Astronauts Gather To Plot New Steps Into Future

GRAND BAHAMA ISLAND (AP)—Astronaut Virgil I. Grissom, in good shape after his danger-filled flight into space, prepared to return today to Cape Canaveral and describe his adventure to newsmen. A news conference was set at the cape for 4 p.m. EST. Grissom was expected to reach there by plane about 2 p.m. The spaceman was reported by Lt. Col. John A. Powers to be in "excellent condition, bright and sharp, and anxious to get home." Powers also clarified, after talking with Grissom, the question rising in the minds of some as to whether the astronaut himself prematurely opened the hatch which caused the Liberty Bell 7 to flood and sink. A transcript of his conversations with the helicopter pilot had Grissom saying "I am blowing the hatch."

Cease-Fire Sought By Tunisia President

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP)—President Habib Bourguiba proposed negotiation of France's withdrawal from the Bizerte naval-air base in a broadcast speech today while French troops battled Tunisian soldiers and snipers in the heart of Bizerte city, breaking down pockets of resistance. French troops backed by armor occupied Bizerte at dawn. Bourguiba complained that the United States and Britain were siding with France in the dispute over the base that broke into open warfare Wednesday. He admitted his troops fired first, but declared "we are at home, this is our territory." The Tunisian leader said the opening fire was only to enforce a government order barring plane flights over Tunisia to the base, which France holds by treaty but had promised eventually to give up. In a speech viewed here as unusually moderate, Bourguiba announced his crisis-gripped country is waiting for the decision of the U.N. Security Council in New York. "Our (future) attitude will depend on it," he said. France herself had cautioned earlier that she would not negotiate under menace and threat of force. Bourguiba spoke bitterly of the American and British attitude in the Bizerte crisis, which he compared to "that of France." But he added promptly that he understood the United States "has to be considerate with France."

Violations By Subsidy 'Protestor'

BIG FLATS, N.Y. (AP)—Farmer William T. Smith, who bought a $6,100 Cadillac with a government subsidy for not planting corn, overplanted his wheat allotment and owes a fine, a federal agency contends. Along with a pile of fan mail, including correspondence from Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a letter arrived from the Chemung County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, Smith said Friday night. While Goldwater told Smith other farmers "clear across the country" admired his public protest against farm subsidies, the county committee told him it was fining him $21.84 for planting 26 acres in wheat last year, 7.1 acres in excess of his 18.9 acre allotment. Smith met the Arizona senator earlier this month when he drove the "Cadillac" to Washington. A sign on the car said a government subsidy paid for it. Farmer Smith became news. The first notice that he had exceeded the 1960 wheat quota, Smith claimed, arrived July 11, after he had gained nationwide publicity. Another letter, last Tuesday, requested immediate payment of the fine. Smith plans an appeal to the state review committee of the Agricultural Stabilization Committee, an Agriculture Department unit. He said he would be forced to pay the fine if the state committee upheld it. Last year, the county committee "didn't bother to check" whether he grew wheat, Smith said. "They knew I raised wheat every year. My wheat crop borders on the highway. It couldn't be hidden very well." The wheat program is compulsory. Participation in the corn program is voluntary. The farmer has been in trouble with his wheat allotment in the past. He deliberately exceeded his 1954 quota, he acknowledged, because he felt the government had no business telling him how much he could plant. He paid an $800 fine for exceeding the 1955 quota.

U.S. Organizes Free Airlift To Move 20,000 Refugees From Cuba

Whether Prime Minister Fidel Castro would permit the mass exodus was not known immediately in Washington. The State Department announced Friday night that the government had "arranged to defray the cost" of transportation for the more than 20,000 Cuban citizens who are cleared to come to this country. The overall cost was estimated at around $50,000. The plan was worked out with Pan American Airways with some special flights to start today from Miami. The full schedule of 10 flights daily, each trip bringing in a little more than 100 persons, is due to start Sunday, the State Department said. A Pan Am spokesman in Miami said a lot would depend on the speed with which Cuban authorities process the passengers—if they do at all. "That's a complicated business," he said. "We'll send our regular flight off at 10:30 a.m. and wait for word from Havana before sending the next one." The refugees qualified for the airlift transportation are those who obtained U.S. visas before the United States broke off relations with Cuba last January and those who since have obtained "waivers of visas." A waiver is simply a ruling by the U.S. government that an individual may enter without a visa. Since the break in relations, no Cuban has been able to obtain a visa because there are no U.S. consuls in Cuba. Most of the Cubans holding waivers, the State Department announcement said, fall into two groups—relatives of Cubans already living in the United States and students under 21 who wish to continue their education here. State Department press officer Lincoln White said the extraordinary flight program with government financing was decided upon as a humanitarian action to reunite families and to make it possible for young people to study in this country. U.S. authorities said that all citizens leaving Cuba require exit permits; no one here could say whether the pro-Communist Castro regime would allow exit permits for this operation. Another question which the State Department was unable to answer was whether the Cuban government would permit the tenfold increase in Pan American flights between Miami and Havana. Officials said these flights have been averaging about one a day. "It is hoped," the State Department announcement said, "that with this provision of arrangements for additional transportation facilities it will be possible for the Cubans to depart from Cuba at a rate of at least 10,000 per day for about three weeks if no obstacles intervene beyond their control or that of the U.S. government." While the statement did not specify what obstacles were possible, Castro certainly could be one. The funds for U.S. underwriting of the operation come from a contingency fund of the International Cooperation Administration. White said this is the same fund from which the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare draws financing for relief of Cuban refugees already in the United States.

West Europe's Press Sees French Position In Danger

By RICHARD WAGSTAFF LONDON (AP)—West Europe's press warned today that France's bloody clash with Tunisia over the Bizerte naval base could gravely endanger the future French position in Africa. Some newspapers said a full-scale war would be disastrous to both France and Tunisia with all the Russians standing to benefit at the expense of the Western Allies. Apprehension mounted in the West as Russia and Communist Yugoslavia joined the 10-nation Arab League in denouncing the French action. The United Arab Republic officially extended its offer to provide Tunisia with military aid—an offer already made by the Algerian nationalist rebel regime based in Tunisia. Iraq also announced its readiness to "give every aid" to repel what it denounced as "savage aggression" against the Tunisian people. Lebanon's Premier Saeb Salam expressed support for Tunisia and lashed out at France's "treacherous aggression." Britain's press was unanimous in pointing up the gravity of the situation and called for early negotiations to end further bloodshed. Many papers expressed bewilderment over Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba's actions at this time. "He is now behaving as if the French were trying to reconquer Tunis instead of defending a legal position which Tunis had actively challenged," said the Conservative Daily Telegraph. "What is not clear," said the Laborite Daily Herald "is why Bourguiba, who has a reputation for cooler moderation, should have picked this moment for a showdown." "The answer probably lies in the need for Bourguiba to demonstrate forcibly to his own people and to other African states that he is not a French stooge, not an ally of the imperialists," the paper said. Denmark's conservative Dagbladet Nyheter said both France and Tunisia had been pursuing a brink of war policy that had slipped. "Both parties now face the problem to save face," it said. In Belgium, La Libre Belgique said that whichever side is right, the outlook for France is serious with the possibility of all the Middle East lining up against her. Moscow radio said the Tunisian crisis threatened to grow into an international conflict.

Tunnel Fell In On Freight Train

AUXVASSE, Mo. (AP)—The ceiling of an old limestone mine tunnel collapsed Friday just as a 16-car freight train was passing over it. A hole 12 feet wide, 16 feet long and 95 deep appeared in the roadbed after the locomotive and two cars had passed. Other cars derailed as the tracks sagged, and the 10th car came to rest straddling the chasm. The crew of the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio freight escaped injury. The Auxvasse Stone & Gravel Co. has honey-combed the area with tunnels that are 30 feet high with floors 95 feet below the ground surface. TROOP MOVEMENT BONE, Algeria (AP)—Three small ships sailed from this eastern Algerian seaport during the night loaded with trucks and light vehicles of the 2nd Foreign Legion Parachute Regiment, apparently headed toward Bizerte.

Gordon Gray Is Assigned Prime Triangle Post

RALEIGH (AP)—A prime role in development of North Carolina's ambitious Research Triangle program has been given to Gordon Gray, former secretary of the Army. Gray, who has held top federal and state governmental posts, was named Friday to chair the Research Triangle Foundation. Gov. Sanford and State Sen. Archie Davis, president of the foundation board, made the announcement at a special news conference. Gray was elected to succeed the late Robert M. Hanes of Winston-Salem. He said, "It's quite a challenge to step into his shoes. I'm willing to try because of my devotion to the state. I'm particularly interested in the creative aspects of the triangle." The triangle area includes about 5,000 acres bounded by Durham, Raleigh and Chapel Hill. The program will make use of the University of North Carolina, Duke University and North Carolina State College. Gray, a member of President Kennedy's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, is from Winston-Salem and Washington, D.C. He has been president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, special assistant to President Truman for foreign economic policy, assistant secretary of defense for internal security affairs, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization and special assistant to President Eisenhower for national security affairs. He is chairman and president of the Piedmont Publishing Co. in Winston-Salem and is a trustee on the committee on economic development. Gray said the chairmanship will not be a full time job and he will maintain his residence in Washington.

Beauty Contest Finals Tonight

GREENSBORO (AP)—With three days of preliminaries out of the way, the final countdown is set for tonight, and one of 75 beautiful, talented girls will be launched about midnight into a one-year whirl as Miss North Carolina. She'll orbit the state during the next year, and represent North Carolina in the Miss America pageant in September. The critical phase of the countdown comes when the field is cut to 10 finalists, then to five. From among the five, the winner will be chosen. Two more preliminary winners were announced Friday night. They were Miss Asheville, Maria Beale Fletcher, in the swim suit division, and Miss Mooreville, Sarah Gretchen Morgan, in the talent division. Miss Morgan performed a jazz version of the Warsaw Concerto. They joined the four other preliminary winners chosen Wednesday and Thursday nights. They were Miss Roanoke Rapids, Susan Woodall, and Miss Raleigh, Ruby Gail Newton, in the talent division, and Miss Asheboro, Kay Sloan Hobbs, and Miss Reidsville, Faye Dean Page, in the swim suit division. The contestants also appear for judging in evening dresses, but no winners are announced in that category.

Miami Preparing For Large Influx

MIAMI Fla. (AP)—Miami dusted off its tattered welcome mat today for a record horde of Cuban refugees—a footloose 20,000 of them, coming within a two-week period at State Department invitation. The prospect startled officials of Miami, refugee agencies and transportation media. Robert King High, mayor of this south Florida city of about 209,000 population, said he hoped other American communities can find room for some of the new comers. But he said America has a moral obligation to take the exiles in. "Miami's economy is groaning under the impact of exiles already here," High said, estimating the total numbers of exiles now in great Miami (Dade County) at more than 100,000. "I hope that other places in the United States can make jobs and locations available to exiles. At the same time I want to know that this in no way reflects on our willingness to accept them." Officials of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Miami emergency refugee center said "we'll handle it. We can't say just how until we have more information." Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., quickly commented that the prospective new batch "ought to be dispersed throughout the country. He praised the State Department, however, for its decision to fly disenchanted Cubans out of Castro's reach. Pan American World Airways said it is hiking its Miami-Havana shuttle tenfold at State Department request to ferry the prospective exiles here. The airline said, however, it will send one 100-passenger plane at a time to Havana to avoid a possible equipment tieup at the hands of the unpredictable Fidel Castro regime. On two days, at least, it appears no Cubans will be flown to Miami. Pan American's Havana office said Rancho Boyeros Airport there will be closed to commercial traffic Monday, when Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin arrives for a visit. It also will be closed Wednesday for observance of Castro's 26th of July movement national holiday. Whether the bearded prime minister will allow 20,000 unhappy Cubans to leave their homeland is no certainty. Castro has not interfered lately with emigration but rumors keep circulating that he will clamp down on departures of military-age Cubans. The State Department asked Pan American to operate 10 flights daily to bring over 1,000 refugees per day.

Accuses U.S. Of Backing France

TUNIS (AP)—Tunisia's President Habib Bourguiba today accused the United States and Great Britain of taking the side of France in the Bizerte crisis. The Tunisian leader, regarded as the most pro-Western Arab head of state, told his people in a nationwide radio address: "This is serious. It is painful to see the United States and Great Britain take the same position as France while blood flows at Bizerte and hundreds are dying."

'Battle Of Bull Run' Might Cause Casualties

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY MANASSAS, Va. (AP)—Great throngs converged on this famous fighting ground today for a grand historical spectacular which could end in a lot of grief. It was the day of a reenactment of the first Battle of Bull Run, or first Battle of Manassas if you choose. Two worries nagged the authorities: 1. If 80,000 people try to get here today as some predictions said, how many would fall by the wayside in a gigantic traffic jam? The United States, with as much transportation as the rest of the world combined, still encounters difficulties reminiscent of Gen. Irving McDowell's ill-fated "on to Richmond" drive in 1861. Then, swarms of sightseers impeded a chaotic Union retreat from Bull Run back to Washington. 2. How many people would get hurt firing those old Civil War cannon and muskets, and how many would be laid low by the merciless Virginia sun? A rehearsal Friday sent one combatant by helicopter to a hospital with severe burns from the blank charge of a Civil War cannon; several were hurt by flying waddings and, the Confederates claim, a piece of minnie ball from the Union lines raised an ugly bruise on a rebel shoulder. There was some question about that though; only blanks are to be used. The Red Cross was busy tending to civilian heat victims. Anyway, the stage managers of this mock battle, fought mostly by 2,000 youngsters and middle-aged of the North-South Skirmish Association, hoped for the best. They strove to remedy the flaws of Friday's rehearsal viewed by 18,000 spectators. One grand snafu occurred when Confederate Gen. Stonewall Jackson failed to get into the act. Jackson, portrayed by George J. Bisacca, a wealthy Yankee of Lenox, Mass., and a Civil War buff from a way back couldn't be reached by field telephone when the time came for Brig. Gen. Barnard E. Bee of South Carolina to point to him with his sword and cry: "There stands Jackson like a stone wall. Rally behind the Virginians." One hundred years ago Bee died on this battlefield after giving Jackson the nickname that "waited down on the rim of time." But Friday, Bee tumbled off his horse and died too soon. It wasn't his fault; again there was a mixup in the arrangements. The stage managers of this reenactment have gone to great lengths to make it realistic. For example, the heroic statue of Jackson on Henry Hill, where the tide of battle surged back and forth and ended in the panicky Union retreat to Washington, has been blanketed out by camouflage.

Less Than Half Knew The Name

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A St. Louis radio station (KWK) selected telephone numbers at random Friday and asked this question of 30 persons who answered: "Who is Virgil Grissom?" Eleven correctly identified him as the astronaut; 13 said they didn't know; 3 said he was a disc jockey; I thought he was a radio announcer; I woman thought he formerly lived in her apartment "because I got some of his mail." And one sleepy voiced woman answered: "With this hangover, I couldn't care less."

Seizing Land To Give Peasants

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The Mexican government has launched a program to turn over to landless peasants millions of acres it claims is held illegally by citizens of the United States and other nations. President Adolfo Lopez Mateos took the first step last week by expropriating 266,872 acres from the Real Estate Co. of Mexico and the Mexican Land Securities Co.—both U.S.-owned. He said the owners would be reimbursed.

President Expects First Draft Of Talk To Nation By Sunday

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy expects to have in his hands by Sunday the first draft of the vitally important address he will deliver Tuesday on shoring up the national defense. For the moment, though, Kennedy cast aside official care and settled into the easy, comfortable ways of a Cape Cod weekend. Aides said the President's schedule for today was completely blank so far as official appointments were concerned. Kennedy did count on a cruise on Nantucket Sound on the 52-foot family yacht, the Marlin. The forecaster promised pleasant weather. But the week ahead will be a heavy one. It includes a radio-TV address Tuesday night outlining the dimensions of the Soviet fence to Berlin and other world trouble spots and the military measures Kennedy plans to take as a consequence. On Wednesday, he will follow through with a message to Congress spelling out how to translate these measures into legislative action. There have been widespread reports that Kennedy expects to declare at least a limited national emergency, mobilize some of the reserves and National Guard, and ask for a tax increase to pay the bill. The White House was verifying nothing. The chief executive has been collecting and generating ideas on what ought to go into the speech. Aboard the jet that flew him up from Washington Friday, Kennedy talked for a time with such advisers as special assistant Arthur Schlesinger Jr., science advisor Jerome Wiesner and Seymour Harris, Harvard political science professor. The processing of ideas into words already is under way in Washington. A courier is expected to fly up Sunday with the first of what may be a number of drafts on the subject. Schlesinger, Wiesner, Harris and Philip Stern, a State Department information official, hatched rides with Kennedy to Otis Air Force Base on the cape in order to spend the weekend at summer homes. Two of the President's brothers-in-law, Sargent Shriver and Stephen Smith, came along to join the Kennedy clan. Mrs. Kennedy and the Kennedy children already were here, and plan to be for the rest of the summer.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

The vital importance of the inspired Word of the Bible will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Truth."

From Romans this passage will be read (15): "For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope."

Correlative citations will include the first tenet of Christian Science: "As adherents of Truth, we take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal life." ("Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, p. 497).

The Golden Text is from Psalm 57: "I will praise thee, O Lord, among the people: I will sing unto thee among the nations. For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds."

Into the sky... THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH Swing me, Mommy, she says. Swing me high All the way up to the clouds, if you can! I smile and say, "I can't; not that high, darling." But still I push the swing and watch her soar skyward. Then she comes back to earth again, giggling, "That time I nearly touched the clouds, didn't I, Mommy?" I laugh and say, "Well—nearly, perhaps." I look down at her, and for a desperately tender moment I wish that I could always keep that smile on her face, this laugh in her voice, the happy conviction that she nearly touched the clouds. Like all parents, I yearn to spare my child sorrow, anger, hurt of every kind. I yearn to keep from her the knowledge that none of us ever quite touch the clouds. And I know I can't. So I am thankful—more thankful than ever—for the Church, and the lessons it is teaching her. None of us can give our children perpetual sanctuaries. But all of us can help them find Faith.

All About Town With Anne Keziah

Announcement is made today of the forthcoming nuptials of Jimi McDaniel and Pat Sawyer. Jimi was Homecoming Queen at East Carolina College in 1958-59 and Miss Kinston in 1957 bringing home the honor of the second runner-up in the Miss North Carolina Beauty Pageant that year. Jimi, an ECC graduate, will teach in the Pitt County Schools, while Pat completes his degree at the college in November. They will be married in Jimi's home town of Kinston on August 20.

Arriving in town last Sunday after a year's absence was Nancy Harris, who has been studying at the University of Grenoble on a Rotary International Fellowship.

Nancy, who began her studies at the University in October, received her diploma in June. Prior to attending Grenoble, she studied at Alliance Francaise in Paris, which is a school designed to teach foreigners the French language.

Grenoble, which is in the heart of the French Alps, has the second largest number of foreign students attending the University of any in the world. She said there were 10 boys for every girl at the school.

Her roommate during the past year was a Norwegian girl. She has plans to come to America to study next year and maybe to East Carolina College.

Nancy had plenty of opportunities to meet and know the French people, as she spoke to Rotary Clubs in her area of France, giving her impressions of France and revealing her life in America to them. Rotary families in the area of Grenoble invited her for visits in their homes, and for two weeks prior to returning home Nancy had the opportunity to live with a French family. She said that family life is quite close and that their way of life is so much easier going. The French think that the American men are hen-pecked, she said.

Nancy will be teaching in the Princess Anne County Junior High School at Virginia Beach this fall in the Language Arts Department.

Mrs. Marie Cox has been chosen as one of the seven designers at the eleventh Holiday Design School which is conducted for florists and their employees. It will be held at the Hotel Sir Walter Raleigh on August 30th and attended by florists from the Carolinas and Virginia. Accompanying Mrs. Cox will be Michael Miller who will assist her.

A former Greenville man and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas Jackson, of Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, are visiting with his sister, Mrs. Lawrence Howie and family. Mr. Jackson a number of years ago was connected with Person-Garrett Tobacco Co. here, and went to Rhodesia with the Universal Leaf Tobacco Company. Since that time he has taken up farming and grows tobacco and raises cattle. Incidentally, he named his farm the Carolina Farm. He is married to the former Marjorie Reid of Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, and they have four children.

Miss Cathryn Creasman of Asheville has been named Director of Field Services for the Girl Scout Council of Coastal Carolina. She will have supervision of all district advisers, the coordination of all district and field work, and advising the Field Committee, composed of all volunteer District Chairmen.

She is a graduate of Western Carolina and did graduate work in Vocational Guidance and Psychology. Prior to entering the professional Girl Scouting, she taught in the public schools of Wayne and Harnett Counties. The council office is located in Goldsboro.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hicks Corey are visiting their son, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Corey Jr., and family in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Willis-Grade Speak Vows

Mrs. William King Willis

ALEXANDRIA, Va.—Miss Janet Karen Grade became the bride of William King Willis of Greenville in a ceremony in St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Alexandria, Sunday, July 15, at 6 o'clock. The Rev. Edward Morgan officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. August J. Sawry of Alexandria, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernul King Willis of Greenville, N. C.

The wedding music was presented by James Morgan, organist, and Lucille Spivey, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a gown of white embroidered organza featuring a Sabrina neckline with cap sleeves and a short veil.

Miss Jayne Willis of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Frances Morgan of Asheville, N. C. and Miss Allison Chappel of Alexandria. They wore dresses of white silk organza over taffeta with inserts of embroidered flowers in shades of pink. The attendants carried nosegays of mixed summer flowers.

Miss Tina Chappel was flower girl.

Ernul K. Willis of Greenville, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Charles Aldin, Alexandria, Frederick Morgan, Akron, Ohio, Joseph Sawry, Alexandria, and Lester Chappel of Alexandria.

The mother of the bride chose a pink silk organza dress featuring a flared tunic over skirt and a corsage of gardenias. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of pink lace and a gardenia corsage.

Following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained

HOME DECORATING TODAY

COLOR AND PATTERN—PLAY YOUR OWN FAVORITES

Many books have been written about pattern and color, and if you have time to plough through them, fine. If you haven't, there is a simpler solution: choose a color that you like, that you feel comfortable with. Do anything you like with it, then compliment it with flattering neutrals.

Do the same with pattern. It doesn't matter what you like or whether it is good at the moment; the important thing is that it is pleasing to you and gives you a sense of delight each time you look at it. That is why interior design, of all the things it can do, must provide pleasure. If it doesn't, it is only an exercise in mechanics.

Let your room be a different breed, let your distinction come about through a love of color, a love of pattern and no compunction whatsoever about saying so.

If you need help, call the Home Furniture Store for an appointment.—Adv.)

Shower Honors Bride-Elect

Miss Anne Keziah, August bride-elect, was honored at a miscellaneous shower Friday night at the home of Mrs. Ralph Paul. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Paul, Mrs. Jim Galloway of Goldsboro, and Mrs. Andy Koroneos.

The honoree was presented with a white mum corsage upon her arrival.

The home of Mrs. Paul was decorated with summer flowers using the pink and white motif. In the dining room the appointed table was overlaid with a cut-work cloth centered with an arrangement of assorted summer flowers flanked by burning pink tapers. Guests were invited into the dining room for refreshments.

Mrs. Koroneos and Mrs. Paul presided at the punch bowl. Guests helped themselves to bridal cakes, nuts and mints.

Duplicate Bridge Winners Announced

The Faculty Duplicate Club met last (Friday) evening with five tables in play. North-South winners were Mrs. M. H. Bynum and Miss Marguerite Rouse, first; Mrs. Nell Willard and Mrs. S. M. Woolfolk, second. East-West winners were Mrs. Norman Garrison and Mr. Frank Moseley, first; Mrs. W. J. Bundy and Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts, second.

The next meeting of the club will be held Friday, August 4.

The Hidden Cost Of Tax-Collection

Most citizens are well aware of the hidden taxes of all levels of government which they pay daily through the price of the goods and services they purchase. To a lesser degree they are aware of the hidden "cost of collecting taxes" which they also pay in the price of the things they purchase.

Under the new sales tax law of the state which makes sales taxes applicable to local governments, there is an excellent example of this "hidden cost" of taxes. The new sales tax law provides that local governments will pay state tax on items they purchase, but that at the end of the year the local governments will receive from the state a refund for all taxes they have paid during the year. On the surface it would appear that the local governments will not be any worse off for having paid sales tax, because they will get a full refund.

If one probes below the surface, however, it is immediately apparent that the cost to both state and local government is increased by the additional record keeping that is required for collecting and refunding sales taxes from local governments.

This hidden cost of this particular tax provision will, of course, be paid by the citizens in some form. Even though local governments in Pitt County will be reimbursed by the state for all the sales tax they pay, they will not be reimbursed for the cost of keeping the required records in order to get their refund.

The estimated $50,000 local governments of Pitt County pay in sales taxes during the coming year, will be refunded. But it will cost the local governments in Pitt several thousand dollars in clerical work to keep records that will enable them to obtain their refunds. Multiplied by the number of local governments throughout North Carolina, this cost of record keeping in paying the tax and getting a refund becomes a sizeable figure for the local governments.

In addition to the increased record keeping required for local governments, there will be a considerable amount of new record keeping on the part of the state to assure that it does not over-pay or under-pay a local government for sales taxes at the end of the year. This, of course, will add many thousands of dollars to the cost of operating the state government.

In effect the collection of sales tax from local governments, and their reimbursement by the state becomes merely a bookkeeping matter.

But the taxpayers are footing the bill for a considerable bookkeeping expense at both levels of government.

County Govm't Very Much Alive

(Lynn Nisbet will be attending the C&D board meeting at Wrightsville Beach while the County Commissioners Association meeting at Asheville. The following story on the County Commissioners is written by John Alexander McMahon, general counsel of the association.)

The County Commissioners Convention next week in Asheville would come as quite a shock to those governmental experts who, a generation ago, were predicting the end of county government. Those self-styled experts said that counties had outlived their usefulness, and most extreme ones thought it was good riddance.

But county government refused to roll over and play dead. Three groups have not only kept counties alive but they have contributed to greatly expanded county activities.

The first group is the General Assembly. Each year, including this one, the legislature has expanded the powers and duties of county officials. The second group is the citizenry of the state. They have demanded increased activities from county government, believing that county activities will be more responsive to their wishes than activities run from Raleigh and Washington.

The third group is the county officials themselves. They have proved themselves responsive to the wishes of their citizens and taxpayers. Moreover, the county commissioners have strengthened themselves by setting up, two years ago, a full-time staff for their North Carolina Association of County Commissioners. They concluded that they had depended long enough on part-time help, and they discovered that the impartial research and teaching activities of the Institute of Government did not go far enough. Victory in today's issues goes to those who are organized and ready to fight for their ideas.

This year's County Commissioners Convention illustrates just how much "on the go" county government is. The theme for the convention is "New Legislation and New Programs." The commissioners are joined in convention by county accountants and tax supervisors, and all of them will hear a succession of speakers describe developments that mean more work and more activity for county government.

The discussion of "new legislation" will be led by Lieutenant Governor H. Cloyd Philpott and House Speaker Joseph M. Hunt, Jr. They address the convention at the Annual Business Luncheon, July 24. Ben Haigh, Chairman of the Wake County Board of Commissioners and President of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners this year, and I are scheduled to discuss the substantial amount of new legislation of particular interest to county accountants that afternoon.

Two proposed constitutional amendments of great interest to county officials will be discussed. Representative H.P. Taylor, Jr., of Anson County will analyze the proposed amendment providing for court improvement. And Henry W. Lewis of the Institute of Government will analyze the proposed amendment prohibiting special act tax concessions.

The "new program" portion of the agenda will be led by four state officials. Chairman Merrill Evans will describe new developments in the State Highway Commission. Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine will describe the new surplus food distribution program; one-third of the counties are now participating in this program, and more are scheduled to participate.

Mental Health Commissioner Eugene A. Hargrove will describe new mental hospital admission procedures, and Merit System Supervisor Claude Caldwell will describe the new compensation plan for local welfare and health employees.

Other state officials will report on developments in the areas of public schools, public welfare, public health, hospital construction, libraries, civil defense, recreation, agricultural extension, records management, and finance.

The formal program, does not, of course, contain all of the value in a convention. Much is accomplished in the informal discussion between county officials, swapping ideas and experiences to gain from one another. Here again, the governmental reformer of a generation ago would come in for surprises because many new activities, undertaken by counties in the last decade, provide topics for these discussions.

These new activities cover a number of areas. All counties have not undertaken all of these activities, because county commissioners generally are fairly conservative. They do not begin programs just to start something new. They wait until there is a need. Sometimes, of course, a few people think the need exists long before others do, and they grumble when county commissioners generally are fairly conservative. They do not begin programs just to start something new. They wait until there is a need. Sometimes, of course, a few people think the need exists long before others do, and they grumble when county commissioners don't move fast enough. But there are few county commissioners who will not move into a new area when a majority of citizens want them to. AND when these citizens are willing to pay additional taxes to finance the additional services.

Typical of these new activities are industrial development programs, to encourage the location of new industries and the expansion of existing industries; county planning, to determine the proper direction of growth of the county; zoning and subdivision controls, to make sure that land is put at the best use; building and electrical inspection, to make sure that buildings are safe; assistance to rural volunteer fire departments, to fight fires in rural areas; civil defense, to protect life and property in the event of emergencies; garbage collection, to provide economical and dependable service in unincorporated areas; generally through supervised private collectors but perhaps soon through county services financed by fees paid by people served; and many others. And of course counties have greatly increased their financial support of the traditional activities — schools, welfare, and health programs — bringing about increases in both quality and quantity of service.

Your county government is equipped to meet your needs for services, through local officials responsive to your wishes. They will not necessarily do everything you want as soon as you want it, nor will they refrain from doing some of the things you do not want when it is in the best interest of the county as a whole. But you can be sure you will get from your county government what a majority of the citizens want and are willing to pay for.

What is the matter with us? A variety of things no doubt, but above all that weariness which comes from having too much, that weakness which comes from knowing too little about God and His purposes, or caring about them. This is the most wonderful age in which human beings have ever lived—but it has its dangers. We can make ourselves sick unto death by relying too much on the comforts human life can give us.

Public Forum

TO THE EDITOR:

I am taking this means to thank the citizens of Greenville and Pitt County for the splendid hospitality and friendliness they manifested toward the exchange students who visited here from July 3-6.

In a letter I received from Miss Annabel Stearns, one of their chaperones, she said: "All the kids are still talking about Greenville, how nice their families and the kids and people they met were and how much they learned, and of course the fun they had." I believe that this comment will make all of us happy to have had a share in making their visit a pleasant one. Also I think we can be sure that they will remember Greenville and Pitt County when they return to their homes in 20 countries in a way which could well have lasting effects upon the future peace of the world!

A special thank-you is due the Daily Reflector, Mr. Dave Whitchard, Patsy Moore and Stuard Savage for their cooperation. Perhaps none of us truly appreciate our daily newspaper until we ask for help! I learned first hand that they are so willing to help and that no amount of trouble and work is too much.

Special thanks are also due the hostesses who entertained the students in their homes, treated them like the special guests they were, and spent a lot of time taxiing them from place to place.

We are all proud of East Carolina College every day in the year but we fairly burst with pride when we took the exchange students there for a tour of the college. Dr. James Butler, Dr. James Fleming, Miss Rosalind Ralston and Mr. Paul Julian "outdid" themselves in showing the college to the visitors.

Mrs. Sue May, County Home Demonstration Agent and Assistant County Agricultural Agent, Claude J. Goodman, did a fine job of acquainting the "strangers in our midst" with the agricultural "side" of Pitt County. A special treat was the luncheon provided for and served by the Simpson Home Demonstration Club at the Simpson Community building. Mrs. Ella Pate, president of the Simpson Club, and Mrs. Brantley Speight, International Relations Chairman, really made the visitors welcome.

Appreciation to these groups is also in order: (1) Rotary Club and Optimist Club for entertaining the students at dinner. (2) Lions Club for making it possible for luncheon at the College Cafeteria and for the food for the cook-out at Elm Street Park. (3) Moose Club for inviting the students to the annual Little League Field Day and supper. (4) Greenville Golf and Country Club for extending swimming privileges to the students. (5) Managements of the State and Pitt Theatres for permitting the visitors to attend the movies whenever they desired. (6) Pitt-Pitt Golf Course for giving them courtesy tickets. (7) Pepsi-Cola Bowling Company for providing Pepsi-Colas for the cook-out at the park and for the evening at the Teenage Club. (8) The Greenville Chamber of Commerce for helping with making arrangements for the entertainment of the group. (9) Television Station WNCT. (10) UCYM, Miss Sally Day and Rev. Carlton F. Hirsch, advisers, for their help in purchasing and preparing the food for the cook-out in the park, and to the young people of Greenville for participating in the fellowship at the cook-out and during the evening at the Teenage Club. (11) The Recreation Staff for their cooperation in arranging for the entertainment at the park and Teenage Club. (12) The chaperones for the afternoon and evening at the park: Rev. and Mrs. Terry Azner, Rev. and Mrs. R.R. Gannon, Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Guice, and Mr. and Mrs. D.C. Wade, Jr. (13) Salvation Army, Captain Earl Reagan, for the use of the Salvation Army Bus and for his time spent in driving the bus on the trip into Pitt County. Also, Mrs. J. Ed Waldrop, Mrs. Jack Gray, Mrs. D.L. Harrell, Mrs. J. S. Jenkins and Mrs. R.R. Gannon, for driving their cars on the Pitt County tour.

It was a privilege to have worked with the people of Greenville during this time, and I personally thank each and every one of you for your wonderful cooperation and help. After an experience of this kind it is evident that by pooling our efforts and our energies we accomplish the most.

Very Sincerely,
Jack D. Bryant
(Mrs. H. H.)

"General deGaulle cannot be expected to give way to pressure in Bizerte; it would seriously undermine his position in the Algerian talks and might risk the loyalty of the French Navy. At the same time, President Bourguiba has put himself in a position where it will be more difficult for him to accept the inevitable delays in negotiation over the base."—The (London) Times.

Dog Provides Incentive

Someday (I keep telling myself) we're going to pave the drive to the carport.

From our early days, in strolling with a neighbor over the property and dreaming aloud of the improvements to be instituted in the future, a paved driveway has figured very large in my plans. It was something to look forward to; there was no urgency, just an item for the indefinite future to resolve.

But things have changed, and now it's a question of whether or not Cotton-The-Dirty-Dog remains on the premises long enough to be frustrated by that small paving project.

For awhile we had two dogs or, more properly, one and a half. The "half" was a pup. There were other dogs in the neighborhood, and our (being hospitable-types) were wont to play host to four or five buddies at a time.

Under such circumstances it followed we could do with one less, and it was the pup that had to go.

Came warm weather of mid-summer, and new cause to view the remaining canine member of the household with a baleful eye. For, in addition to being shaggy, friendly, dirty and noisy, our dog turned out to be quite a digger. His buddies may also be involved.

And where was this digging undertaken? Under a car (where there was some shade), and in the unpaved drive... where a hot dog could cool his underside against the moist earth.

The first remedial action involved bringing up only one bucket of dirt from our back-forty, filling a comfortably-large hole, and scolding the culprit.

Three days later there were three holes in the drive; one of them obviously a "spite" hole; excavated well beyond the possible shade of a car, deep and narrow, and obviously not used or intended for respite from the heat.

So I filled them; and in subsequent weeks I have filled others. (You can't reason with Cotton.)

And that's why the prospects of paving our drive loom ever larger in the contemplated future.

I'd like to see that furry critter just try to dig his way through five inches of cement after it had set, that is.

Cotton, thy name would be Frustration.

Other Editors Sayings... The Busy States

(Richmond News Leader)

It is a popular pastime these days to toll a bell for the American States. They are regarded by many political scientists as mere anachronisms, quaint reminders of an 18th Century day, of no real use in an increasingly centralized society.

The July issue of State Government News, a monthly publication of the Council of State governments, provides abundant evidence that these rumors of State death are exaggerated. On the contrary, it is clear that the States, to an extraordinary degree, are continuing to perform those vital functions of political experiment made possible by the American system.

Colorado's legislature, for example, has created a Cancer Advisory Council, revised and expanded its Occupational Disease Act, reorganized its judiciary, set up a new labor, Apprenticeship Council, and authorized a program for instruction for parents of deaf and blind children.

Connecticut has launched the construction of a medical-dental school, approved establishment of a pre-paid dental plan, and created a new program of grants to municipalities for urban renewal.

Georgia has provided a system of tuition grants under a "freedom of choice" program similar to Virginia's, adopted legislation aimed at tax equalization among its localities, and provided new State grants for local aid in control of stream pollution.

Maine has reorganized its judiciary, begun an experiment in determining the criminal responsibility of persons accused of crime, appropriated $50,000 toward educational television programs, and called for a referendum on a constitutional amendment permitting local bond issues for construction of industrial buildings.

Nevada has put in motion a plan for a State legislature in which House members would serve for four years and Senators for six. Other new legislation increases the penalty on sale of narcotic drugs to minors, amends the State Occupational Disease Act to cover radiation injuries, provides for regulation of child placement agencies, and ratifies a new Driver License Compact proposing interstate cooperation in recording and punishing convictions for violation of highway laws.

Oregon has created a special State tax court, set up summer forestry camps for boys 15 to 18, enacted a "little Landrum-Griffin Act" to protect the election rights of union members, and authorized narcotics officers to use wire taps in gathering evidence.

Rhode Island has embarked upon a bold program for treatment of juvenile offenders. Tennessee has ratified the Southern Interstate Nuclear Compact. Washington has approved a new plan of special local education programs for superior students. West Virginia has set up a new Air Pollution Control Commission. Florida has passed a Radiation Safety Act.

It is a fair assumption that not all of these varied enactments will prove wise or useful; it is an equally fair assumption that out of such experiments will come many programs of great value. This reflects the enormous advantage built in to our federal system, that the States, out of their reserved powers of sovereignty, can function as testing laboratories for political innovation. Programs can be tried, abandoned, continued, or refined in ways that would be impossible on a national scale.

Looking at the remarkable accomplishments of these widely scattered States, we are inclined to believe that the professional gravediggers have a long time to wait. The States have been around a long time, and there is life in the old girls yet.

A "workless society" is ahead, if one believes a report by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions: Factory workers will be "as scarce as farmers," because of increasing use of automation.

Americans will not become idlers, however, says Gerard Piel, publisher of Scientific American. Their energies will turn toward teaching and learning, the performing and graphic arts, the letters, crafts, politics and social service.

Perhaps. But, somehow, the folks we have observed seem more inclined to use their idle hours in snoozing and in pursuing golf balls, food and drink

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — America faces the choice today, a master salesman said, of "selling itself short—or selling itself into a bigger boom than it has ever known."

"We could use at least a million new salesmen right now," said Frank C. Russell, "and if we had them we could keep every factory humming."

"A good salesman keeps at least five other people at work," he said.

Russell himself has been a top salesman for more than 40 years and has sold everything from shoes to windows.

His interest in windows began as a child when he knocked a home run right through a neighbor's window while playing sandlot baseball.

The lady of the house bawled him out so vigorously that the boy, who didn't have a dime in his pocket—let alone a credit card—made a silent tearful vow.

"I decided that if I ever made enough money I'd pay for every window any kid in the land broke," Russell recalled.

In 1951 while head of the world's largest storm window firm (it did a retail business of $35 million that year), Russell mentioned his childhood vow to a business friend.

"Well, you have the money now—why don't you do something about it?" replied his friend.

Russell did. In the last 10 years he has replaced at a cost of more than $32,000 some 3,500 windows broken in sandlot football or baseball games. (For obvious reasons, he didn't extend his offer to kids who break windows while playing in the street.)

"Even as it is, one sourpuss accused me of encouraging juvenile delinquency," said Russell. But not the Boys' Clubs of America. They voted him a Man-of-the-Year award.

Doing the unusual has been a way of life for Russell who believes "the greatest present curse in America is the search for security—instead of opportunity."

At 61 the sturdy, gray-haired industrialist retired for the second time. But he still operates four businesses at his home near Chestertown, Md., ranging from a sales training institute to the development of a 1100-acre resort and yacht club.

Russell born in Toledo, Ohio, went to work at nine when his father died. He tended furnaces, mowed lawns, delivered newspapers, carried bags as a bell-hop.

"I quit school after my sophomore year in high school," he said. "The business world simply held more interest for me."

At 17 he was managing a 104-room hotel. In the depression year of 1934 he earned $50,000 as a salesman in the home supplies field. Three years later he founded his own firm.

By the time he was 47 Russell had achieved a major goal of his youth: He had become a multimillionaire.

Over the years he trained 30,000 salesmen, flew 1 1/2 million miles in his fleet of five personal planes, sailed and fished in his 104-foot yacht, golfed and hobnobbed with the world's wealthy and famous folk.

"It's been a wonderful wonderful life—and it still is," said Russell, who still has the bounce of a tennis ball. "I don't believe in retiring from something to nothing."

Meanwhile, I have another proposal: that the United States issue a $1 bill in 1966 as $1 buys today, and a $5 bill that will buy as much bourbon in 1971 as a sin does now.

Let's see the Treasurer and the Treasury catch up with that!

Locals Bow Out Of Playoffs In Elizabeth City

ELIZABETH CITY — Greenville's Teen-er League all-stars yesterday bowed out of playoff competition as Elizabeth City eked out a 10-inning, 4-3 victory here.

Elizabeth City, by winning two games in a best-of-three series, advanced into the State Teen-er Tournament that begins in Greenville Tuesday morning.

The local teenagers won the first game, played here, by 8-1 before dropping a 9-6 decision to Greenville's all-stars Thursday in Greenville.

In yesterday's game, Elizabeth City came from a 3-1 deficit after four innings to tie the score at 3-all after nine. The locals held Greenville scoreless in the top of the 10th frame and then pushed across the winning tally in their half of the extra inning.

Elizabeth City's leadoff batter hit the 10th, reached first when hit by a pitched ball. He stole second and then came around to score on a shot through the infield.

Greenville scored single runs in the second, third and fourth innings. Greenville's stars collected 12 safeties to six for Elizabeth City but left many of their base-runners stranded.

In limiting Elizabeth City to six hits, Wade Sumnerlin was charged with the loss.

Again Batters 4-Minute Mile

LONDON (AP)—Jim Beatty of San Jose, Calif., won the mile in 3:59.7 today in the second half of the United States-Great Britain track meet before a crowd of 21,000 at White City Stadium.

Dyrol Burleson, the American record holder, was forced out of the race because of a leg injury. The American team built up a 50.44 point lead Friday.

This marked the third subfour-minute mile of Beatty's career.

The day was cool and low clouds hung over the stadium as Beatty opened up with about 100 yards to go and won going away.

Mike Beresford of Britain was second in 4:02.1 and Jim Greole of Santa Monica, Calif., substituting for Burleson, was third in 4:03.7. Derek Heath of Britain was fourth in 4:07.

Dixon Farmer of Occidental College won the 440-yard hurdles in 1:51.3.

Cliff Cushman of Grank Forks, N.D., was second, also in 1:51.3.

Howard Payne of Britain won the hammer throw with a toss of 198 feet, 1 inch. Tom Pasani of New York, was second with 195 feet, 3/4 and Bob Backus of Marshfield, Mass., third with 193 feet, 5/8.

Tem-er all-stars in Elizabeth City last night.

The tourney opens Tuesday morning at 9:30 with two games—one at Guy Smith Stadium and the other at East Carolina College's College Field. The remaining games will be played at Guy Smith Stadium.

Pairings for Tuesday's opening round will be drawn Monday night after all four teams have arrived. The players will be housed in Jones Dormitory on the ECC campus.

Greenville bowed out of the tournament with its loss to Elizabeth City last night. The Greenville squad—selected by vote of the coaches from the local Teen-er League's six teams—lost a possible berth in the state playoff in a best-of-three series with Elizabeth City with the Eastern District title at stake.

The winner of the tourney here, sponsored by the Youth and Athletic Association of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will advance to another double-elimination playoff for the national Area 4 crown. Area winners will advance to the national finals, also a double elimination affair, in Hershey, Pa., in mid-August.

The Area 4 tournament will be a three-team affair, including state champs from North Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee, and will be held in Gastonia Aug. 1 and 2.

The entire national Teen-er Baseball program is sponsored by VFW.

Greenville Little League Stars Win Over Beaufort, Advance To Finals

MOREHEAD CITY—Ed Flanagan, star for Pepsi-Cola during the regular season, tossed a two-hitter and batted a perfect three-for-three, including a home run, yesterday as he led the Tar Heel Little League all-stars from Greenville to a 7-2 victory over Beaufort here.

The Greenville team's victory advanced it into the finals of the Area 1 playoff next week. The Tar Heel stars will tangle with the winner of today's game in Greenville between Havelock and the North State League's all-stars of Greenville.

Flanagan went the distance on the mound for the Greenville squad. In allowing two hits, both singles, he walked three and struck out eight. At the plate, Flanagan collected three of his team's six hits and scored two runs.

The Greenville team started with a bang. After holding Beaufort scoreless in the top of the first, the Tar Heel boys scored the first five men who came to the plate.

Gary Bostic opened with a walk. Pete Heller was then safe on an error before Allen Hann worked losing pitcher Tee for another base on balls. Then, Flanagan, batting in the clean-up spot, slammed a bases-loaded double that drove home three markers. William Calloway then walked and scored behind Flanagan on another walk, two Beaufort errors and a fielder's choice.

With the 5-0 bulge, the Greenville squad coasted the rest of the way. Beaufort managed a run in the third on a single, a fielder's choice and a wild pitch. The losers added another in the sixth on a pair of balls and a fielder's choice.

Greenville added its sixth and seventh runs in the second and fifth innings. Heller opened the second frame with a double and Flanagan drove him around with a single. The final Greenville tally came in the fifth when Flanagan bled a leadoff homer.

Bauer Closes Out A 14-Year Career

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hank Bauer? Sure, he's the guy who made that sitting-down catch of Sal Yvars' pinch liner for the final out as the New York Yankees won the 1951 World Series. He's the guy who set a World Series record by hitting safely in 17 consecutive games for the Yankees, and who played more World Series games than any other outfielder in history, with 53 for the Yankees.

Chances are Bauer always will be remembered as a Yankee.

And Friday night, now manager of the Kansas City A's and just a few days shy of his 39th birthday, Bauer closed out a 14-year major league career as a player by putting the Yankees back in first place—driving in the winning run as the last place A's beat Detroit 3-2 and knocked the Tigers out of the American League lead.

That pushed the Yankees back on top by a half game, after they had come from behind for an 11-8 victory at Boston on a pinch-hit, grand slam home run by John Blanchard with two out in the ninth.

Blanchard's shot following homers by Roger Maris, Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra, was the sixth pinch-hit slam of the season in the AL, breaking the major league record of five set by the American League in 1953.

Minnesota defeated Cleveland 4-3 and the Los Angeles Angels walloped Washington 16-5 in the other AL games. Baltimore-Chicago was rained out.

In the National League, St. Louis knocked off Los Angeles 10-1, dropping the second place Dodgers two games behind the Cincinnati Reds, who were idled by rain. Milwaukee defeated Pittsburgh 9-3 and Philadelphia beat the Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 10 innings.

The A's beat right-hander Phil Regan (9-5) with three runs in the third. Norm Siebern, another ex-Yankee, doubled home two and then scored on a single by Bauer, who was honored before this final game as a player by Kansas City fans. Southpaw Jim Archer (7-5) won it with a six-hitter.

Blanchard's first major league slam saved southpaw ace Whitey Ford from defeat after the Yankees blew 2-0 and 6-3 leads.

Ford, shooting for his 18th victory and 12th in a row, left when the Red Sox went ahead with four runs in the fifth inning. Luis Arroyo (6-3) was the winner and Arnie Earley (1-4) the loser, although Blanchard's shot was off Mike Fornieles.

Maris and Mantle connected for successive home runs in the first inning off Bill Monbouquette and now have slugged 73 homers between them. Mick's was No. 37, putting him 22 games ahead of Babe Ruth's record-60 pace of 1927.

Jose Valdivielso raced home from second base with the tie-breaking run for the Twins with two out in the ninth—while losing reliever Joe Schaffernoth (0-1) waited in vain for Lennie Green's top to roll foul. The Indians were held hitless for 7 2-3 innings by right-hander Don Lee (2-2), then tied it 3-all in the top of the ninth on a solo home run by Bubba Phillips. Lee finished with a five-hitter.

The Angels clubbed 20 hits off loser Ed Hobaugh (6-5) and four relievers, putting away for Ron Moeller (4-5) with set five-run fourth inning. Albie Pearson and George Hunt each had four singles. The two clubs tied a major league record by leaving 30 men on base, 15 each.

Bauer Bows Out In Heroic Style

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hank Bauer, hero of many a World Series game, and known as one of the greatest competitors in baseball, bowed out as an active player Friday night in the true Bauer tradition.

The rifle-armed right fielder drove in the winning run as his Kansas City Athletics knocked off Detroit 3-2 and dumped the Tigers out of first place in favor of the New York Yankees, his old team.

The fans and his teammates gave him a load of presents, including a motor car, in a ceremony marking his last game as a player. Bauer, who replaced Joe Gordon last month, has been a playing manager.

In the third inning Hank came to bat with two on base and two runs in. This was the type of situation where Bauer, in almost 14 years in the big show, had established himself as a great clutch player. He lined a single to left that scored Norm Siebern with the run that won for the Athletics.

But Bauer was not through. In the sixth inning the Tigers were threatening. Trailing, 3-1, Al Kaline singled and Rocky Colavito walked. Norm Cash then drove a single into right field scoring Kaline with the Tigers' second run. Colavito raced for third but Bauer puffed Rocky with a perfect throw to Wayne Causey.

Hank retired in the seventh inning and will direct his club from the bench.

Braves, Cards In Thick Of Race

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Milwaukee Braves and St. Louis Cardinals may be second division, but they've barged into the thick of the pennant race as the two hottest clubs of the moment in the National League.

The sixth-place Cards beat Los Angeles 10-1 Friday night for their sixth success in seven games and dropped the second place Dodgers two games behind Cincinnati. The Reds were rained out.

It was the Cards' 11th victory in 16 games under new Manager Johnny Keane.

The fifth place Braves also made it six out of seven by defeating fourth place Pittsburgh 5-3. Milwaukee, after winning 7 of 10, trails the Reds by 9 1/2 games. The Cards are 11 games behind.

Philadelphia beat the Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 10 innings on Tony Gonzalez' home run in the other NL game.

The Dodgers managed nothing but singles against the Cards' Curt Simmons (5-7). The southpaw veteran gave up seven hits and three walks while striking out five. He had a shut out until the ninth, when the Dodgers scored on a bases-loaded walk.

Right-hander Don Drysdale (7-6) was the loser. Joe Cunningham led the Cards' 12-hit attack with two singles and a three-run homer.

Hank Aaron did it for the Braves with two home runs off loser Bob Friend (9-12). Aaron belted a two-run shot in the first inning, then tagged his 22nd home run, a solo blast, for a 4-1 lead in the sixth. In between, he singled and scored in the fourth inning. The Buc's out-hit the Braves 12-6, getting 10 hits off right-hander Lew Burdette (11-6), who needed relief in the eighth.

The Phillies battled from behind after Billy Williams' two-run homer had given the Cubs a 3-1 lead in the sixth inning. Clay Dalrymple's single made it 3-all in the eighth, and Gonzalez then broke it up with his home run off losing reliever Barney Schultz (3-2). Jack Baldschun (4-1) was the winner in relief.

Hosting Enfield For Doubleheader

Greenville hosts Enfield for a doubleheader tomorrow afternoon at Guy Smith Stadium in Eastern County League. Game time is 1:30.

Nathan Green and Malcolm Griffith are scheduled to handle the mound chores for the Greenville nine. A double win tomorrow would enhance the local team's chances of overtaking league-leading Falkland.

Falkland, with a 14-8 record, holds the league lead with Oak City (15-9) just .011 percentage points behind. Hobgood, with a 13-8 record, is in third position.

Greenville, with 12 victories and 11 defeats, is in fourth spot, 2 1/2 games behind Falkland and Oak City.

Falkland risks its top perch as it entertains Leggett (7-15) in an afternoon doubleheader at Falkland.

In other Sunday action, Oak City is at Hobgood for a single game.

Grand Slam Was Biggest Thrill For Blanchard

BOSTON (AP)—"I was so far out I couldn't hear a thing," John Blanchard, one of the most prideful of the proud Yankees, spoke excitedly Friday night after his ninth-inning, pinch-hit grand slam home run pulled out an 11-8 victory over Boston and returned New York to first place in the American League.

"It was the biggest thrill of my life," said the reserve catcher whose two-out blow off Red Sox reliever Mike Fornieles capped a rally from an 8-6 deficit.

"All the guys were waiting for me with congratulations when I got back to the dugout but I was momentarily deaf," Blanchard added.

The blow was a record, too, the sixth pinch-hit grand slammer of the season in the AL—topping the previous mark of five in 1953.

"This homer was bigger than most to me," Blanchard said. "The bases were full and we had just lost a terrible doubleheader to Washington.

"Fornieles threw me three curves in a row, then a fast one. All I was looking for was a ball to hit and I got it."

Winston-Salem Widens Lead In Carolina League

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winston-Salem combined its triumph over Raleigh and Wilson's victory over Burlington and widened its Carolina League lead to 1 1/2 games.

Durham meanwhile swept a doubleheader from Greensboro and pulled to within two games of first place.

Winston-Salem defeated Raleigh 11-3. Wilson edged Burlington 2-1 and Durham topped Greensboro 9-5 in the first game and 4-3 in an 11-inning second game.

Don Dingwerth batted in seven of Winston-Salem's runs as he sparked the league leaders to the victory. It was Winston's seventh victory in eight games.

Ben Tench kept Raleigh runners away from the plate until two were out in the ninth.

Wilson's Tom Trammel won a duel of three-hitters from Floyd Weaver of Burlington. All the runs were scored in the first inning. Trammel, winning his fourth game with one loss, retired 13 men in a row from the last of the third to the top of the eighth.

Tonight Raleigh is at Winston-Salem, Burlington is at Wilson and Durham is at Greensboro.

On The Record: A Hole In 'Zero'

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Bill Cooper of Richmond really has nothing to look forward to in golf anymore. He shot a hole-in-one Friday.

Cooper, playing in a pro-amateur event at Willow Oaks Country Club, had a handicap stroke on the par 3 second hole—and aced it with a four iron. One form one is zero.

College Education For Printers Devils

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Even printer's devils are coming with college education these days. The Tar Heel newspapers are going to ante up $25,000 to support those educations.

"Devil" is the traditional term applied to apprentices in the printing industry. In the old days the devil was a boy and the print shop his only source of higher learning.

In the advance of technology that has seen that system go by the boards, prints—notably newspapers—have had their share of problems getting a sufficient supply of trained personnel.

At Murfreesboro a once-obscure Baptist College is tackling those problems in a trail-blazing program.

Chowan College there has the only School of Graphic Arts in the Southeast. And the state's newspapers are willingly pledging funds to enlarge the school.

First payments on the newspapers' pledges are pouring in at the North Carolina Press Association convention today at Hotel Charlotte.

The school, established in cooperation with the state's newspapers and led by the publishing concern headed by Roy Parker, is not a trade school. It enables a student to combine printing training with a good liberal arts background.

Thus a student can take Chowan's normal two year course with electives in transfer to a four year school to finish his education.

Lloyd Thayer Addresses First Annual Workshop

Pupil, Program, Planning and Plant were discussed by Dr. Lloyd Thayer, assistant superintendent of the High Point City Schools. This morning, in the second of two addresses presented at the first annual Junior High School Workshop at East Carolina College.

In the two-day appearance of Dr. Thayer, the participants in the workshop heard the High Point educator and president-elect of the North Carolina Education Association point up areas of responsibility and emphasize guidelines to successful projects for pupils in the transition from elementary school into secondary education.

"The junior high school youth is an information gatherer, a developer of skills meaningful to self, a seeker of group acceptance, has a wide range of skills, knowledge, physical development, and emotional maturity, wanting to get pleasure and release from tension through activities," declared Thayer.

The "tweener's" seeks independence while maintaining security and working for recognition. He has a striving for personal values in a social setting, a desire for adults to think through his problems with him, and wants to be a responsible member of school and community society," Thayer concluded.

Four roles of the junior high school administrator make him a pupil accountant, a community leader, a staff leader, and director of instruction and curriculum, Dr. Thayer said in opening his discussions with the school personnel attending the workshop.

Organized and conducted by Dr. Douglas R. Jones, chairman of the East Carolina College Department of Education, the first junior high school workshop on the East Carolina campus was described as "very satisfactory" from the standpoint of program, projects and calibre of speakers and discussion. Because of Saturday classes, the workshop will terminate on Monday, July 24.

Among the students participating in the workshop was a teacher from Las Vegas, Nevada, the only "out-of-stater" in the 10-day educational project. Many teachers from outside North Carolina have attended workshops, clinics, and conferences at East Carolina College this summer.

In attendance at the junior high school workshop here are the following from Pitt County:

Mrs. Stella H. Smith, Mrs. Marie Wallace, and Joseph Smith, Jr., all of Greenville.

Though there is no written agreement that the State Art Museum owes $1,500 balance on one of its paintings, Sen. Robert Lee Humber of Greenville says there is correspondence in the files of the museum confirming the debt.

"This correspondence has been in the files of the State Art Museum for over five years," Sen. Humber told The Daily Reflector today. Sen. Humber is president of the State Art Society.

Controversy over payment of the $1,500 balance due was made public recently when State Treasurer Edwin Gill protested the payment of the balance, and Director of Administration Dave Colbrane withheld payment of a $1,500 check to art dealer Julius Weitzner.

However, other members of the State Art Commission have agreed there is a debt, and Museum Director Justus Bier said Friday his understanding agrees with Sen. Humber.

According to newspaper reports, Gill has contended that since the state has clear title to the painting, for which a $3,000 exchange was worked out some years ago, the claim for a $1,500 balance on the part of art dealer Julius Weitzner of London and New York had grown out of "unauthorized" negotiations when the painting was acquired.

Purchase of the painting came about as follows, Sen. Humber explained: "After expenditure of the funds appropriated by the General Assembly for the purchase of paintings for the museum had been exhausted, there appeared on the market a painting of high quality by the artist Monsu Desiderio, which our then director, Dr. William R. Valentiner, desired very much to have for the museum's collection."

Dr. Valentiner desired to exchange one of the paintings and to apply its purchase price on the Monsu Desiderio. "He asked me if that would be satisfactory and I told him it would be entirely satisfactory if he would approach the dealer who had been the owner of both paintings and make arrangements agreeable to him," Sen. Humber said.

"The dealer stated that he would apply to the purchase price of the new painting the exact amount of money that had been paid on the previous painting," which was $3,000, Sen. Humber said. The amount of the new painting by Desiderio was $4,500, leaving a balance due of $1,500.

The dealer has never pressed payment of the sum, Dr. Humber said, "hoping that we would have the funds to purchase an additional painting which would absorb the extra sum, or that appropriation would make it or an outward donation." Though the museum has received over $1,600,000 in gifts during this five-year period, the gifts have been in paintings and not in cash; hence, the $1,500 has not been paid. (The museum owes $1,500 balance on one of its paintings, Sen. Robert Lee Humber of Greenville says there is correspondence in the files of the museum confirming the debt.)

However, the dealer did give the museum clear title to the painting some years ago in order that the painting could be included in the museum's catalog, with the understanding that the $1,500 balance would be paid at a future time. This agreement had been approved by the State Art Commission which was responsible for making purchases and it was pleasing to Dr. Valentiner, Sen. Humber said.

In the fall of 1960, when Sen. Humber convened the State Art Commission to review certain matters including the payment of the $1,500, "every member of the commission was in accord with prompt payment of the debt except Mr. Gill. Mr. Gill asked me if the title had been conferred upon the state. I replied in the affirmative, but added that there was a collateral understanding that at some time the state museum would pay $1,500 to the dealer," Sen. Humber said.

"Mr. Gill replied that if the dealer had been foolish enough to confer title upon the state of North Carolina, that ended the state's obligation and he would not consent to the state's payment of any other amount," Sen. Humber continued.

Since that time, the new museum director, Dr. Justus Bier, has reviewed the matter and publicly stated that he is in agreement with Sen. Humber that the debt is owed and should be paid.

All members of the State Art Commission, composed of E. L. Davis Jr. of Winston-Salem, Dr. Clemens Sommer of the University of North Carolina, Sen. Humber and Gill, have voted for payment of the sum except Gill.

Under a normal procedure, a majority vote determines the decision of the commission, but Gill protested the majority vote and wrote a letter to the budget bureau asking that the check not be issued, which, of course, led to newspaper publicity, Sen. Humber stated.

He noted that there was one oversight, since it was not brought to the state auditor's attention that there was in the files of the State Art Society correspondence recognizing a debt of $1,500 to Weitzner. Sen. Humber said that the auditor "has told me that it was an error which deserves to be corrected in just the normal manner."

As matters stand now, the amount has not been paid.

Grifton Utilities Crews Are Busy

GRIFTON — During this week, utilities crews in Grifton conducted routine checks of the manholes and sewage lines throughout the city and also cleaned up the cemetery.

Police chief and utilities superintendent Luther Lewis said that the crews conducted a routine check of the manholes and sewage lines about every 60 days, to make sure that they are in proper working order.

In addition to these projects, the department maintained its usual garbage pickup procedures.

From Campus To Construction Job

By GEORGE BRYANT
Reflector Staff Writer
For many students looking for part-time jobs this summer, the Voice of America project in the Pitt County area has been a blessing.

tractor for the VOA job, said there were quite a few applicants at the end of the spring quarter at East Carolina College. At that time they had no work, but recently there has been an increased demand.

pouring concrete and numerous other occupations. For most the work is hard but at the same time it seems to be enjoyable.

Billy Cox, 20 of Greenville, said he had worked at site A and had been laid off for a while during the wet weather. He had been back only a few days.

SUMMER EMPLOYEES and fulltime workers seem to be enjoying their work at VOA site B. The workers here are pouring concrete over the conduits installed by Ling Electric Company.

Reviews And Reflections
By JIM POINDEXTER

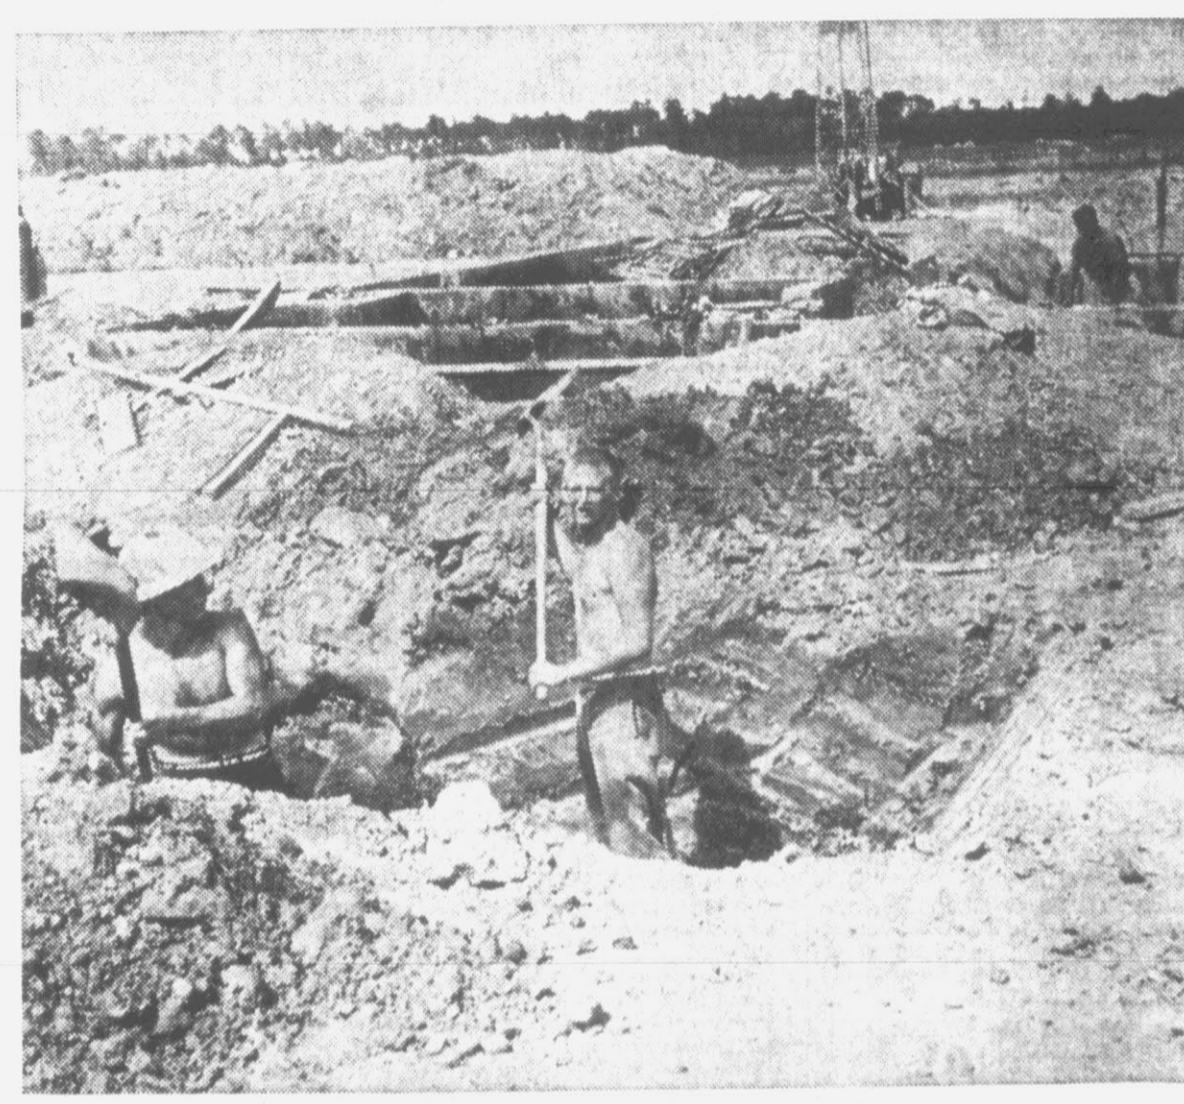

Traditionally readers have associated memorable characters with good fiction. New Mary McCarthy in "Partisan Review" makes the interesting observation that American writing for the past quarter-century or so has been almost completely devoid of vivid, life-like characters, either men or women.

The Schools
One symptom of present-day concern about education is the current popularity of Martin Mayer's "The Schools," a work which we have mentioned before and which we have finally obtained.

Boys On The Job
In an interview with several of the boys working under Cox, Larry Whitlow, of Greenville, who was on the job for the first day described himself as being "a little tired," and "It sure is hot out here."

Good Workers
When asked how the boys compared with his regular help Wilder commented, "They all worked good. I hated to see them leave and not come back. I could get a lot more out of them some of the so-called 'experienced laborers.'" some of the best help we have." Robert Lyons with Von Oesen Consultant Engineers said they had two college boys working for them this summer who are doing real well.

LARRY WITLOW (right) of Greenville on his first day of work at VOA site C. The temperature that day was about 96 degrees, but Larry seemed to be getting along all right.

Childish Characters
By this she means that like a child, the characters in modern fiction are confined to noticing and reacting to the world around them instead of enforcing their personalities upon it.

Supervision
This is all the more remarkable (and perhaps encouraging, in a way) in view of the tremendous emphasis upon supervision in American lower education, as Mayer points out: "In America nearly 10 percent of the staff is engaged full time in 'supervision.'"

EAST CAROLINA COLLEGE senior William Cooper of Elizabeth City stops by the well respected water barrel for a drink and a moment's rest.

Reviews . . .

(Continued from page 7) finds in practice and theory. Mayer is optimistic about the future of our educational system. Yet progress depends upon more money and the exercise of a vague sort of good will on the part of everybody. The key is the search for excellence. On this point Mayer quotes the famous remark of John Stuart Mills: "The pupil who is never required to do what he cannot do never does what he can do." All of which reminds us, for some reason, of a little poem by Emily Dickinson, which at least shows how painful learning can be: I felt a cleavage in my mind As if my brain had split; I tried to match it, seam by seam, But could not make them fit. The thought behind I strove to join Unto the thought before, But sequence unravelled out of reach Like balls upon a floor.

Higher Price Support For Some Georgia-Florida Leaf

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Government price support will be from $4 to $6 a hundred pounds higher than last year on some grades of tobacco on the Georgia-Florida markets, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported today. The price support analysis was in a Tobacco Market News release preliminary to the opening of the selling season Thursday on the 23 Georgia and 5 Florida markets. Indications are that the sales season of approximately a month may be the most prosperous yet. Both yield and quality of the two-state crop are described as high. To set a new money record, returns would have to top the 1960 record of $103 million, of which $91 million was in Georgia. Tobacco Market News pointed out that the average price support for all flue-cured tobacco is $5.50 a hundred, the same as last year, for tied offerings. However, it said the grade loan rates will average $2.40 higher to provide the overall figure with some of the lower grades raised as much as $5 to $7. The increases will be $1 less on the Georgia-Florida belt since the discount for its untied tobacco has been lengthened from $5 to $6, partly to discourage Carolina-Virginia growers from dumping tobacco in the belt. Subtracting the $6 discount from overall support level for tied tobacco, the Georgia-Florida average for its untied is $49.50 a hundred. All other flue-cured belts require that tobacco be tied for selling. The more northerly growers claim the main reason they sell on the Georgia-Florida markets is to avoid the expense and trouble of tying. Georgians charge that they want to take advantage of the belt's reputation for quality tobacco and cash in on its higher prices. The $6 untied tobacco discount may discourage many who were willing to take $5 less to avoid tying. Georgia growers are not greatly discouraged by the lengthened discount, which is for determining price support. They say demand for their quality tobacco is so great that very little of it goes into the government loan anyway. Last season, the USDA reports, only 1.4 per cent of the belt's net sales went into the loan compared with 4.2 per cent for all flue-cured. Georgians claim that much of the small percentage of belt offerings that round government loans more attractive than bids was brought in from the outside. The USDA estimate is that the Georgia-Florida crop will total 155.77 million pounds, 133 million in Georgia, up 3 per cent over 1960. This puts the belt's growers in a very favorable marketing position since total flue-cured production is calculated at 1 per cent lower than 1960. Last season's belt - wide price average was $6.41 gross, Georgia $56.39, around $1.40 lower than the record prices of the year before. The 1960 opening day average was $55.89.

Newspapers Direct Your Message Right Where It Counts

An advertiser wants to make his point with people who are potential buyers. Newspapers deliver more "ready to buy" prospects than any other medium. Readers are attracted to ads that interest them. This means that readership ratings on ads represent live prospects for the advertiser. These are people who are easy to sell because they already have a product interest. People look for—and want—advertising in the daily newspaper.

HIS SUNDAY BEST OLEAN, N.Y. (AP)—The Rev. Joseph A. Brennan, C.S. Sp., an American Catholic priest in British East Africa, said he once gave a native boy a pair of pajamas he had received from friends in the United States. The native boy wore them to church, explaining, "You may wear these wonderful clothes when you're asleep, Father, but nobody can see me when I am asleep."

By JOHN CREASEY A MATTER OF LIFE AND DEATH

CHAPTER 19

Rollison stretched out a long leg, at the same time ramming with his gun the massive midriff of the big man. It made him squeal, then double up, head towards Rollison, neck stretched out as if ready for the chop.

Rollison cracked him twice on the back of his neck with the butt of the gun, and induced complete collapse.

Then, Rollison looked down at the quivering man who had been sent by 'Mo'.

Rollison grinned.

He went to the telephone and dialed an East End number. He knew that it was nearly two o'clock, that the man he was calling would be fast asleep, with a wife who had an acid tongue. The brr-brr of the ringing sound kept on and on.

Then a man spoke gustily into the mouthpiece: "Oo the blinkin' 'ell is that?"

"Is that Mr. William Ebbutt?" asked Rollison in a whisper both deep and profound.

"Supposing, it is, wot perish in?"

"Bill," whispered Rollison "tell Liz I'm sorry that I woke her, just blame it on your Mayfair friends."

The whisper disintegrated.

"Well, if it isn't Mr. Ar!," the man bellowed.

"Mr. Ar," will do nicely," agreed Rollison gratefully. "Bill, I'm sorry, but I've a little job for you. Urgent but not lethal. There's a man here in 29 Kinton Street, South Kensington. He needs a little first aid."

Bill Ebbutt gave a snigger of a laugh.

"He's a big chap," went on Rollison. "He packs a Rocky Marciano punch, he's American, he's a killer, but if you treat him well I think you'll get along with him nicely. Think you could come over and collect?"

"Oh, sure, Mr. Ar. Right away."

"Wonderful, Bill. Thanks."

"Be right over," promised Ebbutt.

Rollison gave precise directions before ringing off.

The heap on the floor hadn't moved, but that didn't mean that the man was still unconscious. Rollison moved from the telephone, took a hand towel from a hook, bent over the American and hooked the towel round the big head. The man started, but didn't fight back, so he hadn't come round yet.

When Rollison had finished, he looked like a creature out of Ku Klux Klan, lying full length on his stomach, his head covered, his hands tied behind his back.

Rollison eased him over, and began to go through his pockets, putting everything he found in a neat pile on the floor.

He talked as he did so.

"You're going to meet some typical English people," he said, "don't try any funny stuff with them. You want to know about him? He owns a pub in the East End—you know what a pub is, don't you? Call it the English version of a respectable clip-joint. He also runs a boxing school. He called diversely Ebbutt's Academy and Ebbutt's gymnasium, and beneath the pub and the gymnasium there is a cellar. Most of the bins are filled with wine or with beer casks, but there's room for you. You can meditate in peace and the heady aroma of hops with you about Mo. Understand?"

He finished his search, then picked everything from the floor and put it on the kitchen table, and began to look through it.

He found a photograph of Adam Bell, one taken not long ago, in England. He found an American passport, in the name of Timothy Mahoney, a chit which would have to be exchanged for a return flight ticket to New York. There were some American Express travel agents' checks, also in the name of Timothy Mahoney, and a bill, receipted only that morning, from a small hotel near Paddington Station, where Mahoney had stayed for the past week.

"I'll talk to you later, Tim," Rollison said, "the first problem is to get you out of here."

Bill Ebbutt, a mountainous man wearing a thick white polo sweater and a peaked cloth cap, had two of his gymnastic friends with him, and a small van. No one appeared to notice them take the helpless Mahoney out of Agatha Bell's flat and put him into the van; and no one appeared to see them drive off. It was like the end of an era. Adam Bell had escaped again—but that couldn't last.

It was four o'clock when Rollison reached the flat in Gresham Terrace, making very little noise, being anxious not to disturb the neighbors, Jolly or Agatha. He won twice and lost once; for Jolly appeared, brown eyes blinking like an overtired owl's.

By then, Rollison was at the desk in the big room, looking at the box of Silver Queen face powder and an analyst's simple report, which made him grunt, then at three messages which had been clipped together, all of them written in Jolly's meticulous handwriting.

"I put some sandwiches under the cover, sir," he said, "and I wondered if you would like a glass of—ah—milk, as the night is so far gone."

"Milk?" echoed Rollison. He slowly shook his head. "The night may be far gone, but I'm not, yet. Whiskey, just a nip. He lifted the lid off the dish; the sandwiches were of lettuce and ham. He began to eat. "From Lady Gloria—will I be very careful? Remind me, Jolly! From the Yard—will I go there to sign the statement which I made at the river? Yes, in due course. From—what's this?"

He stared at the third message. "I took it myself, sir," said Jolly, "and there is no possibility of mistake. Mrs. James Vance asked you if you would go and see her as early as possible in the morning. The call was made by Miss Cadasser, and Mrs. Vance came on the line immediately afterwards."

"What time?"

"A little after twelve o'clock, sir."

"No explanations or reasons why?"

"None at all, sir, although I tried discreetly to find out what she wished to discuss."

"I'll bet you did!" Rollison finished a sandwich and started another. "Now you go and tuck yourself in, Jolly, you have work to do in the morning, whereas I can stay in bed all day." He watched as Jolly went out, pondered the message from Griseida Vance, and made a discovery which did not wholly surprise him.

He wanted to see her again.

It wasn't often that he felt like that.

Can't See Trees For Forrests

POQUOSON, Va. (AP)—People here can't see the trees for the Forrests.

H. G. Forrest is a member of the York County Board of Supervisors and H. G. Forrest is a member of the York County School Board. Each gets the other's complaints over the telephone.

Poquoson has a few more Forrests.

Town Mayor is G. S. Forrest and W. Haywood Forrest is on the town council. Both leave of five in September.

The mayor-elect is Jack Nathan Forrest.

All are cousins.

Woman Killed By Gun As It Fell

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—A guard's gun belt broke in the grandstand at Hollywood Park race track Friday. His revolver discharged when it hit the floor, and killed a woman.

The victim was Mrs. Margaret S. Lucero, 44, of West Los Angeles.

The guard was Joe Osborn, 56, a Los Angeles plainclothesman, member of the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau.

Osborn told police his holster belt broke, letting the .38 caliber revolver drop to the cement floor.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK WASHINGTON (AP)— President Kennedy has proclaimed the week beginning Oct. 8 as Fire Prevention Week.

Senator Says Congress Is Ready To Approve Sum For Military Build-Up

WASHINGTON (AP)— Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., says President Kennedy isn't likely to declare a limited emergency now and call up the reserves and national guardsmen.

But if he does, Robertson added Friday, the Senate Appropriations subcommittee could approve the money for pay and subsistence for up to a million men.

He also said nearly $1 billion could be added quickly to a pending military money bill if Kennedy asked for it to help meet the Berlin crisis.

Robertson, acting chairman of the appropriations subcommittee, said that in addition to such money for aircraft, missiles and Navy vessels, more than $500 million could be added for Army hardware.

He said he told Kennedy at a White House luncheon Thursday that the subcommittee will withhold action on the $43 billion defense spending bill until after the President's nationwide radio and television speech Tuesday on the Berlin situation. He is expected to send extra defense requests to Congress Wednesday.

"In my opinion," Robertson said, "the President is not likely at this time to declare a limited emergency and call up reserve and National Guard troops."

He added that he believes his subcommittee will support Kennedy's proposal to take a firm stand in the Berlin issue, including the prompt strengthening of the U.S. military establishment.

In reference to the U.S. firm position on Berlin, Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles said the United States must convince the Russians they cannot blackmail this country into abandoning West Berlin.

He said he thought Soviet Premier Khrushchev will realize the United States cannot be pushed around by him.

"He's going to see this even more clearly every following week from now on—that we have no intention of being jarred out, frightened or pushed out," said Bowles, the No. 2 man in the State Department.

Bowles' comments came in a radio interview distributed to station around the country by New Associates, Inc. The interview was recorded earlier for release Saturday.

In a 30-minute conference Friday, Secretary of State Dean Rusk briefed British, French and West German envoys on U.S. defense plans for Berlin.

Afterward, West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe hinted that part of the Kennedy program involves an increase in NATO's conventional weapons defense forces. But none of the diplomats would go further than that.

The next step in filling in Allies on the Berlin plans will be taken in Paris by Thomas K. Finletter, U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He flies to Paris Sunday. Khrushchev has declared that he will sign at the end of this year a peace treaty with Communist East Germany which would threaten Western rights in the red-surrounded West Berlin.

Fear Import Of Red Bloc People

BERLIN (AP)— Apprehension mounted in West Germany today that the steady flow of refugees into West Berlin might prompt the East German Communist regime to make up its population loss by importing immigrants from the Soviet bloc.

Ernst Lemmer, minister for all-German affairs, told newsmen in Bonn this possibility is causing "serious uneasiness" because it could threaten the Germanic character of East Germany's population.

A mass immigration from the east could blast West German hopes for eventual reunification of the two Germanies through free elections.

Lemmer said that for this reason West Germany will continue to urge the remaining 17 million East Germans not to flee, but he predicted the present rate of 1,000 refugees a day will continue.

He denied East German charges that West Germany lures refugees for propaganda purposes even though nearly 2.5 million refugees slipped across the border in past years.

Refugees continued to pour into West Berlin.

There were reports Communists pulled thousands off trains heading into the city, but other sources said the difficulties were no greater than usual.

The Communists had also scheduled road checks for Friday, saying they sought information to improve their road system. But Western customs officers said they had no word that checks were actually being made on the road to Berlin.

Many of the refugees said the exodus has increased because of general fear the Berlin crisis might close the escape route.

A total of 8,602 refugees fled from East Germany last week, the West German Refugee Ministry said.

Elizabeth Taylor Is Home Again

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Elizabeth Taylor is home again after a brief hospital stay during which a plastic surgeon operated to remove a one-inch scar from her throat.

The actress left Cedars of Lebanon Hospital Friday, two days after the operation.

Her scar had formed over an incision made when the dark-haired beauty was battling pneumonia in London last March. Physicians at that time ordered a tracheotomy—opening in the windpipe—to ease her breathing.

Did It Again In Demonstrating

MERCED, Calif. (AP)—Leland Larioso, 17, of Hilmar, was demonstrating to friends how he accidentally shot himself in the right foot.

He pointed a 20 gauge shotgun at the recently healed foot and pulled the trigger.

His friends drove him back to the hospital for treatment of his new shotgun wound.

There are 85 million Americans licensed to operate automobiles.

Can Sing It, But Can't Find It

CINCINNATI (AP)— Where is "home on the range?" Officials of the Hamilton County Probate Court would like to know. They have some money to give to it.

It's a $500 bequest by John J. O'Hara, retired Norwood machinist, who died last October. In his will, O'Hara said the money should be used "for purpose the home deems necessary."

He mentioned no address, and now, as one court clerk put it, "we can sing it, but we can't find it."
