Fall Fashion Flares Front And Side

How To Catch A Man" Couture Tacit Subject

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
Associated Press Fashion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Although the New York Couture Group's designers talked in terms of fashion, the tacit subject was "how to catch a man."
Twelve million women are manless, according to the 1960 census, but many won't be by the next count if they follow the style edicts of Nat Kaplan, Edward Abbott or Ben Reig.
Each man's collection has its own way of getting the message across.
But they read alike: Look every bit a woman—preferably an angel in clouds of chiffon or crepe. Or be a sultry siren in naked-shouldered black, bare in back. Or dress in rich brocade, bejeweled and metallic fabrics that simply shriek of dollar signs.
Nat Kaplan adds graceful motion to his silhouettes with flared, gored or pleated skirts, sometimes topped with little cutaway jackets. Filtration fringe keeps his fluid black crepe dresses in eye-catching action, too.
Social motion is the term Edward Abbott uses to describe the animation in his fall collection. Flares, pleats released just above the knee, overskirts made of ribbon-width panels, ostrich feathers and fringe, fringe and more fringe were his styling tools. Claiming to be the originator of the current fringe craze, Abbott does his competitors one better, a black number with strands three feet long that drop from the neck and neckline.
Both Kaplan and Abbott dress ladies for night life in beaded crystal costumes that rival the sparkling neotoms of Broadway.
Ben Reig's coats and suits fairly shout their high price tags. Bold plaids, big rough tweeds and heavy black and white checks are shaped into jacket and dress combinations or swinging coats. But they are never too tailored to risk feminine softness.
Reig believes in clothes motion too, with skirts treated so deeply they look like culottes. His collection contains basic blacks, too, starkly dropped in front with huge panels and bows as back skirt detail.
There are crystals, brocades, fringe and beads again. Reig combines beaded fringe into a tiered, shimmering, silvery sheath apply called "waterfall." Even that tired old "leopard" pattern of the past season is having its ninth life, this time sequined and rhinestone-studded, and fashioned into a slinky, feline dress.

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Fall fashion will have its side effects this year.
Not content with what they have been doing backwards and forwards and up and down, the 31 designer members of the New York Couture Group showing their collections during Fashion Press Week here are now working sideways and diagonally.
A side kick is their chief ally to the hip flare silhouette of the past two seasons. Although fall suits and dresses still flounce and pleat all the way around, many more swing full from the sides.
In some instances softly rolled or stitched down pleats edge to the thighs and then fall loosely. Or inserted gores and box pleats start from side hip height.
Waistlines wander high and low, but very often both ways at the same time. On soft wool jersey and crepe daytime dresses tucks and pleats drop away from obliquely divided middles.
Formal wear too is designed with side glances in mind. Filmy fabrics cut on a bias are tucked and draped from one shoulder, (the other probably bare) molded subtly over the figure, and topped by diaphanous stoles that tie at the neck and flutter cloudlike from one side.

Even new capes which evolved out of last winter's tentlike coats hang slim without a single fold front or back, with all the fullness cut into the shoulders for side-riding wings.
But do not let it be said that back and front styles have remained status quo. Some Couture members still cling to the simplicity of bare-armed, bare-necked "nothing" dresses in their collections, despite potential wintry chills. But others go to extreme by slashing dress backs to a spine-chilling depth. While still others reverse the procedure by wrapping up necks in double ring collars or nose-ticking fur.

In the war between fit and ease, the most cautious coat and suit makers compromise by fitting in front, easing in back.
In terms of color, fall collections are a shadowy, eclectical contrast to the florid prints and violent hues of spring and summer.
Except for a few flashes of red, rust, moss green, and a rare bit of Kelly, fabrics are defiant of city soot in black, more black, and almost black browns, blues, greens maroons.

signers make up for it on a glamorous evening.
Metallic or beaded and sequined gowns fall from throat to the floor in a column of unrelenting slimmness. Some have less than a foot of moving room at the hemline.
But then women are not supposed to need to walk in these — just to stand there looking glamorous enough to attract the crowd to them.

ing members from Greenville, Scotland Neck, Elizabeth City, Rocky Mount, Aurora, Washington, Williamston, Edenton, Murrefreesboro and Virginia.
Banquet Held
Preceding the Eastern Star meeting Friday, a banquet was given in the Fellowship Hall of the First Christian Church.
To emphasize the theme for the year "The Keys to the Kingdom" formed a star on an open Bible placed on a heart of red flowers. The place cards were decorated with keys. The favors were bookmarks and roses.
John Warren was master of ceremonies and Kitty Jenkins presented gifts of silver trays.

Do not use oil paint on bricks, or they will blister. Instead use cold water paints.
Old Fashioned POUND CAKE Diener's Bakery 615 Dickinson Ave. PL 2-5253

Guests were received by the honorees, honoree, and Mrs. John Burge of Louisville, Ky. Coffee was served by Mrs. Larry James, assisted by Mrs. Erskine Duff, Miss Judy Batchelor and Miss Jane Long Joyner.
The dining room was decorated in green and white carrying out the bridal motif. The table was covered with an Italian cutwork cloth centered with a silver bowl containing an arrangement of white flowers, and holding a miniature bride and groom and a variety of refreshments.
The hostesses presented corsages to the honorees, Mrs. Burge and Mrs. William Johnston.

The pleasing effect created by a brand new paint job on your house can be spoiled by a shabby, weather-beaten fence. Painting the fence not only will remove it from the eyesore category; it will prolong its life by protecting it from the elements.

Each of the two major types of fences, metal and wood, requires a different paint treatment. Probably the best and quickest way to paint a wire fence is with a long-napped roller which will "embrace" the wire and coat the surface in a single pass. Rollers also speed up the painting of fences made of round iron bars or rods. Square rods may require brush treatment.

Metal fences that have not been previously painted must first be given a coat of anti-corrosive metal primer. If there is any rust, it should be removed with steel wool, followed by a brushing to take off any loose dirt. Galvanized wire fences require a special primer known as zinc dust-zinc oxide paint or, if that is not available, a zinc chromate primer.

After the primer coat has dried hard, follow with a decorative top coat of exterior enamel. You can match the color of the house, the color of the trim or any contrasting color.

The construction of the wooden fence will determine, to a large degree, the best method of application. If the boards and slats touch each other, you can use a regular house paint brush, a larger roller or a spray gun. If the space between the boards or pickets is small, a smaller brush or roller will be better. It may be possible to coat both edges of adjacent slats at the same time with a slim roller.

New wooden fencing, as well as bare spots on old fences, should be given an initial coat of house paint primer. This should be followed, when dry, with regular house paint in the color of your choice, or you can use trim and trellis paint or exterior enamel.

If you have some kind of a masonry fence or wall, it requires a paint that will resist the alkali present in cement, concrete and mortar. Good service will be given by exterior latex masonry or house paints, swimming pool paints or oil-modified masonry paints.

Long-Range Finance Planning Seen

Long-range finance planning to meet Pitt County's capital outlay needs will prove a major area of concern for the county's Overall Planning Committee which held its first meeting this week.

It is obvious that Pitt County cannot meet in a short period of time all the needs which were mentioned at the initial meeting of the planning group. It is also apparent, as the planning group indicated, that a system of priorities will have to be established for meeting these needs step by step as sound financing methods will permit.

In addition to carefully evaluating the needs of the various agencies and departments of the county and what will be required to fill these needs, the committee will have to work out a financing plan which will not place too heavy an indebtedness upon the county and which will not place too heavy a tax burden upon the citizens of the county.

At the outset it would seem that such a program would span a period of years and would include both bond issues and pay-as-you-go financing, depending upon the size of individual undertakings and the priority accorded them by the committee. It is also evident to us that the committee, in working out a long-range financing method for these county needs, must also give consideration to other public needs within the county.

So far nothing has been mentioned of future capital outlay needs for the county's schools by this Overall Planning Committee. And while the committee probably will not be directly involved in long-range school planning, the fiscal policies it recommends in connection with other county needs might well influence what is done toward meeting school needs.

The same thing may apply to long-range capital outlay programs of various municipalities in Pitt County. Although the Overall Planning Committee for the county government will have no direct connection with municipal planning, there will be a relationship between the county's spending program and the spending programs of municipal governments.

In developing a long-range program for financing capital improvements needed by the county government, the Overall Planning Committee must give consideration to similar programs of local government within the county.

Department Policies Should Have Priority

The break between Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges and the Business Advisory Council for the Department of Commerce is not a great surprise in view of the fact that as Secretary, Hodges has taken much of the glitter and autonomy from the group of big businessmen.

Shortly after becoming Secretary of Commerce, Hodges made it clear that the Business Advisory Council, which is composed of the heads of some of the nation's largest industries, would alter its methods of operations under his administration. The alterations represented a rather abrupt departure from the pattern the group had followed in the past as an auxiliary to the Department of Commerce.

The rumblings since that time have been sufficient to indicate that these big business leaders did not like the manner in which Luther Hodges had moved into their exclusive club. Although no harsh words accompanied the announcement this week that the Council was cutting its ties with the Department of Commerce, it is apparent that the reason for the break is the fact that Secretary Hodges insisted that the Council be a subsidiary to the Department of Commerce and not vice versa.

Secretary Hodges, in our opinion, has taken the correct approach to the Advisory Council's operations. The changes he called for were logical and in keeping with the policies of the Department of Commerce. Where there was conflict between the policies of the department and the policies of the Business Advisory Council to the department, Secretary Hodges was correct in insisting that department policies be followed.

The break between the Business Advisory Council and Secretary Hodges may bring pressure from some sources for the resignation of Hodges from the Cabinet post. If this does happen, we trust that President Kennedy will be quick to indicate his support of his Secretary of Commerce.

In his new post, Secretary Hodges already has begun to revitalize the Department of Commerce and its functions in conjunction with the nation's economy. As Secretary of Commerce, Hodges' value to the Kennedy administration and to the nation will continue to increase. He has already demonstrated that he will not allow special interests groups to stymie the progress he envisions for the economy.

Doublethink In Nikita's World

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—You can have things both ways with doublethink.

What's no longer needed is very necessary, the old is new, and what goes down is up.

He's keeping the troops he said he was getting rid of. The military aircraft he said was finished and out of date is very new. And the money he said he'd save is money being spent, and then some.

Almost 18 months ago he wanted to be accepted as a peacemaker. President Eisenhower and other Western leaders had agreed to meet him at the summit. And now he's telling the West to get out of West Berlin. To show he means business, he's talking tough.

On Jan. 14, 1960, in Moscow he said: Because of world conditions the Soviets would stop the reduction of its armed forces (although in 1960 he said Russia would be stronger without the 1,200,000 men).

On Jan. 14, 1960, he said Soviet power had developed so much in the field of rocketry and nuclear weapons that bombing planes and naval fleets are becoming obsolete.

He said "military aviation is almost entirely being replaced with rockets. Now we have shrapnel weapons in the 'hatching' stage.

But if the world doubled Russia could stay strong while dropping over a million men from the armed forces, Khrushchev had an explanation. He said the manpower reduction not only wouldn't reduce Soviet firepower but would actually increase it "many, many times."

He said "the truth is that atomic, nuclear and rocket weapons created by us set up every condition to permit us to cut our armed forces" without harm to defense capacity.

And he said Russia would start cutting its armed forces at once.

All that was almost 18 months ago. Things didn't pan out. Khrushchev broke up the summit meeting. And now he's telling the West to get out of West Berlin. To show he means business, he's talking tough.

Card Carrying Communists

Popularity Is Sure Bet

I've seen two, and will bet anyone there will be many more in Greenville before the summer is over.

Two what? Sorry, but if they have a name it hasn't reached me.

The "thing" is a backyard shade from the sun that resembles a pyramid tent or a beach parasol and is neither. If you want one, all you need is a surplus parachute (to be found in everybody's closet), a long pole, some tent stakes, . . . and a willingness to borrow someone else's imaginative idea.

The parachute is opened out and raised like a tent with a pole in the middle; shroud lines extended out and pegged down well away from the center.

Ideally, the outer edge of the chute is stretched out so as to leave plenty of room to walk upright into the shelter.

The smallest breezes cause the lightweight silk to billow and fill. The sun makes the orange and white panelling glitter and glisten.

There is plenty of room under this canopy for adults to lounge, small children play, and adolescents to marvel at this world they never made.

It is a most attractive arrangement. The number of those canopies in Greenville backyards should multiply at a rate that will make rabbits blush.

Last Sunday was marked by an infrequent get-together of my wife's family. Sisters and brothers, nieces and nephews, in-laws of varying degrees were brought together for the first time in a long time.

At such an occasion it is customary for everyone to bring something to make the festive board groan a little louder. A line of ashtrays, supporting planks, comprised the table laden with goodies sufficient to fill all plates again and again and again.

Metrical loss that battle. One small ironic note: the lady who incited the gathering couldn't, herself, attend.

Reflector readers were recently provided with a series of three travelogue columns by our city editor, based on his Nassau holiday.

This week, members of the newsroom staff were treated to a mid-afternoon showing of color slides he acquired on that trip. The lights were dimmed, blinds drawn, chairs clustered. It's just as well the public wasn't invited. . . . all seats were taken.

At its conclusion, I had a vague feeling something was missing. . . . and that suspicion was confirmed on subsequent reflection.

Not one beach scene, and not one visual aid to satisfy curiosity as to stylish beachwear in the Bahamas.

The Supreme Court has held the blue laws constitutional and therefore any state that favors controlling the life of the individual, from the cradle to the grave, may do so. It probably gives pleasure to those who enjoy deciding how others should live.

But it has nothing to do with religion, as the advocates of separation of church and state must know because even if the state prohibits one to work on Sunday, it cannot force him to go to church, as beneficial as that might be.

Other Editors Sayings . . . The UN Behind Politics

(Richmond News Leader)

Dag Hammarskjold last week won the applause of Americans by rebuking the UN committee on organization. This committee, or board of review, had suggested that Mr. Hammarskjold share some of his responsibilities with three deputy secretaries, a kind of lower-echelon "troika" of Western - Communist - Neutralist representatives. Further establishing this "party system" in the UN, the Board recommended a redistribution of jobs to give equal representation to the forces represented by the three deputies.

The Secretary General denied the principle of party politics, and declared that the UN is a sanctuary of peace and accord, not a center for the organization and exercise of political power. Such high-minded sentiments, which had the effect of blocking Soviet demands for more jobs, warmed the hearts of those people who have not had much chance to exercise their sentiments on the UN's nobility in recent months. But there was never a more devastating commentary on the vast unreality of the UN than Hammarskjold's obviously false statement that politics has no place in his temple of peace.

The whole fabric of pretense and self-delusion was limned and lit through by his pompous intoning of such myth. The UN is a propaganda forum, where countries plot for power. Yet it is run on principles that deny this fact.

At the very moment when Hammarskjold was soaring beyond all solled contact with politics, the UN representatives in the Congo were dictating the political shape that country would take. In an exercise of crass international blackmail, the UN told Congo officers that ten million dollars would be delivered to the country on condition that a united Parliament met and firmed up its crumbling bases. This put more pressure on the Congolese to force Katangans to surrender their ordered, Western-oriented provinces to the plunder of the tribes.

At this same moment, England was engaged in one of the oldest ploys in UN history. The British had yielded to "anti-colonialist" mythology, and severed their wholly benign protectorate over Kuwait. One of the "anti-colonialist" Empire-builders in the Middle East, Iraq's Kassem, was poised to pounce on this oil-lad victim, and England had to rush back to Kuwait with more armed forces than ever were used to protect the country before. But England has abolished the draft, and cannot even supply its quota of NATO troops in Europe. Therefore, the British propose to hand the mess in Kuwait to the UN. Whenever a nation does not know what to do with a prickly problem, it avoids responsibility by dumping the whole mess on the shores of the East River.

The UN, meanwhile, all astir with the half-articulate oratory of "new nations," is busily creating more problems with its "anti-colonialist" campaign. When Salazar's patience finally runs out in Portugal, he will turn Angola over to the UN, and the subsequent chaos will make the Congo look like a calm lake at West Point, an order and precision.

In a world plagued with problems, the UN is not "above politics." It is behind all the political unrest in the world, pushing, and even a civilization with our Pearl White record of rescue from crises cannot withstand this pushing forever, poised as we are on a narrow precipice.

Management Can Use Grapevine

By ELMER ROESSNER
Professor Keith Davis' analysis of company grapevines discussed here yesterday did not cover two interesting aspects of the phenomenon, probably because of lack of space.

One is the personality of the propagator; the other is the devious uses to which management can make — and has made — of the old vine.

I have observed many grape vines and nibbled some of the doubtful fruit. It is my conclusion that the propagators, the centers of Dr. Davis' "clusters," were usually psychological misfits — as aren't we all?

The person who was secure in his or her job, and who was bright enough to understand much of what was going on, is rarely concerned about the grapes of information, except in times of uncertainty, when there are rumors of lay-offs, suspensions or mergers.

Let us shake ourselves into awareness of a subtle but devastating ingratitude which is eating at the hearts of most of us. We just fail to give credit where credit is due.

lesly use the grapevine to work for them. One manager wanted to get rid of a subordinate, who would have been entitled to heavy severance benefits if fired. The manager dropped word into the grapevine (he dictated a memo to a pool stenographer) that the subordinate was about to be fired. The victim got the word and rushed in shouting, "I quit!"

He saved face; the company saved several thousand dollars — a profit on the vine. Another executive, facing union negotiations, dictated a series of letters to lawyers, insurance companies and suppliers, all noncommittal but all indicating the corporation was planning to take a strike. The labor negotiations turned out well, the union was moderate and there was no impasse.

In still another case, an executive determined to stop pilferage. He planned word that secret x-ray machines were being installed at employees' exits, that a national detective agency had been hired to watch employees, and that dictaphones had been installed in employees' rest rooms.

These precautions would have cost thousands of dollars; a word sent long the grapevine prevented as much stealing yet cost nothing.

But other executives shame-

Puritan Law Of Today

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Up here, in Western Massachusetts, where I summer, come many week-enders to spend a day or two in the cool of the Berkshires or to listen to a concert at Tanglewood or to watch a dance at Tanglewood or to watch a dance at Tanglewood or to watch a dance at Tanglewood.

Now along have come very diligent police officers to execute the Massachusetts blue laws concerning keeping places closed on Sunday. This revival of Puritanism does not include the clipping off of ears of the non-conformist, but the continued harassment of small merchants who exist for the week-end trade during its short summer season, could send some into bankruptcy.

This does not bother those who believe that theirs is the only kind of Sabbath, that the spirit of Cotton Mather should govern the life of man.

Some merchants justify the blue laws on the ground that they keep open all year and close every Sunday and that the Sunday specialists take away the trade which they would have if everybody had to close on Sunday. The truth is that the week-end tripper is in New York or Boston or some other such place during the days when the regular merchant is willing to be open.

Also, there is great ingenuity among those who specialize in attracting the tripper. Two New York City school teachers came up to our wilderness to get away from it all. At first, they developed a little mail order business in advertising notices in fashionable journals. They were skillful and their business prospered and in due course they bought a barn alongside a road, gave it a new coat of paint and named it Jennifer House. This is one of many such places in New England, but I happen to go there now and then and enjoy seeing the antics of my childhood, and smelling soap as it used to smell, and buying gifts to send to friends. There was a time when I went to Wiggin's Inn at Northampton once or twice every summer to buy pretty things that I did not need and to eat Indian pudding, from which, alas, I have now been excluded.

Sunday is the most convenient day for tripping because one must work for a living during the week days and it does not make sense to take a day off for that sort of thing, even in these days of leisurely labor when one does not do too much lest he violate union rules.

But the blue laws will change all that. One will have the afternoon of going to church or sitting at home. Back in the old days of the three hour sermon, it was possible to pass the time listening to a clergyman thunder away at sin, but oratory is no longer attractive as a fine art. A 20 minute sermon seems to suffice and then one wants to get into a car to see the world.

Back in the days when there were no automobiles and no television and not even a photograph, folks did know what to do with their time. Nobody did anything for them; so they did for themselves. But even then the blue laws invaded the homes to discover that one's thoughts were not sinful. However, there was bundling for the very young, and what for the elderly—fortsooth, on the sabbath!—and as everyone knows love will find a way despite the interdiction of the elders.

The Supreme Court has held the blue laws constitutional and therefore any state that favors controlling the life of the individual, from the cradle to the grave, may do so. It probably gives pleasure to those who enjoy deciding how others should live. But it has nothing to do with religion, as the advocates of separation of church and state must know because even if the state prohibits one to work on Sunday, it cannot force him to go to church, as beneficial as that might be.

Local Guardsmen Receive Division Commendation

Two Greenville National Guardsmen last night received high commendation for their respective performances during the Guard's annual summer encampment last month.

The local Guardsmen were two of only three individuals selected from the state's 30th Division Artillery to receive the general's personal commendation.

Lt. Col. Joseph T. Kornegay of Washington, commanding officer of the 113th Artillery's 4th Howitzer Battalion, handed the citations to Lt. Alvin D. McArthur, commanding officer of the battalion's Battery "B" in Greenville, and M-Sgt. Mayo E. Allen, administrative supply technician for Battery "A".

In making the presentations, Col. Kornegay expressed "great pride" in the two Guardsmen.

The commendations originated from Brig. Gen. Weston H. Willis, commander of North Carolina's 30th Division Artillery. It was endorsed by Maj. Gen. Edward F. Griffin, commander of the 30th Division Infantry.

Gen. Willis' citations said: "The evaluators for all Division Artillery selected you as one of the three outstanding individuals among Division Artillery troops."

Both generals signed each letter of commendation with personal congratulations for Sgt. Allen and Lt. McArthur.

Col. Kornegay was "especially pleased" since Gen. Willis' evaluators were directed to select only one man in each of three classifications from the six artillery battalions based across the state.

A Charlotte major was picked by the evaluators as the top individual among the division's artillery field grade officers.

Lt. McArthur was the pick of the evaluators as the outstanding battery grade officer in the division's six artillery units.

Sgt. Allen was selected as most outstanding in the third category — non-commissioned officers in the division's artillery units.

The personal citations represented further honors for the two local batteries. At the summer camp just ended, Battery "B," under Lt. McArthur's leadership, scored higher on the rugged Division Firing Test for 155 mm. Howitzers than any other unit in the state.

A year ago, Battery "A," under

Capt. Charles E. Camp, was tops in the 105 mm. Howitzer division testing. The division-level tests for different size artillery pieces are not conducted in the same year.

Audio-Lingual Approach In Teaching Languages

The foreign languages department at East Carolina College in its program of work for the first summer session is following a nation-wide trend toward the audio-lingual approach to teaching. Courses designed to acquaint teachers and prospective teachers with the latest techniques in the use of electronic laboratories as an aid in teaching languages are being taught during the session.

The air-conditioned language laboratory in the Graham building is the center of activity for concentrated work by both students and teachers enrolled. Director James L. Fleming of the foreign languages department stated.

The laboratory, he explained, is a three-way monitor laboratory which enables the instructor to monitor students working at individual tape recorders and to maintain a two-way conversation with any student without disturbing others.

The summer program of the department, he said, includes regular courses in French and Spanish for undergraduates and special senior-graduate courses for advanced students and teachers wishing instruction in the preparation and practice of basic exercises in grammar and advanced grammatical structure.

A special course in laboratory techniques gives those enrolled lectures on the care of laboratory equipment, the preparation and duplication of tapes for student use, means of integrating laboratory work with classroom instruction, and various methods of testing.

Individual instruction is given each student in the multiple uses of laboratory equipment.

Among teachers enrolled for work in the foreign languages department this summer are Miss Artemis Kares of Greenville; Mrs. Douglas Parker of Greenville, faculty member at Belvoir-Falkland High School; and Mrs. Edward Switzer of Pactolus, faculty member at Stokes High School.

Mount Vernon Pageantry Is U. S. Response To Versailles

By LEWIS GULICK

MOUNT VERNON, Va. (AP)—The colonial fife and drum corpsmen pulled their musket triggers and out spat smoke with a loud roar. A photographer near the line of fire waved a white handkerchief in mock surrender. And Pakistan's President Mohammad Ayub Khan laughed and laughed. The reenactment of Revolutionary War military maneuvers by an Army unit — decked out in cocked hats, wigs, scarlet coats and white knickers—was a scene from early American life staged for the Pakistani chief Tuesday night at George Washington's home overlooking the Potomac River 15 miles from the capital. Mrs. Kennedy was impressed by the state dinner at Versailles during the Kennedys' visit in France. She wanted to make similar use of a place belonging to America's history. Tuesday night's American response to Versailles was spectacular.

The Kennedys started off the evening by ferrying their guests downstream aboard four yachts. Refreshments and music aboard during the 1 1/2 hour cruise kept the party-goers entertained.

After the boats docked, the guests didn't have to scramble up the long pathway from the wharf to the plantation house climbed by millions of tourists. Limousines carried them up a roadway lined by a Marine honor guard.

It was at this point in the festivities—when the party first gathered at plantation house—that the 3rd Infantry's Fife and Drum Corps from nearby Ft. Myer put on its show of military life in George Washington's days for the benefit of Ayub, a military man. Then the guests went out on the spacious lawn with its Potomac view. As dusk closed in, they dined under a special green tent pavilion on a French menu served on golden service brought from the White House by Army truck.

The last act of the evening was a performance by the 74-piece National Symphony Orchestra in an adjoining area of the insect-treated rolling green. Then the guests returned to their boats, reaching Washington after 12:30 a.m.

Kennedy and Ayub exchanged toasts in Washington's honor.

Mothers Have A Summer Language All Their Own

By KATHY SMALL Elmira Star-Gazette

ELMIRA, N.Y. (AP)—Mothers have a summer language. Fathers seldom understand it. Here's a chance for them to get up to date on "current terms, domestic use."

Population Explosion: School is out.

Cease-Fire Order: What mother gives when there are more "bad guys" than "good guys" in the backyard.

Peace Corps: Mothers who settle small-fry arguments without stirring neighborhood feuds.

Civil Rights: A neighbor's right to enjoy her flower garden without first removing small boys and baseballs.

Accelerated Science Program: How to identify strange bugs and animals found in overall pockets. Acceleration comes when mother finds the critter alive.

Retirement Plan: Summer bedtime schedule which proves only that a 3-foot-high kid can outlast parents any old day.

Infiltration: What happens during backyard cookout. Bright eyes peering out from the bushes indicate lurking, uninvited small guest.

Social Security: The feeling a teen-ager gets from wearing clam diggers and pancho shirts.

Puppet Government: Rainy day juvenile dictators.

Summit Meeting: What teen-age drivers think parents hold every time they want the family car. Anti-Trust Laws: A teen-ager's conception of early curfew hours.

Collective Bargaining: A family conference to reconcile opposing views on vacation plans.

Labor Agreement: What mother hopes to enforce during two weeks at the lake. She'll be lucky to get fringe benefits.

Occupation Forces: Summer visitors.

Depressed Area: The pocket-book after a vacation trip.

Economic Boom: What popsicle vendors expect.

Workman's Compensation: Father slaving over a hot barbecue pit after a hard day at the office.

Freedom Rider: Father driving off to his nice, quiet job every morning.

School Bond: The warm feeling mothers have for teachers at mid-summer.

Pre-Registering At Chapel Hill

CHAPEL HILL—Two Greenville boys went through the pre-registration program this week in the General College at the University of North Carolina in preparation for starting their Freshman year.

Joining about 100 other freshmen were William Erskine Duff Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Duff of 807 East Third Street and Philip Dwyall Coleman Jr., son of Mrs. Philip E. Coleman of 1003 East Fifth Street.

The purpose of the pre-registration program is to enable students entering the University to take required placement tests in advance, to select courses for the fall and to have the opportunity to consult officials of the University regarding loans, scholarships, jobs, housing and ROTC opportunities.

The three-year-old program is sponsored by the General College, the Admissions Office, the Office of Student Affairs and the University Testing Service.

Over 500 students pre-registered last month. Further pre-registration dates are July 12, 18, 22, 28 and August 5, 8, 11, 18 and 19.

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS CELEBRATE AN ANNIVERSARY

"THEY GET BETTER AND BETTER EVERY YEAR!" By EDSON and HASEN

GOSH, MRS. MCGOWAN, THEY'RE HAVING A BIG CELEBRATION AT THE U.S. TREASURY, AREN'T THEY?

YES, DOND, IT'S THE 20TH ANNIVERSARY OF U.S. SAVINGS BONDS.

THE FIRST BOND WAS SOLD TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES ON MAY 1, 1941.

GEE! THE PRESIDENT!

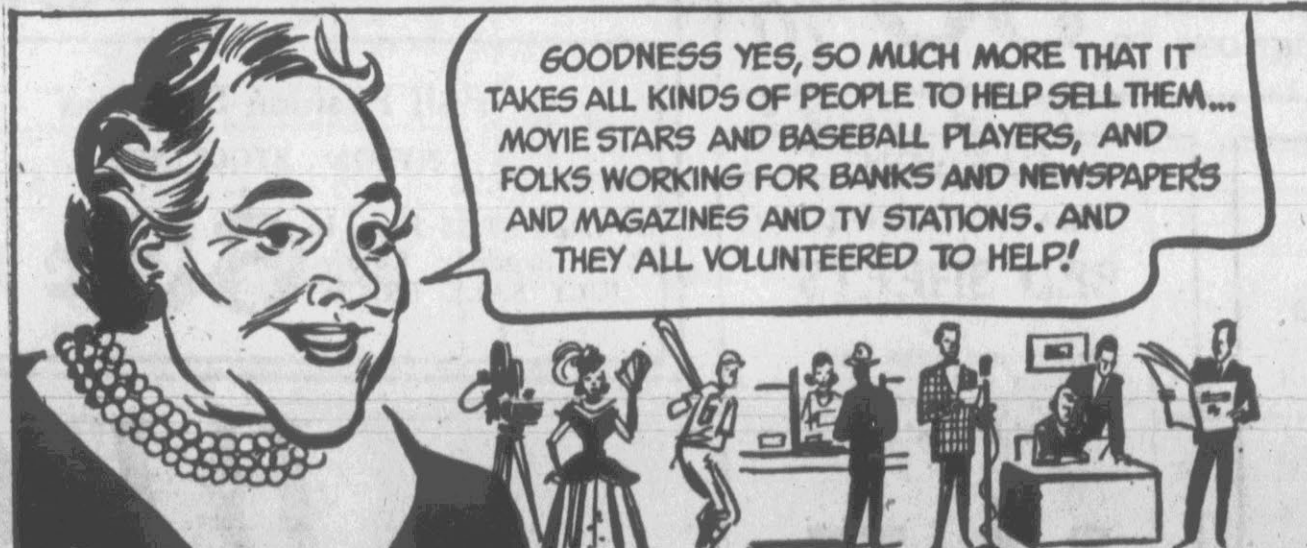

AND MILLIONS OF AMERICANS FOLLOWED HIS EXAMPLE.

WHY DID THEY NEED BONDS?

TO HELP PAY FOR A WAR, BUT FOLKS NEVER STOPPED BUYING SAVINGS BONDS. TODAY AMERICANS BUY MORE THAN $4 1/2 BILLION WORTH A YEAR.

IS THAT MORE'N A THOUSAND?

GOODNESS YES, SO MUCH MORE THAT IT TAKES ALL KINDS OF PEOPLE TO HELP SELL THEM... MOVIE STARS AND BASEBALL PLAYERS, AND FOLKS WORKING FOR BANKS AND NEWSPAPERS AND MAGAZINES AND TV STATIONS, AND THEY ALL VOLUNTEERED TO HELP!

GOLLY! SAVINGS BONDS MUST BE A GOOD WAY TO SAVE MONEY.

MORE THAN MONEY, DOND. EVERY SAVINGS BOND IS A SHARE IN A STRONGER AMERICA.

GUARANTEED BY THE U.S. GOVERNMENT

- U.S. SAVINGS BONDS INCREASE IN VALUE 33 1/3% IN 14 YEARS, 93% IN 17 1/2 YEARS.
- YOU CAN GET YOUR MONEY WITH INTEREST ANYTIME YOU WANT IT.
- YOU CAN'T LOSE YOUR EQUITY—IF YOU LOSE YOUR BONDS, THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT REPLACES THEM FREE.

Large Tactical Air Maneuvers Set In Carolinas

SEYMOUR JOHNSON AFB — Twenty-five states, ranging across the country from California to New Hampshire, will be represented by units of the U.S. Army, U.S. Air Force, and by Air Force Reservists and Air National Guardsmen in the joint training exercise SWIFT STRIKE to be held in the general area of North and South Carolina, August 6 through August 20.

Units of Tactical Air Command's Composite Air Strike Force (CASF), including Seymour Johnson's Fourth Tactical Fighter Wing, will supply the air power throughout Operation Swift Strike. All air elements will be combined under the operational control of Major General Maurice Preston, Commander of Nineteenth Air Force, Seymour Johnson AFB.

US Army airborne divisions and support units from the deep south and southwest joined by tactical and troop carriers units from all sections of the country, north, east, south, and west, will combine in an interservice demonstration of the ability of the Strategic Army Command and TAC's Composite Air Strike Force to place a combat-ready striking force in any area of the world on very short notice and to sustain such a force during combat operations.

Swift Strike will be held almost completely on civilian domain and will be the first time such massive exercises have been held within the continental United States and not within the bounds of a military reservation since the Louisiana maneuvers of 1941.

Early Ripple In Colombia's Vote

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Almost a year remains before new presidential elections, but the problem of finding a successor to Alberto Lleras Camargo is beginning to cause ripples of uneasiness in Colombian life.

Private economic development has slowed drastically. Most investors, fearing the incendiary character of Colombian politics, are adopting a wait-and-see attitude. Colombia is only beginning to recover from a tragic eight years of savage political violence that left a death toll estimated variously from 100,000 to 300,000.

New outbreaks of violence in the interior and seething inter-party attacks show just how tenuous is the truce that resulted four years ago in the formation of a national front coalition government of rival Conservatives and Liberals.

The hatreds, jealousies and antagonism between the two parties are part of the Colombian character.

Lleras, a Liberal, was elected president in 1958 over his Conservative rival, Jorge Leyva. But in 1959, with Liberal backing, the legislature voted to alternate the presidency between the Liberals and the Conservatives. The Liberal party renounced its rights to put up a candidate in the 1962 election. This scheme of alternation is to operate until 1974.

The plan, however, has come under recent heavy attack from a splinter Liberal group headed by Alfonso Lopez Michelsen, writer professor of constitutional law and son of a former president. He opposes the national front and the alternation of the presidency on the ground that Colombia needs far-reaching social changes. Communists and Castroists alike have found a haven in the movement.

Problem Bounces Back To Teacher

ELMIRA, N.Y. (AP)—An elementary school teacher here sent a note to the mother of a child who was having more than the usual amount of difficulty with subtraction.

She asked the mother to help her child at home if possible. The mother returned the note with the penciled notation, "I'd be glad to help. But which number do you subtract—the top or the bottom one?"

But on July 9, 1961, at Moscow the Soviets put on a tremendous display of military airpower with new supersonic jets, fighters and bombers.

And the chief Soviet air marshal, Konstantin S. Vershinin, writing in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, said rockets had taken over many tasks but that "the air force continues to play a great role."

On Jan. 14, 1960, Khrushchev mightily pleased with the good news he was giving the Russians about the size of their armed forces, added some good news for their economy, too, by announcing the manpower cut would save 17 million rubles a year.

But on July 8, 1961, he said Russia is increasing its military spending by about 3 1/2 billion rubles a year.

Pakistan Is Asking Aid In Dispute

By SPENCER DAVIS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Pakistan President Ayub Khan today sought U.S. support in his attempt to negotiate the bitter Pakistan-India dispute over Kashmir.
The Pakistani leader was due to hold the second of three meetings with President Kennedy this morning.
Later, Ayub, 54, will give an off-the-cuff talk before a joint session of Congress.
Pakistan officials feel that Ken-edy's reaction to the Kashmir issue may provide an answer to their suspicions that the Kennedy administration is following a pro-India policy, detrimental to Pakistan.
In the city of Jubbulpore in central India Tuesday night, Prime Minister Nehru spoke up sharply on the Ayub visit here, charging that the Pakistan chief is misrepresenting U.S.-Indian relations.
Nehru said he was "amazed at the calumny" of Ayub in suggesting that India had asked for U.S.

AYUB KHAN

military aid. "We have only sought economic help mainly in the form of loans," he added.
The Pakistan press has taken alarm over reports that Congress is considering providing arms to neutral nations at bargain prices.
On the Kashmir issue, Ayub has contended that the United States should use its influence with Nehru to bring him to the conference table for negotiations
on a Kashmir settlement.
American officials have not been eager to step into the quarrel between two governments friendly to the United States. And if they must do so, U.S. officials would prefer that the talking be done quietly, without arousing rancor in India and Pakistan.
Kashmir is regarded here as a highly emotional dispute between brother nations.
The little state is divided with Pakistan holding the mountainous regions and India occupying the fertile vale which it has incorporated into India's system of states.
India has refused to hold a plebiscite among Kashmir's predominantly Moslem population.
Ayub has long urged that a settlement could bring stability to South Asia and permit India's and Pakistan's armed forces to jointly defend the subcontinent against any encroachment by Communist China or the Soviet Union.
Ayub is awaiting the outcome of his Washington talks before deciding whether to seek an independent border settlement with Peiping on Pakistan's and Kashmir's frontiers with Communist China.
A second major topic for discussion with Kennedy was economic development. The United States appeared ready to assure Pakistan of more long-term assistance to help its five-year plan meet foreign exchange requirements in 1961 and 1962.
Pakistani officials appeared highly pleased at the deference and attention given Ayub during the first day of his three-day visit Tuesday. It was climaxed by a spectacular state dinner at Mount Vernon Tuesday night.
In an exchange of toasts, Ayub told Kennedy "any country that falls in Asia, even for a year or two, will find itself subjugated by communism. That danger is always there."
Beside his White House and congressional calls, Ayub was to be feted by a state luncheon given by Vice President Lyndon B.
Johnson and a black-tie dinner at the State Department's penthouse dining room, given by Secretary and Mrs. Dean Rusk.

Concerned About Young Attitude

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Music man Mitch Miller, an alumni-elected trustee of his alma mater,
the University of Rochester, is concerned about the attitude of some college students today.
"Perhaps depression parents are at fault for taking the initiative from kids, for overprotecting them and showering them with material things we never had," Miller said in a talk at the university.
He wondered whether too many college students weren't going along just for the ride, enjoying the fun, glamour and stamp of respectability. He pointed out that too often the serious student is looked upon as an oddball, whereas the dilettante should be the one considered out of step.

PERSECUTION CALLED STIMULUS

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) —
True believers in Christ have always been persecuted, Dr. Gun-nar Westin, Swedish church historian, told a gathering here.
"Persecution started early and it is clear that many times it has been a blessing."

He was too young for you, and you found what you wanted in an older man; in Adam Bell. I know the whole story. Your hero lover went out and killed Jimmy, so that he could have you for himself. He was not going to do, but if you had n't given yourself to Adam, none of this would have happened.
 That's moral guilt, Griselda, and I'm going to make you pay."
 "Paul," she said in a flat voice,
 "it just isn't true. Adam wouldn't

Her voice trailed off.
 "Adam Bell did," the man said.
 "I was telephoned, two hours ago.
 I don't know who the caller was,
 but he told me that Jimmy had been killed. At first I couldn't believe it. But I went to find out. I saw a photograph of my son lying on the cold stone of a morgue slab. That's the way you treated him. It would have been better if you'd killed me, but you had to kill Jimmy—"

The man caught his breath, and so gave warning: the desire to kill,
 the lust for revenge, the awful passion in him would soon burst upon her.

Ten feet separated the man and the woman.
 The gun was steady in the man's hand.

"Paul," the woman said despair-ingly, "it wasn't Adam, it couldn't have been Adam, he wouldn't—"
 "He did."

"How do—how do you know?"
 he said. "No one else would want to kill Jimmy, Griselda. You've done one evil thing after another to him. You started him on drink You started him on women. You've made his life hell from the moment you were married, and you're not going to live to make anyone else suffer. Why, look at
 you. So beautiful and so foul, so—"

He was almost choking.
 She stopped by the open door of the library, and faced the man whom she called Paul. He also stopped, perhaps six feet away from her, and Rollison had a sideways view.

Rollison knew that neither of the couple would notice him if he moved; the woman had eyes only for the man in grey, who was obvious of the rest of the world
 because of that all-consuming hatred.

"You're wrong, you've always been wrong," the woman said.
 "Of course, Adam wouldn't have killed him, I'm quite positive."
 "Then who would?" Paul asked,
 with brittle calm.

"Paul, I don't know. But don't do anything you'll regret," the woman went on, pleading for her life with a quiet, brave dignity. "If you kill me, you'll only be hang-
 ed. They're bound to find you,
 they always do."

"They won't catch me," the man said. "Not that it would matter much if they did, what else have I to live for?" He took a pace nearer. "But no one knows I'm here. I walked from the main road. There will not be the slightest whisper of suspicion against me."

His voice was very hoarse, now, he spoke as if he wished that he could strike at her over and over again. "I wish I could make you feel the way Jimmy did. I wish I could give you months—no, years —of hell. I wish—"

He broke off.
 Griselda Vance stood by the door, head erect, shoulders squared;
 so very lovely, proud and oddly calm.

"If you kill me," she said,
 "you will be making the big mistake of your life. You've never been prepared to believe anything against Jimmy, you were always blind. I used to admire you for it, but now—"

Paul said thickly: "I'll kill you with my bare hands, you vixen!"
 He dropped the gun, and leapt
 at her.

His hands were outstretched, the fingers crooked to fasten round
 her neck and to bury themselves in the flesh. She flinched, but made no attempt to get away; she waited as if knowing that there was nothing to stop him.

Paul's hands must have circled her throat for she gave a little choking sound.

"Quite far enough," Rollison said clearly.
 He moved at speed, reached Paul Vance and brought the edge of his right hand down sharply on the nape of the broad neck. Paul gasped, grunted, and crumpled up.

The woman stood there, hands
 at her pale throat, eyes feverishly bright.
 "In fact, too far," said Rollison, very gently. "I'm sorry I waited so long." He put out an arm, to support Griselda Vance, and as he did so the intensity of the light in her eyes faded. She nearly fell.
 He supported her, and shifted his hold so that he could put an arm beneath her knees, another round her waist. He lifted her and carried her into the library where the one light burned. He put her into one of the huge chairs, and turned and left her.

 Paul Vance was trying to get
 up.
 "Paul, the Avenger," said Rollison in a voice which those who knew him well didn't like at all.
 "Paul the passionate fanatic. Paul the stranger. I ought to break your neck."
 Paul was on his feet, now, but unsteady, swaying. His mouth opened and closed, he licked his lips and kept gasping, as if the breath wouldn't go far enough into his lungs. Rollison turned towards the door of the room where the woman was, found a switch and pressed it down. The light from the chandelier shown starkly on Paul's pale, grey face, his greying hair, his watery grey eyes.

 "Who—who are you?"
 "A better friend than you deserve," said Rollison. "I ought to have let you kill her, that would have seen you hanged."

 "I don't understand," Paul began. "—"
 Then he moved.
 He was no fool, and somewhere or other he'd learned a lot of tricks. He was going for the gun, which was still on the floor, just beyond Rollison.

Heirlooms Among Her Collection

HOMER, Ill. (AP) — Mrs. Nolan Craver, Sr., collects pitchers.
 Not baseball pitchers but pitchers used to pour liquids. There is a difference. She has about 300 of them of many sizes and descriptions.
 The smallest, a barely a half-inch tall, can rest on your thumb-nail. It came from the Alamo, she said. The largest is represented by an Admiral Dewey glass pitcher of the type once popular on dining tables.
 "Many of my pitchers are antiques that have come to me from the family," Mrs. Craver said. "They are family heirlooms and are 70 years old or more."

Chef Named Hot Dog Teacher

CHICAGO (AP) — American sausage makers have called in a famous European chef to help educate housewives on how to serve the hot dog gourmet style.
 Herr Otto Schuetz, a native of Stuttgart and president of a German master chefs association, will tour the U. S. A. during July, the official national hot dog month.
 Among the Continental twists in hot dog recipes Schuetz will demonstrate is his Strasbourg Salad. It employs the everyday frankfurter dressed up with white cabbage, carrots, onions, cheese strips, vinegar, oil, mustard, fine herbs and pepper.

Death Lay Waiting Around A Corner On Palermo Road

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Death lay waiting around the corner on the road to Palermo.

It was just 18 years ago this week that the Americans and British landed in Sicily. It was a bright, brief, bitter, dusty campaign that in 39 days broke the Axis airpower in the eastern Mediterranean and gave the Allies a stepping stone to Italy.

The Battle of Sicily has long been swallowed up in the larger events of World War II. The public may remember it for only two fouls—an angry Gen. Patton slapping a private to startle him out of shellshock, the shooting down by the U.S. Navy of more than a score of our own paratroop-laden aircraft.

Each man who fought there, of course, has his own memories: The smell of the unburied dead in the bombed ruins, the shimmering heat, the sweet taste of watermelons plucked warm from the vines, weeping Sicilian women as the long lines of Italian soldiers walked or rode cheerfully into surrender, glad to be out of a war they didn't want to be in, the pinch-faced children's hands held out for bread.

But I remember Sicily most for a rare combat vignette you see seldom on sprawling battlefields, where individual actions usually are lost sight of.

It happened in a winding mountain gorge on the road to Palermo the Sicilian capital.

A German engineer, his hands upraised, his myopic eyes wide in fear, stumbled from the underbrush to give himself up to a U.S. armored column.

"There is an 88 mm. gun around the next bend in the road," he warned.

What should the American commander, Brig. Gen. Maurice Rose do? Believe his captive or not? Rose, one of the ablest and most handsome tank leaders in the Army, was under strong pressure from Gen. Patton to get into Palermo at the earliest possible hour.

But he unhesitatingly halted his column. He dismounted two squads of armored infantrymen and ordered them to flank the gun and bring its defenders under rifle fire. One squad moved forward up the hill to the right, the other disappeared in the deep gully to the left.

We felt a hidden menace in the silent picturesque setting — no birds sang in the tall pine trees—as Gen. Rose moved a halftrack carrying a 75 mm. cannon to the fore.

The column trundled to the edge of the bend in the road and paused. Did death really lurk around the corner, or had the German engineer lied.

The two gunners in the half-track who would test his truth chatted lackadaisically. If death came to any in the column it would come first to them. But it was all in the day's work; they were inured to danger.

The general strode back and forth impatiently as the moments passed. What was holding up his flanking riflemen? Finally, he decided he could wait no longer.

"Get it!" he crisply told the two cannonners.

The halftrack immediately lurched around the corner. Just then rifles cracked simultaneously from each side. Our infantry was firing on the waiting German gun's defenders.

Caught by a double surprise—the rifle fire, the sight of the wheeling American halftrack—they paused for a bare fraction of a second.

Then the first American cannon shell crashed through the shield of the 88 mm. Nazi gun. The second shell hit its nearby ammunition dump, and world seemed to explode in reverberating echoes.

It was all over in less than five seconds. The riflemen raced back to their carriers and leaped in.

The column moved on to Palermo—and victory. But because a general believed a prisoner and paused, he saved some of his own men to share that victory.

Greenville Girl Receives Grant For Hawaii Study

Nancy Lou Oberseider of Greenville, junior at East Carolina College, has just been notified that she is the recipient of a grant providing for two years of study at the Center for Cultural and Technical Interchange between East and West at the University at Hawaii.

A geography major at the college here, Miss Oberseider will enroll as an undergraduate at the Center. She plans to specialize there in Asian Studies and to work toward a degree, Her grant, which provides for travel, living, and academic expenses amounts to approximately $8,500 and stipulates that she will study at the Center from September 10, 1961 to June 10, 1963.

The Center at the University of Hawaii was created last year by Congress to promote "a cultural and technical exchange between East and West" under the auspices of the Department of State. Selection of students to attend is made through applications submitted to universities, the U. S. Information Agency, and Fulbright Scholarship Committees.

Students attending the East-West Center come from the United States and from Asia and the Pacific area. Approximately 300 are expected to be enrolled this fall.

Miss Oberseider entered East Carolina as a freshman shortly more than two years ago and now has junior rating. Her name has appeared on either the college Honor Roll or the Dean's List of Superior Students each quarter since she became a student at East Carolina.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. C. Oberseider, 106 South Library Street, Greenville. Her father, formerly a Chief Warrant Officer in the U. S. Army and now retired, is a senior majoring in the social studies at East Carolina.

GOP Senators Surveying Foreign Policy Opinions

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Republicans are sounding out opinion among themselves in preparation for the issuance of a broad manifesto on foreign policy.

WEST BERLIN STREET—Life in West Berlin remains peaceful on the surface, but occasional parades and military displays remind residents of the occupation forces ready for action at a moment's notice. These mothers and children saw one such display recently as U.S. M-48 tanks rolled down Taylorstrasse after a welcoming ceremony for Gen. Frederick Hartel, new troop commander in the city. The street was named for Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former U.S. commander in Berlin. (AP Wirephoto)

If it materializes, the statement is expected to express a Republican position on the problems arising from all of the critical trouble spots in the world, specifically including Berlin and Cuba.

Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said in an interview he will ask for a party conference within the next two or three weeks to begin work on a preliminary draft.

"We want to wait a while for some of these situations to jell a bit, particularly that in Berlin," Dirksen said. "But there is the general feeling that the time has about arrived when the Republicans should make their position clear in the light of recent developments."

Dirksen said that if an agreement can be reached on its terms, the statement in effect would bring up to date the foreign policy declarations made in the Republican platform a year ago.

The platform dealt largely in foreign policy generalities. It said that American "determination to stand fast has forestalled aggression before Berlin, the Formosa Straits and Lebanon." It was written at a time when the controversy over Berlin was relatively quiet and long before the Cuban situation became critical because of the ill-fated invasion. It made no direct mention of Cuba.

Dirksen emphasized that the manifesto will represent only the thinking of the Senate Republicans. He said he knows of no current move among GOP House members to issue any similar statement.

However, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said in a separate interview he hopes any such declaration of principles would be followed later by partywide action of the same nature.

Javits said he has discussed with some of his colleagues the possibility that a party conference patterned after the 1943 Mackinac Island, Mich., meeting might be arranged. At that conference the late Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan led Republicans to an agreement on a broad statement of foreign policy emphasizing the party's break with isolationism.

"I think our party has a splendid opportunity now to make its views known in the foreign field," Javits said. "We are closer to agreement in that area than in any other and we should take advantage of that fact."

Presumably any such meeting would include senators, House members, governors, national committeemen and state chairmen to provide a broad base of party support for any declaration that might be forthcoming.

Javits said he thinks such a conference would be helpful in uniting the party.

Any Senate GOP manifesto would be likely to echo the statement of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in Gettysburg, Pa., Tuesday that the United States "must stand firmly in Berlin and not let anybody scare us out."

"Berlin has always been an explosive situation but America's spirit and courage are up to it," Eisenhower said. "The United States is strong and we shouldn't scare ourselves to death. We should keep confident and strong and keep our powder dry."

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, assistant Senate GOP leader, said he is satisfied all Senate Republicans endorse this view. He said this was the general attitude expressed by members in a closed conference Tuesday when they postponed action on a proposed statement on the Berlin crisis.

There was some evidence this action was taken in line with Elsenhower's belief that the time is not yet ripe for the Republicans to speak on this critical situation.

Eisenhower said he had no quarrel with the Kennedy administration over its stand on Berlin. However, some Senate Republicans have indicated privately they don't think Kennedy has taken a hard enough line in reacting in the forthcoming manifesto may depend on developments between now and the time of its issuance.

Brazilian Development Plan Being Presented

WASHINGTON (AP)—A young Brazilian economist meets with Secretary of State Dean Rusk today to present a old plan aimed at solving one of the biggest problems in Latin America—development of the sprawling and poverty-stricken Brazilian Northeast.

Already there have been rumblings of revolt from this drought-parched area twice the size of Texas where 18 million peasants lack a bare existence as sugar plantation laborers. Nearby lies the fertile and unexploited Amazon River basin.

Senate Approves Pension Change

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed legislation Tuesday to permit Medal of Honor holders to begin drawing a $100 a month pension at the age of 50. At present, a $10 a month pension is available to them at age 65.

The bill now goes back to the House which had passed a measure providing a $100 a month pension but stipulating that it would be available to medal holders at any age.

The highest temperature ever recorded in the Virgin Islands was 90 degrees, and the lowest 65 degrees.

Celso Hurlado, 40, director of Brazil's Northeast Development Agency, hopes to bring together the untapped riches of the Amazon and the hungry unemployed of the dusty Northeast.

His five-year $900 million development plan for the area calls for the resettlement of almost a million people in the virgin lands of the Amazon and a large scale assistance program for the rest of the region.

The United States, keenly aware of the importance of Brazil, the fourth largest country in the world, only recently put together a Brazilian aid package estimated to total of $1 billion.

And Brazil's independent-minded new president, Janio Quadros, last month funneled $34 million in U.S. aid into the Northeast—even as his navy and marines rushed to the port of Recife to quell a series of riots.

Furtado's development plan is designed to combat the disease, poverty and ignorance that plague the Brazilian Northeast. It calls for improved health and education services as well as a vast program of irrigation and electrification.

Francisco Juliao, a devoted disciple of Cuba's Fidel Castro, has organized the discontented sugar workers into a series of peasant leagues and roams the parched territory spreading the gospel of social revolution.

Walker To Offer Self To Space

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Barbara Moore, 56, Russian-born long distance walker, said Tuesday she plans to offer her services to the Soviet embassy as the world's first space woman.

"I am very strong and healthy," she told newsmen, "and I can go without food and drink for a long time."

Arabs Studying Kuwait Proposal

CAIRO (AP)—Arab leaders are considering a proposal to replace British forces in Kuwait with U.N. troops from the Gaza Strip, it was reported today.

A reliable source said President Nasser of the United Arab Republic probably would discuss the proposal with Kuwait envoy Sheikh Jabir al Ahmad al Sabah. The sheik came to Cairo reportedly to seek Nasser's support for the proposal.

Amy's Giving Away Long Distance Calls Anywhere In World

The packers of a canned chicken hash are giving away telephone calls in a unique contest among newspaper readers.

Contestants need only think up a list of uses of Amy's Chicken Hash and mail it with one Amy's Chicken Hash label by midnight August 4th to Amy's Chicken Hash, 1216 Elizabeth Ave., Charlotte 4, N. C.

Weekly winners may call anyone anywhere in the world. Previous winners have called Tokyo, Bombay, Paris — even Moscow. Most call relatives living or stationed overseas.

Amy's is sold at most food stores. It's a chicken version of corned beef hash.

Drinkmen Beat State Bank, 2-1

Three Pepsi-Cola pitchers stopped State Bank in a one-hitter yesterday in the only Teen-er League action...

John Horne, Robby Powell and Paul McGlohon put together their pitching talents in the squeaker. McGlohon was credited with the win.

The losing pitcher was Tommy Jordan, who went the distance for State Bank, giving up six hits, striking out six, and walking seven.

Oggie Letchworth led the winners at the plate, rapping off a pair of hits in three trips. Charles Laughinghouse got the only extra base blow for Pepsi-Cola...

The winners scored the decisive run in the seventh on four walks by Jordan.

Gathering the only hit for State Bank was shortstop Jimmy Medlin with a single in the first inning.

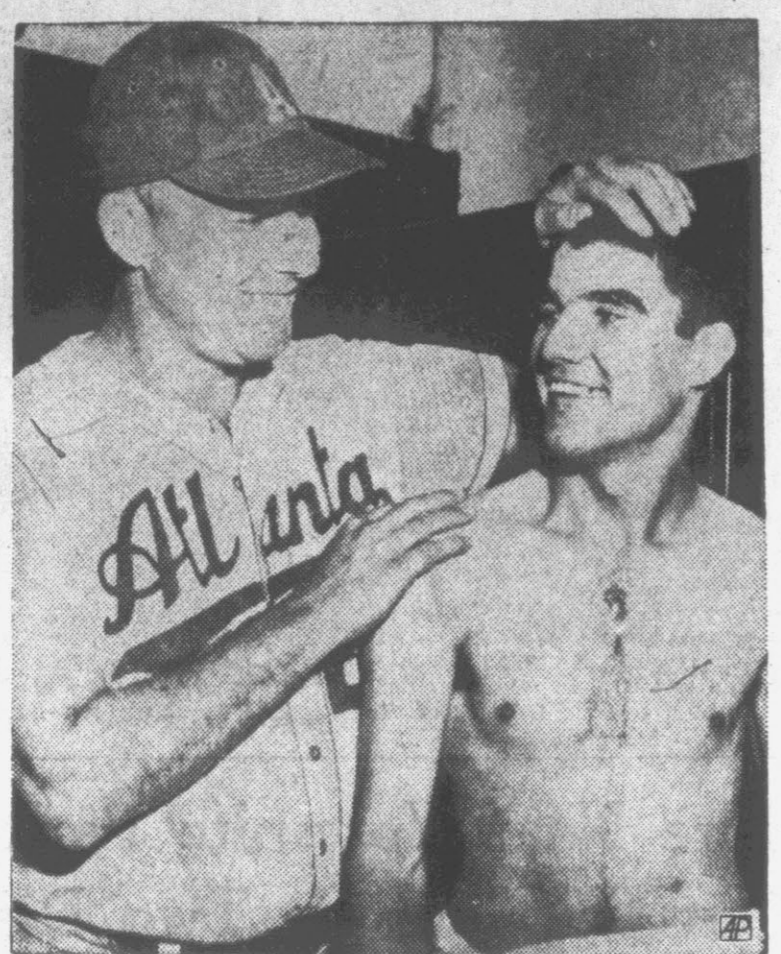

The losers scored their only run in the fourth on a walk, a wild pitch, and two sacrifices.

Pender Drops His Title To Briton

LONDON (AP) — Paul Pender, deposed from his share of the world middleweight championship prepared today to go home to Boston to see his new baby daughter and start working to get back his title.

Terry Downes, 25, the battling Briton who served in the U.S. Marines, whipped him before 12,000 wildly cheering fans in Wembley Indoor Stadium Tuesday night. Pender retired with a cut over his left eye at the end of the ninth round.

Pender, 31, in his dressing room after the fight, scarcely had time to think about his defeat. The boxer, from Brookline, Mass., was surrounded by friends congratulating him on the news that his wife had given birth to a daughter in Boston.

The news reached ringside halfway through the fight. Pender's seconds kept the news from him until the fight was over.

Pender said, "He would beat Gene Fullmer." Fullmer is recognized as world champion in most of the United States. The crown which Downes took from Pender is recognized in New York, Massachusetts and Europe.

Pender said he thought he was slower than when he beat Downes at Boston last January. Then it was Downes who retired with a cut nose after seven rounds. "I just didn't have the speed,"

LITTLE LEAGUE

In the city championship round between the Tar Heel and North State Little League teams the North State Coca-Cola nine took a 6-0 victory over the Tar Heel Exchange club on the Elm Street Park diamond yesterday.

Winning pitcher Donnie Taylor allowed three hits, struck out seven and walked five while losing pitcher Richard Gaylord allowed four hits, struck out six and walked nine.

Going into the fifth inning neither team had succeeded in gaining a run, but this was the turning point in the game and the Coca-Cola finished in fourth place all six runs. The runs were made off two doubles, a single and four walks.

Collecting the hits for the winners were Taylor, William Moye, Ken Merritt and Donnie Beamon. Doing the hitting for the losers were Gary Bostic, Gaylord and Stuart Brock.

During the regular season play Coca-Cola finished in fourth place in the North State League and the Exchange club finished third in the Tar Heel League. Both teams managed to pull through in the tournament play which began last Friday and came out on top.

The city championship which is presently at stake will be decided when one of the teams wins two out of three games in the final round. Yesterday's game was the first in the final series which put Coca-Cola one game ahead. A win today would give them the city championship.

Caps Down W-S To Keep Lead By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Brilliant pitching kept Raleigh ahead of the pack Tuesday night in the tightening Carolina League race for the season's second half. Tom Addington rang up a one-hitter as the Caps blanked Winston-Salem, 1-0. The victory kept Raleigh half a game in the lead, ahead of Burlington and Durham.

The teams that ended up tied for second place came out on opposite ends in the Tuesday night games. Burlington edged Wilson, 8-7, while Durham absorbed a 16-2 drubbing at the hands of Greensboro.

Raleigh had to wait until the ninth inning to get its win over Winston-Salem. With the bases loaded, Ken Orbison's bloop single to center brought in the only run of the game.

The only hit the Red Sox got off Addington was a seventh-inning single by Pete Cronin.

Duke Sims' double in the seventh brought home the victory margin for Burlington, after Wilson had gone ahead in the early innings.

American League Stars Happy To Escape Candlestick Stadium

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Disgruntled American League All Stars, glad to have escaped wind-ravaged Candlestick Park without having been swept into San Francisco Bay, agreed today the playing conditions were the worst they had ever encountered.

Maybe their 6-4 10-inning defeat Tuesday by the Nationals had something to do with it. Roger Maris, the New York muscle man who leads both majors with his 33 home runs, and Rocky Colavito, Detroit's fence-buster, were the most outspoken of the players who felt the main trouble with Candlestick Park was that it was built alongside the bay.

Instead of under it. Even the triumphant National Leaguers had nothing but unkind words to say of the Giants' home grounds.

For seven innings, Candlestick Park's heralded wind was only a myth as far as the players and the 44,115 customers were concerned. Consequently, it was a contest of fitness, dignity and occasional brilliance. With Milwaukee's Warren Spahn perfect and Cincinnati's Bob Purkey near-perfect, and Pittsburgh's Roberto Clemente leading the attack against New York's Whitey Ford and Washington's Dick Donovan with a triple and sacrifice fly, the Nationals surged into a 2-0 lead after the fourth.

The Americans got one run back in the sixth when Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew slammed a home run, their first hit, off Giant southpaw Mike McCormick. That's the way things stood until the eighth when the wind, like a smirking villain waiting in the wings, suddenly came swirling from the bay to bedevil the pitchers, batters and even the umpires and turn an unspectacular but uniformly played game into a spectacle.

In the last three innings, the All Stars committed five of the game's seven errors. In addition, San Francisco pitcher Stu Miller was charged with a balk, New York catcher Elston Howard was guilty of a passed ball and Cincinnati outfielder Frank Robinson was hit by a pitch. As if that wasn't enough to make the record turn out here wonder whether they were watching little instead of big leaguers, a National Leaguer (shortstop Maury Wills) was guilty of interfering with runner Nellie Fox in the ninth and Fox himself was accused of failing to touch third base on his way home in the same play. The latter claim was rejected by the umpires.

The National appeared to have the victory, fourth in a row over the American and fifth in the last six games, all wrapped up when pinch hitter George Altman, Chicago Cubs' outfielder, hammered a home run off Boston's Mike Fingers in the eighth. But in the ninth, with Pittsburgh's Roy Face pitching, the Americans tied it at 3-3 on a double by Norm Cash, singles by Al Kaline and Maris, and an error by third baseman Ken Boyer on Colavito's grounder.

The Nationals were guilty of two more errors in the inning but Kansas City's Dick Howser ended, leaving three runners stranded.

By the tenth the swirling winds were blowing dust into the player's eyes and caps off their heads. Miller, with his flutterball doing tricks in the wind, fanned the first two batters but walked Fox. Kaline bounced to Boyer but the third baseman's throw sailed past first and Fox scored with the tie-breaking run with Kaline racing all the way to third.

Henry Aaron opened the bottom of the tenth with a single off Baltimore's Hoyt Wilhelm, reached second on a passed ball and scored when Willie Mays bounced a double over third baseman Howser's head. After Robinson was hit by a pitch, Clemente singled Willie home to end the game.

Manager Paul Richards of the American League said the winds made Candlestick Park one of the worst playing fields in the major leagues but he declined to use it as an alibi.

"The winds were just as bad for one club as for the other," he said.

Richards' players were not as charitable. "If I had to play here all the time," growled Maris, "I'd quit. Sure we play for money but when the fun goes out of it, I don't see how it would be worth it."

Colavito just about echoed Maris' sentiments: "If I'm ever traded to the Giants," he said, "I think I'd be the longest holdout in history."

Wilhelm, the losing pitcher, said the wind was constantly blowing on his back and affected his pitching.

Howard, who went behind the plate to catch Wilhelm, only to be charged with a passed ball when he failed to stop a floating pitch, remarked: "I've never seen anything like this. How can anybody play in a park like this?"

Even the National Leaguers had some uncomplimentary things to say about the wind. "I thought a couple of pitches were coming back in my face," said Miller, who fanned four batters in the ninth and tenth to gain credit for the victory. "The wind was as bad as I've ever pitched in here. I'd start to wind up and the wind was blowing so hard it was hard to keep my balance on the pivot."

District Swim Features Scouts

FARMVILLE — The Pitt Scout District Annual Swim Meet is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Farmville's swimming pool.

Participating in two competitive divisions will be scouts from troops and Explorer posts throughout Pitt County.

Scouts aged 11-14 will compete in the younger division. Senior Scouts and Explorers will be competitors in the other division.

Five events will be staged in each division. Events include: (1) knot-tying rescue; (2) plunge for distance; (3) free-style relay; (4) medley relay; and (5) pearl diving event.

Trophies will be awarded the winning troop in each division on the basis of scores attained as a troop. Scores will be determined on the basis of a point system in each event and the troop or unit receiving the highest point total for all events will be the winner in its division.

Ralph Steele, swim meet director, and Tom Money, chairman of the district's Camping and Activities Committee, have urged troops who will participate in the meet to abide by the following rules:

—No scout or explorer may enter more than one event unless there are not enough members of his unit present to participate in all events.

—Boys should not eat within one hour of the meet.

—No "flippers" or "masks" will be allowed except in events so designated (the pearl diving event).

—No "horse play" by contestants or observers will be permitted.

—All participants must furnish their own bathing trunks and must take a shower before entering the pool.

The Farmville pool is located off Horton Street between Belcher Street and the Fountain Highway.

Year Saw $3.5 Million In New Building

HOUSE CONSTRUCTION BRISK DURING FISCAL YEAR . . . 121 new house construction permits issued by building inspector.

New construction for which permits were issued during the fiscal year 1960-61 totalled $3,515,652.55, city Building Inspector J. W. Wilson reports.

There were 253 permits issued for the fiscal year bringing in a total of $4,312 in fees.

Wilson's reports showed considerable construction of dwellings during the 1960-61 fiscal year. Permits were issued for 121 new houses to cost a total of $1,522,700. This would mean the dwellings would cost an average of $12,584 each.

Biggest single project for which a permit was issued during the fiscal year was the city's sewage disposal plant. Cost of this was set at $1,385,000—more than a third of the total new construction.

There were several projects on the East Carolina College campus during the year. Alterations to Flanagan were set at $82,793.07. Slay and Umstead alterations were valued at $116,118.73. North Cafeteria alterations cost $128,972.14. There were additions to the college warehouse, set at $62,421.81, and to Graham building, costing $98,709.74.

There were two major private business structures for which permits were issued during the year. One was the Sutton's Service Center building costing $60,000 and the other was the A and P building costing $70,000.

August was the big month of the year. Construction totalled for that month $1,709,031.55. The figure included the new sewage plant.

March was the top month of new dwelling construction. Permits were issued for 20 new homes that month. Dwelling construction permits month-by-month ran as follows: July, 9; August, 10; September, 4; October, 5; November, 8; December, 10; January, 10; February, 10; March, 20; April, 12; May, 15; June, 8.

For the month of June, permits for construction of eight residences valued at $109,500 were issued. There was a permit for one gas station to cost $25,000.

Four residence additions were approved to cost $5,100. There were two residence alterations permits with a value of $500, one business alteration to cost $1,500, one garage costing $100 and two storage buildings with a value of $1,300.

A total of 19 permits were issued for the month and fees turned over to the city clerk's office amounted to $302.

Four 'Freedom Riders' Refuse Post Bond After Their Arrest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four "Freedom Riders" arrested in the first bus-riding assault on Little Rock, Ark., have chosen to stay in jail until their trial rather than go free on bond.

They are scheduled for a Municipal Court hearing today. Their attorney, Thad Williams, a Negro, asked Judge Quinn Glover to delay the case one day to give him time to prepare a defense.

Bond for the four, arrested Monday night while a crowd of 300 ringed a bus station, was set at $500, but Williams said they would not seek release.

Jailed were the Rev. B. Elton Cox, 30, of St. Louis, Negro field secretary for the Congress of Racial Equality; Bliss Ann Malone, 23, St. Louis Negro teacher; Janet Reintz, 23, a New York housewife, and the Rev. John C. Raines, 27, white pastor of Setauket, N.Y. Methodist Church.

At Shreveport, La., the Justice

Department filed suit charging the illegal removal of nearly 4,800 Negroes from voting rolls in Louisiana's Ouachita Parish (County). The move brought a promise of resistance from parish officials at Monroe, La.

The complaint asked U.S. District Court to restore the Negroes to the registration rolls, and requested the registration of other eligible Negroes.

In announcing the suit Tuesday at Washington, U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert E. Kennedy said, "We have been unable to obtain effective guarantees from state and local officials that all residents of the parish will be allowed to vote on a fair and equal basis as required by law."

It was the fourth such case brought against alleged voter discrimination in Louisiana.

Two Negroes staged Jackson, Mississippi's first lunch counter sit-in in the midst of a concentrated effort to crack Mississippi's segregation barriers.

The pair, arrested on breach of peace charges, were identified as Jimmie Travis, 18, and Lavaghn Brown, 16, both of Jackson.

Also at Jackson, eight more Freedom Riders each posted $500 appeal bonds and were released from Hinds County custody on breach of peace convictions.

The move came as 17 Freedom Riders planned to leave Los Angeles, Calif., for Jackson. The Rev. Douglas A. Williams of Los Angeles will head the group, about equally divided between Negroes and white persons.

At Newark, N.J., the Rev. Joseph R. Randall said seven Freedom Riders will leave Newark Thursday morning for Chattanooga, Tenn.

Replica Of 1911 Biplane Is Flown

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)— Aviation was turned back 50 years Tuesday as a replica of the U.S. Navy's first airplane—a Curtiss seaplane built in 1911—flew from San Diego Bay.

Don Gemeraad, a test pilot for Convair Division of General Dynamics Corp. made four takeoffs and flew at about 100 feet altitude, at a speed of about 50 miles an hour.

The biplane replica was put together at North Island naval air station from parts constructed by members of the Institute of Aerospace Sciences. It will be an attraction at the Navy's 50th anniversary show Aug. 19-20.

William Cobb Expected Resume Testimony Today

MARSHALL, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina's Republican party chairman, target of a $900,000 libel suit, was expected to resume testimony today in an effort to document his charges that hanky-panky was involved in a 1959 bond election in Marshall precinct.

Three election officials—Democrats Zeno Ponder and Oren Rice, and Republican Frank Runnion—are suing GOP Chairman William E. Cobb for $300,000 each. They contend they were libeled by the charges he made in a letter to then Gov. Luther Hodges in November, 1959.

Cobb testified in Madison Superior Court Tuesday that he did not intend to refer to any individuals, but wanted "to reveal what I considered a very bad situation in regard to elections in Madison County and bring about a correction."

His letter to Hodges, also released to the press, did not name any Madison election officials. But the plaintiffs have produced witnesses who said they knew Cobb was referring to Ponder, Rice and Runnion.

Cobb noted that Hodges turned his letter over to the State Board of Elections. The slender, young-looking Cobb, who is 38, said he first met Ponder at an election board meeting on Nov. 17, 1959. Cobb admitted he was "nettled" because of a statement attributed to Ponder which he said appeared in several newspapers.

The Republican chairman quoted Ponder as saying, "The accusations are the rantings of a mentally disturbed person."

Asked by one of his lawyers why he was bothered by the remark, Cobb replied, "A member of my family is in a mental institution."

The State Board of Elections did not pursue Cobb's charges, which he repeated on the witness stand Tuesday. Cobb cited figures which he said showed that several large counties had a voter turnout averaging about 3 per cent for the statewide bond election Oct. 27, 1959, while Madison had a turnout of about 17 per cent.

Marshall precinct defeated the bond issue 905 to 34. It was narrowly beaten statewide. Earlier testimony has brought out that because a card-file system was used in the election instead of a poll book, there is no record to check how many actually voted.

Cobb's lawyers have subpoenaed every registered voter in the precinct—about 2,300—in an effort to show that fewer than 939 did vote. So far, 174 have said they voted in the bond election, 513 said they did not, and 55 could not remember.

Boy Returned To Pay Full Fare

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—George Young, a ticket agent for Greyhound Bus Lines, says a 12-year-old boy approached his counter and purchased $4 worth of half-price commuter tickets giving his age as 11.

Tuesday, Young said, the boy returned, put some money on the counter and said he was really 12 years old and should pay the full fare.

The agent said it was the first time in 30 years of selling tickets that anyone has corrected an error in favor of the company or to pay full fare when they could have ridden for half.

Fire Near Yosemite Park Out Of Control; Two Die

MADERA, Calif. (AP)—A forest fire raging out of control near Yosemite National Park has killed at least two persons, burned out two towns and sent hundreds fleeing for safety.

The blaze by early today had consumed some 25,000 acres of brush and timber. It destroyed the community of Nipinnawasee, sparing only a school and one of 60 homes.

Two miles south, it raced through the tiny town of Ahwahnee where it trapped and killed a couple fleeing by car. They were George Kipp and his wife, Etta, both about 60, of Ahwahnee.

An unidentified man and his two grandsons were reported missing. Robert Voss, assistant fire prevention officer for the State Division of Forestry, said a search was on for them but they were feared lost.

U.S. Highway 41, the year around route to Yosemite, was clogged with autos of fleeing persons.

Fire fighters at Ahwahnee said only 12 homes were left there. At least 50 were destroyed.

Today the flames, which spread over a five-mile front, swept the edge of Oakhurst, a community of about 3,000.

Voss said reports reaching the forestry division's communications center in Fresno indicated the town had been saved.

"But there's no telling what will happen. This fire is a long way from being under control," he said.

A second major fire that had also consumed 25,000 acres was reported being brought under control about 40 miles northwest of the Madera County blaze.

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A look at love and marriage in the United States, a bloodhound on the moon and a new daylight camera for planets.

LOVE AND MARRIAGE

Last year more American men married at age 21 than at any other age, and more women married at age 18, says the Population Reference Bureau.

If you sliced the 1960 marriage statistics down the middle, you'd find the median age for grooms was 22.8 years, for brides 20.3 years.

These figures show, said the bureau, that young folks getting married for the first time are younger and closer in age in the United States than in any comparable nation.

LUNAR BLOODHOUND
Now they've built a little black box that will act like a bloodhound on the moon—sniffing out the gases that emanate from the moon's soil for traces of life chemicals.

The device—which will be shot to the moon in 1963 as part of the U.S. Surveyor space craft—will be able to break down small samples of the moon's soil and report back what chemicals it finds.

It will look for certain carbon chemicals associated with life—chemicals which have already been found in meteorites, and which may have been the essential life beginnings on earth.

DAY SHIFT
Scientists can now take pictures of planets, rockets and missiles in broad daylight—pictures that once could only be taken at night. The pictures, which can be transmitted directly to indoor screens, can be viewed continuously—thanks to the Facet-Eye camera, developed at the Air Force Missile Development Center, Holloman Air Force Base, N.M.

The camera has already viewed Venus and Jupiter—and may make practical the 24-hour observation by visual means of satellites and rockets in space. It uses 19 long-barreled telescopes each focused on a single point in the sky—and superimposes one image on another.

It thus obtains the magnification of one large telescope, but gets clear images in daylight by reducing the amount of stray light.

A THEORY OF WEATHER
A way in which the sun may be a builder of the world's weather has been suggested by a Soviet scientist, says the Soviet news agency Tass.

Dr. Dmitry Drogaitsev believes the building of high and low pressure areas in the earth's air—and the circulation of winds—correlates with the activity on the surface of the sun.

His theory suggests: The sun as it affects the electrical currents in the upper atmosphere and the earth's magnetic field as it in turn affects those currents causes buildups in density of air around the equator and polar areas. The concurrent drain on air supplies of the tropics causes the low pressure areas, which often bring storms and mixing of air to the earth's surface.

Tug-of-War On News Front Affects Stocks

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Front-page headlines pull the stock market in opposite directions these days. The tug of war adds to the problems of business planners and multiplies the worries of big and little investors alike as they try to guess which stocks are going which way.

And the consumer, too, can't be sure but what all the front-page alarms sounded on the front pages won't upset his own plans. So he also turns cautious.

In dollars and cents there seems to be one fairly safe prediction of what the headlines from Washington, Moscow and Berlin mean: Defense spending will go up. So, too, will the U.S. Treasury deficit. And fears of further inflation will be weighed by both stock traders and consumers.

Increased government spending will help some companies with new orders, and some workers with longer work weeks or more job opportunities.

Stocks of companies which seem likely to benefit already are attracting the attention of stock market professionals. Companies which won't benefit will look less attractive by comparison.

Here are some of the front-page items that business and the stock market are trying to assess: The Berlin crisis has upset the market. War talk always does.

While defense spending helps many companies, armed conflict upsets the financial apperect of countless more.

The charge that the American economy is being bolstered largely by defense spending now, and that disarmament would undermine it, is denied by Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U.S. representative at the United Nations.

He tells the United Nations Economic and Social Council meeting in Geneva that a disarmament pact would help the U.S. economy. Then we could turn "our resources from production of instruments of death to the production of the manifold things we need for a better life."

When former President Dwight D. Eisenhower left office he asked for a defense budget of $41 billion in the fiscal year that has just now started. Disturbing world news has twice led President Kennedy to raise that estimate. He now asks $43.4 billion in new military appropriations.

Citing this as an excuse, Soviet Premier Khrushchev has just announced the Soviet Union is raising its military spending by one-third.

The official estimate that the Treasury would end this fiscal year $3.7 billion in the red was already widely held to be an understatement. Many think the already rapidly rising spending plans would mean a deficit of $4 to $5 billion.

If defense appropriations are hiked still further, it's only a guess how much more the Treasury will have to borrow to meet the bills.

The stock market and the bond market will quickly take note. Business executives may revamp some of their planning, too. In time it could affect all of us.

Dolores Hart Moves Into Serious Roles

By BOB THOMAS

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP)—Dolores Hart is the kind of a girl that things happen to.

For instance, we find the actress at Noordwijk-Ann-Zee, a North Sea resort town that is seeing a second German invasion—this time they're coming as tourists.

She is living there while making a movie called "The Inspector." Normally a blonde with a glow of health and hair long enough to sit on, she is playing a dark, short-haired escapee of a concentration camp.

"I don't know how it all happened," she said. "I'm usually playing little Miss Goodie Two-Shoes, bright-eyed and all."

She had played only one dramatic role in her brief, busy career—a Playhouse 90 TV program with Stephen Boyd, her co-star in "The Inspector." She thought it might have inspired producer Mark Robson to cast her again with Boyd. But no, he was curiously inspired by her role in "Where The Boys Are," a determinedly flippant film.

Her career started when, as a student at a Catholic girls' school in Studio City, Calif., a friend persuaded her to try out for the lead in a production of "St. Joan." She did and won it.

The friend circulated the studios and the sincerity of the letter so impressed producer Hal Wallis that he sent for Dolores. As a result she appeared opposite Elvis Presley in "Loving You."

Her next film was "Wild In The Wind" with Anna Magnani, Anthony Quinn and Anthony Franciosa. Then came a Broadway show, "The Pleasure of His Company," with Cyril Ritchard, Cornelia Otis Skinner, Walter Abel and Charles Ruggles.

Now 24, bright-eyed Dolores seems headed for a career as a dramatic actress as well as a portrayer of debutante types.

Data Is Needed By Draft Board

Following are the names and birth dates of 25 men whom the local Selective Service bureau would like to contact during a review of their files.

The office wants information about each one's occupation, marital status, number of dependents and address. Anyone knowing the whereabouts of any of these men is asked to contact the local Selective Service.

The men are: Joseph Earl Smith, Sept. 13, 1934; Charles Lenwood Blow, Sept. 17, 1934; Johnnie Lee Ward, Sept. 22, 1934; William Henry Jones, Sept. 27, 1934; Henry Walton Ford, Oct. 6, 1934; Elmer Clayton Lancaster, Oct. 29, 1934; Allen David Winston, Oct. 30, 1934; Richard Lee Darden, Nov. 1, 1934; Elmer Ray Ebron, Nov. 1, 1934; Wilton Burns Haddock, Nov. 2, 1934; Joseph Lee Sutton, Nov. 3, 1934; Willie James Moore, Nov. 12, 1934; Willie Clyde Tyson, Nov. 15, 1934; James Junior Howell, Nov. 20, 1934; Jesse Junior Cogdell, Nov. 22, 1934; Leland Alexander Evans, Nov. 25, 1934; Garland Wesley Davis, Dec. 2, 1934; Kadell Stevenson, Dec. 19, 1934; Robert Samuel Whitehurst, Dec. 25, 1934; Lester Gray Cox, Jan. 1, 1935; Bruce Ray Williams, Jan. 6, 1935; James Madison Mills, Jan. 13, 1935; Curtis Lee Evans, Jan. 20, 1935; Robert Hines, Jan. 28, 1935; Herbert Daniels, Jan. 31, 1935.

A Bit Of Home From Somaliland

BALTIMORE (AP)—Attorney Joseph I. Paper recently was given an exotic bamboo pipe by a friend, a merchant marine captain who had bought the pipe in French Somaliland.

After the captain left, Paper examined the pipe closely and discovered that it was "Made in U.S.A."

Much of the soil of the Dominican Republic is so fertile that sugar cane will grow from the same roots for years, and green fence posts sometimes turn themselves into trees.

Adding Instructors To Nursing School

Three new instructors have joined the staff of the School of Nursing at East Carolina College. Dean Eva Warren has announced that Mrs. Bonnie Evans Waldrop, Mrs. Mary Snyder Steele, and Mrs. Ruth J. Broadhurst have begun their duties for the summer session and will continue as faculty members during the 1961-1962 term. Mrs. Waldrop attended the University of California at Berkeley and holds the B.S. degree from the Division of the University at Berkeley. She has had experience in medical - surgical nursing at DePaul Hospital, Norfolk, Va.; Mercy Hospital, Urbana, Illinois; and Rex Hospital, Raleigh, N. C. She has also been connected with the Institute of Social Research of the University of Michigan, doing social research in Pitt County, N. C., and with the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross. Her husband, Frederick L. Broadhurst, is a member of the Alpha Xi Delta sorority. Her husband Paul E. Waldrop, an East Carolina alumnus, will join the East Carolina faculty this fall as a member of the industrial arts department. Mrs. Steele is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College in Pennsylvania; holds the master of nursing degree from the Yale School of Nursing at New Haven, Conn.; and has done graduate work at the University of North Carolina. Her experience includes work at the S.C. Baptist Hospital School of Nursing and the Columbia Hospital School of Nursing, both in Columbia, S. C., and the Rex Hospital School of Nursing in Raleigh, N. C. Mrs. Broadhurst received her training as a nurse in St. Louis, Mo., at St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing and at Washington University, from which she holds the B.S. degree. For the past year she has been assistant director of nurses at Pitt County Memorial Hospital in Greenville. Previously she was connected for eight years with Jefferson Barracks Veterans Administration Hospital in St. Louis. Her husband, Frederick L. Broadhurst, is a member of the industrial arts department at East Carolina. West Germany has spent more than $500 million during the last 10 years on road improvements and new road construction.

Duke Common Stock On Mart

CHARLOTTE — (AP) — Duke Power Co.'s common stock was traded on the New York Stock Exchange for the first time this morning. President W. B. McGuire of Duke, whose headquarters are here, said 11,505,077 shares of common stock were initially listed on the board with 11,395,580 shares of this stock now issued and outstanding. Another 109,497 shares is authorized to be issued pursuant to the company's stock purchase savings program for employees. Duke stock for a number of years has been accorded unlisted privileges on the American Stock Exchange. It will be traded under the symbol "DUK" on the New York Exchange. The 57-year-old utility, one of the nation's 10 largest electric operating companies, serves 720,000 customers in a 20,000-square mile area of Piedmont North Carolina and South Carolina. O. J. Miller, executive vice president of Duke Power, kicked off its trading on the New York Exchange, purchasing 100 of the shares listed today.

Heads Saved By Blue Coconuts

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Painted blue and worn as hats, coconut shells are helping the Congo's Luntu tribesmen keep their heads in time of crisis. But for the U.N. Congo command the new Luntu headgear is another headache. Coconuts, explained a U.N. spokesman today, were behind a protest fired off this week by "King" Albert Kalonji of South Kasi Province. The monarch of the Baluba tribe complained to the U.N. command that Luntu tribesmen dressed as U.N. soldiers were crossing his frontier and raiding border villages. The Luntu wore the same blue helmets as U.N. troops, Kalonji charged. U.N. officials investigated but found no uniforms or helmets were going astray. Then they visited a Luntu village near Luluabourg—and found blue-painted coconut shells adorning the heads of several young warriors. "The Balubas and the Luntus are traditional enemies," explained the U.N. spokesman. "We didn't find any evidence that the Luntus were raiding the Balubas. But the Luntus found that by wearing these improvised blue helmets they passed as U.N. troops and escaped attack by the Balubas."

Hitler Collection Is Highly Valued

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Andrew Sivi has a collection of items once owned by or associated with Adolph Hitler, which he says has been valued at $50,000 by Army officials. The collection include: a 22-caliber pistol that belonged to the Nazi leader; a hand towel with the monogram "A.H."; a toy stuffed dog given Hitler by his niece; many swords, armbands, flags and banners, and several letters and cards signed by Hitler.

Split In New York City's Democrat Party Ranks Spurring Republicans

EDITOR'S NOTE—James Devlin, Associated Press writer who frequently reports on New York state and city politics, reports on the Democratic battle in the city and the possibility of a Republican takeover. Wagner will be opposed in the Sept. 7 primary by State Comptroller Arthur Levitt. The fight took shape after Wagner decided to run without the support of the party's city organization leaders, or "bosses." This places him in a favorable light with party insurgents of the liberal wing and, it is reported unofficially, with the White House. Wagner contended the leaders attempted to influence his choice of running mates and he said he would run only on a ticket of his own choosing. The leaders retaliated by naming Levitt to oppose him. Aside from fighting among themselves in the primary, the Democrats will be confronted in the Nov. 7 election by a Republican mayoral candidate of proven vote-getting ability — State Atty Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz. Christenberry, in contrast, was running for office for the first time in 1957. The background of the Democratic melee is this: Wagner, son of the late New Deal senator who sponsored the Wagner Labor Relations Act, was elected in 1953 and 1957 with the support of the organization leader. They included Carmine G. DeSapio, chief of Tammany Hall, the Manhattan Democratic organization. In 1958, a group of Adlai E. Stevenson followers headed by former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt started an insurgent move to oust DeSapio on grounds of bossism. The insurgents were ranked because DeSapio at a state convention that year obtained the nomination of Manhattan Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan as U.S. senator over Thomas K. Finletter, former Air Force secretary favored by the liberal wing. Lehman interrupted an Adirondacks vacation this week to visit the city and announce he would give his full support to Wagner. He indicated Mrs. Roosevelt also would campaign for him. The question now posed is: Can Levitt, backed by the organization and its traditional ability to get out a primary vote, overcome Wagner's consistent record as a vote getter and his insurgent support? Then, can the winner of the bi-

Ancient Medical Lore Is Hobby

BALTIMORE (AP)—M.L. Cooper of Baltimore collects ancient medical lore as a hobby. Here are a couple of his gems from 15th Century Europe: "Ache of Head—Take wormwood, was and incense and stamp them together with the white of an egg and put it in a linen cloth and bind it about the head. Take a handful of rue and another of ground ivy, the third of leaves of laurel and seethe them together in water or in wine, and that plaster lay on the head."

To Offer Course On Red Tactics

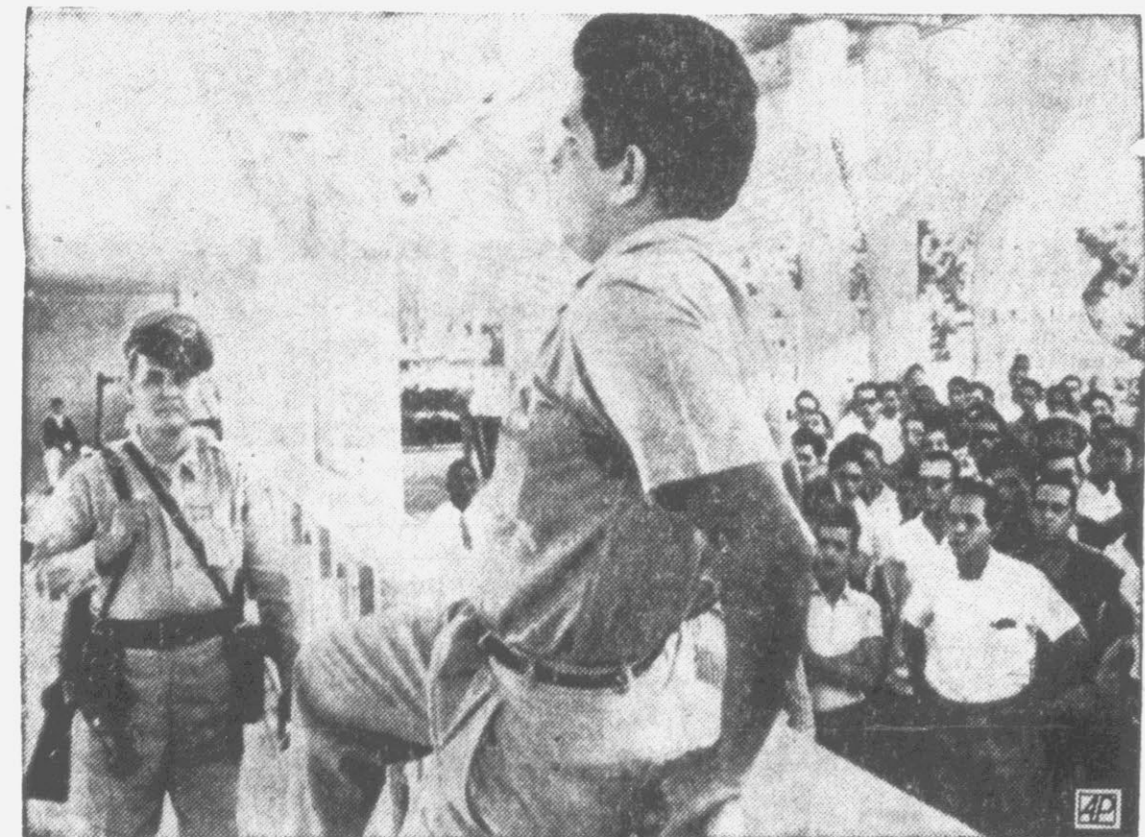

FORT AMADOR, Panama Canal Zone (AP)—The U.S. Army unveiled plans Tuesday to instruct Latin-American military commanders on the theories and practices of Communist aggression. The course, which will stress means to combat subversive and guerrilla tactics developed by the Soviet and Chinese Communists, will begin July 31 at Fort Gulick in the Canal Zone. It will be similar to one now taught at Fort Bragg, N.C. Many Latin-American republics have requested such a course.

If Hurting, Pupil Had An Answer

DES MOINES (AP) — "Did you feel any strange pains in your chest over the weekend?" high school sophomore Mary Ann Cass asked her English teacher, Frank Angerer. "No — why do you ask?" Angerer replied. Two weeks later he got the answer when Miss Cass turned in a term paper. On the front cover was a picture of Angerer—stuck full of pins. The subject of the paper: Voodooism.

ACCURACY! Newspapers Direct Your Message Right Where It Counts

An advertiser wants to make his point with people who are potential buyers. Newspapers deliver more "ready to buy" prospects than any other medium. Readers are attracted to ads that interest them. This means that readership ratings on ads represent live prospects for the advertiser. These are people who are easy to sell because they already have a product interest. People look for—and want—advertising in the daily newspaper.

Shoes Wear Out In Crazy Pattern

ELMIRA, N. Y. (AP) — Shoe repairman Joe Bauda says that in about 75 percent of the men's shoes he fixes, the left shoe is worn. With women it's anybody's guess which shoe will wear first, he says.

"Women seldom buy shoes that fit properly and their shoes wear out in a crazy pattern," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market backed down irregularly in moderate trading early this afternoon. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 70 at 246.20 with industrials down 90, rails down 30 and utilities off 10.

Losses of fractions to about a point were the usual thing among key stocks. The tone was generally lower among steels, motors, aircrafts, aluminum, electronics, rails and bowling equipment stocks. Magnum, despite shareholder approval of a 3-for-1 split and declaration of a 50 per cent boost in dividend, recouped only fractionally from Tuesday's 3 1/2-point loss. Polaroid was down half a dozen points or so. Litton Industries fell more than 3 and Zenith about 4.

Ayden Board Organized At Monday's Meeting

AYDEN—The principal business at the Ayden Town Board meeting Monday night was appointment of commissioners by Mayor S. E. Peterson and the reappointment of Commissioner Harry Mumford as mayor pro tem. The commissioners are as follows: Commissioner of Public Safety, Robert G. Harris; Commissioner of Public Works, Harry Mumford; Commissioner of Public Utilities, Norman Dail; Commissioner of Public Sanitation, W. D. Gibson; Commissioner of Public Services, J. W. James. The committees remained the same as they were last year. The commis-

Tobacco Crop Is 'Above Average'

RALEIGH (AP)—After a slow start due to a cold spring, North Carolina's 1961 flue-cured tobacco crop promises above average yields. The State Crop Reporting Service said Tuesday that the outlook, based on growers' reports as of July 1, is for production of 819,600,000 pounds. This would be 2.4 per cent, or 20,270,000 pounds, under last year.

With 462,000 acres for harvest, this would give a yield of 1,774 pounds per acre. The acreage is 4,500 above last year and the largest since 1956. The yield, if realized, would be 62 pounds under the all-time record set last year.

North Carolina forecasts, by belts: Middle and Old — 294,125,000 pounds production, 1,625 pounds per acre yield; 2,355,000 pounds above the 1960 production, compares with 1960 yield of 1,630. Eastern—421,875,000 pounds, 1, 875 yield, compared with 1960 figures of 441,540,000 pounds, 1,980 yield. Border—103,600,000 pounds, 1, 850 yield, compared with 1960 figures of 106,560,000 pounds, 1,920 yield.

Ayden Police Department Promotions Announced

AYDEN—Veteran police officers James Ross and Clifton Dennis of the Ayden Police Department have been promoted to the positions of lieutenant and sergeant, respectively, it was announced yesterday.

Lt. Ross was promoted from the position of sergeant. He has been in the law enforcement field since August of 1949. Prior to that time, he served as a military policeman with the U. S. Army during World War II.

Sgt. Dennis, promoted from the position of patrolman, has been a police officer since 1952, having served as a constable of Ayden Township for two years and later with the Grifton Police Department for eight months. He joined the Ayden Police Department June 1, 1955 and has served there since that time.

Both officers have attended sessions for police officers conducted in Greenville. Sgt. Ross recently completed one part of a fingerprinting course conducted by the S.B.I. in Raleigh. He plans to complete the course this fall.

Rites Thursday For Mrs. H. H. Ballenger

Mrs. Mary Della Ballenger, 74, widow of Hugh Harrell Ballenger, died in a Wilson Hospital Tuesday morning at six o'clock. She had been in failing health for a number of years and critically ill for the past six months.

Merit Pay Plan Is Adopted By Utilities

Utilities Commissioners, formally adopted a merit pay plan for its employees which will be in line with the city's pay policies. The basic plan was prepared for the Utilities by the Institute of Government and with changes made by the commission, it was officially adopted last night.

In addition to setting pay ranges for the various job classifications, the plan establishes holidays, vacation policies, retirement policy and other job benefits. These policies were made to conform with the city's policies.

Commissioners also set forth a policy of giving first priority to water and sewer line work in connection with the city's street improvements. Chairman Charles Horne said that this work should be done before the Utilities crews begin water and sewer installations in new subdivisions.

The city is in the midst of perhaps its biggest street paving program at the present time. In connection with this Utilities crews must move water meters and install new lines where needed. Commissioners approved an expense budget for the coming fiscal year. They set a meeting for July 25 to discuss the capital improvements budget for 1961-62.

Also discussed was an advertising budget for the fiscal year. Chairman Horne welcomed City Manager Louis Scheipers as a member of the commission.

"We look to you to be sort of a liaison between the Utilities Commission and the city," he said. "The Utilities Commission and the city manager form of government operate exactly alike. The commission sets policy and the superintendent carries out the policy administratively."
