to have serious weight on the balance of payments, or to knock much of the American gold that had flowed abroad in recent years. But it will bring more foreign money into the United States and relieve some of the pressures. In fact, it may result in a lasting trend.

Old Promoter Sees Tax Troubles Ahead

"We agreed and he went on (as he would have anyway): 'The Internal Revenue Service is adopting an automatic data processing system' to process income tax forms starting next January," he said.

The biggest barrier to foreign travel in the United States is Europeans' fear that prices in the United States are prohibitive. The second highest barrier is the fact that prices in the United States are high.

"Now, knowing both data processing systems and the IRS as I do, having been through both of them, I predict that next year some peanut vendor will get an automatically processed demand for $100,000 in back taxes, some drive-in waitress will get a refund check of $999,999.85, and that some two-year-old child in Iowa will be cited for having failed to pay taxes from 1938 to 1959."

Under the Greyhound plan, persons abroad planning to visit the United States can, on showing their passport, buy these 99-day tickets, in the form of books of coupons. If they have guts (and bottoms) enough, they can spend the entire 99 days, bussing from one end of the United States to the other. They can see Yellowstone, the Grand Canyon, the White House, Niagara Falls, Bryce Canyon, New York, Boston, Chicago and Newport, Ky. for $1 a day plus, of course, meals, rooms and costs of other conveniences.

This time the old one may be right. Clip this item and put it in your tuckler file to come up on June 10, 1962.

The passport gimmick is interesting. It bars Canadians, Puerto Ricans, Mexicans and Americans from this bargain.

"This may tend to crush the barriers. If 10,000 Europeans can be sold American tours this year then, if Europeans brag the way Americans do, next year 100,000 visitors may come and goodness knows where it will all end.

Other plans cooking
But this may be only the beginning. Commerce experts have been talking to other transportation and travel agencies. They have been suggesting that the big answer to the European complaint, "We can't afford a vacation in the United States," is

"This is not completely new."

Adlai Stops Overnight In Latin Dictatorship

By MAX HARRELSON

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson today flies on to Chile after an overnight stop in South America's only dictatorship.

Touring South America as President Kennedy's special envoy, the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations came to Paraguay after issuing a blast at dictators. But his meeting with Paraguayan President Alfredo Stroessner considered the continent's only remaining dictator, was friendly and unstrained.

Their talk, sandwiched in before Stevenson dined with the foreign minister, was brief and details were not disclosed. But the Paraguayan government is known as one of the America's strongest supporters of U.S. policy.

greeted him at the airport, and there was a military honor guard and band.

Stevenson's brief airport speech was marked by the absence of any mention of President Stroessner. He was applauded when he spoke of the spirit of independence among the Paraguayan people.

He also referred to the fact that Paraguay and the United States have different views of political systems. But the audience did not hear these words in Spanish because the interpreter read from an earlier draft that did not include the sentence. The U.S. Embassy later issued a revised Spanish text.

Paraguay's political situation was spotlighted by the seizure earlier in the day of three exiled opposition leaders who flew from Buenos Aires in hopes of seeing Stevenson. Police immediately put them on a motor boat that took them across the Paraguay River and back to Argentina.

The exiles told newsmen they wanted to tell Stevenson that Kennedy's alliance for progress program of economic aid should not be made available to dictatorships like the Stroessner regime.

Bonner Asks $342,000 For Harbor Improvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Herbert C. Bonner, D-N.C., asked a House Appropriations subcommittee today to approve $342,000 for improving the Pamlico River channel from Pamlico Sound, N.C., into the harbor at Washington, N.C.

Bonner told the committee no work has been done on this harbor for about 20 years.

He said debris left by hurricanes in recent years has lodged in the channel so that it is no longer at its authorized depth of 12 feet.

"Business would increase in the area if the 12 foot depth is provided to conform with the inland waterway," Bonner said.

He added that a considerable quantity of grain was shipped out and petroleum and sugar were shipped in when the harbor was adequate to handle such shipping.

Monday Sens. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., and Sam Ervin, D-N.C., asked a Senate Appropriations subcommittee to recommend the same expenditure.

Bonner also asked the House committee to vote whatever money is necessary to enlarge the Wanchese harbor because the commercial use of this harbor has exceeded the use by pleasure craft for which it was built in 1958. Bonner said fishing and shrimp trawlers are using the harbor about five times more than the pleasure boats. He said fishermen and shrimpers have created a good market warranting enlargement of the harbor at the earliest possible time.

(Continued from page four) an advertisement as I have described. Of course, principally the object is to sell a book. But the advertisement reads as though it were important to attack West Germany and to break down the regime of Chancellor Adenauer. What American can have that as a motive? What can be the purposes of such a statement? Only the Communists would be antagonistic to West Germany; only the Communists would want to give Chancellor Adenauer a bad reputation in the world.

Therefore, one wonders at all these swastika marks in an advertisement. Is the ghost of Hitler to be revived to confound us? And by whom?

Credit Given Republicans For New Frontier Passage

By JACK BELL
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberal Republicans got some of the credit today from Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana for the advance through Congress of the administration's New Frontiers program.

The senate's 64-25 passage of a $14-billion housing bill marked another victory Monday for President Kennedy in getting the kind of legislation he wants and in almost the form he wants it.

The House has yet to act on the housing measure. Leaders there are only cautiously optimistic about the bill's final fate.

But in the House, as in the Senate, the old coalition of Republicans with Southern Democrats appears to be crumbling. In the Senate, in Mansfield's view, the coalition has been reversed.

"We must give credit where credit is due, to the 8 to 13 liberal Republicans who have gone along with many of President Kennedy's proposals," the Democratic leader said. "In several instances their votes have decided close issues in our favor."

Mansfield said he thinks the GOP liberals have become more independent because they are on their own, without the responsibility they had during the Eisenhower administration to uphold the program of a Republican president.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said in a separate interview that this factor obviously is playing a part in the failure of the GOP-Southern Democratic coalition to prevent the passage of measures its members regard as extravagant, inflationary and unsound.

From his standpoint, Dirksen said the unlikelihood of presidential vetoes has hit the coalition hardest.

He said that in the past the coalition's ability to produce the votes necessary to uphold a Republican presidential veto of a bill passed by the Democratic-controlled Congress helped "hold our lines for us."

Dirksen said this situation has strengthened the rough pattern of city vs. rural voting that has prevailed in action on most of the New Frontier measures. Republicans from Eastern states where the big city vote is dominant have tended to go along with Northern and Western Democrats, he observed.

Most Republicans who voted for passage were from Eastern states. Two others, Sens. Thomas H. Kuchel of California and Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, have significant big-city voting strength in their states.

In his own case, Dirksen has had to balance the weight of Chicago voters' desires against those of downstate Illinois. As the minority leader, he has chosen to fight most of Kennedy's proposals.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Visits by correspondents to Angola have become rare. In this West African area, torn by strife and terror, the Portuguese are operating under wraps and enforcing a strict censorship. AP's correspondent Peter Grose, stationed in the Congo, went into Angola on an old visa—and was told to depart on the next plane. But the plane didn't leave for three days. This dispatch was brought out and filed free of censorship.

By PETER GROSE
 LUANDA, Angola (AP)—A Portuguese air force pilot landed his little one-engine plane in the main streets of a north Angola town a few days ago, bringing food and supplies to settlers besieged in the terror of the Angolan uprising.

European residents of Sanza Pombos were so grateful for the pilot's errand they renamed the street for him.

Every day air force planes are taking off from the dream-like seaside resort of Luanda, airlifting goods and encouragement deep into the African bush. There white settlers and blacks are locked in perhaps the most gruesome chapter so far in the attempt of the black man to throw off his colonial rulers.

The Portuguese know they are at war. They are meeting terror with more terror, frenzied hatred with vengeance.

In the process many of the 4½ million people in an area twice the size of Texas are fearing for their lives. An uncountable number—well into the thousands—have already died.

The uprising is now in its fourth month and shows signs only of intensifying.

Planes and boats with Portuguese troops arrive weekly, building up for sweeping operations late next month when the tall elephant grass is fried out and burnt, depriving the native guerrillas of their best hiding places.

About 15,000 Portuguese troops are now on the spot ready for action. Three months ago there were no more than 1,000 white soldiers in Angola.

Since March 15, when Angolan nationalists launched their first largescale attacks, no plantation, no house in northern Angola has been safe from rampaging tribal warriors, fiery-eyed Africans waving their machetes, whipped up to a peak of excitement.

No native village has been safe from Portuguese reprisals and grim determination to eradicate the sources of discontent, the people who think of self-government.

In this Angolan uprising killing people is not enough. In a conflict in which the generating of fear is the chief weapon for both sides, quick and simple death is too easy.

Atrocities—so easily exaggerated—are too consistent and well documented to be disbelieved. Burials alive, mass decapitations, cutting up of bodies are matters of fact. They are being committed by both sides.

A widespread native superstition is that people killed by bullets can be resurrected, for their bodies are still intact. Therefore the Africans must make certain their victims will not come alive to betray them. And the white men must convince the natives that death is real and final.

Longtime Portuguese residents are convinced the uprising is fraudulent as a nationalist movement.

The attacks have been directed, in many cases launched, from outside the country, across the frontier of the former Belgian Congo. Other independent African countries are open in their moral and financial support for the natives.

Portuguese military intelligence sources state flatly that at least five of the top leaders of the uprising received training for subversive activity in Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union. They claim to have found thousands of Communist propaganda pamphlets among the attackers.

They say the primitive warriors have been drugged with marijuana and whipped into frenzies of hatred by sorcery and magic.

On their side the nationalist leaders—outside the country—in Leopoldville—tell of centuries of Portuguese colonial repression. Though many of them have lived outside the colony they consider themselves true Angolans. If they went abroad for a foreign education, it could be because there is not one institute of higher learning in Angola and no more than four high schools.

So the terror rages. A semi-circular area along the Congo border from Noquito Maquela do Zombo is completely deserted by the villagers, who have fled across the frontier as refugees. An area to the south is also deserted—but here most villagers were not lucky enough to escape alive.

At least 90 native Protestant pastors—suspect to both sides—are missing without a trace.

The Portuguese securely control the coastal fringe north of Luanda but from about 60 miles inland to the far border the northern province is undefended. The army struggles to keep the main north-south road open, encountering skirmishes daily.

Four districts are under proclaimed martial law. Over 6,000 European women and children have been evacuated to Luanda. The men are armed and required to remain together in the towns.

How is it going to end?

"We are dealing here with a chain reaction—reprisals and more reprisals," said a Luanda businessman. "It just boils down to the hatred one man can stir up for another, whatever his color. "Maybe that will never end."

Oscar And Emmy Drawing Lions Share Of Audience

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
 AP TV-Radio Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — In the course of one TV year, there are usually two important beauty-contest programs—the finals of the Miss Universe and Miss America contests — and three important awards-presenting shows — Oscar, Emmy and TV Guide.

It's a wonder we don't have steady diet of the two categories. They almost always run away with the lion's share of the audience.

The new Nielsen ratings put last month's Emmy awards show at the top of the popularity lists, beating out even the perennial No. 1 entry, "Gunsmoke."

Tonight there is the TV Guide Awards, which will provide the home audiences with a chance to see their favorite stars in mufti. On July 15 the girl-watchers will have their annual chance to see the beautiful finalists in the Miss Universe contest. So the summer isn't entirely lost.

the TV executives usually react by (a) pointing to all the cultural, no-action shows on their schedules (b) mentioning that Shakespeare had more blood-and-thunder in his plots than the worst TV offender and (c) promising to keep a closer check on "unnecessary violence" in the future.

Although many have tried, it has been hard for students of TV and students of children to prove satisfactorily that television's violence has turned nice normal kids into young criminals.

Recommended tonight: TV Guide Awards Show, NBC, 10-11 (ET)—with Nanette Fabray, Efram Zimballist Jr. and Jackie Cooper.

Back Ailment Of President Raises Future Question

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's back ailment caused little visible concern at the White House today.

Kennedy has a date in Hawaii late this month to address the Governors' Conference.

Either of two conditions could influence his plans: (1) sensitive East-West issues or (2) his strained back.

On his program today Kennedy has a speech before the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

He also scheduled the usual Tuesday morning breakfast with Democratic congressional leaders.

Dr. Janet Travell, White House physician, reported Monday she was satisfied with Kennedy's progress.

was feeling much better. The chief executive returned Monday morning from a vacation in Florida where he swam in a heated outdoor pool.

Kennedy appeared on crutches in public for the first time when he boarded his jet at West Palm Beach, Fla.

Kennedy said the President is still experiencing "some discomfort" but that he is "much improved."

Salinger said Kennedy will be using the crutches for at least part of this week.

Every effort was made, however, to keep photographers from taking pictures of the President on crutches.

The cameramen were kept at a distance at both airports and were not permitted to snap photographs of the landing at the White House.

Asthma Formula Prescribed Most By Doctors—Available Now Without Prescription

Stops Attacks in Minutes... Relief Lasts for Hours!

New York, N.Y. (Special)—The asthma formula prescribed more than any other by doctors for their private patients is now available to asthma sufferers without prescription.

Medical tests proved this formula stops asthma attacks in minutes and gives hours of freedom from recurrence of painful asthma spasms.

This formula is so effective that it is the physicians' leading asthma prescription—so safe that now it can be sold—without prescription in most states—in tiny tablets called Primatene®.

These Primatene Tablets open bronchial tubes, loosen congestion, relieve taut nervous tension. All without painful injections.

The secret is—Primatene combines 3 medicines (in full prescription strength) found most effective in combination for asthma distress. Each performs a special purpose.

So look forward to sleep at night, and freedom from asthma spasms. Primatene only 99¢, at any drug store.

Ike Says Any Invasion Requires Air Cover

By HAROLD HARRISON

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Old soldier Dwight D. Eisenhower still says no invasion can be successful without adequate air cover.

Gen. Eisenhower, who directed allied landings in World War II, made his statement Monday in commenting on the abortive invasion of Cuba by forces opposed to the regime of Fidel Castro.

The statement, at a news conference, came a day after new Republican National Chairman William E. Miller declared President Kennedy "rescinded and revoked" the Eisenhower plan to have the Cuban freedom fighters protected by American air power.

The former president also said the United States cannot very much longer "keep on ice" the matter of resuming nuclear testing. He told the news conference

"the time comes when we have to fix a date" beyond which the nation would not feel bound to abstain from testing.

"If we are just going to stand around talking," the Soviets could be testing without the United States knowing it, he asserted. Eisenhower said that before he left the White House "I told my people we definitely would take steps" toward fixing a date.

"We are against irresponsibility," he said. "We don't want to turn over our responsibility to some small clique in Washington. We want progress but we want it to be responsible."

The former president also asserted there is no reason to consider balanced budget "a bad word." He believes in the nation's space program, Eisenhower said, but added: "For goodness sake let's relate it to realism and necessity and don't relate it to big debts."

Grain Program Complete; Pitt Payments $700,000

Estimated total payment to Pitt County farmers participating in the federal emergency feed grain program has been set at $700,000 by officials of the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation program.

ASC office manager Wayne L. Wang reported today sign-up for the acreage diversion program is completed and a total 51 per cent of Pitt's 2,734 farms have been included.

ASC figures show 1,373 farms in the county are participating to the tune of a total 22,442 acres of corn diverted under the program. The figure represents 26 per cent of the county's 85,849 acres of corn grown last year.

Advance payment to the county's farmers already has been $347,354.85, Wang reported. Under the plan, one half of the total payment was paid at sign-up with the remaining half—actually slightly more than half—going to the farmer after the diverted acreage is measured by ASC.

In a statement, Wang said, "The Pitt County ASC Committee and the office personnel wish to thank all ASC Community Committeemen for the tremendous job they did in helping us to put the 1961 Feed Grain Program into operation. The able assistance of the Community Committee has been a big factor toward making this program a great success.

"To our county news media, we acknowledge with full appreciation assistance in informing the rural people about the program.

"To the farmers, we appreciate and further encourage their great interest in farm programs. They have responded well to the feed grain program. . . . We pledge, as a service agency, our full support in the administration and improvement of the farmers' farm programs."

CAMERA Insights

JOYOUS ABANDON of youngsters having fun on a float was seen by Herbert Keppler passing by on shore. In safety and comfort, he chose a 400 mm lens for his 35 mm reflex to capture this scene. It appears in his new book, "Keppler on the Eye-Level Reflex".

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The eye-level single-lens reflex is the simplest, most logical, accurate and exciting type of 35mm camera today. Light from the subject enters the lens, is reflected upwards by a 45-degree mirror through a glass prism and directed to your eye. What you see is an image which in area and perspective is precisely what the film will record. No matter what lens you fit to the camera you can witness the result immediately, since the image projected by the lens itself is your viewfinder. The eye level reflex has removed all obstacles between you and your subject. Its lens sees as your eye sees; it views the world as you do.

That's the beginning of Herbert Keppler's new knock-down, drag-out, no-holds-barred book, "Keppler on the Eye-Level Reflex" (Amphoto Publ., N. Y.). It is opinionated, frank, critical — and extremely instructive. It is by far the best guide available today for the bewildered camera fan lost in the woods of eye-level reflex cameras.

And what makes 26-year-old Burt Keppler a top seeing-eye dog in this field? As the son of illustrious photo illustrator Victor Keppler, he was born and developed with hypo in the blood and a camera for a plaything. As he grew up and matured, photography became a way of life for him too but as a personal practitioner, writer and editor. He is presently executive editor of Modern Photography magazine.

His preference for the eye-level reflex camera started about 10 years ago and has led him to try out just about every design on the market since then; to explore the technical engineering and theories behind the designs and to evaluate candidly the results from personal experience and practical application. Of course there is no one best camera for everybody. Photographers are basically individuals with a wide range of characteristics, preferences, abilities and interests. A camera which feels fine to a right-handed person might not suit a lefty; its focusing system which looks great to a camera fan with normal vision might not look so good to one wearing glasses. The book analyzes the strong points and weaknesses of all the major eye-level reflex cameras presently available.

Keppler's advice to anyone shopping around for a camera is summed up in these steps: Deal with a reliable store where you can return with confidence. Handle as many cameras as you can, testing the ease of focus and the feel of tripping the shutter before settling on one. Check to see if accessories which you plan to get later are available now. Insist on a 10-day trial period with a money-back guarantee and really test the camera. Then if it doesn't operate properly or if you discover it doesn't handle comfortably for you, it can be exchanged or have the money refunded. A lot of the points which Keppler makes applies to shooting

Whose Red China Problem Is Greatest?

Faces Extortion Hearing Today

SNOW HILL, N.C. (AP)—David Lee Ward, 23-year-old Wilson County Negro, faced a hearing here today on charges that he tried to extort $1,000 from a prominent Greene County farmer. Sheriff Clifton Barfield said Ward left a note demanding the money in the mailbox of Charles A. Dawson of Rt. 1, Stantonburg. The sheriff said the note directed that the $1,000 be left in a nearby mailbox and that unless the demand was complied with, the Dawson home, stables and barns would be burned.

Dawson reported the demand to officers. Deputies and highway patrolmen were assigned to watch and a small amount of money was placed in the mailbox. Sheriff Barfield said Ward took the money about 15 minutes after it was put in the box.

She sheriff said Ward was paroled about two years ago from Central Prison after serving three years of a 7-10 year sentence for maiming an officer.

Sheriff Barfield said Ward admitted writing the note. He quoted Ward as saying he needed money and got the idea for the extortion attempt in viewing a television show.

"I was only trying to toss the baton as high as the power pole, like the man in the circus," Steve explained after Sunday night's fireworks.

with all types of cameras. He favors sticking to a few types of films: Plus-X for adequate light and Tri-X for low light levels, so as to become familiar with their performance. Know your own home photographically so that you can shoot in the kitchen or living room with assurance of good exposures. Elsewhere, guess exposures everywhere you go and check your estimates with a meter. Pretty soon you'll be hitting the exposures while discussing business or politics and without a break in the conversation.

Small Loans Bill On Slate Today

RALEIGH (AP)—An off-amended bill to place tight regulations on North Carolina's small loan firms was on the Senate calendar today.

The Senate Banking Committee adopted some amendments to the measure Monday night, but declined to accept what it regarded as weakening amendments.

The committee added a provision which would authorize the State Banking Commission to periodically review rates charged by small loan companies. The commission also could order the rates reduced.

The bill was approved by the Senate on second reading Friday and was up for third reading Monday night when it was taken off the calendar so the committee could consider the additional amendments.

As passed by the Senate Friday, the measure calls for charges of $19 on a $100 loan for one year, $36 for $200 and $51 for $300. When a payment is delayed, the default charge would be 2 1/2 per cent after 15 days of tardiness. There would be no deferment charge. The committee beat down amendments to make the charges $20, $38 and $52, respectively. Also rejected was a proposal to increase the default charge to 5 per cent after a 10-day period.

Violations of the bill's provisions call for minimum penalties of not less than $500 fine or four months in jail, or both, to not more than $2,500 fine or two years, or both.

Single Bullet Wounded Both

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—One bullet wounded two youths in a hunting accident near Cairns, North Queensland. Frederick Moody, 17, accidentally bumped the butt of his 22 rifle on the ground. It went off. The bullet passed through Moody's right leg and hit the right leg of his companion, Bruce Lederhouse, 25 yards away.

lover its conflict with China is raised so persistently here in the United States that it prompts a counter question:

Whose problem with China is greater — Russia's or the United States?

The question is raised so often you begin to suspect that Americans wish Russians would have more trouble with China so the United States wouldn't have so much.

Two years of living with this and other Russian questions in Moscow lead this correspondent to believe that Russia's immediate danger from China is less than half as great as many Americans seem to think — and probably not as great as that of the United States. At least, not right now. In general this is the opinion of a large body of diplomatic and other trained observers who—in the shadow of the Kremlin—must make the best estimates they can. American troubles with China are acute enough. This country is trying to build a retaining wall to help keep Chinese communism from spreading its influence else-

Ex-Envoy Urges Castro Blockade

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former ambassador says the United States must throw a blockade around Fidel Castro's Cuba.

The ex-envoy, Robert C. Hill, told the Senate Internal Security subcommittee Monday that the United States should ask other hemisphere nations to join the blockade but should do it alone— with military force—if it has to.

Hill, a political appointee who served as ambassador to Costa Rica, El Salvador and Mexico as well as serving a stint as assistant secretary of state for congressional liaison, said Iron Curtain countries are shipping arms into Cuba that "will be used against other Latin-American areas."

Hill contended that State Department policy favored Castro "even after our own government's intelligence reports" showed the Cuban regime was under Communist influence or domination.

"There is no doubt in my mind," said Hill, "that individuals in the State Department with the help of the New York Times put Fidel Castro in power."

The Times said there would be no comment on Hill's statement.

where in Asia, particularly in the southeast.

Russia's problem starts on a different level. China and Russia are competing for dominance in the Communist world. So far the Russians are well ahead. But the going is not easy.

Two regions of conflict already have developed — Albania, lying across the Adriatic from Italy, and Mongolia, high in the plateau country of Central Asia.

There probably is a third. Russia has moved in to become the big friend and protector of North Viet Nam's victory over the French.

To the north, Mongolia is an underprivileged, underdeveloped underdog in the Communist world. Russia in a big brother manner has been helping it for a generation, sending money, technicians and political teachers. China began sending technicians into Mongolia a few weeks ago, and has offered material help as well.

Albania is more painful for Russia. This tiny country has been Russia's only foothold on the Mediterranean since Russia's quarrel with Tito.

The Albanian situation leads straight back to the ideological clash between Khrushchev and Mao Tze-tung, communism's leader in China.

Ever since he came to power Khrushchev has promoted the theory that communism could absorb the western world bit by bit without resorting to war.

Mao Tze-tung holds that war is an inevitable necessity for shaking down capitalist regimes.

Warning For Dad Came Too Late

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Sgt. Carl Ennis of the Trenton Police says he'll pay more attention to his son's warnings from now on.

Ennis said the boy, Chris, 6, took a bite of his father's ice cream bar. The sergeant took it back and swallowed a sizable portion although the boy cried, "Wait, daddy."

Asked what was wrong, Chris said, "Never mind now, daddy, you've already swallowed my loose tooth."

The late Hiram Bingham, who discovered Machu Picchu in Peru, held that the city was always Inca and not founded by an earlier tribe.

in Moscow last November a month-long debate brought endorsement of Khrushchev's peaceful coexistence approach to bringing down the capitalist world without war.

Enver Hoxha, Communist party chief in Albania, sided with China. After a bitter exchange Khrushchev jumped on him so hard he went home.

There is no formal break but Hoxha has jailed a lot of Khrushchev sympathizers, and even had some shot, according to reports coming out of the barren little Red republic. Immediately China stepped in by sending technicians and money.

Yet this is just fringe fighting between the two big Communist powers. To industrialize, China needs Russian help. She is getting it, although there are signs the amount has been trimmed since the big party fight last November.

Russia and China are rivals, rather than antagonists. Each will support the other against the United States on any subject whatever. That likely will continue to be true for a long time.

Mallory Proud Of His Champions After Week Of Tourney Tensions

By ROY MARTIN Reflector Sports Writer The Pirates came home yesterday. And they were received with a warmness deserving of the champions that they are.

WELCOME HOME—East Carolina College's President, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, gives Larry Crayton, Pirate pitcher, a special welcome in ceremonies held in honor of East Carolina's National baseball Championship yesterday on the college campus.

It was nearly one o'clock, Sunday morning, when the final gun sounded, heralding the Pirates as the new NAIA baseball champions for 1961. The crowd had thinned somewhat, and the late hour had reduced their noisiness to a low rumble, broken occasionally by a clap.

Slowly the stands of Soos Stadium began to empty. Small children, rubbing their eyes, followed the adults down the ramp which led to the street. Others were being carried in arms, their heads hanging down over the crook of the elbow.

But the scene was different on the field. A new champion had to be crowned, and those who were to receive the laurels were letting the world know that they had won.

Jim Mallory was a proud man as he stood before home plate with his boys, awaiting the presentation of the championship plaque. The week of tension had deepened the lines of his face. But no matter how tired he looked, his expression displayed the elation of one who was a winner.

His charges had recoiled from a stunning 14-5 defeat, to roll over Sacramento in the second game, 13-7. This was an honor to win.

When East Carolina arrived at Morningside College on Monday, they were greeted by the Sioux City Jaycees, the "Baseball Belle", Sharon Jepson of Sioux City, and a young German beauty, Solveig Empkin, their team "sweetheart."

Throughout the week of tournament competition, she remained just that. Each night that the Pirates took the field, Solveig was sitting in the seating section behind the dugout. She didn't know one thing about baseball, but she would sit and listen to the other fans around her, and when they would shout something to the Bucs which sounded "baseball-ish", she would wait a few minutes, trying not to appear as copying, and then she would shout for all she was worth.

Yanks Put Show On The Road Tonight

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer The New York Yankees, apparently squared away after getting fat on second-division clubs, put the show on the road in their bid for the American League lead tonight with the opener of a three-game series at Cleveland against the first-place Indians.

Fourth-place Baltimore stayed eight games behind what has become a three-way scrap when the Orioles blew a 5-1 lead and lost 9-8 to the White Sox. Boston outlasted Minnesota 10-8 in the only other AL game scheduled.

Ken Hunt, who was cut down trying for a triple, Stafford walked two and struck out seven for his third complete game—the eighth in 14 games by the Yankees staff which had produced only six in the first 42 games.

Bethel Basketball Ace, John Smith, Receives State College Scholarship

By LEONARD LAO
Reflector Sports Writer

John Smith, a typical American name, belongs to thousands of boys in these United States. However, there is a John Smith in nearby Bethel whose name pops up every time there is a conversation concerning Pitt County basketball.

This particular John Smith is a recent graduate of Bethel High School, and his name will probably pop up more than ever in the next four years. Smith received a basketball scholarship to North Carolina State College by the dean of North Carolina basketball coaches, Everett Case.

Coach Case, who is convinced that there are plenty of good basketball players in the state, as well as from Yankee country, got in touch with Smith via telephone on Monday, May 29th. The Wolfpack mentor wanted to know when the Bethel star could come to Raleigh to talk business. Two days later, Smith was standing on the Reynolds Coliseum court, face to face with the maestro of the Atlantic Coast Conference. At 4:00 p.m. Smith signed his familiar name to a full grant in aid to State College.

Smith, a lefthander who stands an even six feet tall and weighs 170 pounds, led the Bethel Indians to the Pitt County Conference title this past winter, carrying a scoring average of 20 points per game. In his sophomore year, Smith averaged 13 points a game, and bettered it to 19 in his junior season. He was named to the All-Conference teams in both his junior and senior years, adding the honor of All-Tournament to his senior campaign.

Case is not an unfamiliar person to Smith, for the latter participated in three summer basketball camps sponsored by the Wolfpack coach, in 1958, '59, and '60. Smith also got in some playing time in Bones McKinney's basketball camp. McKinney is the coach of Wake Forest's Demon Deacons.

Not only does Smith hold a high average on the basketball court, but in the classroom, he does equally as well. The soft speaking Smith carries a scholastic average of 90, and is a member of the Beta Club, an organization made up of those students with high academic averages.

In leading the Indians of Coach Walter Latham (who incidentally has often been called the Everett Case of Pitt County) to the county crown last winter, Smith hit his high spot on two occasions. In the season opener against Belvoir-Faikland, the modest southpaw pumped in 32 points, a feat which he repeated in the finals of the Pitt County Tournament against Chicod. In the latter performance, Smith dropped 19 points through the hoop in the second quarter alone.

Smith is the first to admit to whom he owes thanks for his basketball success; he is Latham, who hung up his coaching shoes following the 1960-61 season.

"When I was in the tenth grade," said Smith, "I shot 25 times in one game and didn't hit the bucket once, but Coach Latham just started me again in the next game. In that one I scored 14 points. Since then, he has continually given me confidence, assisting with little problems as well as big ones all along the way."

Looking up to Latham with unending respect, as do all Bethel players, Smith continued, "He never let us get cocky. He kept telling us that basketball was a sissy's game, and that we were nothing if we couldn't play it."

A 29-3 1960-61 season proves one thing; that Bethel could play it. Smith, who plans to make his major field of study pre-dentistry, will enter N.C. State on the eleventh of September.

Will Try Vogel On Bribe Offer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Former Alabama basketball player Jerry Vogel will be tried in Superior Court here on charges he offered a University of North Carolina player $1,000 to shave points in a basketball game.

Vogel, who surrendered voluntarily Monday, waived preliminary hearing on the charges that he offered the money to Lou Brown, a former basketball player at the University in Chapel Hill. Bond for Vogel was placed at $3,000.

Lester V. Chalmers Jr., district solicitor (prosecutor), said Brown and Vogel came to his office Monday and surrendered. He said the State Bureau of Investigation took Vogel into custody.

Chalmers and Brown later in the day were seen at various points in this area. However, neither could be located by newsmen and officers and Brown's status was not clear.

Aaron Wagman of New York has been accused there of trying to bribe Brown, through Vogel, to shave points in the North Carolina-South Carolina basketball on Dec. 2, 1959. Vogel allegedly was Wagman's "fix" man in this area.

Greenville Legion Team Takes Third Win In Row

Greenville made it three in a row in American Legion Junior baseball last night, squeezing past Roanoke Rapids in the last inning to take a 7-6 victory.

Back-to-back doubles by centerfielder Keel and starting pitcher Wynne pushed across the winning tally in the ninth frame.

The Post 39 team of Coach Bud Phillips jumped off to a quick 4-0 lead in the first inning. Shortstop Hobgood started things off with a bang, getting a leadoff triple. Leftfielder Hardee singled Hobgood home with the first Greenville run. A triple by catcher Riley scored Hardee, then another single by Wynne scored Riley from third. A Roanoke Rapids miscue and another one base knock by Bob Avery pushed Wynne across with the fourth tally of the inning.

Post 39 added another run in the third frame on a triple by Keel and a sacrifice fly to left by Wynne.

In the fourth inning, Phillips' aggregation tallied another score on two Roanoke Rapids errors. Greenville's Wynne limited the losers to one run on two hits until the seventh inning, at which time the Roanoke Rapids batters finally got at him. The losers scored two runs in the seventh on a Keel, double, a single and an error and walk. RE added another tally in the eighth to knot the count at 6-6. This run was charged to winning pitcher James Braxton who came on in the eighth frame.

Greenville downed Ahoskie by a score of 10-6.

Duke A Victim Of Another's Comeback

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Duke's "Cinderella" baseball team has ended its season, ironically the victim of another team's comeback.

The Blue Devils from Durham, N.C., were eliminated from the NCAA playoffs here Monday 4-3 by Boston College. It was Duke's second loss in the double-elimination national finals.

Duke earned a spot in the NCAA District 3 playoffs when North Carolina slipped from the Atlantic Coast Conference lead in the waning days of the conference baseball schedule.

Coach Ace Parker's team, whose conference-winning record was 11-3, won seven straight ACC games to end the campaign. The Dukes then won two straight in the district playoffs at Gastonia, N.C., before winning one of three here. For the season, Duke was 16-11 in all games.

Butch Williams, voted the outstanding pitcher in the district playoffs, was coasting along with a 3-0 lead over Boston College

Monday. In the sixth inning, the Boston team scored three times on a walk and three successive singles. A pinch-hit single by Bob Ciero in the seventh drove home the winning run for Boston College.

Duke scored twice in the second inning on two singles and three walks; then Ron Davis hit a solo homer in the fifth. The shot from Davis' bat cleared the outfield fence at the 350-foot mark with plenty to spare.

The Blue Devils blasted Colorado State 15-3 here Sunday in a game that also featured a homer by Davis. Last Friday, Duke lost its first game in the national finals, falling 3-2 to Oklahoma State. A ninth inning two-run homer by Bill Ketchum of Oklahoma State whipped Duke's pitching ace, Don Altman, in the first game here.

Rube Walker, former Dodger catcher, is managing the Atlanta Crackers in the Southern Association.

A Journey, A Tourney And A Warm Welcome Home

THERE WAS A BIG TURNOUT FOR THE CHAMPS . . . Students and fans gathered in front of the college library yesterday for the Bucs' homecoming.

THIS IS BASEBALL? . . . East Carolina baseball players seem to be dropping to their knees in thanks for their recent copping of the national small college baseball championship, but in reality they are searching for four leaf clovers. The Pirates carried the clovers in their back pockets throughout the tournament in Sioux City, Iowa. Those players who can be identified are Burl Morris, Spencer Gaylord, Glenn Bass, Merrill Bynum, and Earl Boykin.

SOLO HOMER . . . Spencer Gaylord is met by his East Carolina teammates as he approaches home plate after slamming a 350 foot home run in the sixth inning of the national finals against Sacramento State College. It was the first home for Gaylord, a junior second baseman from Greensboro, in his college career. The Pirate players will agree, however, that it could not have come at a better time.

By LEONARD LAO
Reflector Sports Writer

It is not a frequent occasion when a championship comes to a college. It is even more infrequent when that championship is on a national level. East Carolina College has fielded athletic teams since way back in the early 1900's. During the course of the last sixty one years, there have been conference titles here and there, bringing not much more than state-wide recognition to the college's intercollegiate athletic program. This past week, however, East Carolina's Pirates accomplished a feat that had previously never been done in the history of the institution. Their baseball aggregation brought home the title of the nation's number one small college baseball team for the 1961 season.

Pirates Faced Uphill Battle
Competing against the seven best teams in the country, according to season records, East Carolina came out on top. The story behind the uphill battle for this national acclaim should be of interest to all those loyal supporters of Pirate athletics.

Playoffs Present Great Expense
As one can readily understand, there are great expenditures involved in sending a team to compete in national playoffs which are held over 1000 miles away and are carried on for five days. East Carolina, found this to be quite a problem in preparing for the journey to Sioux City, Iowa, the site of the NAIA Tournament. He was forced to limit his traveling squad to only 13 players, with only four of them being pitchers. This immediately handicapped the Pirates, because all the other teams in the playoffs had substitutes galore and a sufficient supply of pitchers. It must have been a humorous sight to the spectators and the other teams to see so few players in the East Carolina dugout. That was enough of a handicap for the Pirates to overcome, but more were in store for them.

Bass Lost After Injury
As the tournament progressed, and East Carolina won its first two games, the spectators and opponents began to wonder if they had misjudged the Pirates. However, what Mallory had hoped would not happen, did happen. Glenn Bass, EC's regular shortstop and one of the leading hitters on the team injured his leg so severely that he was unable to compete anymore throughout the playoffs.

Defeat Knocks At Door
The situation looked dim for East Carolina, and the spectators, whose fancy had been captured by the Pirates by this time, were certain now that the North Carolinians were doomed for defeat. In order to compensate for the to shortstop, one of his outfielders (Cotton Clayton) to third base, and insert one of his four pitchers in the outfield. Nevertheless, the Pirates continued to win.

Greater Pitching Shortage
After being forced to use a pitcher in the outfield, Mallory was faced with even more of a pitching shortage than when he started out. Now he had to decide who would play in the outfield and who would pitch. He was faced with this crucial problem twice. On both occasions Mallory came up with the correct choice.

Boykin Gets Starting Nod
After using his ace, Larry Crayton, the previous night, and with his number two pitcher, Lacy West, playing in the outfield, Mallory gave Earl Boykin, a pitcher who had not lasted more than two innings in a game all through the regular season, the starting assignment. As it turned out, East Carolina won the game by a large margin, with Boykin going the distance, striking out 15 batters and giving up only three runs.

Mallory Calls On Greene
The Pirates found themselves in the same situation in the final game. This time, Mallory called upon Nathan Greene, who had not been on the mound for a month. The husky righthander held his opponents to only two hits until the ninth inning, and East Carolina came out on top by a 12-2

Cream And Sugar For Sam, Too?

HAYS, Kan. (AP) — America's coffee - break habit has finally reached the family dog. Sam, a handsome cocker spaniel belonging to Homer Zimmerman got in on the routine one morning during breakfast.

Shell test drivers add a "fifth wheel" to their cars for precise distance measurement during mileage tests. It helps them record performance to a decimal point.

Shell reveals how to increase your mileage up to 30 extra miles per tankful

Here are some tips from Shell's experts on how to get maximum mileage from your car. If you practice these good driving habits—and if you use today's Super Shell, with 9 ingredients for top performance—you may well save a pretty penny on gasoline bills.

- 1. Don't race a cold engine. When your engine is cold, it uses up more fuel. Today's Super Shell contains Pentane mix—for fast warm-up. (A properly operating thermostat helps.) 2. Use a light touch with the accelerator. Tromping down on the pedal is an expensive habit. Starting up, it holds your automatic transmission in a lower "gear" longer. This makes the engine turn faster, wasting fuel. Under way, uneven pedal pressure is costly, too. Instead, feed just enough fuel to maintain even speed. 3. Drive "ahead of your car." Watch for slowing traffic and red lights as far ahead as you can see. You'll be able to coast up to the stopping cars, instead of braking heavily when you get there. 4. Don't let fuel costs creep up. If your car "creeps" when idling with the automatic transmission engaged, have your engine idle speed adjusted. You may save plenty. 5. Don't indulge in jack rabbit starts. Racing starts are fine on race tracks—but the drivers are lucky to get 6 miles per gallon. NOTE: One thing you can't do anything about is the weather. Yet it's interesting to know that air resistance at high car speed is the biggest single drain on power. It increases approximately as the cube of the vehicle speed. Even fox tails on aerials may cost you gasoline. 6. Check tire pressure—regularly. Keep tires properly inflated. Under-inflated tires increase drag and friction and cut mileage. Not to mention extra tread wear. NOTE: Tire pressures build up during a long run. Don't let air out to bring the pressure down—it makes the tires run even hotter. Check cool tires only. 7. Check for dragging brakes. Have your Shell dealer check for wheel drag next time you're in for a lubrication. If brakes drag, you pay for it every mile you drive. 8. Get these fuel-saving adjustments for top performance. If spark timing is off, for example, you pay for it in wasted gasoline and possible engine damage. Have the compression checked—it can reveal power-wasting valve and ring conditions. Use Super Shell with TCP* to give spark plugs extra life. Replace worn plugs. Adjust carburetor for correct air-fuel mixture and proper idle speed. Have automatic choke checked for correct operation. Clean or replace filters for air, fuel, oil whenever manufacturer recommends. Have automatic transmission or clutch checked regularly. 9. Get regular oil changes and lubrication—including transmission and differential. Your Shell dealer knows what to do. He has the finest equipment and lubricants to do it with. There's a good chance your car and your gasoline will last longer. 10. Show this advertisement to everyone who drives your car—especially if you pay their gasoline bills. Insist that they stop for service at the sign of the Shell. While we can't guarantee 30 extra miles per tankful, the closer these suggestions are followed the better your mileage is likely to get. To start off right, fill up with today's Super Shell. Its nine ingredients mean top performance. Try Super Shell. You'll soon feel and hear the difference in the way your engine runs. That difference is top performance. A Bulletin from Shell Research—where 1,997 scientists are working to make your car go better and better.

The Word Is, Lyndon Johnson Will Be Ready If Demos Want Him In 1968

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—The word around Washington is that if road government experience and political know-how can do it, Lyndon B. Johnson will be ready if the Democrats want to nominate him for president in 1968.

The vice president is a busy man these days, penetrating further into government than any of his predecessors ever had the opportunity to.

His hours are so long and hectic he tells friends he doesn't have time to think about anything other than the series of jobs President Kennedy has assigned to him.

But who can say that he doesn't sometimes dream of the day when he might step into the No. 1 post after Kennedy as completed a second term?

It's a long time before 1968, when Johnson will have his 60th birthday. But if Republican Richard M. Nixon could win a presidential nomination from the vice president's chair, Johnson's friends think he can do it, too.

They say if Kennedy continues to pursue the course he has followed since his inauguration, there won't be any argument about Johnson's qualifications to step into the younger man's shoes.

Kennedy has laid out five broad fields of operation for his vice president.

Significantly the President picked Johnson to head the Space Advisory Council. The vice president thinks that is his most important job. There he is in the middle of efforts to put up communications and weather satellites—and eventually to put a man on the moon.

As head of the Equal Employment Opportunities Committee, he has been getting in some ticks in the civil rights field where, as a Southerner, he was politically weakest.

Here he has brought in industrialists and labor leaders and won from them important agreements to eliminate racial discrimination in employment—an area in which he feels Negroes vitally are concerned.

Johnson recognizes that this will not help him politically in the South. But he is in the process of making himself a national man as he thinks befits the office he occupies.

Even while he was running hard for the 1960 nomination that went to Kennedy, Johnson often told friends he did not believe any Texan would be nominated for president by the Democrats in his lifetime. If the process of making himself a national man makes him more available for such a nomination, Johnson would be pleased to change his mind.

The vice president ranks his job as chief of advisers to the Peace Corps as third in line of importance in the tasks Kennedy has asked him to undertake.

This fits in with the fourth field, the international assignments the President continually is giving him. These included conferences with heads of state on his trip to Southeast Asia and one around the world, as well as a previous trip to Africa, France and England. In each of these Johnson has served as the President's personal representative.

Beyond that, Johnson was left in charge of the store when Kennedy went to Paris, Vienna and London. Keeping constantly in touch with Kennedy, the vice president presided when military, diplomatic and other chiefs were called together on the Dominican Republic crisis.

Along with House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., the vice president has become one of Kennedy's chief advisers in a familiar fifth field—what to ask of Congress and how to go about getting it once the request has been made.

Johnson has been careful not to volunteer advice to the party leadership in Congress or to try to interfere in its operations, despite his long experience as Senate Democratic leader. But when they want and need him, he is ready to help.

Throughout all of these operations, which often run to 18-hour days, Johnson has been at pains to make it clear he has no intention of invading the President's prerogatives. Johnson advises and makes recommendations. But Kennedy is the boss and makes the decisions.

Fellowship Won By ECC Grad

Ernestine Nichols of Washington, a home economics teacher in the Elizabeth City High School and a 1959 graduate of East Carolina College, will receive the Good Housekeeping-Katharine Fisher Award during the annual meeting of the American Home Economics Association in Cleveland, Ohio, June 29. The Award is presented in memory of Katharine Fisher who served for 29 years as director of the Good Housekeeping Institute.

In selecting a recipient of the $2,000 fellowship which is awarded, she must be a teacher in a secondary school and she must also give evidence of a sincere and deep interest in better home economics teaching. Miss Nichols is the second recipient to receive the Good Housekeeping-Katharine Fisher Fellowship, which was first offered for the academic year 1959-60.

A candidate for an M.S. degree, Miss Nichols will study at the University of Tennessee this fall. Her major studies will be textile and clothing, while her minor will be related art.

Group Leaves On Europe Tour

Twenty-four men and women from four states, members of the East Carolina College's 1961 Grand Tour of Europe, left New York June 12 for travel and study through July 20 in nine countries. A number of the tourists will also take an optional trip through Spain July 20-August 2.

Mrs. Myrtle B. Clark of the college department of education, director of the college's first European tour last summer, is accompanying the 1961 group. Dr. Ralph Brimley, director of extension at East Carolina, and Mrs. Brimley went to New York to assist in starting the tour.

Those taking the tour this summer represent the states of North Carolina, Virginia, Colorado, and Texas.

The group traveled from New York to Prestwick, Scotland; and will return from Paris to New York by air. Travel in Europe will be by motor coach.

Countries to be visited are Scotland, England, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Austria, Italy, France, and Switzerland.

Ladies Are Susceptible To Stock Market Speculation

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Women stock buyers are like men investors, traders or speculators—only more so. They are prone to the same foibles, but more prone to speculative fever—especially to tips that come from dinner companions or cocktail gossipers.

They are sentimental about "stocks my husband thought well of" or about stocks of a company whose products they've met or whose products they like.

All the above is the opinion of a man, naturally, and one in the investment counselling business.

He is Howard F. Wortham, president of Trainer, Wortham & Co., a New York counselling firm since 1924. He is quick to add that everything he says about women with money to invest can also be said about men.

But as owners of a large percentage of the nation's wealth, women are becoming increasingly prominent in capital investment, stock ownership and, in stock trading. Hence, how the female behaves when managing this considerable portion of the nation's private capital is more and more a concern of the menfolk in the investment business—and of the nation, too, for that matter.

"There are some women now who are highly skilled in the handling of investments but the percentage is still small," Wortham said in an interview. "Women tend to be more extreme than men, either excessively conservative or over inclined to speculate."

There should be no such things as His and Hers portfolios—although sometimes there seem to be. Wortham says the basic needs are the same—either high current income, or maximum appreciation through growth as a hedge against further inflation, or a combination of both according to the requirements of the individual.

What is the greatest danger a woman investor faces if she tries going it alone?

"Greed," says Wortham. "And next is an initially poor selection which she is unwilling to recognize and correct."

But the woman investor is getting more sophisticated. Wortham finds them far less susceptible today than formerly to advice from personable young men who devote time to their entertainment.

Like men, most women with large investment portfolios seek competent advice on keeping it solvent and profitable—from counsellors, banks and trust companies, brokers, or lawyers.

Like other investment counsellors, Wortham thinks do-it-yourself investing is a chancey thing, especially for women entering the stock market for the first time, or with limited experience of finance, or with little time to spend in watching over their investments in an ever changing market.

Traditionally professional counselling service has been limited to investments of $100,000 or more. Anything below that has been considered unprofitable for the counselling firm.

But in 1959 Trainer, Wortham started a special supervisory service for those with from $25,000 to $100,000 to invest. It has proved popular and the fees, on the basis of 1 per cent of the value of the portfolio, have brought in enough to make it worth the trouble.

Among the rules, the firm will not take an account unless it handles it completely. And it won't accept cat and dog stocks held for sentimental reasons—it tells the client to keep such investments on the side themselves. The small accounts aim at growth rather than current income—"You can't live on the income from a $25,000 capital," says Wortham. Incidentally, this gentleman with the firm opinions about women as stock traders is a bachelor.

Jailed Freedom Riders To Pen

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Hinds County Sheriff J. R. Gilroy, whose jail is overcrowded with "Freedom Riders" had authority today to transfer them to the spacious 16,000-acre state penitentiary. The authority was granted after a dozen more segregation-testers were convicted Monday to raise the total to 96 in city and county jails. The arrests began May 24, three days before Diane Nash of Nashville, Tenn., coordinating secretary for the Nashville Student Non-Violent Movement said the riders "plan to fill up the jail" in Jackson and Montgomery, Ala. Twenty-six others have paid fines or posted bond. The Board of Supervisors said in their order that "by reason of such overcrowding, Hinds County is unable with its own facilities to provide necessary housing and work as required by statute for its prisoners." The board said that at Parchman, the sprawling prison farm 150 miles northwest of Jackson, "adequate public work may be made available to them so they may lawfully receive credit for time spent in confinement." The prisoners have been "sitting out" their fines at the rate of $3 per day. If transferred to other crops could be provided. Arrangements have been made for the Fort Lauderdale News wanted to know how easy it would be for a Fidel Castro agent to land on the south Florida shore. Wearing Cuban-type army fatigues and a two-day beard, Hector Morales went out in a rented boat, then swam ashore. Two Fort Lauderdale policemen pounced on Morales as he hit the beach. He was released when his identity was established.

Curious Newsman Found Out Quick

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—A Mexican-born reporter

In Real Life, Jack Webb Not Laconic Type; Very Talkative

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Shop talk with Jack Webb— Unlike the laconic Joe Friday he once played, Webb is a talkative type when it comes to the movie business. In fact, he is inclined to rattle along with the speed of a tobacco auctioneer. If you keep up with him, you can come away with comments on such topics as these: Film content — "It just turns my stomach to see the kind of pictures that some quick-buck producers are making now. There will always be those vulture who prey on human depravity. Thank heaven there are still some Walt Disney's, Billy Wilders and George Stevens who can make movies with good taste." Movie censorship — "I'm against it. I think the production code boys do a fine job, when producers listen to them. We're paying them; we should listen to them. We're just inviting outside censorship when we don't. Messages — "Since when do we get off trying to lecture and preach on the screen? Our job is to entertain. If we do it right, business will be good." American films abroad — "All the surveys show that one of the principal ways foreigners judge us is by our movies. I shudder to think what opinion they must have of us after seeing some of our recent films. I think we're in trouble." Taste in movies — "We've gone too far in delving into problems. The great movie makers are the ones who leave things unsaid. Now films are explicit about everything — sex, violence, etc. Some of the crime stuff in films and on TV shocks me. We never had any of that in Dagnet. We never showed decomposed bodies or congealed blood. If we had something shocking, we'd show the reaction in Frank Smith's face. Or in my own stolidly stoic face." TV stars in film — "I think it's dangerous for them to carry the load alone. That's why I got Bob Mitchum to go with me in 'The Last Time I Saw Archie.' I'd like to merely direct and produce the next one, 'Purple is the Color, and get somebody like Glenn Ford to play the lead. But United Artists says otherwise." Webb and TV — "I think I'm ready to go back to it as a performer. I said never again when I quit Dagnet three years ago. But now I've had a chance to get reacquainted with my staff and my wife, and I might take the plunge in a property I was enthused about. The reason I quit Dagnet was that after 276 shows it's hard to work up enthusiasm. Now I might even bring Joe Friday back in TV or films—if the situation were right." Webb and movies — "Most critics say I stubbed my toe after the feature 'Dagnet,' which grossed 6 million. Well, 'Pete Kelly's Blues' grossed over 4 million domestically and the 'D.I.' grossed 3.8 million. So why don't they get their facts straight?"

20 Recruits In Training For 'Egg Smeller Corps'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Twenty recruits for the Egg Smellers Corps—America's first line of defense against one kind of food poisoning — are training in Kansas City. They must learn to detect spoiled batches of frozen eggs in commercial markets. "We use chemical and bacteriological tests to support the nose, but the nose is still our main line of defense," said Alfred Barnard, district director of the Pure Food and Drug Administration, operator of the school. Frozen eggs generally are sold in 30-pound cans. Barnard said chemical or biological tests can't determine if these contain rotten eggs. "If more than 10 per cent of the 30 pounds is bad, it can be detected easily," he said. "If it is less, however, the smeller has a difficult task. "Some men can't smell, just as some men can't see. We try to pick men with good noses. "If they pass one or two bad packs, they can still be egg smellers, but if they catch a good one bad, they are washed out." Applicants take preliminary tests before they are sent to smelling schools. They have to detect small quantities of vanilla and other substances in water. At the school, recruits drill holes into frozen eggs, then take a whiff. After several days of this, the smeller take final exams. "Age has nothing to do with smelling," Barnard said. "I knew one man who still had a top-notch nose when he retired at 70."

Sanford Wants Commission For Senate Study

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov Sanford says he hopes the legislature will create a study commission to look into the problem of State Senate redistricting between now and the 1963 General Assembly. Sanford told his news conference Monday legislation calling for the commission is now being prepared. He noted that several bills dealing with senatorial representation have been introduced this session, but no action came from them. The governor said he hoped the idea of a study commission "will have widespread support and we can get something done." In reply to a query, Sanford said he hopes to have a decision soon on requests that he reduce the sentences of seven union members serving prison terms on charges growing out of the Henderson Cotton Mill strike two years ago. No decision will come, he indicated, before he leaves Monday for Honolulu, Hawaii, to attend the National Governor's Conference. Sanford also said: 1. The General Statutes Commission, instead of a special study commission, will look into North Carolina's utility regulatory laws. 2. He hopes the legislature will enact "some sort of fair bill" to regulate the small loans industry. 3. Charlotte and Mecklenburg County officials are to be commended for the safety record compiled this year. 4. The National Safety Council has notified him North Carolina will receive an award for outstanding accomplishments in the field of school traffic safety education. 5. Instead of legislation to abolish billboard advertising along highways, Sanford said "I'd rather see a bill properly regulating them."

Survey Guerrilla Warfare Needs

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. military research teams are spreading out through the terrorist-infested regions in Southeast Asia and the Middle East to learn first hand what kind of weapons are needed to combat Communist guerrillas.

The survey could drastically change the types of equipment the United States is supplying its friends who are fighting the shadowy bands in the jungles and hill country unsuited to conventional weapons.

The research and development teams will talk with native anti-guerrilla fighters to learn from their experiences. They will also confer with members of U. S. military advisory groups already on the scene.

A herpetologist once counted the eggs that a North American toad laid in 10 hours. There were 28,000.

Bootleg Still Is Blown Up By Pitt Enforcers

A 100-gallon submarine type still, complete with 150 gallons of mash and a 60-gallon cooler with radiator condenser, was destroyed about 1 a.m. today by Pitt County ABC officers and Constable W. H. Crandall. The illegal unit was located in the Haddock's Cross Roads Section of Pitt, the officers explained.

ABC enforcers J. M. Ward, H.B. Lilley and Walter Taylor, and Crandall, used 12 sticks of dynamite to destroy the unit, mash, cooler and four empty 60-gallon mash barrels found at the site. The officers reported the unit was not in operation and no arrests were made.

Child Struck By Car Yesterday

A one and one-half year old boy was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital yesterday for observation after he was struck by a car on East Fifth St. in front of his home.

Investigators said the youngster, George Wayne Wells of 2306 East Fifth St., was struck by a car operated by John J. Stauffer, 61, of 2501 East Fifth St.

Stauffer was quoted as saying he was headed East on Fifth when the child darted in front of his auto, and he was unable to stop before striking the boy.

Police reported young Wells suffered bruises and lacerations, and was admitted to the hospital for observation.

Time of the mishap was set at about 5:55 p.m.

French, Rebels Meet Today In Crucial Session

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
EVIAN-LES-BAINS, France (AP)—French negotiators and representatives of the Algerian rebel government met today for what may be the crucial session of their three-week-old peace conference.

The tone and approach of today's session in Evian's Hotel Du Parc could decide whether the talks continue or break down. So far neither side has shown an inclination to break off the talks and take the responsibility for the resumption of large-scale fighting in Algeria.

The tense, gloomy atmosphere in which the parley recessed Saturday was further clouded over the weekend when Moslem terrorists struck with new fury throughout Algeria. Thirteen persons were killed and 54 wounded. Five persons—four of them Europeans—were killed in terrorist attacks in Oran Monday. In Algiers a European and a Moslem were killed and six Moslems were wounded when a grenade was tossed into a crowded cafe.

French extremists retaliated with three plastic bombs in front of Moslem stores, wounding three persons.

Five persons were injured in a similar incident in Constantine, where a French captain was also shot and gravely wounded.

In Paris, 16 persons were wounded, three seriously, by the explosion of a plastic bomb in a hotel in an area housing many African workers. The bombing was blamed on French extremists opposing President Charles de Gaulle's Algerian policy.

The French have ordered their forces in Algeria to hold their fire unless attacked, but the rebel command has refused to halt terrorism, the nationalists' most effective weapon.

Reports 1,025 Cars Safety-Checked Here

One-thousand and twenty-five vehicles were safety-checked by the Pitt County Safety Council-sponsored Safety Check lanes, operated in Greenville last Thursday, it was reported today.

Luther D. Moore, Council Chairman and chairman of the Vehicle Safety Check lane project, reported that of the 1,025 vehicles inspected, 91 were rejected because of defects in their safety equipment. Of the vehicles rejected, 43 returned and were passed, Moore explained.

The majority of the rejections were for lights and turn signals, he stated.

Moore said the safety inspections in Greenville were "not as successful as was hoped for." He theorized that one of the causes for the lanes not checking more cars and trucks was due to the fact that rain interfered with the lanes during their last hour of operation.

The operation of the lanes in Greenville was postponed from May 23 due to rain on that day. Inspection lanes were operated in Bethel, Farmville and Ayden May 25, he said.

The lanes in Ayden checked 282 with 31 being rejected and 17 of them returning for their safety stickers. Three-hundred-fifty vehicles were inspected in Bethel, he explained, with 35 rejections and eight vehicles returning. In Farmville, 408 were checked, 43 rejected, and 18 returned to be okayed, Moore reported.

Totals for the two inspection days included 2,092 vehicles checked, 200 rejected, and 86 returning for their "Circle of Safety" stickers.

Moore expressed his thanks to the local police departments, the state highway patrol, local civic clubs, the insurance exchange and the Greenville Pepsi Cola Bottling Company for their aid in the check lanes, and to the automobile dealer in the four towns for supplying mechanics to staff the check lanes.

Board Rescinds Former Motion

In a luncheon meeting at the Silo Restaurant yesterday, members of the Greenville City Board of Education rescinded a former motion to place school funds in Greenville bank on a rotation basis.

They voted yesterday to leave the depositing of school funds to the city treasurer's discretion, since the treasurer is the bonded agent.

Members took action at their October meeting to follow a policy of rotation as to selecting a depository of school funds, and set the period of time for deposits in one bank at two years.

No other action was taken at yesterday's meeting.

Jackie Kept Late Hour Last Night

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Jacqueline Kennedy danced until 1 a.m. today at a seafood night club looking out over beautiful Saronic Gulf off Athens.

America's First Lady was the guest of Mrs. Constantine Caranalis, wife of Greece's prime minister, for dinner and the evening of dancing.

Largest Ever To Start Library Work This Week

With 2,548 students registered for work, East Carolina College has the largest summer-school enrollment in its history, according to information from the office of Registrar John Horne.

The registration period for classes taught during the first session of the summer term closed Thursday afternoon, June 8. Students who will enroll later in the session for workshops and clinics are not included in the quoted total.

The 2,548 students now taking courses on the campus represent an increase of 401 over the 2,147 who were enrolled at the same period last year.

Indications are that the second summer session, beginning July 12 and extending through August 17, will also show a gain in number of students.

Local FWB Church To Hear Speaker

Dr. Hershel Cohn of Los Angeles, Calif., radio speaker heard daily over 100 stations, will speak Wednesday night at 7:45 at the Grace Free Will Baptist Church, located on Watauga Ave. His radio program is known as the Hebrew Christian Hour of America.

Dr. Cohn's subject will be "Russia, Egypt and Palestine in Prophecy." He has recently returned from Russia and the Near East and will give an eyewitness account of these places.

The public is invited to attend the service Wednesday night.

A man needs a lot of expert help in raising a family.

Do you have another partner who handles your money?

Many money-wise fathers do. They have a financial partner, one that offers full time and full service—a commercial bank.

And full service for your money is so very important. For if you scatter your money affairs and put them in many hands, you lose the personal responsibility and interest that one full-service commercial bank can give you.

There's another advantage of full service. By doing business with a commercial bank you can build a reputation for financial responsibility—standing in the community. And it is reassuring to know your bank will vouch for you.

Gain a full-service partner by using a commercial bank... a partner who can help your money go farther, do more, for you and your family.

WHAT IS A COMMERCIAL BANK? Only a commercial bank offers you the convenience of checking accounts plus savings accounts, loans—full banking services and counsel.
