Senate Committee Hikes Requested Buildup Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's request for $3.5 billion to bolster this nation's military might was raised to $4.5 billion today by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Berlin crisis precipitated by Soviet Russia. Monday, just six days after Kennedy asked for it, Congress gave him authority to call up to 250,000 reservists into military service and extend active duty tours and enlistments one year.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., manager for the biggest peace-time defense appropriation bill in history, said the measure as approved by committee now carries nearly $47 billion. This is more than $4 billion above the total voted by the House June 28 and more than $6.5 billion above totals Congress voted last year.

Robertson noted that Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, Air Force chief of staff, said he preferred the latest model of the jet B52 to the faster but shorter range B58.

The House Monday passed 403 to 2 the emergency resolution authorizing the President to put a quarter-million ready reservists in uniform for one year, either as individuals or in units.

The Pentagon announced late Monday that four Air Force bases slated for deactivation, would remain on active status—McDill in Florida, Chennault in Louisiana, Donaldson in South Carolina and Laughlin in Texas.

Twenty new ships will be provided from the combatant shipbuilding program, many of them destroyer-type craft for antisubmarine work. A corresponding remain in service instead of mothball fleet, 22 troop and cargo ships to mothballs.

which he commands, expects to be called to active duty this week. He said the wing, based at Van Nuys, Calif., will be reinforced by planes from the 138th Air Transport Squadron, based at Tulsa, Okla.

Tobacco Sales Open August 22 On Eastern Belt

WILSON (AP)—Auction sales of flue-cured tobacco will begin on Tuesday, Aug. 22 on markets of the huge Eastern North Carolina Belt.

The opening date was set today by the Sales Committee of the Eastern North Carolina Warehouse Association at a meeting with the association's board of directors here.

This year's opening compares with an Aug. 23 opening last year and Aug. 18 two years ago.

Mount, president of the eastern association, said, "We gave it a lot of study, and looking at crop conditions in all areas of our belt we thought this would be the most realistic opening date we could arrive at."

There are a total of 17 markets in the eastern belt.

Ga.-Fla. Prices See Highest Day

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco prices surged to the highest general average of any day in its history at the start of the first full week of sales, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported today.

A massive turnover of 12,708,042 pounds Monday averaged $61.62 a hundred pounds for total returns of $7,831,206. The average was up 39 cents from the previous high of $61.23 reached on Aug. 5, 1958.

Both volume and cash returns were new records for the booming season which opened last Thursday. The former, rose 212,724 pounds and the latter $271,126 over the high marks of the opening day.

The USDA had forecast Monday's record breaking prices by reporting late in the day that primings had moved up $1 to $3 over Friday's levels, nondescript $3 to $4, flugs were firm to slightly higher and other grades steady.

Last week's sales rose to $14,321,430, a total of $4,697,637 more than for the same two days of last year's record season with its total sales of $103 million pounds.

Only around 1 per cent went to the Stabilization Corporation for government price support. Most growers regarded prices good enough not to need support from the corporation.

Six Nations Of European Common Market Prepared To Discuss British Entry

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP)—The six nations of the European Common Market agreed today to open negotiations with the British government for Britain's entry into the economic community.

The decision was made in a brief session of the foreign ministers of the six Common Market nations. They are in Paris for a quarterly meeting of the Western European Union (WEU), made up of the six and Britain.

Common Market headquarters in Brussels issued a communique describing the British decision to apply for membership as "a turning point in postwar European politics." The communique did not minimize the numerous problems faced by Britain and the six in reaching agreement, but the Common Market's executive promised to do its best.

Widespread praise in Britain and on the European continent greeted Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's historic announcement Monday that Britain would seek negotiations to join the continental economic group.

Most of Britain's national newspapers supported the government's move, but there were warnings that months of difficult negotiations would be necessary to get concessions that would safeguard British sovereignty and the economies of British Commonwealth countries dependent on the British market.

French President Charles de Gaulle, anxious to make France the leader of a united Europe, was seen as the chief opponent of such concessions. Political informants said Macmillan would fly to Paris soon to try to smooth Britain's entry into the continental group.

Most of Britain's partners in the seven-nation European Free Trade Association (EFTA) quickly indicated they would follow the British lead in seeking association or membership in the Common Market.

Denmark announced it would apply for membership. Austria declared its willingness to begin negotiations for a single European trading bloc. Sweden made a similar announcement. Norway's government indicated it favors joining the group, but said the decision is up to the Norwegian parliament.

Traditionally neutral Switzerland immediately expressed its distaste for the Common Market's developing drive toward political unity. President Fritz Wahlen said Switzerland "will under no circumstances make any concession with regard to its neutrality and sovereignty."

The seventh EFTA member, Portugal, said nothing.

The announcement by Macmillan caused alarm among the Commonwealth nations who fear British membership in the market would wreck the preferential system that gives special treatment to their exports to Britain.

Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies said his government wants to present its own case in Macmillan's negotiations with the Common Market countries. He implied doubt Britain would push strongly enough in protecting Australian exports.

New Zealand Prime Minister Keith J. Holyoake said if Britain were to sign the EEC treaty as it now stands, the results for New Zealand would be disastrous.

Macmillan, however, assured the House of Commons no agreement to join the Common Market would be reached without negotiating terms to protect the trading interests of the Commonwealth nations. He also pledged that Britain's commonwealth partners would be consulted at every stage.

"I am not confident of success," he said "but I am hopeful."

Senate Approves Big Money Bill For Moon Shot

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate has passed a big money bill providing a $549 million boost to U.S. efforts to send a three-man team to the moon by 1970.

The $9,098,769,500 independent offices appropriation bill now goes to a House-Senate conference group to compromise differences.

The Senate battled down all efforts to whittle the money bill. They included a series of amendments by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., designed to cut various totals back to the amounts recommended in President Kennedy's budget request.

The Senate began work today on a $5,161,380,000 bill carrying funds for the Welfare and Labor departments.

Sen. Prescott Bush, R-Conn., says that in view of the costly defense buildup now under way he will try to trim from the bill $277,670,000 in health funds—the amount by which the bill exceeds Kennedy's original request.

Jones Is Silent As To Candidacy

FARMVILLE—Walter B. Jones of Farmville, 1960 candidate for Congress, said today he "read with interest" yesterday's statement by Rep. Herbert C. Bonner that the 70-year-old congressman would enter next spring's Democratic nomination primary.

Jones, Farmville office equipment dealer, said: "May, 1962, is quite a ways off in many respects. Many things can happen between now and that date."

Speculation was raised yesterday after Bonner's announcement about whether Jones would try again to unseat the Washington, N. C. House member. In the 1960 primary, Bonner defeated the Pitt County by about 8,000 votes for the Democratic nomination as the First District's House representative.

Jones would not commit himself about the possibility of a second attempt next May, but said: "I am appreciative of the many continuing offers of support throughout the First District. These offers of support have existed since the day following the May primary of 1960."

Bonner made his announcement yesterday in cooling off a rumor that he had been selected to fill a new Maritime Administration post expected to be created by Congress.

The veteran congressman, who has represented the First District in the House for 11 straight two-year terms, told the Daily Reflector he did not intend to accept such a position even if it were offered him. He said he will "serve out the remainder of this term. Congress and will be a candidate for renomination in the May primaries of next year."

There was an element of surprise in Bonner's announcement yesterday. After the 1960 primary there was speculation that Bonner would retire upon the completion of the term to which he was elected last November.

In his statement yesterday, Bonner called false a statement made during the 1960 campaign that he planned to retire during his present term of office and have his unexpired term filled by an appointee.

Bonner Says Hope Of Locating District Office Here Dimmed

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

Rep. Herbert C. Bonner said today the prospects are doubtful for location of a proposed new Social Security district headquarters in Greenville instead of Goldsboro.

The First District congressman said published accounts of an effort to have the location of a headquarters for a new, four-county Social Security district switched to Greenville was to blame for the dim outlook.

Walter B. Jones of Farmville, Bonner's unsuccessful opponent in the 1960 primary race for the Democratic nomination for the First District's House seat, Saturday sent telegrams to Sens. Sam J. Ervin and B. Everett Jordan requesting consideration of the change.

"I would think those articles (the published accounts of the Jones telegrams) would clinch the office for Goldsboro," Bonner said.

The congressman said he went to work on trying to have the location of the office changed "as soon as I saw the announcement" made by the senators last week.

"I immediately phoned over there (to the Social Security agency) and pointed out the advantages and virtues of setting the office up in Greenville," Bonner said.

He added: "I had hoped that we would be successful (in moving the location to Greenville), but since that announcement it looks doubtful. I think the article has voided any chance that I may have had to get the office located in Greenville."

moved to Greenville were followed by similar requests from Greenville Mayor Charles M. King and the Pitt County Development Commission's chairman L. P. Bloxam to the two senators.

Jones' telegrams pointed out the location of a new district office in Goldsboro would place two such offices in the Third Congressional District, still leaving the First District without one.

The proposed new Social Security district, an expansion of the program's administration, involves Pitt, Greene, Lenoir and Wayne counties and three congressional districts. Pitt is in the First District, Greene and Lenoir in the Second and Wayne in the Third.

Clue Helped Locate Young Owner Of A Lost Wallet

A name, a grade and a town gave the clue to locating the owner of a wallet, it was disclosed today by J. Knott Proctor, Greenville postmaster.

Proctor received a letter from William DeLange of Springfield, Mo., who said his daughter had found a billfold, keys and money while passing through Newfound Gap, Tenn., in the Smoky Mountains. Information in the wallet gave the owner's name as Joanna June Norris, sixth grade, Greenville, N. C.

DeLange said "If you can give me any information on this little girl, I will be glad to send her the billfold."

Proctor got in touch with J. H. Rose, who investigated the rolls of the different elementary schools here and concluded that Joanna was the daughter of Lt. Walter Norris, a former Salvation Army head in Greenville, who has since been transferred to Anderson, S. C.

Rose relayed the information to Proctor, who passed it on to DeLange in Springfield.

Proctor noted that the local Post Office "gets these requests every now and then."

Bank Robbed By Lone Gunwoman

GIBSON, N. C. (AP)—A small, neatly dressed woman made three trips Monday to Gibson branch of the Commercial State Bank of Laurinburg. The last time she pulled a .38 caliber pistol from her purse, told a stunned teller to fill up two sacks and made off with $15,400.

State and federal authorities today were still searching for the woman, described by the three employees in the bank at the time as standing about 5-foot-2, "rather nice looking," about 25 years old, and dark complexioned with dark hair that almost reached her shoulders.

Officers later found a car believed used in the holdup. It was hidden in a clump of trees on a rural road two miles from Gibson. Officers said it was registered in the name of Bonnie Stephens of Fayetteville, wife of a soldier stationed overseas.

Officers quoted her as saying she loaned the car to a man she met in a Fayetteville bar.

J. G. Tate Jr., assistant cashier, said "I think I'd have been a whole lot scarier if it had been a man... Having a woman do it, doesn't seem like it's as serious."

Another Due?

MOSCOW (AP)—Informed but unofficial sources said today it is likely the Soviet Union will try to launch another manned space flight around the earth soon, possibly within a week or 10 days. There was no official confirmation.

The sources said the flight might include two men instead of one since it is known here there is a booster rocket sufficiently strong to orbit a two-man space vehicle.

It appeared unlikely Maj. Yuri Gagarin would be invited to make a second journey because of the risk and because of the advantage of increasing the number accomplishing space flight.

The supposition is strengthened by the fact it would be a great propaganda advantage to the Soviet Union to put two men together in orbit before America managed even one.

County Schools Plan Opening On August 30

County schools this year will open for students on Wednesday, Aug. 30, it was noted today by Superintendent D. H. Conley.

On that day, which is regarded as teacher-pupil orientation day, school buses will operate. School will be held for the first full day on Aug. 31.

In announcing the complete school year schedule, Conley noted that teacher orientation days are Aug. 28 and 29. Students don't attend school on these two days.

Thanksgiving holidays will take place November 23-24, and the Christmas holidays are scheduled for closing on the afternoon of Tuesday, Dec. 19, to reopen on Monday morning, Jan. 1.

The Easter holidays this year include April 20-25, with two days to be used for makeup if needed. The Pitt County Board of Education this year suggested the extension of the Easter holidays to include two extra days for makeup due to bad weather. If needed, since bad weather has forced closing of school for the past few years, for a few days. The makeup days have been held on Saturdays and other days not originally scheduled in the curriculum.

School will close for the 1961-62 term on May 30, with May 31 and June 1 as teacher evaluation days.

The Northeastern District of the North Carolina Education Association will meet in Greenville on Sept. 22, with the N. C. T. A. to be announced.

Lips Sealed On McCloy's Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House remained mum today on the report President Kennedy received from his disarmament administrator, John J. McCloy.

McCloy briefed Kennedy for more than an hour at the White House late Monday on his lengthy talk with Khrushchev last week. Sitting in at the White House session was Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who flies to Paris late this week to meet with the foreign ministers of Britain, France and Germany on the Berlin situation.

This is necessary to provide fast two weeks of disarmament discussions at Moscow, is the first high-ranking American to have a lengthy session with Khrushchev since the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting in Vienna June 2-4 at which Khrushchev advanced his Berlin plan. McCloy saw Khrushchev at the Soviet chief's Black Sea resort.

Khrushchev says he will sign a peace treaty with Communist East Germany this year. He contends this will wipe out western rights in West Berlin.

Informants said Khrushchev restated his position during his discussion with McCloy and added nothing basically new.

Khrushchev reportedly made plain his dislike for Kennedy's radio-TV speech to the nation a week ago in which Kennedy pledged to defend West Berlin by force if necessary.

Redevelopment Area Lines Are Amended At Meeting

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor

Shore Drive Redevelopment area's boundaries were amended by the Redevelopment Commission yesterday subject to action by the Planning-Zoning Commission and the City Council.

Redevelopment commissioners had agreed on the new boundaries at their last meeting but a special session was called late yesterday afternoon to formally adopt a resolution concerning the changes.

The action last night adds houses on the south side of Second St. to the area along with Carr Allen's Service Station on Evans, Dr. C. R. Graves' dental offices on First St., dwellings on Cottage St., between Second and Third and one dwelling on Fourth. Also included now are the Underwood law offices behind the court house and additional land in the ravine along the eastern boundaries of the area.

Dropped from the area are houses along Pitt St. from Second to Third and all the property on Third St. from Pitt to the ACL Railroad.

In making the changes the commissioners are still working with the first preliminary plan of the Shore Drive area. It is this plan that has been before it since last December. Work on the project was stalled until voters approved it in a referendum last May.

Later the commission will receive a plan from its planning consultant firm. They will recommend changes as they see fit and then give their approval. Next it will be submitted to the Planning-Zoning Commission and then to the City Council. Each will hold public hearings before they finally approve it.

E. Germans Hint Curbing Of Travel

BERLIN (AP)—The East German Communists threatened today to restrict travel between East and West Germany, claiming a polio epidemic in West Germany is spreading the disease across the Iron Curtain border.

Western observers saw the move as another attempt to dam the rising flow of refugees streaming into West Berlin from East Germany. A record high of 30,444 refugees poured into the Western sector of the divided city in July.

The East German news agency ADN said the Red regime's Health Ministry asked the Interior Ministry to take steps "in regard to travel between West Germany and the German Democratic Republic that will produce the best protection for the citizenry."

The steps were not spelled out nor was any date given for their application but Western observers felt the East German regime might use the polio pretext to close the border.

West Germany is suffering a polio outbreak, but health officials say there are no signs of a major epidemic. There were 1,254 cases — 76 fatal — reported this year up to July 15. There were 506 cases for the same period last year.

A week ago ADN claimed numerous West German tourists were being treated for polio in East German hospitals. It did not say how many. A month ago the Communist regime offered to give West Germany three million units of live or Sabin-type polio vaccine to fight what the Reds called a major polio epidemic. West German officials rejected the offer saying the vaccine's effectiveness had not been proved.

Western air travel to Berlin continued unhampered despite a new East German regulation that went into effect at midnight. Planes crossing the Communist territory surrounding Berlin were directed to contact the East German Air Safety Center.

Western officials did not believe the order would be enforced. They told the three big civilian airlines serving West Berlin—Pan American Airways, British European Airways and Air France—to ignore the new rule and to continue to report to the four-power Air Safety Center at which U.S., British, French and Soviet officials control Berlin's air traffic.

The first four planes into West Berlin after midnight encountered no interference.

All East German refugees going to West Germany via West Berlin travel by air since all ground traffic is checked by the East Germans or the Soviets.

Commissioners were urged to leave the way open for inclusion of the court house last night. Attorney Kenneth Hite, a member of the county's Planning Commission, said that it is agreed that the county court house will need more space.

It is possible that an architect might say that it would be cheaper to construct an entirely new building rather than remodel and expand the old one. Hite emphasized that the commission's studies have not reached the point where definite recommendations can be made.

Commissioner Bancroft Moseley said he could see no disadvantage to including the court house "giving them the opportunity to accept or reject."

Commissioner Chairman M. E. Cavendish pointed out that the plan can be amended at a later date to include the court house if this proved desirable.

Inclusion of the court house in the urban renewal project was an issue in the referendum. Although this has been considered the court house property has never actually been within the boundaries of the Shore Drive area.

Community Service Plaque Received By Moose Lodge

A bronze plaque bestowed by the National Civic Affairs Committee Chairman of the Loyal Order of Moose was presented last night to the Greenville Moose Lodge, denoting honors won during the past year in the field of public service.

Receiving the plaque for the lodge was last year's Civic Affairs Chairman Merrill Bynum.

The award was announced at the International Convention in Memphis, and a letter to the Greenville lodge, from National Civic Affairs Chairman Earl W. Horton included congratulations to all who helped "make your community service program successful to the point that you have earned third place in your classification in the 1960-61 Moose International Classification Service Awards Competition."

Lodge Secretary E. M. Baldree said of the honor, "we can look upon this award as a stepping stone to the future. To my knowledge, this is the highest award of its kind our lodge has ever received; though our work for the past several years has drawn increasing attention from the National Civic Affairs Committee."

Past Governor Aubrey Taylor also received last night the Governor's Merit Award emblem from the Supreme Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose. The emblem is awarded on the basis of numerical and financial growth of a lodge during a governor's term, and upon its general progress in that governor's tenure of office. # Must Fight Crime At Grass Roots

The staggering increase in the rate of major crimes across the nation during the past decade should cause every community to carefully take stock of its own situation and the steps it is taking in the way of crime prevention.

It is not enough that the community look merely at the police records and the measures taken by law enforcement agencies to prevent crime. These are important. But the law enforcement agencies are composed of a relatively few people in each community. The job of crime prevention must have a much broader base in the community if it is to be successful.

The shocking increase of 98 per cent in major crimes in the United States during the past decade is even more shocking when one considers that while major crimes were increasing by that figure, the population of the nation increased only 18 per cent. To make matters even worse, the number of juvenile arrests from 1950 to 1960 more than doubled while the juvenile population increased about 50 per cent.

Inspection Tour For State Parks

By LYNN NISBET

STATE PARKS—The parks committee of the Board of Conservation and Development plans an inspection tour this fall of all the established parks, and exploratory trips to sites of two proposed new parks. On the same trips the members of the committee and the parks division staff will perhaps visit additional potential park areas. It has been increasingly evident during the past few years that the State must have additional park facilities to meet demands of the people.

The State now operates 12 parks, including the Hammond's Beach park on Bear Island in Onslow county, which was acquired during the past few weeks. The aggregate area of these parks is about 37,000 acres—ranging from 365 acres in Cliffs of the Neuse—near Goldsboro to 18,828 acres in Pettigrew Park (including Lake Phelps) in Washington county. They include ocean beaches, natural and artificial lakes, and high mountains. Mount Mitchell State Park is literally on the roof top of Eastern America—a mile and a quarter above Fort Macon.

Report of Parks Director Tom Ellis to the C&D board last week indicated attendance at all the parks is increasing and the visitors are expecting—and willing to pay for—more recreational facilities. The saturation point is approaching on existing parks and the State is looking around for additional areas, as well as enlarging several of the established parks. A prolonged controversy over acquisition of land at Stepp's Gap on the edge of Mount Mitchell Park has been settled. Additional land will be acquired at the William B. Umstead Park between Durham and Raleigh. The bonds to be voted upon sometime this fall include about $900,000 for improvements in State parks. Meantime one new park site is almost assured and another is under consideration.

NEW PARK — Negotiations have been going on for several months for a park site on the shores of Lake Norman, the new Duke Power Company reservoir on the Catawba river between Carolina and Iredeell counties. Exact location has not been determined. The State wants to acquire some 1200 acres at a site to be chosen after inspection visits by engineers representing the State and the power company. (There is a little bit of local rivalry involved. Iredeell County people naturally want the park area on the east and north side of the river. Catawba folks want it on the other side.) As of now, the only sure thing—and that is about as definite as any advance commitment can be—is that there will be a new State park in the Lake Norman area.

CHIMNEY ROCK — The private owners of Chimney Rock have renewed pressure to get the State to take over that attraction as a park. This is an old story, with occasional new angles. The approach this time is that the owners will donate 885 acres of land to the State without cost, provided the State pays $450,000 for the improvements—including roads, trails, camping facilities, elevators, etc. The next most recent offer had been to sell the whole business, land and improvements, for half a million dollars.

Reaction of the park officials to this latest proposition has been rather cool, although interest is conceded. If the State must have additional park facilities, the Chimney Rock deal offers opportunity to get them ready made. However, the State folks indicated unwillingness to make any commitment until an impartial appraisal of value of the improvements offered can be made.

There is another factor that bothers the State. That is the cost of maintaining and operating the park in relation to its probable value to the public.

OTHER "OFFERS" — For many years the owners of Grandfather Mountain sought to sell it to the State for a park. When these efforts failed Hugh Morton, grandson of Hugh MacRae, who had owned the mountain in the 1930's and 1940's owners of Lake Tahoma in McDowell county tried to sell it to the State. Now it has developed into an exclusive summer resort residential project.

Families of the late Moses Cone and Julian Price donated the fabulous estates of these men at Blowing Rock to the State for public park use. The State could not maintain the facilities and the areas were transferred to the National Park Service and both places are operated now as adjuncts of the Blue Ridge Parkway.

There was no question about the value of these areas. The question was whether they could be fitted into the North Carolina park scheme. The answer to that with respect to Cone and Price estates was definitely negative; with respect to Grandfather Tahoma and other projects highly questionable. How Chimney Rock will fit into the total scheme has not been determined. What the improvements there cost is not so important as whether they are suited for public park use.

Now that the figures on the increase in crime in the United States during the past decade have been compiled and made public, what will the individual communities do about them?

Will there be a general attitude of apathy? Will the matter be left entirely to the law enforcement agencies to cope with as best they can?

Or will the communities as a whole undertake to ferret out the conditions which breed crime in their midst and seek to eliminate them?

What is needed, in our opinion, is a comprehensive program on the local level in every community to eliminate insofar as possible the conditions which give rise to criminal acts. A more positive program of working with youngsters who step over the line into lawless acts is needed to prevent their becoming adult criminals. Through the efforts of civic groups, churches, schools and other organizations within the community there needs to be mounted a program that will stem the tide of increasing crime and at the same time will help with the rehabilitation of those who have run afoul of the law, but are not beyond rehabilitating into good useful citizens of the society.

The situation must be met and coped with successfully at the grass roots level throughout the nation. The necessary work cannot be done in Washington, in Raleigh or at any other central point. It must be done at home, in the neighborhood, in the town, and if the problem is effectively dealt with at the local level, the overall result throughout the nation will reflect a decrease, rather than an increase in crime when the next annual reports are made.

Stubbornness Breeds A Base For Initiative

The lack of bombast and noisy reaction from the other side of the Iron Curtain following President Kennedy's acceptance of the Berlin challenge, would indicate to us that some second thoughts have set in.

The firmness of the United States' stand was at a variance with what the Kremlin obviously expected . . . if the world is to believe Russian protestations of a desire to live in a world of peaceful co-existence. For Premier Khrushchev grandly proclaimed his commitment to East Germany that a separate peace treaty would be signed. A flat "no" to all it entails must have been upsetting.

Now Mr. Khrushchev must find a way to keep from appearing as though Russia would or could back away from keeping a promise to a satellite, and he must at the same time find a way to keep his country from utter destruction. At the same time, he must avoid giving the impression Russia is fearful of a military showdown.

All this is a very difficult problem for the Communist chieftain. The dilemma is one we are glad does not confront our own President.

After years of defensive tactics on the diplomatic front the United States has found a degree of initiative by merely being stubborn. The burden of avoiding a military clash and all it entails is with "the other guys".

American citizens can best back up the President's display of firmness by themselves quietly preparing for that eventuality that nobody wants. Once the Communists get the picture of American people resigned to going the limit, if need be, their second thoughts are going to be transformed into real worries.

No Communism In Russia Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Real communism for the Russians is still a long way off. They try to make it look otherwise. It won't stick.

In the 44 years since the revolution they've had socialism. Communism is still only a dream. Nevertheless the Russian Communist party over the weekend released its program for the next 20 years. It holds out rich promise of a better and easier life.

Some Westerners, used to sneering at anything Soviet, are apt to call it pie in the sky stuff. There's no reason to. Since the revolution in 1917 the Communist party in Russia has worked miracles.

True, the miracles had bloody foundations: purges, liquidations, a whole generation of people kept at the grindstone and to a living standard far below that of the country.

But the progress made is indisputable. Even greater progress can be expected. If some of the program promises are made good they can be expected to affect other areas of the world in one way or another.

For instance: the promise of free medicine, free housing. The United States and Russia are in a contest for the minds of men through foreign aid to backward countries. The backward people, anxious to come abreast of the 20th century fast, may be more influent by the progress in the two giants.

But the Russian Communist party goes too far when it says in its program: "The present generation of Soviet people shall live under communism."

"Socialism has triumphed in the Soviet Union completely and finally, within two decades, the Communist society will on the whole be built in the U.S.S.R."

Communism means a classless society where people get paid not in accordance with their work or merit but their needs.

Under socialism, which Russia has, there are classes and people get paid according to merit and work performed.

There are three distinct classes in Russia now: the intelligent, peasants and workers.

The intelligent is a broad grouping. It includes scientists, artists, writers, engineers, factory managers, bureaucrats, many kinds of white collar workers.

The peasants and workers can be divided into skilled, semi-skilled, and unskilled.

The people in the three big groups, with all their subdivisions, get different pay, live in different kinds of houses.

The new party program, with its rosy predictions of 20 years from now, says "communism is a classless social system in which the great principle from each according to his ability, to each according to his needs."

Strength For Today

THE INSPIRED WORD

The work "inspiration" comes from two Latin words which mean "to breathe into." We are told that all Scripture is given of inspiration. Good literature in every age has been inspired, but there is a difference between the inspiration of the world's best literature and the inspiration of the Bible.

Why a difference? Because the situations with which the Bible deals are different from all other situations and constitute the most important situations in all the world. The Bible deals with the spiritual destiny of the human race. God inspired Homer, Dante, Milton, Shakespeare, and continues to inspire many writers today, but the inspiration given to

The 'Moment Of Truth'

A lecturer the other night was pointing out how dissatisfied human beings often become with things that are readily available to them.

He was saying that routine luxuries tend to become boring to people. "No matter who he is or what he has," the lecturer said, "a man soon develops a tendency to want something different or additional."

I believe the term he used most was that people of today, like a historically prominent individual, seem consistently to be looking for "new worlds to conquer."

What he was saying brought to mind an insignificant event we witnessed a few weeks back. It was one of those little things that probably happen countless times every day across our country.

We were enjoying an afternoon at the pool when we noticed this little tyke (he couldn't have been two years old yet) who was having the time of his life it seemed.

On the hot afternoon, he was overjoyed as he made trip after trip across the pool deck to plunge with abandon into the shallow pool for youngsters.

(As you know, the local Moose Lodge provides two pools. There's one for swimmers and one for the little people who are barely able to walk, not to mention swim.)

This little fellow we were watching kept a steady pace for something like 30 minutes. As soon as he would hit the water, he'd scramble right back out again and back away for another running assault on the cool water.

His mother sat by watching his shenanigans. Naturally, she was quite undisturbed by her young son's bravery. After all, the water was only eight or ten inches deep, so he was in no danger.

Like people—even Little People—will do, though, this little gentleman suddenly sought new worlds to conquer.

Before anybody knew what he was planning, he climbed out of the routine shallows, backed away for another try, then wheeled around and headed for deep water.

Without a moment's hesitation at the brink, the little lad sailed over the edge and into water about twice his depth.

That was the moment of truth. Too late he realized he had bitten off quite a bit more than he could chew.

Still, this story has a happy ending. As it happened, the little fellow splashed into the deep water (about four feet deep) right beside a 12-year-old. The comparatively strong arms plucked the impulsive youngster from the water and set him gently on the deck.

Tears flowed for a short while as the little fellow realized he had discovered rather suddenly something he could not overcome. His new world was too big just yet.

One thing can be said for the youngster, though. At least he learned something.

Other Editors Sayings .. British Austerity Program

Rocky Mount Telegram

While the East German Communist officials have to sit helplessly and look across the gulf that separates East from West and witness the economic paradise that has been created by capitalism and private enterprises, they can nevertheless take consolation in the knowledge that at least one great Western nation is in a similar boat with the Peoples East German Republic. That nation is Great Britain which only recently announced a severe new program of austerity designed to get her back on the road to recovery and strength.

Prime Minister Macmillan has won an overwhelming vote of confidence for his austerity program but this confidence vote in Parliament doesn't soften the fact that millions of Englishmen are growing more angry at the state of economic affairs in Britain. If an election were held this week it is doubtful that the Conservatives would win.

The find themselves in the same boat as the Laborites who attempted to force socialism on the English a dozen years ago. Things got so bad in the left-wing paradise that the Laborites were thrown out and Winston Churchill returned to the helm. But Churchill, despite his brilliant and valiant service to the Empire, could offer little help for an ailing nation.

Since World War I, England has been one of the "have not" nations. This condition was aggravated by the Second World War. Since then things have gone from bad to worse. Today the British Empire is only a shadow of its former self. The austerity program is a serious matter. In lands governed by dictators it poses no problem. Russia for years lived from hand to mouth while Joe Stalin struggled to put the country on a paying basis.

Fidel Castro today has forced such austerity measures on the Cuban peasantry. He has nothing to fear because the people dare not oppose a military regime. But it is a different matter in a democracy. Such a government is supposed to be the fountainhead of economic well-being. Such hasn't been the case in England for many a decade.

Too, the free people of England might well reject such severe measures. They have only to force a new election to throw out the present government. It isn't a matter of patriotism. The world knows the British people gave more than their share during the war and during the lean, jittery years since then while their empire fell in pieces around their little island.

Today the doughy people of that little island kingdom feel they deserve a better fate. Perhaps they are right. After all, no one in government can blame today's sad plight on a current hot word of patriotism. The world knows the British people gave more than their share during the war and during the lean, jittery years since then while their empire fell in pieces around their little island.

That is what happened to England; it has also put a severe strain on our own resources. But these things, the trade-marks of cold wars such as are fashionable nowadays, are not as tangible, not as evident to the masses as a hot war. The latter is something they understand, something they can lay a fist to. Not so with subtle strains and stresses imposed by ideological conflict that involves principles unfamiliar to the common people, but that are real just the same.

Unemployment Statistics Faulty

By ELMER ROESSNER

"What the actual rate of unemployment is, no one knows, for our official definition of unemployment is a meaningless hodge-podge," states William P. Bogie, the executive editor of "Banking," in the August issue of that journal of the American Bankers Association.

Several years ago, I wrote that, under techniques then prevailing, a man who had worked a couple of days a week and then had been laid off could be counted five times in government figures on employment, three times as unemployed and twice as employed.

The techniques have been refined since then, but as editor Bogie pointed out, they still do not quite tell how many people are working and how many people are out of a job at a given time.

1 BECOMES 3 BECOMES 1 Mr. Bogie pointed out: "When a factory worker loses his job, then his wife and three children look for work. Five, not one, are added to the list of unemployed. But when father goes back to work and the family job hunt ceases, then five are removed from the total of unemployed."

He also wrote: "Teen-Age Freddie, tooling along to the tennis courts in dad's car, is included (among the unemployed) if he has applied anywhere for a summer job, no matter how reluctantly."

"So are Freddie's teachers, if they have sought any summer sweetening for their bank accounts while they wait for the fall term to begin."

Mr. Bogie concluded: "If business and government are to solve the admittedly serious unemployment problem, more accurate ways of measuring the problem must be available."

Mr. Bogie may learn here, regrettably, that no accurate measurement is possible. Systems may be set up to calculate how many people are on payrolls. The number of payrolls can also be counted—but are they unemployed?

to go to work for a fashion designer, but for no one else. A man who is earning $60 a week making fishpoles, but who is looking for a $50-a-week job with more security.

A stenog who quit a $60-a-week job to get married, but who will return to the trimmes if she can get at least $85.

A man getting $95 for a 40-hour week, who is an applicant for night work at $1.50 an hour. A man fired from a $100-a-week job who still makes $39 a week repairing television sets at night.

A man who has two salaried jobs and is fired from one. A man who has three salaried jobs and is fired from one. From two. A free-lance writer who earns $200 a week, but who is seeking a job as an editor at lower pay, a man getting more unemployment and home relief for his family than he could earn at a full-time job.

TRUTH IS INTANGIBLE Obviously, the exact measure of employment and unemployment is impossible to attain. The statistical picture is clouded by the impossibility of

On The Verge Of War

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

What the President's speech last Tuesday and the subsequent comment by members of Congress and the increase in the number of troops now called up means is that we are on the verge of war. We are not waiting to be attacked. We are not holding out for a Pearl Harbor. President Kennedy has spoken his piece. The country has received his appeal for support enthusiastically. For no matter how one looks at the President's speech, it is a call to arms. It is a rejection of the Soviet ultimatum concerning Berlin. The only criticism of the President is a Republican suggestion that he cut peace-time waste and certainly the present situation gives him an excellent opportunity to get rid of some very expensive garbage which has accumulated over the years. He might implement the Hoover Reports which his father helped to prepare, and save about $4,000,000,000 a year, if not more.

One of the greatest advantages that Soviet Russia has over us is our wasteful profligacy, particularly in the military services. Military men throw away money which is probably due to their training. If we recognize that the accumulated fat in our economy is gone, prudence will advise a sharp cut in Federal non-defense expenditures. Otherwise, we shall be forced to print so much money that the purchasing power of the dollar will be further reduced.

In a free society, it is impossible to deprive the people of their earnings and savings by indiscriminate spending while the people are asked to practice thrift. The let-them-eat-cake theory of government finances does not work well in a country where elections are held at stated periods.

Khrushchev is wrong if he truly believes that President Kennedy delivered his speech last week to cover up unfavorable economic conditions. This is just not so. As a matter of fact, the President has been more tolerant than the American people believed to be wise. Kennedy avoided permitting the Cuban affair from developing into a major political issue with perhaps some shooting to establish our ability to take care of ourselves. This has brought upon the President considerable criticism.

Khrushchev makes a mistake if he believes that because President Kennedy took a weak stand vis-a-vis Cuba, he is a weak man. The stand toward Cuba, whether correct or not, was calculated. The President did not choose to make his stand against Khrushchev in Cuba. He preferred to select his own spot and his own time. He chose Berlin.

And now, Khrushchev must either withdraw from an adamant position or there will be some matter of war in October. President Kennedy has made it clear that the United States will not withdraw from Berlin or change the status of the Western world in what amounts to East Germany.

Khrushchev must act. He cannot disregard the Kennedy speech or the American policy regarding Berlin without admitting his inability to meet force if necessary. On the other hand a war with the United States is not a matter of propaganda any longer. It means that no matter what happens much of the new strength that Soviet Russia has developed since 1933 will be smashed to rubble. Despite all the criticism of the U-2 program, Soviet Russia has been photographed as though it were selling picture post-cards of its most secret spots. If we need to we shall shoot up the place, as they will shoot us up.

From Khrushchev's standpoint, this is a very bad situation. His program of peaceful co-existence, for which he has fought so hard within the Soviet Universal State, is now wiped out. It was a program for the assertion of Soviet pre-eminence to which the West would agree in return for trade and for an avoidance of incident. In effect, President Kennedy said that we do not want to avoid incidents; that we shall take any risk, meet any situation, make any sacrifice but we shall not retreat.

Berlin's Division In Defeat Proves To Have Begotten Odd Problems

EDITOR'S NOTE: In this first of a series of four stories intended to illuminate the problems that make up the Berlin crisis, AP correspondent Carl Hartman, a veteran observer of the German scene, outlines the historical background of the isolated, divided, threatened city.

By CARL HARTMAN
BERLIN (AP)—Isolated, divided, threatened—these are the words most often used to describe Berlin. All of them are accurate.

But just as remarkable is one characteristic of the city that no single word can describe. It is the only place on earth where you can walk across the street from communism into the Western world, and vice versa.

This is a legacy from Adolf Hitler and the Nazis whose swastika banners flew in Berlin from 1933 until the country was driven to collapse in 1945.

The Red army occupied the city in the closing days of World War II, but then turned over a little more than half the city to the Americans, French and British.

This division in defeat was a low point for a city that had once been the capital of efficient Prussian monarchs and steely German emperors. Hitler was the last ruler of a united Germany to ride in triumph along its broad boulevards.

The Nazi dictator built a new chancellery in what was then the center of the city, next to the president's palace, near the U.S., British, French and Soviet embassies. Western bombers and Russian artillery destroyed them all, along with 43 per cent of all the housing in the city. All that is left of the chancellery now is a little grass-covered hill just inside the border of the Soviet sector—East Berlin.

Less than a year before Hitler's body was burned in his chancellery garden, his major enemies agreed to divide the city. The Western allies got the more populous half, with some of the best living quarters. The Soviet sector included the central district of government buildings and shops, but there was little left of them.

The system of four-power rule did not last in Berlin. By 1948, East and West Berlin had separate currencies and city governments. They were soon to have separate — and unconnected — telephone, electric power and surface transport systems. Subway and elevated trains, however, continued to run through both parts of the city. There was little interference with pedestrians and private cars. The only time the Iron Curtain was effectively rolled down was for a few days during the anti-Communist uprising of 1953.

But the Communists isolated West Berlin much more effectively from West Germany. This was easy, since the city lies in the middle of Soviet-controlled East Germany, with the rest of the Western world 110 miles away.

Hoax Leads To Prison Sentence

RUSK, Tex. (AP) — Dorris E. Jones, 40, filling station attendant who made headlines two years ago by announcing he had found $2.5 million in gold bars while berry picking, has been sentenced to three years in prison.

Jones, father of nine, pleaded guilty Monday to theft by false pretext. He was accused of taking $2,500 from Henry McAdams of Dallas and not delivering a gold bar as promised. He admitted his story was a hoax after failing a lie detector test.

Earns Citation Of State ASCS

Mrs. Ailene H. Clark, clerk for The Pitt County ASCS Office, has been awarded a citation by the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Mrs. Clark, an employee of the Pitt program since February, 1952, was presented the citation and a certificate for $40 for a suggestion she submitted to the state office.

The certificate, presented at a Goldsboro meeting by A. Pierson Hassell Jr., State ASCS administrative officer, reads: "This certificate is awarded to Ailene H. Clark for a contribution which resulted in improvement or economy in operations."

The Communists permitted contact between West Berlin and West Germany only across two canals, four roads, four rail lines and three air corridors. Communist East Germans took control of the overland routes, except for a small amount of Western military traffic. The Soviets continue to work with the three Western allies in controlling the air lanes through the Berlin Air Safety Center.

In June 1948, the Communists blocked everything but the air corridors and the "knapsack-lift" — smuggling. For 11 months a Western airlift—mainly American—supplied West Berlin's 2 1/2 million citizens.

Rations and fuel were short, but there was no talk of giving in to Communist pressure. After the blockade ended, West-ern authorities set about building up stockpiles of everything a city needs, from hairpins to the bulky and uneconomic brown coal that heats so many Berlin homes. Supplies for about 18 months were accumulated.

Problem Solved If He'd Appear

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — If George W. Hawkins would just make an appearance here, Campbell County officials would have quite a few less headaches.

Hawkins is a special problem because, although he had been missing since April 6, Democratic voters nominated him for a district constable's post in the May 23 primary.

Officials don't know whether to void his election and proclaim his opponent victor, or just wait and hope Hawkins makes an appearance before the November general election.

visitor could compare for himself the advantages of the Communist and Western systems. Any visitor had only to go up to the nearest policeman for help if he decided that the West was where he wanted to stay.

Hundreds of refugees have been coming over to West Berlin every day, and at peak periods the daily figure has topped the 1,000 mark. Though they have had to leave behind almost everything they owned, they have had good prospects for jobs.

The flight of refugees has hit the Communists heavily, in both their economy and their propaganda. West Germans are fond of saying that although voters don't have any opportunity for choice in an election on Communist territory, a great many people from there have learned to "vote with their feet." In recent years, about the only practical place to do this has been Berlin.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Richard K. O'Malley, chief of The Associated Press bureau in Paris, flew to Bizerte for a look at the city following the French-Tunisian fighting there.

Behind him the Casbah baked in a hot sun. The narrow street-way was deserted.

Will Vacation At Kennedy Home

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Frank Sinatra, the Dean Martins, the Peter Lawfords and Janet Leigh say they will leave soon for a 10-day vacation at the Riviera home of Joseph P. Kennedy, father of President Kennedy.

Mrs. Martin said she and her husband, Sinatra and Lawford will depart Thursday.

Miss Leigh plans to meet Mrs. Lawford — Joseph Kennedy's daughter—in New York on Aug. 7, en route to Europe. Tony Curtis, Miss Leigh's husband, is working and can't go.

Mrs. Martin said Lawford and Sinatra plan to extend their vacation to six weeks and will charter a yacht to tour the Mediterranean.

There was no real air of tension nor of expectancy. French paratroopers joked and laughed quietly. Not far off, in the buff and white alleyways leading into the Casbah, helmeted Tunisian soldiers kept to their posts. A veiled woman slipped out of a door and padded down the street.

There had been reports that the Casbah was being fortified in case of more of the fighting that broke out nearly two weeks ago, when Tunisians blocked roads leading to the big French naval base.

A Tunisian police officer said no, but refused to discuss the Tunisian-French crisis.

will be implemented."

This part of the program is doubletalk. Read carefully, it doesn't actually promise that within 20 years a man will be paid according to his needs.

It is said: "The present generation of Soviet people shall live under Communism."

"In the current decade 1961-1970 the Soviet Union will be creating the material and technical basis of communism."

"In the next decade 1971-1980 the material and technical basis of communism will be created (and) will come close to the stage where it can introduce the principle of distribution according to needs."

Note: It said that day will be close. What's close? Another 20 years?

Stalin himself said "we can't not tolerate a situation where a railway locomotive driver earns only as much as a copying clerk."

Marx and Lenin both said the difference between skilled and unskilled labor would exist under socialism, even after classes had been abolished, that only under communism would this difference disappear and wages be paid according to need.

So, before the Russians start changing their pay scales, they'll have to abolish classes. That will take some doing. Once a group gets into a favored position it doesn't yield easily. And there are a lot of favored groups in Russia.

Neither Stalin nor Khrushchev has heard such words from an American President and the Ukrainian probably does not know how to take it, whether to believe Kennedy or to assume that he is faking.

It would be sound to believe President Kennedy this time, because the American people have had enough of Khrushchev and of Soviet tactics. The President's attitude is popular. It is the attitude of the American people.

Senate Liberals Apply Pressure To Avoid Loss Of Domestic Programs

By JACK BELL
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic liberals are putting pressure on President Kennedy not to bow to the demands of a congressional coalition for domestic spending cuts to offset defense increases.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Democratic leader, kicked off the campaign Monday with a Senate speech calling for long-range welfare planning to out-do Soviet Premier Khrushchev's 20-year plan.

Humphrey, who is in and out of the White House almost daily, is known to have personally urged Kennedy to stick by his New Frontiers program despite efforts by Republicans and Southern Democrats to force domestic retrenchments.

Kennedy's recommendations for increased military spending in connection with the Berlin crisis were accompanied by a pledge for a balanced budget in the fiscal year beginning next July 1. Congressional economy advocates have contended that there won't be a balanced budget unless domestic outlays are reduced sharply. Liberals argue that increased government outlays will accelerate the economy and bring in much higher Treasury revenues.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, the assistant Republican leader, said he like Humphrey, doesn't want to stop social progress. But he said that runaway inflation might cancel any such gains if spending gets out of hand.

"The defense and security of the country come first," he said in an interview. "The military necessities forced upon us demand the most cautious scrutiny of new domestic spending proposals."

Humphrey said that nothing would suit Khrushchev more than to find us going into a mil-

Rash Of Fires Is Earning Concern

MONROE, N.C. (AP)—Six fires in a five day period have left residents of this Union County town jittery. Authorities suspect arson in at least five of the fires.

Flames of undetermined origin Monday night destroyed the frame building that housed the John E. Crowley Co. here. The loss was placed at several thousand dollars. The firm employed seven persons and converted discarded cotton materials into filling for upholstered products.

Three Negroes were questioned Monday by police in connection with the other fires. They were not identified.

These fires in which authorities indicated arson may have been involved, occurred earlier: A warehouse of the Monroe Hardware Co. was wrecked last Wednesday night by fire. Damage was estimated at $125,000.

A Union Supply Co. warehouse was wrecked early Saturday by flames. The loss was placed at more than $50,000.

Police said evidence of incendiaryism was found later Saturday at the Monroe Seed Clear Co. plant. A pile of burlap bags, officers said, had been ignited when a pop bottle with wick and fuel was tossed through a window.

Firemen early Sunday found a broken bottle inside and a wick on the window sill of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad freight depot warehouse. A newspaper and ledger had been damaged by the flames before firemen were notified.

Also, about the same time Sunday, flames wrecked the L&M Trading Co. building. Damages were placed at about $12,000.

A 175-pound St. Bernard is too heavy to keep up with swift skiers on long runs in the Swiss alps. But a rescuer and his dog often are transported by helicopter or dropped by parachute.

Want Dispute Taken To Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—A resolution introduced in the House Monday would urge President Kennedy to submit the question of U.S. and Soviet legal rights in Berlin to the International Court of Justice.

"The solution of disputes between nations in accordance with law is the greatest hope of mankind," said Rep. Frank Kowalski, D-Conn., in introducing the measure.

Ex-Spy Recalls Not All Told

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Daniel T. Moore, an OSS spy during World War II, said in a talk here that "the first rule of spy warfare is: 'Never tell your own people more than they need to know.'"

"If there is a World War III—and I doubt it because you seldom have a fire in a match factory—the battles of tomorrow will be decided by the spies of today," he said.

Begin Dredging Battleship Site

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Clearing and dredging operations were to begin here today for the permanent home of the USS North Carolina.

The restored battleship is scheduled to be opened to the public Sept. 30 on a limited basis. Hugh Morton of Wilmington, chairman of the state commission spearheading the drive to return the ship here, said the main deck will be opened first and other portions will be opened to the public as preparations are finished.

Formal dedication is not expected, however, until sometime next spring.

Morton said $215,000 of $250,000 needed to restore the ship has been raised. He also said that plans are for Gov. Sanford to go to Bayonne, N.J., on Sept. 6 and accept the North Carolina for the state.

The ship, Morton continued, will be towed to Wilmington, where it is scheduled to arrive Sept. 13. It will remain in the State Ports Authority docks until Sept. 16 when at high tide—1:14 p.m.—it will be towed the final two miles up the Cape Fear River to its permanent home.

Atomic-Powered Weather Station

WASHINGTON (AP)—The world's first atomic-powered, automatic weather station will be set up in the Canadian arctic next month.

The new station, powered by an isotope of strontium 90, is designed to operate for two years unattended. Its reports are to be transmitted by radio every three hours to weather stations farther south.

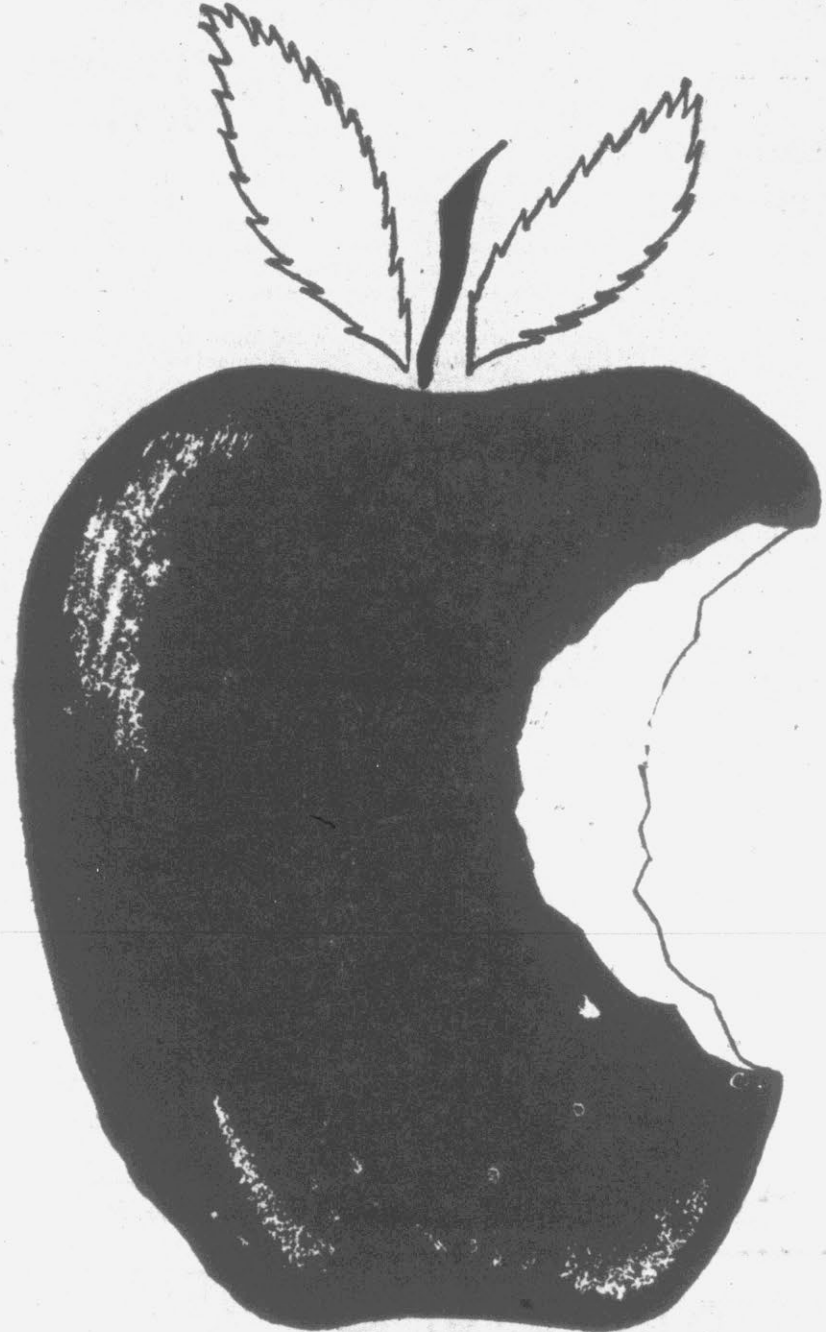

The U.S. Department of Commerce, which Monday announced the establishment of the automatic station, said it is the result of cooperative research by the U.S. Weather Bureau and Atomic Energy Commission. The Canadian Department of Transport cooperated in the project.

Heavy Rains Stop All-Star Game At End Of Ninth

Richards Feels Am. League Boys Put Forth More Effort

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer BOSTON (AP) — Admittedly unhappy over what he called an "unsatisfactory ending," perfectionist Paul Richards, the American League All-Star manager, today expressed pleasure over at least one aspect of Monday's rained-out 1-1 tie at Fenway Park. "I am happy to report that the American League team, to a man, certainly is deserving of no criticism," he said. "The boys had a little different outlook on this game. I thought I could detect a little more determination."

Star game as manager and I wanted so badly to win it, but I honestly felt there was not as much anxiety and determination as in this second game." Did Richards lay down the law to his players, or perhaps give them a pep talk? "I did talk to them," he acknowledged. "It was no attempt on my part to give the boys the Knute Rockne type of fight talk, I merely pointed out how much the game meant to the American League and asked them to play it up to the very hilt. They didn't have to be cajoled. They're all great competitors." Did Richards think the American League's earlier lackadaisical attitude was largely responsible for the National League's winning march which produced 10 victories in 14 games, cutting the American League once-huge margin to 16-14? "I would say the attitude might have helped a little," he replied. Was he in favor of the continuation of the two-game setup? "I am opposed to the two-game idea," Richards said. "One All-Star game a year is a spectacle unmatched by any other in the world of sports. A second game is merely an anti-climax."

All-Star Cagers To Play Tonight

GREENSBORO (AP)—The East tries to snap a three-game West winning streak here tonight in the 13th annual East-West High School All-Star basketball game. The westerners take a 7-5 advantage into the renewal of the series in Greensboro's Coliseum. Tipoff time is 8 p.m. Expected to get the starting nod for the West are Jim Sessions, Mount Airy; Paul Briggs, Reidsville; Richard Herring, Winston-Salem; Reynolds; Bill Smith, Valdese, and Skeeter Oelschlag, Asheville. Meanwhile, Coach Paul Jones of Kinston, who is tutoring the East, has indicated he will probably go with Ray Repass, Panteago; Pud Hassell, Beaufort; Larry Worsley, Oak City; Bill Brogren, Wilmington, and Bill Brown, Durham. On the East-West football front, the two all-star teams drilled Monday under a scorching sun. They play Friday night. And the North Carolina Coaching Clinic, which is held in conjunction with the all-star games, also got underway Monday. The second largest turnout on opening day in the clinic's history heard Ed Hickey, Marquette's basketball coach, and Boston Celtic great Bob Cousy, who gave a lecture and floor demonstration.

Region 4 Teen-er Meet For Today

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Gastonia met Calhoun, Ga., this morning in the opening game of the three-state Region 4 Teen-er Junior baseball tournament. Greenville, Tenn., the third entrant, drew a first round bye Monday night and plays the morning winner at 7:30 p.m. today. The double-elimination tournament continues Wednesday at Simms Legion Park with two games, at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. A fifth game, if needed, will be played Thursday at 10 a.m. Gastonia is defending regional and national champion. The winner here moves to the national finals beginning Aug. 14 in Hershey, Pa.

Draw May Prove Interesting

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — The luck of the draw today guaranteed the quick elimination of at least one favorite in the 14th annual U.S. Golf Association Junior Amateur Championship as the field warmed up for Wednesday's first round. Claude (Butch) Harmon Jr. of New Rochelle, the metropolitan junior champ who carries his father's famous golfing name with distinction, was matched against Steve Whitman, the California junior champion from San Francisco. It could be one of the better matches of the four-day event as the 128 youngsters test Cornell University's 6,592-yard, par 71 course. Harmon qualified two weeks ago with a three-over-par 73 at Westchester Hills, losing five strokes to par on two short holes with 72, one over par, at the Peninsula Club south of San Francisco. In another top first-round match, national medalist Jamie Gough III of Washington, D.C., takes on Mark Whitaker of Prairie Village, Kan. NEEDS A FEW RUNS CINCINNATI (AP)—When Joey Jay lost his first three decisions for the Reds there was a good reason. His mates failed to score one run while he was on the mound. He then reeled off eight straight victories to put the Reds in first place in the National League.

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Jerry Barber of Los Angeles, a saved-off little guy with a whittled-down magic putter and a tell-all card file, is the PGA golf champion today after firing a 67 and beating young Don January by one stroke in a par-busting 18-hole playoff at Olympia Fields Country Club.

Oldest PGA champion ever at 45 and one of the smallest at 5-5 and 137 pounds, the never-quit son of an Illinois farmer finally got the title he left slip away two years ago.

Barber, who said he got serious about golf at the age of 14 when he read of Bobby Jones' grand slam, did it with putting and a cardfile of Olympia Fields North Course he made during practice rounds.

"I picked up the idea from Gene Andrews, a good amateur out our way, about three years ago," he said. "I pace off each course, chart it and it tells me to the yard just how far every point is from the green."

That kept him out of serious trouble all during the tournament.

The putter put him up in the headlines. First, he pulled even with the lean, lanky January on Sunday by sinking incredible putts on the last three holes.

Then, in the playoff Monday while another hot sun baked the rain-softened, 6,722-yard, par 35-35-70 course in Chicago's south suburbs, Jerry twice came from two strokes behind. He finally wrapped up his first major title when, after getting birdies on three of the previous five holes, he hit a pressure 3-iron shot out of a fairway trap to within 18 feet of the cup on the last hole.

Coming to the 18th, Barber and January were even. Each was three under par in a brilliant display of golf under steamy, hot conditions and crunching pressure. There Barber hit his great trap shot—"183 yards, by my trap card file of the course," he said—and two-putted for a par 4 and a 35-32-67.

January, 31, four regular from Dallas, had a similar trap shot but couldn't bring it off. He caught another trap near the green, pitched up to within 10 feet and missed the putt. He had 34-34-68.

Pro at the Wilshire Country Club at Los Angeles the last seven years, Barber was a farmer, hotel clerk, printer and laibe operator before turning pro golfer. He operated golf driving ranges in California for several years, practiced putting by street light into the night, and finally tuned his game enough to become a regular on the pro tour about 10 years ago.

A consistent money-winner, he had never won a major championship however—losing the 1959 PGA by one stroke to Bob Rosburg when he bogied the last two holes.

By JOHN CREASEY A MATTER OF LIFE AND DEATH

CHAPTER 27
Jeremiah Edge looked miserably as he sat at the wheel of a green sedan, just outside the gates of the Silver Queen plant. Griselda Vance looked less troubled than Edge; and doubtless she had reason to.

Rollison opened the door next to her.
"May I get in?"
"Of course," said Griselda, and moved towards a corner.
"Give you a lift anywhere?" asked Edge, in a glum voice, and then went on: "Of course not, you'll have your own car. Oh, hell, it's the biggest headache I'm ever likely to have. He's killing himself, just corroding himself with hatred. He was always half crazy, now he's gone right over the line." There was defiance in Edge's gaze as he looked round at Griselda. "In spite of what you think," he added abruptly.

"Lone Wolf Vance. This is my battle and only I fight it—that the general idea?" asked Rollison.
"Yes."
"Jerry," said Griselda, "it's easy to forget what he's been through. After yesterday—"
"He's suffering because he's deliberately refused to look at the facts," said Edge. "If he'd admitted the truth about Jimmy being a throwback, he'd never have been hurt like he is. Now, he's turning on everyone. Everyone. He seems to have a hate complex against all of us who were with him in the early days. Remember me, the promising office boy? And Adam, his right-hand man as ideas merchant. And you—Griselda, I tell you he has gone crazy!"
"Tell you what," said Rollison. "Let's have a council of war about it. My flat, after dinner to-night. That's give us time to think about things. How's the loyalty of the Works Manager, Jameson?"

Edge said: "Oh, he's loyal."
"If you're asking whether Jameson wants to tell the police what's happening at the factory, he does," said Griselda. "We could rely on him."
"Spy in the camp, possibly," said Rollison. "I suggest we invite him, too. Nine o'clock, shall we say, at 22G, Gresham Terrace."
"Right," said Edge, and added gloomily, "although I'm damned if I can see what we'll be able to do about it. Paul's the Big Chief himself, owns sixty-five percent of the shares, that stuff about suffering shareholders just won't wash. And why should he worry about the workers? If he's prepared to gamble with his own money, why not with theirs? If this goes on and gets around," he added, savagely, "Silver Queen stock will fall right out of the market."
The fall had already begun. The stock market close showed Silver Queen 10s. Ordinary shares, which had been up to 35s. 6d., down by 6d. It was commonplace. But the evening newspapers carried a story that wasn't. A small paragraph read:
In the past three days, chemists in the North London area have been consulted by several attractive girls for severe irritation of the skin, after using a certain brand of face powder. The makers, when invited to comment, have so far refused to make a statement. It is understood that stocks of the powder have been widely distributed.

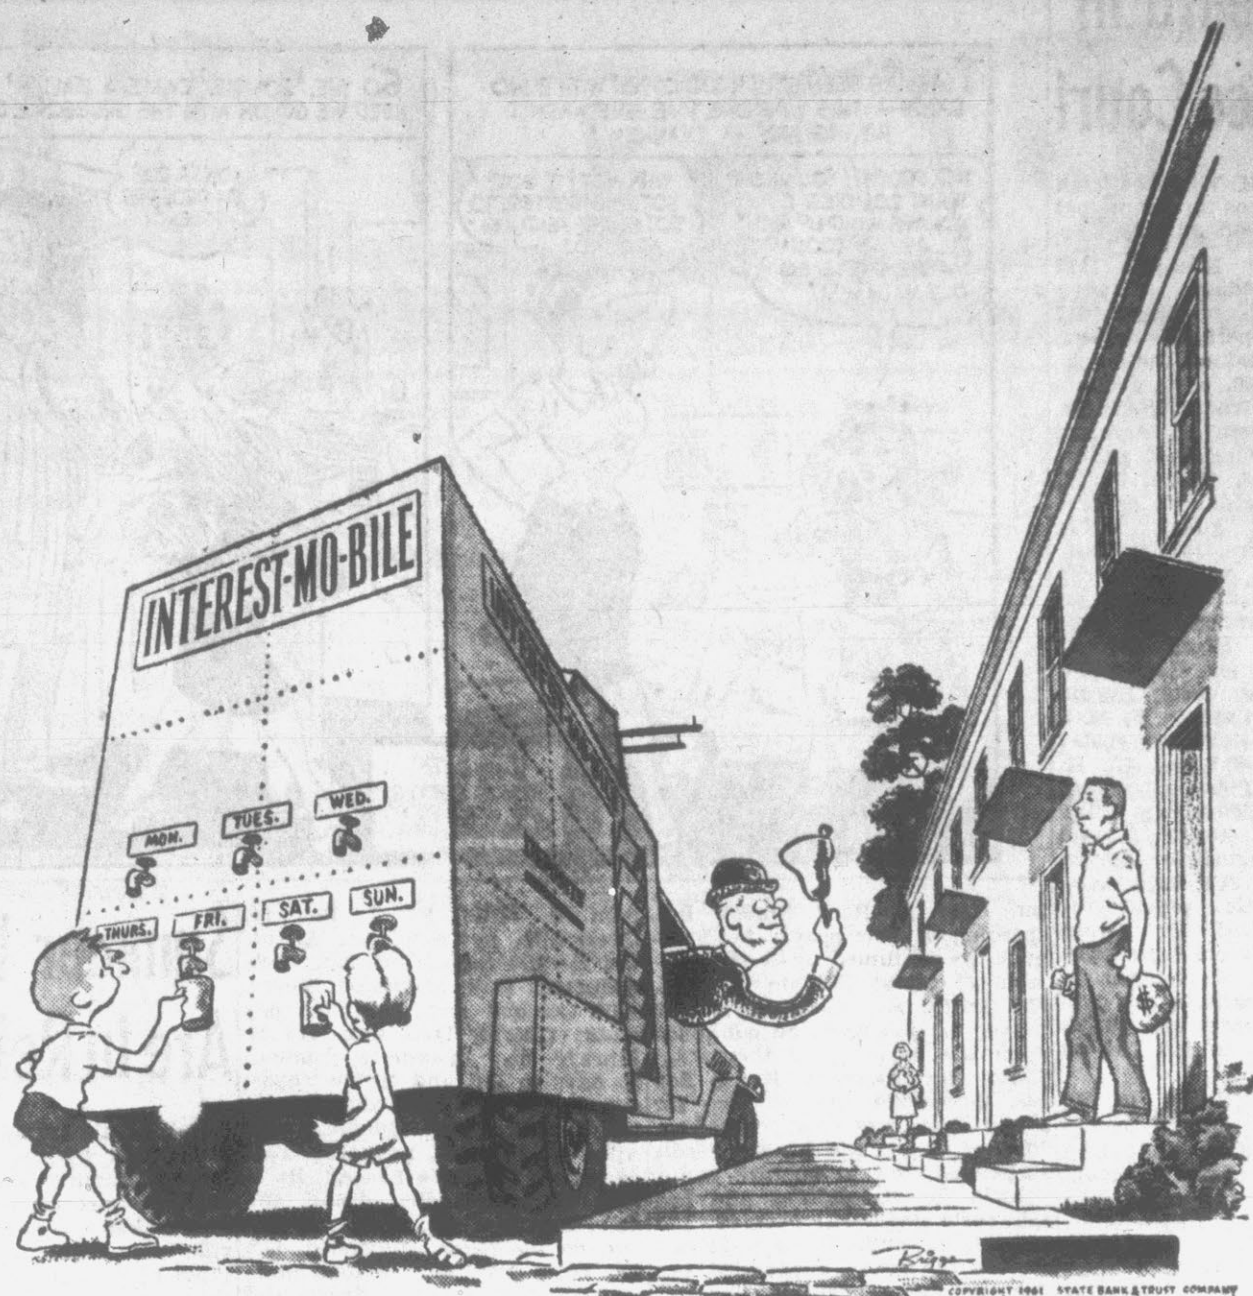

Two sleek cars, each of the luxury class, were parked in Gresham Terrace, a wide, short road and tall terraced houses, drably grey except here and there were owners had had them decorated recently.
Rollison glanced up at a window of his flat.

It was open a little at the top, normal enough.
He slowed down, some yards before he reached the street door of the flat. He was more worried than he liked to admit, and couldn't really give a reason.
Ebbutt hadn't arrived; at least, he hadn't come in his own car, a bright and shiny T-model Ford. There was no waiting taxi, either. Ebbutt should have been here half-an-hour ago. Had he come, and run into trouble?
"Don't be a fool," he said to himself. "Agatha ran out on Jolly, and he followed her. It isn't a—"
He stopped abruptly.
On the coconut fiber doormat there was a large red mark, the kind of smear that a man might make if he were wiping his feet of something sticky, and had red powder on his shoes.
Rollison looked along the narrow hall.

It was not very light in here, but he saw a tinge of red on the pale carpet. He glanced up the stairs; on at least two treads there were red smears.
He reached the top landing, outside his flat. On the stone in front of the door there was a sharper line of red probably made by the edge of a shoe. He took out his keys, making no sound, and inserted the front door key with agonizing slowness, then turned it.
He flung the door back, and it banged against rubber doorstop. When the noise had stopped, all was quiet.
No Jolly.
No Agatha.
Rollison went into the room. The red footprints conveyed so much to him that it seemed as if the hall itself were as much an inferno as the lipstick mixing room had been at Wembley.

He saw no sign of red on the Persian carpet in the hall. He saw none on the plain biscuit-colored carpet in the rest of the flat.
The big room was empty.
A chair was on its side. A vase of sweet peas, beautiful that morning, lay on its side, with the water already soaked into the carpet making a large dark patch; that must have happened some time ago. The drawers of the desk were open, and papers, strewn the floor. The cocktail cabinet was open, too, and the bottles had been taken out; several of them were on the floor.
Rollison felt choked.
He turned round towards the kitchen and the bedrooms. The spare room was empty, and the bed wasn't made. There was a dusting of powder on the dressing table, and a faint perfume in the air. The girl's clothes were gone.
He went out of the room, into the kitchen—and stopped abruptly.
The shock was greater than any he had ever known; he had half expected half feared something like this, but in the reality it was appalling.
Jolly lay on the floor by the sink.
His head was battered.
After Rollison had done everything he could for Jolly, he went from room to room and he saw nothing which he had missed on the first search.
He did not know whether Jolly would live or die, but the wounds were savage, and there had been a lot of bleeding. His pulse was very faint; but he was alive, and the best surgeon in the country would soon operate.
Rollison had telephoned Grice, and an ambulance was on its way. Now he was alone.
It wasn't the first time the flat had been entered, nor the first time that Jolly had been hurt, but never as savagely or as dangerously as this.

"They won't dare let Agatha Bell escape alive," Rollison realized. "If she's not dead, they'll have to keep her away from the police." Continue the story here tomorrow.

This is an Interest-Mo-Bile. You put your savings in the slot on the side and the machine grinds out the interest from the daily spigots on the back. During Leap Year, the Sunday spigot makes two complete cycles.

This unique machine illustrates the meaning of "Daily Interest." If you put your money in a Savings Account with us and have to draw it out on August 29th to make a payment on your child's college tuition, we pay you interest up to August 29th.

What's so new about this? Well, up until a few months ago, most financial institutions in these parts paid interest on Savings only on July 1st and January 1st. So, ordinarily, if you had to draw out your Savings on September 1st, you would lose the interest you had earned from July 1st to September 1st.

Now, at State Bank & Trust Company, you can draw your interest out up to the very day you have to take out your Savings to pay an unexpected hospital bill—regardless of when that day is.

Actually, most folks leave their Savings Account in our bank for years. The interest accumulates. Now, at State Bank and Trust Company, your interest accumulates twice as fast, because we now compound your interest four times a year instead of twice. So, we pay you interest ON your interest, too, four times a year, and you earn interest up to the day of withdrawal.

There's one more added attraction: If you make your deposit by the 10th of the month, you get 10 days interest free. For example, $1,200 placed in our Savings Department on August 10th earns 10c a day, so you have already earned $1 interest even before you begin.

Alice in Wonderland? No, plain and simple economics. Our economy in Pitt County is growing by leaps and bounds. As this Community's only independent bank, your savings, placed in OUR bank, will immediately be put to work where they will do the most good: RIGHT HERE IN YOUR OWN COUNTY.

So help yourself and help YOUR OWN community: Put your Savings in State Bank and Trust Company in Greenville, where you get more for your money.

Rocket Base Crews Told 'Under A Gun'

By NORMAN WALKER

VANDERBERG AIR FORCE BASE (AP)—Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg said today that now the United States is "under the gun" in the Berlin crisis there is no excuse for any further missile base labor stoppages.
The labor secretary, touring major bases to shore up a two-month old no-strike pledge, said that any serious breach of the pledge could result in President Kennedy seeking a legal no-strike ban from Congress.
Goldberg said, however, that the voluntary pledge is working well—that man-days a month lost to missile base labor disputes measured in many thousands a year ago is now measured in only a few hundred.
He said President Kennedy is keeping close tab on the situation since a Senate committee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., found work stoppages and excessive overtime practices were costing delays and over-expenditures in space programs.
Kennedy, Goldberg said, expects everyone concerned with missile-space project work to do his job and to respect the no-strike, no-lockout pledge.
"This is a test we are making," the labor secretary told the local missile site labor relations committee at Strategic Air Command headquarters, Omaha, Neb. late Monday.
"But the president will have no hesitancy in going to Congress (for strike-banning legislation) if that becomes necessary," Goldberg said.
Goldberg's theme at every stop has been that establishment of national and local missile labor settlement procedures makes strikes unnecessary. Uninterrupted and economical completion of projects in view of the world situation, is too important for that, he said.

Borrowed Truck To Steal Tires
PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — A burglar dropped through a skylight in Palo Alto and borrowed a small truck to take away 91 big tires valued at $3,800.
Patrolman Charles R. Downing discovered the door unlocked and a postscript to burglary chalked on the floor.
It read: "If I had a bigger truck I'd have taken them all."

Cases Heard In City Police Court

Judge Charles H. Whedbee tried the following cases in Municipal Recorder's Court on July 28.

William Henry Blizard, 1112 Fairfax Ave., speeding, pay costs; James Henry Bumpus, Negro, 617 W. ## Summer Players Are In Rehearsal

Rehearsals are underway for the production by the East Carolina College Summer Players of Richard Nash's romantic comedy, "The Rainmaker," to be given in Greenville on August 9 and 10 and later at Carolina Beach on seven dates.

The cast has been chosen by Dr. Joseph A. Withey, director of the East Carolina Playhouse. Most of the Summer Players have appeared in Playhouse productions or have served on the staff in dramatic offerings at East Carolina.

The play to be presented in Greenville in McGinnis Auditorium, August 9 and 10, at 8:15 p.m., is open to the college community and the public.

Dates of the production at Carolina Beach, under sponsorship of the Carolina Beach Players, Inc., are August 18, 19 and beginning on August 22 for five consecutive evenings through August 26.

Dorning Jenkins of Greenville, senior at East Carolina, majoring in primary education, and Jimmy Roberts of Fayetteville, sophomore at East Carolina, with a music major, carry the lead roles in "The Rainmaker."

Dardanelles Will Not Be Closed

ANKARA, Turkey. (AP)—Turkey will not close the vital waterway between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean if the Communists try to close off West Berlin, Gen. Cemal Gursel said Monday.

He was asked by newsmen if Turkey, a NATO ally of the West, planned such action as a reprisal should the Soviet Union let East Germany shut off access to West Berlin.

"This is the first time I have heard of such a suggestion," the Turkish president replied.

The 1936 Montreux convention guarantees peacetime passage through the Straits of the Dardanelles and Bosphorus to all warships of Black Sea nations except aircraft carriers and submarines. In time of war the straits are closed to all participants if Turkey is neutral.

Car Applications Match Abortions

VIENNA (AP)—A Czechoslovak newspaper report that 100,000 Czech citizens applied for automobiles last year while 100,000 women received permission to have abortions.

"The interest in a car or other luxuries has priority over interest in a happy family," commented the paper, Smena of Bratislava. The Communist Czech government authorizes abortions in "justified cases."

Shell suggests 12 ways to beat the heat when you're on the road

Shell Touring Manager "Mac" MacLagan

"THERE'S no reason to let hot weather spoil your summer driving fun," says Shell's veteran Touring Manager H. S. "Mac" MacLagan. "Here are a dozen tips that will help you protect your car and yourself from the wear and tear of hot-weather driving."

1. Cover car seats when you park in the sun. Then they won't be scorching hot when you return. A newspaper or a towel will do the trick. On the road, a ventilated seat cushion with back—like the ones truck drivers use—lets the air circulate around you and helps keep you cool.
  2. Increase idling speed occasionally when you're in hot, heavy traffic. You'll turn the fan faster, speed up the flow of engine coolant—and reduce temperatures under the hood. This can help keep your car from overheating.
  3. Don't pump the accelerator if your car won't start after a short stop. The engine is probably flooded. Pumping only makes it worse.
- The right thing to do is wait a few minutes, press the accelerator pedal all the way to the floor, and hold it there while you work the starter.
- NOTE: You're not likely to have this problem in the first place if you keep Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend in your tank. In summer, Shell scientists

4. Break up your trip. Summer heat drains your energy. Stop frequently to rest, stretch your legs and have a look at the scenery. You'll feel better when you get back on the road.
5. Keep meals, clothes and suitcases light. You need less food in hot weather. Heavy meals can make you feel hot and drowsy. As for clothes, you'll be more comfortable if they're light and loose-fitting. Better air circulation.
6. Keep your radiator clean. Debris in your radiator can cut cooling efficiency drastically. A whisk broom will help you clean obstructions you can see. But for a really complete job, let your Shell dealer use compressed air from his tire hose to blast debris out.
7. Plan to reach your overnight stops before 4 o'clock. You'll avoid the local rush-hour traffic and late afternoon heat. You'll have your pick of the air-conditioned motels and hotels, too.
8. Make sure your tires are in tip-top condition before you leave home. Summer heat can increase the risk of blow-outs, and high speeds on sizzling roads wear tires out fast. At 80 miles an hour you get only one-fifth of normal tread wear.
9. Kill windshield glare. Did you ever notice how much summer sunshine can bounce into the windshield off the shiny shelf above the dashboard? That glare can be plenty irritating. To kill glare, simply drape a dark cloth across the dashboard shelf.
10. Have your oil level checked every time you stop for gasoline. This check is especially important when you're driving in hot weather, because a full crank-

Nat Cole Won't Go Along With Sullivan

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Nat (King) Cole says he loves Ed Sullivan personally but can't get along with him professionally.

A publicity man sitting in on the interview interrupted: "You don't mean that for publication, do you, Nat?"

"Why not," answered Cole. "I mean it."

He was explaining his recent appearance on the Jack Paar Show for the controversial $300 fee. But the Paar-Sullivan feud has nothing to do with his appraisal of Sullivan as an impresario.

"I used to be on the Sullivan show so much people thought I must have had something on the guy—but I had to quit," says Nat.

"Ed's too nostalgic. He wants to hear the same old songs. How many times can I sing 'Nature Boy' or 'Mona Lisa'? How many times must I identify myself?"

Sullivan is now in Europe. A spokesman said there would be no comment on Cole's remarks.

The professional blowup between Sullivan and the man that many consider America's greatest ballad singer came earlier this year.

"Ed heard me sing 'Stardust' at the inaugural gala. My contract called for an appearance on the Sullivan show a few weeks later.

"I picked out four songs, mostly new, one a particularly beautiful waltz called 'Illusion'."

"Come time for the show, one of Ed's producers called me to say that Ed didn't like the songs. He wanted me to sing 'Stardust'."

"I said: 'Do you know that there have been 140 records made of 'Stardust'?"

"That made no difference. It was 'Stardust' or nothing. I told him that 'Illusion' was a new record of mine and I would like to use the show to plug it."

"I got the answer that the Sullivan show is not used for exploration. I said what are those excerpts from movies and Broadway plays but exploitation? Or those rock 'n' roll kids who make one hit record?"

Nat was not on the show—although he was in New York sitting in his hotel room.

Then he returned to Las Vegas. "Jack Paar called me and asked me to be on his show. My answer was: 'Is tomorrow night soon enough?'"

Final Payments

Final payments to Pitt County farmers participating in the federal emergency feed grain program are scheduled to begin within the next two weeks, according to Pitt Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office manager Livingston Roberts.

Roberts said the remainder of a total $700,000 that will go to the county's farmers has been approved at higher levels and payments can begin soon.

The remaining payments for Pitt, he said, will total about $350,000 since approximately half the total payment was paid farmers upon sign-up under the emergency grain measure.

ASCS figures show 1,373 Pitt farms participated in the program by diverting a total of 22,442 acres of corn alone under the program. That figure represents 26 per cent of the county's 85,849 acres of corn grown a year ago.

Fifty-one per cent of the county's 2,754 farms participated in the program designed to help reduce the national grain surplus.

Adm. Rickover Rests In Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, the atomic submarine pioneer, is in a hospital after what the Navy describes as a mild heart attack.

In answer to questions, the Navy said today that the heart attack occurred last Tuesday.

"He is now sitting up and his condition is considered excellent," the Navy said, adding that no surgery was performed.

Rickover is a patient at the Navy hospital in nearby Bethesda, Md.

Hit-Run Crash Reported Monday

An estimated $90 damage resulted from a hit-and-run collision on Evans St. about 9:10 p.m. yesterday, police reported today.

Officers said the damage was done to a car owned by Haywood Earl Whichard, 25, of Route 3, Greenville which was parked in front of 552 Evans St. and hit by a vehicle which did not stop.

Investigation is continuing in the case, officers reported.

Short Circuit Brings Firemen

Fire units were sent to the ABC Moving and Storage building at the intersection of 10th and Railroad Sts. about 6:50 p.m. yesterday when a fire was reported there.

Officers who responded to the call said a light fixture in the building had developed a short circuit.

Examinations Are Being Given Postal Applicants

Examinations are still being given for the positions of substitute letter carrier and substitute postal clerk in the Greenville Post Office, Postmaster J. Knott Proctor said yesterday.

The duties of some substitute letter carrier positions include driving motor vehicles, and appointees will not be assigned to such positions unless they possess a valid and appropriate motor vehicle operators permit or succeed in obtaining such a permit within 30 days.

Certain physical requirements stated above are waived for applicants entitled to veteran preference provided such applicants are physically able to discharge efficiently the duties of the position without any undue hazard to themselves, fellow employees or others.

The lists of eligibles resulting from this examination will be used to fill positions here. Applications will be accepted until further notice.

The department or office requesting certification of eligibles has the legal right to specify the sex desired to fill vacancies, Proctor noted. Although the Post Office Department wishes men for the letter carrier positions and most of the postal clerk positions, some postal clerk positions are open to women.

Male applicants must weigh at least 125 pounds, according to requirements, but the weight requirement is waived for applicants entitled to veteran preference and may also be waived for non-veterans who are presently, or who have been, employed in a position which will be filled from this examination and who have demonstrated their ability to discharge efficiently the full duties required of this position.

Advanced Atlas Again A Success

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A successful 5,000-mile test flight has moved an advanced Atlas missile nearer operational status and provided valuable information for designing atomic power units for space vehicles.

The improved Atlas "E" model Monday scored its second straight success, hitting a target area off Ascension Island.

The new Atlas, which is being developed for greater range and heavier payload than the present operational model is to be ready for deployment late this year. On its previous test firing, an "E" rocket streaked a record 9,050 miles.

The blazing re-entry heat of the Monday shot burned through a special container attached to the side. Brilliant yellow and violet flames erupted.

The capsule carrying the flares simulated nuclear fuel cores. Men and cameras on ships, in planes and on Ascension watched and recorded the flares and the ionization trails created by the disintegrating capsules.

A radio transmitter relayed heat information. Additional data was obtained from a 30-inch cylinder which parachuted from the nose cone and was recovered by the ocean range vessel Coastal Crusader. The packet contained instruments and a tape recorder to register temperatures and nose cone performance.

The experiment could reveal much about how an atomic space generator would burn up and its radioactive contents disperse on re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

The first atomic power device ever flown rode in a transit navigation satellite launched last month from Cape Canaveral. Officials said it was purposely redesigned to guarantee safety under any condition.

Ports Closed To Nuclear Subs

TOKYO (AP)—Japan has rejected an American request for opening Japanese ports to U.S. atomic submarines because of Japanese fears of radioactivity, Defense Director Sensuke Fujieda disclosed today.

Fujieda said the proposal was made by Secretary of State Dean Rusk to Foreign Minister Zentaro Koizumi last June when the latter accompanied Premier Hayato Ikeda to Washington.

Lawyers Back Away From Pinch-Hitting For Bloom

Yesterday the lawyers assembled for Greenville Recorder's Court backed off.

None wanted to take a chance on being substitute solicitor, which has always been considered a routine thing that nobody ever thought about. But yesterday it was different.

The situation arose when El Bloom, city solicitor, asked to be relieved of his morning duties in order to attend to his store which was besieged by flames on Sunday.

As usual, another lawyer was ready to step in as solicitor.

But, it was brought to the attention of the court that the North Carolina State Bar Association has ruled that any person acting as solicitor in the interior courts of the state, or any person acting as judge in such cannot engage in the practice of criminal law in any court in the state.

When a lawyer substitutes for the solicitor, he is acting as an officer of the court and the ruling applies to him, it was brought out by Albion Dunn, who has been chairman of the Ethics Committee for the N. C. State Bar for many years.

Dunn said he just happened to be in the court yesterday. When the substitute stepped up, Dunn warned about the danger. He said the ruling had not been brought to anyone's attention before.

Heeding Dunn's information, all the lawyers backed off. Judge Charles Whedbee stated that he didn't want any of the lawyers to take a chance on substituting even for one day in view of the ruling. Hence, he tried cases which didn't require the solicitor.

It is also a longtime ruling of the State Bar Association that the partner of a solicitor or judge may not practice in his partner's court.

no retroactive effect on lawyers who had previously served as substitute solicitors in the local court, as they were acting in good faith.

In the future, if the solicitor is called away from his duties, Judge Whedbee said probably he would try those cases that did not require a solicitor, and the contested cases would be continued to a date when the solicitor would be in court.

"However, it would be a very rare instance when the solicitor wouldn't be there" Judge Whedbee noted.

Moose Lodge . . .

received his recognition on the basis of the Greenville Lodge's growth in all fields during his 1960-61 term.

Current Civic Affairs co-Chairman Sam Brooks announced the annual Bicycle Road-e-o, staged by the Greenville lodge, would be held September 30.

Last year's program saw the presenting of three bicycles, pens, movie passes and other prizes among the contestants. The event, divided into age groups, is designed to promote safe bicycling habits among children and includes a written test as well as a test of riding skills.

Merrill Bynum, in recalling his own experience with the program, said prior to the bicycle road-e-o of 1960 there had been a rash of cycling accidents; but immediately following it, the accident rate abruptly dropped. "This project," he said, "carries with it an element of community service, and if we conceivably save one child from injury or even death, the road-e-o more than justifies our sponsorship."

Porter said about a dozen volunteer firemen answered the call about 10:30 a.m. Monday and arrived in time to save the barn.

The destroyed tobacco was being cured by a Mills tenant farmer, Elbert Stokes.

The cult of Isis, which promised immortality and bodily resurrection, spread from Egypt to Greece, Rome and Britain, challenging Christianity for a time.

At any rate, Solicitor Bloom returned to court yesterday, after noon and took care of the docket of cases.

Judge Whedbee noted that in his opinion the ruling would have

Barn, Tobacco Burned Monday

SIMPSON—Six hundred sticks of tobacco were lost and a curing barn damaged by about $150 in a morning fire near here yesterday.

Simpson Rural Fire Department Chief Gentry Porter reported the fire, on the Marshall Mills farm near Simpson, apparently started from a flooded oil burner.

Porter said about a dozen volunteer firemen answered the call about 10:30 a.m. Monday and arrived in time to save the barn.

The destroyed tobacco was being cured by a Mills tenant farmer, Elbert Stokes.
