commissioners, and the mayor to supervise operation of the department.

Greenville Police Chief Sullivan G. Gibbs submitted a letter of resignation to City Manager Louis Scheipers Jr., yesterday. The resignation is to become effective July 17.

The letter, made public last night when City Manager Scheipers read it to members of the City Council, said Chief Gibbs was resigning "to accept a position with the State of North Carolina."

Chief Gibbs declined to comment on his new position with the State, but indicated that an official announcement would be forthcoming in the near future.

The official said he has "enjoyed his association with the local department" both during the time as chief and while working with the other law enforcement agencies, and expressed his wish that the department will continue to grow as it has in the past.

He also expressed his thanks to the other law enforcement organizations in the county for "the cooperation given the Greenville department" in various cases over the years.

No Big Hurry In Naming Successor

When will Greenville have a new police chief to replace S. G. Gibbs who resigned yesterday to take a state appointment?

Not before July 17 when the chief will officially complete his duties. Actually Chief Gibbs will be on vacation until the effective date of the resignation, but City Manager Louis Scheipers said after last night's council meeting that Gibbs will be in town and available for consultation.

It will fall on the shoulders of the new city manager to choose a chief of police. Under the city manager form department heads are responsible to the city manager.

Scheipers read Gibbs' letter of resignation to the council last night. Councilman Ralph Brimley pointed out that handling of the resignation was a matter for the city manager.

Mayor Charles King expressed "sincere appreciation for the good work you've done during the past two years I've been here" to Chief Gibbs who was present last night. The councilman also directed the city manager to write a letter of commendation to Chief Gibbs.

Scheipers said following last night's meeting that choosing a new chief of police is a "very important thing." He continued, "I'm not going to be hasty about it. I'll get all the advice I can get from people I think can help."

Scheipers will be hiring a second chief of police within a few months since he chose a new chief for Southern Pines only recently. Scheipers was city manager there before coming to Greenville last month.

Three Positions Filled On Board Of Education

Three positions on the Greenville City Board of Education were filled by the City Council last night, including the reappointment of Dr. E. B. Aycock and Louis Gaylor, and the appointment of Mrs. A. H. VanDyke, a new member.

Mrs. VanDyke replaces Mrs. W. J. Stell Jr., who resigned from the board some months ago. Mrs. Stell had served about 10 years prior to her resignation.

Dr. Aycock has been a member of the board about eight years, serving some four years as chairman. Gaylor has served on the board for four years. All three appointments were for four-year terms.

Since he has lived in Greenville, Dr. Aycock has served as medical advisor to the high school football team and has helped with the high school guidance program. Gaylor, as an attorney, has rendered legal assistance as a member of the board.

Mrs. VanDyke, a native of Wilmington, has been active in P. T. A. and civic work since she came here in 1945. She has had two years of teaching experience in Jonesboro and Wilmington schools, having received her B.S. degree in education from East Carolina College.

Last year, with her three children in different city schools, Mrs. VanDyke was a member of three different Parent-Teacher Associations: Junior High, Elmhurst and Rose High School. She has served on various committees in the P-T-A groups. In civic work, she has assisted in many drives in Greenville, including the Heart Fund, Mothers March, Cancer Drive and United Fund. She is a former member of the Greenville Service League.

A member of the Lector Book Club, Mrs. VanDyke is a former president and now serves as treasurer. She is a member of Immanuel Baptist Church, where she has served as president of the Women's Missionary Society and is chairman of a circle this year.

She is married to A. H. VanDyke, who is associated in the furniture business here, and they have three children: Allen, 16; Judy, 14; and Mike, 7. They reside on W. Rock Spring Road.

Salinger Says No Decision Yet On CD Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says a decision on reorganizing the nation's civil defense system has not been completed.

"We aren't prepared to say anything about it," White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Thursday.

He spoke to newsmen after President Kennedy met with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Frank B. Ellis, director of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

McNamara and Ellis are the two principals in the reported struggle over the major role in civil defense. Budget Director David Bell also attended the White House meeting.

Kennedy has told Congress the Pentagon should take over chief responsibility for civil defense. Ellis has opposed the shift, insisting civil defense responsibility should remain a civilian function under his agency.

Timid At Clubs?

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP)—During the summer the shyest clubwoman can overcome her fear of talking in public—by talking at home.

Dorothy Uris, speech teacher and author, says you can become an effective speaker by the time most clubs resume next fall if you start work now. And you do it through conversation at the family dinner table.

First, turn off the television set. Then introduce an interesting topic for discussion. Draw out the ideas of each person, children included, steering away from arguments and monologues.

Mental Menu

To be prepared with current events and discussion topics, Miss Uris suggests you prepare the dinner's "mental menu" in spare moments during the day.

But even when you, and your family in the bargain, develop good conversational habits, the speech teacher and author of "Everybody's Book of Better Speaking," won't let you stop talking. Next she wants you to plunge into some lively conversations with your friends.

"Be specific. Giving an example of an unusual summertime activity you've just seen is much more interesting than saying, 'It sure is hot!'"

"Make it a two-way exchange. Take in what the other person says and then respond.

"And say what you think. Sometimes we're too busy being affable, because we're afraid to be unpopular and wrong. Get interested and really enter in."

When you can do that, Miss Uris believes, you'll be ready to get up and speak in next fall's PTA meetings.

But even then, you don't have to go in "cold." In most cases you will know when discussion on a controversial topic is coming up and can prepare ahead of time.

"Organizing what you want to say is pie," Miss Uris continues. "You begin by saying you believe the club should do this and so, because of 1, 2, 3, 4 reasons and by summing up—restating the opening a little differently."

Relaxing Run-Through

Write it down, Miss Uris says, put on the dress you intend to wear to the meeting, sit in a chair, put the paper on the floor between your feet, lean forward like a rag doll and read your statement out loud. When you get to the meeting, you should feel just that relaxed.

But you probably won't.

Miss Uris suggests you walk around the block before you enter the meeting room, if you're nervous when you arrive.

When you stand to speak, her only advice is "ground yourself." Don't worry about posture or deep breathing, she says. Remember only to plant your feet firmly on the floor (she usually digs in with her toes), press your thighs against the chair or table in front of you and rest your fingertips on the chair or table.

Try not to stiffen. If you feel tension in the back of your neck, relax and move your head.

It's all right to read what you have to say, she advises, if you feel you'll panic and forget. And don't worry about fear. The presence of fear adds a tremor to your voice which merely convinces your listeners that you honestly mean what you're saying.

"Talking in public is really no different than talking in a living room," Miss Uris says. "And I never met a person who converses easily in a living room who wasn't effective on the PTA floor."

The furnishings of the home of the late Joseph Downs, one of the artistic show places of North Guilford, Conn. have been sent.

Expected soon is almost the whole of an early American inn, once Conkey's Tavern of Pelham, Mass. A massive stone lintel over a fireplace is inscribed, "Conkey's Tavern, June ye 21st, A.D., 1776."

The furniture and many objects in domestic use in colonial days will be placed in one of Britain's stately mansions, Claverton Manor two and a half miles from the center of Bath, where they will form basic exhibits in the first museum of American decorative arts to be established permanently outside the United States.

Funds to buy the manor and to set up the museum were provided by the Halcyon Foundation of New York. It was purchased from the estate of Miss A. M. Skrine who died in 1960.

Estes Looks To Doctors For Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., indicated today he hopes to draw support for his drug control bill from individual doctors.

The American Medical Association has taken a stand against many features of the bill.

Hearings on it by Kefauver's Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee recessed Thursday after two days of testimony from AMA witnesses. The hearings will resume July 18 with testimony from individual physicians.

Kefauver and his staff indicated they hope many of the witnesses, including noted members of some medical school faculties, will endorse all or most of his program.

The bill would place the drug manufacturing industry under strict new federal controls and policing.

The AMA opposed provisions to require federal testing of the effectiveness of drugs before they are sold to the public and placing in government hands the naming of new drugs and the policing of all advertising of drug preparations in medical journals.

The AMA has taken no stand on one of the bill's chief aims—to bring down prices of prescription medicine by amending the anti-trust laws to force more competition among the big drug firms.

Kefauver suggested repeatedly in the hearings that AMA evaluation of drugs might be colored by the revenues it derives from drug manufacturers' advertising in AMA publications.

Dr. Hugh H. Hussey of Washington, chairman of the AMA board of trustees, vigorously denied this.

"The AMA is now and always has been a free agent," he said. "Never have its scientific activities been subject in any manner whatever to commercial pressures."

Kefauver produced figures that showed, he said, that more than half of AMA's advertising revenues in 1960 came from the nation's 22 largest drug firms. He said these represented 23 percent of all AMA income.

"Can you be objective when the major part of your revenue comes from the companies you are trying to regulate?" he demanded.

"Is it human nature?" Hussey inquired.

"We are objective," Hussey insisted.

Kefauver criticized some ads for medicines carried in the AMA journal. He said some of them failed to state that the medicines could have undesirable side effects on some patients.

Hussey and Dr. Ernest B. Howard of Chicago, assistant executive vice president, said doctors get their information about medicines from articles and editorials in medical journals and by attending medical meetings, but don't rely on advertising claims.

Hussey said the association rejects 85 percent of the advertising copy submitted by drug firms on grounds the advertisements would run afoul of AMA standards.

Child's Emotional Adjustment Said Advantage In Summer Kindergarten

The emotional adjustment of each child was a great advantage of Greenville's first summer kindergarten program for pre-schoolers, Mrs. Ellen Carroll and Mrs. R. L. Wolff, co-chairmen of the Kindergarten Committee, reported yesterday.

The general program was a success, they stated. In an evaluation of the project, the co-chairmen said the children had learned to live in social groups and had become acquainted with the school environment. Their kindergarten experiences will give them good attitudes towards the school environment this fall, Mrs. Carroll said.

The kindergarten, conducted from June 5-June 30, was sponsored by the City Council P. T. A. with the cooperation of the Greenville City Board of Education and J. H. Rose, superintendent of city schools. Appreciation of the board and Rose for use of the school buildings and grounds was expressed by the kindergarten committee.

Only children who will enter school this fall and who have had no previous kindergarten experience attended. Elementary school teachers, who first explored the idea, felt the program would better prepare each child for school.

The kindergartens were conducted at Third Street School, Agnes Fullilove and Elmhurst, with five teachers, on a budget of about $1,400. Local organizations made contributions to the project.

Among the values of the program were the experiences of children learning to play, eat, sing and live together. Mrs. Betty Sue Forrest, kindergarten instructor at Elmhurst School, said the children learned to wait to take turns and to wait until everyone was ready to eat before saying a blessing. The children also had the experience of excursion trips to points including the fire station, dairy and bakery.

In addition to an adjustment to the school environment, teachers were able to spot defects of children which would have hindered their school work and adjustment in the fall. Among the 59 children, about 10 had speech defects and several had eye difficulties.

A few were found to be severely immature, according to the report.

Parents have indicated that the experience was a pleasant one for their children.

The idea of the kindergarten program for pre-schoolers was brought to Greenville by Mrs. Wolff, now principal of Elmhurst School, who had observed it previously in Greensboro.

Teachers who worked with the program included Mrs. Dorothy Brown and Mrs. Jessamine Callahan at Agnes Fullilove, Mrs. Peggy Denton and Mrs. Mimi Denton at Third Street School and Mrs. Forrest at Elmhurst.

Those on the kindergarten committee, in addition to the co-chairmen, were Mrs. Frank Dieter Jr., Mrs. W. E. Hudson, Mrs. Lubie Stocks, Mrs. Charles Little, Mrs. Herbert Hadley, Miss Annie Mae Murray, David Whitchard II, J. H. Rose, Miss Lela Brown Stan-

Eichmann Admits Feeling Guilt 'From Human Point Of View'

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann conceded under rigorous cross-examination today that he felt guilty "from the human point of view" for the death of millions of Jews in World War II.

Atty. Gen. Gideon Hausner took up the cross-examination after Eichmann completed his direct testimony with a plea that Israel understand that Hitler's dictatorship forced him against his will into the program of exterminating Europe's Jews.

"Do you confess to being an accomplice in the murder of millions of Jews?" Hausner demanded in one of his first questions.

"That I cannot admit," Eichmann replied. "So far as personal participation is concerned, so far as my participation is concerned, I must point out that I do not consider myself guilty from the legal point of view. I was only receiving and carrying out orders. If the Jews who were deported by me found their death, then the legal aspect has to be examined."

"Will the accused please refrain from speeches and answer my question yes or no," Hausner declared. "My question is not a legal question. You, in your own heart, do you find yourself guilty as an accomplice to the murder of millions of Jews? Yes or no?"

"Yes, from the human point of view because I was guilty in carrying out the implementation," Eichmann said.

Hausner asked Eichmann what he meant by saying once he would gladly jump into the grave knowing that "five million enemies of the Reich" had died.

Eichmann insisted that he did not refer to Jews but to "the foe which was storming the gates of the capital of the Reich."

Hausner asked Eichmann if he considered just the death sentences handed down at Nuernberg to Marshal Hermann Goering and Karl Frank, Nazi overlord in Czechoslovakia, for their role in the killing of Jews.

"Yes, since they were people who saved orders they had to bear responsibility," Eichmann said. "They had to take the consequences."

When the prosecutor told Eichmann, "You were always strictly anti-Semitic," Eichmann replied: "I was never an anti-Semite. I was a very tough nationalist. I have confessed to that. I have never disputed that."

In direct testimony, Eichmann said he hid out after the war and then fled to Argentina because he felt his trial would be "political" rather than legal.

Before the start of the prosecution's cross-examination, the former Gestapo officer told the special Israeli tribunal: "I had no luck."

Eichmann said society is bound together in a system whereby a state exists on orders and obedience and could never survive on "spies and traitors alone."

"He who has a good sovereign to lead him is lucky," said Eichmann. "I had no luck. The head of my state ordered these deportations (of the Jews to the death camps) and my task was to carry out these orders from the top."

The man charged with major responsibility for the death of six million Jews refused to plead guilty "legally" but he said from an "ethical" viewpoint he certainly was guilty.

"The (legal) guilt is to be borne by those responsible for the political decision to order deportations," Eichmann said. "But ethically, in one's attitude toward oneself, the sense of guilt applies to concepts above the law. Here I condemn myself and continue to examine myself. I try to argue with myself. In conclusion, I beg to say here I have regrets and condemnation about this extermination of the Jewish people, ordered by the German rulers."

"I was a tool in the hands of the strong and powerful and in the hands of fate itself, which knows no mercy," he said.

The court, the prosecution and the audience were held almost spellbound as Eichmann gave the carefully enunciated description of his "true feelings."

He said under the system he joined in 1932 as a Nazi street fighter rising through the ranks to high office in the SS, he had to obey or die.

Generals might feign sickness or get transferred to other jobs, he continued, but lieutenant colonels like himself could only kill themselves to escape orders. He tried to divorce himself from the job of transporting the Jews to destruction, but he never succeeded, he insisted.

While Eichmann had repeatedly pleaded "superior orders," it was the first time he had laced into the Nazi regime. But he never once used the word "Nazi" nor did he call Hitler by name.

At early afternoon, the trial adjourned until 8:30 a.m. Monday.

Atty. Gen. Gideon Hausner indicated he would cross-examine Eichmann for at least four days, possibly all of next week. A recess is planned after that to enable the state and the defense to prepare their final summations, covering the evidence of 13 weeks since the case opened April 11.

American Motors Set For Aggressive Role

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corp. appeared ready today to play an aggressive role in labor contract negotiations in the auto industry this summer.

The company proposed a "fresh new approach" at the opening of its collective bargaining talks with the United Auto Workers Union Thursday.

At the start of negotiations with General Motors, Ford and Chrysler last week, UAW President Walter P. Reuther urged the breaking of new ground to provide job security and more jobs for auto workers. He suggested Thursday that AMC because of its success in making compact cars could set a pattern for the big three.

Unexpectedly, AMC Vice President Edward L. Cushman came up at once with a set of bargaining goals.

Cushman proposed a permanent recognition of the union with specific conditions of the new contract subject to change as changing conditions require.

AMC's chief negotiator also proposed setting up a continuing American Motors-UAW conference. This would carry out a suggestion made by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower last fall that labor and management get together and discuss their problems. Reuther then proposed that the auto industry join the union in setting up a labor-management conference.

Cushman said AMC was proposing a company-union conference to discuss—away from the bargaining table—mutual problems, philosophies, needs and common responsibilities to the community.

Career employment planning also was proposed by Cushman. This would train employees for promotions or new jobs and help them adjust to technological changes. It would be a long-range program.

Cushman said AMC also had in mind sharing its success with workers. He said, "company success should be shared equitably with consumers, employees and stockholders, with due consideration to the contributions of dealers and suppliers."

Cushman said this wasn't a profit sharing proposal. He said AMC, however, had never been opposed to the philosophy of profit sharing. The UAW abandoned profit sharing as a goal in 1958 after the big three gave a flat no to such a proposal.

Reuther said the union would study the AMC suggestions.

But UAW Vice President Norman Matthews, in charge of negotiations at AMC, commented, "I prefer results rather than headlines."

In suggesting permanent recognition of the union extending beyond the life of individual contracts, Cushman said, "labor relations are like some marital relations. It may start out as shotgun wedding, but eventually the couple has to learn to live together."

The UAW resumed negotiations with GM, Ford and Chrysler Thursday following the holiday recess. Talks at all four companies were scheduled today.

The union presented GM with demands covering working hours, overtime, holiday pay and vacation pay. It asked GM to withhold overtime schedules during periods of unemployment except for short emergency periods. And the union asked for a voice in determining emergencies.

The union outlined a series of bargaining items in a 30-page booklet submitted by Ford. These included a proposal to give local unions the right to work out their own agreements on seniority.

At Chrysler, the union said the areas under discussion included grievance procedure and production standards.

Five Homesites Sell At $1 Each

ESTANCIA, N.M. (AP)—Five homesites here have gone on the sale block for $1 each.

But, there is a string attached. Each buyer must agree to build a home no smaller than 1,000 square feet in living space within 24 months after the site has been bought.

If the buyer fails to do so, the title reverts back to the seller, the Estancia Development Corp.

The corporation, headed by State Sen. Earl Parker, made the offer in hopes it will give Estancia's sagging economy a boost. Parker said the construction will mean more jobs and will stimulate the use of building materials.

A FEMALE VIEWPOINT

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The Sunday School teacher asked her young charges what they had learned from a lesson based on I Kings, Chapter 11. No response. Finally the question was directed at Linda Allen, 11. Replied the girl: "Well, I found out one thing—King Solomon kept 700 women from being old maids."

Another 162 Heard In Cobb Libel Suit

MARSHALL, N.C. (AP) — Another 162 witnesses testified Thursday in the $300,000 libel suit against William E. Cobb of Morganton, state Republican party chairman.

Attorneys for Cobb subpoenaed all 2,300 registered voters in the Marshall voting precinct. After Thursday's session, unofficial totals indicated that 644 witnesses had testified for the defense in the trial, now nearly two weeks old.

Three Madison County election officials, two Democrats and a Republican, sued Cobb for $300,000 each. The suits stem from statements Cobb made concerning a 1959 bond election. The statements were in a letter Cobb sent to former Gov. Luther Hodges and released to the press in which Cobb alleged the vote count was fraudulent.

The defense is questioning each of the precinct's voters to determine whether or not they voted in the 1959 election.

In Thursday's testimony, unofficial counts showed 138 said they voted, 409 said they did not, 45 couldn't remember and 43 were not registered. Unofficially, the overall totals of the witnesses called through Thursday show 138 claimed they voted, 409 said they did not vote, 45 unable to remember and 43 not registered.

Attorneys for both sides and Judge J. Frank Huskins conferred for more than three hours Thursday in the judge's chambers. Attorneys did not explain what the conferences were about. Rumors, which were unconfirmed, were that a mistrial was discussed.

Their 'Obstacle' Did Their Job

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP)—Eight smokejumper were dispatched from Missoula Thursday to fight two fires reported on the Nez Perce National Forest in Idaho.

Fred Pite, regional fire dispatcher, said the men ran into rain so heavy they couldn't jump.

"This was all right, however, as the same rain had extinguished the fires."

Car Crashed Into Utilities Pole Here Yesterday

An estimated $600 damage resulted to a car being driven by Donald Lee Foskey, 17, of 1405 Holbert St., last night when the vehicle crashed into a utilities pole on North Greene St., near the intersection of Moore St.

Officers, who said the mishap occurred about 10:10 p.m., reported Foskey was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for a blow to his head.

No charges were placed.

Cecil Edwards Bradshaw, 42, of Washington, N.C., was charged with failure to yield the right of way following investigation of a second collision yesterday.

Officers said a car operated by Bradshaw was involved in a collision at West End circle with a vehicle driven by Fred John Faulkner, 24, of Ayden.

Damage to the Faulkner vehicle was set at $300 while damage to the Bradshaw car was estimated to be about $175.

No injuries were reported.

Ask Independence Of West Samoa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Complete independence next Jan. 1 for Western Samoa, now a New Zealand trust territory, was proposed in the U.N. Trusteeship Council Thursday.

Britain, Bolivia, Burma and India circulated a resolution calling for the council to take the next steps in carrying out the results of a plebiscite held by the U.N. in the Western Pacific island territory last May 9.

A total of 29,882 voted for and 5,108 against independence, plebiscite officials announced.

NEWTON, Mass. (AP)—For 50 years Charles W. Abbot, 67, was employed as a personal secretary for Maude B. Kimball, an elderly widow.

He retired two years ago—on a Social Security pension.

Mrs. Kimball died recently. Her will was allowed Thursday in probate court—Abbott was bequeathed $1,296,600.

High Employment Holds A Promise

Although the number of unemployed people across the nation still causes considerable concern in many quarters the fact that total employment in the country reached a record high last month should inject new optimism into the nation's economic outlook.

During the month of June, according to the Labor Department, employment in the United States increased by 1.9 million from the previous month. During the same period the number of unemployed people increased by more than 800,000.

This means, of course, that 5.6 million Americans are seeking jobs, but it likewise means that another 68.7 million people are gainfully employed... the highest number in the history of the country.

The figures for the month of June were influenced by the number of young people finishing school and entering the labor market for the first time. They were also influenced by the increased activity in building trades, construction, agriculture and other phases of the economy that always take an upward turn in the late spring and early summer.

In spite of the increase in unemployment, it is more significant that the economic upturn since the first of the year has pushed employment to a new record high. It is also significant that in spite of the higher unemployment figure the economy was able to absorb almost two million new workers during the one-month period.

The figures reflect a strengthening of business and industrial activity across the country. They likewise bespeak a greater confidence on the part of the people in the economic conditions of the nation. And as these new employment figures generate greater confidence in the economy, it may be expected that the number of gainfully employed people will continue to increase.

The number of unemployed is still large enough to be a matter of genuine concern; but the fact that the nation now has a record number of people employed dispels some of the gloom that the unemployment figure might otherwise create.

Tangible Evidence Of An Enriched Program

At least one tangible evidence of the enrichment program for public schools—a larger number of faculty members—will be evident to the people of Greenville and Pitt County even before their public schools open for the new term in September.

Under provisions of the new program for public schools, Pitt County's administrative unit will receive an allotment of 21 new educational employes for next fall and the Greenville City Schools will be granted a dozen additional faculty positions.

The addition to these 33 faculty members to the two school units should go a long way toward improving the quality of instruction that will be made available to students. In all probability it will mean that the number of teaching principals in the schools will be reduced considerably if not eliminated entirely. It will mean that teacher loads will be reduced in some of the more crowded grades, and that teachers should be able to give more attention to individual students.

The additional faculty members should likewise mean improved curriculums for some schools, and probably more intensified study in some fields for others.

Obviously the schools of Greenville and Pitt County could not have expected to increase their faculties by some 33 new members had it not been for the new school enrichment program adopted by the state this year. It should also be obvious that the addition of this number of new faculty members to the local schools will provide better educational opportunities for the youngsters of Greenville and Pitt County during the coming school year.

There are many intangibles which will go into the school enrichment program being undertaken by North Carolina, but at least the increase in faculty members for the coming school year is one tangible evidence of what the people are getting for the additional tax dollars they are putting into public education.

We Finally Ran Out Of Aspirin

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — The first half of 1961 was a king of aspirin for a headache that won't go away. We are now fresh out of aspirin.

Up till June 30 President Kennedy's administration had—comparatively—a delightful time with both Congress and the Russians. In Congress, where he lacks enough support to sail his programs through as he asks, he used two simple but adroit methods to get what he wanted:

1. For the most part he offered very moderate programs which, by their nature, avoided violent opposition; difference with members of Congress on various points but not on total programs.

2. He used pressure, persuasion and concessions by himself and members of his White House staff to win over such opposition as he had. This has been a very smooth operation. Kennedy's own 15 years in Congress made him expert on this.

The result was a big batch of legislation which—if that had been all that was involved—would have given him a very successful first year in office. But it wasn't all.

Congress cleaned up most of the programs before June 30. But the three biggest and most controversial were left over until after the Fourth of July holiday.

These were federal aid to education, the foreign aid program and medical care bill looks just about dead for 1961, isn't likely to get action until 1962.

The big stumble in his foreign aid program is his request to Congress to give him authority to promise this aid on a five-year basis. He wants recipient nations to be able to plan long-range instead of on the present year-to-year basis.

Opinions In Brief

"Isn't it odd how famous women can start a fad which millions of American women are willing to follow? Mamie Eisenhower started the fad for bangs; Jackie Kennedy the 'Jackie Look'; Greta Garbo the trench coat and slouch hat. It is to be hoped that Princess Margaret will not visit soon."—Lerlington Leader.

To the Editor: I don't think that the people of Pitt County have realized the wonderful visit of the exchange students.

Having two exchange students in my home was the least expensive way of my visiting their country, France. One here gets a clear picture of the student's country—its landscape, its political policies, and its customs. But the most important thing that comes in having exchange students is the feeling of unity.

Certainly knowing and having exchange students in our homes give us a spirit of co-operation and of understanding toward them and the problems of their country. Friendship is the next visitor that comes to the companions. One never knows how kindness may be returned.

Sincerely,
Ralph Mills.

If You Should Go South---

(Editor's Note: City Editor Alvin Taylor recently returned from a vacation trip to Nassau. This is the first of three columns about his trip. The other two will be printed Saturday and Monday.)

If you ever travel on U. S. 1 through St. Augustine Fla. take the time to stop at Lillard White's Texaco station as you pass through the city.

Russell Gowan, local druggist, and your columnist did last week on a trip to Miami. It was no different from any other service station, of course—at least not at first appearance. We just happened to choose it because the gas was running low.

But standing back in the wash pit of the station we spied a white haired lady surprisingly talking to someone through an open door. Russell went back to investigate and shortly he called me to see what it was all about. The lady had been talking to a caged parrot in a back room of the station.

Undoubtedly there are readers of this column who have come across parrots who could recite the "Charge of the Light Brigade" better than Charles Laughton. My experience with these birds, however, has been that they either didn't talk at all or else they were near impossible to understand. But this particular parrot had better diction than most folks I know. At the white haired lady's coaxing, the bird would say very plainly, "Want a piece of bread. Birds can't talk. Hello. Huh."

Smart bird, this one, though. He absolutely refused to mess up the show with that old cliché, "Polly wants a cracker."

The lady, by the way, must be a seasoned traveler on the Florida route. She said she made it a point to stop at this station every trip—just to talk to the parrot.

No doubt every reader knows by now that your columnist was on vacation last week. Russell and I drove from Greenville to Miami where, last Monday we boarded the cruise ship Bahama Star for a two day and three night trip to Nassau which is 190 miles east of Miami.

Other Editors Sayings...

Unions vs. Everybody

(Wilson Times)
John L. McClellan, chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee, posed a neat pair of questions on union rights the other day. He got an evasive answer from a union official.

The Senator was probing the slowdown and slowdowns which threatened our defense and our position in the space race. The witness was Charles Tebbe, business agent for local 259 of the Pipefitters at Daytona Beach, Fla., whose members work sporadically on missiles at Cape Canaveral.

We are not trying to place the blame. But just in case you have forgotten, we will tell you again that since 1957 there have been 327 strikes or work stoppages at 23 missile bases, causing a loss of 163,000 man days of labor.

In many cases abnormal 12 hours shifts have forced contractors to pay unneeded overtime. Iron workers at Cape Canaveral are drawing $520 and $611 a week. It is about $100 a week more than the Secretary of Defense draws. An apprentice, a brother-in-law of a union boss at Canaveral collects $673 a week, equal to the salary of the Vice-President of the United States.

Now we come to the plumbers and pipefitters, whose pay has ranged from $402 to $733 a week, electricians from $413 to $670 a week. Remember it is the taxpayer who pays the bill. And the time lost in the missile program can never be recaptured.

Names in the New Orleans area have a romantic flavor found nowhere else and when they're heard in tropical Bahama they are even more exotic. Russell and I climbed the hill that runs the length of Nassau, then up the Queen's Steps hewn out of rock to the city's water tower located on one of the island's highest spots.

We were resting in the shade of the water tower when two lovely young ladies appeared from the steep steps. They, too, paused in the shade for a rest and we struck up a conversation.

They were Rene and Monene from New Orleans. (As I said New Orleans names are romantic.) They had flown to Miami on vacation and then to Nassau. The southern beauties, who wore pixie hair, work for Humble (ESSO) Oil Co. at home.

But, alas, paths of strangers cross and then part forever. It seems the girls were traveling with a tour bus. As we talked, the tour group reappeared from the water tower and the girls hustled down the Queen's Steps to avoid missing the bus. Sorry, we didn't catch the last names.

Jaycees will be interested in knowing we saw a Jaycee car on the road to Miami. Painted on its side was "On to Atlanta." Only trouble is the Jaycee National Convention, held in Atlanta June 20-23, had been over several days. Well, it's mighty easy to become lost on those Georgia highways.

These were a plastic spoon and a plastic knife. A stewardess confessed there was not a fork on the plane.

A businessman went to the New York office of a national airline and bought $6,000 worth of tickets for a group on a certain flight. After getting the tickets, he asked that his group be seated together.

"If you want to get seats together, you'd better get to the airport early and pick your reservations from the board," the ticket salesman replied.

Who do the airlines think they are? The railroads? Shopping for some chlondane, an insecticide, a friend discovered an amazing price range. Prices at hardware stores ranged from $24 to $48 a gallon, with various degrees of dilution; the price at a chemical company for 72 per cent stuff was $12 a gallon.

ARE MEDALS, CROSSES, JEWELRY OR NOT? The Internal Revenue Service has come face to face with the question of whether religious articles are jewelry, and whether they are so taxable.

While it carefully avoids mention of any faith, with only a few exceptions it finds that most medals, crosses and other symbols of religious faith are tax free under the law.

Funny, If You Think

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

All the excitement that the Pitney-Bowes Company has made about what should and should not be stamped by their meters, reduces itself to the amusing when the government uses the meters for political statements, while both the Post Office and the meter company reject private controversial statements. Since when, under our Constitution, is the Administration superior to the citizens who elected it to office?

I have an envelope with a slogan on it, bearing the wisdom: "Only you can hold down Inflation."

That is absolute nonsense. How can a citizen hold down inflation when his government is actively engaged in fomenting inflation? In fact, the Administration has not advertised its opposition to the Muller Bill, an inflationary measure. This inflationary proposal is supported by a faction of New York bankers who have been converted from hard to soft money because of their large holdings of government bonds.

There are two concepts about inflation: 1. Those who believe that the government should keep down expenses, strengthen the dollar, making its purchasing power greater; 2. Those who believe that the solution to our current fiscal difficulties is to substitute fiat money for sound money; to use the printing press more freely, thus keeping labor happy by supplying it with more dollars, which though worthless, give a "feeling" of having more, of being—in fact, rich.

No matter which contention one believes to be right, the control of money, the velocity of its movement and the value of its purchasing power is within the control of government either through the Federal Reserve System or the Treasury. The individual is helpless against the decisions of these bodies. He cannot make his own money; he cannot privately determine the value of his money. He is captive of decisions made for him by these agencies.

What then is the meaning of the slogan: "Only you can hold down Inflation"? Actually, it can only mean that you, whoever you may be, should postpone buying except necessities. That would be a sound way for private citizens to hold down inflation.

But what would become of employment in this country if the people entered upon a program of postponed buying? Suppose instead of buying a car every other year, we bought one every seventh year. What would happen to the automobile, the steel, the glass, the nylon, the rubber-tire worker? What would happen to the butcher, the grocer, the baker who supplies the people? In a word, the private citizen cannot hold down inflation except by postponed buying, or perhaps, whoever invented this slogan believes that the worker should voluntarily lower his wages; that the landlord should voluntarily lower his rents, that the farmer should sell his produce for whatever he can get flooding the world market with his goods.

In a word, what the inventor of this slogan wants us to do is to lift all the controls of the economy of the nation. He favors cancelling out Roosevelt's New Deal and accepting the more capitalistic concepts of Herbert Hoover. If this is the thinking of the United States Treasury, the citizens should be told that the Kennedy Administration has gone this way, although no one would believe such an announcement in the year 1961.

Therefore we must accept the quoted slogan not only as controversial but false. If the Post Office objects to false slogans and the Pitney-Bowes Company seeks to enforce the Post Office censorship of envelope ideologies, a special censor ought to be established to look at the stuff the government puts out. Some of it is quite controversial.

But since when is controversy bad? It would appear that in a free society, argument, debate, controversy is the stuff that safeguards freedom, whereas conformity makes for intellectual paralysis. If the Post Office will censor newspapers and magazines which pass through the mails and the FCC will censor radio and television, it is very easy to end the freedom of men, to force them into slavery to government. This nation was born in freedom. It developed in freedom. If freedom dies the nation will die. There can be no mistake about that.

Woman Holding Man-Sized Job

By AURORA DOLLEY
CONCLUSION — It's not solely a man's world — of that you could be certain, after a visit with the Commissioner of Public Welfare, Dr. Ellen Winston.

Dr. Winston, who holds down a job which should be labeled "man-size" by any criteria, is a person who can do (and usually does) several things at once — without managing to slight any detail — and emerging as unruffled as, well... as Dr. Winston!

A native North Carolinian whose clipped phrases are doubtless a combined result of her busy schedule and exposure to Chicago during graduate school days, she doesn't seem to afford herself even the luxury of a few idle moments of pleasant reflection.

Yes, she's "quite pleased" with the generosity of the previous legislature, which appropriated a total of nearly 23 1-3 million dollars to the Department of Public Welfare for the biennium, and she is "grateful" for a number of bills concerning the Department which were given a nod of approval by the lawmakers.

But "Dr. Ellen" as she is known around Capitol Square, impresses a visitor as being an individual who is busily planning for the immediate and not-so-immediate future, rather than one to sit calmly admiring the Past.

The immediate future? It is well underway, with assistance from the 81 legislature, which has provided more tools for the work of the Department, in addition to the increased budget.

Dr. Winston, who has for eighteen years headed the Department of Public Welfare, and Mrs. Elizabeth H. Hughes, State Librarian, hold the top posts in the State which might be termed "manned" by women.

In addition to the five feminine members of the General Assembly, Dr. Rachel Davis, Mrs. Grace Rodenbough, Mrs. J. M. Phelps, Mrs. W. N. Cook, and Mrs. Tressie P. Fletcher.

BUDGETING — Part of the budget increase, which is over four million dollars more than the allotment for the previous two-year period, will go to a state loan fund to assist those currently employed in public welfare work to do graduate work in their field.

So far, reports show, there is an increase in the number of applicants for these scholarship loans. Particularly pleasing to Dr. Winston is the high quality of present applicants, and this should result in even better trained welfare workers in the future.

The legislature did not forget about the food tax when it decided upon the budget for the Welfare Department. In order to provide additional money to recipients of welfare checks, there is provision for up to $187,000 for the first year and $189,000 for the second year. This should provide enough to compensate for the increased cost of living from the food tax.

Several bills passed by the recent General Assembly and pertaining to the Welfare Department bring North Carolina into conformity with Federal regulations, permitting the State to take advantage of "matching" Federal funds, thus stretching Tar Heel dollars more.

DOUBLE CHECK — There are approximately 100,000 checks per month written by the Welfare Department, and to improve the check writing process, the legislature has appropriated $40,000 for research into the problem and to cover costs of conversion to a new method of check-writing.

Incredible as it may seem, the Welfare Department has seen instances of a father's deserting his children in order to render them eligible to receive assistance from the Welfare Department.

A father who had been unable to find work and who had exhausted his unemployment compensation could not, formerly, see his children receive aid, but a new law brings North Carolina into conformity with federal laws, and now these dependent children may be helped without the unimaginable "necessity" for the father's desertion.

Another bill deals with so-called "permanently neglected children", and now if the Welfare Department knows where the parent is, but cannot get the parent to assume responsibility for the child, the Department may, after a reasonable period of time, take the matter before a court of adoption and "free" the child for adoption.

The Welfare Department is continuing to license child care centers, even though a much publicized bill which the Department considers "clarifying" failed to pass.

And, finally, county welfare superintendents are no longer just that; their new, legislative-approved title is "director of public welfare."

Andrew, Fisher of Men

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 4:18-20; Mark 8:14-19; John 1:35-44; 6:8-9; 12:20-22.

As John the Baptist stood with two of his disciples, Christ passed by and John identified Him as the Messiah. The two, one of whom was Andrew, followed Christ and He spent the day teaching them.—John 1:35-40.

Andrew immediately brought his brother, Simon, to meet Christ. As soon as He saw him, Christ said, "Thou art Simon . . . thou shalt be called Cephas (Peter), which is by interpretation, a rock."—John 1:41-42.

Jesus later saw the two brothers, who were fishermen, casting their nets. Said Jesus, "Follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men." Immediately they left their nets and became His disciples.—Matthew 4:18-20.

As Christ discussed the problem of feeding His many followers, Andrew found a lad who had five loaves and two fishes, with which Christ miraculously fed all.—John 6:8-13. GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 1:17.

WHAT THE GOSPELS SAY ABOUT ONE OF THE LESS FAMOUS APOSTLES

Scripture—Matthew 4:18-20; Mark 8:14-19; John 1:35-44; 6:8-9; 12:20-22.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL ANDREW, a future disciple of Christ, comes first into the Biblical scene in the episode described in John 1:35-44. Christ has not yet begun His ministry, but John, the Baptist, has been out preaching for some time, preparing the way for his Master.

As he stands talking with two of his disciples one day, Jesus passes by and John points him out as the "Lamb of God." Immediately John's disciples follow Jesus and when He addresses them, they indicate their desire to learn from Him by calling Him "Teacher" (Rabbi) and asking where He lives. They do not really care where He is living then, in His wanderings, but rather suggest that they would like uninterrupted conversation with Him.

Christ's answer, "Come and see," indicates His immediate recognition in Simon a man whose motives are good but whose strength is sapped by indecision—as is the case with many of us. With a single word He inspires Simon with faith in Him and in himself, by crediting him with the virtue he has not yet developed; "Thou shalt be called Cephas (Peter), which is by interpretation, 'a rock.' Simon is speechless with amazement. The next episode chronologically—the calling of Andrew and Simon Peter by Christ to be His disciples (Matthew 4:18-20)—shows another attribute of Andrew's character—his great devotion to Christ and willingness to serve Him. "Straitway" he and Simon Peter left their nets and followed Him, realizing the overwhelming importance of His work.

(It is interesting to note that of Christ's 12 disciples, four acceptance of the suggestion. One of these two disciples of John was Andrew, a fisherman from the city of Bethsaida. Andrew seems to have been a born missionary; before he himself listens to Christ, "He first findeth his own brother Simon," tells him that the Messiah has been found, and takes him back with him to Jesus.

Thus we see that Andrew is as vitally concerned for the welfare of others (here, his brother) as for himself; that he does not merely talk about Christ, but actively brings Simon directly to the Source of truth; that he starts his missionary work close to home, among those he knows best; and that he begins it immediately. His missionary efforts are crowned with immediate success, as G. Campbell Morgan (in "Peloubet's Select Notes") suggests, with Christ's greeting of Simon. Apparently Christ were fishermen.) The two remaining episodes from John indicate yet another characteristic of John—a certain approachable quality which led others to come to him and confide in him. In a way he acted as an intermediary between Jesus and the people. When Christ is discussing with Philip the problem of feeding His five thousand followers, Andrew interrupts to tell him that a boy among them has five loaves and two fishes—have formation the boy must have volunteered to Andrew.—(John 6:8-9.) When certain Greeks want to meet Christ (John 12:20-22), they come first to Philip. Philip, however, "cometh and telleth Andrew," persuading the latter to go with him to see Christ about the matter. Andrew, again in the go-between, would seem to possess great tact and inspire much confidence.

Yankees Now Within Half Game Of Top In League

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
The New York Yankees, who seldom have grown their own pitchers in recent years, suddenly have come up with a pair in Roland Sheldon and Bill Stafford.

Sheldon, 23, started it with a four-hit, 6-0 job on Cleveland on Wednesday.

Stafford, 22, kept it up with a near perfect two-hitter against the Indians for a 4-0 victory Thursday night.

Detroit stayed one percentage point ahead of New York after winning 3-0 at Boston, on the eight-hit pitching of Phil Regan and Terry Fox.

Chicago White Sox defeated Kansas City 4-3, with Early Wynn gaining his 29th career victory, and the Los Angeles Angels replaced Minnesota in eighth place by beating the Twins 12-11.

In the National League, Cincinnati retained a three-game lead by winning 3-2 at San Francisco, while the second place Los Angeles Dodgers thumped St. Louis 10-1 in Johnny Keane's debut as Card manager.

Pittsburgh split a doubleheader at Chicago, romping 15-3 before losing to the Cubs 5-1. Milwaukee defeated Philadelphia 7-6.

Stafford (7-4), a poised 6-foot-1 sophomore from Catskill, N.Y., allowed only two base runners while nailing his second shutout in the majors.

He struck out three, walked none and retired 20 in a row between Willie Kirkland's ground rule double in the second inning and a leadoff single by Mike de la Hoz in the ninth.

Elston Howard belted a pair of solo homers for the Yankees, with the first leading off a three-run fifth inning that beat Dick Sugerman (2-2).

Rocky Colavito's sacrifice fly in the first inning gave Detroit the run it needed against Boston's Glen Cisco (1-3). Pete Runnels had half of the Red Sox' hits, all off Regan (8-4), who needed relief from Fox for the final out.

Donovan (4-8), named to the All-Star squad by Manager Paul Richards of the Orioles, struck out seven and didn't walk a man while beating Baltimore for the sixth straight time since August, 1958.

The Senators beat reliever Hoyt Wilhelm (6-4) on consecutive doubles by Willie Tasby and Dale Long in the seventh.

The White Sox won with two runs in the sixth inning, pairing doubles by Minnie Minoso and Sammy Esposito with an error against Jerry Walker (7-1). Turk Lowe saved it for Wynn (7-1).

Two walks and a single by Albie Pearson off Camilo Pascual (6-11), the loser in relief, settled it for the Angels in the ninth inning. Art Fowler (2-2) was the winner with two perfect innings of relief.

Top Players In ECC Tournament

North Carolina's top players for the last three years will be attending Saturday's Invitational Table Tennis Tournament at ECC.

Defending Men's singles champion and the 1960 Tarheel champion, Norman Kilpatrick, has entered along with current winner, Joe Corne of Burlington.

Former champ entering the event is Gary Preston of Graham, N.C., who won the state title in 1959.

Kilpatrick, from Chattanooga, Tenn., and presently the Chattanooga and Eastern Tennessee Georgia men's champion, won the Invitational's doubles crown last year along with Preston.

Corne was the state's second ranked player last year, and this year moved up to the number one spot by defeating Charles Holliday of East Carolina College in the finals.

Other top out-of-town entries are Joe Holland of Georgetown, S.C., who was South Carolina singles champion in 1957 and 1958, Jack Carr, of Hampton, Va., and Michael Burke of Norfolk. Carr was runner-up in last year's men's event, while Burke has won the Junior (18 and under) title for the last two years.

Top seeded in the men's doubles division will be Kilpatrick and Bowie Martin of Greenville, and Preston and John Hodgkin, of Burlington. Hodgkin was winner of the 1959 Invitational tourney.

Local players are reminded that they may sign up to enter the Invitational play, and that they are eligible to enter the novice singles event, as well as the men's singles and doubles.

Schools Asked To Benefit From College Scandal

RALEIGH (AP) — The college athlete who succumbs to temptation may have taken the first wrong step in high school, the State Board of Education cautioned Thursday.

It advised local school officials to take a cue from current scandals in college sports and examine closely high school athletic programs.

"Practices in Little League and high school competition that seem to the young athlete to make winning more important than ethical conduct and that emphasize spectator pleasing and commercial aspects of sports may bear much of the blame when a college athlete succumbs to temptation," the board said in a policy resolution.

Local school boards were put on guard that new pressures may build up in the recruitment of athletes for college.

Strict limits on recruitment of basketball players from outside the Atlantic Coast Conference have been imposed by the Consolidated University of North Carolina. The action followed involvement of players from the university in Chapel Hill and North Carolina State College in Raleigh in game-fixing charges.

North Carolina high schools may be in line for increased recruiting pressure and high school coaches may be urged to prepare their candidates by summer coaching and by playing more regular and post-season games," the board said.

Bulls Down Caps For League Lead

DURHAM (AP) — The Carolina Bulls took advantage of rain that idled Winston-Salem and moved to the head of the Carolina League Thursday night.

The Bulls downed Raleigh, 6-2. It was the 11th win in 14 tries against the Caps for Durham.

Meanwhile, Burlington defeated Greensboro 6-4, in the only other game. Rain interfered with the Winston-Salem-Wilson encounter. It will be made up with a doubleheader on Sunday.

Two Durham pitchers, Pat Dobson and Dick Klunder, collaborated to hurl Raleigh batters to only five hits.

Burlington took advantage of Greensboro miscues, including two wild throws from the infield, to run up four unearned runs in the sixth inning. The spurge off-set a Greensboro attack that included homers by Gene Domzalski, Ron Solomin and Ron Paul. Bob Ledford had a home run for Burlington.

Game 6 tonight: Winston-Salem at Greensboro, Burlington at Durham, Wilson at Raleigh.

BY JOHN GREASEY A MATTER OF LIFE AND DEATH

WHAT HAS HAPPENED Lazing on the sunny bank of the Thames in the company of lovely Agatha Bell who was half his age, the Hon. Richard Rollison patiently waited for Agatha to tell him why she had sought his aid.

CHAPTER 6 Agatha Bell said in an agonized voice: "I look terrible, and I feel awful. I just can't think."

Over the mantelpiece was a mirror with a gilt frame, and Agatha stood in front of this, staring at her reflection. "Like to bathe it again?" Rollison asked.

Rekindled Berlin Crisis Hasn't Yet Sparked A Soviet Military Buildup

BY FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP)—The rekindled Berlin crisis apparently has sparked no Soviet military buildup in East Germany — at least not yet.

Informed sources say that, except for normal summer maneuvers, there have been no major Soviet troop shifts in that area since Soviet Premier Khrushchev reopened his Berlin offensive against the West.

The Soviets already have a formidable force in East Germany. According to latest estimates, there are 20 Soviet divisions there. Soviet divisions run to around 13,500 men each.

In addition, the East Germans have six divisions of somewhat dubious quality. Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia, two satellites adjoining East Germany, mount 14 divisions each. These units are believed below full strength.

There has been speculation the United States may send another division to join the five already deployed in West Germany, and perhaps take other steps to demonstrate U.S. determination to stand fast on Berlin.

French President Charles de Gaulle has indicated that one or more French divisions may be brought back from Algeria and perhaps shipped to West Germany where three other French divisions are based.

And there has been talk the British may move fighter planes, now based in England, to West Germany where three British divisions are posted as the army of the Rhine.

Given high marks by American experts are West Germany's seven divisions. By next year, the West Germans expect to boost this to 12.

U.S. officials question the reliability of Communist satellite troops and suggest this may prove a major worry to the Soviets in event of an East-West test of strength over Berlin.

It is estimated that the Soviets and their satellites together have between 3,000 and 4,000 combat planes in Eastern Europe, most of them fighters—and more, if needed, within reach in the western Soviet Union.

American authorities rate the Soviet troops in East Germany as well trained and well equipped, presumably with battlefield nuclear weapons.

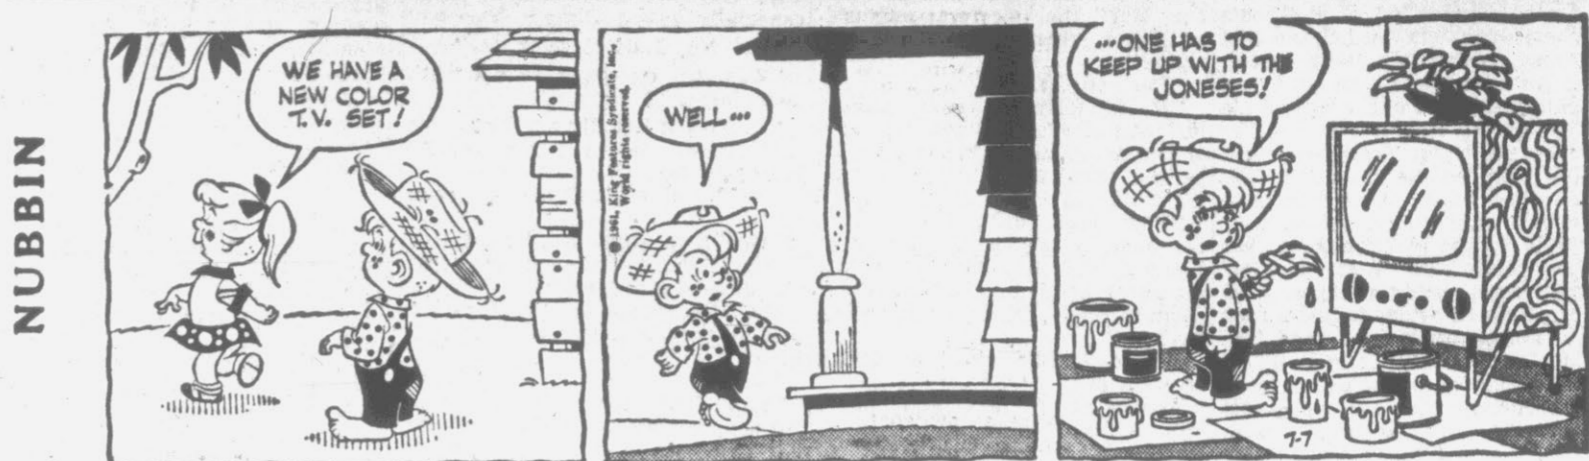

As for the satellite troops, these authorities said they lag behind the Soviets in fighting trim and gear. One source voiced doubt it is Soviet policy to hand nuclear weapons to the satellites.

The Soviet and American divisions arrayed in divided Germany "stack up pretty even," one official said. Another said the British and French divisions "are not too far behind us." And the Germans, he added, are "coming up all the time."

The five U.S. Army divisions in Germany are priority outfits being equipped with the latest weapons, including bombardment missiles capable of dealing an atomic blow.

Three are infantry units numbering about 13,700 men each; two are armored outfits with a top strength of 14,617.

It appeared likely that if President Kennedy should decide to reinforce these forward units, a division may be drawn from a three-division strategic force in the United States.

Newburgh City Officials Cite Grounds For Welfare Rules

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Attempts of the city of Newburgh to limit the amount and duration of some welfare payments were defended by city officials today as morally sound and financially necessary.

But critics said the regulations were illegal, inhumane and founded on anti-Negro prejudice.

These were the opposing arguments readied for a hearing before members of the State Social Welfare Board on the Newburgh issue, which has become a focal point for broad debate on the entire scope of public welfare.

City Manager Joseph Mitchell said the city was determined to proceed "with social reform by whatever means within our disposal."

The State Social Welfare Department, which is governed by the board, has said several of the proposed rules in Newburgh were illegal. The department says non-conformity by one welfare district jeopardizes the whole state's claim to federal aid.

This would appear to eliminate any chance the board might give the Hudson Valley community permission to implement all of its rules as planned July 15.

The board is expected to specify which rules it approves and which it rejects. Efforts by the city to implement any rejected ones probably would lead to court action.

The proposed regulations that have brought about the most argument would:

1. Make the mother of one or more illegitimate children ineligible for further aid if she had any more such children.

2. Limit all welfare recipients except the aged, blind and disabled to three months of aid in any one year.

3. Limit the amount of money for a family to an amount no higher than wages of the lowest-paid city employe with an equal number of dependents.

The Welfare Department has said that legitimate need, not arbitrary standards, should govern

Newly-Unified Church Talking Of New Merger

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A newly unified Protestant church today headed into plans for possible merger with still another major denomination. Initial approval came from both sides.

With its constitution put into effect only this week, the United Church of Christ extended its call for union to the Christian churches (Disciples of Christ), and got an immediate favorable response.

"We promised in the beginning not only to be a united church but a uniting church," said the Rev. Dr. Ben M. Herbst, of Norwood, Ohio, the newly named president of the 2-million-member United Church.

After its general synod authorized negotiations "looking toward possible union" with the Christian (Disciples) church, its leaders replied that representatives were ready to begin talks this fall.

That denomination has about 18 million members in nearly 8,000 congregations across the country.

If combined with the United Church, whose merger of the Evangelical and Reformed and Congregational Christian churches was completed only this week, it would make a body of almost 4 million in 14,000 congregations.

The United Church Thursday adopted a $14.3 million central budget for 1962 and 1963, about 21 per cent above the current combined budgets of both merged churches.

Bulk of the sum goes to homeland and world ministries boards.

The assembly, scheduled to end its week-long meeting today, tossed out a move to give its blessing to the East Coast as a site for a national headquarters.

Delegates refused to direct even short-term establishment of executive offices in New York City, and a review committee also eliminated a plan to restrict the search for a permanent site to the New York-Philadelphia area.

"The population is moving away from this area so fast that pretty soon it is going to be a mere Atlantic periphery of the United States," declared the Rev. Charles F. Parker of Prescott, Ariz.

He said population projections show Phoenix, Ariz., is destined to become the country's largest population center, and added: "The idea of thinking of a permanent headquarters any place east of the Alleghenies as anywhere near the proximate center of the population is absolutely visionary."

The assembly instructed its headquarters committee, headed by the Rev. Ernest Press of Burlington, Iowa, to restudy the entire business, with a decision to be made by the next synod in 1963.

It was left up to the church's executive committee to pick temporary executive offices. This was expected to be New York City, but the assembly didn't want to give that choice to any official endorsement that might prejudice future decisions.

Various agencies of the church now have offices in New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cleveland and Boston. Congregational Christian executive offices had been in New York, the E. and R. executive offices in Philadelphia.

Other regulations the city proposes to adopt, such as work programs for able-bodied men and denial of relief to persons who quit jobs or refuse new ones, have not been as much at issue.

Newburgh officials have said the city's taxpayers can no longer continue absorbing mounting relief costs.

Officials say 5 per cent of the population is on relief.

Other figures indicate that about 3 per cent of the population, the average for the state, are on relief. There have been increases in some categories, however, much larger than state averages for those groups.

The city spends $900,000 a year for welfare, but nearly $500,000 of this comes from federal or state aid. The city estimates its own contributions to welfare costs this year at $450,000. The city budget is more than $3 million.

The city manager said in an interview that the city would continue to seek state and federal aid after implementing the rules. But, if necessary, he said, the city is prepared to go without aid. Mitchell said he expected a declining number of welfare recipients would be accompanied by a decline in crime and violence and lower costs for law enforcement.

A large portion of the welfare recipients are Negroes, and the National Assn. for Advancement of Colored People has charged that racial discrimination figures in the welfare crackdown.

Asheville Schools To See First Integration Move

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) Five Negro children will attend previously all-white schools here in September, marking the first public school integration in this Western North Carolina city.

Eleven Negroes applied for re-assignment to all-white schools, but the City School Board approved only five Thursday.

The board adopted a general plan of integration limited to the first three grades this year. All five Negroes were assigned to Newton Elementary School.

Two Negroes spoke out against the board's plan after it was announced Thursday. The Rev. James A. Cannon, a Negro Presbyterian minister, and Jesse Ray, Asheville "funeral" director and father of one of the students, protested.

"It grieves me greatly to see the board adopt a policy and then act upon it immediately," the Rev. Mr. Cannon said. "We knew

Lumumba's Wife Plans Reunion

CAIRO (AP) — Mrs. Patrice Lumumba, widow of the slain Congolese ex-premier, said Thursday she intends to leave her four children in Cairo until they have completed university studies, but she will return to Stanleyville in two weeks.

She arrived here Wednesday night with her youngest child, Roland, 3, for a reunion with her three other children, Francois, 11, Patrice, 9, and Juliana, 6. They were sent to Cairo 11 months ago—before their father was slain—and have been staying with Mrs. Abdel Aziz Ishak, wife of the U.A.R. foreign office counselor.

An advertiser wants to make his point with people who are potential buyers. Newspapers deliver more "ready to buy" prospects than any other medium. Readers are attracted to ads that interest them. This means that readership ratings on ads represent live prospects for the advertiser. These are people who are easy to sell because they already have a product interest. People look for—and want—advertising in the daily newspaper.

Hoffa Applying His Steamroller

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Teamsters Union convention prepared today to give James R. Hoffa a new five-year term as union president with greatly increased powers and financial resources.

Milton J. Liss, head of a 4,800-member Newark, N.J. local, Hoffa's only announced opponent as boss of the nation's biggest labor union, conceded in advance he couldn't win.

Liss said he was going to force a roll call showdown anyway. "If Hoffa uses his vast new powers wisely, he'll be the greatest president the Teamsters ever had," Liss said. "But if he misuses them, heaven help us."

When the final vote came late Thursday on over 100 constitutional changes tightening Hoffa's already considerable union rule, there were only five delegates standing in dissent.

Liss said he would be lucky to get 200 out of the approximately 2,000 delegates to vote for him against Hoffa.

One of the few Hoffa foes at the current convention, Edward H. Painter of Local 70, Oakland, Calif., protested at one point Thursday that a Hoffa machine completely dominates the proceedings.

Hoffa suggested a motion that was quickly adopted to wipe Painter's remark from the record saying: "Hoffa don't have no machine—now we'll have no more of that."

At other times Hoffa silenced dissenters by ruling, "You're out of order, brother. Shut up."

Ray Schoessling, president of Teamsters Joint Council, 25, Chicago, praised Hoffa for fairness and said he never saw a chairman who "allowed more democracy to creep in."

William, a native of Lenoir County, attended the Grifton School. He enlisted in the United States Navy in November, 1959, and at the time of his death was enroute to Seattle, Washington, to board the U.S.S. Hancock, after having spent his leave at his home in Grifton.

Surviving are his parents: Mr. and Mrs. Guy F. Whaley of Grifton; and seven brothers: Robert E. Whaley of Rocky Mt., Cecil B. Whaley of Grifton, Sp. 5 Ted L. Whaley of Ft. Bragg, Billy C. Whaley of Scotland Neck, Pfc. James H. P. Whaley of the U. S. Army, now stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga., Johnnie Whaley of Kinston, and David Whaley of Grifton.

Balanced
RALEIGH (AP) — State tax collections for the fiscal year which ended June 30 exceeded last-minute revenue estimates enough to balance the 1961-63 budget.

Dave Coltrane, director of administration, called the figure "very encouraging." He said, "It exceeds estimates by about $1 million and will put the budget in balance."

Even after revenue estimates were revised upward during the recent General Assembly session, the $1 1/2 billion-dollar biennial budget remained about $812,000 in the red.

Revenue Commissioner William A. Johnson released the fiscal report today.

The budget included expenditures for the Winterville Recreation Center which was not included in the 1960-1961 budget. The 1960-1961 budget totaled $79,652.50.

A tax rate of $1.50 per $100 valuation was adopted by the board. Town officials pointed out that the $1.50 tax has been held for over 12 years by the town.

The board, after taking action on the budget, rejected a plan for the town's proposed sewage disposal plant, which engineers on the project estimated would cost $285,000.

This plant was to be located about one mile west of Winterville at Benluc Swamp.

In rejecting the first proposal, the Board of Aldermen called for a second plan, which, among other things, would move the location of the sewage disposal unit to a spot back of the Winterville Cemetery.

The second proposal, which has been submitted to the board for consideration, is under study by the group at the present time, Winterville Mayor, Walter Davidson.

Funeral services will be conducted at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Vanceboro Thursday morning at 11 o'clock by the rector, the Rev. Samuel Black. Burial will be in the Vanceboro Cemetery. The body will remain at the Wilkerson Funeral Home in Greenville and will be taken to the church one hour prior to the time of service.

Mr. Simpson, a native of Vanceboro, attended Duke University in Durham, and served in the Merchant Marine during World War II. A former employee of the State Treasury Department in Raleigh, he was active in county and state politics. He was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church and the Woodmen of the World.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Geneva Barrow Simpson; a son, John David Simpson of the home; and two daughters, Sara Olive Simpson of the home and Jonquelyn Ryan Simpson of Greenville; his father, John Simpson of Vanceboro; a brother, Joe F. Simpson; and a sister, Mrs. Robert Wilson, both of Vanceboro.
