

Pitt's Budget To Raise Salary Of 102 Employees

A move by the Pitt County Commissioners to raise county employees' salaries...

Adopted by the commissioners Monday, the new list of appropriations...

In preliminary budget study sessions, the commissioners granted raises to employees in all departments...

The 102 raises ranged from the County Commissioners themselves to janitors and maids...

A dozen new county employees accounted for another large share of the budget increase...

Funds granted allowed employment of five new welfare department workers...

The county's Social Security program was expanded to the tune of $2,280...

Main features included in the remaining $65,840 include $15,200 to pay interest on the industrial school bonds...

The budget was prepared by former City Manager Leonard Bloxam who presented it to the council with new city manager Louis Scheipers sitting in.

Much needed capital improvement items were not included in the budget, Bloxam said, and to provide these, a tax increase would be needed.

Councilmen and city officials talked in terms of a five to seven cent increase.

Yesterday's budget story reported that a one cent tax increase would bring in an additional $8,000.

Based on this figure, a tax increase of seven cents would still leave the 1961-62 budget somewhat below the million dollar mark.

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's General Assembly today formally ended its 1961 session.

Final adjournment of the session, which made history with huge increases in appropriations for the public schools...

The extent of the last-minute rush is shown by the fact that 459 of the bills and resolutions passed were enrolled since June 18.

The 1961 Legislature has been in session 135 days—two days less than the 1959 legislature and a week less than the 1955 General Assembly...

Other top legislation enacted during the 4½-month session includes: A constitutional amendment to revamp the state's court system...

In addition, the lawmakers approved a billion dollar budget bill spelling out appropriations for state agencies, institutions and departments for the next biennium...

Like its predecessors, the 1961 Legislature got off to a slow start, moved slow for weeks and then finished with a burst of speed...

Countless bills went down the legislative drain. One of these was a proposal, backed by Sanford, calling for compulsory mechanical inspection of motor vehicles.

Also killed were several proposals to restrict the Senate and a bill calling for scientific tests to determine the alcoholic content of persons charged with drunk driving.

The governor succeeded in getting about $100 million for his school program. A large part of it will go for pay raises for teachers and to employ 1,400 additional teachers.

The total school budget for the next biennium is $460 million. A 3 per cent sales tax on food, estimated to bring in $50 million during the next two fiscal years...

is the chief item in the $65.5 million revenue bill enacted to finance most of the school improvements.

On the issue of congressional redistricting, Eastern and far Western lawmakers teamed to push through a bill placing Republican Congressman Charles R. Jonas and Democratic Rep. Paul Kitchin in the same district, the eighth.

A constitutional amendment to revamp the state's court system will be submitted to a vote of the people. It calls for setting up a uniform system of inferior courts.

The small loans bill, which created one of the biggest hassles of the 1961 session, places stricter regulations on small loans firms and lowers the interest rates they may charge to $20 on $100 loaned for 12 months.

Under the House reapportionment, Meckleburg, Alamance, Cumberland and Onslow gained one House seat while Pitt, Cabarrus, Buncombe and Johnston lost one each.

In addition, a constitutional amendment was approved calling for the House speaker to automatically reapportion the House membership after each federal census. This amendment must be voted on by the people.

Spokesmen from both governing bodies were hopeful the meeting could be held as soon as possible.

Councilmen Tuesday called for such a meeting to discuss dropping the $10,900 appropriation to the county for general health department services, dog warden and dog pound service and the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic.

In past years, Greenville has appropriated funds to the county health department services, dog warden and dog pound service and the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic.

Robert G. Little, chairman of the commissioners, said he was hopeful the problem could be worked out. "We want to cooperate 100 per cent with the city," he said, "and we hope that they will cooperate with us."

The appropriation in question is the same as was received from Greenville by the county for the services last year.

The $6,900 appropriation to the county health department fund a year ago was included in a total budget of $115,616 for the county's health services.

The identical appropriation this year would be part of fiscal 1961-62's health department budget of $131,620. The Town of Farmville last year appropriated $1,315 for the county health department.

Greenville's appropriation to the county dog fund of $2,500 during fiscal 1960-61 was part of a total dog-fund budget of $13,773. According to County Auditor H. R. Gray, the funds have been handed over to the county since the early 1950's when Greenville abandoned its separate rabies control program.

Gray said the dog program, which is self-supporting through dog taxes and fees, is not financially able to maintain two dog wardens. Under the 1953 agreement, he said, the second dog warden would be primarily assigned to Greenville and the county dog pound would handle dogs picked up under Greenville city ordinances.

The proposed $1,500 appropriation to the mental health clinic is part of a total budget of $43,715 for fiscal 1961-62. The mental health program in Pitt is not supported by county ad valorem revenues except through a $12,710 appropriation from the health department budget.

The bulk of mental health funds—a total of $21,200 for fiscal 1961-62—is supplied by state and federal funds.

Anderson was nominated for a two-year term with the rank of admiral.

Burke's retirement will become effective Aug. 1. He will retire with a rank of admiral.

Pitt Industries Urged Exhibit At Trade Fair

Pitt County industries are being encouraged to carry exhibits to the North Carolina Trade Fair set for Charlotte in October, it was announced last night at the regular meeting of the Pitt County Development Commission.

Reports indicated that every listed industry in the county has been contacted by the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development, sponsoring organization for the Charlotte affair Oct. 12-21.

Chambers of Commerce, in cooperation with leaders of the Farmville Economic Council and the Development Commission, are serving as coordinators to assist potential Pitt County exhibitors.

Four Pitt Countians have been named by Governor Terry Sanford to serve on a state-wide committee promoting the Trade Fair. They are Fred Cox, Gritton; William A. Allen, Farmville; A. Hartwell Campbell and E. Graham Flanagan, Greenville.

In his monthly report to the Commission, the executive director, Dr. C. Sylvester Green, reported that there has been a "definite increase" in the number of inquiries from industrial prospects and that he is now "working closely" with five major prospects, two of which are "immediately interested in locating in the county."

Plans for the observance of an Industrial Appreciation Week in the county were discussed. It was announced that the commission is cooperating with several local groups, including the Chamber of Commerce of Greenville, and the Farmville Economic Council to work out plans that will be announced soon.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Man's method of mowing his grassed areas has changed since he first became interested in maintaining an even peat blanket of green around his living place.

His first means were by no means of a mechanical nature. Animals were employed in the task. That docile biblical animal, the sheep was used in keeping the grass down on large English estates as well as spacious lawns of George Washington at Mount Vernon and Thomas Jefferson at Monticello. This sort of an arrangement didn't work out in towns and suburban areas as animals were objectionable in such places. So hand tools such as the sickle blade and large scythe blades were put to use. The use of these tools required a certain amount of skill and muscle to keep the blades trimmed neatly. During these hot, hand-swinging trips across the grassward much thinking of how to get the job done easier must have been mulled over and over again.

Many odd looking cumbersome contraptions came and went as they were tried and proven to be not the answer. Heavy horse drawn machines were used in large public parks back in the 1870's.

In the early years of this century when the internal combustion engine was developed, the lawn mower that would do the job and that would in time be in the purse reach of even the small home owner loomed on the horizon. But even the early powered mowers were cumbersome and left much to be desired. So muscle power and the hand reel type mower did the job until all the kinks were ironed out and the machine turned out by the manufacturers met both price and performance ratings to satisfy the home owner.

So today the choice of mowers to use are almost as numerous as the hit and miss mowing operations of the years past.

As the director of one large company puts it, "Your lawn mower is a precision machine." And it should be taken care of with the same attention as your motor car. Here are a few rules as to the care of your machine and lawn area that may be of help to you:

1. Keep blades sharp. Dull blades shred grass tips, causing it to turn brown.
2. Never cut grass when it is wet. Both the reel and rotary mowers do a better job on dry grass.
3. Cut grass when it grows to about one third of an inch above desired length. Cut Bermuda when it is about 1 1/3 inches. Carpet at 1-1 1/2 inches, Zoysie at 1-1 1/2 inches, and tall Fescue at about 3-4 inches.
4. Cut in different directions every second or third mowing. For example, cut north and south and then switch to east and west directions. This gives an even appearance.
5. If you have a slope or terrace, cut up and down instead from side to side. This will prevent scalping of ground.
6. Keep mower clean, removing clippings after each job. Keep well lubricated. Change oil as specified by manufacturer. Keep machine adjusted.
7. Your lawn will be the first to know if you aren't doing a good job and your neighbors won't be far behind in finding out. So keep this machine that cost you money and the lawn that also dug into your purse in tune with each other. The results will be a neat, healthy area you will not be ashamed of and one that your neighbor will talk about and admire.

Tea Honors Miss Tunnell

Miss Carolyn Miller, bridesmaid, honored Miss Grace Elizabeth Tunnell, bride-elect, with a tea at the home of the bride-elect Tuesday.

The guests after being greeted at the door by Miss Lois Tunnell, sister of the bride-elect, were invited to view the gifts on display.

Refreshments of strawberry punch, lady fingers, pink frosted tea cakes, mixed nuts, mints and open-faced sandwiches were served from a table laid with a white Chinese linen cloth with centerpiece of pink roses highlighted by pink candles. Miss Miller presided at the punch bowl.

A china serving dish was presented the bride-elect in her pattern by the hostess.

Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Robert Tunnell, mother of the bride-elect, and Miss Ann Tunnell, sister of the bride-elect.

Childhood Diseases On Way Out

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

AP Fashion Writer

The nursery school set may someday be able to avoid measles, mumps and chickenpox altogether.

This is the prediction of Dr. George Wheatley, president of the American Pediatrics Society. He says however, the prospect is not immediate.

The drug industry is doing its part to increase life expectancy to twice that of infants born before 1900.

The war on measles, for example, has already begun. Shots providing temporary immunization are available now. Another type of inoculation greatly modifies the illness in cases of exposure to measles.

Dr. Wheatley disagrees with parents who deliberately expose youngsters to childhood diseases to get them over with.

"No disease no matter how mild it is considered to be, should be taken lightly," he says.

Today immunization shots for diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough and tetanus are standard for babies during the first year. Protection against typhus, yellow fever, cholera and tuberculosis is also provided when needed.

But teaching parents the importance and safety of these vaccines has been a ceaseless public education program that began in the 20s. At that time New York city campaigned to halt diphtheria fatalities with mass inoculations such as have been done in some major cities with polio vaccines recently.

Contrary religious beliefs, ignorance, people with differing social values have hindered a total inoculation program.

Now the war against polio with the various vaccines is being waged in the backwoods and big towns as well.

Adversely, doctors today are trying to undo overdependence on so-called wonder drugs, sulfa, penicillin and the mycins. While they were sometimes prescribed as cure-alls, they are now given more judiciously. Doctors now believe that young bodies can build up immunity to these drugs with too much use.

However, antibiotics are real boons to combative boys because they can eliminate discoloration of black eyes. Some also successfully clear up acne.

Lilac is a high favorite color among the washable fabrics designed for home decoration.

Miss Moyer Is Entertained

Miss Jeanne Moyer was honored at a desert-bridge by Miss Nancy Ann Hoot and Mrs. M. P. Hoot at their home on East Fifth Street. Sharing in honors was Mrs. William L. Johnson, a recent bride.

Upon their arrival, Miss Moyer and Mrs. Johnson were presented unique corsages of lavender flower decorated matching bridge tallies and napkins, tied with lavender ribbon.

Lavender hydrangeas and yellow chrysanthemums were placed about the home. The hostesses presented gifts to the honoree and to brides-elect, Misses Margaret Ruffin and Frances Smith. Miss Guffin Lang won high score and Mrs. William Johnson low.

Morning Party Fetes Brides

Mrs. Robert Fountain Jr., Mrs. Robert Fountain III, and Mrs. William Ward Jr. entertained at an informal morning party Tuesday, honoring Miss Margaret Ruffin and Miss Jeanne Moyer, brides-elect.

Guests were welcomed by the hostesses and introduced to the honorees, their mothers, Mrs. Florence Scott, mother of the bride-elect, and Miss Martha Moyer, sister of Miss Jeanne Moyer.

Mrs. Glenn Scott Jr. and Miss Dolly Overton received at the dining room door.

The dining room table was covered with a pink linen and lace cloth, centered with an arrangement of pink snapdragons and fern.

Mrs. Jonathan Overton poured fruit punch from one end of the table, and guests helped themselves to party accompaniments.

Roses, snapdragons and gladiolus were used throughout the Fountain home.

Guests included friends from Greenville, New Bern, Farmville, and Fountain.

Dog Fashion House In New York City

Did you know that there is a fashion house for dogs in New York City?

Their custom tailor, Mr. Louis Levine, reports that the most up-to-date canine clothes are being made of wash-and-wear materials. After all, Mr. Levine explains, dogs' clothing styles follow their mistresses'.

Vinyl Paneling

It's no problem to keep wall coverings fashionably clean when they're vinyl-surfaced plywood panels. To remove children's scribbles, furniture marks, and other soil, just sponge the surface with soap or detergent suds and then rinse. No scrubbing is necessary when you're dealing with vinyl!

Besides being "child resistant," these panels also resist scuffing, fading, and staining.

o'clock, Mrs. H. L. Briley, Mrs. R. I. Taylor Jr., Mrs. W. M. Mizelle and Mrs. J. H. Andrews entertained at the home of Mrs. Briley for the Campbell-Cooper wedding party.

Mrs. Briley met the guests and invited them into the dining room, where a buffet breakfast was served. The appointed table was covered with an imported linen cloth and centered with a silver bowl of yellow snapdragons and baby's breath.

After guests had been served, they were directed to tables which were placed throughout the house by Mrs. Mizelle.

Goodbyes were said by Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Andrews.

Dinner Party

Mrs. Frances Rowlette, Mrs. Irvin Taylor and Mrs. Julian Smith were hostesses at a dinner party honoring Miss Betty Cooper and Mr. Bill Campbell and their wedding party and out-of-town guests on Friday evening at the home of the former.

Individual tables overlaid with green cloths were placed on the patio for guests. The focal point on each table was a lighted white candle placed in a magnolia blossom.

As guests arrived, they were served tomato cocktails from the auxiliary table overlaid with a green cloth. With the focal point a black wrought iron patio candle lamp banked with magnolia leaves and blossoms. Patio lights were used throughout the garden.

A three course dinner was served to the 35 guests.

Miss Cooper was remembered with a corsage of gardenias and roses.

Cake Cutting

Following the Campbell-Cooper wedding rehearsal Friday evening, the wedding party and special guests were entertained at a cake cutting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Carson. White and pink flower arrangements were used throughout the home to portray the wedding theme. In the dining room the wedding motif was expressed in traditional manner. The table, covered with a white linen embroidered cloth, was centered by an arrangement of gardenias, baby's breath and fern. Burning tapers in crystal candelabras were used at each end of the table. The three tiered wedding cake and punch was served from the table.

Miss Cooper and Mr. Campbell cut the bride and bridegroom servings. Mrs. Campbell, mother of the groom, cut the cake for the guests, and Mrs. Tom Cooper, mother of the bride, served punch. Hosts and hostesses for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Brantley Chesson, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Carey Brown and Mrs. Estelle Harris.

Cooking Is Fun

FISH STEAKS

- 4 fish steaks (about 2 pounds)
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/4 teaspoon paprika
 - Butter
 - 4 wedges lemon
 - Butter (for frying)
- Wipe fish steaks with damp cloth. Mix flour, salt, pepper and paprika; rub into both sides of fish steaks. Heat butter in large skillet and brown fish rapidly on both sides; reduce heat to cook through if necessary. Serve with lemon wedges and Tartar Sauce—homemade or bought. Makes 4 generous servings. When fish is done it should flake easily and look opaque.

CUSTARD SAUCE

- 3 or 4 egg yolks
 - 3 tablespoons sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 2 cups milk (scalded)
 - 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- Beat egg yolks slightly; stir in sugar and salt. Gradually stir in hot milk. Strain into top of double boiler. Cook and stir constantly over very hot (not boiling) water until mixture coats a metal spoon. Cover and place over cold water; when cool stir in vanilla; chill. Makes 2 to 2 1/2 cups — enough to pass with 4 to 6 servings of hulled fresh strawberries (sliced or whole).

MINTED GREEN PEAS

- 2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen green peas
 - 2 tablespoons butter
 - 2 teaspoons dried crumbled peppermint
- Cook the peas according to package directions with the amount of water and salt called for; drain. Mix in butter and mint. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

True Evaluation To Require Time

As the 1961 General Assembly winds up its business and adjourns, there will be many quick evaluations of the job that was done, the quality of the legislation turned out in Raleigh since February, and the meaning to the state in the next two years of the laws put on the books in these recent months.

Imbalance Has Become A Trait

By LYNN NISBET
IMBALANCE—Looks like it's almost impossible to get everything in balance. For a long time the complaint has been that government and high officials of government, at all levels from community to worldwide activity, offered too little too late.

Recent developments have raised question whether a more serious charge might be claims for too much too soon. Top ranking officials are so eager to claim credit for achievements they sometimes announce results before final decision has been made. For purpose of this little item we can skip the international field, and any argument about who settled the Algerian or Congo or Laotian issues—or whether or not they were settled. Let's look at some things in North Carolina, and primarily affecting nowhere else.

About two years ago Governor Luther Hodges called a special news conference to announce "settlement" of the textile strike at Henderson. A few hours later it was quite obvious there had been no settlement, and the textile union in fact called off the strike a few days ago effective on July 1 this year.

Some two weeks ago Governor Sanford called a special news conference to announce settlement of the school controversy in Madison county. The trumpeting fanfare about settlement was muted two or three days later by news that the situation had not been settled, and that the personal issues were still controlling operations in the Mars Hill school district. What will happen there from now is uncertain, but there is no accepted or recognized settlement—as announced from the Governor's office.

ADMIRALS—There are several admirals of the North Carolina navy among members of the General Assembly. One of the gimmicks for raising the quarter million dollars required to bring the famed battleship U. S. S. North Carolina to a permanent home in this state is to designate every person who contributes $100 or raises $500 an admiral.

Before Lt. Gov. Cloyd Philpott took off for Hawaii he was persuaded that the title of admiral would stand him in good stead on the sea voyage—so he was sort of blackjacked into contributing.

Rep. Herman West of Cherokee, one of the staunchest Republicans in the House, had a conference with Governor Sanford in his office. After the business of the conference was over, the Governor put the bee on the legislator for $100 contribution in return for an admiral's commission. He got it.

The aftermath to that incident is also funny. All through the session Rep. West had voted with the administration most of the time—bucking on the food tax and actually accomplishes toward providing better education for the youngsters of the state as a whole. Already it has been pointed out that for all it apparently has done for public schools of the state, the 1961 legislature rejected—as its predecessors had—proposals that teeth be put into the law that require youngsters under a certain age to attend school.

The fact that the legislature found necessary new sources of tax revenue to finance additional services for the people of the state is in itself an accomplishment; but the wisdom of the selection of sources of new revenue will be proved only with time.

As for the knotty problems of redistricting congressional districts and the reapportionment of representation in the House, there seems to be general agreement on the latter while there is still considerable controversy over the former. And then too, there remains concern over the fact that the legislature never succeeded in hammering acceptable legislation for redistricting the representation in the Senate.

Did the General Assembly do all that it should have in the interest of better highway safety of the state? Will the efforts made in this direction be sufficient for the best interests of the citizens of the state in the next two years? Already these questions are being answered both in the negative and in the affirmative, but here again time will prove which is correct.

While it is difficult at the moment to accurately evaluate the overall work of the 1961 General Assembly, it seems reasonable to draw the conclusion that the session proved to be considerably smoother than was expected at the outset. There was less serious division among the membership on major issues than had been anticipated before the session began. There was considerable more restraint on the part of opposition forces concerning many items of legislation than one might have anticipated.

Committee Shouldn't Now Step Backward

The tractors-for-prisoners deal between private U.S. citizens and Dictator Fidel Castro of Cuba hangs in the balance until the deadline at noon Friday at which time the offer will be withdrawn unless the Cuban strong man accepts the terms put forth by the Americans.

It should not come as a surprise if Castro rejects the offer of 500 farm-type tractors in exchange for some 1,200 prisoners taken by Castro forces during the ill-fated invasion of Cuba two months ago. In recent days he has said he will call off his offer for an exchange tractors-for-prisoners unless the American citizens provide 500 heavy-duty tractors that would represent an investment of some $28 million.

The Tractors-for-Freedom committee which initially accepted Castro's blackmail offer should not be shocked by the fact that the dictator has upped his asking price for the prisoners. In the true form of blackmailers, he has upped the price now that the victims—have taken the bait. Coupled with this it should not be surprising to see Castro follow the communist propaganda line by seeking in rejecting the acceptance of his initial offer to place the blame on the American committee which took the bait.

Now that the committee has gone as far as it has in negotiating with Castro for the prisoners, it should not retreat and meet the dictator's new demand for a greater ransom for the prisoners. The committee said its offer of 500 farm tractors in exchange for the prisoners has been made on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. It should keep it that way.

An ABC On The Berlin Tangle

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—This is an ABC on how East and West got tangled in the Berlin tangle which may drag the world into crisis before 1961 ends.

The central question: Will Russia try to grab off Berlin by shutting down the routes over which the West sends supplies and people to the city?

The United States, Britain and Russia—during and immediately after World War II—agreed: 1. To divide Germany into four zones—France was included—with each of the Big Four occupying one zone.

The Russian zone naturally was in the East since it was nearest Russia. And Berlin, since it is in Eastern Germany, was in the Russian zone.

2. To treat Berlin as a special area, with each of the Big Four allowed to have troops in Berlin. And the city was to be run by the four powers' military commanders. Each was to serve in rotation as chief commander.

All Western people and supplies bound for Berlin—since it was in the Russian zone, now known as Communist East Germany—had to move through that zone.

In light of what follows these two questions are pertinent: Was there any agreement with the Russians on specific access routes to Berlin? Did the Russians agree to keep them open?

In 1945 former Soviet Premier Stalin agreed with former President Harry Truman that the allies would have free access. And the State Department in 1958 said specific routes were agreed to.

Things went fine but not for long. Real trouble began in 1946 when Communists were overwhelmingly defeated in Berlin's first free elections in 14 years.

The Russian commandant in Berlin vetoed the election of a pro-Western mayor. More vetoes followed.

I'm All for Arms Inspection

Saved For The Present

In this Civil War Centennial year, many Confederate sites remain in the Old North State for viewing, and their stories are just as warm as ever.

Fort Macon in Beaufort County is the closest to Pitt County. It protected the entrance to Beaufort harbor, which was a haven for blockade-runners during the early part of the war.

Fort Fisher near Wilmington was used by the Confederacy to keep the mouth of the Cape Fear River open to blockade-runners, and also to protect the city of Wilmington. For three years it was a successfully manned fort, withstanding all efforts of capture by federal forces.

At another site, some 6,000 acres of battle area is still intact at Bentonville, where the last serious resistance to Sherman took place, as far as the Carolinas were concerned. It was the largest and bloodiest battle ever fought on North Carolina soil, the N. C. Confederate Centennial Commission says, and was meant to slow down Sherman's march through North Carolina and protect Goldsboro.

Many original breastworks and entrenchments are well preserved at the site. An old hospital, Harper House, is now being restored to be used as a temporary museum.

A fourth point of interest Confederate-wise is Bennett Place, west of Durham, where Confederate General Joseph E. Johnston and Federal General William T. Sherman met twice. It was the site of the surrender of the Army of Tennessee. Restoration of two buildings, the kitchen and a dwelling house, has now been completed by the Bennett Place Memorial Commission.

Some of these places are already on our "visited" list; but in passing through various spots of these might not have been recognized before as good visiting points.

Maybe we'll see you around one.

Very truly yours,
Raymond W. Williams

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
DEFINITELY
A prominent British statesman went on a journey from England to Canada in order to make a commencement address. His opening words were, "I have traveled four thousand miles to tell you that there is a difference between right and wrong."

There is not only a difference—the difference is so marked that we could all see it if we were not so selfish, indulgent, and perverse. To be sure, real conflict of duties sometimes appear in life—but not often. Usually it is a conflict of interests. Not all problems we confront are moral problems. Watch that you do not make the mistake of advocating as a principle something that is nothing more than a policy.

But a great many of life's problems are moral problems. They are definitely a decision between right and wrong. And the division is much more clear-cut than most of us are willing to admit. Again we need to be warned not to try to make a moral problem out of a situation in which morals are not involved. But we will lose our souls and our futures if we do not face up to moral problems when they actually arise.

And down through the center of them all is a definite and easily discernible line separating right from wrong. Let us face life as it is, not just as we want it to be.

There is a difference between right and wrong.

Schism In Red Ranks

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The question was asked of me how I know that there is a cleavage between Russia and Red China. It is a good question because the cleavage is more a schism than an antagonism. It is in the literature of both countries and in their conduct toward each other and to all other countries.

Let us, first of all, grasp the essential fact that Marxism has produced a religious response among its votaries. This religious response is profound. It has a basic law in the writings of Marx, Engels, Lenin and others. These scriptures have been canonized as holy writ which determines a way of life and are a product of the science of history. In this context history includes sociology and anthropology as well as the biologic basis for all natural sciences.

As in most religious orientations, thought breaks into three generalized categories, the extreme orthodox, the central conservative, and the oppositional radical. In Communist language, this is the Right and Left Deviationists from the norm. Who establishes the norm? The Church Council, the Congress of the Communist Party, determines the normal doctrine which is implemented by the Presidium in each national party. (The Presidium and the Politbureau are identical.)

In the literature of Communism and in the resolutions and decisions of national parties, it is clear that whereas Soviet Russia now pursues a policy which in Stalin's time was regarded as Right Deviationist, Red China, the most orthodox of Marxist countries, is Left Deviationist. Khrushchev demands that his Right Deviationist policy be accepted in the Soviet Universal State as the norm. Red China rejects this norm.

Let us analyze what Khrushchev proposes. The Leninist theory was that war was inevitable and beneficial. He said: "War is simply the continuation of politics by the other (i.e., violent) means. This was always the standpoint of Marx and Engels, who regarded every war as the continuation of the politics of the given interested powers and the various classes within the countries—at a given time."

Mao Tze-tung holds to this view. Khrushchev does not. He said in 1956: "War is not fatalistically inevitable. Today there are mighty social and political forces possessing formidable means to prevent the imperialists from unleashing war, and, actually try to start it, to give a smashing rebuff to the aggressors and frustrate their adventurist plans."

Again in 1957, he said: "We negate the fatal inevitability of war. But, of course, no one can say categorically that there will be no war. . . ."

In 1959, he said: "We consider proceeding from a Marxist-Leninist analysis of the present situation, that war is not inevitable today. The imperialists would like to make short shift of the socialist camp, to wipe the socialist countries off the face of the earth, but they are powerless to do so. They realize that a war can be started—one need not be too clever for that—but how will it end? We are convinced that should the imperialists touch off such a war it will end in the destruction of capitalism."

This attitude has led to breaches and quarrels between the Russian and Chinese Communists. The Chinese hold with Lenin that capitalism must be destroyed by war and that there is no other way. Khrushchev holds that the success of Communism by peaceful co-existence is not only possible but inevitable.

These differences between them have important historic implications. Communism in Soviet Russia has been in power 44 years; it has been in power in China 14 years. Soviet Russia was assisted by World War II and the United States to industrialize itself, to become a principally productive nation. China is still struggling to obtain an adequate food supply. Hodges Commands, Like Canute

By ELMER ROESSNER
Just as Canute tried to reverse the tides of the sea, so Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges is commanding the tide of fashion to roll back.

Funny thing, he may have more success than the English king. For generations, fashions have flowed westward from Paris and other European centers. Now Mr. Hodges is trying to cause American-made styles to flow eastward to Europe.

From October 2 to December 1, the new United States Trade Center in London, sponsored by Mr. Hodges' department, will stage three shows of American fashions. While aimed at the British market, the Department hopes that buyers from other European countries, even France, will attend.

For generations, fashions have flowed westward from Paris and other European centers. Now Mr. Hodges is trying to cause American-made styles to flow eastward to Europe.

Small, Violent Series Of Twisters For State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Summer roared into North Carolina Wednesday with a series of small, violent twisters striking the eastern part of the state while other sections were drenched in heavy rain.

No injuries were reported as tornado winds struck almost simultaneously in the vicinity of Mount Olive and nearby Kenansville and later in an isolated area four miles southeast of Edenton.

The storm swept an area about a half mile wide and three quarters of a mile long in the Mount Olive area. Some buildings were damaged and much damage was reported to corn and ripening tobacco crops.

In addition to crop damage, two houses at Kenansville bore the brunt of the onslaught. A five-room frame house had its roof torn away by the howling winds.

Deputy Sheriff Ralph Cottle reported that in rural areas "crops were flattened right good." Trees were twisted off and power was lost for about 15 minutes. Cottle said the storm "started at one edge of town and ended at the other; it got dark, real dark—as dark as night."

At Mount Olive a house was blown over and a church turned on its foundation. At Edenton, a home and a filling station were damaged. At Rutherfordton, heavy rain forced evacuation of 18 persons from two homes flooded when drains were unable to carry wa-

Funds Granted For Fix Probe

RALEIGH (AP) — The General Assembly has authorized the use of $50,000 in state funds to widen the probe into the college basketball game-fixing scandal.

The House enacted the measure Wednesday after rejecting attempts to cut the funds to $25,000, and to kill the bill entirely.

The measure earmarks the funds to the Justice Department, which includes the attorney general's office and the State Bureau of Investigation.

The measure, which provoked considerable argument up to the end, grew out of game-fixing charges involving players from North Carolina State and the University of North Carolina.

The Senate had killed the bill, but later reconsidered its vote and passed it when Lt. Gov. Cloyd Philpott broke the tie vote.

Rep. A. A. Zollcoffer of Vance, supporting the bill, called for a thorough cleaning up of the basketball situation.

Rep. Eugene Brooks of Durham sought unsuccessfully to have the appropriation cut to $25,000. Rep. Tom Newman of Sampson called for the bill itself to be tabled.

Opponents contended the governor and Council of State now have authority to appropriate funds from the contingency and emergency fund for the purpose.

The 'Kilmer Oak' Is A Dying Tree

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP) — The gnarled old oak that inspired Joyce Kilmer to write his poem "Trees" is dying.

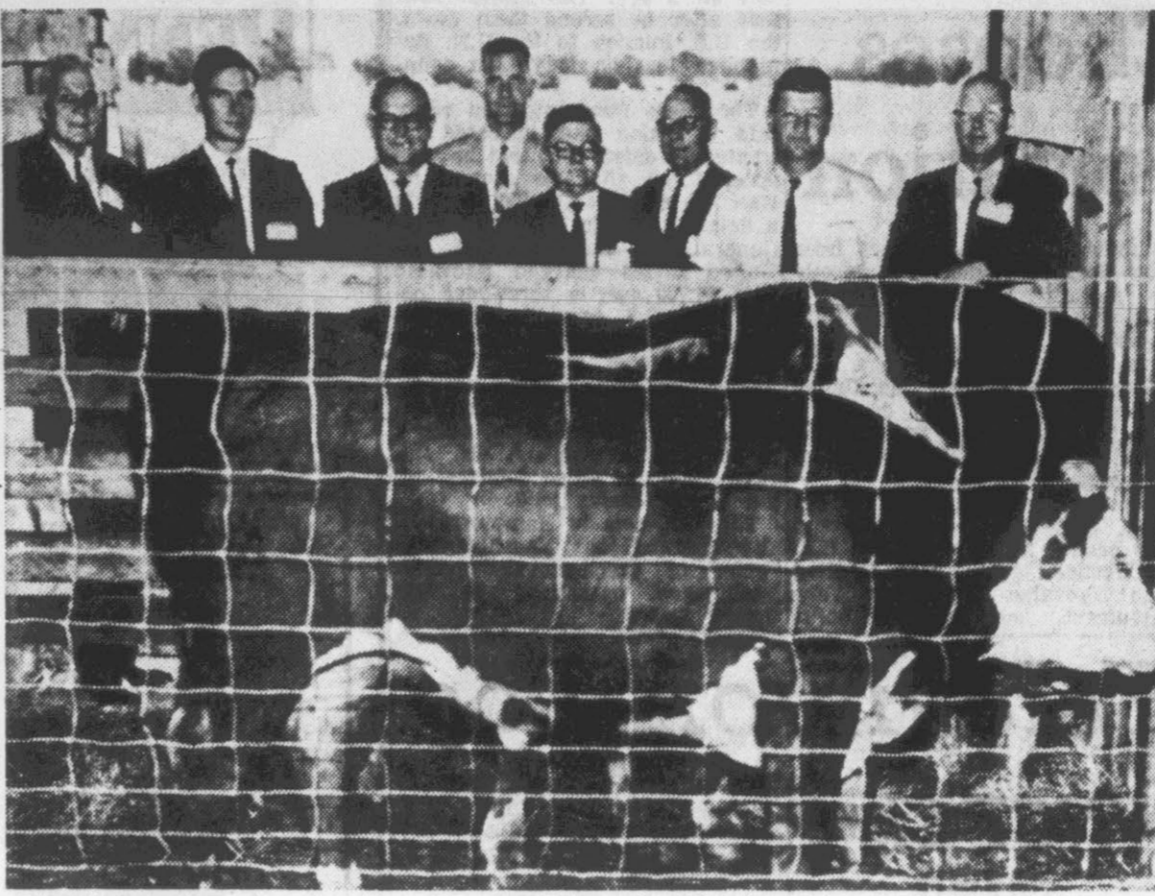

Kilmer Oak, nearly 300 years old, still stands proudly on the campus of Rutgers University, but age is taking its toll. A dozen branches failed to bloom this spring and a large gash developed in its trunk.

"It's an out-and-out case of senility," says Dr. Edward B. Wilkins, director of Rutgers' campus planning. But he said the tree will not be chopped down.

And the Student Forestry Club has planted one of its acorns nearby.

Kilmer was killed in action in France July 30, 1918.

The poet was born here in 1886 and attended Rutgers and Columbia University.

CARAVAN—Community leaders on the 1961 North Carolina Agribusiness Caravan this week are inspecting agribusiness production, processing and marketing enterprises in Mississippi, Texas and Louisiana. N. C. Caravan Touring Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — North Carolina's Agribusiness Caravan heads into the lower Rio Grande Valley today after a visit to San Antonio Wednesday.

After a tour of San Antonio's terminal market and Belgian gardens the group was treated to a Texas barbecue at the Essar Ranch. Dr. Earl Rudder, president of Texas A&M College was the luncheon speaker.

He and others who followed stressed the importance of research and education in farm problems to achieve profit.

Dr. H. Brooks James of North Carolina State College replied that the Texas example is a lesson "we're trying to apply in North Carolina." He said it related to the agricultural opportunities program announced last

EC Art Professor To Go To Norway

Dr. Bruce Carter, faculty member of the department of art at East Carolina College, has accepted an invitation from the Town Council of Narvik, Norway, and the Norwegian government to paint a series of murals for the City Hall and the Fine Arts Pavilion in Narvik.

Dr. Carter estimates that the work will take the next two years. At Narvik the mural will have as its theme Norwegian resistance to the German invasion and occupation in World War II. A series of murals in the Fine Arts Pavilion will deal with historical and cultural developments in Norway.

While in Norway, Dr. Carter hopes also to have the opportunity of working with Norwegian printmakers, who are pace-setters among European artists in their field.

Dr. and Mrs. Carter and their three children will leave this country in August to establish residence in Norway during his work there.

30,000 Dogs Are To Go On Leash

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 30,000 dogs in this city are supposed to go on leash July 22, or else.

But no one is sure just what else.

The police claim they shouldn't have to chase dogs, that it's a job for the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The SPCA agrees, but its professional catchers want to know if the Board of Supervisors meant what it said in the new ordinance. In other words, are all unleashed dogs to be impounded?

If so, the SPCA wants a "dog task force." And that will cost money.

Anyway, Mayor George Christopher has said he'll sign the ordinance.

(Continued from page four) Soviet Russia has moved its boundaries westward and southward until it is now in control of a great part of Europe; Red China is still moving in the direction of the Chienlung Line with peril of war during each move. Soviet Russia is independent economically; Red China remains dependent upon Soviet Russia and is making economic contracts with Canada and Australia to free itself from Russian economic domination.

In a word, it is not necessary to accept propagandistic statements from any source because the facts speak for themselves. Russia is abandoning many early Communist techniques for which it has adopted modified capitalist devices, as, for instance, the use of gold. Red China still seeks war.

Marlow . . .

(Continued from Page 4) agreements mentioned here, claims it doesn't need permission to keep troops in Berlin and move supplies and people into the city. The West argues the Soviets have no right to interfere.

Khrushchev says those Western rights are outdated by history. Turning control of the access routes over to the East Germans wouldn't mean anything by itself.

The East Germans couldn't by themselves attempt to keep the allies from Berlin — the West could run over them — and therefore would need Soviet support. Soviet support against a Western smash-through would mean war.

Khrushchev talks about having a conference to settle the whole thing. But he wants it settled before the end of 1961.

Czech Diplomat Chooses To Go, Over Deportation

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Czechoslovak U.N. Delegate Miroslav Nacvalac planned to leave for home today to escape deportation as a spy.

The 39-year-old diplomat, No. 3 man in his country's U.N. delegation, had reservations on a French airliner for himself, his wife and two small sons.

Nacvalac, accused by the U.S. government of being Czechoslovakia's top spy in the country, had rejected an earlier U.S. demand that he leave the country.

He changed his plans after Washington announced it had revoked his status as a member of Czechoslovakia's U.N. mission, making him an alien in the country illegally. The United States said he could either leave voluntarily or be deported.

Czechoslovakia — and Nacvalac — denied the U.S. charges and accused the "headquarters" agreement between the United States and the U.N., which establishes the special rights and diplomatic immunity of foreign diplomats accredited to the U.N.

A spokesman for the Czechoslovak delegation said his government would continue to press in the U.N. to prove that the United States had successfully demanded the withdrawal of Soviet U.N. secretariat employees accused of espionage activities.

Czechoslovakia protested to the U.N. secretariat last weekend that earlier in the week two U.S. intelligence agents, at a meeting with Nacvalac in a New York restaurant, had tried to enlist him as a spy. The protest said that after he turned them down, the U.S. mission to the U.N. demanded that he leave the country.

The State Department in reply said Nacvalac had indicated he wanted to defect and that he was ordered out after he showed he was not sincere. On Tuesday, in a detailed note to U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, the United States charged Nacvalac paid $1,700 over a three-year period to a U.S. Army language instructor in Monterey, Calif., for information on students at the Army Language School.

The instructor, a naturalized American of Czech origin, worked in cooperation with the FBI and gave Nacvalac false information, the United States said.

The U.S. note to Hammarskjold also charged that Nacvalac was "chief of Czechoslovak civilian intelligence operations in the United States."

Television Programs Get Lumps From Two Sides

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Television programs have been getting their lumps lately from two sides. During the past week Senate subcommittee hearings have pummeled from one side and Federal Communications Commission hearings from the other at dreary formula programming practices and dedication to what one witness called "sin, sex and skulls."

One immediate effect of the two hearings, which have been making headlines in newspapers throughout the country as well as receiving coverage in network TV news shows, has been a marked drop-off in the quantity of the usual publicity handouts from the three major networks touting upcoming fall series, most of which fall into the very categories under fire.

However, CBS decided it was the ideal time to announce another new show in its fall lineup: "Kideo Village," a children's hour version of its daytime audience participation show based on the parlor game parcheesi. Anyway, it's not a violent program.

Comedienne Nancy Walker, one of the stars of Broadway's "Do Re Mi" and a guest on Ed Sullivan's show next Sunday night, says that there are fashions in comedy just as there are in clothes.

"Physical comedy is out now," explained the pint-sized performer. "You don't find many people working with props and using their bodies instead of words for laughs."

The change became noticeable four or five years ago, she said, when writers stopped turning out pure comedy shows.

"I've been changing my style to meet it," she continued. "I've started to move into areas that are not comedic but involve acting."

Ben Alexander and his "About Faces" audience participation show on ABC departs, probably forever, the end of this month. The time spot will be returned to the local stations for filling. ABC is looking over its daytime schedule, currently filled with massive doses of games shows, and probably will clip half an hour from the late-afternoon Dick Clark Show in the fall to make room for something else — probably another game.

New 'Blue Law' Restrictions In State's Future

RALEIGH (AP)—It will be illegal to sell certain items in North Carolina on Sunday under a new statewide blue law which goes into effect Oct. 1.

The House and Senate completed action on the bill Wednesday in the closing hours of the 1961 session. The Legislature was set to adjourn at noon today.

The House amended the measure to permit Sunday repairs to a television set or other articles. It beat down an attempt to make exemptions on religious grounds. Under the bill, county commissioners may exempt any unincorporated locality. Any incorporated community may remove itself from the provision.

The new law makes it a misdemeanor to sell on Sunday the following items: Clothing and accessories, furniture, housewares, home, business or office furnishings, household, business or office appliance, hardware, tools, paints, building and lumber supply materials, jewelry, silverware, watches, clocks, luggage, musical instruments and recordings.

Meanwhile, the Senate killed a bill that would have provided machinery for North Carolina to participate, possibly two years from now, in a federal program of medical assistance for the aged.

Both Houses passed a compromise bill which salvaged the State Art Society as a state agency. It was agreed to cut out a $15,000 annual appropriation and to knock out a clause which critics said would tend to make the society's board of directors a self-perpetuating body.

An amendment tacked on to the bill stipulates that the 16-member board of directors include State Treasurer Edwin Gill.

Plans Based On Long Cold War

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon says the administration's long-range foreign aid program was based on the assumption of continuing "cold war tension."

Dillon appealed for congressional approval of the program in testimony Wednesday before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

He said the administration did not take into account the mounting East-West pressures over Berlin in planning the program. However, the secretary, who served in the Eisenhower administration as undersecretary of state, said the Soviet threat to Berlin was "very serious."

Dillon said the United States was working hard with its allies to "find means to progress on this question without in any way relaxing our fundamental principle, which we cannot do, to safeguard the freedom of the people of West Berlin."

The administration seeks authority to spend and lend up to $12 billion in foreign aid in the next five years. The program has run into some opposition in Congress, partly because it would loosen somewhat congressional control on foreign aid spending.

TWO-SEATER JOB

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP)—City officials are sending President John F. Kennedy a rocking chair—a two-seater. Mayor Thomas F. Shebell said the twin rocker, painted bright green, will hold two adults comfortably. This report has for many years offered rocking chairs as a free facility to visitors.

Dancer Awarded $72,675 Damages

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A jury awarded actor-dancer Gene Nelson $72,675 for injuries suffered in a horseback riding accident that took place while he was in Tennessee for the filming of a movie.

Nelson, 41, testified the horse rolled over him and that he received a fractured pelvis, impairing his dancing career.

The verdict Wednesday was against Panorama Pictures Corp., producers of the film "Natchez Trace." The accident occurred Aug. 5, 1957.

Business Notes

In President's Club
J. Frank Strawn of Greenville, general agent for the Franklin Life Insurance Co. of Springfield, Ill. has won membership in the Franklin President's Club.

The award was made to him for his high sales during April, ranking him among the top 25 leading producers for Franklin in the nation. He also won the award in April.

Strawn was one of the company's top 50 representatives in 1960 and is a 1961 Franklin Million Dollar Conference qualifier.

On Board of Directors
C. Frank Dail, manager of Tadlock Mutual Insurance Agency, was elected recently to the board of directors of the Carolina Association of Mutual Insurance Agents at their annual convention in Asheville.

The association is composed of Mutual Insurance agents in North and South Carolina.

Dail was elected for a three year term.

Telephone Bill Change
Telephone subscribers here will notice a change in the appearance of their long distance telephone bills dated June 15 and thereafter.

Frank Harrington, local manager for Carolina Telephone has announced.

The new list of calls and telegrams will include more detailed information concerning long distance calls, according to Harrington.

For regular long distance calls, where the distant point has a 7-digit numbering system, the new bill will normally show the telephone number which was called in addition to the name of the town and state. For special types of messages, such as credit card and collect calls, the terminating point and originating point, including the name of the state will be shown.

The different types of special calls will be identified by a code explained on the reverse side of the bill.

"A new mechanized method of long distance billing, resulting from months of study and preparation, has enable us to provide this additional information to our customers. We hope that it will be useful to them," Harrington concluded.

Committee Chairman
Jake Hadley, general agent of the Security Life and Trust Co. is chairman of a special committee of the Pitt Life Underwriters Association to form a local class in the Life Underwriters Training Council's course of Life insurance training.

Weekly classes will begin in October and conclude in May.

Hadley's appointment was announced by M. Louis Collier, special agent for New York Life Insurance Co., president of the association.

The Pitt County Association has sponsored the LUTC program locally for three years. On a national level, LUTC was officially organized in 1947 as an independent life insurance training institution through the joint efforts of company and field organizations.

From headquarters in Washington, D. C., the council provides a two-year training program to qualified career life insurance men. Over 20,000 students were enrolled throughout the country during the 1960-61 school year.

According to Hadley, enrollments will be accepted locally October 1, provided applications meet the necessary entrance requirements.

Adlai Bringing A Gloomy View

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Adlai Stevenson returns to Washington today with gloomy views on South America but with the feeling most of the continent's government are under good leadership and are working toward improvement.

Informed quarters said those would be the main findings he would lay before President Kennedy Friday in summing up his 18-day trip.

As his military plane completed the final leg of the 16,500-mile trip which began June 4, Stevenson declined to comment on his tour. But informed sources said he would report that conditions are worse than when he made a similar tour a year ago.

He was said to have reached the conclusion that economic conditions have deteriorated during the past year, Communist subversion has increased and that South American governments are less stable.

He was understood to have found the governments conscious of a Communist menace but the current political climate unsuitable for joint action to curb subversive activities.

He also was understood to feel that anti-American sentiment rose sharply after the April invasion of Cuba but that it is subsiding with time.

Associates said Stevenson feels the United States must grant substantial funds for Kennedy's alliance-for-progress plan to work.

On the brighter side, Stevenson reportedly found greater government preoccupation with the danger in present economic conditions and greater efforts to bring reforms in tax systems, land use, housing, education and administration.

Javits Wants Senate Take Stand On Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP)— Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., offered a resolution today to put the Senate on record as backing a firm policy for continued support of West Berlin.

He said it would help erase "any ambiguity in U.S. policy" that may have been raised by the suggestion of Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana for an internationally protected "free city" of both East and West Berlin.

In a speech prepared for delivery in the continuing debate over the Berlin crisis, Javits said that if Mansfield's suggestion were accepted, "all of Berlin would be Communist in six months—and Germany would be divided forever."

The United States, Javits declared, must safeguard its obligation to remain in Berlin with the same coolness and the same determination that the Russians are using, not only on that front, but on others.

"I would be the last to say that this is not without risk," the New York Republican continued, "but I would be the first to say that it is a risk which if not taken is likely to lead to reverses far worse in character—and could lead to defeat."

His prepared speech, like others which have occupied the Senate this week, reflected what Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois described as "growing awareness" that a new crisis over Berlin is rapidly building up.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., proposed that President Kennedy form a bipartisan consultative committee of foreign policy experts for "a full review and consideration of every aspect of the German and Berlin issues."

He suggested such a group, which would include former Republican Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and former Democratic Secretary Dean Acheson, work under Secretary of State Dean Rusk and consult with former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman.

Such a committee, Cooper said, would provide Kennedy with "the broadest base of support for the decisions he will be required to make" on Berlin.

Javits' resolution would make it the sense of the Senate that the United States "should not accept a unilateral abrogation by the Soviet Union" of agreements with the West on Berlin and Germany (by signing a separate peace treaty with Germany) as affecting in any way the responsibilities of the Western powers to safeguard West Germany.

It would back the policy of taking whatever measures are required, together with Western allies, to maintain access to West Berlin.

It also would provide that the United States continue to seek four-power negotiations on German reunification, acting through a committee recommended by the Western plan of 1959 based on reunification of Germany by free elections.

Any further negotiations on Berlin, Javits asserted, should start with the 1959 Western proposals.

He said the United States must not accept a hurried solution under pressure of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's threats, repeated on Wednesday in the Kremlin.

Khrushchev said he will sign a peace treaty with East Germany by the end of the year. Such a move would turn over to the East recognize control over routes to German Communist government, West Berlin.

To 'Sell' Army Reaction Plans

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Army is sending high-level officers to the annual Governors Conference in Honolulu to do missionary work for its new plan to fashion a 10-division quick reaction force from the National Guard and reserve.

The nation's governors will meet in the Hawaiian capital starting Monday. Army representatives are expected to make their case before the conference's National Guard Committee, headed by Gov. Ernest Vandiver of Georgia.

The plan may take some selling. While some Guard divisions will be chosen for strengthening with added manpower, intensified training and the latest equipment, others will suffer losses in revisions of strength within manpower and budgetary limitations.

Favors Control Of Urbanization

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)— Continued destruction of natural resources and uncontrolled urbanization may result in the moon being the only place left for outdoor vacation trips, Boys State delegates were told at their annual meeting here Wednesday.

Vot Gilmore of Southern Pines, speaking in behalf of the N.C. Department of Conservation and Development, described new programs for attracting new industry and for promoting tourist travel in North Carolina.

Gilmore, who is being considered for a new federal position to promote international travel, predicted "We'll have to make a trip to the moon" to visit a public park for diversion unless urbanization is carefully controlled.

Assistant Now Superintendent

The promotion of J. Melvin Moore to the position of Superintendent of Fieldcrest Mills' Karastan Spinning Division at Greenville was announced today by Robert A. Harris, Fieldcrest Vice President of Manufacturing.

Moore, who was formerly assistant to the superintendent, succeeds Vernon E. Howell who resigned effective June 17.

J. M. MOORE

The Karastan Spinning Division, formerly Greenville Mills, Inc., a woolen spinning plant, was purchased by Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., in August, 1960, for the manufacture of the pile yarns for the Karastan Rug Mill at Leaksville.

Moore has been associated with Fieldcrest for over 25 years. He was foreman of the wool spinning department at the Blanket Mill in Draper for 17 years and earlier worked as an assistant foreman, cost clerk and on various production jobs at the Blanket Mill.

Immediately preceding his transfer to Greenville in October, 1960, he was industrial relations supervisor for the Blanket and Sheet-Mill in Draper.

He was born at Draper and graduated from Leaksville High School. He has long been active in the church and civic affairs in Draper and the Tri-City community. He was a long-time member and a past chairman of the Board of Trustees of Leaksville Township Schools. He resigned from the school board following promotion to his new position at Greenville.

Rescuer Awaits Case of Measles

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)— Louis De Bode, a fireman, watched closely today for alarming symptoms. Like those of measles, maybe.

Fire seriously damaged a residence yesterday, and fireman carried out Deborah King, 12, and her sister, Pamela, 15. The mother, Mrs. Patricia King, also was rescued.

One of the sisters—Deborah—was ill with measles.

One of the firemen—De Bode—has never had measles.

Which fireman carried out Deborah? De Bode, of course.

Private Gift To Food-For-Peace

PLEASANTON, Calif. (AP)—A northern California rancher is donating the first private gift to the U.S. Food for Peace program—50 tons of wheat a year for the next four years for hungry persons overseas.

Coleman Foley, an Irish immigrant who owns cattle and farm land in California and Nevada, was to present the first 50-ton gift today at his ranch near Pleasanton, about 35 miles south-east of San Francisco.

His gift is destined for Greece.

Carolina League All-Stars Picked

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — The 1961 Carolina League all-star squad, dominated by Winston-Salem, and Greensboro, was announced Wednesday by Bill Jessup from league headquarters here.

Winston-Salem, a Boston Red Sox farm club, placed six players on the team and Greensboro, farm club of the New York Yankees, captured four spots on the 16-man squad.

Composing the all-stars are: Winston-Salem: Pitchers Frank Kreuzer, Wilbur Wood and Bill MacLeod; catcher Russ Gibson; and outfielders Dean Robbins and Don Dingwerth.

Greensboro: First baseman Chuck Reidel, shortstop Ron Retton, third baseman Gene Domzaleski and outfielder Ronnie Paul.

Durham: Second baseman Rufus Anderson, outfielder Gates Brown and hurler Dick Klunder.

Catcher Duane (Duke) Sims and pitcher Al Elsele, both of Burlington, and Ken Free, Raleigh utility infielder, round out the all-star team.

CGA Entries Close In Amateur Play

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Entries close at noon Wednesday for the Carolina Golf Association North Carolina Amateur tournament starting Thursday at the Wilson Country Club.

The 72-hole tournament, held for 15 years under sponsorship of, first the Wilson Jaycees, and later the Wilson club, is the first to be officially sanctioned and operated by the CGA.

Charles Smith of Gastonia, who this week is defending his Southern Amateur title at Knoxville, and Art Ruffin of Wilson, defending champion in the state event, head the entry list.

About 100 players have entered to date, with the list expected to reach 150.

The medal play field will be cut to the 32 low scorers and ties after the Thursday and Friday rounds for the last two days. Other players will be grouped in flights of 16. The top three finishers in each group will receive prizes.

Last Time Out For Nicklaus

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Junior Jack Nicklaus of Ohio State, who says this is the last time he will try to win the national collegiate golf championship, led a massive Big Ten contingent into today's third round of the NCAA tourney.

Nicklaus, former National Amateur champion, was one of eight Big Ten players—exactly half the field—that survived Wednesday's two rounds.

Nicklaus, obviously tired after shooting the best amateur score in the U.S. Open last week for the second straight year, had to come from behind against both of Wednesday's opponents.

He finally overpowered Dick Carmody of Southern California and Jimmy Garrielsen of Georgia by the same margin, 4 and 3.

Long Lost White Sox Back In Am. League Battle

Are Braves In The Nat'l League Race Or Are They Preparing For Flop?

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer Are the Milwaukee Braves finally on their way in that National League race? Or have they just set themselves up for another flop?

At the moment, the Braves have edged back into fifth place by winning their third in a row behind complete game victories by Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette. The streak may not be much, but it matches their longest string of successes this season, and they've built it against second-place Los Angeles and third-place San Francisco.

What's more, Spahn and Burdette, the two aces of the pitching staff, have won in rotation for the first time in four weeks. After losing four straight to San Francisco, the Braves made it two in a row against the Giants with a 5-3 victory behind Burdette

Wednesday night. Spahn beat San Francisco 2-1 Tuesday night. It was the fourth victory in five games for the Braves, but left them nine games behind the front-running Cincinnati Reds, who knocked St. Louis to sixth place by beating the Cards 9-2. Los Angeles shaved the Reds' lead to one game by taking two from the Chicago Cubs, 4-1 and 4-2. The Pittsburgh-Philadelphia game was rained out.

Bouncing Back With Six Homers Against Indians

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer Well, look who's back in business in the American League! It's the long lost Chicago White Sox, bouncing back from the bottom with 13 victories in their last 14 games after almost blasting the Comiskey Park scoreboard apart in an explosive double-header sweep over Cleveland.

The Sox crashed six homers among 29 hits while trouncing the third-place Indians 15-3 and 11-1 Wednesday night for a six-game streak.

Roy Sievers and Al Smith wall-popped five homers and drove in 13 runs between them in the twi-night pair. Sievers hit three home runs and drove in nine runs—collecting seven RBI on a pair of homers, one a pinch-hit grand slam, in the opener.

Commissioner Frick May Resign His Job

By TED SMITS Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — There is talk in baseball circles today that Commissioner Ford Frick may resign his $65,000 job at the head of baseball before the end of his second term Sept. 20, 1965.

Frick was born Dec. 19, 1894, and thus would be close to 71 if he remained to the end of his second seven-year term. He is reputed to be eligible any time for a pension of $30,000 or more.

Rained Out Golf Match To Resume

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The pressure was doubled with each stroke today as the rain-delayed Carolinas Junior golf tournament resumed play.

This will cut the field to eight for the afternoon quarterfinals. Again playing in foursomes, the winners will match cards to settle the semifinal matches.

The White Sox, picking up 11 unearned runs in the twinbill while putting away a three-game sweep over the Indians, beat Wynn Hawkins (5-5) with a four-run second inning in the nightcap. Smith belted his two homers, both two-run shots, and Sievers added a solo homer.

Only 20, Torre Is A Starter

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Just a couple of years ago a young ball-player followed the advice of a scout and turned to catching. Today, at the tender age of 20, Joe Torre is starting for the Milwaukee Braves.

The kid is phenomenal," said veteran Lew Burdette in praise of his new battery mate after firing a five-hitter Wednesday night in a 5-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Ameche Dropping Football Career

BALTIMORE (AP) — "I just didn't think I had it any more," said Alan (The Horse) Ameche, and with that the star fullback of the Baltimore Colts announced his retirement Wednesday.

A Heisman Trophy winner while at the University of Wisconsin, Ameche said business pressures and an injury he suffered late last season contributed to his decision to quit after five years with the Colts in the National Football League.

Khrushchev Seen Stepping Up The Cold War

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials today viewed Soviet Premier Khrushchev's latest declaration on East-West issues as a stepup in his post-Vienna cold war campaign.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was slated to voice the U.S. government's views at an afternoon news conference.

At a Moscow rally Wednesday, Khrushchev said a peace treaty with Germany will be signed "at the end of this year." And he declared that if the United States resumes atomic testing, the Soviets immediately will do so too.

He set forth his Berlin timetable more precisely than he did during or since his talks at Vienna June 3-4 with President Kenedy. Under Khrushchev's plan for a treaty with East Germany, the Soviets would give the Communist East German regime control over access to Berlin. The Western powers, which do not recognize East Germany, regard this as a move to push them out of the Red-encircled city.

U.S. experts, still studying the text of Khrushchev's remarks, were of differing opinions as to whether the Soviet chief had served an "ultimatum" on the German question.

It was recalled that Khrushchev once before set a six-month deadline on a German peace treaty without going through with a separate pact with East Germany. Also, it remained to be seen how far the Kremlin actually would move to push the Western allies out of West Berlin if it did conclude an East German treaty.

Nevertheless, U.S. authorities took Khrushchev's warning on MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Convicted in Criminal Court of picking the lock of a Miami Beach mansion, Alonis S. Stein, 34, appealed, and bond was set at $7,000.

Forms for the bond, however, were in a deputy sheriff's locked desk. Deputy Court Clerk James Reagan said Stein calmly borrowed exhibit A in his trial—the lock-picking tool — and opened the desk.

Then, with bond completed, he strolled to freedom.

Germany with great seriousness. Discussions were under way with Western allies.

Khrushchev's threat to resume nuclear tests was similar to statements he has made before. U.S. officials believe he is not interested in getting a treaty outlawing atomic explosions.

Kennedy strategists figure that Khrushchev wants to prod the United States into breaking off the lengthy Geneva conference on a nuclear test ban treaty and have the United States be the first to set off new atomic explosions.

Arthur H. Dean, top U.S. negotiator at the Geneva parity, returned to Washington Wednesday night for what he said would be a few days of consultation with Kennedy and others. He said he plans to return to Geneva unless Kennedy directs otherwise.

The U.S. negotiator said the

Finder Was A State Prisoner

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)

—A woman laid her wallet on the fender of her car last week while in a service station, then drove 25 miles before noticing her loss. Wednesday—four days after the incident—a man found the wallet which contained $12 and turned it over to police, with the contents intact. The finder was a state prisoner working on a road gang.

Ayden Recreation Plans Hitting Summer Stride

AYDEN — The recreation program here is in full operation, with well over 300 children registered for the summer, Director Barbara Kelly said today. More are registering every day.

The varied recreation program features softball, tennis, table tennis, tether ball, horse shoes, shuffleboard, badminton and indoor games including cards, board games and arts and crafts.

A nature club will be started on Tuesday, since the interest seems to be high in that area, Miss Kelly stated. The club will participate in hikes, collecting things and nature studies, under supervision.

A tots program for children from ages four to five, from 9:30-11:30 on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays is also being carried on with popular attendance. Margaret Miller is in charge of this phase of the program.

Jo Ann Elias of East Carolina College, skilled in table tennis, will begin giving table tennis instruction for those interested in the afternoons, it was announced today. Miss Kelly gives tennis instruction Mondays and Wednesdays beginning at 10:30 a.m. for those interested. If enough adults are interested in the program, they may contact the Ayden Recreation Center to arrange instruction.

The arts and crafts program, supervised by Terry Gwyn, meets in the mornings for the different age groups. Children from six to eight meet Mondays and Wednesdays from 10:30-12:30 and those aged nine years and up meet Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10:30-12:30. Tommy Dunn is in charge of softball.

Miss Kelly noted that on rainy days, board and card games are provided inside, as well as other activities.

Card Room
A card room has been provided in the upstairs of the building. Those having old card tables which can be used in the room are asked to contact the recreation center, which is in need of card tables.

Included in the summer program are tournaments, and Miss Kelly said the staff is trying to schedule at least two per week. Tournaments are in individual and group sports.

The center is open from 9 a.m. until 12:30 in the mornings, and from 2 to 5 p.m. in the afternoons. The hours have been changed, since first announcement of the schedule was made, it was noted.

In the evenings, pre-teen dances are held every other Wednesday night from 7:30 to 9:30, and every other Saturday, the teens meet from 7:30 until 10:30 p.m. All dances are chaperoned.

Miss Kelly is a graduate of East Carolina College and plans to go into graduate work.

Trio Rescued After Lighthouse Mishap

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Three men, rescued Wednesday from the "loneliest lighthouse in the world," said they lived on a couple of cans of beans since an explosion rocked the Stannard Rock lighthouse in Lake Superior Sunday.

Chances that a fourth man still was alive were remote, the Coast Guard reported.

Missing was William A. Maxwell, 34, Houghton, Mich., father of five. Maxwell, an engineer, first was reportedly seen still inside the tower. A search for him was impossible because of fumes from a raging fire in the lighthouse's coal storage bin.

Seaman Walter E. Scobie, 22, Troy, Mich., and Richard A. Horne, 18, New York, a seaman's apprentice, were not injured.

The blast was set off, the Coast Guard said, by gasoline and propane gas. Injured seriously was Oscar R. Daniels, 23, an electrician's mate from the Sault Ste. Marie Coast Guard base who was at the light-house on temporary duty to repair a generator.

A Coast Guard unit near Hancock, Mich., talked to Scobie and Horne, who said they had made a tent of tarpaulin on the apron outside the tower.

They said Maxwell was at the base of the tower, near the explosion, and Daniels apparently was seated in the doorway of one of the rooms in the tower. When the flames and shock from the explosion came up the passageway, Daniels received the brunt of it, the men said.

Scobie and Horne were in rooms of the 102-foot tower. Scobie said he was hurled out of bed. Horne was in the room behind Daniels.

Daniels was being treated for burns and lacerations at a hospital at Keweenaw, Mich.

The explosion had cut communications from the lighthouse, 23 miles southeast of Manitou Island.

The Coast Guard cutter, the Woodruff, operating from Duluth, had gone to the area to investigate because there had been no communication with the crew and the light was out.

Lt. Mike O'Brien of the Coast Guard's 9th District headquarters in Cleveland said 1,100 gallons of gasoline, used to power the station's generators, went up in flames.

Talk Emergency Needs In Strike

HONOLULU (AP) — Gov. William F. Quinn met with his emergency food committee Wednesday to discuss plans in case the maritime strike becomes prolonged.

Almost all food used here is imported from the U.S. West Coast.

Grocers usually keep four to five weeks' supply on hand, but supermarket operators said panic buying could exhaust stores in two weeks.

Grocers reported that sales of rice and canned milk have been heavier than usual and some stores are rationing these items.

Foodstuffs could be shipped from Australia, New Zealand and the Orient on foreign ships, which have not been affected by the strike.

Actress' Suit Is Settled By Court

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A court settlement has ended the suit actress Vera Miles brought against her former husband, actor Gordon Scott.

Miss Miles, 31, had asked for $300 a month for care of their son, Michael, 3, on the grounds that no support provision was made when she divorced Scott at Juarez, Mex., in March 1960.

The court Wednesday ordered Scott to pay $175 monthly.

Eichmann Says Tried Save Jews

By THOMAS A. REEDY

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann testified today he tried to save Europe's Jews by creating a homeland for them on the island of Madagascar.

The former Gestapo lieutenant colonel said he conceived the "Madagascar plan" that was juggled around in high Nazi circles in 1940 but never got past the paper stage.

Eichmann identified principal portions of the plan as his own, particularly a study of climate and living conditions on the French island off the East African coast.

The defendant, accused of a major role in the Nazi extermination of six million Jews, did not explain how or when the Madagascar scheme founeder. Israel has produced evidence that Hitler, Heinrich Himmler and Gestapo chief Reinhard Heydrich decided on mass extermination "as the final solution of the Jewish problem" early in 1941.

Hitler, in published accounts of his informal nightly conversations over tea, said he rather favored the Madagascar scheme for a while "because conditions there would eventually wipe out the Jews."

On the witness stand for the third day, Eichmann insisted he always approached the "solution" to the Jewish problem by "trying to put some ground, some soil, under their feet."

The Madagascar idea was the first action Eichmann claimed as his own. Everything else, he said, was done under orders from somebody else. He contended he was in the Berlin headquarters of the Gestapo "against my will."

Leaving Friday For Philmont Trip

Three Greenville scouts are scheduled to leave Friday for the annual Philmont Scout Ranch Expedition.

Charles Vincent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Vincent of 928 E. 14th St.; Charles Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Boyd of 1608 Beaumont Dr.; and Wyatt Brown Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Brown of 1908 E. 6th St., will travel from Greenville to Camp Charles near Bailey tomorrow.

Sunday, the three boys and other East Carolina Council scouts will join a group from the Occaneechee Council for the 26-day expedition to the Cimarron, N. M. scout ranch.

Vincent is a member of Greenville Troop 340; Boyd, a Sea Explorer, is a member of Greenville Ship 1; and Brown is a member of Greenville Troop 30.

On their trip to the ranch, the scouts will pass through South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi into Louisiana where they will visit New Orleans. From there, the tour will continue westward through Texas, into old Mexico and to the ranch in New Mexico.

The return trip will carry the scouts on a more northerly course, back home via St. Louis. Total mileage involved in the trip is estimated at around 5,000.

Mary Pickford Wins Court Case

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former actress Mary Pickford is the victor in a $25,000 suit filed against her by Lawrence A. Nessamar, a real estate broker.

Nessamar claimed the money was due him as a commission for negotiating the purchase of the Mayflower Hotel here by Miss Pickford and two other investors for $1,885,000.

He complained that the ex-actress refused to pay the commission after repudiating the purchase in early 1953.

But Judge Charles R. Thompson held the transaction actually did not involve direct sale of the land and building but was a stock transfer. He concluded that since Nessamar was not a licensed stock broker, he could not collect a commission.

Home Ec. Staff Gets New Member

Mozelle Holberg of Macon, Mississippi, has joined the staff of the home economics department at East Carolina College. She is teaching classes in home economics during the current summer term and will continue her work during the regular school year.

Before becoming a faculty member at East Carolina, Miss Holberg served as assistant director of the Consumer Service Division of the National Canners Association, Washington, D. C. She previously taught foods and nutrition at Syracuse University and at Colorado State University.

Miss Holberg received her B.S. degree at the University of Tennessee. Later she did graduate work at Iowa State University and was granted the master's degree in science at Syracuse University. She is a member of the American Home Economics Association.

Ikeda Suggests Japan For Middleman Role

WASHINGTON (AP)—A suggestion that Japan act as middleman for U.S. aid programs in Southeast Asia has been put forward informally by Japanese Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda.

The Japanese leader was due to complete his formal consultations here with a final 45-minute working session with President Kennedy today.

He advanced the idea of Japanese-American partnership in Asian economic development programs during a conversation on Wednesday with Sen. Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii.

Because of long associations, he said, Japanese understand Americans as few other Asians do. If the United States was willing to finance the projects, Japanese technical skills could be put to work in carrying out economic development programs, he suggested.

The plan was similar in many respects to proposals previously advanced by former Japanese Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi. The United States turned down the Kishi plan.

Ikeda appeared pleased with the warmth of his reception here and by his talks with Kennedy.

During a toast to the President at a state dinner, he said he had found "no important differences in our basic objectives."

"We are both determined to uphold our belief in a free world," he said.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was host at the dinner honoring the prime minister.

Rusk said that Japan and the United States have moved from a period of peace to an era of active partnership.

Ikeda and Kennedy completed the bulk of their consultations Wednesday in a two-hour conference aboard the presidential yacht, Honey Fitz.

Chief topics were closer consultations between Japan and the United States, economic development programs for the Ryuku Islands, where the United States maintains a major base on Okinawa, and international trade problems.

Writer Is Suing For $950,000

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Comedian Jerry Lewis is among the defendants in a $950,000 damage suit brought by screen writer Cy Howard.

Howard's complaint, which was filed Wednesday, alleges that the film "Cinderella" was based on an original script he wrote in 1952 under the title "The Paris Story." The writer contends Lewis had no right to use the script material in "Cinderella."

The suit includes as defendants Jerry Lewis Productions, Inc., Paramount Pictures Corp., and director Frank Tashlin.

DONALD BARR CHIDSEY'S New Historical Entertainment THE WICKEDEST PILGRIM

CHAPTER 29

Mayflower sailed for England April 1, a clear, bright day, indeed a radiant day; and as the Pilgrims watched it from the shore, having ceased to work for this little while, they did not move, though by instinct they huddled closer together than was their wont.

"Stupidest thing you ever did, Sal!" Sawn Matthews had pronounced from behind an oar as the last boatload was about to start back for the ship. "These people ain't for you."

"Suppose you let me decide that," Sal Boyd replied curtly.

Whatever their individual feelings might have been, none of the company either wept or gave a cheer. Though fewer than 60 were left, so wide a swath had Death's scythe cut in their ranks, nobody even said anything about going back. They needed no calendar to tell them that spring had come, and spring by tradition and naturally is a time of uplift, yet they had but to look around to remind themselves that they still teetered on the edge of a precipice.

If they were resupplied from home before the next winter set in, if the Mohawks stayed in the west and the Pequots in the south for these fierce and numerous tribes had been untouched by the plague—and most of all, if the seed that they had planted grew into healthy grain and vegetables, then conceivably they might survive; though even then they might perish.

When the sail had slipped out of sight they held a praying and preaching there on the beach beside the boulder, and after that they went back to work.

One week after the Mayflower had sailed, the governor of New Plymouth, small, meek, amiable John Carver, passed away. His wife never spoke again; and she followed him by less than a week.

That reduced their numbers to just half of what they originally had been. One hundred and two had been aboard of Mayflower when she dropped anchor. There were fifty-one now.

From that time they began to take heart, working harder than ever. William Bradford, a younger man, more energetic, was elected governor. Perhaps in an effort to forget his wife Dorothy, who also had died, he drove himself furiously.

The days were longer as summer came, the ground softer. Snow they had never greatly minded, but it was a relief no longer to have to buck that knife-edged wind and rain.

Freed from fear of attack by the near-in Indians, and reassured Massachusetts, with whom they had struck a treaty—a strictly illegitimate treaty as Sal believed, but Massachusetts didn't know that—they could and did venture farther afield for game. Venison was not uncommon these days, and the savages had taught them how to catch eels by walking barefooted in the bay and trapping them with their toes. There were no oysters, but clams they had in plenty.

Though they had no sheep or cows, and hence no mutton, veal, or fresh beef, they had brought some chickens, pigs, and goats, to supply them with "white food," and these were multiplying, so that not all of their fare was salty.

Sal's glum guess that the unmarried men would cluster around Priscilla proved sound. She was seldom unattended. As the weather became mild she would sometimes move her Saxony wheel outside the door of the Brewster home, so that while she spun she could chat with those who paused or who passed. She was a friendly person, and liked company.

How many of these casual callers she found "pleasant" Sal had no way of knowing, but he particularly resented John Alden who since the landing had blossomed forth in a pair of Irish stockings, bright red in color—red was fashionable—the wear the envy of every other man in the place.

"Disgusting," Sal muttered.

"I don't see what's disgusting about it. Why shouldn't they stop and visit, just like any folks? You come here often enough, Salsathiel Boyd."

"Don't you want me to come?"

"I didn't say that."

"I come here to learn to read."

"Elder Brewster could teach you that, and I'm sure he'd be glad to. Or Master Bradford."

"Well . . ."

"Besides, there's Desire Minter and Mary Chilton. Why can't the men bumblebee about them?"

"They ain't pretty."

Though the lessons were shorter, for Sal's duties often took him away from the settlement, and he had to spend a lot of time on Fort Hill, they were more numerous. He used to drop in on her whenever he found a chance, and he would read aloud from the Book while she spun.

He had never ceased to marvel at her reading skill. She displayed no scintilla of interest in the other books that Elder Brewster had unpacked, but she sure knew her Bible. Never missing a thread, her foot busy, she would help him whenever he hesitated and infallibly correct him when he erred.

Sir Walter Raleigh (so Sal was told) had reported that when he visited the New World he saw or heard of ivory palaces, oysters that grew in trees, men with only one eye and that in the middle of the chest, men who sprayed themselves each day with gold dust, and a ferocious fair race of female warriors, the Amazons. To be sure, that had been Guiana. Sal saw nothing like it in New England; and yet the place was not entirely without its wonders.

There was the beaver. No country man, Sal had known little about beavers at home, though he believed that there were not many left. It was otherwise near New Plymouth. Even after winter had gone you seldom glimpsed a beaver, for they were shy and worked only at night, but there were evidences of them aplenty. They chewed down trees and trimmed these with their teeth, and built dams that were everywhere, some of them thirty-five or forty feet across.

Never to be discouraged; to mind your own business; to do so much while being seen so little; and even in death to be useful—this seemed to Sal a fine thing.

The three pelts Samoset's friends brought when they returned, the tools were not acceptable in New Plymouth because the day was the Lord's Day, but the savages were urged to bring more, at an appropriate time; and this they had done.

Once they learned that they would not be fed indiscriminately, along with their wives and children, whenever they chose to come crying friend—thought it was made clear to the Big Chief that he would always be welcome at mealtimes, as would any of his personal friends—they began to bring out these beaver skins by the score, by the hundred, so that trucking began, the settlers offering trinkets and in exceptional cases knives, of which they had brought a goodly supply.

It answered a pressing question for them, this trade. The adventurers in London were not in the least interested in the Holy Discipline, but they were very much interested in getting their money back, and more besides. If the settlers hoped to keep this colony, if they even hoped to stay alive, they must send something to England whenever a ship put in.

They had cut a great deal of sassafras, which, being famous for its medicinal qualities, would help to reduce the crushing debt; it was worth three shillings a pound in London. They had cut sundry planks and staves, though they could ill afford these, which would not bring a good price anyway.

The pelt of the beaver was surer, more valuable, and easier to get.

Yet they could not snare the beaver itself, for they didn't know how. They were obliged to depend upon the savages, who kept the secret.

Sal has marriage on his mind when he visits Priscilla Mullins. Continue the story here tomorrow.

The largest raindrops measure about a quarter of an inch in diameter. Larger ones break up as they fall through the air.

Voice Of Militant Left Largely Left To Segments

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Staff Writer

While the thunder from America's far right political fringe rumbles on, where is the corresponding clamor from the opposite flank?

The fact is, the once-strident

IN GOP POST—Rep. William E. Miller, 47, of New York is the new chairman of the Republican National Committee. He succeeded Sen. Thurston Morton of Kentucky.

voice from deep left field has been comparatively stilled in recent years. Authorities give three main reasons why:

1. Social and economic reforms begun by the New Deal are now part of America's basic fabric—to the displeasure of the right-wing militants. Enactment of labor laws, social security, minimum wage laws, and establishment of regulatory agencies have blunted or removed many a left-wing issue.
2. The nation's general prosperity.
3. The utter discredit of the Communist party as an international arm of the Soviet Union.

Economic stress traditionally breeds left-wing agitation, and much of the impetus is lost at times when the general economic welfare seems relatively secure, as is the case today.

Unlike 30 years ago, when communism was still considered by some as the great untied social experiment, today the overwhelming mass of Americans have seen the handwriting on the blood-stained wall and rejected it—even impassioned liberals who also reject capitalism.

There still is Communist activity in the United States, though the evidence at hand hardly points to a "tightly organized conspiracy of nearly 40 million Americans" as conceived by the Birch society's Robert Welch.

National Secretary Benjamin Davis claims the U.S. Communist party has from 7,000 to 10,000 members—a fraction of the enrollment during the depression years.

There are other symptoms of the party's decline. Three years ago, the Communist party new-paper, the Daily Worker, discontinued daily publication and became a weekly.

The tabloid subsequently grew thinner and thinner, now is conducting a crash effort to gain subscriptions or cash to keep it afloat. Since the drive began early this year it has produced only 5,000 new subscribers, according to a spokesman—a far cry from the goal of 50,000 by July 4.

The Worker claims a circulation of about 20,000. That's less than half, incidentally, of the estimated circulation of the Birch society's own weekly, "American Opinion."

And just June 5, the Supreme Court upheld a provision of the Internal Security Act of 1950 requiring Communist action organizations to register with the government—and the tribunal also upheld a clause of the Smith Act making it a crime to be an active member of a party advocating the violent overthrow of the government.

Short of the Communist party itself, deal a new jolt by these rulings, who are some of the major left-wing militant groups?

There's the Fair Play for Cuba Committee, a group formed two years ago to give stateside support to Fidel Castro's regime and combat "the half-truths and phony liberal rhetoric" being served up by the "business-controlled" American press.

FPCC claims 7,000 paid-up members ($5 a year, $3 for students). Its headquarters is a two-story building on lower Broadway in New York. The group's executive secretary, and one of its founders, is Robert Taber, a former foreign correspondent who was fired by Columbia Broadcasting System because of his FPCC activity.

The organization also lists among its members C. Wright Mills, a professor of sociology at Columbia University. "I feel a desperate shame for my country," Mills telegraphed a San Francisco FPCC rally five days after the abortive April 17 invasion of Cuba. "Were I physically able to do so, I would at this moment be fighting alongside Fidel Castro."

Another FPCC activist is Richard Gibson, a graduate student in African affairs at Columbia and former news writer who was dismissed by CBS along with Taber.

Gibson, a Negro, was questioned by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee last April. Referring to the Cuban invasion, he said, "I can only express delight at the utter and dismal defeat of this act of international banditry."

In its literature, FPCC has referred to President Kennedy as "the Boston millionaire in the White House" and has recommended the United States solve its unemployment problems by methods suggested by Castro himself: "Nationalize the big monopolies... utilities... (and) banks."

The Cuban invasion also provided a springboard for other, mostly left-of-center groups in America to launch a crusade.

One was the Nonviolent Committee for Cuban Independence, a hastily formed (and since disbanded) coalition of four libertarian and pacifist groups: The Committee for Nonviolent Action, the War Resisters League, the Catholic Worker and the Peace-makers.

This group considered it "tragic that the economic and social advance of the Cuban revolution are threatened by the refusal of the United States to leave the Cubans alone," and staged a two-week fast in front of Central Intelligence Agency headquarters in Washington to demonstrate their "awareness of what is going on."

Lacking a prolonged economic crisis, left-of-center militants these days generally have only single-issue causes to rally around—like the Cuban question and assorted civil rights incidents.

The Emergency Civil Liberties Committee was formed, for example, to oppose the House Un-American Activities Committee; the Committee to Secure Justice for Morton Sobell was organized to appeal for a new trial for the convicted atomic espionage conspirator; and the National Lawyers Guild was organized to press for civil rights legislation its members felt the American Bar Association was derelict in not pursuing.

Through the "nonviolence" door comes a different group of crusaders—pacifists advocating unilateral disarmament.

These obviously do not include such groups as the Quakers and other religious bodies whose pacifism predates the nuclear era nor even such organizations as the Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy whose stated objective is inspected and controlled disarmament.

Rather they include groups like the Committee of Committees and the Committee for Nonviolent Action, to name two, which flatly reject deterrence as a strategy.

In turning the other cheek, such groups also turn their back on alternatives and announce plainly they have "no pat answers."

The Committee of Committees is mainly a discussion group of intellectuals. The Committee for Nonviolent Action, on the other hand, attracts fewer professors and more students to its ranks and specializes in demonstrations—at missile centers, airbases and the like.

Sometimes the end seems to get mixed up with means.

For example, a recent CNVA bulletin reported that Dick Zink, a 20-year-old pacifist from Amherst, Pa., "was happy to learn that Michael Noon (of Scotland) had doubled the old record of 15 minutes for sitting on the tail fin of a Polaris submarine."

Some owls see well in the daylight, contrary to popular belief.

Boat-Buyer Might Not Need Awaiting Certificate

Owners of new unregistered boats who want to get their craft on the water immediately should take heed of their bill of sale, according to Pitt County Wildlife Protector J. O. Teel.

Teel, an enforcement officer for the N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission said that although it is commission policy to allow new boat owners to use a bill of sale in lieu of a boat registration certificate and boat number, boat dealers sometimes fail to put enough information on the bill of sale to bring it within policy requirements.

He explained that a bill of sale will be acceptable to wildlife protectors in lieu of a certificate of registration for a period of 30 days if it meets these requirements. First, the full name and address of the boat dealer must appear on the certificate, and second, the full name and address of the boat buyer must be present.

Third, the make of boat, length in feet, and year built must be listed, with the hull material, kind of propulsion and date of purchase showing on the sales receipt.

The date of application for official certificate number and a statement subscribed to and sworn to by both dealer and buyer before a notary public that the information and accurate must also accompany the bill of sale. Teel emphasized.

"The 1959 Boating Safety Act," Teel said, "requires that all boats required to be registered must be registered and appropriate numbers displayed before it can be operated on the waters of the State." "The provisions for using a bill of sale in lieu of a registration certificate is a policy established by the Commission for the convenience of new boat owners, and boat dealers."

"A bill of sale, however, will not be honored unless it fulfills the requirements," the Protector emphasized.

Mace Missile Virtually Ready For Assignment

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force reports its Mace-B guided missile is virtually prepared for combat-alert assignment.

The announcement followed the successful launching of one of the swept-wing missiles on an evasive 1,100-mile flight down the Atlantic range Wednesday.

Officials said the test had "completed the development phase of the tactical missile and proved it ready for final performance flights." These will be evaluation and training exercises for Air Force troops.

The first Mace-B unit is expected to go to Okinawa late this year. Other units will be assigned later to Western Europe as replacements for shorter range Matador and Mace-A missiles.

ECC Newspaper Announces Staff

Monty Mills of Shelby, junior psychology major at East Carolina College, will serve as editor of the East Carolinian, student newspaper, this summer. She has previously served as news editor for the East Carolinian.

The first issue of the college newspaper for the summer term is scheduled to appear Thursday afternoon, June 22.

This summer's managing editor, J. Alfred Willis of Gloucester has a diversified range of experience in college journalism. He is a former editor of the Lassen College newspaper, Susanville, Calif. At East Carolina he is majoring in the social studies.

David E. Nanney of Forest City, a senior English major, will hold the position of associate editor this summer. Business manager Owen Johnson of Greenville has served several quarters as a member of the East Carolinian staff. Richard C. Boyd of Portsmouth, Va., will continue as head of the sports staff as editor.

Photographer James B. Kirkland of Raleigh, a senior, and feature editor Ada Jane Kivett of Burlington, a sophomore, have previously worked with the East Carolinian. Cartoonists this summer are Gale Hammond of Wilmington and Kenneth R. Meredith of Charlotte.

Fellowship Has Been Retracted

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Science Foundation, under strong pressure from the chairman of two congressional committees, has revoked a $3,800 government fellowship for Edward Yellin.

Yellin, now a student at the University of Illinois, was convicted last year of contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions about Communist party membership put to him by a House subcommittee on un-American activities.

He was sentenced to a year in prison, but currently is appealing to the Supreme Court. Notwithstanding, the foundation last March awarded Yellin the fellowship to continue his studies at the University of Colorado.

Foundation Director Alan Waterman consulted with the foundation's executive committee, which includes some of the nation's most eminent educators, and then sent Yellin this telegram Wednesday:

"We regret to advise you that after a full review of all facts in your situation, including the possibility that you may not be able to pursue your studies without interruption during the fellowship tenure, the present fellowship award made to you on March 15 for the year 1961-62 is revoked."

Waterman apparently referred to the fact that Yellin may have to start serving his jail term if the Supreme Court rules on his contempt conviction later this year.

'Strike' To Get Judicial Help

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Presiding Judge William F. Dannehower of Montgomery County has canceled his current court-room schedule in a move court attendants call a kind of a strike to underline his demand for more judicial help.

Judge Dannehower said on Wednesday that "if we don't get more judicial help, I'll clear up what I have on my desk and then retire." The judge, who will be 71 next month, has been on the bench nearly 30 years. His term expires in January, 1964.

Right now he is staying in his chambers and writing opinions. The criminal cases he was to hear have been reset for other judges, a source in the district attorney's office said.

Judge Dannehower Wednesday made public a letter he had sent to Gov. David L. Lawrence asking the chief executive's help in getting two new judges.

Dannehower cited in the letter "increasing legal business, a congested court calendar, and a backlog of civil cases."

"Four judges cannot handle this great volume of business," he said.

There was no immediate comment from Lawrence.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged lower in dull trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 60 at 244.50 with industrials down 1.20 and both rails and utilities unchanged.

Losses of fractions to a point or more outnumbered gainers. Some fairly sharp losses appeared among chemicals and non-ferrous metals. The downward was moderate among steels and motors. Tobacco and electronics were generally higher.

Transiron added another point. Lockheed was up about a point while other aircraft-missile stocks were narrowly mixed.

Among the electronics, Sperry Rand, Philco and Radio Corp. Added fractions.

A loss of about 2 points by Du Pont dragged all the averages. Declines of around a point of Eastman Kodak and Texaco also were depressing.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .75 at 685.34. Corporate bonds were mixed. U. S. government bonds were irregularly lower.

Car Crashed Into Ditch Yesterday

Heavy damage resulted to a small foreign car yesterday after it went out of control and crashed into a ditch on Hooker Road about 1:30 p.m.

Investigating Patrolman R. E. Taylor of Griffin identified the driver of the auto as Alexander Graham Whitaker, 26 of 214 B. East Second St.

According to the officer, the Whitaker auto was headed North on Hooker Road, about one-half mile from the intersection of Dickinson Ave., and lost control of the auto as he rounded a curve.

Both Whitaker and a passenger in the auto, W. H. Ward, Jr., 34, address not given, were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for examination there released.

Whitaker, a Greenville police officer, was charged with driving too fast for existing conditions. Pl. Taylor noted it was raining at the time of the mishap.

Police Chief S. G. Gibbs, this morning, said Whitaker was suspended until the case is heard in court. Action on the charge is scheduled for Friday morning in City Recorder's Court, it was explained.

Whitaker has been a member of the local department for about 14 months.

Jimmy Fiddler Loses 5th Wife

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The fifth wife of movie broadcaster-writer Jimmy Fiddler obtained a divorce Wednesday.

Mrs. Darrow Fiddler's complaint said she and Fiddler married last Dec. 20 and separated after less than two months.

The decree was granted by default. Mrs. Fiddler, a writer, asked no alimony.

two brothers: Charlie W. Martin of Bethel and John D. Martin of Kinston; one sister, Mrs. Lela Fleming of Bethel; and two half-sisters, Mrs. Wadie T. Carson of Bethel and Mrs. Hathaway Cross of Raleigh.

Mrs. Robert Waters Dies This Morning

Mrs. Pat Waters, 80, widow of Robert Waters, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital Thursday morning at eight o'clock. She had been ill for the past year and critically ill for two weeks. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Surviving are six daughters, Mrs. L. C. Dixon and Mrs. Martha Carawan of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Louise Brantley of near Greenville, Mrs. Annie Mae Brantley, Mrs. Letha Williams and Mrs. Helen Jarvis, all of Greenville; four sons, Clyde, R. C. Lee, Vernon, and Thomas I. Waters, all of Greenville; 21 grandchildren, and 22 great grandchildren.

Shipping Strike Talks Remain In Stalemate

NEW YORK (AP)—Longshoremen returned to the docks today after a one-day work stoppage that crippled the port of New York.

But the week-old nationwide maritime strike grew worse. The number of immobilized American-flag ships rose to at least 150 in 30 ports on the East, West and Gulf coasts.

Negotiations were in a stalemate as the impact of the strike deepened. More industries — especially oil plants — were hit.

A group of oil producers in Texas asked President Kennedy to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act and obtain a court order for an 80-day cooling-off period. The plea was made in a telegram by the North Texas Oil and Gas Association.

One of the ships knocked out of service was the United States-Queen of the American fleet — which was to sail for Europe Saturday with 1,700 vacation-bound passengers, its largest list of the year. Friday's sailings of the liner Constitution and the cruise ship Santa Rosa also were canceled.

Most of the 946 passenger ships, dry cargo ships and tankers flying the American flag are at sea and will not be tied up until they reach a United States port.

The longshoremen at a mass meeting Wednesday were urged by their leaders to support the strike of 85,000 ships' officers and crewmen. But there was some rank-and-file opposition.

The ILLA is not directly involved in the strike, but its members have been refusing to cross maritime union picket lines.

Find Agreement On Highway Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House conferees reached final agreement today on a compromise interstate highway bill.

They agreed to retain in the measure a Senate-voted provision extending for two years the present program of giving bonus payments to states that control billboards on the interstate system.

This provision was not in the original House measure.

Wednesday, conferees agreed on provisions to raise $11.56 billion in revenues to finance the program over the next 11 years. These include extension of the 4-cent federal gasoline tax and increases in truck and tire and tube taxes.

Left in the compromise was a Senate provision allowing the federal government to share in cost of repairing roads leading to missile bases.

Missing Coed Is Soon Found

The intensive search for an 18-year-old East Carolina College coed, started about noon yesterday when she was reported missing, was called off about 3 p.m. when she was found in a car on the college campus.

ECC officials said the girl, Nancy Jordan of Kannapolis, was found in good condition, hiding in the rear of a car, parked behind Wilson Hall, the dormitory in which she was housed. She was discovered by the car's owner, who returned to the auto after attending his classes at the college. He was not identified.

A search was launched about noon yesterday, after the girl was reported missing from the college infirmary. College officials, Greenville police and rescue squad personnel, and students, participated in the hunt.

According to officers, Miss Jordan was admitted to the infirmary Tuesday night after she reportedly took an overdose of aspirin. During the night, she left the medical center and returned to the dormitory, but was returned by other roomers in Wilson Hall.

Officials said she left the building the second time, about 11 a.m. yesterday, by climbing out a first floor window.

Clad only in a pair of pink shorty pajamas, she went to Wilson Hall, got a raincoat, and was last seen walking toward Fifth Street.

Doctors who examined Miss Jordan, said she returned home with her father who arrived a short time after she was located.

Attending Radio And TV Institute

CHAPEL HILL—William Walker Jr. of Fountain is among 23 high school radio and television enthusiasts attending the annual High School Radio-TV Institute here for two weeks.

The group, sent by local stations all over North Carolina, are members of the annual institute. Some are attending on scholarships from local stations.

The institute gives a brief resume' of the broadcasting industry and its many facets to prospective members of the field. Instruction is given by members of the radio, television and motion pictures faculty, plus lectures on station functions by visiting staff personnel.

Making Survey Of 4-H Club

A candidate for a doctorate degree from Cornell University is making a general survey of one of Pitt County's Negro 4-H Clubs.

Rudolph Artis, native of Fremont and former assistant Hertford County Agent, is spending a couple of days in Pitt County conducting a survey of the Sallie Branch-Belvoir 4-H Club.

His stop in Pitt County is one of 15 in North Carolina. His survey will also include 4-H Clubs in other states as a requirement for his doctorate.

A Collection As Big As America Itself...

And Just As Beautiful

American Treasury by Drexel

The most trusted name in furniture

Delight in American Treasury's over ninety notable pieces for living, dining and bedrooms! Each is as American as a spreadeagle... as enduring as our first settlers. It was into this historic storehouse that famed designer Robert Bergelin delved for his inspiration—and he came up with a treasure! He took a shaped molding from one source, a paneled door or a bold turning from another. The exciting result is an imaginative combination of authentic Early American design and magnificent native American woods. Figured cherry, maple clusters, knotty pine and hardy pecan lend their own individual character to each piece finished in an inviting, mellow brown.

American Treasury is complete, for every room in your home. It will bring you all the warmth and richness of our American heritage, with the pride of ownership, which comes from owning truly beautiful furniture.
