

$200,000 Expansion Program For Fieldcrest Mills Plant Unveiled

A $200,000 expansion program is planned this year for the local Fieldcrest Mills plant, Harold W. Whitcomb, president, Fieldcrest made public yesterday.

Whitcomb, visiting the local mill with other top Fieldcrest officials, told of the expansion program at a luncheon given for a number of Greenville businessmen.

Included in the expansion program, he explained, would be the moving of equipment from another Fieldcrest Mill to the mill here, and the purchase of new blending equipment and expansion of facilities.

He noted several changes will be made in the building, including installation of improved lighting, more modern toilets and a modern lunch room. Whitcomb explained that parts of the plant will be rearranged also.

Further expansion of the Greenville plant is planned for 1962, Whitcomb said, and will include carding, spinning, twisting and other machinery which will increase the plant's production about 50 per cent.

He said this expansion is scheduled for completion by mid-1962. Growth in the mill, acquired by Fieldcrest one year ago, was illustrated with employment and payroll figures by Whitcomb.

He reported that when Fieldcrest Mills took over the plant, it employed only about 130 people on one shift and had a payroll of about $5,000 weekly.

Now, he pointed out, 250 persons are employed, the plant is running three shifts per day six days a week, and has a weekly payroll of $17,000.

He explained that when the expansion program is complete, the local mill will employ an additional 75-100 persons, bringing the total number of employees to near 350.

Whitcomb told the group that this expansion at the local mill "shows our confidence in Greenville." He expressed his appreciation for the "excellent cooperation" given by local officials.

Whitcomb said Fieldcrest is "happy with the acquisition here... and happy with its Eastern North Carolina associations." They are "working out very well," he emphasized.

The Fieldcrest president noted that an open house is planned at the local mill when the expansion program is completed, "for anyone who is interested in touring the facility." He said the date would probably be next spring.

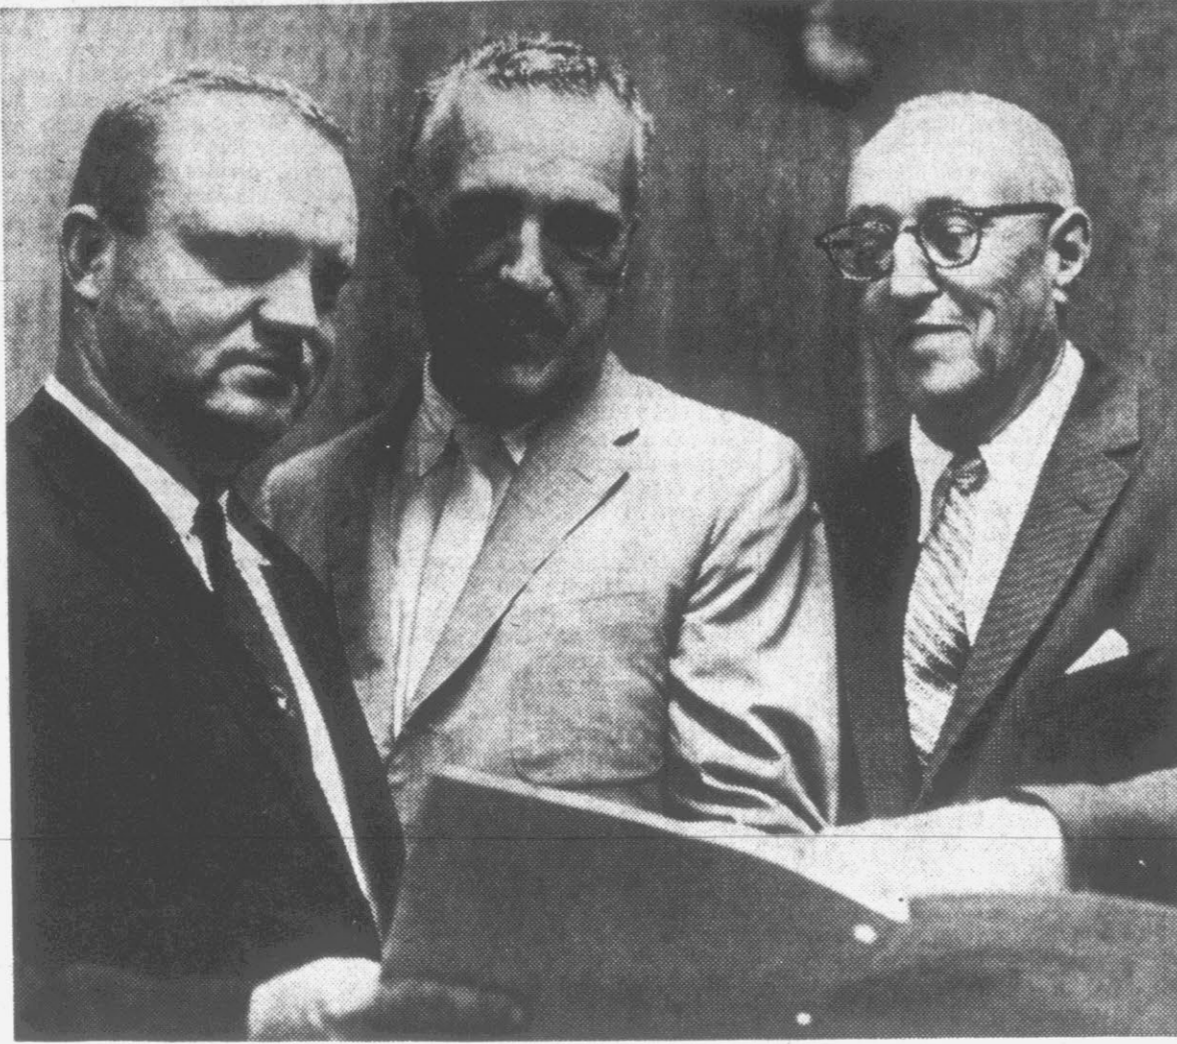

Special Session Of UN Called

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld today called a special session of the U.N. General Assembly to meet Aug. 21 on the French-Tunisian dispute.

Hammarskjöld acted after a majority of the 99 U.N. members had approved an Asian-African request for the extraordinary session.

Uruguay became the 50th member to signify approval of the session.

Hammarskjöld immediately dispatched telegrams to all delegations announcing that the session would convene at 10:30 a.m. Aug. 21.

'Man Of Peace' Threatens Developing Super-Bomb

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev brandished the threat of a super-super-bomb five times more powerful than the average American hydrogen bomb Wednesday night but claimed once more he is a man of peace.

"We do not want war... only lunatics think of a war," the Soviet leader declared.

Khrushchev sounded his bomb warning in an impromptu speech at an otherwise gay reception for the Soviet Union's newest pinup boy—spaceman Gherman Titov.

"Scientists have suggested to the Soviet government that they can create a bomb equal to 100 million tons of TNT—only one bomb," Khrushchev declared.

Unless the prospects for peace improve, the premier continued, he will give the scientists the green light to build the bomb.

He added that the Soviet Union could provide a rocket that would send such a big bomb aloft.

Khrushchev disclosed that he had given this warning to President Kennedy's chief disarmament negotiator, John J. McCloy, and to Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani in recent conferences.

(Western scientists said a bomb the size Khrushchev described would be easy enough to build but the military effect would not be worth the effort since existing hydrogen bombs are powerful enough to wipe out most cities in an hour.)

Khrushchev, who has boasted that his secret weapon is "my tongue," was alternately gay and grim at the gala Kremlin reception for the Soviet cosmonaut who circled the globe 17 times.

Poking fun at American spacemen, he commented, "nobody but the bolsheviks can reach the cosmos." With a wide grin, he added, "the Americans don't launch sputniks. They jump out and fall in the ocean. We are glad the American flag didn't drown."

The Soviet leader once more declared his determination to sign a peace treaty with East Germany that would give that Communist regime control over Western access to Berlin.

"We believe there will be no war after this (treaty)," he said.

He charged the West with making threatening moves against the Soviet Union and said, "Poles, what do you think you are doing?"

The reception for Titov got off to a breezy, informal start when the spaceman bulletted down a line of waiting diplomats, nodding right and left instead of shaking hands.

Khrushchev tried to overtake him but the 67-year-old premier was no match for the airman 41 years his junior.

Khrushchev caught his star guest finally and led him back to the head of the line. Near the head they met Argentine Ambassador Cesar Barros Hurtado, who had been calling on Khrushchev when word came that Titov had landed after his space flight.

Khrushchev grabbed Hurtado and kissed him on each cheek. Titov, evidently thinking this was the custom, grabbed the ambassador and also kissed him.

For a moment it looked as if the whole line of diplomats was in for the cosmonaut's kisses, but Hurtado intervened with congratulations and the rest of the line got handshakes.

MEET TONIGHT

Greenville Redevelopment Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 in City Hall. The meeting will be held in the City Council chambers.

Draft Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — The draft quota for September was set today at 25,000 men, biggest since the end of the Korean War.

The Defense Department announcement for the September call reflected the first full-scale manpower impact of the military buildup, although a smaller increase had been made in the August call through revision of the initially announced quota.

As usual all draftees for September will be for the Army, now getting ready to build up three training divisions into combat units.

The announcement said, "The Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force do not intend to place calls with Selective Service during September."

The September call is the largest since June 1953 when it will bring the total of men who have been drafted since September 1950, immediately after the outbreak of the Korean War to 2,640,950.

The Pentagon said the September quota is calculated against the expected input of manpower from volunteer and re-enlistment sources.

Lighter Leaf Crop For Pitt

Early indications are that Pitt County's 25,000-acre tobacco crop will produce a lighter yield this season than the record-smashing 2,020 pounds per acre during the 1960 season.

Pitt County Tobacco Specialist S. J. Weeks said today, "It is still a little too early to make an accurate and complete comparison." But he indicated that the present status of the county-wide weed picture points to a 1961 yield that will be "considerably below last year."

A prime factor in the anticipated lighter crop, Weeks said, will be the "serious loss from July rains" that was suffered in the southern and southeastern areas of the county.

Weeks singled out Grifton, St. Johns, Hanrahan, Clay Root and Gardnersville as the general areas hardest hit by drowning this season.

The tobacco specialist said there are both extremes in the county. "Some farmers have reported better crops this year. Some have said their yield and quality will be about the same time. And others have been expecting a lighter crop."

Weeks estimated Pitt's tobacco acres are now about 70 to 80 per cent harvested. However, he said, some farmers are already finished with the harvest and curing operation while others "still have a lot of tobacco in the field."

He estimated, "There's right much more tobacco still in the field, taking the county as a whole, than there was at this same time last year."

Weeks said the majority of the county's tobacco growers will still be harvesting their crops next week with the possibility that many will require still another week to finish the harvest season, "depending on the weather."

As for quality, Weeks said there are indications of good quality. "However," he said, "it's still a little early to make a definite determination until all the tobacco is harvested and cured."

He added, "There are a lot of good cures being made throughout the county."

Project Mercury Exhibit At Fair

A Project Mercury exhibit will be on display at the Pitt County Fair Oct. 9-14, it was announced today.

Congressman Herbert C. Bonner said his request to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for their Project Mercury exhibit to be reserved for the Pitt Fair has been granted.

The American Legion Posts of Greenville, Ayden and Farnville are sponsoring the annual fair. Congressman Bonner said the proper fair authorities have been notified concerning the details of the confirmation.

The NASA will ship the exhibit to Greenville at no cost to the exhibitor and will provide a government bill of lading for the exhibitor to make shipment to the next destination. Bonner said a NASA representative will be present to supervise the operation.

Traffic Judges Asked To Help

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Terry Sanford is calling on the state's traffic court judges to aid in a drive for safer highways.

Sanford said invitations are being sent to some 175 municipal and county court judges of the state asking them to attend a traffic safety conference here on Aug. 24.

Kennedy Hopes For Solution For Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy declared today the United States will use "every diplomatic means" to try to find a peaceful solution of the Berlin dispute with the Soviet Union.

And at another point in his news conference he said tersely: "We're hopeful" of a peaceful solution to the problem.

Kennedy said he thought a summit meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev would not be useful unless the groundwork were carefully laid beforehand. But he said a summit session of Western government chiefs should be held if necessary in "coordinating our policy."

Kennedy replied with evidently deliberate restraint to questions about speeches made by Khrushchev this week. The Soviet premier has lashed at the United States and its allies because of their announced determination not to yield their war-won rights to stay in West Berlin.

Khrushchev accused the Allies of aggressive intent toward Russia and in a rocket-rattling Moscow statement Wednesday night he threatened to develop a nuclear super bomb more powerful than anything in existence. Kennedy said there was no new policy position in Khrushchev's latest statement — no new proposals although Khrushchev "did speak of negotiations."

On this point Kennedy said "it is the strong conviction of the United States government that every diplomatic means must be employed" to see "a peaceful solution can be achieved."

The Western powers, the President added, must see whether they can get a "more precise definition" of ideas which Khrushchev has expressed about Berlin.

Kennedy declined to appraise the results of allied harmony talks conducted in Paris during the past week by Secretary of State Dean Rusk. Rusk is scheduled to return home tonight after meeting with British, French, Italian, West German and other Western policymakers. Kennedy said he could answer the question more precisely after talking with Rusk.

Questioned about the flight of East German refugees and whether this presented a problem of an explosion in Germany, Kennedy said the flow of people from East to West is an illuminating example of what people think about living under the Communist system in Eastern Europe.

Kennedy said this country has not attempted either to encourage or to discourage the refugee flow.

The Soviet premier in a major speech on Monday accused the Western powers of threatening the Soviet Union with armed force, reasserted his intention to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany and at the same time called for negotiations to end the crisis peacefully.

In welcoming spaceman Gherman Titov to Moscow Wednesday Khrushchev again declared he would sign the separate peace pact as planned. He coupled this with a warning to the world that the Soviet Union could make a super nuclear bomb and deliver it by rocket on target.

U.S. officials said the Soviet premier seems to be doing his utmost to frighten the West into yielding to his Berlin demands and at the same time to confuse the issue by picturing the United States and its NATO allies as potential aggressors against the Soviet Union.

Multiple Charges Facing Frenchman For Hijacking

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The federal government prepared today to press charges against Albert Charles Cadon, 27, the Frenchman who hijacked a jetliner at gunpoint and forced it to fly to Havana.

Cadon was still in Havana, held by the Cuban authorities who removed him from the Pan American World Airways DC8. Cuba disclaimed any hand in the hijacking and permitted the plane to fly to Miami.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Cadon would be charged here with crime on the high seas, assault with a dangerous weapon, and assault with intent to commit a felony.

The charges would presumably be pressed in the event Cuba permits his return to the United States.

None of the 82 passengers and crew aboard the airliner was harmed, either by Cadon or the Cubans, in the hijacking Wednesday—latest in a series.

Most of the passengers spent the night in Miami and went to continue their interrupted journeys today. Some left Wednesday night.

Cadon was quoted by crew members as saying he was hijacking the plane to protest United States policy in Algeria, and that led to reports that he was a French Algerian.

The FBI said later, however, that Cadon was a French native who came to this country in 1957 and was committed briefly to New York's Bellevue Hospital last fall for mental observation. He was described by the FBI as an unbalanced itinerant artist and restaurant worker.

His wife, Charlotte, told the FBI that Cadon was an admirer of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro. She said he left their New York City home last Friday after a quarrel and told her he was going to take a bus to Mexico.

It was shortly after the airliner had left Mexico City that Cadon hijacked it.

Among the 73 passengers aboard the airliner was Colombian Foreign Minister Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala—an outspoken foe of the Castro regime. Cuban officials said, however, that the quick release of the plane, passengers and crew was in deference to him.

The latest victim of piracy in the skies was Pan American flight 301 between Houston, Tex., and Panama City, Panama, via Mexico City, Guatemala City, San Jose, Costa Rica.

It left Houston at 10 a.m., and flew to Mexico City, taking off from there at 1 p.m.

No sooner did the plane get aloft, however, than Cadon—his pistol cocked and ready—rushed down the aisle from the back of the cabin, kicked open the door to the pilot's compartment and hid inside, closing the door behind him.

The crew managed to get off a terse radio message telling of the hijacking. It was picked up in Brownsville, Tex., and American fighter planes made a vain attempt to intercept the airliner before it reached Havana.

Inside the pilot's compartment Cadon announced, "I am an extremist and a revolutionist. There are many of us."

Copilot Sam Enfield said Cadon took two young children in Paris and his wife in New York. He said he'd arrived in Mexico City earlier in the day by bus.

Enfield said the hijacker demanded by radio that Havana send out an air escort, but the control tower turned him down. The copilot pointed Havana out to Cadon, whereupon the hijacker said: "I have never been there before. I don't know."

Convinced finally that the plane was in Havana, Cadon emptied his gun and passed out the bullets as souvenirs to the crew.

Turbay said, "The Cuban militia then boarded the plane and disarmed the hijacker. I saw him clearly then. He was a young man, about 24, very nervous, and carried a Spanish pistol."

Cadon was held in Havana. The aircraft and the other passengers were cleared for air return to Miami about three hours later but were delayed for several additional hours. Ballar attributed this to Castro's entertaining the Colombian foreign minister.

Death Penalty Put Into Airplane Hijacking Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate today wrote a provision for the death penalty into a bill making airplane hijacking a federal crime.

An amendment adopted by voice vote would fix a minimum penalty of 20 years in prison and authorize life imprisonment or death.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., author of the amendment, said he felt a mandatory death penalty as some senators had proposed, would be too drastic.

The bill, which also would provide heavy penalties for other crimes in the skies, was brought up after the hijacking of a Pan American World Airways jetliner over Mexico Wednesday.

The plane was forced to travel to Cuba, but Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government promptly ordered release of the plane, its passengers and crew.

President Kennedy announced at his news conference today that border patrolmen will be assigned to a number of planes to guard against new hijacking incidents. Despite return of the plane, senators demanded stern action against the Castro regime following a series of incidents.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., the assistant minority leader, said the time has come for an economic blockade of Cuba.

Sen. Frank Carlson, R-Kan., said that "certainly as a great, powerful nation, we do not need to tolerate the insults and provocations that are presented to us by Fidel Castro."

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Senate majority leader, appealed to his colleagues to pass the hijacking bill and leave the question of the general state of relations with Cuba in the hands of the President "where it belongs at this time."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said that although the plane was returned, there still remains the question of whether Cuba will turn over the hijacker to the United States for prosecution.

Holiday Airliner Crash Killed Thirty-Four British Schoolboys

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Thirty-four British schoolboys en route to a holiday in Norway died Wednesday night in a chartered British airliner that crashed and burned on a Norwegian mountainside during a fierce coastal storm.

The other Britons aboard the twin-engine Vickers Viking—two schoolmasters, two pilots and a stewardess—died with them.

A helicopter pilot sighted the wreckage of the plane at dawn 15 miles from Stavanger, on a mountain in the rugged Ryfylke fjord area of Norway's southwest coast.

The plane hit about 30 feet below the top of the 1,870-foot mountain and apparently exploded on impact. One wing, virtually intact, was hurled 300 yards. The broken fuselage hung from the peak. Most of the bodies were scattered nearby, many of them badly mutilated.

The schoolboys, 13 to 16 years old, were all pupils at Lanfranc School in Croydon, a commuter town 12 miles south of London. Their frantic parents besieged London Airport Wednesday night, desperate for word of their children's fate. Their telephone numbers were taken and they were sent home.

Just after dawn a team of telephone operators began the calls that ended their vigil. Policemen also knocked at the doors of the homes, mostly of middle-class families, to tell what had happened.

The excited boys had crowded chaleting aboard the Viking, owned by Cunard Eagle Airlines, Wednesday afternoon. Most had saved their pocket money for the week's holiday.

They were to stay in a youth hostel in Stavanger and then in a mountain chalet, hiking in the mountains, fishing for trout, playing badminton and swimming.

It was only a 2½-hour flight to Sola Airport, outside Stavanger, but from off the Norwegian coast the pilot, Capt. Philip Watts, 40, radioed he was fighting gale force winds and slashing rain. It was the last message the Viking sent.

SHOPPERS, SHOPPERS, SHOPPERS! . . . flocked to Greenville today to take advantage of the many Dollar-Day values offered by Greenville Merchants for this semi-annual event. Parking was free for the many visitors who drove and parked on the streets and city parking lots during the day.

Taylor-Vanderford Vows Exchanged On Saturday

ROBERSONVILLE—Miss Nan Taylor Vanderford and Jimmy Lee Taylor were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Gold Point Christian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Howard Vanderford of Gold Point and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray Taylor of Robersonville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Eleanor Smith, organist, and Miss Peggy Ward, soloist.

Dr. William Tucker officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of bluish pink taffeta fashioned with a bodice of re-embroidered alencon lace which featured long taffeta sleeves ending in points over the hands and a Sabrina neckline outlined in seed pearls. The bouffant skirt was designed with panier sides which extended into a chapel train.

The bridal veil of silk illusion was attached to a medallion of alencon lace over pink topped with a bow of bluish pink taffeta. She carried a bouquet of rosebuds.

Miss Cherry Arbor Garris of Williamston was the maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Miss Anna Peile of Everetts, Miss Sharon Keel, Miss Betty Ann Rogerson and Miss Betty Lou Everett. The attendants wore street length dresses of pink silk organza over taffeta and their bouquets were of gladioli and carnations.

Miss Emma Jean Vanderford was flower girl and Jay Taylor of Farmville was ringbearer.

The bridegroom's father was the best man. Marvin M. Everett, Jr. of Raleigh, William Howard Vanderford Jr., Steve Taylor and Ed Grimes served as ushers.

The bride attended Atlantic Christian College, and the bridegroom is a 1961 graduate of the same school. He is currently associated with the Better Chevrolet Company.

For a trip to Sea Island, Ga., the bride changed to a black sheath dress with a flared topper duster of beige faille and black accessories.

The couple will reside in Robersonville.

Cake Cutting
Mr. and Mrs. Ferd Taylor, uncle and aunt of the bride, honored the bridal couple at a cake-cutting Friday night in the Fellowship Hall of the First Christian Church, Robersonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pope greeted the guests. Mr. and Mrs.

Mrs. Jimmy Lee Taylor

Grant Vanderford presided at the register.

The table was covered with a cloth of white organza over Nile green and centered with a three-tiered candelabra holding burning yellow tapers. Yellow chrysanthemums and pom poms were used in flower arrangements.

Mrs. William Howard Vanderford, mother of the bride, poured the punch from a silver bowl while Mrs. John Gray Taylor, the bridegroom's mother, served the cake after the bridal couple cut the first slice.

Assisting in serving were Miss Becky Stanley of Elizabeth City, Miss Emily Roberson, Miss Martha Pope, Miss Gladys Bailey, Miss Madge Rogerson, Mesdames Clarence Taylor and Jab Roberson. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lee Vanderford said the goodbyes to over 100 guests.

Candy Sale Set For Oct.

The Greenville Jay-Cettes held their monthly dinner meeting at the Woman's Club Wednesday at 7 p.m.

They welcomed Mrs. Dot Byrum, Mrs. Connie Lynn, and Mrs. Maurleen Schachner as visitors; and Mrs. Gretchen Cochran as a new member.

After dinner, Mary Windle, president, announced that the club will sell Kraft's candy during October. Since the proceeds from this sale supply the crippled children's fund, she encouraged full support from all members.

Mrs. Mary Ann Howard and Mrs. Sharlene Vainright volunteered to serve as co-chairmen for the sale.

The group voted Mrs. Janice Hasty, program chairman, to be responsible for securing gifts for program speakers. They also voted to extend the membership drive through November.

Mrs. Mary Ann Howard will serve cookies and milk at the crippled children's clinic the last of August.

Mrs. Sue Bailey won the attendance prize.

Heavy Spending At Paris Showings

By IRENE FERRIS
Women's News Service

PARIS (WNS)—While the world's women must wait until September to see the new French fall fashions already previewed by buyers and the press, Paris couturiers are busy counting their receipts from the openings.

The first week of showings resulted in orders totaling more than $8 million.

As usual, America was the biggest buyer with expenditures approximating $4 million.

France's own shopkeepers accounted for another $2 million in sales.

"My petits clients of France cannot compare with the big American buyers," admitted Ginette Spanier, directrice at Balmain. "The French can afford to order only two or three models, but there are so many shops all over France that the orders add up."

Despite the armed troubles in Algeria, buyers from Algiers and Oran turned up for the Paris openings. They reported that women in Algeria are paying more attention to fashion again, "which is surely a good sign for peace."

The two surprises of the collections have been the Scandinavians and the Italians.

Buyers from Norway, Sweden and Denmark quietly increased their orders by 30 per cent this year, bigger gains than any other nations in the couture sweepstakes.

The Italians, who profess to be faithful to their own haute-couture, not only sent buyers, but also bought enough gowns to establish the French creations as a minor boom in Italy.

"I am buying many things," admitted Biki, who dresses Italian society and such stars as Maria Callas. "I must make my customers look slim and not confuse them with eccentric lines. This season there is no fashion revolution in France, but only charm and loveliness, so I am spending lavishly."

Buyers came to Paris from as far away as Japan. Cardin reports orders of $100,000 from two Japanese department stores, Isatan and Takachimaja. Observers believe these stores spent similar amounts with other couturiers.

But the important buyers who receive most of the attention are still the Americans.

Ethel Frankau of Bergdorf Goodman in New York is called "la reine des acheteurs (queen of the buyers)" and was paraded by couturiers at famed Maxim's as soon as the week's openings had ended. Working alone, she is estimated to have spent $100,000 on gowns in six days, a healthy addition to the millions she has left in Paris during the past 40 years.

To Paris couturiers the dean of American buyers is Charles W. Rendigs, 82, who always manages to celebrate his birthday in "Gay Paree." The octogenarian prefers evening gowns that are "very decoleete," and sees a fashion captain and Mrs. Warren Peelle and family of Loring Air Force Base, Maine, and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Peelle were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Dozier on Monday. The Peelles are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Peelle, for a week.

Mrs. Gordon Brown visited Mr. Willie Owens in Pitt Memorial Hospital Sunday morning.

Supper and Bridge
Mrs. H. C. Oglesby entertained at supper and bridge on Thursday night at her home on McRae Street for her club members and invited players. In the living room pink roses and snapdragon were used in decorating. Zinnias, glads and other garden flowers decorated the den where four tables were placed. On arrival a barbecued chicken supper was served buffet style with lemon chiffon pie as dessert.

High scores were compiled by Mrs. T. J. Williams, Mrs. Tom Owens and Cecil Cobb. Making up the tables were Mrs. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Owens, Mr. and Mrs. Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Bissette, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Richard Johnson.

Dessert Bridge
On Tuesday night, Mrs. Mark Phillips, Mrs. John Glenn, Mrs. Odell Bowen, Mrs. Conrad Hart entertained at the home of Mrs. Phillips in Forest Acres at a dessert bridge with players for seven tables. In the living room pink and lavender asters formed decorations. In the den, golden glow and yellow zinnias were used as decorations. Mrs. John Chapman, guest of honor for the evening, was presented with a shower of gifts which were arranged on a table in the den. At the refreshment hour yellow and green cloths were placed on the tables and home made ice cream and cake was served with iced tea. High score prizes went to Mrs. LeRoy Cherry and Mrs. Elsie Taylor and the consolation to Mrs. Archie Rogers.

Making up the tables were Mesdames Chapman, Cherry, Taylor, Rogers, Roger Johnson, Jack Sumrell, W. E. Rasberry, Richard Nelson, J. S. Chapman, H. P. Quinerly, R. D. Wheeler, L. L. Mewborn, Louise J. ## Summer Playhouse Delights Audience

An appreciative audience in McGinnis Auditorium on Wednesday evening heartily applauded the excellent production of Richard Nash's romantic comedy, "The Rainmaker," by a cast from the East Carolina Summer Playhouse.

The second performance of this play is scheduled for Thursday evening at 8:15.

Six men and a lone girl in the cast kept the audience rollicking with laughter as they kept the action lively, the lines cleverly done, and the characterizations performed in the fine tradition of all East Carolina Playhouse productions.

The play is set in the 20's in the drought-beset regions of the Southwest, involving the Curry family, an uneducated family which 'sticks together,' and hopefully waits for much-needed rain.

Julia Everette, the plain daughter of the Curry family, uncoy, intelligent and blunt-spoken, went through her performance in a manner which early captivated the audience with her cleverly done role.

Jimmy Roberts, as the flamboyant Bill Starbuck, a conman, breezed his way into the Curry family with his promise to produce rain for $100. His poetry, philosophy, and persuasiveness in his wooing of Lizzie and restoring a self-confidence in herself left Lizzie approaching the altar with another of the community's eligible young men at the end of the play—along with the sound of abundance of rain!

Page Shaw, the doting, loving father (H. C. Curry), and Flay Justice as Jim Curry and Gene with conflicting ideas about life and love, all turned in excellent performances of difficult roles.

Gerald Harrell as Sheriff Thomas and LeRoy Collins as Flay were colorful in helping to preserve law and order and expose Starbuck's conniving devices.

Dr. Joseph A. Withey, Playhouse director, directed the cast, with the assistance of Ross Thomas as technical director, David Thrift as stage manager, Ed Smith as technical assistant, and Dave Nanney as publicity director.

Sanford Urges New Willingness

MARS HILL, N.C. (AP)—School leaders must show a willingness to try new methods to keep education up to date with changing times, Gov. Sanford declared Wednesday night.

He told school superintendents of the state that the "new day" in education he has advocated demands "executive leadership of a high order . . ."

One danger school administrators must avoid, the governor declared, "is the danger of lowering standards in order to fill the extra jobs that have been made available. This is especially true of the new assistant superintendent positions and the extra teacher positions."

people," the governor added.

Sanford spoke before some 450 school officials and others attending the annual superintendents' conference at Mars Hill College. It continues through Friday.

Sanford won the approval of the 1961 General Assembly for a program of improvements for public education, including funds for an additional 1,400 teachers and 44 assistant school superintendents this year.

'Soapy' Quietly Arrives in Angola

LUANDA, Angola (AP)—G. Mennen Williams, U.S. assistant Secretary of state for foreign affairs, arrived in this rebellious Portuguese colony Wednesday night without fanfare.

Williams' visit had not been publicized in advance and only 20 persons, led by U.S. Consul William Gibson, were at the airport to greet him.

Fire Destroyed Barn And 750 Sticks Of Leaf

WINTERVILLE—A fire yesterday destroyed a tobacco barn and 750 sticks of curing tobacco on the Fred Haddock farm at Haddock's Crossroads five miles southeast of here.

Lloyd Worthington, chief of the Winterville Rural Fire Department, estimated what he called a "total loss" at approximately $1,500.

Worthington said 12 Winterville volunteer firemen answered the call to the Haddock farm at 12:40 p.m. yesterday but the barn was "too far gone when we arrived."

Yesterday's fire, Worthington reported, marked the ninth tobacco barn fire this season for the Winterville rural fire company. Three of the nine barns, he said, have been listed as total losses.

Haddock's barn was equipped with a gas curing system.

Can Still Obtain Privilege License

GRIFTON—Residents who need privilege licenses have until Aug. 15 to purchase them, Police Chief Luther Lewis said yesterday.

The original deadline for purchasing the licenses was July, but citizens may still purchase them at the town office during hours.

Lewis said those who do not obtain the licenses by the Aug. 15 deadline may have to pay court costs.

Six Try Escape, Two Made It

DETROIT (AP)—Six boys, aged 15 and 16, overpowered a guard at the Wayne County Juvenile Home Wednesday and tried to escape.

Two made it. Three got trapped in a revolving door and were captured.

The sixth, Thomas Grier, 16, bolted through the door into the street and was killed by a truck.

Police said Grier had been held since July 1 for robbing a newborn of $2.

Grier had been in the juvenile home eight previous times since March, 1958. He and the other five were being held in a sixth floor "trouble ward."

Small Amount Goes To 'Insurance'

The program of Civil Defense preparedness which is being undertaken by CD officials in cooperation with communities and county and municipal governments is one which deserves the support of the people of Pitt.

There are some, to be sure, who may say that it is a waste of taxpayers' money for the county to appropriate $2,500 to aid in the establishment of a Civil Defense "nerve center" and a county-wide emergency communications system. If the day should ever come when such facilities are needed, however, they will be worth many times more to the people of this county than the number of dollars involved.

The program in Pitt County is being undertaken in cooperation with a nation-wide effort to bolster the Civil Defense organization in view of the international situation. Certainly it is to be hoped that the ultimate reason for improving the CD program—that of attack on this country by some other nation—will never become a reality. In spite of this, however, Pitt County is, in our opinion, exercising wisdom in improving its emergency communications and its overall Civil Defense program.

In recent years there have been a number of occasions in which the Civil Defense organization of the county proved a great help to local people in emergency situations. Primarily these occasions have been when hurricanes hit in or near this immediate area. The need for more adequate emergency communications in many parts of the county were obvious on these occasions. The need clearly would be much more acute if this nation ever came under attack from some foreign power.

It is difficult in many instances to spend money for something we hope we never need. And yet wisdom demands that we do so. Most people purchase insurance on their houses, but they hope they never burn down.

In the case of the county's bolstering its Civil Defense program, we are providing ourselves with something we hope we will never need; but if the day should come when we do need it, it may mean the difference between life and death for many citizens of this county.

By its action in supporting a better Civil Defense program for Pitt with its $2,500 appropriation, the county commissioners have set a good example for other local governing boards in Pitt. A relatively small amount of money spent now throughout the county for improving our Civil Defense organization and facilities will stand the people in good stead if an emergency comes.

Special Session Chances Lessen

By LYNN NISBET
EXTRA SESSION — Chances lessen every day that an extra special session of the General Assembly will be called this year.

Gov. Sanford has said that he would consider calling a special session to submit school building bonds to vote of the people, in event the Congress failed to pass a Federal aid to education bill.

The Legislature had ordered an election to be held on some date in 1961 to be fixed by the Governor on $47.5 million capital improvement bonds for State institutions. It was assumed that if a special session authorized a vote on school building bonds it would be on the same date.

The General Assembly also submitted to popular vote several amendments to the constitution, the vote to be at "the next general election."

When the members of the Supreme Court gave their opinion in an advisory message to the Governor last week that the amendments could not be voted upon in this year's bond election there was a flurry of request that a special session be called to designate that occasion a "general election" and fix the date by legislative act, so that the amendments could be voted.

While efforts continue in the Congress to get an education bill enacted, and while State officials ponder the advisability of a special session, the clock ticks on—and time is running out. It is conceded on all sides that considerable time will be needed to organize and promote the campaigns for support of the bonds and the amendments.

Neither the constitution nor the statutes require any period of advance notice for a special session. Technically, it could be called on Monday for convening on Tuesday. If the only business transacted was designation of a general election date, the special session could adjourn within 30 minutes after it convened. If it submitted bonds, the constitution requires separate readings on separate days in both branches, so that the special session could not adjourn before Saturday. (The question has never been tested in the courts, but there are good lawyers who insist that the separate readings required might take six days instead of five.)

SELLING JOB — The need for time for the session of the General Assembly, by election on separate days in both branches, so that the special session could not adjourn before Saturday. (The question has never been tested in the courts, but there are good lawyers who insist that the separate readings required might take six days instead of five.)

tions of both Federal and State governments have changed since the bond bills were introduced.

There is considerable sentiment for retrenchment in every field other than essential national security. That carries over into fear that proposal for $75-$100 million school building bonds, imposed on the mandatory capital improvements bond issues might well result in defeat of the whole business.

Common knowledge, derived from experience through the years, is that a real educational campaign will have to be waged in behalf of the constitutional amendments, whether they are submitted to vote this year or next.

ELECTIONS — The election laws of North Carolina set out certain procedures for registration and voting that requires at least a month between the call for the election and the actual voting—and another week or so for canvassing the returns and announcing results. These election laws are not concerned with propagandizing, only with the right of every citizen to cast his ballot. Whether he votes intelligently is no concern of the law.

Bond attorneys are "funny" about insistence upon meticulous observance of the status in bond elections. Unless the bonds submitted to vote by the regular legislative session are voted upon in 1961, no bond attorney will approve their sale.

There remain about four months in 1961 during which an election can be held. (The last half of December is ruled out, account of Christmas.) At least one month of that will be needed to carry out the election process.

It appears now like another month will pass before the Congress takes final action—or adjourns without action—on the education aid bill. Can Governor Sanford afford to wait that long before deciding whether to call a special session to submit school building bonds, or set up a general election vote on the constitution? And, would there be enough time for a decent educational campaign on the issues?

Majority of those with whom your reporter has talked, including a number of legislators, answer these questions in the negative. Opinion is that there will be no special session, no school building bonds submitted, and that the mandatory election on the capital improvement bonds will be called for sometime in late October or early November. The only man who can give a definite answer is Governor Terry Sanford—and up to now he has talked on that point.

On Paper, Incentive Program Looks Good

On paper at least, the changes authorized in ratings for automobile insurance in North Carolina appear to offer special incentives for safer driving and at the same time place a greater portion of the burden for increased auto insurance rates on those whose accident record is not good.

Under the new plan auto liability insurance rates will be reduced 10 per cent below the basic level for drivers with a three-year record of no chargeable accident involving property damage of $100 or more. Drivers whose record included accidents in the base period will face insurance rate increases from five to 150 per cent above the basic level, depending on their records.

If, as an official of the North Carolina Automobile Rate Administrative office said, the 10 per cent reduction in auto insurance premiums will apply to some 76 per cent of the drivers of the state, it is quite probable that the program will be well received. The remaining 24 per cent of the drivers—presumably those who have had chargeable accidents within the past three years—will carry the burden of the increased cost of insurance that has been caused by the increased loss record resulting from automobile accidents in North Carolina.

Whether the program works out to the general satisfaction of the people of the state remains to be seen. At the outset, however, the program offers operators of motor vehicles an extra incentive to exercise greater caution in their driving. If offers reward in terms of lower insurance rates for those with good driving records, while it penalizes those whose driving records reflect one or more chargeable accidents.

It is, we believe a reasonable approach to the problem of the increasing cost of automotive accidents and one which has sufficient merit to warrant a thorough test by the state of North Carolina.

As in other new programs, alterations may be required in the future, but for the moment at least the state is making a start that appears on sound and reasonable grounds.

Repeating The Same Old Thing

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia and the West keep mulling the same old words over and over in their Berlin dispute like two frustrated hypnotists trying to put each other in a trance.

Since neither listens to the other, neither gets sleepy. The West demands what it knows Russia won't yield. Russia promises what it knows the West won't buy and can't trust. This can go on for months, and already has.

Russia wants the West out of West Berlin—which lies 110 miles inside Communist East Germany but is loyal to West Germany—and the West replies by demanding the unification of the two Germanies in free and open elections.

Such free and open elections to choose a single German government, is exactly what Russia doesn't want since the two Germanies would almost certainly vote for a non-Communist government.

Besides losing so much territory inside Communist East Germany on the edge of its satellite world, a single, powerful Germany which, if united with the West as it would be, would destroy the Communist dream of taking over Europe.

It would not only give the West the balance of power in Europe but worse still, from the Communist view, weaken the Soviet grip on the satellites which would have a new incentive and new encouragement to revolt.

Six years ago the Russians, after the first summit conference, went through the motions of considering the reunification of Germany. Now they don't even bother doing that. The other night Premier Khrushchev belittled the whole idea.

Still, the West keeps talking about it, even though there's no chance the Russians will yield. Besides, there are probably millions in the West, remembering the wartime terror of a single Germany, who don't want it unified.

The West has refused to recognize the East German Communists as the legitimate rulers of East Germany. If they did, it would end any dream the non-Communist German ever had of seeing their country united again. In short, recognition would in effect be agreement to the permanent division of Germany. Nevertheless, Khrushchev in turn makes a proposal knowing, even though he keeps repeating it, the West wants no part of it.

This is his proposal: If the West agrees to let West Berlin become a so-called free city, he'll assure the West that the city's links with air and road—will be safe.

How can this be done? He says he'll give the East Germans control over those access routes. But the West insists the East Germans aren't even a government.

Besides, he knows the West knows that even though the East Germans left the access routes open, any time Russia wanted them closed, the East German satellite would close them. So the West demands that the Soviets would back them up in any dispute with the West.

There could be no doubt, knowing the Communists' publicly stated determination to take over the world, that if the West agreed to Khrushchev's proposition now, it would have to face a showdown.

So at this point the Western allies are taking the position that it's better to have a showdown now than later.

All of which adds up to this: After months of talking the West and Russia are not talking reality to each other. They both have expressed willingness to sit down and negotiate. But at their present long-winded rate it will be months before they do.

Meanwhile, they keep exchanging the same old words, making the same old passes before each other's eye to induce sleep, while taking pep pills to stay awake in the form of speeches and exchange of notes.

The Sinking Sensation

By HENRY HOWARD
Somebody said, "Sure is hot today."
Somebody else added, "Sure is. Fact is, it's so hot you can feel your shoes sink into the asphalt when you walk across Evans St."

(I tried it yesterday, and sure enough, you could feel your shoes sinking into the soft asphalt.)
But then this other one had to monopolize the conversation:
"Yeah, it's hot all right, but you don't know nothin'."

(Now when somebody comes strolling up and declares that you don't know nothin', you better watch it. In other words: don't believe EVERYTHING you hear after such a declaration.)
The monopolist continued:
"I remember one day 'bout six years ago. As a matter of fact, seems to me it was six years ago today."

"Boy, was it ever hot. 'Course it was hot the day before that too, and the day after, but I remember that particular day 'cause I had to go to a funeral."
"And was it ever too hot to go to no funeral. But anyway, I had to go. I just felt like I should in spite of the hot weather."

(It 'bout flabbergasted me to hear a lady talk like that, but she continued and I continued to listen.)
"And there all of us stood in the cemetery basking in the hot sun waiting for the burial."
"Trouble was, I was standing on the edge of an asphalt drive in my spike heels. And that wouldn't have been so bad, but just before they started lowering the casket, another carload of folks got there and I had to back a little bit farther out onto the asphalt to make room."

"Then, as they let the casket down slowly on those straps, you know... 'Bout that same time I felt myself sinking along with it."
"I sure did. I felt myself getting lowered down right along with that casket. It scared me half to death and I tried to run, but my heels wouldn't move."

"I felt sorta silly. I think I blushed a little bit when I saw that my little spike heels had just sunk down in that soft asphalt."
"Yeah, it was hot that day all right. As a matter of fact, it was too hot to bury anybody. It might have been suggestive." (At that, I wandered on off somewhere else to test my heels again in the asphalt, but not in the cemetery.)

Greenville Utilities Commissioners were gathered in Director Leonard Bloxam's office for the regular meeting the other night.

Several of the folks there had comments, appraisals and compliments for the new map board that's been added to the director's office.

It's rigged so that a series of large maps of the Fair City are concealed behind a massive and quite handsome walnut-looking panel. Each one may be rolled by hand from its hiding place along its own track to an equally massive map-viewing area adjacent to the panel.

It's a neat arrangement that allows the Utilities Commissioners ready access at their meetings to various maps of the city. Leonard, however, shattered the flood of compliments by calling:

Other Editors Saying... Blueprints For Progress

(Kinston Free Press)
The Latin American nations in session in Uruguay this week have the basic outline now of a $20,000,000,000 program, in cooperation with the United States, which would be aimed at elimination of poverty, hunger and disease in the Western Hemisphere. While it would be initiated by the United States through low-interest loans, it would require a realistic investment by each participant to assure its ultimate success.

U.S. Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon outlined the plan to the gathering at Punta Del Este this week. The revolutionary program calls for tax reforms, land reforms, lower interest rates on loans to small farmers and small businesses, greatly increased housing, education and health programs. The educational effort is aimed at elimination, eventually, of illiteracy.

While the long-range objective is to offset the gains of the Communist conspiracy in Latin America, it is a positive plan to help those who will help themselves. No wonder the diplomats at the Uruguay Conference are hailing it as a forward-looking challenge to the entire group.

It means in essence that the long-standing practice which helps the rich get richer and the poor get poorer must be drastically changed in the future. Instead of the government planning for revolutions and counter-revolutions, in which all but a very few suffer, the emphasis must now be channelled to basic reforms designed to aid the rank and file.

The skeptics will say, and with some logic, that it is too rosy a picture to become reality. But other approaches have not produced the desired results. The infiltration of the Reds among the poverty-stricken masses in the area has continued. Some even look to Castro with favor because he has put the wealthy hotel operators and other men of property in Cuba back on their heels.

But the Alliance for Progress is based on a desire to encourage the leaders in authority in the various governments to take the initiative and to help their own people. Insofar as it is pursued in the spirit in which it has been advanced it should produce good results. It cannot be achieved overnight, or in years for that matter, but it is a basic beginning which most Latin nations seem to appreciate.

And unlike Red Assistance, it does not carry with it a political noose tied to the Kremlin.

Andrew D. White, President of Cornell University a few decades ago, once wrote the following concerning the value and use of the Bible:

"Like most young people of my generation I was brought up to read the Bible and was nurtured in one of the religious bodies which incorporates into its worship very many of the noblest parts of our sacred books. Of these, the portions which have always seemed to me to give the keynote to the whole have been, for the Old Testament, the grander psalms, the nobler portions of Isaiah, and above all the sixth chapter of Micah; and in the New Testament, the utterances ascribed to Jesus himself, of which the Sermon on the Mount is supreme, with St. James' definition of 'pure religion and undefiled' and St. Paul's description of 'charity.' In perfection of English diction there is, in the whole range of literature, nothing to surpass the story of Joseph and his brethren."

Many of us might have other portions of scripture to add to this list. Physically the Bible was not let down out of heaven, but spiritually it actually was. It is, and we believe will remain until the end of time, the setting forth of God's loving purpose for us and for the universe. Literatures come and go. The Bible is eternal because it deals with eternity.

Mongol Role In History

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Cut out of China or Siberia or Turkestan, whichever you choose, is Mongolia. The Mongols have played a curious role in history, suddenly emerging to significance in the 12th century and conquering much of Europe and Asia and then receding to a small, insignificant collection of tribes. Genghis Khan, who brought the Mongols to power, was born in the region of Lake Baikal. He married the daughter of the chief of Karakorum, where he established his capital, when he subdued the north of Mongolia.

In 1211, he began to conquer North China and in due course took the entire country. He also moved westward and conquered Turkestan and the great cities of Khiva, Samarkand and Bokhara. Thus, Genghis Khan not only possessed military power but he accumulated great wealth. He then moved into Persia, the Caucasus and Russia and into India.

Having conquered so much of the world, he returned to Karakorum in 1224 and set himself up as a great ruler but he did not live long.

Modern Mongolia is a large country of 1,867,000 square miles, but its population is small, 2,500,000, and it is likely to remain small because much of Mongolia consists of the Gobi Desert—a land which is useful for cattle and horse grazing but for little else.

When China became a republic, Mongolia was divided into two parts, Outer and Inner. The latter part, closer to China, attracted many Chinese who introduced Chinese methods of agriculture. Urga was the capital of Mongolia and I have been on the Kalgan-Urga Road in my day. It is a land without an excitement.

It is to be noted that although the Chinese are often referred to as Mongoloid people, they are not Mongols; nor are the Japanese. In fact, the Mongols are closer to the Turkish tribe called the Uigurs who ultimately swayed up in Hungary and Finland.

Since the Russian conquest of the Amur region by Muraviev-Amursky, (1858) Russia has sought to conquer the whole of Mongolia and Turkestan. One of the earliest wars fought by China against Russia was over the Ili region of Turkestan. The Amur, which became the dividing line between Siberia and China also establishes the historic fact that the Maritime Provinces of Siberia are more Chinese than Russian territory.

There is no natural boundary line between Mongolia and Siberia or Mongolia and Turkestan. Therefore the same people are to be found in all these areas. Some of these people are still Shamanistic in religion; most of them are established in the Russian, up to the conquest by Soviet Russia, were Lamaistic Buddhists; that is, they took their religion from Tibet rather than from China. And as in Tibet, an unusually large number of men and women were monks and nuns and therefore celibates; thus, keeping the population small, averaging about two per square mile. Undoubtedly, this has changed somewhat under the Communists who do not believe in religious restraints. Increased population, however, can only produce famine as the land is not suited for the production of food and there is little or no mineral wealth. Some oil has been found in Chinese territory adjacent to Mongolia but it is not economically significant.

Mongolia is now a state, a satellite of Soviet Russia, functioning as an independent Communist country under the Soviet system. It has produced nothing in recent years to encourage one to believe that it is very different from what it was 30 or 40 years ago when it started the world as being a source of dinosaur eggs.

Corporation Income Is Lagging

By ELMER ROESSNER
The economy is improving and shows signs of further growth. Employment, total income and gross national product are all higher than a year ago.

But corporation income appears to have lagged behind the rest of American business. Total personal income at the end of the first half of this year was at an annual rate of $416.7 billion; in June, 1960, it was $404.4 billion. Labor and salary disbursements, which include capitalists' salaries, too, were at a rate of $291 billion in June, compared with $284 billion a year earlier.

Civilian employment in mid-June was 68.7 million compared with 68.6 million a year earlier. Unemployment was higher: 5.6 million this June compared with 4.4 million a year earlier. But wages were higher. The average weekly gross pay of factory workers in June, 1961, was $94.24, compared with $91.60 a year earlier.

THIS IS CAPITALISM?
At the same time, the First National City Bank reports that the net earnings after taxes of 692 leading nonfinancial corporations were $5 billion in the first half of this year and $5.7 billion in the first half of 1960. That's a decline of 12 percent.

This constitutes an interesting set of statistics. The unthinking often say that "the rich get richer and the poor get poorer." — Communists say that the entrenched upper classes constantly increase their take while the labor slaves get less and less.

But the current figures show that, despite unemployment, and earned income have been increased while corporation profits have been declining.

SOME CORPORATIONS GAIN
The First National City figures show interesting variations. For example, while 27 petroleum companies showed an increase of 14 percent in the first half of this year, over the first half of 1960, 31 iron and steel companies were showing a 50 percent decline.

Other declines were: 24 auto and parts companies, down 36 percent; 24 service and amusement companies, down 68 percent; 22 textile and apparel companies, down 22 percent; and 29 electrical equipment, radio and television companies, down 22 percent.

However, it should be noted that each of these groups, despite the downward trend, made aggregate profits. For example, the 31 iron and steel companies, after a 50 percent dip, still made $276.8 billion.

Other gains and percentages of increases over first-half profits of 1960 include these: 29 food and beverages companies, up 5 percent; 7 tobacco products companies, up 9 percent; 29 drugs, soap and cosmetics companies, up 1 percent; 49 machinery companies, up 9 percent; 18 transportation equipment companies, up 5 percent; 24 service and amusement companies, up 6 percent; 47 power and gas companies, up 5 percent; and 7 telephone and telegraph companies, up 5 percent.

HEAVY HAND LAID ON "LITE DIET"
The Federal Trade Commission has ordered the Bakers Franchise Corp., New York, to discontinue its trade name "Lite Diet" for bread. But because of the vigorous dissent of Commissioner William F. Kern, it is likely that the licensing company will appeal to the courts.

The commission held that the bread is not lower in calories than other white bread, no less fattening, and no more effective in control of body weight.

However, Commissioner Kern pointed out that the advertising clearly set forth the calorie count, and said the ruling would destroy a business in which $2,500,000 has been spent in advertising. Bakers Franchise licenses more than 100 bakeries to make "Lite Diet" and provides them with promotional material.

Came From Near And Far To Honor Local Men

A robing ceremonial honoring J. J. Stauffer and S. L. Rowland, of Greenville Lodge 885, drew the "elite" of the Loyal Order of Moose from lodges in eastern North Carolina.

The occasion was a tribute to the Greenville men who had attained the highest honorary degree in the fraternity, the Pilgrim of Merit, bestowed in June of this year at the House of God in Mooseheart, Illinois.

Lodge Governor Charles McAndrew welcomed the guests and turned the ceremonial over to a Pilgrim "team" consisting of E. M. Baldree (Greenville), Clint Joyner (Wilson), A. R. Proud (Goldsboro), Paul Jenkins (Burlington) and J. W. Hawkins (Wilson).

Other holders of the Pilgrim Degree who attended, were: William and David Troutman of Wilmington, and William R. Leggett of Kinston.

The ceremonial briefly recalled the obligations assumed by Pilgrims, a recapitulation of services performed by the honorees and their robing in traditional regalia.

Stauffer is a charter member of the Greenville Lodge, a member of the Legion of the Moose and a past Governor; he holds the Fellowship Degree, and has been active in the Building Committee, and Membership and Conservation committees. He is currently serving as a trustee of the lodge.

Rowland's nine-year membership includes membership in the Legion of the Moose, a holder of the Fellowship Degree, and is a past Governor. He has been most active in the fields of membership, conservation, entertainment and publicity committees.

Nearly two dozen holders of the Fellowship Degree, second only to that of Pilgrim, served as honor guards for the occasion.

Nine lodges were represented in this group: Rockingham, Kinston, Wilson, Wilmington, Goldsboro, Wallace, Sanford, Havelock and Greenville.

The Women of the Moose were also represented by five members of the College of Regents. They were: Deputy Grand Regent Mrs. Louise Carrigan, of Greenville; Past Deputy Grand Regent, Mrs. Paul Jenkins, of Burlington; Mrs. Bonnie Singleton and Mrs. Lillie Briley, of Greenville; and Mrs. Evelyn Baldree, of Kinston.

The occasion was open to all Moose and their families.

Refreshments were served following the ceremony.

The admission of Mongolia into the United Nations is a State Department trick to divert attention from the admission of Red China. It is not attracting favorable support in Asia, although Soviet Russia is pleased with the idea.

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Mother's milk and how fast babies grow, ocean-borne seeds from the tropics and a few electronic interpreters are subjects for science at work:

Nature's Diet

You apparently can't boost the growth rate of a baby by increasing the amount of protein in the milk it receives.

Scientists have found that infants on mother's milk grow just about as fast as those on formulas of cows' milk which have twice or three times the amount of protein.

Nature conservatively has limited the amount of protein in mother's milk of most animals, scientists say. This benefits the mother whose body does not have to deprive itself of nutrients to feed the offspring. Other studies have shown the limited amount of protein leads to a healthier offspring as well.

One interesting sidelight: elephant's milk has about the same protein content as human milk.

Pessimism Over Priority Items

WASHINGTON (AP)— Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., reported pessimistically today on the outlook for two of President Kennedy's high priority legislative proposals—school aid and interim tax reform.

He said work is still being done on bills for help to states in school construction "but the outlook is gloomy." School aid legislation is stymied in the House Rules Committee.

The speaker said he hopes the Ways and Means Committee will be able to bring out a bill "closing some tax loopholes" before the session ends, but it is an uphill task.
"Somebody objects to everything," he said.

Hemispheric Conference Briefly Gives Spotlight To Red Spokesman

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—A hemisphere conference conceived to turn back the Communist drive in Latin America surrendered the spotlight Wednesday night to a leading spokesman for communism in the Western hemisphere—and he made the most of it.

While supporters of President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress were attending a reception in a nearby hotel, Cuban economic boss Ernesto Guevara held court for the Latin-American press.

The representative of the little Caribbean island of six million people held the spotlight alone during this period of the Inter-American Economic Conference—whose chief aim is to offset Cuba's revolutionary influence on Latin America's 200 million people.

The reception in the swanky San Rafael Hotel, given by U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, C. Douglas Dillon, would have been impressive in any European capital. Except for Guevara, anybody who was anybody at the conference was there.

But while the diplomats were socializing the bearded Cuban in his habitual army fatigues was holding forth for the newsmen, who obviously viewed Guevara as the only real source of news at the moment at this conference.

Guevara had nothing new to say. Most of it was a repetition of Cuban and Communist propaganda. He insisted that the United States is blind to the realities of Latin America, and that because of this the socialist-meaning Communist—revolution on the continent is just around the corner. He said revolution would come in Latin America as a protest against the past and present but that it would become "socialist" immediately as new governments are installed.

This is standard Marxist-Leninist "national liberation" propaganda, and the United States is doing little on the popular level to combat it.

There has been a considerable amount of enthusiasm generated here for the U.S. program, which envisions the investment of more than $20 billion by the United States and other foreign sources in Latin America in the next 10 years if these countries take steps necessary to develop their potentials and join the war against poverty, misery and illiteracy.

But the Alliance for Progress has yet to step down to the lower levels of the Latin-American population. Guevara and the Communists have not lost sight of those levels and their potential for revolution.

In essence, that seems to be the meaning and reason for the Cuban's appearance at a conference where otherwise he obviously does not belong. He is a revolutionary figure in the midst of representatives of a class searching for new ways to save itself from destruction in the fire of revolution.

The Cubans, for all their irrationality, are appealing to basic instincts and yearnings. The representatives of the United States still are carrying on their effort at the polite upper crust of society.

Much hope appears to have been generated in Punta Del Este that a program has been conceived which has a real chance of stemming the pressures from the Communist-Castroite combination of the left.
But the push of Castroism is strong and heady. And nobody is more aware of this than the busy Cubans at this conference designed primarily to reduce their revolutionary impact.

There are indications that the growth rate of the elephant in early life is similar to that of man.

Far From Home

New Zealand farmers living near Ninety Mile Beach found large numbers of tropical fruits and seeds washed ashore during the winter of 1956, carried there by the meandering ocean currents.

Scientists who receive some of the seeds raised the resulting plants in greenhouses. One of the plants is now a 12-foot vine.

But the seeds would not have fared very well, if they hadn't had human help. Some of them were well rotted when they finally came to shore. Others probably would never have survived on the exposed sand dunes of Ninety Mile Beach.

Bi-Lingual Radio

Some 16 Venezuelan students at the University of Michigan now converse with their professor without ever hearing his voice.

They wear portable, wireless radio units that permit them to speak and hear as well. When they have a question, they ask it in Spanish, and an interpreter receiving the question passes it on to the professor. The professor answers in English, and the interpreter passes the answer on in Spanish.

The students, equipped with earphones, hear only the interpreter in question and answer periods and in lectures. The device also has proved useful in adverse noise conditions, such as visits to factories.

Radio Wildlife

It is truly a modern world. Now wild animals, rabbits, raccoons, even pheasants and ducks, have been equipped with radio transmitters.

The transmitters weighing less than an ounce and only the size of a thumb have been built by University of Illinois scientists with the object of using radio signals to track wildlife.

Direction-finding radio receivers can trace a ground-moving animal for half a mile day or night. A duck flying half a mile high can be tracked for 60 miles. The new technique is providing new data on the movement and feeding of wild animals.

8-Year-Old Has Improbable Pet

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP)— Michael Fluharty, 8, has a pet the likes of which nobody around here ever has seen before.

It looks like a cross between a cat and a rabbit.

Mike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fluharty of the nearby New Hope section, saw it one day in the fields with some house cats. For three weeks he and his father laid plans to trap it, and finally lured it into a box on his front porch, baited with bread.

The head and front legs of the creature look like those of a cat. From there on back, it has the fur, rear legs and cottontail of a rabbit. Mike says it hops like a rabbit but scorns the usual vegetable diet of rabbits, preferring bread and milk.

Mike adds that at first the animal, which he keeps in a wire cage, spat and clawed at anyone who came near. But after association with genuine cats it's becoming domesticated, he says.

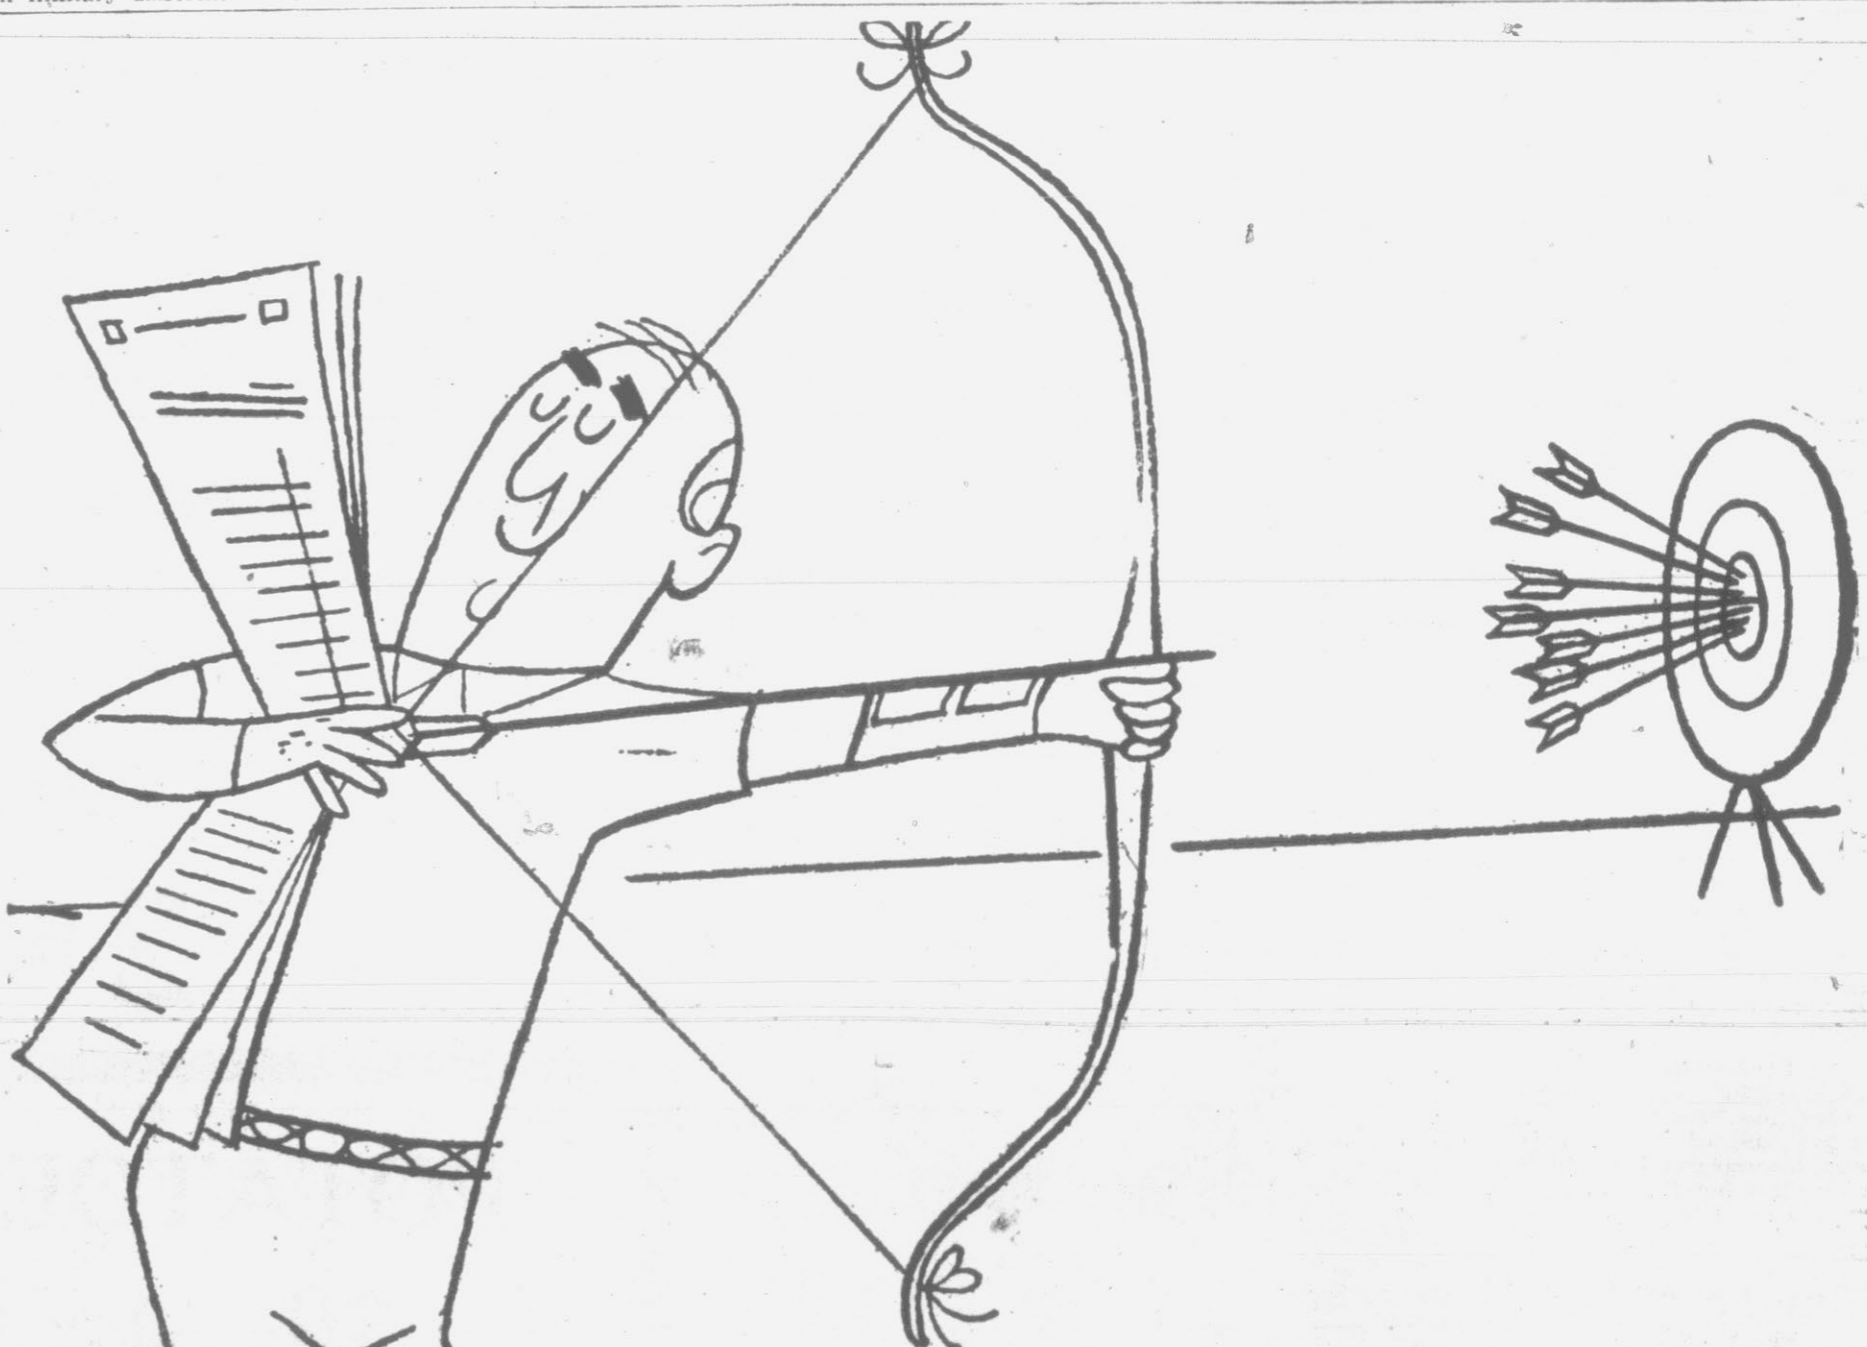

The animal is about nine inches long and weighs three pounds. At least three others like it reportedly have been seen in this area.

Dr. W. C. Burns, Whiteville veterinarian, said today he plans to take a look at the animal soon. "Such a hybrid is very improbable," he commented, "but freaks of nature do occur."

Dahlia Blossom Has 9-Inch Diameter

NINE-INCH DAHLIA . . . was grown by Mrs. Foster of Rt. 2, Ayden in her garden. She says it is the largest one she has ever seen in bloom. The large flower was the gift of a friend, which Mrs. Foster planted in her own plot. (Reflector staff photo by Rosalie Moore.)

A plant given to her by a friend has yielded a dahlia nine inches in diameter, the largest she has ever seen, Mrs. Fred Foster of Rt. 2, Ayden told The Daily Reflector this week.

The plant was rooted in March of this year, along with another one, given by the friend. However, the second dahlia, which is white, shows no sign of becoming as large as this golden dahlia.

Mrs. Foster, who grows flowers at her home for her own enjoyment, said the gold dahlia plant holds three other blooms which are large, but she doesn't know yet if they will reach proportions of this one.

Dahlias usually are about four or five inches in diameter.

In addition to dahlias, Mrs. Foster's flower garden includes zinnias, flax, a few roses, petunias and verbena.

Fresh Example: Totalitarian Cuba Scoops Up Cash Holdings

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—If you need any example of what happens when a totalitarian government takes over a country, Cuban Prime Minister Castro is up today with a fresh one.

A totalitarian government may be Fascist, Communist or what Castro calls Cuba's own brand of socialism. The one thing in common is that the state is dominant, not its citizens.

First, large private property holdings are confiscated in one form or another, with or without vague promises of compensation later. American firms suffered the loss of millions of dollars in assets and sales this way. One estimate is that American-owned property on the island was worth $861 million.

Next, cash holdings are gathered in by the simple device of declaring the old currency void and issuing a new currency—but only up to a small part of the total that any person above the lowest income brackets might have. The government keeps all but a minimum of the amount turned in.

How much of a loss this will be to Americans is unknown. Most U.S. corporations and individuals presumably have put their pesos into other currencies or investments long since.

But doubtless many Cuban refugees here will suffer. Cuban leaders estimate that 400 million of the old pesos are held outside the island, and thus became worthless over the weekend. Castro says most of this was taken to the United States by refugees.

The Cuban moves are in the classic pattern. They enable the Castro regime to get its hands on the property and cash of all but the poorest citizens.

They also help to halt, at least temporarily, the impending inflation caused by a growing shortage of some goods and foodstuffs on the island, which could command high prices on the black market—if people had pesos with which to buy.

The peso officially has been carried as the equal of the Yankee dollar, and formerly was freely exchangeable on that basis. But of late one foreign exchange dealer in New York has been willing to pay only 16 American cents for one Cuban peso. It says it has kept the peso on its list only because it wants to maintain its record of dealing in all foreign currencies.

Trade with Cuba has dwindled to a trickle. The United States cut off imports of Cuban sugar. We now import only tobacco, fruit and sugar molasses. And we send Cuba only food, medicine and medical supplies.

The Cuban government has an estimated $3 million here in various assets. Individual Cubans, most of them refugees now, are said to have about $58 million. But these are valued in Yankee dollars and not subject to the Cuban peso confiscation.

Old Army Center To Be Reopened

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army says it will beef up three training divisions to fighting strength and add them to the 14 combat divisions already on active duty.

The Army also announced Tuesday that it will open Ft. Carson, Colo., Sept. 7 as a training facility capable of handling 16,000 men at one time.

First task of the new training center will be to provide basic training for the men needed to build up to combat strength the 1st Infantry Division at Ft. Riley, Kan., and 2nd Infantry at Ft. Benning, Ga., and the 2nd Armored Division at Ft. Hood, Tex.

The three divisions have been used for training purposes. They are at less than half the strength required for combat readiness.

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—When a second crack Strategic Army Corps unit, the 101st Airborne Division, stages a massive air drop Friday, it will culminate weeks of complex planning and work.

The 101st, acting as "enemy" troops which have invaded a small foreign country, will parachute about 5,000 men and their equipment into three drop zones just west of Bennettsville, S.C., then oppose another STRAC unit, the 82nd, which dropped into the area Tuesday.

The action is part of Exercise Swift Strike, war games designed to train STRAC troops and commanders and the ready air reserve.

Little or no action was planned today, which was set aside for administrative purposes.

The 101st was airlifted by the Military Air Transport Command from its homebase at Ft. Campbell, Ky., to three staging areas in South Carolina, North AFB, Donaldson AFB and Shaw AFB.

To get the division to the three bases, 30 MATS planes manned by 72 crews flew 364 sorties. "It was almost unequalled," said Lt. Col. C. W. Winchester, the officer who acted as air controller for the operation.

Col. Winchester, commander of the 15th Troop Carrier Squadron, Donaldson AFB, Greenville, S.C., said that when the exercise is completed, the planes will have flown 364 more sorties in returning the 101st to Ft. Campbell.

"When the exercise is completed, MATS planes will have flown approximately 900,000 miles," he said.

He compared this to the 830,000 mile distance to the moon.

When completed, the MATS planes will have carried 10.5 million pounds of cargo each way. This includes 6,734 members of the division, figured at weighing 300 pounds per man. When the men are taken into combat, the figure drops to 265 pounds per man.

Each plane is kept on a master schedule, and Col. Winchester, who is in telephone contact with every base involved, records departures and landings, and personnel and cargo loads.

The entire operation is kept on such a tight schedule that at one point he was able to report that the operation was eight minutes ahead of schedule.

After the men are delivered to the staging areas, they are taken to the combat areas for air drops or air landings by troop carrier units.

In charge of this operation is Lt. Col. Clifford C. Root, a reservist from Miami, Fla.

Col. Root, a real estate man in civilian life, will be responsible for keeping track of 192 C119s, 62 C123s, and 56 C130s which will be used in the operations.

The overall air control director of the complete airlift is Lt. Col. Robert W. Smith, a regular stationed at Sewart AFB, Tenn. Of the 40,000 men involved in Swift Strike, about 11,000 are from the Air Force, split about equally among the regulars, reserve and Air National Guard. Col. Smith praised the work of all three groups, which included dropping the 82nd Airborne Division Tuesday.

"The National Guard and the reserves are holding up their end of the operation," he said.

The safety record has been spotless, with no injuries and almost 100 per cent efficiency from the planes.

Brig. Gen. John Stone Bagby, an air force reserve officer from Philadelphia, is in charge of the air lift. Many of the air reservists who man the cargo planes are under alert for possible recall to active duty. Gen. Bagby said if recalled, "All are absolutely ready, there is no question about it."

Pres. Quadros Schedules Visit

WASHINGTON (AP)—Brazilian President Janio Quadros will arrive in Washington Dec. 5 for a three-day state visit.

The White House announced Tuesday Quadros, after his conferences with President Kennedy and other top U.S. officials, also will spend five or six days traveling across the United States.

Solid Reminders

AYDEN—A reminder of a past era has turned up here in a very solid form to haunt construction workers laying a water line to a new subdivision.

The "reminder" is in the form of massive foundations of a college once located here, in the area now designated as College Street extended. Workers are dissecting the portions of wall in their way and proceeding with work as planned.

As of yesterday, the workers were on their fifth wall, or, rather, the fifth reminder. It hasn't stopped them, however, according to Town Manager Cleveland Paylor.

They are still going.

Time To Watch For Boll Weevil

RALEIGH (AP)—Tar Heel cotton growers need to keep a watchful eye on their crop from now on out, to guard against damage from boll weevils and other insects.

The State Crop Reporting Service made the point Tuesday as it issued a forecast for a crop of 275,000 bales of 500 pounds each.

The agency said the crop is less mature than usual for the time of year, and thus more susceptible to insect attack.

The production estimate was based on reports from growers and others as of Aug. 1.

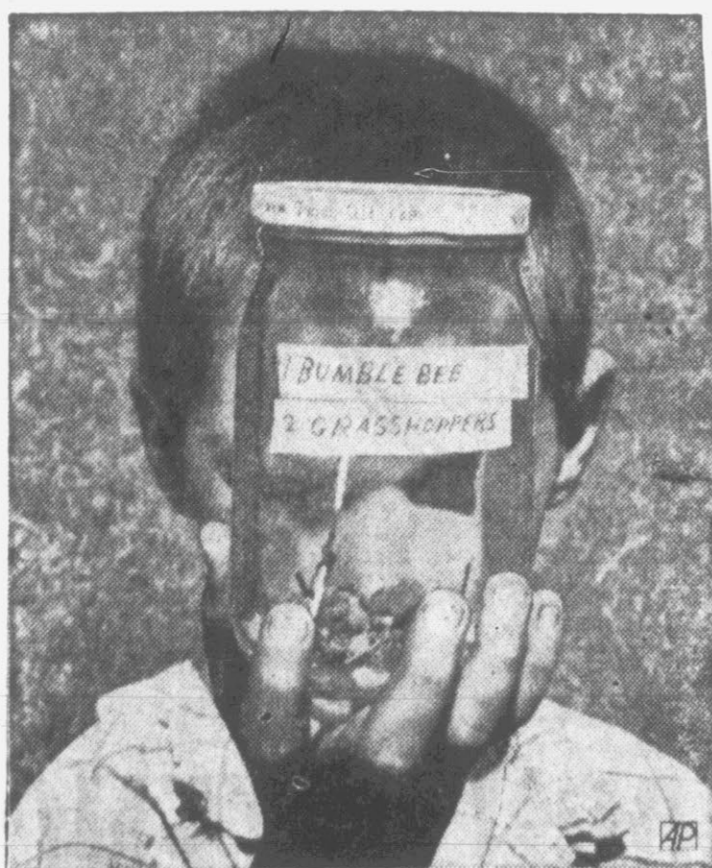

A crop of 275,000 bales would be 600 bales above the 1960 production. However, it would be 67,000 bales under the average for the past 10 years.

Acres for harvest was placed at 405,000 acres for an average yield of 326 pounds per acre.

His Work Is 'Life Story' Of Veteran SHP Officer

LT. EARNEST GUTHRIE . . . Patrol Troop "A" 's Executive Officer.

By SUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Have you ever seen a man who "lives" his job? Lt. Earnest Guthrie, Executive officer of Highway Patrol Troop "A" is such a man.

A native of Harkers Island, "Down East" in Carteret County, Lt. Guthrie, with a smile of self-satisfaction and pride will tell you "the story of my life is the Patrol every day of the week including Sundays and holidays."

After attending school in Beaufort, the veteran officer entered commercial fishing, the main industry of his home county and became a buyer for a commercial firm. He gave up that job though to enter the North Carolina Highway Patrol in 1939.

His first station in his 22-year career as a state officer was at Jackson in Northampton County where he remained for about seven years. He since has been stationed in Farmville where he served for three and one-half years; Hertford, Jacksonville, Salisbury and New Bern, where he was stationed before being promoted to the rank of lieutenant and moved here.

TALKING "ENFORCEMENT" . . . problems with two non-commissioned officers.

Lt. Guthrie's main responsibility as executive officer of the Troop is to perform those duties assigned to him by the Troop Commander (Capt. S. H. Mitchell) and in the absence of the captain, to assume command of the troop.

AT PRESENT . . . Commandant of the Highway Patrol School in Chapel Hill

Troop "A" is the largest of the six highway patrol divisions in size, including 24 counties in Eastern North Carolina. The troop is composed of some 93 patrolmen.

As a lieutenant, Guthrie is charged with the responsibility of relieving the captain of as many administrative duties as possible. Some of these duties include checking district reports, keeping check on files and records, hearing complaints made to the troop headquarters, striving for troop uniformity, help with plans and training, and keeping check on morale, discipline and public and official relations.

CHECKING REPORTS . . . and keeping records just part of job

"The past eight years have been more important than any time in the past" for growth in the Highway Patrol, according to Lt. Guthrie, noting that the growth and improvement has been "due to better department heads."

Lt. Guthrie noted that one of the improvements in the past few years which he likes best is the "increase in salaries." But he is quick to explain that he likes this increase not entirely from a personal standpoint but for how it will benefit the organization.

Caretaker Group Urged Assist Mental Health

A caretaker group, made up of key professional people in the ministry, law, education, medicine, and social welfare, to assist in the early stages of detecting and treating of mental illness is important, and is almost a must, declared Dr. Louis D. Cohen in addressing the closing session of the Mental Health Conference at East Carolina College.

More than 500 persons registered for the conference at which Dr. Cohen of the Department of Psychiatry of the Medical Center of Duke University and Dr. Clinton R. Prewett of the Department of Psychology of East Carolina College were the major speakers. Meetings of interest groups were attended by ministers, educators, physicians, welfare workers, homemakers, and students.

Dr. Cohen built his address around the theme of improvement medial care.

The psychiatrist has to find ways to work through the "caretaker groups," Dr. Cohen said, and added that the psychiatrist and the psychologist must join in the movement to aid in improvement of mental health, especially in the areas of education and improved community services.

Earlier in the conference, Dr. Prewett placed stress upon the positive approach to the personal aspects of mental health problems, of services to mentally ill persons, emphasizing the importance of early detection, therapy, and re-education.

The Historical Society of Pennsylvania has one of the most important manuscript depositories in the U.S. consisting of over four million items.

BY JOHN CREASEY A MATTER OF LIFE AND DEATH

CHAPTER 35
Rollison peered in through the lodge window.
The night watchman was sitting at a small table with a newspaper open in front of him.
Bill Ebbutt breathed: "I'll see to 'im okay."
Rollison moved towards the main offices of Silver Queen. He had the layout of the plant clear in his mind's eye. He could see the distant lighted window clearly.
"The works' office," said Rollison. He reached the window, and, standing to one side, peered through.
He could see the grey head of Paul Vance, not far away from him. Vance was sitting at Jameson's desk, his back to the window. It was littered with papers. The office door stood open.
A dim light seemed to be on in the powder workshop, as well as in the office.
Rollison moved towards the doors leading into the production shed where the turbaned girls had worked. He found them unlocked, stepped inside, and stood in the shadows by the wall. The office door was still wide open, and the light came from that and from a single lamp burning over another doorway.
The only sound was the rattle of paper; there was no sign of Reginald Jameson.
Rollison moved across the room, towards doors which opened onto the lipstick shop. He reached the far doors, and opened them. Beyond, he knew, was the room where the lipsticks were formed, like bullets; cooled, polished, and fitted into their metal containers.
Standing at a long bench, was Reginald Jameson.
He had one lipstick in his hand, and seemed to be poking something into it.
Two women had died after applying Silver Queen lipstick.
Rollison couldn't see clearly enough, and moved two paces forward. Jameson took another red bullet, and pierced a hole in the middle; then he picked up something tiny and white and put it in; he used tweezers, and acted with consummate care, as if what he had was fragile.

It was fragile all right; and deadly, too.
Rollison felt quite sure that it was cyanide.
There were two other gilt containers on the bench, each with lipstick in them. Jameson picked these up, and held them tightly in his hand. As he did that, Rollison backed towards the door, not through without making any sound, and waited behind it.
Jameson went out.
He walked across the dark yard until he reached his door. The light was still on in the office. Jameson went in, and the door swung to behind him.
Rollison waited five minutes at the window and saw no sign of anyone nearby; there were just the two men, Jameson and Paul Vance. Rollison went through the doorway, making no sound, and approached the office. He drew nearer, hearing the mutter of voices.
Jameson said: "Yes, that's it, Vance. That's the whole story. I've been sabotaging Silver Queen. I hate Silver Queen and every one in it. Understand? I hate your lousy son. I hate you. I hate the Queen herself. Okay, okay. I'm mad! I hope the jury agrees with you, that would suit me down to the ground."
Paul Vance said huskily: "Why—why did you turn against me, Reggie?"
"Because of your precious Jimmy," Jameson replied hotly. "He hurt my sister in trouble. She lived in torment for weeks, and then—she killed herself. But what did you care? Not a damn, Vance. You just wouldn't believe it of your son."

"At first, it just hurt like hell," Jameson went on flatly. "Then I began to hate. Then I began to hurt you."
"Know how I did it, Vance? I began to work for a syndicate of competitors who'd like to buy up Silver Queen. I started sabotage in the factory. I worked on Jimmy and his women. I blackmailed him, and he had to do whatever I wanted him to. And you were scared in case Jimmy was a rat, you wouldn't consult the police—while he was alive or afterwards; you couldn't bring yourself to sneer your Jimmy."
"Then Adam Bell came into the picture. Adam was in the next room to Jimmy and me when I was putting the squeeze on Jimmy. Adam recognized Jimmy's voice but not mine. So he left England for New York, and tackled Jimmy about it. They had a hell of a row, over that and over Griselda. I put the American end of the syndicate on to Adam, to keep him off Jimmy, and they drove him under cover."
"Know why he didn't talk at once?"
"He wouldn't betray Jimmy, because it would hurt his friend Paul Vance."
"Then I killed Jimmy, and framed Bell for it. Jameson was breathing very loud, as if talking to himself. "Like to know why Jimmy had to die? Because he was after Agatha. He was following her, like he'd followed other women. He used to boast about his conquests—but he started on Agatha."
"First my sister. Then Ag. I knew his time had come so I followed him and killed him. Tomorrow the newspapers will have the whole story. Sabotage at the factory. The death of Paul Vance. The end of Silver Queen. It'll drop so low—I was going to let you live until the crash," he went on squeakily. "But Rollison stopped me. I went to Griselda's place. I was going to cut her throat, and make a job of it, and Rollison telephoned her."
"I listened in on an extension, and heard what he said. He's on to me. I tried to finish him, but he dodged, so—I had to get you. That's why I telephoned and told you I knew the truth. I do, don't I?" he screamed. "I've made more lipstick, for Griselda!"
"And now it's the end for you," Jameson gasped. "I've finished. I've smashed you and all you possess. I'll get this lipstick to Griselda—don't put your hand to your pocket!" he screamed.
There was silence; then a shout, a shot, a scuffle, a cry. Rollison thrust the door wide. He saw Jameson reach Vance, right hand raised, a dark, ugly bar of iron in it.
Vance fired, again, and Jameson brought the iron down on his head; again and again.
Rollison couldn't stop it, couldn't do a thing about it, because the bullets had missed Jameson, and one had caught him in the leg. Rollison fell, dropping his gun. Pain and blood mingled. He was on one knee, several feet away from the men. He saw Vance's knees bend under him. His own pain was so great that he couldn't move towards his gun, couldn't do a thing.
Vance was just ahead on the floor. Jameson was staring at the window. He raised the bar.
Rollison looked towards the window, and saw Griselda Vance.
She hadn't stayed in the car. She had looked through the gap and she seemed petrified.
Griselda Vance will have to run for her life. Read the conclusion of "A Matter of Life and Death" tomorrow.

Soldier-Diplomat Walter Bedell Smith Dies

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter Bedell Smith, soldier, diplomat, jut-jawed genius of military planning, died Wednesday night of a heart attack. He was 65.

Death came to the general as an ambulance rushed him to Walter Reed Army Hospital. He had suffered the attack at his home here.

Smith served the government in various posts for 43 years. It honored him as few men in history have been honored — with four distinguished service medals.

As a soldier, Smith rose from a private in the Indiana National Guard to coordinator of the invasion of North Africa and Normandy in World War II. He was Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's chief of staff through most of the war, the team becoming known as "Ike and Beetle."

Britain's Winston Churchill had another nickname for Smith—"Buildog" because of his tenacity in handling problems.

Herbert Hoover 87 Today; Faith High In America

NEW YORK (AP) — Herbert Hoover celebrates his 87th birthday today, firm in the conviction that Americans "are ready for any emergency on earth."
Hoover, who has lived longer than any other American president except John Adams (who died at the age of 90), scoffs at the idea that Americans are becoming soft.

The people, he said, are "as deeply patriotic as they've ever been."
At a news conference in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Wednesday Hoover discussed a wide variety of topics ranging from the Berlin crisis to baseball. His face ruddy and unlined, he appeared at ease and took an optimistic view of everything he discussed.

Here is a Hoover sampler:
On chances for Mickey Mantle or Roger Maris to break Babe Ruth's home run record—"I am for anybody who can bat a home run — in baseball or anything else."
On the Berlin crisis—"President Kennedy's courageous statement as to Berlin should carry conviction to the Russians. He also emphasized a wish to negotiate, as long as the Russians are willing to negotiate over this problem, there is hope of solution."

On the welfare clampdown in Newburgh, N.Y.—Hoover likened this to "passive resistance" against free spending. He said such resistance "often is contagious, and I'd like to see this contagion spread."
On his past year—"I have tried to retire into a monastery known as 31-A Waldorf Towers. My purpose is — not like the ancient monks to illuminate the margins of ancient manuscripts—but to write new ones."

Besides writing two books last year, the former Republican president attended 26 public occasions, made 14 speeches—none ghost written, replied to 34,805 letters, received 11 awards and traveled to Florida and California.
This was in addition to helping administer the Boys Clubs of America and serving on 12 boards of trustees or directors of educational and scientific institutions.
How does he keep up the pace?
"The only way to lead a satisfactory life when you get old is not to retire but to work."

How big must a company be to have a Savings Bond Plan for its employees? That's an extreme example, of course. But U.S. Treasury files list thousands of companies which have set up this convenient way for their people to save. Security is for everyone. Whether you're a stenographer in a billion dollar corporation or a clerk in the corner drugstore, the Payroll Savings Plan is the world's easiest way to save for the future. You simply tell your payroll office once how much to set aside each payday. The rest is automatic. Guaranteed safety—guaranteed growth. U. S. Savings Bonds are an absolutely riskless investment. The Government guarantees $4 for every $3 you invest when you hold your Bonds to maturity. If your Bonds are lost or destroyed, they will be replaced at no cost. Why not ask your employer to sign you up today? (P.S. to employers: If you don't have the Payroll Savings Plan, write the U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Washington 25, D.C., for easy instructions.) You save more than money with U.S. Savings Bonds

CHRISTIAN COMMANDOS
VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP) — Students at the Anglican Theological College here have formed a group of "shock troops" to serve the church "at any time, in any place, and in any way." So far 13 students have enlisted in the movement, called RPA—"Ready for Anything."

The Louisiana Purchase was negotiated with Napoleon in 1803.

JULIET JONES

IF I DOUBTED FOR ONE SECOND THAT BESIDES A GREAT NATURAL BEAUTY, YOU HAVE A DISTINCT FLAIR FOR THE THEATER, MISS JONES.

"I WOULD TELL YOU, GO BACK TO SELLING GLOVES, OR BAGS, OR WHATEVER, BUT THAT WOULD BE DEPRIVING THE WORLD OF A RICH REWARD..."

"...THE REWARD OF YOUR UNMINDED GENIUS. THEREFORE I, GLENN SABINE, NOT IN MY ROLL AS CHAIRMAN OF THE YAGGS 'TEENAGER' BOARD, BUT AS AN ARTIST—AM ABOUT TO MAKE YOU AN OFFER!"

BLONDIE

TELL ME, HOW DO I LOOK, DAGWOOD?

YOU LOOK NICE, DEAR.

OH, BOO-HOO—I SPENT THREE HOURS FIXING UP AND ALL YOU SAY IS, I LOOK NICE.

I DON'T CRY WHEN YOU TELL ME I LOOK NICE.

BEEBLE BAILEY

THE BOYS WOULD LIKE YOU TO UMPIRE THE BIG GAME, CHAPLAIN.

WELL! THAT'S QUITE AN HONOR!

THEY PROBABLY REALIZE IT BE COMPLETELY HONEST AND IMPARTIAL.

YEAH, I GUESS THEY HOPED YOU WOULD BE.

POGO

YOU BEEN READIN' THE PAPERS?

Full of Doom, Gloom and rumors of Boom.

WELL, NOT ALL! SOME OF 'EM IS OPTIMISTIC... 'SCOT' BALANCE... 'FAC' THAT!!!!

All dopst—all false—not like those a read.

THE PHANTOM

THAT IS YOUR ANIMAL YOU TAUGHT HIM TRICKS—MADE HIM DO TRICKS IN THE BEDROOM!

WHEN—THAT'S A RELIEF! I THOUGHT I WAS GOING LOONY! WAIT UNTIL I TELL THE PRINCE!

WILL YOU TELL HIM IT'S AN ORDINARY WOLF. YOU WON'T GET PAID FOR A WEREWOLF.

RIGHT! BUT THANKS TO THOSE TRICKS—

AND YOUR TAKING THE WOLF'S PLACE—THE PRINCE ALWAYS BELIEVE IT'S A REAL WEREWOLF! THANKS!

DON'T THANK ME—YET!

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's sideways progress through this week continued early this afternoon as prices alternately weakened, firmed, sagged and climbed.

The result by noon was a decline of 0.40 to 253.60 in the Associated Press 60-stock average. Industrials were down 0.20, rails down 0.30 and utilities down 0.40.

Key issues rose or fell fractions to about a point for the most part. Brunswick, however, was up nearly 2 points. Revlon also added another 2 points or so to recent gains.

Chrysler and Du Pont both rose around a point, but most blue chip issues moved only fractionally.

Steels maintained an upside edge, as did most motors, rubbers, mail order and retail firms, chemicals and drugs.

Litton spurred more than 2 in an otherwise quiet electronic section. United Aircraft cut an early loss among aircraft-missile stocks, while Boeing and Douglas were narrowly higher.

Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 1.26 at 718.83.

Montgomery Ward recovered from a poor start and rose nearly a point.

Moving higher were U.S. Steel, Jones & Laughlin, Ford, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, Radio Corp., American Telephone, American Smelting, Eastman Kodak, GE and United Air Lines.

Small losses hit Republic Steel, General Motors, Woolworth, General Dynamics, Kennecott, Santa Fe and Lorillard.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange improved after a mixed start.

Corporate bonds were mixed and U.S. governments quiet.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog markets mostly steady. Tops of 18.25-19.50 at Wilson; 18.25-19.25 at Nahant; 18-19 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive and Newton Grove; 18.25 - 18.75 at Rocky Mount and Pembroke; 18-18.50 at Spring Hope; 17.50-18.50 at Smithfield and Dunn; 19 at

Interest Of ASCS Committeemen Sought

Pitt County ASCS office manager Livingston Roberts Tuesday urged the county's community committeemen to take renewed interest in the upcoming annual Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service committee elections.

In an address at the county ASCS office to about 40 community committeemen and the ASCS County Committee, Roberts predicted that passage of favorable farm legislation will "become increasingly hard" unless greater local interest is exhibited.

Roberts had previously reminded that only 17 per cent of the county's eligible ASCS voters cast ballots in the election of community committeemen last year.

Under last year's system, individuals and groups could nominate additional candidates during a 10-day period after the county election board has listed its choices.

Under this year's setup, anyone will have the opportunity to nominate a candidate between Aug. 11-21 by submitting a petition signed by at least 10 eligible voters to the county committee.

Vote-counting this year will be handled by a joint meeting of the existing county committee and the 22 community committees at the county ASCS office. Ballot boxes will be carried, still sealed, from the polling places to the joint meeting where the seals will be broken and the votes tabulated.

As in prior years, the top three vote-getters in each community will be elected to that community's ASCS committee. The candidate polling the highest vote total in each community will attend the county convention as his community's representative.

The county convention, that elects the ASCS County Committee, will be conducted this year by the chairman of the existing county committee. Previously, it has been conducted by the ASCS office manager.

In this year's election (Sept. 11), Roberts pointed out, new and increased responsibility is being placed upon the community committeemen.

"But," Roberts continued, "we believe that is changing fast. If you look at the original provisions of the Omnibus Farm Bill and analyze the attitude of Secretary Freeman, I believe you will agree the Community Committee-men will have added responsibilities and greater opportunity to serve the farm people in the coming year."

Tobacco Prices Remain Steady

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quality declined slightly and prices were mostly steady to higher Wednesday in fine-cured tobacco sales on the North Carolina-South Carolina Border Belt.

Low quality primings predominated at markets Wednesday, although the Federal-State Market News Service said the percentage of leaf grades increased. Most markets reported volume light.

Prices climbed mainly $1-$3 per hundred pounds with the gains more numerous among primings than nondescript. Fine-cured Stabilization Corp. receipts under the government price support plan totaled $4.3 per cent of sales.

The Market News Service reported that sales on Wednesday totaled 6,579,722 pounds for a $64 per 100 pounds average price. The belt's South Carolina market sold 3,652,436 pounds at a $65.69 average while its North Carolina markets moved 2,927,286 pounds at a $61.87 average.

The two-state belt sold 6,614,342 pounds Tuesday at an average of $63.81—29 cents under the season's high.

Wednesday's auction bid averages on a limited number of representative U.S. grades:

Leaf—Fair lemon 68, down 1; fair orange 69, unchanged.

Cutters—Low lemon 72, unchanged; low orange 72, unchanged.

Lugs—Good lemon 72, unchanged; lemon 70, unchanged; good orange 72, unchanged; fair orange 70, unchanged; low orange 67, unchanged.

Portuguese Say Base Captured

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—The defense minister announced the recapture Wednesday night of Nambuangono, which it said was the headquarters for African rebel forces in northern Angola, Portugal's West African territory.

The rebels will now have to disperse and can no longer harass this northern area of Angola, the communique said.

Greenville Police Dept. Is Seeking Recruits For Force

The Greenville Police Department wants new men, according to Chief Guy C. Langston.

The department head noted men are needed to fill the ranks in the local department, but applicants must meet certain qualifications.

Physical qualifications set up by the department, he noted, include minimum height of five feet nine inches, minimum weight of 160 pounds, age 23 to 35 and in good general physical condition.

Educational requirements are high school or equivalent.

Chief Langston gave a list of benefits offered by the department, which include among other things a merit pay system, social security benefits and a retirement system. Group insurance, hospitalization and sick leave are also included, he explained.

New officers, as well as other members of the force, will be given police school training and firearms instruction.

The department offers a six-day work week, the Chief noted, with seven holidays per year and 12-days annual vacation each year.

Employees of the department also receive Pitt County Police Protection Association benefits, Chief Langston explained.

He emphasized that applicants may apply for positions with the local department by writing a letter to the Police Department.

All applicants, he noted, will be screened by a board of four officers, "to insure that this department employs the most competent personnel."

"The selection of competent personnel is vital to the operation of an effective police department," and they must be "retained and promoted on the basis of their capacity and demonstrated ability to perform the duties and responsibilities with which they are charged," he concluded.

Officers serving on the screening board include: Assistant Chief R. T. Rogerson, Capt. J. B. Cannon, Lt. H. H. McGowan and Lt. T. E. Gladson.

Commander Of Group Promoted

RALEIGH—Lt. Col. Farmer S. Smith, commander of the newly-organized 8436th Air Force Reserve Recovery Group, has been promoted to the rank of full colonel. He has been active in the Air Force Reserve program since his release from active duty in 1946, serving as executive officer and, later, as commander of the Raleigh before being assigned to old 819th Air Reserve Group in his present post on July 1.

The 8436th Recovery Group is composed of four Air Reserve Squadrons located in the Raleigh-Durham, Wilmington, Greensboro and Winston-Salem areas. The new unit was activated July 1 as part of a nation-wide reorganization of the Air Reserve designed to increase its combat readiness.

Col. Smith is a graduate of North Carolina State College and holds a master's degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is a vocational coordinator of Raleigh's public school system.

He served on active duty in the Army Air Corps from 1942 to 1946, taking part in seven campaigns in the South Pacific.

Col. and Mrs. Smith, the former Miss Frances Alexander, reside on Brookhaven Drive in Raleigh.

Instant Coffee Plant Explosion Fatal For Two

GRANITE CITY, Ill. (AP)—A wing of an instant coffee plant blew up Wednesday killing two men and injuring six.

Rescue crews uncovered the bodies of the two victims early today.

Killed were Shelby Dolson, 22, and Victor Frisse, 57.

Only one of the injured men was in a serious condition.

The blast damaged a 2 1/2-story brick building of the Nestle Co., Inc. Cause of the explosion hasn't been determined.

More than 100 men—many of them construction workers who were on strike—worked for hours clawing away debris to reach the buried men.

Large boiler-like percolators and drying equipment were housed in the damaged wing. The ground in the area was littered with coffee beans.

About a fourth of an old portion of the plant was wrecked. A new, larger portion was not damaged.

Normally only two men worked in the blast area, a plant spokesman said, but eight had been assigned there Wednesday.
