New Jury Box Is Put Into Service

A brand new jury box, ordered last week by the Pitt County Grand Jury, went into service at yesterday afternoon's session of the Pitt County Commissioners. The new box, larger than its 24-year-old predecessor to allow more thorough mixing of names to be drawn for venires, was substituted for the smaller box as the commissioners drew names of some 80 jurors for Pitt County Superior Court. Built by Grand Jury member Amos Evans of Greenville at the request of Chairman of the Commissioners Robert G. Little, the new box was the result of a pair of Grand Jury reports urging the commissioners to renovate the system of selecting jurors. At the Grand Jury's session last week, it heard Little County Attorney W. W. Speight and Clerk of Court D. T. House Jr. explain that the method of jury selection in Pitt is prescribed by North Carolina law. The Grand Jury, in its report last week, said the commissioners were drawing jurors according to law and ordered the new box "which will have a considerably larger capacity and thus allow more thorough mixing of the names prior to drawing." What prompted the investigation of the jury-drawing, the Grand Jury said, were reports that some Pitt citizens were being repeatedly called for jury duty while others were being seldom - if ever - called. The new box measures three feet long by 18 inches wide by 8 1/2 inches deep. The old box, built and put into use in 1937, was two feet long by 12 inches wide by eight inches deep. Evans, who delivered the box to the Commissioners' Room about 2 p.m., told the board: "I think it (the method of juror selection) is a good system." He also told the commissioners he thought the other members of the Grand Jury understood the situation - "that

Shippers Rushing To Resume Trade As Strike Halts

NEW YORK (AP) - Shipping companies today rushed preparations to get strikebound ships moving again after a federal judge ordered a temporary halt to a 19-day-old national maritime walkout. A number of lines posted sailing dates beginning Wednesday. U.S. Dist. Judge Sylvester J. Ryan issued the order Monday night after President Kennedy acted under the Taft-Hartley law on the basis of reports that continuation of the strike would imperil the national health and safety. Three unions went before U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Charles E. Clark seeking a stay of Ryan's temporary restraining order. Clark, who held a two-hour hearing late Monday night at his home at Hamden, Conn., refused a stay. He said he saw no compelling reason for him to interfere with Ryan's ruling. Ryan's order was directed against the five striking maritime unions, two maritime unions whose members had refused to cross picket lines, and several employer associations. The order restrains both labor and management groups from "engaging in or taking part in a strike or walkout" or otherwise "interfering with or affecting the orderly continuance of work in the maritime industry." Unions and management were ordered to resume collective bargaining in an effort to settle their contract disputes. The unions were ordered to "instruct their members to resume normal employment." Contempt of court charges could be brought for violation of the court order. Ryan directed representatives of the unions and shipping companies to appear before him Friday to argue on the government's request for a permanent injunction setting an 80-day cooling-off period under the Taft-Hartley Act. If the permanent injunction is issued, it probably will be for only 75 days because Ryan's order went into effect Monday night. Ryan said he was "satisfied that sufficient basis and evidence" had been presented by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's office to support a finding that "irreparable harm and injury" would be done to the national safety if the strike were not halted. President Kennedy, who is vacationing at Hyannis Port, Mass., instructed the attorney general, his brother, to ask for an injunction Monday. The President acted after receiving reports from various government agencies and from a fact-finding board he appointed when he first invoked the Taft-Hartley Act a week ago. Almost half of the American merchant marine of passenger ships, freighters and tankers were free to sail before Ryan issued his order. Contracts signed last weekend released about 340 ships. About 130 ships were not affected by the strike on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts.

Discuss Contract And Nominations

Further discussion of settling the general contract for Junius H. Rose High School and nominations for members of the Greenville Board of Education were principal subjects of business at a luncheon meeting of the board yesterday at the Silo Restaurant. The board accepted an offer by W. G. Dunn, contractor, of an allowance of $750 on a portion of the terrace floor located in the south wing of the building. The board has never accepted a portion of the terrace floor in the hall, which is defective, though the architect has approved the gym floor and one portion of the terrace hall floor. The board has held back about $2,500 on the general contract pending final settlement. After a satisfactory agreement is reached, the board will meet again to officially terminate the contract. At their May 11 meeting, mem-

Hite Appointed Legal Advisor

Attorney Kenneth Hite, counsel for the city's Redevelopment Commission, was named legal advisor to Greenville's Public Housing Authority by the group yesterday. At a meeting of the Authority late yesterday afternoon, a resolution was passed, recognizing the need for legal counsel. Dr. Earl Trevathan, a member of the Housing Authority, moved that Hite be named to the post. He recommended the lawyer because of Hite's affiliation with the Redevelopment Commission, saying the two were akin, and will be required to work closely together. Representatives from the architectural firm of Dudley and Shoe, which has tentatively been selected by the authority to carry out preliminary architectural planning, cost estimates and other work for the group, appeared at the meeting and said they intend to work closely with the authority. They also expressed their appreciation for being allowed to take on the project. The final appointment of the firm will not become final or official until after federal operating funds are received. Korean Premier Sworn In Today

By ALAN CLINE SEOUL, South Korea (AP) - Retired Lt. Gen. Song Yo-chan was sworn in today as South Korea's new premier in a five-minute ceremony carried out with strict security precautions. Song took the oath from Maj. Gen. Pak Chung-hi, strategist of the May 16 coup, who took control of the government Monday after dumping Lt. Gen. Chang Do-young as premier and chief of the military junta. Both Pak and Song went on to the Fourth of July reception at the U.S. Embassy and heard a brief lecture from U.S. Ambassador Samuel D. Berger on democratic government. Berger told the Korean leaders and several hundred other guests on the embassy lawn that the United States was based on "three revolutionary concepts: 'That men are capable of governing themselves, choosing their own leaders and making their own laws; 'That all men are created equal and are entitled to equal treatment and equal protection under the law; 'That the object of government is to serve the people.' Berger said such principles are recognized throughout the free world "as marking the difference between a society based on freedom and consent and one based on tyranny and dictation." The ambassador also toasted figurehead President Yun Po-sun, the only elected official left in the government, and said Yun's office was the "symbol of the new hopes and aspirations of the Korean people." Foreign Minister Kim Hong-il, a retired lieutenant general, responded with a toast to President Kennedy and said relations between South Korea and the United States are very close. Cabinet ministers and junta members attended the swearing-in ceremony, conducted in a military atmosphere at the junta headquarters. Chang was not present, but a junta spokesman said he was not under arrest. Song, 43, wore a business suit. Pak, 44, who usually wears combat fatigues, was in dress uniform. His chest bedecked with ribbons.

Three Killed In Plane Crack-up

BRISTOL, Va.-Tenn. (AP) - A plane crash on Holston Mountain - the fifth since February, 1958 - took the lives of three men Monday. Tennessee State Troopers identified the victims as A. E. Cline, Travis Eller and Ray Cooke, all of Hickory, N.C. They were returning home after a business trip to St. Paul, Minn. The highway patrol first reported that four had been killed in the crash. The crash scattered wreckage of the four-place Cessna 182 over a quarter-mile area atop the mountain, which runs in a south-westerly direction from Virginia into upper East Tennessee. R. V. Jenkins of Bluff City, Tenn., discovered the wrecked aircraft as he drove up the mountain on a picnic. He reported it to the staff at television station WCYB on the mountain. Bryant Booher, caretaker of the transmitter and one of the first persons to reach the scene, said: "The wreckage was scattered all over but the plane did not burn. It sheared treetops for several hundred feet. It probably would have made it over the mountain if it had been flying about 100 feet higher."

Traffic Death Toll Heads For Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Traffic 425 Boating 40 Drowning 131 Miscellaneous 109 Total 701 The nation's traffic death toll, running 40 per cent ahead of pre-holiday estimates, today appeared headed for a record for the extended Fourth of July weekend. Safety experts expressed fear the final count might reach 500 for the 102-hour holiday period which started at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight tonight (local time). The National Safety Council had estimated 450 persons might lose their lives during the long holiday. The record traffic death toll for a summer holiday period is 491 during the four-day Independence Day weekend of 1950. The National Safety Council said "the appalling toll is due to a combination of excessively heavy traffic and the tendency of too many drivers to ignore warn-

35 Exchange Students From 20 Countries Pay Greenville And Pitt Three-Day Visit

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer "Nothing is better than personal experience. I think I'll come back with ideas." Thi Ngoc Lien Truong of Paris, France, an exchange student who has lived with an American family for one year, said in a sentence what her fellow students were thinking. Thirty-five exchange students, representing 20 foreign countries, are here on a three-day visit to Greenville and Pitt County following a year's study in the United States. On Thursday they will resume their tour, which will conclude with a five-day meeting of all students for an exchange of ideas. Then they will return to their native homes. The students have indicated their ties are strong to their "adopted" American families, who have been called mother and father, brother and sister, during the past year. "The outstanding hospitality and friendliness of American people" was Iona Wagner's greatest impression of the people in this country. Iona's real home is West Berlin, Germany. The most interesting aspect of her study-life was "getting to know people and trying to understand why they act and why they think the way they do." Iona said She noticed a difference in political thinking, comparing her impression she gathered here and the one she had before coming to the United States. Now she has seen "both sides," she says. Lien noticed a diversity in the American people, who "are not of one origin. They are from all countries." A Finnish student, Liisa Kilpi of Helsinki, quickly adapted her ways to American ways. In her home country, it is the custom to hold the knife and fork in the same hand throughout the meal, rather than change the fork hand and lay down the knife as is the custom here. She changed to the American custom. "But I'll change right back when I get to Finland," she laughed. Brigitte Albrecht, a blonde German student, said of the people here, "You are more optimistic, more generous, more liberal. People all look forward to the next day." Liisa indicated that by a difference of political thinking in Germany and the United States, she meant that perhaps many Germans favored the Democratic party because they had lived under the Marshall Plan. Living here, she found what both political parties represented. "I can see things from both sides," she explained. Lien echoed that by living in another country, she has learned (Continued on page twelve)

Filipinos Brave Light Rain To Give MacArthur Largest Celebration

By HENRY HARTZENBUSCH

MANILA (AP)—The Philippines staged its biggest, most glorious Fourth of July independence parade today in honor of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

Upwards of 400,000 Filipinos braved light showers and jammed Manila's Luneta Park to witness the 2 1/2-hour parade and hear MacArthur deliver the main speech in observance of the Philippines' 15th independence anniversary.

Wearing his crushed wartime campaign cap and a tan military uniform, the 81-year-old soldier received a tremendous ovation when he said the United States and the Philippines "in this long twilight era that is neither war nor peace stand together just as firmly as before."

"The tide of world affairs ebbs and flows in and out," MacArthur said. "Old empires die, new nations are born, alliances rise and vanish. But through all this vast confusion the mutual friendship of our two countries shines like a ten-fold beacon in the night."

Singing Star Upheld Tradition

NEW YORK (AP)—Anna Maria Alberghetti upheld the theater's traditions Monday night by going through her starring role in "Carnival" with an eight-inch cut on the sole of her foot.

The star, swimming at Westbrook, Conn., earlier in the day cut her foot on something sharp under water.

After four stitches were taken by a Connecticut doctor, Miss Alberghetti came into the city for the performance. Stagehands and members of the cast took turns carrying Miss Alberghetti from stage to dressing room and back.

Waves of applause burst from the throng as their World War II liberator told them: "You may be sure that if you fight again, Americans will be at your side, shoulder to shoulder, once again comrade-in-arms. And you may be sure that as your old commander-in-chief I shall do all in my limited power to see that you receive full reward for your past service."

Ending on a sad note, the general said: "And now, even as I hall you, I must say farewell. For I must admit, with a sense of sadness, that the deepening shadows of life cast doubt upon my ability to pledge again, 'I shall return.'"

MacArthur reviewed the military parade from a grandstand overlooking Luneta. With him were President Carlos P. Garcia and leading Philippine government and military leaders, representatives of the diplomatic corps and other distinguished MacArthur, visiting the Philippines for the first time since he spoke at the first independence ceremonies in 1946, was hemmed in by a surging mass of people as he left the park.

Crowds waving American and Filipino flags and pennants bearing MacArthur's name shouted "MacArthur, our liberator," as he tried to get to his car. Strong police security reinforcements escorted him to the car.

15-Year-Old Questioned In N.Y. Kidnap-Slaying

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Cheryl Jolls, 15, a girl with a history of mental illness, is being questioned in connection with the kidnap-slaying of Andrew Ashley, 3.

Cheryl was taken into custody Monday in the search for the slayer of the blond, blue-eyed child whose body was found in a park lake June 25.

Cheryl, who faced psychiatric tests and more questioning today, denied any connection with the crime. No charges have been placed against her.

Investigators said two other children who had been taken from their homes, bound and gagged and left by railroad sidings on the city's north side identified the Jolls girl as their assailant. Police said they had found a series of scribbled notes in Cheryl's bedroom which traced the progress of the Ashley search and drowning. The information could have been taken from newspaper accounts, police said.

The girl, one of seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jolls, was arrested about an hour before little Andy's trussed body was recovered from a park lake. Agents of the FBI intercepted a telephone call at the home of Andy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ashley.

She admitted calling Mrs. Ashley and telling the mother that the boy was safe and would be returned when the police hunt was called off.

Federal agents caught the girl in the telephone booth. She told them she had called only to console the parents. She was released because at the time she did not answer the description of the boy's slayer. Detective Chief John Whalen said Cheryl had undergone treatment for mental disturbances.

The first to identify the girl was Richard Edgington, 5, who the day before Andy was slain, was lured from his playmates by a young woman. Threatened with drowning, Richard said, he was tied hand and foot and a plastic bag placed over his head. He was left by the railroad siding, but managed to shake free of his bonds and rip the bag from his head.

Several weeks before, Susan Benedict, also 5, experienced a similar treatment. She was found and returned home. Susan also identified the Jolls girl as the person who had left her tied by a railroad track.

Police said at least three adults also had identified the girl as the person who had been seen with the Ashley child the afternoon of June 23 in the park.

Nixon To Meet With GOP Chiefs

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A spokesman for Richard M. Nixon says the former vice president will meet with California Republican leaders at his temporary home here on July 11.

State reapportionment and other party problems in California are to be discussed.

Nixon addressed the biennial convention Monday night of the City of Hope, a medical institution for research in cancer, heart disease and lung ailments.

Reached at the convention, Nixon said his meeting with state party leaders will not consider the possibility of his candidacy or the candidacy of others. Reports that Nixon will seek the governorship of California in 1962 have been frequent.

Hamlet, Laertes Rescued By Girl

LONDON (AP)—Hamlet and Laertes were battling away at the Strand Theater Monday night when Hamlet's sword flashed through the air and landed in the lap of a girl sitting in the front row.

Hamlet and Laertes were frozen in midfight.

The girl stood up and graciously handed Hamlet back his sword. The fight went on.

"The girl saved the situation and when we took a curtain call I blew her a kiss," said Hamlet, actor Jeremy Brett.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
When you're getting ready to buy a house, it's a good idea to look ahead a few years. It can save you money.

A surprisingly large number of persons who buy new houses decide after one, two or three years that they need more space. Or they want to better utilize the space they already have.

Their decisions are carried out in any one of several ways. It may be the finishing of an attic or a basement, the addition of a second bathroom, enlargement of the kitchen, construction of another bedroom or enclosure of the three of these projects are under-porch or patio. Sometimes two or taken at the same time.

While modern financing methods make it relatively easy to handle such programs, the cost, in nearly all cases, would be considerably less if the work were done while the house was under construction. Since most persons make their choices of new houses from a development's model home, arrangements can be made with the builder to provide the desired extra space. How much can be saved this way, as contrasted with an addition at a later time, depends on a number of factors. But at least one authority estimates that it costs only half as much per square foot to add space to a home. Which is another way of saying that an addition can be built for what amounts to half price. There are two reasons for this. One is that the labor and materials already are on the scene. The other is that there is no necessity for breaking into walls or making other time-consuming alterations.

One type of prospective home owner may find it preferable to delay the expansion. He's the fellow who can and plans to do the work himself. Not only will he save the labor costs that way, but he will get the satisfaction of having contributed something to the individuality of his home. He'd better be sure of two things, however; that he actually will carry out his intentions and that he knows what he is doing.

They Staked All, Can We Do Less?

July Fourth is a day to reflect upon the conditions and sacrifices which brought into being on the new continent of America a new concept of government of, for and by the people. It is a day for remembering that the first citizens of this nation pledged their lives, fortunes and sacred honor to the achievement of a dream of a nation which would be ruled by its citizens and dedicated to the liberty and freedom of the individual man.

It is a day to reflect the sacrifices of men and women who inhabited the 13 colonies on that memorable day in 1776. It is a day to reflect upon the sacrifices that have been made by every generation of Americans since, as they have held high the torch of liberty and have defended it against those who would snuff out its light.

July Fourth is a day on which every American should consider not only the past of this nation, but also the present and the future.

In this land of liberty today, the American people in a very real sense face the same situation which their counterparts of 1776 faced. Theirs was the choice between the dream of liberty and freedom, and the determination of their own affairs, and the alternative of domination by other forces and other ideologies. They pledged everything they possessed, including their lives, to the achievement of their dream.

Today the United States finds itself locked in a struggle for survival with an ideology which denies the individual freedom of man, makes him the pawn of the state and his purpose for existence that of service to the state.

It is generally recognized, we believe, that in spite of overtures of co-existence, there are direct conflicts between the philosophy of liberty and that of communism which tend to make the co-existence impossible in the long run. In spite of our wishes to the contrary, the day is at hand when the American people must make a choice similar to that which was made by the colonists in 1776.

Either we pledge our all to the defense and perpetuation of the ideals of democracy and freedom, or we stand by and watch them gobbled up and disappear. Once again the American people face the choice of placing their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor on the altar of liberty, prepared to sacrifice them if necessary. The alternative is to give up the ideals without a struggle, recognizing that without them whatever else we may have is worth nothing.

There are those who make good arguments against risking our cities, our culture, our wealth, our civilization, and indeed our lives. But the price of liberty has never been cheap. To gain liberty and to keep it has always required the price of supreme sacrifice, and in the world of today and tomorrow, there will be no cut-rate price on freedom.

Do we, on this July Fourth, 1961, stand ready to carry on in the Spirit of '76?

Substitute For Unpassed Bills

By AURORA DOLLEY

PUBLIC ACCEPTANCE — A policy of "If you can't legislate, captivate" is being tried as a substitute for ideas embodied in bills which failed to pass during the last and previous sessions of the General Assembly. Public acceptance of issues flanking the legislative course is being courted by State agencies and departments most concerned with measures killed by the lawmakers.

Sometimes this plan of education for the public is only a substitute for the ill-fated bill; other times it is tried as another means of accomplishing the same purpose. Often the idea of trying to sell the general public on a plan is an effort to sway the sentiments of future General Assemblies on proposals which were frowned upon by their predecessors.

In some corners it is conceded that trying to get certain types of bills passed before the issue has strong public support may be putting the cart before the horse. Some foresee more satisfactory cooperative results in enforcing laws if the citizenry is made to feel an urgent need for them before it is passed.

A bill which would have provided for compulsory chemical analysis of blood from motorists suspected of driving while intoxicated was killed by a House committee. Backed by State and national highway safety officials, the controversial measure boiled down to whether a suspect would be protected by having science prove innocence, or convicted by science. Proponents also cited national statistics proving merits of the measure, but opponents feared the tests were subject to error.

Maj. C.A. Speed, head of the Traffic Division of the Motor Vehicles Department, says that now across the State more voluntary centers are being encouraged to set up blood testing stations similar to the Winston-Salem unit which is said to work so well.

VOLUNTARY SALESMANSHIP—The idea here is twofold, of course — wider practice of chemical analysis for determining intoxication, even if on a voluntary basis, and letting the success of the voluntary centers "sell" a larger proportion of Tar Heels on the workability of the idea.

Health department officials join the Welfare authorities in disappointment that proposed licensing of nurseries and day care centers was laid on the chopping block of the House.

Dr. Roy Norton, State health officer, says that the welfare of the children involved is the primary issue, regardless of who receives responsibility for licensing and regulating standards, and he sees the need for more public awareness regarding the problem.

Workers who travel from state to state are called a neglected group by Dr. Norton, who feels that the beleaguered bill to let his department regulate sanitary conditions in the migrant labor camps was "a reasonable proposal." Not stymied by defeat of the measure, he is wary of a bad epidemic in any of these camps across the state. For humane reasons, as well as avoiding any possible future scandals injurious to Tar Heel public relations, Dr. Norton says that "Legislation is not the only way."

Tactics to be employed in lieu of laws are designed to "awaken public conscience" to conditions in some of these migrant labor camps. This is also in line with the theory that prevention is cheaper than cure.

NEGATIVE APPROACH—The policy of taking a detour route, if necessary, in order to reach a goal is not employed as often as it might be.

In the General Assembly, for instance, many of the loudest shouts of "no" to a proposal were based on conscientious convictions that there was another, much better, solution to the problem. There are few that would quarrel with a legislator's right to vote his convictions. On this basis, negative votes could not be criticized.

But—and in hindsight it is easy to be critical—the Assembly is then criticized for being a do-nothing or do-little group in certain areas. They are blamed for killing this and killing that.

At the last of the session, more than one senator or representative told his colleagues that he had been "looking in vain" for certain measures to be introduced. Others were openly kidded for being "again" everything voted on.

The point is... does being AGAINST something or other also carry with it a responsibility to be FOR something? And if a lawmaker is active in defeating certain proposals, should he not also be active in airing his views on the positive approach to an admitted problem?

For example, there was scarcely a legislator who was not keenly aware of the need for more highway safety, and most agreed it was a matter requiring urgent attention. But often it was a matter of voting "no," "no," "no," without submitting, in the form of a bill, their "yes," "yes," "yes" ideas.

Could it be easier to say "no" sometimes?

MacArthur Not One To Just Fade Away

General MacArthur's return to the Philippines and the tumultuous welcome he received show without question that old soldiers never die, and in the minds of many hero worshippers neither do they fade away.

For the Philippines and for Gen. MacArthur the return of the World War II general appeared to be an emotion-packed occasion. It was in those islands that MacArthur suffered his greatest defeats and won his greatest victories. It was also in those islands that MacArthur made for himself among the people a reputation that few men ever achieve. As an "outsider" he gained the status of a national hero, and though years have passed since the liberation of the Philippines from the Japanese, Gen. MacArthur still remains a national hero in the islands.

The occasion was for Gen. MacArthur, perhaps a more genuine homecoming than his return to the United States following his recall by President Truman as commander of the American forces during the Korean War. The years since World War II seem to have dimmed the status of Gen. MacArthur in the eyes of some of the citizens of the United States, but in the eyes of the citizens of the Philippines, Gen. MacArthur still remains a great man among great men.

A Revolutionary Idea Then, Now

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just 185 years ago today Congress let loose a revolutionary idea it didn't fully believe itself, a fact which makes it a little easier to understand the revolutions of today.

This was the idea: "That all men are created equal... with inalienable rights... among them life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Neither Congress, which approved those words in the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776, nor Thomas Jefferson, who wrote them, really believed "all" men are created equal.

They believed, in George Orwell's phrase, that some people are more equal than others. The Declaration calmly ignored slavery. Even Jefferson, troubled though he was about human bondage, had slaves of his own and considered Negroes inferior.

The Founding Fathers, following the Declaration with the Constitution, ratified in 1790, still considered "all" men equal. Their Constitution not only didn't end slavery, it permitted slaves to be imported until 1808.

All this was done neatly, without once mentioning slaves or slavery.

"The failure to use either word is significant," Burton J. Hendrick wrote in 1937 in his book "The Constitution." "But it betrays the sense of apology, of shame, with which the makers approached a dangerous and even disagreeable subject."

It took a civil war to wipe out slavery. But even that couldn't establish as a fact in all American minds the high-sounding words in the declaration about men being equal.

The proof: Tuesday millions of Americans who rejoice in celebrating the stirring words in the Declaration of Independence still practice discrimination and segregation against Negroes, even perhaps while they celebrate.

The lesson from it all — applicable to what has happened here and is happening around the world now — is that when men, any group of men, white, black or yellow, have power they don't yield it easily, but abuse it.

Some recent examples: what the Negro strong men have done to one another in the Congo; what the Chinese Reds did to the people of Tibet; the Russian Communists' control of the satellite peoples of Europe and their savage suppression of the Hungarians who protested.

In this country the white men, outnumbering the Negroes, had the power to refuse them equal treatment and, for a long time, even freedom from slavery. For generations the Western nations, not because of their numbers but because of their military power, kept many millions of people in colonial subjection and exploited them.

Good example: The ignorance in which the Belgians kept the Negroes of the Congo.

Around the world as men in the backward nations began to understand a little more about equality and freedom, and as the Western nations grew weaker, the colonial period began to end.

But not quite. Look at Portugal's suppression of the natives in Angola and the long struggle of the people in Algeria to free themselves of the French. Perhaps the best break the backward peoples ever got was the result of power.

In this case it was a power struggle between the West and communism struggling for their allegiance, in some cases just for their neutrality, revolution is encouraged, restlessness has an outlet, hope is revived for a better life than their ancestors had.

For a landless Latin American peasant — hungry, sick and without a future — it holds no terror for him to hear that if he buys communism he will lose freedom when his only freedom now is freedom from a decent life that could be his with better planning, a better share in the wealth of his native land.

He knows, unless there is tremendous change, there will be a chance for him to become equal to the absent millionaire who owns the land he works.

For just as the words equal and liberty didn't quite mean the same thing to the men who signed the Declaration of Independence as they may to some Americans today, freedom to a well-fed and healthy man in a prosperous nation may not mean the same as it does to a sick man with three hungry children in Brazil or Laos or Africa.

Now, more than ever in its history, the American republic is under challenge to make words like equal and liberty come true, this time not only for white Americans but for men of all colors, and not only at home but around the world.

It's either this or face destruction since an America surrounded by a Communist world can hardly hope to be equal to its more numerous foes or free to do anything more than yield or die.

Opinions In Brief

"Things in our government today are not done by individuals; they are done by bureaus, by offices, by groups, by nameless organizations. How can you do anything in this world that way?" —Hyman Rickover, USN.

Fortunately, It Didn't Happen This Way

By PATRICIA MOORE

America And Americans

Today 35 foreign exchange students representing 20 countries will observe and be exposed to Greenville and Pitt County, including its people, its farms, its politics, its weather, its soil; and its attitudes and friendliness.

We hope, after talking to some of these students, that they will carry away from here the good impressions they have gathered from their parts of the country. One characteristic which they enthusiastically applaud about the United States is the hospitality and the friendliness of the people.

The customs here are, of course, different from their own. Very different for some, and less different for others whose countries have become more "Americanized" since the war (such as West Germany). One young lady from Finland confided that the eating customs are very different here.

But she adapted herself quickly to "our" way and has mastered the handling of forks and knives as we do. In her own country, she kept both knife and fork in the same hand through the entire meal.

But, she further confided "I will probably change back as soon as I get home."

Most of these students are between the ages of 16 and 18, all in high school—at the formative stages of life, while learning is easiest.

Their mastery of the English language is wonderful, to say the least. The amazing factor about the language is that one student had two years of English in her own country and spoke with great ease. We compared it to our two years of high school Spanish, with the added two years of college Spanish, and felt something lacking.

These students, who feel their lives have been enriched by living here a year and learning more about other people, would make any American feel proud of his America.

This concept of Americans, derived here, seems to do away with that bad impression the American tourist in Europe leaves there.

We heartily recommend that you grasp any opportunity to meet and talk to any of these students, to find out a little more about their countries and our own.

Other Editors Saying... Increasing Problem

(Rocky Mount Telegram) Despite the fact that penicillin has proved to be a specific cure for syphilis there has been a dramatic and radical increase in reported cases in this country during the past three years. That was reported by F. S. Kingma, public health adviser in the Communicable Disease Center of the U. S. Public Health Service in Atlanta.

The report was made before a section meeting attended by delegates to a convention in Greensboro. This startling increase must lead to one of two conclusions: first, the rate of the disease has actually increased or better reporting of cases accounts for the apparent increase in cases noted.

Both Kingma and Dr. W. L. Fleming, professor of preventive medicine at Chapel Hill, were of the opinion that almost perfect reporting of syphilis cases wouldn't account for the startling increases in recent years. Dr. Fleming said the very effectiveness of penicillin has resulted in apathy among physicians and health officers toward treatment of venereal disease.

The problem is best described as one of nation-wide impact. Almost a million and a half cases were estimated for the country last year. An effective program of control calls for close cooperation between federal and state agencies as well as local health departments. Because of modern transportation and swift population moves a single state simply cannot cope with its problem.

In most states there is no program of reporting venereal disease cases to boards of health. This indicates the need for venereal disease intelligence on a national scale. "We are naive to assume that all private physicians will voluntarily report each case," declared Kingma.

During the early 1950s, the incidence of venereal disease reached an all-time low and there was a general feeling that the tools and treatments available were adequate. This was a time of optimism. But today we have a disturbing situation despite the tools and equipment.

Public agencies and private physicians should unite in finding and treating every case.

There is another side to this picture, of course. It concerns the moral aspect of the venereal disease problem. The increase, as noted by the doctors, can be accounted for only by assuming the rate of promiscuity has also increased among young people. Concerted efforts on the part of parents, the schools and the churches to point out the hazards of such action, together with the dangers accompanying such messes, would go a long way toward helping to reduce the incidence of venereal disease in our nation and communities.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE DON'T LIKE SHACKLES

King John, who ruled from 1199 to 1216, was one of the worst kings in English history. He attempted to deprive both the barons and the people of basic human rights. At last in the field of Runnymede his nobles met him and forced him to sign what has since come to be known as the Magna Charta.

In this instrument John promised that no free man could be proceeded against except by his peers (equals) or the law of the land; that justice should neither be sold, denied, or delayed; and that taxes could not be imposed save by the consent of the National Council, which later became the House of Commons.

Anyone who believes that the right to live as free men in a free world is a privilege which just grew up in the natural course of events needs to reread history and note how consistently its pages are splattered with blood. We have had two world wars in this enlightened and sophisticated century of ours in defense of human freedom.

Communism looms and leers today. That iron collar if ever fastened about our necks could be heavier than anything humanity has worn to date.

For those of us who live in the free world, liberty and life are synonymous. We hate tyrants, and if necessary will die telling the world so. Modern life has not softened us to the extent that we will passively submit to being shackled.

Repeat An Old Error

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It would seem that the State Department is making the same mistake in the Dominican Republic that it made in Cuba. The essential error in Cuba was that the State Department believed that it could distinguish between a good and a bad dictator. Batista was a bad dictator; Castro was a good one. So the United States intervened in Cuban affairs; got rid of Batista; put Castro on the throne and is now paying an enormous price for an historical error. A non-interventionist policy would have made no distinction between Batista and Castro; a full and true interventionist policy would have set up the terms for a dictator's control; put Marines in Cuba to maintain order; and eventually hold an election so the people might judge for themselves. To follow neither course is to produce confusion.

In the Dominican Republic, immediately after the old dictator, Raphael Trujillo was assassinated, men long associated with him, including his son, took control of the situation, re-established order immediately and set a remarkable example of successful transition. But those who performed this orderly task have been associated with one whom the State Department listed as a bad dictator, and from whom recognition was withdrawn. Therefore, the State Department will not recognize the present constructive men. Instead, it seeks others to take their place—others who may have had no experience and whose associations may be harmful to us.

What is likely to happen if the State Department course is followed is that a political vacuum will result and the Communists from Cuba will move in, taking control not only of the Dominican Republic but also of Haiti. The quarrel between Trujillo and Castro is that the former suspected the latter of planning to do that.

One wonders at the logic of the Fourth floor of the State Department where the experts dwell who form policy without responsibility. These lower officials write reports, screen reports, prepare working papers. The great men who sit on the Fifth floor or in the White House have these documents before them when they reach final decisions and are often governed by them, ignoring information from all other sources.

The Kennedy Administration has sought to accumulate as much talent as is available. There can, of course, be a plethora of talent. It is like eight pianists playing a delicate Chopin waltz at once. It is like eight cooks making a soufflé. In the end, one cancels out the other and the concoction is a horror. Thus this assemblage of talent is already stepping on each other's toes. There are too many of them. The place is too crowded. There is too great an assemblage of wise men, each one of whom has to be wiser than the other; each one finding it necessary to establish that he is the smartest of all.

The result is that the President stands before the country a brave and serious man who courageously states policy and then the varieties of associates, assistants, experts and general nuisances vitiate the whole business, making a sound President appear to be more corrupt in his oratory than his actions.

The country would be happier if President Kennedy sent some of his advisers home where they could do the work to which they are accustomed without damaging the country.

To return to the Dominican Republic, the rule, it would seem to me, ought to be that whoever is with us is to be favored by us. There is some criticism of this idea which men with lofty purposes and short memories regard as selfish both in design and execution. The fact is that we are closer to World War III than we are ready to admit. The debacle of the Kennedy - Khrushchev conversations at Vienna, now admitted on both sides, marks it fairly clear that we are moving in the direction of war.

That being so, the United States cannot afford to lose a

Buy A House, Despite The Price

By ELMER ROESSNER

You should buy a house. The ads say so, the government says so, I say so.

But you should realize that when you buy a house you put your neck in a noose.

When you buy a house, you commit yourself to paying city, county and often district taxes. And, depending on where you buy, taxes can range from almost nothing to the demand that you buy your house again every year.

You also commit yourself to paying for utilities. In some areas, you can dig your own well, generate your own power, bury your own garbage. But in other areas, you must accept city services, pay tribute to the servitors, or be subject to fine.

OTHER INFLECTIONS

You may be liable to many special taxes. The local school wants a new trampoline; it is added to your tax bill. One group doesn't like Venetian lights along the streets, so you must pay your share of new Neapolitan standards. The heart of the brother of the county supervisor has sprung a leak, so taxes must include a new job, the inspection of sedentary services, to keep the brother in parsnips.

You become liable to special taxes. You had jolly well buy two tickets to the Sanitation Men's ball, the Firemen's Trot and the Policemen's picnic, or else. The else is really unimportant. If you don't buy, you may feel that the city will be jerked out from under you but, as a matter of cold facts, you will probably get the same services. The special bits usually rely on apprehension and rarely cut off a service because a house-owner won't play chicken.

THE CIVILIAN BITE

You will also be subject to other pressures. If you live in rented quarters, no one cares whether you are a member of the Sons of I Will Arise or not. But once you buy a house, you are plotted on the neighborhood charts.

Now in our fair land, Catholics, Protestants and Jews rarely get together except on special occasions. But the field workers always cooperate and if you buy a house you are promptly visited. And your answer is quickly communicated to other sects.

The local minister may think his rivals peddle only damnation, but if he hears you say you are not a Protestant, the Catholic and Jewish faithful will be at your doorstep in a matter of minutes, all with pledge cards.

These cards, for building funds, winter heating, foreign missionaries and other establishments can be as heavy a drain as local taxes.

ONLY THE BEGINNING

There are other levies: swears for people on the other side of town; fees for inspections of shelters; the women's exchange bite, the Scouts and Girl Guide contributions, the community Christmas tree, the PTA, the Den Mothers and Arts Commission.

All this does not include the costs of annual termite inspections, the annual furnace care, hanging screens and storm windows, lawn mowing, painting trim and feeding peanuts to jays, which can be the largest item of them all.

So you put your neck in a noose.

It is a nice noose. The costs—and there is also insurance—are no more than you must pay for rented premises because, after all, the landlord must pay all these things, too. So buy a house, enjoy yourself and relax. You, not the landlord, get tax credits for depreciation, taxes, disaster damage and insurance. And besides, a sale can give you a capital gain. More about that soon.

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer The Cincinnati Reds go into the Fourth of July firing at the head of the National League pennant race for the first time in four years—and it would be just as well for Reds' fans that history doesn't repeat.

July 4 was the last day Cincinnati was on top in 1957. The Reds fell to second place July 5 and finished fourth, 15 games behind pennant-winning Milwaukee. This time, Cincinnati carries a two-game lead into the mid-season holiday after beating Pittsburgh 4-3 Monday night. The second-place Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Milwaukee 3-2 in the only other game scheduled in the National League.

In the American League, Baltimore rapped Cleveland 5-0, Washington beat Boston 3-3, Minnesota trimmed the Chicago White Sox 7-6 and the Los Angeles Angels defeated Kansas City 5-3. First-place Detroit and second-place New York, just a game behind, were idle. The "first on the fourth pennant" tradition, incidentally, has stood up 38 times in the National League over the past 60 years. In the AL, the July 4 leader has gone on to win the flag 41 times out of 60.

Wally Post and Vada Pinson provided an odd parlay in the Reds' victory over the Pirates and Joe Gibbon (6-4). They drove in all of Cincinnati's runs, each batting in a pair, but they had only one hit between them for a total of six at-bats. Post got his two RBI with a second-inning home run. Pinson batted in a third-inning run while grounding out, then brought in the clincher with a sacrifice fly in the eighth.

Right-hander Jim Maloney (5-4) was the winner. He gave up only five hits, but two were homers by Bill Virdon and Dick Stuart, and he needed relief from Bill Henry and Jim Brosnan for the last two outs. A ninth-inning, tie-breaking single by Maury Willis did it for the Dodgers while southpaw Sandy Koufax, topping the NL with his 11th victory, and reliever Larry Sherry held the Braves to three hits, Bob Buhl (5-6), once a Dodger killer, failed for the 12th straight time to pitch a complete game against Los Angeles. Koufax (11-4) walked six and struck out seven. He gave up all three hits, two by Ed Mathews, in his eight innings. The Braves scored one in the first on an error, and took a 2-1 lead in the third when Koufax walked Joe Adcock with the bases loaded.

four until the Milwaukee Open July 20. "When I first started playing tournament golf in 1950 I used one just like it." Casper and Pott each earned $3,800 as runners-up. Short putting was Casper's downfall. With a chance to match Burke's par on 13, the former National Open champion 3-putted, missing one from 20 inches. Another time Casper rimmed the cup on a birdie attempt. Pott spent a frustrating day trying to catch up. He birdied the first hole then rattled off three straight bogies before settling down. The young Louisianan was in the woods once and landed in five sand traps.

Putter Proves To Be Best Weapon

By JERRY GREEN FLINT, Mich. (AP)—An ancient putter—just like the one he broke in with—was the major weapon in veteran Jackie Burke's play-off victory in the Flat Open. Burke used his wooden-shaft putter with deadly precision Monday and it won him $9,000 for his first tournament victory in two years. The curly-haired pro from Kiamisha Lake, N.Y., beat Billy Casper and Johnny Pott by three strokes in an 18-hole playoff. Pott and Casper had been tied for the lead since the 36-hole mark Friday. Burke overtook them Sunday, gaining three strokes. He then beat them in the extra session, touring Warwick Hills in 36-35-71 — one-under-par on a windy course. Casper, inaugural Mint Open champion in 1958, and Pott each shot 37-37-74. Burke's putter produced his biggest stroke, a 63-foot putt up hill for a birdie two on the 11th hole. "I just started using that putter two weeks ago," said Burke, who plans to take off from the

McKinley Rests After Victory

By GEOFFREY MILLER Associated Press Sports Writer WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Chuck McKinley, the zippiest bundle of non-stop energy on Wimbledon's hallowed tennis courts this week, took it easy today before the next stage of his bid to take the men's title back to the United States. The 20-year-old human dynamo from St. Louis demolished Britain's Bobby Wilson, the man who dethroned defending champion Neale Fraser, with a devastating display of hitting and running Monday. Now he gets a respite before tackling Mike Sangster, Britain's last hope in the tournament, in the semifinals Wednesday. If McKinley wins, he will meet either Rod Laver of Australia or Ramanathan Krishnan of India in the final on Friday. No American has figured in a Wimbledon men's singles final since Tony Trabert won the crown in 1955. McKinley said after bulldozing Wilson out of the tournament: "The way I'm hitting the ball at the moment, I think I could beat all three of them." The fans on Wimbledon's No. 1 court were amazed by McKinley's fitness. From the very first shot, he rushed about the court in a tireless performance of hustle. He kept it up until he had beaten Wilson 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. "I didn't plan those tactics for Wilson's benefit," McKinley said. "It's just that I like to make a good start. It makes me feel good to hit the ball hard as soon as I start playing." After beating Wilson, he had two hours rest, then went out and won a doubles match with his partner, Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif. Chuck and Dennis tuned up for Wimbledon by running around the fields of London's Queen's Club in the evenings. McKinley doesn't smoke, keeps his figure trim by eating no pastry, and takes no alcoholic drink except an occasional beer after a match.

American League Leaders Battle For Top Position

Indian Likes To Blow Off Steam

By GORDON BEARD Associated Press Sports Writer BALTIMORE (AP)—Fiery Jim Piersall of the Cleveland Indians, who charges umpires, opposing players and outfield fences with equal fervor, says "there's no other way to play the game." "Too many guys play a scared kind of baseball," he told a meeting of the Baltimore Sports Reporters Association Monday. "But there's only one way to play that's the way I play." Piersall is currently sidelined with an injured knee, suffered last week when he ran into a Cleveland fence while chasing a line drive hit by Washington's Dale Long. The 31-year-old outfielder also is nursing bruised feelings and a sore wrist since being hit June 23 by a pitch thrown by Jim Bunning of the Detroit Tigers. "He's going to get it some day. If he doesn't quit throwing at the hitters," Piersall said. Recalling his brief tussle with Bunning, Piersall said "that was the first fight I had a chance to win, and then the catcher knocked me down from behind." Piersall, who had a nervous breakdown in the early 1950s, said he was happy to be able to "blow my top" and let off steam. "I leave my problems at the ball park," he said. "I let the baseball writers and umpires get the ulcers." Although he has been ejected from only one game this season—after the Bunning incident—Piersall said he still has his disagreements with the umpires. "But I've learned not to say too much," he observed. "I have my say, and get it over with quick." Then he added as an aside: "I couldn't have been an umpire. I couldn't stand guys like me."

Winning Secret Is Only Control

MILWAUKEE (AP)—After six years of struggling, Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers finally has developed into a winning pitcher. And the secret to his success is control. Owner of one of the most blazing fast balls in baseball, Koufax appears to have conquered the pitching wildness which has plagued him since he was signed for a big bonus Dec. 14, 1954. The 25-year-old fire-balling left-hander became the National League's first 11-game winner Monday night as the Dodgers edged the Milwaukee Braves 3-2 to remain two games behind first-place Cincinnati. Koufax, who has lost only four strikes out seven, boosting his total for the year to 135 in 127 1-3 innings, and walked six, two intentionally, before leaving for a pinch hitter. "My control is better this year because I'm not trying to throw so hard," Koufax explained. "I used to just rear back and try and throw the ball past the hitters when I got into trouble. Now I just try to throw a strike. That's the big difference."

W-S, Bulls Lead Carolina League

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Monday night's Carolina League action trimmed the number of first place teams from four to two. Still tied for the second half lead with 4-2 records were Durham and Winston-Salem. Winston-Salem smeared Burlington 15-1 to knock the Indians into second place and Durham topped Wilson 8-5. In the other game Greensboro toppled Raleigh into second place, winning 13-1. For today's Fourth of July doubleheaders, Greensboro will be at Winston-Salem, Burlington at Durham and Raleigh at Wilson. Winston-Salem ran up 15-0 lead before Burlington scored in the top of the ninth, but Burlington starter Shelly Dent pitched the entire game. Manager Bill Herring declined to go to his bull pen and Dent suffered his first defeat after three victories. He gave up 15 hits, Bill MacLeod, who scattered 11 hits, won his eighth game against four defeats. Leftfielder Bud Trapp's three-run homer in the sixth pushed Durham past Wilson. The victory gave Durham a sweep of the two-game series with Wilson, winner of the first-half championship. Chuck Lloyd, 21-year-old right-hander just off the University of Kentucky campus, made his pitching debut a successful one as he held Raleigh to three hits and struck out 14 men. Ken Free's lead-off homer in the fourth was the only Raleigh tally.

Seek Uniformity In Boat Numbers

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard is making a national effort to convince boatmen of the importance of displaying boat numbers properly. The Coast Guard reports that many numbers are the wrong size, are of improper type and have a weak color contrast. Numbers must be at least three inches high, of block type and of a color that will contrast sharply with the color of the boat's background. Ford Hopes To Break All-Star Pitching Jinx

By BOB GREEN Associated Press Sports Writer BOSTON (AP)—Whitey Ford, New York's crafty left-hander who has a couple of scores to settle, looms as the American League's probable starting pitcher for the first 1961 All-Star game July 11 at San Francisco. Ford, making his seventh appearance on the team, heads a nine-man pitching staff picked by Baltimore Manager Paul Richards. He's one of six Yankees on the 25-man team that will try to halt National League dominance of the games. The NL has won seven of the last 11. Two of those losses have been tagged on Ford, who shares two unenviable All-Star records: losses (2) and most runs allowed in one game (5). Richards hasn't announced his choice but Ford (14-2) is expected to get the nod along with other starters already named. Each of the 10 league cities is represented on the team announced Monday, with the Yankees placing six, Detroit five, Baltimore four, Cleveland three and Chicago two players. They range from the veteran Yogi Berra, making his 15th All-Star appearance to rookie shortstop Dick Howser of Kansas City, the lone first-year man in the group. Behind Ford, Richards has a couple of tough right-handers from Detroit, Frank Lary (11-4) and Jim Bunning (7-6). Knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm from the Orioles, Chicago left Billy Pierce, Washington's Dick Donovan and Ryne Duren of Los Angeles. The Senators paired five of their nine hits with three walks for all six runs in the second inning against loser Ike Delock (5-4) and reliever Wilbur Wood. Ed Hobaugh (6-3) was the winner, but needed relief help after giving up 11 hits—two of them homers by Jim Pagliaroni and Gary Geiger. Bob Allison's grand-slam homer, cracked a 3-3 tie for the Twins in the sixth inning and beat reliever Turk Lown (3-3), who had won five in a row. It was the fifth defeat in six games for the White Sox since their 12-game winning streak. Earl Battey and Jim Lemon also homered for the Twins as Camilo Pascual won his sixth. He has lost 10. Ken Hunt drove in two runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly and also doubled for the Angels, who scored the clinching run in the sixth inning on a wild pitch by reliever Gerry Staley. Ron Kline (2-6) was the winner in relief. Jim Archer (6-3) was the losing pitcher for the A's, who have dropped seven of their last eight.

Usual Idea Bobs Up In NL Running

CINCINNATI (AP) — What do you think of the moss-covered notion that the team that leads the league on Independence Day is destined to take the pennant? The idea bobs up every year, but a check of National League records shows it has worked only about 60 per cent of the time since 1900. This year it's the surprising Cincinnati Reds on top of the league by two games. But the National League scramble is mostly still tight with only seven games, separating the Reds and the fourth-place Pittsburgh Pirates. The idea of July 4 being the early barometer for indicating the league champ probably got its biggest boost at start of the century. From 1900 to 1913 it worked every time. But then in 1914 there came along the so-called miracle edition of the Boston Braves who were in the National League cellar on Independence Day, and went on to win the flag.

All-Footballers In The Outfield

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — An all-football outfield is the boast of the Syracuse University baseball team last spring. Fullback Pete DeSilva played left field, fullback Dick Easterly played center and quarterback Bob Lelli played right field. Three other football men tackled Tom Gilburg and Jack Salerno and guard Bob Ramsdell are defensive men playing lacrosse. CUP DEFENSE WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Christine Truman, Ann Hayden, Angela Mortimer and Deidre Cat have been named to defend the Wightman Cup against America's biggest tennis stars at Chicago Aug. 19-20. The four are the top-ranked Britons. Gene Verble, former Washington Senator infielder, manages the Syracuse team in the International League.

TOP TRAINER by Pap'

Trainer "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons was accepting congratulations on Fulloving's upset victory over Bowl of Flowers in the Mother Goose Stakes at Belmont Park. Mr. Fitz will be 87 on July 23 but the touch of genius with which he conditions his thoroughbreds is as sharp as ever. "I'm not really training horses these days," said the dean of trainers. "I'm just doing the best I can. Today, you don't have time to train your horses. We have to be off the track at 10 a.m. After that, a man with a horse is just in the way. There was a time when we had an opportunity to build up a horse's lungs and muscles by walking and running him longer distances. We used to graze them all the time. Today, they get little grazing and are confined to a dark stall 24 hours a day. This breaking down business, in my opinion, is because the horses aren't muscled-up and tough enough to stand up under the demand for speed."

"Sunny Jim" isn't one to dwell on the "good old days." He's looking forward to bigger and better things. And judging by the fine crop of two-year-olds he has sent to the post at Aqueduct and Belmont this spring, the next two seasons could be the best of his long and distinguished career. Right now, Fulloving shapes up as a strong contender for top filly honors. The fleet daughter of Tom Pool has won all her starts this season, including the Black Eyed Susan at Pimlico. Perhaps Mr. Fitz is only doing "the best he can" under the circumstances but that's still good enough to keep him a couple of lengths ahead of the other trainers. —Pap'

Siamese Twin Said Doing Okay

CLEVELAND (AP) — Separated from her Siamese twin sister ten days ago, infant Folanai Faith Mavrikis was progressing "nicely" today at St. John Hospital.

Surgeons who performed the three-hour operation said chances are good she is headed for a normal, healthy life. She now weighs 6 pounds, 5 ounces. The other infant died a few hours after surgery.

The babies, joined at the abdomen, were born to Mrs. Antonios K. Mavrikis, 44, wife of an unemployed machine operator. They shared a single liver and had only one intestinal tract between them, doctors said.

France Nuyen Going For Stardom Again

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
LONDON (AP)—France Nuyen is back in London for another chance at stardom. She says she's going to make it this time.

Her last visit here was to star with William Holden in "The World of Suzie Wong." Midway in the movie she was fired, and she flew back to Hollywood amid much mystery.

Now she's back here, again to star with Holden in "Satan Never Sleeps." She is no longer mysterious. In fact, she tells all about her "Wong" experience.

"When it all happened, my friends urged me to speak out in my defense," said the little Eurasian. "I refused. To speak out then would only have added to the publicity, which was exactly what he wanted."

The "he" of her story is producer Ray Stark. France doesn't like him. The fire glows in her almond eyes when she discusses him.

Not wishing to get caught between the two contenders, I'll report only that she believes Stark removed her so he could star his own contract player, Nancy Kwag.

The firing was done amid a flurry of rumors, she said—"that I was insane, that I was pregnant, that I was too fat." None was true, she declared.

The actress spent a year doing nothing. "Producers were afraid to hire me; they thought I was some kind of monster," she remarked. She kept busy painting, reading, cooking and designing clothes.

"Finally, Jack Webb needed me for his picture, 'The Last Time I Saw Archie,'" she said. "He found out I was no monster. He called Fox and told them they were crazy not to use me in a picture. So did Bob Mitchum."

Fox got the message and now France has a second chance at the bigtime. She's determined not to blow this one.

To the young man who wants to be a Pillar of the Community

Every community has its "pillars" — responsible people who get things done. Unlike our illustration, they are never stiff or stuffy.

A great many of these men and women bank at Planters National. They know the importance of establishing good banking connections at an early age. Shouldn't you follow their example?

Begin by opening a Planters National checking account. All of a sudden, you're more than a face in the crowd. You're a somebody, with connections established with one of Eastern North Carolina's leading banks.

Opening your Planters checking account is the first step up. It won't actually make you a pillar of the community. It will just make you look like one. And that's a good start.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Lazing on the sunny bank of the Thames in the company of lovely Agatha Bell who was half his age, the Hon. Richard Rollison patiently waited for Agatha to tell him, without being pressed to do so, why she had sought his aid—and why she evidenced tension and apprehensiveness.

Agatha had called at Rollison's bachelor quarters in London that morning, ostensibly with greetings from her father, an old friend of Rollison's, and had accepted his invitation to a boating expedition on the river. There she eventually confided the reason for her fears; her father seemed to have vanished without explanation. She had been with him in New York when, two weeks before, he disappeared. He was seen by a friend, Jimmy Vance, at New York's Idlewild Airport, apparently waiting for a plane back to England.

While Agatha confided her fears to Rollison and mentioned that her father had been worried about something, possibly a woman, Rollison observed evidence that a man was spying on them from the river's opposite bank.

CHAPTER 3

"So you came to me because I knew your father, and someone told you that I'm a detective," the Hon. Richard Rollison said to Agatha Bell.

"Everyone knows that you are. You're the Toff," Agatha declared, as if that put all other matters beyond the need of explanation.

"But why come to me, and not the police?"

"I don't know," she answered, eyeing him straightly. "I just think it would be wise not to go to the police. It—it's a kind of feeling. I'm sure Daddy wouldn't want me to."

Rollison glanced at the watch strapped to his wrist, wondering how best to handle her. He wanted the whole story, in as much detail as she could give, and he also wanted to try to reassure her.

"We'd better get back," he said. "It's after three, and we won't be in town until five. You can tell me the rest on the way."

"Rollison," she said, chokily. "I find Daddy for me. Find out what happened. I feel so dreadful because I'm so helpless. Useless!" She fought against tears, and then exclaimed: "I bet I look terrible!" She bent down and snatched up a white linen handbag, opened it savagely, and took out a slim compact and a lipstick. The compact was over full when she opened it; powder flew out in a little, sweet smelling cloud.

"Damn!" she exclaimed. "I filled it too full." She peered at herself in the mirror, and went on in a shrill voice: "Look at me!"

She began to dab, tiny puffs of powder, powder on to face, and the powder flew and the breeze wafted the perfume to the Toff.

She patted away, and then pursed her lips, saw where the lipstick had run, scowled, and went through all the motions of make-up.

When she had finished, she looked as if she had just come from a beauty salon. "Will I do?" she demanded.

"You'll do," the Toff said. "You'll do," and don't ask me to kiss you again, or you'll be disappointed. Why didn't you tell me about this when you came to the flat, instead of waiting until now?"

"I wanted—I wanted to get to know you."

"Why?"

"I wanted to decide for myself whether I could trust you," Agatha said downrightly. "Daddy said anyone could, but men are hopeless judges of other men."

Rollison chuckled. "Whereas you know the sex! Step into the boat, lady, next stop Kingston Towers."

He picked up a cushion, tossed it into the boat, and stepped for the other. The picnic basket was already in, only his coat and her handbag remained. The boat, var-

The Toff saw two people appear not far from the spot where he and Agatha had sat; a scared young couple who had been among the bushes.

"One more," he said, and bent to the pole again. "Get up, will you, and jump ashore."

Agatha was nimble, and didn't falter. She swayed on the bank and went several paces up it. The Toff leapt after her as the boat ran ashore. Agatha stared towards the spot from whence the scream had come, and Rollison took her elbow and hurried her forward until they were close to the bushes among which he had seen the man who had followed her.

"Wait here, Ag," he said, very gently, and gripped her arm, to make her understand that he meant what he said. Then he pushed the bushes aside, and stepped into a small clearing.

The dead man was young; no more than thirty.

It was the man who had followed Agatha Bell.

He had fair hair, now spotted with crimson. The blood from the savage blow had splashed.

He was leaning against a tree, and some small pieces of paper were sprinkled about him. Some were white, some looked like pieces of a glossy photograph.

The Toff turned, and saw Agatha parting the bushes. As he made

Attend Annual Kiwanis Session

Carolinan District Gov. John Barnhill, Pres. W. O. Moore and Vice Pres. Ed E. Rawl, all Kiwanians of Greenville, are attending the 46th annual convention of Kiwanis International in Toronto, Ont. July 2-6.

They are joining some 17,000 other Kiwanians, their wives and families, in what promises to be the largest convention in the organization's history — and the first in Canada since World War II. Convention sessions will be held in the city's famed Maple Leaf Gardens.

Work to be accomplished at the convention will include election of officers for 1961-62 — a president, a president-elect, a treasurer and six trustees — recognition of top clubs throughout the United States and Canada for contributions to their individual communities, and the adoption of resolutions upon which the organization's 1961-62 community service program will be based. J. O. Tally, Jr., young Fayetteville, N. C. attorney and president of Kiwanis International, will preside.

A Florentine, who died in 1285, has been credited with inventing eyeglasses. An inscription on his tomb reads: "Here lies Salvino d'Armatto of the Armatto of Florence. The inventor of spectacles. God forgive him his sins."

New Equipment, Methods Key To Success Of Air Freight Business

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—New equipment and new methods of cargo handling are the hope of the nation's hard pressed airlines to capture new freight markets. They talk in terms of jets and wing tails and containers and pallets—and of sales drives tailored to shippers' specific needs. Two all cargo airlines, Flying Tiger and Seaboard World, are putting new turboprop swing tail airfreighters through shake down

Passenger lines with suddenly multiplied cargo capacity in their new and expensive jets are pushing hard for needed new business. Also they are converting to freighters their big piston liners superceded by the jets. American, for example, has converted 15 DC7s, TWA 12 Super Constellations. Pan AM's North Atlantic freight capacity this year will be twice that of last. Cargo revenues have increased fairly steadily for several months for the lines as a whole. But the big break is ahead—they hope. For they concede that to tap the really big market, rates must come down. That means lower costs.

Already there has been some rate cutting. New rates go into effect for cross Atlantic freight September 1. Some commodity and tonnage rate cuts are announced between certain cities on coast to coast flights in domestic service.

Flying Tiger hopes that the 10 turboprops it is getting from Canadian subsidiary of General Dynamics, will bring its operating costs down 40 per cent, which could be translated into lower rates. The planes have added speed and tonnage mile ca-capacity and a tail that swings to one side which makes for less expensive loading from the rear with less time lost on the ground.

Robert W. Prescott, Flying Tiger president, says he hopes eventually to operate the planes at a cost per ton mile of less than 4 cents. Seaboard World Airlines is getting five Canadairs, each capable of carrying up to 65,000 pounds of freight nonstop across the Atlantic at an average of 400 m.p.h. It hopes to cut its ton-mile cost almost in half.

In the cargo holds of its new jets, and in its converted DC7s, American Airlines is carrying an increasing volume of freight says E.C. Taylor, vice president for Cargo Sales and Services. "In May American flew 16 per cent more revenue cargo ton miles than in May 1960, and in the first half of June the gain was 22 per cent, over the like period a year ago."

TWA now has airfreighters on a five a week schedule to Europe and on regular non stop flights between the East and West coasts at home. Vice President Samuel C. Duniap says ton miles on the international routes set a record in April, up 37 per cent from the previous year. In May the domestic ton miles flown topped a year ago by 41 per cent.

Pan American World Airways is adopting a system of freight pallets and rollers embedded in the floors of their planes. It reports loading time will be cut to less than a third of the former time. All these processes aim at eventual rate cutting before really large scale expansion of airfreight can become a reality. But even with the present rates the airlines have some talking points in competition with other forms of transportation. They claim less loss and damage, cheaper crating, and the chance for manufacturers to cut their inventory requirements and warehouse costs.

And helicopters are offering to pinpoint your delivery right at your doorstep.

Field Day
A Tobacco Field Day is scheduled for the Lower Coastal Plain Tobacco Research Station south of Greenville Wednesday morning at nine o'clock. Pitt County Agent S. C. Winchester and the county's tobacco specialist S.J. Weeks have urged county tobacco farmers to attend the demonstration that will last until about 12 noon. A tour of experimental and demonstration plots will give farmers an opportunity to observe. Old and new varieties and promising lines of tobacco; topping and suckering; fertilizer rate and variety; research on insect control; breeding for disease resistance; brown spot control; and growing plants under plastic. The research station is located about two miles south of Greenville on the Old Tar Road.

Appoints Head Of Caretaker Govm't
HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—President Urho Kekkonen Monday appointed Interior Minister Emil Viktor Luuka to head a caretaker government pending parliamentary approval of a new Cabinet. Vieno J. Sukselainen resigned as premier last Thursday after conviction in civil court of charges of dereliction of duty in his capacity as head of the nation's social security pension board.

Pitt Firemen's Ass'n To Meet
The annual meeting of the Pitt Firemen's Association will be held Thursday night July 13 at the Sweet Gum Church with the Station-House Fire Department as host. Election of officers will highlight the session. More than 100 firemen representing all 13 Pitt County fire departments are expected for the session. A special program will be conducted by Capt. Claude Christopher, training officer for the Greenville Fire Department. "We extend an invitation to any interested person to attend this annual meeting regardless of whether or not they have an organized fire department in operation now or not," said Roy Hardee, Vice President of the Pitt Association. "The main purpose of our association is to promote and develop better effective fire fighting in Pitt County among both rural and city departments" Hardee pointed out. Each department will be responsible for the number of members expected to attend and advance notice should be given to the Station-House Fire Department in advance by writing to Chief Ed Hemmingway, Route 6, Greenville. The supper will be dutch starting at eight o'clock. A board of director's meeting will be held at seven o'clock prior to the regular business session.

Author To Be Buried In Mountain Valley

By WILLIAM BEBOUT
KETCHUM, Idaho (AP)—Author Ernest Hemingway, who roamed lustily through the adventurous lands of his fiction, will be buried quietly in the peaceful mountain valley he loved. Authorities declared Monday that his death from a shotgun blast in the head Sunday was a "self-inflicted gunshot wound" and said there would be no inquest. Prosecuting Attorney V. K. Jeppesen said officials were making no determination of whether it was accidental or otherwise. The 61-year-old writer, whose literary genius won him the Nobel and Pulitzer prizes, will be laid to rest at the Ketchum public cemetery, the time depending upon the arrival of his son Patrick from a hunting trip in Africa. Friends of the family said the funeral could be today if Patrick arrives in-time. The best guess was that it would be held Wednesday.

Hemingway was a man who breathed the very spirit of modern times," said Konstantin Fedin, head of the Soviet Writers' Union. A Cuban newscast also gave prominence to the news of Hemingway's death and portrayed the author as an ardent supporter of the Castro revolution. Cuba was Hemingway's home base for 20 years and it was there he wrote "The Old Man and the Sea," his Pulitzer prize-winning novel. He left Cuba in 1959. He spent much of the past two years here, returning only last week from the Mayo Clinic in Minnesota where he was treated for high blood pressure. He also was reported suffering from diabetes.

Civil War Widow Receives Pension
DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—A bright-eyed Confederate widow whose husband joined up when he was 14 years old has received her first monthly pension check for $75 from the state of North Carolina—45 years late. Mittle Croom Campbell, 83, whose husband James died in 1916, said he never had applied for a pension check for himself. One of her three sons, George Harvey Campbell, recently uncovered information that led to approval of the pension application. Honorary pallbearers include columnist Leonard Lyons, New York restaurant operator Toots Shor, Bullfighter Antonio Ordonez of Madrid, publisher Charles Scribner and David Bruce, United States ambassador to Great Britain. Moscow radio joined in the worldwide tributes to Hemingway.

Rotary Club Hosts Students

Twenty foreign exchange students, in Greenville for the three-day visit, were guests of the local Rotary Club for dinner last night. The students, representing 20 foreign countries, were a part of the group of 36 students visiting here on a tour arranged by the American Field Service which supervises the exchange program. Miss Annabell Stearns, a member of the American Field Service staff who is accompanying the students on the tour, told Rotarians that the group of students now visiting Greenville is one of many groups touring various parts of the United States. During the past year more than 1,800 high school students from foreign countries have been living with families in various communities throughout the United States and attending high school.

The foreign students who are visiting Greenville have been attending high schools in the area around New York City for the past year.

Several of the students spoke briefly at the Rotary meeting last night, giving some of their impressions they have gained of the United States during the 11 months they have been in this country.

When the students leave here Thursday morning they will travel to Charlotte then to the western section of Virginia and to Washington. From Washington they will continue to a point between New York and Montreal where all 1,800 of the foreign students will gather for several days before returning to their homes.

The Rotary program was presented by Don Calloway of the club's program committee.

Hoffa Calls Special Meet To Clinch Union Control

By NORMAN WALKER
Associated Press Labor Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—James R. Hoffa called an Independence Day convention session to clinch absolute rule over the giant Teamsters Union and obtain a free organizing ticket to workers anywhere.

In one of more than a hundred changes proposed to the 1.7-million members union's constitution, Hoffa seeks power to create his own labor federation to rival the AFL-CIO and woo already organized unions into his growing domain.

The holiday session of a special Teamsters convention was scheduled to ask the practically sold pro-Hoffa delegates to approve a wide range of proposals to cement his power base in American labor for a jumpoff into wider fields.

"You ain't seen anything yet," is Hoffa's ambitious theme in shoring up the Teamsters for a far-ranging organizing drive into industries already occupied by other unions, Hoffa said wherever they failed to organize, he's going to hop in.

In another change, Hoffa is deleting from the Teamsters constitution a provision that members convicted of crime can be ousted, or that convicted racketeers must be expelled.

This, however, has been made unnecessary to some extent by a new provision of federal law barring persons convicted of certain crimes from holding union office. The law does not bar convicts from union membership.

Here are some of the Hoffa-backed convention changes expected to be adopted—just as delegates were considered sure to elect the 48-year-old former warehouse boy who never finished grammar school to a new five-year term as head of the nation's largest union.

Virtually all top Teamsters aides will have to do Hoffa's bidding or forfeit their jobs or generous expense allowances.

No rank and file member can run for national union office anymore; candidates first must have served in local union offices, over which Hoffa has some say-so too.

The union will be authorized to provide legal defense funds for Teamsters charged with law violations.

Hoffa would be given up to $20 million a year to spend and unlimited power to hire organizers and directors to ride herd over area teamsters affairs.

Local unions also could specifically keep their money in non-interest-bearing bank accounts—a matter that stirred up considerable criticism for Hoffa in connection with an Orlando, Fla., land deal in which he is presently indicted for mail fraud.

Hoffa told the opening convention session Monday he plans to set up a lobbying organization in Washington "second to none" and build up Teamsters politics to oust "those pot-bellied, slick individuals who represent the employers in Congress."

The Teamsters chief also elaborated on prior assertions that FBI and other government agencies are working behind convention scenes to defeat his reelection bid.

Hoffa said glamorous female FBI agents are trying to compromise delegates against him—a claim that the Department of Justice in Washington said was "too ridiculous to comment on."

3-Nation Force Grows In Kuwait

By COLIN FROST
KUWAIT (AP)—More men and materials flowed in through the night to boost the three-nation defense force in Kuwait.

By dawn today the total forces available to the British command, Air Marshal Sir Charles E. Elworthy, exceeded 10,000 well-equipped regulars and 10,000 Arab volunteers.

The airlift continued through the night into Kuwait's Farwania Airport bringing the 1st Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers from Kenya and other British units.

Some moved straight into main defense positions northwest of the capital. Others took over from the 2nd Coldstream Guards who have been guarding the vital plant which distills fresh water from the sea, the largest in the world.

The crack Coldstreams were ordered into the desert to join British paratroops, tanks and marine commandos on guard against Iraqi forces that British intelligence agents said were continuing to build up north of the frontier.

The night's airlift brought the British contribution to Kuwait's defense to 1,000 men plus air and navy support. Saudi Arabian units totaling 1,800 men already were reported in forward positions. Kuwait's own defense force totals roughly 4,000 regulars well trained in the handling of British tanks and armored cars.

Sheik Abdullah as-Salim as-Sabah, Kuwait's ruler called on the British for help after Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem announced June 21 he planned to take over the oil-rich little sheikdom as Iraqi territory.

Several Arab governments have come out in support of Kuwait's defiance of the Iraqi claim, and none has backed Kassem.

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Terry Sanford today reduced prison sentences of seven men serving long terms as an outgrowth of the bitter textile strike at Henderson.

The governor's action made four of the seven eligible for parole immediately. Three others, including Boyd E. Payton, Carolina's director of the Textile Workers Union of America TWUWA will be eligible for parole late this summer.

The governor's office pointed out that paroles are issued by the State Paroles Board and the board will consider the cases.

Rain Forecast In Some Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fairly pleasant weather appeared likely today in many sections of the country but showers in the afternoon and evening might dampen the Fourth of July holiday activities in some areas.

Thundershowers fell during the night and early morning along the Atlantic Coast states, the Gulf Coast, the Plateau states and in southern sections of the upper Mississippi Valley and the southwestern upper Great Lakes.

Earlier, showers and thundershowers broke out along a cold front which spread eastward to the New England shores and extended southward into Virginia and west-southwestward to Texas.

The wet-stormy weather also hit areas in the warm moist air in the Deep South as well as in the Rockies.

A severe electrical storm in Houston, Tex., caused five flash fires. About three inches of rain fell during a 45-minute period.

Cool air covered the northeastern upper Great Lakes region, with temperatures dropping into the 40s. It also was fairly cool in other sections of the Great Lakes and northern New England with readings in the 50s. One of the lowest marks was 42 at Marquette, Mich. At the same time it was 84 in Philip, S. D.

Fairly mild temperatures prevailed in most other parts of the country.

Need 2 Weeks To Call Voters

MARSHALL, N.C. (AP) — At the present rate, defense attorneys will need two weeks or more to call each Marshall precinct registered voter to court and ask him only whether he voted in a 1959 bond election.

The defense subpoenaed all 2,300 of the precinct's voters as witnesses in the trial of libel suits totaling almost a million dollars against N.C. Republican Chairman William E. Cobb. Superior Court is in recess today, but in the day and a half of defense testimony.

—160 witnesses said they didn't vote.

—69 said they did.

—25 said they couldn't recall.

—7 said they weren't registered then.

After the 1919 state-wide bond election, Cobb questioned the accuracy of the returns showing 939 votes in the Marshall precinct. He did not name names, but three precinct election officials filed suits for $300,000 each for libel. They are Zeno Ponder and Oren Rice, Democrats, and Frank Rummion, Republican.

Judge J. Frank Huskins recessed the trial for the July 4 holiday today, to reconvene Wednesday. The trial began June 26.

more about people. "Nothing is better than personal experience," she commented.

Both Liona and Lien want to come back to the United States one day, Lien perhaps to study a year in college. Liona is interested in studying languages, including English and French. Lien plans to enter the Sorbonne in Paris for further study, concentrating on English and political studies.

Lisa, who came from Helsinki, has lived in a smaller American community than the big city which is her home. Here she has found "people interested in politics, even teenagers. They are more conscious about what is happening in the world."

She, too, was impressed by the friendliness of the American people, and the school she attended, which had high standards. "I had to work hard," she said.

Brigitte, like Liona and Lien, wants to study more about languages. She observed that there was not such a big adjustment for her to make in this country. "Germany is quite an Americanized country since the war," she said.

Until early Thursday morning, these and other foreign exchange students will be busy with the tours arranged for them, including tours of East Carolina College and Pitt County. And meeting the people of Greenville.

The students, while here, are living in homes in the Greenville community. All are high school students, and all speak English proficiently. Lisa Kipli of Finland had just two years of English before coming to the United States; she apparently has no difficulty speaking or understanding the language.

The idea of the exchange program is to promote goodwill and better understanding. The bus tours follow the year of study and are an "extra dividend" of the program, sponsored by the American Field Service. They enable the students to see more of the country where they have been living.

From here they will go on to Charlotte, Bristol, Tenn., Va., Waynesboro, Washington, D. C., Lewiston, Pa., and Scarsdale, N. Y. They will then meet at an undisclosed college for their conferences and exchange of ideas before going home.

Fireworks Mishap Takes Infant Life

THE DALLES, Ore. (AP)—A 5-month-old Indian baby was killed Monday when an aerial fireworks bomb went awry, landed inside the car where the infant lay, and exploded.

The victim was Everett Yatin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chesley Yatin, of the Warm Springs Indian reservation in central Oregon.

The Yatins told police the accident happened near The Dalles when they shot off some of the bombs from the side of the road.
