

Two Weeks Of Talk Fail To Set Up Conference On Disarmament

Negotiators Agree To Another Try, But U. S. Experts See Little Hope

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two weeks of negotiations have failed to produce agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union setting up a general disarmament conference.

Both sides admitted this Friday as their Washington talks wound up. The negotiators did agree to begin a second round of discussions in Moscow July 17.

U. S. negotiators prepared for the Moscow talks with a sense of disappointment at the lack of progress. President Kennedy himself took a personal hand Friday in trying to further the discussions.

Kennedy invited the Soviet negotiator, Valerian A. Zorin, and Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov to the White House for a half-hour chat before Friday's windup.

Kennedy was reported to have stressed to Zorin the importance he attaches to getting an agreement to end the arms race.

The snail's pace of the discussions has added to a growing opinion among Kennedy advisers that no fruitful negotiations with the Russians on major cold war issues are in sight.

Instead, in the opinion of top Kennedy aides, the Russians are in a self-confident, non-negotiating mood based on a belief the tide is with them. The Russians, Kennedy aides say, have shown no signs of conciliation at the Geneva talks or in the conferences in the Germany-Berlin issue.

The Americans had hoped for agreement by now on starting a multination disarmament conference by July 31. While this is still the official hope, authorities privately concede it now looks as if the disarmament question may have to be tossed back into the lap of the United Nations when the General Assembly meets this fall.

For one thing, Moscow wants a 15-nation disarmament parley split 5-5-5 among Communist, Western and neutral nations. The Americans oppose this as a form of Khrushchev's troika plan to give the Soviet Union veto power.

For another, Zorin has pressed for agreement on specific disarmament proposals which the U. S. negotiator, John J. McCloy, says should be reserved for a general conference. McCloy wants the two-nation talks limited to setting up the framework for the general conference.

Informants said the sessions here were largely taken up by Zorin and McCloy outliving their government's views without getting into the give and take which marks progress toward agreement.

No time limit was set for the Moscow talks. McCloy will head the U. S. delegation.

So far, Zorin said, "practical questions have not been discussed in detail."

Nags Head Today Is Incorporated

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — This Outer Banks resort community became an incorporated town today.

The town was incorporated through action of the General Assembly, effective today.

Many of the people who own property here maintain their legal residence elsewhere, but they will still be able to vote in the town elections, except on bond issues.

Julian Oneto was elected mayor by the new town commissioners. One of the commissioners, Carlton Gilliam, lives in Windsor but owns property here.

The others, Tom McKinney, Lionell Edwards and James Scarborough, live here.

Safety Message For Holiday Weekend

STOP—DRIVE SAFELY . . . over the holiday weekend, is the message these highway patrolmen had for motorists who passed through the floodlight check station on N. C. 11 South of Greenville last night.

Highway Patrol Mobilizes For All-Out Traffic Watch

The North Carolina State Highway Patrol is declaring an all-out war on motor vehicle violations and the resulting traffic "accidents" and fatalities over this Fourth of July holiday weekend.

But, "without the full cooperation of each motorist traveling on the roads," their efforts will be in vain, according to Troop "A" Commander Capt. S. H. Mitchell.

Patrolmen in Pitt County and throughout the troop and the state will be working around the clock "with every tool at their disposal to seek out and arrest traffic-law violators . . . the persons who cause the heavy toll in personal injury and property damage each year."

According to the patrol official, marked and unmarked cars will be in operation in the area, as well as speed clocks and radar speed-check units.

Capt. Mitchell added that an airplane, for use in "keeping watch" on traffic conditions and sending patrol cars to heavily congested areas or areas where speeding traffic is found, is available for use also.

Cpl. J. T. Jenkins of Greenville said in accordance with the statewide policy all days off and leaves have been canceled for patrolmen and schedules have been arranged. Pitt roads will be patrolled 24 hours a day over the five-day holiday period.

In addition to the use of plain and marked patrol vehicles and electrical speed-check devices, Pitt drivers are subject to be stopped at a "Floodlight Checking Station," where operators licenses, registration cards and safety equipment will be checked.

One of the primary objectives of these check stations, Cpl. Jenkins said, is to detect the drinking and drunk drivers and to "get them off the road."

Fifty per cent of the officers in the county will be assigned to selective enforcement patrols, the corporal stated, explaining that the patrols will include saturation patrolling of a 10-mile section of road, with the officers required to stop at least one motorist every 15 minutes.

Cpl. Jenkins noted that the areas selected for the saturation patrols are chosen for their high accident frequency rates.

He also warned that motorists "may encounter more than one set of dummy speed clock tubes over the weekend period."

During the holiday period last year, seven mishaps occurred in the county, the patrolman reported, causing three injuries and $2,290 property damage.

Two of the collisions were on rural paved roads while two of the mishaps were on US 264. Two others were on NC 222, and the seventh was at the intersection of NC 11-NC43 near Pitt Memorial Hospital, he said. Charges made in the seven mishaps included failure to stop for stop signs, operating on the wrong side of the road, and failure to yield the right of way.

He pointed out that, according to figures compiled at the local highway patrol office, the most dangerous place to drive in Pitt County is within a five-mile radius of Greenville, with the major portion of the mishaps occurring in this area.

Patrol spokesmen urged motorists to cooperate with officers in making travel on the state's roads safe over the holiday, by obeying the traffic laws and being courteous while driving.

Motorists making trips over the holiday period were requested to start early and allow ample time for rest stops.

Retail Sales In Pitt Sharply Up

Latest available figures indicate gross retail sales in Pitt County are nearly $1 million above last year's activity.

In a recent bulletin released by the Greenville Merchants Association, it was reported that gross retail sales in Pitt during March, 1961, totaled $5,713,551 compared with $4,785,989 in March of 1960. The March, 1961, figure was compared with the previous month's total of $4,819,961.

The bulletin also reported sales tax collections in the county and in Greenville last March were substantially above the February and March, 1960, totals.

In Pitt County, sales tax collections during last March totaled $88,869.67—nearly $16,000 higher than the $73,072.78 recorded in March, 1960. Tax collections in Greenville were $57,769.86 and $46,974.20 for March, 1961, and the previous March, respectively.

From February to March this year, sale tax collections in Pitt rose from $77,445.51 to nearly $89,000. In Greenville, the figure climbed from $47,804.50 to nearly $58,000.

County, Municipal Govm'ts Now Face Keeping Tab On New Taxes

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

As the 1961-62 fiscal year begins today Pitt County and its municipal governments are faced with paying and keeping track of at least $47,500 in sales and use taxes under Gov. Sanford's newly-enacted sales tax exemption-lifting program.

While preliminary estimates of the amount of tax that will have to be paid by Pitt and its towns do not include all the county's municipalities, the $47,500 represents estimates of the county's five largest budgets.

The 1961 General Assembly lifted, at Gov. Sanford's urging, county and city exemptions to the statewide three per cent sales tax that now includes food. It provided that the local governments could file refund claims at the end of each fiscal year in which the tax is collected.

Sales and use taxes paid by the local government units, therefore, can be regained through refunds; but the added expense of keeping tabs on the amount of tax paid can not.

The Greenville Utilities Commission, through its superintendent, Leonard P. Bloxam, estimates its purchases will be taxed to the average annual tune of around $25,000.

Bloxam's estimate is based on average purchases during the past three fiscal years. "If we got into a major outlay program, it would exceed that amount," he says.

He predicts, "It will be right much additional record-keeping for the Utilities Commission. It will amount to more than just keeping up with the amount. We also have to have records if the State wants to audit them."

Greenville Mayor Louis Schepers estimates the Greenville governmental unit will be taxed about $8,000 on its purchases in fiscal 1961-62.

County Auditor H. Reginald Gray reports a "conservative estimate" of around $7,000 that will have to be paid in sales and use taxes out of the county's $1.7 million budget this fiscal year.

Gray says the county estimate is below municipal tax prediction figures because "we provide mostly services" while other local government budgets in the county provide for larger expenditures for utilities, street materials and equipment and other similar items.

The bulk of the sales tax from Pitt's purchases will come from buying office and school supplies and relatively small capital outlay items such as vehicles, tools and other equipment.

According to Gray's preliminary estimate, the county schools' share of the tax will be around $4,500 with the remaining $2,500 coming from county purchases for other departments.

Gray says he is not sure yet "just how much extra-work this extra record-keeping will entail." A bulletin from the Sales and Use Tax Division of the State Department of Revenue informs local governments:

"All refund claims . . . must be substantiated by proper documentary proof. The bulletin further states: 'Refund claims will be verified by our field personnel, and you must preserve and furnish to our representative substantiating proof . . . in such form and manner that it can be accurately and conveniently checked.'"

Maintenance of records to substantiate tax refund claims for the estimated $7,000 a year, Gray believes, may cost as much as an additional $1,000.

Farmville's town clerk, Harold M. Alred, estimates the amount of sales tax Farmville will have to ante up will fall between $3,500 and $4,000.

Alred views the pay-and-refund situation as an added bookkeeping activity that must be supported by the town's tax dollars. "It (the bookkeeping) will probably require an additional person in our office three or four days each month to do the necessary accounting," he says.

Ayden Town Manager Cleveland Taylor anticipates a total of around $3,500 in sales and use taxes that will be paid and refunded as a result of that town's purchases.

Town clerks in Grifton, Grimesland and Fountain report estimates of their respective shares in the pay-and-refund tax are not yet available. Bethel Mayor Joe Butterworth says his town board will discuss the matter at its next meeting.

British Land Troops, Fly Jets To Help Guard Kuwait

KUWAIT (AP)—A British aircraft carrier landed Marines and tanks in Kuwait today and a dozen Hunter jet fighters flew in to help guard this oil-rich sheikhdom against a threatened invasion from Iraq.

The government radio announced Saudi Arabia also is sending troops to bolster Kuwait against the annexation claim that Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem advanced a week ago.

In Damascus, Iraq denied massing troops in its southern border with Kuwait or in any part of Iraq, Baghdad radio said.

The denial came in a statement by the state-owned Iraq news agency. "It also denied reports Iraqi vessels fired on Iranian boats trying to move food to Kuwait," Baghdad radio said.

Accompanied by two British frigates, the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Bulwark put ashore a detachment of 52-ton Centurion tanks and about 750 men. These were about 500 marine commandos and a 150-man squadron of the Dragoon Guards.

The frigate Loch Alvie sent officers ashore by helicopter to confer with British and Kuwaiti authorities in this former British protectorate.

Rifle-bearing sheiks swarmed in from the desert by limousine, swearing to help the ruling sheik, Sir Abdullah as-Salim as-Sabah, defend the sovereignty of Kuwait against Iraqi troops and armor reported massing across the border.

Minister of State Bader Abdulla Mulla announced the sheikhdom, just south of Iraq on the Persian Gulf's northwest coast, has requested an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council "to investigate threats from Iraq likely to endanger the security and independence of Kuwait."

Kuwait is a candidate for U. N. membership. It also wants to join the 10-nation Arab League, a Middle East organization in which Iraq, the United Arab Republic and Saudi Arabia are the most powerful members.

It was announced in Cairo that the Arab League Council would hold an extraordinary session Tuesday to consider Kuwait's application.

Britain announced that its help was being sent at the urgent and formal request of Sheikh Abdullah under an agreement signed at the ending of the protectorate last week. It is notifying U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold of the situation.

The British Foreign Office said "her majesty's government earnestly hopes that the necessity to make use of this force will not arise."

Downs sailed out to greet the British ships. Crowds along the seafloor chatted excitedly about the warcraft.

"We've got the British," a robed taxi driver said cheerfully. "The Iraqis have nothing."

The British operations is under command of Air Marshal Sir Charles Elworthy, British commander-in-chief in the Middle East.

Roads to the frontier were jammed with truckloads of Bedouin tribesmen who have taken up arms in the defense of Kuwait. Contingents of Kuwait's 2,400-man army had previously been sent to the border.

Correspondents estimated that more than 3,000 tribesmen passed through in one hour bound for the border. Newsmen were stopped by police 45 miles north of the capital and prevented from heading farther north.

The border was closed Friday night for the first time since the crisis was touched off by Iraq's claim to Kuwait, which attained full independence from Britain only two weeks ago.

French Forces Open Fire On Rioting Mob In Algiers

ALGIERS (AP)—French forces in Algiers and nearby Blida opened fire today on Muslim mobs attacking them with stones and clubs. Police said one rioter was killed and scores hurt.

The Muslims took to the streets by the hundreds, obeying a strike call from the nationalist rebel FLN and savage clashes broke out with police and troops. Fifteen members of the anti-riot forces were injured.

Shortly after noon, however, the government said the situation was in hand.

Police and soldiers first fired into the air to try to halt the Muslims, who advanced on them shouting rebel slogans and waving green and white rebel flags.

Then, as the rioters hurled stones and charged with clubs, the French opened fire.

The Muslims' rage was directed at French President Charles de Gaulle's proposal to partition the country if a negotiated settlement of the Algerian rebellion is not reached.

Bold young Muslims hoisted a rebel flag atop a building in a working-class district and, for a while, a mob blocked off a police station.

The high pitched "yu-yu-yu" cry of Muslim women shrilled in the women have urged their men on quarter. For centuries, Muslim women have urged their men on to war with the high, weird call.

Swinging clubs, police rushed groups of Muslims in Algiers where defiant youths shouted the slogans of the rebellion against French rule.

Authorities reported that the port of city of Oran to the west, was the scene of a Muslim strike but there were no reports of violence.

proposed French partition of Algeria.

Presumably emotional elements among the Muslims did not want to wait and took to the streets early today in the steaming summer heat.

French President Charles de Gaulle, on a grass-roots tour of Lorraine, has told crowds that unless a suitable settlement of the six-year-old Algerian war could be reached, the French would divide the country between Muslims and the one million members of the European community.

This would mean that the Europeans—protected by French military forces—would stay in the big coastal cities while the nine million Muslims would be left in the arid interior.

With the temporary breakdown of the French-rebel peace talks at Evian-Les-Bains, France, and the threat of partition over them, Algerians' Muslims have become increasingly edgy.

Apparently today's sudden eruption of shouting Muslims was the blow-off many feared would occur.

Farmville Mayor, Board Sworn In

FARMVILLE — Mayor O. G. Spell and Farmville's five-man Board of Commissioners were sworn in at noon today in the Town Hall.

Registrar C. A. Lilly administered the oath of office to the town officials, elected here May 2.

For Spell, the swearing-in ceremony marked his return to Farmville's mayoralty after the six-year tenure of Charles S. Edwards who completed his third consecutive term today.

Four of the five commissioners who took office today are newcomers. The only successful incumbent in the May election was Oliver D. Murphrey.

The four new commissioners are Sam Wainwright, top vote-getter in the May commissioner race; Dr. S. H. Aycock; Tommy Lang; and Joseph D. Joyner.

Spell won the mayor's office in a three-way race with Frank K. Allen and Will E. Joyner. Edwards declined to seek re-election.

Immediately following the oath-taking, the new board was expected to call a special meeting to adopt an interim budget resolution to allow the town to operate until the new fiscal year's budget is finalized.

Proposed list of expenditures during fiscal 1961-62 that totals approximately $465,000. The new board has until July 28 to finalize the new budget.

Shipwrecked Boy Tells Of 3-Day Ordeal, Deaths On A Raft

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A husky 14-year-old boy, who watched two men die as they drifted on a flimsy raft, was recovering in a hospital today after three days of tragedy and terror at sea.

Terry McClelland, a blond high school athlete from Huntington Beach, Calif., was rescued Friday by a fishing boat 90 miles southwest of San Diego.

Transferred to a submarine, he arrived Friday night in San Diego. He was pronounced in fairly good condition at a hospital.

He told newsmen a rambling tale about three terrible days of shivering, thirst, delirium, death, hunger, heat and blinding glare of sun, sea and sky.

And Alvin Hartman, 57, of nearby Santa Ana, Bradford's friend—set out for a month's fishing cruise off Mexico last Tuesday. Bradford was a plastering contractor, Hartman a hod carrier.

After setting out from Newport Beach in their 36-foot boat, they encountered heavy swells. They tried riding at anchor that night. "The sea anchor was pulling on the boat," the boy, mumbling and dazed from sedatives, told newsmen. "Two big swells picked up the boat and pulled the bottom out."

"Grandpa (Bradford) said to cut the raft loose . . ."

The three fishermen got aboard a six-by-three-foot raft of balsam wood and cork. Its bottom consisted only of rope netting through which a few timbers were looped.

and water sloshed through the bottom continually.

They tried to attract several passing vessels Wednesday, their first day on the raft. Although they waved rags and poles, no one stopped.

They had no food or water, only a few packs of cigarettes that Hartman grabbed before leaving the boat.

After waiting in vain for rescuers under a "blinding hot sun," Hartman "went crazy on the second day," Terry said.

Then, the boy continued, "My grandfather went crazy from seeing Al go crazy. He kept screaming and yelling and falling into the water."

"I kept telling him: 'Granddad, don't die, don't leave me here alone.'"

He fell asleep, Terry said, and when he awoke, Bradford was dead. He lashed him to the raft with Hartman—and drifted on.

Early Friday morning, while fog hung low over the Pacific, the raft was spotted by seamen aboard the Ruth Marie, an ocean fishing boat.

USS Diodon, on maneuvers in the area.

He slept most of the time aboard the sub and spoke little of his ordeal. He came ashore in a stretcher, sunburned and shoeless.

He and his mother embraced tearfully. Terry's father, George McClelland, is estranged from Mrs. McClelland and resides at Salinas, Calif.

Terry told his mother: "I'm all right, mother, but I don't want to talk about it."

After a brief talk with newsmen, the boy was taken to Balboa Naval Hospital. There, a doctor said he had suffered only from malnutrition and exposure but was in fairly good condition. The doctor added: "His youth saved him."

How obedience to the law of God opens the way to freedom will be explained Sunday at Christian Science church services.

Among Scriptural passages to be read in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "God," is one from Psalm 119: "Teach me, O Lord, the way of thy statutes; and I shall keep it unto the end. . . And I will walk at liberty; for I seek thy precepts."

Man's right to freedom is also brought out in selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy which will include: "Discerning the rights of man, we cannot fail to foresee the doom of all oppression. Slavery is not the legitimate state of man." (p. 227)

HERE'S WHERE WE LIVE. Along the Little Missouri River... close to the South Dakota border... about 200 miles from Montana and Wyoming... It's fun to look at the whole world, and then put your finger on the place where you live. It makes you realize how important you are! In the free nations of this world everybody is important. People can own land and houses and tractors. They can read the truth. They can think for themselves, and say what they think. They can assemble together to celebrate, or plan—or protest. And they can worship God... in the church they choose... and bring their children... and support their church... and volunteer their talents in its work. Nobody can padlock God's House—or turn it into a museum! Here's where we live, THANK GOD! We thank Him best by using ALL our freedoms....

All About Town With Anne Keziah

I don't know whether any of you saw Wednesday night TV program "The Price Is Right" or not, but in any event there was a Greenville appearing on the program.

Dr. and Mrs. Hubert Paschal of Rock Spring Road were in New York this week celebrating their ninth wedding anniversary. They had planned the usual sightseeing excursions, shows and plays.

On Tuesday Mrs. Paschel, better known as Dot, was chosen from the audience of the "Price Is Right" to appear on Wednesday night's show. She said she had no idea she would get on the show. Fifty contestants are chosen from the tremendous audience and narrowed down twice until five are chosen to appear on the show. Dot said that contestants are chosen largely on their personality.

She said of all the prizes they had on the show the baby grand French Provincial piano was the one she wanted most of all, and that is the prize that she brought home.

This is a special weekend for the Worthingtons at Peaceful Acres, Ayden. Mr. and Mrs. Worthington are announcing Jeannette's engagement on the eve of their 25th Wedding Anniversary. Mrs. Worthington, the former Alma Braxton, was married to Wilbur L. Worthington on July 2, 1936.

Jeannette and her fiancé Dan were introduced by her "big" sister during her freshman year at Meredith, but didn't become serious until her Junior year. In November she was pinned and received her ring just before her graduation in June.

Jeannette, a Meredith graduate, was Pitt County's Dairy Princess last year. She is a member of the faculty of the Newport News City Schools. Dan, a State man, is an engineer with the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. They plan to live in Newport News after their November wedding.

Miss Margaret Ann Stokes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther A. Stokes of Greenville, will be among a group of five teachers and principals representing Norfolk, Va. at a graduate workshop at the University of Wisconsin. The course will begin July 3 and will extend through July 28. Margaret has been employed by the Norfolk City Schools for the past two years. She is a member of the faculty of Easton Elementary School in Norfolk.

In the nation's Capital City this weekend are Mr. and Mrs. Billy Laughinghouse and Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Taylor. While in Washington they plan on seeing the show "Music Man."

Major Robert Short and Mrs. Short of Dallas, Texas are visiting with Mrs. Short's mother Mrs. A. C. Jackson, Sr., for a few days.

Arriving this afternoon for a visit with Mrs. Fred Forbes will be her daughter and family, Captain and Mrs. Robert G. Black and son, Robert, Jr. The Blacks are returning from a two-year tour of duty in London. Captain Black will report soon for an assignment in Washington, D. C.

Miss Tanya Anderson who teaches in Washington, D. C. has been visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Anderson in Falkland.

The Zeta Psi Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority from East Carolina College was represented at the bi-annual International Convention held June 25-30th, by the local chapter's president, Jane Gurganus, Williamston and Mrs. Pelham Martin.

The Zeta Psi Chapter was awarded Monday night one of 12 Achievement Cups awarded to chapters from all over the country, Canada and Hawaii. There were 70 chapters represented.

Leaving today for Lynchburg, Va. were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Griggs and children. Bill and June will spend the week with their parents, both of whom live near Lynchburg.

A former Greenville resident, Bob McArthur, will marry Jean Cox on August 26 in Jacksonville, Florida. Bob's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Robert McArthur of Clearwater, Fla. The McArthurs moved to Clearwater in 1947.

Miss Ruffin Bride Of Mr. Harry Scott

On Friday evening in Saint Paul's Episcopal Church, Miss Margaret Tyson Ruffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alger Coleman Ruffin of Greenville became the bride of Harry White Scott, son of Mrs. Walter Glenn Scott, and the late Mr. Scott of Greenville.

The Rev. John Drake officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Allison Hearne Moss, organist and Miss Elizabeth White, soloist.

Serving as acolyte was Robert Powell Jr., cousin of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of Italian silk taffeta, fashioned with a fitted bodice, short shirred sleeves and a portrait neckline.

The bodice and voluminous skirt were appliqued with medallions of alencon lace trimmed with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The back featured a bustle which extended into a chapel train. Her fingertip mantilla was edged with matching alencon lace. She carried a prayer book centered with stephanotis.

Miss Susanne Bowles of Richmond, Virginia, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Florence Scott, sister of the groom, Miss Stuart Bost, Miss Carol Ann Tadlock, and Miss Grayson Waldrop, all of Greenville. Miss Helen Rivers, also of Greenville, was junior bridesmaid. They wore identical dresses of pale gold organza over taffeta, made with scoop neck and bouffant skirt. Bands of yellow, gold and green velvet ribbon formed a cummerbund which featured a bow in the back. Their hats were green velvet pill boxes with green circular veiling. They carried cascade bouquets of golden rapture roses and polished English ivy.

Master William Rivers of Greenville acted as ring bearer.

Serving as best man was Walter Glenn Scott Jr., brother of the groom. Ushers were Coleman Ruffin, brother of the bride, William C. Latham and Walter B. Latham of Bethel, and Charles M. Hicks of Green Cove Springs, Florida.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ruffin chose a sheath dress of aqua silk organza, featuring an overskirt trimmed with panels of lace embroidered with sequins. She wore a matching hat and corsage of yellow cymbidiums.

Mrs. Scott, mother of the groom, was attired in a pale pink dress fashioned with a lace bodice and a peau de soir skirt. She wore a matching flowering hat. Her corsage was white cymbidiums.

The bride graduated from Saint Mary's Junior College and is attending the University of North Carolina, where she is a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority. She made her debut in 1959 at the Terpsichorean Club Ball in Raleigh.

The groom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, and is currently enrolled in the School of Medicine. He is a member of Sigma Nu social fraternity and Phi Chi medical fraternity.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home in Brookgreen.

For her wedding trip, the bride changed to a costume suit of yellow linen with matching hat and white accessories. She wore a white orchid lifted from her prayer book.

HOME DECORATING TODAY

By MRS. R. W. DAVENPORT

TAKE YOUR CHILDREN TO SEE TRYON PALACE AND WILLIAMSBURG

Museums and old homes restored offer a fascinating education in good design, workmanship and quality, training you to buy the best when you buy furnishings for your home.

These old restored places recreate our country's past, showing us not only the things our ancestors lived with, but how. History takes on real life.

Not only will these trips make history lessons easier, they will serve an even more practical purpose. These trips are made to order "window shopping" material for anyone who ever plans to buy a stick of furniture, or a yard of fabric. If you are a lover of traditional design, you will have a chance to see and study the best of its kind before you think of shopping for an antique or reproduction.

Seeing the best examples of past quality—in wood finishes and joinery in the scaling of patterns, in the textures of hand weaves, in the patina of silver—you are educating yourself in values, acquiring standards of judgment to apply to all future purchases.

Take a trip to New Bern or Williamsburg or anyplace you can. Take the family. It will pay off in the kind of knowledgeability that can improve your life at home.

Could Buck Trend Of Tax Increases

Greenville citizens are fortunate in that their governing officials found the city in a financial position to buck the trend of increased taxes, hold the city's current tax rate at $1.38 for another year, and still have a budget which they feel will provide for efficient city operations.

A key point which influenced the final decision of the City Council was clearly the fact that even with holding the tax rate at its present level for another year, the city would have some $83,000 more in revenues for the 1961-62 fiscal year than it had for the 1960-61 fiscal year.

This $83,000 in additional anticipated revenues allowed the city sufficient income, in the opinion of the Council, to squeak by during the coming year even though it meant that total appropriations fell some $110,000 short of the budget requests made by various departments of the city.

In spite of the fact that the new budget of $940,671.83 tentatively approved by the Council sets a new record high for Greenville city budgets, it obviously leaves little leeway in city operations for the coming year. It will mean that the governing officials as well as other city officials and employees will have to keep a close watch on expenditures and see that maximum return is received for every dollar spent.

It should also be significant to local taxpayers to

Near The Top In Outdoor Dramas

By LYNN NISBET

OUTDOORS — North Carolina ranks near the top among all the states in the presentation of outdoor dramas. A skillful combination of entertainment and history has made the presentations of three major shows attractive enough to bring more than four million visitors.

For the establishment and operation of these dramatic historic performances the State of North Carolina has contributed out of public tax moneys approximately a quarter million dollars. A brief breakdown on the outdoor summer attractions follows:

THE LOST COLONY—A symphonic drama, written by Paul Green, was first presented in the waterside theatre on Roanoke Island near the site of old Fort Raleigh, in 1937. It portrays the tragic story of Sir Walter Raleigh's abortive attempt to colonize the New World and the mysterious disappearance of his colony. President Franklin Roosevelt attended the performance on August 18, 1937, the 350th anniversary of the birth of Virginia Dare, first child of English parentage to be born in the New World.

On July 9 last year the "Colony" gave its one-thousandth performance—marking the longest run of any outdoor theatrical show in modern history. The show has gone on nearly every night in July and August from 1937 until now, except for four war-time black-out years in the mid 1940's. The show is sponsored by the Roanoke Island Historical Association, a private membership group but has enjoyed State patronage in occasional grants to make up operating deficits.

The original theatre was built largely by WPA, and money to launch the show came from generous private contributions. It became apparent when presentations were resumed after the war-time black-out that admissions and contributions would not carry the load. Grants in aid by legislative appropriations and allocations from the contingency and emergency fund have aggregated $120,000.

The recent General Assembly voted $10,000 to help rebuild the theatre, which was destroyed by a storm last year. The Legislature also voted $125,000 to purchase additional land around Fort Raleigh, which cannot be charged directly to the theatre project, but will aid it. The Fort Raleigh area is under control of the National Park Service.

UNTO THESE HILLS — The second oldest, and by attendance records the biggest and most popular of the outdoor dramas, is "Unto These Hills, A Drama of the Cherokees", presented by the Cherokee Historical Association at a mountaintop theatre on the eastern slopes of the Great Smoky Mountains in Cherokee Indian Land. Written by Kermit Hunter, this drama portrays the story of the Cherokees to the west in the mid-nineteenth century.

Located where the Blue Ridge Parkway enters the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, this show has topped all attendance records, averaging more than all the others combined. The State appropriated $35,000 to establish the theatre—but has not been called upon to make up deficits in operation. A grant of $25,000 to Cherokee Historical Association to aid in establishment of Oconaluftee Indian Village is not properly chargeable to the theatre project, but like the Fort Raleigh item, is of material benefit to it.

HORN IN THE WEST—Youngest and smallest with respect to attendance records, is "Horn in the West", presented at Boone by the Southern Appalachian Historical Association. Another Kermit Hunter product, this drama features exploits of Daniel Boone and of Carolina settlers during the decade from the battle of Alamance in 1771 through the battle of King's Mountain and the British surrender at Yorktown in 1781.

The State appropriated $10,000 to help establish the project in 1953, and has made allocations to alleviate deficits at the rate of $10,000 a year since 1957—an aggregate amount of $60,000. OTHERS—In addition to these State grants-in-aid to the surviving outdoor dramas, there was an allocation in 1953 of $10,000 for the abortive "Thunderland" project at Asheville, and $2,500 for the Kings Mountain Little Theatre group that same year to put on the "Sword of Gideon" at the South Carolina site of the battle of Kings Mountain. Other projects at Charlotte and Fayetteville sought and obtained aid from the State. The amounts were small and mostly buried in larger appropriation bills.

THIS YEAR — "Unto These Hills" opened Tuesday night of this week and will run every night, except Monday, through September 3. "Lost Colony" opens Saturday night, July 1, and will run every night except Sunday, through September 3. "Horn in the West" also opens Saturday, July 1, for showings every night except Monday through August 26. It is expected that more than 200,000 will see these shows this summer.

note that had it not been for the additional anticipated revenues, a tax increase of something like 26c would have been necessary to provide the additional $83,000 which has been budgeted for city expenditures during the coming year.

The city of Greenville, on the basis of its property tax valuation, realizes slightly more than $3,100 revenue from each cent added to the tax levy. Thus the increased property valuation within the city which will produce an estimated $30,000 more this year than last is equivalent to a tax increase of about 9½ cents. The additional $28,500 in revenue brought about by the establishment of a paving revolving fund through a bond issue last year would also be equivalent to about the same amount added to the tax levy.

The additional $6,000 the city will get from the Utilities Commission operations this year is equivalent to revenue that two more cents on the tax rate would provide. And the equivalent of approximately five additional cents on the tax levy is represented by the increase over last year in Powell Bill funds on hand and anticipated in the coming year.

In our opinion any local government which funds itself in the position to increase its budget by almost 10 per cent from one fiscal year to another without increasing its tax rate is in an enviable position indeed.

With the increase in the cost of government operations since the $1.38 tax rate in Greenville was established for the fiscal year 1958-59, Greenville is fortunate indeed that its rate can be held for another year.

President's Thinking Is Obviously Changed

President Kennedy's comment this week on the prisoners-for-tractors deal with Castro should shut off future negotiations with the Cuban dictator in connection with buying political prisoners.

The fact that President Kennedy publicly sanctioned the tractors-for-prisoners idea, associated the President with the deal, even if on an unofficial basis. The further fact that the President quickly cleared away red tape that normally would have prevented negotiations between a private group and a government with which the U.S. had broken diplomatic relations further implemented the President in the deal.

It has been assumed, and with good reason, that the President favored the Tractors for Freedom Committee's initial negotiations with Castro. It must now be assumed that the President recognizes that further dealings with Castro in the matter—unless there is an abrupt change in Castro's position—can be of no benefit to the United States, and probably of no benefit to the prisoners Castro holds.

Those who held a similar opinion from the outset of the negotiations should find some gratification in the fact that the President now apparently has come around to the same opinion.

Lot Of Talk On Berlin Is Ahead

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Those in search of peace of mind but disturbed by the Russian ruckus on Berlin should try to stay calm in the next few months unless there is an actual crisis.

This seemed to be the message from Secretary of State Dean Rusk Thursday night.

In a TV interview he discussed dealing with the Russians now when they have tizzied the West with their renewed demands—about 2½ years old—that Berlin be turned into a "free city" and that the allies get their troops out of it.

Ever since taking office Rusk has run his job like a man who had an understanding with President Kennedy that the secretary would play it cool and quiet while the President made the big pronouncements and furnished any fire needed.

Rusk was cool Thursday night, speaking very firmly on the Allies' determination not to be pushed out of Berlin. But he spoke very vaguely on just how the Allies were going to avoid being pushed.

Kennedy was just as vague on this point at his news conference Wednesday. In fairness to both men they may feel it much too soon to get down to specifics for fear of sounding belligerent. But Rusk did reveal the key of thinking which has become an international way of life in situations which may be extremely serious but are not in actual crisis.

It's this: Let's talk. This explains the fantastic number of international conferences by foreign ministers and representatives since World War II on subjects ranging from Berlin to nuclear tests and disarmament.

In 1959 the storm Khrushchev raised over Berlin—setting then as now a six-month deadline for a settlement—didn't get any closer to a crisis than a conference between the Russian and Western foreign ministers.

And six days before that one petered out—it ended July 13—Khrushchev proposed a meeting with Eisenhower. Then he forgot about his own deadline and met with Eisenhower, a meeting which didn't solve Berlin at all.

Khrushchev talked tough in 1959, just as he's talking tough now. But what makes dealing with the unpredictable Khrushchev painful to the Allies is not the Russians, just as they did in 1959. Berlin was a long drawn-out business before and promises to be again unless this time the Russians are determined on less talk and more action.

Since it's been 2½ years that Khrushchev first upset the Western calm on Berlin, Rusk was asked if in the intervening time American planners had figured where to draw the line on the Russians.

Rusk wouldn't even go into that. He said Kennedy had dwelt on that Wednesday. But Kennedy gave the impression that this country's ideas are still far from fully formed on what action or actions it should take.

In the days and weeks ahead, Kennedy said, he will be considering a "whole variety of measures which might be taken." But Thursday an Associated Press reporter at the Pentagon wrote that—so far as the Defense Department is concerned—there are several plans, constantly being updated, for dealing with any Berlin showdown.

The Enthusiasm Is Gone

It was almost weird. The gathering of the newsroom clan was called to discuss who would take a holiday on Independence Day, and who would be working.

Everybody wanted to work. As in years past, the newsroom will be operating only a holiday on July 4; and with a skeleton staff to boot. (Not much news-making on holidays.) Those who worked would have a Saturday off, also (nominally) a half-day operation in the office.

This is considered by one and all to be a very fair proposition. But the lack of enthusiasm displayed toward holidaying on the Fourth of July is something to marvel at.

First one, then another, on being asked if they wanted to be off on the Fourth, would volunteer that they'd "just as soon work", or "it really doesn't matter to me".

One writer definitely let it be known she preferred to spend a day on the job, so that solved that one. As for the rest, it was a case of shuffling and re-shuffling the line-up. A baseball addict would have said it was a job for Stengel.

It bears out an observation made almost exactly a year ago by this column. Holidaying on the Glorious Fourth has become less of a holiday and more of an ordeal.

You think about getting in a car to go somewhere and the first thing that comes to mind is the traffic and discomforts and inconveniences. The National Safety Council's grim predictions of so many hundred holiday fatalities are also in the back of your mind.

You reflect upon the uncertainties of the weather, the exhausting qualities of a "holiday", and the comfort and satisfaction of your accustomed daily routine. Results: a ho-hum attitude. Prediction—fewer people each year are going to want July 4 holidays.

For something like six years the writer has yearned for a home-grown "bright saying" of a child. With ears "at the ready" when around our boy, it has been a disappointing wait. It took our girl to deliver two of them in one evening.

"I'll save one for a rainy day. (Hah!)" At the supper table we were holding a refresher course for the kindergarten grad on letter sounds.

"What letter does Boy start with?" "Buh-buh-buh — B!" he'd say.

"And what letter does Flag start with?" "Fff-fiff. . . F!" was the response.

Well, his four-year-old sister was clamoring to get into the act; and to make it easy, her mother said:

"Mary Jane, what does ice-cream start with?" And she thought a minute. "A dime," says Mary Jane.

Opinions In Brief

"If the Pentagon did not have a Rickover, terrible temper and all the taxpayers would be right in insisting that one be invented. A little real brass in the Pentagon will do the Republic no harm." — The Washington Post.

"The two-party system of our politics has been the bulwark of democracy in the United States. But, it is meaningless if we allow policy to be determined by bureaus rather than those chosen by ballot." — Rutherford (N.J.) News.

"He who laughs last did not get the joke." — Anderson (S.C.) Independent.

Does It Make Sense?

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It is being planned by some very astute planners in the State Department to get Red China into the General Assembly of the United Nations. Actually, there have been discussions with some other countries about the prospect of working out a Two Chinas scheme at the next session of the United Nations.

The astute planners do not expect Red China to accept what to Mao Tse-tung would be an ignominious position. Red China wants China's permanent seat on the Security Council which would give Red China the power of the veto. It is very doubtful if Red China will settle for less. Certainly Mao Tse-tung would not agree to be limited to the General Assembly while Chiang Kai-shek's representative sits on the Security Council.

The scheme then is for the Western Powers to make this proposition to Red China; that Red China will inevitably reject the offer; that it will please India and the neutrals that the offer was made to Red China; it will leave Soviet Russia without an excuse for quarrelling over this issue; it would give Red China a bad reputation because Red China rejected the offer.

Of course, the Nationalist Chinese government on Formosa would lose face and its position throughout Asia would be reduced to a nubility. This does not bother the schemers, who feel that they are important planners of mankind's future. They feel that Formosa ought to be happy that Red China is caught in a trap.

There is a tale of a great rabbi who travelled about delivering sermons on what is right and what is wrong. Men came from far and near to listen to the rabbi. One day, in a very small synagogue in a very small town, the rabbi was telling the townspeople what they should do and how they should live and everybody wondered at the enormous scholarship and the noble character of the rabbi. However, there was a shoemaker in the very back seats, the shoemaker being regarded as an ignorant man who did not know this or that. Nevertheless, the shoemaker rose and said that he wanted to ask a question. The congregation was in consternation. How dared a lowly shoemaker deign to ask the great rabbi a question? It was demanded that he sit down. The rabbi insisted that the shoemaker ask his question.

"The shoemaker said: 'I am an ignorant man who cannot read and cannot write and has never been to a school. Nevertheless, I have lived long and seen much. Therefore, I want to ask, 'Suppose it is just the opposite?'"

"My son, suppose what is just the opposite?" answered the rabbi. "How should I know?" answered the rabbi. "I am ignorant. Nevertheless, I ask, suppose everything is just the opposite?"

I could not help thinking of this story as the work of the State Department geniuses unfolded itself. What would happen to all this scheming and plotting and planning if Red China did accept a seat in the General Assembly ignoring the loss of face of not having the permanent seat on the Security Council? What would happen if Marshal Chen Yi or Premier Chou En-lai came to the United Nations to turn the General Assembly into a brawl?

Of course, the great men would then find enormous fault with Red China just as nowadays these same great men who helped Castro rise to power now denounce the racial and even tried to make war on him—a stupidly planned war, it is true, but nevertheless they sat about scheming on how to do it when they might have brought in a Marine Corps corporal to give these expert direction.

Unfortunately, when schemes are overdone and plans are obviously unsound only bankruptcy can result. Red China is now economically and socially in very bad shape. A rising antipathy to the Communist government is apparent to all who recognize the signs of mass disturbance. The power of the Red Chinese government is being weakened by famine rather than by

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
"But when the fullness of time was come, God sent forth his son." (Gal. 4:4).
God has a calendar and a schedule. We may mess things up badly, but God's program continues without deviation. When a thing is needed, it appears in the life of the world. The Hebrews were in Egypt as a nomadic tribe. When it was necessary to lead them out and make them a great nation, God sent Moses. God sent the prophets at the time these great preachers and teachers were needed. God sent St. Paul to do work which only that spiritual genius could perform. There was a Columbus ready when the horizon needed to be pushed back. There was an Edison ready when a generation arose, literate and eager to read books. There was a Lindbergh ready to span the Atlantic at precisely the right moment. The United States had her Washington, Lincoln, and the Wright Brothers. Great Britain had her William Shakespeare, her Queen Victoria, her Winston Churchill. Always the right person appears at the right time. God's schedule never fails. When a united Roman world was ready for the spread of the gospel, God sent Jesus Christ into the world to preach that gospel. In the fullness of time God sent forth His son, a century earlier or later would not have done. It had to be right at that time. Relax and stop worrying. We have alarming problems—but the God who runs things has a schedule.

Era For The Gifted And Shrewd

By ELMER ROESSNER

This is the era of opportunity in small business, especially of opportunity for the shrewd operators and those gifted with power to look ahead.

Hundreds of businesses are being uprooted every day. These are being torn from familiar areas of good will seldom find new locations before younger, more aggressive enterprisers stake their claims.

There are three forces uprooting businesses:

1. Slum clearance and urban rehabilitation projects.
2. The highway program, which strands enterprises on roads no longer frequented by heavy traffic.
3. Trends of populations away from distressed areas to greener fields.

MULTIPLE IMPACTS
Here is how those three forces disrupt business:

1. Urban clearance wipes out existing businesses often with no recompense. Many of the businesses in slum areas are sound and prosperous. A delicatessen or grocery store in a slum may be operated with as much care, cleanliness and pride as a mid-town establishment, but when the authorities drive out the rats and the poor, they also drive out well run businesses.

They may get varying degrees of help in relocating but their good will, their ability to bring back customers, is shattered because the customers are driven to the winds. By the time the management of an old business faces the facts and begins to search for a new location, it finds that younger, more aggressive enterprisers have taken over the best.

2. The highway program is usually even more ruthless. When new highways drain traffic off old roads, the roadside businesses are left to wither. Rarely do these businessmen have opportunities to re-establish themselves on the new highways or parkways; the rights there are sold to big corporations or political favorites.

THE CUSTOMERS ARE GONE
3. The mass migrations, a phenomenon of the 1960's, drain poorer areas of customers. Today a probably 1,000 persons will move into the state of California to settle; about 300 will invade Oregon; other states will have many newcomers.

The 1,000 entering California, for example, will represent a loss of that many customers to stores in the rest of the country. One customer in New Jersey, a few states in Indiana, and many in other states. Nothing may happen today. But after a while a restaurant in New Jersey, a toggery in Indiana and grocery stores all over will feel the accumulated loss of customers.

Some enterprisers may rush to California, not to find old patrons but to be there to await new customers from all over; others will just fade away. But every 1,000 people entering California—or any other state—means enough more people to support half a dozen more businesses.

And therein lies opportunity. When changes affect farmers, tenants, mining companies, big corporations, workers, oil men, fishermen and unions they are quick to demand that the government provide funds to see them through their uncertainty. Few to their everlasting credit, but small businessmen have demanded dislocation bonuses.

There are three reasons:

1. They know that dislocation is like income taxes and gangster levies; one of the hazards of small business.
2. They know that shifts of customers mean the creation of as many opportunities as they destroy.
3. They know darn well that any such demands would have little chance.

Their only hope, of course, is to watch coming forces of dislocation and to stake out new opportunities when the forces crush their enterprises.

ABOUT CANNED FRUIT, CIGARETTES AND MEAT
Import controls on all canned fruit except citrus fruit and apples, will end in the United Kingdom August 1. West Germans last year smoked more cigarettes than ever before. Australia canned 30,000 tons of meat in the first quarter of this year, double the amount in the first quarter of 1960.

Pirates Named To All-America Team

By LEONARD LAO
Reflector Sports Writer

National Champion East Carolina College placed two men on the first National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics All-America baseball squad.

Pitcher Larry Crayton and outfielder Lawrence "Cotton" Clayton are the East Carolina selections. The two were named to the All-NAIA Tournament team at the national playoffs held at Sioux City, Iowa earlier last month.

Crayton, a native of Greensboro, carried the best individual pitching record on the All-America team. The chunky southpaw won 10 while losing only 1, and the loss was against non-college competition. The little All-American has the distinction of having posted the best pitching record in the history of the North State Conference, with a slate of 26 wins against only four losses. Crayton, who signed a professional contract with the St. Louis Cardinals organization earlier last month, still had another season's experience left with Coach Jim Mallory's Pirate baseballers.

In the NAIA playoffs, Crayton also made a name for himself, setting a tournament record by striking out nineteen batters in one game, one kayo better than the old record. He also was credited with two of East Carolina's five wins and helped win the final game against Sacramento State of Calif., by striking out the last Sacramento batter of the game on three pitches.

To hail from such a little town as Zeb Vance, Clayton has certainly made a big name for himself since coming to East Carolina College last year. The 6'3" 180-pounder was brought to the Pirate den on a basketball scholarship. As a hardcourter, he was the best prep in North Carolina. He made out exceptionally well on the hardwood his first season, being named to the All-Conference team, along with being the leading rebounder and second leading scorer on the team.

After another big year on the basketball court, which saw him named to the All-District 26 NAIA team, Clayton reported to Mallory's diamond team for the first time. He immediately broke into the starting lineup, playing the right field position.

By the end of the regular season, Clayton carried the best batting average in the Pirate camp, one close to the 400 mark. His brilliant play during the NAIA playoffs earned him a spot on the

The losing pitcher, Pete Lavers struck out five men and walked an equal number.

In North State make-up action the Jaycees won over the Optimist Club by a 4-3 score with John Clayton on the mound for the winners.

Clayton struck out nine men and walked seven with the losing pitcher William Roberts striking out eight and walking nine.

Yanks Took Eighth Win In Row Friday

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The way things are shaping up, the only thing Whitey Ford has to worry about en route to his first 20-victory season is his own arm, not enemy bats.

The stubby southpaw, nagged by arm trouble the past couple of years, has breezed so far while working and winning on a regular four-day rotation that has kept the New York Yankees in contention in the American League.

Whitey put away his 14th victory, top total in the majors, by winning his eighth in a row, with a five-hitter Friday night as the Yankees whipped Washington 5-1.

That made Ford the first AL left-hander ever to win eight games in one month. Three right-handers — Christy Mathewson, Grover Cleveland Alexander and Jack Chesbro—hold the modern record of nine victories in one month, but only one other lefty, Rube Marquard, had won eight before. Marquard, a National League pitcher, did it in 1912, while running off a record string of 19 victories for the New York Giants.

Ford's success kept the second place Yankees within two games of the Detroit Tigers, who had to go 12 innings before winning 6-3 at Baltimore. Third place Cleveland clobbered Boston 10-2. Minnesota beat Kansas City 8-2 and the last place Los Angeles Angels downed the Chicago White Sox 10-3. It was the Sox' third straight loss, after winning 12 in a row and 19 of 20.

In the National League, Cincinnati retained a 2 1/2 game lead by beating Milwaukee 4-0. The Los Angeles Dodgers regained second ground out and counting again in the ninth on Davenport's sacrifice fly.

Willie Davis belted a pair of triples and Daryl Spencer hit a clinching, two-run homer for the Dodgers as they built an 8-1 lead in 5 1/2 innings at Philadelphia. Stan Williams (7-7) was the winning pitcher, but needed relief from Dick Farrell when the Phils scored five runs in the sixth. Jim Owens (1-1) was the loser.

The Cardinals beat Jim Brewer (0-3) with a five-run first inning capped by rookie Jim Schaffer's first major league homer — a grand slam. Bob Lillis then lined a three-run double as the Cards got their other six in the eighth. Southpaw Ray Sadecki (7-4) was the winner, giving up the Cubs' runs on two-run homers by Jerry Kindall and Billy Williams.

Lodgers To Host Little Leaguers

Greenville's Moose Lodge Tuesday will host members of the city's Little League teams at the sixth annual Field Day—held each year on July 4.

Moose Lodge Governor Dr. Charles McAndrew will offer an address of welcome at the official opening ceremonies at 2 p.m. at the lodge in West Greenville.

Field Day events get underway about 2:15 with the annual "Pop's All-Star Game"—played between the fathers of the Little Leaguers—scheduled for four o'clock. The all-star encounter will be a two-inning affair. Little Leaguers will serve as umpires.

Included in the seven field events are: baserunning, infielders' throw for accuracy, outfielders' throw for accuracy, catchers' throw for accuracy, pitchers' throw for accuracy, homerun—hitting, and throwing for distance.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners in each event. Each event will be divided into two age groups —10 years of age and under and boys aged 11 and 12.

Only one boy from each team in each age group will be allowed to enter in any event. No more than two events may be entered by any one boy.

In addition to trophies to winners of the events, the winner of the Pop's All-Star Game will be awarded "an appropriate prize," according to Moose officials.

The Moose Lodge has issued an invitation to all parents of the Little Leaguers to attend the annual affair Tuesday.

Greensboro Tops Wilson, 5-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greensboro took the shine of first half glory for Wilson Friday night, as the Tobs fell, 5-0, before a 17-hit attack.

The sound defeat followed on the heels of Wilson's win over the Carolina League All-Stars, 3-2.

Scoring went wild in the leagues two other Friday night games. Winston-Salem overpowered Durham, 10-8. Burlington made it even more convincing, swamping Raleigh, 16-5.

Ike Futch gave five hits as Greensboro ran over Wilson. Ron Paul collected four hits, and drove in three runs. Chuck Reiddell who had a two-run homer in the third inning, brought home the other runs.

The Winston-Salem Red Sox scored eight runs in the first three innings, to coast home over Durham. The Bulls put together four runs in a bottom of the ninth inning rally, but it wasn't enough.

Twelve Burlington batters went to the plate in the fourth inning, to amass six of the 16 runs which routed the Raleigh Caps.

The games tonight: Durham at Winston-Salem, Burlington at Raleigh, and Wilson at Greensboro.

Tar Heel Men Top AAU Swimmers

COLUMBIA (AP) — Spartanburg and Raleigh, N.C., teams led the annual Palmetto Open Southern AAU swimming championships today going into the final round.

The Spartanburg women's team had 48 points, with Charlotte and Greensboro tied for second place with 36 points each.

Raleigh was out front in the men's division with 56 points. Greensboro was second with 28. Columbia third with 20 and Spartanburg fourth with 15.

Three records were set Friday during the second day of the three-day meeting.

Lurray Lindgren of Charlotte set a record in the women's 220 butterfly of 2:59.0. She also set a record in the 55 yard freestyle with :30.7.

Ginny Duenkel of Summit, N.J., jumped 2-4 to lead the broad jump phase. But his showing in the other events was steady throughout the evening.

Edstrom Leads Endurance Stars

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—America's topflight endurance athletes, with relatively poor performances behind them, went into the second half of the National AAU Decathlon Championships today.

Leading the 13-man field into the grueling second-day events was David Edstrom of Oregon, representing the Emerald Empire Athletic Association. Edstrom's steady performances in the five opening events gave him 4,023 points and a 60-point lead over Paul Herman, relatively poor performer from Westmont College, Calif.

Phil Mulkey of Memphis, Tenn., who unofficially broke the world's decathlon record held by Rafer Johnson earlier this summer, limped through the track events Friday night but turned in sterling performances in the field events to hold fifth position.

Arizona State University's Don Jeisy, competing in a decathlon for only the second time in his career, swept through the competition in the first flight and held fourth place with 3,774 points, one more than Mulky.

Mike Herman of Yonkers, N.Y., was in third place with 3,950 points.

Edstrom turned in the top performance in only one event. He jumped 23-4 to lead the broad jump phase. But his showing in the other events was steady throughout the evening.

Other officers installed included Lee Nance, president-elect; Les Stocks, vice president; McDonald Edwards, secretary; Joe Sumrell, treasurer; Lyman McRoy, director; Wayland McGlohon, past president and director; Tom Wheless, director.

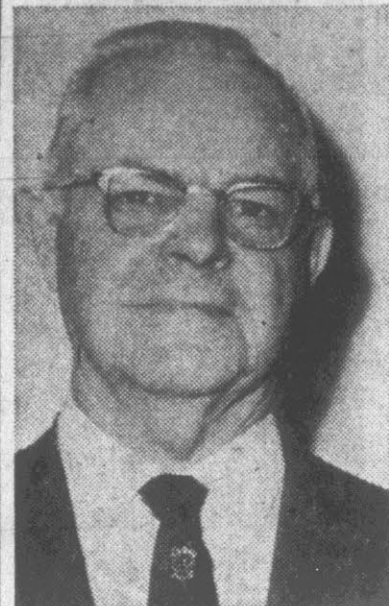

Merritt's first official act as president was the presentation of a Past President's button to outgoing president McGlohon. During the program, McGlohon reviewed briefly the accomplishments of the past year, closing by telling Rotarians that a man "couldn't serve as president of the Rotary for a year without being a better man." He expressed appreciation for the complete cooperation he had from each member of the organization for the past year.

Following the installation of new officers, the Rev. Bennie Pledger, pastor of First Baptist Church in Ayden, led the group in prayer.

Merritt announced that he would appoint his committees next week. However, he did name a few of the working committees as follows: sergeant-at-arms, Jimmy Farmer and Tom Wheless; chairman of the food committee, James Everett with the Rev. John Goff as co-chairman; fellowship chairman, Walter Lee Stroud.

Shipyard Plans Convert Craft

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Colonna's Shipyard, Inc. will begin work next week on a $217,380 project — converting three former Navy landing craft into ferry boats for North Carolina Outer Banks.

Two of the boats, to be used in the Oregon Inlet crossing, will be delivered within 45 days. The third boat, to be used at Hatteras Inlet, will be delivered in 60 days.

The vessels, now at Green Cove Springs, Fla., will be towed here. They are 119-feet long and when converted each will be able to carry 20 autos and about 200 passengers.

The North Carolina Highway Commission awarded the contract.

Congressman Wants U.S. Go On Wartime Footing

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—The United States should "declare a national emergency and go on a wartime footing. We are in war," U.S. Rep. W. J. B. Dorn, D-S.C., said today.

Outlining a program against communism, the fiery Greenwood representative made his assertion in a speech prepared for delivery to the annual State American Legion convention here.

He advocated these steps:

1. Encourage the complete rearmament of Germany and Japan.
2. Resumption of nuclear testing.
3. Blockade of Communist Cuba, "a cancer in the side of the Americas that is malignant and will spread unless removed."
4. Abandonment of any further summit conferences with any Communist leaders.
5. Put the nation on a wartime footing.
6. Take an implacable stand on Berlin.
7. Call for the immediate freedom of the "captive nations" those in Communist hands, such as Poland, Hungary, Tibet, North Korea, and so on.
8. Press our spare program because "the nation that controls space will determine whether the world exists in freedom or slavery."

Dorn said, "Our whole foreign policy has been predicated upon the dollar sign. It has failed. The time has arrived to supplant the dollar sign with cold steel if necessary."

Discover Range Beneath Ocean

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States scientists have discovered a major mountain range beneath the Arctic Ocean, the Washington Post said Friday night.

The sea floor range is at least 550 nautical miles long, possibly stretching to 1,000 nautical miles, and 60 nautical miles wide.

The rise is on the North American side of and paralleling two other mountain ranges in the arctic basin—the Alpha-Marvin and the Lomonosov structures. Just how high the newly discovered range reaches from the sea floor or how far beneath the surface it lies will be determined at a later date.

The harvest moon is so-called because for several successive days the moon rises soon after sunset. This gives farmers in north temperate latitudes extra hours of light in which to harvest their crops before frost comes.

DAR Chapter House Here Is One Of 3 In Entire South

By ANNE KEZIAH Reflector Woman's Writer

The Benjamin May Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution had its beginning with a George Washington Program on February 23, 1926, at the home of Mrs. Albert Coy Monk, Sr., in Farmville. There were 25 charter members.

The chapter was named in honor of Major Benjamin May, who was an officer of the struggling colonies. Major May came to this country about 1750 from Scotland and settled in what is now Pitt County. He became a man of substance and an influential figure in the life of the country.

When the troublesome times of the Revolution came, he was a Captain of the King's militia. As the royal government began to disintegrate and there was no stable local government to take its place, the committee of Public Safety was organized. The Major was a member, and in that capacity he helped to stabilize conditions and keep the country from anarchy.

In 1775 he was elected from Pitt to the convention, and sat as a member at the passage of the Halifax Declaration of Independence, April 12, 1776. When war broke in earnest he continued his work in the county, and was commissioned a Major in the Pitt County regiment of troops that later took part in many revolutionary battles.

After the war he continued to take a leading part in the life of his community, and represented it in the General Assembly.

In 1785 Benjamin May married Mary Tyson, daughter of Cornelius Tyson, a Revolutionary patriot and Justice of the Peace. They had ten children. Major May died on his plantation near Farmville in the year 1808.

The erection and dedication of a monument to Major May in November, 1925 on Highway No. 91 leading West from Farmville, was the actual beginning of the Major Benjamin May Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The original site and the nuclear fund for the construction of the Major Benjamin May Chapter House was a contribution from the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Coy Monk, Sr., of Farmville in 1930. Mrs. Monk, who was Emily Lou Turnage, was a descendant of Major Benjamin May. The Monks also gave subsequent gifts of substantial amounts for the liquidation of indebtedness and for additions and improvements to both the building and grounds.

As a memorial to Mr. Monk, after his death in 1948, the Major May Chapter established the Monk Memorial Scholarship Fund at Crossnore School in this State, one of the approved schools of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The enlargement of this school is to be a major project of the Chapter for years to come.

Since the death of Mr. and Mrs. Monk the sons have continued to contribute to the Chapter.

On either side of the property, given by the Monks, land was also contributed for the erection of the Chapter House by Mrs. Travis Hooker of Greenville and Miss Tabitha M. DeVisconti of Farmville, descendants of Major May.

The Major Benjamin May Chapter House dedicated in 1949 was the first to be erected in North Carolina and among three of the entire South.

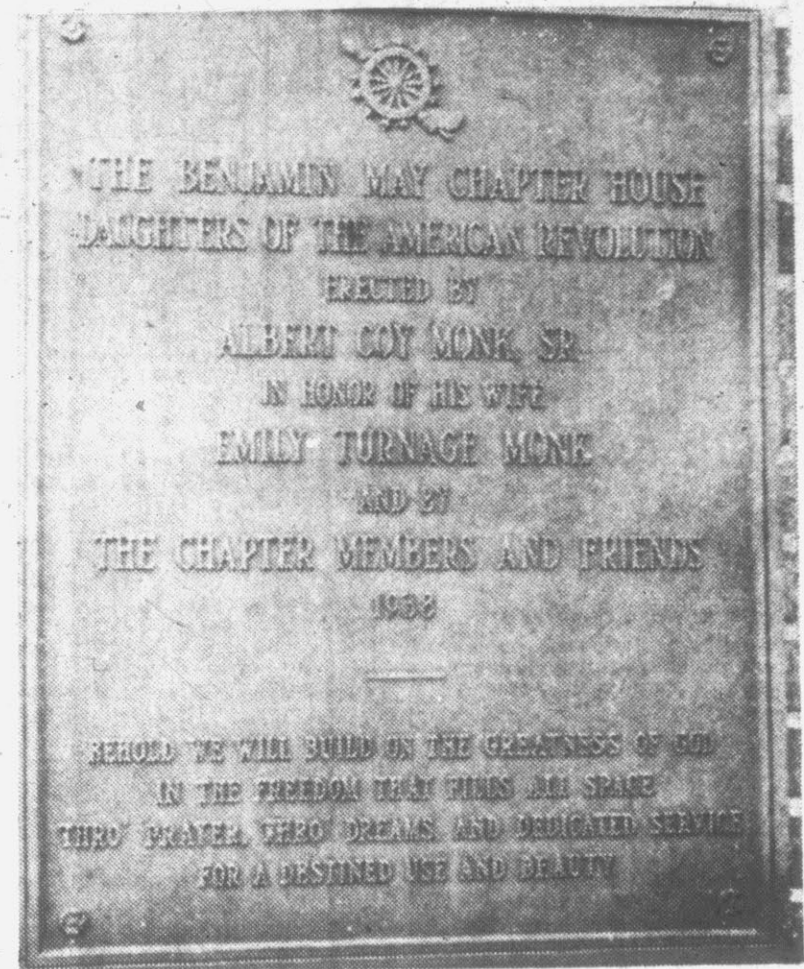

The Chapter House stands just outside of the incorporated limits of Farmville on the Farmville-Wilson highway on a portion of the original land grant of Major May. The structure is of Georgian architecture and furnished with antique furniture, most of which are memorial gifts. It is a cultural and social center.

The Major Benjamin May Chapter, its growth and achievement, are credited largely to the vision and patriotism of Mrs. T. C. Turnage, the first regent.

This year the Chapter was presented a blue ribbon for their yearbook and made the Gold Honor Roll at the 70th Congress of the National Society of the DAR, and the State Honor Roll.

The Chapter has approximately 60 members from towns throughout Pitt County and several other eastern North Carolina towns.

Greenville-Washington Relays Saw Start Of Track Tradition

By GEORGE BRYANT Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville's Junius H. Rose High School has been the leader in track in Eastern North Carolina since the sport was first introduced to this part of the state.

J. M. Rose, superintendent of the city school system here, says that the sport is one of the most important in the physical education department. He says, "I ask myself so many boys an opportunity to do something when they can't make the football or baseball teams."

A boy who has the determination to participate can train and practice on his own for this sport where he is unable to do this for the other major sports at the school.

The story behind the beginning of the track team at Rose High is an interesting one. It dates back to 1926 and the beginning of a relay race which was run between Greenville and Washington high schools where a strong rivalry has existed for many years.

The relay race was started when several of the school officials began talking the idea and thought it would be an excellent way to get the boys to train themselves physically and that the event would also build up good feelings between the two towns as well as give a boost to the physical education departments of both schools.

The relay race required about 92 runners on each team. In its early days it was probably one of the biggest athletic contests sponsored in the south.

The course ran from the Pitt County Court House in Greenville to the Beaufort County House in Washington by way of Chocowinity. One year the race began in Greenville and ended in Washington and the next year it was held in Washington and ended in Greenville.

Superintendent Rose describes the race as "a tremendous event." Many people lined the highway to watch the race and a large crowd was on hand to watch the finish. Perhaps the crowd numbered into the thousands.

Rose recalls that the coaches usually tried to pace their teams by placing their best runners at the crucial points along the 23-mile course and toward the end of the race. This enabled the team to put out its greatest effort when the pressure was on or when the finish was close. Because of this pacing there was often some unusual finishes. Each runner was required to run a quarter-mile.

One of these finishes was in the first race held in May of 1925. Greenville was in the lead in the final few miles of the course, but Washington had some good men placed in those last few miles and was able to pull ahead to win the event in one-hour and fifty minutes. The time was cut by two minutes in 1926.

During the seven or eight years the race was held Rose said that neither school dominated the event. There are no records today as to the number of wins and losses for each of the participants.

Rose said the race was discontinued because the runners were endangered by the increasing amount of traffic on the highways and the fact that the spectators would not obey the rule to stay behind the last runner. However, he was quick to state that it was not discontinued due to lack of interest. After the race was stopped there was some thought given to holding the event on the quarter mile track at Guy Smith Stadium which was built during the depression years as part of the WPA program, but this never really materialized.

However, during the late thirties a track meet was held at the old Pitt County Fair Grounds. Rose said all of the schools in the county participated in this event. It included both the high schools and the elementary schools. This event was composed of everything including sack races for the younger set.

The fair grounds event probably drew the largest group of people ever to assemble in Greenville according to Rose. This was also abandoned after several years because there was no way of eliminating participants. The National Guard had to be called on to help control the large crowds attending the meet and to help keep the spectators off the track.

After the county event was halted it was several years before track began again in Greenville. It was around 1938 or 39 that the High School picked up the sport. Nobody seems to be able to recall the exact date.

Piney Eulkinson coached the first High School track team. For nearly fifteen years the Greenville team had to go to Raleigh, Durham or Fayetteville for meets with other schools. However, the team was usually able to schedule from six to eight meets during the season counting the state events.

It was through the efforts of the local high school that track was made a regular sport in the Northeastern Athletic Conference. This occurred in 1955. At first there were only one or two schools other than Greenville that were interested in participating. Now all eight schools in the conference are taking part.

Up until two years ago Greenville monopolized the track victories because of its head start, but for the past two years New Bern High School has gone home with the trophy. Greenville finished second in 1960 and third this year.

All of the official conference meets are held at the Guy Smith track because it is the only regulation oval track east of Raleigh.

Over the years Greenville High School has produced some outstanding track men. In the early '40's John Spearman was one of the University of North Carolina's best sprinters. Recently Rhett Everett and Wayne Bishop have done very well on the UNC team. Greenville has also had some track men at East Carolina and State College in Raleigh.

Young Artists' Workshop Holds Special Attraction This Spring

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

For the past several weeks, young artists have hardly been able to wait to get to the Greenville Art Center.

Fresh out of school, they have been ready to embark on a few hours of fun—and learning—at the Young Artists' Workshop, conducted at the art center since June 19. The only drawback is that the workshop has not lasted long enough.

The garage behind the center has been the headquarters for most of the activities. It is here that Mrs. Marjorie Jackson usually conducts a ceramics workshop during the fall and winter, and where most of the materials needed by young artists were to be found.

At the beginning, most of the young people concentrated on charcoal drawings. The weather was warm and sunny enough for them to set up easels in the backyard of the center, just outside the garage, along with their subjects. Most of the artists used still life as subject matter. But some used people.

Later ceramics entered the picture and several ash trays and table ornaments are evidence of finished products in the garage.

The latter part of this week, several of the young artists were completing mobiles, while some mobiles already finished hung from the stairway rail in the garage-workshop. They were in the shape of fish or animals, for the most part.

Mrs. Jackson planned the activities which spanned the two-week period. She called on Francis Lee Neel of the East Carolina College art faculty to guide the youngsters in making their mobiles, and Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Nancy Monroe supervised the drawing period. Mrs. Monroe also worked with the young artists during their sculpture period.

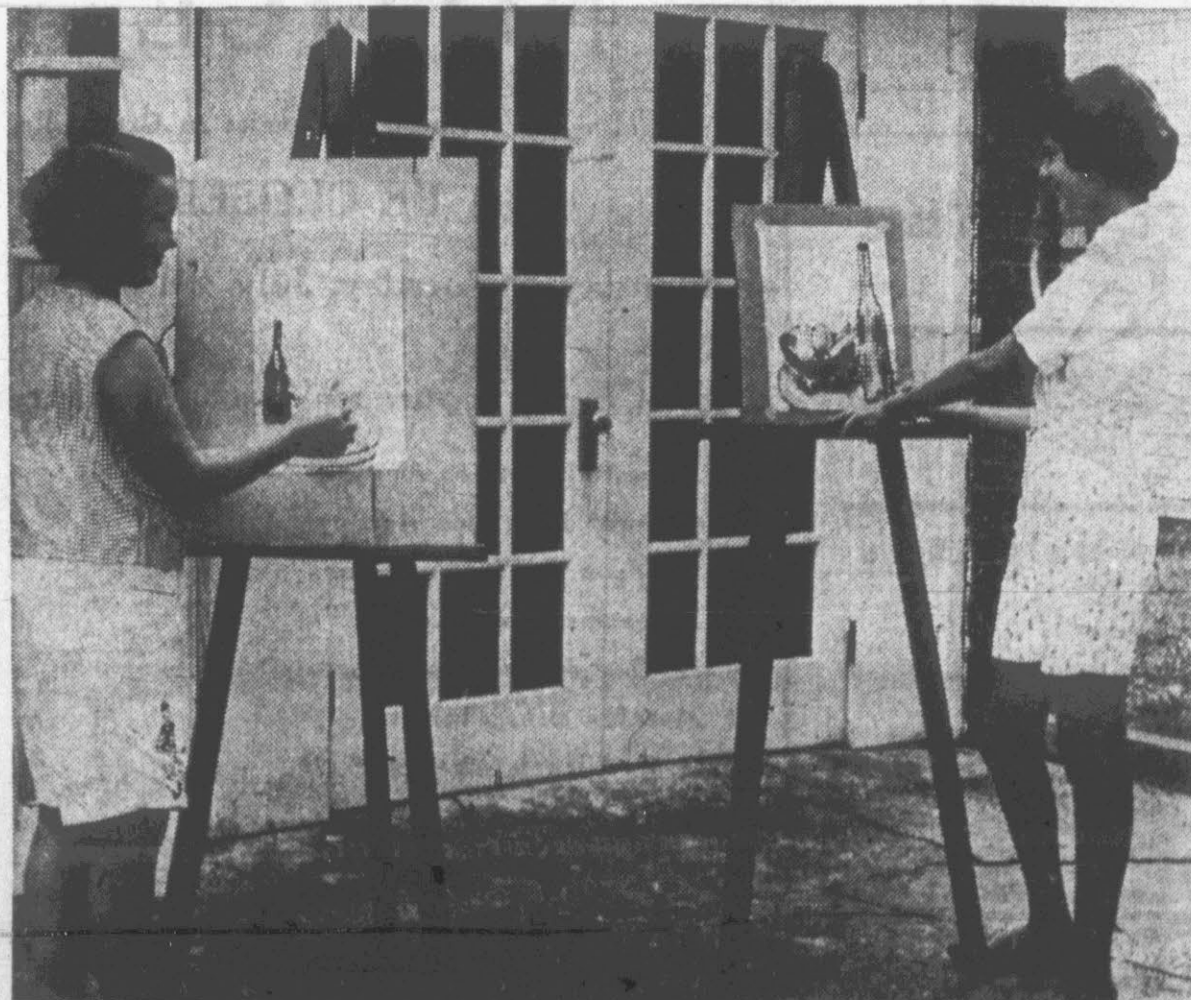

The workshop proved entertaining, filled with easy hours of companionship and laughter in the cool confines of the backyard and garage. Mothers sometimes accompanied their young, talent seekers.

Tied in with the actual application of artistic methods were periods of art appreciation, during which the young artists gathered inside the art center for lectures by Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, who has been director of the center for several years.

She showed color slides of paintings, explaining their histories and backgrounds and reviewed the artwork at the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh for the prospective visitors.

The workshop group consisted of about 15 to 20 young artists of school age. Activities ended Friday.

Though there are no plans to continue the program at any time this summer, it is a good bet that there will be some interested calls for it.

MOBILES IN THE MAKING . . . Hard at work on mobiles are Ginger Minges, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ray Minges and Janet Whitehurst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Whitehurst. Janet's mobile is in the shape of a fish. In addition to making mobiles and drawing, the "young artists" of the Young Artists' Workshop have worked with ceramics and sculpture, as well as attended art appreciation lectures.

BY JOHN CREASEY A MATTER OF LIFE AND DEATH

CHAPTER I

She was young and she was lovely, and she gazed upon the Toff.

Both were content, judging from their expressions. For if the Toff—occasionally known as the Hon. Richard Rollison with his habit in Mayfair, W. I.—had passed the first bloom of youth, he was still on the right side of forty, and as gallant and as gay as most people half his age.

"Rolly," said Agatha Bell, "isn't it divine?"

"In the colloquial meaning of the word, I couldn't agree with you more," murmured the Toff. "Let us count our blessings, you start."

She had that kind of blue in her eyes which the sun and the sky give to the sea near Naples, and is sometimes captured by makers of beautiful china. Neither the sun nor the makers of china could match the gleam which appeared suddenly: a kind of mischief born out of high spirits.

"I'm here," she said, "with you."

He did not smile or otherwise change his expression. His eyes were grey, some would say steely, exactly right for a man with dark hair in which the grey flecks were almost unbelievable: for the truth is that he had a young face.

"Sunning ourselves on the banks of the Thames," he said, "the river rippling by, a boat within reach, cushions for our heads. You turn."

"We've had a wonderful lunch," Agatha said, almost dreamily. "Raspberries and cream. Do you know, I think I prefer raspberries to strawberries. Such a lot of cream, too, it can't be good for my figure."

She glanced at her waist.

He lay on her back, reclining on two of the brightly colored pillows brought from the boat. It was clear that her waist was ludicrously small.

The Toff sat on the grass with his back against a willow, the furry branches of which kept the glare of an unusually fierce July sun from them.

He moved, lazily, until he was on one knee by Agatha's side. He looked down into that fresh, lovely face. His eyes shone. He raised his two hands, lean and brown and strong-looking, and without a word, placed them at her waist.

She could not have guessed what he was trying to do, but she did not stir, nor look in the slightest degree perturbed. His fingers curled round her waist, and squeezed. The laughter in his eyes brought an answering gleam from hers. He squeezed more tightly.

"I knew it," he said. "I can span your waist with my hands, my Ag, you can eat as much cream as you want to." He let her go, gently.

She looked delighted and said: "I shall always be able to boast that the great Toff squeezed the very breath out of me!"

"What would you boast to?" he inquired, as if idly.

"Oh, almost anyone," Agatha declared. "It wouldn't matter who, everyone's heard of you."

With her hands behind her head, she studied him with great deliberation, then went on: "Do you know, you must be the most handsome man I've ever seen."

"You're so young that you've hardly started noticing men yet," the Toff informed her. "Don't."

"Don't be modest," interrupted Agatha. "It just wouldn't suit you. I mean it, anyhow. Some people have all the luck—money, good looks, a skin that tans a nice brown and doesn't go lobsterish, and in addition you can eat all that cream without having to worry about your waist-line. It is, you know."

He sat back on his haunches, nicely poised.

"Is what?"

"Divine. Weren't we doing something?"

"Counting our blessings?"

"Oh, yes. That," went on Agatha, looking at him straightly. "Is one of the things I didn't expect to find in you."

"Blessings?"

"No—thinking of counting them. You've a serious side, haven't you, you aren't just a man of action and what did Father call you? Oh, I remember—the last of the true gallants, a throwback to the Renaissance."

The Toff chuckled, not without genuine pleasure.

There was a lot to be said for being here, having nothing to do but laze, looking upon her loveliness, and being told pleasant things in a matter-of-fact and convincing way which marked Agatha Bell as a remarkable young woman. Looking at her, it would be easy to believe that she wasn't much more than sweet seventeen.

She had a pale smear of raspberry juice just beneath her nose, her lipstick had run a little, and her cheeks would soon be shiny; the fact that she had not yet troubled to make sure that her make-up was in good repair was another pointer to both her temperament and character.

Yes, it was very pleasant.

She had called at his Mayfair flat that morning, ostensibly with greetings from her father, an old friend of Rollison's who was now in the United States. She had come back from New York, she said, and was staying for a few weeks in London before going to Shropshire, where the family had some property.

Everything she had said had made it seem as if she had called simply because she had wanted to see him, and because her father had charged her with the mission; but he did not believe that was all. Beneath her manner there was tension, perhaps alarm.

He wondered when she would come to the point.

He also wondered who the man was.

He did not look up, and had shown no hint that he was aware that they had been followed from his flat in Gresham Terrace to the riverside house of his friends near Kingston, where he had borrowed the boat.

Nothing he or Agatha Bell had done suggested that either of them knew that the man was still watching them. He was near the path on the other side of the river, hidden by bushes, and invisible except for those times when he peered across.

"Rolly," Agatha said, and used the name as if she had called him that since childhood, although they hadn't met until four hours and thirty-one minutes ago, "will you do something for me?"

Was this her moment of mingled confession and appeal?

Still on his haunches, and sitting with the patience and the ease of a Hindu, while looking at her almost owlishly, he said: "If I can."

"Oh, you can!"

"Then if I will."

"You'd better," she said, and didn't move. The gleam of mischief had gone from her eyes. "Will you kiss me?" she asked.

He had not expected that at all, and in fact he was beginning to wonder a great deal about Agatha Bell.

She did everything so well; she had the poise of an actress, as well as this girlish pose which might all be part of a general plan of action. He was not yet sure what the plan involved, but was certain that it would involve him: deeply. And it was a fact that when she did come to the point of asking what she really wanted, it would be difficult to refuse.

She didn't repeat the question, and didn't move; just looked at him, with a kind of naive invitation.

He had never been more vividly aware of her youth and beauty, and it did not matter that there were nearly twenty years between them. She was woman, and he was man, and she was inviting him to kiss her.

He felt the warmth of the afternoon about him, and there was a voluptuous rhythm in the hum of insects and the ripple of the water. It was easy to forget that they were being watched.

He shifted his position, and her eyes narrowed, but didn't shift their gaze. He was on one knee beside her. He leaned forward, and with the gentlest of movements lowered his head until he could touch her forehead with his lips.

Lopes Taxpayers Are Angered By His Big New Car

BIG FLATS, N. Y. (AP)—Farmer William T. Smith hopes taxpayers grow angry at his new $6,100 Cadillac. To make sure, he's placed this sign on the car: "We bought this car with money we received for not growing corn."

That's the way Smith is protesting the federal government's crop-control program. Paying taxpayers' money to farmers to keep land out of production is not "morally right," Smith says.

Smith, owner of a 1,200-acre dairy and poultry farm in southeastern New York State, has received $3,049 so far and is to get another $3,450 for keeping 104 acres out of production.

"I took the payments and bought the Cadillac to make an example out of what's going on," Smith said. "How many people really know how tax money is spent?"

Why a Cadillac?

"I think the taxpayers would like me to have the best, so I got the works," Smith answered dryly.

Staying In U.S. Twice Thwarted

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (AP)—A seaman aboard a Turkish tanker was thwarted twice in his efforts to remain in the United States—once by the police and again by Texas mosquitoes.

Uzmay, 28, tried to jump ship but was captured and returned handcuffed to the tanker Turgreis.

As the tanker sailed for home Thursday night, the seaman squeezed through a porthole and dropped into the channel.

The Coast Guard spotted the Turkish seaman later, sitting on the bank in his underwear and battling at mosquitoes with his handcuffed hands.

"I do you no harm. Take me back," he yelled to the Coast Guard.

He was put aboard the Turkey-bound tanker.

Hooker Memorial Announcements

Beginning with this Sunday, July 2, we will begin our summer time schedule. Church school will begin at 9:45-10:30 and the morning worship from 10:45-11:30. We invite our many friends to worship with us.

The Christian Women Fellowship Groups will meet Monday.

One of the world's ugliest beings is the stonefish. It is also dangerous, gnarled, wrinkled and varied. The stonefish bristles with 13 needlesharp spines that eject poison as deadly as that of a cobra.

Declared Their Independence

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP)—Some 450 Ardmore Girl Scouts and Brownies declared their independence Thursday.

Leaders of the Ardmore Girl Scouts Association said the group had withdrawn from the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. and the Sooner Girl Scout Council, Inc.

Mrs. Frank Crosby Jr., Ardmore, a neighborhood Scout chairman, said the revolt had occurred because of not enough return from financial support given regional headquarters.

She said the Sooner Council had received $3,850 from the Ardmore United Fund this year but local Scouts received only $80 from the council.

She said the Ardmore United Fund had given the same amount last year, and Ardmore Scouts received only $180 in return.

To Speak Over WGTC

Sunday morning at 8:30 Chief S. G. Gibbs of St. Raphael Catholic Church will speak over radio station WGTC. An invitation for Sabbath school and church attendance is extended in the church of your choice.

Two Additions For The Reflector Staff

Foreign exchange students, who will arrive Monday for a three-day visit in Greenville and Pitt County, will tour East Carolina College and Pitt County, as well as be entertained by various civic and church groups during their stay.

Mrs. H. H. Bryant, president of the Greenville chapter of the American Field Service, which sponsors a bus tour for the exchange students, announced the plans today.

The group of 35 students and two chaperones has been invited to have dinner with civic clubs Monday evening. Twenty students will dine with the Rotarians at the Rotary Building, and 17 with the Optimist Club at the Silo Restaurant.

Tuesday morning, they will be conducted on a tour of East Carolina College campus, followed in the afternoon by a visit to Elm Street Park and the Little League Field Day. They will be guests of the Moose Lodge for a picnic supper at Elm Street Park Tuesday evening.

Later Tuesday night the students will see a movie at East Carolina College. Title of the film is "The Mouse That Roared."

Hosts to the visiting exchange students have been asked to meet their students at the local bus station Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All students will arrive by bus at that time.

A tour of Pitt County is on the agenda for Wednesday. Students have been invited to use the Moose pool Wednesday afternoon if they want to. They will be guests of the U.C.Y.M. for a weiner roast at Elm Street Park Wednesday and will spend the evening at the teenage club, with parents as chaperones.

Mrs. Bryant said.

They will leave Greenville at 8 a.m. Thursday, July 6, and continue their tour.

The students, who represent 20 foreign countries, have studied the past year in American schools, living with American families.

While here, it is hoped they will visit in local homes. Those interested in housing students may contact Mrs. Bryant at PL 2-5838. Hosts will be asked only to provide housing and breakfast, since other meals have been arranged.

Reedy Branch FWB Announcements

The Rev. Mr. Sapp will also be heard at the 8 o'clock hour Sunday evening and the Cherub Choir will be featured in the service together with a surprise soloist.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the church will meet Monday night at 8 o'clock.

Prefers To Pay His Taxes Early

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A father of six children paid his city and school taxes early, on the theory that he could not afford to pay taxes in December and provide Christmas for his family at the same time.

Alton Rodgers, 32, tendered a check for $157.25. City officials say most citizens wait until the Dec. 31 deadline to pay.

Rogers, a meat inspector for the city, said today he had accumulated some overtime pay and decided to use it to pay his taxes.

Declared Their Independence

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP)—Some 450 Ardmore Girl Scouts and Brownies declared their independence Thursday.

Leaders of the Ardmore Girl Scouts Association said the group had withdrawn from the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. and the Sooner Girl Scout Council, Inc.

Mrs. Frank Crosby Jr., Ardmore, a neighborhood Scout chairman, said the revolt had occurred because of not enough return from financial support given regional headquarters.

She said the Sooner Council had received $3,850 from the Ardmore United Fund this year but local Scouts received only $80 from the council.

She said the Ardmore United Fund had given the same amount last year, and Ardmore Scouts received only $180 in return.

To Speak Over WGTC

Sunday morning at 8:30 Chief S. G. Gibbs of St. Raphael Catholic Church will speak over radio station WGTC. An invitation for Sabbath school and church attendance is extended in the church of your choice.

Staying In U.S. Twice Thwarted

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (AP)—A seaman aboard a Turkish tanker was thwarted twice in his efforts to remain in the United States—once by the police and again by Texas mosquitoes.

Uzmay, 28, tried to jump ship but was captured and returned handcuffed to the tanker Turgreis.

As the tanker sailed for home Thursday night, the seaman squeezed through a porthole and dropped into the channel.

The Coast Guard spotted the Turkish seaman later, sitting on the bank in his underwear and battling at mosquitoes with his handcuffed hands.

"I do you no harm. Take me back," he yelled to the Coast Guard.

He was put aboard the Turkey-bound tanker.

Two Additions For The Reflector Staff

G. B. BRYANT, III

Two new staff members have joined the personnel corps of the Daily Reflector.

George Badger Bryant III, a June graduate of the University of North Carolina's School of Journalism, joined the news staff, and Ike F. Riddick, a Greenville native and 1961 graduate of East Carolina College, joined the advertising staff.

Bryant, 22-year-old native of Dickerson, Md., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Jr. of Washington, D. C. The new staffer's father is manager of McGraw-Hill Publishing Company's Washington Bureau.

A graduate of McDonogh High School in Baltimore, Bryant received an AB degree in journalism at UNC's June graduation exercises. At the university he was a member of the campus chapter of Sigma Delta Chi—national journalism fraternity—and a member of the Press Club.

His experience includes duty on the staff of the Daily Tar Heel, UNC student newspaper, and a summer's employment by the Raleigh Bureau of United Press-International.

Bryant currently resides at 2301 E. 10th St. here and plans to marry Miss Marge Etta Lupton of Belhaven—a 1961 ECC graduate—in July.

Riddick, 22-year-old basketball star at ECC and Greenville High School, is the son of J. G. Riddick of Greenville and the late Mrs. Riddick.

He is married to the former Evelyn Marie Edmundson of Bayview and they have a 10-week-old son, Ike F. Riddick Jr.

Riddick received his BS degree in business education from ECC in the college's May commencement exercises. During spring quarter he completed his teacher training at Chocowinity High School.

At East Carolina, Riddick was a member of the Circle K Club and played varsity basketball for the Pirates for four consecutive years. He was an All-Conference selection in the North State Conference in 1960.

Riddick graduated from Greenville High School in 1956 before entering the local college. He is a member of the St. James Methodist Church here.

The Riddicks currently are Greenville residents at 133 Library St.

They will leave Greenville at 8 a.m. Thursday, July 6, and continue their tour.

The students, who represent 20 foreign countries, have studied the past year in American schools, living with American families.

While here, it is hoped they will visit in local homes. Those interested in housing students may contact Mrs. Bryant at PL 2-5838. Hosts will be asked only to provide housing and breakfast, since other meals have been arranged.
