French, Tunisians Charge Each Other With Truce Violations

Asheville Beauty Is N.C. Queen

GREENSBORO (AP)—A crew-cut-hometown-lad saw the new Miss North Carolina, Maria Beale Fletcher, 19-year-old hazel-eyed brunette from Asheville, sighed and said: "Gosh, I was in a class with her one time and that was the only course I failed. I just couldn't keep my eyes off her." The 10 judges at the four-day contest which ended with her coronation here Saturday night must have felt something like that too, for they picked her over 74 other girls, all beautiful. The hometown lad made his remark as Miss Fletcher, a former Rockette dancer in New York's Radio City Music Hall Theater, came home to a tumultuous reception in Asheville Sunday night. A lot of excitement was behind her in Greensboro, and a lot less before her in Atlantic City, N.J., where she will check in the day after Labor Day for the Miss America contest. But first her 118 pounds distributed on a 34-24-35 figure will be TUNIS (AP)—A war of words swelled between the French and Tunisians today in the wake of the battle of Bizerte. Each side charged the other with maneuvering for military advantage in defiance of the U.N. cease-fire order. The French Admiralty declared Tunisian civilians were evacuating Bizerte's ancient Casbah to let troops and volunteers transform its narrow streets and stucco dwellings into an armed bastion. Artillery emplaced there could fire on French ships traversing the 300-yard wide canal between the Mediterranean and Lake Bizerte. Tunisia's Information Ministry said landing barges debarked French troops at Cap Blanc, five miles north of Bizerte. A Paris government spokesman commented that the Cap Blanc area lies within the French perimeter established during the Bizerte fighting and that there may have been some movement of men within the perimeter. Travelers from Bizerte said it appeared the French were enlarging their perimeter. Highways in the Bizerte area are controlled by French-manned roadblocks, some of them 15 miles inland. The Tunisian radio charged that French paratroopers were fortifying points taken in their four-day battle to protect France's massive naval and air base at Bizerte from Tunisian efforts to take it over. There was even a totally unconfirmed report that a French parachute detachment dropped at noon on Bizerte, though the value of such a drop would be negligible since the French have a firm grip on the town. Dispatches from Bizerte said families of French military personnel were boarding ships anchored in the harbor. A French officer said they were headed for vacations in France. Streams of Tunisians headed out of Bizerte on the road to Tunis, 40 miles southeast of that city. But they denied they were evacuating the Arab quarter for future battle purposes. They said they were afraid hostilities would start up again and they felt unsafe under the cease-fire, ordered Saturday by the U.N. Security Council. U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold sped toward Tunisia from New York in response to an invitation from President Habib Bourguiba. His flight was routed via Zurich and Rome. He was joined in Zurich by Pier Pasquale Spinelli of Italy, director of the U.N. European office and an expert on middle east affairs. El Aouina airfield, Tunisia's only international airport, was closed to all Air France planes. Air liaison with France was maintained by the national airline Tunis Air, which has an average of two flights daily. French citizens in Tunisia were ordered to get special authorization before leaving the country. French assets in Tunisian banks were blocked. The banks already had been ordered to change no French money. Tension remained high with French tanks and paratroopers standing watch through battle-scarred Bizerte and weary, watchful Tunisian forces holding out in the native Casbah. The Tunisian News Agency reported a total of 670 dead had been counted in Bizerte and put the wounded at 1,500. "The Tunis press charged new 'provocations' and violations of the truce by the French. Those reports said French planes had flown over the towns of Kasserine in the north and El Kef, near the Algerian frontier.

Hurricane Hits Central America

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Anna roared into British Honduras today, threatening the small Central American country with dangerous flash floods. At 11 a.m. the center was estimated over the mountains of the southern part of the country. It moved inland in the Manco Creek area about 75 miles south of Belize. Highest winds were just barely hurricane force at 75 miles an hour in squalls over a small area near the center. The big threat was rain pouring out of the storm. The Miami Weather Bureau said flash floods were likely in hilly and mountainous areas. The year's first hurricane raked the British Honduras coast with high tides reaching seven to 10 feet. These were expected to subside late today. In the final advisory on Anna, the bureau said it is expected to break up over the mountains of British Honduras and southeastern Mexico today and tonight. At the time it moved inland, squalls extended outward from the center some 80 to 100 miles. It was expected to continue moving on a generally western course at about eight miles an hour.

Electrical Storm Set Five Fires

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — A severe electrical storm Sunday, touched off 18 fires within a two-hour period. One two-story building was destroyed, firemen also put out blazes involving kitchens, roofs and attics, television antennas, a water heater and electrical switch boxes and transformers.

Confesses Having His House Burned

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — A Perquimans County man who has been working in Washington, D.C., came home over the week-end, police said, and admitted he had his house burned two years ago, to collect $5,000 worth of insurance. Officers said John William Boyce, 29, of Piner told his mother that he had his house burned several bonds they had purchased with the insurance money, and sent a certified check of reimbursement back to the insurance company. Perquimans Sheriff Jack Kelly White quoted Boyce as saying the deed had burdened his mind. While an SBI Agent, F. E. (Roy) Epps, who investigated Boyce's story, arrested his former next-door neighbor, Clarence Ervin Dail, 23. The sheriff said Dail admitted actually burning the house. Dail, the officers said, was paid $110 by Boyce. The house was empty when it burned. Boyce and Dail were released under bonds of $6,000 each. Both were charged with conspiracy to burn a dwelling. In addition, Boyce is charged with procuring another person to burn a house, and Dail faces a charge of unlawful burning for fraudulent purposes. A preliminary hearing will be held in Hertford Tuesday. Sheriff White said both Dail and Boyce have "excellent reputations" in their community.

Glenn To Make Next Space Hop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn will make the next short sub-orbital U.S. space shot, if there is one. This was disclosed Sunday by James E. Webb, chief of the national Aeronautics and Space Administration, in a radio-TV interview (AP-issues and answers). Webb said there has been no decision on whether this nation will try a third sub-orbital shot before its first round-the-world space flight, scheduled either late this year or early in 1962.

Small Wonder If Greenvillites Warm Sunday, It Hit 104 Here

Temperatures soared to a hot 104 degrees in Greenville yesterday, setting a record high for this summer. Prior to yesterday, the highest temperature on record for this year was 98 degrees, according to the Greenville Utilities Plant records. The weather man says to expect more of the hot weather for the next few days. Though Greenville's two swimming pools reported several hundred swimmers throughout the day, attendance wasn't any higher than usual for a summer Sunday. Many people stayed at home with the air conditioning or fans running, as indicated by a jump in consumption of electricity. Utilities Director Leonard Bloxam reported the average electric consumption at a peak load was about six and a half per cent above what it normally runs on the average summer Sunday. Water consumption went up considerably until the rain, Bloxam said, but didn't increase as much as it has on other summer Sundays. He indicated that numerous summer showers probably have decreased the need for yard irrigation, cutting down on use of water for yard watering. L. M. Bullock of the utilities plant reported about .85 of an inch of rain yesterday, but it didn't serve as a cooling agent. Saturday's high temperature was 98 degrees. Already this morning at 8 a.m., the temperature had climbed to 82 degrees. The Tar River level today was 3.3 feet, Bullock said.

Hijacked

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An Eastern Air Lines prop-jet Electra was hijacked on a flight to Tampa today and its pilot was forced to fly to Cuba. The plane carried 33 passengers and a crew of five. The plane landed at Jose Marti Airport near Havana, the Miami airport reported. Last radio contact with the pilot, W. E. Buchanan, was with Aeronautical Radio, Inc., an airlines radio pool firm in Key West. Buchanan said he was changing course and was flying to Havana at gunpoint. The plane was Flight 202. It left Miami International Airport at 9:05 a.m. (EST) on a regular flight to Tampa. Aboard were 21 paying passengers, 12 Eastern pass-carrying employees and the five crew members, the airline said.

Castro Curtails Refugee Airlift By State Dept.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—U. S. State Department plans to fly 20,000 Cuban refugees to Miami in three weeks, but the Cuban government has cut off the flight daily from Havana, said it will operate twice daily until further notice. An estimated 100,000 Cuban refugees are in the greater Miami area and the U. S. Cuban Emergency Refugee Center here has been processing 1,500 arrivals each week. The State Department had proposed 10 flights daily to Havana to airlift the many Cubans who have waited months to leave the island. But the Cuban government over the weekend issued an order limiting flights between Miami and Havana to two a day. A Pan American spokesman said passengers will be loaded on a reservation basis "since we have no other method of determining priority." The air line has bookings through January 1962 for persons wanting to leave the island. Bryant, who said Florida's volunteers and public assistance programs for refugees "are strained to the breaking point," suggested a local-state-federal conference to work out the problem. The governor endorsed the plan to airlift the 20,000 refugees, but pointed out the new group would not be equipped as well financially and from a language standpoint as those who had come over earlier on their own.

Angrily Suggests Free World Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tunisian Ambassador Habib Bourguiba Jr. today called on Secretary of State Dean Rusk on the Bizerte crisis and urged immediate action to halt what he termed new French landings in Bizerte. Blazing with anger, the envoy told newsmen, after a 30-minute call on Rusk: "I suggest the free world act now before another world does." It was an unveiled reference to possible Soviet intervention in the Tunisian crisis. Young Bourguiba said he called on Rusk to keep him informed of a "situation which does not look at all encouraging." He said that "more French troops are being poured into Bizerte." This, he said he told Rusk, is how the French high command apparently intends to implement the U.N. Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire and a return to previous positions in Tunisia. Reports from Paris had previously indicated the French did not consider themselves bound by the Security Council resolution. Asked what action the United States could take, Bourguiba said: "We hope to see something—in fact, it is time now."

Kennedy Works On Final Details Of Berlin Address

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy, after another weekend on Cape Cod, returned today to the White House to tie down details of the major address he will make to the nation Tuesday night. That speech, to be broadcast nationally on television and radio, will reveal what measures he has decided are necessary for the nation to face up to the Soviet threat to Berlin and world peace. He will tell Congress on Wednesday what action he hopes it will take to carry out his decisions. The grave decision on how to back up Kennedy's notice to Moscow that Berlin will be defended at all cost was hammered out last Wednesday at a meeting of the National Security Council. Kennedy went to his summer home at Hyannis Port, Mass., for the weekend to work over his speech revealing that decision. But he got in some relaxation too on Cape Cod. He had no appointments scheduled today, aides said he planned to spend the day working on his speech. All sorts of reports are out about what Kennedy intends to do. For a time the possibility of a declaration of a state of national emergency claimed attention. Talk of this has dwindled lately. There have been reports that Kennedy was considering adding two or three billion dollars to his $43-billion defense budget. Word has spread that he was considering such steps as calling out reserves and National Guardsmen, increasing their training or service, expanding the draft and Army manpower and buying more arms for conventional forces, pulling some ships from the "mothball fleet," calling for a special tax increase and trying to persuade the allies to take parallel steps. The White House has fended off all efforts to clarify details. To clear the way for putting them into specific thoughts and phrases, Kennedy kept the entire day free of formal appointments. As assistant press secretary Andrew T. Hatcher phrased it, "There are no announced appointments for President Kennedy on Monday." This left the field open for plenty of unannounced ones. Hatcher said the chief executive was going to confer with members of the White House staff and administration who could contribute something to drafting Tuesday's speech.

Giant Ruby And Sapphire Found

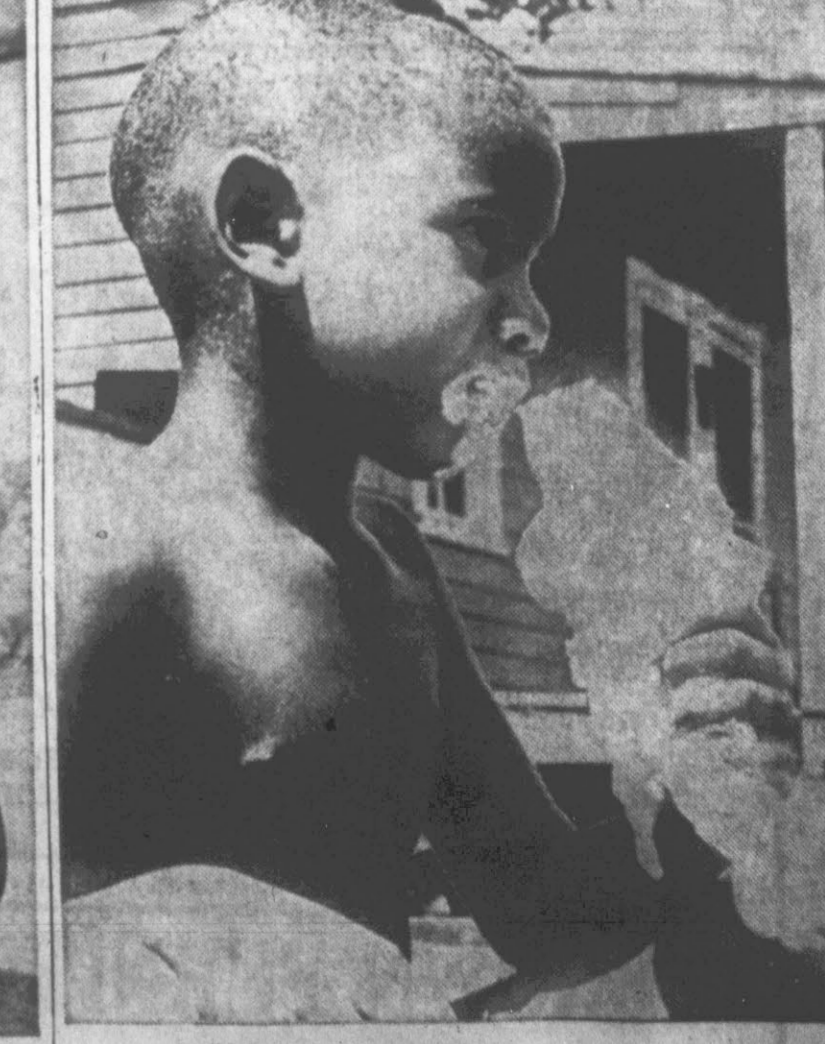

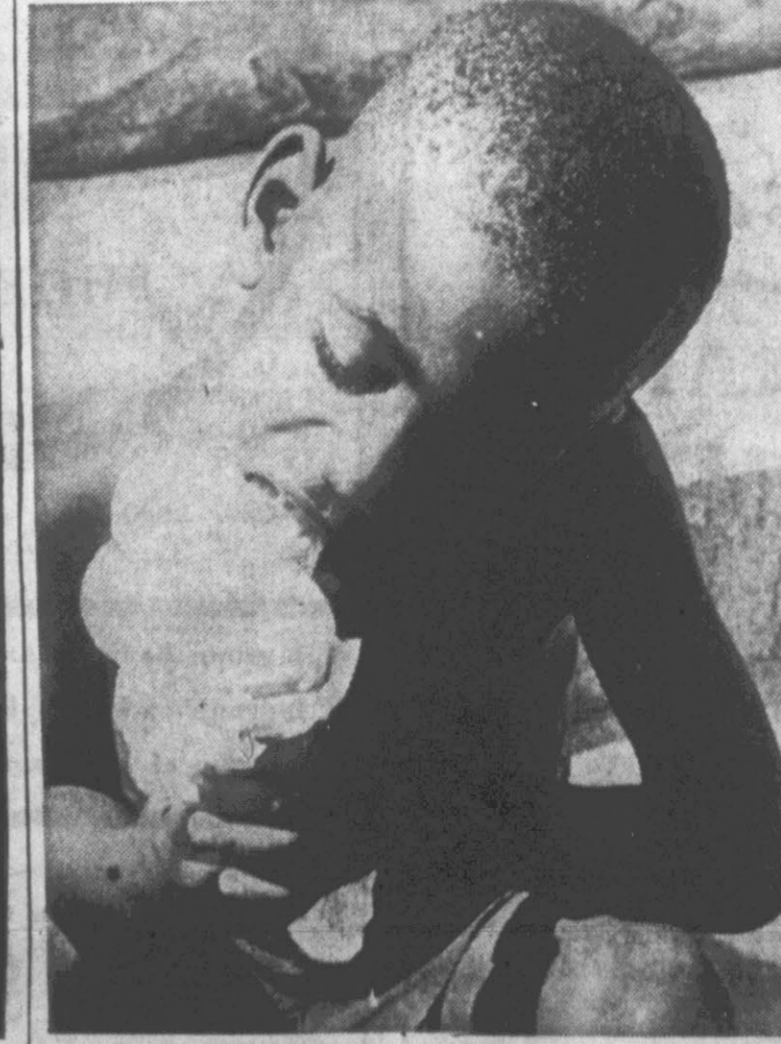

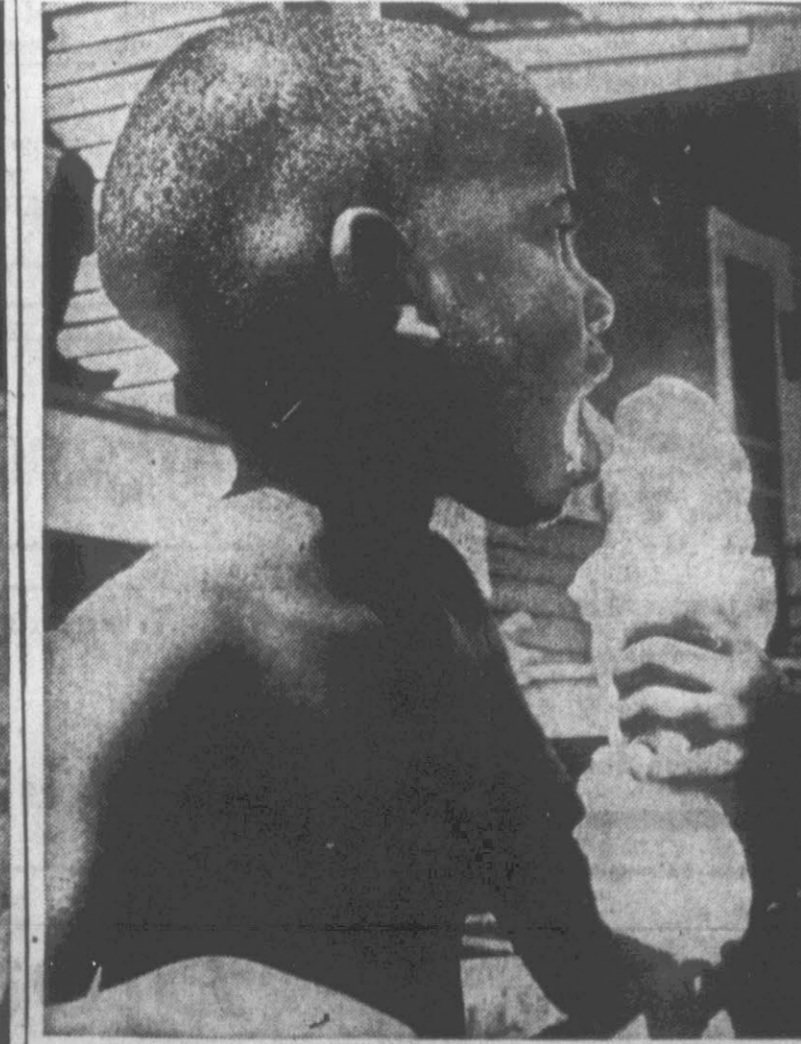

BRYSON CITY, N.C. (AP)—A pink sapphire and a ruby—both giant stones that may be of record size and possibly priceless—have been found in the Cowee Valley gem fields of mountainous Macon County, N.C. The man who made the discovery last week is Kermit Martin, 43, who retired from construction work nine years ago because of ill health and turned to gem-cutting. He has a shop near here. He's understandably reluctant to tell exactly where he found the gems. "This pink sapphire and ruby I turned up was only surface material. You've got to go underground to get the best. It could be I've found the spot. I'm not saying I have or I haven't." The 14-ounce sapphire measures three by five inches and is three-quarters of an inch thick. It's estimated the stone will run to more than 2,000 carats after it is cut. The 24-ounce ruby is three and three-quarters inches by six and one-half inches, and is one and one-quarter inch thick. The ruby has flaws not apparent in the sapphire. In the rough, the ruby weighs 3,421 carats. Not all of the rough stone is believed to be of gem quality. The largest unflawed piece measures two inches by one and one-half inch and is one inch thick. This section may run from 800 to 1,200 carats. Martin plans to cut the ruby immediately, but says he's going to study the sapphire for at least six months before he gambles on cutting it. He said he plans to cut one stone of 90 carats out of the ruby between now and this fall. "And I'll cut another one of 80 carats for my wife—she's raising Cain for one out of it and I'll have to do it," Martin added. Pink sapphires are less valuable than blue sapphires or rubies. However, Arnold Schiffman of Greensboro, N.C., an expert gem appraiser, said, "The size of this one, and assuming the quality is good, could make it priceless." Experts say the largest known cut-sapphire is 916 carats.

Bowles Starts Mission Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles left today on an 18-day mission to improve the American ambassadorial system abroad. Bowles, accompanied by a score of aides, flew by Military Air Transport plane for visits to Lagos, Nigeria, Nicosia, Cyprus and New Delhi, India. Regional meetings of U.S. ambassadors are scheduled at the three cities. Bowles, a former ambassador to India, is due back about Aug. 12. Before leaving, he made plain he expects to stay in the No. 2 State Department job despite published rumors that President Kennedy is seeking a replacement. Kennedy has publicly expressed confidence in Bowles but indicated he might be moved into another job if the department is reorganized.

Had Man Eater In Neuse Net

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Zeb Lee Jones was a bit surprised today when he checked the net he had set in the Neuse River across the stream from New Bern. Jones found tangled in the net a six-foot long shark armed with a double row of vicious-looking, razor-sharp teeth. Local fishing experts identified the shark as a man-eating type and said they could not recall one being caught near here before.

Given in marriage by her uncle, J. Harold Lupton, the bride was wearing a wedding gown of formal imported nylon sheer over bridal taffeta, fashioned with a basque bodice of Chantilly lace, sabrina neckline accented with sequins and seed pearls and long tapering sleeves ending with wedding points over the hands. The bouffant skirt featured side lace inserts that swept into a full chapel train.

Her fingertip veil of English illusion was arranged from a lace cap that featured a center point, accented with seed pearls and side clips. She carried a cascade of white calla lilies with miniature English ivy with matching streamers.

Miss Rebecca Lupton, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a shell pink dress of pure silk that featured a scoop neckline, puffed sleeves trimmed with matching Alencon lace, and full skirt. Her headband of pink petals and seed pears was fashioned with a short veil. To complete her costume, she carried a cascade bouquet of pink calla lilies tied with English ivy and matching streamers.

George B. Bryant, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were R. H. Allen of Belhaven, Gene Jackson of Pantego, Ross Bryant of Washington, D. C., and Donald Leigh of Belhaven.

The mother of the bride was wearing a beige lace over green taffeta dress, beige and green accessories, and a corsage of roses. Mrs. Bryant, mother of the bridegroom, wore an aqua sheath linen and rayon dress, matching accessories and a corsage of roses.

Following the ceremony, the mother of the bride entertained at a reception in the Parish House of St. James Episcopal Church.

Mrs. W. E. Bateman Jr., Mrs. C. R. Wright, Mrs. John Lupton and Mr. and Mrs. Leewood Lupton assisted with the serving.

Mrs. Roy Justice was mistress of ceremonies.

Eichmann Plea Winds Up 25 Days On Stand

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann concluded 25 days of testimony today with a plea to his Israeli judges to accept his contention that he was never anti-Semitic but only a low-ranking person "who had to keep my nose in the card index files."

The former Gestapo official, on trial for his life and charged with criminal responsibility in the Nazi slaughter of six million Jews, looked tired and pale as he wound up his long testimony.

His final remarks from the stand were questions put to him by the presiding judge of the tribunal which will decide if he hangs.

"You have told the court that you took an oath as a soldier and could not break it," presiding Justice Moshe Landau said. "Were you a soldier in the SS?"

"Yes, at least I had a duty and I felt that duty in my heart," Eichmann replied.

"Was the work in the head security office a soldier's work?" Landau demanded.

"That's what we were told. We did not use weapons, but I might say we used to drill every morning and hold parades."

Landau quoted earlier testimony in which Eichmann declared he never tried to leave the SS during the war.

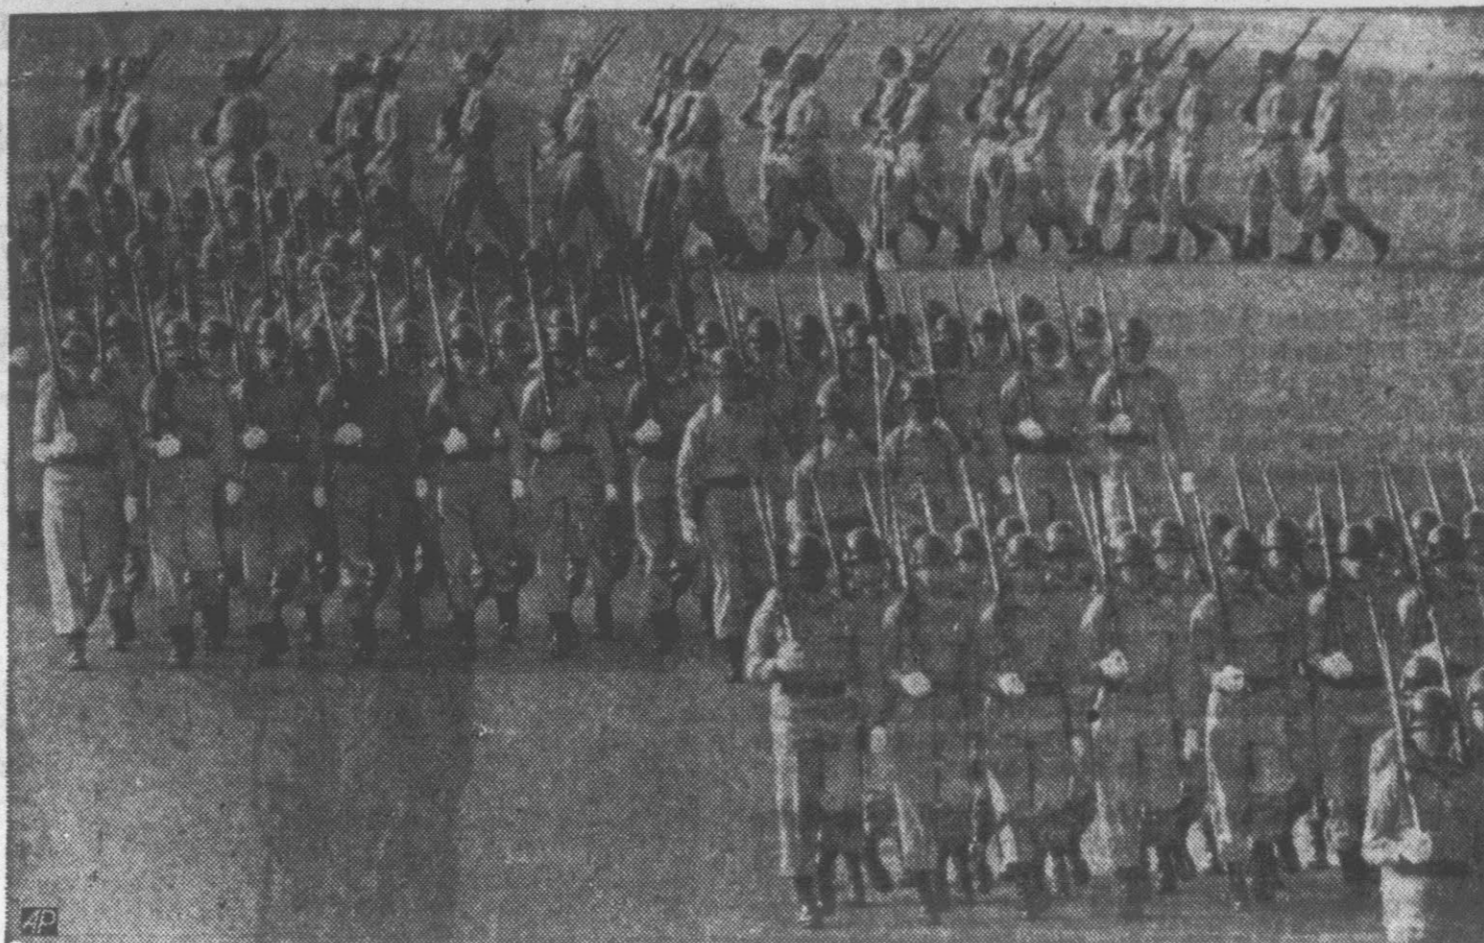

"It is my impression from what you say today that you remained in the SS because you well knew there was no way of getting out," the judge said. "But now, I read in earlier testimony that you said, 'I remained in the SS out of my own free will and choice.'"

"These are your own words. They must mean you remained in the SS out of your own free will. Is that correct?"

"Yes, that is true, your honor. There is a contradiction here," Eichmann conceded. "Even if any man wanted to leave the SS, he could not do so after the outbreak of war. To put it frankly, a person did not give it a thought."

Eichmann denied he ever made threatening speeches to Jews deported to a giant ghetto planned for a swampy plain in Nisko, Poland.

Landau forced Eichmann to acknowledge he was an avid reader of Nazi Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels' violently anti-Semitic newspaper "Voelkischer Beobachter."

Postal Receipts Show Big Gain At Least Eight Died Violently

The Greenville Post Office showed a 15.4 per cent increase in receipts for the first four-week accounting period for the new fiscal year, but showed a 23 per cent decrease in total mail volume for the same period, it was announced today through Postmaster J. Knott Proctor.

Receipts for the period June 24-July 21 this year totaled $25,385.68, compared to $22,022.64 for the similar period last year.

The total incoming mail for the period this year was 716,200, compared to the higher tally of 728,700 for last year. Total outgoing mail for the same period this year was 398,600 and for last year at the same time it was 412,300.

The total mail volume, both incoming and outgoing, for the first accounting period this fiscal year was 1,114,800. For last year at the same time it was 1,141,500, indicating a decrease of about 26,700 pieces for this year.

Cuba Plans A Hero's Welcome For Soviet Spaceman Gagarin

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba prepared a hero's welcome today for Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin to kick off the giant celebration of the eighth anniversary of Fidel Castro's revolution.

Havana airport was closed to all commercial traffic to clear the way for the 27-year-old cosmonaut flying here from Gander, Nfld., where he made an overnight stop on the trip from Moscow.

The youthful Soviet air force major is being given equal billing with Castro in the four-day celebration of the 26th of July Movement that sparked the revolution which ousted the Batista dictatorship Jan. 1, 1959.

The Soviet spaceman, who already has been exhibited in Britain, Finland and Communist bloc countries since his April 12 flight around the earth, sent word ahead that he was "very happy that my old and cherished dream is at last coming true—to visit heroic Cuba."

He told the Cuban people: "I closely follow the great deeds of your revolution which have earned you the sympathy of millions. The name of your island is a symbol of freedom and heroism."

The Cuban celebrations will reach a climax with a giant Havana rally on Wednesday, the July 26 date on which Castro launched his revolutionary movement in 1953 with an abortive raid on a Santiago army barracks.

Thousands of peasants and workers from outlying provinces have poured into Havana to cheer their bearded prime minister and the boyish-looking cosmonaut he has invited to share honors with him.

At the rally Wednesday, Castro is expected to announce the establishment of a one-party political system in Cuba along lines in effect in Communist countries. He reportedly plans a proletarian party made up of the Popular Socialist (Communist) party, the 26th of July Movement, labor unions and other groups that supported the revolution.

Havana is the center of the nationwide anniversary program but separate celebrations will be held in the two eastern provinces of Camaguey and Oriente. Maj. Raul Castro, younger brother of the prime minister and his political heir-apparent, will lead the Oriente ceremonies at Santiago.

The closing ceremony Thursday will be held at Giron Beach, on the Bay of Pigs in south Cuba where the anti-Castro invasion floundered in April.

CAPT. JAMES STUART MCCORMICK . . . was selected to attend Officers' Squadron School at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala., it was announced recently. He was accompanied by Mrs. McCormick and their two daughters. Capt. McCormick is the son of Mrs. Bonnie Ruth McCormick of Ayden.

Paris Fall And Winter Fashion Showings Begin

By NADEANE WALKER
PARIS (AP)—Longer, flaring skirts and dark browns opened the Paris fall and winter fashion showings today when Gres led off the collections.

Diagonal draping is the main idea of the new Gres show, which she calls the "oblique line." The show failed to live up to its exciting billing as "a revolt, almost a revolution." It was hardly an uprising.

The skirt drop amounted to no more than two or three inches, and Gres clothes, as always, are anything but eccentric. The tiny, elderly designer who invariably wears a tight-fitting turban, is as much a classicist as Coco Chanel. In effect, Paris is still in the dark about new fashion trends to emerge in the next few days.

The most original part of the Gres show was provided by the lead-off numbers called "intimacy dresses, created for the secret." This sounded as if it would turn out to be maternity wear but it was dressy at home harem skirts and pants covered with a sort of brocade sandwich board suspended from the shoulders. Other versions were loosely covered with short capes like priests' vestments.

Suits were a bit Sloppy Joe, with long unfitted jackets and flaring or wide-pleated skirts. Draped jersey dresses were slim and trim by contrast.

Gres is crazy about leather ensembles, two colors of fur used together—invariably brown and beige—hoods, and a barely softened version of men's fedora hats. These were worn straight on the back of the head, with slightly rolled brims and flattened crowns.

Just as Chanel is famous for suits, Gres is renowned for coats. This time they are usually pyramid shaped, fitting only on the shoulders but not really vast. Some are penguin-sleeved, and others have elbow-length tube sleeves.

Only Praise For Sixth Regiment

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The Sixth North Carolina Regiment arrived home early today after winning again the First Battle of Manassas.

The Sixth was reorganized in Burlington and Salisbury and participated in the centennial reenactment of the first major battle of the Civil War.

The troops received high praise from officials in their units, the state and the National Parks Service for their performance.

Gov. Terry Sanford Saturday said he had heard nothing but praise for the units. He visited the troops in the field after viewing their performance.

Maj. Gen. James C. Fry, who directed the three-day event, said the regiment was one of the most dependable participating.

Park officials were equally complimentary.

Dr. H. H. Cunningham, commanding general of the regiment and Elon College dean, issued a statement today in praise of the units. It declared: "On behalf of the Alamo Centennial Commission and praise for the outstanding performance of the regiment Saturday and Sunday. I think every citizen of the county and state should be grateful for the fine way that Col. W. Cliff Elder and his troops represented them before the nation."

Col. Elder led the troops during Friday's rehearsal and the two week end performances. Dr. Cunningham visited the troops Friday afternoon and viewed the Sunday performance.

"Why Did My Dress Shred Under The Arms?"
—Mrs. E.B.M.

Dear Mrs. E.B.M.:
This is the season when more and more of this type of damage is found. Heavier use of anti-perspirants and deodorants bring this about. Sometimes we become a little careless with their application and the deodorants come in contact with a fabric. When that happens, especially over a period of time, the deodorant reacts with the perspiration. The acids which are formed weaken many fabrics. Then, when they are drycleaned or laundered the flexing action of the cleaning causes the fabric to shred or to break into holes.

Some anti-perspirants and deodorants contain two chemicals that will destroy many fabrics. You may not care about their technical names, but they are aluminum sulfate and aluminum chloride. Both of these, when wet, form sulfuric acid and hydrochloric acid. When those acids start eating at a fabric, the result is never in doubt.

However, this damage can be avoided. First, care should be taken in the application of the deodorant or anti-perspirant, avoiding contact with the garment. Second, use only approved deodorant products, those which have been certified as completely launderable. Taking the trouble to select your deodorants with this in mind will save you many dollars in garment destruction.

This is probably an old story to many home-makers; however, it comes up year after year. We hope as you do that all manufacturers of deodorants will soon have their products safe for all fabrics.—(Adv.)

Great Wealth In Water Resources

There was a time when areas such as Eastern North Carolina looked with great envy upon areas of other states, blessed with oil, iron ore, gold and other natural resources that produced millions of dollars for other states.

While North Carolina itself is blessed with many natural resources which have produced great wealth in this state over the decades, one of its greatest natural resources is destined to become more valuable rather than less valuable in the decades to come.

That natural resource is the Coastal Plain's vast water supply.

Oil wells can run dry, iron, copper and other ore fields can be worked out, and even vast gold strikes often are worked bare in the span of a relatively few years. With water resources such as the Coastal Plain has, however, there is little likelihood that Eastern Carolina will be faced with the problem of rivers drying up, streams disappearing or ground water reservoirs descending to prohibitive depths. So long as the state and its individual communities take reasonable precautions to assure the continued usefulness of these water resources, they should remain in sufficient supply to meet all the demands that are placed upon them.

As the nation has grown in population, as its industrial and agricultural operations have grown, the water resources of the nation have become increasingly valuable. The continued growth in all these categories in future years will put an even greater premium on the presence of an adequate water supply.

In its rivers and streams and underground waters, therefore, Eastern North Carolina has a valuable natural resource that is rapidly becoming an important consideration for industries which are looking for new plant locations. Together with other natural advantages which Eastern North Carolina offers industrial prospects, these abundant waters will to an increasing degree prove the difference between industries choosing sites here and settling in other areas.

As the recreation and tourist industries continue to increase—as they are almost certain to do—Eastern Carolina will find its streams, rivers, sounds and beaches continuing to attract more vacationers for longer seasons of the year, not only from within North Carolina, but from other parts of the nation as well.

In time, and with proper development and proper conservation measures, the water resources of Eastern North Carolina can mean as much for this section as iron ore has meant for Pennsylvania, coal to West Virginia and oil to Oklahoma.

Hot Election Is Due Next Year

By LYNN NISBET

UPCOMING — Although next year's primary and election involves only one high ranking statewide office likely to be contested, the occasion may prove one of the most interesting and hardest fought election campaigns in many years.

Terms of Associate Justices William H. Bobbitt and William B. Rodman run out December 31, 1962, and these seats will be filled by the electorate in May and November. Presently there is no indication that either will have opposition.

The only other stateside office at stake is the seat in the United States Senate, presently held by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. Rumors are current that he may have to defend his right to keep it. Ervin is rated a conservative, not entirely in sympathy with some of the liberal ideas of the Kennedy and Sanford administrations. No open breach has occurred, but it is common knowledge that relations over Federal patronage have been slightly strained between the State administration and the congressional delegation—and to some degree between the Senators and the Representatives in the Congress.

It also is common knowledge that the Sanford group is seeking, with a high degree of success so far, to take over full control of the State Democratic organization. Whether this group will challenge Senator Ervin next year, or withhold their major effort until 1964 when a new Governor and a full slate of State officers will be elected, is one of the questions to be answered during the next few months. The answer will largely depend upon the availability of a New Day champion to challenge the incumbent senator—who has a record of never having lost an election.

CONGRESS—The big scramble will come in three or four congressional districts where the lines have been so materially changed as to require almost entirely different type of campaigning. The realignment was made necessary by loss of one representative, reducing the number of districts from 12 to 11. Every district was changed except the sixth, comprising Durham, Orange, Alamance and Guilford counties. Candidates for Congress in the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, seventh and eighth districts will have a campaign in some new territory—and the new territory enhances the prospect of opposition to incumbents. The big changes occur in the new eighth, ninth and tenth districts—and some students of politics think the new lines probably will result in electing Republicans from all three of these districts. EIGHTH—The eighth district in the new set up is still the worst—or best (?)—example of gerrymandering. The old eighth rambled all across the state, from the coastal plains through the piedmont and into the mountains—from 80 miles of the Atlantic ocean on the South Carolina line to within 15 miles of Tennessee and Virginia. The new eighth runs from Lincoln, through Mecklenburg, thence along the South Carolina line and up into the Sandhills. The new district includes the homes of Reps. Paul Kitchin and Charles R. Jonas (Republican) as well as the homes of a dozen or more residents of Mecklenburg and Moore who have toyed with the idea of running for Congress for years.

There was a lot of talk during the committee consideration of the districting bill about pitting Jonas and Kitchin against each other. As of now, there is no certainty either of them will run or that they will have a lone twosome of the race if they do.

LEGISLATURE — In many counties there will be more interest in the campaigns for membership in the 1963 general assembly than in any of the State or other local offices at stake. Early signs are that the Sanford organization will be more concerned about these positions than has any State administration in years. The sales tax on food levied by the recent session has given a ready-made issue for the next election.

The public school folks and all fair-minded people know that it will take several years for the "quality education" program of the Sanford plan to become effective. But a lot of voters are not fair-minded. Many of them act on emotion and prejudice. If they can't see immediate tangible results from sales taxes collected this year they'll be ready next year to junk the program.

That is one of the expensive luxuries of democratic government. With a completely new administration every four years, a new legislature every two years, adopted programs do not have time to prove their worth before they are changed. C&D and Highway reorganizations ordered by the 1957 legislature at instance of Governor Hodges were junked in 1961 at instance of Governor Sanford. Tax schedules which had remained fairly static for 20 years were upset this year, and may be changed again in two or four years—unless the political organization can develop enough influence to maintain the status quo. Present indications are the organization will attempt to hold the line, and betting odds favor its success in that effort.

Our Friends Provide Regrettable Problem

Sometimes our friends compound American problems in the world. Bizerte is a case in point.

The United States was just an innocent bystander, but the first finger-pointing was directed toward Americans.

As we understand this unwanted clash in North Africa, an understanding had been reached some time ago that France was eventually going to give up bases in Tunisia. The Tunisian government, for some reasons of its own, imposed a rather half-hearted military blockade around outskirts of a French-built naval base . . . then in a spirit of braggadocio announced an aerial blockade was also in effect. It was all very unnecessary.

Instead of ignoring the gesture, the French felt obliged to insure security of the naval installation by military means. Presumably there were grounds (in terms of prestige and military needs) for such action.

At any rate, the volatile Arab world took the incident as a horrible example of imperialism, colonialism, racism, false-friendship and maybe even an affront to motherhood.

As friends of Tunisia, it was to be expected they would look to the United States for support; as friends of France, it was to be expected they would look to the United States for understanding.

Friendships can be trying. It is most regrettable the explosion occurred at the very time when the West is trying to align its own strength and that of friends for a much more serious test in the months ahead.

Chester Bowles Is Not Yet Safe

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington is sometimes like a country lane at night, with a lot of bright little eyes gleaming in the bushes, and man can get chewed to pieces without knowing what bit him.

In the first big family quarrel in the Kennedy administration, Chester Bowles, the No. 2 man in the State Department as undersecretary, has just walked down that lane. He was badly chewed but managed to survive — if only temporarily.

Liberal Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., fervent supporter of the liberal Bowles, seems to this writer a little too optimistic in suggesting the survival is permanent. He told the Senate the conflict involving Bowles "is all over."

President Kennedy himself left the door open for it to be all over. Because of the toothmarks left in Bowles' prestige it will be interesting to see how effective he can be henceforth not only in dealing with foreign diplomats but with people, who seem to include some of his critics, in the department.

For several days there were news stories predicting Bowles was going to be yanked out of his job by Kennedy and given an assignment as roving ambassador. What made the stories sound authentic was their double nature:

Some indicated the information critical of Bowles' performance as undersecretary came from people serving under him in the State Department his boss, Secretary of State Dean Rusk has never figured in this and from people in the White House, meaning people close to Kennedy.

But one, suggesting Bowles had no intention of letting himself be bounced around, clearly pointed to the unnamed informants as men around Bowles. This could be taken as meaning Bowles had approved their talking, if he hadn't inspired them to.

This one appeared after the anti-Bowles stories. It said bluntly Bowles would get out of the Kennedy administration altogether if Kennedy tried to remove him as undersecretary.

Whether or not it chilled the anti-Bowles forces in the administration is not known but this is known: that same day Kennedy lunched with Bowles and the White House denied Bowles was resigning.

Then Kennedy at his Wednesday news conference said: "He had never asked Bowles for his resignation, always expected him to serve out the life of his administration, had complete confidence in him, and that Secretary Rusk had complete confidence in him too."

Still, Kennedy hadn't said Bowles would be moved out of his job as undersecretary. So a reporter asked him the obvious question: Was there still a possibility Bowles might be shifted?

Kennedy said that as of now he thinks Bowles should stay as undersecretary, that he has no plans to ask him to take another assignment, but that he will ask him if he thinks Bowles can fit in better somewhere else.

That's a long way from saying Bowles is in solid as undersecretary.

A Prelude To Potsdam

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

On May 26, 1945, Harry Hopkins met Stalin in the Kremlin to discuss many very important subjects.

For some time prior to this meeting, President Harry Truman and Prime Minister Winston Churchill had been maneuvering to get Stalin to agree to some kind of a Summit meeting but Stalin had avoided a decision. Finally, Hopkins was sent to the Kremlin to make arrangements for what eventually became the Potsdam Conference. Hopkins explained that President Truman asked him, Hopkins, to go to Moscow because:

he thought the Marshal would be interested in a brief description of President Roosevelt's state of mind just prior to his death. He said that on the way back from Yalta it had been clear to him that President Roosevelt was very tired and that his energy was on the decline. Stalin pushed aside this emotion description by saying that Lenin also died of a cerebral hemorrhage following a stroke. Stalin apparently wanted to get on with the business on hand, he knowing that Hopkins, himself, was a very sick man who had not much longer to live and had not made this long trip to discuss the nature of Roosevelt's death.

However Hopkins persisted and reminded Stalin how much faith Roosevelt had in Soviet Russia and that Roosevelt was responsible for initiating the program of aid to Soviet Russia.

Hopkins then went on to explain that since Roosevelt's death, the American people were not as enthusiastic about Soviet Russia as they had been. Hopkins said:

"Two months ago there had been overwhelming sympathy among the American people for the Soviet Union and complete support for President Roosevelt's policies which the Marshal knew so well. This sympathy and support came primarily because of the brilliant achievements of the Soviet Union in the war and partly from President Roosevelt's leadership and the magnificent way in which our two countries had worked together to bring about the defeat of Germany. The American people at that time hoped and confidently believed that the two countries could work together in peace as well as they had in war."

Hopkins made the point that American opinion was turning anti-Russian.

He said he wished to assure the Marshal with all the earnestness at his command that this body of American public opinion who had been the constant support of the Roosevelt policies were seriously disturbed about their relations with Russia. In fact, in the last six weeks deterioration of public opinion had been so serious as to affect adversely the relations between our two countries."

Hopkins then explained the nature of Roosevelt's foreign policy: "... the cardinal basis of President Roosevelt's policy which the American people had fully supported had been the concept that the interests of the United States were world wide and not confined to North and South America and the Pacific Ocean and it was this concept that had led to the many conferences concerning the peace of the world which President Roosevelt had had with Marshal Stalin. President Roosevelt had believed that the Soviet Union had likewise world-wide interests and that the two countries could work out together any political or economic considerations at issue between them."

We come here to the core of the problem facing us today. Apparently it was Roosevelt's plan to have a two nation control of the world. The United States and Soviet Russia would be the masters and all other (Continued on page five)

Hobbies Have A Value

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — Some readers may think this subject is a little out of my line, but so many of my friends have died of heart disease this past winter that I can honestly call hobbies a real investment.

PURPOSE OF HOBBIES
A hobby is something which takes your mind off what is troubling you. You may have difficulty sleeping, or you may not have a good appetite, or you may be worried about the trend of the stock market or some unfortunate family affair. The cure is to get your mind on something else. An interesting hobby will do the job. Such a hobby, however, must be a "game" to you which will hold your interest, not a chore.

POSTAGE STAMP COLLECTIONS
One of the most popular hobbies indulged in by professional men—such as doctors, lawyers, ministers, and politicians—is stamp collecting; the late F.D. Roosevelt was a great stamp collector. It combines knowledge of geography with a possible chance for profit. Those who desire the latter, however, should confine themselves to stamps of one country, preferably those of the United States.

The same professional group turn also to painting—Sir Winston Churchill is a master in this. With a few painting lessons it is remarkable what an amateur can do. Now that "jazz" painting is in style an amateur may do better than a professional. You cannot think of anything else when you paint. It often keeps you out-of-doors, and your paintings are always in demand by friends and relatives.

CARPENTRY WORK AND CRAFTS
These require a workshop somewhere in the house and the purchase of some machinery, which any hardware store will provide. Some executives make furniture for the older members of the family and others make airplanes for the kids, who love to watch. Among other hobbies let me mention golf, photography, leathercraft, flower making, wood carving, Indian lore, shell collecting, rug making, bead work, glass making, jewelry, weaving, mosaic, painting, and carpentry of all kinds. My hobby is gardening—both vegetables and flowers.

Once each year "hobby shows" take place in all the larger cities. For information about these, write Hobby Show Office, 3443 South Hill Street, Los Angeles, California. Also, you might subscribe to a hobby magazine in which you would find advertisements relating to the special hobby by you are following or considering. Just reading an issue of a hobby magazine may take your mind off your troubles.

WHY HOBBIES ARE INVESTMENTS
Those who have bought stocks on borrowed money are inclined to be nervous and unsettled when the market goes against them. They are unable to sleep and cannot do their best work. They even buy more stocks when they should sell, and vice versa. These people are in desperate need of a hobby which would take their minds off the stock market and given them a clear judgment as to whether to buy, or sell, or just hold.

As a temporary short-cut to "peace and plenty," many such worried people take drugs called "tranquilizers." These drugs give only temporary relief; while a good hobby would be much more useful and non-habit-forming. Every brokerage office should have magazines on "hobbies" as well as the Wall Street Journal and similar papers on the stock market.

Every reader of this column should have a hobby. Executives and others who are to be retired at 65 years of age should have a hobby before the time of retirement. Otherwise, they will be left with nothing to do, which leads to deterioration and early death. One more thought;—If I were a young man looking for a "profession," I would sell hobbies.

Quote . . .

"The battle for education must be waged on all fronts, and an important front is the easing of the conditions of poverty. If the State cannot afford low quality schools neither can it afford a high percentage of its citizenry ill-fed, ill-clad and ill-housed." The Raleigh (N.C.) News and Observer.

Stock Options Due For Look-See

By ELMER ROESSNER

Congress seems ready to take a new look at stock options given corporation executives to simulate them to greater achievements, or to increase their take-home pay at minimal cost to the company.

Here's how they work: A company will give an executive an option on 1,000 shares of its stock at its going price of $50 a share. If the share value rises, say to $75, the executive exercises his option, paying $50,000, and holds the stock six months, then sells it. The executive pays a capital gains tax of no more than $6,250, leaving $18,750 net. If the company had increased his pay $25,000, he might have had to pay as much as $2,750 in taxes. In other words, if the company had wanted to increase his net pay by $18,750 after taxes, it might have to increase his pay before taxes by more than $200,000.

VARIATIONS ON THEME

There are many variations to option deals, but the one described above is basic.

One economic advisory company is currently advertising:

"How would you like to get from your company a special kind of stock option that can give you, on an investment of $1,000, a profit of some $80,000?"
"This was done recently through a company selling a nonrestricted stock option for 100 shares of stock to one of its executives for $1,000. The following year the executive sold the option on 80 of his 100 shares and realized a profit of some $80,000."
"This plan has it all over regular stock options as a method of rewarding executives. It doesn't have to meet the strict rules that apply to stock options—and the profit can come to you as low-taxed capital gain."

DEFENDS OPTIONS

Promotional literature like that turns Congressional attention toward stock option plans. It also stirs up labor leaders, whose men pay regular income rates on their earnings, to demand action.

At the recent National Business Conference sponsored by the Harvard Business School Association, Thomas M. Ware, president of International Minerals & Chemical Corp., vigorously defended what abolishing stock options was comparable to removing incentive from our free competitive system.
Stock options, he said, benefit the company, the stockholders and the individuals. "It gives the valued employee a proprietary interest in his company," he said. "It puts a premium on creativity and encourages personal contributions. It stimulates more participation in the financial growth of the company,

It directs individual efforts toward desirable corporate goals."

AUSTRALIA SHIPPING

BEEF, MUTTON TO U. S.

While the United States is giving surplus beef to the need, it is also importing large quantities from Australia. In June, two ships left Australia for the United States with 1,733,760 pounds of frozen beef and six ships left with 2,266,880 pounds of mutton.

METAL PRODUCERS WANT YOU TO BUY A CAR

Large metal producers have started advertising campaigns to encourage more Americans to buy autos. Primers, Ink reports, U.S. Steel, Inco, Reynolds and Great Lakes Steel have launched or are about to launch promotions to encourage more people to buy new cars. The more cars people buy, the more metal those companies will sell to auto manufacturers.

Mother And Five Children Die In Tenement Fire

LOWELL, Mass. (AP) — A mother and five of her 10 children perished early today when fire broke out in a tenement building and destroyed the flimsy structure within minutes. A sixth child in the Negro family was still missing hours later and was believed dead. The mother, Mattie Maryland, about 50, died when she raced back into the burning, three-story building and fell two floors into the rubble as a stairway collapsed.

Two older Maryland children were hospitalized with burns but were not considered in dangerous condition. The other two children in the family escaped unhurt. The father, John J. Maryland, was cut by glass but was released from a hospital after treatment. Fire officials said the general alarm blaze started on the third floor and in "a matter of minutes" it was too late to save the victims. The dead all were in a third-floor apartment. The first five children's bodies recovered were Gee, 4; Ivy, 3; Linda, 2; Pamela, 1, and either Willie James, 9; or Bobby Ray, 8. John M. Jr., 14; and Dale Lee, 11; were hospitalized. Mattie Ruth, 13; and Christine, 10; escaped injury.

Rouse To Attend Special Course

Robert D. Rouse Jr., Solicitor of the Fifth District, will attend a short course for prosecuting attorneys, under a scholarship, at the Northwestern University School of Law, Chicago, Illinois, July 31-August 4. Fred E. Inbau of the Northwestern University School of Law, one of the country's leading criminologists, directs the course. The course includes a study of recent developments in criminal procedure, scientific crime detection techniques, and trial techniques.

There was no indication steps were being planned to prevent this happening during another suborbital flight. Soviet trawlers have been seen many times off the United States coast in recent months.

Lt. Col. John A. Powers, personal spokesman for the astronaut, reported recovery forces saw the trawler in the general area of the impact zone Friday. James E. Webb, NASA administrator, was asked about the reports that Soviet trawlers had been sighted during a TV-radio interview in Washington. "Well, of course I do not know exactly what ships were there or what they were there for. But I would guess they were there to learn as much as they could of the whole process," Webb replied.

A NASA spokesman said Grissom, 35, his wife, Betty, and their two sons, Scott 11, and Mark 7, were expected to fly to their home in Newport News, Va., Tuesday night or Wednesday morning for a week's vacation. The Air Force captain has been undergoing exhaustive questioning by scientists, doctors and psychologists about his 5,280-mile ride into space Friday.

There will now be a period in which the instrument data recorded by radio will be examined and Grissom will return for additional sessions with the scientists. Grissom was the second American to enter the fringes of space. The first astronaut was Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., who made the flight on May 5.

For Grissom the big adventure began with the roar of the 78,000-pound thrust Redstone rocket at 7:20 a.m. It ended 16 minutes later in the Atlantic Ocean after Grissom reached an altitude of 118 miles and had flown like a bullet 303 miles down range from here.

At the end there was near tragedy. The side hatch on the space capsule, Liberty Bell 7, secured by 70 explosive bolts, blew off prematurely. The capsule subsequently sank in 16,800 feet of water.

A verbatim transcript of Grissom's news conference Saturday indicated that he was much closer to drowning than has been generally realized. In recounting his experiences, Grissom told the story chronologically. After liftoff Grissom said, "I was looking out the window and there was nothing but blue sky above me. We just passed through one thin layer of clouds. All of a sudden the sky changed from blue to pitch black. "There was a star right in the middle of my window." Grissom told of the booster falling away, of his escape tower being fired off to the right. "I was still looking up in the black sky and the capsule started the turn-around. I could see the sun shining through the window. "Then, the horizon came into view with the earth and this is the thing that is really fascinating. I don't know how to describe it, but the earth was very bright. At this time I couldn't see any land. I could see the horizon, a very round horizon. "Then there is a band around the earth, starting with a sort of light blue at the bottom and fading into a darker blue. There is a very fuzzy edge that is probably going from blue to black—and then black everywhere." On takeoff Grissom experienced forces six times that of gravity. On landing these forces built up to 10.2 times of gravity. He reported his main parachute on descent developed a six-inch triangular split and that another hole about the size of a quarter appeared. The landing, he added, was normal.

After landing, Grissom reported "I unstrapped myself and disconnected everything except my one suit inlet hose which provided me with cooling. I disconnected the helmet and rolled up the neck dam (a rubber collar to keep out water) so that if anything occurred, I would at least float. That was the best thing I did all day."

While the rescue helicopter was headed toward him, Grissom said, "I decided to go ahead and get a little head start on him. I took off the cover on the detonator that blows the explosive hatch and tossed it at my feet. Then I pulled the safety pin that holds "It was just a good solid thump," he said.

the detonator out. You have to get it before you can fire it." Grissom said he was lying on his couch just waiting for word to blow the hatch, when the bolts exploded prematurely. "The only two moves I remember making were tossing my helmet off and grabbing the instrument panel. I went into the water."

The astronaut said he saw that the helicopter had not hooked on to the capsule and he swam over to help attach the recovery line. The rotor wash blew him away. Meanwhile, three Marine helicopters jockeyed overhead to reach both Grissom and the capsule. Grissom said a second helicopter put down a lift sling to pick him up. "I tried to get over to him but I was having difficulty getting through his rotor wash and also I had neglected to close a port down on my suit, where the inlet hose comes in, and was getting water in my suit. I was getting lower and lower all the time and it was quite hard to stay afloat."

countries would fit into place. Stalin made no comment on this particular subject. Instead Stalin tried to get the discussion off on a tangent, namely that the Conservative Party in Great Britain was against Soviet Russia and that therefore Soviet Russia had to have a government in Poland that was friendly to Soviet Russia. Harry Hopkins assured Stalin that "... the United States would desire a Poland friendly to the Soviet Union and in fact desired to see friendly countries all along the Soviet borders."

Good-bye, Poland! Good-bye Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and all the so-called liberated countries! At any rate, Stalin got off on a side-line, discussing whether Hitler was alive or dead. So here we have it, the hidden fact, the suppressed item that led to Potsdam. We were assured that there were no secret treaties at Potsdam and there probably were no treaties—but secret arrangements in the volumes now available.

Beauty Also Has Shapely Mother

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The new Miss North Carolina has a mother who also is shapely. Maria Beale Fletcher, 19, brunette from Asheville told newsmen Sunday that she took some of her mother's clothes to wear during the four-day pageant. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Beale Fletcher, are a former show business team who now operate a dancing school in Asheville. Miss North Carolina, 118 pounds and 54-24-35 wore a pink and blue flowered dress with a large collar, short sleeves and a flared skirt for the interview—her mother's she told newsmen who admired it.

Ohio Lady Is An Experienced Vet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Alverda Graff McDannald's wardrobe contains more coveralls than street clothes, and she and her husband Paul have a favorite dinner hour of 10 p.m. That's because she's a veterinarian, and 75 percent of her practice is with large animals. Officials at Ohio State University, from which she was graduated in 1958, think she may be the only woman veterinarian in the state with a major large animal practice. Her husband, who breeds and shows registered Arabian horses, accompanies her on night calls, one of the reasons for their usually late supper. Another is that both enjoy devoting free evenings to horseback riding. Among all the peoples of Southeast Asia, only the citizens of Thailand have escaped colonial domination.

Rate Of Serious Crimes Hit Record In 1960

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were more serious crimes in the United States last year than in any year in history, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover reported recently. The surge of lawlessness reflected an astounding 98 per cent increase over 1950, he said. By the FBI's crime clock there was a murder every 58 minutes. A forcible rape every 34 minutes. An aggravated assault every 4 minutes. A robbery every 6 minutes. These chilling statistics shaped the pattern of violence in 1960 with a serious crime committed every 15 seconds or a total of 1,861,300.

Hoover noted in the big rise in crime over 1950 that the population increase for the decade was only 18 per cent.

The FBI data, published in the annual "Uniform Crime Reports," covered information supplied by more than 7,700 police agencies, and showed that 1960 topped 1959 by 14 per cent in murders, forcible rapes, robberies, aggravated assaults, burglaries, auto thefts and larcenies of $50 or more.

Crimes against property, Hoover said, were in general even more frequent, with a burglary every 30 seconds, a major larceny every minute, a car theft every two minutes.

By major categories, robberies and burglaries were each up 18 per cent over 1959, larcenies 14 per cent, auto thefts 9 per cent. Murders had a sharp 6 per cent rise. Aggravated assaults increased by 5 per cent and forcible rapes by 3 per cent.

There were 3,640 arrests for each 100,000 persons during the year with city arrests running at about three times the rural rate. In this connection, Hoover said, police last year cleared 70 per cent more cases by arrest than they did in 1950, and court convictions mounted by 42 per cent. Also, he said, "effective police work" resulted in the recovery of 52 per cent of the estimated $70 million in loot taken by thieves in 1960.

The FBI director said these results were obtained in spite of the fact that the number of police employees remained at about the same level last year as for the year before. He appealed to every community to provide local law enforcement with "sufficient manpower, adequate salaries, professional training, and men who have the respect of the community and pride in their department."

The report listed 48 police officers killed in the line of duty last year, 28 of them at the hands of killers.

The report showed that arrests of juveniles have more than doubled since 1950 while the population between the ages of 10 and 17 increased by less than half.

Staging Civil War Battle May Boost 'Hall Of Fame'

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

MANASSAS BATTLEFIELD, Va. (AP)—A big dream of Civil War buffs may be a bit nearer realization today because of the grand commemorative staging of the first battle of Manassas or Bull Run.

Maj. Gen. William C. Fry (ret.), hard-working manager of the spectacle staged in searing heat that reached 102 degrees, said he hoped not only to clear expenses of about $175,000 but to have some left over to put in the kitty for a Civil War Hall of Fame at Manassas.

A $5-million drive is under way to establish the Hall of Fame. No dead museum of the old-fashioned type, it would include such features as revolving chairs from which visitors could watch battles unfold on devices mounted on the walls. It would stress, not old enmities, but present amity.

Capt. Eugene H. Breitenberg, U.S.A., who read the prologue before each enactment, told reporters: "This is a commemoration of the American heritage, a reminder of a spirit that must be ever renewed. The men of the Civil War had deeply rooted beliefs and were willing to fight for them."

The rehearsal on Friday developed some bugs, as rehearsals always do, but the show got progressively better Saturday and Sunday. The blues and grays — many of them teen-agers — stood up to the heat in their old-time woolen uniforms to fight the surging mock battle back and forth across the Manassas hills.

The action showed the highlights of the first major Civil War battle, when a green Union army under Gen. Irvin McDowell came down from Washington to smash the Confederates and press on to Richmond, only to be routed by the untested troops of Gens. Joe E. Johnston and P. T. G. Beauregard.

The casualties among the troops were remarkably light this weekend, though many were too hot and exhausted at day's end to eat the supper brought to their encampments in trucks. One fighter was seared by the blank blast of a cannon and there were some accidental lacerations from sabers.

Casualties among the spectators were heavier. There were more than 175, mostly heat exhaustion cases.

Television Keeps Cows Contented

AXMOUTH, England (AP) — Farmer Charles Pidgeon switched on the television for his cows and milk flowed like never before.

Pidgeon installed the TV sets in the barn last week to keep his cows contented during the tedious business of getting milked. He claims each cow is giving two gallons of milk more a day.

"Other farmers use radio and long-playing discs," Pidgeon said. "I decided to go one better."

Learned Name Did Not 'Fit'

BALTIMORE (AP) — Six-year-old David Neidert always called his cocker spaniel "Peter" until the day he took the dog to a beauty parlor with his mother, Mrs. Evelyn Neidert.

That was the day David learned the dog's name was technically inaccurate. "Stop it Peter," the boy said to the dog, as Peter whelped her first litter of two puppies in public.

Berserk Troops Kill 9 Persons

METZ, France (AP) — At least 9 persons were killed and 22 wounded Sunday night when French paratroopers, angered over the slaying of a comrade by Algerian gunmen, stormed through Metz attacking anyone who looked like an Algerian.

Police said a gang of Algerians fired into a bar thronged by paratroopers recently brought back from duty in Algeria. The shots killed a paratrooper and a French bartender and wounded several soldiers.

The paratroopers surged into the railway station buffet attacking Algerians at random. Authorities said the dead included two paratroopers, the bartender and an Algerian worker. Five paratroopers and 17 Algerians were badly wounded.

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP) — Policemen rode all buses in industrial Bulawayo and troops stood by throughout Southern Rhodesia today as Africans started a strike that was successful in some industries but only partially so in numerous others.

A general strike was called by African political extremists in protest against the government-sponsored referendum Wednesday on the new constitution for Southern Rhodesia.

Chaplain's Name Surprised Caller

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Navy chaplain Lt. Daniel Litt was at 11th Naval District headquarters when a phone call came for another chaplain.

The secretary replied: "We only have one chaplain here just now, and he is Litt."

After what seemed to be an embarrassed silence, the caller hung up.

Two Greenville Little League Teams In Area Finals

Greenville's two Little League all-star squads were scheduled to clash today for the Area 1 championship. Game time was 5 p.m. at Elm Street Park. The North State League stars, on the strength of three-hit pitching by Charles Allen and two home runs, eliminated Havelock Saturday at Elm Street Park, 2-0. Allen slammed a bases-empty homer in the Greenville sixth after Van Harrington had given the North Staters their victory margin in the second with a solo blast over the fence in right-center. In notching the playoff victory, Allen struck out eight and walked only one, the second batter he faced. The only serious Havelock threat came in the opening inning when a lead-off single and Allen's only base-on-balls gave the Havelock team runners at first and second with nobody out. Allen, however, struck out the next two batters and the Havelock catcher fled to left to end the inning. The North State all-stars collected a total of seven hits off Havelock's hurler, Hardison, a steady righthander. All Greenville's hits were singles except the four-baggers by Allen and Harrington in absorbing the loss, Hardison struck out nine and walked two. Collecting two hits apiece for the victorious North Staters were second baseman Donnie Brewer, who picked up two singles in three trips, and first sacker Jack Cobb with a pair of safeties in two official at-bats. The North State all-stars opponent today was the all-star squad from Greenville's other Little League, The Tar Heel League. The Tar Heel stars advanced to the Area 1 finals with a victory over Beaufort in Morehead City Friday. Today's winners will advance in Little League competition to play the winner of the game between Robersonville and the Ft. Bragg-Warsaw winner. That title game is scheduled for Thursday at a site to be announced. Score by innings: North State 010 001-2 7 0 Havelock 000 000-0 3 0

Teen-er League Tourney Teams Due Today

Falkland Takes Twin Bill, Stays 1-2 Game Ahead

League-leading Falkland yesterday handed Leggett a double loss and stayed a half-game ahead of Oak City, 8-4 victor over Hobgood, in Eastern County League play. Tommy Dunn starred on the mound for Falkland as his mates romped past Leggett, 8-5 and 5-3, at Falkland. Greenville, powered by home runs, swept past Enfield, 7-4, in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader here. The second game was washed out in the fourth inning with Greenville leading, 8-0. Malcolm Griffith held Enfield to five hits, all singles, and then slammed a three-run homer in the second to aid his own cause. Greenville rightfielder Merrill Bynum provided the locals' winning margin in the third with a two-run blast out of the park. Bynum collected two of Greenville's eight hits in three at-bats, adding a double to his credit in the fifth. Seber Cobb moved John Harrison to third with a double in the second to set the stage for Griffith's homer. Harrison reached first when he forced Beasley Jones after Jones opened the second with a single. In the second game, Nathan Green had struck out five Enfield batters when rain halted play in the Greenville half of the fourth inning. Greenville had picked up six big runs in the third on six consecutive singles and bases-loaded triple by Jimmy Fornes. Score by innings: First Game Enfield 012 100 0-4 5 3 Greenville 132 001 x-7 8 1

Gastonia's defending national champions were scheduled to arrive here today in quest of hitting its stride to a second consecutive national crown. During the afternoon, Teen-er League baseballers from Gastonia, Shelby, Elizabeth City and High Point were scheduled to check in at East Carolina's Jones Dormitory, their quarters during the State Teen-er Baseball Tournament that begins here in the morning. Pairings for the first round of the double-elimination affair were to be drawn at a meeting of coaches and officials at Jones Dorm tonight at 7:30. Play gets underway with two simultaneous games at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday. One will be played at Guy Smith Stadium and the other is scheduled for ECC's College Field. Winners of the two opening-round games will clash tomorrow night at 7:30 at Guy Smith Stadium. An earlier contest (5:30 p.m.) on the same field will match the losers of the first round. The winner of the night-cap Tuesday will advance into the tourney finals (7:30 p.m. Wednesday) against the winner of a match between the winner of the first game Tuesday and the loser of the second scheduled for 10 a.m. Wednesday. Should the winner of the Wednesday morning game also win the Wednesday night encounter, an extra game between the same two teams will be necessary and will be played Thursday morning with the state crown at stake. Should the winner of Tuesday's second game also come through Wednesday night's game, it will be the state champion and will advance to the Area 4 tourney in Gastonia Aug 1 and 2. Competing with the Gastonia tourney, also a double elimination affair, will be state champs from North Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee. The Area 4 winner, along with seven other area champs from across the nation, will advance to the national Teen-er tournament at Hershey, Pa., beginning Aug. 14. The national, area, state and local Teen-er programs are sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Cincinnati Takes Two Big Ones Over San Francisco

By MURRAY ROSE Associated Press Sports Writer It's either feast or famine for the Cincinnati Reds who had that contented look again today after devouring two big victories over the San Francisco Giants. The double sweep, 6-5 and 11-2, over the Giants at Cincinnati Sunday ended a six-game losing run for the Reds and indicated Freddie Hutchinson's streaky crew was on the warpath once more. There apparently is no in-between pattern for the Reds. Either they win in batches or they lose the same way. The twin triumphs, engineered by 13 extra base hits including five homers, boosted the Reds' lead to 1 1/2 games over the press-leading Los Angeles Dodgers. The Dodgers, sparked by Ron Fairly's two doubles, edged the Cards at St. Louis 2-1. The Milwaukee Braves, sizzling in the heat, whipped the Pirates at Pittsburgh twice, 11-4 and 5-4, for a four-game sweep of the series. This moved the surging Braves past the Pirates into fourth place, only a half game behind the third place Giants. The Chicago Cubs snapped a seven-game losing streak by beating four homers, including two by Don Zimmer, for a 11-5 wallop of the Phillies at Philadelphia. In the American League, the weary Detroit Tigers regained first place from the Yankees by sweeping a marathon doubleheader from the Athletics at Kansas City, 6-4, 17-14, while the New Yorkers were nipped in the ninth by the Red Sox at Boston, 5-4. Minnesota blanked Cleveland, 10-0; the White Sox beat Baltimore 8-2, and Los Angeles' Angels thumped Washington, 8-3. Hutchinson will get an idea of how long this streak is headed when his club takes on the Braves at Milwaukee in the only league game tonight. Joey Jay (13-5) faces Milwaukee's Bobby Hendley (3-2). The Dodgers play the Baltimore Orioles in the Hall of Fame game at Cooperstown, N.Y. Jerry Lynch's second homer of the game in the ninth earned the 6-5 opener for Bob Purkey (12-5) and pinned the defeat on reliever Sam Jones (7-6). The Reds also got homers from Frank Robinson and Leo Cardenas. Ed Bailey, a former Red, delivered two homers and Orlando Cepeda one for the Giants. Robinson's second homer of the day—the 28th of the season—and 14 other assorted blows made it a breeze for Jim O'Toole (9-8) in the windup. Robinson's two-run homer in the first inning extended his consecutive hitting streak to 18 games. Fairly's double in the first inning led to the Dodger's first run against the Cards. His second two-bagger in the sixth drove in Maury Wills with the winner. Johnny Podres (12-2) picked up his fourth straight victory although he was ejected for beefing on a call by plate umpire Chris Pelekoudas. This came after pinch-hitter Stan Mustajir singled home Charley James. Manager Walt Alston also was given the thumb. The Braves pounded nine Pirate pitchers for 25 hits in taking two for nine of their last ten. Ed Mathews walloped his 22nd home run, a bases-loaded double for two runs, and two singles in easing Bob Buhl's (7-8) way in the opener. Joe Torre, like Mathews, had four out of five. Hank Aaron chipped in with his 23rd homer. Harvey Haddix (6-5) was the loser. In the 5-4 windup, Lee Maye drove in three runs with a single, triple and sacrifice fly—the 45th scoring Aaron with the winning run in the fourth. Reliever Don McMahon (5-1) was the winner and Bob Friend (9-13) the loser. Zimmer's two homers (7 and 8) for four runs, Ed Bouchee's ninth and George Altman's 19th were the big blows for Chicago. Don Demeter hit a triple and two-run homer for Chicago. Jim Brewer gave way after Demeter's homer in the fifth and Don Elston (6-4) went the rest of the distance for the victory.

HOMER RECORD RECOGNIZED — Donnie Taylor, star catcher for Coca-Cola's North State Little League entry, is shown receiving a trophy from Roger P. Taylor, manager of the local Coca-Cola Bottling Co. Young Taylor, in slamming 15 home runs during a 15-game regular season schedule, set a new home run record for Greenville's Little League program. The young slugger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Taylor of 2606 Dunn St.

HUFF BACK AGAIN NEW YORK (AP)—Sam Huff, star linebaker, will be back for his sixth season with the New York Giants next fall. The foot-1 star was the Giants' third draft choice in 1956. He formerly played for West Virginia.

League Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Hitting—Norm Cash, Tigers, got six hits in eight at bats, drove in eight runs in team's doubleheader sweep over Kansas City, 6-4, and 17-14, and took over league lead in hitting (.366) and RBI (91). Pitching — Pedro Ramos, Minnesota, blanked Cleveland 10-0 with six hits and handed Barry Latman (9-1) first defeat. IT'S STILL A NO-HITTER CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Roger Henshaw pitched a no-hitter for his Little League team recently, but he really didn't have to. His team won 31-0.

Future Moon-Rocket Scheduled For Trip Into Space In Next Few Days

By VERN HAUGLAND
WASHINGTON (AP)—A Ranger I spacecraft—first version of a vehicle that later this year may crash-land on the moon—will be launched on a million-mile round-trip journey into space within the next few days.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration described in detail today its newest and most complicated experiment in lunar and planetary exploration. But NASA declined to give the exact date the launch attempt will be made at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

NASA said the 675-pound Ranger will be fired first into a brief "parking orbit" 115 miles above the earth. For about 13 minutes Ranger I will zoom along at 18,000 miles an hour, high above the Atlantic Ocean, as though it were a regulation earth satellite.

Then its Agena-B second-stage rocket will fire up for a second time to accelerate Ranger I to a velocity of 23,900 miles an hour and start it on a trajectory 685,000 miles out into space.

It deliberately will not be aimed at the moon.

The craft is expected to reach the perigee, or closest point to earth, of its eccentric orbit in September at an altitude of 37,500 miles—some 58 days after launching.

The spacecraft may be unable to regain orbital course, however, and may plunge into the earth's atmosphere and be destroyed by fire.

NASA said there also is a slight possibility the craft may reach earth-escape velocity. In that event, it would join two U.S. probes—Pioneer IV and Pioneer V—and two Soviet probes in orbit around the sun.

Designed to test an enormously complex spacecraft system, Ranger I has 19,520 working electronic parts.

It is a forerunner of vehicles that will rough-land instrumented packages on the moon. With further refinements, it eventually is expected to make soft landings there and on the planets. Later craft—of the Surveyor, Prospector and Voyager series—are being designed to achieve ultimately manned occupation of the moon.

Ranger II, a similar test shot, is planned for next autumn. Ranger III is on NASA's program for late this year. It is designed to take television pictures of the moon and to crash into the moon shortly after releasing a 50-pound instrument pack that could survive a lunar landing and send moonquake data back to earth.

The remaining two shots in the Ranger series would come next year.

Although the primary mission of Ranger I is to develop and test the equipment and technique for lunar and interplanetary research, the craft will carry a dazzling array of experiments of its own.

Among the eight scientific assemblies aboard will be devices to study the nature and activity of cosmic rays, magnetic fields, and radiation and dust particles in space.

The craft will try also to determine whether the earth, as viewed from a distance of 500,000 miles, is followed around the sun by a comet-like tail of hydrogen gas.

EDITOR'S NOTE—As concern mounts over the Berlin crisis, new attention is focusing on civil defense preparedness. In this first of four articles, Sterling F. Green discusses major operating plans and ultimate goals for civil defense.

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The possibility that the defense of Berlin—or some other focal point of East-West tension—may bring nuclear disaster down on American homes, stores and factories has touched off a searching review of civil defense preparedness.

Already in motion, and shortly to be sent to Congress, is a massive step-up of civilian defense spending, planning and building.

It is aimed at providing a nationwide shelter system designed to save whole city populations from the fallout hazard. Proposed outlays in the neighborhood of $300 million this year would triple the spending now budgeted.

It already has brought a jarring shakeup in civil defense administration. President Kennedy last week transferred a major share of authority and responsibility to the Pentagon from the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

Lost, When A Phone Off Hook

GRIMESLAND — A telephone left off a hook on a party line may have cost a farmer near here a tobacco barn and its contents.

Assistant Fire Chief L. E. Tetterton said that a barn and its tobacco contents, belonging to Bobby Newman, had burned Friday night. The barn was located on a farm about four miles south of Grimesland and about one mile south of Grover Hodges store.

When Newman noticed the fire, he raced to his home to call the fire department, Tetterton said, but was unable to reach anyone because of a telephone left off a hook on his party line.

Grover Hodges drove into town to get the fire department for Newman, while Newman remained to remove his equipment from the burning building and save what he could. Firemen were able to save an adjoining shelter, but the barn fire itself was out of control by the time they arrived.

The blaze originated in the top of the barn, Newman told firemen.

In the Defense Department, President Kennedy's call for a review of military readiness has prompted consideration of declaring a limited national emergency, enlarging draft calls and employing more forces overseas.

The same White House order sent OCDM to its files to review plans for home-front defense and mobilization. The two major operating plans are:

"Plan C"—For a limited war with U.S. forces in action overseas but an increasing threat of attack on the continental United States.

"Plan D-minus"—For use in event of a devastating direct attack on this country.

"Plan C" implies the minor government intervention exemplified in the Korean War—allocation of materials, stepped-up production, credit curbs, and the "voluntary" kind of manpower controls and price-wage stabilization.

"Plan D-minus" gives Americans the works. A price-wage freeze, rationing and censorship are provided. It envisages a moratorium on private debts, emergency doles of money and food, the activation of emergency agencies to administer controls and a vast rescue, relief and refugee program.

What do the planners find when they canvass the nation's resources to cope with the crisis and carry out such plans? Not enough to make them happy. Official appraisals of civil defense readiness vary. Here are some privately expressed to this reporter:

"Our civil defense posture?"

Flat on our backs."

"We've got plans and a good framework, that's about it."

"We're far better prepared than we were at the outbreak of World War II or Korea."

And President Kennedy gave Congress his view in a few words in May: "One major element of the national security program in May: 'One major element of the national security program which this nation has never squarely faced up to is civil defense.'"

Officials agree there is still widespread public apathy and some skepticism, though it is evident from OCDM's mail that these grow less with every warlike speech and rocket-rattling gesture from the Kremlin.

Says Frank B. Ellis, the Louisiana lawyer and former football tackle who now heads OCDM: "We've got to get over the idea of mass suicide. I think we're having a revival of survival."

A recent opinion poll showed that 71 per cent of Americans favor fallout shelters. Only a few years ago, a different survey showed that one-third of all Americans didn't know anything about radioactive fallout, and only 12 per cent had a real grasp of how it occurs and what it does.

Young Marine Is Charged With Bank Robbery

RICHLANDS, N.C. (AP)—Pvt. Jerry L. Young, 18, a Camp Lejeune Marine, has been charged with robbing a branch of the First Citizens Bank & Trust Co. here Saturday. He was shot and wounded just outside the bank's door by a shotgun-wielding bank cashier and the $4,359 loot recovered.

The FBI filed a detainer late Saturday with the Marine Corps charging Young, of Pontotoc, Miss., with bank robbery. U.S. Commissioner Charles W. Sumnerlin placed bond at $25,000 pending a hearing later.

After he was wounded, Young was taken to the base hospital at Camp Lejeune, 15 miles south of here, where his condition is now reported as good. The base placed guards outside Young's room after he was formally charged with the holdup.

Warren Taylor, cashier of the bank in this Onslow County town of just over 1,000, grabbed a shotgun from the corner of the office just after a young hand, brandishing a 22 caliber pistol, had ordered a teller to stuff money into a paper bag. Rushing to the door, Taylor fired as a youth ran down the sidewalk toward a car in a parking lot.

The shotgun blast struck Young in the back above and below the belt. He fell to the ground, the money in a bag under him. The gun also had been stuffed into the bag.

The FBI said the money was found in the bag.

The robbery occurred just before Saturday's noon closing of the bank. There were no customers in the bank at the time.

Police Chief Sidney Lanier said Young came into the bank, pulled a gun and told Mrs. Billy Cox, a teller, to fill up the bag with money.

Authorities said the youth wore a baseball cap, black horn-rimmed glasses and adhesive tape near his eyes.

Hobbyists' Interest Clings To Models Of Autos, Ships

NEW YORK (AP)—Space flights and nuclear subs have captured the fancy of the hobbyists as well as the general public. But interest in the old favorites—autos, trains, ships and the like—also is reported on the rise among the collectors or assemblers of models as a hobby.

One maker reports demand for new kits for fashioning small but close copies of cars—whether hot rods or vintage types—is up 20 per cent this year from last. They now represent 45 per cent of his total sales.

Boys under 18 show the greatest interest in hot rod models. Jack M. Bessen, president of Monogram Models, Inc., Chicago, suspects they are boning up for the day they can own or operate a real one.

Models of military planes also are selling at a 20 per cent increase this year, Bessen says, and make up 25 per cent of total sales.

Authenticity of some of the models in the defense field drew fire recently from Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover. He said details of a $2.98 model of the Polaris sub was so exact that the Russians could get nuclear secrets from it.

Makers of model ships, submarines and planes were quick to assert they only copied unclassified information given them by the military services, or what they learned from photos and news stories in the technical and popular press.

The Navy says it gives unclassified blueprints to model manufacturers, but gives away no secrets. Ideal Toy Corp. of Hollis, N.Y., notes that the military services often vie in getting models produced for use in recruiting drives or to encourage interest in youngsters.

All of manufacturers reported wide interest in such models among the nation's youth—and fathers.

Revell of Venice, Calif., makes models of rocket planes and fighter planes, as well as the Polaris, and advertises them as accurate to within one thousandth of an inch, but says they involve no secret data.

Renewal Products of Mineola, N.Y., says it asks the Navy for only such information as is available to the public. It also studies published photos based on artists' conceptions.

Various corporations not in the hobby business sponsor or distribute models of the implements of their trades—such as oil rigs rail tank cars, crucks, all bearing the identifying mark of the company or its products.

Part of the success of auto kits is credited to improvements within the model industry in recent years.

But the popularity of auto kits, in spite of public absorption in space vehicles, is credited by the makers to America's mass devotion to cars.

Wade-In Ended By Light Rain

CHICAGO (AP)—A light rain stration on a nearly empty south side beach traditionally used only by white bathers.

About 30 Negroes and white persons took part in the demonstration Sunday under the watchful eye of a 200-man police force assigned to the public beach. The demonstrators left after about 45 minutes when rain started to fall.

Previous demonstrations have been marked by shouting, jeering and sand kicking incidents.

Same Operation For 5 Children

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Two boys and their three sisters, ages 4 through 13, were operated on for abdominal hernias within two days last week. Their parents say it worked out well.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott L. Cauley Jr. said that with five children in the Marymount Hospital at the same time, each visiting trip was worth five.

The children were born with the hernias.

GOOD THINGS IN THREES

NORTH BOSTON, N. Y. (AP)—For 13-year-old Nancy Gantzer good things come in quick succession. First she won $300 in a national school photo contest. Then she was awarded the Curved Bar, one of the highest honors in Girl Scouting. A few days later, her entry in a newspaper crossword contest took the $625 prize.

The oceans contain about two quadrillion tons of magnesium, but the metal is comparatively rare on land.

Guardsmen Curb Violent Rioting

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP)—Hundreds of rioters swung fists and threw bottles Sunday for 4½ hours before officers and National Guardsmen calmed down this town of 15,000.

Officers estimated up to 1,000 took part in the violence, and another 2,000 onlookers milled about to watch the excitement.

Fire hoses and tear gas were used to quell the outburst, but it wasn't until National Guardsmen appeared that peace returned.

At least three persons were hurt. Wesley Perkins, 23, Winslow, Ariz., and Jackie Linde, 36, Boise, Idaho, were given hospital attention and released.

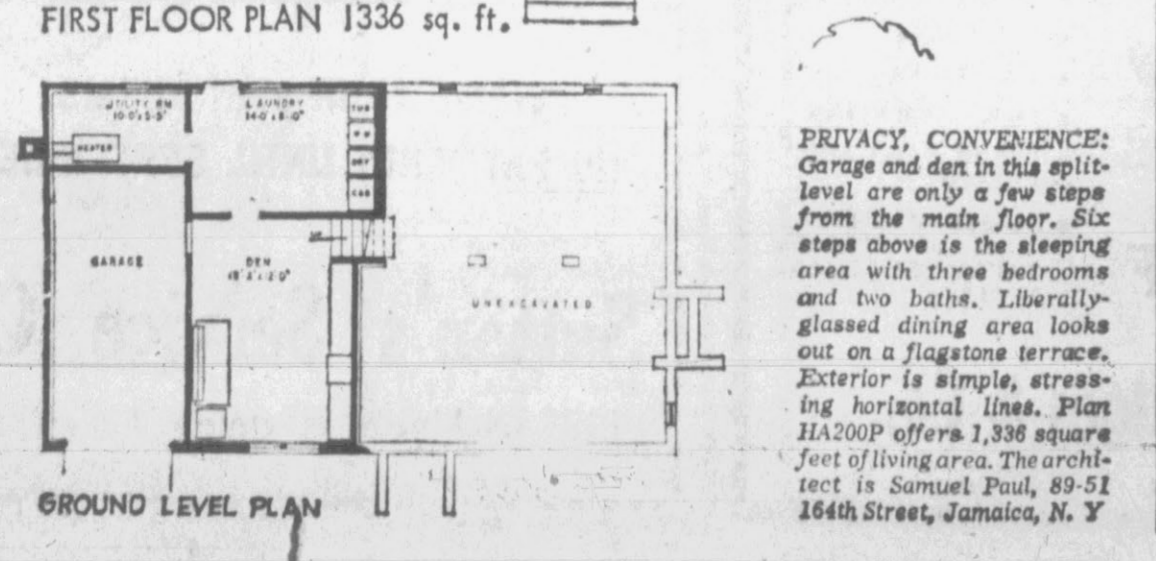

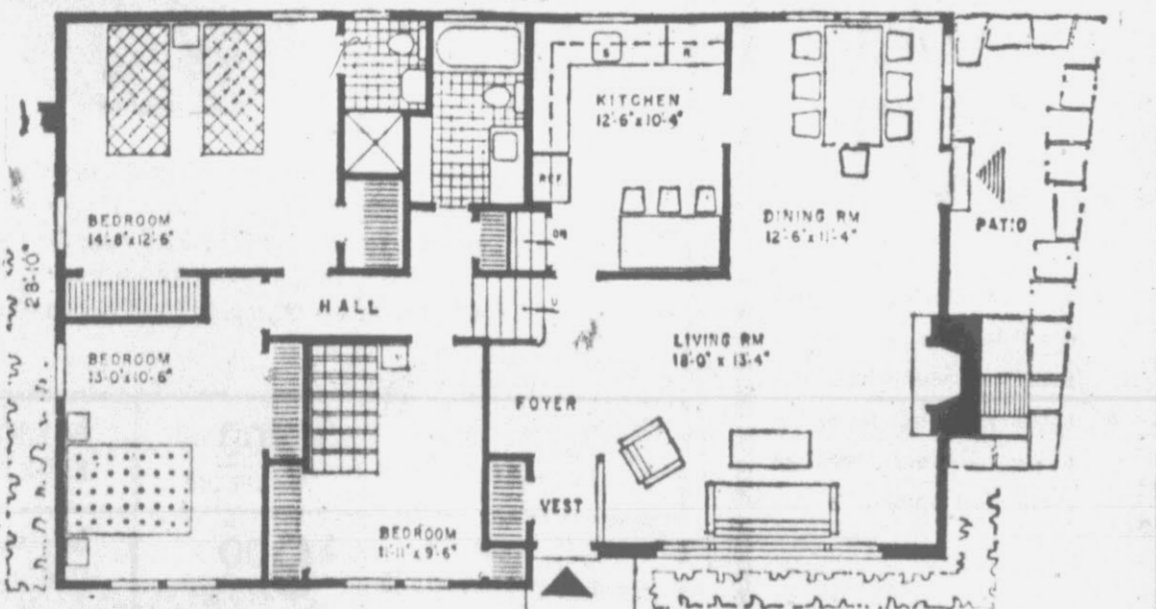

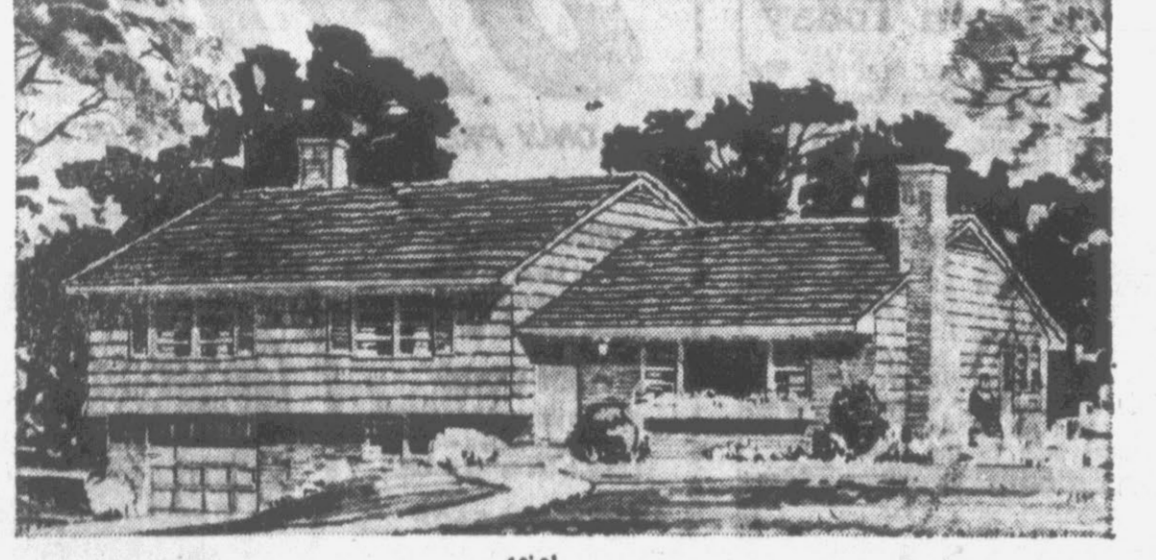

Officers arrested 41 of the brawlers, ranging in age from 15 to 26. A special session of police court was held, and Judge Don Averitt fined most $100 and gave them suspended sentences on such charges as minors possessing and consuming liquor.

A store window was broken, a store door was cracked, and a car windshield was smashed. Streets and sidewalks were littered with broken beer bottles.

The town was jammed with a crowd of about 60,000 who came to see hydroplane racing on Lake Coeur d'Alene.

Police Chief Reine Schmidt said the mob started building up about midnight. That is the time beer sales stop on Saturday nights in Washington, which is 12 miles west. Sales are unrestricted in Idaho.

CHAPTER 20

GRISELDA VANCE wore a pale blue bed jacket of angora wool, with a very fluffy neckline which was turned up, so that the bruises at the throat were hidden. Rollison felt quite sure that the bruises were there; he could see the way Paul Vance had leapt at her, now, could almost feel the strangling power of his fingers.

She smiled formally as the door closed with a snap behind Rollison.

"You're very good to come so soon," she said. "Won't you draw up a chair, and sit down?"

Rollison didn't move, except to put his head on one side. That was not only to create an impression; it was because he enjoyed looking at her. Whatever nervous strain she had suffered seemed to have gone. He could not even see it lurking in those lovely grey eyes.

Adam Bell loved her. Rollison felt a quickening of his own pulse.

Agatha Bell could have that effect on him, because of her youthful loveliness, her freshness and her figure. Here was something quite different. He sensed that, and believed that Griseida Vance did, also. It was as if a spell had been cast over them both.

He moved, pulling up a bedroom chair, and dropping into it. He glanced away from Griseida Vance. The room was a dream in rose pink and deep red, the red discreetly etched or woven in here and there. Furniture, curtains and the few good ornaments, the things on the dressing table were all of a quality which told of wealth. On the bedside table was a small gilt clock, the hands pointing to a quarter to ten.

"Thank you," Rollison said, "but there was no virtue in coming. I couldn't keep away." His lips turned down at the corners in a smile touched with irony.

"You're looking as if you've no troubles in the whole wide world," he said.

"Pity. At least you're well looked after. Two policemen are on duty outside, you're under what is called 'close surveillance'. Mind you, I don't think that's altogether concern for you, I think they really want Adam Bell."

"Yes," Griseida said, "I suppose they do."

"Expect him to come?"

"Adam was always unpredictable."

Her composure wasn't assumed, and Rollison didn't think it was simply a lack of anxiety. It was some quality which belonged to her, and which nothing could easily take away. He pictured her as she had been when Paul Vance had tried to throttle her; proud, erect, unmoving.

"To what do I owe my good luck?" he asked, ironically. She was puzzled.

"Luck?"

"Being asked to come and see you."

She smiled, very faintly. The spell was still upon them both. Rollison was aware of it, but did not really want to break it.

"Mr. Rollison," she said, "I do not believe that Adam Bell killed my husband, and I want you to prove it."

He watched her levelly.

"Just faith in Adam?"

"Yes."

"No alibi for him?"

"No."

"Do you know he's in danger of his life—or says he is?"

"I believe he is."

"On what evidence?"

Her eyes held a touch of mockery. "Just faith," she said.

Rollison grinned. "I hope the mountains aren't too large. Do you know who killed your husband?"

All mockery vanished; everything but seriousness faded from her.

"No," she said deliberately.

"Any ideas?"

"No."

"Do you know why someone is gunning for Adam?"

"No."

"Care to guess?"

Griseida said: "I think he discovered something at the factory—or about the business. I can't imagine what, and he won't admit it." He may not even realize what it is. But if I have to guess at all, that's what I would say."

"Thanks. Do you know when Adam first realized he was in trouble?"

"A week or so before he left for New York," she answered.

"In fact, just after a quarrel with Paul Vance," Rollison told her, abruptly.

She didn't comment.

"Did you know about the quarrel?" Rollison was still abrupt.

"Yes."

"What was it about?"

"I don't see how that affects you," she began.

"Supposing we cut out the lies, the half truths, the evasions, the sentiment," Rollison said, and his manner was almost brutal. "Paul Vance and Adam Bell have an ugly quarrel. After it, Bell's life is threatened. The reason for the quarrel might give us a pointer to the reason for the attacks, whether you want your precious Paul suspected or not."

That hurt her.

She caught her breath, wincing. She didn't speak, just watched Rollison with those silvery eyes.

"You let Paul Vance escape," Rollison said, "and you don't do that for a man who's just tried to choke the life out of you unless you've a very strong reason. And don't forget how deep this goes. Murder's been done, and more is threatened. Paul Vance was ready to kill you, and he may yet try again. That kind of passion doesn't grow out of nothing, and it takes a long time to erupt. What's caused it? And before you answer, remember that several lives could depend on what you say."

He stopped, in a dead silence. Then Griseida Vance closed her eyes, and it was as if a light had

She stopped. Rollison didn't speak. Griseida went on in a hushed voice, speaking as if she could not hold back the words: "And then Adam Bell discovered what was happening, and lost his head. He threatened Jimmy. He told Paul what a savage brute he had for a son. And they quarrelled like brutes themselves." She paused again, then went on very slowly: "Two—good—kindly—civilized men."

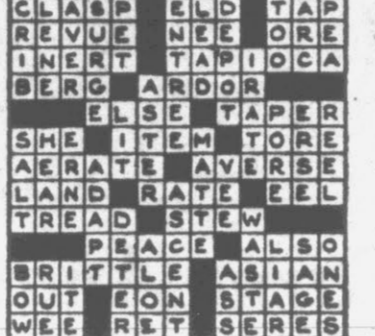

She stopped. Rollison did not speak or move. Then she looked at him as if she were trying to compel him to do what she wanted.

"I want you to help them both," she said. "Don't tell the police what Paul did. Don't betray him. Help them both."

An American gunman can outrun even Scotland Yardmen in the maze of streets on London's waterfront. The story continues tomorrow.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

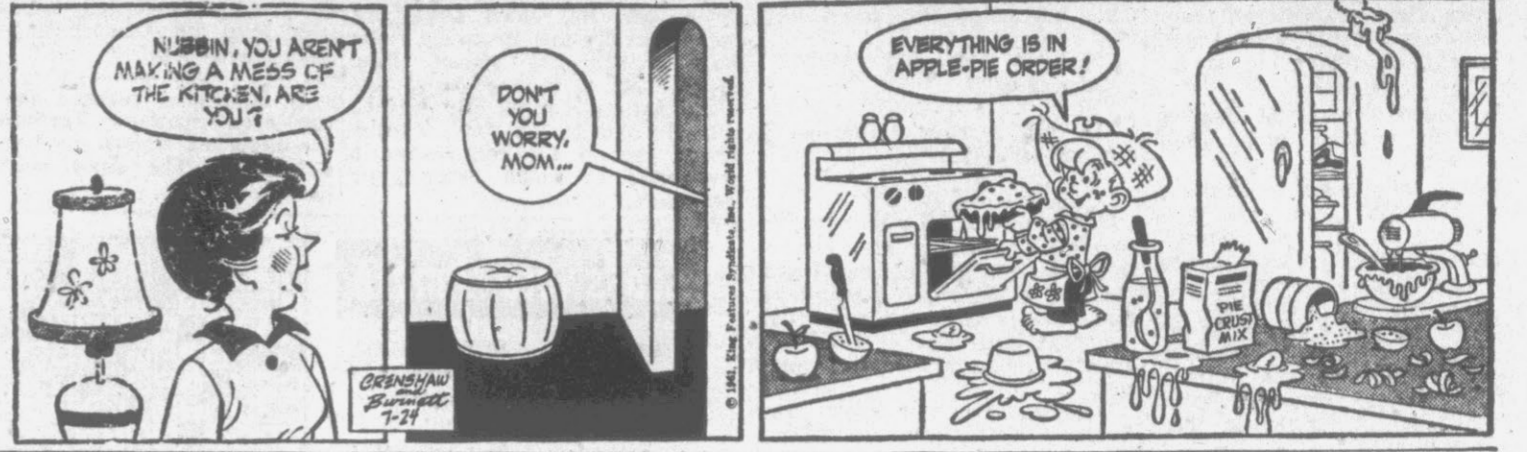

During the past few weeks many farmers have observed a small brown leaf spot on the lower leaves of their tobacco plants. At one time this condition was called "physiological breakdown" because we did not know what caused this condition. It was determined that the lesions were not caused by a disease organism. More recently these lesions have been called weather fleck. In recent research tests it has been found that weather fleck is caused by the presence of ozone. Recent studies have shown that of 36 plant species tested 28 were found to be sensitive to ozone. It has been shown that a concentration of 0.25 ppm of ozone will injure tobacco after two hours' exposure. Ozone concentration in the atmosphere is usually too low to cause plant injury. However, during cloudy, rainy weather with high humidity it is believed that ozone is carried downward and the concentration could be high enough to cause injury. Weather fleck has been observed on all of our blue-cured varieties; however, varieties differ in their susceptibility or injury from ozone. Most disease resistant varieties are more sensitive to ozone than some of the old line varieties, such as Hicks. There is no control for weather fleck. However, as a rule the injury caused by this trouble does not usually result in appreciable damage to tobacco.

The Farm Scene

Adherence to specific swine management practices recommended by many land grant colleges and experiment stations will mean more profit for swine producers of the nation. With the annual production of four million bushels of corn in Pitt County, a well-managed livestock enterprise can increase the income of many county farmers.

Housing and Shelter Farrowing houses should be well ventilated. The recommended temperature is 55 degrees to 65 degrees Fahrenheit. Heat lamps in the corner of the farrowing pen should be approximately 24 inches above the bedding when a 250-watt lamp is used. When the temperature falls below 65 degrees, the lamp should be turned on. If farrowing stalls are used, they should be 20 to 24 inches wide and from six to seven feet long. Gilt requires less width and length than sows.

Feeding Management During the pre-gestation and gestation period the sow needs three pounds of corn and one pound of protein supplement per day. Seven to 10 days before the breeding starts, the feed should be increased and maintained until all the sows are bred.

General Management The size of a litter should be adjusted to the number of functional teats of the sow or to the milking ability of the sow. Pigs should be transferred as early as possible after farrowing.

Farm And Foreign Aid Action Before Congress This Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress concentrates this week on farm and foreign aid legislation. The administration hopes it will focus some attention, too, on education. The Senate takes up a farm bill today from which its Agriculture Committee has slashed a key request by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman to permit farm groups and the secretary to develop their own programs subject to a congressional veto.

Wounded, Tells Of 5 Gun Deaths

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP)—A teenage farm girl with a bullet wound in her stomach ran 2 1/2 miles in the mud to a neighbor's house early today to cry out that her father, three brothers and a sister had been shot to death. Officers rushed to the Fred Milton Kinsey home, 30 miles northwest of this West Texas oil center, and found Kinsey and four of his children dead.

Bogged Down In Swimming Lake

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Raymond Fuller of Centralia, Mo. and his son Milton, 15, bogged down as they tried to swim seven miles across the Great Salt Lake. They made it back to shore all right, "but they looked like a couple of salt crystals," said beach operator Phil Dern who has made the five-hour swim to Antelope Island and says it's a rugged endurance feat.

Bongos And Beer Beget Bedlam

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Bongos and beer beget a bit of bedlam by the bay Sunday. Barefoot and bearded, 50 beatniks were lounging at Aquatic Park, sipping suds and thumping their bongos. When six gals clad in bikinis started dancing to the bongos, hundreds of spectators mobbed the area. Outraged housewives phoned police. The mob dispersed as police squad cars arrived, leaving three bongo drums, eight groggy sunbathers and hundreds of beer cans. The eight were booked on charges of drunkenness, profanity and interfering with the law.

Civil War Set For Shakespeare Play Utilized

By WILLIAM GLOVER
Associated Press Drama Critic
STRATFORD, Conn. (AP)—The Union and the Confederacy have captured Shakespeare now.

Turning away from traditional settings, the American Festival Theater company has installed the Bard's "Troilus and Cressida" in a Civil War setting amid the rustle of crinolines skirts and rattle of flashing sabers.

The entertainment premiered as the final item in this summer's repertory "Macbeth" and "As You Like It" are the others—and is an intriguing, colorful experiment. Entertaining virtues outbalance creative deficits.

In a backstage memo, director Jack Landau explains that the period was chosen in an effort to clarify "certain ideas in this very complicated, difficult and beautiful play" and not just to capitalize on centennial attention surrounding the War Between the States.

The main problem, however, is that the very precise blue-gray costuming—and spectator identity with historic events—keep getting in the way of educational abstraction.

The story centers on legendary events in the ancient Trojan war set off by Helen's pretty face. And to see Aagamemnon, the Greek general, slug whiskey from a jug and puff mightily on a cigar in caricature of a later general simply distracts the spectator. So it goes.

Ted van Griethuysen does well as the loyal lover Troilus, but his inamorata, as limned by Carrie Nye, lacks the earthiness of wanton being; albeit, she speaks every word so plainly.

Hiram Sherman, a sideburned Pandarus (the Trojans are all from magnolia land), carries off his chores with authority. Among the Greek (Northern) warriors, Paul Sparker makes Ulysses the epitome of guile. Thayer David enacts Ajax with musclebound fervor, and Donald Davis is an urbane but persuasive Achilles.

The company's ranking trio carry off lesser roles in this production with effective ease—Pat Hingle as Priam, Jessica Tandy as Cassandra and Kim Hunter as Helen.

The scenery by Robert O'Hearn against the festival's distracting permanent potato-chip background, includes the facade of an antebellum mansion and some flexible smatterings of camp locale.

Set down where it doesn't belong, "Troilus and Cressida" demonstrates once more the Bard's dramaturgy can take anything.

Testimony Begins Over Five Alleged Felons Escape Edgecombe Jail, Captured

RICHLAND, Va. (AP)—Testimony begins today in U.S. District Court on a petition challenging the legality of the closing of Prince Edward County Schools. The suit is directed at forcing open the county's public schools, closed two years ago after a federal judge ordered its classrooms desegregated.

Virginia's tuition grant laws, keystone of the state's freedom of choice school program, are also under attack in what may be a crucial hearing.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) said it regards the Prince Edward case as pivotal in its battle to integrate schools in the South.

Negro attorneys will attempt to show that a system of private white schools opened after the public schools closed are in reality public schools because they are financed in part by state and county tuition grants.

Negro children have been without formal education since 1959, although the tuition grants were also available to them. Only a handful of Negroes accepted the grants.

Twenty-four persons, most of them officials of the state, county and the Prince Edward School Foundation, have been subpoenaed as witnesses.

The Negro attorneys are expected to bring out in questions to these witnesses that the county closed its public schools to circumvent a federal court desegregation order.

They hope to have Judge Oren R. Lewis enjoin the defendants from refusing to maintain free public schools in the county, from expending public funds for the direct or indirect support of any private school which excludes Negroes and from creating county taxpayers with money paid or contributed to any private school which excludes Negroes.

The question of whether the school closings are a circumvention of the court's previous order was raised at an earlier hearing. It was pointed out that county shut down its schools after the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals directed the District Court to enter a desegregation order, but before the order actually was entered.

Attorneys for the state and the county also argued at that time that neither the U.S. Supreme Court nor the 4th Circuit Court has held that a county must operate schools.

The defense attorneys argued that the Virginia constitution does not require the operation of schools.

Judge Lewis has said that if it appears a ruling by the Virginia Supreme Court is necessary on the constitutionality of the tuition grants, he will stay proceedings until the state court hands down its decision.

Five Alleged Felons Escape Edgecombe Jail, Captured

TARBORO—Five alleged felons who escaped from the Edgecombe County jail here last night were arrested in Rocky Mount and Sharpsburg this morning.

Edgecombe Sheriff Tom Bardin said all five were back in custody here in the county jail. He said they had been confined here for about six months awaiting trial on multiple charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

The first one to be recaptured, Leonard Jones of Rocky Mount, was nabbed this morning about 7 o'clock in Rocky Mount, Bardin said.

The other four, he said, were arrested at the home of Robert Thomas near Sharpsburg about a half-hour later.

Bardin said members of the Rocky Mount Police Department and the Wilson County Sheriff's Department apprehended the four remaining fugitives on information they received from sources other than Jones.

The five men were identified as Leonard Jones Jr., 19, of Rocky Mount; Willie James Smith, 18, of Rocky Mount; Johnny Stewart, alias Shelton Stewart, 42, of Durham; Burnis L. Richards, alias
