U.S. Taking A 'Firm' Berlin Issue Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today struck a "firm but not belligerent" note in the growing crisis over Berlin...

In the background, U.S. British, French and West German diplomats sought agreement on how best to meet the new threat raised by Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Coming away from a conference with President Kennedy and top level officials Friday, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told newsmen there are no plans at this time to strengthen the 5,000-man U.S. garrison in Berlin or to increase its firepower.

McNamara also said "We have no immediate plans for increasing the forces in Europe," adding:

"I don't mean we won't. I simply mean we don't have any plans at the moment for doing so in the near future."

As a general statement, McNamara declared, "We are taking a firm, but I believe not a belligerent attitude in supporting our position in Berlin and the rights and freedoms of the people living in Western Berlin."

Saying "I do not want to make inflammatory remarks," the Pentagon chief took firm issue with Russian claims that "the Soviet Union's power is in excess of ours."

Reporters saw significance in McNamara's use of qualifying terms such as "at this time" and "immediate" in saying there are no plans to bolster U.S. armed might in Europe.

Sources here and in London reported the Atlantic Alliance's conventional forces in Europe are likely to be reinforced quietly.

The main U.S. defense bulwark in Europe comprises five battle-ready Army divisions, three of them infantry and two armored. They are deployed in West Germany, close to the Iron Curtain. Air Force fighters and bombers also are arrayed within striking distance of the Berlin area.

In the light of talk about possible build-ups in Europe, there also could be significance in McNamara's disclosure that he "may find it necessary to visit NATO headquarters to discuss certain NATO questions this summer."

That trip, he said, "is not a firm project at the present time." McNamara had scheduled his summed conference before Kennedy summoned members of the National Security Council and key Democratic Senate leaders to a huddle on the new Soviet drive to force the West out of Berlin.

To reporters who sought to pry out some information on that huddle, the defense secretary said "I am not at liberty to discuss" the subjects covered at the White House meeting.

Others who sat in kept silent on the substance of the talks, but informed sources said there were no decisions on the German question.

White House news secretary Pierre Salinger said the conferees considered "a wide variety of subjects," including Berlin. He declined to elaborate.

In London, Western officials reported Friday night that differences have arisen among whether the Western powers over whether to propose negotiating a Berlin settlement with the Russians.

Britain was said to favor initiative by the West favoring some kind of negotiations. France and West Germany were pictured as believing the West should sit tight and outstare the Russians.

The U.S. position on the tactical approach was described as still undecided.

Educators Launch Program

State Board Begins Implementing Broad School Improvement Plans

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Board of Education has begun its task of implementing Gov. Sanford's broad school improvement program recently enacted by the 1961 General Assembly.

The board met Friday and adopted regulations by which it will allot 38,316 teachers to the various school districts. The figure represented a gain of 1,497 teachers over the present total.

Saying it accepted "in gratitude and in humility" the challenge offered by the big appropriations boost, the board called for "the full teamwork of local school authorities, the teaching profession, student, parents and citizens in general."

It cautioned, however, it does not feel the increases do more than meet minimum requirements. "It will profit the children little," the board said, "if the increased state allotment results in a reduction of local effort. There will continue to be need for locally-financed professional personnel beyond the state allotment."

The board approved allotment provisions similar to those in effect this year. School districts will be authorized six elementary teachers for the first 171 students and an additional teacher for each 30 additional pupils. They will be allotted four high school teachers for the first 80 students and another teacher for each 30 additional pupils.

The board also approved a new provision allocating school administrative units one additional teacher for each 20 allotted under the basic plan.

The board also provided for the allotment of 372 teachers for approved programs of special education, including the educably mentally retarded, crippled, visually handicapped and speech correction.

It provided for allotment of 30 teachers for approved programs for exceptionally talented children.

Committee Says Tractor Trade Deal Is Now 'Dead'

DETROIT (AP)—The proposed swap of American tractors for Cuban invasion prisoners is dead, and the Tractors for Freedom Committee accused Cuba's Fidel Castro of killing the deal.

The committee in a bluntly worded statement Friday night said it was folding up because Castro's demand for $28 million in cash, credit or tractors could only be interpreted as a move "calculated to destroy the possibility of agreement."

The committee dismissed Castro's proposal of Friday in these words: "The latest proposal by Dr. Castro that a delegation of prisoners whom he holds captive under the threat of penalty of death or long imprisonment can negotiate the terms of their own release is ludicrous."

"It is further evidence of his brutality in cynically playing with the lives of imprisoned men and their relatives," the statement added.

The committee charged Castro with reneging on his original offer to release 1,214 prisoners for 500 tractors. Castro later upped the ante, the committee said, demanding $28 million worth of heavy-duty equipment or 1,000 small tractors.

"It was our hope to bring freedom to the prisoners and to more food on the tables of those hungry within Cuba," the committee said.

"It is with deep sorrow and disappointment that we learn that Dr. Castro's rejection of our committee's sincere efforts has made impossible a realization of our humanitarian goals."

The committee said Castro rejected the offer of 500 farm tractors and made stronger demands "at the very moment we felt there was hope for reaching an understanding on the type of tractors to be delivered."

Castro said Friday the committee's offer "has no other purpose but to break off the negotiations and blame the Cuban government for it."

"The responsibility is exclusively yours," he told the committee. Castro said he made it clear right off the bat how many and what type of tractors he wanted, and he charged the committee with lying in saying he changed his offer.

"It is a trick devised by you to confuse North American public opinion and the prisoners' own relatives," Castro asserted.

He said in his note that value of the farm tractors is not enough "to satisfy even a meager part of the damages suffered because of cowardly and criminal aggression against Cuba organized by the United States government."

The committee said "Castro's failure to keep his end of the bargain not only robs the prisoners of their hope for freedom, but it likewise denies Cuban farmers and the people of Cuba the agricultural machinery which they know only too well is urgently needed to raise food production."

disbanding and plans to return between 60,000 and 70,000 letters it received from its appeal for funds to pay for the tractors. The letters never were opened, so there's no way of determining how much money was sent in to PO Box Freedom here.

Tractors for Freedom Inc. was organized at the suggestion of President Kennedy. But Kennedy made it clear the U.S. government would play no part in any exchange.

Maritime Strike Study Is Ordered; T-H Law Raised

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today ordered a government study of effects of the maritime strike to help him decide on Monday whether to invoke the Taft-Hartley law.

The study was announced by Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg after conferring with Kennedy in person at the White House and later by telephone.

Goldberg told reporters he had been put in charge of a survey to be made by all government agencies over the weekend on the gravity of the shipping tie-up, which is now in its ninth day.

The labor secretary said that if the survey shows the national health and safety is in peril, the administration will have no hesitancy in seeking an 80-day court injunction under the Taft-Hartley law to halt the crippling walkout.

"Whether we like the law or not this is our plain duty," Goldberg said.

The last time the T-H law was invoked was by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1959 to end the 116-day steel strike.

Unions have turned Goldberg down cold on his proposal for a 60-day strike to let government factfinders study the dispute issues—including a demand for bargaining rights on American-owned foreign flag vessels—and come up with a settlement formula.

Although shipping operators accepted the Goldberg plan the union turndowns seemed to doom it.

The labor secretary, a union attorney who masterminded the 1959 steel strike before he joined Kennedy's Cabinet, could come up with alternate settlement proposals. But negotiations in New York are almost hopelessly deadlocked and mounting shipping losses soon will compel the administration to consider invoking the Taft-Hartley law emergency provisions allowing an 80-day court injunction in such situations.

This is reportedly distasteful both to Kennedy, who voted against Taft-Hartley while in Congress, and to Goldberg, with his labor union background. Both feel an injunction would stop the strike but not the dispute, which could develop into another and perhaps worse strike later on.

Gov. William F. Quinn of Hawaii Friday night urged the President to invoke the Taft-Hartley law to prevent emergency conditions in the island state.

Even when the Taft-Hartley emergency provisions are invoked it takes a week or so before a strike-ending court injunction can be obtained. The required legal steps include naming a White House board to investigate and certify the nation's health or safety is in peril.

This is generally regarded as legal rigamarol, but it does provide time for Goldberg, in full charge of the situation for Kennedy, to maneuver behind scenes to try to break the stalemate.

The core of the problem is a rivalry among the unions, with presidents Paul Hall of the Seafarers and Joseph Curran of the National Maritime Union, each trying to come out with the fattest settlement. Four other unions involved have divided between the two camps.

Church Tops Ten Million Mark

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Methodist officials announced Friday that its church membership in the United States has passed the 10-million mark.

Dr. Harry Denman, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Evangelism, said 68 of the 100 annual conferences in the nation have reported so far on this year's membership.

The Rock River conference of Illinois reported a gain of 4,889 members over last year and this put the year's total at 10,004,074.

Denman said. He said the remaining 32 conference reports should boost total membership considerably more.

White was five pounds lighter after the 11-minute flight. This was blamed on the pressure of his suit which caused red marks on his body and a red welt on his forehead.

But White said later, "I was never in pain at any time."

He reached his top speed after a 75-second burst from the rocket ship's 57,000-pound thrust engine. The effort heated the X15's skin to 750 degrees Fahrenheit and charred its paint.

Russia's Yuri Gagarin and Alan Shepard of the United States are the only men who have exceeded White's speed. And their trips were in rocket capsules, not winged flight.

White's speed topped the old X15 mark of 3,307 m.p.h. by pilot Joe Walker last May 25 and was only 310 miles short of the craft's design speed of 4,000 m.p.h.

Final Payments

Final payments to farmers participating in the federal emergency feed grain program are expected soon.

Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office manager Wayne L. Wang said yesterday an announcement from the State ASC office reported: "Final payments will be made soon."

"The announcement was to get us ready to make the payments," Wang said. He estimated payments can be made sometime during July.

Total remaining feed grain payments for Pitt farmers will total about $360,000. Advance payments for 1,373 participating Pitt farms totaled $347,354.85, less than half the total payment of over $700,000 granted county farmers for diverting a total of 47,865 acres in the program.

Tuesday has been set as a tentative date for a joint meeting of the Greenville City Council and the Pitt County Commissioners to discuss a city-county health funds appropriation.

In a budget session Tuesday, the councilmen called for the joint session. They indicated they want to determine whether a total appropriation of $10,900 to the county for health services could be reduced or eliminated and whether the funds are needed by the county.

Pitt's budget, adopted Monday by the commissioners, includes the $10,900 as anticipated revenue, broken down like this: Health department — $6,800; Mental Health Clinic — $1,500; and Dog Fund — $2,500.

If the Tuesday date materializes, and indications today were that it would, the meeting will be held in the Commissioner's Room at the Pitt County Courthouse at 8 p.m.

Must Meet Own Food Shortages

BERLIN (AP) — East Germans were told Friday by the Communist government not to expect additional imports of food to overcome present shortages.

This was one of the main points in a declaration issued through the official news agency, ADN, after a top level meeting of ministers to consider supply difficulties.

State functionaries, farmers and landworkers must solve the problem themselves, the agency said.

Long periods of rain, floods and low temperatures during the past two months were blamed for the harvest difficulties.

Secret Radio Is Seized In Greece

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek Defense Ministry said Friday night a secret wireless transmitter aiding Bulgaria's military intelligence service has been seized near Kiklis, north of Salonika.

It said the operator of the equipment was seized along with cipher codes, copies of signals exchanged and weapons.

He was identified as Gregory Damoutisidis, 32, of Akropotamia, a village near Kiklis, and described as a fanatic member of EDA (the Communist line party of Greece).

Everything Was Normal, But—

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Everything was normal when Leo Jones, seaman, and Carol Ann Bylsma, student, both 19, were married Friday except:

The bride was 40 minutes late. The groom forgot the ring. And the ceremony took place in Presbyterian Hospital where the bride's mother, Anna Bylsma, is recovering from an operation.

When her daughter finally arrived, she explained her car had run out of gas. Somebody found Leo's ring on a television set.

The nervous young couple were married. Then Leo left for a Navy school in Key West, Fla., and later Newfoundland where his bride will join him next November.

STRONG TREMOR

UDINE, Italy (AP) — A strong earth tremor was felt at nearby Cave Del Predil Friday night. People fled in panic into the streets but no damage or casualties were reported.

Final Notices Went Into Mail

Last notices on the first round of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office's crop measurement program went into the mail yesterday, office manager Wayne L. Wang said.

"We are 100 per cent complete on the first go-round," Wang said. The office's performance job this year was about double the task a year ago because of the federal emergency feed grain program that added measurement of 47,865 acres diverted under the program.

Wang pointed out, also, that the ASC office is "keeping up with re-measurement and disposition as we go along."

He estimated the total performance job was about 60 per cent finished through Friday.

All field work, he said, will probably be finished by around June 30.

The ASC office staff, that annually balloons during performance season, has shrunk from a maximum of around 115 office and field employees to a total of about 60. The staff will eventually be reduced back to the regular employment when performance is completed, before an additional 11 temporary clerks will be hired for the market season.

HOW MANY CANDLES?
Do you count the candles on your birthday cake? Why bother? Once you're sweet sixteen, it doesn't matter how many candles you're entitled to. What counts is what you're doing with those years.
The years that are past have burned themselves out. Perhaps they have been all you've wanted them to be—but, if you're like most of us, maybe you could have made them a little better.
One of God's greatest gifts is the marvelous fact that it's never too late to begin again.
Birthdays remind us of the passing of time, of a new life. Celebrate your birthday by giving. Give something of yourself, by going to your church and taking part in its activities, especially those that help others. Next year, the added candle on your cake will burn with a special brightness!

Tiny Waist Good Sign

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON AP News Features Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Can you measure the nation's prosperity by the size of a woman's waistline? A look at the ins and outs of the average womanly figure for the past 50 years indicate that there are always two more inches of girth during depression days. At present one out of three women in the United States have the average 26 inch measurement, which means that the nation's prosperity is in pretty good shape.

HOME DECORATING TODAY

By MRS. R. W. DAVENPORT DISGUISE THE SIZE OF A WINDOW You don't have to knock the wall out to make a window look larger than it is. Drapery hardware, fabric, wallpaper, and other common materials can be used to camouflage the actual size of a window.

To add either width or height to a window, without marring the plaster, use extender plates attached to the window casing; to get both height and width combine an extension traverse rod with a vertical extender plate. Cover the wall space above the window glass with a standard roller shade, or a fabric valance or tier curtain.

A window can be completely hidden. Hang floor-to-ceiling draperies over the window and part of the wall for a larger window effect. Make an artificial window to break the monotony of an overly wide wall area, as in a long narrow room or in a hall. Hang draperies over a blank wall or paste up a scenic mural and decorate around it just as if it were a window with a view.

When measuring the windows and wall areas, use a firm step-ladder. Measure with a yardstick, steel tape or folding rule, not a cloth tape. Measure for rods and install them before measuring for new curtains, draperies, panels, and so forth. Allow for thickness of your rugs or carpet when measuring for floor-to-ceiling drapery treatments. If you can't decide on the best treatments for your windows, ask advice from the Home Furniture Store. The decorator will take samples to your home and help you work out what is best for you.

Highway Safety Bills Fared Poorly

If the 1961 legislature failed the people of the state through lack of sufficient action in any specific field, it is probably in the category of highway safety where the list of rejected proposals are far more impressive than the list of recommendations actually written into law.

During the eleventh hour of the session, the General Assembly wrote into law a bill setting forth minimum speed limits on primary and interstate highways of the state. While this new regulation should remove a part of the hazard of traffic traveling at widely varying rates of speed, it cannot be considered a major piece of highway safety legislation. The legislature also passed a measure that increased the highway patrol force by 15 men to a total of 622. But this action in itself was a far-cry from the 100 additional patrolmen which had been requested by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The legislature likewise turned thumbs down on a proposal which would have instituted a new mechanical inspection program for motor vehicles, and legislation calling for scientific tests to determine the alcoholic content of persons charged with drunk driving.

All-in-all, the highway safety legislation proposed to the 1961 General Assembly fared poorly so far as getting new laws on the books is concerned. The situation naturally poses the question of whether the legislators — in their apparent apathy toward new highway safety programs — were merely reflecting the greater apathy of the people of the state as a whole toward the highway safety problem that North Carolina faces.

The statistics of highway accidents, injuries, fatalities and property damage that confront the people of the state month by month and year by year appear to call for considerably more effort by the state of North Carolina to bring down the toll taken by highway accidents in the state. Yet, there is not sufficient sentiment among the people of the state or the legislature to mount a major safety program sufficient to cope with the increased hazard brought about by the increasing number of vehicles on the highways and the increasing number of miles these vehicles travel each year.

Some progress toward greater highway safety in North Carolina will be made as a result of legislation passed by the 1961 General Assembly; but the progress, we fear, will not be sufficient to reflect a greatly improved highway safety record for North Carolina when the 1963 General Assembly looks back over the 1961-63 biennium.

Wheels Always Turn Smoothly

By LYNN NISBET

PATTERN—Legislative activity for the final week of the 1961 Legislature followed closely the pattern set many years ago. Bills were introduced as "emergency" measures, when in fact the introducer had planned all along to try for the points—but was afraid his bill would not pass careful scrutiny of a committee. There was the chance that the calendar committee might kill it without any consideration—but an almost equal chance that it might be given a green light without analysis.

There was the usual confusion around the legislative halls and lobbies. Perhaps a more accurate description would be "appearance of confusion." An old time reporter, who has seen many legislatures come and go, is every time newly amazed at the orderly efficiency of legislative machinery working behind the scenes. While there is turmoil on the floor and members are engaging in horseplay, the wheels are turning smoothly in the offices and the clerks are getting their jobs done.

The adjournment resolution called for the 1961 Assembly to close shop at 12 noon, Thursday, June 22. The journals of the House and Senate will show that deadline was met. Actually, however, the gavel of the presiding officers of House and Senate who faced each other through open doors across the capitol fell at 12:21 p.m. The delay was occasioned by one or two very late introductions of bills that had to be enrolled, and by insistence of some members to deliver long farewell orations.

Besides the surface confusion, the back office efficiency, and the stopping of the clock, the 1961 Legislature fitted into the traditional pattern with respect to political activity in closing days.

POLITICS—Activity of prospective candidates for Speaker of the 1963 House was perhaps no more pronounced than usual on comparable occasions. Clifton Blue of Moore and Thomas Woodard of Wilson were mingling with the members letting it be known they are very much interested in the Speakership. Herbert Hardy of Greene, first to announce his aspirations for that post, was less active. Shelton Wicker of Lee wasn't saying anything, but several of his friends were warning colleagues not to be too quick in making commitments—cause Wicker will be in the running.

The active interest manifested in prospective candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor next time has been unusual for the first legislature of an administration. Usually not much is said about these races until the mid-term legislature. Lieutenant Governors Max Gardner in 1959, Dick Fountain in 1931, and Sandy Graham in 1935 virtually announced their candidacies for Governor during the closing hours of the senate session over which they were presiding. In each of these cases the election was slated for the following year.

Same thing was true to years ago when a last week flurry of support for Speaker Addison Hewlett for Governor put him first in that race, from which he later switched to the U. S. Senate. The "built up" for Speaker Joe Hunt this year is comparable to that for Hewlett last time — with the big difference that the election is now three years away instead of one. It might be worth noting in passing that none of the Presidents of the Senate or Speakers of the House who aspired to the Governorship directly from those positions ever made the grade. The accolades of legislative colleagues makes good music to the ears of the officers, but in the realm of practical politics the value is open to serious question.

CANDIDATES—While Speaker Hunt is sort of coy about admitting his interest in the governorship, Lieutenant Governor Cloyd Philpott has been regarded as a candidate for several years. Legislators, and some reporters covering the General Assembly, are so completely immersed in activities around Capitol Square they are apt to forget that there are many other good prospects for high State offices other than those connected with the Legislature. It must be remembered that Basil Whitener, incumbent congressman from the 11th district, and Woodrow Jones, former congressman and State Department chairman, have long had their eyes on the big chair in the southwest corner of the State capitol — and residence at 200 Blount Street.

Meanwhile a new crop of candidates and voters is growing up — and new political alignments are being made. And, of more significance perhaps than some folks realize, there will be a "trial run" next year on some of the political and personal issues growing out of actions of the recent General Assembly. The 1964 race for Governor, with implied control of State politics for years, will be largely influenced by results of the congressional elections — in the newly formed districts, the race for U. S. Senator (to re-elect or replace Sam Ervin), and the complexion of the 1963 General Assembly.

Many of the commitments made behind the scenes, many of the extremely nice things said about currently prominent leaders, and other factors which will control voting in 1964 may be subject to change with or without notice in view of developments next year.

Should Lose No Time In Building Facility

There are many problems to be worked out by the Pitt County Board of Education before it can clear the preliminary hurdles for construction of the new industrial training center that was approved by the voters of the county last week. Even so, every effort should be made by the board to commence this project as soon as possible in order that the people of the county will begin to receive the benefits which the industrial training program offers.

The first of the major decisions to be made is the selection of a site for the facility, and already the board has been offered 10 sites which it might purchase for the school. Then, of course, there is the matter of the detailed plans for the center which must be completed and bids received on the project before construction begins.

It will take time for the Board of Education to complete these preliminaries, and it is encouraging that the board already has begun the investigation of site possibilities. We trust the Board of Education will continue with all deliberate speed to work out the details for the new industrial training center for the county and put the facility into operation as soon as possible.

The facility will be an important asset to the economic development of the county and its people, and the sooner it begins operations, the sooner the county can begin to see the fruits of this new enterprise.

Latin American Report 'Worse'

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—When Adlai Stevenson returned in 1960 from a tour of Latin America—where Communists are active and discontent and poverty are as broad as the continent—he was pretty somber.

Now he has returned from a second tour, feeling conditions are worse. He made the first trip as a private citizen, the second as President Kennedy's personal representative. In between the two trips there were two major events.

1. The Kennedy administration — of which Stevenson is a part as ambassador to the United Nations — approved the disingenuous invasion against Cuba. This added more poison to anti-United States feeling in Latin America.

2. President Kennedy asked Congress for, and got, a $500 million Latin-American aid program. The money is to go to countries with social programs of their own, like land for the landless, homes for the homeless, education for millions.

Upon his return in 1960, he said: "Latin America is in revolution. The whole continent is on the verge of a great economic development and they are going to build a new society under our methods of free enterprise. If possible, and if not, under socialism."

Thursday, Stevenson, stopping off at Puerto Rico on his way home, said: "Economic want and social unrest have, if anything, increased. There is a growing sense of urgency in Latin America."

Stevenson reports today to Kennedy. But it is unlikely the President will, as a result, propose any spectacular solutions or at least any fast ones.

It is right here that communism has a starting-out advantage over a country like the United States in trying to win over millions of poverty-stricken, landless, impoverished and illiterate people.

Communism can promise a change overnight. The Western societies can promise change too, but so far have found no way to promise or effect sudden transformations.

The best they have been able to offer is steady improvement. This is what Kennedy offered in his March 14 message to Congress, outlining a long-range Latin-American program.

Stevenson illustrated the problem to a Democratic rally in this country during the presidential campaign last year when he said: "We must face the fact that the world is in revolution. For a thousand million people the big issue is not protecting the American way of life from communism."

"What does political freedom mean to an illiterate peasant squatting in a hut with five hungry children? For them and their leaders the big issues are peace, pride and rapid economic development."

For the United States the great contest in Latin America is against the Communist clock: can it help bring about change fast enough to make the quick promises of communism less attractive?

And the great problem is bridging the enormous gap between the very rich and the very poor. (Continued on page six)

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

Make Friends With The Angel

Someone has defined happiness as a striving toward meaningful goals.

Note that the emphasis here is upon the striving not upon the achievement. The happiness we get out of life is the happiness which comes from living life up to the hilt every day.

The most pathetic people in all the world are those who say, "When I get a little more past me and have my house paid for and the children educated, I am going to give some attention to being happy." Friend, if striving to pay off the mortgage on the house and getting the youngsters through school did not produce happiness, then don't think that a trip to the Mediterranean or a beautiful winter place in the South will make you happy.

Happiness is standing right next to you, it is nudging you in the ribs and trying to attract your attention. The time to be happy is now. The way to be happy is by living life to its full.

The utterly hopeless people in the world are the ones who turn to narcotics in their search for happiness. Only a little less mistaken and miserable are the ones who turn to alcohol. Wake up, friend. An angel stands beside you with his arm affectionately placed about your shoulder. His name is Happiness. Make friends with him. The worst mistake you can make is to believe that he is waiting for you in the next decade, in a higher position, or in another part of the world.

Guess Right--Or Lose

Direct Distance Dial is a wonderful thing, if you use it right. But if you fail to outguess the phone company on its lower station-to-station charges, you lose.

Russell Cowen and myself this week have been making frantic plans for a trip to Florida. As the plans progressed, we heard about a three-day cruise to Nassau, so we threw that in as a part of the trip.

Of course, planning this on such short notice meant that we would have to phone the cruise ship office in Miami for reservations.

Well, we figured, if we called during the day the rates would be higher. So we would wait until after six o'clock direct dial at station-to-station evening rates. If the office was closed there would be no answer. This ought to have worked, so we assumed.

After six o'clock one day we dug out the number of the steamship company and added the proper prefixes and dialed away. The various clicks did their work and an operator asked the number.

Then a female voice answered at the other end.

"I'd like to make ship reservations for next Monday," I told her.

"Sorry," she replied. "This is the answering service. You'll have to call back in the morning for reservations."

I gulped and hung up. Then I called the operator to explain the situation. "Was it a recording?"

she asked.

"No," I said. "A lady answered."

"I'm sorry," the operator replied. "You'll be charged with it."

Well we figured that piece of information cost us $1.25. Then there was another call the next day when we finally got the steamship company and made our reservations as we should have done to begin with.

No doubt every reader will have discovered now that your columnist is on vacation by the time this is published.

There is to be a motor trip to Miami where we'll catch the ship to Nassau. The Bahama Star appears to be quite a vessel, according to the brochures at any rate. It has four decks and four saloons among other facilities.

The entire cruise including two days in Nassau requires three days.

Your columnist will be down on C deck, just one deck from the bottom on the cruise ship.

Above that will be B, A and the Promenade Decks. This last includes a thing called the Bahama Suite, which is the luxury accommodations of the ship.

Unfortunately this was taken when we called.

"If a demonstration were needed that there is no faster way to make society stationary than to impose the same norm, the same average standard, or by allowing the most energetic and able people a standard of living only a little above the average, then the experiments in Great Britain and the Scandinavian countries have indeed provided it."—Westview (British Columbia) Powell River News.

"The individualist is unwilling to commit evil. For he sees clearly that a commission of an evil act by him will inspire another to return that act in kind. His only hope to gain, to profit, arises from his unwillingness to make himself into a target for retaliation. And rational men always recognize this and discipline themselves against inspiring such a contingency."—Santa Ana (Calif) Register.

And he is 100 per cent right. Eastern Carolina has the soil resources, the rainfall, the temperature and capital to get the most out of the land. It must be handled in best business fashion, and with a determination to get above the level of mediocrity in whatever may be one's undertaking.

Other Editors Saying Future Is In Farming

(Hertford County Herald)

Without discounting any of the efforts that have been made, are being made and the considerable amount of money and talk that is spent in striving for new industry for this area to bring about a better balance of employment between agriculture and industry, the fact remains that agriculture is and will remain the basic industry of this section.

Soil and climate combine to make the earth our greatest resource. Our greatest opportunity for improving our economic position lies in making the best of this resource, greater and more lasting than any deposits of minerals or oils or precious substances.

The following from the Oxford Public Ledger tells the remainder of the story:

George B. Watson is a young man with a lot of business acumen. For several years he has been a successful breeder and producer of certified seed. During a field day gathering at the Watson Seed Farm this week, at Rocky Mount, he made a statement that should prompt both thought and action.

"If we're going to improve the Eastern North Carolina economy in the next 10 years, it has got to be done through agriculture," Watson said.

And he is 100 per cent right. Eastern Carolina has the soil resources, the rainfall, the temperature and capital to get the most out of the land. It must be handled in best business fashion, and with a determination to get above the level of mediocrity in whatever may be one's undertaking.

Watson has his own ideas as to how the situation can be improved. "If every farmer in North Carolina would do as well this year as the state's better farmers did last year, farm income of North Carolina would go up by $200 million in a single season," he contended.

How is this to be accomplished? By inspired leadership of a boldness that reflects through the maze of disappointments and dejections that bring less than total effort at doing a good job in agriculture. It must be accomplished by the development of new ideas and concepts and the application of ideas and concepts that have been tried.

There must be a periodic re-examination of old methods and an exploration of the new; an eager willingness to utilize knowledge gained from research.

Eastern North Carolina's economy cannot be improved by stumbling aimlessly along. It must come from bold determination to advance with the times, to make changes, and to do better in the science of planting, cultivating, harvesting, marketing and all the rest.

Obsolete equipment must be replaced and new efficiency acquired in use of labor and all the other resources that go into agricultural production and marketing.

Agriculture in Eastern North Carolina cannot become a sideline. It must be the main business of the region and it must be handled in best business fashion, and with a determination to get above the level of mediocrity in whatever may be one's undertaking.

By ELMER ROESSNER

Some of the hysteria is gone out of the do-it-yourself market. In the decade after World War II, doing-it-yourself became the national mania. Hobby shops, tool rental shops, wood and aluminum shops opened on the thoroughfares. Manufacturers vied with one another with power tool production. Do-it-yourself courses and do-it-yourself clubs popped up in cities and suburbs. There were even firms that would finish jobs after do-it-yourselfers had chickened out.

The boom faded. Many of the businesses that had depended on a fad to carry them on forever quietly signed over assets to creditors. My neighborhood hardware store discontinued its enormous rack of aluminum extrusions, from which you could make almost anything at only slightly higher cost than you could buy it at Monkey Ward's.

JUST SETTLED DOWN

But doing it yourself is not dead. It has just settled down into a business and a way of life that gets along without all of the excitement, fanfare and hysteria that forced some perfectly good book-type males into pretending they were masculine masters of skills and tools. And oh, alas for those severed finger joints!

DIY sales are now substantial though not quite so spectacular.

A survey by the Census Bureau shows that in 1960, owners of one- to four-family homes spent $9.5 billion for repairs and upkeep of which almost $3 billion went for materials which the owners used in doing for themselves.

That means about $6.5 billion of the home repair and improvement work was done by contractors. But if the value of the labor of do-it-yourselfers is added to the $3 billion in materials, then the DIY work about equalled the contract work. In other words, about half the total home repair and improvement work last year was done by owners.

MORE TO COME

That $3 billion includes only materials for home repairs. It

Endorse If You Wish

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The mail brings all sorts of things, including a very well printed brochure about endorsements. The brochure fills a great hole in my sum of knowledge. I have often wondered how a soap, a face powder, a cigarette and even beer manages to get itself endorsed by all sorts of great men and women. For instance, sometimes I see a man endorsing cigarettes when I know that he only smokes cigars. One day, I shall see an endorsement of a soap by a Beatnik.

So it seems that this is an organized business like everything else in these parts. On Madison Avenue is an agency which finds endorsers. They list all sorts of people as endorsers—the Duchess of Windsor, Eddie Rickenbacker, Betsy Palmer, Sherman Billingsley, General Douglas MacArthur. It is said in the brochure that the endorsers are screened as meticulously as the FBI, but it is to be hoped, not for the same reasons. The agency boasts that it has found 10,000 famous persons to endorse 7,500 different products.

Nothing is said in the brochure as to how much an endorser is paid. One may assume that some distinguished persons endorse a product free of charge but that lesser persons are less modest and demand a goodly fee. The brochure says:

"I represented . . . Company that gave a $1,000 watch each year to the American who distinguished himself most in service to this country. . . . MacArthur returned from Japan. I phoned him, had to hold the telephone for forty-six minutes, and finally an aide agreed to give me five minutes. General MacArthur agreed to accept it. This was the first and only time that this great American general ever let his name be used in an ad."

Naturally, General MacArthur never did it again, for he is not likely to support any more lost causes.

On one page it is said that celebrities fear the collector of endorsers more than gossip columnists. Is that good or bad? Gossip columnists are only to be feared by the gully and by restaurant-owners who lose customers who prefer to eat their food in peace without a rubber-neck coming up to the table, to make a fifth wheel. Most of their material, however, comes from those who wish to be better known, for good or evil, than they should be. If it makes them happy, let them have their day in paradise.

But why should one fear a collector of endorsers? Of his work, he says:

"He has teams of capable and smart young interviewers who contact celebrities to find out what soaps, toothpaste, automobiles, hair tonic, they actually use; their favorite smokes and drinks."

This is indeed a soap occupation, except when Grace Kelly was used to endorse a soap and later announced that "soap of any kind never touches my face."

Politicians have to be careful about what they endorse. For instance, Vice President Garner used to endorse a certain brand of bourbon whiskey. Garner, I am told, no longer drinks whiskey having attained the age of four score and ten and he can do without the stuff. However, I am told that his humor is unimpaired; therefore it is not likely that he will endorse any product, particularly not one on how to be a politician at 90.

I found this brochure on endorsements particularly interesting because it gave the show away. I often wondered, as many must do, how these arrangements were made, bringing together the maker of a soap and a good-looking girl whose beauty is a gift from heaven. The list cannot endorse soap, but he can endorse a cigar or a baby carriage. The latter would be particularly popular for politicians if they were also made in America.

The mail brings its quota each day of the serious things in life—how men and women earn their livelihoods, how they think up gimmicks and devices and how they arrange to take in those who are unwary or are gentle and believe everything that comes their way. The mail

Opinions In Brief

"The individualist is unwilling to commit evil. For he sees clearly that a commission of an evil act by him will inspire another to return that act in kind. His only hope to gain, to profit, arises from his unwillingness to make himself into a target for retaliation. And rational men always recognize this and discipline themselves against inspiring such a contingency."—Santa Ana (Calif) Register.

And he is 100 per cent right. Eastern Carolina has the soil resources, the rainfall, the temperature and capital to get the most out of the land. It must be handled in best business fashion, and with a determination to get above the level of mediocrity in whatever may be one's undertaking.

Watson has his own ideas as to how the situation can be improved. "If every farmer in North Carolina would do as well this year as the state's better farmers did last year, farm income of North Carolina would go up by $200 million in a single season," he contended.

How is this to be accomplished? By inspired leadership of a boldness that reflects through the maze of disappointments and dejections that bring less than total effort at doing a good job in agriculture. It must be accomplished by the development of new ideas and concepts and the application of ideas and concepts that have been tried.

There must be a periodic re-examination of old methods and an exploration of the new; an eager willingness to utilize knowledge gained from research.

Eastern North Carolina's economy cannot be improved by stumbling aimlessly along. It must come from bold determination to advance with the times, to make changes, and to do better in the science of planting, cultivating, harvesting, marketing and all the rest.

Obsolete equipment must be replaced and new efficiency acquired in use of labor and all the other resources that go into agricultural production and marketing.

Agriculture in Eastern North Carolina cannot become a sideline. It must be the main business of the region and it must be handled in best business fashion, and with a determination to get above the level of mediocrity in whatever may be one's undertaking.

Do-It-Yourself Fad Now Stable

By ELMER ROESSNER

Some of the hysteria is gone out of the do-it-yourself market. In the decade after World War II, doing-it-yourself became the national mania. Hobby shops, tool rental shops, wood and aluminum shops opened on the thoroughfares. Manufacturers vied with one another with power tool production. Do-it-yourself courses and do-it-yourself clubs popped up in cities and suburbs. There were even firms that would finish jobs after do-it-yourselfers had chickened out.

The boom faded. Many of the businesses that had depended on a fad to carry them on forever quietly signed over assets to creditors. My neighborhood hardware store discontinued its enormous rack of aluminum extrusions, from which you could make almost anything at only slightly higher cost than you could buy it at Monkey Ward's.

JUST SETTLED DOWN

But doing it yourself is not dead. It has just settled down into a business and a way of life that gets along without all of the excitement, fanfare and hysteria that forced some perfectly good book-type males into pretending they were masculine masters of skills and tools. And oh, alas for those severed finger joints!

DIY sales are now substantial though not quite so spectacular.

A survey by the Census Bureau shows that in 1960, owners of one- to four-family homes spent $9.5 billion for repairs and upkeep of which almost $3 billion went for materials which the owners used in doing for themselves.

That means about $6.5 billion of the home repair and improvement work was done by contractors. But if the value of the labor of do-it-yourselfers is added to the $3 billion in materials, then the DIY work about equalled the contract work. In other words, about half the total home repair and improvement work last year was done by owners.

MORE TO COME

That $3 billion includes only materials for home repairs. It does not include materials for photography, boat building, sports car rebuilding, basket weaving, oil and watercolor painting, gardening and thousands of other I-did-it! projects. The Census figure seems to substantiate private estimates that total DIY spending is around $9 billion to $10 billion a year.

And that market is growing. Unemployment totals are high, 5,000,000 at the mid-April tally. And experts say that while there will be improvement (but not this month when graduates are being turned loose), a heavy total will be with us for years to come.

Now of all the do-it-yourselfers, the unemployed are the do-inest. It's been an old American tradition that the unemployed do more things for themselves than other people. In the first place, they are often men of skills; many of them want to keep these skills supple by using them when out of work.

Furthermore, in those industries where layoffs are common, workers are accustomed to use those periods for labor to their own advantage. How many a wife has been told, "Sure I'll paint the dining room for you, I'll do it the next time I'm laid off."

So with some of the fantasies shaken out of the DIY market, and fewer suppliers offering happiness in stringing Indian wampum beads and similar projects, there are prospects of steady sales for years ahead. And the probability of continuing unemployment suggests a steady growth in the market.

And what do you make or sell that could be promoted better in this field.

U. S. FAMILIES INCREASE BY 1-20TH OF A PERSON

The average size of the American family in 1950 was 3.60 and 3.63 percent in 1960, according to the Census Bureau. That's an average increase of about one foot.

It may be assumed that the typical family consists of a father, mother, one nice child and a second child who is 25 percent nastier.

C.V. Team Drops Bankers By 6-4

College View and Pepsi-Cola came through with wins yesterday in Team League action. The laundrymen downed Planters Bank by a 6-4 score, while the soft-drink team dubbed State Bank, 5-1.

A two-run homer in the top of the eighth inning by rightfielder Steve Forbis gave College View its win. Both teams had scored four runs each at the end of the regular game, sending them into extra innings.

After leadoff batter Sammy Tayloe had struck out, second baseman Frank Moyer reached first base on an error by Planters Bank shortstop Mike Morton. That set the stage for Forbis' four-bagger and the game-winning knock.

The winners held a 2-0 lead after three and one-half innings, but Planters Bank rallied in the fourth, scoring three runs to take a 3-2 lead. College View came back with two runs in the top of the fifth, but the losers tallied one run to knot the count a 4-4.

Neither team scored in the sixth or seventh frame.

Gainie credit for the win was Doug Nichols, who relieved starter Jim Mullins in the fourth inning. The loss was charged to Rodney Knowles, who went the distance for the losers.

Leading an eight-hit assault at the plate for the winners were Bill Johnson with three for four, Jim Gilliam with three for five, and Forbis with two for four.

Swinging the big bats for the losers were Mike Regan with two hits in four trips to the plate, and Knowles, who homered in the fifth with no one aboard.

Billy Crawford threw a nifty two-hitter at State Bank to insure a 5-1 win for Pepsi-Cola. Crawford failed to issue a free pass and struck out five in going the distance for the winners.

With the score tied at 1-1 after four innings of play, the winners broke the ice in the fifth, scoring four big runs to clinch the victory. There were only two hits in the fifth frame for Pepsi-Cola, eight free passes and a series of passed balls accounted for the scoring barrage.

Leading the winners at the plate were Mike Cavendish with three hits in four trips, and Reid Kennedy with two for three.

The loss was charged to Tommy Jordan, who was relieved in the fifth by Billy Cannon.

Tennis Lessons To Be Given Free

The Greenville Recreation Commission has announced that free tennis instructions will be given each afternoon from 3 to 6 at the Elm Street Park tennis court for ages 8-18.

Instruction will begin Monday, June 26, under the guidance of Miss Gayle Clapp. Participants are requested to bring their own equipment.

CLOUTING CATCHER..... by Pap'

"Weight down; batting average of the Indians last summer. He UP" That's John Romano's simple explanation of his torrid batting pace which has kept him right up with the league leaders all spring. In 54 games, the Indians' catcher pounded out 62 hits for a .325 average, so one might be wiser to listen to Romano's message on physical fitness. At the slightest provocation, John will pull out the waist-line of his pants to show that he has whittled off more than 20 pounds. He is justly proud of his new trim-slim figure which has increased his speed and added power to his bat.

Press Romano a bit and he will admit that the diet-and-exercise bit was not entirely his own idea. As a matter of fact, John was so enthusiastic about the project when Manager Jimmy Dykes ordered him to get down below 200 pounds. That was shortly after Dykes took over as manager.

LITTLE LEAGUE

The Exchange Club won an 8-7 victory over the Elks on the Elm Street Park diamond in Little League action yesterday.

A home run by Richard Gaylord in the first inning drove in Gary Bostic for a total of two runs. The winners scored again in the second frame and gained four more runs in the third inning off a single and an error with three men on. The final run

Play Tonight

Greenville's Post 39 American Legion Juniors go after their sixth straight win tonight when they travel to Roanoke Rapids for a league contest.

Since losing their season opener to league-leading Rocky Mount, the locals have knocked off five opponents in succession. Twice the victims of Greenville's assault has been the Roanoke Rapids team, and Post 39 Coach Bud Phillips has hopes that tonight will mark the third loss for RR at the hands of his crew.

On Monday night, the locals hit the road again, this time to Rocky Mount in the game that the 39ers have been waiting for since their opening 3-1 loss. If Greenville gets by Roanoke Rapids tonight, the contest between them and Rocky Mount will shape up as the one which may decide the league winner.

If Greenville defeats both Roanoke Rapids and Rocky Mount, it will throw the league race into a two-way tie. It could work out that Greenville fans may have a championship game right in their own backyard when Rocky Mount plays here on Saturday, July 1st.

Football Clinic Scheduled At ECC

The East Carolina Football Coaching Clinic will be held in the library auditorium on the campus from 7:30-9:30 p.m. June 27-29.

At 8:30 Bill McDonald will discuss offensive line play, drills, and pass and punt protection.

ECL Game Here Sunday P.M.

Sunday's Eastern County League schedule includes Leggett and Greenville in their fifth meeting of the season in Guy Smith Stadium at 2:30 p.m. To date the Greenville team has a record of 8 wins and 10 losses.

Following is the starting team for Greenville: Jim Ferns, shortstop; Spencer Gaylord, second base; John Harrison, third base; Merrill Bynum, first base; Billy Cooper, catcher; Carl Pollard, centerfield; Walter Smith, first base; Linwood Cates, right field; Nathan Green, pitcher.

Four Face Trial In Game-Fixing Cases In N.C.

DURHAM (AP) — Four men face trial in Durham Superior Court on charges connected with the college basketball game-fixing scandal.

Three will be confronted with extradition proceedings to bring them from New York to North Carolina.

The fourth, Lou Brown, 21, of Jersey City, N.J., former University of North Carolina player, was arrested Friday night in Raleigh and released under $3,000 bond.

The others are Gerald Vogel, Bronx, N.Y., former University of Alabama player, and Aaron Wagman and Joseph Green, both New York City gamblers.

They were indicted by the Durham County Grand Jury Friday and charged with conspiracy to bribe players to shave points or throw games.

Solicitor William Murdock said the four plotted Dec. 4, 1959, in a Durham hotel to bribe players to affect the outcome of college games.

As a result of the meeting, Murdock said, "a number of other players were in turn contacted with the result being that points were shaved in several games."

The grand jury did not disclose information pertaining to specific games and individual players involved in the alleged game-fixing.

Murdock said Green and Wagman will be extradited from New York City when officials there dispose of cases against them. Vogel also faces extradition proceedings, he added.

Before returning true bills charging the four men with "conspiracy to bribe college basketball players in an attempt to influence their play, performance and actions in intercollegiate basketball games," the grand jury heard from five State Bureau of Investigation agents.

Cleveland Indians Riding Slump, Drop 9 Of 12; Tigers Still Hot

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Is that a bunch of dead injuncts back there in third place in the American League Race?

After winning 10 in a row and 13 of 15 for a 1 1/2 game lead, Cleveland has lost nine of 12 in little more than a week. And the Tribe's once sturdy pitching staff suddenly has given up 41 runs in three games.

The first place Detroit Tigers laid it on Friday night, romping off with a 15-7 victory in the opener of a four-game set at Cleveland and dropping the now third place Indians four games behind with their fifth straight defeat.

The Tigers walloped four home runs among 15 hits and padded their lead to two games over New York when the Minnesota Twins, pairing Camilo Pascual's six-hit pitching with Harmon Killebrew's four RBIs in Sam Mele's debut as manager, defeated the Yankees 4-0.

Boston beat Kansas City and Baltimore defeated the Los Angeles and the Chicago White Sox got past Washington 4-3 for their 14th victory in 15 games.

In the National League, Cincinnati beat second place Los Angeles 5-4 for a three-game lead. Third place San Francisco lost 10-5 at St. Louis. Philadelphia caught fourth place Pittsburgh 12-11 and the Chicago Cubs stopped Milwaukee 5-3.

Billy Bruton, Rocky Colavito and Dick McAuliffe hit the homers for the Tigers with Bruton belting two and driving in four runs off loser Jim Perry (6-5).

Southpaw Don Mossi, whose lone defeat was by Cleveland, won his eighth, but needed relief help after giving up five home runs—all solo shots. Chuck Essegian hit two and Tito Francona, Bubba Phillips and Johnny Romano each cracked one.

While the Tigers were packing away their eighth victory in 10 games, the Yankees' winning streak ended at three. Pascual, who had lost six in a row, held home run leader Roger Maris hitless. Killebrew had three of the Twins' nine hits including his 20th home run, a two-run shot off loser Bob Turley (3-4).

Krauss (1-1), the $125,000 bonus right-hander who beat Los Angeles 4-0 with a three-hitter a week ago, ran his shutout string through 15 innings and blanked the Red Sox on two hits until Gary Geiger unloaded a three-run homer in the seventh. The rookie allowed three-hits in his seven frames. He gave up eight walks, but struck out seven and twice worked out of bases-loaded jams.

Pete Runnels' two-run homer, off reliever Jerry Walker, put it away for Boston in the eighth, giving the victory to Gene Canley (3-5).

The White Sox won their seventh in a row on consecutive doubles by Al Smith and Jim Landis in the eighth inning off loser Joe McClain (6-6). Reliever Warren Hacker saved the decision for Ray Herbert (6-6) by getting Billy Klaus to pop up with the tying run on third in the ninth. It was Washington's seventh straight defeat.

All-American Graduation Game Spotlights Big End

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Merv Luster, a 6-1, 190-pound end from UCLA, emerged from the first All-America graduation game—by far the earliest of all football games—as a prime professional prospect today.

He was the star of a star-studded Western team that beat the East 30-20 here last night, winning the Robert F. Kennedy most valuable player award, which was presented by the donor, the attorney general.

Luster, a draft choice of Los Angeles in the National Football League, gained more yards from scrimmage than anyone else on either team, backs or ends. He caught six passes from 120 yards, and scored the first touchdown of the game on a 47-yard toss from Bob Schloredt of Washington. The west was never headed.

legals all-stars that has been put together," said the Western coach, Jim Owens of Washington.

"This proves that the caliber of ball in college ranks is higher than ever."

Owens said no special defense was set for Joe Bellino of Navy, the ace of the Eastern backfield. Bellino was held to 8 yards in 2 rushes, and 25 yards on 4 passes—but he made 5 brilliant kick-off returns for 129 yards.

The game drew an estimated 19,000 despite inclement weather. The East marched 55 yards in the second quarter in 9 plays and scored on a 5 yard pass from Norm Sneed of Wake Forest to big Mike Dika of Pittsburgh to make it 7-6 at the half.

Then at the start of the third period with the ball on the East's own 7, Allen Green of Mississippi tried to punt but the kick was blocked and recovered in the end zone for a touchdown scored by last TD on a keeper.

zone for a touchdown by Roland Lakes of Wichita.

The West scored minutes later starting from a midfield interception with Bill Kilmer of UCLA doing the passing, culminating in an 8-yard touchdown toss to Tom Mason of Tulane.

The East then scored twice with a passing attack, and closed down the gap to 21-20. Fran Tarkenton of Georgia threw to Art Baker of Syracuse for a touchdown in the third period, and Tarkenton also tossed to Ted Moorman of Duke for a tally at the start of the fourth.

But when the East stopped a West drive on the goal line, Tarkenton was trapped in the end zone for a safety, and then Schloredt took over, throwing a 45-yarder to Aaron Thomas of Oregon State that carried to the 5.

From there Schloredt scored the last TD on a keeper.

READY!

Newspaper Advertising Readers Are Ready To Buy!

Newspaper readers are attracted to your advertising because it interests them. They are more apt to be live, "ready-to-buy" prospects than is the case with readers and viewers of other advertising media.

Live prospects are easier to sell. They actually shop the newspaper ads—they want to be sold, and are looking for information to help make a buying decision. Take housewives, for example—research* proves that 75% of them check the ads in the daily newspaper before making their main shopping trips of the week.

It's that kind of readiness on the part of newspaper readers that can mean ready sales for you!

Survived 5 Hungry Days, Lost In Woods

SCHROON LAKE, N.Y. (AP)—For five days the frail but wiry old man walked through woods and swamps, looking for a way out. The silent Adirondack Mountains offered no clue.

But Jay Kendall, 79, kept calm. He charmed a bear that followed him, by giving it the trout he had caught. While resting, he wrapped his face and neck with a canvas bag and covered his hands with brush to fend off insect hordes.

He drank water from brooks and rationed his four small pieces of candy (Life Savers) to one a day. The only other food he had was a loaf, eaten raw.

He shrank from 135 to 113 1/2 pounds.

He survived.

No Contracts For 25 Teachers

MARS HILL, N.C. (AP)—Twenty-five teachers in the Mars Hill school district did not return signed contracts to teach there next year.

The deadline for the contracts was midnight Friday.

In the controversy surrounding the firing of Principal Ralph E. Neill Jr., 30 teachers at the school pledged not to return unless Neill and all teachers were offered contracts for next year.

Gov. Terry Sanford mediated the dispute — which had resulted in a school boycott by students — and recommended that Neill be rehired. He was.

But the 25 teachers withheld their contracts because the school board failed to rehire coach Clyde Peek, agricultural teacher G. E. McIntire and fifth grade teacher Mrs. Gladys Ammons, according to Henry Clay Edwards. Edwards was one of the teachers to whom no contract was offered recently but later the board did offer him one.

By Friday afternoon, the board had received only seven signed contracts: one from Neill, five from present teachers and one from a new applicant.

Feuding Princes To Again Seek Harmony

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—The three feuding princes of Laos called a meeting today to try for some agreement on the disputed international control commission designed to guard neutrality for their war-torn country.

Powers and duties of the commission are the most controversial issue facing the Geneva conference on Laos.

The Russians have submitted proposals envisaging truce teams subject to Communist veto. The West demands a commission with powers to act independently by majority rule.

In the communique issued Thursday at the end of their four-day meeting here the princes—pro-Western Premier Boun Oum, pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebel chief Souphanouvong and his self-styled neutralist ally, Souvanna Phouma—made no mention of the control commission.

The princes plan to meet in Laos to discuss the make-up of a coalition government. No date for that meeting has been announced.

Conference sources indicated that if the princes fail to agree quickly on a government, the conference may adjourn until they do.

Wang Winds Up Last Day Here

Pitt County ASC office manager Wayne L. Wang yesterday completed his last day in the local position he has held for about a year and a half.

Wang, who recently was named to a post in the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office, is scheduled to report to the Raleigh office Monday.

His new position, assistant chief of the Raleigh office's Administrative Division, represents an advancement up the ASC ladder for Wang.

Wang will serve as assistant to Weldon Denny, chief of the division. He will also be working closely with State ASC chief A. Pierson Hassell, another former Pitt ASC office manager.

B. Livingston Robert, Wang's assistant for more than a year, Monday will step into the Pitt office manager post. A new assistant manager, Joseph A. Schlegel, is scheduled to succeed Roberts on July 3. Schlegel is current ASC office manager for New Hanover County.

In leaving the Pitt post, Wang again expressed "my sincere appreciation to the farmers of Pitt County for their fullest cooperation." He also expressed "full confidence" in the "capabilities of Mr. Roberts in handling the office efficiently." He said, "I'm sure the farmers will get the service that belongs to them under the ASC program."

Wang, a Greenville resident at 1204 S. Wright Rd., plans to move his family to the Capital City "as soon as arrangements can be made."

Both Kennedy and Stevenson have commented on this.

Not long after he returned from Latin America in 1960 Stevenson said: "This is the great struggle of our century, and if the free way of life doesn't help the many poor of this world it will never save the few rich."

Kennedy used almost those identical words later in his inaugural address when he said: "If the free society cannot help the many who are poor, it cannot save the few who are rich."

Remodeling Job On ASC Office Nearly Finished

A $165,000 remodeling job in the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office here is scheduled for completion by June 30, office manager Wayne L. Wang said yesterday.

The project, financed by the Pitt County ASC Committee, is enlarging the work space of the local office by around 150 square feet.

Included in the remodeling is a 120-square-foot addition on the north side of the existing office in the County Office Building on Johnston St.

According to Wang, the project will enlarge the general work area to allow more working space for the ASC clerks, add a pair of exits and a new ladies' rest room.

Wang said 100 per cent of the funds used for the project—approved by the County Commissioners—come from ASC.

The finished job will include lighting, painting, plastering and floor tiling of the remodeled and added area.

The project got underway this week.

Doubtful If As Much Fun Outside Nursery School

By SARAH H. KIRKPATRICK
East Carolina College
News Bureau Staff Writer

Commencement exercises held recently in schools, colleges, and universities of the state have ushered in vacation days for many students. Along with their elders, sixteen pupils who attended East Carolina College's Nursery School in the spring quarter are enjoying summer days out of the classroom.

East Carolina's Nursery School, sponsored by the college Home Economics Department, is one of the outstanding schools of its kind in the state. Located in one wing of the Flanagan Classroom Building on the campus, the Nursery School was established in 1938.

regular school year. Boys and girls from 3 to 4 years of age attend the four-hour nursery school period and participate in a well-planned program each school day.

Miss Ruth Lambie of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, who joined the East Carolina College faculty in 1947, is director of the Nursery School. She attended Carnegie Institute of Technology at Pittsburgh, where she received the B. S. degree, and was graduated from the University of Chicago with the M.S. degree.

Students, specializing in home economics at East Carolina, are required to take the senior course "The Nursery School Child." While engaged in this program, they spend six hours in the Nursery School each week. Their work provides practical experience in child care and nursery school techniques through such activities as directing play and rest periods, arranging music and story hours, planning and preparing meals for children, and directing field trips.

Assisting Miss Lambie and receiving training in Nursery School work during the spring quarter were the following home economics students: Bernice M. Baker of Rt. 5, Reidsville; Carolyn H. Dougherty of Rt. 2, Dover; Jessie C. Ellis of Rt. 3, Tarboro; Patricia Gail Evans of Rt. 1, Selma; Sylvia Ann Freeman, Washington; June Smith Haddock of Rt. 2, Grimsland; Roberta Estelle Harrison, Williamston; Bonnie Burch Hicks, Walstonburg; Geraldine Jones of Rt. 1, Snow Hill; Jean Joyner of Rt. 2, Zebulon; Peggy Louise Lane, Gates; Mary Sue Littrell, Macesfield; Rachel Parker, Kinston; Dorothy Elynn Price of Rt. 4, Mt. Olive; Patricia Swindle, Swan Quarter; Vivian Loreta, Traywick of Rt. 1, Peachland; and Elizabeth Wilson of Rt. 2, Whiteville.

What do the youngsters learn? They learn the creativeness of art and practice this means of development by drawing and painting while enrolled in the Nursery School. They also learn musical sounds having rhythm and melody, and they practice the art of poetry set and sung to music.

Realizing the importance of the scientific age, Miss Lambie and the home economics students teach beginning science to the little tots. They learn to care for the animal kingdom, to observe the growth of plants, and to respect the beauty of nature.

What goes on in the Nursery School? The spring-quarter program gives an idea of the activities of the sixteen Greenville children who were enrolled.

A typical day begins at 9 a.m. The bell rings. "Bang," "Bang" is the greeting sound of Brian Gray's gun as he enters the door, dressed in his cowboy suit, to begin his morning activities. His playmates, Julian Vainwright, Jr., and David Madigan, seeing that "Marshall Dillon" has arrived, travel on their broom ponies to salute him.

To the right of the airy room, engineers Samuel Faber, George Martin, III, and Charles Clark, are building a runway out of blocks for the jet plane which is to be launched. Having difficulty in meeting the date line for the construction of the runway, the young gentlemen "yell" to Robin Faber to fill up the truck with more clay and stones.

"Good morning, boys," and comes the voice of Miss

Lambie, a skillful and well-trained teacher. During the morning she will take time out to observe the home economics seniors as they guide and direct the children's play from behind a screen which enables her to watch without being seen.

Linus Ray Martinez, seeing that his teacher has arrived, rushes over to greet her. He wants to play a game which requires Miss Lambie to guess what he is holding behind his back. "It's a pencil," she says. "No," he replies. "It's a ball," she adds. "Yes," he exclaims!

The visitor walks to the opposite side of the room. Keeping abreast of President Kennedy's daughter, Caroline, with the latest in fashion, Eleanor Adams, Joanna Drake, Sharon Lautares, and Catherine Garrett are seen engrossed in a round-table discussion over the crayon sketches of the "Little Lady's" wardrobe.

The writer, distracted by the loud sound of a bell, hears Elizabeth Jenkins shout, "It's clean-up time!" Each child quickly assists in placing his or her toys on a designated shelf.

After hard play comes the coffee break, so they say! Orange juice and crackers are served to the children during the social gathering.

Hurrying to the music room, the children, forming a circle in the room, practice the art of poetry set and sung to composition. With their arms gracefully above their heads, Rosemary Stocks, Catherine Stokes, and Sarah Sugg sing and dance to "Here We Go around the Mulberry Bush."

Freedom from the activity of the morning is observed in tranquility rest. Rugs are scattered on the floor for the quiet-play period. The children listen to stories which are read and to recorded music.

Having enjoyed a full morning of activity, the little ones are served lunch, and the Nursery School day ends.

Playing and learning together is a valuable experience to youngsters in the Nursery School. For home economics students the association with children and the opportunity to observe the three-and-four-year-olds as they adjust to the social and learning situations of the school are equally valuable.

At the Nursery School there is always a waiting list — a fact which indicates that parents are well aware of the benefits which children derive from the well-planned program of activities offered there.

Catherine Clay Stokes (left to right), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Stokes of Greenville, and Julian R. Vainwright Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian R. Vainwright of Greenville, practiced the art of painting in a modern abstract mode during the play period of the spring quarter at the East Carolina College Nursery School. Observing the paintings is Bonnie Burch Hicks of Walstonburg, home economics student at the college, who helped guide and direct the children's talent for art.

Long, Hard Look Into Future

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Greenville's Utilities Commission will take a long look at its overall operations, both in past and future, if Chairman Charles Horne's outline of things to do for the coming year is followed.

Included is the creation of offices of comptroller, personnel director and public relations director. Chairman Horne would also have the commission do a comprehensive analysis of commercial and industrial electrical rates and prepare a detailed plan for operations of the Utilities during hurricanes.

There would be a start toward development of a promotional program of Utilities facilities and its special rates. A long-range program of capital improvements would be prepared along with a progress report to cover the Utilities growth over the past 10 to 15 years.

Some of Horne's proposed projects would look into problems that have bothered various commission members for a long time. One is the continued operation of the electric power production facilities now that the commission buys much of its power from Virginia Electric and Power Co. The idea has been advanced that the commission could buy power as cheap as it could produce it.

Comparison of Rates
The study of electrical rates should include a comparison study of several Eastern North Carolina rates schedules. Based on this study Horne says recommendations for any possible revision in these rates should be made.

The chairman calls for developing a comprehensive plan for promotion of Utilities facilities and special rates.

"The basic aim would be to (a) aid consumer in using the most economical methods (b) to encourage greater use of services thereby lowering unit costs.

"The program should include not only radio, newspaper and television promotion but also a training program for employees — all directed toward improving public relations and providing more economical service."

Horne suggests a "commissioners file" for each of the five commission members in which various policies and policy changes could be filed.

Finally Horne suggests something which any business would like to see: increase operating efficiency of all departments through closer supervision by management and developing programs to cut down or utilize effectively non-productive labor.

Sewage Disposal Plant
Horne's projects list calls for putting the new sewage disposal plant in operation and beginning a sewer charge to finance the operation.

Creation of an office of comptroller seems to be a big part of Horne's plan. He describes this office as a "separate function responsible directly to the Commission."

As for the hurricane disaster plan, Horne suggests that it include the detail responsibility of each employee, methods of handling repairs, utilization of outside forces, control and coordination along with public relations.

"A simulated trial run should be made prior to the coming hurricane season," he states.

Young Africa
Now Tom Mboya, one of the most vital of the young leaders in East Africa, has attempted to answer these criticisms in an article in the "Atlantic" called "African Higher Education."

Though it does not appear that Mboya adequately refutes all the criticism on a logical level, still his article brings into sharp focus the feelings of young Africa about the educational problem.

First, there is the note of resentment against the colonial powers for making it so difficult for natives to finish secondary school, so that in East Africa only a fraction of one percent of those who began school under colonial rule ever graduated.

Coupled with this is almost a cry of desperation when Mboya contemplates the need for trained technicians and professional people in his area of the world. He is convinced that any education which almost any African can get in the US is desirable, in that it is better than what he could procure at home.

is thinking in terms of a crash program — short term needs which are "overwhelming," as he puts it. Next year he hopes to see at least 3,000 African college students studying in America. And after reading Mboya's article, one can only trust that his sense of urgency will evoke a generous measure of sympathy and cooperation from the American people.

Freud
The current "Atlantic" also contains a special supplement on the impact of Freud ("the most important scientific figure since Darwin") and of psychoanalysis upon modern life. This is important material, even though the casual reader might not get beyond the half-page of quotations from Freud's own ready pen.

Here are a couple of these quotes: "The goal of psychoanalysis is to substitute for neurotic misery ordinary human unhappiness." "Geniuses are unbearable people. You have only to ask my family to learn how easy I am to live with, so I certainly cannot be a genius." (From a psychological point of view, this last statement bears watching, in our opinion!)

The Bard
A perennially remarkable fact is manifesting itself again this year. That is the popularity of Shakespeare. Not only are the Shakespeare theaters at Stratford, England, Stratford, Connecticut, and Stratford, Ontario (where "Coriolanus," "Henry VIII," and "Love's Labour's Lost" are on the bill this summer) going full blast, but "As You Like It" has opened on Broadway, and thousands of amateur companies are busy with Bard throughout the world.

Under the classification of incidental intelligence is the report from Australia that the New English Bible has had the best publicity of any new book since the Kinsey Report.

And in Jerusalem a Biblical zoo has been established where one can see over 700 of the animals mentioned in the Bible. It would be worth the trip to see behemoth and leviathan.

From Washington according to "Saturday Review," comes word that the new definition of failure is a Yale man riding in an Edsel with a Nixon sticker on it.

And a new book called "Touch Football" has an introduction entitled "How the Kennedys Play It."

Communists Divert Interests Of 'The Iron Curtain Disney'

By JOHN FIEHN

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — The Walt Disney of the Communist world appears to be slipping into oblivion.

Informants claim that Jiri Trnka, creator of the world famous Czech puppet movies, is being sidetracked by the country's Communist rulers.

And officials admit that the 49-year-old Trnka is pulling out of the film business to concentrate on illustrating fairy-tale books.

Persons who know the heavy mustached puppet film artist say Trnka's troubles stem from the fact that he won't inject politics into his works.

"I can only do what I believe in," friends quote him as having told officials.

Trnka, painter, stage designer and book illustrator of considerable standing, entered films in 1945.

Three years later he scored his first major hits with a filmed interpretation of Hans Christian Andersen's "The Emperor and the Nightingale" and "The Czech Year," which received a gold medal as the best puppet film at the 1948 Venice film festival.

In all, he produced 10 puppet films, including "The Good Soldier Schwejk" depicting the humorous exploits of an Austrian soldier in World War I, one of his best full-length puppet features.

Trnka, his close friends say, has been inspired in a way by Walt Disney whom he admires as the greatest cartoon film maker of all time.

"But I wanted to be different from Disney," he is quoted by friends. "I wanted to go more into depth, I wanted to be more plastic than cartoon. Cartoons are not as lively as puppets."

Communist Czechoslovakia operates four puppet film studios.

Trnka is nominal head of one of them, but has been unofficially succeeded by his pupil, Stanislav Latal.

Lata calls Trnka "undoubtedly the best puppet film producer we ever had." But he will not comment on reports that his teacher is being cold-shouldered by the Communists.

Western informants say that Trnka, who likes good wines, beer and an occasional slyovick — the strong plum brandy — is too famous for the Communists to harm.

But, these informants say, since he is also very outspoken in his criticism, the authorities keep him out of the limelight as much as possible.

Authorities approached with requests for an interview with the greatest puppet film maker behind the Iron Curtain give negative replies, explaining: "Trnka isn't well; you don't want to see him while he's ill." And that's final.

Pharmacist In New Enterprise

LOVINGSTON, Va. (AP)—When Joseph H. Kilmarton moved to Lovington he never intended to do anything but practice his profession as a pharmacist.

But that was 14 years ago and before his well went dry.

When he deepened it from 75 to 166 feet he hit a real bonanza and water rose to within 26 feet of the surface. He began supplying neighbors.

Now he owns a water system with three wells, three electric pumps, a 100,000 gallon tank, 1 1/2 miles of pipe. He supplies 30 subscribers and seven fire hydrants.

Additional expenditures total about $700 a month, he says, but "we manage to get along and even save a little on what we get from the state gasoline tax, sales tax and so on."

"We've just about paid off a $14,000 bonded indebtedness and have never levied any taxes."

Eunice Johns was 9-year-old Eunice Winsted when she married 22-year-old Charlie Johns in 1937 in a wedding that touched off a national uproar. The Johnses, who have seven children, still live on a farm near here.

Yes, Virginia, A Taxless Town

SNEEDVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — This East Tennessee town of 789, once noted for child bride Eunice Johns, has something different to boast about.

It levies no city taxes and never has.

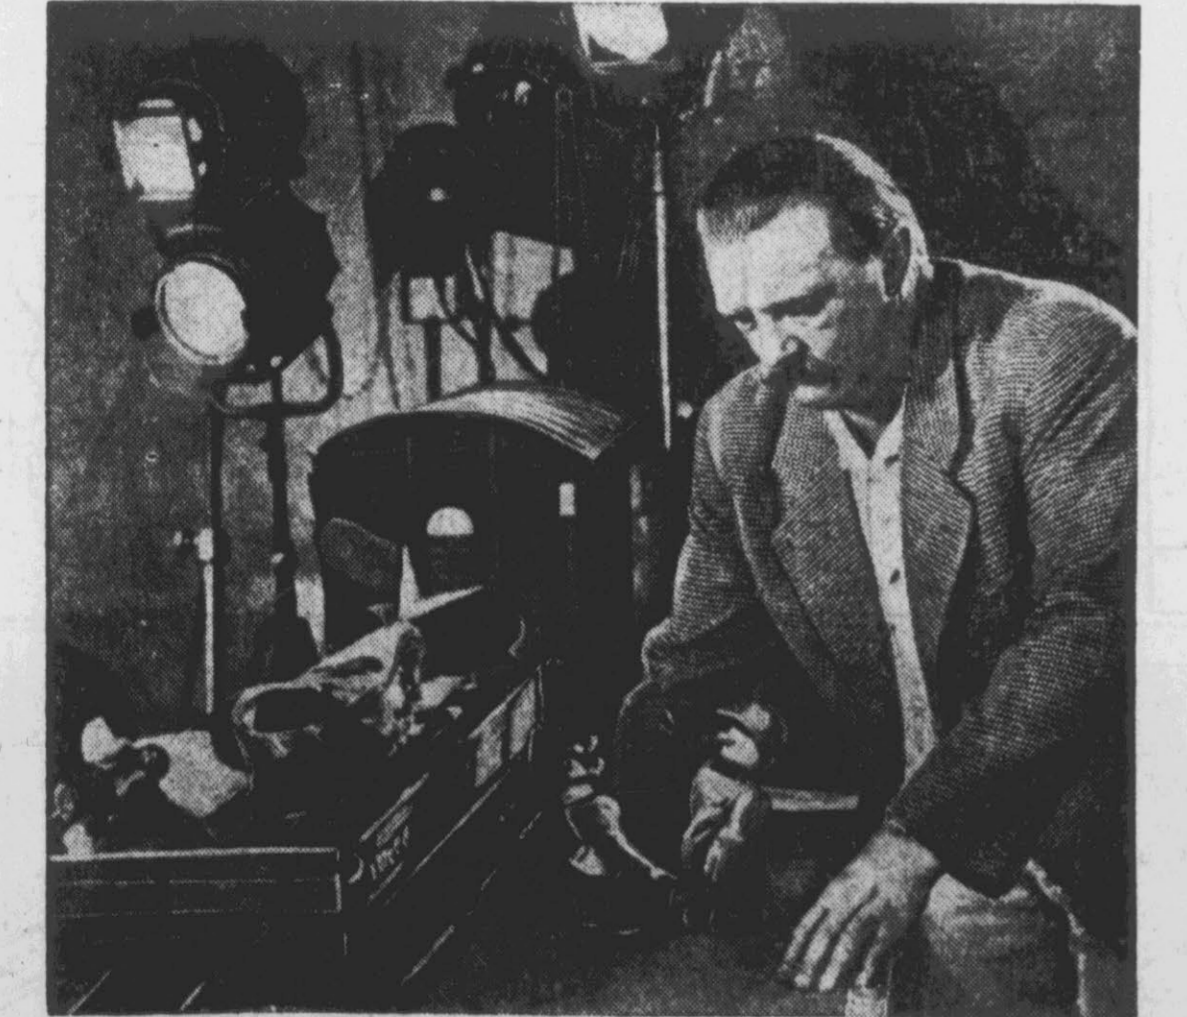

Mayor Roy Jarvis explains that he, the six city councilmen, the city recorder and the members of the volunteer fire department all work without pay.

"We pay only one salary," Jarvis says. "Our garbage collector."

Additional expenditures total about $700 a month, he says, but "we manage to get along and even save a little on what we get from the state gasoline tax, sales tax and so on."

Nixon's Appeal To Face Test In Talk To Young Republicans

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Richard M. Nixon tests his reception today at a national young Republican convention seemingly heavily weighted by GOP right-wingers rallying behind Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz. Goldwater got a cheering welcome Friday as he arrived to thump the Democratic administration for "weak-kneed" dealings with dictators.

The conservative idol said this might mean nuclear war in the long run. "But if we lose the cold war, it is the same as if a missile fell, or a nuclear weapon." A chant of "We want Barry!" surged across the audience as he started and finished his 45-minute off-the-cuff talk. One delegate waved a sign proclaiming "Goldwater and Jenner in '64." William Jenner was a conservative GOP senator from Indiana.

He added: "The people are sick and tired of our inept, weak-kneed manner of dealing with Communist dictators—even those only 90 miles off our southern coast." He said President Kennedy has made serious mistakes and that the country is uneasy. Goldwater predicted that Republicans could win control of Congress, saying, "I see more evidence each day of voters' disgust with inaction by the present administration on the international front and overaction by the administration in the affairs of individuals." Nixon will address the Pharmaceutical Advertising Club in New York Tuesday.

Some indication of the delegates' leanings will come today as they ballot on a new national chairman between Goldwater-backer Robert Hughes of Greenwood, Ind., and Len Nadassy of Minneapolis, a businessman who bills himself a "moderate conservative." Goldwater was interrupted by applause 18 times in a 45-minute speech Friday night as he told the convention the world faces an ultimate choice between worldwide communism or acceptance of man as "a free child of God."

False Entry Is Charged Banker

HEMINGWAY, S.C. (AP) — Frank D. Rogers, manager of the Anderson State Bank here, has been charged with making a false entry in the bank's books. The warrant was issued in Charleston Friday as a probe revealed a shortage that may total as much as $380,000. However, the warrant charges Rogers only in connection with an entry showing liabilities of $18,400.12 due depositors as interest on savings accounts. The warrant alleges "Rogers well knew that the figure was false and fraudulent" when the entry was made last Dec. 30. Rogers had not been located Friday night for service of the warrants. Asst. U.S. Atty. Arthur G. Howe said the shortage of funds in the bank was uncovered by an examination by the state banking examiner's office last May 15. He said the shortage totaled as much as $380,000. Ernest L. Anderson, president of the bank, said he thought the shortage would run "to several hundred thousand dollars." "But we are completely covered," he said, "and out stockholders and depositors are more than protected. We have $2,200,000 in insurance, plus federal deposit insurance. Anderson and his brother, B. B. Anderson, opened the bank 13 years ago after it had been a state depository under other management. It now has assets of $2,500,000.

DONALD BARR CHIDSEY'S New Historical Entertainment THE WICKEDEST PILGRIM

CHAPTER 31 The color leapt to Priscilla Mullins' face and neck when Sal Boyd said that he wanted to talk to her about marriage. She closed her eyes, not coyly but by instinct, as a defense; such was her confusion. When she replied it was in a low, even voice.

Several persons were passing on the Street—they called it only that, the Street—and they nodded and smiled encouragement. All the world, it was said, loves a lover. Sal was beginning to believe that.

So he sat silent for a while, staring out over Thievish Harbor toward the open bay, an easterly direction, the direction of home. "Sooner or later a sail's going to put in," he said at last. "They won't go on forgetting us. We're an investment, and men like that watch their investments."

GI Insurance Dividends High; But Why?

CHURCH SHAPING UP—The First Congregational Church, located on a high knoll, has become a landmark near Vancouver, Wash. Structure is designed to look like a "dove of peace" when the two wings are completed. The interior of the church is ultramodern.

WASHINGTON (AP)—How can the Veterans Administration pay such high dividends on its participating life insurance policies? That question comes up repeatedly, especially this year as the VA is paying not only its regular annual insurance dividends but also will pay a special dividend amounting to 80 per cent of the regular distribution.

3. Claims arising from extra hazardous military duty ultimately are paid from appropriated funds and not charged against the trust funds. The policies on which dividends are paid are largely U.S. Government Life Insurance (USGLI) primarily held by World War I veterans and National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) primarily held by World War II veterans.

Bitter UN Floor Fight On Council Seat Loom Anew

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A bitter floor battle between the Communists and the West loomed anew today over a disputed Security Council seat claimed by the east Europeans.

Two candidates splitting the term between them. Then Greece and Turkey were elected, in line with the Western contention that the term had a geographical rather than a political meaning.

In the 1955 assembly, the United States put forward the argument that the gentlemen's agreement had been intended only for the 1946 election to the council. It urged that the Eastern European seat swing between Eastern Europe, Asia and Africa.

Agriculture Dept. Acts To Halt $$ To Castro

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. government has made a deal to keep millions of dollars from flowing into Fidel Castro's Cuba for molasses. The Agriculture Department announced Friday it had signed a one-year contract with Publicker Chemical Corp. The terms: Publicker will stop importing Cuban molasses; in turn the Agriculture Department will sell to Publicker at a loss 14 million bushels of corn.

When it was announced that the deal had gone through and the shipment had arrived, Louisiana senators and congressmen protested sharply to Kennedy, who assigned an aide to check into the situation. The aide, White House lawyer Myer Feldman, worked out the agreement between Publicker and the Agriculture Department.

Under the contract, Publicker will pay 64 cents a bushel for the surplus corn—which Feldman said is of a poor quality that has deteriorated in government storage. The corn will be taken from stocks in which the government's investment is figured at $1.66 a bushel. The contract stipulates that all profits in excess of 2 per cent after taxes on products derived from the corn will revert to the government.
