West Planning Propose Negotiations Over Berlin

PARIS (AP)—The United States and its top Western allies are planning to advance a proposal within the next few weeks for a meeting with the Soviet Union on Berlin and Germany...

October Communist party Congress in Moscow and the U.N. General Assembly session opening in September.

Rusk's report included a proposal to push allied military strength in Western Europe to its long-standing goal of 30 divisions with an additional 75,000 to 80,000 men.

Lesser increases are needed from the various other governments. The council endorsed the Western Big Four's plans to stand firm on Berlin but to keep the door open to negotiation with the Soviets...

The commissioners approved a pair of low bids received by Bloxam on two Utilities vehicles. Replacement of a chassis and other equipment on a service truck was awarded to White Chevrolet Co.

But little developed from the hour and a half session which ended with Mayor King suggesting another get-together between the council and the commission in a week or so.

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer Greenville Police Chief Guy C. Langston today made known a long list of departmental changes and promotions.

Titov Given Hero's Welcome By Soviet Crowds

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet spaceman Gherman Titov returned to Moscow today for a hero's welcome, kissed his well-wishers right and left and warned that if the "enemies of peace unleash another war, the Soviet Union has the wherewithal to crush the aggressor."

Standing atop the Lenin-Stalin tomb, the 26-year-old Titov told the applauding multitude jamming Red Square his space flight was dedicated to peaceful purposes and "we use our mighty rocket technique for the sake of progress."

The Soviet premier, following the new Soviet hero to the microphone, said it was symbolic of the greatness of the Communist party that for the second time Moscow was greeting a Russian newly returned from space.

Italian Sportswear Heads For The Campus

Latin may not be a favorite subject among the college crowd, but sportswear spelled out the modern Italian way is.

Not many can afford originals from Florence.

WINGED LADY . . . A style idea zany enough to appeal to the college crowd is this purple poncho strung with green pompons. It was designed by Naka of Milan.

Rome or Milan and still pay tuition. Nevertheless, students with high fashion I.Q.'s are keeping their eyes on this year's innovations, knowing full well that many will be next year's campus fads, and at American ready-to-wear prices.

Italian high spiritedness, whimsy, and love of vivid hues appeal to uninhibited coeds on the nation's campuses.

For example, Italian beachwear is bare basically. But covers-ups such as Roman striped knit shirts that reach the ankles are outrageous enough to stop the ships at sea.

And ski clothes with fringe, saucer-like buttons, pompons, fur ankle rings, and bat wings, all in bright colors of course, are ridiculous enough to warm the heart of a snowman.

Italian shoes with eyes and teeth like alligators, or with the eyes and feathers of a chicken; hoods shaggy like a lion's mane, and hats with giant wings are not to be worn by the faint but the young in heart.

Thus next year campus belles will be wearing versions of these titillating styles down to the sea shore, up the ski slope, to the football rally or on the hay ride.

Kookiness is now in part an Italian import.

New Perfume For B.B.

ST. TROPEZ, France—(WNS)—"Your hairdresser is closer to you than your couturier so he should create your perfume," reasoned Brigitte Bardot, so she selected famed coiffeur Jacques Dessange to develop her new perfume.

For months B. B. and Dessange worked together over the Brigitte fragrance at his beauty parlors in Paris and St. Tropez. Only after hundreds of tries did she sniff, beam and exclaim enthusiastically, "Formidable!"

"Perfume and hair-do are not detached from you as your clothes are," explained B. B. "Your hair and the fragrance of your skin are you."

The Brigitte Bardot formula for a perfume: "Something that is fresh, clinging and young. Not too sweet, not too heavy and not too green."

Hair Brush Doubles As Back Scrubber

A long-handled back brush is a wonderful bathing accessory at home, but inconvenient to carry while traveling. For a handy substitute, wrap a hotel washcloth or small towel around your hair brush and fasten it with an elastic, a safety pin, or a hair clip.

Work up a rich lather of soapsuds on the makeshift back-scrubber, and use it to reach and scrub hard-to-get-at areas. Afterwards, just rinse the suds from the brush which will dry quickly.

Newest automobiles with Fiberglas bodies need only regular washing with soap or detergent suds, then rinsing with a hose.

Can't Be Lulled By Nikita's Tone

Premier Khrushchev's proposal that East and West "negotiate in an honest way" to settle the Berlin question suggests again that the Kremlin is anxious to avoid open conflict over the divided German city. At the same time the experience of the United States in attempting to negotiate with Russia in recent years raises the serious question of whether the Soviets know the meaning of "negotiating in an honest way."

While the Soviet leader firmly asserted the military power of the Soviet Union and its satellites during his speech in reply to that of President Kennedy, he adopted a softer tone in his words to the West than many had expected. He spoke of the new Soviet space success, but he did not boast of it as might have been expected.

In tone and in overall scope, the address of Premier Khrushchev was much less militant in setting forth the Soviet position on Berlin than one might have supposed in view of what he has said in recent months on the same subject. It might well be that the communist spokesman was striving to lull the West and the neutral nations of the world into a false sense of security by minimizing the seriousness of the situation in Berlin.

Over the years the Soviets have adopted an outwardly tough policy on a particular matter, then apparently softened their tone and later abruptly returned to a harshly militant position with regard to the same matter. It is not unlikely that this is the strategy being employed by Premier Khrushchev with regard to Berlin.

In the face of the previous statements, President Kennedy has reiterated the determination of the United States to defend—with force if necessary—its rights in West Berlin and its obligation to the people of that city. He has ordered measures to bolster the U.S. military strength to cope with any emergency which may arise in connection with Berlin. It could well be that Premier Khrushchev sought in his milder-than-expected speech to throw the West off guard and to assume the role of peace-maker rather than aggressor so far as Berlin is concerned. If the West falls for the bait and fails to carry out its preparations to defend Berlin, if necessary, we may be sure that Khrushchev will renew his press for a showdown in Germany.

If on the other hand, the West goes through with its preparedness program, there is a good possibility that the Soviets will maintain the present attitude toward negotiation.

Khrushchev's speech this week bears out the importance of the assertion by President Kennedy that the United States will not allow itself to be put into the position of negotiating from weakness rather than from strength on any international question. The possibilities of resolving the Berlin question through negotiations have been increased rather than decreased by the action taken by President Kennedy in recent weeks.

There is no escaping the fact, however, that the Berlin crisis is still in the making. In spite of the seemingly hopeful words of Premier Khrushchev regarding negotiations, it is not likely that the Russian Bear is willing to roll over and play dead so far as Berlin is concerned.

Planning Today For Next Test

By LYNN NISBET

MANEUVERING — This is the season for backstage and unpublicized political activity. The major parties and the factions within the parties are maneuvering for positions of advantage in the elections next year—and more significantly in 1964.

The issues are not very clearly defined. There is the age-old conflict of conservative and liberal philosophy, but the dividing lines between these ideologies become more hazy every year. Some ideas that were crazy-liberal a few years ago are now regarded as ultraconservative.

To greater degree than at any time within 30 years personalities are involved in the current political maneuvering. Governor Terry Sanford has moved in, with more or less deliberate intent, to take over control of the Democratic party organization, as well as control of the State government administration.

For many years Senator Simmons was credited with the power to name governors, but he never served in that capacity. Max Gardner did not achieve recognition as a dominant influence in the party until after he left the Governor's office. Governor Scott had very little influence in party organization circles, and Governor Hodges paid slight attention to the Democratic party as such—certainly during the first two years of his tenure.

Governor Sanford not only is taking a great deal of interest in the organization, he has assumed direction of it and has intermingled State government and party administration personnel to greater degree than any recent executive.

TIMING — An astute and experienced political operator who asked the other day if his group is getting actively interested in the 1962 campaign. "Of course, we are active," he said, "but we ain't making much show about it. Right now we are letting you smart aleck newsboys enjoy yourselves sending up our trial balloons, while we are considering such basic things as issues and candidates—and most of all the appropriate time for breaking them out into the open."

Timing is a major problem. Older and more conservative operators are prone to wait too long, to let the propitious time go by because of fear that precipitate action might disrupt a long range plan. Enthusiastic youngsters, whose zeal has not been toned down by experience, are eager to go ahead with an all-out challenge. These are the folks who want to bring out a candidate right now against Senator Sam Ervin and other members of the Congress and the General Assembly who do not completely adhere to the philosophy of Governor Terry Sanford. These are the folks who say, in effect, "we're in the saddle — let's ride!"

A more conservative element would move cautiously, waiting to get more accurate data on how the Sanford tax and government organization programs are accepted, perhaps not risk an all-out contest in 1962 but wait until 1964 when the stakes will be much greater. At least wait until after the bond election this fall to see how the voters respond to that phase of the Sanford program. An unfavorable vote on the bonds, or a major part of them, would be regarded as a Sanford set-back. There has been noticeable decline in public sentiment for a special session of the General Assembly to submit $75-100 million bonds for State aid to a school building program.

PARTY LINE — Voting on bond issues will be entirely non-partisan. For a good many years the Republican vote has represented about one-third of the total cast for Governor. Last year it was about 45 per cent. That narrow margin suggested necessity for strengthening the Democratic party organization. First step in that direction was moving in of Governor Sanford to assume active leadership. Next was to have a committee appointed to completely rewrite the Party Plan of Organization.

The proposed new plan will be submitted to the executive committee within a few weeks for adoption. Some of the changes can be classed as revolutionary. More consideration will be given the voting precinct level, much more influence accorded the county chairman. Leaked information indicates that women will have perhaps less "book" prestige —but actually a great deal more voice in party affairs. Deadwood will be culled and the men and women who do the leg-work at the voting precincts will have more say-so in determining party policy.

There are some who would like to give this new organizational structure time to prove itself before throwing it into a life and death struggle. Others think it will work-out to give the new system a work-out test next year, when the stakes are not as high as they will be in 1964.

BACK-STAGE — These are some of the matters that are being seriously discussed in non-publicized back-stage conferences. On the surface there is nothing but harmony. Behind the scenes there is a real struggle among divergent elements for control of the Democratic party. And almost as much contest among Republicans, for whom the small of victory is more acute than it has been for a generation.

Mostly Talking About Talking

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — At this point the average citizen in America and the Soviet Union may be wondering why the United States and Russia don't start talking about Berlin instead of talking about talking.

President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev have talked repeatedly of their willingness to have American-Russian discussions on the German city but any start of such discussions still seems a long way off. It's as if the two giants of the world—the country and Russia—had to go into a slow waltz every time they heard the Berlin music played. They went through pretty much the same routine in 1958 and 1959.

Since Khrushchev started the rumpus last June 3-4 at his Vienna meeting with Kennedy—by demanding once again the allies get out of Berlin—there may have been yards and yards of American notes, Soviet notes, allied notes.

So far neither side has made a direct suggestion to the other that they sit down together and get moving.

Khrushchev in his speech Monday night—addressed to the Soviet people but aimed at Kennedy—played a kind of hot weather Santa Claus. He had a little of something for everybody. The United States it would get its come-uppance if it started a war. But he also said "let's not create hysteria" and proposed: "Let's sit down around a table and negotiate in an honest way."

He complimented Kennedy for showing common sense in wishing to avoid war but at the same time said the United States and its allies "are pushing the world to a dangerous brink."

This speech was in reply to one Kennedy gave July 25 on Berlin. The President's talk of that date reportedly angered Khrushchev. If so, it didn't show up in Monday's talk which was notable for two things:

1. It showed much more restraint than Khrushchev has used at other times.

2. It gave an impression—when he noted Kennedy's decision to build up the American armed forces—that this whole thing might get out of hand.

Kennedy's July 25 talk was obviously intended both to show Khrushchev the allies would not back down on Berlin and to cool him off a bit. Khrushchev appeared a little cooled.

Nevertheless, this situation is beginning to look like one in which one word could lead to another until both sides got in deeper than they wanted or expected.

Too much has been said on both sides now to remember it all without a file. But if you get caught. People who have a sensitive conscience sometimes wish that their conscience was not quite so sensitive. They would be much happier—or at least they think they would. But of course they wouldn't. It's strange as it may seem, happiness is something that comes out of perplexity, pain, frustration, and conflict.

Let us never feel that we would be happier with a less sensitive conscience; or that life is playing us a mean trick because we must endure so much inner conflict, especially conflict in matters of conscience. In that very conflict lies the possibility of transcendent happiness and triumph.

Conscience may not always make us happy, but it is the one thing which gives life dignity and purpose.

had such a file some of Khrushchev's performance at this point would look almost giddy in accomplishing what he said he wanted to avoid.

Last June 23 he said that if the West called for mobilization of its armed forces the Soviets would "take the necessary steps to strengthen our security."

Ten days passed in which the West did not mobilize. Then suddenly on July 8 Khrushchev said Russia had suspended troop reductions, promised a couple of years ago, would jump its defense spending 25 per cent this year.

In the face of this Kennedy on July 25 proposed building up the American strength a bit by adding 217,000 men to the regular forces, plus a call-up of an unspecified number of reservists, plus increased military spending.

Then Monday, Khrushchev, complaining about this, said Russia may mobilize its reserves and send more troops to its western border.

In that July 25 speech Kennedy very clearly sought to put Khrushchev on the propaganda defensive by blaming Moscow for building up trouble.

Kennedy said: "The world is not deceived by the Communist attempt to label Berlin a hotbed of war. There is peace in Berlin today. The source of world trouble and tension today lies in Moscow, not Berlin. And if war begins, it will have begun in Moscow, not Berlin."

This statement was relayed around the world. Khrushchev naturally tried to get out from under this indictment by one of the most ancient forms of diplomatic tit-for-tat.

He tried to dump the blame back on Kennedy, saying: "The United States is threatening to start a war. Its allies in the western bloc support this dangerous course."

Dr. Charles Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, already had news coming to his office from city and county superintendents as to the "look homeward" trend among teachers who have left us. Raleigh City Superintendent Jesse O. Sanderson told his board a day or so ago that inquiries about jobs from former Tar Heels now working elsewhere were larger for the period of time than he had known.

Constant-Friend Grass

There's a faint suspicion in the back of my mind we law-growers have been brainwashed. Contrary to a lot of disturbing talk about crab grass, it has some virtues.

Somebody with an ax of their own to grind, teed off the smear campaign with the naming of the grass "crab grass"... a distasteful word image if I ever saw one.

A more appropriate name might be "the constant friend grass"; because constancy is not only its middle name, but also its last name and maybe even its first.

The householder labors to rid himself of a patch of crab grass and then rests. When he returns he is more than likely to find "constant friend" grass was not rebuffed... but as green and friendly as ever.

Others have marveled at the breed. The Wall Street Journal recently editorialized that "at this time of year a good crop of crab grass can give you the greenest lawn on the street at almost no cost of time, money, or effort. And the only blemish on your joy is the fact that it won't last beyond September."

That newspaper goes on to suggest that science should strive to provide crab grass with greater resistance to cool weather, rather than fighting it, and thus give Americans a Utopian quality of lawn greenery.

The writer on Wall Street (where no grass grows) has a point. Crab grass is resistant to most kinds of blight and can fight weeds to a stand-off. It spreads well and rapidly... other grasses just have to give way before so hardy a rival.

When all else fails to cover a barren spot of ground, crab grass will do the job. Yet, this is the Gift of Nature which is depicted as some sort of monster.

(The crab grass will get you if you don't watch out!) I have been sitting out the anti-crab grass campaign for years and years. Neighbors would tell of their struggles, and purists on the grassy lawn front have written long accounts of the crab grass evil. It left me cold. Crab grass was somebody else's problem, not mine.

Last week I strolled out to survey the front lawn where in bygone days the costly seed of a highly-approved grass had been spread.

Sure enough. The grass you spell with dollar signs was in a bad way; but the crab-grass? Flourishing. Absolutely flourishing.

If you can't beat'em, you join'em. No, crab grass is not going to become any problem at our house. We rather need a grass that can take punishment, requires a minimum amount of care, is resistant to many kinds of lawn problems and flourishes under all kinds of difficult conditions. We should have more in the backyard.

Just can't understand why it isn't cultivated. But then, it were crab grass would probably fall easy prey to all the other frailties in "accepted" grasses.

Other Editors Saying... Opinions Now Looking Homeward In Brief

(Goldsboro News Argus) A goodly number of the best Tar Heel teachers who took jobs in other states to get more money now are looking homeward.

The pay raise of approximately 21 percent authorized by the last General Assembly for teachers is pulling on the displaced Tar Heels.

They went from North Carolina by the hundreds to states which paid teachers much more than we did for training, experience and ability. The one-fifth pay raise for the experienced and properly qualified teacher cuts to an estimated half the differential between North Carolina salary and some other state salary schedules.

While the boost in recent appropriations fails to bring our teacher pay into the top salary brackets for the states, it will go far toward setting up conditions which will pull the immigrants home.

Dr. Charles Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, already had news coming to his office from city and county superintendents as to the "look homeward" trend among teachers who have left us. Raleigh City Superintendent Jesse O. Sanderson told his board a day or so ago that inquiries about jobs from former Tar Heels now working elsewhere were larger for the period of time than he had known.

Dr. Amos Abrams, editor of the N.C. Education magazine, said more than a month ago that in one morning three displaced Tar Heels had called by the Raleigh office to make inquiry about possible home state openings.

Full impact of the ending of the wage differential, however, will not be felt until the start of the school year in September of 1962. Most particularly choice teaching assignments in North Carolina already had been filled before the final enactment of the Sanford education program. Most displaced Tar Heels working in higher paying states already had signed contracts for the year beginning in a few weeks. Many of these will be "looking around" during the coming school year with a view to coming home another year.

Increased salaries are not alone in putting a nostalgic pull on our natives who migrated. The quality program authorized will enable the conscientious teacher to do a better job under more favorable conditions. The special helps of more library service, office help, special teachers for the talented and the handicapped will take strain and unnecessary burden off the classroom teacher and enable her to do a better job.

The homeward bound trend will help lessen the teacher shortage and give school boards more top teachers to select from.

Barred From Europe

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

As early as the Potsdam Conference (July 17, 1945) Stalin made it clear that Soviet Russia would oppose the participation of China in European and world affairs, despite the fact that China had been at war with Japan since September 1931. Had China not kept Japan occupied, it is likely that the Japanese, using Manchuria as a base, would have conquered Mongolia and parts of Siberia as far east as Lake Balkal.

As a matter of fact, Japan had been active in that region since 1917 and it was only American intervention that saved both Russian and Chinese territory. Nevertheless, Soviet Russia never went into the Far Eastern War until it was over and then came in for the spoils.

So on July 16, 1945, when Stalin, Churchill and Truman were meeting at Potsdam to discuss matters, the following colloquy occurred:

"Stalin: ... I would like an explanation of the reason for China's participation in European affairs.

"Truman: China is one of the five members of the Security Council.

"Stalin: The decision taken at Crimea provided for quarterly conferences of the foreign secretaries. Does President Truman's suggestion supersede the Crimea proposal?

"Truman: The Crimea proposal was temporary.

"Churchill: ... I think it a needless complication to bring China in. When it comes to drawing up the peace, all countries must come in. The preliminary work cannot be done by telegram. I am content that China should be admitted to drawing up the general provisions for peace but not for the day to day work. China is far from Europe and has not contributed to the European war. Do you really wish to discuss the administration of Germany with the Chinese delegation?"

So, China was pushed out of the meetings where it would have been possible for China to protect herself and her interests. In fact, Winston Churchill aided the Russians in this matter. He said:

"Until the Japanese war is over I see great difficulty in China's having a voice in the trying problems of Europe. I see no advantage in introducing China with the European settlement. They have not fought in Europe. It is possible that while the Council is sitting, the war with Japan will end. Then China can and should come into the World Peace Conference. I do not see that China could help us in settling the question of the Reich."

The next day, July 18, 1945, the "China" question was again raised by Russia.

"Mr. Molotov again raised the question of China but said that if the Council was to deal with other than exclusively European affairs the objections to China's participation would drop."

"Mr. Byrnes suggested that the Council be composed of five powers but that participation of China be limited to problems concerning the Far East or problems of world wide significance. The other reason for including China was that China is one of the permanent members of the Security Council."

This attitude of the Russians persisted throughout the Conference, despite the fact that Soviet Russia did not participate in the Far Eastern War until it was practically over. The Russians took the same position as regards France, namely, that France should have no voice in the settlement of European affairs, because France had not participated in the armistice.

It was clearly the Russian program first to reduce the discussion to among Three Powers, the United States, Soviet Russia, and Great Britain. Undoubtedly the Russian plan to squeeze out Great Britain as well.

Truman was told at the July 18 luncheon that Japan had been ready to make peace. The following is significant:

"I (Churchill) imparted to the President the disclosure about the offer from the Mikado, made to me by Marshal Stalin the night before, and I told him he was promised to talk it over with the Marshal, as I had informed him at the time."

Strength For Today

CONSCIENCE CAUSES

CONFLICT
Did you ever stop to think how miserable man is because of the very qualities that make him a man?

Take, for instance, the matter of conscience. Animals have no conscience. Their life is an instinctive response to their environment. The thing that distinguishes man from the lower creatures is that he can reflect on his experience and choose between good and evil. And as soon as that starts, he begins to have within him tremendous conflict.

There are some people much like animals in that they have very little conscience. They can indulge in every form of evil and never feel the least rebuke of conscience, unless they

When Should A Firm Go Public?

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are answers to two questions raised in this column yesterday:

IF YOU HAVE A CLOSELY HELD BUSINESS yearning for expansion, should you "go public"?

If you are an arbitrary, domineering autocrat, the answer is no. But if you are willing to share your ownership with strangers, and willing to be accountable to them for your management of their share of the business, selling shares to the public may be the quickest, simplest and cheapest way to get capital for expansion.

However, investment specialists tell me this: "Don't try to go public unless the total value of the company's stock is at least $1 million. Don't try to go public unless you have expansion plans, such as bringing out new products, acquiring other companies, or developing new markets. That's because small investors want growth and large investors want capital gains. If they can't get that, they're better off buying stocks on exchanges."

It's also a good idea to have definite plans for the use of additional equity capital, and paying off old debts should never be one.

SHOULD YOU INVEST?

If you have savings to invest, should you buy shares in a new company going public?

If you are an employee or a supplier to the company, a moderate investment may pay dividends in certain advantages as well as in cash.

If you have a limited amount of savings, financial advisors agree that the first $5,000 should be in a savings account, government bonds and other quick-accessible investments, even though they may be endangered by inflation. Having ready money in an emergency is worth more than higher interest.

securities. After that, some can be used for moderate-risk investments. Even this, however, is affected by age and responsibilities. A man needing money for retirement, or a father with children nearing college age should stick to sound investments, even though returns are small.

GAMBLE CAUTIOUSLY

But even the individual with ample risk capital should approach new stock of small corporations carefully. These stocks are rarely listed on the large exchanges; they are traded "over the counter." They do not have to meet the requirements of the exchanges, which insist on full disclosure of financial status.

The investor should therefore make as searching an inquiry as he possibly can and then, even though prospects are bright, realize that he is gambling on men and markets.

These baby stocks often offer rare advantages. A small company with good researchers may come up with a product that will double the value of its stock. A new product or a new technique may make investors rich. Furthermore, many of these gains may be taxable at the capital gains rates.

On the other hand, these new stocks often fade away. The promised inventions run into challenges that make them unusable for years. The executive who made a $100,000 company sparkle may be ineffectual in a $1 billion concern.

And there is another hazard: Slick operators often get control of a small corporation, go public with fanfares and promises, pay the new capital to themselves for rights to a worthless patent, and then move away until things quiet down. There are two rules:

1. Investigate, investigate, investigate.

2. Even after investigation makes the project look sound, remember that investments in small, untried corporations are a gamble and that only those who can afford to lose can afford to gamble.

Leaving Friday For 3-Day Event

About 60 Jehovah's Witnesses from the Greenville congregation, North Unit, leave Friday to attend the three-day training school in Tarboro, in the National Guard Armory, sponsored by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York, W. R. Nichols, overseer for the local congregation, announced.

He pointed out that Jehovah's Witnesses, when not attending assemblies, carry on a training program in each of the more than 21,000 congregations world-wide all studying the same material.

Due to the growth of these conventions it was necessary this past February to decrease each circuit to 15 congregations so that more locations would be available for conducting such schools. Upwards of 600 are expected to attend from some 30 counties.

The theme of the school has been set as "Walk in the name of Jehovah forever," Micah 4:5.

The highlight of the assembly will come on Sunday at 3 p.m. when Rutherford G. Sakatos, Watchtower official from New York, discourses on "The Twentieth Century in Bible Prophecy." Mr. Nichols extended an invitation to all in the Greenville area to attend this free Bible school.

Positive Approach Urged In Mental Health Program

It is a community responsibility in establishing a program of mental health to set a pattern which will create a habit of living positively, declared Dr. Clinton R. Prewett, director of the ECC Department of Psychology, in keynoting the Mental Health Conference at East Carolina College on Wednesday.

Dr. Prewett emphasized the importance of motivation of a positive program for helping all citizens of a community to "live positively."

The conference, held in McGinnis Auditorium, was sponsored by East Carolina College Psychology Department and the Pitt County

During the forenoon, interested groups held sessions to discuss various roles of the community groups. Discussion leaders were the Rev. Members of the advisory committee co-ordinating the conference plans included Dr. Carl Adams, ECC Psychology Department; Mrs. J. B. Auto Liability Rate Change Set RALEIGH (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold has ordered into effect a plan to reduce auto liability insurance rates for good drivers, and raise them for those with accident records.

An order adopting the plan, recommended by the North Carolina Automobile Rate Administrative Office as a result of action by the 1961 Legislature, was issued Tuesday by Gold's office.

He said the plan "will more than prove its worth if it serves as a factor in reducing loss of life and property on the highways of North Carolina. Much of the answer rests with the motor vehicle drivers of our state."

Rates would be reduced 10 per cent below the basic level for drivers with a three-year record of no chargeable accident involving property damages of $100 or more.

The rate office had proposed a $50 damage limit, but Gold raised it to $100.

accidents. Extra charges would be imposed on insurance rates, ranging from 5 per cent for one point to 150 per cent for 8 points.

The rate office estimated that around 76 per cent of motorists would qualify for the 10 per cent rate reduction, on the basis of three years of safe driving.

Gold said studies prepared by the Motor Vehicles Department showed that it was the driver with a record of traffic violations who was most often involved in accidents.

Caught Carrying Concealed Pistol

AYDEN—Police Chief W. D. Brooks reported yesterday that the Ayden Police Department had arrested the second man in a week's time on charges of carrying a concealed weapon.

Tried and convicted on the charges Monday in Ayden Recorder's Court was David O'Neal, 51-year-old Negro of Rt. 1, Ayden. The concealed weapon was a .22 caliber pistol. Chief Brooks said O'Neal was fined $50 and costs and was given a 12-month suspended sentence. He was arrested Saturday.

It is against North Carolina law to carry a concealed weapon, Chief Brooks noted.

Forest Fire Is Menacing Towns

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (AP)—A two-month-old forest fire blazed less than five miles from three Bonavista Bay communities today. Residents fled by helicopter and boat.

Firefighters in smoke masks fought to keep the flames from Musgrave Harbor, Boating Cove and Ragged Harbor on the east coast bay 90 miles north of St. John's.

A slight shift in wind could bring the fire roaring into the communities just a few miles apart. With no rain in sight there was no immediate prospect of help from the weather.

Invalids among the 2,000 threatened residents were flown by Canadian air force helicopters Tuesday to Gander 30 miles away. Women and children boarded coastal steamers for Fogo Island off the coast.

A fourth community on the edge of the fire, Carmanville, also was threatened but residents there were not leaving yet. The fire started June 12 and spread over a 400-square-mile area of fir and spruce pulpwood. A section of the community of Hare Bay already has been destroyed.

Premier J. R. Smallwood flew over the area and called the fire "just about the most horrible thing that has ever happened to Newfoundland."

Planning Defense Exercise Oct. 14

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Another large-scale defense exercise covering the continent will be held Oct. 14. All commercial and private plane flights will be grounded for a 12-hour period, from noon to midnight, Eastern Standard Time. The announcement came today from the North American Air Defense Command, nerve center of aerial defense of this country and Canada. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, NORAD commander in chief, said this will mean the grounding of about 1,850 airline flights in the United States, 273 in Canada and 31 of other nations operating in and out of North America. The exercise is called Sky Shield II.

School Vandalism Costing Public Millions Of Dollars

By BETTY REEF
Women's News Service
SYRACUSE, N. Y.—(WNS) — Schools throughout the country must soon get busy repairing the summer depredations of vandals who are costing the American public millions of school tax dollars each year.

Most vandalism is carried out by the students themselves during the long summer hiatus when school buildings are closed, a study by the Syracuse University Research Institute found.

Nationwide figures on the high price of school damage are not available. But according to Professor Nathan Goldman of the university's Youth Development Center, who prepared this report, window breakage alone runs up such bills as $250,000 a year in Chicago, more than $50,000 in the District of Columbia, $70,000 in Boston.

Twelve years ago, replacing window panes used $82,569 of Philadelphia's education budget; $27,333 in Pittsburgh, $8,861 in Flint, $3,759 in Omaha, $2,956 in a city as small as Somerville, Mass.

These figures have climbed in recent years. In Syracuse, where the special study was conducted on a sampling of 16 junior, junior-senior, and senior high schools, the 1959 window replacement bill was nearly $14,000.

Through spectacular acts of destruction on one or two school rooms arouse more public outrage, the everyday damage proves most costly in the long run:

Smashed panes, cut desks tops, gouged walls, ripped books, damaged washroom equipment, diverted funds from educational uses, reported Prof. Goldman.

His surveys and questionnaires among teaching staff and pupils tried to find basic causes for this growing destruction. Facile prescriptions for "curing" vandalism have so far not proved very effective, though they include such techniques as screening the vulnerable windows, frequent police patrol of school areas, and making parents pay for damages—when the culprits can be found.

The surveys disclosed only a slight degree of relation between school damage and juvenile arrest. "Previously a high level of school damage was thought to be strongly related to delinquent conduct in the community, especially to arrest for mischief or truancy," states the report. This turned out not to be the case in Syracuse, and may be due in part to the fact that most teachers interviewed did not believe child vandals should be reported to the police. They felt the youngsters should either repair the damage or pay for it out of their own earnings.

The schools divided roughly into "low-damage" and "high-damage" groupings. Teachers in high-damage schools attributed depredations to the generally poor condition of school buildings, which undermined pupil pride and loyalty. They said that boredom, lack of interest in the school and the bravado of daring activities all contributed.

Further, most of them classified their school administrations as weak and casual, the student attitude as indifferent, and the parents (largely in the blue-collar working class) as given to a "couldn't care less" attitude toward school and education.

The questionnaires to students (ages 12 to 18) in these high-damage schools revealed that most were preparing for jobs rather than for college. They considered their school one of the poorest in the city, felt alienated because the public identified it with hoodlums or delinquents. Many gave boredom as a reason for destructive rampages. They felt their principals were lax and weak, their teachers mild and indulgent, their custodians unfriendly. Their parents, they said, were either critical or noncommittal about the schools (most of which were in areas of low social status and high physical deterioration).

Teachers in the low-damage schools reported that children commit these acts "for fun" or for revenge. They felt that the evildoers could almost always be distinguished from the well behaved on the basis of race, low social-economic class, and learning ability. They classified the school administration as strong and democratic—although sometimes rigid—while both staff and children were described as enthusiastic and proud of the school.

Pupils in schools with a low vandalism rate felt their institution was the best or better than most, respected and admired the principal, felt their teachers were either excessively or moderately strict. Their parents—largely professionals, executives, managers or proprietors—were favorably disposed toward the school, these young people reported.

The study pointed to a list of morale factors which lead to extensive vandalism. These are: curriculum which does not meet educational or vocational requirements of students; obsolete school apparatus in bad repair, overcrowding. All these are interpreted as lack of interest in student welfare. In addition, frustrated teachers, working under poor conditions without help from the principal or board of education, tend not to keep a firm rein on their charges or comply strictly with school administration values. Students often express their resentments by assaults on the physical plant and equipment of the school.

The report, appearing in the current issue of "Crime and Delinquency," was adapted from a longer version submitted to the U.S. Office of Education.

Goldberg Enters Opera Dispute

NEW YORK (AP)—Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg has stepped into the labor dispute that forced cancellation of the Metropolitan Opera Company's 1961-62 season.

Goldberg, in Dallas to address a convention, said Tuesday night he had already spoken to the president of the union and would contact Met representatives today.

While officials battled against time to forestall what music lovers consider a tragedy of Wagnerian proportions, nearly all of the Met's singers made clear they still consider themselves under contract to the world-famous opera company.

Two of them—Leontyne Price and Rise Stevens—had cabled Washington in a move that apparently precipitated Goldberg's intervention.

Locally, Mayor Robert F. Wagner scheduled a meeting with Al Manutti, president of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians, and other union officials.

It was the union's demand for a wage hike that led to the cancellation Monday. The Met said the union had demanded a weekly base pay of $248 for musicians—a raise of $78 over last season.

The opera called the demand "exorbitant" and said it could not afford to meet it. Consequently, it released its singers from their contracts so they could make other arrangements.

Driving License Was In The Pot

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Patricia Devaney told the judge she didn't have her driver's license because she accidentally dropped it in a boiling pot of ham and cabbage.

Mrs. Devaney appeared in city court on charges of speeding and driving without a license. She said the license apparently dissolved in the pot.

The judge sighed, dismissed the license charge, and fined her $15 for speeding.

Tuesday Fights Montreal - Bob Cleroux, 204, Montreal, outpointed George Chavale

Fight In 6th. Frame Of Pittsburgh Game PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Manager Gene Mauch of Philadelphia today was nursing a black left eye and his counterpart, Danny Murtaugh of Pittsburgh, a spike wound of the neck after the two acted as peacemakers in a wild melee between players of the two clubs.

The brawl broke out Tuesday night during the sixth inning of a two-night doubleheader when catcher Hal Smith of the Pirates put an extra hard tag on Phillies' outfielder Tony Gonzalez who tried to score from second on a single by Clay Dalrymple.

Smith fell on Gonzalez and both players came up with fists swinging. Players, managers and coaches from both teams swarmed into the field and at least seven different fights erupted.

Mauch and Murtaugh were the only ones injured and no one seemed to know who did the damage. They and police finally broke up the free-for-all which lasted nearly 10 minutes.

Umpire Frank Dascoli ordered three policemen stationed at each dugout until the end of the game to prevent a further outbreak.

After the game, which the Pirates won 3-2 after taking the opener 10-2, a veteran sports writer remarked to Murtaugh in the dressing room that it was the best fight he ever saw.

"I wouldn't know," said Murtaugh. "I was on the bottom of the pile and didn't see a thing."

Smith admitted making a second tag on Gonzalez.

"I'll do it every time (to) anybody who comes in with their spikes at my face. I'll give any base runner the plate but when they start playing that way I'm going to do something about it. I've got a wife and three kids to support."

Mauch and Gonzalez said Smith had it "all wrong."

"What was the kid (Gonzalez) supposed to do?" asked Mauch. Smith had made a great play on the throw from right fielder Roberto Clemente but he was six to seven feet up the line. It appeared that Gonzalez had to slide to reach the plate.

After the melee Mauch argued with plate umpire Frank Secory that Smith should be ejected from the game. Mauch announced the game was being played under protest but later in the dressing room the Phillies manager said he was withdrawing his protest.

Secory explained after the game that he didn't think Smith's action warranted ejection.

Dascoli said: "I'm an umpire, not a fight referee. If they want to fight, let them fight."

Ball Just Won't Play Ball

The ball, Yankee third baseman Cleve Boyer, right, and shortstop Joe Damaestri are at cross purposes as they dart in front of his teammate in attempt to get slow roller. Action took place in second inning of game with Los Angeles in Yankee Stadium in New York when Angels' second baseman Rocky Bridges hit the grounder. Bridges was credited with a hit and teammate Ken Hunt who started the inning with a walk, scored on the play. Yankees won 4-1.

Second Place Tigers Take 3-0 Victory From Chicago

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer

All the talk is about Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle these days, but you'd almost think Yogi Berra, the talkative catcher who now finds himself all alone in left field, is trying to muscle in on the conversation.

After winning Monday night's game with a home run, the squat swatter brought New York from behind with a tying home run Tuesday night and the Yankees beat the Los Angeles Angels 5-4 in 10 innings, preserving their three-game lead in the American League with their sixth straight victory.

It was the only homer of the game as Mantle and Maris were shut out once more in their pursuit of Babe Ruth's 1927 record of 60. Maris singled home the winning run, but he hasn't hit a home run in five games and now is only 13 games ahead of Ruth's third over the A's. Bob Shaw (7-10) was the loser as Jackie Brandt and Hank Foiles each drove in two runs in a 15-hit barrage.

Kansas City then beat Baltimore for only the second time in 13 tries when Haywood Sullivan hit a two-out, three-run home run in the nightcap ninth off reliever Hoyt Wilhelm (8-7). The A's also ended Skinny Brown's shutout streak at 32 innings with a three-run fifth. Norm Bass (6-7) was the winner although giving up three home runs—two by Brandt and Jim Gentile's 32nd.

Cleveland came from behind with a four-run eighth triggered by Chuck Essegian's home run and then scored the tie-breaking run in the 10th on catcher Gene Green's second passed ball of the inning. Wynn Hawkins (6-8) was the winner and Dave Sisler (2-6) the loser, both in relief.

Camilo Pascual (9-12) struck out 10, allowed just six hits and drove in three runs for the Twins against Bill Monbouquette (8-11). Homers scored Boston's runs a solo by Don Buddin and an inside-the-park shot that gave Gary Geiger his first major league grand slam.

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) - Bob Smith of Asheville captured the medal in the 43rd annual Country Club of Asheville Men's Invitation golf tournament, shooting a 137 Tuesday for a 36-hole score of 170.

Another Smith (no relation), George of New Bern, was runner-up for the medal at 138. He had a 67 on Tuesday. Jim Dowtin of Asheville was third at 140.

The low 31 qualifying scores and defending champion J. C. Hyatt of Asheville begin match play today. The 36-hole final round is scheduled Saturday.

Coast To Coast Battle In National League Tuesday

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer

That two-team scrap for the National League pennant erupted into a wild and woolly battle from coast to coast Tuesday night as, moving from West to East:

The Los Angeles Dodgers finally caught up with Lew Burdette and whipped the Milwaukee Braves 7-3 for a one-game lead; Third-place San Francisco beat the Chicago Cubs 8-1 in a beanball duel between Jack Sanford and Don Cardwell;

The St. Louis Cardinals out-slugged second-place Cincinnati 6-5.

And Pittsburgh's fallen idols and Philadelphia's last-place Phils went at it in an all-out brawl in the second game of the Pirates' 10-2 and 3-2 twi-night doubleheader sweep.

In the staid old American League, the New York Yankees won their sixth in a row and retained a three-game bulge by beating the Los Angeles Angels 5-4 in 10 innings.

Second-place Detroit beat Chicago's White Sox 3-0; Baltimore split with Kansas City, winning 7-0 before the A's bounced back for a 6-5 victory; Cleveland defeated Washington 6-5 in 10 innings, and Minnesota beat Boston 6-5.

The Dodgers, who had lost nine in a row to Burdette in Los Angeles Coliseum, twice blew leads before finally beating the big right-hander with a two-run sixth inning. Junior Gilliam walked, went to third on Duke Snider's single and scored as catcher Joe Torre dropped a throw at the plate — after Gilliam stepped on his ankle. Snider, who drove in two runs, one with a homer, then came across with the clinching run on a single by Frank Howard.

Dick Farrell (7-5) was the winner in relief after starter Sandy Koufax gave up a home run by Frank Thomas and left when he Braves took a 3-2 lead on Joe Adcock's two-run single in the sixth.

The Reds and Cards jolted each other with three home runs, but the Red Birds wound up with the edge on a ninth-inning belt by Ken Boyer, his 17th of the year and second of the night off loser Bob Purkey (13-6). Purkey, Vada Pinson and pinch-hitter Jerry Lynch homered for the Reds, with Lynch's fifth pinch shot of the year (one shy of the record) tying it 5-5 in the top of the ninth against winning reliever Lindy McDaniel (8-5).

Bill White paired with Boyer for solo home runs in the third inning, after each had knocked in a run with a single in the first.

A two-run single by Willie Mays put it away for the Giants in the first inning. Then Cardwell (9-10) and Sanford (7-6) went to work. Cardwell dropped Sanford with a second-inning pitch and plunked Orlando Cepeda in the back in the third. Sanford got rid of Cardwell in the sixth, nicking him on the back of the neck with a pitch that put the Cub right-hander out of the game. He wasn't injured seriously.

Sanford then tagged a two-run homer off reliever Don Elston in the sixth and finished with a five-

The Bucs and Phils got into it as the Pirates handed the Phils a 12th straight defeat and their 17th defeat in 18 games — enough to get anybody riled. It started when Pirate catcher Hal Smith fell on Tony Gonzalez as he slid into the plate and ended when six cops came to the aid of the out-manned ump. Managers Danny Murtaugh of the Bucs and Gene Mauch of the Phils went into the brawl as peacemakers and came out with the worst of it—Murtaugh with a spike wound on his neck, Mauch with a black eye.

Tom Sturdivant won his first NL decision although giving up seven hits, one a home run by Gonzalez. Chris short (4-8) was the loser.

The Bucs banged out 13 hits in the opener. Smoky Burgess was 6-for-5 driving in four runs with four singles and a sixth-inning home run that settled it against Art Mahaffey (7-16), who now has lost nine in a row. Harvey Had-dix (8-5) was the winner.

He Hopes Mark Can Be Topped

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Dick Stuart, who clouted 66 home runs in the minors, is rooting for either Mickey Mantle or Roger Maris to break Babe Ruth's major league record of 60 circuits.

"I'd like to see one of them do it," said the strapping first baseman of the National League's Pittsburgh Pirates.

Stuart, however, wants the two New York Yankees' sluggers to know that the closer they get to Ruth's fabulous slugging mark, the greater the pressure is going to be.

"At least," he remembered, "that's the way it was with me." Back in 1956, Stuart, then a strong-armed 23-year-old, clouted 66 home runs for Pittsburgh's Lincoln farm team in the Western League. At the time there was national attention focused on the feat although few realized Dick was shooting for another record — and missed.

He had a chance to break organized baseball's all-time homer high of 72, set by a forgotten Joe Bauman in the Class C Texas-New Mexico League years before. He hit 60 homers in the first 100 games, but only 6 in the last 41.

Auto Contract Negotiations Affect Many People In Country; Even You

By A. F. MAHAN
DETROIT (AP)—The auto contract negotiations may be far away from your community, but they are important to many people in many places—for instance, you.

That goes whether you own a car or know anyone in an auto plant or an auto company office; whether you are in ranks of management or labor. What comes from the bargaining may affect the size of your paycheck or pay roll, whatever the source. Past settlements have affected prices

Few industries are as widespread as the auto. General Motors, for instance, operates 129 plants in 71 different cities in 11 states. Often an auto plant is the largest employer in a city or an area—and that makes auto wages a concern of the merchant, banker and builder, and nearly everybody else.

Combined, the auto plants themselves employ more than half a million. But stretching back through the executive suites, assembly lines, supplier plants and raw material sources, the Automobile Manufacturers Association figures one out of every seven persons in the country owes his job to the auto and related industries such as transportation and gasoline.

But these aren't the only persons affected. Many others get wages patterned after those of a fender-bender in Kenosha or Mahwah or Muscle Shoals or Van Nuys. Almost for certain, the wage pattern will follow in aircraft and farm machinery plants. The official name of the union usually shortened to UAW is: International Union, United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America. The steel, electric and other industries have followed in the past the patterns established in auto contracts.

The cost of living escalator was introduced first in auto-labor contracts in 1948. Literally millions of dollars in wages have ridden up since then, including 54 cents of the current average auto wage of $2.80 hourly.

It also was in 1948 that the industry decided, under union prodding, that workers were entitled to share in job-saving, cost-saving technological advances — known today as automation.

So, the "annual improvement factor," now a fixture in wage contracts in many industries, was of thousands of seemingly unrelated items.

In 1950 the auto workers powered their way with a 100-day strike among other things to a funded pension plan — one in which pensions are guaranteed at 65, even if the company folds like Kaiser-Fraser or Hudson Motors.

In 1955 came supplemental unemployment benefits, referred to generally as SUB. This now guarantees a laid-off worker enough on top of governmental unemployment insurance to give him 65 per cent of his normal take-home pay for 26 weeks—half a year. It has been copied elsewhere.

Along the way, too, severance pay has made its appearance. Now if an auto plant moves elsewhere a worker can follow his job or obtain separation pay based upon his years of employment.

When auto workers reach 65 they may retire on both a company-paid and Social Security pension. They must retire, current three-year contracts say, at age 68. After 15 years auto workers have a so-called vested interest (unrevocable right) to pensions at 65, based upon years of employment.

If you disputes between management and labor are settled by a full-time impartial umpire, then you have something that came in the auto industry way back in 1940.

If you know a white-collar auto office worker—you know a fellow whose pay is geared at least to some extent to that of the blue-collar man on the assembly line. Advances in production worker contracts usually seep up to the top. Differentials between white-collar and blue-collar pay scales generally are maintained. The office worker is getting a cost of living allowance on his paycheck, too, and some other items that are as routine along the assembly line as the next car.

Ayden Rotarians Told Of Experiences In Rhodesia

AYDEN—Former Ayden resident Charles Thomas Jackson, now of Southern Rhodesia, related experiences of tobacco planting in Southern Rhodesia before members of the Ayden Rotary Club on Friday night.

Jackson moved to the African country in 1941 and began to raise tobacco in 1948. At the present time, he is cultivating about 120 acres of tobacco. The soil conditions here, he explained, and the altitude is from 3,500 feet to 5,000 feet.

Beginning in October, the crop is finished by December, and it is planted by hand. Water has to be hauled to the desired place, he noted. All the old varieties of tobacco are planted, and they are as subject to disease in his country as they are in North Carolina and other U. S. states, he said.

One difference, he pointed out, was that the tobacco has to be more heavily fertilized there than here. And, there is no tobacco control.

As for labor, it is kept the year round. It is the landlord's responsibility to feed and house laborers and their families, and school is held on the larger farms, with the landlords being responsible for providing teachers. Some of the schools are government sponsored.

Record 142 Live Births In July

A total of 142 live births—19 of them illegitimate—were recorded during July by the vital statistics section of the Pitt County Health Department.

A breakdown showed 79 of the total births were white and 63 Negro. All 19 of the illegitimate births were Negroes.

A total of 43 deaths were recorded—22 white and 21 Negro—with two deaths under one month and three attributed to cancer.

Wedding Guests Invited Selves

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Guides at the Ohio Capitol receive some unusual requests, but one of the most out-of-the-ordinary was in 1911. A young couple, accompanied by families and friends, asked permission to be married in the central rotunda. Officials checked the Ohio Constitution and other codes and, finding nothing prohibiting such a ceremony, permitted the wedding to take place. As the wedding began, a 30-year-old newspaper account relates, "the word spread like wildfire and (state) offices were emptied, especially of young ladies of eligible age."

Counting Up His Fishing Losses

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Ray Moore's suburban pool has everything for the wellbeing of its exotic goldfish except a "no fishing" sign.

Moore says he didn't realize one was needed — until he surprised a 14-year-old boy sizing up the pool.

"I came here to fish," the lad explained. "My friends said they got 20 nice ones from your pool."

Moore shoed the boy away and began counting his recent losses: 72 large fantail goldfish, six to eight inches long.

Winston-Salem Judge Injected Into Speculation

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The name of Superior Court Judge Walter E. Johnston Jr. of Winston-Salem has been injected into the selection of a second federal judge for the Middle District of North Carolina.

The state received three new federal judges under a bill passed earlier this year by Congress. John D. Larkins Jr. of Trenton and Superior Court Judge J. Braxton Craven of Morganton, N.C., already have been nominated for two of the posts.

U.S. Sens. B. Everett Jordan and Sam Ervin have suggested Malcolm Seawell of Chapel Hill, for the second Middle District position. Also mentioned for the nomination, which will be made by President Kennedy, has been Judge L. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro.

Judge Johnston, 51, has gained support from attorneys in the Winston-Salem area. He has been on the Superior Court bench since 1954.

Pre-Registered At Chapel Hill

Michael G. Martin, Jr., of Greenville was among those pre-registering and taking placement tests at Chapel Hill last week. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin of 611 Oak Street.

Michael, 18, a 61 graduate of Rose High School, will enter the University this fall and plans to major in chemistry.

Wilkinson, who was raised on an Ohio farm, has won several state and national horsemanship honors.

JUMPS WRONG WAY
BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—When a 17-year-old youth held up a neighborhood branch of the Savings & Loan Association, he wasted no time falling into the clutches of the law. He leaped a fence and fell into the clutches of off-duty Lt. Rocco Navarro, sunbathing in his back yard. The $3,000 loot was recovered.

Khrushchev Affecting Markets

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev's threats and Soviet space triumphs have had their effects on both the stock and bond markets. Stock prices have risen and bond prices have dropped.

U.S. moves to meet the Berlin crisis are setting off a new wave of government spending. And traders conclude that this, on top of a business recovery already under way, could mean at least a moderate boom.

From there the thinking goes by easy steps: A boom will aid many companies and make their stocks more valuable. It might lead to more inflation, making stocks a good hedge, and making bonds with their fixed returns less attractive.

Also with the government going in for deficit financing, there'll be more bonds available to the market—so yields will have to be higher if bonds are to sell.

And if business booms, more corporations may be offering securities to finance expanding activities, or borrowing more from the banks. So interest rates will rise. This will depress prices of outstanding bonds, with lower fixed rates.

It's true that in the last week or 10 days stock prices have risen and some bond prices took a tumble.

But a few cool voices are being raised to warn against jumping too fast to conclusions about either the momentum of the present business recovery or the extent of the stimulus of more defense spending on the economy in general.

Economists of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York note that productive capacity greatly exceeds total demand. So there is still quite a way to go before there will be any great pressure on business to abandon its current policy of hand-to-mouth inventories. Nor is industry at the moment under pressure to expand facilities. All but the most specific defense demands can be supplied by existing resources.

Bond dealers hold that business seems sure to improve—with increased government spending adding to the certainty. This they say will lead, as usual, to a rise in interest rates.

Yields are already rising. On some U.S. government bonds they are now the highest in more than a year. About a dozen issues are now yielding 4 per cent or better. That is, the prices of these fixed-income securities have dropped sharply, so that they can now be bought at prices that yield 4 per cent.

TOMMIES GO NATIVE — British army engineers find native headdress and earthenware water jars just the thing to beat the heat in Kuwait. They are building a rest camp for comrades guarding the oil-rich sheikdom against threatened Iraq aggression.

Enlistment Rate Still High After Call For Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sustained surge of volunteers has followed President Kennedy's call for a buildup of U.S. armed forces and the announcement of higher draft calls.

Defense Department sources said today a sampling of enlistment trends in widely scattered areas showed there has been no lull in the increased rate that followed the President's speech two weeks ago.

Major emphasis is on the Army which is authorized to add about 133,000 men to build up to over 1 million men.

One of the first efforts will be to train manpower to fill out three present training divisions in the Strategic Army Force—STRAF—then convert those divisions into combat units.

The three divisions are the 1st Infantry at Ft. Riley, Kan., the 2nd Infantry at Ft. Benning, Ga., and the 2nd Armored at Ft. Hood, Tex.

A combat infantry division has an authorized strength of 13,700 men, an armored division 14,600.

Present permanent strength—cadres of trained men—in those divisions is believed to be less than half of authorized combat strength.

The Defense Department and Army now are completing detailed plans for adding manpower, training men and converting the three STRAF divisions to combat outfits. Then they will be added to the 14 combat divisions now in the Army.

The threat of the draft is spurring voluntary recruiting for all services. Only the Army uses the draft, President Kennedy, in his July 25 nationwide address, said that draft calls might be doubled or tripled. Subsequently, the quota for August, which had been set on July 12 at 8,000, was boosted to 13,000.

Announcement of the September quota is expected within a few days, Secretary of Defense

Robert S. McNamara has said it will be at least 20,000.

Latest volunteer, first-enlistment recruiting figures are for June and those are still an estimate.

The Army estimate is about 12,000, compared with 6,400 for May. However, there is a normal sharp increase annually between May and June which results from the end of school years, when youngsters decide to enlist and get their military obligations behind them.

The estimated volunteers for the draft, President Kennedy, in his July 25 nationwide address, said that draft calls might be doubled or tripled. Subsequently, the quota for August, which had been set on July 12 at 8,000, was boosted to 13,000.

A Child's Eye View Of Moscow; Grim, Friendly

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A child's eye view of Moscow: grim, but not unfriendly.

That's the report of skating star Donna Atwood, recently returned from five weeks of performing in the Soviet capital. She was joined for 10 days by her 11-year-old twins, Donald and Dennis, and daughter Cissy, 8.

"It was a fascinating experience for us all," said Donna. "But the children and I were never happier to get home."

What impressed them most? "The grimness of the people," she said. "When you see them on the street, no one laughs. You see nothing but long, sour faces. It was difficult to communicate with the Soviet people yet her children managed to do it."

"One day the children went over to a playground where a lot of Russian boys and girls were playing," she said. "My kids didn't understand Russian, and the others didn't know English. But soon they were playing together like children anywhere. There seems to be an international language among young people."

Donna's tots got no message from the Russian food, however. "We managed to get by with beef stroganoff once a day," she said. "We had carrots a couple of times a week; otherwise the only vegetable was boiled potatoes. We never saw any lettuce. Oranges were 60 cents apiece."

Donna, the skating star from Newton, Kan., went to Moscow for her return to Icecapades after a four-year absence. She starred in the show for 16 seasons and was married to the producer, John H. Harris. They are now divorced.

The Soviet audiences? "They were wonderful," she said. "We played to 7,000 a night, two shows on Saturday and three on Sunday. They laughed in the same places American audiences would and applauded in the same places."

Does the Soviet engagement herald a return to the ice for her? "No, I wouldn't go back to touring. I was on the road for 48 out of 52 weeks for 16 years. The children always went with me, but when they started in school, it was time for me to settle down in one place."

The Answer

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — While a group of high ranking military officers and civilian dignitaries were watching air drops yesterday, a female reporter approached an imposing four-star general, his chest covered with ribbons.

"What do you do?" she sweetly asked.

There was a diplomatic pause, then Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the U.S. Continental Army Command, Ft. Monroe, Va., replied modestly:

"I command all the Army troops in the United States."

Teamsters Plan Political Power In N. Carolina

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Teamsters Union plans what an official calls "the most powerful political organization in the Carolinas."

Wayne J. Smith, a Teamsters field representative from Washington, made the statement in a stop-over here to begin an organizing drive in the two state area. He was in Greenville, S.C., Tuesday and plans visits later this week at Winston-Salem, N.C., and Columbia, S.C.

The union, which has an estimated 10,000 members in the two states, is setting up chapters of its political arm, Drive—"Democratic, Republican, Independent Voter Education."

At a meeting here Monday night, it also was announced that Teamsters President James R. Hoffa may visit Charlotte next week. Officials of Teamsters Local 71 said Hoffa is scheduled to help in the local's contract negotiations with trucking concerns in the Charlotte area.

Says Youth Want Real Discipline

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — Elizabeth McCain, Memphis Juvenile Court judge, says most young people today are pleading, "Give us discipline." In this, she says, they are little different from preceding generations.

Judge McCain was final speaker in a two-day police institute here, and said she heard juvenile offenders say time after time, "Why didn't my parents control me?"

"They are saying to you as police officers and juvenile courts," she told officials, "care enough about us to stop us when we're doing wrong."

Mobutu Pledges Army's Support

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Gen. Joseph Mobutu Tuesday pledged the full support of the Congo's national army to the new central government of Prime Minister Cyrille Adoula.

Formally presenting Adoula to his troops massed on parade, Mobutu promised his continuing loyalty to the Congolese chief of state, President Joseph Kasavubu, and his designated premier.

BY JOHN CREASEY A MATTER OF LIFE AND DEATH

CHAPTER 34

The front door of Griselda Vance's house opened a fraction of an inch.

"Don't come out," Rollison breathed from a corner of the porch.

He didn't glance at the door, did not know for certain that Griselda Vance was there. His ears were strained for more sounds of movement; and he caught one, as of a man stepping on to the gravel of the drive. There was another, similar sound; and then the snoring roar of an engine. Someone on a motorcycle was starting the engine, without putting lights on.

The door opened wide.

"Close it," Rollison ordered, and moved forward swiftly. He could see the drive gates standing open. He heard the grating of tires on the gravel as the motorcycle started off. He heard a different sound, further off; a police whistle, which didn't surprise him.

He saw the dark shape of the motorcycle and the man on it, and he fired four times in quick succession. He couldn't be sure that he scored a hit. The dark shape went through the greyness and then vanished; and the engine continued to roar heading for the two policemen who must have heard the shooting.

A man appeared from a nearby garden and came hurrying. "Anyone hurt?" he called. "I'm from Scotland Yard."

"No, no damage," Rollison said. "Didn't you see him earlier?"

"Only just back on duty," the man said.

Griselda Vance opened the door wide and stared onto the porch as Rollison turned to look at her. The Yard man left and Griselda watched Rollison without speaking. Then: "Are you hurt?"

"Not yet," Rollison said. "You'd better come in."

"Thank you," he said, and moved forward slowly.

He entered the hall, and Griselda closed the door. She led the way into a small room on the right, one which he had seen before—her morning room. She went straight to a small cocktail cabinet and, without asking him what he wanted, poured brandy. She handed it to him in a small glass.

His lips began to twist in a smile.

"Thanks," he said. "Health."

He slipped, and let the brandy trickle down.

Then Rollison asked abruptly: "Did you know Jameson's sister?"

Griselda said sharply: "Yes, I know."

"She killed herself. Did you know?"

"Yes."

"Do you know why?"

"Yes," said Griselda, almost wearily. "Yes, I know."

"Was she one of Jimmy's victims?"

"Yes," Griselda spoke as if all the spirit had been drawn out of her.

"So Jameson had cause to hate Jimmy, Silver Queen, and everything to do with the Vance family."

Griselda nodded.

"Did Paul know this?"

"I don't know," Griselda said. "I've never told him."

"Do you think Jameson killed Jimmy?"

She didn't answer.

"Do you think Jameson's behind the sabotage?"

Griselda said: "I just don't know."

"You mean you know but won't talk," Rollison said savagely. "You'll condemn Agatha Bell—"

She flung her right hand up. Passion stormed in her eyes.

"Don't stand there and talk like that," she cried. "I'd give my life to see it over, to bring him peace, to—"

"Paul Vance?" flashed Rollison.

"Yes," she cried. "I didn't dream how I'd make him suffer. Go and help him. Go and help him. He won't let me. He feels cheated and betrayed, he—"

She broke off, crying.

Rollison drove back to Gresham Terrace not long afterwards, avoiding a street where police were gathered, obviously trying to trace the scene of the shooting. As he pulled up outside 22G, a shadowy figure appeared. His hand flashed to his gun.

"Mr. Ar," breathed Ebbutt, "I bin waitin'. Let yer damn once today, and I didn't want to again. I've 'ad a report from Slippy, the boy I put on to the job of looking rahnd the 'ouses. Found that bawby photo at Jameson's and the red on Jameson's shoes. First place 'e went to, like you told 'em. Fahnd something else, too—Jameson's aht ternight. Runs an old sports car and a motorbike."

"A motorbike," echoed Rollison.

His mind was crammed with urgent thoughts. Then: "Busby, Bill?"

"Just tell me wot you want me to do."

An elderly man was in the hall of Paul Vance's London flat; tired-looking, with a frayed dressing-gown tied loosely round his waist, his feet in carpet slippers.

"All I know, sir, is that Mr. Vance had a telephone call, about half-past two and went off in his car soon afterwards, I was awake, sir. I don't sleep well these nights, and since Master Jimmy's death I've been so worried about Mr. Vance."

"Have you any idea where he went?" Rollison asked. "Did he mention the factory?"

"He didn't sir, no—but he did, sir! He said something about the office."

It was nearly four o'clock. Rollison drove with his parking lights on along the silvered factory sheds of the Silver Queen plant. A light shone at the porter's booth near the front gates, which were closed and locked.

Rollison slid his car to a standstill.

Griselda Vance, who had come at a telephone call, spoke quietly.

"You'll be careful, won't you? He's hardly responsible for his actions these days."

"I'll watch him," promised Rollison. Rollison felt her close by his side, and gripped her hands lightly. He got out and closed the door quietly, and Bill Ebbutt climbed down from the back of the car, massive but light on his feet.

They approached the gates.

There was a small postern gate set within the two of thick wire mesh. Rollison tried the handle, cautiously, but the smaller gate was locked.

He took a skeleton key from his pocket, inserted it, and opened the gate slowly.

"All right, Bill," said Rollison. "You're to cover the night watchman, and stop him from giving any alarm. Whistle if there's trouble."

"I'll fix him," said Ebbutt.

Rollison pushed the door wider, and stepped inside; Ebbutt followed, and closed it.

The light from the porter's lodge spread palely, and shone on something bright which was close to the wall. Rollison approached that carefully, and as he drew nearer, saw a motorcycle. He put a hand towards the cylinder, and felt that it was warm.

That didn't prove a thing about Reginald Jameson; it suggested plenty.

The murder confesses. Read John Creasey's thriller to a climax here tomorrow.

Uncommon Man Needed On Farm

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — It takes an uncommon man to farm these days in the opinion of a midwestern farm editor.

Rod Turnbull, farm editor of the Kansas City Star, spoke here recently listing capital, skill and common sense as needs for the modern-day farmer.

"In fact, it takes the uncommon man—the better man than usual," he said. "Evidence is real that despite what you hear, some farms make money, good money."

Citing records of the 240 farmers in the Northeast Kansas Farm Management Association, Turnbull said the top 60 farmers in that group have been making as much the last few years as in the boom-time war period. But the lower 60, he said, are going in the hole every year.

No Need Yet To Trade In Car

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Alf Landon, the 1936 Republican presidential nominee, has confided why he still drives a 1951 model car.

"I have promised myself if it ever costs $75 in a year to fix it up, I'll trade it in," Landon said. "So far it hasn't."

Found Guilty In Hit-Run Case

Three Ayden teenagers charged with hit and run driving or aiding and abetting hit and run driving, were tried and found guilty of the charges in Greenville's Recorders Court Monday.

The charges stemmed from a July 31 hit-and-run collision on Evans Street.

Found guilty of hit and run driving was James Daniels Wingate, 18, of 310 West Third St., Ayden. Two boys who were passengers in the vehicle operated by Wingate at the time were found guilty of aiding and abetting hit and run driving. They were Jessie Glen McLawhorn, 19, of 204 Blount St., and Bobby Brown Lang, 18, both of Ayden. McLawhorn has been charged with hit and run driving in the case originally after his father reported to Ayden Police that it was his vehicle that had been involved in the crash.

Later Wingate admitted to officers that it was he and not McLawhorn who was the driver of the car at the time.

Police noted that the charges grew out of a hit and run vehicle striking a car owned by Hayward Earl Wichard of Route 3, Greenville which was parked in front of 552 Evans St., and causing an estimated $90 damage to the car.

Officers said an estimated $200 damage was done to the McLawhorn vehicle.

The three youths were each fined $20, costs deducted, required to pay $5 each to the Rescue Squad, and told to surrender their operators license to the Court for a period of 30 days.

Comedy Opens 2-Night Stand

The romantic comedy, "The Rainmaker," written by Richard Nash, opens a two-night production in McPhis Auditorium on the East Carolina College campus this evening. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

The play, set in the 20's amidst a drought-beset region of the West involves the Curry family, an uneducated loving family, faithfully and hopefully awaiting an important rain.

Dr. Joseph A. Withey, director of the East Carolina Playhouse, is directing the cast of Summer Players in the dramatic offering for Wednesday and Thursday evenings in Greenville.

In the only female role in the play is Julia Everette of Greenville and Delco, plays the part of Lizzie Curry, approaching spinsterhood.

The male lead role is carried by Jimmy Roberts of Fayetteville. Others in the cast are Ray Shaw of Elizabethtown; Page Tolley of Edenton; Gene Justice of Clayton; Gerald Harrell of Edenton.

David R. Thomas of Asheville, Ed Smith of Vanceboro, and David Thrift of Pittsboro, carry the responsibilities of the stage crew.

Next week, beginning August 18 and 19, and resuming on August 22 for five consecutive nights, the Summer Players will present "The Rainmaker" at Carolina Beach, under sponsorship of the Carolina Beach Players, Inc.

The play is open to the college community, and the public. Box office opens at 7:45 p.m.

Dismal Outlook For The Future

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Andrew A. Romano, who has been a druggist for 50 years, told members of the Pharmacy Society of Rochester at a dinner in his honor that he believes the corner drug store will soon be a thing of the past.

"I wonder what the next 50 years will bring," he said. "I believe we will be so far advanced that there will be drugs to conquer all the major diseases of today and there won't be any reason for the neighborhood pharmacy." He said he believes the pharmacies of huge chain stores will replace the small, independent druggist.

Sixty percent of today's brides own their own dinner flatware before they say "I do." Half of this flatware is stainless steel, says a steel research expert.

boro — are also scheduled for brief addresses on the program. Tomorrow's zone meeting here marks the first such meeting in Greenville since the local Optimist club was formed here in 1959. Lt. Gov. Eagles has estimated at least 60 Optimists will attend the session.

The meeting here also marks the first appearance of Gov. Yarborough at a zone session since he assumed the top Optimist office in the state July 1. Yarborough, credited with instigation of Optimist International's annual observance of Youth Appreciation Week, is scheduled to be honored this year by a visit from Dr. Ray Rembold, president of Optimist International.

Tabbed by Eagles for special discussion are reports on the Youth Appreciation Week and Stay-In-School programs promoted by Optimist International for participation by local Optimist clubs across the nation. Optimists attending the session will hear outlines of plans for those two and other annual events.

Tobacco Prices Continue Strong

ALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—Tobacco prices by grades continued about the same on Georgia-Florida flue-cured markets with stronger low and fair quality leaf grades offset by losses for other offerings.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture said low to better qualities of the straight lemon and orange colors averaged in a narrow range of $62 to $66 a hundred pounds for the most part Tuesday.

A heavy volume of tobacco continued to move to market with indications that poundage sold at most points would differ little from the season record turnover on Monday.

Dow Jones' average of 30 industrial stocks at noon was off 1.43 at 718 1/2. Du Pont was off more than 2 among chemicals widening its early decline, while Eastman Kodak and Union Carbide were down fractionally.

International Business Machines rose around 4 on news of an ultra-high speed communications system. Steels generally were lower, although Bethlehem held steady. Motors were quiet with the industry leader, GM, slightly higher and Chrysler, active recently, slipped a bit.

Electronic were mostly narrowly mixed. Nonferrous metals leaned to the downside and oils, too, were weak performers. Prices on the American Stock Exchange were higher in quiet trading.

WGTC Asks For Higher Tower And To Operate FM Station

Radio station WGTC has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for permission to construct and operate an FM (Frequency Modulation) station in connection with their present AM station. It was announced today by J. T. Snowden Jr., vice president and general manager of the station.

WGTC is asking the FCC for 35,000 watts of power for the FM operation on a frequency of 107.5 megacycles. The station has also asked the FCC for permission to increase the height of its present antenna system from 156 feet to 394 feet. This increase in tower height will give WGTC a 44 percent increase in physical coverage on the AM band, it was pointed out by Snowden.

The FM affiliated station will be known as WGTC-FM, if approved by the FCC, and will give coverage to the entire eastern half of the state. The FM station will duplicate the programming of WGTC-AM except for a period of four hours each night, when separate programming will be provided on both AM and FM channels.

"It is our feeling that the growing area of eastern Carolina needs a complete range radio broadcast service; therefore, we are asking the FCC for permission to construct an FM affiliate for the present WGTC operation," Snowden stated.

"This additional service to our listeners will complement our affiliation with the CBS Radio Network, which becomes effective on August 14th.

"Our consulting engineers tell us that the FM permit, barring any unforeseen events, should be granted in seven or eight weeks. However, the tower height increase may be delayed since this phase of the application must be reviewed by the Federal Aviation Authority. I am hopeful of having the construction completed and the FM station on the air in early 1962," Snowden said.

These poles carry high voltage lines, Paylor pointed out.

Chief Langston emphasized that the promotions and changes made were done with the full agreement of the recently inaugurated promotions board, of which he is chairman. The board is composed of six officers.

He explained that the changes were necessary to permit future expansion of the department.

In congratulating the men on their promotions, Langston emphasized that all points, including performance of duty, personal appearance and other factors were considered in their advances.

Seniority, he noted, was taken into consideration, but only as far as it was compatible with the other qualifications of the men.

As assistant chief, Rogerson will maintain an office on the second floor at Police Headquarters, and will assist Chief Langston in the administration of the department.

Rogerson, a native of Pitt County, married the former Margaret Naomi Roebuck, also of Pitt County. The Rogersons live at 1805 East Fourth St.

Finish Installing New Storm Sewer

GRIFTON—Installation of a 24-inch storm sewer pipe on DuPont Street was completed here yesterday. Luther Lewis, police chief and utilities superintendent, said.

Lewis said it should eliminate all flooding.
