ASTRONAUT DAMP, SAFE IN SPACE FLIGHT Capsule Sinks, Grissom Swims After Perfect Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom survived a 3,280-mile-an-hour journey in space today, then made a dramatic swim for his life, as his capsule plummeted to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean.

Loss of the $2-million space craft and its equipment will not delay the Project Mercury program, which is aimed at placing a man in orbit a few months from now and on the moon later, an official said.

Grissom and his control panel went down with the capsule, but Robert C. Gilruth, Project Mercury director, said most of the information desired was received through telemetry. Earlier, a space agency information officer had indicated to newsmen that loss of the space craft might delay the program.

Gilruth said it has not been determined whether this would be the last suborbital flight. It had been suggested that there might be two more before he attempts to make a fire man into orbit.

The capsule sank in 2,900 fathoms (16,800 feet) of water. Officials said no effort would be made to recover it.

Grissom blew his escape hatch and left the sinking capsule in the manner all astronauts had been taught in their rigorous training. Explosive bolts on the escape hatch were a new feature of the capsule, added since Shepard's flight. Grissom blew them by pulling a lever.

After swimming about 70 feet, Grissom was picked up by a helicopter two minutes after his escape from the capsule. Attempts to recover the spacecraft failed as it plummeted to the bottom.

"Give me something to blow my nose. My head is full of sea water," America's No. 2 space man said when he was deposited on the deck of the aircraft carrier Randolph. Otherwise, he was reported in good condition.

Rusk Urges NATO Launch Talks On Military Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk called in the ambassadors of Britain, France and Germany today to open urgent Allied conversations on proposals by the Kennedy administration for military preparations to meet expected Soviet pressures against West Berlin.

The United States, it is understood, intends to seek a fast buildup of conventional NATO military strength in Europe by the addition of several divisions to the Western European defense force. This would mean, some officials indicate, an increase to the long-planned goal of 30 divisions from the present strength of 22 divisions.

The immediate purpose of the conference with Rusk was to give the ambassadors detailed reports on decisions on U.S. policy made by President Kennedy at a National Security Council meeting late Wednesday.

Rusk predicted that the Western Allies will show whatever solidarity is needed to combat Communist pressures on Berlin.

Speaking at a dinner Thursday night for 26 visiting parliament members from NATO countries, he said: "We shall see in the months ahead that spirit of solidarity of postwar years reasserts itself so there will be no doubt in anyone's mind that democracies or alliances of democracies can do what has to be done."

Saturday Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and other high defense officials will fly to Europe for conferences with Allies leaders in Paris and London.

Early next week, probably on Monday, the permanent council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at Paris will get a report on U.S. plans and proposals from U.S. Ambassador Thomas Finletter, who is also flying to Paris this weekend. He is American representative on the NATO Council.

Next Thursday Assistant Secretary of State Foy D. Kohler will take a task force to Paris to meet with British, French and West German planners and make preparations for a Western foreign ministers conference in the French capital beginning Aug. 5.

President Kennedy's plans are understood to call for an increase in over-all U.S. military strength with a prospect that one or more American divisions will be dispatched to Europe later this year. Kennedy is known to believe, however, that total American strength must be raised to a point where it will be capable of meeting Communist challenges not only in Europe but in other parts of the world. His plans are expected to be disclosed in some detail in a report to the nation next Tuesday and a message to Congress next Wednesday.

One point stressed by authorities here is that the policy being developed under the President's guidance calls for action on a broad scale, not just in the military field but also in the planning of diplomatic measures and economic steps which may be taken as the Berlin crisis progresses toward an East-West showdown near the end of the year.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Only a few hours after this country sent its second man into space, President Kennedy today signed a bill authorizing vastly expanded space projects, including a start toward sending a man to the moon.

Kennedy took note of Capt. Virgil I. Grissom's space flight as he put his signature to the bill. It authorizes the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to spend $1,784,300,000 in the year ahead. The amount was every cent Kennedy had asked.

In a brief statement, Kennedy said it was significant that the bill was signed on the day America's second astronaut made his flight "before the eyes of the watching world and with all the hazard it entails."

"It is also significant that once again we have demonstrated the technological excellence of this country," the President said.

"As our space program continues it will continue to be this nation's policy to use space for the advancement of all mankind and to make free release of all scientific and technological results."

The bill was passed only Thursday by the House and Senate.

reported that dug-in Tunisian infantrymen and civilian volunteers were battling French paratroopers supported by tanks and rocket planes in the city of Bizerte. Tunisia news agency reported other clashes between Tunisian "volunteers" and French forces in the Sahara Desert.

The fighting spread as the U.N. Security Council was called into an emergency session at the request of Tunisia to deal with the mounting crisis. The Tunisians charged France with aggression and demanded the French give up the Bizerte naval base they kept after granting their former protectorate independence in 1956.

The United States showed growing concern over the clash between allied France and friend Tunisia and appealed to both to "end hostilities without delay."

Arab nations lined up behind Tunisia and denounced "French imperialism." President Gamel Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic and the Algerian rebel government based in Tunisia offered troops to fight the French.

Tunis radio said the French laid down an artillery barrage and attacked with rocket-firing planes before paratroopers stormed out of the naval base to drive on Bizerte itself.

Bursts of gunfire could be heard from within the city, 40 miles to the northwest of this capital.

Reports of casualties in the undeclared war—now in its third day—varied.

President May Keep 6 National Guard Divisions

NEW YORK (AP)—President Kennedy was reported Tuesday to ask Congress to freeze six National Guard divisions on active duty indefinitely because of the Berlin crisis.

Warren Rogers Jr., in a Washington dispatch to the New York Herald Tribune, also wrote that the President is prepared to ask Congress to increase the Army's manpower limit to 975,000, from the present 875,000.

The six National Guard divisions now on their annual two week's training are:

- 26th Infantry (Massachusetts): training at Camp Drum, N.Y., July 22-Aug. 5.
29th Infantry (Pennsylvania): Camp A. P. Hill, Bowling Green, Va., July 15-29.
30th Armored (Tennessee): Ft. Stewart, Ga., July 16-29.
35th Infantry (Kansas-Missouri): Camp Ripley, Minn., July 23-Aug. 6.
38th Infantry (Indiana): Camp Gravelly, Mich., July 23-Aug. 6.

Reports of casualties in the undeclared war—now in its third day—varied.

A Tunisian government spokesman said up to last midnight 110 Tunisians were killed and 500 wounded. A French report in Paris had 90 Tunisian killed, 200 captured. French casualties were listed as 5 dead, 30 wounded.

RALEIGH (AP)—What Congress does on the federal aid to education issue will determine whether the North Carolina Legislature will be called back into special session to act on a bond issue for school buildings.

Gov. Sanford reaffirmed this position Thursday at his news conference. He raised the hope that some action yet may come from Congress.

"We will defer our judgment on what to do in this state until the situation is resolved in Congress," he said.

Sanford had intended to use federal aid funds for school construction. The event which said is not forthcoming, he had indicated he would call the legislature into session to approve a bond issue.

The governor had nothing to say on the gathering of Southern chief executives in Mississippi, called by Gov. Ross Barnett of that state. Sanford declined an invitation to attend the session, regarded as a step to develop unity among Southern states on race problems and other matters.

They will be reviewed Saturday morning by Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, who also will watch the re-enactment of the battle Saturday afternoon.

Pitt Prison Camp Escapee Caught After Crime Spree

A Pitt County Prison Camp escapee, who escaped near the intersection of Evans and 14th Sts. in Greenville about 2:30 Tuesday afternoon, was captured in Dover, in Craven County, following a kidnapping and auto larceny spree yesterday.

Pitt County Prison Superintendent Capt. L. G. Dail said the man, John Charles Callahan, 28, of Laurel Hill, was captured by citizens of Dover after one of his kidnaped victims jumped from a speeding car in the West Craven town.

Callahan, serving a 12-1/2-year sentence from Halifax County for assault on a female with intent to commit rape, walked away from a road gang near the Norfolk and Southern Railroad crossing on Evans Street, Capt. Dail said. Dail noted it was the second escape for the "honor guard" prisoner. The first was from Franklin County in 1959, he noted.

He is being held in a New Bern jail under an open charge pending further investigation of the case, officials reported.

Callahan, according to Dail, confessed the theft of a car, belonging to a Washington man, in Greenville following his break, then said he stole a second vehicle in New Bern.

Hurricane Anna Pointing Toward Central America

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Rumbling across the Caribbean at 23 miles per hour, Hurricane Anna, with winds estimated at 80 m.p.h. today was pointed at Central America.

The 1961 season's first hurricane was running almost parallel to and a little south of the course taken last year by Hurricane Abby, 1960's first. That hurricane blew across the Caribbean and broke up in the mountains of British Honduras.

The San Juan Weather Bureau at 5 a.m. today located Anna near latitude 13.5 north and longitude 70.9 west, or about 175 statute miles northwest of Curacao, N.W.I.

Forecasters said the hurricane was expected to continue moving between west and west-northwest, reducing speed to 21 m.p.h., for the next 12 hours with slowly increasing size and intensity.

Anna's peak winds extend over a small area near the center and gale winds extend 100 miles north of the center, 50 miles south of the center. Lowest barometric pressure logged is 29.29 inches.

Foreign Aid Bill Awaiting Final Committee Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee meets today to vote final approval of a $4,326,500,000 foreign aid bill, tailored to fit most of President Kennedy's specifications.

Action on the measure, which includes the full authority Kennedy asked for a five-year, $8.8-billion economic development loan program, was virtually completed in a day-long session Thursday.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he hoped to schedule the measure for debate in the Senate late next week. There it is expected to encounter rough opposition, particularly from those who argue its method of financing means backdoor spending with insufficient congressional control.

Committee Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., conceded Kennedy's battle for the long-term development loan authority, which bypasses congressional appropriations committees, is far from won.

He said he would "guess the Senate would accept the borrowing authority, but it might make changes in details and amounts."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Democratic leader, said: "There may be some cuts offered on the floor, but I'd say we'll come out of the Senate with a good, strong bill that will please the President and fulfill the aims of the administration."

Acting amid mounting tension over Berlin, the committee cut only $436 million from Kennedy's total requests for $4,762,500,000 in military and economic assistance abroad.

In the chief point of controversy, it overrode Republican protests by identical 10-7 votes and approved:

Authority for the President to borrow $900 million from the Treasury this year and $1.6 billion a year for the next four years to establish a revolving fund for low interest or no-interest rate loans to underdeveloped nations. This totals $7.3 billion for five years.

2. Additional presidential authority to reloan money which is paid back by foreign countries from previous U.S. loans. $2.7 billion this year, and $300 million each of the following four years for a total of $1,487,000,000, thus bringing the development loan fund's total to approximately $8.8 billion.

Circle Number One
Mrs. Cary Brown, chairman of Circle Number One, met in the home of Mrs. Willie Barnhill Monday night with 10 members present and one visitor. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Brown.

After a short business session, the Circle planned a picnic supper for the Sunbeam Class during Sunbeam Focus Week.

Mrs. Joe Andrews, program chairman, gave the program taken from the Royal Service, using as her topic "Sharing Possession" for Denominational Advance.

The Womens Missionary Society Hymn of the year was read in unison for the closing prayer.

The hostess served ice cream float and cookies during a short social immediately following the adjournment.

Shower Honors Mrs. Roberson
Tuesday night, Mrs. Dalton Council was hostess at a stork shower honoring Mrs. John Roberson. The shower was given in Mrs. Carlton James' home. Mrs. James is the mother of the hostess.

On arrival Mrs. Roberson was presented a corsage of pink carnations.

After the gifts were presented to the honoree, she opened and displayed them. Guests were invited into the dining room where they were served from a table overlaid with white and centered with an arrangement of pink carnations interspersed with bows of tulle tied with pink ribbon and flanked by burning pink candles.

From a crystal bowl punch was poured by Mrs. John Tyler, mother of the honoree and cake was served by Mrs. James. The guests helped themselves to lady fingers, salted nuts, mints and opened faced sandwiches.

Woman's Society
Of Christian Service
The Woman's Society of Christian Service met in the Bethel Methodist Church, presided over by the president, Miss Camille Staton.

Mrs. J. C. Wynne, Jr. opened the devotional reading verses 22-23 from the fifth chapter of Galatians, after which the hymn "Lord Speak to Me" was sung by the group. Mrs. Wynne then read verses 1-17, from the first chapter of John leading up to her devotional topic . . . people and the word. The Christians, Jews and Moslems are known by the Moslems as book people. People are spoken to by God, and have a message to deliver. This is a missionary task. Sometimes this message can be performed in deeds, but the message is, that everyone is accepted by God just as he is.

Following up the devotional thought, Mrs. John Lloyd Watson, presented the program on words. The most beautiful words in the world, she said, are "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in Thy sight; O Lord, my strength, and my Redeemer."

Words are powerful. They command or obstruct; hurt or help. A word said cannot be retracted. Therefore we should guard our tongues against restless and evil words. A thoughtful Christian will think before he speaks. It has been said, continued Mrs. Watson, that sincere diplomacy is no more possible than dry ice or wooden air. Words do not mean the same things to different people. Words are a complicated study; colloquialisms enter in, and also ambiguity, often making them offensive. Some words have been so overused, until there is no meaning left.

The language of the missions has changed; missionaries do not go out with possessions, but rather, with gifts to share. There is no longer a foreign mission, but a WORLD mission. The word mission means SENT. Every proper Christian should have a mission, create new modes of expression, and speak the word of God in an unforgettable clear tongue.

The secretary read the minutes, which were approved, and the circle count was taken.

Miss Staton called for the secretaries' reports, after which the meeting was adjourned following the benediction.

Editors Urged Attract Youth

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A program to attract young people into the newspaper profession represents one of the outstanding accomplishments of the North Carolina Press Association, says NCPA President Ashley B. Futrell.

"We need bright young people and we can get them," says Futrell, of the Washington Daily News. "In the past, we haven't been letting them see inside the door of a newspaper."

He says local newspapers can help attract students to careers in journalism. The association program works through North Carolina newspapers and the University of North Carolina School of Journalism, he explains.

He made the comments in an interview after his arrival here for the 89th annual convention of the NCPA.

Heading the state's professional association for the newspaper industry has taken Futrell more than 10,000 miles around the state, to the White House three times, and to Raleigh many times.

"I guess I'll be a little sad about leaving," he says. A new slate of officers will be elected at the closing session Saturday.

Harry Golden, author and editor of the Carolina Israelite, addressed the NCPA this morning. Then group meetings were scheduled for the Associated Dailies and the Associated Weeklies.

A luncheon and tour of Bowater Paper Mill at Catawba, S.C., also was on the program.

Tonight, Dr. John T. Caldwell, chancellor of N.C. State College is to address the organization at a dinner meeting.

An estimated $1,100 damage was done yesterday in the collision of two vehicles at the intersection of 14th and Charles Sts., in which three persons were injured.

Police identified the drivers of the vehicles as Barnett O. Adler, 21, of Raleigh, and Walter R. Coward, 59, of Route 1, Greenville.

Investigators said the Adler vehicle was traveling south on Charles Street, when the truck operated by Coward, headed north on Charles, turned in front of the oncoming car.

Five tobacco hands were riding in the rear of the truck, police reported, while two other persons were passengers in the front seat of the vehicle. Coward and one of the passengers in the truck were injured, as well as Adler.

Both Coward and Adler were treated for minor abrasions and released.

Beatrice Sims, 24-year-old Negro, was hospitalized with possible back injuries.

Damage to the Adler vehicle was estimated to be about $1,000 while officers set damage to the truck at $100.

Coward was charged with failure to yield the right of way in the 4:20 p.m. collision.

Donald M. Wilkerson, 21, of 508 East 11th St. was charged with failure to stop for a red light after the vehicle he was driving was involved in a collision at the intersection of Pitt and Fifth Sts. at 1:20 p.m. yesterday.

Operator of the second car involved in the mishap was listed as Robert Lee Cherry, 38-year-old Negro of 303 East First St.

Damage to each vehicle was placed by officers at $100. No injuries were reported.

Two Nazis Given Year On Roads

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Two American Nazi storm troopers have been sentenced to 12 months on the state road gang for assault on a 13-year-old Jewish boy.

The troopers are members of George Lincoln Rockwell's American Nazi party, which has its headquarters in this Washington suburb.

Conviction Thursday of Robert Garber, 31, and Richard Braun, 26, was based on testimony by the boy, Frederick (Ricky) Farber. He said that on July 8 he was chased by one of the Nazis carrying a lead pipe, threatened and forced into the headquarters, where he said he was handcuffed.

Judge Hugh C. Cregger Jr. imposed the maximum jail sentence for a misdemeanor. Cregger said the original charges of felonious assault had not been proved.

Braun and Garber said they would appeal in October.

In separate cases involving troopers, Anthony E. Wells, 23, was fined and sentenced to 60 days in jail for assaulting a 16-year-old boy whom he caught behind a tree shortly after a rock was thrown at the headquarters Wednesday night. Two other troopers were found innocent of disorderly conduct charges arising from the same incident.

The state flower of Wyoming is the Indian Paintbrush.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Although several states reported they were increasing their pools of available draftees, the Army said today it has made no new request for drafting additional men.

Selective Service officials in Washington said the increases in pools of available draft men were tied to the already announced 8,000-man August call, 2,000 more than called for July.

Indications in the capital were that the administration planned to rely primarily on trained National Guardsmen and reservists in any defense manpower buildup. Larger draft quotas would be used only as a possible long-range support measure.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger declined comment on reports Kennedy will declare at least a partial national emergency and call up reserves and National Guardsmen. He said he would not comment in advance of Kennedy's planned report to the American people by radio and television next Tuesday evening.

Some state Selective Service directors said they were acting on orders from Washington in building up the available supply of men eligible for induction into the armed forces.

A Selective Service official here pointed out that some increases had been expected—there were no draft calls for May and June with 14,000 men to be drafted in July and August.

There have been no increases since the call of 8,000 was announced for August.

Among the states reporting increases in their "ready pool" were Massachusetts, Indiana, Ohio, Arizona, Oklahoma, Texas, Georgia, Rhode Island, Illinois, Oregon, Tennessee, Arkansas and Maryland.

In Massachusetts, State Selective Service Director Frederick L. Nyham said the number of men in the pool for the state was being increased from 1,200 to 2,100. He said the national pool of draft-ready men was being doubled from 50,000 to 100,000.

Informed of the statement on the national pool, the Selective Service official here said, "I'm sure that is not true."

The possibility that the draft will be increased exists.

For one thing, it has been operating at relatively low levels since the beginning of the year. When the increased draft call for August was announced, a Defense Department spokesman said the purpose was to help bring the Army up to its authorized power of 870,000 from its present 856,000.

The Pentagon has been answering all questions about draft quotas by saying they are determined on a month-to-month basis.

Selective Service headquarters said it had received no word from the Pentagon of any marked increases to be asked soon.

Speculation centered then on the possibility of early induction into federal service of a few Guard divisions together with individual members of specialized units of the ready reserves.

The ready reserves total more than a million men. A substantial part, the Pentagon says, can move out quickly when mustered into federal service.

The Washington Post said Kennedy has decided to extend the summer training of selected National Guard units rather than call them into federal service at this time.

This move, and a long-range buildup of conventional war forces, were reported among the steps agreed upon at Wednesday's National Security Council meeting, the Post said.

Offers Reward To Catch False-Rumor Spreader

A rumor about a water skiing girl falling into a nest of water moccasins and dying as the result of the bites has been branded as malicious by the operator of Whichard's Beach.

W. H. Whichard offered a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who started the rumor.

Whichard told the Washington (N.C.) Daily News of the reward offer. He also offered cash rewards to persons who can establish any basis of fact to the rumor.

"It is deliberate, malicious and contemptible rumor," he said, "that is absolutely designed to hurt my business. I am offering a reward to anyone who can furnish either the name of the alleged victim, the doctor who treated her, the hospital in which she was attended, any officer or citizen who saw her or helped her when she was bitten or the funeral home that is alleged to have handled the funeral arrangements. For any or all of this information, I am happy to offer liberal cash rewards."

Whichard told the Daily News that circulation of the rumor in several Eastern North Carolina counties has affected his business. The rumor has been widespread in Greenville for the past week.

Dave Milligan of the Washington Daily News checked with authorities in Beaufort County and could find no basis for the rumor.

The story, as it has been circulated, is that a girl was water skiing near Whichard's Beach when she fell from the skis and into a nest of water moccasins. The rumor is that she suffered numerous bites and died as a result.

Those installed were: Mitchell Jones as president, Judy Throver as recording secretary, and Claudia Smith as treasurer.

This organization includes youth organizations of Methodist Churches in this part of Rocky Mount District including Bethel, Robersonville, Stokes, Williamston, Windsor, and Jamesville. Rev. Carl W. Barbee of Bethel is Pastor Counselor and was in charge of the installation service.

Must Reach More N. C. Youngsters

North Carolina's program of "quality education" must of necessity include more "quantity education" if the goals of the educational program for the state are to be realized.

It should be a matter of grave concern to the people of this state that during the past school year there were almost as many students who dropped out of the public school system as there were who graduated. According to Gov. Sanford, there were some 45,000 youngsters graduated from public schools in North Carolina this year while 43,000 dropped out of school between September and June.

For all that the legislature did to enrich the program of public education, it did nothing to put teeth into the school attendance laws which have remained on the books, but ineffectively so, for many years.

If North Carolina's school improvement program is to bring about the results which are desired, it must provide a better education for the youngsters who attend public schools, and it must likewise reach a greater number of the youngsters of the state. The state must not only provide better education for those who graduate from its high schools, it must also graduate a larger percentage of its youngsters from high school.

In the next few years there will be many suggestions of things which local communities might do to supplement the school enrichment program being undertaken by the state. One of the most important contributions, it seems to us, would be a community effort at getting more youngsters in school on a regular basis, and keeping them there through all 12 grades. It would be a community effort in which every kind of club or organization could participate, and one which would provide immeasurable benefits to the community and its people on a continuing basis.

While the calibre of education being offered in the public schools was being improved, the number of youngsters of the community who were receiving the benefits of this better educational program could also be increased. In such a manner the community would pyramid the benefits it receives from the public schools.

It should be evident by now that the school attendance laws of the state do not provide an adequate answer to the problem of youngsters who do not attend school regularly, or to the problem of older students dropping out of school before they graduate. It is also apparent that these problems can best be coped with on a local basis, and through positive programs which will impress upon both parents and youngsters the importance of taking the fullest possible advantage of what the public schools offer.

Large Board To Gather Monday

By LYNN NISBET

C&D BOARD—When the enlarged conservation and development board assemblies at Wrightsville Beach next Monday morning it will look more like a convention than a board meeting. Besides the 28 board members there will be at least a dozen division heads and other administrative officers, plus the usual retinue of families, friends and persons on hand to present matters to the board. The business meetings will be held in the Surf Club, and unless the time has been changed will begin at 7:30 Monday morning.

Governor Sanford completed the task last week of naming the 28 members, but the releases handed out did not designate which had been appointed for two years terms and which for four years. Since he got the full membership list Director Hargrove Bowles has been working on committee assignments for them, for approval of Governor Sanford as chairman. The Governor gave as the principal reason for enlarging the membership from 18 to 28 that it would permit each member to give more attention to specific duties by reason of serving on fewer committees.

DISTRIBUTION — The geographic distribution of the members is about as equitable as could be, although a considerable section in the northwest is not represented, and there is no member from the Pamlico area. Analysis of the business and professional background of the appointees suggests lack of strict adherence to the policy of making selections on basis of interest of members in the different functions embraced in the department's activities. Commercial fisheries, mineral resources and travel interests seem particularly weak.

All of the men and women have other activities to their credit, chiefly in civic promotion and Democratic party fields, but the main business noted in the appointment releases are as follows:

CLASSIFICATION—There are three bankers—E.C. Gaskins of Monroe; Gordon C. Hunter of Roxboro and Carl G. McGraw of Charlotte.

Three farmers—Robert Scott of Haw River; William Elliott of Marion and James A. Singleton of Red Springs.

Three real estate developers—Roger Kavanagh of Greensboro; Larimer Middett of Elizabeth City and E.R. Evans of Ahoskie. The oil distributors—Robert E. Bryan of Goldsboro and Jack Pool of Clinton.

Two automobile dealers—Dan Cameron of Wilmington and Woody Hampton of Sylva. (Cameron is also a TV executive.)

Two manufacturers—Chas. B. Wade Jr., of Winston-Salem

(RJR) and Charles E. Hayworth of High Point (furniture).

One newspaper publisher — Eric W. Rodgers of Scotland Neck.

One lawyer — Ernest Parker Jr., of Southport.

One lumberman—Andrew Genett of Asheville.

One tobacco warehouseman — W. Eugene Simmons of Tarboro.

One merchant—Benard Stein of Fayetteville.

One dentist—Dr. Mott Blair of Siler City.

One physician — Dr. John T. Dees of Burgaw.

One paint distributor — L. W. Gurkins of Plymouth.

One electrical appliance distributor—Walker Martin of Raleigh.

One motor transport executive —John M. Akers of Gastonia.

One corporation farmer and industrialist—Hervey Evans Jr., of Laurinburg.

Two women—Mrs. Fred Campbell of Wayneville, assistant administrator at Junaluska, and Mrs. Bullard of Raleigh, former State nutrition specialist — both active in local Democratic circles and civic club work.

COMMITTEES—Keen interest has been manifested in the committee assignments, since most of the important work of the board is handled by committees. Through the administration of Governors Unstead and Hodges heavy emphasis was placed on industrial development, and the commerce-industry division was regarded as most important.

In recent months travel has received increased attention by local newspapers and promotion agencies, and has been recognized by State agencies as an important contributor to the total economy. Its lack of consideration in selecting the board membership was disappointing to travel boosters, but there is hope that in committee assignments this vital and fast growing segment of North Carolina development will be provided for.

There also has been almost phenomenal development in the area of mineral resources, especially in non-metals. Interest has recently been revived in the search for petroleum in Eastern Carolina. North Carolina has long ranked high in ceramic resources—from bricks to the finest quality of table ware.

The finding of a 14-ounce pink sapphire in Macon county the other day focuses attention on the economic value of the "rock hound" fad ( ) as a tourist attraction and source of revenue for landowners where semi-precious stones abound.

These items may not seem big as compared with acquisition of a few multi-million dollar manufacturing plants, but their aggregate and widely diffused impact may benefit more people in more communities.

Hanging Up Another Star

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Angels Guarding Us All?

Your columnist loves the older ladies. As the years go by, they become sweeter. I enjoy chatting with them and wish them many more years of healthful living. I say this so that what follows won't be interpreted as criticism of the older women of our fair city (in the newspaper business you quickly learn not to call any woman elderly). Rather my observations are the result of genuine concern for the two ladies involved.

I watched a car rolling along Evans St. recently with two white haired ladies within. This in itself was nothing to get excited about. But then the lady driving pulled across the street and toward the curb in front of a local store.

The car neared the curb and—wham! The left tire hit the curb and the car ran up on the sidewalk. Well she missed the parking meter and no real harm was done. But then her passenger, also an elderly—oops—older lady opened the door and stepped onto the street. She walked behind the car headed toward a store entrance. I, observing all this, cringed as the gears of the car ground into reverse. But the second lady smiling and unaware of the danger, calmly stepped on the sidewalk—just as her friend poured on the gas and the car lurched backward.

There must be angels above looking after each and every one of us.

Eyebrows were raised when a dwelling at the corner of Second and Washington Sts. was torn down and a new brick building begun in its place.

There were rumors that urban renewal had already begun in the Shore Drive area where the structure is to be located. But 'taint so. This is strictly a private project. Urban renewal demolition is still some months off.

What is being constructed at Second and Washington Sts. is an office building by a private group of citizens.

And "Sand quotes," the Sanford Jaycee publication, had this to say recently. "How long have you been driving without a tail light, buddy?" demanded the policeman. The driver jumped out, ran to the rear of his car and gave a loud moan. His distress was so great the cop was moved to ease up on him a bit. "Aw, come on," he said. "You don't have to take it so hard."

"Whattaya mean?" cried the motorist. "I've lost my trailer."

Recently when my secretary was dying, all sorts of isotopes were used and I presumed that they could do as much good as a result of this investigation. Nothing is being done to stop manufacturers from spending millions of dollars for research. It is therefore difficult to discover precisely what the Senator seeks to accomplish.

I have gone through the material diligently, seeking to discover why I have to take expensive pills when I feel so good and can do as much work as I used to do. # Two Capitals Could Wipe Out Taxpayers

The special study commission proposed in the House of Representatives to determine whether a supplemental national capital is in the best interest will have a good many factors to consider.

It is true that the location of Washington makes the nation's capital city vulnerable to possible enemy attack. There is also some merit in the suggestion that there be a wider dispersal of government agencies to prevent the entire government being wiped out in case of attack. As proponents of the study have suggested, under present circumstances one well-placed bomb could knock out the entire government.

On the other side of the ledger, however, the proposed study group might also give consideration to the possibility that another well-placed capital—if it proves as costly as Washington—might wipe out the taxpayers.

The way things have been going lately, it is about all the taxpayers can do to keep abreast of the spending which goes on in one capital city. Why build a second when we can hardly afford the cost piled up in the one we already have?

Good Place For A Mind-Reader

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy is a speed-reader but if he could just read minds, too, this anniversary of his first six months in office would be a little more comfortable.

The greatest dilemma he knew he faced from the beginning—dealing with Premier Khrushchev—has caught up with him. But now that's here he's in a position of a man wrestling with a phantom.

He knew before he took office, because Khrushchev had said it would be this way, that sooner or later in 1961 the Russian once again would demand that the Allies get out of Berlin.

The last time Khrushchev did this—1958—he set a deadline for a settlement but then let it slide past. Now again the Russian has set a deadline. It's six months.

But what Kennedy doesn't know is whether Khrushchev means it this time.

So the best he can do on any move he makes is guess. He had a choice: be firm or back up. He chose to be firm. But he appears more than just firm. He's been tough.

For instance: He has let it be known his administration is considering mobilization of the nation's armed forces. But in doing so—since he can't read the Russian's mind—all he can hope is that he's doing right.

He doesn't know if Khrushchev is bluffing. He doesn't know if the Russian just wanted to keep the pot boiling without any intention of a showdown in the hope he'd benefit by any weak spot that showed up in Kennedy.

If this guess is right, then it might be assumed a tough Kennedy might cool him off. But this isn't necessarily a correct assumption since it might have just the opposite effect on Khrushchev.

Kennedy toughness may force Khrushchev, even though he had started out bluffing, to feel he has to get equally tough, or

Other Editors Sayings Should Remain Tabled

(Henderson Dispatch) Having decided by a bare majority of one, or eight to seven, to table all proposals for Federal aid to schools, it will be interesting to observe the sticking capacity of House Rules Committee members in adhering to that conclusion. Ordinarily, this action would mean that the proposal is buried for this session. And, while there is a semblance of resurgence of a conservative, or more realistic, attitude on Capitol Hill there is no denying that the liberals are in a majority in this Congress, when they really wish to show their hand.

Chairman Smith (D-Va.), Rules Committee chairman, said he did not "know of any way the action can be reversed in this committee." Speaker Rayburn, who surrendered to Kennedy pressure to pack the committee to give administration supporters a majority on that body, said it is "very doubtful" that there will be any school aid legislation in the House this year.

Despite these opinions, the pressure of Federal patronage by the White House has shaped the course of events more than once at this session, and there is no assurance that it will not happen again.

Congress is acting out of character in barging in on State functions in undertaking to shape the policies of local public schools. And that is the primary motive behind Federal aid. The school people know that as well as any one, but are willing to surrender their prerogatives for cold cash. So the pressure may be expected to continue regardless of the committee's decision.

The committee vote actually was a surprise. It had been expected to do precisely the reverse. One wonders if it is possible that the grass roots have been heard from, or if there is a long last a growing consciousness of the inherent dangers in the vicious proposal.

It has been said already and it still true that States and local communities are abundantly able to provide for all the needs of their own schools without assistance from the Great White Father in Washington. If Federal aid actually is dead for this year, as Rayburn intimated, opponents of the grab for control should make the most of the months between now and the second session of this Congress beginning next January to impress their convictions upon representatives. It may be that only in that manner can local school control be maintained, as it should be at all costs, and for the good of future generations and in the interest of just plain democracy in the United States.

Strength For Today

SELF-CONFIDENCE
Do you have confidence in yourself? You should have. You and I are, to be sure, little specks on a planet, which is in itself only a little speck in a great universe. What can we do if the stars in their courses fight against us (as the Bible said they did in the case of a certain Biblical character)?

We are insignificant — we scarcely need to be assured of that. There are more than two and a half billion persons on earth beside ourselves. Yet the basic teaching of religion is that God remembers every individual. He has created. There is not an item of our lives which escapes His notice. And the God

"A 'major policy document' released by the National Science Foundation notes that a century ago machines supplied about one horsepower for each worker. Today they per worker. Eight out of 10 workers were then required to feed the Nation; now less than one out of 10 is ample. The gist of the message which the Foundation has to offer is that in this day of accelerated scientific discovery the United States must step up its contributions to basic research and scientific education in order to keep in the forefront of social and economic progress." — The Washington Post.

When we think about these things, our insignificance fades away. We come to realize that we are personalities made to fellowship eternally with a personal God. Every power of that God is placed at our disposal in the living of a good and purposeful life. We have no cause for discouragement — rather we should be thrilled every day by the realization of our privilege and the confidence we can have ourselves and in the God who made us.

Estes' Aim Is Dubious

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It is difficult quite to understand what Senator Kefauver is getting at in his investigation of the drug industry. If it is prices that he seeks to regulate, then why not regulate all prices of all goods. If he objects to labels and trade names, he makes a mistake because sensible folks not only demand original labels when they buy a medicine but get to know it by name of the bottle. The day when the doctor scrawls in Latin so that no one can read what he says, not even the pharmacist, is over. We want to know what is it that goes into us. Also there is the advantage of not taking the wrong medicine, the killer instead of the healer.

Senator Kefauver, in a previous investigation, gave the impression that he was bringing the underworld to the surface. It was exciting to watch Frank Costello testify before a television camera. When that investigation was all over, the underworld was still in business, as potent as ever, pushing heroin as actively as possible; organized vice continued to compete with private immoral persons; graft in public offices became increasingly scientific. Precisely what Senator Kefauver accomplished by his crime investigation is not clear. He dropped the whole business.

Now since December 1959, he has been going after the legitimate drug business. He does not claim that any of these companies are engaged in illegal practices. No one is sent to prison as a result of this investigation. Nothing is being done to stop manufacturers from spending millions of dollars for research. It is therefore difficult to discover precisely what the Senator seeks to accomplish.

I have gone through the material diligently, seeking to discover why I have to take expensive pills when I feel so good and can do as much work as I used to do. The Senatorial committee's reports do not help me at all. In fact, I find much of their information to be baby-stuff, uninformative and not very helpful. Of course, drugs are expensive; so are tombstones.

Recently when my secretary was dying, all sorts of isotopes were used and I presumed that they could do as much good as a result of this investigation. Nothing is being done to stop manufacturers from spending millions of dollars for research. It is therefore difficult to discover precisely what the Senator seeks to accomplish.

Nowhere is so much done for the sick as in this country and it is done mostly by private pharmaceutical companies that spend their money on research and then on promoting the drug. Much of this expenditure may be wasted because the research does not prove out. However, one success may save thousands of human lives and how much is a life worth?

Furthermore there is danger in what Senator Kefauver is doing. Patients and their families lose confidence in particular drugs that get front page attention because they are played up at a committee hearing. I know that nobody several years ago survived the series of illnesses that I had, but I have survived and am more active than ever. I am amused by friends who come up to me to say: "How wonderful you look, but do you feel as well as you look?" Sure, and I am doing more work.

And if someone tells me that the bag of medicines I carry about with me are expensive, I must laugh, particularly when I read circulars advertising graves. I would rather pay for a medicine than a grave any day. So what is the complaint?

Apparently Senator Kefauver says that the manufacturers charge too much. Much of the testimony that I have read has to do with faulty arithmetic. This is quite natural and reminds me when I was young in Shanghai. Some of us were interested in making an extra dollar out of China's share of what was known as reparations; that is, the dyes seized from the Germans after World War I. We were very enthusiastic but not sound businessmen. We added a 10 percent profit to the cost and lost lots of money. We had, of course, failed to include interest on the money, exchange from one currency to another, shipping, insurance and all sorts of other charges. We subsequently calculated that a 200 percent mark-up would have brought us a slight profit. It is just simple arithmetic.

Mary and Martha

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 10:38-42; John 11:1-44; 12:1-8

When Christ visits Mary and Martha, Martha complains that Mary has left her with all the chores while she listens to Him. Christ replies that the word of God is more important.

Lazarus, their brother, dies. When Christ comes, Martha runs to meet Him, feeling that if He had been there Lazarus would have been saved. Jesus promises, "Thy brother shall rise again."

At Lazarus' grave, Jesus orders the stone sealing the cave taken away. Before the onlookers He thanks God for hearing His prayers and commands, "Lazarus, come forth." And Lazarus arose.

At Christ's Last Supper, Mary brings out her treasure, a precious ointment, with which she anoints her King's feet. Judas criticizes it as wasteful and Christ rebukes him.

Mary and Martha

THE BLESSINGS CHRIST CONFERS ON HOMES WHERE HE IS LOVED

Scripture—Luke 10:38-42; John 11:1-44; 12:1-8

By N. SPEER JONES ALL THE incidents in this lesson take place in the town of Bethany, on the other side of the Mount of Olives from Jerusalem. In a home in that town dwell two sisters and a brother, named Mary, Martha and Lazarus—who, incidentally, is not to be confused with the beggar Lazarus mentioned in Luke 16:20.

The friendship, devotion and hospitality of these three must have been pronounced—and deeply appreciated by Jesus. He apparently stayed with them always when He was in the vicinity, and it was this home that He chose to make His headquarters during His difficult last days on earth.

These two sisters are two distinct personalities. Notice, first, that Martha is the more dominant. It is Martha who invites Christ to their home (Luke 10:38); Martha who takes upon herself the responsibility of hospitality, being "cumbered about much serving" at home (Luke 10:40) and serving at Jesus' last supper (John 12:2). It is Martha who goes forth to meet Jesus when He comes after Lazarus' death; Martha who warns Christ that viewing Lazarus after his burial might be unpleasant.

Mary is the quieter, the more submissive, the more emotionally motivated. Yet she is not without her own type of independence.

Witness her spontaneous anointing of Christ with the spikenard at His last supper. Scholars tell us that when a king of the time feasted, his head was anointed with oil which perfumed the room with an exquisite fragrance. They also tell us that this spikenard is estimated to have been worth the wages of 500 days. Thus we see in what a magnificent way Mary honored her Lord, Whom she must have realized was soon to die.

It seems probable that Martha was the older of the two sisters. She is accustomed to taking charge and bearing responsibility. I cannot agree with the critics who feel that Christ rebuked Martha for her concern about His comfort (Luke 10:41) rather than sitting rapt at His feet as did Mary. When Martha, distraught by the burdens of hospitality, asks Jesus to tell Mary to help her, He replies most gently and appreciatively, it seems to me, repeating her name in affection, despite her petulant tone. The wording of verse 40 would almost indicate that this was not the first time Mary had left Martha with extra responsibility. Yet Christ does point out to Martha that there are times when it is wise to follow Mary's course—to slack up on the usually necessary responsibilities in order to appreciate the really important things in life when they appear. When Christ says, "but one thing is needful," He means that of all the things Martha was trying so hard to do, only one was essential this time—getting closer to God by listening to His Son.

In fact, these five short verses from Luke point out not only a deft characterization of two different personalities; they also show two opposing tendencies in the make-up of most of us. The inspiring part of this passage is the understanding that Christ feels for this conflict, in which we must all strike some sort of balance.

School Authorities Say Kennedy's Fitness Program Standards 'Met'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
School authorities across the nation agreed today with President Kennedy about the urgency of physical fitness for pupils. But most pointed out that existing programs equal or exceed the chief executive's recommendations.

The President, alarmed lest this turn into a nation of weaklings, has called for a minimum of 15 minutes of vigorous activity each day in every school in the country.

An official in the state education department in New York said pupils are expected to receive more time for vigorous exercise than the amount proposed by Kennedy.

High schools in the state are required to provide a total of 300 minutes a week of physical activity.

California law requires that all secondary schools throughout the state have a daily physical education period.

The physical education requirements in Florida schools exceed the President's recommendations. Elementary schools by state regulation must provide 30 minutes daily for grades 1-6. Junior high school students receive a minimum of three 50-minute periods weekly and high school students a minimum of five 50-minute periods weekly for a minimum of two years.

Twenty minutes of physical education are given daily at all the grade levels in Seattle schools, with stress on calisthenics.

Darrel Smith, supervisor of physical education in San Diego schools, commented: "Mechanized living has made us softer, there's no question about it, but we're doing our best to counteract this in gyms and on playgrounds."

San Diego's schools are ahead of the proposed minimum, Smith added. Secondary schools have 55-minute daily physical education and elementary schools 20 minutes in addition to recess play.

David Horowitz, associate superintendent of schools in Philadelphia, said pupils there actually get more exercise than the 15 minutes the President recommended, though it isn't all necessarily strenuous.

Secondary pupils take two 45-minute periods of physical education each week, and many senior high and technical high pupils have four such periods a week. Elementary pupils have at least 75 minutes weekly plus 25 to 45 minutes of health education in classrooms.

A. A. Buschman, coordinator for physical education, health instruction and recreation in the Dallas school district, commented, "We've been devoting part of physical education periods to such exercise for a long time."

"High school students get 8-10 minutes of exercise each physical education period and elementary youngsters 5-6 minutes each play period."

Dr. Charles R. Spain, superintendent of Albuquerque public schools, said gymnastics are given 20 minutes each day to elementary grades, along with supervised play periods. In secondary schools physical education classes of 50 minutes each day are required to the 11th grade.

Dr. Harold J. Bowers, assistant state superintendent of public instruction for Ohio, said: "I haven't seen the President's message, but personally I think too much time is spent on competitive sports and too little on the mass of the students."

"There is a temptation to concentrate on those who probably don't need it—the ones who make the football or basketball or other teams—and not on those who sit on the sidelines and watch."

"We have good physical education programs in our schools, but I'm inclined to think too many stress recreational, rather than physical fitness, programs."

C. Hobart Engle, assistant superintendent of schools in Cook County (Chicago), said the program proposed by Kennedy has a new look and he would like to see it go into effect.

"Schools in the Chicago area haven't done too bad in their physical education programs," he added.

James Hazlett, superintendent of schools in Kansas City, Mo., observed: "The key word in his message is 'vigorous.' Our elementary schools have two 20-minute play periods daily, in addition to the lunch hour. Play involving good wholesome games is conducive to vigorous activity. We feel that, with allowance for weather, we come essentially within the suggested program."

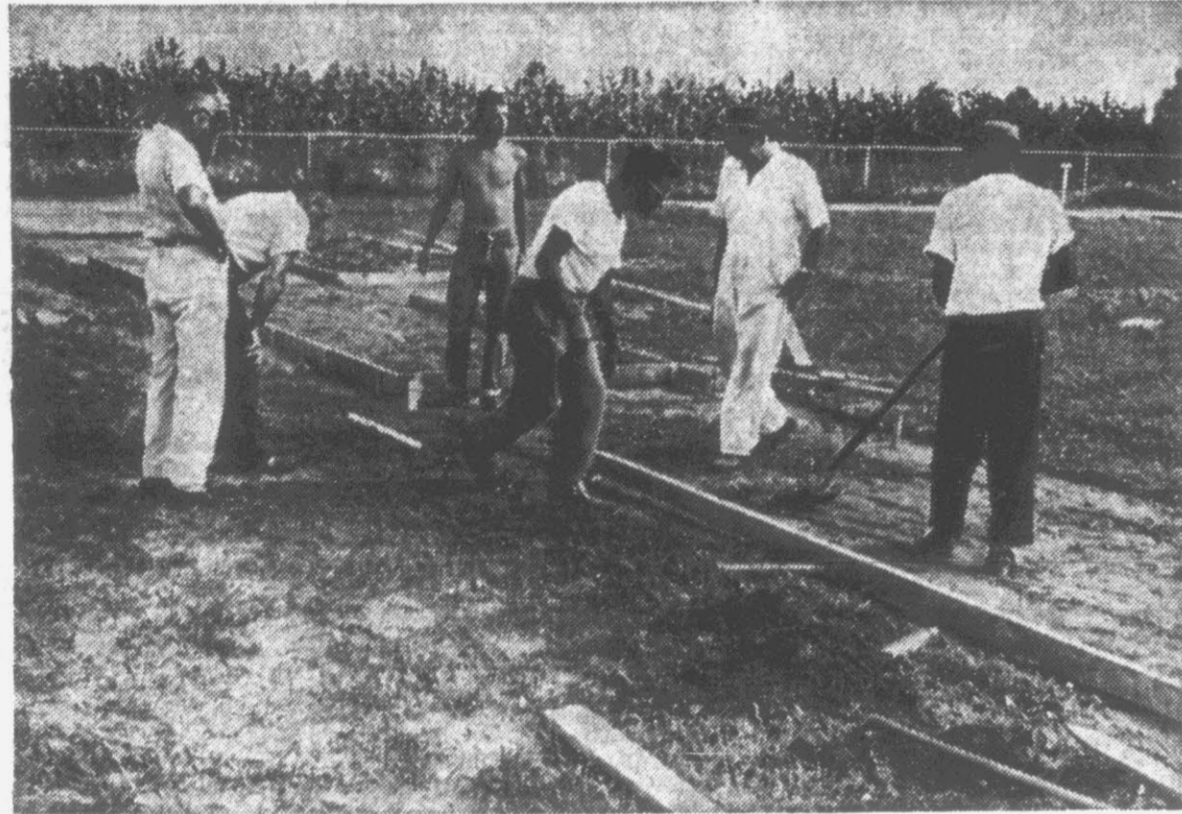

State Supt. of Schools Claud Purcell of Georgia said schools in his state have as good a physical education program as any other state. A minimum of 30 minutes daily is devoted to instruction in health and safety.

Maryland state law requires 15 minutes of physical education a day for elementary school pupils plus one hour of directed play a week outside the regular classroom work. The minimum for high school students is one hour a week of physical education and two hours of directed play.

New Jersey law requires 150 minutes a week of physical education for elementary and secondary school students.

C. E. Crooks, superintendent of Guthrie, Okla. schools, said high schools and junior high schools had a physical education program for boys and girls, and that one was being started this next school year in the elementary schools.

School officials in the Portland, Maine metropolitan area said their physical education program is already as good if not better than what the President is recommending. They all voiced enthusiasm for his recommendations and indicated they would step up their programs where possible.

ANOTHER RECREATION FACILITY for members of the Greenville Moose Lodge and their families got under way this week with the laying out of a miniature golf course on property adjacent to the Moose home on the Farmville Highway. "In keeping with our policy of being a family fraternity," says Secretary E. M. Baldree, "we are continually seeking to broaden the base of family participation and interest." The miniature golf course will be complete in a matter of a few weeks, depending on the weather. (Photo by S. L. Rowland)

New Facilities for WTN
Washington, N.C.—Work is progressing on television station WTN's $750,000 project which will more than double the signal strength to over 1,500,000 people in Eastern North Carolina.

General Electric Co. has been awarded a contract for the major portion of the project, including a new antenna and tower and a complete, new high-power transmitting package.

The 1,523-foot tower will stand about 50 feet higher than the Empire State Building and will be the tallest man-made structure in North Carolina.

GE's latest model 50,000 watt television transmitter also will be installed by WTN. The station is erecting an addition to its transmitter building at Grifton, 22 miles southwest of Washington to house the complete driving and amplifying circuits.

The station's present GE driver, a 5,000 watt model, will be retained in service on a standby basis, making WTN one of the few North Carolina stations with two complete transmitters in case of technical failure or other emergency.

The new tower is under construction.

struction beside the present 919-foot tower and therefore will not cause any loss of receiver antenna orientation.

Secret Weapon In U.S. Humor

NEW YORK (AP)—President Kennedy probably isn't aware of it, but he has available a powerful secret weapon he could use in the cold war struggle with the Soviet Union—America's funny-bone.

He could use it to whack communism over the head around the world, says Evan Esar, an expert and lifelong scholar on humor. It might even be the decisive factor, Esar added.

"Long before the cold war, America dominated world comedy, whereas Russian humor has virtually no influence abroad—thanks to the rigid controls over clowns, variety performers and topical satire," Esar said.

A gag or funny story carries more propaganda value in the battle for men's minds than a hundred speeches from statesmen. Though we make no effort to spread them, our anti-Communist quips and anecdotes are repeated in the uncommitted lands, like India, where the people laugh with us while they laugh at the Russians.

"And once a country becomes a laughingstock, it finds it more difficult to export its humorless way of life."

Esar cites a few examples of the way to harpoon the Soviet Union where it hurts:

"Communism is a system of government under which it is impossible to lose an election bet."

"Communism is a system of government under which free speech merely means the right to talk your head off... a system of government where people either sing in the same key or suffer behind the same lock."

Robber Collects By Installments
BOSTON (AP)—A robber has collected $4,300 from the Beneficial Finance Co. on the four-installment plan.

He picked up his latest installment Thursday, taking $700 at gunpoint.

On July 20, 1960, the same thief robbed the same office of $900. He also robbed the office between the first theft and the fourth on the anniversary date.

International Beauties Gather

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—With all 53 delegates now assembled, the International Beauty Congress is officially under way. Contestants from Europe, the Middle East and South America checked in Thursday and were greeted at planeside by the early arrivals—beauties from the Far East and the Pacific.

Also on hand was JoAnne Marie Dyer, 22, of Lima, Ohio, who represents the United States.

Today's big event—one of several preliminaries—is a fashion show luncheon. The winner will be crowned July 28 after four days of judging.

Local Stars Capture Teen-er Series Win Cincinnati Pitching Proves Weakest Point

Greenville's all-star Teen-er Leaguers last night, powered by four home runs, squared their best-of-three series with Elizabeth City at one victory apiece. After crowning the visitors at Guy Smith Stadium here, 9-6, the all-stars traveled to Elizabeth City again today for the deciding contest at 8:30 p.m.

7-6 in the sixth inning last night when Dale Gidley slammed a solo homer. The local youngsters, however, had to come from behind after a four-run uprising by Elizabeth City in the second inning. At that point, EC held a 4-1 edge. Two more runs by the visitors in the fourth stretched their margin.

In the Greenville fourth, Tommy Smith opened the inning by reaching first on an error. Billy Williamson walked and Gidley singled to load the bases.

That set the stage for a grand slam four-bagger by Mike Morton that brought Greenville to within one run of the Elizabeth City 6-5 advantage.

Rodney Knowles, who relieved Williamson in the fourth, retired Elizabeth City one-two-three in the fifth before a bases-empty home run by Smith knotted the count in the Greenville half of the inning.

Knowles yielded a single in the EC sixth but managed to hold the runner's advance to second base as a fly to center sandwiched between a pair of strikeouts.

Then in the Greenville sixth, Gidley opened the inning with his homer that sent the locals ahead to stay. In the same inning, with two out, Mike Cavendish walked and Mitchell Jones slammed a homer to round out the scoring.

NFL TV Package Deal Ruled Against The Law

By DON WEISS. Associated Press Sports Writer. NEW YORK (AP)—The Justice Department had its answer from a federal judge today—the National Football League's new $9.3 million "package" television contract with the Columbia Broadcasting System violates antitrust laws and is invalid.

Still unanswered for the nation's sports fan who thrives on his year-round menu of televised games is what happens now to similar contracts held by other sports groups.

In addition to the NFL, the American Football League, the National Basketball Association and the National Collegiate Athletic Association hold exclusive contracts with networks. Major league baseball always has shied away from package deals.

Federal Judge Allan K. Grim, announcing his decision in Philadelphia Thursday, made no mention of the other parts. The Justice Department, which had questioned the legality of the NFL-CBS two-year pact signed last April 28, said it would have no comment until it studied the judge's decision.

Both the AFL and the NBA were in doubt as to what the ruling could mean to them. The NFL contract granted CBS exclusive rights to telecast all regular season games played by the 14 NFL teams, with each team sharing equally in the television income.

LYNDA JOHNSON: Washington's No. 1 Teener

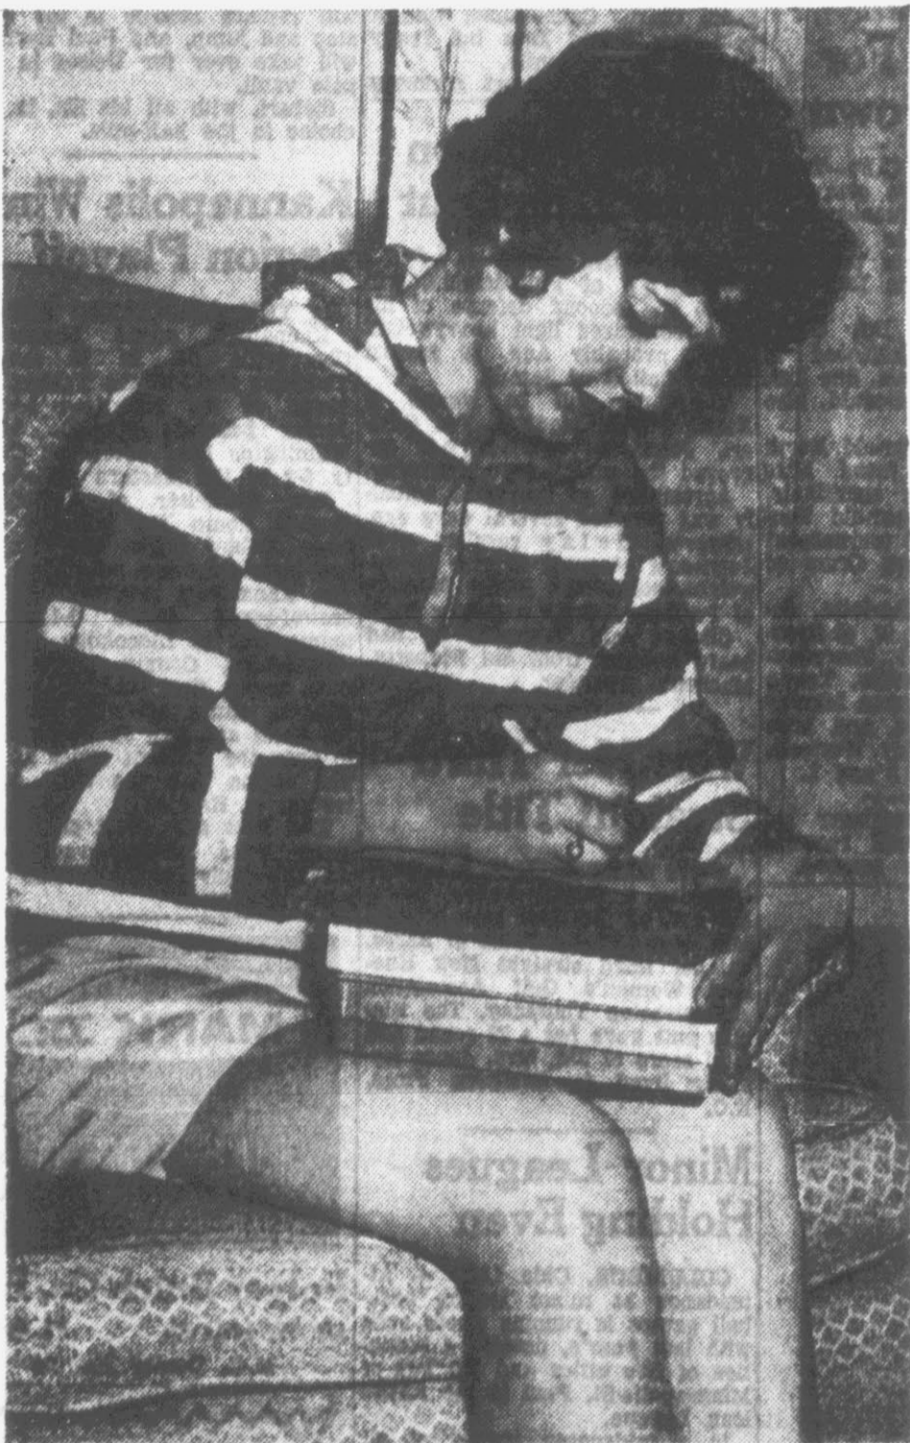

It's a happy moment for both when Vice President Lyndon Johnson and his pretty daughter Lynda meet.

LYNDA BIRD JOHNSON, the attractive 17-year-old daughter of the Vice President.

Lynda, wearing shorts, catches up on her letter writing.

Lynda Bird Johnson is a teen-ager with the irrepressible good humor that would help any girl growing up in a national spotlight. And in the spotlight she is, this—pretty, 17-year-old brunette daughter of Vice President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

Fortunately, like her father and mother, she likes people.

She can show the poise that being Queen of the National Azalea Festival in Norfolk, Va., last April required. She can meet and talk with her parents' friends and associates with becoming naturalness.

And she can have a sparkling good time like any other teen-ager.

She has a record collection, not much rock 'n' roll, she says, but mostly quiet, dreamy, romantic music.

She writes a lot of letters like any teen-ager; she has a stuffed animal collection, and a white convertible car given to her by her parents last fall.

School is the National Cathedral School for Girls, a private Episcopal school in Washington, where Lynda will be a senior next year. She plans to go to the University of Texas and hasn't quite made up her mind about what she plans to study. "I love history," she says.

Lynda is tall—5 feet, 10 inches, with brown eyes and a peaches and cream complexion.

The tallness presents some problems—"it seems all the short girls get all the tall boys," she says. But Lynda has no dearth of dates, and she follows her parents' orders about dates only on weekends during school.

Leaving school, Lynda and sister Lucy, 14, carry an average day's load of books for homework. "I love history," Lynda says.

She takes guests from Texas on tour of White House. From left, Ensign Tom Kelly, Kay Kelly, Tim Murray, Lynda, Mrs. Roy Walker and John McNally, White House staff assistant.

Watched by stuffed animal pet, Lynda plays favorite records before dinner at the Johnsons' Sheraton Park apartment.

Ready for drive, Lynda sits at wheel of white convertible car given to her by her parents last fall.

Library's Book Circulation Report Discloses An Increase Of 10%

Increases in circulation of books at Sheppard Memorial Library showed about a 10 per cent increase for the fiscal year 1960-61 over the previous year, and total circulation for the county, including the library, two bookmobiles, Carver library and other towns, increased some 25,500, according to the 1960-61 annual report.

Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian of Sheppard Memorial Library, pointed out that the Pitt County total was 269,509 in circulation of books for the year 1960-61, compared to 243,940 for the previous year.

Considering the fact that Pitt has a total population of some 69,000, every man, woman and child in Pitt theoretically could have read almost four books each from the central library's facilities.

Other circulation figures indicate 54,394 books were read by adults at Sheppard Memorial Library for the past year, 46,985 were read by juveniles, for a total circulation of 101,379 for this year. The previous year showed a total of 93,783 circulation. Miss Copeland noted that the increases in circulation were "very good."

The county's two bookmobiles, which operate out of Sheppard

Memorial, had a combined circulation of 103,790 for 1960-61. One of the bookmobiles had been in operation only three months of the fiscal year.

The Carver library noted a circulation of 5,686 books among adults, and 7,908 among juveniles, for a total circulation of 13,594.

Other towns in Pitt County read 24,651 adult books and 26,095 juvenile books loaned by the Sheppard Memorial Library in Greenville.

Miss Copeland pointed out that circulation of books for Bookmobile No. one dropped slightly, but that the out-of-town usage of Sheppard Memorial Library's facilities had increased, indicating that some readers are now using the library directly rather than using the bookmobile.

In the past seven years, Miss Copeland said circulation of books at the library has almost doubled. Use of non-fiction books has increased some 100 percent in the last seven years, also, she noted. Actually, readership of the informational type books has increased more than readership of fiction in recent years.

The library now has a total of 67,501 books, with a total of 6,822 books added over the past year including 3,366 new titles. Some of the books were duplicated, it was pointed out. Non-book materials include 148 periodicals, 129 microfilms, 632 phonograph records and the following newspapers: The Daily Reflector, The News and Observer, The Christian Science Monitor, the Wall Street Journal, the Greensboro Daily News, The Sunday New York Times and one Richmond paper.

Books loaned to other libraries outside the county system totaled 70, while just 29 books were borrowed.

Budget
The total receipts and balance for the library was $60,829.72, with the total disbursements and balance at the same figure. Some $18,798.37 was spent on books over the past year.

Language Studies Offer New Light On Scriptures

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP)—"I am Rose of Sharon, and the lily of the valleys," says the Song of Solomon. Sounds plain enough.

Would anyone suspect the Biblical passage actually means "I am the tulip and the hyacinth"? The scriptures abound with references to flowers, but the Bible authors described many of them in such vague terms translators and botanists don't always agree on the identity.

John Asch, New York author, horticulturist and Bible scholar, has settled at least some of the controversies after extensive study and plant exploration for the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. His findings, plus those of other modern researchers, appear in the current issue of the Journal of the American Museum of Natural History.

Asch found, for example, that the Hebrew word "shushan," once translated as lily, or lilies of the field, refers instead to the anemone or windflower.

Another Biblical "lily" often means the iris, or yellow flag; and the "rose" of the Bible refers to the narcissus in some passages, the oleander in others.

The Rose of Sharon, as noted, refers to the tulip; and the "lily of the valley," says Asch, is believed to be the hyacinth. Another flower mentioned in the Song of Solomon, Tirzah, Asch identifies as the crocus.

A great deal of controversy remains, however, over the hundreds of references in the Bible to trees.

The sycamore, mentioned several times, according to Asch's research is in reality the sycamore fig, a tall evergreen with aromatic leaves. Its fruit is small spotted, not particularly tasty, and not to be confused with the cherished common fig.

True identities of other evergreens remain in doubt.

Asch's research is valuable not only for its contribution to accuracy in translation, but also for the clues plants offer about the way the people of Bible lands lived.

We learn, for example, the ordinary diet was of vegetables—cucumbers, broad beans, leeks, onions, garlic; that the early Israelites baked bread daily, flavored it with olive oil; made wafers flavored with honey; carried raisins and parched grain with them into the fields or on their travels; and ate meat only rarely.

Water was scarce, but the vine wasn't, and wine was a common drink. So was goat's milk, which also provided butter and cheese.

Clothing fabric came from goat hair, course flax, hemp, papyrus and even almond stalks. Wool clothing was strictly for the wealthy, linen for royalty and priests.

The olive, of course, was the most important oil-yielding plant. In fact, Moses referred to the land of Canaan as a "land of olive oil."

Another oil-yielding plant was the gourd, mentioned in Jonah 4:6. What was it?

"The common castor oil plant," says researcher Asch.

Famed Inventor Left Small Sum

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dr. Lee De Forest, whose invention of the three-element vacuum tube helped spawn the vast electronics industry, left only $1,250 in cash.

Dr. De Forest's will was filed for probate Wednesday by his fourth wife, former actress Marie Mosquini. The famed inventor died June 30 at 87.

Mrs. De Forest's attorney said her husband held patents which could yield further income, but they are not doing so now.

The will, signed in 1954, left all property to Mrs. De Forest except for bequests of $1 each to three daughters.

REPATRIATES

HAVANA (AP)—A new group of more than 100 American repatriates will be flown to Miami today, the Swiss Embassy reported. The flight, the eighth arranged by the embassy, would leave more than 500 American residents of Cuba still awaiting repatriation.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels and motors advanced in a mixed stock market early this afternoon. Trading was light.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .10 at 242.40 with industrials up .30, rails off .40 and utilities up .10.

Gains and losses of fractions to about a point were the rule among most pivotal issues. Some of the price or more speculative issues. Rubbers and mail order-retails also were a bit higher while rails, oils and building materials were mostly lower.

The successful launching of America's second manned space craft brought a temporary fractional gain to McDonnell Aircraft, maker of the Mercury space capsule, but the gain was erased on news that the capsule had sunk.

McDonnell showed a loss exceeding a point for awhile, but recovered and traded about unchanged.

Ford was up more than a point. General Motors and Chrysler strung along with fractional gains.

Republic Steel advanced around 3 points. U.S. Steel added about a point. Bethlehem was firm and Jones & Laughlin added a fraction.

Du Pont continued depressed losing around a point. Losses of about a point were shown by Consolidated Edison and U.S. Gypsum.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .63 at 683.60. American Stock Exchange prices were mixed in slow trading.

Corporate bonds were irregular. U.S. government bonds edged higher.

Rhodesian-Developed Tobacco Stick Shown

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN—A new method of harvesting and curing tobacco was demonstrated near here yesterday by a Pitt County native who migrated to African tobacco-land—Rhodesia—in the 1930's.

Charles Jackson, a 120-acre tobacco farmer near Salisbury in Southern Rhodesia, conducted a demonstration on the David H. Smith farm on Route 2, Ayden.

The new method he demonstrated is based upon new pieces of equipment, called "Tilia Clips" (their trade name), that replace the tying of leaves onto wooden sticks with twine—the conventional method of harvesting tobacco since too long ago to remember.

In demonstrating the new gadget, Jackson guaranteed a handful of observers that more tobacco could be cured better in an amount of barn space. "I'll guarantee you'll have a third more space," he said.

Here's how the "Tilia Clip" works:

It consists of rust-resistant dual steel rod about one-quarter inch in diameter. The two rods, joined at each end and held about an inch apart throughout their two-foot length, support between them a series of high-quality steel springs.

The springs, about 15 to each "stick," may be manually manipulated so that "bundles" (three or more tobacco leaves, depending upon the leaf size) may be securely fastened in each spring or "clip."

Tobacco "primers" or "croppers" (they are called "reapers" in Rhodesia) carry these two-foot-long sticks into the fields and "tie" the tobacco to them as it is "pulled" from each stalk.

The filled sticks are then transported to the curing barn to be attached with specially adapted hooks to ordinary four-foot wooden tobacco sticks. Two of the metal gadgets, laden with tobacco, are hooked end-to-end, on each wooden stick.

Jackson, who is representing the Rhodesian inventor and developer of the new-type "sticks," says the new method reduces harvesting labor costs, provides better (more even) curing at a lower per pound cost, and eventually makes the annual chores of harvesting a tobacco crop easier.

"Of course," he says, "you have to get accustomed to it. But, once you get organized, it's much better."

Jackson says he is gradually replacing the old method of harvest on his 120-acre tobacco farm with the new-type stick. Eventually, he says, he will have a total of around 50,000 of the gadgets.

The Pitt native, who originally settled abroad in China, says the inventor of the new sticks—F. Tilden Edridge—currently turns out his product from a plant staffed by nearly 300 employees. He says Edridge uses the new equipment throughout his tobacco-farming operation.

Jackson hopes arrangements can materialize that will allow Edridge's company—Mjange Farm (Pvt.) Ltd.—to market its product in the United States. Unit cost estimates, however, are not yet available, Jackson says, because of the uncertainty of the amount of import duty that may be charged.

The Rhodesian tobacco grower said Edridge's company arranged to ship 1,400 of the new sticks to the Smith farm here to demonstrate the new method. Smith's son, another David H. Smith (but not a junior), planned yesterday to use the gadgets for a 700-stick barn.

Jackson, son of the late Tom Jackson of Pitt County, plans to remain in the United States for about two and a half months. He and his family arrived in New York last week.

Little Leaguers Play Tomorrow

Greenville's North State Little League all-stars tangle Havelock here tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock to decide half of the Area I finals match.

The other finals berth will be decided in Morehead City today as the local Tar Heel League stars play the winner of yesterday's Morehead City-Beaufort encounter there yesterday.

The site of the Area I championship game has not yet been reported, however, it has been speculated that the contest will be played in Greenville next week.

The North State League stars roster includes 14 Little Leaguers representing five of the six teams in the league. They are coached by Jessie Jordan and Clint Joyner.

The roster: Donnie Taylor, Ken Merritt and William Moe from the Coca-Cola team; John Cayton, Charles Allen and Van Harrington of the Jaycees; James Manning, Stuart Jones, Donnie Brewer and Jack Cobb of Kiwanis, Joe Cox, Bert Bennett and Pete Lautares of the Lions; and Howard Aycock of Optimists.

The all-stars were selected by vote of the six coaches in the league. Each coach voted for 14 players and the 14 receiving the highest vote totals were named to the all-star squad.

CORRECTION
A story in yesterday's edition of the Daily Reflector erroneously identified a Stokes postal clerk, who serves in that capacity—not during the "rush season"—as reported in the story—but in the absence of the postmaster, as Mrs. George C. Roebuck. She is Mrs. George H. Roebuck and is listed by the Post Office Department as Mrs. Laurie W. Roebuck.

Tunisian War Flames Forging New Unity For Divided Arabs

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
TUNIS (AP)—War flames sweeping embattled Bizerte are forging new Arab unity in explosive North Africa.

France's fighting retaliation to President Habib Bourguiba's try to expel the French garrison from the big base at Tunisia's northern tip has rallied the support of Morocco, the Algerian rebels and the United Arab Republic, all of whom have been at odds with the Tunisian leader in the past.

The battle around Bizerte is another serious threat to France's chances of retaining a foothold in the Tunisia-Algeria-Morocco crescent that once was her exclusive preserve.

Western diplomats in the Tunisian capital, tensely watching the new crisis, believe that the entire West could lose its influence in the strategic area.

Bah Ladhgam, Bourguiba's No. 2 man was grim when he summoned U.S. Ambassador Walter Walmisley Thursday.

"Now is your chance to prove how anticommunist you are," he told the American.

For Tunisia—and the Arab world—Bizerte is a clearcut case of an underdog trying to drive out a colonial power.

"They have put us before our conscience—and God knows what we can do about it," an American diplomat commented bitterly. "After all, we too have bases abroad and France is our ally."

The shooting crisis apparently stunned the Tunisians themselves. Few of them had expected the dispute over the Bizerte base would reach such a tragic climax.

Informed sources claim Bourguiba did not want his blockade tactic to deteriorate into actual fighting.

Some diplomats are convinced that to Bourguiba the Bizerte incident was secondary to his venture into the southern Sahara sands, where a Tunisia column is marching to plant the flag on territory claimed by France.

Apparently Bourguiba decided to move swiftly into the Sahara before an agreement between France and the Algerian rebels could give all of the French Sahara to an independent Algeria.

To divert the rebels, who use his country as a base, Bourguiba put pressure on Bizerte, diplomats say.

For a brief spell, Bourguiba's gamble looked as if it might backfire.
