N.C. Winner Of Hero's Medal Is Now In Durham; Attended ECC

Search Had Been Dropped With Confusion Of Names In South Carolina

DURHAM—The winner of an award for a heroic act who was identified by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission as a Greenville, N. C. resident has been tracked to Watts Hospital here where he is a student.

A native Tar Heel, Kenneth W. Daniels was sought by the Daily Reflector for an interview-and-photograph routine when the Commission announced its winners July 13 in Pittsburgh.

The Commission gave Daniels' address as Greenville, N. C. and the Reflector began inquiring of the hero's whereabouts.

A Greenville, S. C. newspaperman assured a Reflector telephone inquiry that the Kenneth Daniels listed in the city directory was indeed, the sought hero.

The search was dropped on the basis of the Greenville, S. C. newspaperman's claim of the hero in behalf of his city.

Several days later, however, the Reflector received a telephone call asking why the local paper had not announced the award to one of its former residents.

More checking followed and the real Kenneth W. Daniels, a professional diver for four years, was found—a student at the Watta Hospital School of Medical Technology.

After his "discovery," Daniels told the Reflector that an interview he first went to Greenville in the fall of 1952 as a freshman at East Carolina College. His college career at the Greenville college, however, was interrupted after a year when he joined the army.

He returned to the ECC campus in 1956 for another year's schooling after a three-year tour of duty with Uncle Sam. After his second year of college, Daniels says, he went to Louisiana where he became a professional diver for a diving contractor.

Kennedy Ready To Unveil Broad Defense Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy unveils to the nation tonight a broad plan for stepping up defense against the Communist threat to Berlin and throughout the world.

In advance of his 9 p.m. EST radio-TV broadcast, Kennedy scheduled his usual Tuesday morning White House meeting with Democratic congressional leaders.

This gave him an opportunity to brief his legislative chiefs on points he will cover in his speech and in a formal message to Congress Wednesday.

Informed sources said Kennedy's strategy was set to provide for a step-by-step Western strengthening as Communist pressures mount on Berlin and a long-term increase in ability to counter the Reds should they turn on the heat elsewhere.

This involves a boost in the U.S. preparedness program above the $43 billion Kennedy has already asked for the military this year, bigger arms contributions by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies, and further teamwork among the allies in diplomatic, political and economic tactics.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev, who has announced a big arms build-up, says he will sign a peace treaty with Communist East Germany at the end of this year.

This treaty, the Kremlin chief says, will wipe out the rights of the United States, Britain and France to Communist-surrounded West Berlin.

Press secretary Pierre Salinger said Kennedy himself did most of the speech writing as the President and his aides worked on everything short of actually stopping trains to check the stream.

Their difficulty is compounded by the fact that Berlin is a main rail transfer point for East Germany and would-be refugees can buy tickets within the country, then flee when they reach there.

Hundreds of subway and elevated trains go from East Berlin to West Germany everyday, and it is virtually impossible to check every passenger on each one.

In addition to troubles with the youth, the Reds are also having difficulties with farmers who insist they want to get out of collectives.

Neues Deutschland, the official daily of the East German regime, told today of a meeting at Brunsen, northwest of Berlin, where Communist orators tried in vain to get the farmers' consent to stay.

The Communists tried to convince them that in West Germany farmers are losing their land to rocket bases and military airfields. The farmers admitted they do not want this to happen to them, "but they would not take back their withdrawal applications," Neues Deutschland said.

East German farm land was collectivized in the spring of 1960. In theory, any farmer can withdraw. In practice it takes great courage to buck official Communist policy. There have been persistent reports of farmers trying to withdraw—but none that they have actually been permitted to do so.

Western experts blame collectivization for many of the supply difficulties in East Germany that have been helping increase the flow of refugees to the West. Farmers were promised an eight-hour day, and many of them are taking the promise seriously—even at peak work periods when they are traditionally in the fields from dawn to dusk.

Survey Reveals Many Violations In Labor Camps

RALEIGH (AP)—A partially-completed survey has revealed inadequate sewage, sanitation, water or housing conditions in 42 of 94 Eastern North Carolina migrant labor camps.

The report by the State Board of Health covered 13 eastern counties and indicated that some instances of neglect were serious enough to make camp operators liable for prosecution.

Gov. Sanford recently threatened legal action against persons running blighted camps. The Health Department's sanitary engineer chief, J. M. Jarrett, said that in half the camps "garbage was just all over the place. There were no garbage cans, no method of disposal."

Castro Releases Passengers And Crew Of Hijacked EAL Plane

MAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro today released the passengers and crew of an Eastern Air Lines plane hijacked over Florida and flown to Havana.

Pan American World Airways received word of the Cuban Leader's decision from its agent in Havana and put a DC7B and crew on standby at Miami International Airport.

The Swiss embassy in Havana had been trying to arrange for the return to Miami of the passengers and crew. An embassy spokesman said its efforts were hindered because of the Castro revolutionary celebration.

Temporary plans for the airlift called for the PAA plane to take off at 2 p.m. (EST) and return to Miami about two hours later. Eastern officials consulted with Pan American over arrangements for the flight.

Reports from Havana said passengers were generally in good spirits despite delays in unwinding the red tape to allow their release.

No one aboard was hurt when the Eastern Air Lines plane was diverted to Havana Monday. Passengers and crew spent the night at the Havana airport hotel.

Cuban officials said a passenger on the plane seized control because he had been repeatedly for-bidden by the U.S. officials to go to Cuba.

No mention was made in a Havana radio account of the fact that the pilot was forced to make the flight here at gunpoint, nor did the radio give the passenger's name. It said he feared reprisals against his relatives in the United States.

The Cuban government seemed to have no objection to allowing the passengers and crew to return promptly, but Swiss diplomats, who handle U.S. affairs here since the break in diplomatic relations, found all government offices closed for the celebrations marking the anniversary of Fidel Castro's revolution. That delayed the necessary official permission to leave.

A Swiss spokesman said the embassy hoped to get the passengers aboard a Pan American Airways flight to Miami, but a Pan American spokesman said a special flight might have to be arranged. The line's regular flights are jammed with Cuban refugees.

The Eastern Air Lines prop-jet Electra was on a flight from Miami to Tampa, New Orleans and Dallas with 33 passengers and a crew of five Monday when an unidentified passenger pulled a gun and forced the pilot to fly to Havana.

Prime Minister Castro was said to have no objections to returning the passengers and crew as soon as arrangements could be made.

His government reportedly intends, however, to hold the plane unless the United States turns over six Cuban planes that have been seized in Florida to satisfy a legal judgment against the Cuban regime.

The passengers and crew were being held under close police guard and newsmen were prevented from talking to them. Reporters saw them from a distance when they landed at Havana's Jose Marti Airport. No one appeared to have been injured in the incident.

One of the passengers was Luis Rodriguez, No. 1 contender for the world welterweight boxing championship. He was en route to Dallas for a fight Thursday night with Curtis Cokes.

Because the Foreign Ministry was closed for the anniversary festivities, the Swiss Embassy said it also had not been able to present a U.S. demand for return of the plane and the personnel which the State Department rushed to Havana as soon as it was informed of the incident.

Switzerland has represented the U.S. government in Cuba since Havana and Washington severed diplomatic relations.

Sen. Ervin Announces Will Seek Re-Election In 1962

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., today announced that he will seek re-election in 1962.

The Morganton, N.C., native has served in the Senate for seven years. He first was appointed to the Senate for the term ending in 1954 on the death of Sen. Clyde R. Hoey. He won election to a full term later.

In a 600-word statement of his intention to run again next year, Sen. Ervin cited his appointment by Umstead and said:

"Gov. Umstead said he wanted me to represent North Carolina in the Senate because my prior service in the State Legislature and the Congress had given me substantial experience in the legislative field, and because he believed my prior legal and judicial work would enable me to assist in the defense of constitutional government against those who seek to destroy it for selfish or temporary ends.

"It was under these circumstances that I accepted appointment to the Senate as a call to duty.

"At that time Gov. Umstead required of me this promise and this promise only: that I should be willing to serve North Carolina in the Senate as long as my faculties remained substantially unimpaired. He gave me this reason for requiring this promise of me: experience is the most efficient teacher of all things, and in consequence the ability of a senator to serve grows as his service in the Senate lengthens.

"In conformity with my promise to Gov. Umstead, I shall seek re-nomination and re-election to the Senate in 1962."

Ervin is North Carolina's senior senator. Sen. B. Everett Jordan the state's other Senate member, was appointed by Gov. Luther Hodges to succeed the late Sen. W. Kerr Scott and has since been elected to the seat.

Sen. Ervin was born Sept. 27, 1896, a son of Samuel James and Laura Powe Ervin. He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and Harvard Law School and holds honorary degrees from the University of North Carolina.

City Boys Better Learn Farming

RALEIGH (AP)—It looks like city boys had better start learning about farming, if they want to get that girl down on the farm.

A random group of 4-H Club members attending State 4-H Club Week here were asked about their matrimonial preference. More specifically, they were asked which they preferred for a wife (or husband)—one from the city or farm?

Kay Gillette of Stella in Onslow County said "I would most definitely marry a farm boy. Farm boys have had more experience with life, and they certainly know more about raising a family."

Aileen Cotten of Jacksonville seconded the statement. She said, "I would choose the farm boy. Farm boys just know more. After all, with all he has to choose from, his field of knowledge is naturally wider."

If country girls prefer country boys, the feeling is mutual. Richard Blake of Wilmington, a member of the New Hanover High School Senior 4-H Club, said "I plan to be a farmer and I sure want a girl who knows something about my business."

He added, "Farm girls are smarter. They learn how to do things." Jimmie Carroll of Fallston said, "It's a farm girl for me. I intend to make a career of agriculture. And what would a city girl know about my problems?"

Police Searching For Alleged Molester Here

GREENVILLE (AP)—A search for an unidentified man who "molested" a 15-year-old girl on the playground of Third Street School yesterday afternoon.

Police officials said the department received a call at 4:45 p.m. yesterday that a white man was on the school yard molesting a small girl.

Investigators quoted a 15-year-old youngster as saying a man "grabbed" her and said "hello baby girl," then she broke away from the man, and ran.

Farmville Man Severely Burned

Doctors at Pitt Memorial Hospital today said Russell Wells of Farmville is "doing well" today, after being admitted to the medical center yesterday suffering burns to about 40 per cent of his body surface area.

Wells, along with two other persons, was burned yesterday when a bottled gas truck exploded at a tobacco barn six miles South of Farmville on the D. B. Murphy farm.

Investigators said Wells' six-year-old son, Edward, and the driver of a second gas truck, Carl Goodwin of Farmville, both suffered less serious burns from the explosion.

The explosion was set off by a leak in the hose of Wells' truck, being used to fill tanks at the barn. The explosion which demolished the truck Wells was operating set fire to the second vehicle, but firemen from the Farmville Fire Department extinguished the blaze before it, too, blew up.

No damage to the barn was reported. Doctors here today said Wells suffered first and second degree burns to his head and face, arms, back and legs, while receiving third degree burns to his hands.

RARE EXECUTION

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—Northern Ireland today had its first legal execution since 1942. Samuel McLaughlin, 40, a foundry worker, was hanged for strangling his wife.

Bourguiba Avers Truce Violated

TUNIS (AP)—Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba accused France today of violating the U.N. Security Council's Bizerte ceasefire order by refusing to withdraw to their prebattle positions and by extending their hold on Tunisian territory.

Bourguiba warned at a news conference that fighting may break out again. He said he had told nations that had offered volunteers to help Tunisia that he needed trained guerrilla fighters, planes based in Tunisia or other countries, arms and mobile anti-aircraft batteries.

Bourguiba did not accuse the French of renewing the attack. But he said if they did not withdraw from Bizerte city into the naval base enclave, "fighting is bound to start again."

"We have decided to resist until the end and we are prepared for new hostilities," the president declared.

"We have decided to inform the Security Council that this cannot continue. This situation cannot last indefinitely."

While Bourguiba spoke, U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold conferred with Tunisian officials in an effort to keep the crisis from reaching bigger proportions.

Hammarskjold, who arrived in the Tunisian capital Monday at Bourguiba's invitation, was studying Tunisia's case against France in one of the thorniest and most difficult tasks of his career.

A number of Tunisians doubted that the U.N. official would produce a solution that would satisfy Tunisia, which wants total unconditional French withdrawal from the Bizerte base.

Hammarskjold had a three-hour session Monday night with Bourguiba which a Tunisian official described as exploratory.

The U.N. chief was tight-lipped when he emerged from Bourguiba's seaside summer palace 10 miles outside the capital. His only comment to newsmen was that he had not scheduled a visit to the city of Bizerte, which the French in four days of bloody fighting captured before a ceasefire call from the U.N. Security Council stopped the shooting.

The secretary-general, who described the crisis as "a matter of urgency," was reported to have told officials he could not foresee how many days his mission would take. U.N. sources in New York said Hammarskjold was expected to return Thursday.

A Tunisian delegation source at U.N. headquarters in New York said another Security Council session on Bizerte was virtually certain late this week.

The Tunisians accused France of flouting the council's resolution, which also called on both sides to return to their prebattle positions in Bizerte. French government sources have said France would not pull back until the Tunisian government guarantees her free communications to and between the various installations of her huge naval and air base at Bizerte.

Gagarin To Lead Havana Paraders

HAVANA (AP)—Soviet space man Yuri Gagarin was to lead an hours-long parade of 70,000 athletes and dancers through the streets of Havana today in celebration of the eighth anniversary of Fidel Castro's revolutionary movement. It was the second day in town for Gagarin, 27, who got a rainy hero's welcome Monday on his arrival for the four-day celebration of the 26th of July Movement.

Prime Minister Castro personally escorted the Soviet major through a round of social functions. Wherever they went the Cubans cheered wildly.

A drenching thunderstorm broke as the Soviet plane bringing Gagarin landed at flag-decked Jose Marti Airport outside Havana.

Gagarin and the welcoming delegation were soaked to the skin. Castro, dripping, threw his arms around the smiling spaceman and gave him a clammy bear hug.

Gagarin flashed his wide grin at the spectators, then rode with Castro and President Osvaldo Dorticos into Havana in an open-topped car. In some places along the 10-mile route cheering crowds stood knee-deep in water.

Thousands more crowded the presidential palace where Gagarin and Castro appeared at an evening reception.

The government without explanation canceled the final big event of the anniversary festivities, a trip to Giron Beach for the unveiling of a memorial to Cuban defenders killed there in the ill-fated anti-Castro invasion last April. Castro, Gagarin and a party of officials, diplomats and foreign guests were to attend the ceremony.

The two boys were identified as George Thomas Gladston, 17, Rt. 8, Greenville, and Bobby L. White-

With Farm Women

By MAIDRED MORRIS
TRY BOILABLE POUCHES. If you can boil water, you can enjoy your wife's cooking even though she may be out of town. Wayne Lee found that out when Mrs. Lee was away on a tour.

According to Mrs. Virginia Evins, home economics agent, Mrs. Lee prepared her husband's meals in boilable pouches. A complete meal can be prepared in a plastic bag and frozen. It can be heated by dropping the bag into boiling water a few minutes.

VITAMIN C RICH FOODS. How much vitamin C rich food do you need to conserve and how do you conserve it? Homemakers in Rockingham County have found in their study of vitamin C foods that rural people in North Carolina spent $275 million dollars last year for food which could have been produced at home.

Miss Isabelle Buckley, home economics agent, reports the local club women are improving their conservation practices so the quality and flavor of their food will be improved.

WINS SEWING MACHINE. The Grantham Home Demonstration Club members in Wayne County can now boast of having a new sewing machine for their club.

According to Miss Nancy Lewis, home economics agent, the club women collected $276.72 for the annual cancer drive as one of their community service projects. Since they collected the largest amount in the county, they were presented a new sewing machine.

CLOTHING LEADERS IN ACTION. Mrs. Nell Parsons, president of the Cullasaja Home Demonstration Club, reports their project leaders are active in Macon County.

When Mrs. Florence Sherrill, home economics agent, was absent from the club meeting, the two clothing leaders, Mrs. Fred Palmer and Mrs. Emma Jane Phillips gave a demonstration. They demonstrated how to set in sleeves and put in a zipper.

WATCH FOR CARPET MOTHS. "Homemakers need to keep a watchful eye for moths in wool carpets," says Mrs. Sara Stewart, home economics agent in Cabarrus County. Although Mrs.

Hugh Blackwelder of Concord had her carpet treated for moths, she found the treatment did not last and moths were in her rug. "You should remember to open the room for air and light often and to spray if needed," says Mrs. Stewart. "Proper cleaning and air circulation are important too in getting rid of the moths."

Cleanliness can be "contagious." A person who sparkles with a "soap-and-water-look" inspires others to emulate that good example.

C. W. Willard, who retired July 1 from 26 years of service with the Greenville Utilities Commission, was honored guest at a recent dinner.

He was head bookkeeper with the commission at the time of his retirement.

The dinner was attended by members of the Greenville Utilities Commission who worked with Willard and department heads. During the evening, the honored guest was presented a gift certificate by Utilities Director L. P. Bloxam on behalf of his fellow employees.

Master of ceremonies for the dinner was Paul Flye, also of the Greenville Utilities Commission. Entertainment included a song sung and played by Jesse Boyd, who rendered "There's A God Somewhere." Group singing also took place.

Employees and their husbands and wives attended.

Tables were decorated with assorted summer flowers.

ECC Student Is Contest Winner

NEW YORK—An East Carolina College student, John T. Dobson, has been named a winner in "Time" magazine's 25th annual Current Affairs Contest.

Dobson is a student in Herbert R. Carlton's class at East Carolina College in Greenville.

The test consisted of 100 questions on national and foreign affairs, including such categories as business, sports, entertainment, science, religion, literature, journalism, education and a special review section of the past decade. Top scorers in each of the more than 2,500 classes enrolled in the Time Education Program receive a certificate from The Weekly Newsmagazine and a choice of either a world globe or a book from a specially selected list.

'Cinderella Year' For Miss Harris

Miss Nancy Harris, Rotary International Fellow who studied at the University of Grenoble in France for the past year, spoke to the Greenville Rotary Club last night on her year in France.

Miss Harris, a native of Greenville, was sponsored by the local Rotary Club for the Rotary International Fellowship for a year's study abroad.

"It was a Cinderella year for me," Miss Harris told her audience. "I don't know how I can ever repay the Rotarians of Greenville and Rotary International for what was done for me during this past year."

Miss Harris left Greenville for France last August and studied French in Paris for two months before enrolling at the University of Grenoble in October. The university at which she studied has an enrollment of approximately 10,000 students. "I was surprised to learn after my arrival that almost 1,000 were foreign students, and these included almost 200 Americans," Miss Harris said.

During her year of study at the University of Grenoble Miss Harris spoke to several Rotary Clubs in France and on week-ends visited with families of Rotarians. The university system in France, she said, is quite different from that in the United States, and "the schools are much tougher than our colleges and universities here in the United States." Students in the French universities, she said, have to work considerably harder on their studies to pass their work than their counterparts in the United States. The number of students who attend the universities, she said, is considerably smaller than in the United States even though the cost of attending the universities is much less than in the United States because of the government support the universities receive.

For the most part, she said, the university system in France is pointed toward men students with women students far outnumbered by men.

Miss Harris was presented to the local Rotary Club last night by Dr. James Fleming who also welcomed her home and to the Greenville Rotary Club.

Butler Speaks To Ayden Rotary

AYDEN—Past District Governor of Rotary Jim Butler of Greenville reviewed some Rotary events during the past 24 years at Friday night's meeting of the Ayden Rotary Club, held in the Community Building.

Butler has been a member of the Rotary Club for the past 24 years and told of his experiences with the various clubs, and specifically the Pitt County Clubs during the year that he served as district governor (1946-47).

Butler emphasized the fact that the Pitt County clubs have the capacity for supporting an overseas student at East Carolina College and he challenged the some 200 men who comprise the Pitt clubs to consider the idea.

During the meeting it was pointed out that Aug. 31 is the deadline for submitting a nominee for the office of district governor. The Ayden Club has so far not nominated anyone.

Visitors at the meeting included W.A. McAdams, superintendent of Farmville utilities, and mayor O.G. Spell of the Farmville Club, and Sam Jenkins of Walstonburg, who was the guest of Snodie Edwards.

President Gwynn Merritt presided at the meeting.

Members were reminded of the cook out at Camp Contentment at 6:30 Friday, as the regular meeting.

Camp Program Is Nearing End

Pitt District Scout Executive Rudy Alexander today reminded district scouters who have not yet registered for summer camp at Camp Charles that only two weeks of the camping program remain.

He said two weeks of Pioneer Camp will wind up this summer's program. The two weeks begin Sunday, July 30 and end Saturday, Aug. 12.

There are still a few places available during the two weeks, Alexander said.

The scout executive reported a total of 109 district scouts have attended or are registered to attend Camp Charles this summer.

A breakdown by troops showed the following camp attendance:

Bethel Troop 15, 7; Grifton Troop 24, 19; Farmville Troop 25, 14; Greenville Troop 30, 2; Greenville Troop 33, 2; Ayden Troop 34, 3; Fountain Troop 92, 5; Greenville Troop 124, 10; Grimesland Troop 200, 3; Greenville Troop 205, 9; Greenville Troop 340, 17; Greenville Troop 366, 1; Gardnersville Troop 471, 17.

The following troops, Alexander said, have not had members attending Camp Charles this summer: Greenville Troop 9, Greenville Troop 36, Pactolus Troop 162, Red Oak Troop 398, and Bell Arthur Troop 404.

Scout Planning Session Slated

Pitt Scout District Chairman M. E. Cavendish today urged "100 per cent attendance at our annual planning meeting for the district program" tomorrow night at Respects Brothers Barbeque.

In urging District Committee members to attend, Cavendish said, "We need each member to attend to help in planning our district program." He said tomorrow night's session is the "most important district meeting of the year."

The meeting, including a Dutch treat dinner, is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Paylor Attends Raleigh Session

AYDEN—Town Manager Cleveland Paylor, a member of the Accounting Advisory Committee of the Local Government Commission attended a meeting of the committee Thursday in Raleigh.

The meeting was held in the office of the League of Municipalities. The committee was named about a year ago.

The accounting advisory section of the Local Government Commission is an undertaking to bring about more uniform methods of accounting and reporting and to render assistance to local units in improving their accounting and internal control systems.

The Open-Window Policy Pays Off

With its second successful manned space flight undertaken in full public view, the United States has achieved another psychological victory of the space age and has likewise shown that its program toward manned probes of space is steadily moving forward.

By openly conducting its two tests of manned flights into space, the United States clearly took a calculated risk on the success of the flights. Had either been unsuccessful there would have been throughout the world an adverse affect upon the prestige of the United States. The fact that both the flight by Cmdr. Sheppard and the more recent flight by Capt. Grissom were successful has bolstered confidence within the United States and abroad in the American space program.

The contrast between these space tests and those of the Soviet Union which have been closely guarded secrets is obvious throughout the world. The United States has set a pattern of allowing the world to view its tests whether they are successes or failures. The Soviet Union, on the other hand, has followed the course of announcing what it decides to announce about its space tests . . . and usually considerably after the tests have been completed.

This difference in the attitudes of the two governments alone has brought about considerable questioning of the Soviet successes by many people. The fact that the United States has publicly acknowledged many failures in its space program while the Soviet Union has acknowledged only successful tests raises the question of Soviet failures. It likewise casts a shadow of suspicion on the claims of success by the Soviet Union.

The "open-window" policy adopted by the United States in its space testing is, in our opinion, a wise decision. It has provided for the American space program considerably more publicity around the world than otherwise could have possibly been expected, and at the same time it has shown to the world that the United States has great confidence in the progress of its space program.

Even though there may be failures in the future which are viewed by the public at home and abroad, the very fact that the U.S. maintains its "open-window" policy on space tests will continue to stand this nation in good stead in the eyes of people at home and abroad.

Understandably A Bit Hurricane-Nervous

It is understandable that Tar Heels—particularly those in the eastern part of the state—became edgy last week when the tropical disturbance far to the south became the first full-blown hurricane of the season. And it is also understandable that these same people breathed a sigh of relief when the storm settled on a path that took it far from the east coast of the United States.

In recent years hurricanes have caused damage along the Carolina coast running into millions of dollars. Some residents along the coast have seen their homes swept away and others have suffered severe damage. Many farmers on one or more occasions have seen almost an entire year's work destroyed by wind, rain and rising water, others have seen their fields heavily damaged.

Little wonder, then, that Eastern North Carolina has become hurricane-shy. Little wonder that even the suggestion of a hurricane in the making a couple of thousand miles to the South causes the people to follow with great interest the development and movement of the storm.

There is no way of knowing what the current hurricane season will bring to Eastern North Carolina. But there is some consolation in the fact that the section, now experienced with these storms, has learned to take precautions to minimize the loss of property insofar as possible and to keep injuries and loss of life to a minimum. At the outset of another hurricane season, Tar Heels might well review the list of hurricane precautions advised in the past and prepare themselves to cope with a hurricane emergency should one come to this area in the next few months.

We'll Compare Fireside Chats

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—By the time President Kennedy finishes his TV and radio talk to the nation tonight, those who remember President Roosevelt, granddaddy of the fireside chat, will be comparing the two men.

This is inevitable, but it is too soon for solid appraisals. There are similarities between them. But there are also sharp contrasts. The problems they inherited are very different.

In a flip moment years ago Gertrude Stein called Ezra Pound a "village explainer." In these confused times a president must be a national explainer and a persuader, too, if he wants public support.

Roosevelt had an instinct for this. Kennedy has seemed hesitant about it.

Theodore H. White, a reporter who last year covered both the primary and presidential campaigns and has now written an excellent book about them—"The Making of the President 1960"—says:

"Franklin D. Roosevelt, more than any other president, could exert American influence on the great world because he knew how to mobilize the internal politics of America to support America's purpose. A president governing the United States can move events only if he can first persuade."

Roosevelt had a beginning advantage over Kennedy in leadership. He was governor of New York before he was president. It was while he was governor that he began his fireside chats to New Yorkers and found they worked.

No wonder he made quick use of the technique in the White House. He had his first national fireside chat at the end of his first week in the presidency, assuring people their money in the closed banks was secure.

Kennedy has been on TV many times since January but his first direct talk to the people didn't come until June 6. This was mostly limited to a report on his Vienna meeting with Premier Khrushchev.

Tonight's talk will be the first in the classic tradition of explaining and persuading. This, unlike Roosevelt's first talk on financial security, will be on national security, dealing with Russia and defending Berlin. The difference in the nature of the two men's talks is the difference in the major problems they inherited. For Roosevelt it was domestic, for Kennedy foreign. Roosevelt stepped into an immediate showdown. Kennedy's showdown was still months away.

Roosevelt inherited a country flat on its back, broke, with over 13 million unemployed. The United States then was isolationist and remote. The trouble in Europe was years away.

Kennedy inherited a recession, and over five million unemployed. But there was no emergency. He knew where the real trouble lay.

A month before his election he had predicted: "The next president in the first year is going to be faced with a very serious situation with our defense of Berlin . . . It is going to be a test of our nerve and will." Sure enough, in June Khrushchev made Berlin an issue.

The similarities between Roosevelt and Kennedy are less subtle than the differences. Both promised action and provided it, but not always. Both were experienced politicians as they showed in their early dealings with Congress. Each showed in his first inaugural address he could manufacture memorable phrases.

James MacGregor Burns, who has written biographies of both men, said Roosevelt in his early days hated to antagonize people. This goes far to explain the mishap of early legislation Roosevelt threw at Congress. Burns says, "Try as he might, the most resourceful political philosopher could not extract consistency from the jumble."

Kennedy doesn't go out of his way to make enemies in Congress, either. For example: his failure to make good on his campaign promise of quick action on civil rights legislation, which would have antagonized Southern Democrats.

Some Roosevelt-Kennedy differences showed up at the start of their presidencies. As soon as he was sworn in March 4, 1933, Roosevelt called a special session of Congress to pass emergency banking legislation. But he apparently still

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

BETTER AS IT IS William Penn was at one time during his career the largest English land owner. He owned that portion of the United States now known as Pennsylvania. Yet it was while he had this huge amount of real estate that he was thrown into prison for debt.

We have often heard of people being land poor. We are sometimes rich on one side of our lives and poor on the other. Often we look at people and wish we might exchange places with them. They have popularity, good looks, money, influence, and social position. Oh, if we could only trade places with them! What a relief it would be to get out of this humdrum existence of ours. Yet few people, if they knew the truth, would exchange their lot for the lot of anyone else. William Penn had vast areas of land, but throughout the whole of his life he was plagued with money trouble. George Washington had every honor that could be conferred on a human being, yet he was always short of cash. Furthermore, he carried about with him the memory of poignant disappointments.

The Lord knew what He was about when He put us right here we are doing the work we are doing every day. Don't try to improve on the Lord. You may end up getting a rap across your knuckles.

Now About Guinea Pigs

Here is a human interest story so labeled by persons other than yours truly: It seems that one ABC agent H. B. Lilley was talking to a person who will be unnamed. First he told this person about three snakes (rattlesnakes) which he killed near some bridge in Pitt County after Sunday's sudden rain. The snakes had come up to the drier road. The moral to this one is don't go near the water in this particular spot after a rain in the summer.

Then Mr. Lilley commenced to tell this unidentified person about a guinea pig which a little boy has. He began by telling this person that the boy has a guinea pig. Then he continued by saying that he picked up the animal (ugh) by the tail and that is something you should not do with guinea pigs since their eyes are affected and will fall out (ugh).

(This gets worse as you go along.)

So the moral to that one is that you should not pick up said animal by said appendage. However, the listener did not fall for that old line. No, sir. That person remembered a lot of things read in the past and immediately chimed in about eyes being attached to muscles and all such things (which may or may not be true, but it sounded good) and so Mr. Lilley could not possibly be telling the straight truth. This person went on and on.

This person may have been right. But Mr. Lilley was going to have his say and his day. It was he, who in the end, triumphed. After all the tirade was over, Mr. Lilley concluded by informing the audience which had now gathered that these terrible little animals didn't even have tails. So knowledge about eyes and such doesn't seem to matter. In this case, it wasn't practical.

The moral? Don't ask us. We are merely the victims of circumstances.

Another little interesting episode occurred this morning as we were beginning our descent from our driveway, and half way down we woke up abruptly when we noticed some silver "No-park" signs on high stands out in front of our house and one across the street. There were three cars parked there, but no parking tickets.

Well, that served a purpose. It woke us up and prepared us for the kind of life we humans lead, ironic and twisting, never to be trusted.

Those signs, we concluded after waking, were put there by a person or persons suspected, but not by the police department who would have done a much more thorough job of things.

At least we parked in the drive for a change.

A Race To Be Won

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The evidence of survival is survival. The evidence of victory is the attainment of goals and purposes. In our conflict with Soviet Russia, it cannot be said that we are succeeding or failing because we have not stated our goals and purposes; we have not made it clear that we have any or want any. Instead, it would appear that we are playing along by ear. From Roosevelt through Eisenhower, ours has been an exercise in opportunism and we have survived.

However, the arms race is a practical factor in the battle for survival from two standpoints: 1. The actual accumulation of the means of destruction and defense in such quantities and efficiencies that there can be no doubt as to eventual victory; 2. What will such preparedness do to our economy; what will it do to our social and political institutions? How much can we afford to expend of our national wealth before we are forced to lower our standard of living? Or to put it another way, can we maintain our way of life, both economically and politically, under the pressure of prolonged preparation for war?

Senator J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has said: "The answer, of course, is policy. We must develop policies against which we can properly evaluate our initiatives and our responses to critical events. We must also develop style."

It is a little late in the game to develop policies. We have been engaged in an effort to establish world leadership for years. During that period, changes have been wrought in human institutions such as have not been made in a thousand years or more. Do we move like an inhuman juggernaut, not knowing where we go, responding to challenges by enormous efforts and then subsiding to lick our wounds?

This is not functioning according to policy as the Monroe Doctrine, the Hay Open Door Policy, the freedom of the seas which were specific American policies to which we adhered rigidly. We could gamble that in such matters we meant what we said and that we would act if the events called upon us to support our position.

When Senator Fulbright uses the word, style, it is much like saying that our opportunism has been undignified and even meaningless. His own definition of the term is:

"It is style—our performance as a nation and a great power—that determines the credibility of our policies. In the present struggle, style is as important as power."

The functioning of the State Department during the first half year of the Kennedy Administration has been without style as Senator Fulbright defines it. The fault has been in the President's desire to assemble as much talent as he could get to work under one roof.

But he brought together too many men who regard themselves of equal rank and wisdom. Thus the President and Secretary of State have been faced by the private views of Chester Bowles, who regards himself as an expert on Asia, although his only relationship to that continent has been a short tenure as Ambassador to India. There he fell under the mystic spell of Nehru whose concern is India, not the United States.

Just as Bowles has been confusing American policy toward Asia, so must Allen Dulles of the CIA assume full responsibility for the Cuban fiasco. Just as Anthony Eden resigned when the Suez fiasco brought obloquy upon his government, so Allen Dulles should have resigned when the activities of the CIA regarding Cuba proved to be amateurish and ridiculous.

There can be an excess of talent. That is why no symphony orchestra is made up of concert artists, each one of whom plays according to his own interpretation. Such an orchestra would sound like a collection of madmen and that, of course, is what happens when too much talent is brought together under the roof of the State Department. Dean Rusk, Dean Acheson, (Continued on page five)

Other Editors Sayings . . . E. Germany Bleeds Away

(Richmond News Leader)

The United States' formal statement on Berlin now has been followed by Mr. Kennedy's supplementary statement before his Wednesday press conference. Because this newspaper has been sharply critical of the Administration's delays and equivocations on Berlin, it is all the more gratifying to be able to say that the two statements impress us as excellent presentations of the Western position. It took Mr. Kennedy an unbecomingly long time to say what he should have said a month ago, but this double-barreled reply to Mr. Khrushchev, now that it has been fired, is right on target.

In addition to all the excellent reasons summarized by Mr. Kennedy for maintenance of American rights—reasons that are rooted in law and in national honor—other considerations, less exalted but nonetheless real, strongly support an American posture of firmness at this time. We have in mind especially the growing weakness of the Soviet satellite known as "East Germany." Here is an advantage to be carefully exploited, if only the cards are rightly played.

The East German Republic, so called, is bleeding desperately. In the past several weeks, the flow of refugees from the Communist East into the haven of West Berlin has become a flood. Upwards of 1,500 persons a day are pouring into the Marienfelde Refugee Center. Overwhelmingly, these are the young and the industrious. Three-quarters of the refugees are under 45. Their mass flight, taken under the risk of prison terms if they are caught, is damning evidence of the unpopularity of the Communist regime.

East Germany stands alone in one respect: It is the only country in Europe now losing population. Despite a high birth rate, it has lost more than a million persons, net, in the past twelve years. Those who have fled to freedom have left mounting problems behind. Critical labor shortages have compelled the Communist rulers to press women into industrial jobs, to impose a six-day work week, and to abandon many plans once trumpeted for industrial expansion. Housing schedules are far behind; East German currency is nearly worthless; production of milk and cheese continues to drop.

More significant still, as the Washington Journal reported the other day, are the multiplying signs of political rebellion. Recent weeks have seen the Communist 68-year-old puppet, Walter Ulbricht, openly heckled. Letters have appeared in the East German press suggesting that German reunification is more important than a separate peace treaty with Russia.

These and other symptoms speak of a political sickness that must give Mr. Khrushchev serious qualms. If East Germany itself can not be relied upon in a showdown called for the benefit of East Germany, Soviet prestige could well be damaged rather than enhanced by forcing the Berlin issue. Germans who live in the Soviet zone are still Germans, an intelligent and strong-minded people. Can Mr. Khrushchev be certain of their submissiveness? Absolutely certain?

We are certainly not suggesting that cloak-and-dagger boys from the CIA be rushed into East Germany bearing amateur plans to stir up an abortive revolution. We are suggesting that every device of propaganda and political maneuver be employed against the Ulbricht regime. The weaker its hold on the resentful people of East Germany, the stronger the Western position becomes in the eyes of Europe. The Communists are in trouble in East Germany; but their troubles are not yet so bad that the West, by skillful action, could not make them worse.

U.S. Attention Not Diverted

By ELMER ROESSNER

The Berlin crisis is not diverting United States attention from the critical situation in Latin America. In fact, some in Washington think the Berlin affair was engineered to soften Yankee determination to aid Latin Americans. (However, more believe it was designed to divert Russians' attention from food and economic failure at home). So: Expect greater efforts to shore up Latin American governments, especially the democratic ones, and:

Look for a coffee-price plan that will stabilize incomes of the coffee republics. This could do more to restore prosperity and good prosperity and good will south of the border than two brigades of Peace Corpsmen.

Taft-Hartley Act amendment is coming. Washington agrees. President Kennedy's greatest embarrassment so far was the necessity of invoking the Taft-Hartley Act, which he opposed in Congress, to stave off national calamity in the shipping strike. Loyal Democrats are working on a new labor law which will permit interdiction of critical strikes without putting JFK on the hot spot. More packaging complaints will be aired despite the adjournment of Congress. The subcommittee headed by Senator Philip A. Hart (D., Mich.) will continue investigations during recess and when Congress reconvenes in the fall, will trigger a blast that will singe many food manufacturers. If you have a beef, write Senator Hart, Senate Office Building, Washington 25, D. C.

Zone-lead production aid may soon come from Congress, for small companies if not large ones. The producers of these metals have had hard times in recent years and because of rising defense needs, it may be necessary to provide government subsidies, especially for smaller companies.

More apartments available. Rental construction appears to have caught up with family formation, and families have wide choice of rentals in middle-class apartment buildings. However, single-family homes are still about level with demand. SPEED UP SIGNAL. More small defense contracts. The Defense Department, trying to anticipate pressure from Congress, is insisting that prime contractors spread more subcontracts with small firms. Prime contractors are being given the tip that unless they take such action, Congress will make it mandatory.

Lua boom: The fad for "luau," Polynesian banquets, is spreading fast. There are rising demand for Oceanic foods and for equipment for cooking them. Pacific hotels and Hawaiian resorts are featuring luau food, (the variety is endless) and luau restaurants are springing up all over. Many businessmen will ask: "Can I make a food, a utensil or an accessory that can ride this fad?" Yes answers pay off.

A sensational new agriculture technique, which involves neither chemicals nor atomic radiation, will be disclosed by the Department of Agriculture in a few days. It may increase American agricultural production vastly. SAYS SENATOR PROXMIER

HAS PENNIES CROSSED The Old Promoter was irate today about proposed laws to withhold a share of dividends and interest at the source. He was particularly angry about a statement by Senator William Proxmire, who said the process was very simple. "Simply send the Treasury a check at the cost of a 4-cent stamp. That is the entire cost. It could cost a corporation, no matter how big it is, only 16 cents a year," the Senator's statement said.

"The Senator," said the Old One, "is nuts. The postage may be 4 cents, but the cost of computing the withholding, the cost of writing the letter, the cost of reporting the deduction to the investor, the cost of reporting the withholding to the government, and the cost of writing and signing the check, and the cost of auditing the accounts, would be nearer $16 than 16 cents a year. For less than $16, the Senator could mail his head from Madison, Wisconsin, to the Mayo Clinic."

We calmed the old one down, but he was still mumbling when he left.

Parking Fee Plan Draws Jeers And Rocks Of Crowd

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An angry, jeering crowd of 2,000 persons hurled rocks and eggs and shouted profanity at Mayor Richardson Dilworth Monday night as he tried to defend his controversial $40-a-year parking fee plan. Several persons reportedly were injuring Councilman Gaetano P. Giordano, who opposes the plan. Giordano, a Democrat as is Dilworth, represents the South Philadelphia district where the mayor wants to set up the experimental plan. He pleaded for the crowd to hear the mayor out. He suffered a cut eye when hit by either a rock or flying glass in the school auditorium where the mayor spoke.

Some of the crowd smashed the rear window of a police car in which two boys who had been arrested were placed. Several persons smashed five windows of the car of Edward Lain, 21, a newsman for television station WRCV. All available highway patrolmen were sent to reinforce 40 regular officers who had been detailed to the meeting.

Dilworth was led from the stormy meeting by police and driven to his Society Hill home where officers stayed on guard overnight. He said "a small core of about 10 to 12 young fellows seemed to trigger it all."

The outcry of "Let's crash it" by a group of 10 husky youths reportedly touched off the violence outside the auditorium. There were about 500 persons inside the auditorium and 1,500 others outside in the schoolyard.

From the outside crowd came a barrage of rocks and bottles which crashed through panes of glass in the auditorium. Radio stations WRCV and WCAU were cut off from their remote broadcasts when telephone lines were ripped off. One group tried to overturn a mobile radio car.

Dilworth, his wife standing by him, declared that he was "going to say what I've come to say regardless of what you do."

"Down with Dilworth," shouted the crowd. The mayor shouted himself hoarse and never did finish his prepared text in which he defended his plan by saying that "the problem with which we are faced is the problem of the automobile threatening to engulf our city."

Protests have mounted since Dilworth announced his plan for an area covering 16 streets. Car owners would have to pay the fee to park their cars either on the streets or in a municipal parking lot. Parking is free in the area now, but prohibited on one side of the street.

Swedish Troops Assigned Congo

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Swedish soldiers serving with the United Nations forces in Palestine will be transferred to the Congo to replace Tunisian units called home, the Swedish Foreign Ministry said Monday.

Tunisia's decision to call home its 3,200 troops in the Congo because of the Bizerte crisis seriously weakens U.N. forces there.

All Looking To Uncle Sam For CD Outlays

EDITOR'S NOTE—In this second of four articles on the posture of U.S. civil defense, Sterling F. Green discusses financial aspects of the program as well as the present hazard, the problem it presents and the proposed start toward a solution.

Civil Defense No. 2—Money and Hazards
By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — With public concern over civil defense sharpening, officials think Congress may be induced at last to provide a vital ingredient—money, in big quantities.

When mayors governors and local civil defense officials call for "more vigorous federal leadership," it usually means they want Uncle Sam to put up the money that overburdened city treasuries cannot provide. The Kennedy administration has accepted the view that the job is worth doing and that the government must foot much of the bill to get a national shelter program going.

In three long sentences, here is the threat, the problem it presents, and the administration's proposed start toward a solution.

The hazard: In a successful, surprise nuclear assault by missiles and bombers, 70 million Americans might be exposed to death or disability by blast, radiation and fallout, while panic, confusion, and hunger might be spread through much of the surviving population.

The problem: To save as many as possible—perhaps half of the 70 million in the prime danger zones—from the wind-borne, radiation-laden dust which is called fallout and which might reach 75 to 80 per cent of the whole land area; this would leave about 150 million Americans still alive to work and fight.

President Kennedy's recommended solution: With some $200 million to be provided on top of the $100 million already asked, to start surveying, marking and improving potential shelters in existing apartment houses, office buildings, schools, dormitories, factories and warehouses; to install shelters in new and old federal structures, and to match state and local funds for shelters in local public buildings.

With such a concentration of shelter zones across the country it would be possible to protect virtually the entire population of those cities which are spared from actual nuclear blasts, officially believe. A preliminary survey indicates, for instance, that Kansas City, Mo., could be made relatively safe from fallout without any new construction.

This implies that stocks of food and medical supplies would be on hand. Providing them will take still more federal and local dollars. The President said that his budget requests "will increase sharply in subsequent years." (Wednesday—Reservoir of Assets)

Versatility Keeping Roger Moore Busy

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

ROME (AP)—Last time I saw Roger Moore, he was cheating at cards as the Mavericks' British cousin.

Now he's here playing the first Roman of them all in a busy epic called "Rape of the Sabines."

Versatile, this Moore. Matter of fact, his versatility has propelled him to three Hollywood contracts. Nursing his wounds from the last one, he analyzed his career in the studios.

"I first went to MGM to make pictures like 'The King's Thief' and 'Diane.' It was the end of the costume-picture cycle, and that was that."

"Then Columbia hired me to do the 'Ivanhoe' TV series. The net-

Marlow (Continued from Page 4) didn't have other necessary programs clear in his head when he took office.

Arthur Schlesinger Jr., who has written the most detailed history of the Roosevelt era, says that after the President got his banking measure through he thought of letting Congress go home. He changed his mind and, using the emergency, rammed through the "jumble" Burns complained of.

In contrast Kennedy had his programs pretty well organized in tick-tack-toe order to offer Congress. But where Roosevelt was bold and experimental, Kennedy is conservative and, so far, cautious in dealing with Congress—so much so that at this point he seems to be coax-

Daring Theft From Jail Cell
PUNTA GORDA, Fla. (AP)—Someone broke a lock to a cell door in Charlotte County's new jail over the weekend and made off with tools belonging to an ironworker crew and some jail supplies.

The cell is located less than 50 feet from the sheriff's office. There was one patent issued in 1960 for every 4,273 persons in the United States.

works said costume series were dead, so we made 39 for syndication and called it quits.

"Warners hired me for 'The Miracle,' which was the last of the religious pictures. They put me in the 'Alaskans' for TV, and I think that ended Alaskan TV series for all-time.

"Then they put me in 'Maverick.' "I think you will find that I have helped end the Western cycle in TV."

Moore rebelled when Warners tried to put him in another Western series called "Tenderfoot."

"How can you keep thinking I'm a Western type?" the English actor exploded. "Already in 'Maverick' you've had to re-dub 700 of my 'beens' because they came out 'bean' instead of 'bin.'"

Roger made it clear he wanted out. The studio agreed—provided Roger fork over some cash.

But Roger declined and made noises of a public ruckus with the studio. "And you know how the old man (J. L. Warner) hates that," he told the brass.

The actor was released—after he did a two-part "Roaring Twenties" aimed at TV in the U.S. and theaters abroad.

Today we find him in ancient Rome playing Romulus, the fellow who rounded up the Sabine girls. It's quite a film company. The producer is English. The production outfit is Italian, the actors are Italian, French and Yugoslavian — and many exteriors were shot in Yugoslavia. Oh, yes, there's one Englishman in the cast—Roger.

Chester Bowles, Adlai Stevenson, and the other great minds must pull each his own way and according to his definition of his integrity. Then to them we must add the President and his private experts who also have views of their own and the President's views are final.

Thus we create confusion which established neither policy nor a propriety. President Kennedy will be forced by events and the needs of his office to rid himself of conflicting personalities.

Congress Doubts Kennedy Planning A Crash Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress appears ready to support an expected request by President Kennedy for an increase of $3 billion or more in defense spending.

But there is a sharp difference of opinion among members on whether action should be taken at this time to increase taxes.

Kennedy outlines to the nation in a television-radio broadcast tonight the grave challenge raised by Soviet Premier Khrushchev's threat to try to squeeze the West out of Berlin.

The President will follow this up Wednesday with a message asking Congress for funds to bolster the nation's defense capabilities.

The general belief among the lawmakers is that Kennedy has ruled out any crash program and will ask for an orderly step up in the strength of Marine and Army ground forces, plus more intensive training for National Guard and reserve units.

To pay for all of this some members of Congress have argued that Kennedy should ask for an immediate increase in corporation and personal income taxes.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Democratic leader, said he is one of those who personally urged Kennedy to seek new taxes.

"I think the President should lay the Berlin situation before the people bluntly and should ask for the taxes needed to pay for strengthening our defenses," Humphrey said.

Humphrey said, however, that the President had been urged by other members to defer any tax request until it can be determined later whether present tax rates will bring in sufficient revenue to avoid any large deficit.

There were reports that Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, had argued for an effort to cut non-defense spending and a delay in any decision on new taxes until January.

Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., of the Senate Finance Committee, said that if any recommendations for tax rises are imminent he had not heard of them.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, a member of Byrd's committee, told the Senate Monday that it would be cynical for the President to ask tax increases on the basis of increased defense expenditures.

He said Kennedy hadn't asked for proposed increases in civilian spending.

Rep. Earl Wilson, R-Ind., a member of the House Appropriations Committee, wrote Kennedy urging him to cut domestic spending measures in favor of the military preparedness program.

Old Airplanes Are His Hobby

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Fred Simmons of Shelby collects old airplanes like some people collect antique automobiles and grandfather clocks.

He has airplanes all over his place—in the basement of his office in the back yard of his home and in the hangar of the Shelby airport.

The Shelby architect first became interested in airplanes about 30 years ago. While he was in high school, he built and piloted his own airplane.

Although he is a licensed pilot, his main interest in planes now is rebuilding and putting the old ones back into flying condition. He will go about anywhere to find an old airplane.

"I don't have any idea how many I've rebuilt," he said.

He began collecting outmoded airplanes in 1936 when he bought an old one that had cracked up. The airplane he has rebuilt range from several 1928 models to a 1942 model.

Some of the old airplanes are crash victims. Others have just been neglected and have fallen into a state of disrepair.

"Most of them are too far gone to rebuild," Simmons said. "So I use the parts to rebuild others."

Actually, Simmons started out to make aeronautics his profession. But while working as a draftsman in a ship yard, someone asked him to design a house. Soon he was busy designing houses and buildings, so he decided to become an architect.

The back yard at Simmons' home causes people to do double takes. It looks as if someone has landed several airplanes there.

Simmons said it is not as dramatic as that. He pulls the airplanes into his back yard with an automobile.

Pilot Discovers Comet In Sky

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—"I've been looking for one all my life," said the man credited with discovering Comet Wilson while flying at 29,000 feet off the Oregon coast.

A. Stewart Wilson, 34, of Seattle, second officer on a Pan American World Airways flight from Honolulu, said he was looking casually for the planet Mercury with his binoculars.

Then a wedge of light appeared and narrowed to a point—the head of a comet.

At San Francisco, other airline pilots also reported seeing a mysterious light Sunday and Monday mornings, but Wilson, an amateur star gazer, apparently was first to report it.

When Wilson got home he tried to telephone Harvard Observatory. He couldn't raise anyone so he wired Monday Harvard reported the discovery and said the name would be Comet Wilson.

The new comet has a long tail and third magnitude brightness, which makes it two to three times dimmer than the North Star but much brighter than the Milky Way.

Harvard said it can be seen in the northeastern sky in early morning.

Mailable Maps Of City Offered

A current map of Greenville, printed on standard stationery-size paper, was displayed to Moose Lodge members last night as the latest undertaking of their Civic Affairs Committee.

Co-Chairman Bob Russ announced 10,000 of the maps had been printed and more would be available as needed. The role of these maps was described as a service to East Carolina College students, patients at Pitt Memorial Hospital, to newcomers in Greenville, and to all Greenville residents.

Russ explained their intended use as the most convenient means of informing a potential visitor or guest how to find their way to their destination. Such maps, he said, could be conveniently mailed, and the sender mark on the map his or her residence.

The Greenville maps will be made available to the Welcome Wagon, placed in the lobby of Pitt Memorial Hospital, and supplied to the Registrar's Office of East Carolina College, distributed to service stations, motels and hotels.

"If we can help advertise Greenville in any way, we want to do so," said Russ.

The annual dinner for the Moose Little League team and their parents will be held tonight at the Moose Lodge. Civic Affairs Co-Chairman Sam Brooks said Moose officers and committee chairmen would also attend. There will be souvenir presentations made to team members.

Foreign Beauties Going Before Judges Monday

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The fun ends and the tension starts Monday night as 52 young women — most from faraway lands — face the judges for the first time in the International Beauty Congress.

The parades, parties and trips to movie studios are over. Now four nights of serious scrutiny will determine who wears the crown of Miss International Beauty and receives top prize of $10,000.

In the initial judging, one-third of the contestants will appear in evening gowns, one-third in play-suits and the rest in native costume. The groups and their attire will be rotated Wednesday and Thursday nights.

The delegates visited Warner Bros. studio Monday, talking with movie and television stars and collecting autographs.

Dog Lover Left Fund For Strays

SCUNTHORPE, England (AP) — Dog lover Jeremiah Green has made a will setting up a 300,000-pound—$840,000—trust fund to build and maintain a luxury home for stray dogs.

"Some people will call me a crank for leaving all my money to dogs," said real estate dealer Green, "but they have been my greatest friends."

The dogs' home will be a memorial to Rusty, a cocker spaniel Green had for 14 years.

Once-Famous Grady Dies Of Old Age

By NORMAN ROWLAND

YUKON, Okla. (AP) — Grady, the cow, a 1,200-pound Hereford who jumped through a 17 by 25½ inch silo feed door into national prominence 12 years ago, died Monday not far from the silo where she spent four confusing days.

Her owner, Bill Mach, said the 18-year old cow "just got tired and died of old age." Mach found Grady dead in her corral on his ranch Monday night.

Grady jumped into the silo on Washington's Birthday in 1949, after having a hard time giving birth to a calf which died.

For the next four days, Grady paced inside the silo, John Randolph, Associated Press staff member at Oklahoma City at the time and now AP general executive for Asia, was one of the first reporters on the scene.

From the time Randolph wrote "hi diddle diddle, the cat and the fiddle, the cow jumped into the silo," until Grady oozed her way out of her prison, the 6-year old bovine held the nation's attention.

Before Grady was freed, Mach heard from folks in 45 states and several foreign countries.

Former Oklahoma Gov. Roy J. Turner, a breeder of Herefords, suggested she be anesthetized so "she can be relaxed and put back through the little door."

An Air Force officer said the Army had a helicopter that could lift Grady out of the silo. This plan didn't materialize.

Some people wanted to dismantle a portion of the silo. There were a block of advocates of greasing Grady so she could squirt through the opening once a little pressure was applied from behind.

One of the grease advocates was Ken Toozill, executive editor of the Toledo (Ohio) Times. Toozill, who was appointed Times' cow editor during Grady's hectic experience, added a new twist by suggesting she be put on a strict diet for a few days before greasing.

The greasers won. Ralph Partridge, Denver Post farm editor, flew here and smeared the fidgety cow with about 10 pounds of axle grease. A veterinarian gave her a sedative to calm her nerves.

A lariat was looped around her dehorned head and manpower was supplied from behind. After a few minutes, Grady caught on, wiggled her hips a couple of times and squeezed through.

Grady settled down, lived quietly afterwards and gave birth to several healthy calves.

She also stayed away from silos.

Two Enlisted In Marine Corps

Edgar James Rodgers II, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rodgers Jr. of 1203 South Wright Street, and Frank Randall Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Jackson of 102 Raleigh Avenue, were enlisted in the Marine Corps last week after making their initial enlistment effective in March of this year.

They actually enlisted in the Marines in March but under the 120 Day Delay Plan option, which they both selected, they took up to four months before departing for training.

Staff Sergeant Leo Smith who maintains his office in Greenville on Mondays at the Court House said that both Pvt. Rodgers and Jackson were at Parris Island, S. C. in "boot" camp.

After 12 weeks of recruit training and four weeks of individual combat training both young men will have 20 days leave at home with their folks before receiving their assignments. Pvt. Rodgers enlisted in the Aviation branch of the Marines and Pvt. Jackson the ground branch. Both young men will receive school training before being assigned to one of the many different posts or stations through-out the world.

Pvt. Rodgers enlisted for four years, and before entering the Marines, attended J. H. Rose High School where he graduated with the class of '61. Pvt. Jackson attended Ayden High school and was a 1961 graduate.

Both young men enlisted under the buddy system.

Control Gadgets Grow With Automation Era

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—You set a gadget that keeps the roast from burning in the oven.

In troubled Kuwait or serene Aruba you would adjust an instrument to make sure that de-salted sea water gets just the right amount of soda ash added, as needed, to make it tasty.

The power generating plant that supplies you with electricity has a device that assures a steady pulsing speed—otherwise your electric clock would never be dependable.

Oilmen use automatic gadgets to move widely differing products through the same complex pipeline networks without mixing.

Huge factories start or stop intricate industrial processes much as your thermostat turns the oven on and off to cook the roast to a turn.

It may be a simple switching device to regulate your furnace heat or the most complicated of electronic automation—it's known as process control. And the making of controls grows steadily and their variety multiplies—so does the list of firms making them.

There are now controls to ride herd on other controls as automation spreads through more industries.

Annual sales of control devices are estimated at around $200 million. And this doesn't include the cost of computers that may be checking up on or improving the operation of these mechanization devices.

"Computer control of processes is rounding out the industrial evolution which began when man discovered the principles of the lever and the wheel," says George E. Beggs Jr. He is executive vice president of Leeds & Northrup of Philadelphia, a veteran maker of control instruments.

During World War I, L. & N. patented an experimental automatic control equipment, forerunner of the refined controls it now makes for industry.

Many automatic controls are involved in the space flights capturing today's headlines.

They have many down to earth uses, too. They regulate not only temperatures, but humidity, pressure, air pollution, acidity, concentration of flow of gas or liquid, radiation, light intensity, mechanical load, weight, size and speed.

Plants such as in Aruba use a control instrument to measure the alkalinity of the desalted water, and if it falls below the standards of human taste the device signals a valve which adds enough soda ash to bring it up to the desired flavor.

Relatively small gadgets can do some mighty big jobs.

Boys Charged With Murder In Arson Felony

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Two boys, 12 and 13 years of age, are charged with committing murder while perpetrating another felony, arson. The two, Frederick A. Wilson, the older, and James C. Rogers, both of nearby Santa Venetia, are accused of setting the North Western Pacific Railway $500,000 tunnel fire in which a fireman died.

District Atty. Roger Garety asked that both be tried in juvenile court.

The charges were filed Monday. Garety said both admitted setting last week's fire which resulted in the tunnel underpinnings being burned out.

Lincoln Avenue sank into the tunnel at one point. Fireman Frank Kinsler, 24, and his truck dropped into the cavity. Shortly afterward an apartment house dropped into the blazing tunnel and burned.

The North State League's all-stars yesterday picked up a run on a passed ball in the third inning and then added three more in the fourth to down their city rivals, the Tar Heel League stars, and move into further Little League playoff competition. The North Staters will travel to Tarboro Thursday for a 4:30 p.m. encounter with the winner of yesterday's match between Roberstonville and Ft. Bragg. John Cayton, star moundsman for the Jaycees during the regular season, scattered a half-dozen Tar Heel hits through the six-inning affair while his mates made the most of only three hits to produce the 4-0 victory. Cayton allowed no free passes and struck out four in gaining credit for the victory. Jack Gordon, the Tar Heel stars' starting pitcher, led his team at the plate with two singles off Cayton in three at-bats. Gordon and his reliever, Billy Brown, teamed to strike out 10 North State batters; however six walks issued by the two hurlers provided baserunners for the North Staters when they got their hits. The North Staters stars scored their first run when Cayton led off the third with a base on balls and scored when a Brown pitch got away from catcher Billy Calloway. When Cayton came across the bases were loaded with free passes; however, Brown struck out Charles Allen and got Bert Bennett on a hopper to second. The North Staters put the game on ice in the fourth inning when Donnie Brewer slammed a long double to left-center with the bases full, Brewer's liner, the only extra base blow of the game, scored Van Harrington and Stuart Jones, who had walked, and Jack Cobb, who had singled. His three-run blow came with two out. Score by innings: Tar Heel . . . . . 000 000-0 6 1 North State . . . . . 001 30x-4 3 1

Gastonia Defeats Elizabeth City In Opening State Teen-er Tourney

Gastonia's Teen-er baseballers this morning opened their national title defense with a 9-4 victory over Elizabeth City's all-stars at Guy Smith Stadium. Gastonia advances into tonight's second round against this morning's second match between Shelby and High Point. Elizabeth City, just one defeat from elimination, dropped into the losers' bracket opposite the losing nine in today's 11 a.m. contest. The losers of today's first round were slated to face each other at 6 p.m. at the stadium while the winners square off under the lights at 8 p.m. The winner of tonight's second game can clinch the State Teen-er title with a victory in the 7:30 p.m. Wednesday game over the winner of tonight's batter of opening round losers. A Thursday morning game would be necessary to decide the title if tonight's second game winner should lose the Wednesday night match with the winner of the losers' bracket. North Carolina's champ, to be decided in the double elimination tourney here, will advance to the C. State College, and Billy Neal Area 4 tournament in Gastonia next Tuesday and Wednesday. The Area 4 champ, along with seven more area winners across the nation, will move to Hershey, Pa., Aug. 14 for the national tourney. The Teen-er program is sponsored throughout the country by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

All-Star Series To End Season

The Small Fry baseball program at Elm Street Park concludes this week with a best-of-three series between all-star teams compiled from the best of the two leagues. Enthusiasm shown by the teams in practice indicates an exciting series. The public is invited to attend. The opening game of the series will be played Wednesday at 5 p.m. with the second game scheduled for the same hour Thursday. If necessary, a third game will be played Friday. All games are scheduled for Elm Street Park. Coaches for the Small Fry program this season have been Tom Katch, student assistant from N. C. State College, and Billy Neal James of Greenville.

Crippled Track Team Improves; Rivals Worry

WARSAW (AP) — The medical report on the crippled United States track team which meets Poland here this weekend began to improve today. The Poles were almost as happy about it as United States coach Jim Elliott. "We don't want to go against a team that has a lot of injuries," said one Polish athletic official. "We have been hearing about the troubles the Americans have been having and have been hoping that they would come around. "If we lose, we want to lose to a team, and if we win we want to beat the best." Elliott said he was amazed that the Poles showed such interest in the welfare of his squad. "Every place I go," he said, "people buttonhole me and ask how our team is doing, if we'll be all right for the meet Saturday and Sunday. "I tell them all I hope so. We couldn't be in any worse shape than we were against Great Britain last weekend. When the mile relay (the last event on the program) came around, I wasn't worrying so much about winning but just about getting four guys who could stand up." At the moment, 10 members of Elliott's 40-man squad are ill or injured. Hop, step and jumper Bill Sharpe's leg was so bad he was sent home Monday. The only one who might miss the meet, however, is javelin thrower John Fromm, who has had a bad pull in his right side. The team will have six days rest between the Great Britain and Polish meets and that should help considerably. Last week, the squad defeated the Russians 13-9, the West Germans 14-6 and Great Britain 13-7.

Newest Hall Of Famer Would Return Spit Ball To Baseball

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)— If the newest Hall of Famer has his way the spit ball is on the way back in baseball. Max Carey, who was formally inducted Monday with the late Billy Hamilton, added his voice to those of Commissioner Ford Frick and American League President Joe Cronin in a plea for the return of the outlawed spitter. "I think the spit ball should come back but not under that name," said Carey, now 71. "Maybe we should call it the emory ball or the saliva ball. It would help the pitchers stop some of those home runs. I think a lot of people like to see the kind of game we used to play when there was suspense about your ability to score a run. I believe in running bases." Carey and Hamilton were two of the great base stealers, ranking with the late Ty Cobb. Hamilton stole 797 bases in the National League, including 115 in 1891 with Philadelphia. Counting two years in the American Association, which called itself a major, he stole 937, higher than Cobb's official record of 892. Carey stole 738, the modern National League record, with Pittsburgh and Brooklyn from 1910 through 1929. Both Frick and Cronin favor the return of the spitter, which some claim is now used illegally by Milwaukee's Lew Burdette and New York's Whitey Ford among others. Carey also proposed a new statistic to be known as "T.A.B. or total advance." It would give credit to hitters who advance a runner around the bases but do not drive in a run. "Say you have a man on first base," said Carey. "The next hitter singles to right field and the runner takes third. The next man hits a fly ball, scoring the runner. He gets a run batted in but the poor guy who made it possible stands on first base with nothing to his credit. "When a batter would ground into a double play he should get minus-one T.A.B. for losing a base runner." "Under that system a 250-hitter might turn out to be the most valuable man on a club." Plaques to Carey and Hamilton were dedicated by Frick in front of the Hall of Fame before the exhibition game at Doubleday Field in which the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Baltimore Orioles 6-2. It rained during the ceremonies but a bright sun greeted the 10,000 fans at the game. Among the Hall of Famers present were Frank (Home Run) Baker, Bill Terry, Ray Schalk, Joe McCarthy and Cronin. The crowd observed a moment of silence for the five Hall of Famers who died during the past year. They were Ty Cobb, Bobby Wallace, Dazy Vance, Fred Clarke and Tommy Connolly.

Washington Senators Pull Ahead In Attendance Pace

NEW YORK (AP) — The Washington Senators drew 44,821 for a two-day, three-game series with the New York Yankees last week and pulled ahead of last season's attendance pace of the old Senators, now in Minnesota. The Senators have played to 420,115 in 42 dates in Griffith Stadium compared to 411,887 by the team which represented the nation's capital in 1960. Cincinnati, Detroit, Kansas City and the Yankees are the only other major league clubs showing attendance gains. The Reds are up 172,000, the Tigers 56,000, the Athletics 39,000 and the Yanks 28,000. The decreases, in figures compiled by the Associated Press through Sunday's games, range from 361,000 for the Chicago White Sox to 55,000 for the Baltimore Orioles. Other deficits are the Los Angeles Dodgers 346,000, San Francisco Giants 310,000, Philadelphia 244,000, Cleveland 237,000, Milwaukee 222,000, Pittsburgh 165,000, Boston 150,000, St. Louis 135,000 and the Chicago Cubs 114,000. The National League, which has attracted 5,274,751 customers this year, is 20.6 per cent under last year's total of 6,637,126.

Best Of Women Golfers Tee Off

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Approximately 50 of the nation's best women golfers tee off Wednesday in the fourth annual American Women's Open Golf Tournament. Defending champion Patty Berg will be rivaled by some 30 other professionals and 20 amateurs, including Mickey Wright, Marlene Bauer Hagge, Louise Suggs, Betty Rawls and others. The $7,500 medal play tourney opens with a golf clinic and pro-amateur day. Actual competition gets under way Thursday and ends Sunday, 72 holes later. Last year's low amateur, Carole Pushing of Olivia, Minn., will be a definite threat with her 5 handicap.

Tennis Tourney Faces Busy Day

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — A heavy schedule was planned today, weather permitting, as the North Carolina Open tennis tournament continued here. A mid-day rain tossed a damper on Monday's opening program, but 23 matches in the men's and junior singles still were played before and after the downpour. Officials said they also planned to start women's singles play today, unless the weather again interfered. All the favorites pulled through Monday's first round. Donny Dial of Columbia, S.C., had slight difficulty with Tony Craver of Lexington, before winning 6-1, 8-6 in one of the top matches in the men's division. Wally Moon of the Los Angeles Dodgers hit 13 home runs in 138 games last season. This spring he hit eight in the Dodger's first 12 games.

CHICAGO (AP)—Par should be highly respected when a field of 169 pros start taking a crack at it Thursday in the 72-hole, stroke-play National Professional Golfers Association tournament.

The 35-35-70 standard over the wooded terrain of Olympia Fields North Course has stood up well in previous big tournaments.

In practices, there are few, if any, golfers who boast of shattering par on the 6,722-yard layout.

Arnold Palmer shot a 69 June 6 to defeat defending PGA champion Jay Hebert by four strokes in climactic National Golf Week. The rough has been allowed to grow since then in a gradual toughening-up process that will put a premium on accuracy.

Palmer and Hebert agreed then that anything from 277 to 280 might be the winning total.

An idea of the trouble the North Course can provide is the 294-14 over-par — aggregate that locked Johnny Farrell and Bobby Jones in a first-place tie of the 1928 USGA open. Farrell won the 36-hole playoff by one stroke with 143.

"Of course the wedge wasn't in use in those days," says Olympia Fields veteran pro, Chuck Lanis. "But we've got a lot of trees and they've all grown since then."

Only once has par taken a real whipping on the North Course. Lawson Little's 35 in a 1940 qualifying round for the USGA open stands as the course record.

Palmer is regarded the man to beat in a field which includes champions of 42 of the PGA's co-sponsored tournaments, 16 former PGA winners, 20 leading money winners of the year, 81 National Open titlists and 7 Masters champions.

Winner of the British Open this month, USGA Open in 1960 and the Masters in 1958 and 1960, Palmer needs only the PGA crown to sew up all major titles.

Drag Racer Will Try Speed Mark In Special Car

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A new try at the $10,000 prize for a 180-mile-an-hour spin around the Daytona International Speedway is planned today if weather conditions are right.

Art Malone, 25-year-old drag racer from Tampa, will make the attempt in a specially built Indianapolis-type car equipped with a stabilizer and air foils.

Malone took the car, named Mad Dog IV, on a test run around the 2.5-mile high banked speedway Monday and hit 155 miles an hour.

This is the second attempt at the $10,000 prize offered by Speedway President Bill Frank by the Mad Dog IV, built by Bob Osiecki of Charlotte, N.C.

In the previous try, stock car race driver Larry Frank of Greenville, S.C., spun on the backstretch.

After that failure, Osiecki built a stabilizer on the rear of the car and added the air foils on the sides.

Jurgensen Now Looming Large

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Sonny Jurgensen no longer is the forgotten quarterback of the Philadelphia Eagles.

With the retirement of Norm Van Brocklin from the active player ranks to become coach of the Minnesota Vikings, Jurgensen this year emerged from the shadows of the great Dutchman into the limelight as the Eagles' No. 1 quarterback.

Jurgensen, a former Duke star who rode the bench for three years behind Van Brocklin, didn't waste the time. He says he learned plenty from Van Brocklin, who guided the Eagles to National Football League championship last year.

Jurgensen doesn't appear worried over the prospects of stepping into Van Brocklin's big shoes.

"I've always thought I could do the job," he said at the Eagles' training camp here. "If I didn't think so I should never have been a quarterback in the first place."

Jurgensen says he's "better prepared and more capable of doing the job" as a result of his hard apprenticeship.

Gary Player Ups Golf Winnings

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa, golf's leading money winner of 1961, boosted his total to $55,269 this week and moved $4,684 ahead of his chief rival, Arnold Palmer of LaTrobe, Pa.

Official winnings released by PGA headquarters gave Palmer a total of $50,585.

On Sunday it was Norm Cash who supplied the major fireworks in Detroit's double sweep over Kansas City to move the Tigers into first place and Monday night it was Rocky Colavito's turn to supply the heroics.

The New York native belted a three-run homer in the sixth inning that gave the Tigers their third straight victory. The 5-2 decision over the flying Angels at Los Angeles stretched Detroit's lead to one full game over the idle Yankees. Dick McAuliffe's two-run homer in the ninth iced the victory for Jim Bunning (11-7) and the Tigers.

Robinson, making a tremendous bid for the National triple crown—batting, homers and runs batted in—and the most valuable player award, smashed a homer, double and single and drove in three runs in Cincinnati's 9-3 rout of the Braves at Milwaukee.

This was the streaky Reds' third straight win and fattened their league lead over the idle Los Angeles Dodgers to two games. It blunted the surge of the Braves who had won five straight and nine of their last ten games and dropped them 9 1/2 games back of the Reds.

These were the only two regular championship games as most of the major leaguers took time out for the annual Hall of Fame contest at Cooperstown, N.Y. The Dodgers bombed the Baltimore Orioles, 6-2, in the exhibition.

Cash is leading the American League in batting (.366) and RBI (91) and is tied for fifth in homers with 27 in his bid for MVP laurels. Colavito is tied for fourth in RBI with 86, fourth in homers with 28 and is batting .283. Mickey Mantle is third in hitting (.333), first in homers (37) and tied with Colavito in RBI. Roger Maris is second in homers (36), third in RBI (88) and is batting .272.

Robinson, who stretched his consecutive batting streak to 19 games—a National League high for the season—took over the NL's first place in homers (29) and RBI (87), and closed in on batting leader Roberto Clemente with a .349 mark to the Pirate's .358.

The Tigers were trailing 1-0 when Colavito blasted his homer off Jim Donohue (4-4), a former Detroit right-hander. The Angels scored one run in the first on Leon Wagner's sacrifice fly and the other in the seventh on a walk, two singles and an error.

Cash opened the second with a triple but was stranded. In the ninth he walked and scored on McAuliffe's fifth homer. Al Kaline, another roaring Tiger, singled to extend his batting streak to 17 games.

Wally Post (11) and Leo Cardenas (4) joined Robinson in the home run bombardment against Warren Spahn and reliever Tony Cloninger. Robby's two-run homer in the seventh gave Jay a fat 5-2 margin to work on.

It was Jay's third victory (no defeats) over his former teammates and his second over Spahn, who was lifted for a pinch hitter in the fourth with the score 3-0 against him. The 40-year-old southpaw, still there wins away from the elite 300 set, was charged with his 12th loss. He has won 9, Jay (14-5) paces the league in victories.

CHAPTER 21
Walking through White-chapel, Rollison soon came near the Blue Dog.

This was at a corner of one of the mean little streets, and had recently been painted. Bill Ebbutt had chosen a brilliant yellow, which acted as a signpost for the whole of the East End.

Those parts which were not were repainted, also, in brown, blue and yellow lines, and the big windows were of thick frosted glass, with the name of the pub on it in gilt lettering. All in all, it was a magnificent establishment for this drab district.

Just behind it was the corrugated iron building where Ebbutt trained his young hopefuls; probably half-a-dozen "lads" would be there this morning.

And below in the cellar, of course, was Tim Mahoney.

A small boy came tearing along the pavement in the general direction of Rollison, and for a moment seemed likely to crash into him. Rollison sidestepped.

"Don't go to the Blue Dog, mister, Bill says to keep away," breathed the boy. Then with the nimbleness of the very young, he skipped round Rollison and went on his breathless way.

Rollison stared after the boy until his flying figure reached a corner and disappeared. From the far side of the road, Rollison looked towards the Blue Dog; then the luck that was often at hand came to his aid.

It was in the black, box-like form of an old-fashioned taxi.

"Where to, sir?" The driver had the comfortable look of a man shortly to retire.

"Just drive me slowly past the Blue Dog," said Rollison, "go a hundred yards or so along, and then drive slowly back." He got into the cab. "Then we might do the round trip again."

"Sunnik up at Bill Ebbutt's," said the taxi driver, still comfortably, "saw it as I come past. Couple coppers there. You never can tell, can you, are the crooks of the East End hang around that gymnasium, and Ebbutt's missus a Salvation Army so-and-so!" His grin was as comfortable as his double chin. "Okay, Mr. Rollison."

There were several policemen outside the gymnasium and two police cars. That was all Rollison saw when he first went by.

The second trip was more rewarding; Grice and another Scotland Yard man were coming out of the gymnasium, and the massive figure of Tim Mahoney was between them.

Mahoney looked dazed, and had the almost simple look which Rollison remembered. Grice was grim. The policeman were standing to attention, and one of them at the open door of a police car.

It was a sight to see.

Mahoney's hands were by his sides, not handcuffed, and Rollison felt sure that clemency was a mistake the moment he saw it. Mahoney's mildness had fooled the police, who had no reason to believe that he had come to England to kill.

Behind them, protesting with sibilant vehemence, was Bill Ebbutt, more massive even than Mahoney, and ten inches further round the waist.

He looked exactly what he was: an old prize fighter of the never-say-die school. Everything about him was pugnacious, and suddenly he raised his voice: "And I don't care what you say, Mr. Grice, you've no right to accuse anyone behind their backs. If Mr. Rollison was here, he'd have a good reason—"

A uniformed man said: "Dry up, Ebby."

"You ruddy well mind your own business!" roared Ebbutt, turned in a moment into a quivering mountain of wrath. "Flatfoots, pity you haven't got more to do than—"

He stopped abruptly.

Mahoney chose that moment to act; and he was magnificent. He thrust both arms out, sent Grice flying in one direction, the other Yard man in the other. The policeman who were with Ebbutt jumped forward, but knocked against Ebbutt, and lost their balance. Mahoney seemed to race straight towards the waiting cars, and the policemen on duty there crouched; one drew his billy.

The cab was almost at a standstill; its driver goggle-eyed.

Mahoney swerved, as two policemen ran at him; he handed one off, and cracked his clenched fist on the other's nose. All the time he moved at speed, and all the time the crowd of Ebbutt's cronies stood applauding, not in silence, while Ebbutt stood still.

Mahoney was racing towards the taxi.

"He's a human whirlwind, that's what he is," gasped the taxi driver. "Look at him!"

"Mind he doesn't whirlwind you," Rollison said softly.

The taxi driver trod on the accelerator and promptly stalled his engine. "Blast it!" He stabbed at the self-starter.

Mahoney was pounding towards them, with three policemen noisily in pursuit, three picking themselves up, and one lying inert. Grice was one of those running. There were twenty yards between the nearest one and Mahoney, who did not even trouble to look behind.

"Don't let him—" began the taxi driver.

He was wasting his breath. Mahoney may have seen the taxi, but he took no notice of it. His face was set and his lips parted as he flashed past, and the wind of his movement stirred the air in the taxi. Pounding footsteps followed, and Rollison felt sure that Mahoney hadn't a chance.

The first policeman ran by. Grice came towards the taxi, with obvious intent.

Rollison said: "See you later," and thrust a ten shilling note through the glass partition, opened the outside door, and jumped out. He didn't know whether Grice saw him as he ducked out of sight, but he heard Grice jump onto the taxi and order: "Follow that man!"

No one stared out of the taxi window at Rollison, who dodged the traffic as he crossed the road. The taxi's engine roared, then stopped abruptly, stalled by intent or by design.

Grice was shouting; he didn't often let himself do that. The two running police were some way off, and Mahoney was well in the lead as he ran past the entrance gates of a small builder's yard.

A timber-laden lorry backed out, blocking the path of the police. One man almost ran into it, someone shouted, and the lorry driver jammed on his brakes, but Mahoney was given precious seconds of grace.

Then, Mahoney turned right.

Down that narrow street were drab houses leading to narrower lanes which weaved their silent, furtive way among warehouses and high and windowless walls, empty buildings.

In sight, too, were the masts of ships from many distant lands, the tops of cranes and derricks. To all except those who knew it well it was a sinister stretch of London's waterfront, and once a man gained its shadowy sanctuary, he could call himself safe from the police, at least for a while.

The police were off again. Grice had reached the corner, and the cab swung round it.

Rollison watched it disappear.

If Tim Mahoney got away, then Tim Mahoney knew his way about London's dockland; not many Americans did.

A box of itching face powder can be a leading clue—and is. Continue the story here tomorrow.

First Redevelopment Money Goes To Ozark Mountain Town

By WICK TEMPLE

GASSVILLE, Ark. (AP)—The U.S. Commerce Department has put this tiny Ozark Mountain town on the map by granting it the nation's first project under the new Area Redevelopment Act. Gassville, whose single paved street is U.S. Highway 62, will get a federal loan of $31,000 and a grant of $129,000 to help pay for a water system vital to a new industry. The grant was announced Monday. The Mar-Bax Shirt Co. is building a $470,000 plant here to employ 1,000 from a four-county area in the manufacture of men's shirts. Its $10-million annual payroll will give the area's sagging economy a vital boost. Gassville's population is 233 and its business section consists of three general stores, a post office and two antique shops. Many of its people are retired. "But we're proud people today," said Mayor Harry Jowett, 70, a retired circuit-riding Methodist minister. "Now we've got what it takes to develop our town and give our young people jobs at home where they belong. The town is in Baxter County in the north-central section of the state, 20 miles south of the Missouri border. The plant is being financed by a $335,000 bond issue voted by Marion and Baxter counties last November. Many older residents vigorously fought the bonds because they will mean a five-mill tax. The company will pay $18,000 a year rent for 35 years. This money will largely amortize the bond issue. The bond issue was made possible by a 1960 state law allowing counties to pool forces to build industry. After the bonds were voted, the shirt factory thought it was ready to go. But Gassville didn't have enough assessed valuation to build a water system, and insurance companies insisted the modern plant must have plenty of ready water in case of fire. The four counties applied for the redevelopment money even before the law was passed three months ago. They will raise the rest of the money for the water system through a newly created water district. People here were sure the federal money was coming. That's why the construction was begun and the company began training 420 workers in vacant buildings in Gassville and surrounding towns. "But we didn't know we were going to be first on the redevelopment program," said Jowett, who receives no pay for his work. Negotiations for the shirt factory began a year ago this month, in days when Gassville's income was from tourists, retirement pay and agriculture, in that order. Gassville has a colorful history. Jowett, who was born in England and came here in 1945 to retire, said the town got its name from an old storekeeper famed for his long-winded tales.

Quake Alarmed New Zealanders

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—A sharp earthquake alarmed sleepers over a wide area of central New Zealand early today. It lasted less than a minute and is believed to have caused no great damage. A loud rumbling noise preceded the shake in some places. Buildings shook and structural noises added to the alarm. The quake was centered 30 miles northeast of Wellington.

Communications Satellite System Should Be Privately Owned; J.F.K.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy, in a statement of policy, has announced that a U.S. communications satellite system should be owned and operated by private companies—if certain requirements are met. Among the requirements he laid down was "maximum possible competition." In his statement Monday Kennedy again invited all nations to join in the space network "in the interest of world peace and closer brotherhood among peoples throughout the world." He drew up guidelines for business requirements and government responsibility in the program which is still in the research and development stage. With these guidelines, he said, "I am anxious that development of this new technology to bring the farthest corner of the globe within reach by voice and visual communication, fairly and equitably available for use, proceed with all possible promptness." The president noted that science and technology have progressed to a degree that communication through the use of space satellites has become possible. "Through this country's leadership, this competence should be developed for global benefit at the earliest practicable time," he said. Both industry and government have pressed for a communications satellite, calling it an urgent national objective. Kennedy said private ownership and operation of "the U.S. portion of the system is favored, providing that such ownership and operation" meet policy requirements. These include: A new and expanded international communications system, including service to unprofitable areas; opportunities for foreign participation in the system; effective competition in buying of equipment; structure of ownership or control which will assure "maximum possible competition" and development of an economical system. Kennedy put policy coordination in the hands of the National Aeronautics and Space Council.

Federal Judge Refuses Reduce Scale's Penalty

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP)—A Federal Court judge Monday refused to reduce Junius Irving Scales' six year jail sentence for violating the Smith Anti-Communist Act. At the same time, Judge Albert V. Bryan deferred until Oct. 2 imposition of the sentence to allow Scales, former Communist party chairman in the two Carolinas, to undergo a gall stone operation. Scales was represented by McNeill Smith, Greensboro, N.C., attorney, who argued before Judge Bryan that the sentence should be reduced because Scales in 1957 cut his ties with the Communist party. Judge Bryan originally sentenced Scales in 1958 on the grounds that he had violated the Smith Act's membership clause.

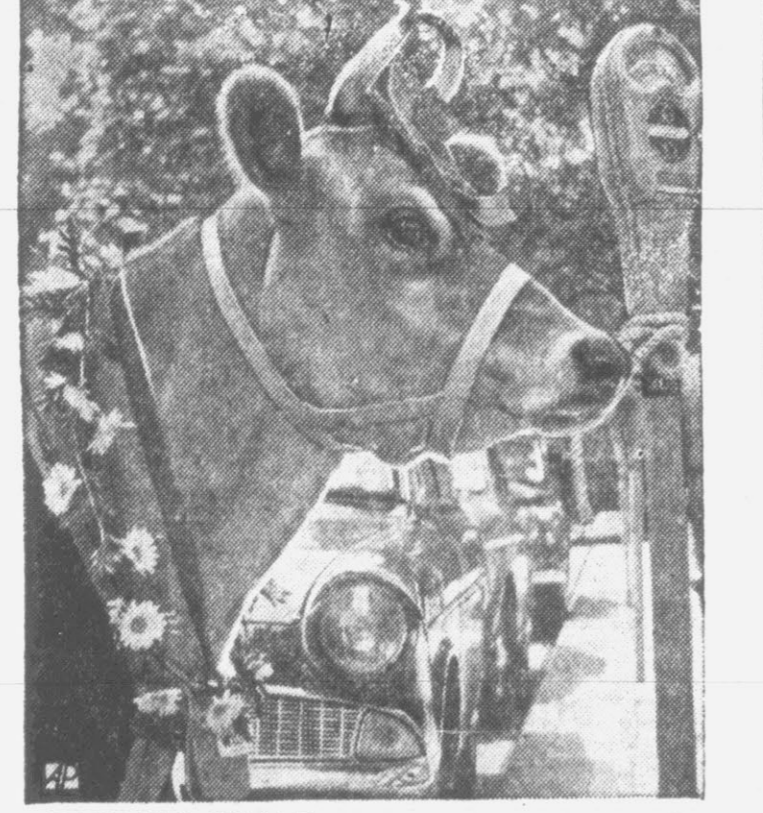

The Justice Department's prosecutor, Victor C. Woerheide, said FBI reports indicated that Scales maintained contact with the national Communist party after 1957. He said that in June Scales met Phil Bart, the party's national organizational secretary, in New York. Woerheide also told the court Scales had declined to cooperate with the FBI in its investigation. Scales, member of a prominent North Carolina family, served as organization chairman of the party in North Carolina and South Carolina. He has appealed the conviction three times to the U.S. Supreme Court. It was upheld after the most recent appeal. Scales is free under $20,000 at the present.

SOLAR PHENOMENON

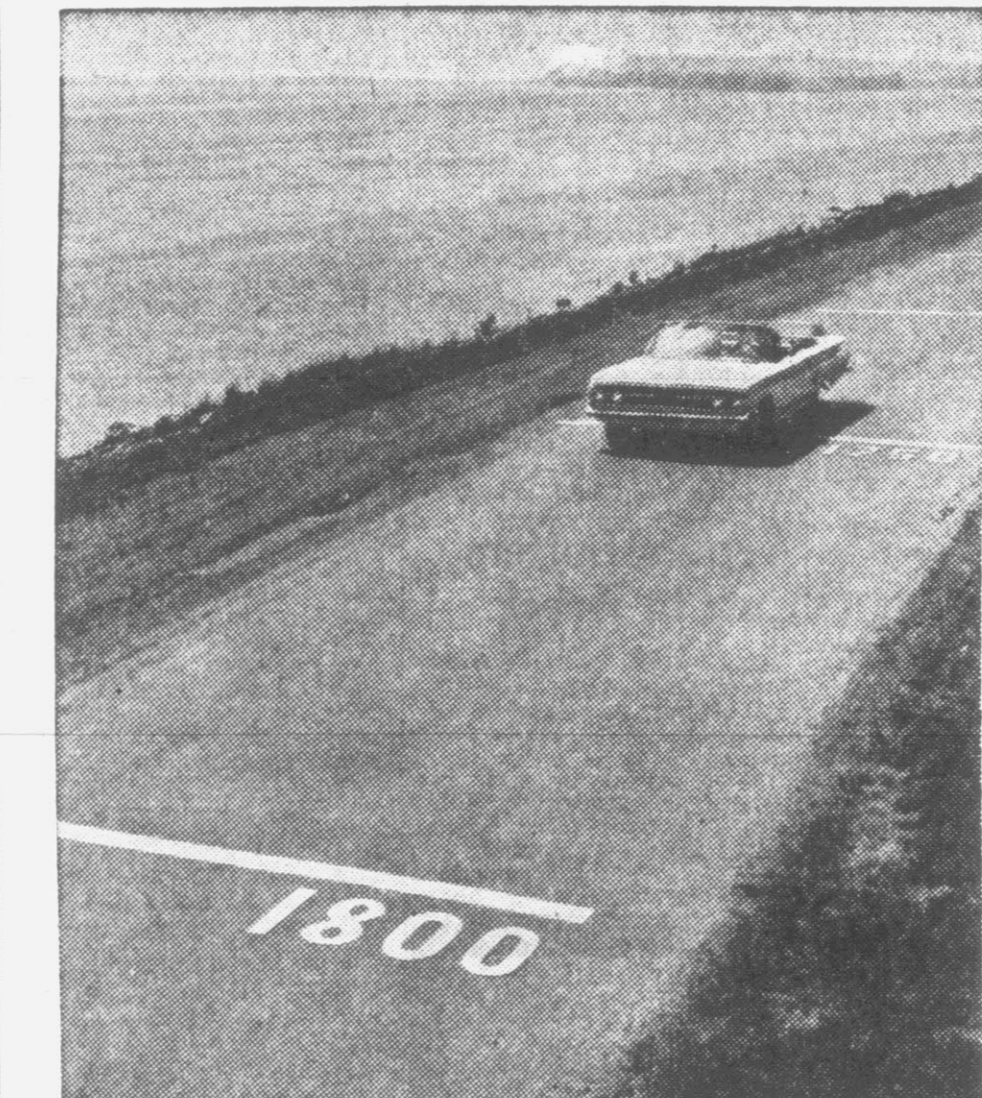

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet astronomers witnessed a fiery cloud mushrooming from the sun to an estimated height of 600,000 miles Sunday, Tass News Agency reported. Scientists at Vladivostok watched the phenomenon and said it lasted about 90 minutes.

Scientists Open Moscow Meeting

MOSCOW (AP)—A conference of scientists from eight Communist states opened Monday at the Joint Nuclear Research Institute at Debna. Participating countries were listed by Tass as Hungary, East Germany, Communist China, North Korea, Poland, Romania, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union. The Soviet news agency said the conference will discuss developments in nuclear power engineering.

BIDDING TIME—Winnie Wilts, leading lady of a dairy firm, is tethered to parking meter on London street before appearing at a party aiding invalid youngsters.

Car stops just past 1750-foot mark. That's how far it goes on half cup of ordinary gasoline without Platformate. Platformate is Shell's extra mileage ingredient. Here's how the test is run. A half cup of gasoline without Platformate is carefully fed into the fuel system. The car is started, accelerated and held at an even 30 miles per hour until it runs out of gas.

Car stops just before 1800-foot mark. That's how far it goes on half cup of Super Shell with Platformate. Same driver—same car—same test road. A half cup of today's Super Shell containing Platformate is used. Driven again at 30 miles per hour, car runs out of gas near 1800-foot mark. Super Shell wins by well over 40 feet. Imagine the extra distance a full tankful of Super Shell can give you.

MILEAGE TEST:

Shell test crew shows how one of the 9 ingredients in today's Super Shell gasoline boosts mileage to give you top performance

One of the nine ingredients in today's Super Shell is a mileage booster called Platformate. Its components release 11 per cent more energy per gallon than the finest 100-octane aviation gasoline. Here's how this extra energy is converted into extra mileage.

IT costs quite a lot of money to put Platformate in Super Shell. One of the reasons: Shell makes Platformate with a precious platinum catalyst. Eight million dollars' worth. But Shell believes that every dollar is well spent. The dramatic mileage test above shows why. 2.5 bonus miles Platformate is so packed with energy that it helps today's Super Shell take a conventional car, like the one you drive, measurably farther than a gasoline without Platformate. How much farther? In repeated tests, an average of 48 feet farther per half cupful. That may not sound like much. But in 100 miles of driving, that 48 feet turns into 2.5 extra miles. A nice little bonus, no matter how you look at it. NOTE: Platformate gets its strange name from the platinum re-forming process which Shell scientists use in making it. Huge pressures and temperatures up to 1000 degrees literally tear petroleum apart and then re-form it into super-energy components—such as benzene, xylene and toluene. These three, working together, release 11 per cent more energy than the finest hundred-octane aviation gasoline. You now know how one of Super Shell's nine ingredients helps to give your car top performance. Each of the others does an equally important job. EXAMPLE: Shell's unique TCP* additive can help restore lost power—can also make plugs last up to twice as long. Now—Hot Weather Blend Now that it's summer, Super Shell's nine-ingredient formula is adjusted to fight hot weather stalls—and give you top performance when highways sizzle. You can now get Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend at all Shell stations. Keep it in your tank. It just might save you a lot of trouble. *Trademark for Shell's unique gasoline additive. Gasoline containing TCP is covered by U.S. Patent 2880212.

Super Shell's 9 ingredients for top performance. #1 is TCP—for power, mileage, and longer plug life. #2 is "cat-cracked" gasoline—for power. #3 is anti-knock mix—for knock resistance. #4 is Alkylate to control "high-speed knock." #5 is Butane—for quick starts. #6 is Pentane mix—for fast warm-ups. #7 is an "anti-icer." Added when cold weather sets in. #8 is gum preventive—for clean carburetors. #9 is Platformate for extra mileage. SHELL logo.
