Pitt Grand Jury Says Inequities Are 'Built In'

The Pitt County Grand Jury said yesterday that inequities in service on the jury it has previously pointed out are "built-in-inequities" created by the law and that jury lists and jury selections in Pitt County are made in accordance with the law of the state.

The information was contained in the report of the Grand Jury which was made yesterday afternoon after it conferred with Chairman Robert Little of the County Board of Commissioners, County Attorney W. W. Speight, and Clerk of Superior Court David T. House, Jr.

The three county officials were requested to appear before the Grand Jury yesterday to discuss the methods used in the selection of persons for jury duty in the county. In its report last January the Grand Jury recommended the Pitt County Commissioners review the system of juror selection, and in a more recent report it asserted that it still was hearing of cases in which some individuals have been called for jury duty in the county while others are repeatedly called. It asked that the Chairman of the Board of Commissioners appear before the Grand Jury yesterday to discuss the situation.

Little, Speight and House discussed the situation with members of the Grand Jury for approximately an hour and a half yesterday afternoon. Following their appearance the Grand Jury issued a report which said in regard to jury lists and jury selection it found:

"1. That the jury lists and selections are based upon current law of the state of North Carolina;

"2. That inequities of service in the jury such as have been previously pointed out by this Grand Jury are built-in-inequities created by the law which provides for selection by chance;

"3. That the law pertaining to this matter, in our opinion, guarantees the selection of impartial jurors in the interest of justice — but does not result in a proper distribution of jury service among the citizens by reason of the element of chance, for example the actual drawing of names slips by a child, prescribed by law;

"4. That the law upon which our system is based was originally passed in 1905;

"5. That the jury box now in use in this county in which the name scrolls prescribed by law, are placed in a box many years old and is not large enough to thoroughly mix the name scrolls placed therein.

"The Grand Jury as a result of the above findings, does not deem it within its power to make any recommendations other than the following:

"1. That the County Commissioners cause to be built a jury box to replace the one in use which will have a considerably larger capacity and thus more thoroughly mix the names prior to drawing.

"2. That continuing study be made of jury selection practices by succeeding Grand Juries to the end that where and when our jury laws can be up dated they will be.

Immediately following the appearance before the Grand Jury, Commission Chairman Little set in motion the building of a new box for the jury lists as recommended by the Grand Jury. He authorized Amos Evans of Greenville, a building contractor who is a member of the Grand Jury, to have the new box constructed in accordance with the Grand Jury recommendations.

After the appearance of the three county officials before the Grand Jury, Attorney Speight said the Grand Jury discussion centered around the question of why more people do not get called for jury duty, and why some citizens appear to be repeatedly called for jury duty. Speight said he explained to the Grand Jury that the jury lists are compiled every two years and consist of approximately 8,000 names of Pitt County citizens. From this list approximately 2,000 names are drawn every two years using the county tax list, telephone directories, church rolls, files in the office of the Register of Deeds, lists of service club members throughout the county as such other lists that are available, Speight said.

Names of jurors to serve at each term of court are drawn from the jury box by a child under 10 years of age as prescribed by law.

"I don't know of any better system," Speight commented. "I don't believe you can devise a better system than this. The system must be working because we are getting good juries." He pointed out that presiding judges of Superior Court in Pitt County have repeatedly praised the calibre of juries that serve in the County and said that only yesterday Judge Albert W. Cowper, presiding at the current

Jury - Drawing Is Done By Old Law

"When the law governing the selection of jurors was written they were still watering horses at Five Points and there probably weren't more than 500 names of prospective jurors in the County. Now there are some 8,000."

That was the expression of one member of the Grand Jury yesterday afternoon following the discussion of the Grand Jury with county officials over the matter of selection of citizens for jury duty.

The statement reflected the Grand Jury's assertion that the law governing the selection of jurors has "built-in-inequities". The section of the state code governing the drawing of jurors was originally passed about 1889 when the present jury system was adopted, and it was last amended in 1905. Pitt County Attorney W. W. Speight said a part of the law dates back to 1868. Most of the amendments since 1905, Speight said, concern the number of jurors drawn by counties for the various terms of courts rather than the method of drawing jurors.

Statements from individual members of the Grand Jury following the adjournment of its session yesterday afternoon reflected the feeling that compiling new jury lists less frequently than every two years as the present law requires might eliminate some of the inequities in the calling of citizens for jury duty. In recent reports the Grand Jury has pointed out that it has heard of cases in which some citizens who have lived in the county all their lives have never been called for jury duty, whereas others have been called repeatedly.

Under the present law, a new list of prospective jurors is compiled by the county every two years and the name of each individual is typed on a slip of paper and placed in the jury box. In compiling the list every two years Pitt County uses its tax list, telephone directories, church rolls, civic club rolls and other lists that are available, a county official said yesterday. Currently there are some 8,000 names of prospective jurors in the county's jury list.

Prior to each term of Superior Court names are drawn from the jury box by a child less than 10 years of age, under supervision of the County Commissioners. The names are recorded and the slips are placed in the second side of the two-sided jury box. Once a name has been drawn in a two-year period, it is not eligible to be drawn again until the beginning of another two-year period.

The names of those who serve as jurors are also recorded in records of the Clerk of Court's office.

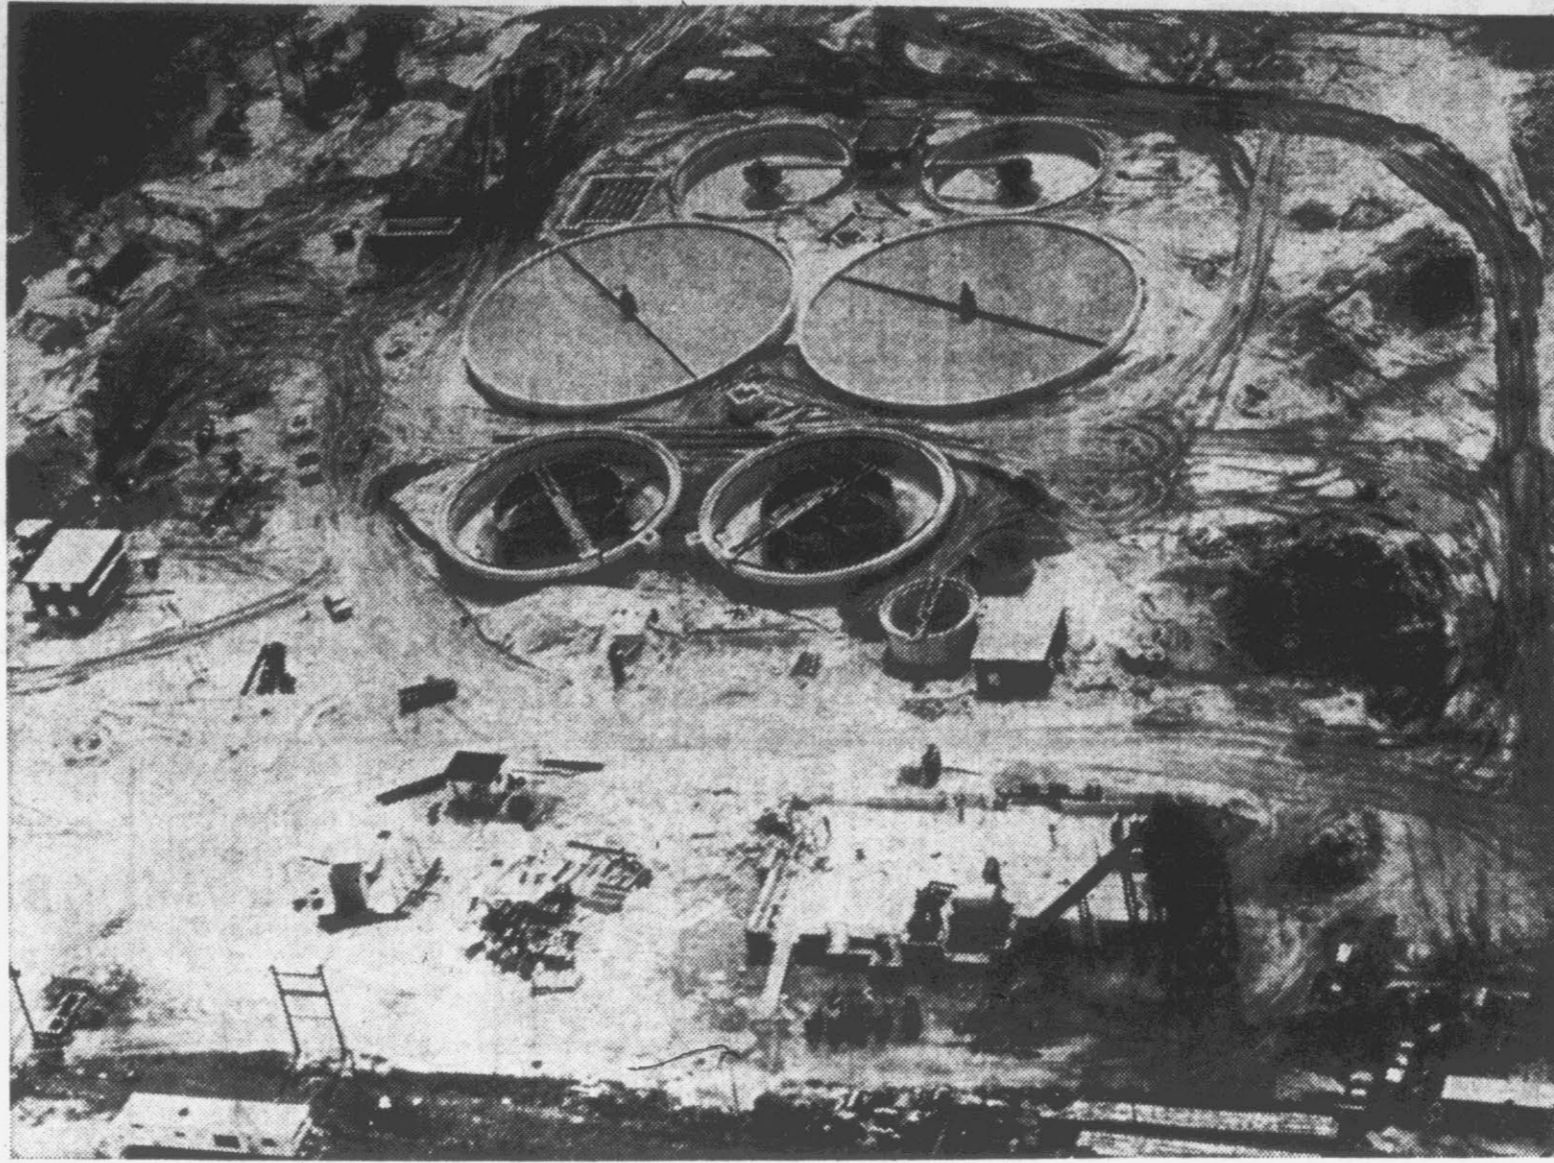

Of the approximately 8,000 names of prospective jurors in Pitt County some 2,000 are required each two years for regular jury service. If there is a need for special venues during the period, more than 2,000 jurors may be needed during a two-year period, explained D. T. House, Jr., Clerk of Superior Court.

How is it that some people are drawn for jury duty more than once in a period of two years? County Attorney W. S. Speight explained that a person might be called for jury duty near the end of a two-year period just prior to the time the new jury list must be compiled. His name is a part of the new jury list for the next two-year period and therefore it might be drawn early in the second two-year period. Conceivable a person's name might be drawn for two succeeding terms of court, by having been drawn for the last term of court in one two-year period, and then drawn from the new list for the first term of court for the next two-year period.

With a list of some 8,000 prospective jurors and a requirement of approximately 2,000 persons for jury duty every two years, at least one member of the Grand Jury suggested that the law might be changed to require new jury lists to be compiled only once every four or more years rather than every two years as the law now requires.

The present jury box which contains two compartments — one for names which have not been previously drawn in the two-year period, and one for the names which have been drawn in the current period — measures 12 inches wide by 24 inches long by eight inches deep. The new jury box, which will be constructed in a similar manner, will measure approximately 18 inches wide by 36 inches long by 8 1/2 inches deep.

Utilities director Leonard Bloxam said target date for completion is late fall or early winter. The major structures pictured are the pumping station, (brick building at far left); the secondary clarifiers (two large circular structures at top); the trickling filters (circular structures in center); and the primary clarifiers (circular structures at bottom). ## Opening Of Eastern N.C. Leaf Belt Sales Recommended For August 29

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—Opening dates for five flue-cured tobacco belts were recommended at the annual convention of the Tobacco Association of the United States Tuesday.

The association proposed these dates for auctions to begin on the flue-cured belts:

- Georgia-Florida—July 27.
- South Carolina-North Carolina Border — Aug. 8.
- Eastern North Carolina—Aug. 29.
- Middle North Carolina — Sept. 12.
- North Carolina-Virginia Old Belt—Sept. 26.

The association's action was only a recommendation. Except in the Georgia-Florida area, the opening dates will be fixed by committees of the various belt warehouse associations.

J. L. Carter of Danville, Va. was chairman of a committee that recommended the opening dates. He said his group had conferred with buying interests and while there might be differences of opinion the recommendations represented a plan for fully and economically marketing the 1961 crop. Some of the delegates thought the recommendations might not be followed in the case of the South Carolina-Border and the Eastern North Carolina belts.

A. C. Q. Monk of Farmville, Va., was elected president of the association succeeding Ross Newell of Richmond, Va., and Louis N. Dibrell of Danville, Va., was elected first vice president. Monk is with the association as usual was the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association. Newell, in his report, told the delegates all is not well with their industry and steps should be taken "to get back on the old path."

In discussing industry problems, Newell said "the cancer scare has about abated." He also cited as industry problems the continued rise in taxes on tobacco, use of maleic hydrazide—MH30—on tobacco and higher tariffs in foreign countries. Newell expressed disappointment the U.S. Department of Agriculture has not insisted on the identification on the warehouse floor of tobacco which has been treated with the chemical.

There are no such plans." The broadcast also quoted Fidel Castro as saying the prisoners had not been allowed to speak with the defunct Tractors for Freedom Committee which he reportedly described as a "mockery." Castro was also quoted as having said that Cuba was prepared to accept farm equipment in return for the prisoners and that "if no agreement has been reached, it is their fault." (the committee's)

"The committee wants to cheat us," Castro was quoted as saying. It had been reported earlier that John Hooker Jr., executive secretary of the disbanded Tractors for Freedom Committee would confer with the prisoners once again early this afternoon. Hooker told The Associated Press he expected that he would have a decision to announce to the prisoners on the future of the negotiations.

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro said today he still wants to make a tractors-for-prisoners swap but only if the United States agrees to pay the "compensation" he demands. "We are still ready to accept agricultural equipment," he said. "But it must be selected by us. Our proposal is sincere and clear. If there has not been a solution it is their (the Americans') fault."

In a statement broadcast by Havana radio, Castro denounced the Tractors for Freedom Committee's activities as "a maneuver of North American imperialism. We realize the plan was to make the negotiations fail and blame us for it."

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today nominated Vice Adm. Claude V. Ricketts, a veteran of 32 years in sea and staff assignments as vice chief of naval operations.

Ricketts will have the rank of admiral and replace Adm. Russell. Russell will be given another assignment after staying on at the Navy's No. 2 officer until Ricketts is confirmed by the Senate.

Ricketts, 55, has commanded the U.S. 2nd Fleet and the Strike Fleet, Atlantic, since Feb. 1. His selection as vice chief follows by five days the appointment of Vice Adm. George W. Anderson to the No. 1 Navy post as chief of naval operations. Anderson succeeds Adm. Arleigh A. Burke Aug. 1.

12-Year-Old Boy Found Chained
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—An officer found Roy Dean Hall, 12, chained to a bed in the youngster's one-room home Monday.

The boy's sister, Jeanette Hall, 15, said their parents had been chaining Roy the last 10 days while the father was working as a trash hauler and the mother as a baby-sitter.

Roy Hall, 48, and his wife, Margaret, 45, were arrested when they returned home and were held for investigation. The children were taken to the Jackson County Parental School.

Two Felons Flee Prison Camp's Work Gang Here

SIMPSON—Pitt County Prison guards have searched in vain since yesterday afternoon for two prisoners who ran from a work gang at the town limits here.

Capt. L. P. Dail, Superintendent of the Pitt County Camp, identified the two men as Marion L. Skinner of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Gerald F. Locker of Toledo, Ohio. Both men were felons, Dail reported.

Skinner, 20, was sentenced to four years for breaking, entering and larceny from Duplin County, and started serving his sentence on October 28, 1960, the prison official said.

Locker, 23, has served about three and one-half years of a 10-14-year sentence, Dail said. He added that Locker, who started serving the sentence in December of 1957 for robbery with firearms, was sentenced from Johnston County.

The Ohio native was first confined at the Gates County Prison, according to Major James Langley, the Prison Department's Division Superintendent for the area from which he escaped a short time later.

Mayor Attending 2-Day Institute At Chapel Hill

Greenville Mayor Charles King, is attending a course for new mayors and councilmen at the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill it was announced today.

The course, offered every two years by the Institute of Government, is designed to acquaint new officers with their duties. In addition to explaining the duties of each member of the city law-making body, the course outlines the duties of the city manager and explains how the officials should work together. The course also affords the city officials an opportunity to discuss various city problems with officials from other towns.

The two-day work-shop is scheduled to end today. King is the only member of the local council who is attending the session.

Freedom Rider's Story Said Badly Distorted

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A young "Freedom Rider's" story of brutal treatment inflicted on riders at the Mississippi State Penitentiary brought fast comment from Sheriff J. R. Gilfoyle that "they're all being treated well and everybody knows it."

The sheriff at Jackson serves as custodian of riders convicted on breach of peace charges in connection with efforts to desegregate transportation facilities in that Deep South city. To date 163 riders have been found guilty. Gilfoyle denied charges made in a New York interview Monday by Kenneth Shilman, 18, a white youth from Oceanside, N.Y. "Shilman's whole story is exaggerated," he said. "The facts in it are distorted and colored up."

Shilman said Chicago riders Felix Singer, 32, and Terry Sullivan, 23, were stripped naked and dragged 60 yards along a concrete corridor after they refused to take off their clothing and walk to their cells.

"The skin was tearing off their bodies and the extreme pain showed on their faces," said Shilman, who was freed Saturday after posting a $500 appeal bond. The sheriff said the two first refused to leave the truck which took them from Jackson to the penitentiary at Parchman, 130 miles to the northwest, then lay down at the entrance to the maximum security unit where they were jailed.

"We dragged them 15 feet along the concrete hallway inside the building," the sheriff said. "That concrete is smooth finished and couldn't tear them. I saw them myself and there wasn't a mark on them."

Meanwhile, Jackson City Judge James Spencer sentenced another 23 riders to four months in jail and fined them $200 each for breach of peace to hike his total to 163.

Another statement by Shilman was disputed by columnist Westbrook Pegler in New York. Shilman said after his party was arrested June 2 in Jackson, Pegler asked "leading questions" including whether they thought Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was communist-inclined.

"I never mentioned communism, at least not in connection with Mrs. Roosevelt," Pegler said. The columnist said he was allowed to interview some of the riders but he didn't recall Shilman being among them. Pegler said he asked some questions designed to bring out that the riders had been "denied some basic education." One of the questions, he said, was whether they knew Mrs. Roosevelt had stated in her autobiography that she "segregated black and white servants" in her Washington home when her husband was assistant secretary of the Navy.

In the first action of its kind, the Justice Department filed suit in federal court to end alleged discrimination against Negroes in the dining facilities at Moisant International Airport in New Orleans.

Negroes went to court seeking injunctions designed to desegregate airport restaurants at Mobile, Ala., and Tallahassee, Fla. — At Unity House, Pa., a Phillip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, termed a "grave mistake" a decision of the AFL-CIO Executive Council to put off until fall a proposed crackdown on segregation practices in its member unions.

In Kansas City, Harold Duncan, head of the privately owned Fairland Amusement Park, said the park would continue its policy of not admitting Negroes. He made the statement in reply to a petition to the park owners by the director of the Committee on Racial Equality. However the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People claimed credit for getting the most signatures on the petition asking removal of racial barriers.

In another development, the Freedom Ride Coordinating Committee announced plans to hold a strategy meeting in Jackson today.

Rain And Hail In Pitt Raising Some Concern

Parts of Pitt County—especially the Grifton area—have been drenched with rain since yesterday, with some sections reporting light hail.

Possibilities of crop damage from hail, winds or water standing in the fields loomed after a spot survey today.

Grifton experienced some four and a half inches of rain in a 24-hour period, from 7 a.m. Monday until 7 a.m. today, according to K. E. Price Sr. Price keeps records of rainfall at his home, about five miles from Grifton on Highway 118.

The Pacolus area experienced some hail yesterday afternoon, but it was slight and of short duration. Rains were not as heavy in the Pacolus section, as in the Grifton area. J. P. Davenport Jr. said about two and a half inches of rain had fallen there since yesterday. However, some tobacco was reported damaged by wind and hail, with one farmer estimating about a five per cent loss. Some corn was reported standing in water.

In the Grifton area, water also was standing in some of the fields. Since last Wednesday morning, the Grifton area has experienced about fourteen and a half inches of rain in the St. John's Church section.

In other parts of Pitt County, rain seemed less severe. Joe Butterworth, mayor of Bethel, said about an inch and a half of rain had fallen in his community, with no known damage.

Greenville rated slightly less than an inch of rain up to midnight yesterday, according to Buck Flye of the Greenville Utilities Plant. There was no hail reported here, and winds at their highest were between 15 and 20 miles per hour during the intense part of the storm Monday. Utilities Plant spokesmen noted.

The Tar River level has begun to rise slightly and was at 6.5 feet this morning.

In the city, Utilities Director Leonard Bloxam said things fared "pretty well" yesterday during the electrical disturbance. Lightning blew a few line fuses and tripped switches, causing loss of electricity in some sections for a few seconds, but caused no real concern. One outage on the Farmville Highway, however, lasted 30 to 40 minutes, Bloxam said. The outage was caused by lightning striking a voltage regulator.

C. W. Snell, division engineer with the N. C. Highway Commission, said all roads are open. There was a little high water in places and a few spots on the county's dirt roads, he said, but none of the roads have been closed and the paved roads are "all right," he commented.

Meanwhile, the weatherman has turned his back, indicating continued cloudiness and not much change in temperatures this afternoon and tonight. Occasional rain or drizzles seems to be the weather forecast, with decreasing cloudiness and somewhat warmer on Wednesday.

Series Of Storms In North Carolina

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A series of savage storms tore through North Carolina Monday with tornadic winds, hail, lightning and rain combining to destroy buildings, crops and trees.

Northwestern Jones County and a belt from Charlotte to the Virginia state line near Henderson were hardest hit.

No injuries directly resulting from the storm were reported, but at least one person was hospitalized by an automobile accident blamed on the weather.

Scattered showers or thunder-showers were expected to continue over the state today, although no dangerous storms were forecast. Mount Olive and Kenansville were severely hit by twister-like storms five days earlier.

Many sections of the state's sprawling tobacco growing area were buffeted by Monday's storm. Goldsboro and Hillsboro felt its full fury.

All but one of the 11 telephone circuits serving Hillsboro were knocked out by lightning. At Roanoke Rapids, a tree was blown against a transformer, cutting off all traffic lights and causing a rash of automobile accidents.

Two aircraft were damaged at the Halifax County Airport at Roanoke Rapids by winds registering 55 miles an hour before they blew down the airport's wind speed indicator.

The wind broke the anchor ropes steadying a four-passenger Cessna plane and flipped it over, causing about $2,000 damage. Hall stones tore holes in a Piper Cub aircraft. Near Goldsboro, a 100-foot radio tower was toppled and about 1 1/2 million seedlings were damaged at a state-owned nursery.

In Jones County, the violent twister-like storm swept across the Leo Mallard farm between Trenton and Kinston. It tore a tenant house from its foundations, without injury to the mother and infant inside, destroyed three tobacco barns and ripped the roof from another. Two barns and a tenant house on a nearby farm also were damaged.

East of Henderson, a three-mile strip was pelted by hail. Roanoke Rapids' main street, Roanoke Avenue, was under 7 to 10 inches of water at one time.

Halibones as big as ice cubes were reported at Hillsboro and "from as big as golfballs to as big as your fist" at Southern Pines.

Shortly before noon it became so dark in Hillsboro that street lights turned on automatically. There were reports of some tobacco fields sustaining 60 per cent damage in the Buckhorn community, about seven miles southwest of Hillsboro.

The Bellemont community, five miles south of Burlington also was lashed by a severe hailstorm that tore up gardens and fruit trees. "Jagged pieces of ice two to three inches across" were reported by Frank Watkins of Bellemont.

A check of farmers' Almanac County revealed crop damage ranging from 50 to 100 per cent.

More Rains And Floods In Japan

June Wedding Planned

MISS ALMA FAYE WHITEHURST . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Whitehurst of Route five Greenville, who announce her engagement to James Howard Keel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Howard Keel of Greenville. The wedding will take place June 30.

Shower Given Miss Smith

Miss Frances Smith, bride-elect of July, was honored at a shower given by Mrs. Arden Tucker and Mrs. Robert Fennell at the Tucker home on Friday.

Upon arrival the honoree was presented a corsage of yellow daisies.

The hostesses and Miss Smith greeted the guests.

The home was decorated with roses and summer flowers. In the dining room the appointed table was overlaid with a cutwork. The center arrangement was magnolias and yellow daisies. An arrangement of stock, larkspur, queen anne's lace and daisies was used on the buffet. Guests were served iced drinks, cheese straws, ham biscuits, mince meat swirls, brownies and pineapple balls.

After guests were assembled in the living room, the hostesses brought the gifts in a large basket. Miss Smith was remembered by the hostesses with a summer blanket.

Miss Simpson Feted At Party

Miss Sally Ross Simpson, bride-elect, was honored with an informal supper party Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Wade, Jr. on Rock Spring Road. Host for the occasion was David Wade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade, who is home on leave from the United States Military Academy.

Miss Simpson was presented a corsage of kitchen utensils upon her arrival. Later in the evening she was presented a gift of silver in her chosen pattern.

The 25 guests were former classmates of Miss Simpson and her host. They were served at picnic tables placed on the lawn of the Wade home. Lanterns, hurricane lamps and baskets of flowers were used as decorations.

Brides-Elect Are Honored

Miss Betty Lane Evans and Miss Sally Ross Simpson were honored at a dinner and bridge party given by Mrs. David A. Evans and her daughter, Miss Anne Evans, Thursday evening.

The honoree and Miss Jeanne Moye were presented white corsages upon arrival.

After having punch on the porch guests were invited into the dining room. Mrs. Mac Simpson, Mrs. Evans, and Mrs. David Evans Jr., assisted in serving from the dining table, which was covered with a white linen and lace cloth centered with an arrangement of magnolias. Auxiliary tables in the living room and den were also covered with linen clothes and centered with small arrangements of white flowers.

Following several progressions of bridge, Miss Betty Lane Evans and Mrs. William L. Johnson tied for high score. The three brides-elect were remembered with china in their chosen patterns.

Must Not Relax The Local Effort

North Carolinians have placed great confidence in the school enrichment program passed by the 1961 legislature, and they naturally look forward to considerable improvement in the calibre of education in the state's public schools in the years ahead.

The program has been termed the most significant step in public education in North Carolina since the turn of the century, and it might well be. As the action of the legislature is implemented by state school officials, the effect upon local schools throughout North Carolina will become more distinct. And as the schools move into their regular terms with the coming of the fall, the effects of the program should begin to show in the classrooms.

There is a pitfall, however, which communities across North Carolina should carefully avoid as the new school enrichment program goes into operation. That is the pitfall of self-satisfaction on the local level so far as support of the local school program is concerned. It is the pitfall of a developing public attitude that the program envisioned by the state in public education has been taken care of entirely by legislative action in Raleigh.

With the importance that has been attached to the new state program for public schools, and with the great amount of publicity that has been given this important stride in education in North Carolina, there may develop a natural tendency on the part of citizens to feel that governments at the local level need not be too greatly concerned about further improvement of their schools; that the state program will provide all the improvement that is needed.

If this becomes the prevailing sentiment throughout North Carolina, the effort toward far-reaching improvements in the public schools will be seriously impaired. The fact that the state has taken a gigantic step toward improving the system of public education should provide a stimulant for greater local efforts all over the state to further improve public education.

Now that effective leadership in this field has been provided at the state level, it is important that officials at the local level likewise push for further enrichment of the school program. The communities in which citizens and officials seek to supplement the state program by a more vigorous local program of support for education will be the ones which provide the greatest educational opportunities for their youngsters. On the other hand, those communities which sit back and are content to have only the improvements provided by the state program will find that their youngsters do not have as good educational opportunities as youngsters in other communities of the state.

The effect of the new state program on public education in North Carolina should not be minimized; but it would be a grave mistake for the communities of the state to assume that the state program alone—without greater efforts at the local level—will give North Carolina the calibre of education that is desired for its young people.

Amendments To Be Voted Upon

By LYNN NISBET

CONSTITUTION—The people of North Carolina will vote this fall on six amendments to the State constitution. There were some 30 separate bills introduced providing for amending the constitution, including several duplicate House and Senate offerings. The six issues to be submitted to vote this fall represent combinations of several ideas into one substitute bill. For example there were five separate bills on court reform, worked down into one; four bills on succession to executive offices, worked down into two.

Of the amendments to be voted upon one deals with re-writing the entire court system; one requires uniform method of classifying property for taxation in every county; one gives the General Assembly control over the salaries of elected executive officers, and two clarify the order of succession to the office of Governor and other posts.

At least ten amendments were proposed affecting senatorial districts and legislative apportionment, all of which were killed in committee. Another proposal to permit members of the General Assembly to fix their own salaries was voted down.

RELATED—Matters closely related to the constitutional provisions will be voted upon at the same election. A study commission on the subject of senatorial districts; establishing rules for rotation agreements among counties composing senatorial districts; a bill to allow each member of the Council of State an un-audited expense allowance of $2,000. This was killed on the ground it sought to circumvent the constitutional prohibition against changing compensation of these officers during their terms.

One of the earliest bills introduced sought to have the North Carolina Legislature ratify the amendment to the constitution of the United States allotting presidential electoral votes to the District of Columbia. Consideration of this matter was postponed indefinitely after enough other states had ratified it to assure its inclusion in the constitution.

ELECTION—The six amendments will be voted upon at the same election to be ordered on the matter of issuing $47 million in capital improvement bonds. The statute authorizes the Governor to call that election at a day of his choosing, except that it must be during calendar year 1961. It is expected to be called for sometime in October. There is some sentiment for fixing all statewide elections on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, the date on which the general election falls every two years.

SELLING JOB—A tremendous selling job faces the administration and other advocates of the bonds and amendments. During the next 15 to 20 weeks the citizenry will be bombarded with information and argument. The bond proposals will require very little explanation. The question is simply whether the money should be spent for the purposes.

The amendments will require a lot of explanation. The one item of court revision, for example, is set out on 12 typewritten pages and goes into such detail with respect to organization and management of the courts—including abolition of the justice of peace courts—that few laymen will understand it.

For that reason some have suggested that the popular vote is coming too soon after the issue has been submitted, and that chance of a negative vote is at least two years delay in starting a court reform.

SUCCESSION—There is keen interest in the question of succession to the Governor's office right now, occasioned by absence from the state at the same time of the Governor and Lieutenant Governor. The present constitution is vague on who would become Governor in event of vacancy in both these offices. The proposed amendment would clarify this matter and is not expected to have much opposition. Legislative authority to fix salaries of executive elected officers will bring North Carolina practice in line with other states and the Federal government. Requiring uniformity in classification of property for ad valorem taxes in every county may arouse opposition among some counties that want to offer inducements to industry. The proposal to reduce from one year to 30 days the time a resident must live in North Carolina in order to vote for presidential electors is expected to be controversial.

PRESSURE GROUP?—It is rumored that there may be formed a committee to "put these amendments across," which would be authorized to accept contributions and spend money in publicity and precinct organization. Whether the same group will promote the bond issues or have a separate organization for the job is not known.

It is significant that the time allowed for citizens to inform themselves on the merits of these amendments is less than the time which the General Assembly used in deciding whether or not to even allow the people to vote on the issue.

Does that suggest that the general citizenry is more intelligent than the legislative membership; or is the suggestion that they can be more easily pressured into acquiescence?

Another Example Of South American Unrest

With increasing concern over the situation in Latin America, the United States cannot overlook the signs which point to increasing unrest in some of the countries to the South as the free world and communism bid for support of the South American continent. Venezuela stands out as an example of the growing unrest that apparently has spread in South American countries. The revolt this week was, in itself, of little importance so far as Venezuela is concerned. The government of the country did not appear to be seriously threatened by the uprising of troops in Barcelona. At the same time significance must be attached to the fact that the uprising was the fourth of its kind in the country in 1961.

The situation reflects a growing unrest among some elements in the country, and certainly if the unrest grows the present government of this South American country could find itself in serious difficulties.

Were Venezuela the only Latin American nation in which such unrest were evident, the cause for concern would be greatly lessened. But similar signs have appeared in several other countries in South America as well. The situation emphasizes the need for greater efforts by the United States to help to stabilize conditions in South America by a more effective program of cultivating relations with its neighbors.

Reduced To Two Basic Questions

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The aching problem of West Berlin can be stated now in two basic questions, even though discussion about it will get deafening in the months ahead.

1. Will the West, particularly the United States, make concessions to Premier Khrushchev to avoid a showdown on his demands that West Berlin be turned into a so-called free city 110 miles inside Communist East Germany?

2. If the answer is no, what will the West do if the Russians then force a showdown by trying to shut the city off from the West through force or a strict blockade against supplies for the 2.5 million people in West Berlin?

The demands Khrushchev is making now on Berlin are similar to those he made in 1958. Then he gave the West six months for a settlement. Later he backed off and calmed down. Now once again he has set a six-month deadline.

This time there's no reason to think he doesn't mean it. His purpose seems plain enough: to weaken the confidence of the neutrals in the West's determination to stand firm against a Communist push. At this moment the West has strong links with West Berlin. If those links are badly broken, it seems inevitable that eventually West Berlin, now a Western island in a Communist sea, will be completely lost.

At this moment the West has strong links with West Berlin. If those links are badly broken, it seems inevitable that eventually West Berlin, now a Western island in a Communist sea, will be completely lost. — because the deadline is still months away—President Kennedy's administration probably will utter a firm no against any concessions that would look like a Western defeat although some concessions might seem possible.

As the months roll on—particularly as Democrats and Republicans have time to sound off—the Kennedy administration will learn more about the mood of the American people: whether they are willing to face war over Berlin.

This undoubtedly will have effect on administration thinking. Meanwhile, the allies in Europe, who would be closer to the scene of war, will have time to see how sturdy their own willingness is to face ruin for Berlin.

But suppose the West stands firm, which might mean war? What kind of war would it be—a limited, groundlike kind of war without resort to nuclear missiles or weapons?

A limited ground war seems unlikely. Khrushchev started his first buildup toward a West Berlin crisis with demands he made on Thanksgiving Day in 1958.

President Eisenhower, at every news conference he held for months afterward, was belted with questions about Berlin. On March 11, 1959, he laid out the American position on fighting for Berlin.

Pointing out that the 175 Russian divisions far outnumbered any forces the United States could send into Europe to defend Berlin, Eisenhower said, (Continued on page 7)

Strength For Today

How Soon the Next Eruption?

By DON SCHLIENZ

It Could Be Much Worse

Some say our latter days of spring and early summer are "unusual" for eastern North Carolina.

I wouldn't complain, though. It could be a lot hotter, a lot wetter, a lot drier.

And, looking at a chart of weather "extremes" put together by the U.S. Army Quartermaster Research—Engineering Command, it is pretty obvious things could be so much worse than, by comparison, we're living pretty good.

First, let's look at the longest dry period on record in this country: that was 767 days with no rain (October 1912 to November 1914) at Bagdad, California.

Would you say we're having extremely wet weather these days?

Bahia Felix, Chile, has an average of 325 days each year with rain.

In Holt, Missouri, they witnessed a 42-minute deluge that set a world record. They had 12 inches of rain in those 42 minutes, on June 22, 1947.

The world's greatest 24-hour rainfall (46 inches) fell July 14-15, 1911, at Baguio, Luzon.

And we're complaining? Not to be overlooked is the "world's greatest rainfall for one year": 1042 inches (August 1860-July 1861) which was recorded at Cherrapunji, India.

Cherrapunji, incidentally, should be pretty well washed away if the rainfall has been anywhere near consistent. It says on the map that it also had 12.5 feet of rain in one five-day period (August 1941); and the same locale chalked up 366 inches of rain in July 1961.

To dry out, look at Wadi Halfa, Sudan. They had no rain at all in 19 years of recorded observation.

Chile is another dry spot in the world, despite Bahia Felix and its drizzly outlook.

Arica, Chile has the world's lowest average annual rainfall of .02 inch. And Iquique, Chile once went for 14 years with no rain.

Would anyone want to trade our weather? Of course, there is the matter of hail to consider when summer is upon us. And the largest officially recorded hailstone in the U.S. fell at Potter, Nebraska on July 7, 1928. That hailstone measured 5.41 inches in diameter.

Somebody mentioned wind. The world's highest surface wind speed (231 MPH) was recorded April 12, 1934 at Mt. Washington, N. H.

Sometimes our summers get pretty warm, but nothing like the 134 degrees at Death Valley, Calif. on July 10, 1913.

And sometimes we see sudden changes in temperatures; but nothing like the minus-4 degrees Fahrenheit to 45 degrees F. in two minutes at Spearfish, South Dakota.

The map also discloses that one point in Siberia unofficially recorded a minus-108 degrees F. and Vostok, Antarctica had a minus-123 degrees on August 25, 1958. And the Paradise Range Station in Washington (1955-56) recorded 1000.3 inches of snowfall for one winter season.

But this is summer, and who wants to contemplate how cold it could get? Or how much snow we don't have?

Our weather may be unusual, but we'll keep it; thank you.

to achieve an intimacy with ideas. It took centuries for Western civilization to invent a series of forms that would guarantee, at least for a brief while, the escape from clamor into a silent encounter with truth. And now Governor Brown takes pride in the fact that the students are using this time to march into the fields with migratory workers.

If the Santa Clara students had wished to make Pat Brown deliriously happy, they might have trampled with their boots, and smashed with stones, the University's buildings, a kind of personal favor to the Governor, in honor of his address.

The modern academy, the Governor assures us, is not meant merely to deal with dusty old volumes elaborated in some obscure attempt to master ideas. It should be a school for "citizenship," and citizenship, according to this analysis, is best learned in mobs and riots, best exercised by social workers and freedom riders. The Governor is freely leaning on the false glorification of "revolution" as such in American history. It is true that the leaders of Colonial America had, reluctantly, to fight a revolution to guarantee the integrity of their society. But the American Revolution is important only because its leaders had learned something about Republics from every great political thinker of the West since Plato. The Declaration of Independence and the Federalist Papers were not written by men who had spent their youth studying George III's representatives. Nor had they earned their diplomas in citizenship by taking freedom rides on the British ships. If the truth be known, they had studied, they had read, they had mastered the art of writing English that still tingles with life. But, as the Governor remarked, we have come a long way from that.

Other Editors Saying Boots Or Books?

(Richmond News-Leader)

Everybody has drunk in, through wide-open (that is, yawning) mouths, the commencement-day platitudes about youth at the doorway to life. Graduates are annually "launched" with assurances that they are taking up serious responsibilities. They are reminded that they must accept an increasing part in the serious business of debate and decision affecting our nation. True, because often heard, but true.

But Governor Pat Brown, delivering the commencement address at the University of Santa Clara, decided to avoid the yawns by avoiding the truths.

He did not tell students they were equipped to take responsible roles in the national life. He congratulated them on the irresponsible roles they had played during their time of so-called academic preparation. In his own words, "I thank God for the spectacle of student picketing—even when they are picketing me and I think they are wrong. I thank God for students protesting and freedom riding, for students going into the fields with migratory workers and marching off to jail with our segregated Negroes. At last we're getting somewhere. The colleges have become boot camps for citizenship and citizens are marching out of them."

At last, alas, we are getting somewhere we are reaching the point where the leader of a State can stand before an academic community and cry down the great achievements and the historic function of the academy. The very word "Academy" means garden—Plato's garden, where his followers had precious release from other business to spend time on the intense business of exploring the mind. "Scholarship" means leisure the discipline of partial isolation ter purchase, there are no capital gains. These facts add stability to the present market.

OTHER LOOK-AHEADS
Here are more look-aheads in business:

Auto production to drop: A sharp cut in auto production will come next month. The Big Three manufacturers are planning to stop producing current models before the end of the month so they can start changing over to produce 1962 models in August. However, the 1962 models will be unveiled later this year than last. The 1961 models came out in late September and early October, 1960, but the new 1962 models are not likely to appear before late October.

Space-age by-products: Many new alloys developed for guided missiles and orbital rockets are now available for industrial uses. Soon many of them will be available in standard shapes, such as steel is. I, H, T, L, V and Z shapes with a variety of corners and lengths are coming.

Air-freight boom: The ship strike will cost steamship lines some freight categories forever.

Interest rates. More zoning fights. Lawyers specializing in zoning matters can expect a continuing high rate of employment for a long time to come. The expansion of cities requires more zoning for housing. The outward trek of families will bring frequent demands for rezoning older residential areas for business.

FREE TELEVISION PLUG RUNS WHOLE HOUR
"Can you imagine an hour-long TV commercial?" The Old Promoter asked when he barged in today.

"Many of them seem like an hour long," I said.

"There's one an hour long," he sent on. "It is a story sequence shot at Freedomland, the new amusement spot in New York, to advertise the park. It's being offered free, on tape, to television stations around the country. And the best thing about it is that it provides for breaks, so that other commercials can be inserted in this giant commercial."

Now we have heard everything.

Who Is An Enemy?

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

We start with the premise that a nation has a moral and a legal right to defend itself against its enemies within and without. The question is: Who is an enemy?

When a nation regards its security imperiled to the degree that it spends $40,000,000,000 a year for its defense, an enemy is anyone who endangers that defense.

In the United States, labor possesses rights by law which are designed to limit the authority of the employer over the employee so that human dignity is not impaired. Thus, the right to strike is inviolate. In the United States, the worker has the right to strike when the government is the employer.

In the development of the missile and the rocket, the government employs a variety of workers who belong to unions, enjoy the right of collective bargaining and who are entitled to strike. The fact is that such a strike could imperil the defenses of the United States and might result in the loss of life in time of war. The significance of this program was stated by General William T. Thurman to be:

"The only effective deterrent to a surprise nuclear attack is a mixed force including advanced aircraft, missiles, and space weapons which are capable of repelling and defeating the military forces of potential enemies and at the same time minimizing the damage to our forces, our Nation, and its people."

He then provided the following information:

"The total dollars currently programmed for ICBM's add up to nearly $12 billion for research, development, test, production, and supporting facilities, and site activation. Approximately 55 separate corporate groups, individual companies, and joint ventures are working directly for the Air Force and the Corps of Engineers.

"The total contractors employ over 100,000 people on the program. This number pertains only to prime and associate contractors. A total figure of all companies and employees working on the overall program would include literally thousands of subcontractors and vendors in lower tiers and their hundreds of thousands of employees. Organized labor is represented by approximately 30 different unions, industrial and construction."

In a tabulation of figures, General Thurman showed that from the start of construction in 1958, 1959, 1960 through March 13, 1961, there were 195 strikes, involving 50,550 man-days lost at operational sites alone. More than half of this loss is due to organizational efforts and negotiations for new collective bargaining agreements, as though the men were working in a plane factory. The government is involved in jurisdictional disputes among labor unions which grow increasingly more serious as new inventions, devices and material are used. In fact, the question might be asked whether Russia's advantage of time has not, in a measure, been due to the time losses.

Involved in all new work is the jurisdictional question as to whether a particular job is industrial or construction work. This not only involves different unions but also different rates of pay. The Secretary of Labor decides the rate of pay; therefore he also selects the union involved in the particular job.

The Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations of which Senator John L. McClellan of Arkansas is chairman, seeks to discover what the work stoppages on our missile and rocket bases amount to and how costly and dangerous they are to the United States.

General Thurman made this very important explanation of the situation:

"... overtime costs more because of higher wage rates and decreased efficiency and, in such a situation, finding the right balance of work schedules, employment practices, and other factors is a difficult matter. We have found that some generally (Continued on Page 7)

Diet --- But Do It Sensibly

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Because the aim is to look skinnier than ever this summer, every young girl is keen on the subject of diet.

It wouldn't be a bad goal if girls took the healthy road to the slim bean look. But often they starve themselves trying to be thinner than their best friend.

Three dieting teenagers are perfect examples of how-not-to-diet. One diets on sweets because "sweets fill me up," she says. Another diets on hard-boiled eggs. A third girl drinks nothing but liquids for five days or until she loses the excess pounds.

Why not use the plain old system of cutting down on regular balanced meals? Give up 500 calories a day for a week and you should lose at least a pound. Meanwhile you'll get nutritious meals that keep the bloom in your cheeks and sparkle in your eye.

Ask A Doctor

Keep track of calories with a calorie counter and spread the calories over three meals. If you are the type who picks at nutritional food, however, supplement your meals with one of the multiple vitamins each day. Ask your doctor to prescribe a diet, exercise and vitamins for you.

"Foods containing calcium, vitamin A, riboflavin often are neglected by both girls and boys," write nutritionists Clara Storvick and Margaret Fincke in a recent publication.

A food plan is necessary in order to avoid the hap-hazardness of blind choice, they advise.

The important thing is to recognize snacks as real meals and eat that they fit into the overall plan for eating. Fruit between meals rarely spoils the appetite for the next meal, but chocolate cake might, they point out.

A chronic state of overweight interferes with the attainment of good nutrition these experts say. A girl who is overweight tries desperately to reduce. So she over-eats.

Plan Wisely

"This reduction of food intake needs to be done with care and under the advice of a physician," they explain. The reducer's needs for protein, minerals and vitamins are as great as for the girl of desirable weight. Three good meals a day with fruits, and some bread and cereals are as important as ever. Foods high in calories are the ones to restrict."

When you plan menus, substitute the lower calorie foods in a particular category for the higher calorie foods in that same category. You might even like low-calorie squash better than high-calorie sweet potato, and certain squash contain more Vitamin A.

Set a time limit on your diet. Stay on your food curbs for a few weeks, taper off for awhile, go back to it gradually. You might like your nutritious foods so well that you'll be able to trigger a weight loss whenever you feel like it.

Burn Up Fat

Exercise helps burn up excess calories. Swimming is one of the best for youthful bodies. Games that require brisk physical effort such as tennis and badminton help erase extra pounds.

Weigh yourself once a week when you are on a diet. Scales are tricky and you might become discouraged if weight loss doesn't register at once. Avoid hopping on and off the scale throughout the day.

Crib Blackboard

A crib with a plastic blackboard panel footboard, complete with chalk ledge, provides wonderful entertainment for a tot. When the crib is outgrown, the blackboard can be hung on a wall.

To erase, wipe the board with a sponge wrung out of soap or detergent suds and rinses. At the same time, suds the white enamel crib frame to ensure a spotless environment.

Tall Dolly Has High Goals

By M. A. RAISER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Dolly Dahle is a 6-foot businesswoman who wants to achieve a million dollar gross income within four years.

"I would like to be eligible to join the Young Presidents Club whose members have to gross a million dollars a year through their own efforts—before they are 40."

Chances are that Dolly Dahle, blonde former showgirl, might make it — if the space race goes on.

DOLLY DAHLE

She's president of a Los Angeles publishing company that now does more than $250,000 business annually. The firm produces manuals, government contract proposals, highly classified reports. It turns out technical typing and reproduction by mimeo or other means, or prepares copy for the printer. Much of work requires special technical skills, and clients include the county's top aircraft corporations.

Business soared after the Russians sent up Sputnik I.

Advised Work For Self

Dolly was born in 1925 at Erie, Pa., lived in an orphanage during the depression, later studied nights and worked days in a Detroit auto factory. She once was a show girl for Billy Rose.

After an unsuccessful marriage, she got employment in the publications field in California.

Her mother, Mrs. Helen Bauer, now secretary of Dolly's company, offered sage advice.

"She always told me that the only way to make money is to be in business for yourself," Dolly says.

"I decided that my main goal was to have money, which I had lacked all my life, and the only way to have it was to make it myself."

In 1955 Dolly boldly set up her own typing business with a $600 loan. She had a typewriter, a desk, a telephone — "and me."

"I called up everyone I had worked with and said 'Here I am. Give me your business.' They laughed. I grossed $1,200 the first year and netted $18."

"I found that being a woman can be a detriment rather than a help in selling.

"For example, one person thought I was trying to sell sex. But since then my company has become his sole vendor for reproduction typing."

She says her company (Publishing Production Service, Inc.)

has 15 special typewriters worth $12,000 or $300 each, 40 employees, and many highly skilled temporary workers for emergency jobs.

"Most of the girls I hire are Japanese," she says. "They seem to be very well suited because their work is so exacting and neat."

"I really treasure my little Japanese. They are able to go to college by working for me. They also are willing to work around the clock."

Dolly's company has a piece work system.

"I once set a production schedule of 20 pages of typing in an 8-hour day. Then I became worried that I might have expected too much from the girls. So I went to work at a typewriter and turned out 44 pages in 10 hours."

Has Sunken Tub

Dolly lives high on a hill at Silver Lake in east Hollywood.

"My Roman-style house has a single bedroom and no wall between the kitchen and living room. I have sort of terrazzo floors and a view of the whole city. And a beautiful sunken bath tub."

Romance?

"Some day I may marry again," she says blushing slightly. "But I have no prospects at present."

Her exact height?

"I'm really not 6 feet tall. I'm exactly 5 feet, 11 and 15-16th inches. I was too short to become a member of the Tip Toppers, who refused to waive that 16th of an inch."

Has Weight Problem Too

Her shoes are size 11 1/2 and she wears long spiked heels, despite her height.

"I have a weight problem. I'm 160 pounds. Normal for my height is 158."

"I do five minutes of exercises — ups and downs — each morning. I have to watch my waistline, which is 28 inches."

Other measurements were not volunteered.

Blender Speeds Potato Pancakes

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

OLD TRICKS are brand-new to many cooks. Even though you have used an electric blender often, you may have missed the fact that this small appliance can prepare the ingredients for potato pancakes in no time at all.

All a cook has to do is to add quartered pared potatoes to the blender along with the other ingredients for the pancakes; potatoes will be whizzed fine and blended with the other makings.

Serve these pancakes with applesauce and sour cream (or both) plus Canadian bacon for Sunday night supper. If you have an electric skillet you can fry them right at the table.

FINE POTATO PANCAKES

- 1 large egg
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

3 medium-sized potatoes (pared and quartered)

1/2 medium-sized onion (sliced)

1 1/2 tablespoons flour

6 tablespoons butter or oil

Drop the egg, baking powder, salt, potatoes and onion into the blender container; blend until mixture is combined; add flour and blend to combine. Add a couple tablespoons of the butter to a skillet and heat; brown tablespoons of the mixture on both sides in the hot butter; add more butter as needed. Use moderate heat. Makes about 2 1/2 dozen small pancakes. Serve at once or keep hot in slow oven or on electric tray.

OTHER KITCHEN TRICKS

If you have instant toasted onion on your kitchen shelves, we've discovered that a little of it added "as is" to beaten eggs to be scrambled or made into a French omelet, makes a wonderful flavor change. If you want to use the eggs as the filling for Western sandwiches, add minced green pepper along with the onion and serve with catsup or chili sauce.

Sometimes casserole toppings do not brown sufficiently when the dish is heated in the oven. If the topping is made of buttered bread crumbs with or without cheese, or of a cream sauce and cheese, don't hesitate to put the casserole under the broiler for a few seconds just before serving.

Serving canned salmon on a salad plate for a quick lunch? It will look well if you chill a one-pound can of the fish, then open the can at one end and carefully turn out the salmon in one piece. The salmon may be cut crosswise into four rounds and placed on greens. Garnish with hard-cooked egg slices placed on top of each salmon round; add strips of pimiento if you like.

Count Blessings

Next time you feel like grumbling about laundry, cheer up by thinking about the 115-bed Baptist hospital in Eku, Nigeria.

Miss Valda Long, missionary-nurse in Eku, reports that the gigantic laundry job in that establishment must all be done by hand, since there is no washing machine. And since there is often no sun, either—Nigeria being a land of the rainy season—drying laundry becomes a major problem!

Fashion models of all ages know that cleanliness is the key to beauty. A Portland, Oregon, model, who also happens to be an 85-year-old grandmother, has just one beauty hint to offer: use soap and water.

KITCHEN TRICK: An electric blender makes preparing potato pancakes easy. All a cook has to do is to whiz the ingredients together and fry!

INDEPENDENCE HISTORICAL PARK

WORK PROGRESSES ON RESTORING AMERICA'S MOST NOTED SHRINES

The brick sidewalks and the cobblestone streets of the type that George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin traveled in colonial Philadelphia are returning to America's most historic square mile—Independence National Historical Park.

The park was created by an act of Congress in 1948. Restoration of buildings, including such notable shrines as Independence Hall, Carpenters' Hall, and Congress

Hall, to their early grandeur, and beautification of the grounds, is going on, but will not be completed until 1965.

Bulldozers and wrecking cranes today still dominate big sections in the area. Scaffolding now clutters the red brick walls of Congress Hall, and workmen continue the slow rehabilitation of Independence Hall.

Already reconstructed are New Hall and Library Hall. New Hall

commemorates the establishment of the Marine Corps in the 1790's. Library Hall is on the site of the Library Company of Philadelphia, founded by Franklin in 1731. Its original building was demolished about 1884. The landscaping, too, that is being done has a definite colonial character.

Amid the clutter and hammering, visitors still pour into the area, paying quiet and reverent homage to the great symbols of American liberty and independence, such as the Liberty Bell and the chair which Washington used while presiding over the Constitutional Convention, housed inside Independence Hall, or quietly observing other shrines and their relics, or strolling over the new pebbled walks on the Mall. Over a million and a half persons visited Independence Hall in 1960, and more are expected this year.

Gathered around the Liberty Bell in Independence Hall, America's most venerated symbol of patriotism, is the Alexander Lomako family from Detroit. Steven, 2 1/2, lovingly touches bell.

RENOVATING A SHRINE. Workmen swing into place one of steel beams being put in renovated hip-roof of south end of Congress Hall where nation's highest legislative body functioned until 1800. Independence Hall, in background, towers over scene.

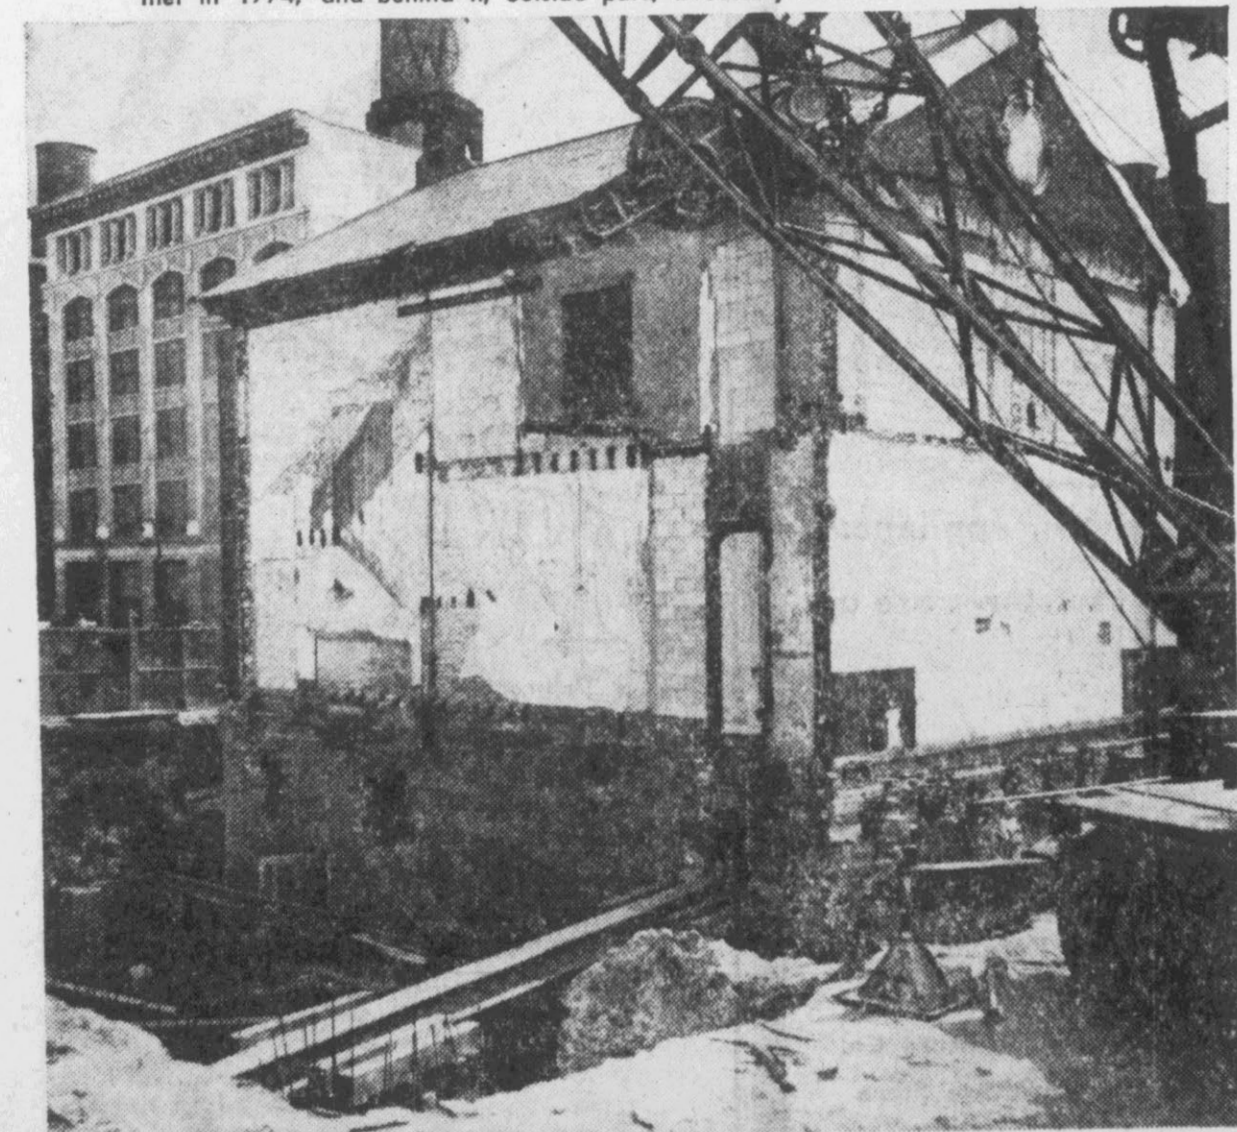

The Lomako family stops to rest on bridge rail in reconstructed section, against a background of the old and new: Carpenters' Hall, where the First Continental Congress met in 1774, and behind it, outside park, a recently constructed office building.

Workmen build retaining wall at northern end of Independence Mall. Many small buildings have been torn down to make room for Mall at far end of which stands Independence Hall. Mall will be landscaped with gardens, walks and fountains.

Patricia and James Lomako look closely at pebbled reconstruction of Library Street that runs from Independence Square to Carpenters' Hall in park.

Workmen prepare new foundation for Friends Meeting House, in back, to be moved 34 feet to permit widening of street. Building is oldest Friends meeting house in existence in the U.S.

Patricia, James and Steven Lomako peer through window of reconstructed New Hall. Note Colonial iron cellar door. Building is not yet opened to the public.

Melford O. Anderson, superintendent of Independence National Historical Park, examines detail drawing of reconstruction work being done in area. "We can't let the world forget America was born here," says Anderson, in discussing project.

The Lost Colony To Open For Its 21st Season On Saturday

The Lost Colony, longest-lived of all outdoor productions, will open for its 21st season in Waterside Theatre at Manteo, N. C., on Saturday, July 1. The 1961 premiere of the show will be known as "A Salute To Paul Green," author of the play who is pictured in oval inset above and flanked by some of the dramatic scenes and characters of the show. Upper left are three of the large troupe of Lost Colony Indians as they watch the first English explorers approach the shores of Roanoke Island; at right above is Marjalee Thomas who stars again this season as Eleanor Dare and with her, Claudia Ann Fry as Virginia Dare, first child of English parentage born in the New World. Kenton Kyle, as Old Tom Harris, the Elizabethan drunkard of Plymouth, England, is shown repelling an attack from Indians on Roanoke Island, where he made good as he helped lead the colonists, who would disappear without leaving a trace; and, Mary Long as the dynamic Queen Elizabeth, who with John Whitty as Sir Walter Raleigh sent the expeditions and settlers to Roanoke Island. Lower photo shows Marlow ...

"We are certainly not going to fight a ground war in Europe. What good would it do to send a few more thousand or indeed even a few divisions of troops to Europe?"

Then, although deploring nuclear war as a self-defeating thing because of its enormous destruction, he added: "Therefore, we have got to stand right ready and say 'we will do what is necessary to protect ourselves but we are never going to back up on our rights and our responsibilities.'"

This was a clear implication the United States would use nuclear weapons if necessary to protect what it considers Western rights in Berlin.

At this moment, at least, this could be interpreted as also the position of the Kennedy administration. Last Friday Kennedy hastily assembled his top advisers for a White House conference and reviewed Soviet threats to Berlin.

Afterward Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, one of those at the meeting, was asked at a news conference about increasing American defense in Berlin where the United States, Britain and France have a token force of troops.

He said there are "no plans at this time to increase the garrison" or add to its weapons. "Our military department," he said, "is sufficiently strong to accomplish its purpose."

This sounded like Eisenhower at a similar period in the Berlin crisis two years ago.

Waterside Theatre which has been rebuilt following $40,000 damage by Hurricane Donna after the show ended last year. Paul Green will be guest of honor at the launching of the season on Saturday — a season with a production schedule calling for performances nightly, Mondays through Saturdays, (no Sunday performances this year) from July 1 through September 3.

Sanford Sees No Taxes For Bonds

HONOLULU (AP) — North Carolina Governor Terry Sanford says he foresees no new state taxes if a $75-100 million bond issue is enacted.

Sanford, here for the National Governors' Conference, said he would call a special session of the Legislature if the bond issue is necessary.

Said Sanford: "If we have to have the bond issues we'll pay off the bonds from existing revenues over a period of years. The time would, of course, be set by the Legislature, but I should guess we would try to get it cleaned up in 15 or 20 years."

He added that North Carolina would use federal-aid-to-education funds whenever available but stated, "We are not going to wait around for two or three years for Congress to try again."

States Require Agreements To Tax Income Earned In Neighboring State

CHICAGO (AP)—A key figure in the nation's ever-broadening state income tax picture these days is the fellow who earns his paycheck in a neighboring state.

He has been the subject of heated debate in the legislative chambers of several states that collect income taxes.

The big issue he poses is which state gets to keep his income tax dollars, the state where he lives or the state where he works?

Thirty-six states and the District of Columbia now impose income taxes. Commerce Clearing House, a private agency that reports on tax laws, says many of the states have satisfactory agreements with neighboring states and others are working toward a solution.

For instance: When West Virginia passed an income tax law recently it was able to work out reciprocal agreements with neighboring Kentucky and Maryland, both of which already had income tax laws.

All three states have directed firms hiring nonresidents to reduce the nonresidents' taxes in the amount the employee is taxed in his home state.

North Carolina has the same kind of agreement with Virginia, but a reciprocal tax agreement with South Carolina was cancelled as of Jan. 1, 1960, according to B. W. Brown, head of the individual income tax division of the N.C. Department of Revenue.

But such harmony is not easy to come by when a great many more employees commute to one state than to the other. For example, approximately 150,000 New Jersey residents flock to New York jobs each morning compared with 50,000 or so New Yorkers who work in New Jersey.

New Jersey had no income tax, but New York had—and Jerseyites who worked there were required to pay it, about $50 million a year total.

Written into the New York tax law is a provision that nonresidents may deduct their home state's income tax from the amount imposed by New York. Faced with the need to raise money for commuter transportation services, the New Jersey Legislature took a close look at this provision and adopted a new law.

From now on, Jerseyites who work in New York (and only they) must pay a New Jersey income tax in the same amount imposed on them by New York. In effect they would simply begin paying their entire New York tax to New Jersey.

For its part, New Jersey will begin withholding for New York the income tax of the New Yorkers working in Jersey—about $10 million a year which the New Yorkers theoretically had been required to pay to their home state but which heretofore had not been withheld from their Jersey paychecks.

Noting that the effect of this action would be to give New Jersey $50 million in exchange for $10 million, New York officials are anything but pleased. They point out the Jersey tax may be "unconstitutionally discriminatory because it doesn't apply to all the state's residents. They an-icipate a court test. Meanwhile, New York, with an apparent eye on collecting from its residents working in Connecticut, has completed an agreement with Connecticut.

New York will make income tax concessions to Connecticut residents working in New York and, in return, Connecticut will supply to New York employment and salary information concerning New York residents who work in Connecticut.

Wisconsin and Minnesota were involved in a tax controversy this year but it apparently was settled last week when the lower house of the Wisconsin Legislature passed a bill that would allow the state to tax incomes of Minnesota residents working in Wisconsin.

When Minnesota earlier adopted a similar measure applying to Wisconsin residents working in Minnesota, it voided a long-standing reciprocal agreement between the two states.

The original negotiations to work out an agreement became stalemated for a time because Wisconsin legislators contended Minnesota stood to gain more than Wisconsin under simple reciprocity. This is because about 4,000 more Wisconsin residents work in Minnesota than the other way around.

However, the bill now adopted by both Wisconsin chambers and expected to be signed by Gov. Gaylord Nelson follows the original proposal. Besides taxing the Minnesotans working in Wisconsin, the measure would allow full tax credits to Wisconsinites working and taxed in Minnesota.

Thirty one of the 37 states which impose some form of income taxes allow their commuting residents credits for taxes imposed on their incomes in other states.

No such credits are allowed, however, in Alaska, Indiana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

North Carolina has no reciprocal agreement with Tennessee since Tennessee does not have a personal income tax on wages and salaries.

South Carolina has no reciprocal agreements with neighboring Georgia and North Carolina with respect to collection of the state income tax.

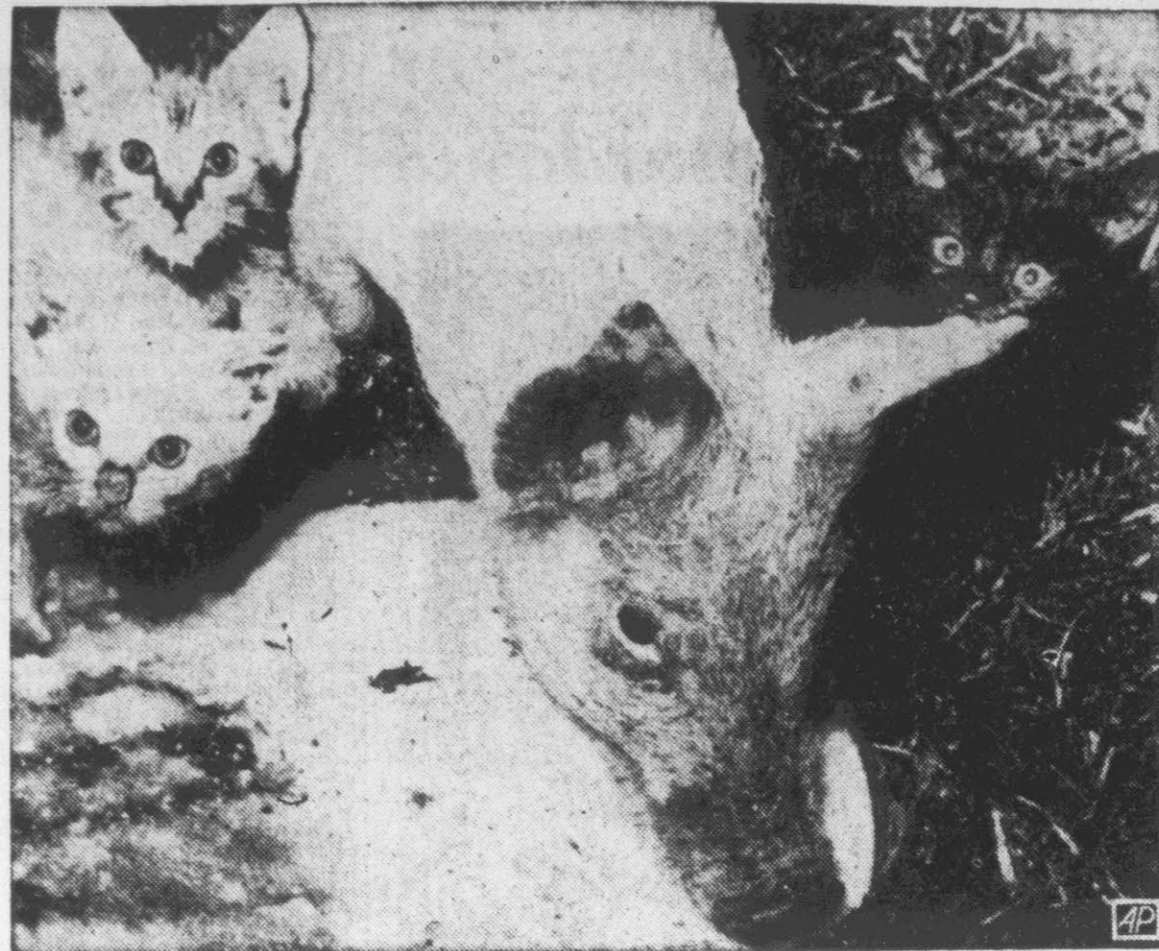

However, an official of the South Carolina Tax Commission said South Carolina will give its residents credit for income taxes paid another state. He said state income taxes are withheld from the paychecks of other states' residents working in South Carolina.

She Checks Out For Hawaii Tour

CHICAGO (AP)—A blue-eyed mother of three children reigned as queen of the supermarket checkers.

Mrs. Donna Welcher of Osceola, Iowa, won a milk stole, two tickets for a two week tour of Hawaii and a golden statuette as well as the title of 1961 Checker of the Year.

She was among 30,000 supermarket checkers in the U.S. and Canada judged on courtesy and job proficiency.

On Basis Of Toy Sales, South Won Civil War

NEW YORK (AP)—On the basis of the nation's kids' taste in toys, the South won the Civil War.

The fact is clear from early returns that toys decorated with the Confederate flag or colored gray are outselling by far the Union blue models in this Civil War centennial year. This applies to hats as well as dolls and models of 100-year-old sloops of war.

"It's a strange thing, all right. But when you're in sales you don't worry about the psychology," said Tom Slater, sales manager of Benay-Albee Novelty Co., Inc.

"Maybe there are just more rebels in the country," he guessed. Slater's Maspeth, L.I., firm specializes in novelty hats. Its gray Confederate officers hat and plain cap are outselling the Union numbers 2-1.

Benay-Albee is one of a dozen or so major manufacturers who have gone in big for Civil War centennial promotions.

Their products include costumes all types of war games, play tents and a full array of weapons from revolver and pistol through carbine, rifle and cannon.

The Toy Manufacturers Association of the U.S., a trade group, reported shipments of members for the first four months were 11 per cent above the similar 1960 period. Orders received were up about the same amount.

"If orders are any indication the South won the Civil War," said Al Rubin, national sales manager for Revell, Inc., Venice, Calif. maker of plastic hobby kits. The company's model of the Confederate sloop Alabama is outselling the Union's Kearsarge in the South by 40 per cent and in the North by about 30 per cent.

Rubin estimated that close to $100,000 was spent in researching the two sloops.

President Bernard H. Baum of Effanbee Doll Corp., New York City, said his company's Johnny Reb doll is selling better than its Yankee boy mate—both 11 inches high—"but I really don't know why."

William Wimmer, sales manager of the Collegeville (Pa.) Flag Co., said his firm's line of Confederate flags ranging from lapel pin to 6 by 8 feet are selling very well.

The officers decided to take a look inside anyhow. After looking under a couple of beds, each officer approached a closet. No one was inside the first. But when the second door was opened, there stood the missing man.

"Boo," he said, in the policeman's face.

Adam's Rib Held The Attention Of Ancient Sect

By WILTON WYNN
CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—An ancient Egyptian religious sect believed that if the rib had stayed inside Adam's chest, mankind would have been spared a lot of misery.

This sect believed that so long as the woman was inside Adam's chest, there was no death and the world was a paradise. But separation of woman from man was one of the "mistakes" in a bad job of creation that brought no end of trouble to the world.

The primitive people who held these ideas were known as the "Gnostics" and were considered heretics by other early Christians.

Scholars have discovered the theorizing about Adam's rib in Gnostic "gospels" found 13 years ago in a monastery near Nag Hammadi in upper Egypt but only now being fully studied. There are hints in these writings that suggest the Gnostics may have practiced ceremonial nudism and perhaps engaged in mysterious sexual rites.

These writings are in the Coptic (Old Egyptian) language, and scholars consider them among the most important historical finds in many years. Most of the writings are now in the Coptic Museum in Old Cairo.

Dr. Pahor Labib, director of the museum, says publication of the original writings will comprise 10 volumes and will include 50 documents. The first volume already has been published.

The documents include a series of gospels—the "Gospel of Truth," the "Gospel of Philip," the "Gospel of Thomas." There also are three versions of the "Apocrypha of John."

All these documents are filled with secret words, codes, key words, which only the initiates could fully understand. Gnostics believed that only through possessing this secret knowledge could men find salvation.

Writing on the subject in the Biblical Archaeologist, Dr. Floyd V. Filson of McCormick Theological Seminary notes that early Christian writers accused the Gnostics of irregular sexual practices, and some hints in the Gospel of Philip document indicate their suspicions may have been well founded.

In Philip's Gospel, the holy of holies in the temple is called the "bedchamber" and there are references to giving birth and conceiving by kissing.

Jaycee Golfers Tee Off Today

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — A field of 148 teenage golfers begins play today in the 54-hole North Carolina Jaycee Junior tournament.

Four places are available in next month's national event at Denver.

The field will be cut to the low 64 scorers tonight for tomorrow's 36-hole windup.

Raymond Floyd of Fayetteville, now in the Army, won the state and national titles last summer.

Duke golf coach Ellis (Dumpy) Haxler was scheduled to conduct a clinic today.

Rain shortened a scheduled 18-hole exhibition match at the Lumberton Golf Club Monday. Charlie amateurs Dave and Gaston Smith held a 1-up margin over pros Dick Tiddy of Charlotte and Hampton Auld of Wilmington when further play was made impossible by the heavy thunderstorm.

Each of the Smiths was two under at the point, Tiddy one under and Auld even.

The Smiths led by three holes through the 13th, but Tiddy birdied Nos. 14 and 15 and they halved No. 16.

Wilson Veterans To Be Discussed

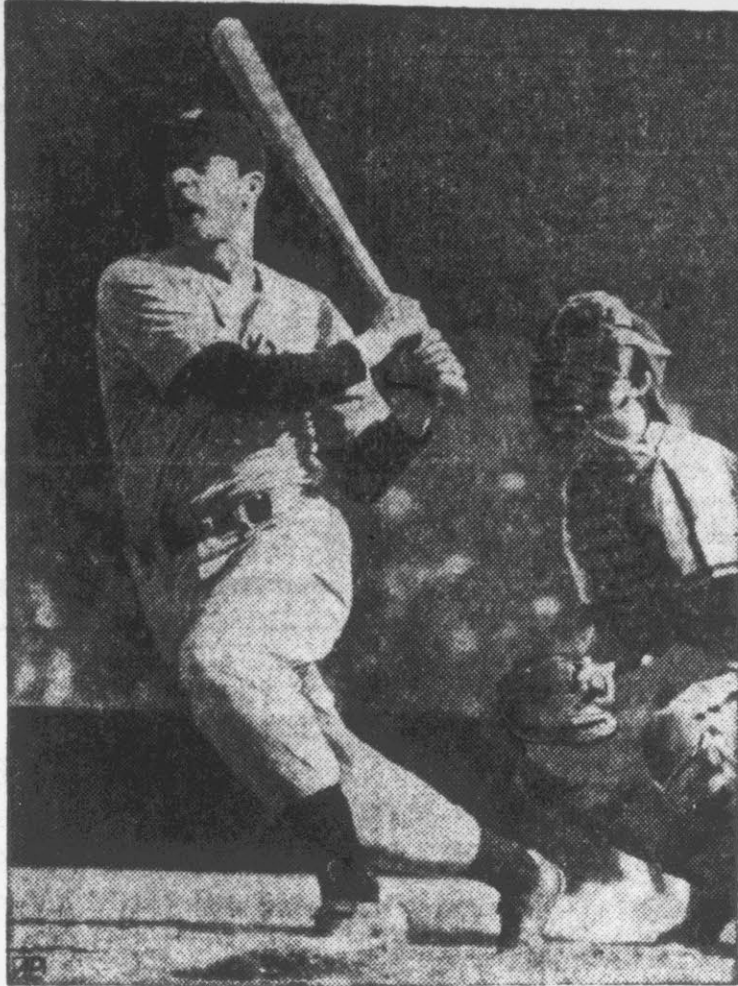

Whether Wilson, winner of the first of the split Carolina League season, has had too many veteran players on his roster was to be aired this afternoon when league directors meet here for a special session.

Durham has charged that Wilson used eight veteran players, one over the prescribed league limit.

Minor Leagues President George M. Trautman has ruled Jesus Torres a veteran player as of July 16 because of an error in the Association of Minor League's qualification register.

Whitey Kurowski, former Cardinal third baseman, manages the Tulsa Oilers, a St. Louis farm team in the Texas League.

DiMaggio Recalls Being Nervous During His First All-Star Game

JOE DIMAGGIO
1941: A Hit in 56-Game Streak

By FRANK ECK

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — "I'll say it was a bad day," Joe DiMaggio began when someone recalled his first All-Star game at old Braves Field in Boston in 1936.

"I went 0 for 5. It was the worst day I ever had in baseball. Don't think I wasn't nervous — a rookie."

"Gabby Hartnett drove a ball past me in center field. But I'll have to give Schoolboy Rowe — the Lord rest his soul — an assist on that one."

"I tried to play Gabby shallow but Schoolboy kept motioning me to play deeper. He played against Hartnett in the previous World Series and I figured he knew what he was doing better than I did. It was my first year up, remember. Well, Gabby hit one and I had to run in a city block. The ball hit my finger tips, skidded off and went right through my legs. When I looked up Hartnett was on third base."

"Had I played my normal position I would have caught the ball."

"Then in the ninth inning I came up with the bases loaded. Leo Durocher was playing shortstop. I hit a sinking line drive. Durocher leaped for the ball but caught it below his belt buckle."

This may have been DiMaggio's worst game among 1,736 (plus 12 additional All-Star games and those in 10 World Series). For 13 American League seasons with the New York Yankees he compiled a career average of .325.

Today there are only six active American League players with career marks better than 300. And they are topped by Mickey Mantle and Minnie Mino, both with 307.

Nobody in either league has ever come close to the DiMaggio record of hitting safely in 56 straight league games.

"I remember that July night in 1941 when it (the streak) ended, too," says DiMaggio. "Lefty Gomez and I took a cab and on the way to the ball park in Cleveland the cab driver says 'I have a feeling you'll be stopped tonight.'"

"I coulda killed that cab driver," interrupted Gomez. DiMag's old roommate. "For years you had a pet superstition."

"I never was superstitious," replied DiMaggio.

"Oh yes you were. Give me your cap. Here's what you used to do on the way out to center field."

Gomez then went through cap turning motions and two or three kicks at the dirt with his right shoe.

DiMaggio just smiled. Gomez was right even though he was a lefty. He always did recognize a good hitter. Gomez once roomed with Babe Ruth.

Regional Go-Kart Races At Bethel This Weekend

Drivers From Three States Are Entered

BETHEL—The Go Kart Club of America and the Mid-Carolina Region GKCA will bring its regional championship kart races to Bethel this year on June 30, July 1 and 2.

Time trials will be held on Friday, June 30, with elimination trials on Saturday and the feature races on Sunday. The feature events will include three races in each class. The classes are A Standard and Super, B Standard and Super, and C Standard and Super.

This will be the eleventh annual District Regional Kart Race and will bring to Bethel the best Go Kart drivers in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

Three hundred karts or more are expected to run in the three day affair.

Friday's time trials, which begin at 2:00 p.m., will have a new race every ten minutes. Ten and 15 lap races will be run on Saturday's elimination schedule beginning at 2:00. The same starting time is set for the feature races on Sunday. In case of rain, the dates will be moved up to July 3rd and 4th.

Trophies will be awarded for both Saturday and Sunday races. Championship, awards for each class will be determined by the combined total points received by a driver in Sunday's class races. The Regional Champion will be determined by the driver with the most points in his class. In case of a tie, the champion will be decided by the driver whose qualifying time exceeds by the greatest degree or comes closest to the posted track record in his respective class.

Competition is open to members of the GKCA who hold currently valid National, Regional, or National Associate members-at-large membership status, and to those specifically invited guests who hold a guest card and who live outside the United States. The minimum height for any driver is four feet six inches.

Regulations concerning the karts will include passing a rigid safety inspection test prior to being admitted to practice. Emphasis will be placed on the condition of steering and suspension systems, brakes, tires and wheels, and leakage of fuel and fuel caps.

Admission prices to the races will be $1.00 for adults and 50¢ for children. There will be no admission charge for Friday's time trials.

The winners of Bethel's kart races will travel to Hickory for an Area Meet in early August which will include drivers from nine states. Winners of the Area Meet will compete in National Finals which are held in Mansfield, Ohio during the latter part of August.

Statesville Tops Western League

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Runnersup Salisbury fell four games behind pace-setting Statesville by losing at Belmont 9-0 in the only Western Carolina League baseball game played Monday night.

Rain washed out the scheduled Lexington at Newton-Conover and Statesville at Shelby games.

Belmont southpaw ace Ron Gardner pitched five-hit ball to bring his record to 4-1. He was backed up by errorless support, only the second such feat for Belmont in 50 games.

Catcher Larry Belanger, back after two weeks on the injured list, belted a 350-foot homer over the left field fence and shortstop Buddy Cia had a perfect night on three walks, a double and a single.

Tonight Newton-Conover is at Lexington, Shelby at Statesville and Salisbury at Belmont.

Arnold Palmer's six-under-par 65 at Cherry Hills in Denver last year was the best closing round ever shot by a winner of the National Open.

Blues Running

OREGON INLET, N.C. (AP) — At least 600 catches of big bluefish were reported about 15 miles east of here Monday in a run described as similar to the middle 1930s.

The schools of blues, weighing 7 to 10 pounds, have moved closer inshore in the past three days than at any time in the last 25 years, said Capt. Wayland Baum, skipper of the fishing cruiser "Marianne."

"Whether they will actually come into the surf as they did in the 1930s is anybody's guess," he added.

The first catches of big blues reported in three years in this area occurred four days ago near Wimple Shoals. Since then the schools have moved northward about 12 miles.

MIGHTY MICKEY..... by Pap'

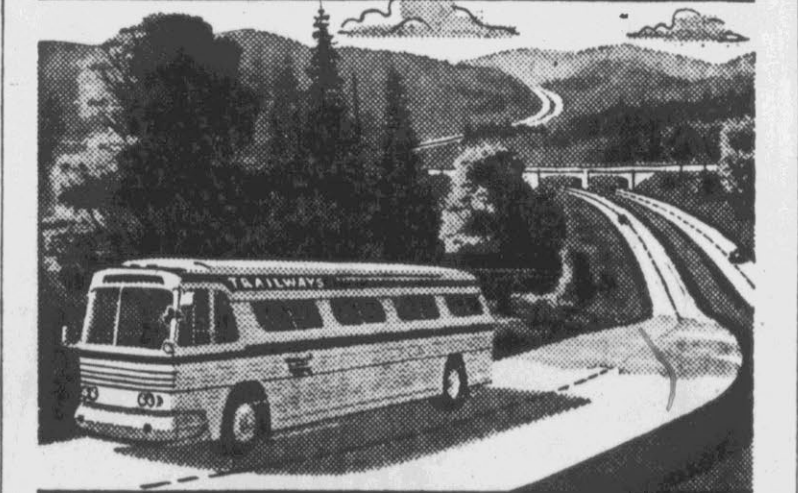

Mary Kathryn (Mickey) Wright is proud of her reputation as the longest hitter among the touring lady golf professionals. Not only does her prodigious driving make her a prime gate attraction but it also sets up her short game and makes scoring a bit simpler. And when pay-day comes, it is on the basis of lowest score. That's very important because Mickey makes her living playing golf. It's a pretty good living, too, for she has won around $18,000 each of the past two years and 1961 promises to be even better.

Playing in a foursome directly behind Miss Wright's group recently, we were in a position to note that Mickey was right up with National Amateur Champion Deane Beman off the tee. Beman is no short hitter among the top amateurs. It is easy to believe that she won a driving contest with a 285-yard poke. But Mickey would rather talk about her fine scoring record that shows an average of 73 strokes the past year. Twice she has posted rounds of 66. Last year in the Memphis Open, Mickey had 12 pars and six birdies for a course record of 66.

Miss Wright is a big girl—5-foot-9 and 145 pounds—but she is no muscle-moll. She is an attractive blond, and completely feminine. She is dedicated to playing golf and stubbornly determined to learn to play as well as her talents permit. She has won every major title, including the U.S. Open, Ladies PGA and Titleholders, and intends to keep on playing as long as she continues to win her share of the tournaments. And that appears to be for some time to come.

Sluggers Set A Record Pace For Home Runs

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league sluggers are hitting homers at a record-breaking pace this season and home run standards of both circuits and seven individual teams are in jeopardy.

The combined home run total through Sunday's games was 1,206. The major league record was set in 1956 when 2,294 were hit.

The American League, playing with 10 clubs for the first time, is almost certain to smash its own mark of 1,091 set in 1959. AL batsmen already have walloped 681 circuit blows. Associated Press figures showed Monday.

The National League record is 1,263, established in 1955. With more than two weeks remaining before the season's halfway mark is reached, the senior loop's aggregate is 525.

He's 75, And A Handball Winner

ELMIRA, N. Y. (AP)—On his 75th birthday, when most men have retired to the rocking chair, Burr H. Tupper played two games of handball with some youngsters in their 20s and 30s. He won one and lost one.

Tupper appears regularly at the YMCA on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays to play handball. And he frequently plays softball with the neighborhood children. He also mows his 200 by 300-foot lawn and shovels snow.

The busy real estate broker and appraiser—he testifies in Court of Claims cases—has been playing handball for more than 30 years. One of his youthful opponents, Wesley R. Derr, says "Tupper keeps us going. He's got more fitness than the rest of us. We try to overpower an opponent. He knows how to pace himself while the rest of us slambang through."

Tupper, described by another competitor as "the last of the clean-livers," doesn't smoke or drink.

His wife says she worries about his athletic program but "they say you should keep active and do what you're always done when you are older."

To which Tupper, a grandfather six times, replies: "Well, she might as well worry about that as something else."

Historical Interests Received Nearly $3.5 Million

By AURORA DOLLEY
(Reflector Bureau
Assn. Afternoon Edition)

RALEIGH—Folks at the Department of Archives and History refer to the '61 General Assembly as the "Generous Assembly," and with good reason, too. Nearly three and a half million dollars have been authorized in the next biennium for restoration of historical sites, preservation of buildings, establishing memorials, and stimulating interest in the State's historical past.

This does not include additional sums authorized to be appropriated from the State's Contingency and Emergency fund, nor does it include expenses of operation and salaries of personnel at the Department of Archives and History. Legislative records indicate that only one major project calling for financial support was turned down—in the field of historical markers, that is.

A request for the State to acquire the Bertie County home and grounds of David Stone, governor shortly after the turn of the 19th century, was not approved. Many requests were trimmed, of course, but the generous '61 legislators were more kind to the preservation of the past than has been any previous General Assembly, according to Dr. Christopher Crittenden, Director of the Department of Archives and History for 26 years.

The budget of the Department has increased $370 per cent from the '35-'37 appropriation of less than $40,000, he says. This does not include most of the individual bills providing for allocations to sites of historic interest across the State. Requiring no appropriation was a bill introduced by Rep. Carson Gregory of Harnett to have the Battle of Averasboro recognized as a significant event in North Carolina history.

Under the bill, the Department of Archives and History would need an appropriation. The State will contribute five hundred dollars each year for the next two years for celebration of the Battle of Moore's Creek Bridge in Pender County, scene of Revolutionary War combat. Rep. Ashley M. Murphy of Pender backed this bill.

At the site of the largest and bloodiest battle ever fought on North Carolina soil, Bentonville, which is in Johnston County near Smithfield, a visitor center-museum building will be built. The $26,000 legislative appropriation also includes restoration of Harper House, used during the Confederate Battle as a hospital, according to the bill sponsored by Rep. Roy Coates.

Two presidential birthplaces in North Carolina will receive state funds for development. A challenge grant from the Richardson Foundation in the amount of $10,000 and expected $25,000 in donations from other sources will be matched for the Mecklenburg site which James K. Polk called home. Andy Jackson's birthplace in Union County will receive another $12,500 to be spent as the Department of Archives and History deems necessary in development of the site, as requested by Rep. Glenn Hawfield.

A total of even more will be spent for the memory of two Tar Heel governors—Charles B. Aycock and Richard Caswell. It is perhaps not surprising that this "education-conscious" Assembly should appropriate the larger sum to its "education governor," Gov. Aycock, whose birthplace in Wayne County will receive $42,500 for construction of a museum-visitor center.

The first N. C. governor elected by the Legislature, Richard Caswell, who took office in 1776, was buried in a spot near Kinston, Lenoir County, then a part of Dobbs County. For improvement and maintenance of this site the '61 Assembly has earmarked $30,000, passing the bill introduced by Sen. Tom White. Funds for the Aycock property were requested by Sens. Seth Hollowell, Joe Eagles, and Rep. Roland Braswell. Former State Senator and Congressman Bob Doughton was not forgotten, either, and a bill introduced by Sen. John Kester authorizing appropriation of $25,000 to erect a Doughton memorial near Laurel Springs in Wilkes County was approved. Private donations, too, are anticipated, legislators were told. Gov. Sanford will appoint a 25 member committee to make final decisions regarding the memorial, according to the bill.

For rebuilding the Lost Colony amphitheater on Roanoke Island the amount of $10,000 was requested by Sens. Lindsay Warren and P. D. Midgett, with Rep. Keith Fearing; later $125,000 was also requested and approved for purchase of additional land in the vicinity of Fort Raleigh.

home of an Edenton Historic Commission whose purpose is to acquire, repair, and maintain historic sites in Edenton and Chowan County. The bill, introduced by Rep. Albert Byrum, authorizes the Governor to appoint the 15 member commission and states that any appropriations for the commission shall be made to the Department of Archives and History.

In addition, $3,000 was authorized for the Chowan County Cupola House and Penelope Barker House, to be spent for preservation, maintenance, and operation expenses. Bennett Place, in Durham, scene of the surrender of Gen. Joseph E. Johnston to Sherman, receives $14,750 for upkeep. Legislation seeking funds was introduced by Reps. Eugene Brooks III, Nick Galifianakis, and Sen. Claude Currie.

Sen. Lindsay Warren of Beaufort was not too busy with restricting to see that historic Bath got another $15,000 for more restoration and Davidson Sen. R. L. VanLandingham looked after Daniel Boone's Davidson homestead to the tune of $10,000, part of which will be used to buy more of the surrounding lands.

Rep. E. I. Satterfield of Person still thinks Dolly Madison was born in his county, and his persistence is responsible for a bill which provides that a person with knowledge or proof of the error in the location of a historical marker may appear before the advisory commission of the Department of Archives and History to present his "case," and that the Department will correct its error if convinced it was wrong in the first place.

Having "disposed" of Daniel Boone and Dolly Madison, the '61 legislature turned to thoughts of berthing the Battleship U.S.S. North Carolina as a memorial and educator brings back old slate. UPPER ARLINGTON, Ohio (AP)—The old fashioned school slate plays an important part in a learning device contrived by Upper Arlington principal Paul Hill.

As a kind of do-it-yourself project, the young school administrator developed a plywood table surface, big enough for 12 pupils. It has a curved slot in which the teacher may sit at the center of one side, and a slate—fastened down to discourage breakage—at each pupil's place.

Twenty-three of them now are in use in Upper Arlington, which is a suburb of Columbia, Ohio's capital. Hill says the slates help youngsters' learning because they can copy drawings and figure or write on them. The table also is designed to improve posture, which the principal says tends to suffer when youngsters sit in chairs or on the floor and attempt to hold books.

Good Investment In Backyard Plot. CHICAGO (AP)—Growing food in your own backyard can stretch your household budget.

The National Garden Bureau says that a plot of ground 20 by 30 feet will grow about 90 pounds of fresh vegetables. Through canning and storage, many of the vegetables would be available for meals throughout the winter.

Vegetables include peas, tomatoes, parsley, spinach, cabbage, Swiss chard, lettuce, radishes, carrots, beets, onions, snap beans, peppers and turnips. Carol Dietz, bureau spokesman, says home-grown vegetables worth about $127 can be produced from $5.36 worth of seed and fertilizer.

READY!

Newspaper Advertising Readers Are Ready To Buy!

Newspaper readers are attracted to your advertising because it interests them. They are more apt to be live, "ready-to-buy" prospects than is the case with readers and viewers of other advertising media. Live prospects are easier to sell. They actually shop the newspaper ads—they want to be sold, and are looking for information to help make a buying decision. Take housewives, for example—research* proves that 75% of them check the ads in the daily newspaper before making their main shopping trips of the week. It's that kind of readiness on the part of newspaper readers that can mean ready sales for you!

Eichmann Seeks To Show Orders 'Bypassed' Him

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann, through the medium of five hand-drawn charts, today renewed his attempt to show that the Nazi slaughter of the Jews was in the hands of the Gestapo in the field, acting on top-level orders, and that he was bypassed at all times.

This was especially true when Eichmann was in the field himself, directing the evacuation of 600,000 Jews from Hungary, defense counsel Robert Servatius contended.

In Budapest, said Servatius, the deportations to the death camps were the responsibility of the senior SS and security police and Eichmann only organized the trains.

Eichmann, on the stand for the sixth day, again gave a marathon description of the Nazi bureaucracy designed to illustrate that he was constantly under orders and personally bore no responsibility for the pogrom.

Redstone Rocket Tests Are Ended

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Redstone, the "old reliable" rocket which became America's first big ballistic missile, satellite booster and man-in-space vehicle, has ended its military test program after eight years.

The slender, 69-foot rocket experienced its final practice firing as a military weapon Monday night and it performed in characteristic fashion, smacking a target 200 miles down the Atlantic Range. The Army reported the success, 41st in 45 test launchings.

Only three more Redstones are scheduled to be fired from Cape. These are modified rockets which will hoist three human astronauts on suborbital space flights similar to that of Alan B. Shepard Jr. on May 5. Shepard's space capsule hurtled 116 miles high and 302 miles down range.

As the Redstone blazed into a cloudy Florida night, Navy technicians sought the cause of a Polaris missile failure earlier in the day.

A second-stage malfunction plunged the Polaris into the ocean far short of its intended 1,600-mile goal after it was launched from a tube in the deck of the USS Observation Island. The missile-firing ship was cruising about seven miles off the Florida shore. The failure was only the fourth in 13 firings of the "second generation" Polaris A2 model.

The school was conducted from June 18-23. J. E. Civils of Atlanta, regional director and Southeastern representative of the National Safety Council, was in charge.

Ship Aground In Inland Waterway

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—Tugboats have been working frantically in the inland waterway near here in an attempt to free an ocean-going ship which has run aground and intermittently blocks the channel. The Coast Guard said the vessel shifts back and forth with tidal movements and at times blocks the waterway completely. It tied up channel traffic for most of Monday afternoon.

The ship is a decommissioned Army transport which went aground about 12 miles north of here last Thursday. It is 180 feet long.

The Coast Guard said the waterway was too shallow for its tugs to help in the operation. The tugs which were towing the ship at the time it ran aground are trying to free it.

The vessel was recently bought by an unidentified man and was being towed south.

About 2,000 persons are killed or injured by lightning in the United States each year.

This family is the victim of hot weather stalling—one of three infuriating troubles that can strike your car on sizzling days. Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend fights all three.

HAPPY JULY 4th?

Fight hot weather stalls with Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend. Famous 9-ingredient formula now adjusted for top performance when highways sizzle.

You can get Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend at any Shell station on your route this weekend. Read how it just might save you a lot of trouble.

Engines, like people, can suffer from heat prostration. Especially in the kind of hot and heavy traffic you may face during the weekend ahead.

Here are three infuriating troubles that are caused by excessive heat — and what Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend does to fight them.

How Super Shell fights hot weather stalls
If your engine sputters and dies on a hot day, it may have an ailment called vapor lock.

Hot weather can make certain gasolines start to boil right in the fuel line. They literally bubble. Vapor lock takes place when the bubbles choke off the fuel supply.

Shell scientists attack vapor lock by revising Super Shell's nine-ingredient formula in summer. They reduce its volatility. This produces a Hot Weather Blend of Super Shell that's not likely to boil in your fuel line. It cuts the chances of hot weather stalls to a minimum.

How Super Shell fights hard starting
Here's what can happen when you try to re-start your car after a hot drive.

With the fan stopped and the cooling system idle, intense heat under the hood can actually make gasoline percolate in some carburetors. Just like coffee in a pot. The gasoline spills over, floods the engine — and makes it hard to start. Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend is formulated to stand high temperatures without percolating. You get quick starts even after a long, hard, hot drive.

How Super Shell fights rough idling
The same trouble that causes summer starting difficulties can give your car the shakes every time you stop for a traffic light.

Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend attacks both problems the same way. Its formula is adjusted so that it's in no hurry to boil and bubble. Result: smooth idling in hot weather.

Shell trouble-shooter
Your Shell dealer will be glad to prepare your car for summer driving. His trouble-shooting may save you hours of delay on the road.

And ask him to fill your tank with Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend. Then you will really be set for top performance.

- Super Shell's 9 Ingredients for top performance

  - #7 is an "anti-icer." (Added when cold weather sets in.)
  - #8 is gum preventive — for clean carburetors.
  - #9 is Platformate for extra mileage.
- *Trademark for Shell's unique gasoline additive. Gasoline containing TCP is covered by U.S. Patent 2880212.

In loving memory of Hazel Mayo, who died a year ago:
Who was loaned to us for awhile,
And the sweet influence of your good life
Kept us away from any guile.

We miss your face and loving smile.
And no more shall we forget
Those kind words you had for all,
We will never lose them with regret.

We grieve with those you left behind.
For we love you, Hazel, too.

Till we shall rest with thee.

Supper Honors Retiring City Policemen

IN HONOR OF RETIRING OFFICER . . . Police Chief Gibbs, Whichard, Solicitor Bloom, and City Manager Louis Scheipers, as they gathered following a supper in honor of Whichard last night. Whichard, an officer with the local department for over 40 years, is scheduled to retire July 1.

Methodist Conference Votes Down Amendment

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The 126th annual meeting of the North Carolina Methodist Conference headed into its second day today after overwhelmingly defeating a proposed amendment to the constitution of the church concerning the jurisdictional system.

The action, at Monday's opening of the four-day meeting was taken after W. L. Clegg, Burlington District superintendent spoke against the amendment. It was defeated 342 to 33.

The amendment, a proposal of the 1960 General Conference of the Methodist Church, called for: consecration of bishops at the General Conference; increases in the number of delegates to the General Conference from 900 to 1,400; the Jurisdictional Conference to meet in the same city in which the General Conference meets.

Dr. Clegg, speaking in opposition, said the General Conference size is sufficiently large and any membership increase would make it more difficult to do the work of the church.

Bickering On Segregation Appears Ends In NEA

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The National Education Association, whose ranks have been split in the past by bitter battles over school desegregation, appears ready this year to take a stand on the issue with a minimum of bickering.

The powerful resolutions committee of the NEA convention has offered the strongest policy statement on desegregation in NEA history.

It falls far short of what many Negroes and many Northern and Western whites would like. However, it seems to have at least token support from them, and from Southern whites as well.

The policy statement was offered at an open meeting of the resolutions committee Monday. In contrast to past years, its reception was mild.

For instance, the NEA, with a membership of 765,000 educators, never has said flatly that it approves of the 1954 Supreme Court decision on segregated schools. This year's proposed resolution at least acknowledges that decision and the changes it has brought to the public schools. It is the first one ever to carry even a hint of action by the NEA.

Last Rites Set For Lewis P. Ipock, Jr.

Lewis Patrick Ipock Jr., three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Patrick Ipock of Vanceboro, died at the Beaufort County Memorial Hospital in Washington Monday afternoon at 4:15.

He was struck by a car in front of his home about an hour earlier.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Vanceboro Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock by the pastor, the Rev. H. B. Jones. Burial will be in the Celestial Memorial Gardens in Vanceboro. The body will remain at the Wilkerson Funeral Home and will be taken to the church one hour prior to the time of services.

Surviving are his parents; a brother, Samuel Mark Ipock of the home; his grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. William L. Ipock of Vanceboro and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Knox of Ermital; and his great grandparents, Mr. Charlie Cayton of Ermital and Mrs. J. R. Matthews of Vanceboro.

Officers and members of the Greenville Police Department and city officials gathered last night to pay honor to a retiring officer — veteran policeman Jessie L. Whichard.

"Capt. Jess," as he is fondly known by many, will retire from active police work July 1, after over 40 years with the department.

His co-workers last night gave a supper in his honor at the department's clubhouse . . . a supper that by its simplicity, paid tribute to the many years of service the retiring officer has given to the people of the city.

Elm Bloom, solicitor for Greenville Recorder's Court, told the group, "Never has there been an officer who, in every way, commands more respect. We on the streets are going to miss him . . . because he will do his utmost to help you."

Bloom, commenting that "Mr. Jess is a Policeman's Policeman," expressed the wish that the officer would enjoy his retirement in the same proportion that he has done his duty.

The court officials, who spoke on behalf of the other guests, pointed out that although Whichard has acted as bailiff of the court for several years, he is retiring from the Police Department, he will still be associated with the court.

The Commission chairman said, "The Grand Jurors stated they knew the commissioners were complying with the law. They were not critical of the Commissioners."

Three Accidents Reported In City

Damage, estimated by police at over $800, resulted in one of three mishaps on city streets, officers reported today.

Officers said $800 damage resulted to a car operated by James M. Graham, III, of 807 College View Apartments, after the auto went out of control and clipped off a utilities pole.

Graham, 21, was charged with careless and reckless driving.

Police quoted the man as saying he lost control of the car as he pulled out to pass a second vehicle.

Damage to the pole was not listed by investigators, who reported no injuries.

No charges were made by officers in a second collision involving trucks driven by C. J. Moye, 61, of 809 Forbes St., and Jesse James Duncan, 48-year-old Negro of 518 Vance St.

Officers said the mishap occurred at the intersection of Douglas and Roosevelt Aves. about 7:55 a.m.

Damage to the Duncan vehicle was set at $15, while damage to the truck operated by Moye was placed at $75.

An estimated $40 damage was done to a truck operated by Joe Ebron, 50-year-old Negro of 709 Fleming St., police reported, when the truck collided with a car near the intersection of Pamlico Ave. and Fleming St.

Operator of the second vehicle involved in the mishap was identified as William Elton Bessett, 49, of Wilson.

No damage resulted to the Bessett vehicle, and no charges were placed.
