Soviet Spaceman Lands Safe; Girdled Earth 17 Times

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet spaceman Gherman Titov landed safely today after more than 17 circuits of the earth in his space ship Vostok II and reported to Premier Khrushchev "I feel splendid." The premier promised a tremendous welcome to Moscow for the 26-year-old major, who traveled more than 700,000 kilometers (about 435,000 miles), roughly far enough to reach the moon and return. He was in the air 25 hours and 18 minutes. "We shall congratulate and thank your parents at a personal meeting in Moscow," Khrushchev said in a telephone conversation from the Kremlin to Titov somewhere in the interior. "We shall give you a worthy welcome in Moscow, as a whole people, as a whole country." As the first of the Soviet honors sure to follow, Khrushchev told Titov he was being promoted to full membership in the Communist Party. The handsome major has been a candidate member. Titov, son of a retired school teacher in Siberia, manually controlled his five-ton space ship for periods up to an hour, slept more than eight hours, and ate three meals while enduring the space phenomenon of weightlessness. He circled the globe every 88.6 minutes in an orbit that reached a maximum altitude of 159.59 miles and a minimum of 110.5 miles. Moscow Radio said Titov landed in a predetermined area near where the first Soviet spaceman, Yuri Gagarin, touched down after his pioneer flight April 12. Gagarin, who made only one orbit of the earth, is believed to have landed about 450 miles southeast of Moscow. Titov told Khrushchev that "after the landing, I drank a little water, and I feel splendid." Before the telephone call, Khrushchev sent Titov a message of congratulation on his "heroic deed," saying the feat "has shown once again what Soviet man, educated by the Communist Party, is able to do." "Until we meet soon in Moscow," Khrushchev concluded, indicating the government was planning a triumphal welcome to the capital for Titov like the one that greeted Gagarin after his space flight. The Soviet Cabinet and the Presidium and Central Committee of Parliament, in a message to the people and governments of the world, said: "The time is not far away when the way will be paved to the moon. Mars and Venus, along with perspectives will open to mankind in the mastery of the cosmos." Circling the globe every 88.6 minutes, Titov swung in an orbit that reached a maximum altitude of 159.59 miles and a minimum of 110.5 miles. Gagarin's route was longer with a minimum height of 110 miles and a maximum of 188 miles. Over and again Titov kept sending word back to earth that he was in great shape—"Am feeling fine. I feel excellent under conditions of weightlessness. Shipshape order on board." The historic flight proved that a man can undergo the rigors of a flight to the moon without excessive ill effect. The Soviets said the purpose of the flight was to study the effects on a human being of prolonged orbital flight and the descent to the earth's surface. (Many Western observers surmised that the flight had been timed to reinforce Khrushchev's drive to end the Western Allies' occupation of West Berlin and particularly the threats to Berlin Khrushchev is expected to make in a major broadcast tonight. Like Gagarin's flight, Titov's was greeted in both the Western and Communist world with praise for the Soviet scientific achievement. Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's giant radio telescope at Jodrell Bank, termed it "another important step in the Russian plan to populate the solar system beginning with the invasion of the moon in a few years' time." Several West European newspapers said the flight was more evidence of the Soviet lead over the United States in the space race. But the news of Titov's flight was accepted calmly in Washington. Space officials and others showed no surprise. Throughout his flight, the Soviets said, the handsome, wavy-haired Titov was kept in view from earth by television and while awake he maintained constant two-way radio communication. He was in a smiling, happy-go-lucky mood throughout the trip, once wisecracking in a message to Muscovites: "I wish you had it so good." "I am eagle—I am eagle," he said exultantly. Recorded excerpts from his conversations were broadcast to Moscow listeners. Titov blasted off from an undesignated launching site at 9 a.m. Sunday. His craft weighed 10,447 pounds, only 13 pounds more than Gagarin's Vostok I. During much of the flight, the Soviet news agency Tass and Moscow Radio gave almost play-by-play reports on the trip and announced ahead of time cities over which it would pass. The space ship was seen by many as a bright star traveling rapidly across the sky. Giving his radio wavelenghts the Soviets invited the people of the world to listen in to the astronaut's broadcasts. He was heard—and recorded—by many listeners. Radio transmissions in code from the space ship also were picked up by Western monitors. While Titov was in flight, Moscow Radio said there were "hundreds of objects on board." This suggested that he might have had insects or animals as traveling companions.

Site Of Training School Selected By Pitt Board

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer Pitt County's technical training school will be constructed on a 30-acre site just south of Greenville, it was decided today. Pitt's Commissioners this morning concurred in the selection of the site, owned by H. L. Bowen, by the County Board of Education and a three-member committee from the State Board of Education. In the same action, the commissioners advanced funds to exercise an option that expires Sept. 1. Cost of the land was set at $1,000 an acre for the total 29.56 acres. Selection of the site, one of 20 offered the education body at per-acre prices ranging from $300 to $3,000, also has the blessing of the Greenville School Board. County Board Chairman J. S. Moye presented the board's request for approval of the site by the commissioners. "We think it's an ideal site," he told them. The Bowen property is located just south of US Highway 264 by-pass on the west side of NC Highway 11. The northern boundary of the school site is adjacent to the south line of the recently-opened drive-in theater. In his request to the commissioners, Moye praised the efforts of Pitt Sen. Robert L. Humber in obtaining the school for Pitt County. "There's no question about it," he said. "We would not have obtained the last allocated school if it had not been for Sen. Humber." Commissioner J. Vance Perkins of Greenville offered a motion that the county board concur in the selection of the Bowen property. (Continued on page ten)

Strike Vote?

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers Union's 24-man Executive board will be asked next Sunday to authorize a strike vote against General Motors Corp. to support demands in a new contract to replace the current three-year one expiring Aug. 31. Leaders of GM locals in Detroit, Flint and Saginaw, Mich., voted Sunday to ask the executive board to take a strike vote against GM's 300,000 UAW-represented production workers. A union spokesman said the votes were unanimous in all three Michigan cities. There was no immediate report from 17 other cities across the country in which GM local leaders also held weekend strategy meetings.

Official Washington Not Shaken By Russian Feat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Official Washington took the Soviet Union's second manned spaceflight in stride. The general attitude was let's get on with our own space program. Here and there an ominous note was struck—that the Soviet space success possibly portends a military threat to the United States. The consensus was that the Soviets had scored a major accomplishment. Typical of the let's-be-calm mood was the remark of Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois. "We shall do it in due course in equal and even larger degrees. Our space progress has been excellent and will pick up steam as it goes along," Dirksen said. Among those looking at the dark side of the Soviet feat was Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. "There are some indications that a satellite of this size could be utilized as a very dangerous weapon," Russell said. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson said at Hyannis Port, Mass., after conferring with President Kennedy on U.N. matters: "Russia's scientific contribution to the conquest of outer space commands our admiration. "Orbiting a new astronaut for a longer period is another step forward. Let us hope the capsule is recovered and the life of this brave man saved." Stevenson told newsmen he was sure these were also the views of the President. He added that he and Kennedy shared the view that space control was necessary and that they hoped the Soviets will "no longer delay in joining us in cooperative regulation in the use of outer space." George M. Low, chief of the National Aeronautic and Space Administration's program, said the Soviet achievement had been expected by American space officials. Low said it would be "quite some time yet" before the United States could hope to duplicate it. The U.S. program, he said, was "being pushed hard and has been pushed hard," but cannot go faster than it is going. At Langley Air Force Base, Va., announcement of the Soviet achievement was received with typical calm by the U.S. Mercury astronauts. A spokesman, Lt. Col. John A. Powers, said: "None of us are particularly surprised." On Capitol Hill, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana matched Dirksen in apparent calm. "I'd hope we keep our shirts on and continue to work deliberately to achieve our objectives," Mansfield said. Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., took much the same approach: "We must catch up and pass them but we will have to do it in our own way." Besides Russell, a military significance was noted by others, including Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., also a member of the Armed Services Committee. Agreeing that the Soviets had accomplished another spectacular feat, Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said: "It doesn't take away the fact that in all of the things that make life worth living we still maintain superiority. I would rather have enough for everybody to eat than to hit the moon."

Local Man Held Without Bond In Saturday Slaying

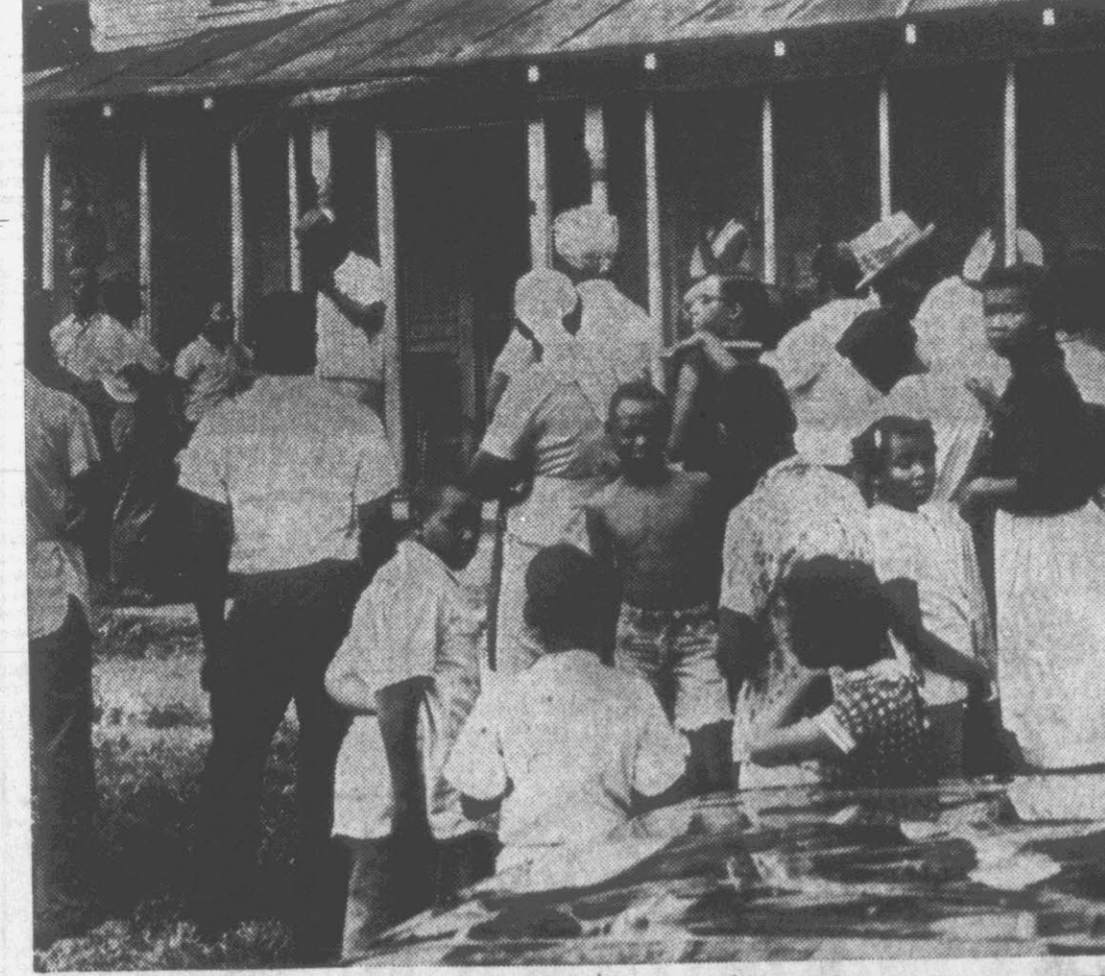

"Probable Cause" was found this morning at a preliminary hearing in City Recorder's Court against Walter David Johnson, 37-year-old Negro, charged with first-degree murder in connection with a Saturday afternoon killing. Judge Charles Whedbee, after hearing the testimony of two investigators, gave the ruling and ordered that Johnson be held without bond for Pitt County Superior Court. Johnson was arrested on the charges after officers, called to 706 Fleming St., found Robert Barnes, 31-year-old Negro, shot to death. Both men roomed at the house, according to officers, one at one end of the upstairs hall and one at the other. One of the investigators, Lt. T. E. Gladson told the court this morning that when he arrived at the scene of the killing, he found Barnes lying on the floor dead, with a shot-gun wound in the right side of his face. He testified that he questioned Johnson about the shooting and said the man "said he (Johnson) had shot him (Barnes)." Lt. Gladson noted that the shooting apparently followed an argument over money. He quoted Johnson as saying Barnes wanted to borrow some money and when he would not lend it the man, Barnes, threatened to take it. Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey, who said Barnes' death was due to a "mortal wound in the right side of the face," said no inquest will be held since the preliminary hearing was held this morning. Officers said the shooting took place about 1:38 p.m. Saturday.

Khrushchev Sounds Call To 'Reason'

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev told the Big Three Western powers today: "Let us sit down honestly at a round conference table, let us not fan up war psychosis." In a TV and radio address to the Russian nation on the Berlin crisis, the premier declared: "Let us clear the atmosphere, let us rely on reason and not on the force of thermonuclear weapons." Wearing glasses, Khrushchev sat at his desk reading his prepared speech. He rarely looked up. Addressing himself to the people and governments of neutral nations, Khrushchev said: "You cannot stay aloof. Only joint efforts by all peoples can lead to the aggressor being put in a straitjacket and the threat of World War III being averted from mankind. Only the efforts of all peoples and governments can lead to the triumph of the great principles of peaceful coexistence, and to the agreement on general and complete disarmament under strict international control." His voice was relatively calm. Under the bright television lights his face seemed more heavily lined than previously. The premier began his speech with a salute to Maj. Gherman Titov for his successful 25-hour orbiting of the earth and with a review of Soviet agricultural accomplishments. Khrushchev said the goal of the current seven-year plan surprised the whole world, and he noted that some skeptics had predicted they would not be fulfilled. He said Soviet peasants had not only fulfilled these goals so far but had "corrected them upwards."

Revolutionary Ferment Of Latin America Described

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—Latin American leaders today pictured the hemisphere as boiling with revolutionary ferment and appealed to all classes to support the U.S. program designed to secure the area against assault from world communism. The United States unveils the broad outlines of its alliance for progress program later to the Inter-American conference here. Speeches, including a key address by U.S. Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, launch a schedule of digging and probing for the most effective methods of putting President Kennedy's program into action. Underscoring the atmosphere of urgency, Felipe Herrera, president of the Inter-American Development Bank, said: "In this age of popular and national revolutions, alliance for progress will be significant to Latin America only if it receives direct support of the great masses of workers and farmers, faith of the middle classes and businessmen and endorsement of intellectuals and technicians." Dillon will tell delegates to the Inter-American Economic and Social Conference how the United States proposes to help Latin America tackle its age-old problems of poverty and illiteracy and approach the goal of economic stability. Viewing this program as a common concern of the Western alliance against communism, the United States will invite Europe's developed nations to join in the drive to secure Latin America. The Kennedy administration is prepared to commit itself to a 10-year crash program to bolster Latin America. It is ready to start the program rolling with a billion-dollar push in the first year. Some Latin American delegates already were complaining that the billion dollars was not enough and included sums previously approved. President Eduardo Victor Haedo of Uruguay and other Latin American leaders at the conference also were reported urging that President Kennedy reconsider his decision not to attend the conference because of the press of world affairs. These Latin Americans felt that an appearance by Kennedy would give Alliance for Progress a dramatic push and would offset to some extent the psychological impact on Latin America of the New Soviet space flight and Soviet Premier Khrushchev's speech to the Soviet people tonight. White House sources indicated, however, that the President would not change his decision to remain in the United States. U.S. participation in the conference, American sources said, is no propaganda show, although there obviously is hope that it will have a strong psychological impact on the building up of Latin America's economic strength. The conference of 20 American states is pictured as a business-like, sober approach to Latin America's perilous problems. With the opening ceremonies out of the way, the delegates turn today to the difficult job of hammering out details of a broad agreement on the common effort. Guevara, Cuba's minister of industries and economic boss, has said he intends to make a marathon speech in the style of Castro himself. Delegates generally consider that his aim is to sow confusion and try to disrupt the conference.

Inquest In Wreck Death Scheduled

An inquest into the death of Jather Whitfield Dudley, 47, of Route 3, Greenville who was killed in a wreck at Chicod July 22, will be held Thursday night at 7:30 in the Pitt County House, Pitt Coroner E. W. Harvey announced today. Dudley, a passenger in an auto driven by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Beacham Dudley, died from injuries received when the vehicle was struck by a tractor-trailer truck being driven by Joseph Lee McCroskey of Wilson. Witnesses to the fatal crash said the Dudley vehicle came to a stop on a side road, waited while one tractor-trailer truck passed at the intersection of N. C. 43, then pulled out onto the highway into the path of the truck driven by McCroskey.

Old Theater On Albemarle Ave. Fell In Saturday

REMAINS . . . of the Plaza Theater which collapsed early Saturday afternoon.

The old Plaza Theater, a landmark on Albemarle Ave. held its last "show" Saturday afternoon when it collapsed. The building has not been in use in recent years. Greenville police received a report at 5:05 p.m. that the roof of the large structure had caved in. They reported that a short time later the outside walls of the S. T. White of 130 West Seventh St. wood-frame structure gave way and fell. Greenville Fire Department's rescue unit was called but they reported no one was injured. The building, once used as a Negro theater, was built about 1919-1920, according to its owner, S. T. White, noting the building would seat 485 persons, said the theater was closed sometime ago when "condemned" by the State for seating over 100 persons. He explained that the building itself was not condemned but noted the State said the wood construction of it made it unsafe for more than 100 persons. Investigators gave no reason for the collapse of the structure which White valued at approximately $15,000.

Rose To Review The Ungraded Primary Program At Session

Greenville City School Superintendent J. H. Rose will discuss the "Ungraded Primary Program" this week at a superintendents meeting at Mars Hill College. County and city school officials from across the state will be attending the four-day event which is sponsored by the State Department of Public Instruction. Addresses by State and national education leaders, including Governor Sanford and the Honorable George V. Allen, former director of the U. S. Information Agency, will be featured. In addition, two symposiums and two discussion groups will be held along with the sessions on promising administrative practices which Rose will take part in. Rose's talk will be based on the ungraded system which is presently being used at Elmhurst School here. The program was inaugurated after a 1957 experiment in grouping first graders at the school. School officials and teachers feel that the plan benefits the students by making it possible for them to proceed in their learning at a rate which is in keeping with their physical, mental, and emotional readiness. The Elmhurst program now takes in the first three grades and is divided into eight levels. Parents' understanding and acceptance of the plan has been vital to its success. It is explained to the parents at a pre-school conference in the spring, at meetings prior to the opening of school and again after the first six weeks of school. It is expected that few children will progress through the eight levels in two years, and for others it would take three or four years. Grading would not occur until the child reaches the fourth grade. It has been felt that the ungraded program produces a feeling of leadership among the children and is a great aid in developing their self-confidence. They have a feeling of success because they are not competing with children of superior ability. However, success of the program depends upon keeping the group small enough to allow for individual attention. Prior to the opening of the conference, the policies committee of the division of superintendents of the NCEA will meet; and on the concluding day of the conference a business session will be held. Other school officials from Pitt County attending the conference are County School Superintendent D. H. Conley and Assistant County School Superintendent Arthur S. Alford.

The informants said the size of the force depends on talks in Kuwait today between an Arab League military mission and the ruler of the oil-rich sheikhdom, Sheikh Abdullah as-Salim as-Sabah.

How To Furnish Colonial Room

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newswriter
HOW DO YOU furnish a Colonial room? New homemakers are eager to latch on to romantic Colonial furniture styles now popular, particularly in the bedroom, but they wonder how to organize a room in the manner of the colonists.

You can make your room look authentic, even though you can't lay claim to the real thing in early furniture. There is much of the early, sturdily-built furniture in existence, since the style prevailed for about 90 years.

But even if you haven't been lucky enough to inherit some of our first formal furniture—patterned mainly after the English cabinetmakers, Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Goddard—you need not feel underprivileged. Some of the new reproductions available could make the old masters sit up and take notice.

Here are some clues to furniture and accessories that could be used in a Colonial bedroom:

Furniture: Four - post beds with or without tester, low chests, high boys, knee-hole dressing tables. Woods are smooth finished mahogany, maple or cherry with cabriole legs, rosette and shell carvings and other significant features of the craftsmen.

Walls: Painted or wallpapered. A style of Colonial times involved using wallpaper above a dado with a border of printed paper, instead of molding, running horizontally around the dado. Other favorite wall treatments included paper panels. These were applied vertically. Senic wall papers or paintings were popular, as they are today.

Floors: Hooked and ragbraided rugs. Canvas painted rugs were used in early American times, and these could be handsomely revived. The canvas could be used over a soft under-cover. When the paint wears off (these rugs, worn areas, may be touched up for a rustic charm, but worn spots could enhance their appearance. Wide pine or oak floor boards of random width were in many typical American homes of Colonial days. Where these boards do not exist, the effect may be achieved by vinyl floor coverings.

Colors: Popular colors used by colonists included brown, yellow-orange, apple green, dark rust-red, a light robin's egg blue, and often an unusual color resulted from painting one color over another.

Fabrics: These colors were used also in calico prints and other cottons, and may be found today in bright chintzes and striped cottons. Informal rooms can make use of all-over designs of fruit and flowers.

Quilted bedspreads are lovely in a Colonial bedroom, especially in combinations of blue and green, red and white and blue and white, favorite early American color combinations. Machine-made quilts may be made at home with scraps. New techniques perfected by local sewing centers make the job easy. The method involves a quilting foot attachment on the machine. A sheet may be used for the backing and a lightweight cotton blanket for the filling. Quilting may be used on valances and even furniture covers.

Other accessories: Tin wall sconces and lamps improvised from old glass bottles and apothecary jars will give your home a Colonial look. Lamps of early American motif are available today, such as those with rooster base. Wall accessories could include Chippendale-style mirrors, bannet clocks, Currier and Ives prints, framed silhouettes, animal prints, framed bits of old fabric, samplers. Pewter porringer dishes can serve as ash trays, larger pewter containers as flower containers. Old bottles may be used as candlesticks.

If there is a fireplace, andirons of brass with claw and fall feet, iron Hessian soldiers or "the smokers," popular during the Revolutionary period, may be found at auctions, but reproductions of old andirons also are available.

U.S. Tourism Abroad Drops

By MILTON MARMOR
LONDON (AP) — The familiar figure of the camera-carrying American tourist isn't seen as often this summer as in former years at most of Europe's resort spots.

Early reports from hotels and tourist agencies show a definite dropping off of visitors from across the Atlantic. The falloff ranges around 10 per cent.

Among reasons advanced are:
1. President Kennedy's appeal to Americans to save dollars for America by spending their vacations at home.
2. The Berlin crisis. The average American tourist is highly sensitive to international trouble.
3. Tanks in Paris streets during the recent Algerian troubles.

The official figures for May — the most recent ones available in Britain — show a 10 per cent decrease from last year, although the number of visitors from other countries went up 10 per cent. One Scottish tourist agency man estimated the American fall-off at as much as 40 per cent.

He said such special attractions as the Olympic Games in Rome, Italy, where American tourism has been climbing steadily every year, showed somewhat inconclusive figures. As in most lands, the first four months showed an increase of 15 to 20 per cent in tourists over last year. American tourism went up 5 per cent. But in June the over-all tourist influx increased only 10 per cent.

American Express officials in Geneva said there were from 15 to 20 per cent fewer American tourists in the mountainous wonderland this summer. The drop started in June, with the development of the Berlin crisis.

Officials suggested President Kennedy's call for dollar savings clearly was a factor. Hotel keepers in the main Swiss summer tourist spots reported a wave of cancellations from America. One estimate was as high as 30 per cent.

West German officials said they had no means of judging whether U.S. tourism has dropped off. The last figures were for March, which showed a 12.6 per cent increase for all foreigners and 1.1 to 20 per cent fewer Americans.

"How Did Dye Get On My Car Coat?"
—Miss E. S. N.

Dear Miss E.S.N.:
It is natural to think that your drycleaner cleaned your coat with other garments that "bled" into your coat. Certainly the blue dye that appeared at the collar of your fur-trimmed car coat wasn't from the coat or its lining. It wasn't in the garment, Miss E.S.N. It was in the skin of the fur-trimmed collar.

Though you may not realize it, dyeing of pelts is common. Dyes that do not "bleed" from the fur often will "bleed" from the skin. The fur need not be dyed black or blue. It is the dye in the pelt that "bleeds."

In some cases your drycleaner can correct or improve this condition, depending upon the fabric, its construction and the intensity of the stain. However, the fault lies with the manufacturer and the garment should be returned to him for full satisfaction.

Another car coat that gives trouble is the poplin foreign-made one. The shell fabric in these garments is treated with rubber on the lining side to give the garment greater warmth. It isn't visible to you or the drycleaner. Then, when it is drycleaned, the rubber coating pulls away from the fabric in blisters or loose sheets and the debris accumulates at the bottom of the coat between the living and the shell fabric. Car coats are attractive and desirable, but they do present problems. If yours is of foreign-manufacture or has a fur collar—hand it with care to your professional drycleaner.—(AP)

The hostesses presented Miss Taylor with gifts of china and silver.

British Ship Sets High Cleanliness Standards In Crew's Quarters

The crew on the British ship Oriana has quarters almost as luxurious as the passengers. Every member of the 900-man crew lives in an air-conditioned single or two-berth cabin fitted with wash-basins and running hot and cold water.

All furnishings are designed to be practical as well as luxurious—with washable plastic-faced fabric used to cover the walls and line the wardrobes and drawers. All these surfaces can be kept clean with just the swipe of a cloth or sponge dipped in soap or detergent suds.

SWEET AND LOVELY

Try blending a tablespoon of red currant jelly, green mint jelly or raspberry jelly into creamy salad dressing. This is good for a salad that requires a touch of sweetness and color.

Mattox-Keziah Vows Said Here Sunday

In an afternoon ceremony at 2:30 on Sunday, August 6, Miss Anne Clark Keziah became the bride of Mr. Frederick Taylor Mattox at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Chapel. The Reverend Edgar K. Fisher, pastor of the bride, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Earl Keziah of Greenville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gray Mattox, Sr., of Smithfield.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Fred Soles of Virginia Beach, Virginia, sister of the bridegroom, as organist and Mrs. Allison Moss as soloist. Mrs. Moss sang "O Christ Who Once Hast Deigned" by Lloyd and "The Wedding Prayer" as the benediction.

The chapel was decorated with areca palms, candelabras holding tall cathedral candles and an arrangement of white gladiolus. A prie dieu kneeling bench was placed at the altar. Pews were marked with white satin bows and plumose greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk peau-de-sole designed on princess lines. The sabrina neckline was accented with sequins and pearl motifs, and the bodice and sleeves were of hand-clipped chandilly lace. Garlands of lace banded the bouffant skirt and chapel train.

Her three tiered veil of French illusion was attached to a coronet of pearls and aurora crystals. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids and nylon tulle tied with bridal satin ribbon.

Mrs. Stuart MacDonald Shinn of Greenville was the bride's only attendant. Her dress was a Kay Sely original of shrimp silk organza over silk taffeta. The bodice featured a scoop neckline and cap sleeves. The bell-shaped skirt was draped with silk organza into an apron effect of soft pleats and accented in the back with a large bow of matching organza. She carried a cascade bouquet of green fuji mums, and belles of Ireland tied with matching ribbon.

Mr. Mattox's father served as best man. Ushers were Fred Soles of Virginia Beach, Va., brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Marlon McCall Godwin of Jacksonville.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Keziah wore an imported dress of pink embroidered pure silk accented at the waist with a taffeta bow. She wore matching accessories and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Mattox wore a two piece silk costume dress of powder blue, featuring a brocade bodice. Her accessories were of matching color and she wore a white orchid.

For a wedding trip to northern points, the bride chose a costume suit of white sharkskin complemented by a red hat by Dior and white accessories. She wore a corsage of white orchids.

The bride attended East Carolina College and is now Woman's Editor of the Greenville Daily Reflector.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina Law School, where he was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon Social Fraternity. He served as judge advocate with the United States Air Force in Japan for two years, and is presently associated with the law firm of Bount and Taft in Greenville, where the couple will reside.

Reception

Immediately following the wedding, the bride's parents entertained

Harris. Others assisting were Mrs. Henry Keziah of Charlotte, Miss Martha Jane Keziah of Hamlet and Miss Susan Keziah of Charlotte, Mrs. Jim Galloway of Goldsboro, Mrs. Andreas Koroneos and Mrs. Ralph Paul of Greenville.

Wedding Breakfast

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Blount, and Mr. and Mrs. Hoover Taft, Jr., honored Miss Anne Keziah and Mr. Frederick Mattox at a wedding breakfast Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock at the Blount home on Rock Spring Road.

The hosts and honored couple greeted the guests at the door, and invited them to the terrace where punch was served. Guests were seated at individual tables set up on the porch, which held center arrangements of paper mache wedding bells. The bride's table decor was a bride and groom centerpiece. The home was decorated with white summer flowers carrying out the bridal motif. The honoree was presented a nosegay of summer flowers. Those present were members of the wedding party, families and out-of-town guests.

Cake Cutting

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hardee and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Smith III entertained at a cake cutting and after rehearsal party immediately following the wedding rehearsal honoring Miss Anne Keziah and Mr. Frederick Mattox at the home of the Hardees in Lakewood Pines.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Hardee greeted the guests upon their arrival and invited them into the living room which was decorated with bridal colors of green and white. Cracking the mantel were five-branched candelabras holding white tapers. Elsewhere in the home were arrangements of white carnations and greenery.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardee invited guests into the dining room where the appointed table was overlaid with a white outwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of white carnations featuring a miniature bride and bridegroom. The bridal couple cut the first slice of wedding cake with a silver cake server, a gift of the bride's paternal grandmother.

Mrs. J. Earl Keziah, mother of the bride, served punch from a silver punch bowl, and Mrs. B. G. Mattox, mother of the bridegroom, served the wedding cake. The three-tiered wedding cake of white, trimmed in pink and green, featured sterling silver favors. The cake was topped with a bride and groom.

Neglected Floors Get New Look

IF YOU ARE BORED with the floors you have now, get another kind. That decorating theory is advanced by one of New York's top interior designers, Jay Dorf, who has put new floors in all four rooms of his apartment. "Floors represent a larger area than any other surface in the room," he points out, "yet we tend merely to tolerate our floors or cover it with carpet."

"Floors should be lovely enough to enhance our furnishings, and make them look more beautiful, an improvement you will notice when ordinary floors are waxed. Floor beauty can be achieved with patina or with pattern."

What happens when you move? "You take your floors with you as you would linoleum," says Dorf. "People who own rare floors pull them up when they move. Well, why not other floors we like. I intend to do it."

If you can't afford new floors, you can get authentic antique effects by scraping, distressing and proper use of stain, he says. Dorf's floors are treasures. A living room furnished in elegant French furnishings, from Regence to Louis XVI, has an old French mitered herringbone flooring of straight grain and quartered oak. The kitchen floor is vinyl laid in mortar by hand to resemble brick.

The wide oak antique floor boards in a sitting room are from a country home in Milford, Conn. Ditto the 22-foot country chestnut beams at the ceiling. The room was designed to be an authentic New England country room. A "modern" primitive oil painting of a clipper ship hangs over the fireplace, a Handsome English oak and red leather reclining chair is at the fireplace, a red and white sofa and pieces of Dorf's fabulous collection of "Dr. Wall Worcester" blue and white porcelain enhances the room.

To achieve Jekyll-Hyde effects with windows. Picture windows in his apartment conform to others in the building from the outside, inside the subterfuge is accomplished with a false wall through which a drapery runs. But Dorf doesn't stop with false walls, laying new floors, and transforming city apartment rooms into country havens. He doesn't accept little home features because "they've always been that way," he says. "Everyone should think for himself in respect to his home decor, asking himself how he can improve his lot." Here are some of his decorating tricks:

Window sills? Wood can be easily chipped. Why not marble of formica. (Dorf's sills are French marble—Rouge royale.)

Baseboards? Light colored ones are impossible to keep clean. Why not get new effects. (He marbled his with brown and white paint which also complements the window sills.)

Floors badly scarred? If you can't afford new editions, paint them with stenciled patterns for a New England effect or paint the floor a solid color such as gray, adding a red striped border about 12 inches from the wall.

We Must Meet Challenge In Space

The new success of the Soviet Union in its extended manned space flight cannot be underestimated in its significance as scientific achievement or in the political impact it will have around the world.

Political implications of the flight are immediately obvious in that it came on the eve of Premier Khrushchev's scheduled speech on Berlin in reply to the recent address by President Kennedy. It is a space achievement that is farther advanced than anything the United States has attempted in the way of manned space flight and this in itself will provide Khrushchev with ammunition for his propaganda cannons.

Indirectly, at least, this new manned orbit by the Soviets has military implications which the Russians may well seek to use in pressing their demands upon the West in Berlin and at other points around the globe.

Once again this Soviet achievement puts the United States and the Western world on the defensive so far as space accomplishments are concerned. It minimizes the recent achievements of the United States in sending two of its own astronauts on short rocket flights into space and it reflects a decided superiority for the Soviets in large rocket engines capable of sending huge manned space vehicles into orbit.

For the United States, which in recent months has sought to close the gap between its own space program and that of the Soviet Union—particularly where manned space flight is concerned—this latest Soviet achievement presents a new challenge which must be accepted. The administration, Congress and the public must recognize the need for a more intensive space program on the part of the United States if it is to catch up with and keep pace with the Soviet program. It must not only accelerate its space research and development program, but at the same time it must remove from the program the red tape, duplication of effort and confusion which has proved in the past unreasonably costly to the United States in both time and money.

It would be foolish for the American people or their leaders to adopt the attitude that we can continue to plod along with a space program and hope to overtake the Soviets in the field of manned space flight. There is a need for urgency in our own program and a careful and realistic evaluation of the relative position we occupy compared with the Soviet Union. There is also the need for careful planning of a program that will give us space superiority and combine that with the determination to make the necessary sacrifices to achieve that superiority.

This extended orbital flight by a Soviet spaceman removes any doubt that the initial space flight by Gagarin was a fluke and that the Soviets do not have the capabilities of manned flight.

Neither can there be any doubt that the United States—if it is to compete successfully in the space age—must roll up its sleeves another turn, work harder at its space development, and take in its belt another notch if that is necessary to the success of our own program.

Certificates To Need Wall Space

By LYNN NISBET
DIPLOMAS—If this business keeps growing time will not be long till a business man will have to enlarge his office in order to find wall space for his certificates of membership in this or that society.

Latest to be devised for recognizing service to North Carolina is the "Society of the Prodigal Son." This is inverse application of the idea which prompted organization of the "Honorary Tar Heels" some years ago.

Anyone who was born and reared in North Carolina and subsequently moved to some other bailiwick where he accomplished something worthwhile is eligible for membership in the Society of the Prodigal Son. The certificate bears the signature of the Governor and the Director of Conservation and Development—and to give it further official status of the Great Seal of the State of North Carolina.

The Honorary Tar Heel idea was conceived by Bill Sharpe, then director of State Advertising and John Harden, secretary to the Governor during the Cherry administration. At first membership in the group was highly prized. Only those were eligible who were not natives but who had written about North Carolina or taken pictures in North Carolina to boost the state. There were some other tests, such as being able to pronounce the "r" in Carolina and to eat grits for breakfast. Occasional meetings of the group were held at resort places in the state, or New York or Washington.

When Governor Scott came along he cheapened the Honorary Tar Heel concept by indiscriminate awarding of memberships—some 300 at one time to a bunch of casual visitors from the West Indies.

Then in his zeal for industrial promotion Governor Hodges further diluted the original idea by making industrial promoters and business visitors Honorary Tar Heels. The little gold lapel pins with a black dot on the heel and the neckties with the tar-crested footprints blossomed out all over.

The Prodigal Son insignia also includes the tarred heel. The difference the Honorary Tar Heel presumable was not born in North Carolina, while the Prodigal Son was.

RECAPTURE—In an effort to recapture some of the original significance of the Honorary Tar Heel and Travel Council of North Carolina devised a certificate of award as a "Tar Heel Traveler" to be given to natives and non-natives who made substantial contribution to the travel industry in North Carolina. These are handsome placards bearing the imprint of the Great Seal of the State and the impressed seal of the Travel Council—with gold overlay and colored ribbons, signed by the Governor and the president of the Travel Council. The "pioneer chapter" of the Tar Heel Travelers consists of those who participated in the travel show at Cincinnati last spring.

ADMITTALS—Then there are commissions as admirals in the North Carolina Navy awarded to those who contributed substantially to bring the USS Battleship North Carolina back home. Also the hundreds of "Country Squire" commissions distributed by Governor Scott. And there are few North Carolinians of any prominence who do not have commissions as Kentucky Colonels or Texas Rangers or officers in some sort of Confederate organization.

Framing all these certificates is an expensive project, but there is one bright spot: None of the organizations require payment of dues to sustain membership.

FUNERAL DELAYED—Some three or four years ago when the suburban shopping centers made their heaviest impact on the older town section of the city, many people began to plan for funerals for downtown. It was widely publicized that commercial buildings were deteriorating, that trade was falling off because customers couldn't find parking space, and that business was going either to hell or to the suburbs.

Funeral plans were premature, certainly for Raleigh. Limited inspection and more general information leads to conclusion the same is true for other North Carolina cities. Despite the phenomenal development of Cameron Village, perhaps the South's outstanding shopping center, downtown business is thriving.

A big parking building replaced several dilapidated small buildings two years ago in the heart of the business district. The Hotel Sir Walter is completing construction of a 300-car parking facility next door. Cromley's Drug Store, in the hotel building, has recently doubled its sized, and the hotel has announced expansion and modernization plans involving more than a quarter million dollars. One large vacant store building has been purchased for a modern city-county library, and another was bought by Wachovia Bank for a modern office building. Just a block down street Branch Banking Company has bought the old city hall lot and will build a headquarters office building, about the same time Hudson-Belk is filling in the rest of the space with an expansion of their store—which already covers nearly a block on two streets. Nearing completion is the modernistic First Federal Savings and Loan Building. Other extension remodeling is in prospect for Fayetteville, Salisbury or Wilmington streets because of the barricades indicating major rebuilding.

N.C. Court Prompt In Its Advisory Opinion

North Carolina's Supreme Court has cleared up the question of when the people of the state should vote on the proposed constitutional amendments pertaining to court reforms.

The court's promptness in rendering the advisory opinion on the matter has removed the confusion and has avoided the possibility that the administration might have called the referendum on the proposed amendments at the wrong time. The opinion will mean a delay of another year before the constitutional amendments can be considered at the polls, but that period can be well used by the citizens of the state in considering the proposed amendments. In the fall of 1962 the voters should be able to voice an intelligent and informed opinion on the amendments when they go to the polls.

The need for court reforms in the state, we believe, is generally recognized by the public. Between now and November 1962 the people of the state should have ample time to determine whether they think the proposed reforms approved by the 1961 General Assembly will be a positive step for North Carolina.

U.S. Interested In Solid Pound

By RALPH ROBEY
Several times in the past few years the British pound sterling has been under terrific pressure, and that has been true again in recent weeks. This is important to us, not only because Great Britain is one of our allies, but as well because the pound is second to the dollar in terms of international acceptance.

Previous to the first world war the pound was the nearest thing to an international unit of account that we had. It attained this position because everyone believed that no matter what happened the British would protect the exchange value of the pound. At that time the pound had a par value of $4.87.

After the war the British re-established this same par of exchange. Both they and we went to great lengths to protect this par, but with the coming of the depression the burden of "saving" the pound became too great and England went off the gold standard. Some time later we also went off the gold standard, and then followed a series of devaluations in both nations. Finally a new par was established and for the past few years the pound has been stabilized at $2.80. The actual rate in the market has fluctuated above or below this by no more than the cost of shipping gold between the two nations.

In recent months this rate of $2.80 has been under extreme pressure and England has been losing gold at a rate which she could not afford. There have been various reasons for this. The nation has a labor shortage and wages have been rising at a relatively rapid rate—more rapidly than the increase in output per manhour. This has forced prices higher and higher, and exports have fallen off. British businesses also have been able to sell all they could produce within their own country, and have pretty well stopped pushing foreign sales. Government expenditures, just as in this country, have continued to rise faster than revenues, with the result that there has been an increasing deficit both domestically and internationally. And with the gold holding of the nation declining it became obvious that something must be done.

The program adopted was extremely broad, and in England it goes into effect automatically unless the "government" is defeated and there is no likelihood of that. Among the items included are: a rise in the bank rate from 5 to 7 percent; a 10 percent increase in customs and excise duties on a wide range of items; an increase in the reserve banks which the commercial banks must keep with the Bank of England and instructions to the banks to restrain loans; an overhauling of government spending both domestically and internationally; announcement that government pay, even that of teachers, will be held in check; a recommendation that private foreign investments be carefully considered and a larger proportion (Continued on page five)

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
A GLORIOUS GAMBLE
Donald Hankey, who gave up his life in the First World War, reminded his generation that true religion is betting one's life on God.
This means something more than pious and orthodox acceptance of creeds. Let us never forget that creeds have their place—and an important place—in the religious life of Christian believers. But loyalty to creeds is never enough. It is not enough that we enter enthusiastically into church activities. It is not even enough that we pray, read our Bibles, and try earnestly to serve our fellows. There is more to the religious life than all these.
What is that "more?" It is the daring which leads us to stake (or bet) our lives on God. We all at times become involved in situations which appear overwhelming. Doubt assails us. Temptations bear down upon us as does an approaching locomotive upon a car stalled acrossing. We are frequently conscious of the fact that our souls are afflicted with spiritual disease.

True religion consists in clutching to our hearts with a desperation that is final the conviction that we trust God all will eventually be well. We do not know how this will come about. We only know it will come about. We bet our lives on God—the Creator and Sustainer of the universe—and in the end all turns out well.

Others Rejecting Scheme

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The brilliant planners in the State Department, led by Under Secretary of State Chester Bowles, who believe in a two Chinas policy, do not inform the American people that the ideas are rejected not only by Taiwan but by Peking; not only by Chiang Kai-shek but by Mao Tze-tung.

In a broadcast from Peking, aimed at Asia, on July 10, Peking tells the world:

"Under the new scheme, as revealed by the U.S. press, the People's Republic of China and the Kuomintang clique in Taiwan which has been repudiated by the Chinese people, will be viewed 'as successors' to the China that entered the United Nations at its founding. The Kuomintang clique will be allowed to retain the seats which it has so far usurped in the Security Council and the General Assembly, while the People's Republic of China is to apply to the Credentials Committee of the General Assembly for approval to occupy an Assembly seat."

Apparently, this plan of a two Chinas was disclosed to Prime Minister Ikeda of Japan during his visit to the United States. The Red Chinese commentator said:

"Since 1950 the United States has tried to block the discussion by the General Assembly of China's representation through a so-called moratorium. This moratorium has been successful in postponing this issue for about 10 years. In the last three or four years, however, there has been an increasing feeling in the United Nations that this moratorium formula will no longer suffice to deal with the question, that there will be more and more delegations who will think that at least the question ought to be debated on its merits and not be simply postponed," Dean Rusk declared.

According to the Peking broadcast, the United States has labored vigorously to sell this plan to the world. The Red Chinese say that James Harland Cleveland, Assistant Secretary of State for International Organization Affairs, and Adlai Stevenson have been sounding out countries on the plan.

There is not the slightest indication that Red China favors the two Chinas plan. In fact, the broadcast clearly indicates that it is unacceptable. The plan was first advocated by Nehru of India and has found no general acceptance among Chinese but has been held aloft for all to look at. It is one of those compromises which means nothing in the end, created increasing difficulties, but which gives the impression of a desire to meet the other fellow at least half way. Why meet him at all? What is the political or economic necessity of meeting him?

The position is that Formosa asserts that it is the lawful government of China, recognized by treaty and a permanent member of the United Nations possessing the right of veto. Red China does not claim to be a successor to the Kuomintang regime. Rather, it takes the position that it is the lawful government of China by right of revolution. Neither side recognizes the other as coeval or for that matter recognizes the other side all to a Chinese, there can be no two Chinas.

Red China has been able represented in the United Nations by Soviet Russia, which has made every possible token effort to propose the admission of Red China into the United Nations. At no time has Soviet Russia recognized the existence of Nationalist China as lawful. But at no time have the Red Chinese been willing to accept any status of equality with Nationalist China.

We thus have a situation in the making which will lead to further insults to the United States. What Chester Bowles and his associates advocate is not a program that is beneficial to the United States or to Peking or Formosa. It is an Indian program, part of Nehru's effort to assert an untenable leadership in Asia. It is a scheme that denies legitimacy but supports opportunism.

to deal with the question, that there will be more and more delegations who will think that at least the question ought to be debated on its merits and not be simply postponed," Dean Rusk declared.

According to the Peking broadcast, the United States has labored vigorously to sell this plan to the world. The Red Chinese say that James Harland Cleveland, Assistant Secretary of State for International Organization Affairs, and Adlai Stevenson have been sounding out countries on the plan.

There is not the slightest indication that Red China favors the two Chinas plan. In fact, the broadcast clearly indicates that it is unacceptable. The plan was first advocated by Nehru of India and has found no general acceptance among Chinese but has been held aloft for all to look at. It is one of those compromises which means nothing in the end, created increasing difficulties, but which gives the impression of a desire to meet the other fellow at least half way. Why meet him at all? What is the political or economic necessity of meeting him?

The position is that Formosa asserts that it is the lawful government of China, recognized by treaty and a permanent member of the United Nations possessing the right of veto. Red China does not claim to be a successor to the Kuomintang regime. Rather, it takes the position that it is the lawful government of China by right of revolution. Neither side recognizes the other as coeval or for that matter recognizes the other side all to a Chinese, there can be no two Chinas.

Look Into Immediate Future

By ELMER ROESSNER
Just over the business horizon are these probabilities:
Higher 1962 auto prices: Current labor negotiations in the auto industry will end in higher wages and more benefits. Costs will have to be added to prices of new cars. While there will be some model changes and a lot of addition and subtraction of extras, basic lines will be much like those of this year.
Shipping strike September 21: Almost no progress is being made toward settling the dispute between ship operators and sea unions. The 80-day cooling-off period imposed by Federal injunction has become a boiling-up period instead and unless new tactics are used by both sides, the strike will be resumed when the 90-day period ends September 21. It may pay shippers to advance shipments before that date and line up alternate shipping plans for use in event of a renewal of the strike.

AREA OF EXPANSION
Chemical plant expansion: New products and new uses for old products is creating all-time high demands for chemicals. While other industries are slowing plant and equipment expenditures until demand catches up with present facilities, the chemical industry faces the necessity of expanding facilities to catch up with present demand.
Higher distillate prices: While supply is presently in balance with demand, the probability of the resumption of the shipping strike will soon start a build-up of inventories, stiffening demand enough to sustain a sharp price rise.
More public construction: Despite rising demands in and out of Congress for cutbacks in civilian spending to offset the rise in military costs, public construction will continue. There will be increases for airfields, military housing, defense-connected warehouses, defense industry plants and related structures.

FROM CITIES TO CAMP AREAS
Shift in housing: There'll be some changes made in the Federal housing program. Scandals exposing shoddy construction, the building of luxury apartments with Federal aid and other jim-jams will force Federal officials to be more selective in allocating funds for civilian projects. At the same time, the increases in armed forces will create new pressures for more housing for military families. Hint to crooked builders: forget about new urban projects and start looking around for military housing ventures.
Lower interest rates: The defense build-up will cause a larger Federal deficit. The deficit will require larger government borrowing. To keep the cost of these borrowings down the government can only reduce the basic interest rate. There will be some moderate actions in

Reason For The Moves

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — Many cities wonder why new factories do not start in their area, and why so many are moving South.

REASONS WHY NEW FACTORIES DO NOT START IN YOUR AREA

One trouble is that old industries are dying faster than the area cities' new ones. In my estimation, all of the northeastern states are suffering from high labor costs due to rampant unionism; high state taxes; overpopulation; too great a distance from raw materials; leftists who want to spend before they earn; workers who don't want to work and don't respect their employers; state and local officials unfriendly to industry; and lack of a desire to help newcomers.

Already six states in the South have solved their problem, but all needed to amend their state constitutions. These have been drawn to protect the holders of tax-exempt bonds within their states. Times have changed, and we now must choose between giving a monopoly to present holders of tax-exempts or aiding the unemployed. Also, owing to the new Congressional mortgage legislation, we have the U.S. Government guaranteeing 40-year mortgages at 5 percent interest!

REVENUE BONDS THE SOLUTION

We all are acquainted with non-taxable Revenue Bonds for building highways. The holder of such bonds is dependent upon the toll receipts for his interest. If enough people use the new highway full interest is paid, but not otherwise. At first, leading investment bankers objected to such Revenue Bonds; but finally they accepted them and the bonds sold freely. Of the hundreds of millions worth of bonds issued, only one (that put out by West Virginia) has defaulted. Now certain cities in the South are issuing such Revenue Bonds to provide funds for new industries. They are tax-exempt and must be voted by a majority of the citizens. These bonds have been freely accepted by northern investors. Many of our cities are now taxing their citizens heavily to provide education for their children. But as soon as the more intelligent of these children graduate from high school, they are obliged to leave their native city and go to a more progressive city in a more progressive state. Hence there has been little population growth for many northeastern cities. They need new factories, and the issuance of Industrial Revenue Bonds seems the best answer.

BIG TAX-EXEMPT INDUSTRIAL ISSUES

The biggest such Industrial Revenue Bond we know about is for $25,000,000 issued by the little city of Cherokee, Alabama. The money received from these bonds will be used to build a huge fertilizer plant to be leased by Armour & Company. The bonds give both the community and the company a highly advantageous contract. Armour has agreed to pay off the bonds at 4% percent interest over a period of 26 years. Both interest and principal will come entirely from Armour's lease payment. Investors who buy the bonds find themselves with a highly desirable tax-exempt 4% percent bond. If you are in the 50 percent tax bracket you get the equivalent of a 9.5 percent taxable yield. Cherokee has no problems because: (1) The bond issue for Borg-Warner Corporation restrictions, (2) the plant will employ over 300 workers.

The second largest municipal bonding program we have heard about is a $9,000,000 project for General Tire in Kentucky. Ranking third is a $7,000,000 bond issue for Borg-Warner Corporation in Arkansas.

GETTING NEW FACTORIES IN YOUR CITY

The above is the only method which I now see for cities in the northeastern U.S. to get new factories to provide employment for their people and proper schools for their children. Remember that today, when locating new factories, the owners are looking for localities where the executives and their wives will be glad to live.

New England cities which are some distance from raw materials must provide some offsetting advantages. They must have (Continued on page five)

Some Think Russian Moon Shot May Be Next Goal

Humphrey Sees Enough Votes To Beat Coalition

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Humphrey, D-Minn., said today the Kennedy administration has the votes to defeat a coalition effort to require yearly congressional approval of long-range foreign aid lending.

"We are very optimistic about Senate passage of this provision," Humphrey said. "We are not going to compromise on it. We don't have to, since we have the votes."

After time out for argument over the nomination of Lawrence J. Connor Jr., of Houston, to the Federal Power Commission, the Senate will plunge back into debate on its $4,326,500,000 version of a foreign aid authorization bill.

The House, engaged in routine matters, may reach by midweek a showdown vote on the Senate's action in adding $95 million to a money bill to finance an electric power producing installation at the Hanford, Wash., plutonium plant.

Humphrey, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said he is confident administration forces can scuttle a proposal by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., to require annual congressional appropriations for a proposed $8.8 billion development loan fund.

President Kennedy asked for five-year authority to finance such loans through Treasury borrowing, a method which would bypass congressional control of the pursestrings in future years. Loan authority of $1,187,000,000 for the first year is included in the pending bill.

Byrd made no victory claims in a separate interview. He said only that he believes the critical vote will be close and he has a chance of winning it.

Byrd said he had been informed that 32 of the Senate's 36 Republicans would support his amendment, which is backed by Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois. Byrd said Southern and some Western Democrats had promised backing.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said he fears at least six Republicans will vote against the Byrd proposal. He said he hasn't too much hope that it will be adopted.

Several proposed compromises for keeping congressional strings on the loan fund may be offered. The consensus was the battle would be won or lost on the Byrd amendment.

Sens. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., and Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., have proposed that Congress be given a veto over all $10 million or more. They would require that all loans above this minimum be reported to Congress, with either house permitted to reject them by majority vote within 30 days.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he couldn't predict when the Senate will reach a vote on the Byrd amendments. He said he hopes that action on the bill can be completed this week.

Sen. Ervin Doesn't Feel Free To Intervene In Case

Sen. Sam J. Ervin has informed local officials that he does not feel at liberty to make recommendations concerning the location of a district Social Security office.

Sen. Ervin has sent letters to W. K. Whichard of the Pitt Social Security office; Walter B. Jones of Farmville, who asked that the office be placed in Greenville; Greenville Mayor Charles M. King and Pitt Development Commission Chairman Leonard P. Bloxam.

He was replying to local requests that a district office, announced for Goldsboro, be established in Greenville.

"Since I represent the whole state, I did not feel at liberty to express preference between Greenville and Goldsboro, however, I understand from the Commissioner that he is giving, at the request of Congressman Bonner, further consideration as to the location of the District office," Sen. Ervin said in his letters.

Sen. Ervin and Sen. B. Everett Jordan received letters from the local officials concerning the office location after Walter Jones, an unsuccessful candidate for Congress in 1960, requested the senators' help in bringing the office here.

Subsequently Congressman Herbert C. Bonner, who Jones opposed in 1960, decried the publicity. Rep. Bonner said he had already been working on locating the office in Greenville. In view of the publicity, he maintained, Greenville's hopes of obtaining it were dimmed.

Sen. Ervin's letters to the Pitt County people confirmed that Rep. Bonner was working on the proposed change.

In his letter to Jones, Sen. Ervin said, "Upon inquiry to the Congressional Liaison Office, Social Security Administration he (referring to Ervin's administrative assistant Jack Spain) was advised that Congressman Bonner had already requested that the new Social Security District Office be located in his district, preferably Greenville, North Carolina."

Sen. Ervin's letter also revealed that Pitt Social Security representative W. K. Whichard had contacted Spain requesting the senator's assistance in having Pitt County continue to operate under the Rocky Mount office.

Pitt's Social Security program has been administered from the Rocky Mount office but with the new office being established, Pitt, Greene, Lenoir and Wayne counties would be administered from Goldsboro.

At the height of the controversy Bonner announced that he would be a candidate for re-nomination in next spring's primary. Jones has not yet announced his intentions concerning the congressional race.

U.S. Movie Impact Abroad Is Shrinking

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—And now the summing up.

Five weeks of roaming film locations in Europe has been an enlightening process. As Tony Quinn remarked: "Hollywood isn't a place any more. It's the movie business everywhere."

Here are some things I learned in covering Hollywood, European branch:

1. The influence of American films has dropped in Europe. You feel it everywhere you go. People tell you the Hollywood product isn't as important as it used to be. When you see some of the new American films that are playing abroad, you can see why. They are slapdash productions with neither the vitality nor the fun that our movies once had.
2. European theaters seem to be playing more reruns than summer TV in America. It's depressing to see so many old pictures being played, some dating back to the war.
3. The vigor of Europe's local film industries is amazing. Studios in England, France and Italy are humming with activity. Part of this is due to the luring of American companies by cost savings. However, new union regulations in England are making production there less attractive.
4. Mostly, the European film industries are thriving because of a burst of creativity—a new crop of directors who are taking up where the Hollywood masters left off.

4. Censorship is nagging the European film makers almost as much as those in Hollywood. When I was in Milan, a meeting of Italian directors petitioned for an end to all government controls on film content. This was turned down by officials, who are increasingly alarmed by sex emphasis of Italian films.
5. There appear to be few controls in France but much government concern. Some films are banned for export. And more and more English movies are getting Britain's X rating — banned for children.
6. Hollywood's picture of American life is alarming. Our good friends in Europe are dismayed by the recent American films. Perhaps the sophisticated Europeans realize that sex, sadism and crime are not the norm in the United States. But this constant film diet must be making an impression on the masses.
7. What can they think when they see Academy winner Burt Lancaster battling senseless delinquents in "The Young Savages"? They have been exposed to many such films and few, if any, present contemporary America as it is.
8. The picture is not entirely black. When Hollywood films are good, they are very good, as evidenced by the long runs for "Gone With the Wind" and "Ben-Hur."

Tax Take Up

Gross retail sales in Pitt County during May climbed by nearly a half-million dollars above sales recorded during May 1960, according to figures released by the N. C. Merchants Association.

According to the figures, Pitt's sales during last May totaled $5,546,703 compared with $5,054,324 during May, 1960.

Sales tax collections in Greenville totaled $54,171.95 last May compared with $48,181.71 in May, 1960. For Pitt County, last May's tax collections totaled $87,259.28 compared with $76,453.64 during May, 1960.

Last May's collection figures showed increases for Greenville and Pitt County over the month of April; however, the gross retail sales figures showed a reduction, according to the figures.

Taxes collected during April amounted to $82,893.80 for Pitt County and $51,966.47 for Greenville. Gross retail sales dropped from $5,725,432 in April to May's $5,546,703.

Slow Start For U.S. Moon Shot

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—"We're making a slow start to the moon."

This statement, made in jest by an official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration had a touch of irony in it today.

While three of the four major components of this nation's moon-shot rocket — the Saturn — were slowly floating down the Mississippi River in a barge, the world was congratulating the Soviet Union on its manned second orbital flight.

The Saturn booster aboard the barge was developed at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala. Its size—82 feet high and 22 feet in diameter—prohibited transportation except by water.

While the rocket in flight will reach speeds up to five times the speed of sound, it is being carried to a rendezvous with missile testers in Cape Canaveral, Fla., at the painfully slow pace of around 10 miles an hour.

The 2,200-mile trip which began early Saturday morning, is expected to take at least two weeks.

Present plans call for testing the first stage, with dummy second and third stages and inert nose cone on top, later this year. The Saturn isn't expected to become operational, however, until 1965.

From 1841 to 1876 the Declaration of Independence hung, unprotected, before a window on the wall of the Patent Office.

Pressure Is Spoiling TV Gunman's Deadly Shooting

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Robert Fuller isn't happy; congressional hearings and pressure groups have ruined Jess Harper's aim. Bob, as lovers of TV Westerns well know, plays Jess in NBC's "Laramie," now going into its third season.

"And this year, you can't kill a villain," Fuller said sadly. "The worst you can do is wound him—and you're allowed one shot. If this goes along any further our fight scenes with the heavies will be hair-pulling and scratching."

Fuller, it should be noted, reflects a popular Hollywood viewpoint but one rarely seen in print. The official position of the three major networks, really scared by high-level condemnation of TV for its violence, appears to be one of never admitting excessive violence but promising to mend their ways.

"I think that Westerns are the only real escape entertainment today," Fuller said. "You can pick up any newspaper and read cops and robber stuff. You can identify with almost any family in the situation comedies. But you can really get away watching a Western. I just don't think the audience is going to be satisfied when, at the end, the villain's retribution is just getting pinked in the shoulder."

The new order, apparently, is spoiling the aim of all of TV's quick-drawing, straight-aiming heroes of the sagebrush. During the past week I've visited sets of four or five horse operas and so far have not heard the sound of a shot.

On the "Wagon Train" set Robert Horton was wringing out cold compresses to help break the fever of a sick—not wounded—man. The "Laramie" heroes, Fuller and John Smith, were holding a discussion with their new housekeeper, Spring Byington, once of "Remember Bride." The closest thing to violence was on the "Wells Fargo" set where a wounded man was being brought into town slung across the saddle of his horse.

In line with Edd Byrnes' elevation from parking attendant to private eye in "77 Sunset Strip," his name has been officially changed from Edd to Edward.

There will probably be a number of stories about airplane hijacking on TV during the fall and winter. But Eric Ambler, creator of "Checkmate," was ahead of the first hijackers: a plane-napping is the opening scene in his most recent screenplay, "Night MUST End."

Dog Boots Are His Business

ENID, Okla. (AP)—An Enid man has turned his concern for his hunting dog into a profitable business—the manufacture of dog boots.

Fred Lewis, operator of a brake and wheel alignment business, started making rubber boots to protect the feet of his dog 11 years ago.

Since then he had made and shipped more than 4,000 sets of the boots throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico.

He has supplied boots to the Army for guard dogs and recently shipped some to Alaska for trial use on mountain lion hunting dogs.

This Makes 13th Soviet Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vostok II was the 13th earth satellite successfully launched by the Soviet Union and was her second manned spaceship.

The United States has sent up 45 unmanned satellites. Twenty-eight of them are still orbiting the earth.

Two of the Soviet earth satellites are still aloft. So are two Soviet satellites sent into orbit around the sun.

LONDON (AP)—Some Western scientific sources today saw the Soviet Union's next target as the moon as the world applauded Maj. Gherman Titov's epic space flight.

Kenneth Gatland, vice president of the British Interplanetary Society, said he expected the Russians to land a man on the moon between 1966 and 1967. He added that they may put a dog in a space ship and send it on a reconnaissance flight to the moon.

"What is so interesting about this latest Russian success is that Vostok II (Titov's space ship) had enough aid and food provisions in it for a round-the-moon reconnaissance flight which would last for about five to eight days," Gatland said.

Titov was in orbit a little more than a day.

Congratulations were issued by various governments, including those of Italy, Sweden and the Netherlands in Western Europe.

In Paris, U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk said: "I am glad to know that he (Titov) came back alive. This is a fine ending."

Foreign Secretary Lord Home of Britain, also in Paris for the Western foreign ministers' meeting, remarked: "It is a great realization. I am glad I was not up in the vehicle with Titov."

Mixed with the cheers were some voiced fears that the Soviet Union might use the rocket as a military or political weapon.

The flight only hours before Premier Khrushchev was to make a major radio speech was widely assumed to have been timed to bolster the threats to West Berlin expected from the Soviet premier.

The political implications did not detract from the fulsome praise for Soviet scientific genius and a widespread feeling that the Soviet Union is well ahead of the United States in the race to the moon.

Britain's top space watcher, Sir Bernard Lovell, warned: "I am far from being pro-Russian in the political sense—on the contrary. But I think one of the greatest dangers in the world today is to doubt their strength in science and technology."

Lovell, director of the giant radio telescope at Jodrell Bank in northern England, called Titov's flight "another important step in the Russian plan to populate the solar system beginning with the invasion of the moon in a few years' time."

Britain's most widely read columnist, Cassandra of the Daily Mirror, noted Khrushchev is speaking tonight and summed up what many feared:

"The tragedy of this magnificent feat, with the Russians peering down in orbit over London and Washington and riding the heavens as no living being has ever done before, is that the wonder and greatness of it is deliberately timed to intimidate the West and to harden and encourage the Communist world to new acts of aggression."

Titov's flight came with Britain and most of Europe enjoying an August holiday. Millions kept their ears tuned to their radios for news of the space man's progress.

One British Nobel prizewinning physicist, Sir George Thomson, took the new Soviet achievement calmly. "This thing has been done once," he said, "and to do it several times is not all that difficult if you have done it once. We should thank the Russians for arranging it on a holiday."

Norway's Socialist government organ, Arbeiderbladet, posed this question:

"What the whole world asks about is not only how fast the conquest of space will take place, but if this fantastic development will be used in the military power struggle for the good of all. Today the Russians are ahead. Will they use this lead for increased military pressure?"

In West Germany, the conservative Frankfurter Allgemeine, said: "The Russian feat is astounding but it need not terrify the fascinated spectators in the West, although that is just what it is supposed to do."

The independent Frankfurter Randschau emphasized "the lucky return of Titov will provide the appropriate background" for Khrushchev's speech tonight and declared: "The flight of the Vostok is not only a technological physiological event. It is also a political and military one. Because Khrushchev was able to shoot a man 17 times around the earth, he is also able to shoot around the earth anything he wants."

Third Cardinal Died In Week

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Funeral services will be held Thursday for Joseph Ernest Cardinal Van Roey, 87, the third prince of the Roman Catholic Church to die within a week.

The Belgian prelate died Sunday after a lingering illness.

Cardinal Van Roey was known as "the rhinoceros of Malines"—the name of his archiepiscopal palace—because of his strong personality and forthright stand he took on political questions.

Before World War II he openly opposed Belgian fascist leader Leon Degrelle. During the German occupation he criticized Nazi occupation policies and objected to allied bombings of Belgium. In postwar years he fought socialist movements and frequently came under fire from the left-wing press.

Pope John XXIII officiated at Mass today for the late Belgian Cardinal at his summer residence in Castel Gandolfo.

The Belgian prelate's death reduced the College of Cardinals to 81 members.

portion of the earnings be brought back to England; a promise that the government will make arrangements to draw up on the international monetary fund, and so forth.

The labor party immediately raised a protest against the program but the objection did no good.

Whether all this will be adequate to get Great Britain over the crisis is still a question. At least it immediately took the pressure off the pound and the rate advanced a bit. That is all that could be expected as a first reaction.

The British government deserves great credit for taking such vigorous steps to meet its problem. It reflects the type of political courage that is seldom seen.

Witch Doctors' Cures Studied

WASHINGTON (AP)—Don't discount the value of a witch doctor.

Medical researchers are stepping up their world-wide search for the rare plants, herbs and barks used by witch doctors, says Medicine at Work, publication of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association.

It began about 1950 when American and Swiss scientists came across "rauwolfia" growing in Africa and India. Investigation of reports that natives chewed the plant's roots to calm themselves and overcome certain types of mental depression revealed a chemical called reserpine, which proved effective in easing hypertension.

Annual sales of plant-produced drugs now totals about $250 million, a five-fold increase in the last 10 years, says Medicine at Work. One company recently sent a pharmacologist into a Congo rain forest on a seven-month, 11,000 mile safari in search of a natural source of cortisone. Another instructed its world-wide network of employees to keep a watchful eye on the medicines of local witch doctors.

Fullmer Suffers Fractured Elbow

WEST JORDAN, Utah (AP)—Gene Fullmer, left-handed pitcher in an arm-length cast, started an enforced layoff of at least a month today, time to reflect on the growing dangers to the crown on his head.

Fullmer kept his NBA middleweight title with a 15-round split decision Saturday night over Cuba's Florentino Fernandez, then spent a sleepless night with a piercing pain in his arm.

His doctor was summoned at 7 a.m. Sunday morning and an X-ray showed a bone fracture at the right elbow, an injury suffered in the 14th round when Fernandez was winging to knock him out.

"My whole arm went numb in that round," Fullmer said. "But I thought I'd just hit the crazy bone or hurt my hand. Then the elbow got so sore during the night I couldn't touch it."

The plaster cast joins an ugly eye and swollen knuckles as mementoes of the champion's sixth defense of his National Boxing Association title.

It was a rugged struggle and in the hectic 14th it seemed Fullmer might not make it. He came through on the strength of points piled up in the early going.

Ten of 12 reporters polled at the ringside had Fullmer the winner, but there were many among the fans who thought otherwise.

Either way it appeared clear that Fullmer at 30 had reached a critical point in his career.

Jim Paschal Of High Point Wins

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., and Junior Johnson of Ronda, N.C., supplied some excitement in Sunday's Nashville 500 grand national stock car race.

North Carolina driver, Jim Paschal of High Point, pocketed the winner's check.

Petty took the lead at the start and either led or was near the front for 362 laps around the half-mile asphalt oval. Then he was forced out because of an overheated engine.

Johnson started in seventh place, passed Johnny Allen of Atlanta, Paschal and Jack Smith of Spartanburg, S.C. within the space of two laps. He was pressing Petty for the lead when he spun out on the 134th lap.

Ned Jarrett finished second in the rain-marred race that was stopped after 403 laps. The caution flag was out for 172 laps because of the rain. Jarrett's second-place finish cemented his hold on first place in the NASCAR point standings. Paschal won $2,522 and Jarrett $1,275. Paschal drove a 1960 Pontiac and Jarrett a 1961 Chevrolet.

Allen was third, Buck Baker of Charlotte fourth and Emanuel Zervakis of Richmond, Va., fifth. Allen drove a 1961 Chevrolet, Baker a 1961 Chrysler and Zervakis a 1961 Chevrolet.

Paschal averaged just 56.25 miles an hour. Rex White of Spartanburg, the top qualifier, blew a tire and slammed through a billboard on the 15th lap. Of 24 cars that started the race, only 14 finished.

A crowd of 12,081 saw the race. Rounding out the top 10 were George Alsbrook in a 1961 Ford; Jimmy Pardue in a 1960 Chevrolet; G. C. Spencer in a 1960 Chevrolet; Paul Lewis in a 1961 Chevrolet; and L. D. Austin in a 1961 Chevrolet.

this feeling of insecurity was reflected by a sharp drop in his hitting. When Alvin Dark was installed as manager of the Giants he said Cepeda was his first baseman, and that was that.

Cepeda inherits his slugging talents from his ball-playing father, Peruchio Cepeda. Papa Cepeda was a first baseman, and a very good one. His booming line-drive home runs earned him the title of "Babe Ruth of Puerto Rico." He quit playing in 1949 when he was 48. His dream was to see his son make the big leagues. He did a good job of tutoring his boy from the day he started following ball players to the park as a spindly-legged youngster. Well, Orlando made it all right and he's on his way to real stardom. Out San Francisco play, Cepeda is the most popular player among the Giants. That's true—the fans like him better than they do Willie Mays!

Against Fernandez, even before the fracture that ruined his defense, he got hit more often than usual, didn't get the mileage from his body-busting rights, and finished in trouble.

Whether the caliber of challengers is improving or the champ is slowing down will be answered in future bouts—a possible rematch with Fernandez, with Terry Downes-Paul Pender winner, or perhaps with welterweight champion Emile Griffith.

Manager Marv Jensen said he will consider them all. But none is likely this year, more because of taxes than broken bones or title risks.

There were no knockdowns but Fullmer was reeling from measured Fernandez' lefts in the 14th and 15th rounds of the nationally televised bout.

Junior Sandhill Tennis Tourney

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP)—The favorites had a rough time in the Junior Sandhill Invitational tennis tournament. Only two reached the finals Sunday, and then were beaten.

Jane Davenport of Greensboro, No. 1 seed in junior girls' division, lost to second-seeded Sally O'Rourke of Charlotte in the title match.

In the boys' singles division, fourth-seeded Richard Holderness of Greensboro defeated No. 1 seeded Ed Parker of Raleigh, 6-2, 6-3.

Larry Tanner of Rocky Mount beat Jim Sloan of Clinton, S.C., for the junior boys' championship, 6-0, 6-3. Buddy Jordan of Goldsboro, top-seeded in that division, lost in the quarterfinals to Holderness. Sloan then beat Holderness in the semifinals, and Tanner, seeded second, beat third-seeded Ray Stallings of Goldsboro in the semifinals.

In girls' singles, two Winston-Salem sisters battled it out for the crown. The match was won by Jane Meschan, 14, who beat Rosalind Meschan, 13. Jane beat top-seeded Melinda Wyrick of Greensboro in the semifinals.

Indians Leading Carolina League

The Burlington Indians remain on top in the Carolina League, although other teams are breathing down their necks.

The Indians shut out Durham 3-0 Sunday with Juley French holding the Bulls to three hits.

Wilson, only a game out of first, beat Raleigh 4-2. Greensboro rolled to a 10-8 victory over Winston-Salem, with Gene Domzalski batting in seven runs, including a grand-slam homer.

Tom Addington, the Caps' pitcher, held Wilson hitless for six innings. Then the Tobs parlayed four hits into four runs in the seventh frame. Ron Gasper's pinch-home run with one aboard brought in two Raleigh tallies.

Domzalski provided the balance of hitting power for Greensboro, offsetting four home runs by Winston-Salem—one each by Mike Page, Bill Haller, Dean Robbins and Jim Williams.

Carolinans Win Grandpa Trophy

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—The Captain's Putter, emblem of supremacy in the team golf series between the Carolinans and the Virginians, was back in the hands of the Carolinans today—thanks to the feats of a tireless band of golfing grandpas.

"Seniors"—players aged 50 and over—make up only a third of the 24-man squads that meet in the twice-yearly matches. But when the second 1961 match ended here Sunday at the Cascades Course, it was the old folks who'd made the difference in the Carolinans' 76 1/2-67 1/2 triumph.

In two-man team, best-ball competition Saturday, the Carolinans outscored their Virginians counterparts 20-4. And in man-to-man matches Sunday they won again, 13-11, thus accounting for a grand total of 33 points.

Both Saturday and Sunday, by contrast, the Virginians won the competition in the "regular" division—Saturday by 26-22, Sunday by 37 1/2 to 34 1/2. But try as they might the young Virginians couldn't offset the advantage stacked up by the Carolinans Seniors.

So, for the 10th time in 14 renewals of the rivalry, the silver-bladed Captain's Putter is in the clutches of the Carolinans. The Virginians took temporary possession by winning last April at Pinehurst, N.C., but held the trophy a mere four months.

There are 12 thoroughbred race tracks in Maryland but only three—Bowie, Laurel and Pimlico—are one mile ovals.

League Stars

Batting—Mickey Mantle, Yankees—Walloped three home runs, his 41st, 42nd and 43rd of the season, as the Yankees swept a doubleheader from Minnesota, 7-6 in 15 innings and 3-2. He also had a double and a single and scored the winning run in the nightcap after drawing a walk.

Pitching—Jim Archer, Athletics—Pitched a three-hitter as the A's won the second game 1-0 after Boston had taken the opener 4-2.

Walter Hagen won five National PGA championships, including a string of four straight.

Philadelphia twice 3-7 and 3-2 and San Francisco nipped Milwaukee 4-3.

The Yankees socked four home runs but it took an infield out to drive in the final run in the opener and a single in the ninth to win the second game. Bobby Richardson scored the winning run in the 15th inning of the first game. Bobby singled off Ray Moore, moved to second on a bunt single by Clete Boyer, to third on Roger Maris' long fly and scored when Yogi Berra hit into a force play at second base.

The Twins had gone ahead 6-5 on Bill Tuttle's 10th inning homer off Whitey Ford but the Yankees tied the score in their half when John Blanchard homered off Bill Plets. Ford went out for a pinch hitter in the 10th, failing for the second time in his bid for 20 victories.

Mickey Mantle can match Babe Ruth's 60 home runs in a season if he hits as many home runs in the next seven weeks as the Babe hit in the final four of his record breaking year in 1927.

Mantle, in a murderous hitting mood Sunday, smashed three home runs as the New York Yankees swept a doubleheader from Minnesota, 7-6 in 15 innings and 3-2. They boosted his season total to 43, the same number Ruth had on Aug. 31, 1927. The Babe finished with a flourish, socking 17 in September to break his won record of 59, set in 1921.

Mantle currently is 19 games ahead of Ruth's pace. This does not include the extra eight games for Mantle because of the schedule increase from 154 to 162 games.

New York's two victories coupled with Detroit's split against Cleveland, boosted its first place lead over the Tigers to 1 1/2 games. Detroit won the first game 2-2 but the Indians took the second 9-5.

Chicago took two from Washington 5-4 and 3-2. Boston split with Kansas City, winning the first game 4-2 but dropping a 1-0 decision in the nightcap. Baltimore led Los Angeles 3-1 in the third inning when rain forced a postponement, switching the game to Los Angeles later in the season.

Los Angeles' Dodgers wrestled first place from Cincinnati by one percentage point, defeating the Chicago Cubs 11-4 while the Reds were splitting a doubleheader with Pittsburgh. Cincinnati won the second game 3-2 in 10 innings after the Pirates had won the opener 9-4. St. Louis beat Philadelphia twice 3-7 and 3-2 and San Francisco nipped Milwaukee 4-3.

BY JOHN CREASEY A MATTER OF LIFE AND DEATH

CHAPTER 32 Adam Bell flung himself forward, came between Rollison and Tim Mahoney, gasped and grunted as the bullet struck him. Before he fell, before the American could fire again, Rollison had his own gun out. His bullet caught Mahoney's right wrist. Mahoney's gun dropped. The pain and the force of the shot made him stagger backwards, and he had only one sound leg. He reached the edge of the quay, hopping desperately and then he slipped. He went down, feet first, between the quayside and the steel walls of the ship, and as he fell he cried out in fear.

Jameson and Edge had a wonderful opportunity for working with Mahoney; for sabotaging Silver Queen; and there was Jameson's nervousness at seeing him. Had either or both a motive? Griselda hadn't the opportunity, but might have a motive. "Isn't there a clue about Agatha?" Jameson asked. "No," said Rollison. "It's dreadful," Jameson said. "Shocking." He looked hazy; a man who had received a heavy blow. "If you know how I felt about Agatha, you'd know why this—this has knocked me sideways." He didn't need to say so, it stuck out a mile. "Listen," Edge said thinly, "I know how you feel about Ag, but this is bigger than personalities. It's unbelievable. We've known about the campaign to sabotage Silver Queen. We've worked day and night to find out who's doing it, but—murder, shooting, hired crooks from the States."

Soviet Spaceship Was Easily Seen

Yuri Gagarin, who made the first space flight. Titov's picture, flashed on Soviet television, showed him to be a handsome, wavy-haired pilot with lines of humor on an intelligent face. His father, Stepan Pavlovich Titov, described his son as 'obedient and industrious' with an enthusiasm for anything aeronautical since childhood. 'He liked to make things, especially to build model aircraft and to launch gliders,' the elder Titov said. 'Gherman used to read a lot, and like all boys of his age was keen on adventure stories.'

Repairing Barbed Wire On Border

BONN, Germany (AP) — East German workers are busy repairing rusty and damaged barbed wire marking the 69-mile East zone border around West Berlin, a refugee organization's publication said Sunday. Deutsche Ostkune (German Eastern Studies) said the 150-foot wide "death strip" also is being cleaned of grass and bushes. An identical strip on the East zone border with West Germany is plowed almost daily, making it easier for border policemen to spot escapers.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rested after its recent labors early this afternoon and the result was a moderate decline all along the line. Trading slowed to a leisurely pace after a fairly active opening.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon stood at 253.30, down 0.60 from Friday's record closing high. Industrials were down 2.00, rails unchanged and utilities up 0.40.

The decline was attributed to normal profit-taking after last week's advances, especially among the blue chip issues which paced that advance.

Aircraft-missiles and electronic shares were higher, but gains were held to slight fractions for most.

Blue chip chemicals were weak with Du Pont off more than 3 and Union Carbide down a couple of points or so.

Motors, steels, rubbers and non-ferrous metals backed off from recent advances. Rails looked a little weaker than in the morning with B&O and Illinois Central down nearly a point, but New York Central and the Pennsy clung to small advances.

U.S. Steel's drop widened to more than a point, as did that of Jones Laughlin, while Bethlehem was down nearly a point.

Ford's loss ran to nearly a point and Chrysler, too, was off a major fraction. Goodrich fell among tire-makers, and losses among metals ran to about a point for International Nickel and nearly as much for Kennecott and American Smelting.

Gainers in the space group included Boeing, Douglas and General Dynamics.

Airlines were mostly unchanged, although Eastern showed a small gain.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was 716.66, off 4.03.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange turned mixed after a weak opening.

Bond markets were quiet with corporates a bit weaker, and U.S. governments mostly unchanged.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog markets steady to mostly 25 higher. Tops of 18-19 at Nabunata; 17.75-19 at Wilson; 18.25-18.75 at Rocky Mount; 17.75-18.75 at Kingston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive and Newton Grove; 17.75-18.25 at Spring Hope and Penn; 17.18 at Smithfield and Dunn; 18.75 at Clinton, Fayetteville and Elizabethtown; 18.50 at Rich Square and Greensboro; 18.25 at Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck, Castle Hayne and Goldsboro; 18 at Albemarle, Bethel, Murfreesboro and Siler City; 17.75 at Lillington.

Wilson cash cattle prices steady; Steers and heifers, choice 21.50-24.50, good 20-22, standards 17-19; beef cows 14-16, heavy cutters 12-14, light bulls 13-15, heavy bulls 16-18.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina poultry market: Fryers and broilers slightly stronger, farm price 13 to 14.

Four Collisions During Weekend Are Reported

Greenville police, who investigated four collisions over the weekend, said one person was injured in the mishaps. Total damage was estimated by officers at over $1,450.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a wreck at 515 Evans St., which involved vehicles driven by Noah Lawrence Moore, 48-year-old Negro of 404 Shepard St., and Robert Gerald Stocks, 22, of 118 West Second St.

Police, reporting Moore was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, said his vehicle had just backed out of a drive at 515 Evans St. when the collision took place.

Damage to his car was set at $300 while damage to the Stocks vehicle was estimated to be about $400. The collision occurred yesterday about 7:30 p.m.

No charges were placed by officers when three vehicles collided at the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and Memorial Drive Saturday about 7:10 p.m.

Investigators said a vehicle operated by Roy Lee Ross, 43, of 607 Norris St. collided with a car driven by Edward Glenn Midgette, 22, of Route 3, Washington. The force of the impact caused the Midgette vehicle to strike a third vehicle, driven by Kenneth Ralph Heath, 18, of Route 1, Snow Hill.

No damage was reported to the Heath vehicle while damage to the Midgette auto was estimated to be about $330. Damage to the Ross car, according to police, was about $150.

An estimated $150 damage was done to a car driven by Harold Alfred Sawyer, 51, of 2701 B. Edwards St., following a collision on Evans St. in front of the U. S. Post Office about 9:07 a.m.

Police identified the driver of the second vehicle involved in the mishap as Miss Peggy Joyce Page of 308 Vance St. Damage to her car was set at $125.

No charges were placed.

Roy Perkins of 611 McKinley St., suffered minor abrasions upon colliding with a car Saturday about 8:28 p.m.

Officers said the youth ran from in front of an ice cream truck and into the side of an auto being driven by Joe Cephus Grimes, 40, of 2810 South Dickinson Ave.

The mishap occurred on West Fifth St., police noted. They added that the child was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital where he was checked by doctors and released.

party. His motion was unanimously approved.

In other action today, the commissioners granted authority to a study group to obtain professional advice concerning the structural soundness of the county courthouse and the extent of expansion necessary to adequately serve the county's needs.

Local attorney Kenneth G. Hite, chairman of the Courthouse Planning Committee and a member of the county's Overall Planning Committee, asked the commissioners for authorization to commission professional people, such as architects and engineers, to determine the soundness of the building (courthouse) and to determine how much more space is needed."

Hite said his group is not asking for an appropriation, only the authority "to move ahead." He had said previously his committee would not be able to further consider the problem facing it properly without professional advice.

After Commissioner B. Alton Gardner had offered a motion that was passed unanimously granting Hite's request, the attorney said his group plans to contact several architects and obtain their respective opinions concerning the condition of the courthouse.

In other action the commissioners: —ratified the acceptance of bids on four new county autos by the Finance Committee. Two Sheriff's Department cars were bought from low bidder Davenport Motor Sales of Farmville for $4,363.54. Two compact cars for the Health Department's sanitarium were bought from low bidder Jenkins Motor Co. of Greenville for $3,562.57.

—bought 20 Grand Jury Room chairs from Carolina Office Equipment Co. of Greenville (low bidder) for $543.84, with opportunity for a two per cent discount if paid for within 30 days.

—authorized electrical improvements in the Tucker Building to be made by the Board of Education as it deems necessary.

—approved appropriation of $100 for use by Negro Farm Agent James Goode's office for the annual Pitt County Dairy Show Sept. 12.

—transferred $10,000 from hospital levy fund to Pitt Memorial Hospital for operating expenses.

—approved an increase from $600 to $750 from county budget as an annual donation to Battery "A" of the local National Guard unit. The increase was requested by the battery. The other unit, Battery "B", receives a donation from the City of Greenville.

—set a joint meeting of the Commissioners, the Board of Education and the Board of Health for Friday night to fill the expired three-year term of Ayden's James Ross on the County Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Dr. Edgar Fisher, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Greenville, led the morning devotional.

Further Inquiry Into Alleged Abuses Ordered
PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — At the request of defense counsel, charges of abusing recruits lodged against two Marine drill instructors have been referred for further pretrial investigation.

Gunnery Sgt. Jerome P. Delkoski, 38, of St. Paul, Minn., was to have gone on trial this morning. The case against Gunnery Sgt. George L. Saxton, 30, of Charleston, was to have been heard immediately thereafter.

No new courts martial date was set.

The request for further pretrial investigation was quickly granted as the general court martial convened at this marine recruit depot.

East Carolina College Night Held At Lost Colony

PICTURED posing for cameramen at the Lost Colony Saturday night are Peter Johl who plays John Borden in the pageant, Director of the pageant Clifton Britton; Dr. Jenkins, costumed as Capt. Amadas; and "Queen Elizabeth", Mary Wood Long. Fourteen East Carolina College students and alumni have parts in the pageant.

East Carolina College Night in Waterside Theater on historic Roanoke Island for the Saturday evening performance—the 1077th of "The Lost Colony" drew scores of students, alumni, faculty and friends for the celebration.

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, ECC president, appeared in the guest role, performing as Capt. Phillip Amadas, and later, during intermission, briefly addressing the near-capacity audience.

"What is now called the 'age of outer space' is not a new thing, for at the time of attempted colonial settlement in the 'new world', it was a venture into outer space for Sir Walter Raleigh and others associated with him in the attempts to set up a colony," declared Dr. Jenkins.

East Carolina College alumni with official connection with "The Lost Colony" this season include Clifton Britton, director of the symphonic drama written by Paul Green. At the intermission ceremonies, Britton introduced Alumni President Fodie H. Hodges of Kinston, Otis Strother, III, president of the ECC Student Government Association, and other guests who were welcomed by J. Sibley Dorton, general manager of "The Lost Colony."

Preceding the production, students and alumni joined in a fish fry at 5 o'clock, with Mrs. Beulah White Gaylor of Manteo in charge of the local arrangements. Alumni Affairs Director Allan Nelms represented East Carolina College in arranging the special mandatory next year. The increases next year, he said, would probably be called for from the county's budget.

In other action the commissioners: —ratified the acceptance of bids on four new county autos by the Finance Committee. Two Sheriff's Department cars were bought from low bidder Davenport Motor Sales of Farmville for $4,363.54. Two compact cars for the Health Department's sanitarium were bought from low bidder Jenkins Motor Co. of Greenville for $3,562.57.

—bought 20 Grand Jury Room chairs from Carolina Office Equipment Co. of Greenville (low bidder) for $543.84, with opportunity for a two per cent discount if paid for within 30 days.

—authorized electrical improvements in the Tucker Building to be made by the Board of Education as it deems necessary.

—approved appropriation of $100 for use by Negro Farm Agent James Goode's office for the annual Pitt County Dairy Show Sept. 12.
