RALEIGH—Gov. Sanford today appointed Louis Stuart Ficklen of Greenville to the State Ports Authority. Ficklen's appointment rounded out the nine-member board.

Sees Pressure On E. German People

BERLIN (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today the heavy flow of refugees into West Berlin indicates the Communist East German regime was stepping up pressure on its citizens.

"The refugee situation proves that conditions over there have become unbearable," the West German leader told a news conference. "A panic seems to have broken out."

Refugees now cross easily from East Berlin to West Berlin and are flown to West Germany. Soviet threats to hand over more authority to East Germany have encouraged the Red regime there to demand control over air corridors to West Berlin. This would close the refugee escape hatch. West Berlin is 100 miles inside East Germany.

Within East Germany the tension over Berlin has brought a stepped-up campaign to make people support communism more actively. Party members are urged to do more grass-roots organization work.

These organizing efforts, plus food shortages of such staples as potatoes and butter appear to be major causes for refugee flight.

The Communists imposed new controls in East Berlin again today to stop the drain on their sagging economy. West Berliners hereafter can obtain services in East Berlin only by changing their marks on a one-for-one basis. A Western mark is worth 4.62 East marks in West Berlin. West Berliners have been taking advantage of the cheap East German money by getting haircuts.

Indicates Southerners 'Not Model Americans'

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — An Episcopal minister, just returned Wednesday night from Mississippi where he spent 23 days in jail as a "Freedom Rider," told a reporter, in answer to a question, that he did not consider Southerners "model Americans."

The Rev. Grant Muse, white pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Berkeley, told newsmen he and other Freedom Riders were abused and ridiculed by their Mississippi jailers.

A San Francisco reporter asked: "Do you think Southerners are un-American and un-Christian?" "No, I don't think they are," the Rev. Muse replied.

this capacity."

Ficklen, 42-year-old Greenville native, is president of E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Co. of Greenville, International Tobacco Co. of Greenville, Atlantic Leaf Tobacco Co. of Greenville and Washington Tobacco Co. of Washington, N. C.

He is vice president and a director of Interstate Tobacco Co. of Lumberton, North State Tobacco Co. of Fuquay Springs and Douglas Tobacco Co. of Douglas, Ga.

Ficklen is a member of the Board of Governors of the Tobacco Association of the United States and is treasurer and chairman of the Executive Committee of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association. He is also a member of the Board of Managers of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. of Greenville and a director of Security Life and Trust Co. of Winston-Salem.

A Democrat, Ficklen was born in Greenville Dec. 15, 1918, the son of the late Edward Bancroft and Myra Skinner Ficklen. He attended the Greenville public schools and the Episcopal High School in Alexandria, Va. He was graduated in 1940 from the University of North Carolina with a Bachelor of Science degree in commerce.

He served in the U.S. Navy from 1942 until 1945. His service included a tour of duty in the Pacific during World War II. Ficklen currently holds the rank of lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve.

A past president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, Ficklen is a member of the Greenville Elks Lodge and of the North Carolina Society of Cincinnati.

Ficklen is a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Greenville where he is a member of the vestry. He is a past senior warden of that church and is a member of the Executive Council and Finance Committee of the East Carolina Diocese.

He is married to the former Marie Donnelly of Bowling Green, Ky., and is the father by a former marriage of three children, Louise-Glass Ficklen, 19, Louis Stuart Ficklen Jr., 17, and Myra Skinner Ficklen, 14.

Ficklen currently resides at 508 W. Fifth St. in Greenville.

DeGaulle Avers West Will Never Let Soviet Decide Berlin's Fate

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle said Wednesday the West will never let the Soviet Union settle the fate of Berlin alone "as if the three great powers had no rights there."

The French leader in a television speech warned the Soviets they are creating a crisis over the former German capital that threatens the peace of the world.

De Gaulle charged the Soviets with calling for peace "while formulating requirements which threaten to put it in danger."

"The Soviets are renewing their threat of unilaterally settling the fate of Berlin... if Washington, London and Paris do not give up the present status of the town as required by Moscow," he said, then warned: "I declare once more, there is no chance of this being accepted."

He further warned the Soviet Union it must bear the full responsibility for any "grave consequences" of a crisis over Berlin. At the same time he called for an atmosphere of true cooperation and coexistence in which "a problem like that of Germany would lose much of its bitterness and might, at some moment, be considered objectively by the interested powers."

De Gaulle told his own people that France must speedily purchase modern arms to replace the World War II weapons that most of her forces have. Starting in September, he said, the length of French draftees' military service will be cut by an unspecified number of weeks, and funds thus saved will be used to modernize the army.

Moscow said De Gaulle's remarks on Berlin "only repeated U.S. and West German propaganda, crudely distorting the Soviet position." The broadcast said the French leader proposed "to prolong the occupation there, keeping West Berlin as a central provocation in the heart of Europe."

In Moscow, meanwhile, the West German government told the Soviets free elections throughout divided Germany must precede the signing of any German peace treaty.

The West German note replied to a Soviet note proposing that separate peace treaties be signed with West Germany and Communist East Germany. Bonn replied that a peace treaty must be concluded with a legitimate German government freely elected by all the German people.

"A separate peace with only part of Germany would violate the right of self-determination of nations laid down in the charter of the United Nations, which the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics has recognized and pledged to respect," the Bonn note said.

West Berlin continued calm as storm clouds gathered overhead. But the flight of refugees streamed into the "escape hatch" from Communist East Germany at a rate of more than 1,000 a day—the highest in eight years.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, visiting West Berlin to demonstrate the close links between the isolated city and West Germany conferred with Mayor Willy Brandt and other city government officials. In a communique they reaffirmed five principles agreed upon during Adenauer's last visit to the city in January 1960:

- 1. The Western powers have a right to be in West Berlin.
2. The legal, financial and economic ties between West Berlin and West Germany are the basis for the city's freedom.
3. Free access to West Berlin must not be restricted.
4. No international agreement on Berlin should contradict the clear wishes of its people.
5. West Berlin must continue to be the meeting place for Germans.

In Paris, the United States, Britain and France consulted their allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization on their replies to the Soviet note of June 4 threatening to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany this year. There was no indication when the replies were delivered, but De Gaulle's speech and the West German note made clear the other allies would join in firm opposition to the Soviet attempt to remove the Western protection from West Berlin.

In Gettysburg, Pa., former President Eisenhower declared that a Western surrender to Khrushchev on Berlin would be far worse than the British-French surrender of the Czech Sudetenland to Hitler at Munich.

Eisenhower told Paul Martin of the Gannett News Service that he firmly believes the Soviets do not want an all-out war over Berlin. "Anything else but will use other methods to achieve their ends

Quick Test For Satellite Storm Hunter Is Likely

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A weather disturbance in the Atlantic could provide a quick test for the new camera-carrying Tires III hurricane-hunter satellite.

The 285-pound satellite rocketed into orbit Wednesday to photograph and perhaps discover the cause of tropical storms. Within hours, the Miami Weather Bureau reported a disturbance southeast of Puerto Rico, 400-600 miles east of the Lesser Antilles.

Above-normal shower activity, clouds and moderate winds were reported from the area. Weather officials said over-all conditions were not favorable for hurricane development, but Navy hurricane patrol planes were to make a thorough aerial investigation.

A Tires project officer said Tires III probably would pass over the disturbance zone today and there was a possibility the two television cameras would obtain pictures of the potential storm.

A Thor-Delta rocket boosted the meteorological satellite into an orbit ranging from 460.74 to 506.52 miles above the earth. It circles the globe once every 90 minutes.

On its first pass, Tires III transmitted 35 pictures showing cloud cover formation over Newfoundland, the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the St. Lawrence Valley region.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration described the photos as "excellent."

A project officials suspect the disturbance in the Atlantic could develop into a hurricane, they can command the two cameras to take pictures when the satellite is over the weather system. The photos will be stored on magnetic tape and played to ground stations at Wallops Island, Va., or San Nicolas, Calif., when Tires III passes overhead.

LONDON (AP) — A one-ton whale invaded London by speeding 60 miles up the busy Thames River Wednesday but got tangled in reeds and died.

The 14-foot mammal—a rare female specimen of the lesser Portuguese whale—slipped through the heavy river traffic to get 13 miles upstream from London Bridge.

Trying to evade a motor launch as the tide ebbed, she ran aground near Kew. A group of men came to the rescue, found she was injured and hauled her back into the river.

Spouting water, the whale sped away while police in a launch waved off boats and tried to maneuver her toward the open sea. But the whale got caught in reeds and died after the police launch dragged her free.

Lightning Kills 8 Farm Workers On Sampson Farm During Shower

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — The farm workers were in the field harvesting tobacco when a typical summer shower started.

The workers, all nine of them, sought refuge in a nearby barn, as they had done before, leaving the cut leaf under a shelter, planning to return to their tasks after the shower ended.

For eight of them, there was no return. A bolt of lightning smashed down the barn door, seared across the damp ground and cut them down in an instant, leaving no mark on their bodies.

Several other people in the barn were unhurt. Among the victims was the sharecropper couple operating the simple farmstead, Oscar and Annette Cottle. Another was a 70-year-old Negro woman. The rest were teen-agers.

The lone survivor from among the nine was Eugene Daughtry, 16, who was hospitalized for shock. "I guess I was mighty lucky," said the strapping Negro youth.

"I had my head against one corner," he went on, "and I saw the lightning when it came in. Something seemed to hit the back of my head. Then I heard the thunder, and that's all I remember."

The door was knocked off its hinges by the lightning bolt, but the barn was otherwise hardly damaged.

Killed in addition to the Cottles were William Keel, 13; Mary Morrissey, 7; Joyce Ann Mathis, 13; Ludie Mathis, 18; Earl Bell, 15; and Samuel Newkirk, 16. All but Keel and the Cottles couple were Negroes.

One of the Cottles' two children, a 4-year-old daughter, was one of several persons who survived the lightning strike without injury.

Deputy W. B. Lockerman of the Sampson County Sheriff's Department, the first officer to reach the barn, said there was a strange peacefulness to the scene.

"They were lying all around the dirt floor, like they were sleeping," he said. "No, there was no sign of life in any of them."

Dr. L. C. Peak of Sampson Memorial Hospital here said he

Final Instructions For Top U.S. Disarmament Adviser

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy gave final instructions to his top disarmament adviser today for a new round of negotiations with the Soviet Union on setting up a new international disarmament conference this summer.

The President was understood to have told disarmament chief John J. McCloy that he should make every possible effort in talks beginning at Moscow Monday to work out arrangements, including details of time, place and the nations which would be invited to attend.

Kennedy's meeting with McCloy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk was one of two major foreign policy sessions on his calendar today. The other was a late-afternoon meeting of the National Security Council reportedly called to discuss West Berlin. Rusk and other policy makers were summoned to the NSC session.

The last such meeting on Berlin came two weeks ago. At that time Kennedy assigned to Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and other administration executives various aspects of the Berlin crisis. They were told to come up with plans and recommendations for meeting the Soviet challenge.

The steps under consideration include possible reinforcement of the five U.S. divisions in Europe, calling up of National Guard and reserve units, and the declaration of a national emergency to increase presidential powers.

U.S. officials say they are determined to make every possible effort to come to some agreement with Soviet leaders on new disarmament negotiations, but they face the future with dwindling hope of success.

Opinion is divided on the question, but many authorities in high

Pay Increases Are Authorized

RALEIGH (AP)—The Advisory Budget Commission has authorized pay increases totaling more than $17,000 annually for several top-ranking state officials.

William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, got a $2,500 raise Wednesday to $22,500 a year. NEXT TO GOV. SANFORD, who draws $25,000, Friday is the highest paid state official.

Merrill Evans, New Highway Commission chairman, had his pay set at $15,200 a year. Other raises included:

Hargrove Bowles Jr., director of the Conservation and Development Department, and Revenue Commissioner Bill Johnson, each $500 raises to $15,000 a year; Leo Jenkins, East Carolina College, $1,500 raise to $16,000; W. H. Flemmons, Appalachian, $1,500 to $15,000; Paul Reid, Western Carolina, $1,500 to $14,000; W. J. Gale at Pembroke, Rudolph Jones of Fayetteville Teachers, and Walter Ridley of Elizabeth City Teachers, each raised $1,000 to $11,000; Alfonso Elder, North Carolina College, Durham, $1,000 to $14,000; W. T. Gibbs, A&T, $500 to $14,000; Secretary Fred Weaver, Consolidated University, $1,000 to $16,000; A. H. Shepherd Jr., Consolidated business manager and treasurer, $1,500 to $14,000; James A. Branch, UNC business manager, $1,200 to $13,700; Graves Vann, State College business manager, $1,200 to $13,700; Wendell Murray, Woman's College business manager, $1,200 to $13,700.

position here see little prospect of progress in disarmament talks at this time. The reason: the tough aggressive attitude which Soviet Premier Khrushchev recently has been developing toward the United States and its allies, primarily over the Berlin issue.

The announcement by Khrushchev last weekend that he had ordered a halt in previously scheduled cutbacks in the strength of the Soviet armed forces has been taken here as typical of the tough, tension-creating policy which he now pursues.

His statement in Moscow this week that the Soviet Union would use force if necessary to protect its security interests against any United Nations decision that might threaten those interests is considered in Washington to be in the same vein of tough talk.

Discouragement about disarmament prospects also stems from two other recent East-West experiences.

Efforts by the United States and Britain to come to some understanding with the Soviet Union on a treaty for prohibiting nuclear weapons tests under an international inspection system have bogged down completely.

The nuclear test conference at Geneva is still technically under way but for weeks has made no progress whatever. U.S. and British negotiators have found what they consider evidence that the Soviets have lost interest in getting a nuclear weapons test ban.

The most striking piece of evidence in the view of U.S. officials is that when Khrushchev met Kennedy at Vienna early last month he proposed that the separate nuclear test talks be dropped entirely and that the whole problem of the test ban be thrown into a general disarmament conference.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has warned that Hayden's Hollandaise sauce could cause food poisoning.

The FDA Wednesday advised consumers to destroy any of the sauce they might have on hand and said dealers should stop selling the product. Shipments are being seized at several points across the country.

The FDA said 25 cases of food poisoning have been reported by the Los Angeles City Health Department and that the product in California has been quarantined.

FDA Commissioner George P. Larrick said the manufacturer has been asked to recall the product—a cream sauce used mostly on vegetables—from the market.

The maker of the sauce is Hayden's Hollandaise, Inc., of College Point, N.Y. In New York, Joseph Buch, the firm's attorney, said it had been in business for some 30 years and that there was "never any incident like this." He said the company had received no report of the FDA analysis.

WASHINGTON (AP) — International goodwill made some strides forward today but the boxwood in the White House rose garden took a beating.

And a lot of youngsters from abroad were shoved and trampled and pushed to the ground in a noisy, joyous surge to try to get close to President Kennedy.

The garden was jammed with 1,827 teen-agers from 51 countries. For the past year, they have been living with American families throughout the United States and, as exchange students, attending the senior year of high school under auspices of the American Field Service.

Pakistani Chief And President Hold Final Talk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pakistan President Ayub Khan and President Kennedy held their third and final conference today. Kashmir, Pakistan's relations with India, and other problems were reported to figure in the talks.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk met the Pakistani leader at the entrance to the White House and escorted him to Kennedy's oval study.

Both sides are pleased with the outcome of the talks," Rusk told newsmen.

"We have gone around the entire world situation," Rusk said, "and the problems confronting the Western allies have been thoroughly examined."

Strong assurances of continued U.S. economic support for Pakistan's $5-billion five-year plan were expected to come from the meeting.

The two leaders were to discuss the Kashmir question at their second White House meeting Wednesday but concentrated instead on Pakistan's economic development problems.

Ayub will be host to the Kennedys tonight at a formal dinner in a downtown hotel.

A communique will be issued before his departure Friday for New York aboard a U.S. Air Force plane.

U.S. and Pakistani officials both agreed that Ayub's visit here so far has cleared up misunderstandings and improved U.S.-Pakistan relations.

Pakistan officials made no secret of their desire that the United States take a more prominent role in inducing India to meet with Pakistan at a conference table to arrange a settlement of the Kashmir dispute.

Pakistan has held out for a plebiscite conducted by the United Nations to decide whether Kashmir belongs to Pakistan or India. India has turned down the plebiscite and incorporated two-thirds of Kashmir into the Indian National Union.

While holding out for a plebiscite high Pakistan sources indicated this would not bar the United States or some other third party from suggesting that India's Prime Minister Nehru and Ayub meet to arrange a negotiated settlement.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Now the gardener can begin to take cuttings from his azaleas, camellias and gardenias. There are other plants also that can be propagated at this time of the year. The best rooting medium is clean sharp builder's sand. Peat moss can be mixed if desired. Vermiculite is another medium that has been used successfully. However, if you intend to put out a lot of cuttings this would be rather expensive.

The rooting medium should be placed in small boxes or greenhouse flats, flower pots, or cold frames or in a special bed in a shady area out of doors. This medium should be moistened before cuttings are inserted. Cuttings should be inserted about one third length, if the place where they are put can have humidity kept high, and about one half length in areas in the open. Insert cuttings at an angle so that all leaves can receive light. After the cuttings off of the terminal part of the The long used method of firmly tamping in the cuttings is no longer deemed necessary.

The best time to make cuttings is in the morning. Take the cuttings off of the terminal part of the stem. However, long growth can be cut into several sections. The length of the cuttings should be between two and six inches according to material used. The best tool for making cutting is a wood sharp thin bladed pocket knife. Cut stem at a 45 degree angle, about one fourth of an inch below junction of leaf and stem. Remove about one third of leaves on the cutting. Large leaves such as gardenias can also be trimmed. After cuttings are made put them in a plastic bag or between sheets of moistened newspaper. This way they will not dry out if you plant them soon. Do not keep cuttings over night.

When you are ready to stick cuttings, dip each one in Rootone or a similar root promoting hormone powder.

In rooting boxwood, bend the lower part of the cutting so that the bark splits. The cutting should resemble a fish hook.

Make azalea cutting about four inches length, camellia and gardenia six inches, boxwood about four inches. Other cuttings may be made at same length but a safe rule to follow (if there is one) is to make small leafed plants at four inches and large leafed at six inches.

While the plants are rooting, the medium must be kept moist but not soggy. If you use vermiculite, be careful; this material will fool you if you aren't use to it. When once wet thoroughly this stuff stays wet for quite a long time.

For the first week or ten days, keep plants shaded with a piece of moist cheesecloth or laths. If used in cold frame, whitewash the glass covers. After cuttings have rooted, remove shade gradually—a little time each day until they can do without it.

After plants have rooted plant them in two or three inch clay pots. Use a soil mixture of one third woodsmold or peat moss, one

Peaches Best Fruit Values This Week

RALEIGH — North Carolina peaches are topping the list of best fruit values this week. Delicious Sandhill varieties coming to market are the Golden Jubilee, Keystones, Southlands, and Sunhighs. These are the most popular mid-season yellow free-stone peaches.

Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, reports that watermelons and cantaloupes are lower in price due to increased volume. Nectarines and plums are in good supply now.

Beef shows the best red meat values in many featured cuts this weekend. Roasts top the list as good beef buys, namely chuck, rib and sirloin tip. All kinds of steaks are wearing lower price tags. Fresh port prices have shown an upward trend but best values are found in hams, picnic shoulders, first grade bacon and processed pork items. Add variety by using veal, lamb and seafood in your menus.

Thrifty shoppers should take notice of all poultry products. Eggs, fryers and turkeys are attractively priced during July. Big supplies of fryers and turkeys make them top meat favorites for summer "cook-out" fare. Eggs add color to picnic baskets and also add extra nutritive values.

Produce counters offer great varieties of summer vegetables in an array of colors. Red tomatoes, beets and radishes, greens (leafy), lettuce, celery, cabbage and yellow squash are some of the vegetables available. Local green beans and early corn are top quality. Black-eyed peas, butter beans and lima beans are found in limited supply.

How To Make A Non-Skid Bath Mitt

If you're the type who loses her washcloth—and her temper—in the tub or shower, why not try a bath mitt which will stay right on your hand.

It isn't even necessary to buy one. Just fold any washcloth in half, and machine-stitch or overcast along one long and one short edge of the cloth. Such a mitt is as easy to lather up and use as it is to make.

Those revolutionary new frying pans, which are treated to cook without fat, never need scouring. In fact, any abrasive may damage their non-stick surfaces, so the manufacturers advise only washing in soap or detergent suds, using a soft cloth or sponge.

third regular soil and one third sharp sand. Plunge pots in sand or peat moss in a frame about six feet wide and any length you may need. Keep a check on plants for signs of drying out. Cover beds with lathes for semi shade.

Onion Ringa Make Tasty Tidbits

FRENCH-FRIED ONION RINGS hit the spot when served as an appetizer or with hamburgers, steaks or chops broiled indoors or out.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

ARE YOU for party tidbits and munchies? Then just wait until you get your appetite on the delicious French-fried onion rings.

Our family and friends always clamor for our own recipe for French-fried onion rings—a rule that calls for a batter made from scratch. Now they give this recipe equal standing—and this rule is quicker than our own to prepare because it uses pancake mix.

But even though they're made with a shortcut, these rings are long on flavor, attractive appearance and just plain crisp crunchiness. The pimiento in the batter helps give sweet taste and a touch of rosinosity to their golden hue.

Good as these onion rings are to enjoy as a before-dinner nibble, they can't be beat as an accompaniment to hamburgers, steak or chops — grilled indoors or out.

GOLDEN ONION RINGS
2 medium-sized Bermuda onions (about 1/4 pound each)
Milk
1 cup pancake mix
1/4 cup enriched white corn meal
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
1/2 teaspoon salt

1 cup water
Peel onions; slice about 1/4-inch thick; separate into rings. Cover rings with milk and let stand about 15 minutes; drain. Put pancake mix, corn meal, pimiento, salt and water into a mixing bowl; beat with rotary beater (hand or electric) about 2 minutes. Dip onion rings in batter; allow excess batter to drain off; fry in deep hot fat (375 degrees) 2 to 3 minutes or until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Note: If you hold a number of the onion rings on a fork and dip them into the batter this way, it will be easy to hold the dipped rings over the bowl and allow the excess batter to drain back. Never crowd foods when you are deep-frying; an overload will make the temperature drop too low and the food will absorb too much fat.

Worthwhile Course For Highways

Gov. Sanford's assertion to his new Highway Commissioners that, "Decisions must be made and will be made on the basis of what best will serve the growth and needs of our people" charts a worthwhile course that the 19 commissioners should carefully follow as they deal with highway matters during the current administration.

By the very nature of its composition, the new 19-member Highway Commission has much more of a political profile than the seven-man commission which served during the Hodges administration. There are those in the state who expect that highway matters under the Sanford administration will be influenced considerably more by political considerations than was the case in the previous administration.

The governor's declaration on this point should be impressed upon the citizens of the state as well as the Highway Commission. He said his administration "does not intend to stoop to pettiness in policies or any other undertaking. We will be above reproach. No decisions can be made on the basis of political performance or affiliation."

In authorizing the reorganization and enlargement of the Highway Commission this year, the Legislature acted in accordance with prevailing public opinion that the Commission should be brought closer to the people. The new size and set-up of the Commission puts it closer to the people. It should not, however, follow that because the board which handles highway matters is closer to the people than before, its decisions should be determined by political factors.

In spite of the progress made in recent years in highway development, North Carolina still has much work to do in its primary and secondary road programs. Obviously it does not have sufficient funds to do all the highway work which the public or state officials desire. It is doubly important, therefore, that the greatest possible value be received for every dollar spent on the state's roads during the next few years. It is also important that the needs of the state as a whole and the needs of individual sections be considered in spending the highway funds which are available.

The new Highway Commission has a major task before it as Gov. Sanford has vividly pointed out. It can best accomplish its task if it adheres to the advice offered yesterday by the governor as the new highway commissioners took their oaths of office.

Not Intended To Represent Area

By LYNN NISBET

HIGHWAYMEN — The members of the highway commission who took their oaths of office Tuesday were told that regardless of where they live they are supposed to represent with equal attention and loyalty every section of the state.

Contrary to popular belief, and despite much of the propaganda for the new organization, the highway commissioners are not appointed from or intended to represent the established highway engineering divisions.

Through the regimes of Governors Hooey, Broughton, Cherry, Scott and Unstead the highway commissioners were appointed from divisions as set out in the general statutes. For many years there were ten divisions. Governor Unstead increased the number to fourteen. There was complaint that the division commissioners had—or assumed—too much authority and that instead of a real state highway system there were 10 to 14 little hegemomies acting to considerable degree without regard to total state interests.

To combat that trend Governor Hodges had the Legislature abandon the idea of division commissioners and establish a unified central control agency of seven members, with a director of highways as the chief (and almost sole) executive authority. Almost immediately there were complaints that roads had been taken away from the people, and there was no chance for the average citizen to get a hearing before a responsible member of the highway commission. One of the major planks in the campaign platform of Governor Sanford was that he would bring highway matters back to the people.

LOCALIZED — He proposed, and the General Assembly agreed to his request, increasing membership of the highway commission from the seven under the Hodges regime, the 14 under Unstead and the 10 for years before, to a total of 19—of which one would be a full-time chairman and a chief executive officer and 18 would be named to serve in approximate same capacity as did the 10 and 14 members of the administrations prior to Hodges.

There was, however, a sort of combination of the almost independent concept of the pre-Hodges era and the wholly statewide concept of the Hodges plan. The 1961 reorganization act, like the 1957 act, did not disturb the statutory line up of 14 engineering divisions. The 18 new members are required to be appointed, just as were the seven Hodges members, "with-out regard to the boundaries of the engineering divisions," although required to be named from "different areas" of the state.

With 19 commissioners to be named from 14 engineering divisions it is quite obvious that there will be almost as much distinction between administrative policy and engineering planning as was evident under the Hodges plan. Although the new law provides that the Governor and the chairman of the highway way commission shall assign areas of responsibility to each of the other 18 members of the commission, the overlapping territory involved in 18 commissioners and 14 engineers almost certainly will result in conflict of interest and confusion in administration.

WIDE OPEN—As enacted the bill makes no reference either to residential requirements or special duty assignment. In fact, although of course it won't be done, the commissioner from Sylva might be given jurisdiction over the Outer Banks while the man from Edenton could be assigned to the mountains. For that reason it is of no significance that five of the 14 engineering divisions have two commissioners on the board.

COMPOSITION—Most of the commissioners are engaged in more than one type of business activity, but the major vocations as given with the announcement of their appointment are as follows:

- Oil distributors — Watson Brame of North Wilkesboro, James K. Glenn of Winston-Salem and Worth Joyner of Rocky Mount.
- Lawyers — James G. W. McClamroch of Greensboro, Elsie Webb of Rockingham and Murray Tate of Hickory.
- Fertilizer dealers—Merrill Evans (chairman) of Ahoskie and Gilliam Wood of Edenton.
- Building material dealers—Clifton Benson (vice chairman) of Raleigh and Jack Kirkwood of Morganton.
- Contractors — Ted Jordan of Sylva and Yates Bennett of Burnsville.
- Auto Dealers—Graham Elliott of Washington and Lauch Faircloth of Clinton.
- Real estate—Paul Younts of Charlotte and Thompson McLean of Fayetteville.
- Newspaper publisher — W. E. Horner of Sanford.
- Gift shop merchant—D.G. Bell of Morehead City.
- Textile manufacturer — Clint Newton of Shelby.

Good Evidence U.S. Is Not Exactly Trailing

Successful launching of two satellites in one day by the United States is a significant achievement for the nation's space program that in some respects has lagged behind that of the Soviet Union.

The orbiting of the two satellites, designed for different missions, reflects at least partially the scope of space research as well as military application the United States is carrying on in its space program.

Midas III, which zoomed into orbit some 1,850 miles above the earth, is a missile alarm satellite designed to provide warning when a missile is fired anywhere in the world. Tirois III is a new hurricane hunter satellite equipped with television equipment to send back to earth information on cloud formations above the earth.

While the successful launching of these two satellites may not be as spectacular as previous space probes, the fact that the United States has shown it can put two satellites into orbit a few hours apart from widely separated sites for completely different purposes is in itself an important achievement. The fact that one of the satellites has a military application while the other is for scientific research likewise indicates the universality of research being carried on by the United States in its space program.

This latest accomplishment by American space scientists should be reassuring to people of the United States and the free world who have wondered privately and publicly whether the Soviet scientists are greatly out-distancing their counterparts in the United States in new space-age achievements.

A Difference In Rusk's Position

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The one thing above all others which distinguishes Secretary of State Dean Rusk from his famous predecessor, John Foster Dulles, is his quiet, almost academic, tone.

It is too soon to even guess at whether Rusk will be a successful secretary because so far he has traveled pretty much within the shadow of President Kennedy, letting him make the tough statements, and the big ones. It also is too soon to know whether this is the way Rusk prefers to operate or whether Kennedy requires it. But what's true of Rusk so far has been true of all of Kennedy's cabinet officers. The President does the main talking.

From the very beginning Dulles asserted himself in positive, and even belligerent, tones. In this he apparently had the full approval and confidence of President Eisenhower. Dulles was foreign policy.

He was in office only seven days when, on Jan. 27, 1953, he made a nationwide TV talk which was flamboyant, harsh and in a very real sense un-diplomatic. These qualities showed up repeatedly for the rest of his time in office.

They seemed not so much a reflection of his personality as the expression of a clearly thought-out philosophy in running foreign affairs.

Dulles made headlines in his time with far-fetched statements—like "massive retaliation" and skidding around the brink of war. But after watching the present secretary for almost six months this writer can't think of a single Rusk statement that has become identified with his name.

Rusk provided a pretty good insight into his day-by-day conduct—or so it could be interpreted—with the statement he made this week before an audience in the National Press Club. It was, pretty much, typical of all his statements so far.

He chastised the Communist world for keeping the trouble pot boiling and then spent the rest of his time in a calm analysis of why the Red and the Western world were in the pot. It was intelligent, well-organized, and detached.

But it may be a long time before we get deeper insights into Rusk—either on his toughness or his astuteness—are possible if only because under this administration all the decisions appear to be made after White House consultation.

Oddly enough—at least at first—any toughness in Rusk is apt to show up in his dealings with American allies before it does in dealing with the Russians, since this much can be taken for granted.

If he sits down to negotiate with Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, neither reason, intelligence nor persuasiveness on Rusk's part will be a deciding factor. The Soviet line is laid down in the Kremlin beforehand.

In meeting with Allies, Rusk, as the American representative, is in a better position to be both forceful and influential.

"The natural progress of things is for liberty to yield and government to gain ground."—Thomas Jefferson.

"He that does good for good's sake, seeks neither praise nor reward, but he is sure of both in the end."—William Penn.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

A Word To Young People

Why don't you talk things over more often with Dad and Mother? You think they don't understand? But just remember this — they were young once themselves.

To be sure, circumstances have changed greatly as regards custom and moral standards during the past fifty years, but basically people still believe what they have always believed about right and wrong. We all find as we grow older that our parents were a lot wiser than we believe them to be when we were young. They have only the best interests of their loved ones at stake. They have nothing to gain by being hard on you. As a matter of fact, are they hard? Many of us believe that you young people do not object in the least to firmness, provided it is always justly and consistently administered. Isn't this so?

If you have some problem on your mind you will probably be amazed to find how eager Father and Mother are to discuss this thing with you, how sympathetic is their understanding, how wise their counsel, how completely sacrificial is their spirit. Wrangling can erect barriers between any group of people and nowhere are these barriers higher, thicker, and more dreadful than where they are erected between children and parents.

Your parents can help you. They want to. They are really the very best people in the world.

Morale Is Given A Boost

From the mail box...

From the mail box comes all sorts of interesting things, and we were delighted recently to receive a missive to "Miss Patsy" in care of The Daily Reflector. It was from a post office no less.

Of course, we don't know whether they just couldn't remember our last name or not, but it would have been most easy to find it out.

Anyway, we liked the "Miss Patsy" best because it has certainly increased our prestige and standing among our contemporaries up here at the paper, and as you well know, we news-paper people (some do think we are human) are very skeptical and don't accept things right off the bat like ordinary people do.

Another important point is that this letter came from out of town. That makes us even more proud. And important.

We will be happy and proud walking the streets for at least another 48 hours. So, in our own way, we certainly do thank Mr. O. as the person responsible for our good fortune.

Another "thing" came in the

Other Editors Sayings... Matter Of Responsibility

(Washington Daily News)

Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee apparently thinks that there are many drugs on the American market which are ineffective and for which the public is being gouged.

He has expressed his ideas, and he has made a proposal that the government decide whether drugs work for the intended purpose for which they are prescribed. The American Medical Association is making a firm protest of the Kefauver proposal.

At the present time the government does not attempt to say whether or not drugs will work. It only says whether or not they are safe.

The AMA position is that the government cannot accept responsibility for saying drugs will work because the physician, by training experience, and through research, is much better equipped to do the job. He maintains that the matter of determining the workability of drugs is a medical responsibility.

Senator Kefauver maintains that the public is being charged too much for drugs, and that patience is wearing thin.

Thus we have what amounts to a tug of war between the Kefauver committee and the American Medical Association or AMA.

It is quite probable that the public does feel it is being charged much too much for drugs. But drugs within themselves do not constitute the big argument here. The health of the nation is the big consideration. And when it comes to a matter of health, the public, while feeling that drug prices are much too high, probably will prefer to leave public health in the hands of the physicians rather than in the hands of the government.

Actually there is a part for both to play. If somewhere along the line the area of responsibility for each could be clearly defined, then the public would be the real beneficiary. But so long as a tug of war continues, then responsibility cannot be placed directly.

It would appear that the government could be in a position to say that drugs are not only safe but also effective. Or perhaps it might be a better way of expression by saying that certain drugs are safe but ineffective. After all, the doctors should not want to prescribe drugs which the government says are not able to do the job for which they are prescribed.

If the doctors themselves will accept the responsibility for saying that this drug or that drug is ineffective, then the matter could be resolved. But the average doctor in America is so busy treating patients that he cannot possibly go into the field of research and determine the truth. He must depend on what researchers say.

Should then the doctors control the researchers or should the government control them? The American concept of free enterprise says for the government to stay out. But then will the private researchers do a responsible job? Evidently Senator Kefauver thinks they will not.

This controversy will be solved only when both sides agree on areas of responsibility.

mail, too. That also has made us a person of more importance, as this communication was all the way from Japan. That's important because an associate had to ask for the stamp (for his collection) from the envelope.

This had something to do with some pearl company in the Near East, and we have no earthly idea how the company got our name.

At first we were impressed (more so than anyone else), but we came to the conclusion that we would be giving free advertising, which is against our newsy principles. Consequently we dropped this matter almost immediately and decided to go forward, forgetting the whole thing.

We are looking for new mail.

If, perchance, you regard yourself as a person with the ability to perceive psychological difficulties and have concluded that as a result of the above writings we may have a complex about being important, you may further be interested to know that the above happenings were both unusual and humorous (to us). Hence, the reason for passing them on.

We are still looking forward to new mail.

Great Men Do Return

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

General Douglas MacArthur sat through the entire Eisenhower Administration unwanted and unused. It was such a waste of superior ability. It was humiliating for him to see insignificant and inexperienced person consulted in matters to which MacArthur had devoted his entire life. President Eisenhower chose to do it that way and all that was left for our greatest military mind was to sit in his apartment in the Waldorf-Astoria, occasionally seeing a friend with whom he might discuss the affairs of the world.

Never once was he consulted by President Eisenhower. Oh! Yes! He was asked to luncheon one occasion at the White House. All the big brass were assembled. Nothing was said about the Far East, the subject on which MacArthur is our greatest authority and which, at the moment, was red hot. Afterwards he was asked to go into a private room with President Eisenhower. There the President asked General Douglas MacArthur what the businessmen in New York thought of Eisenhower's economic policies!

And so the General sat out eight long years of futility and frustration. President John Kennedy telephoned to him one day and asked him to come to the White House. Then he telephoned a second time and said not to bother to come to Washington as he, the President, was coming up to New York. MacArthur, always correct in his conduct, said that he would call on the President whenever and whenever he desired. The President would have none of that. He went up to MacArthur's apartment, visited with the General and stayed more than an hour. And the President learned much about life and the world in that hour, perhaps much more than his large collection of advisers could give him.

And so General MacArthur donned his war cap and a military uniform and went to the Philippines, where his father had served and he had served. And there the people love him as a patriarch of their own. And he loves them, for so many years of his boyhood and manhood were spent there. He has sighed to have been far, a glorious welcome he was given.

Anthony Eden too had been obliterated by politics and by the excitement of small men. History, as it unfolds the affairs of man, has long since justified Eden's conduct at Suez; it is obvious that had he been permitted to carry forward the Suez program with France and Israel as partners, the situation in the Near East would have been better for the West today. What John Foster Dulles actually accomplished by his Suez program was that he opened the way for the Russian alliance with Nasser and the emergence of Nasser as a strong man—Nasser, who had already been defeated and might have been eliminated. It has proved not to have been far sighted to hit down Great Britain and France in the interest of Nasser.

And so Eden was attacked reviled not only by enemies but by so-called friends and subordinates who seized upon the occasion to set themselves up as great figures. Where are they today? The time has come to account for their wisdom and they have shown that they had been in error. What has become of Anthony Nutting?

The Queen honors Eden by making him an Earl and he will speak his mind in the House of Lords. And it will be found that his contribution will be profound. And so the tide has come in and recognition has come again to very able statesmen.

The lesson: give history a chance to speak its piece. MacArthur will be remembered as the American military leader who rescued the Pacific from the Japanese; restored Japan to sanity and strength; saved Korea from total Soviet domination and has proved to have been correct concerning Red China. Eden has proved to have been correct concerning Suez. He might have saved his country and all the world much grief. Sure, we have every ready...

The Last Half Will Be Better

By ELMER ROESSNER

The last half of the year will be somewhat better than expected.

Most economists are saying something like this: "We have emerged from the recession of 1960-61, and while business is good now, we will be lucky to maintain it slightly above current levels for the rest of the year."

They have their arguments: the 1961 auto model year is ended; steel production, although making slight gains in the last two months, may dip in July; the unemployed are still on our backs.

This sort of analysis overlooks two basic facts: Public sentiment is bullish; defense spending will shoot up further, most expect. A sharp rise in defense spending can carry the entire economy along with it.

That the public is optimistic is demonstrated by the stock market (and, where is all the money coming from) and by the generally strong tone consumer purchases.

The certainty of a rise in defense spending is shown by the page-one headlines, not by reports from Washington. The rising tension over Kuwait, Berlin, Laos and other hot spots makes it inevitable that the United States will quickly beef up its defense program.

And while the Washington reports have not yet spelled this out, there is a congealing sentiment for a step-up in defense. In the Pentagon, in the Senate, in the House and even among White House advisors, tight little groups are forming to insist that the United States sharply increase its defensive and retaliative power.

There are red hots who will not be content until the United States has a button which, when pushed, will wipe Moscow off the globe.

In the months ahead, these groups, with no hindrance from the Administration, will insist on a step-up in defense, which will mean pouring more money into the economy for material and, possibly, increasing the military force, thereby having a chain effect reducing unemployment.

OTHER LOOK-AHEADS

Here are other glimpses into the future of business:

Higher car rental rates; Competition among car rental agencies has reached a point at which the leaders will have to increase rates or go broke with the rest. The fact is that many car rentals are less than cost of depreciation. The winter and spring were tough, because of the airline strike, unusually bad weather and the depression. Now that demand is picking up, the agencies will have to rectify rates or bust.

Note: The car rental business has been snafued up by new-car dealers who, struck with heavy inventories, have been leasing cars to save their equity. Because of this, Hertz, Avis and other big operators have been complaining to auto manufacturers who, fearful of losing fleet sales, are nudging dealers to stock to selling, not renting, cars.

New rolling stock: Competition from trucks has now (20 years late) convinced railroads that they have to arrange to move goods cheaper, faster and easier.

Several new devices have been reported in this space. More are coming; for example, a freight train with semi-permanent couplings for moving bulk products, such as ore and coal. Such a train would have motive power at both ends.

There was a small Aurora Borealis around the Old Promoter's nose when he dropped (scarcely the word) in today. He had been drinking.

"I bought this bottle of schnapps," he said, "because I am fascinated by the label. It reads, 'A Full Quart.'"

"Does that mean that competitive brands are skimpy quarts? Does it mean that other distillers sell up-full quarts? Or is it a warning that the entire distilling industry is shot full of crooks, who will pass off 25 ounces as almost-quarts, or who will cheat you with not-quite-full quarts? It would seem to me that anybody who labels his product as 'a full quart' is confessing he is in a sharp business."

"Maveille," I said, "you are tight."

"Perhaps," he said, "but smart."

Big California Brushfires Slowed; Dangers Ease Off

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP)—Fire fighters today hoped to contain two of California's largest brushland fires of the season, barring more hot winds that have aggravated one of the state's worst droughts in history.

The fire advance slowed five miles from the Bass Lake resort, just off State Highway 41, the year-round route into Yosemite.

Crews were slowly drawing lines around blackened 63,000 acres of brushland that flank this famed Sierra vacation spot.

Towns threatened by flames were apparently out of danger.

The largest fire, which centered about 15 miles south of the park, has burned 38,000 acres, consumed two mountain villages and trapped and killed a couple, fleeing in their car.

Dean Schlobahn, State Division of Forestry dispatcher at Fresno, was optimistic.

"If we get a little rain, without the winds, we should be able to control this fire in two days," he said.

Forty miles to the northwest fire fighters made progress with a blaze that began in Calaveras County Sunday and raced south into Tuolumne County, covering 25,000 acres.

Nature helped the fire battlers as winds died down, but a human menace plagued them.

An arsonist set two brush fires Wednesday near Jamestown. The blazes consumed hundreds of acres but no buildings, a forester said.

The large fire flared up Tuesday, burning the Madera County communities of Nipinnawase and Ahwahnee. Only a few buildings were left standing.

Only known casualties were Mr. and Mrs. George Kipp, both in their 60s, who were burned to death in their car on a mountain road as they fled Ahwahnee.

Forestry officials said most of the uncounted evacuees were taken in by residents of nearby communities.

State Division of Forestry dispatcher John Gookin said the new blazes in the boulder-strewn Jamestown area were quickly contained, but predicted fire fighters will have a hard job in extinguishing them.

He said a pyromaniac has plagued the area for several years.

50-Room Mansion Will Be Razed

NEW YORK (AP)—The 50-room Vanderbilt mansion, once a center of the city's high society, will be razed to make room for a 20-story modern apartment building.

The Frouse Corp. said Tuesday it has purchased the limestone structure at Fifth Avenue and 67th street, and will tear it down to make way for a cooperative apartment building.

"Mission 66," a program to improve the National Park System, takes its name from its target date for completion: 1966. That year will mark the 50th anniversary of the founding of the National Park Service.

More Bombings In Tense South Tyrol

BOLZANO, Italy (AP)—The troubled South Tyrol was shaken again today by terrorist bombings of power plants as Austria and Italy exchanged bitter protest notes in the flareup of the dispute dating back to World War I.

A dozen predawn blasts and crackling gunfire—apparently from army sentries guarding the power plants—echoed in the Alpine resort province where the German-speaking minority is demanding autonomy from Italian domination.

The terrorists directed their latest attacks primarily at power installations and railway lines.

Two power plants were reported damaged during the night. One was the Cardano plant, southeast of Bolzano, which supplies power as far as Piedmont on the French border.

Half a dozen electrical power pylons were damaged or knocked down and a railway tunnel for a local line was dynamited.

The raiders struck on a moonless night in drenching rain. The series of bombings appeared well coordinated.

Attacks were reported near Castellibello, Nazschaves, Ora, Termeo, Frangarto and Salorno in the Bolzano area and at Ronchi, Val-sugana, Lavaredo Torri del Benaco and Rival del Gardo in neighboring Trento.

The bombings were more of the

for the dominant voice in local government.

Austria formerly owned the South Tyrol but turned the area over to Italy after World War I.

Italy, in a sharp protest note Wednesday called Austria's attention to "its responsibility concerning the recent terrorist acts in Italy."

Austria in turn complained of Rome's new restrictions on the Italian-Austrian border, where all crossers now must have visas and passports. Previously only identity papers were required.

Italy, angered by the latest flareup in dynamiting, also suspended further diplomatic negotiations with Austria on the dispute.

Ninety per cent of all tourists to Mexico come from the United States.

TOGETHER RICHMOND, Calif. (AP)—Margaret Lucey, 83, had been suffering from a lingering illness. She died in her home while Dr. William L. Thompson was attending her. Dr. Thompson then turned to comfort her husband of 56 years, Michael Lucey, 81. Lucey suddenly collapsed. He died 45 minutes later, apparently of a heart attack.

BY JOHN CREASEY A MATTER OF LIFE AND DEATH

CHAPTER II

To get the gun, Paul Vance lunged at Rollison, hoping to put him off balance and to have the gun before he had recovered. It might have worked, if Rollison hadn't been expecting something like it; he shot out a leg. Paul crashed into it and fell headlong; and was still on the floor when Rollison picked up the gun.

"It could be self-defense," he said, ominously. "What makes you think that Adam Bell killed Jimmy Vance?"

Paul said: "He—Bell—wants to marry—Griselda. Can't you understand? They're crazy about each other. It's driven — Jimmy mad."

"Or something's driven you crazy," Rollison said, coldly. "We'd better save the story for the police."

"That's right," said Rollison. "The men of the law you're not frightened of. They're on the way. They might be, too, for all he knew. They'll be interested in my eyewitness account of the attempted murder of your daughter-in-law. They'll even wonder whether a man prepared to kill his son's wife would be ready to kill his son, given enough provocation. They'll ask a lot of questions and they'll want the straight answers. He stopped.

He heard a movement behind him, and knew that Griselda Vance was coming. He could hear her shallow breathing, and could see her shadow. He wondered what had given her the strength to get out of the chair and to come out here. She didn't draw level, but stopped, as if she hadn't the will-power to draw nearer.

Then, a new sound came from outside.

There was no mistaking it, and no missing its sense of urgency. First one, then a second car swung into the drive, and Rollison could hear the grating of tires on the gravel outside; so Paul Vance hadn't closed the door. Headlights shone against windows, fiercely white for a moment, then paling off as the direction changed.

"Who—" began Paul Vance, and turned his head.

"I told you," Rollison said. "The police, Paul, with all the awkward questions, including: 'who told you that you could take the law into your own hands?' The marks of your fingers are still on Mrs. Vance's throat, and they'll see them. Got your answers ready?"

Vance didn't reply at once; and when he did, it was coldly.

"Supposing you wait and see," he said.

At least he was no coward. Car doors banged, and footsteps sounded.

"Just wait," said Rollison. "It won't be long." He backed a pace, so that he could see the woman as well as Vance; and he saw more than he expected.

She held a gun.

She was level with him, about a yard away.

"Let him go," she said, in a hurried voice. "Paul, go out the back way, hurry! I won't let him stop you." She covered Rollison with the gun, standing so close, and holding it as if she had been used to automatic pistols all her life.

She took no notice at all of the gun in his hand. She had been magnificent in despair and she was magnificent in this challenge.

"Hurry, Paul," she repeated urgently.

Vance hesitated, then turned and began to walk rapidly along a passage which led into darkness. As he vanished, men came stamping into the front hall, two speaking loudly, and one calling out: "The door's open!"

"Careful," someone called from the outside.

The woman said pleadingly: "Please — please don't tell them who he was."

She didn't try to force the issue; obviously she had screwed herself up to that quixotic effort, and it had taken all her strength. She was swaying, dizzily, and the gun pointed towards the carpet. Her eyes had lost their brilliance; her face had no color at all.

"Please —" she repeated.

From halfway up the stairs, a policeman called: "Who's there?"

As the policeman's voice came, and others followed him up the stairs, Rollison slid an arm about Mrs. Vance's waist; and knew that without it she would fall. He took the gun from her, without the slightest protest, and she leaned heavily against him. The police came hurrying, but slowed down as they neared the top, as if they were afraid that they would run into trouble.

"Who's there?" one called.

"Friend," said Rollison.

Nearing the landing, a policeman in uniform and wearing a peaked cap, asked sharply: "Who are you?"

"This is the lady of the house, and I'm a friend," said Rollison, "and if you're looking for the chap who broke in, you're too late. The big one got away." He looked sad as the police came hurrying, three of them now; one of them was in plain clothes.

"Do you mind if I take Mrs. Vance into the other room?" Rollison resumed. "She's all in. Nasty experience, I believe, but it's all right. I came to the rescue."

Without another word, he lifted the woman, and carried her into the library. He put her down in the same huge armchair by the side of The Times. He kicked

Psychiatrist To Probe Reincarnation Clues

by JERRY BUCK

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP)—Are there persons living today who lived another life in another body — perhaps in some bygone century?

An eminent University of Virginia psychiatrist isn't sure, but he says he has found enough evidence in a 10-year study to warrant further investigation.

For additional proof he is leaving Saturday for India and Ceylon where several children claim to have memories of another life.

The doctor, Ian Stevenson, is professor of neurology and psychiatry and chairman of that department at the university's School of Medicine. He will work under a grant from the Parapsychology Foundation in New York.

He says succinctly, "There is some evidence that part of the human organism survives physical death." He says he is not referring to any organic part of the body, but "to what was called the soul in the 19th century."

Speaking of case studies of children who claim to have lived before, Dr. Stevenson says, "apparent memories of this kind are fragmentary, and usually fade as the children get older. Such children usually remember from a dozen to 20 items, and these are usually scenes of strong emotional significance, such as the death of a mother or father."

Dr. Stevenson said he hopes to release a full report within a year on one case—this one involving a woman in Philadelphia.

He said that under hypnosis the woman undergoes a personality change and switches from English to an early form of Swedish dialect. Out of hypnosis, she speaks no Swedish at all and has no apparent connection with such a background.

If this sounds much like the famous case of the Pueblo, Colorado housewife who believed she was Bridget Murphy in 19th Century Ireland, Dr. Stevenson isn't worried. He believes in the evidence produced in that study, but adds it is not one of the best examples.

Dr. Stevenson said he is going to India for a seven-week visit because cases suggesting a previous existence are more prevalent there than in Europe or America. He said that perhaps the Buddhist and Hindu beliefs in reincarnation provide a favorable climate for stories of this kind.

In his studies, Dr. Stevenson acknowledges the possibility of a fantasy. It is entirely possible, he said, that the person could have learned the information through such normal channels as a newspaper, a family member or an acquaintance.

He admits, "This aspect of parapsychology is not yet recognized by many as a branch of science. There is slender evidence, nothing like proof. But the evidence of survival that we do have, slight though it is, justifies much more investigation."

Before coming to the University of Virginia four years ago, Dr. Stevenson, 42, a native of Montreal, Canada, was an associate professor of psychiatry at the Louisiana State University School of Medicine in New Orleans, and was a consultant in psychiatry to the Louisiana Department of Public Welfare and the Southeast Louisiana State Hospital.

Report 'Kookie' Has Proposed

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Friends say actor Edd Byrnes of the "77 Sunset Strip" TV series has asked Mrs. Maynor to marry him.

The two have been dating for the past two years.

Byrnes leaves today for London and Paris, and reportedly won't get a reply from Miss Maynor until he returns.

A friend quotes the actor as saying: "She hasn't said 'yes' or 'no'. When I get back from Europe we are going to talk things over and I have high hopes that she will accept me."

Set Hearing On Pollution Issue

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The State Stream Sanitation Committee will hold a public hearing here Friday on its recommendations that dozens of towns and industrial plants be required to treat sewage and wastes before dumping it into the Catawba River.

The committee has issued a report on a five-year study of the river basin, which is the main source of drinking water for 12 counties with a population of 500,000.

The committee said the Catawba is so polluted it may be a health hazard in many places. It said 129 governmental units, industries, individuals and state agencies are dumping into the river and its tributaries almost 50 million gallons a day of treated and untreated sewage and industrial wastes.

Millions of dollars and many months would be required to bring the river's waters up to the committee's recommended standards.

The river rises in Catawba County and flows into South Carolina. The study covered only the North Carolina basin, 3,000 square miles.

Visiting Musicians On 'Camp' Faculty

Hubert Henderson, director of bands at the University of Maryland, and Kelg Garvin, trombone soloist with the U.S. Army Band, have been announced as visiting faculty members of East Carolina College's 1961 Summer Music Camp.

With approximately 450 junior and senior high school students in attendance, the annual music event July 16-29 will have a staff of approximately 40 members including instructors from the college and visitors, according to Earl E. Beach, director of the East Carolina music department and of the camp.

Mr. Henderson, formerly of Charlotte, will direct the "Blue Band," one of three bands to be organized on the campus during the camp.

Mr. Garvin will direct a clinic for performers on brass instruments July 24-25. He will also appear in a trombone recital for students and band directors attending the camp.

As a student at the University of North Carolina, Mr. Henderson appeared as soloist with the University Band on a number of occasions. During World War II he became leader of the 773 Army Air Forces Band at Sioux Falls, South Dakota, and took the group overseas for assignment to the 15th Air Force in Italy.

After the war he served as brass instructor and assistant director of bands at the University of North Carolina while completing work for the master's degree in musicology there.

Before assuming his present position at the University of Maryland, he was director of bands at Montana State University.

Other members of the staff of the Summer Music Camp and their positions during the event include Herbert L. Carter, director of bands at East Carolina, director of the Camp Band; Raymond Babelay, director of the Pike Senior High Band at Wilson, director of the "Red Band"; Spencer Mims, director of the Myers Park High School Band at Charlotte, director of the "White Band"; James Hall of Winston-Salem, director of the Camp Choir; Donald H. Hayes, director of the East Carolina College Orchestra, director of the Camp Orchestra; and Edward Benson, supervisor of music in Asheville schools, director of the Camp Dance Band.

About five million children attend summer camps in the U. S. today, approximately half a million of them for the very first time.

It's a billion dollar industry with some 12,000 to 15,000 camps listed in national and regional camp association files.

At one time, camps were crude and life for a camper was primitive. Today, living is comfortable. Instead of tents and cots, stylish bungalows with elaborate plumbing facilities and innerspring mattresses on sturdy beds are often seen. Dieticians plan well-balanced meals, activities are diversified and entertainment is almost of Broadway calibre.

Special interest camps are also flourishing. These cater to activities like music, dancing, dramatics, art, aquatics, riding or individual sports. There are also special camps for the blind, crippled or retarded children.

Camps are little cities with sanitation, safety and health problems. It takes a small army to staff them.

But above all, camp is still a place for youngsters to have summer fun. A camper's typical activities are pictured here by Susan Desfor, at Camp Pontiac, West Copake, N. Y. As a counselor, Susan is one of a staff of 90 which caters to 275 boy and girl campers.

Swimming under counselor supervision at Camp Pontiac is strictly observed in the crib for the youngsters who haven't learned to swim yet.

SUMMER FUN... CAMP STYLE

Boating is an exciting activity for the campers. Boating privileges depend upon the swimming ability of the youngsters.

Most School Board Members Shy Away From Federal Education Aid

EDITOR'S NOTE: Federal aid to education is a hot question. The Associated Press has polled North Carolina city and county public school board members on their views. This is the first of two articles on the answers received.

By NATE WEGODSKY
Associated Press Staff Writer
A majority of city and county school board members in North Carolina, a survey shows, oppose federal aid to education, on the grounds it may lead to control of public schools by Uncle Sam.

This attitude that "He who pays the piper calls the tune" is reflected in a poll by Associated Press member newspapers and radio and television stations. The informal poll made no attempt to reach every school board in the state, only those readily accessible to AP members. But the replies came from all sections of the state.

However, many board members who oppose aid on principle say they probably would accept it if Congress passes the school bill now before it without too many strings attached. The Senate has passed the bill. It is before the House Committee on Education, with no immediate action in prospect.

School superintendents and other administrators are not as much afraid of federal aid as are board members. Some educators who would be quoted favorably do scattered board members, and others have no comment either way.

Up to now, most school boards have taken no official action. Boards which have voted have generally opposed, some unanimously.

Tied in with the whole question is whether federal aid should be extended to private schools and to Catholic parochial schools.

"I'm for federal aid as long as there are no strings attached, but if it's tied in with parochial schools or integration, then I'm opposed," said a Fayetteville board member, L. L. Rouse. "But if they let us use it like we see fit, then I'm for it," he added.

In any case, schools now get some federal aid. It is for such purposes as the home economics, vocational education, distributive education, agriculture and school lunch programs. And to buy equipment for science, math and foreign language classes.

In addition, federally-impacted areas—those whose school systems have a large percentage of children from military and other federal installations—get federal money under Public Laws 815 and 874.

"This aid has been given for a number of years and is no hand-out. It is extended on the theory that since the federal government pays no city or county taxes on property it owns, it should aid school districts in lieu of such taxes."

Rep. Alton Lennon, North Carolina Democrat whose 7th District includes Ft. Bragg, has introduced a bill to continue such aid, but divorce it from the aid to education package bill. Even those members of the Fayetteville Board of Education who oppose federal aid in general favor the help for impacted areas.

And one member, Mrs. Harry Stein, makes no distinction between both forms. "I'm for all of it," she says. Her many years on the board have given her time

"to observe the wonders we have received from Public Laws 815 and 874," Mrs. Stein says. "Without it our building situation would be pathetic."

Sharing her viewpoint is the High Point school superintendent, Dr. Dean B. Pruette. He said education must have money, and the federal program offered the best opportunity to get it. He said North Carolina would get back more than it paid to the federal government, because aid would be largely on the basis of per capita income, and the state ranks low.

However, at the same meeting in May at which Dr. Pruette spoke, the High Point city school board voted 5-0 against federal aid. And it called upon citizens to write their congressmen in opposition.

The chief spokesman was W. A. Tomlinson, a furniture manufacturer and chairman of the board.

He discussed at some length what he called "growing bureaucracy" and the high cost of government collection of money to be sent back to the states. "Public education is the last great bulwark of local government," he said.

The state has announced a 22 per cent raise for public school teachers. And the legislature recently passed a bill to raise millions for Gov. Terry Sanford's education is the last great bulwark of local government," he said.

The Associated Press Survey posed three questions:

1. Has the board taken formal action on current federal legislation, and if so, to what effect?

2. If the board is opposed to federal aid, what is the basis? 3. If the board is for or against federal aid, is it doing anything to influence others?

Replies were received from about a dozen school boards, believed enough for a representative sampling. Tomorrow's concluding article will be a short summary of the answers received from each school board.

Big Limousine Carries A Special Kind Of Bum

By BOB THOMAS

PARIS (AP)—The door of the $36,000 Rolls Royce limousine opened and out stepped a bum. His tattered trousers were held up with rope. His hair was matted and a three-day stubble was on his face. But he strode into the smart cafe like a jaunty though porcine Maurice Chevalier.

Of course, he was a special kind of bum. This was Jackie Gleason, the elephantine elf of American television and now starring in "Gigot," a film. He plays a mute Montmartre cast-off.

Gleason plopped his bulk down in a chair against the wall and ordered champagne.

"That's all—champagne," he said to the puzzled waitress. "I'm a bum. I can't afford to eat." Gleason sipped his lunch and discussed his film career.

York called "The Hustler," he said. "People keep calling me and saying I'm going to get an award for it. Every time I ask them what the award is for, the line goes dead. I still don't know the answer."

He is making "Gigot" in Paris at considerable sacrifice—absence from his Manhattan haunts for five months. It has been a six-day weekly grind, fighting the worst French spring in years.

The French cooking? "I only eat when I'm hungry," he declared. "As you can see, I am often hungry."

This is not Gleason's first fling at movies. Back in the '40s, he did a stretch at Warner Brothers. He recalled remarking about his performance in "Navy Blues": "I looked like somebody who was watching the picture."

Drug Industry Will Spend More In Seeking Out Cures

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The drug industry will spend more money than ever this year in its search for new cures for human ailments—and this in spite of some ills of its own.

The industry's troubles include: a chorus of complaints from the ailing who contend their prescription drugs cost too much, official inquiries into the industry's practices both of pricing and promotions, and an average drop in profits of 3.6 per cent.

The industry stoutly denies it overcharges, citing as one of its rising costs the expensive research it carries on with the ever-present risk of finding nothing profitable.

It also defends its promotion tactics as necessary in one of the most highly competitive of industries.

And naturally the individual companies hope that the decline in profits will be reversed. In many cases, if they are, it will be because of some new formula found and developed by their expensive research crews. The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association reports today that a survey of its member firms shows a record $227 million budgeted for research and development in 1961 of drugs for humans, plus $5.8 million for veterinary drug products.

The previous record of $206.9 million was invested last year in human drug research and $5.4 million for animals. Together this came to 7.7 per cent of total 1960 domestic and foreign sales.

Six firms reported foreign research and development activities, with $2.1 million budgeted for that this year, or about 1 per cent of their research allocations.

The association notes that the $227-million expenditure this year will be a 276 per cent increase over the $60 million the same companies spent in 1951. In the decade the industry has found and profitably developed many prescription drugs once called miracle-cures and now regarded as commonplace.

This year's expanding research activity is attributed by Dr. Austin Smith, association president, "to the highly competitive search for breakthrough discoveries to combat many common ailments—namely cancer and cardiovascular disease."

CATCHING UP . . . . . by Pap'

The amazing June drive which carried the Chicago White Sox from the cellar to fourth place was temporarily interrupted when the Detroit Tigers snapped their winning streak at 12 games. But only temporarily, because the White Sox picked up a lot of confidence in that drive when they won 19 of 22 games. After floundering for two months, the White Sox suddenly "jelled" and became a ball team. It may have been the trade that brought Andy Carey, Don Larsen, Ray Herbert and Al Pilarcik to Chicago. It could have been that Juan Pizarro gave them a great lift in pitching just when they needed such a spark. Whatever the reasons, all of a sudden the team caught fire and started playing the brand of baseball everyone expected to see all along. "There is no reason in the world why we still can't win the pen-

Thomas To Meet Russian Star

MOSCOW (AP) — Jumbo Jim Elliott has been running John Thomas through a concentrated course in high jumping and said today he hopes to see a successful end to the program in the United States-Soviet track meet Saturday and Sunday. The Soviets have been building up to this showdown meeting between Thomas and Valery Brumel, the world's two top high jumpers, for months. Just Wednesday Soviet coach Gabriel Korobov said the burden was on Thomas and that Brumel would win. "John has been looking very good," said Elliott, the U.S. team coach. "If he keeps up his present form, I've got a hunch he's going to be hard to beat."

Public Tourney Now Underway

In addition to the 21-year-old Sikes, who plans to pass up the fall semester at the University of Arkansas if he can land an airplane factory job in Wichita in the field includes: Len Pietras, 27, National Caddy champion in 1951 and now a service foreman in a Toledo, Ohio carburetor plant. Bill Kelley, 27, of Caranopolis, Pa., a Trinity (Tex.) College graduate who hopes to start a house construction job in Michigan. Elmer Clites, 46, Antioch, Calif., a machine operator in a paper factory. John Schleen, 22, who migrated to Memphis State from Seaside, Ore., on a golf scholarship. Jay Law, 43, is a wood-pattern maker at Harper Woods, Mich. Frank Campbell, 35, a Leeds, Ala., insurance man, who was runnerup in the tourney at Denver in 1959. Earned Run Title Goes To Joey Jay

NEW YORK (AP)—Joey Jay, largely responsible for Cincinnati's rise to the top of the National League, is the circuit's earned run leader at the season's halfway mark. The 25-year-old right-hander, obtained from Milwaukee last winter, has allowed only 39 earned runs in 132 innings for a 2.66 average, figures compiled by The Associated Press showed today. Hoyt Wilhelm, Baltimore's relief specialist, striving for his third ERA title, boasts the lowest mark in the American League—2.07. The veteran knuckleballer has worked 73 innings while giving up 7 earned runs. The leaders are based on 75 or more innings. Jay has become one of the Reds' mound aces with a 12-4 won-loss record. The 6-4, 225-pounder has completed 7 of his 17 starts with 2 shutouts. Wilhelm has won 6 games and lost 4. The 37-year-old right-hander led the National League in ERA with 2.43 in 1952 while pitching for the Giants. As a member of the Orioles in 1959, Wilhelm topped the AL with a 2.19 average. Johnny Podres of Los Angeles is runner-up to Jay with a 2.90 ERA, followed by San Francisco's Mike McCormick at 3.10. Podres, whose 9-2, 318 won-loss percentage leads the league, has issued 29 earned runs in 90 innings. McCormick, the senior circuit's ERA king last season with a 2.70 mark, shows 41 earned runs in 119 innings. Bob Gibson and Curt Simmons, a pair of St. Louis shutouts, are tied for fourth with 3.14 each. Rookie Roland Sheldon of New York ranks second in the AL at 2.28. Posting shutouts in last two starts, he has allowed 22 unearned runs in 87 innings. Detroit's Don Mossi, with 38 earned runs in 125 innings, is next at 2.74. Dick Donovan of Washington is fourth with a 2.81 ERA, barely in front of New York's Bill Stafford at 2.82.

Home Builders Take 13-1 Win

In Teen-er League action yesterday the Home Builders defeated Planters Bank by a score of 13-1 with Dale Gidley going the distance for the winners. Gidley allowed only one hit, struck out five and walked six, while losing pitcher Rodney Knowles allowed seven hits, struck out six and walked five. The winners scored twice in the first and second innings, brought in five runs in the fourth and four in the fifth. The only run for the losers was scored in the third frame. Doing the hitting for the Home Builders were Mitchell Jones, Wade Sumerlin, Tommy Smith, Buddy Vernon and Woody Hardee. Collecting the only hit for the losers was Mike Morton who had a single in the first frame. The Teen-er League season continues through Saturday with one game tonight and double-headers Friday and Saturday nights.

Extra Rest Day For Whitey Ford

CHICAGO (AP)—Whitey Ford, who won 16 games in the first half of the season by working every fourth day, is going to get an added day of rest between starts of the New York Yankees the rest of the year. Manager Ralph Houk announced the change today as the Yankees arrived for the opener of a 12-game road trip tonight against the Chicago White Sox. "The All-Star appearance threw Whitey's schedule out of kilter," said Houk, "but I already had decided he should get longer rests now that the weather is getting hotter and there are more arms available." Ford, at 32, is enjoying his finest season with a 16-2 record that tops the majors, isn't unhappy about the change, although it could keep him from a possible 30-victory season. Rain Stops Caro. LITTLE LEAGUE

In the second game in the final round of the Little League playoffs, the Exchange Club took a 10-9 victory over Coca-Cola to give each team one win. The game was won in the sixth inning when the winners brought in six of their 10 runs. They also won one in the second, two in the third and one in the fifth. Coca-Cola scored two in the second, two in the third, one in the fourth and two in the fifth. Their final two runs came in the last inning, but they were not enough to give them a victory. Winning pitcher Gary Bostic allowed seven hits, struck out eight and walked six, while his opponent, William Moye, allowed five hits, struck out four and walked 14. Collecting the hits for the winners were Billy Taylor, Bostic, Richard Gaylord, Mike White and Ray Edwards. Doing the hitting for the Drinkers were Dick Clark, Tommy Skinner, Donnie Taylor, Moye, Ronnie Tyndall and Bonnie Beaman. If the Coca-Cola team had won yesterday's game they would have gone home with the city championship, but the fact that they didn't, means that today's action will tell the tale. The playoff winner is determined by the team that wins two out of three and now both teams have one win in their favor.

All Stars Win In ECL Game At RM

In Eastern County League action yesterday league leading Hobgood lost to an All-Star team, which was picked from the other five teams in the league, by a score of 19-7. They allowed six hits, struck out ten and walked seven while losing pitcher Cecil Savage allowed 16 hits, struck out seven and walked an equal number. The winners benefited from two home runs by Autry Hamill and Billy Cooper. Cooper's homer in the seventh with the bases loaded brought in four of the 19 runs for the winners. The losers scored two runs in the first, four in the third and one in the ninth. Collecting the hits for the All-Stars were Jim Fornes, Billy Cooper and Dick Hamill of the Greenville team; Autry Hamill and Winfield Tingle of Falkland; Paul and James Register of Leggetts; and A. T. Neville of Enfield. For Hobgood the hitters were J. G. Norris, Doug Jefferson, Jim Johnson, Sam Adams and Cecil Savage.

Arnold Palmer's BOG Hope Is Up

BIRKDALE, England (AP)—Arnold Palmer's prospects of capturing the golf title he covets, the British Open, improved today after hours of heavy rain drenched the parched fairways and greens of the Royal Birkdale links. "I'm happy to see the course getting a soaking," said the favored pro from Latrobe, Pa. "It needed rain—and I'm sure playing conditions will be the better for it." Palmer was poised at 70 after the first round of the championship, which carries a first prize of $3,920. He was two strokes behind the three first-day leaders—defending champion Kel Nagle of Australia, Harold Henning of South Africa and Dal Rees of Wales. Three others were on 69, but Palmer's biggest rival for the title, Gary Player of South Africa, trailed at 73. "I'm quite content with the position I'm in," Palmer said. "A great deal depends on the weather, but don't forget that the rain is not going to suit only me. It's going to please everybody in the field."

7 NEW YORK (AP)—Maybe the New York Yankees and San Francisco Giants should receive additional pay for working overtime. They have the best major league records in extra-inning games. The Yanks, only one percentage point behind Detroit in the American League pennant race, have won four overtime games and lost two for a .667 mark. # Dr. Tucker Coordinates Activities Of ECC Students

DR. J. H. TUCKER . . . ECC's Dean of Student Affairs

REVIEWING RECORDS . . . of students with secretary

HATES TO SEE . . . students who don't apply themselves.

TALKING TO STUDENTS . . . takes much of his time.

By STUART SAVAGE
 Reflector Staff Writer
 Dr. James H. Tucker, Dean of Student Affairs at East Carolina College, heads up the office that coordinates the activities of the various student governing offices, and in which all forms of student aid are initiated.

Dr. Tucker, a native North Carolinian, graduated from Mt. Holly High School, then attended Appalachian State Teachers College where he graduated in 1939. He then taught school at Kannapolis until he entered the U. S. Navy as an ensign in 1941.

While serving in the Navy, Dr. Tucker was attached to the Norfolk Training Station for three years, engaged in training and housing of recruits and members of ships crews. He then was transferred to Pearl Harbor, where he served as permanent duty officer, attached to the Advance Base Reshipment Depot.

Following his release from the navy as a lieutenant commander in January, 1946, Dr. Tucker entered the men's hosiery manufacturing business in Gastonia, then four years later entered the Graduate School of the University of North Carolina. Tucker received the Master of Education degree in June, 1951, then was awarded his doctor's degree from UNC in June of 1953.

Dr. Tucker came to East Carolina College as Dean of Men and director of student personnel in September, 1955, after serving as Assistant Professor of Education at Furman University for two years.

Two years ago, the educator was made Director of the Division of Student Personnel and Placement for the college, and last year was named Dean of Student Affairs.

Dr. Tucker's duties include coordinating the activities of the offices of Dean of Women and the Dean of Men, the housing officer, and the director of the College Union.

Also, directly through the Student Affairs Office, all forms of student aid are initiated. Included in the student aid program at ECC are self-help jobs, National Defense Loans, College Student Loans, and $100 scholarships.

During the past year, according to the Dean, over 525 students at East Carolina have been helped through financial assistance, totaling over $121,000, while an additional 400 students have been aided through self-help jobs on campus.

Included in the figures, Dr. Tucker explained, are 258 students who received National Defense Loans, totaling over $90,000; 60 students who received over $10,000 from the College Student Loan Fund; and 210 students who received $100 scholarships from ECC.

In addition to the financial aid and coordinating jobs performed by the office of the Dean of Student Affairs, the office also has responsibilities in assigning students to remedial reading and English programs. The purpose of these programs, explained Dr. Tucker, is to bring these students up to a level for college work.

As Dean of Student Affairs, Dr. Tucker is permanent advisor to the Student Government Association and chairman of the Publications Board at the college. He is also a member of the Student Aid Committee.

"Trying to help those who need help" is what the college official likes best about his job. He explained that many good students would be unable to attend college unless they receive aid.

"I don't like to see anyone misuse his talents," Dr. Tucker emphasized, saying that, occasionally, a person has good potential but does not make good use of what he has, and just doesn't measure up.

"When I came here," he said, "I knew ECC was a growing institution, but I had no idea it would grow as fast as it has."

In 1955, Dr. Tucker noted, 2,800 students were attending the school, while last year, the college's enrollment totaled 4,600 students.

"ECC has a wonderful future," the official said, "and will mean much more than ever before to Eastern North Carolina."

To prove that interest of college officials are diversified, Dr. Tucker explained that one of his greatest pastimes is making minor repairs around the house.

Included in the "do-it-yourself" pastime are repairs to the radios and television set, electrical appliances, the lawn mower, and minor work on the family car. During his "spare" time (the Tuckers have three boys, one 12, one 10, and the third just 10 months old), he raises tropical fish.

Dr. Tucker, who at present is executive officer of the local Naval Reserve Unit, is a member of the North Carolina Education Association, Phi Delta Kappa education fraternity, and the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Dr. Tucker married the former Virginia Jackson of Ayden.

Posse Of One Hundred Is Hunting Gunman In Wilds

KREMMLING, Colo. (AP) — A hundred officers, some with submachineguns, stalked through the rugged northwestern Colorado mountains searching today for a fast-draw gunman accused of killing two officers and wounding two others.

State Patrol Lt. Hiram Short, 49, of Craig, Colo., and Under-sheriff John Clark, 68, of Eagle County, died Wednesday night from bullets fired by the touse-haired desperado.

Sheriff Chancy Van Pelt, 54, of Grand County, and Robert Hoover of Grand Junction, a State Game and Fish Department education officer, were hospitalized at Denver with serious bullet wounds.

The slayer, described as in his early 20s, was driving a car purchased July 3 at Sioux City, Iowa, by a man giving the name of Delmar Dean Spooner of Storm Lake, Iowa. Officers said Spooner left Storm Lake July 6.

Officers said they believed they trapped the gunman in a ravine near State Bridge, Colo., about 15 miles southwest of Kremmling near Piney Creek. The area, popular with fishermen, is about 130 miles northwest of Denver.

The gunman abandoned his car after a gun fight in which Clark was wounded in the jaw.

Some officers said the desperdo may have been wounded before fleeing on foot into the mountain fastness.

Officers pelted together this sequence of events:

Hoover, driving westward on U.S. Highway 40, stopped to assist a motorist whose car appeared to be stalled. Hoover became suspicious after the driver failed to produce adequate identification and radioed for the sheriff and the state patrolman.

The three questioned the motorist for a few minutes and decided to take him to Kremmling for further examination. They started walking to Van Pelt's car when the motorist drew a pistol and fired rapidly at Short and Van Pelt.

After wounding them, the gunman fired on Hoover, who had rolled into a roadside pit in an effort to escape the shooting.

The gunman raced away in his car, driving through Kremmling and turning southward on a road toward Eagle County.

Sheriff Henry Knuth and his undersheriff, Clark, drove northward to intercept the fleeing man. When they attempted to stop the approaching car, the Iowa auto rammed into the officers' vehicle.

At the same time, a shot through the window struck Clark in the jaw. The gunman jumped from his car and ran into dense roadside woods.

Return To Work After 11 Days Test Site Strike

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Most of southern Nevada's striking plumbers—including a group working on vital nuclear moon rocket tests—prepared to return to work today after an 11-day walkout.

Ninety per cent of the 500 men out since June 30 approved a new contract late Tuesday. In the number returning to work were 45 men employed at the Nevada test site 75 miles north of here.

They were working on facilities for the Rover test series, a forerunner of nuclear moon rocket project Nova.

Those reporting for their jobs today are employed by firms belonging to the Master Plumbers Association. The plumber and pipefitters union approved an association offer of 50-cent raise over two years. Scale before the walkout was $4.81 an hour.

Negotiations continued with the Federated Employers of Nevada, a management group employing the remaining 10 per cent.

Party Chieftains Urge Congress To Keep The Electoral College System

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairmen of the two major political parties urged Congress today to retain the Electoral College. But they disagreed on other changes in the method of electing presidents.

Chairman John M. Bailey of the Democratic National Committee called for a constitutional amendment to prevent electors from deserting the candidate to whom they are pledged.

Chairman William E. Miller of the Republican National Committee urged the adoption of a plan by which electors would be chosen by congressional districts, with two being named at-large in each state.

The two chairmen reached one major point of agreement in separate testimony prepared for the Senate Constitutional Amendment Subcommittee.

Both proposed that when no candidate gets a majority of electoral votes and the election has to be decided in Congress that all members of the Senate and the House be permitted to vote. Such contests now are settled in the House, with each state delegation having one vote.

Bailey said he thinks the flaws in the present Electoral College system are "more theoretical than real." He came out against a national presidential primary, which Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., chairman of the subcommittee, has proposed in the past.

Bailey said the cost and the time required for campaigning for the nomination in such a primary "might exclude some men who would make superior presidential candidates."

But the Democratic chairman said he thinks action ought to be taken to prevent electors exercising the right of voting for some other candidate when they are chosen on a particular ticket.

"This loophole provides a possibility of deviation from the expressed will of the electorate that might be highly dangerous in a close election," he said.

"In the 1960 election, for example, a shift of less than 18,000 votes in Illinois, Minnesota and Hawaii, for example, would have produced an electoral vote count of Kennedy 262; Nixon 261; unpledged 14. Imagine the temptations and pressures on each elector or the confusion that could have followed the death or disability of a few electors!"

Backing the district plan of choosing electors, Miller opposed a proposal under which a state's electoral college would be divided between candidates in proportion to their popular vote. He said this might lead to splinter parties and a "succession of minority presidents."

Supplementing his Electoral College views, Bailey called for a constitutional amendment to abolish the poll tax. He said he favors lowering the voting age to 18, but added that this matter should be left to individual states.

Burned To Death As Doors Jammed

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Richard Hock, 33, a movie stunt man well versed in dangerous exploits, burned to death when the doors of his compact car jammed after a traffic accident.

Hundreds of persons on the crowded Santa Monica beach saw Hock's car collide with another small auto Wednesday, then watched as the stunt man vainly attempted to free himself after the front-mounted gas tank exploded.

William Holland, a beach club employe, attempted to put out the flames with a fire extinguisher. He also tried to pry open a door before the flames drove him away.

The other motorist, Gerald Irving, 40, Canoga Park, escaped serious injury.

Asking Damages Of $2.7 Million

RENO, Nev. (AP)—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is asking $2.75 million damages from two men charged with blasting microwave towers in the Utah and Nevada desert.

Bernard Brous, 51, and Dale C. Jensen, 23, are awaiting trial on charges of setting off explosives May 28 at three stations in the remote area. The stations have been rebuilt.

The utility company civil suit, filed here Wednesday, also lists 10 John Does, two unnamed corporations and a co-partnership, likewise not named. After their arrest in Mexico last month, Brous and Jensen said they were the only members of a "republican army" and dedicated to the overthrow of ATT.

Pianist-Humorist Will Be At College July 18

Marshall Izen, pianist-humorist, whose programs present a satiric approach to music, will appear at East Carolina College Tuesday, July 18, under the sponsorship of the college Entertainment Committee. The attraction is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium and is open to the public.

A concert pianist, Izen presents musical satires which bite into the foibles of the concert and operatic world. Singing all the parts himself, he can digest Wagner's "Tristan Und Isolde" into a few fun-packed minutes. Lieder singers and had Italian opera often bear the brunt of his pointed comments.

Puppets made by Izen, an artist as well as a musician, are featured in his performances.

Patterned after concert and opera notables, the puppets are manipulated by hand. Among more than 50 in Izen's collection is a white-haired pianist who plays a miniature Steinway and the cast of a complete Italian opera. The top of a concert grand is used as a stage, as Izen works the puppets with one hand, provides music with the other hand, and also furnishes dialog.

Izen made his concert debut in Chicago at the age of sixteen and then continued his musical studies at Northwestern University. In service during World War II, he often played concerts and entertained at the front lines.

After the war, he went on to study at DePaul University, where he received a Bachelor's Degree in Music. Later he came to New York to study at Juilliard and work at the piano with the late renowned Isabelle Vengerova.

On TV, Izen has been seen on the Ed Sullivan, Steve Allen and other top shows, and is currently featured weekly on Channel Five's show "Wonderama" as musicologist. One of the features of the show is Izen's chalk illustrations of musical personalities.

Lightning Bolt Kills Fisherman

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (AP) — "I expect lots of fishermen get killed," Robert M. Lindeburg said to a friend with whom he was surf casting during a thunderstorm.

Minutes later Lindeburg was dead, struck by lightning.

The friend, Lee J. Scott, who related the conversation later, said that he had agreed with Lindeburg and had suggested they go home. But Lindeburg decided to stay.

Scott said Lindeburg was fishing Wednesday with a steel pole and was barefooted. Scott wore rubber hip boots. As Scott started to leave the beach the bolt struck.

"All of a sudden I was knocked down and it felt as if my hair was frying, sort of sizzling," he said. "When I got up I wasn't hurt. Just shaken."

Judge Steps In, Ends Argument

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Margaret Longenecker told the court she hadn't ordered the slacks and, what's more, they didn't fit her.

Millie Kahn, who made the slacks, disagreed on both counts.

When someone suggested that Mrs. Longenecker model the disputed garment in court, Superior Judge Steven S. Weisman threw up his hands, halted proceedings and reached for his checkbook.

"For heaven's sake," he said. "Superior Court is no place for a backyard argument. If you can't settle this, I will."

He handed Mrs. Kahn a check for $13 in payment for the slacks. "I'll donate it to charity," said Mrs. Kahn.

"And I'll donate the slacks to charity," said Mrs. Longenecker. "Next case," said the judge.

The case reached Superior Court on appeal from Small Claims Court.

Four-Year-Old Killed By Blaze

EVERETT, Wash. (AP)—Brenda Collins, 4, daughter of convicted kidnaper George Edward Collins, died Wednesday in a fire which swept a two-story wooden residence.

Collins, 23, was convicted Feb. 22, 1958, of second-degree kidnaping in the abduction of Lee Crary, 8, of Edmonds, Wash., in September, 1957. The child escaped after being tied to a tree. His parents got a note demanding $10,000 ransom.

Brenda was living with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Collins. They were away when the fire broke out from undetermined causes.

Collins is serving a 10-year term at the state reformatory in Monroe. His wife's whereabouts are not known.

Gave His Life To Save Son

LEHI, Utah (AP) — A father gave his own life for his son's Wednesday. He leaped into a sewer trench and, with his body, shielded the boy from the full force of a cave-in.

The collapsing dirt pushed 36-year-old contractor Darrel Adams face into the opposite wall of the trench, and a chunk of asphalt pinned his head in that position.

Rescue workers, digging frantically, were too late to save Adams. But beneath the dirt, cradled between his dead father's knees and arms, they found 14-year-old Richard Adams still alive.

Doctor's Idea Saves Harnett County Money

BUIE'S CREEK, N.C. (AP)—A resourceful Buie's Creek physician has found a way to save Harnett County taxpayers thousands of dollars each year. Dr. Bruce Blackmon persuaded doctors of the county to volunteer their services to examine persons applying for public welfare help for medical reasons. The result has been a culling out of those not actually entitled to help. Some folks don't even bother to follow through with an application when they learn they would have to take the examination. Dr. Blackmon estimates it has held down Harnett's welfare budget some $16,500 yearly. He got the idea in 1957 while serving as a member of the Harnett County Board of Public Welfare. Looking down the rolls of persons getting aid, he found the name of a man he had examined. "What's this fellow doing on here?" I asked, Dr. Blackmon recalled. "They looked up the records and sure enough, after I had found him able to work he had gone to another doctor and got him to certify he had a disability." There was another instance of a person drawing a check for close to 10 years on the basis of cancer. In that period of time, Dr. Blackmon figured, a cancer case should have either cured or dead. A check proved the first was correct—yet the welfare payments had continued. Working with the county medical society and with the permission of welfare officials, a committee of three doctors began a review of all medical records on file for welfare cases. After two-thirds of the medical files had been gone over, 20 cases of aid were terminated on the ground that the person receiving help was not actually entitled to it. At the same time, the plan was worked out to have a team of three physicians examine all new applicants for welfare aid for medical aid for medical reasons. Each doctor in Harnett, in alphabetical order, gives one afternoon a month for three months for the welfare examinations. Under the system of rotation, each doctor comes up for a three-month turn about every 18 months. "This is a tremendous help to the doctors," noted Dr. Blackmon. "He doesn't have to take time out from a busy office day to make this type of examination." It's public service, too, since the patient doesn't have to pay for the examination. Neither does the county make any payment to the doctors. A champion of the Harnett plan is Dr. J. W. R. Norton, state health director. Just last month he sent letters to health directors in all the 100 counties, bringing the plan to their attention. It followed up a similar memorandum which Dr. Norton distributed back in 1959. "They have done a wonderful job in Harnett County," Dr. Norton said. "I feel sure some of the other counties will want to follow the example, and I hope a lot of them will." If so, he added, "I think an enormous amount of money could be saved throughout the state." At the same time, Dr. Norton said a statewide approach might be wrong. "It would work out better if local folks took the initiative, rather than having somebody in Raleigh or Washington tell them to do it," he suggested. Too, he pointed out, each county's individual needs and characteristics can be taken into account by local plans. The Wake County Medical Society currently has a committee studying the possibility of something similar to the Harnett plan. "Doctors are concerned about what is going on with tax money for welfare. Everyone is," said Dr. Blackmon. "No one has any objections to helping those who need it, but no one wants to have persons just riding on the taxpayer." Welfare officials have given the program their cooperation. Dr. Ellen Winston, state welfare commissioner, gave the go-ahead when the doctors broached their plan. "We have had very good cooperation from Miss Lela Moore Hall, our Harnett County welfare superintendent," Dr. Blackmon added.

Fifteen Competing Tonight For Miss Universe Crown

By LOUIS UCHITELLE
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Fifteen girls ranging from 24-22-35 to 37-24-36, and from student to real estate speculator, compete tonight for the title Miss U.S.A. They are the girls who survived the first round of judging at the Miss Universe beauty pageant. Twenty-eight others seeking the Miss U.S.A. title were eliminated Wednesday night. The judges hit a snag at the end. They had four places left to fill and six girls to fill them—Miss Indiana, Miss Kentucky, Miss Michigan, Miss New Jersey, Miss Texas and Miss West Virginia. After a tense five minutes of balloting, Miss Indiana and Miss Texas were eliminated. "I'm the shortest (5-foot-3) girl in the contest. I never thought they'd pick me," said Miss West Virginia, 20-year-old Kathy McManaway of Princeton. "I thought they wanted only beautiful, long-legged girls." Kathy, a college junior, also has the most modest dimensions.

along with Miss Michigan, who is Patricia Lyn Squires, a 19-year-old nursing student from Milan. Miss Nevada, the most liberally endowed of the 15 girls, is Karen Weller of Las Vegas, an 18-year-old college freshman and model. Seven other girls also are models, either full or part time. "Our training as models might have helped," said Miss Alabama, Suelen Robinson, 19, of Fairfax, a college sophomore. "That ramp was long and the way we walked and carried ourselves must have made a big difference." "I felt like running the last 100 feet," said Janet Marie Hawley, 19, of Salt Lake City. The Miss Universe competition will be held this year on Friday and Saturday nights. Marlene Britsch, 21, of Claremont Harbor, Miss. moved to Mississippi from New Orleans last year and started a real estate business. The ceremony at Convention Hall started with a promenade of the 43 Miss U.S.A. contestants in evening gowns, and the 47 foreign entries in their native costumes. Then the foreign girls retired to the audience and the Americans paraded in orange, purple or lime colored bathing suits. They put on their evening gowns again for the judges final selection. The others chosen are Florene Mayette, 20, a bookkeeper-secretary of Hartford, Conn.; Joan Zeller, 23, a model of Providence, R.I.; Alexa Currey, 22, a model of New York City; Diane Giersch, 19, a student of Red Bank, N.J.; Gail Weinstock, 20, a registered technologist of Omaha, Neb.; Elaine Cusick, 18, a model of Minden, La.; Marcia Gail Chum-bier, 18, a student of Mayfield, Ky.; and Pamela Stettler, 18, a student of San Rafael, Calif.

Propose A Park For 'Walkers'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A state park for just "walkers and thinkers." That's the idea of Oklahoma City brothers W. J. and Chester V. McCloud. They asked the Oklahoma planning and resources board to create a 500-acre park near Cordell in southwest Oklahoma. They propose the area be cut into walking paths with varying degrees of difficulty—from almost level to such steepness that rock steps would be necessary. They also propose for each path to have a minimum of three silence areas. These would be marked "no human shall speak and each human shall make only the very minimum of noise." But the plan also calls for each path to be patrolled by a ranger on a motorscooter with a trailer carrying first aid equipment. DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A postal inspector says the United Airlines jet plane which crashed Tuesday carried 235 pounds of mail and about 210 pounds were recovered.

Business Notes

Attend Market
HIGH POINT—Billy B. Laughinghouse and Jesse R. Laughinghouse of Bostic-Sugg Furniture Co. are attending the Southern Furniture and Rug Market in High Point this week. Featured are furniture pieces for use in almost any room in the house. Designers continue to emphasize utility and interiors are refined. Wood tones dominate with use being made of the natural grain. Upholstery fabrics are colorful and include many new synthetics.

School Head Is Now 3rd-Highest Paid Gov't Man
CHICAGO (AP)—Benjamin C. Willis, superintendent of Chicago public schools since 1953, today ranks as the nation's third highest paid public official. The 59-year-old superintendent Wednesday was voted a new four-year contract at a salary of $48,500 a year by the board of education. His new salary, a raise of $6,000 annually, places Willis behind President Kennedy who draws a $100,000 annual salary and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York who gets $50,000. Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois is paid $30,000 a year and Mayor Richard J. Daley receives a salary of $35,000 a year. Willis, who began his teaching career in Maryland, was superintendent of schools in Yonkers, and Buffalo, N.Y., before coming to Chicago.

Area Chairman
RALEIGH—W. L. Jenkins of Jenkins Motor Co., Inc. in Greenville has been appointed to serve as area chairman of the North Carolina Automobile Dealers Association for Pitt County. It was announced by Rupert E. Atkins, president. Jenkins will act as liaison officer between the new car and truck dealers in Pitt County and the state and national associations. Atkins said Jenkins will keep his area informed of state and national affairs affecting the retail automotive industry and will advise NCDA and NADA of local happenings. Jenkins will also head a county-wide membership campaign for both organizations in the fall.

BEYOND SOLUTION?
WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy says the problem of juvenile delinquency will be beyond solution in 10 years if a nationwide attack on it is not started at once. Testifying before a House Education subcommittee, Kennedy called for a tightly coordinated campaign by federal, state and local authorities. Cape Canaveral, the 15,000-acre missile test center is closed to the public. But an exhibit of Air Force Titan, Thor, Snark, Matador and Bomarc missiles is on display in front of the Technical Laboratory at Patrick Air Force Base, 15 miles south of the cape.

Many Areas In U.S. Moving To Lighten Relief Load

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Moves to lighten the relief load are under way in many sections of the nation.

They vary in form—putting the able-bodied to work for their dole, cracking down on chiselers, or training unskilled men and women so they can help themselves.

Newburgh, N.Y., has brought the subject of public aid to national attention. The city plans to override state objections and put new rules into effect Saturday. The rules would, among other things:

- Make the mother of illegitimate children ineligible for further aid if she has any more children out of wedlock.
- Limit welfare recipients, except for the aged, blind and disabled, to three months of assistance in any one year.

Newburgh officials estimated about 5 per cent of the city's 31,000 population is on relief. They contended taxpayers no longer can afford the mounting costs.

And City Manager Joseph Mitchell asserted:

"There is a crying need for a reappraisal of the role of welfare in our society."

It's a big subject. The unemployed now number 5.6 million. Individuals on general relief rolls total about 1.5 million. Automation is causing concern about the future.

An Associated Press survey today showed that work-for-hour-relief programs are becoming widespread but they are far from general in scope. One theory behind them is that a man who has to work for a relief check will look for a better job.

A work policy has been in effect since 1958 in Phillipsburg, N.J. Mayor Arthur W. Paini said every able-bodied man applying for relief is put to work in parks or on roads for $1.50 an hour. He figured the plan has cut welfare costs from about $30,000 a year to around $20,000 last year.

"If this system were employed all over, it would save billions of taxpayers' dollars," he said.

How do relievers react?

A woman recipient went on duty in a library as part of a work relief program set up this year by the Washington State Legislature. She liked it well enough to work longer than necessary to earn her monthly benefits.

The Washington Department of Public Assistance mentioned that case to pinpoint what it called a good response to the program.

The Washington state legislators trimmed $14.5 million from the sum requested by the department for the 1961-63 period. That led, in turn, to a 10 per cent cut in payments to those who receive general and disability assistance and aid to dependent children. The reduction affects almost 60,000 persons.

Eight counties in Oregon required men on welfare rolls to cut brush along highways, prepare surplus food for distribution and clean up fairgrounds this summer.

Louis Ringuette, chairman of the Josephine County Welfare Commission, spoke of a small, elderly man who runs a chain saw in tree-and-brush clearing work. He said: "You'd think he was getting $5 an hour the way he keeps it going."

Marion, Ill., gave work-for-relief a trial for seven months. Only about half of the eligible workers showed up. The city dropped the program in April of this year but resumed it again last week.

Five years ago Cuyaroga County (Cleveland) Ohio, began a program for retraining employable relief clients. It hired personnel specialists. They catalogued relief rollers, gave them on-the-job training in county hospitals and other institutions and helped them get work. John J. Schaffer, county welfare director, said more than 1,400 persons have been put on payrolls. He reckoned the transfer cut the relief load by about $1.5 million.

Cook County (Chicago) operates a training shop where relievers learn to handle spray paint equipment, sewing and metal working machines and electrical appliances. Last month the center sent 888 persons to private employment.

In a pilot program in Cincinnati, 40 persons who had been on relief for an average of three years were trained for jobs as maids and hotel housemen. These people had cost the state $65,000 a year in direct payments. The training program, costing a total of $850, made them self-sufficient wage earners.

"You can make good citizens of low IQs," commented Mary Gorman, director of Ohio's Department of Public Welfare. "They will do things happily that a more intelligent person would not do because he would become bored. They should be taxpayers, not welfare recipients."

Texas tightened up its aid to dependent children program with an appreciable saving. Assigning specialists to make more thorough investigations brought these results: a drop from 24,974 cases involving 79,957 children and $1,788,372 in June, 1959 to 19,652 cases involving 60,586 children and $1,471,914 in June, 1961.

Louisiana enacted a law last year to cut off aid to dependent children to any mother who had an illegitimate child after she drew a welfare check. Action was made retroactive, and 22,500 of the youngsters were removed from the benefit lists.

But the law also provided that a mother could regain eligibility by proving her home was suitable. One way was by getting married legally. One way or another, all but 4,900 of the children have been restored to the rolls.

Florida also has whittled down its aid to dependent children load. Under a 1959 law assistance can be stopped when a family doesn't have a suitable home. The results: a review of 15,000 cases and many voluntary withdrawals.

Rhode Island is stepping up a drive against fraud in the collection of public assistance. A new law there provides stiffer penalties for such deception.

West Virginia has found considerable evidence of cheating in applications, especially in the program for distributing surplus commodities. The chiseling took the form of lies about income and dependents to establish eligibility. Starting this month, applications will include an oath that the information is true.

There have been some steps towards broadening rules.

Connecticut, for example, abolished its "settlement requirement" for assistance. Previously, applicants had to live in the state at least four years, and had to be self-supporting during that period.

California's legislature recently made aliens eligible for state aid and increased payments and generally liberalized eligibility regulations for various programs.

General relief is a state and local business. But the federal government contributes to other kinds of programs and reserves the right to withhold funds if a state plan doesn't meet its approval.

The Indiana Legislature, in 1951 made the welfare rolls public records, and thus open to inspection. Federal aid was withheld But the stalemate ended when Sen. William E. Jenner, R-Ind., got a rider attached to an appropriation bill in Congress that sent U.S. assistance to Indiana despite its open-books law.

Cobb Says Interest Was In Vote Reform, Not People

MARSHALL, N.C. (AP) — Republican State Chairman William E. Cobb has testified that he was interested in voting reforms, not personalities when he wrote a letter charging election irregularities here in 1959.

Cobb underwent vigorous cross-examination Wednesday in defending himself against three $300,000 libel suits filed by Marshall precinct voting officials because of the letter to then Gov. Luther H. Hodges.

W. J. Cooke of Asheville, attorney for plaintiffs Zeno Ponder, Oren Rice and Frank Runnion, asked Cobb if it were true that the Madison County vote did not alter the outcome of the statewide bond election.

"Yes," the youthful looking Morganton lumber broker replied, "but we were not interested in the outcome of the election. We were interested in cleaning up voting procedures in Madison County."

Both sides sum up their cases today before Superior Court Judge J. Frank Huskins sends the case to a jury of 11 men and one woman.

Both sides rested on Wednesday, the 12th day of the politically charged trial.

In his Nov. 10, 1959, letter to Hodges, Cobb charged that the 939 votes reported for the Marshall precinct were out of proportion to the vote elsewhere in the state in the bond election. He named names, but the plaintiffs produced witnesses who testified that they identified Ponder, Rice and Runnion with the charges.

Cooke questioned Cobb closely about his letter to Hodges, his statement to the State Board of Elections on Nov. 17, 1959, and Cobb's letter of May 6, 1960, to the elections board. All concerned the Madison County vote.

"I felt at the time the statements I made were absolutely correct. I still do," Cobb declared.

The defense said it had attempted to subpoena all 2,300 of the voters registered in the Marshall precinct to ask each whether he voted in the 1959 election. Plaintiff Ponder, called back as a witness late Wednesday, said that only about half of the registered voters were served with subpoenas.

But defense attorney W. C. Meekins countered by calling his own law partner, Landan Roberts, as a witness. Roberts testified that he paid Ponder's brother, Sheriff E. Y. Ponder, a 50-cent fee for each subpoena served, that he gave the sheriff a check for $500 on June 17, another $100 later and $36 Wednesday when he learned that the served subpoenas numbered 1,272.

There was no explanation from the witness stand as to why all of the precinct's registered voters were not served subpoenas.

Of the voters called as witnesses, 179 said they voted in the election, 517 said they didn't and 56 said they couldn't remember.

Crossing Nation In His Sailplane

RAWLINS, Wyo. (AP) — Bob Fisher of Moses Lake, Wash., who is gliding across the nation in what he calls a "sailplane," said he soared as high as 16,200 feet above sea level over southern Idaho and Wyoming Wednesday, and flew 360 miles.

He said it was "the best flight I've made in my soaring career."

Fisher, who started from Seattle, left Burley, Idaho Wednesday morning and landed in Rawlins at dusk. He said he had to use an oxygen bottle for four of the eight hours aloft. The plane has no engine.

PARTIAL PULLOUT

KUWAIT (AP) — Britain has ordered 1,000 commandos and several hundred other troops to withdraw from Kuwait, cutting its defense force here by roughly one-third.

One of the giant redwood trees in Humboldt Redwoods State Park near Eureka, Calif., towers 364 feet. It is probably the tallest tree known.

Had 9 Children, But Disharmony

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Mrs. GalleRodrigues, the mother of nine, won a divorce with this testimony: "We couldn't get along."

The mother, formerly of Butte, Mont., was awarded custody of the children in the decree granted Wednesday. The court also ordered Delbert Antonio Rodrigues a television repairman, to pay $300 monthly for support of the five boys and four girls whose ages range from 14 years to three months. He did not contest the divorce.

Make-Up Check

RALEIGH (AP)—State Auditor Henry Bridges will get a check from Director Hargrove Bowles of the Conservation and Development Department to make up for excess expense accounts for industry hunters.

The $681.59 will come from Hargrove's personal bank account. He said he was paying it himself because he doesn't believe the 15 or so men involved should have to reach in their own pockets.

Bowles acted after receiving a letter from Bridges, which said an investigation confirmed that some of the industrial representatives had been paid expenses in excess of the $12 per day allowed by a 1959 act. The auditor said steps should be taken to repay the state.

The 1961 Legislature raised the daily subsistence for out-of-state travel to $14. It also set up machinery which will allow the limit to be exceeded in special cases.

Long Wait, Law Not Yet Heeded

PITTSBURGH (AP)—John H. Shenkel has asked President Kennedy, in a letter, why the words "In God We Trust" have not been imprinted on all United States currency as the law says.

Shenkel, chief minute clerk in Allegheny County criminal court, said Wednesday he hasn't received a reply.

He said the words have been printed only on one dollar bills. Legislation, for which he campaigned, was enacted six years ago.

"It's been six years and long enough for the government to clear up any problems," Shenkel said. The bill clearly specified the motto should go on all bills.

Red Cross Holds Disaster Study

A disaster workshop held in New Bern yesterday was attended by F. Richard Atkinson, chairman of the Pitt County chapter, American Red Cross, and Mrs. Walter F. Taylor, executive secretary, both of Greenville.

This meeting was attended by representatives of the Red Cross Coastal chapter and by directors of Civil Defense, Boy Scouts and Red Cross field representatives from Cherry Point and Camp Lejeune.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss ways to be better prepared for the hurricane season approaches.

The meeting was opened by W. C. Chadwick, chairman of the Craven County chapter, and discussion was led by Rep. Davis, Red Cross field representative from the Southeastern Area, assisted by Mrs. Marshall, area consultant.

Davis pointed out that the Red Cross receives authority to operate in time of disaster by the Congress of the United States, making this service an obligation, providing certain services to families of disaster. The primary obligation of the Red Cross is to relieve suffering during disaster. Davis noted obligations and duties of Civil Defense and Red Cross during a disaster and stated that there is a close working relationship between the two organizations.

A million and a half dollars have been spent in North Carolina by Red Cross in the last 10 years, Davis said.

News 'Blackout' In Crash Probe

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Tight-lipped federal and company investigators tried to pinpoint responsibility today for a United Air Lines DC-8 jet liner landing crash that killed 17 persons Tuesday.

Of the 122 aboard, at least 50 received hospital treatment and 38 suffered minor injuries. None was in critical condition.

United imposed a complete blackout on any explanations of all seven crew members who escaped or from other company employees. UAL President W. A. Patterson, here from Chicago, refused to answer any queries from newsmen.

Federal investigators turned aside reporters' questions with a cryptic "There's nothing to say."

Fire Chief Alie Feldman of Denver snapped back at critics who alleged there was delay in fire-fighting equipment reaching the crash scene.

"It didn't make any difference how many pieces of fire equipment we had there we couldn't have saved those 16 people," Feldman said. Those 16 passengers died in the flaming wreckage.

The 17th victim was a Denver city engineer.

He was crushed when the mammoth airliner, reporting a hydraulic system malfunction, skidded from a runway at an estimated speed of 120 to 140 m.p.h. and slammed into his truck, in use on a construction project.

Rebuilding And Re-Routing Line

AYDEN—Townsmen are in the process of rebuilding and re-routing the electric line from the Union Swamp Road to the sewerage treatment plant. Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said this week.

The project will probably be completed by the end of this week. Begun on Monday, it was said to be about a week's job.

Bobby McRoy is in charge of the project during the absence of Construction Superintendent D. C. Moore.

Gifts For Baby From Pakistan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The President's 7-month-old son, John F. Kennedy Jr., now owns two silver rattles which also can be used as whistles.

The versatile toys were the gifts of President Ayub Khan of Pakistan, here for a state visit. The Kennedys' daughter, Caroline, 3, received a big Pakistani doll.

For President Kennedy the state visitor brought two Pakistani rugs, and for Mrs. Kennedy a painting of a Pakistani woman.

Change In Hair Style Of Men Becoming Popular

By WILSON MORGAN
Durham Sun Staff Writer
Written for the Associated Press
DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — Men, have you thought about changing the style of your hair as well as its length the next time you visit a barber shop?

It's becoming more and more the "thing to do" these days, according to the two master barbers who operate the Durham Institute of Barbering. They say hair styling no longer is limited to women customers.

"We are constantly being asked to cut hair according to special styles at our school," declared A. R. Richardson.

Co-operator S. E. Randall added, "This has led us to include in our instruction the latest styles and techniques used by leading barbers throughout the country."

Although they reported that most people still are content to have their hair cut in the usual formal or sporty styles, those who either want a different appearance or who have seen a certain style of hair cut that they want to call their own.

Admittedly gone are the days of greased-down coiffures parted in the middle, and the roach-back pompadour with no part at all. Here now are the days of the "crew cut," the "flat-top" and the "duck's tail."

Hoffa Mail Fraud Case Is Dismissed By Judge

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A federal judge dismissed today the government's mail-fraud case against Hoffa and two other men.

Judge Joseph P. Lieb threw out the case against Hoffa, Henry Lower and Robert E. McCarthy Jr. on the ground that the grand jury that returned the indictment against the three last year at Orlando was improperly selected. This was the main argument of defense attorneys.

In Washington, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy noted in a statement that Lieb's decision did not involve the merits of the charges. He said the Justice Department could either appeal from the decision or submit the charges to a new grand jury.

Lieb said in a 13-page decision that state lists, which excluded women and people not registered to vote, were used to make up the jury box.

Lieb said "apparently the jury commissioner (Alan Bixby) and the deputy commissioner (Mildred Durraice) were either unaware of the change in the law or forgot about it, for they deliberately and exclusively limited their selection of names for the jury box to those persons who were then registered to vote and in the case of women, to those who had also volunteered for jury service in the state courts."

The judge said dismissal of the indictment did not necessarily terminate the prosecution. He added that the government could present its case again to the grand jury if the jury were properly selected.

Hoffa, Lower and McCarthy had all been charged in a 12-count indictment with using the mail, interstate telegraph and telephone facilities in a scheme to defraud the government.

The indictment said they misused more than $500,000 in union funds "for personal profit" in operation of Sun Valley Inc., which bought 2,475 acres south of Cape Canaveral six years ago.

Caution Against Overoptimism

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Health Service reports "a remarkably low level" of polio cases in the United States so far this year. But it cautions against overoptimism.

There were 237 polio cases in the first half of the year. There were about twice as many in the first half of 1960—469—and more than four times as many in the first half of 1959—1,026.

This is the time of year a distinct increase in cases is expected. Eighteen new cases—eight of them paralytic—were reported from 11 states for the week ended July 1.

Work Scheduled Detour Traffic On Pitt Road

AYDEN—The Ayden Street Department was scheduled to work with drainage problems during the first part of this week, returning to the street patching project by the end of the week, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said.

Traffic using a Pitt County road will be detoured while a new bridge is under construction on the road, according to Resident Engineer Robert A. Merritt of the State Highway Department.

Merritt said road No. 1001, from Penny Hill to Belvoir (Bells Cross Roads), will be closed due to construction of the bridge over Conecote Creek. Traffic will be detoured over roads No. 1409 and No. 1400, while the bridge is being built. The detour, which will be in effect for about four months, is 7.9 miles in length.

Resurfacing work is underway on NC 91, Merritt added, from NC 58 at Snow Hill, southwest to Daniels Street in Kinston. Traffic is being maintained along this 13 mile section, with one-way traffic where work is in progress, he added. This work is expected to be completed around August 1.

Sworn In

GRIFTON — Swearing in of town officials and adopting of the 1961-62 budget took place at the Grifton Town Board meeting Tuesday night.

Mayor Wiley Gaskins was sworn in by Judge Archie Rogers, and Mayor Gaskins swore in the judge and commissioners W. D. Casey Jr. and James H. Herring.

The $65,000 budget, which was tentatively approved on June 13, was adopted at the meeting this week.

Other business included the police department report, of 11 arrests for June, with nine found guilty in the courts and two cases pending. The Recorder's Court balance was $570.78.

Yam Assessment Vote Scheduled

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Board of Agriculture has cleared the way for a Sept. 23 vote by yam growers on an assessment to boost their product.

The board acted Wednesday at the request of the North Carolina Sweet Potato Association.

Approval of two-thirds of those voting in the referendum will be needed to make the assessment effective. Edwin Beamon, association secretary-treasurer, said between $20,000 and $25,000 yearly would be raised by the proposed two cents per bushel levy on green or cured potatoes, or two cents per 100 pounds on canner potatoes.

Counties in which the vote will be conducted will be Warren, Vance, Granville, Wake, Lee, Franklin, Scotland, Hoke, and counties east of that line. Western counties may get in on it, if they want, Beamon added.

Gov. Sanford stressed the importance of the Agriculture Board's work at swearing-in ceremonies for four members. They were J. Atwell Alexander, Stony Point; T. C. Joyner, Garysburg; Tom Gilmore, Julian; and David Townsend, Rowland.

Little Town Of Industry Hunters

BENTON, Ky. (AP) — Hard work and folks like the widow with three children who gave $5 of $6 she carried brought success to Benton's 24-hour fund-raising campaign to reacquire an industry.

The community raised $7,500 to return a subsidiary of the Ashby Metal Co. from St. Louis, where it had moved after closing its plant here 18 months earlier.

Ashby officials asked help in meeting moving expenses and the community had to raise the money by 10 a.m. Wednesday. The drive went over the top at 10:52 a.m.

Earl St. Marie, chairman of the Marshall County Industrial Foundation, said the contributions went from $1 to $500, including the widow's $5. She was a former employee of the lawn furniture plant.

St. Marie said practically all the plant's former employees still living here contributed to the drive.

"We're very elated, but a very tired bunch," said St. Marie.

"We could never have done it without the radio station and the hard work of so many people. Over 250 people and groups chipped in including the Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary."

An average of 300 people in this far western Kentucky town of 3,000 worked at the plant previously. It will reopen about Oct. 1, St. Marie said. It's payroll put $11,000 weekly into the city's economy in the past.

Changed Minds And Take Jail Sentence

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Four "Freedom Riders" who earlier agreed to stop their tour of the South in exchange for suspended fines and jail sentences changed their minds and returned to jail at Little Rock, Ark.

One of the four, the Rev. John C. Raines, 27, of Setauket, N.Y., said Wednesday night the group discussed the matter and decided that to leave would be giving up something they believed was right.

Raines said he assumed the group would begin serving six-month sentences.

Municipal Judge Quinn Glover convicted the group on breach of peace charges Wednesday but said he would suspend their six-month terms and $500 fines if they would go home.

The four, arrested Monday night when they stopped at Little Rock en route from St. Louis to Shreveport and New Orleans, La., at first agreed to leave but later decided to remain in jail.

Meanwhile at New Orleans Judge John Minor Wisdom of the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals granted a convicted Freedom Rider the right to take her case to his court. It was the first of the Freedom Rider cases to reach this judicial level.

Wisdom signed a certificate of probable cause allowing Elizabeth Wyckoff, 46, New York freelance writer, to appeal to the federal appeals court.

Miss Wyckoff was arrested June 2 at the Trailways bus terminal in Jackson, Miss., for breach of the peace and convicted on June 5. Jackson City Judge James Spencer sentenced her to a $200 fine and a suspended 60-day jail term. She refused to pay the fine and went to the state prison to work it out at the rate of $3 per day.

At Jackson, Spencer convicted two Jackson Negroes for breach of the peace in the city's first lunch counter sit-in. He fined Lavagnin Brown, 16, and Jimmie Travis, 18, $200 and sentenced them to four months in jail.

At San Francisco, five Bay area religious leaders are heading a "mission to Mississippi" in an attempt to help remove segregation barriers in Southern interstate travel terminals.

About 35 clergymen from throughout the United States are scheduled to begin a series of meetings in Mississippi July 20 with both segregationist and integrationist leaders.

Hanrahan Club Names Officers

Lois Allen will serve as reporter. Other members of the newly organized club are Kathryn Dudley, Eva P. Barrow, Joyce Barrow, Mary Barrow, Marvin C. Chapman, James Chapman and Robert Randolph.
