Vestpocket Revolt In Argentina Ended

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—A vest-pocket midnight revolt against President Arturo Frondizi came to an abrupt, bloodless end today as the last rebel holdouts surrendered. Diehards among the 80-man rebel band gave themselves up at 6:15 a.m. without firing a shot after receiving a surrender ultimatum from troops who ringed the telephone exchange they had seized shortly before midnight. Troops had trained a cannon on the building. Earlier the rest of the insurgents had surrendered less than five hours after they seized the government radio station to broadcast claims they were taking over the government. The rebels, who aroused no popular support, have not been clearly identified as to political tint. One of the group claimed they were anti-Communist nationalists with no political links. Frondizi declared 4th grade 112 Frondizi declared in a communique shortly after the rebels had broadcast their electrifying announcement that the attempted revolt was a dud. There was no bloodshed. The government announcement blamed the pocket-sized uprising on "hotheads." It accused them of trying to upset internal peace and damage Argentina's prestige abroad. Government officials appeared convinced the attempted revolt had no important political significance. Frondizi remained in his office through the night waiting for final word that all resistance had been wiped out. Foreign Minister Adolfo Mugica described the rebel action as "the work of brains that do not function well." Navy secretary Rear Adm. Gaston Clement, asked by newsmen whether the incident had any political overtones, said: "You can call them as you wish. This must be a group of hotheads, whether nationalists or Communists." The abortive revolt caused a flurry of excitement. It roused fears that it might create confusion at the Inter-American Conference at Punta del Este, Uruguay, where delegates are seeking to implement President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program. The rebels broadcast a revolutionary manifesto after seizing the telephone exchange which controls all radio lines, giving the impression at first that it was a nationwide revolt. Police and troops were rushed to buildings where the rebels were holed up, but held their fire. Armed with pistols and light machineguns, the rebels fired when police approached the telephone building only 25 blocks from Government House where Frondizi was meeting with his political and military aides. The rebels claimed in their brief broadcast that they had no political links. Police and troops were rushed to buildings where the rebels were holed up, but held their fire. Revolt Scare Seen Underlining Need For Latin Action

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay. (AP)—The revolt scare in Argentina underlined today the urgency of President Kennedy's proposal to help cure Latin America's social and economic ills. But it did not interrupt deliberations at the Inter-American Economic Conference here. Delegates deliberating on how to get Kennedy's $20-billion Alliance for Progress program into motion were acutely aware that the attempted uprisings like the abortive Argentine coup Friday night could touch off chain reactions in the countries of this troubled continent. Reports of the revolt caused a

Storekeeper Is Assaulted By Unknown Person

AYDEN—A rural storekeeper was struck on the head as he closed his store east of Ayden last night but the assailant escaped. Thad McLawhorn, who operates a store near Hancock Church off N.C. 102, fired two pistol shots at an unknown person, but apparently did not hit him. Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said McLawhorn was not rendered unconscious by the blow. However, he was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital where four or five stitches were required to close a gash in the back of his scalp. He was released following treatment. McLawhorn told investigating deputies he was locking the back door of his store preparing to go to his home nearby when he was struck. McLawhorn pulled a pistol from his pocket and fired at the person who by that time was fleeing. Sheriff Tyson said officers found no evidence that the assailant was struck by a bullet. The sheriff said the person evidently intended robbery and that McLawhorn had a small amount of money on him at the time. No money was lost, however. McLawhorn went to his home following the assault and his daughter called the Ayden Police Department which in turn notified the Sheriff's Department. Bloodhounds were brought to the scene from the Pitt County Prison Camp but they were unable to pick up a scent. Sheriff Tyson said officers could find no evidence of a vehicle being used to make the escape. Deputies Bill Forrest, Gerald Davis and Duke Andrews investigated last night. The investigation is continuing today.

Castro Govt Says Assassins Were Armed By U. S. Officials

HAVANA (AP)—The Fidel Castro government charged today that authorities at the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay armed two men with a 30-caliber machinegun to assassinate Raul Castro last month. An official report claimed the two were to fire on the prime minister's brother from a house adjoining a stand in Santiago where Raul Castro was scheduled to speak July 26, eighth anniversary of the Castro revolution. In Washington, the Pentagon declined comment on the charge. Cuban economic boss Ernesto Guevara made a similar charge early this week in a speech before the Latin American economic conference at Punta del Este, Uruguay. The report gave what the government claimed to be details of the case. Havana radio said today 190 persons had been arrested in the aftermath of the alleged plot. The plan allegedly included a simulated attack against the Guantanamo Base. This, the report said, would have given the United States an excuse to mount armed aggression against Cuba. The report contended the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency "masterminded" the plot. The former Guantanamo Bay commander, Capt. C. E. Schenweiss, it said, was involved but was apparently relieved of command of the base due to disagreements with the CIA on planning. The government report credited Cuban militiamen for having foiled the plans. It said they discovered a jeep loaded with arms and ammunition on La Perla ranch, Jose Amparado Rosabal, described as a friend of former President Carlos Prío Socarrás, was arrested at the ranch following the seizure, the report said. Other participants in the alleged plot were said to have escaped capture. Six men were to have been in the Santiago house when Raul Castro spoke, two to handle the machine gun and the other four to hurl grenades to cover their flight after the shooting, the government claimed. It said six more armed with mortars were to be stationed on a road leading to the airport. In the event that Castro had escaped, it said, they were to fire on him if he attempted to get to the airport. The firings were to have coincided with efforts by anti-Castro forces to induce government artillery stationed near the base to open fire. That, it said, would have given credence to American claims that it had been attacked by Cuban forces.

From East To West

Red Police Can't Stop The Tide

BERLIN (AP)—Despite rigorous Red police controls, 1,332 refugees from East Germany registered in West Berlin in the 21 hours up to 1 p.m. today. In the same period last Saturday the number was 1,100; the previous Saturday, 625. The total mounted after the Communist regime threatened harsher measures to stem the human tide. Present facilities for handling the refugees are sufficient. But Western officials say that to be on the safe side they are preparing emergency sleeping quarters in more buildings. The giant Olympic Stadium was one of the places earmarked for possible use. Although it is becoming more difficult to slip through the ring of Communist police around the divided city, the number of refugees usually rises on weekends. Many workers wait for their Friday pay before setting out for Berlin. They also consider it easier to slip away before their absence is noticed at their jobs on Monday. Hundreds of Communist police were reported at railroad stations around the city today, hauling people off trains bound for Berlin. Commuters from Potsdam on the western outskirts of the city reported about 100 Red police on guard at that station alone. They were checking on everybody buying tickets to Berlin. Elevated trains from Potsdam pass through the West sectors on the way to East Berlin. The police were ordering commuters to take more roundabout routes to East Berlin to prevent them from getting off in the allied-controlled section. West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt told a meeting of local authorities that only military force by the East German Communists can stop the refugee flow from rising. He hinted that such force might trigger another East German revolt.

Gas Rate Boost Given Approval

RALEIGH (AP)—A rate case that had been through the courts would be Friday with the utilities commission authorizing Piedmont Natural Gas Co. to increase its rates by $444,582 annually. Piedmont had put into effect under bond late in 1959 a rate increase totaling $535,000 annually. It said the money was needed to offset increased charges for gas from its supplier, Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp. The commission turned down the rate increase and ordered Piedmont to refund the excess charges to customers. Piedmont appealed to the courts, which remanded the case to the commission for further consideration. The court said the commission did not justify its finding of $18,400,000 as the fair value of Piedmont's property. The evidence, the court added, did not support any such finding. In its latest order, the commission held that the fair value of Piedmont's property was not less than $20,300,000 and that the increase would produce a 6.11 per cent rate of return. It ordered the company to refund within 60 days to customers at 6 per cent interest any amounts collected under the increased rates under bond above that which would produce the additional revenue of $444,582.

UN Facing Big Deficit By June

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld said Friday the United Nations would run up a cash deficit of $90 million by next June 30 unless member countries paid what they owe for support of its forces in the Congo and the Middle East. He concluded that continuance of both operations, even on a reduced scale, must be dependent on additional financial support being made available not later than early 1962.

Suggests Posts For 2 Generals

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight suggested that President Kennedy appoint Gen. Douglas MacArthur ambassador to the Soviet Union and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as head of NATO. "These two superb Americans will electrify world opinion and command complete respect from Russia, Europe and all Asia, and confidence and support from all America," Knight said in a telegram to the President. Kennedy Scores Victory As Senate Rejects Move Against Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a major victory for President Kennedy, the Senate has rejected an amendment striking at the heart of his foreign aid program. The amendment, offered by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., was turned back 56 to 39 Friday night. It would have required yearly appropriations from Congress to finance Kennedy's program of development loans to struggling nations. Ten Republicans went against their leader, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, to join 46 Democrats in support of the president. These Republican votes were critical because the amendment drew the support of 16 Democrats and 23 Republicans. Kennedy's request for authority to borrow money from the Treasury to finance the loans is the key-section of this year's $4,326,500,000 foreign aid bill. It includes $1,187,000,000 in loan funds for this year. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told Sens. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., and Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., he will support an amendment under which the Senate and House Foreign Relations and Appropriations committees would be given a 30-day advance look at every proposed loan of $10 million or more before it can be made. Many fights are ahead of other provisions of the bill, including authority for $1.8 billion of direct military aid to defense pact allies this year. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said the Senate would be lucky if it completes final action on the measure before the end of next week.

JFK Takes Homework With Him

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy, cheered by a key Senate victory for his long-range foreign aid program, tackled some homework at his summer home today and hoped to get in some rest and relaxation. Kennedy brought with him from Washington a stack of documents, mostly dealing with the Berlin crisis. If the weather improved, he hoped to put them aside long enough to get in a cruise on Nantucket Sound. This is his seventh Cape Cod weekend in a row. The President flew in Friday night in foggy, overcast weather—but insisted on making the 20-mile hop from Otis Air Force Base to his seaside summer home aboard an Army helicopter. He entered an automobile for the trip but changed his mind and told an aide "let's try it anyway" by helicopter. The 'copter flight was made without incident. Kennedy's wife, Jacqueline, and their two children are spending the whole summer in Hyannis Port. Soon after his arrival, Kennedy told the Senate had defeated an amendment sponsored by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., to deny him long-range authority to lend foreign aid funds borrowed from the Treasury without annual congressional approval. "The President was extremely gratified by the vote in the Senate tonight," said press secretary Pierre Salinger, and particularly pleased by the bipartisan aspects of that vote. Ten Republicans voted against the amendment. "Foreign aid has historically been a bipartisan effort," Salinger added, "and the President was happy that this continued tonight." Kennedy also had praise for Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and the Democratic leadership, for work on the foreign aid proposal. Did Kennedy consider the vote crucial to his entire foreign aid plan? "This was certainly a key vote," Salinger replied.

Brown Hodges Is Named To County ABC Board

Brown Hodges was named to the Pitt County ABC Board at a joint meeting of the Board of Commissioners, Board of Education and Board of Health last night. Hodges replaces Jamie Ross on the three-man board. Hodges is a Grifton resident and he farms. He is a past member of the Pitt Board of Commissioners. He will serve a three-year term. Ross originally filled an unexpired term on the ABC board and later was appointed to a full term. Ross and Hodges were nominated last night with Hodges receiving the majority vote. J. W. Joyner of Farmville is chairman of the three-man board and Paul Davenport Jr. of Pacolus is the other member.

Pitt's Share

Pitt County will receive $99,874 from intangible taxes and Greenville's share will be $25,924. This is the county's and city's portion of the $9,475,921 which is to be distributed to North Carolina counties and municipalities. It represents intangible taxes collected by the state during the past fiscal year. Largest amount, $1,299,638 goes to Mecklenburg County while the smallest, $2,296, is earmarked for Tyrrell County. Martin County's share is $35,137.

Police Given 'Quickie' Course In First Aid

POLICE DEPARTMENT TRAINING Greenville police were given a "quickie" course in basic first aid measures yesterday by members of the Fire Department Rescue Unit to better prepare the lawmen to meet any emergency situation. Firemen demonstrated materials contained in first aid kits prepared by Rescue men for the police department, as well as artificial respiration and other emergency procedures. The kits, given by the rescue unit, will be carried in each police patrol vehicle to be used in emergency treatment of victims until the rescue unit can be summoned. Chief Guy Langston said yesterday's training session will be followed by more intensive training in first aid and other subjects. Officers are pictured here in the Police Department Day Room during one of the classes.

Miss Taylor And Mr. O' Bannon Are Married

AYDEN—The Ayden Christian Church was the scene of a wedding on Friday, August 11, at five o'clock, when Miss Suzanne Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Taylor, became the bride of Mr. John Norris O'Bannon Jr., of Chapel Hill and Marshall, Va. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Norris O'Bannon of Marshall.

The Rev. Goodwin Moore of Washington, N. C., assisted by the Rev. John Goff, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A large fan-shaped arrangement of white gladioli and mums backed the backdrop of red velvet draperies at the center of the altar. To the front of this stood the prayer bench covered with white satin and fern. From both sides of the altar smaller arrangements of gladioli and mums were alternately placed amid the floor candelabra and burning white tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding dress in which she made her debut to North Carolina society in 1959. It was an original of Italian silk taffeta with portrait neckline of Alencon lace. The lace bodice was reemboorded with small seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Its full redingote, bordered in matching lace, fell over a skirt of lace into a circular cathedral train. The long sleeves extended in points over the hands.

The fingertip veil of illusion was caught to a coronet of seed pearls and lace. The bride wore as an only ornament a necklace consisting of a diamond within a small white gold heart, a gift of the great grandmothers. She carried a crescent bouquet showered with stephanotis and centered with a corsage of angel orchids.

Miss Elaine Tayloe of Aulander was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Hunter Croxton, Danville, Va.; Miss Patty McCay of Richmond, Va. and Ayden; Miss Carol Ann Tadlock, Greenville; Miss Brenda Davis, Ayden; Miss Tenny's Bowlers, Washington; and Miss Shirley Moseley, Ayden. The Junior bridesmaids following were Misses Susan and Jane Sherrill of Havelock and Miss Mary Jane Tayloe of Aulander, cousins of the bride. The attendants all wore full length dresses of hyacinth-blue silk organza with round neck and loose floral folds in back extending the length of the dress. Their headresses were fashioned of blue taffeta petals and net, and they carried cascades of varicolored blue and pink asters and gypsophelia. Each wore wrist-length white gloves.

Mr. John Norris O'Bannon, father of the bridegroom, served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Messrs. Charles M. Shaffer Jr. and Philip H. Whitley of Chapel Hill; Arthur Monroe, New Orleans, La.; Hal Worth III, Raleigh; John R. Taylor, Ayden; and Lt. Frederick Russell, Marshall, Va.

The bride's mother wore a short tunic sheath of white silk lace reemboorded with brown, with a brown satin cummerbund. Her accessories were brown satin and she was wearing a corsage of white orchids.

Mrs. O'Bannon, mother of the groom, wore a banana colored peau de seie dress with bell-shaped skirt draped to the side with French bow and large rose of the same material in the center. Her hat consisted of a bow with tulle veil and she wore a green orchid corsage.

The home was decorated in white and green. In the hallway, floor stands were used to hold the silver wine coolers which were filled with gladioli and gypsophelia. The stairway to the left of the arch was draped with roping of greenery and small nosegays of mums. To the rear of the hall an auxiliary table covered with a cutwork cloth held the three-tiered white and green wedding cake.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Longino invited the guests into the dining room. The dining table was covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with a white epergne filled with white roses and stephanotis. On each side stood tall candelabra with burning white tapers.

From opposite ends of the table Mrs. Lloyd Tingle and Mrs. Satula Rutledge with Mrs. Robert Harris assisted in serving the guests rib- bon, turkey and ham sandwiches, cucumber mold with crackers, timbales with shrimp paste, miniature ice cream fruit molds, and nuts.

From an auxiliary table Mesdames P. R. Taylor, S. J. Worthington, and Allen Johnson served punch. Also assisting throughout the dining room were Misses Andrea Harris, Judy Stillman, Lorena Moseley, Terry Gwyn, Libby Stroud, Mara Ruggles Gooding, and Sarah Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Davis then directed the guests to the bride's table where Dr. and Mrs. Frank Sherrill served the wedding cake, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Shelton.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Stroud stood at the den door and directed guests to the register presided over by Mr. and Mrs. Bryce McCay. Guests were then invited to the gift room by Mrs. Louise Moseley and Mrs. Hal Edwards. Goodbyes were said to Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Gooding.

All About Town With Anne Mattox

(Editor's Note: Staffwriter Patricia Moore is substituting for Woman's Editor Anne Keziah Mattox while she is on vacation.)

The Daily Reflector this week has introduced to its pages articles by the Women's News Service. These varied articles contain up-to-date news on fashions directly from Paris and New York, stories on interesting personalities, beauty notes, and they bring into their scope both articles of a light nature and those with more serious undertones, such as what American wives in Berlin are doing under circumstances forced by present world tensions.

You'll find that Bridgette Bardot has her own perfume made by her hairdresser especially to suit her personality; that Prince Rainier (husband of Grace Kelly) has a long-standing feud with Lady Dicker of European society and won't let her vacation on the Riviera; that all cosmetics don't suit all people; and other items of feature interest.

The Daily Reflector brings these articles to its pages to make reading more enjoyable to more women. This is an exclusive feature to readers of this area.

Greenville this year is the home of one of the 14 assistant leaders for the 1961 North Carolina Debutante Ball. It was announced today that Louise Glass Ficklen, daughter of Mrs. Louise Dibrell Ficklen and Louis Stuart Ficklen, will be one of the assistants from the eastern part of the state.

The ball leader, who is Charlotte Bryan Williams (of Raleigh), and her 14 assistants form the inner circle of the traditional cartwheel figure at the presentation on Friday evening, Sept. 8. The assistants are evenly divided between the eastern and western sections of the state.

Louise attends Hollins College, where she will be a sophomore next year.

Former Greenville residents Mr. and Mrs. Dallas G. Whitford have returned to make Greenville their home once more and are residing at 1713 Elm St. Mr. Whitford has accepted a position with the State Board of Education as bus route supervisor in charge of eastern counties.

The Whitfords had been making their home in Rock Ridge, Wilson County, where he was principal of the school. While in Pitt County years ago, Mr. Whitford was a principal of both the Falkland and the Stokes schools.

They have one son, Gil, who is five years old.

Mrs. N. S. Beard and her daughter Sally have returned to Greenville from Mullins, S. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Snowdie M. Edwards of Ayden left Thursday from Raleigh-Durham Airport for New York, where they planned to fly by jet to Europe on a tour sponsored by the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association.

One of Pitt County's assistant home economics agent, Miss Lily Harper, will be making practical application of her vocation in her own home when she marries Robert Lee Hall of Greenville. The couple met in Greenville and plan to make this their home.

Lily is a graduate of Flora MacDonald College in Red Springs, where she received her B.S. degree in Home Economics. She has been employed with the Pitt County Home Economics Department about 16 months. Her fiancé, Bob, is a graduate of Rose High School and attended East Carolina College. He now works with a local bottling plant.

Miss Kay Worthington of near Ayden has returned home from Appalachian School-Camp in Banner Elk. She was enrolled there from June 12 to Aug. 4.

Announcement was made this week of the engagement of Miss Nina Lawrence Perkins of Atlanta, Ga., to Dr. Demetrios A. Polychrone, also of Atlanta. Miss Perkins received her B. S. degree in home economics from East Carolina College and is presently the assistant food editor for the "Atlanta Journal."

Dr. Polychrone completed his undergraduate work at Pomona College, Clairmont, Calif. and received his S.M. and S.D. degrees from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is an associate professor with the School of Architecture, Georgia Tech. Miss Perkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lawrence Perkins of Stokes.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Stroud stood at the den door and directed guests to the register presided over by Mr. and Mrs. Bryce McCay. Guests were then invited to the gift room by Mrs. Louise Moseley and Mrs. Hal Edwards.

Goodbyes were said to Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Gooding.

Following open house, the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Nassau, after which they will make their home in Chapel Hill.

For traveling, the bride changed to an emerald-green imported silk-linen suit with matching hat and brown skin accessories. Her corsage was of angel orchids lifted from the wedding bouquet.

Rehearsal Dinner-Dance On Thursday evening at 7:30 Mr. and Mrs. John Norris O'Bannon entertained at a formal dinner after the rehearsal honoring the O'Bannon-Taylor wedding party and out-of-town guests at the Greenville Country Club. Each place was marked with a small dream catch with white ribbons and bags of rice.

Following the rehearsal dinner, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Tayloe, Mrs. S. J. Worthington, Mr. T. A. Worthington, Miss Elaine Tayloe, and Mr. A. W. Tayloe Jr. honored the bridal couple with a dance and late buffet at the Greenville Country Club. Bridal decorations were the motif throughout, with the white satin wedding and engagement rings used as a centerpiece on the buffet table.

Your Knee Definitely Is Not A Beauty Point

By JUNE WILSON
Women's News Service
Paris, just now, is supposedly trying to redefine the feminine form and erase the desecrations done it the past few years by malformed fashions of emotionally malformed boy-designers.

It's a paradox, then, that at the same time the designers are allowing the waistline to fall to masculine imagination that only the polka dot bikini can rouse the sluggish butterflies, but you can't wear a bikini to the office.

Say this for the bikini: when you can wear one it exposes enough to keep the eye open and busy. One will get you ten that it is NOT the kneecaps, elbows or shoulder joints which lure the eye of a bikini watcher!

Maybe you are not yet enough a sophisticate to think for yourself when it comes to the clothes you wear. You only pay your money, take your chances. But while you are arriving at the point where you will be, there is a rule of thumb you can apply to your skirts with success.

There is one perfect length for you that shows your legs to particular legs it might be three or four inches below the knee. If you hesitate to look your best, then crop your skirts at the shortest just below the kneecap, but always let them cover your knees.

At best, knees are knees; at worst, they are joints. After you have passed your third birthday they are far more provocative when they are not on constant display.

Besides, if you exhibit your knees all the time, anyway, to what purpose blows the wind on that corner of the bank?

HOME DECORATING TODAY

SOME HOUSEHOLD HINTS TO HELP YOU
Save old powder puffs. Wash them and use to polish silverware. A camp stool painted to match your room makes a good stand for luggage.

Your faded carpet can be refreshed if sponged with a wet cloth from strong salt water. Place thumb tacks on each corner of the back of your picture frames and prevent picture marks on your wall. The tacks will make room for air to circulate.

Stains on marble may be removed by mixing salt with equal amounts of pumice stone and enough water to make a thick paste. Wash the marble with this, allow it to soak a few minutes then cleanse in clean salt water. To clean painted walls, dissolve five ounces of borax in gallon of water and add one half tablespoon of ammonia. NO SOAP PLEASE.

An old silk or nylon stocking makes a good strainer to strain out the lumpy particles in paint. Leave a small dish of ammonia in a closed oven 24 hours. Stains will soften and be much easier to remove.

Clean black and brown wood picture frames with a little lemon oil. Gold picture frames are best cleaned by going over them with a brush dipped in alcohol. Brush with light strokes.

When cementing old china use adhesive tape to hold in place while drying. There are many tricks in all trades. The Home Furniture Store loves to help you in anyway.

Allergy Spelled Real Trouble

By RUTH WINTER
Women's News Service
MILLBURN, N. J. — (WNS) — The bride entered the honeymoon suite all perfumed and powdered in her bridal negligee. Her young groom then had a severe asthma attack. A local physician was called and administered adrenalin.

The next night the same thing happened. The couple returned to the home town, where the bride went home to mother and the groom went to a doctor.

One of 17 million Americans who suffer from allergies, the young groom might have had his attack chalked up to some deep psychological disturbance. However, an allergist skin-tested the young man for sensitivity to substances which cause allergic reactions. He discovered the young man was allergic to oris root, a substance used in making the bathpowder worn by the bride. She gave up wearing the powder and they have been happily married ever since.

Dr. Frank Rosen, a New Jersey allergist for 25 years, has concluded that many persons are labeled "neurotic" or "cranky" when in reality they are unrecognized allergy sufferers.

An allergy is a sensitivity which some people develop to substances that are completely harmless to most other people. Housewives especially, "Dr. Rosen said, "may feel irritated when doing their household chores. They may think they are annoyed at the duties, but actually they are being irritated by the dust they are inhaling."

While Dr. Rosen emphatically believes that emotions have a great effect on allergy, he warned it can be serious, even fatal, to write the symptoms off as "strictly mental."

"If a person sniffs, sneezes, burps, coughs or scratches more than he should, he may be allergic to some substance around," Mr. Rosen said. "It may be perfume or eggs or animal fur or pollen or even his spouse."

He gave this example of a mistaken "mental" diagnosis. "A man received a better job with greater responsibilities in a new plant. He became irritable and was impatient with his wife and children when he came home.

"He didn't feel sick, exactly, but he didn't feel well. His family physician felt the man was suffering from a neurosis brought about by his promotion and said the added responsibility was the cause of his symptoms.

"However, it turned out that the man was allergic to the fumes in the new plant. As soon as he was removed from the environment, he became his old good-natured self again."

Millions of allergy sufferers, known and unknown, will be encouraged to find the cause of their grief during National Allergy Month, August 15 to September 15.

'Wear Once, Wash Once' Kid Gloves

The fashion in kid gloves for fall trends toward the long look—from 10 to 20 "buttons" in length—and in black, white, or mink colors. Seaming, bows, buttons, and drapes highlight their distinctive styling.

However, the fashion in glove care hasn't changed a bit. Since modern kid leather is washable, the rule of "wear once, wash once" still applies—using warm soap or detergent suds and rinses.

The kitchen sink must be cleaned after every meal for hygienic reasons. First wash it well with hot soap or detergent suds, then rinse with hot water.

Home Ceremony Unites Couple

Miss Judith Lowe Hardee and Jasper Donald Hudson exchanged vows Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley R. Hardee. The Rev. Floyd B. Cherry officiated, using the double ring ceremony. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hudson Jr. of Rt. 2, Grimesland.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of silk organza over taffeta. Her shoulder length veil was attached to a bridal cap of lace. She carried a bouquet of feathered carnations with stephanotis and satin ribbons.

The bride is a graduate of Chicod High School and attended East Carolina College. She is now employed with Niagara Chemical Division in Ayden.

Mr. Hudson also attended Chicod High School and East Carolina College, and is now employed with Cosart's Auto Supply in Greenville.

Following the wedding, the bride's parents entertained at a reception. After a wedding trip, the couple will reside at 1309 Forbes Street in Greenville.

More Service In Continuing Growth

More tangible evidence of the growth of East Carolina College has been in evidence this week with beginning of construction of a new dormitory, expansion of a classroom building and the acquisition of additional property for the college campus.

East Carolina College, which in all probability will set a new enrollment record this fall, has grown by leaps and bounds in the past 15 years. The growth of its enrollment as well as a corresponding increase in its faculty and staff has made a significant impression not only in this immediate area, but throughout the state as well.

The growth of the physical plant of the college, while it has not kept pace with the growth in enrollment, has likewise been appreciable during the period. The size of the campus, with the most recent property acquisition, now stands at approximately 235 acres. The new dormitory on which construction began this week will house approximately 500 men students and represent an investment of $1,155,000. A new three-story addition to the Flanagan classroom building, which also commenced this week, will cost almost $375,000.

These new facilities, impressive as they are, will not fill all the needs of the college for a physical plant with which to accommodate the constantly increasing number of students who are seeking to enter East Carolina College.

In spite of the progress made in improving and expanding the physical plant of the institution in recent years—and certainly the progress has been tremendous—the rate of growth of the college in terms of applications for enrollment has far outpaced the expansion of the physical facilities. To some degree at least, the size of the physical plant of the institution has limited the number of applicants it could admit and has thereby limited to some degree the manner in which the school could meet the demands made upon it by the people of North Carolina.

In terms of its physical plant, each new facility added on the college campus increases its potential for serving the people of North Carolina. By the acquisition of additional property for its campus in recent months the college has given itself more room for the additional facilities which will be needed in the future if it is to meet the demands that will be made upon it.

East Carolina College, as it continues to grow in the size of its student body and in terms of its physical plant, will render an increasingly important service to this section of North Carolina and to the state as a whole.

Nuclear Test Ban Talk At Stalemate Stage

Resumption of talks pointing toward an agreement on banning the testing of nuclear weapons appears at the outset a waste of time for both the East and the West.

The Soviet Union has reiterated its position on a proposed test ban, asserting it will require conditions which already have been declared unacceptable by the West. The West, on the other hand, has indicated that it intends to stand by its demand that certain safeguards be included in any test ban agreement; and the Soviets have flatly refused these reasonable safeguards in the past.

In all probability the talks will go on for the current session . . . and perhaps subsequent sessions . . . without any concrete progress being made.

While it is important that the East and West exert every effort to reach agreement on this matter which is important to the world as a whole, it appears a little foolish to continue the talks indefinitely in view of the current stalemate. Rather than continuing to talk the subject to death, it might be better to break off the negotiations entirely now and resume them at a later date when conditions appear more favorable for progress to be made toward reaching agreement.

More Interest In Resort Areas

By LYNN NISBET

STATEWIDE — The awakened interest in and recognition of the travel business as a major industry is more noticeable in the resort areas—the beaches and the mountains, although not limited to these sections.

For many years the residents of the extreme ends of the state accepted as a natural thing that the beaches and the mountains would attract visitors in the summer months, close down tight from September to May. It was further accepted as the rule that accommodations for guests should be as crude as possible. An ocean breeze or a mountain view was supposed to compensate for high prices for meager accommodations. The people who operated the lodging places did not recognize any obligation to provide entertainment for guests. The surf was there as God made it, and that was that; there were foot paths for hiking and streams for fishing in the mountains. Some of the very swank places had horses to ride.

These were individual business operations, but neither the hosts nor their guests thought of what they were doing in terms of a major industry. That idea did not develop until after World War II and made relatively light impact on popular thinking until the Travel Council sponsored a survey showing that travel business plows nearly a billion dollars a year into the total economy of North Carolina.

Partly cause and partly result of this astonishing information operators of accommodations for travelers and vacationers improved facilities, provided swimming pools and outdoor game courts, and organized recreation.

BIG BUSINESS—The provision of attractions for the entertainment of travelers has developed into almost as big business as the provision of accommodations for their eating and sleeping. From the viewpoint of private business enterprise this trend has been more marked in the western half of the state.

Governor Sanford told his news conference this week that he was amazed on a recent visit to the west at the progress made during the past two years in this field. He specifically mentioned the two million dollar "Ghost Town" project developed by R. B. Covern and associates on the mountains above Maggie Valley. His word for it was "fantastic" and he forecasts that it may well become eastern rival of the famed Disneyland in California.

Older projects, but still in development stage, are the "Tweetsie" railroad operated by the Robbins brothers near their Blowing Rock attraction; the transformation by Hugh Morton of the Wilds of Grandfather Mountain into an easily accessible attraction with a mile-high swinging bridge—and the highest convention hall east of the Mississippi. Many hundreds of thousands of dollars are being invested in ski runs and ski lifts, to make sure that the mountain resort area can operate year round—instead of just three or four summer months.

JOINT—These private enterprise operations would not be possible, either in the west or the east or in mid-state, without the millions of dollars of taxpayers money invested in highways, national and State parks, and other public facilities. The public facilities make the private business venture more profitable. At the same time, these business activities produce a good many tax dollars to help pay the public bill.

KNCB—These letters stand for a project which is known as "Keep America Beautiful" and is identified as a unit in the national organization to "Keep America Beautiful." The idea had its origin in the anti-litterbug campaigns of a few years back, but has broadened to include every phase of making the roadsides and the landscape as attractive as possible.

The "Keep America Beautiful" organization has a color film available for short term lease or purchase by State libraries and other agencies interested in the same problem.

The Travel Council of North Carolina this week is buying a print of this film to be donated to the State Library extension service and it will be available for use by civic clubs, school classrooms, family gatherings, etc., on the usual terms for such use of State films.

Same System Again Applied

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twice now American presidents and their vice presidents—because Congress wouldn't do anything on it—have had to agree between themselves on how a vice president takes over for a disabled president.

President Kennedy said Thursday he and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson have made such an agreement. It turned out to be, word for word, the same as former President Dwight D. Eisenhower made with former Vice President Richard M. Nixon on March 3, 1953.

There's a big hole in it but it's the kind of hole which may never have to be filled. The Constitution says that, in case of a president's inability to discharge his powers and duties the vice president will take over. But it doesn't say what an inability is or who decides when inability exists and when it ends.

There has been argument over this constitutional clause since the Constitution was put together. But Eisenhower's heart attack in 1955 alerted him and the country to the need for some clarification—just in case.

His two attorneys general—first Herbert Brownell and then William J. Rogers—with the help of their Justice Department lawyers examined the problem and proposed to Congress, in 1956 and 1957, that it act on a constitutional amendment. It did not.

So Eisenhower, with the help of Rogers and the best advice the latter could get, made an agreement with Nixon—an agreement now duplicated by Kennedy and Johnson with the help of the President's brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

Robert Kennedy sees eye-to-eye with Rogers on the wording of the agreement and the constitutional thinking behind it. A lot of questions can be raised about it.

But the two attorneys general thought they had reached a reasonable solution. It should be noted these two agreements applied only to the four men involved. No future president or vice president is bound by them. They will be free to make any other agreements they wish, or none. But since Kennedy and Johnson thought the Eisenhower-Nixon arrangement was good for them, their successors in the White House are likely to do the same until, or unless, Congress finally decides to act. That's unlikely.

The agreement says: 1. If the president becomes unable to carry out his duties he will—if he's able to—notify the vice president until the president's disability ends. Note: This doesn't say the vice president becomes president during a period of president's disability.

Strength For Today
By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THORNS AND ACHIEVEMENT
Practically all wild birds nest their young ones out of the nest at a certain time. If they did not do this, the fledglings would luxuriate in the soft nest and perhaps never learn to face the storm and seek their own food. The eagle has the best scheme of all. Mr. and Mrs. Eagle make their nests out of thorns, which they cover with soft down. When the elders think that the youngsters have had enough feeding and coddling, they do not cast them out of the nest as other birds do; they simply scratch out the down and the horns do the rest. It is amazing how we have to be goaded into doing most of dential disability but only acts as president.

2. If the disabled president for some reason can't tell the vice president to take over for him temporarily, the vice president will consult with people he considers "appropriate" about taking over the presidency until the disability ends.

The ground rules seem pretty narrow here for Johnson. If Kennedy became too disabled to tell Johnson to take over for him, it's a sure bet the vice president would not make a move without consulting Kennedy's brother, the attorney general.

3. The president will decide when his disability ends and resume his duties. All three of these arrangements raise questions but not more than the third in which a disabled president decides when he is no longer disabled. Suppose those around him still think he's too disabled to run the country. What then?

It's one of those iffy questions. Government lawyers say they prefer to rely on the value language of No. 3 at the present and then try to deal with particular facts and circumstances as they might arise.

While Brownell and Rogers asked Congress in vain for a constitutional amendment to clear up the whole business once for all, House Speaker Sam Rayburn thought a simple congressional act might do. Government lawyers disagreed. They said such an act would be unconstitutional. But the Kennedy-Johnson agreement is neither an act of Congress nor a constitutional amendment.

Therefore might not anything Johnson did, while acting as president for a disabled Kennedy, be challenged in court, too? For instance: If Johnson signed a bill which meant a loss of millions of dollars to someone.

But that's hypothetical at this point. Rogers and Robert Kennedy feel they have done their research and that the courts would uphold as constitutional the agreement they worked out.

Quote

"This advice can be made to fit right in with Mr. Ribicoff's advice about the little 'vegetables' who sit almost motionless for hours watching who-dunks and Westerns on tv. Break it up. Make the youngsters get outdoors and play ball, hunt birds' nests, make mud pies, do chores, go berry-picking. In other words, let'em get dirty as they want to while soaking up sunshine and breathing fresh air."—Winston-Salem Twin City Sentinel.

Resistance To Change

Shop talk . . .

In recent weeks we've been doing things to your newspaper. It was all in the field of "make-up," and by any standard the changes were relatively minor, but were reached only after a long time of mulling them over and cautious experimentation.

The first was a matter of setting the type of selected paragraphs in a story with a bolder face and indenting them, or, not setting the type to full column-width. For the present, this is being limited to the front page.

We learned too, that there is more eye-appeal when such bold, indented paragraphs are separated from the rest of the body of type with a spacing-out slug.

Why bother? Well, it's because lengthy stories look unattractively gray and dull when there is no break in their grayness. A reader is strongly inclined to scan the first three paragraphs and be content to assume he could guess the rest.

By making particular paragraphs stand out, especially if they are important segments of a story, the reader might be tricked into reading all of the details.

Then the Managing Editor suggested a "minor" change for the inside pages: doing away with the heavy double lines at the top of the page which enclosed page numbers, date and newspaper's name.

You think this is a small thing?

Try breaking a custom or way of doing things that has been going on since before you were born.

The idea was—by doing away with the really unneeded doodad at the top of the page, we would be relieving some of the sameness, "lightening" the page, and at the same time provide room for another inch or two of space for news.

Other papers had been doing it for a long time, but only by experimentation could we be satisfied.

It was found, for instance, that in compressing the same required data in eight columns we needed a three-column line. And, on the first try, the type was too bold and the underline too black.

On the second time around, we used a lighter-face type and a lighter underline. It turned out that was what we wanted. But there was another eyesore. Column-rules were extending above the lines of type and looked something like a picket fence at the top of the page.

That was fixed.

Voilà! We had it! All this is small stuff in changing and development of a newspaper's appearance; but we learned something . . . most surprising of all, a resistance to change (even in myself) from doing things as they had been accepted for many, many years.

Incidentally, when was the last time you tried getting out of an accustomed rut?

Other Editors Saying... An American Tragedy

(Richmond News Leader)

Most of America's exercise in "culture" having an uncertainty about them a groping character that leaves us far behind the great capitals of Europe. America, the late-comer among the great Western nations, takes its culture a little too deliberately and self-consciously. Museums and festivals are a novelty, not something settled in the past life and pattern of society. But one institution is so typically American, so alive with the spirit of New York, that its disappearance would be like the death of a favorite aunt. This institution, which has been thoroughly Americanized, is also the one cultural achievement that no other country can surpass. The Metropolitan is the greatest opera company in the world.

The size, the expense, the very stoutness of "the Met" are eloquent of New York. The operatic air is hardly more frenzied or glittering than the normal rhythms of the metropolis that gave the company its name. The line of "standees" that inches its way into every performance is a strange amalgam of the Village and "Little Italy," of Brooklyn and Queens and the Bronx.

When the Depression hit the Met, all its artists were asked to take a severe cut in their pay. Only one (Benjamin Gibli) refused, and for this disloyalty he lost his warm following at the Met. Caruso, once he was established at the House, never asked for a raise. In fact, he turned down such an offer; and every Christmas, stage hands and obscure people at the Met received checks from him. Through chronic deficits, through war, even through the onslaught of a Maria Callas, the Met kept America at the center of operatic achievement; and all America listened in on Saturday afternoons.

But this great opera house is under heavy assault by another typical American institution, the overweening labor union. Every year the negotiations over contracts grow more wearisome. Artist and conductors are harassed with absurd restrictions like that which kept Erich Leinsdorf and Fritz Reiner from recording in Europe this summer. Loyalty to the Met has been replaced, in some areas by loyalty to the union, and battles for certain prerogatives have made the temperamental divas look like the sweet heroines they play on the stage. This year, when the new Met is being built at Lincoln Center, when costs are skyrocketing, the orchestra union asked for a raise of $78 a week, 46 per cent above present salaries. As negotiations dragged on, singers anxiously watched their crazy-quilt schedules, and some decided to avoid the uncertainties of No-Man's-Land of the Met this year. On Monday, Director Rudolph Bing called off the coming season altogether.

The Met has canceled its season on two earlier occasions once in 1947 and again in 1956. Both times, late reconciliations allowed the Met to open after all; and music-lovers hope that this will happen again. But the complications of an attempt to avoid the uncertainties of the borderline of chaos as the union extend their claims and quibbles. The Met is a glorious gamble for everyone concerned—for contributors, directors, artist; for everyone, that is, except the unions. Musicians, like actors, now want pension plans and time-clocks. The pur in the harangues of labor leaders, those burly voices that can silence the trumpet-peal of any tenor.

Opinions In Brief

Stalin could not understand that Khrushchev does not understand that. Government to them is something very distinct from the people. In fact, they speak in official communications of the "the government and people." While their social and economic ideals are a Leninist interpretation of Marxism, their political structure remains akin to that of Ivan the Terrible. To Roosevelt and Truman, democracy meant the right of the people to control their government; to Stalin, the government was an instrument of power under the tutelage of those who control a political party which chooses the government.

From Many Sources

Every nation engages in various methods of gathering intelligence, including espionage. Intelligence is knowledge and knowledge is hard to come by. A President of the United States should be informed accurately and minutely concerning the particulars of events and personalities. For this purpose, information comes from many sources. Some is true; most is false to a degree because human beings and governments have motives or are biased or even opinionated. The problem then is to evaluate what comes in.

Evaluation is difficult for several reasons:

1. The evaluator must know the subject minutely and must have sufficient background and sound use of judgement to distinguish the true, the possible, the false. This, every competent newspaper reporter must do every day or he would find himself in difficulties, including libel suits. In the Cuban fiasco, it is obvious that the CIA and the Joint Chiefs-of-Staff evaluators were of capable of separating the wheat from the chaff. It is clear, beyond doubt, that President Kennedy was not adequately and accurately informed concerning the situation in Cuba or among the refugee groups in New York and Miami because of poor evaluation of information provided to him by the CIA or the Joint Chiefs-of-Staff or the State Department.

2. Evaluation is a technique which requires rigid adherence to a system from which there must be no deviation because of personal responses to data or individuals. A police organization, like the FBI, never discards information and does not evaluate data as true or false until it has to be used. Therefore, the FBI has always opposed making their green files available to outside eyes. These files contain raw, unprocessed information some of which may be wholly untrue but none of which is discarded because untruthful data may serve as sure leads to correct information. Under such circumstances the evaluator may come to a file that seems unrelated to the subject under consideration. Yet, it leads him to a conclusion and a fact.

3. Political information is more difficult to evaluate than criminal information. A criminal may leave no footprints on the sands of time. Governments are defensive liars even to their own people. No government therefore may be trusted with regard to data without specialized evaluation based upon keen knowledge of policy, of history, of the relationship between one government and another.

4. All information has to do with words and words have different meanings and different values among different people. For instance, when President Roosevelt or Truman spoke to Stalin about democracy, they really meant government by choice as stated in the Declaration of Independence. Government by choice makes this a republican republic in which the people select the government by direct franchise and freely discuss its policies.

Stalin could not understand that Khrushchev does not understand that. Government to them is something very distinct from the people. In fact, they speak in official communications of the "the government and people." While their social and economic ideals are a Leninist interpretation of Marxism, their political structure remains akin to that of Ivan the Terrible. To Roosevelt and Truman, democracy meant the right of the people to control their government; to Stalin, the government was an instrument of power under the tutelage of those who control a political party which chooses the government.

Whereas we refer to their rulers as dictators, they refer to ours as monopolists. Actually, it is easier for us to understand the Soviet concept than it is for them to understand ours which seems to them chaotic and confused.

The evaluator of data from such a country has to understand the essential difference in words. For instance, Communists throughout the world use what have come to be called Aesopian terminology. If that is what they choose to use, an evaluator must become totally

Nikita Provided New Argument

By ELMER ROESSNER

The group in and out of government urging the socialization of electric power have usually argued that government-generated power is sold cheaper than that produced by private enterprise.

That's usually true largely because government power plants pay no actual taxes, while private power companies pay much. And, the more efficiently the companies operate, the more taxes they pay because most of the taxes are levied on profits.

The fact that the Bonneville generators on the Columbia River have been losing up to $13 million a year, and the fact that several power companies have offered to distribute juice cheaper than the government can, take some of the steam out of the economy argument.

However, Nikita Khrushchev this week presented the government-ownership group with a new argument for expansion of government operations in the power field.

A QUESTIONABLE POSITION

It is that America, facing the possibility of war, must step up its power potential. Electric power will be needed in rapidly rising kilowatts for the manufacture of missiles, planes, rockets and other weapons. Furthermore, the argument runs, only the government can finance and create this expansion.

This argument is buttressed by the known fact that Russia has been increasing its electric power production tremendously in recent years. This week Ignaty Novikov, Soviet Minister of Power State Construction, said Russia had passed all industrial nations except the United States in electric power.

American power companies agree that more power will be needed. They point out that they have plans for expansion running for 10 to 20 years in the future.

On a recent swing around the country, I saw some of the current expansion.

NUCLEAR, WATER AND GAS PLANTS

Near Sioux Falls, S.D., I saw the Pathfinder Plant, now in the final year of construction. A group of power companies, without a bit of your tax dollar, are bringing in a nuclear power plant that will generate 65,000 kilowatts of electricity. It will use government fission material, but it will pay for it.

In Oregon, I saw how Portland General Electric is harnessing the Clacamas River to produce hydroelectric power, and I saw plans to extend this system to power-generating dams up the river—with no government largess.

NOT A LINCOLN PENNY
At Humboldt Bay near Eureka, Calif., I saw concrete being poured into a reactor with which Pacific Gas & Electric will generate 80,000 kilowatts. The plant is costing $30.6 million, not a penny of which comes out of your taxes.

At Vallecitos, Calif., I flew over the first nuclear power plant operating in the United States, which the P.G. & E. and General Electric built without tax larding.

And at Sterlington, La., I saw the Little Gysant plant, named after an old plantation on the site, of Louisiana Power & Light, the world's first fully automatic power plant. This plant is generating 247,000 kilowatts of power. Texas gas supplies the heat for the steam, but the plant is ready to use Ohio coal if gas gets too expensive. Again, not a Lincoln penny of taxes paid for this expansion.

The power companies have a good argument: If there is a crisis, let private industry take up the burden of power expansion, leaving the government free to concentrate on defense.

Spahn Setting His Goals Higher Today

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer
MILWAUKEE Wis. (AP)—Warren Spahn the Milwaukee Braves' pitching marvel laughed at Father Time and set his goals higher today as a member of baseball's exclusive 300-victory club.

The 40-year-old southpaw wonder became the 13th hurler in major league history to achieve victory No. 300 Friday night as he edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1 on a masterful six-hitter.

"I'm going to stay active as long as possible," Spahn said before heading for a party attended by teammates and friends. "My next goal is to win 20 games this year—and I'm going to have to go some with only 12 so far."

"This was the toughest game I've ever pitched," he said. "I've never had anything so tough. This thing was built up to a great degree. I couldn't help but feel it."

"Maybe I'll try for 400 but it seems awfully far away right now. Maybe I had better shoot for (Eddie) Plank's record of 325 which is the most ever for a left-hander."

Spahn joined Plank and Lefty Grove the only living member of the "300" set as the only southpaw to reach the lofty mark. Grove reported seriously ill was the last pitcher to win 300.

Spahn said that the tension mounted as he received scores of calls and telegrams throughout the day.

"About six o'clock tonight I wished it was game time," he said. "Then along in the late innings I knew they were saving Ernie Banks for me. The tension mounts and after a while it begins to get you. I was never happier than when that final out came."

Spahn finally faced Banks pinch-hitting in the ninth. Ernie hit a bouncer to Eddie Mathews for what appeared to be the last out but the Braves' All-Star third baseman overthrew first for an error. Spahn unruffled then got pinch-hitter Jim McAnany to fly to short right to end the game.

Spahn said that when he took a look at the crowd of 40,775 in 1953 after the Braves' move from Boston.

"How did I feel? About nine years older," Spahn said with a grin. "After that though I first thought of a no-hitter then a shut-out and then had to say the heck with it and tried for the win."

Packers Take Dallas In NFL Exhibition Game

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Green Bay Packers, a stand-pat club with four aces, began the exhibition phase of the National Football League season by whipping the opposition with the same stacked deck that carried them to the Western Conference championship last year.

The Packers, one of three NFL clubs that did not acquire any veterans in off-season trades, relied on quarterback Bart Starr and running mates Paul Hornung, Jim Taylor and Tom Moore to overwhelm the Dallas Cowboys 30-7 last night.

In other NFL pre-season tests, the Detroit Lions blasted the Cleveland Browns 35-7 and the Los Angeles Rams defeated the Washington Redskins 26-7. Houston trounced Oakland 35-17 in the only American Football League tuneup scheduled.

Starr, designated the Packers' No. 1 signal-caller when Lamar McHan was traded for a future draft choice, responded with a five-yard touchdown pass to Hornung and set up two more with his accurate aerials.

Taylor scored on a two-yard plunge, kicked a 16-yard field goal and booted three extra points. Moore added two touchdowns on runs of five and six yards against a Dallas club that tailed on an 80-yard pass play from Eddie LeBaron to Frank Clarke.

Ebri Morrill replaced Jim Ninowski at the quarterback post for the Lions in the second period and immediately beat the Browns with three TD tosses. Terry Barr pulled in 59 and 22 yard heaves while Jim Gibbons grabbed a 16-yard flip.

Danny Villanueva kicked field goals of 15, 30, 37 and 42 yards to give the Rams a 12-0 edge before the Redskins hit the scoreboard with a 25-yard pass from Ralph Guglielmi to Fred Dugan. Los Angeles then led it with two fourth quarter TDs.

The AFL champion Oilers led the Raiders only 14-0 at the half, but pulled away in the final two periods.

At Seventeen She Feels Old

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — At 17½, Chris Von Saltza is feeling old age creeping up on her. She already has announced that this is her last year of competition.

The point was emphasized to Chris Friday night in the second day of the women's national AAU outdoor swimming and diving championships in the 50-feter Kelly Pool.

First she was dethroned as queen of the 100-meter freestylers by Robyn Johnson, a 15-year-old unknown from Arlington, Va. Then she was soundly beaten in the 200 meter backstroke by 15-year-old Nina Harmer (2:35.0) of the Philadelphia Vesper Boat Club.

To cap the evening for the brash youngsters 14-year old Donna de Varona of Lafayette, Calif., broke her own world record for the 400 meter individual medley by two seconds in 5:34.5 and Jean Dellekamp of Shelbyville, Ind., copped the 200 meter breaststroke easily in 2:56.7.

The older set took one of the five titles decided Friday when 18-year old Joel Dina Lenzi of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., succeeded Patsy Willard, 20, of Phoenix, as 3-meter diving champion.

Young Fuller May Take On Ray

NEW YORK (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson is passing down the line in the Fuller family like a suit that an older brother has outgrown. If young Don Fuller can whip Teddy Wright tonight in Madison Square Garden his prize will be an Oct. 14 date with Robinson.

Don's older brother Gene the National Boxing Association's middleweight champion can tell him plenty about Robinson when the time comes. He fought Sugar Ray four times.

BACK YARD GOLF
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Four couples with adjoining backyards decided to build their own golf course. It has five holes, is 100 yards long and has spotlights for night play. The owners say it cost very little to build—and so far no one has broken par, which is 15.

Braves Take 2-1 Victory Over Chicago Cubs In Tough Game

Roberts Resigns From Teamsters

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Stock car race driver Glenn (Fireball) Roberts has abruptly pulled out of the Federation of Professional Athletes, declaring he fears that its affiliation with the Teamsters union may hurt rather than help drivers.

Roberts wrote and mailed to the Teamsters Friday his resignation from the athletes union, of which he had been temporary president.

Bill France, president of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR), said when told of Roberts' action.

"As far as I am concerned, he is welcome to race for NASCAR as long as he pleases and I know he'll be welcomed back by his fellow drivers. I think in future years Fireball will regard this move as the best thing he ever did for sports in America."

Last Wednesday night France had blackballed Roberts, Curtis Turner and all other drivers who signed up with the union, declaring they might not race in NASCAR - sanctioned events as long as they belonged to the FPA.

Roberts said he will drive a 1961 Pontiac in the 250-mile, $16,000 "Western North Carolina 500" at Asheville - Weaverville Speedway Sunday.

Curtis Turner, another prime organizer for the union, said at Roanoke, Va., that "the Federation will seek an injunction against NASCAR if I am prohibited from racing Sunday at Asheville."

"This will tie up for quite a while all tracks in the South which runs NASCAR races. Fireball said he just didn't want to deprive drivers from losing money while their cars were sitting still."

Roberts said France was not aware beforehand of his action in quitting the union. Only Thursday, the veteran driver had told a newsmen France's actions illustrated the need for a union.

"If some of the other drivers would stop and think," Roberts said Thursday, "that" because I've done something France doesn't like, he can ruin my career overnight, they would realize that he could do the same for them. The drivers have absolutely no representation in NASCAR. . . . (We want) a little bargaining power."

Roberts said Friday he had thought things over and feared the Teamsters affiliation may hurt racing.

"The Teamsters people have implied that to force this issue there might be injunctions and litigations which might disrupt all racing in the South," he said. "Personally, I could live five years without getting behind another wheel, but there are several on the racing circuit who aren't that fortunate."

France said NASCAR "is not an enemy of trade unions. We are very friendly with labor. It is my fault completely for classifying this thing (the FPA) as a union. It is not a union effort, but a Teamster effort to gain control of professional sports."

Spahn Becomes 13th Pitcher In Majors To Hit 300 Mark

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Tough games? Warren Spahn has pitched plenty of them.

Remember the next to last day of the 1956 season? He pitched his heart out and lost 2-1 in 12 innings at St. Louis—and the loss knocked Milwaukee out of the National League pennant.

That same season he won No. 200—and he had to go 11 innings to nail it, 4-3 over Philadelphia.

How about the sixth game of the 1958 World Series? Working with just two days rest after pitching his second victory in the series, he allowed just five hits and two runs in nine innings—and lost 4-3 in the 10th to the New York Yankees.

Then there was his first no-hitter, 4-0 over Philadelphia last year for his 11th 20-victory season—a masterpiece that wasn't clinched until first baseman Joe Adcock stretched and scooped up the ball for the final out. And his second no-hitter, for victory No. 290 last April 28, 1-0 against San Francisco—saved by fine defensive plays from Roy McMillan and Hank Aaron.

Tough games? Maybe so. But none, Spahn confesses, was as tough as the one he won Friday night.

That was No. 300, a six-hit spine-tingler as the 40-year-old wonder beat the Chicago Cubs 2-1 and became the 13th pitcher ever to win 300 in the majors, an achievement managed by only two other left-handers.

To do it, Spahn had to knock in the first run himself, with a fifth-inning sacrifice fly, and out-duel Jack Curtis, a kid southpaw who was a 5-year-old when Spahn pitched his first game for the Braves in 1942. It wasn't decided until Gino Cimoli hit a home run in the eighth inning.

Spahn's success overshadowed the pennant race, in which San Francisco beat second-place Cincinnati and dropped the Reds 1½ games behind the idle Los Angeles Dodgers. Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 6-0 in a game called after 6:13 innings because of rain—and officially eliminated the last place Phils from the race with their 78th defeat, their 14th in a row.

In the American League, Mickey Mantle hit his 44th home run and Roger Maris belted No. 42 as the New York Yankees won their ninth in a row, 12-5 at Washington, for a four-game bulge. Minnesota dropped second place Detroit 2-1. Baltimore bat-

Physicals To Be Given Monday

Coach Bud Phillips of the Rose High School football squad requests that all interested players and those who are returning from last year report to the field house at the high school MONDAY at 9:30 a.m. for a physical examination. This is required before practice begins.

The official practice will start on Tuesday at 8:00 a.m. Uniform for the morning practices will be shorts and shoes. Heavy equipment will be used at the afternoon sessions which begin at 3 p.m. Players are requested to bring their own shorts and shoes to the morning practice sessions.

Physicals To Be Given Monday

Spahn (12-12) struck out five and walked only one, giving up the run in the sixth on three singles before becoming the first to win 300 since Lefty Grove did it with the Boston Red Sox in 1941.

The Giants, after blowing a 1-0 lead, broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth on a two-run single by Orlando Cepeda. Lefthander Jim O'Toole (11-9), who singled for the Reds' Juan Marichal (10-7), a right-hander, was the winner.

Bob Clemente drove in two runs with a double and a home run for the Pirates, who roughed up Robin Roberts (1-9) on his return from the disabled list with a five-run first inning. Bob Friend (12-13) was the winner.

FCC Player With San Diego Team

Glenn Bass, all-conference half-back for two years at East Carolina College, is now playing with the San Diego Chargers football team.

Bass played for about 20 minutes in the Chargers' first game this season with the Houston Oilers. Playing the split end form, he caught two passes for a total of 22 yards. The Chargers won the contest 27-14.

A 1961 graduate of ECC from Wilson, Bass was picked as the most valuable player in the All-American Bowl held at Tucson, Arizona last December.

Bass also played shortstop on the 1961 National Champion Pirates baseball team and was on the second team All-American baseball squad.

Mantle And Maris Gain One Homer Each, Friday

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Mickey Mantle has his 44th home run and Roger Maris finally belted No. 42 but the New York Yankees' home run hero of the moment is Earl Battey—who does his work for the Minnesota Twins.

It was a pair of home runs by the Twins' catcher that beat Detroit 2-1 Friday night and dropped the second-place Tigers' four games behind New York in the American League race after Mantle and Maris had unloaded in a 12-5 breeze at Washington.

That gave the Yankees a nine-game streak—their longest since they closed the 1960 season with a pennant-clinching run of 15.

Mickey's home run his first since last Sunday put him 14 runs ahead of Babe Ruth's record-60 pace in 1927. Maris hit his first in eight games in 11 games ahead of Babe Ruth's Baltimore smacked Boston 6-3 Cleveland defeated Los Angeles 3-2 and the Chicago White Sox

Top Two In CL Lose Friday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Top Place Burlington and runner-up Wilson missed a chance to gain ground on each other Friday night in the tight Carolina League pennant race.

Burlington dropped a 7-3 decision to Winston-Salem and Greensboro edged Wilson 4-3.

Jim Williams' triple with the bases loaded in the third inning powered Winston-Salem to its victory.

Greensboro rallied for two runs in the ninth to nip Wilson. Chuck Reidell's 27th home run of the season tied up the game. Then Chuck Boone delivered the game-winning single behind Ron Paul's double.

The Durham Bulls outbit by 11-5 defeated Raleigh 3-2 to deadlock the Caps for fifth place.

Tonight's games: Greensboro at Durham Burlington at Raleigh and Winston-Salem at Wilson.

Ga.-Fla. Tobacco Prices See Decline

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—Prices turned downward for some grades of flue-cured tobacco this week and quality was lower than last week as many growers brought their last offerings to Georgia-Florida markets, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported today.

Volume continued heavy, reaching a season peak on Tuesday and slackening gradually during the remainder of the week.

Gross sales during the week ending Aug. 11 totaled 62,336,916 pounds and averaged $59.07 per hundredweight. This was a decline of $2.18 from last week's all-time high.

Sales for the 12 days so far stand at 150,265,924 pounds, averaging $60.16, the USDA reported.

About two-thirds of leaf offerings decreased one dollar to five dollars per hundredweight from last week, with these grades hitting the market in large quantities. Much of this tobacco had a slick appearance the demand was weak for such offerings, the USDA said.

Green lugs were down $2 to $3 and the remaining grades were about in line with the previous week. The practical top price continued at $66.

Declines were chiefly $1 to $3 a hundred pounds, although a few grades sold $1 higher. Leaf grades made up more than two thirds of the sales. Quality was lower.

Auction bid averages a hundred pounds on a limited number of the representative U. S. grades Friday included:

Leaf—Fair lemon $62, down $1; low lemon $59, down 3; fair unripe lemon 60, up 1; good orange 65, up 1; fair orange 62, down 1; low orange 59, down 1; poor orange 56, down 2; fair unripe orange 58, up 1; low unripe orange 55, up 1.

Cutters—Low lemon 56, unchanged.

Lugs—Fair lemon 65, down 1; fair orange 65, unchanged.

Nondescript—Best thin body 38, down 3.

Funeral Set Sunday For William W. Best

Mr. William Walter Best, 86, died at his home near Grifton on 10:45 Friday night following a brief illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel at 3:30 Sunday afternoon by the Rev. Irvin Adcock, pastor of the Grifton Baptist Church, assisted by the Rev. Edward Miles, pastor of Spring Branch Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will be in the Phipps Cemetery.

Bank To Display Collection Of Old Currency

An historical collection of currency dating back to the Colonial Revolutionary period composed principally of large (old) size notes will be on display at Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. Aug. 21 through Aug. 26.

R. W. Howard, senior vice president, said the exhibit consists of six panels of various issues and various currency series.

The exhibit will be at the Main Office, Fifth and Washington Sts., Aug. 21 through Aug. 23 and at the Evans St. office from Aug. 24 through Aug. 26.

The Wachovia Bank has scheduled the exhibit so that Pitt County residents may become acquainted with representative types of large (old) size U. S. currency of yesterday, and especially those notes with historical significance, Howard said.

Fighting Ship's Ammo: Lollipops

BOSTON (AP)—A fighting ship is getting ready to combat communism—with lollipops.

The USS Forrest Sherman, a destroyer intended for anti-submarine warfare, took aboard 10,000 lollipops Friday for distribution to kids in African ports.

The Sherman leaves next week from Newport, R.I., naval station, for a goodwill tour of African ports. At each stop, the natives will be invited aboard and, as long as the 10,000 lollipops last, each child will be given one.

Firemen Respond To Kitchen Fire

Firemen were called to 1203 A. Glen Arthur St. about 2:41 p.m. yesterday when a fire was reported at the dwelling.

Responding firemen said the blaze at the dwelling which caused damage to a wooden cabinet, food and ceiling in the kitchen, was caused by a pan of grease on the stove catching fire.

Firefighters noted that a Grimesland youth, helping a family move into an apartment at 1203 B. Glen Arthur St. stopped the spread of the fire by running into the smoke-filled kitchen and throwing water on the blaze before fire units arrived.

Body Recovered

HERGISWIL, Switzerland (AP)—The body of an unidentified woman was recovered from the bottom of Lake Lucerne Friday. Police said she was one of eight victims of the Aug. 2 bus tragedy still missing after the bus was raised from the lake. Sixteen of the 35 American tourists in the bus drowned.

Four Drown In Sewer Accident

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP)—The humidity climbed and the wind dropped today, helping weary firefighters in their struggle against the Northwest's biggest forest fire in 25 years.

Three fire fighters have died and scores have suffered burns and other injuries, mostly minor, in battling the flames.

Forest Service officials hoped their 1,475-man army might be able to bring the series of blazes under control by Monday—if the weather continues in their favor.

The worst fire was at Sleeping Child in the Bitterroot forest near the Montana-Idaho border, 60 miles south of Missoula.

Smoke became so dense Friday that Mount Stone and Mount Sentinel became shadows. The fire sent a similar haze over Salmon, Idaho.

The winds shifted in favor of the men, aiding them in slowing the blaze, which already has blackened 28,000 acres of giant evergreens.

There also were bad blazes in the Clearwater forest of Idaho, which also is along the Continental Divide.

The Horseshoe Lake fire in the Clearwater burned another 300 acres Friday, but officials thought they would have it under control in another 24 hours. It has covered 3,200 acres.

Seven hundred men are fighting the 300-acre Surprise Creek fire and hope to have it under control by Sunday. The Wever Creek blaze finally was checked.

Area Reservists At Fort Bragg

Fort Bragg is now the scene of much activity as Army Reservists from Greenville and Washington 398th Engr Co. (Maint.) (DS) are now engaged in two weeks of "on the job training."

The fields of activity consist mainly in training the welder, machinist, and mechanic to better offer direct support to maintenance line units. Training on electronics and radio are being conducted to strengthen the engineer component.

Supervision of the training is being offered by the 64th Engr Co. of Fort Bragg. All reservists show high interest in their training, and they feel sure that this will be valuable in strengthening the effectiveness of their unit.

1st Lt. John K. Thomas, commanding officer, reports that he is well pleased with the training of his men, and that they will return to Greenville on August 20. These men are a part of 25,000 Army Reservists of the XII U.S. Army Corps who are participating in annual training this summer.

Three Persons Injured In Local Accidents

Three persons were injured in traffic mishaps during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today, according to Police Department reports. In the four collisions investigated during the period, damage was estimated at $1,675.

Heaviest property damage resulted when two vehicles collided on 10th Street in front of the East Carolina College Memorial Gym. Officers reported that a vehicle operated by Donald Anderson Burnette, 17, of 118 North Park Drive was struck in the rear by a vehicle driven by Sam Rogers Tyson, 42, of 1011 Colonial Ave.

Both vehicles were traveling east at the time, the report continued. Damage to the Burnette vehicle was estimated to be $1,000 while an estimated $250 damage resulted to the front of the Tyson car.

Tyson suffered cuts and bruises about the face, police said. He was charged with following too closely by investigators. The wreck occurred about 3:07 p.m.

Henry Samuel Cathey Jr., 26, of 2306 East Fourth St. suffered head injuries early this morning when the car he was driving struck a utilities pole on Albemarle Ave. near the intersection of Grand Ave. and Chestnut Street.

Investigating officers, who listed damage to the vehicle at $200, quoted Cathey as saying he was traveling south on Albemarle Ave. at about 15-20 miles per hour, and went to sleep, then hit the pole.

No charges were made by officers in the 3:50 a.m. collision. A nine-year-old Negro boy, Henry R. Jones, escaped serious injury yesterday when he allegedly ran from the curb into the path of a vehicle at the intersection of Fifth and Tyson Sts. about 5:10 p.m.

Officers, who said Jones lives at 422-B Tyson St., reported he suffered only abrasions to his right leg in the collision.

Operator of the vehicle which struck the child was identified as Michael J. House, 24, of Bethel. No charges were made.

Richard M. Miller, 28, of 1214 Charles St. was charged with failure to see his intended movement could be made in safety by officers who investigated a collision near the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and Pitt St. at 12:21 p.m. yesterday.

Officers reported that the Miller car was involved in a collision with a vehicle driven by E. J. James, 26, of 1612 East Wright Rd. Damage to the Miller vehicle was set at $75 while damage to the James car was placed by officers at $150.

No injuries were reported.

Reject Proposal To Carry Arms

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP)—Representatives of pilots and cabin attendants on the nation's air lines have rejected proposals to arm crew members and lock cockpit doors to airmine hijackers.

A door strong enough to keep out hijackers might also hinder rescuers in case of an accident, spokesman for the Airlines Pilots Association and the Airlines Stewards and Stewardesses Association said Friday.

They said the barricaded door could also delay flight crew members in reaching passengers in an emergency.

Funeral Sunday For Michael E. Gattis

WASHINGTON, N. C.—Michael E. Gattis, 70, died at 9:30 Friday morning in the Beaufort County Hospital following critical illness of three hours.

Mr. Gattis was born in Raleigh, son of the late Maggie and John Q. Gattis. He attended Wake County Schools and was employed by the Norfolk and Southern Railroad April 15, 1915. At the time of his retirement in March, 1957, he was railroad conductor.

Mr. Gattis was married to Ethel A. Elliott of Washington on Dec. 24, 1917. He has made his home in Washington since that time.

He was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the First Christian Church, Orr Lodge No. 104 AF&AM, the Washington York Right Masonic Bodies, Sudan Temple Shrine.

Surviving with his wife are one foster daughter, Mrs. L. Clinton West, Gainesville, Fla. and three grandchildren; two brothers, Dan and John Gattis; one sister, Mrs. L. N. Massey all of Raleigh.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Chapel of the Oden Funeral Home with Dr. Rhodes Thompson officiating. Burial will be in Oakdale Cemetery with Masonic graveside rites.

All 10 are visiting the U. S. to study farm organization work at the local and county levels, extension service programs and farm cooperative activities.

School-Burning Charged 2 Boys

LENOIR, N.C. (AP)—Two 16-year-old boys, (both of whom quit school in the seventh grade), have been charged with the burning of the old Whitnel school on July 31.

Bond of $10,000 each was set for Lonnie Greer of Deep Gap and Charles Nichols of Whitnel at a hearing Friday. They are docketed for trial at the term of Caldwell Superior Court opening Aug. 21.

The school was used for storage of textbooks and educational supplies. Damage was estimated at $8,000.

Report Progress In Congo Work

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The U.N. Congo operation reported new strides today in its campaign to train Congolese to take over the complex tasks performed for the past year by international experts.

In a report the United Nations judged the operation "has already staved off disaster and is beginning to move slowly forward, albeit against a somber background of grave economic difficulties."

When the former Belgian colony won its independence in June 1960, it had only a handful of college graduates, no medical doctors or judges. Few Congolese By the end of June 1961, the report stated, about 1,000 Congolese had been enrolled in training courses organized by the United Nations in agriculture, civil aviation, meteorology, postal services, education, health and police duties.

Really A Cat With Deformity

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A veterinarian who examined what appeared to be a half cat, half rabbit says it's really a cat with a deformed spine that causes it to hop like a bunny.

The veterinarian, who asked his name be withheld, says that the white cat with brown spots is partly of the Manx breed. This is a variety indigenous to the Isle of Man in the Irish Sea, and characterized by a rudimentary tail.

The cat that 8-year-old Michael Fluharty of Whiteville recently lured into a box baited with bread has a short tail, like that of a cottontail rabbit.

After the story was publicized, Solon Ward, who lives in Columbus County a few miles from Whiteville, said it was his cat. It has been returned to him. He said there was a similar hopping cat in the litter.

Soviet Families Leaving Berlin And E. Germany

By MARGARET ANDERSON BERLIN — (WNS)—Russian families are being moved out of the Berlin area amid reports of a general recall of Soviet wives and children to Russia.

There is an exodus of Red Army families from Soviet headquarters in the Karlshorst district of East Berlin, and from Potsdam, the Soviet area headquarters.

Greenville's urban renewal project planning is halted in the midst of another controversy now but Norfolk's moves steadily on.

The Virginia city is recognized as one of the most advanced in the nation in rejuvenating its blighted areas. As such it is often visited by citizens of other communities who are beginning projects.

A bus load of Kinston businessmen journeyed to Norfolk recently to see the progress made there.

The trip was sponsored by the recently-organized Kinston Redevelopment Commission. Kinston is just beginning urban renewal planning although it has had public housing for many years.

Forced Sale: 2 Children

By SPENCER MOOSA TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Wu Tien Tzu's wife had been ill for two years. She needed surgery.

Wu, 46, earned $1 a day (U.S.) by pedaling a pedicab—a bicycle-powered ricksha—he had bought second-hand in 1946.

On a day when Wu had 35 cents, he decided to sell the two youngest children.

His asking price for both was $125. It was no publicity stunt.

As a child, Mrs. Wu had been bought from her parents to serve as a domestic servant for her purchases.

On April 23 this year Wu placed his daughter, Tsui-Ying, 6, and son, Tai-Huang, 4, in his pedicab and hung this sign on the rain shield:

"Urgently sell son and daughter for medical treatment of wife."

THE TRIP HOME Wu Tien Tzu pedicab wife from hospital.

With the Kinston group was Roy Hardee, WNCT newsman, who reported that he was amazed at the ease with which traffic flowed in the urban renewal areas.

He reported the Kinston people saw a vast program underway to clean up the old water front district there. He described the general appearance and planning of buildings as outstanding.

Centralization of facilities such as Norfolk's new medical center was impressive.

"The biggest thing is the fact that they are planning definitely not for tomorrow nor next year but for 20 years from now," Hardee stated.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER One feature of many book review supplements these days is a section on new recordings of literature, generally poetry.

This points to a fact, the implications of which we are frequently likely to ignore, that with the perfection of the gramophone to the point where every shading and nuance of the human voice can be projected, poetry is again becoming to some extent oral, as of course it was originally.

The Poets Speak There are good and bad recordings of poetry on the markets, some of the "bad" ones being the renditions of the poets themselves, like Robert Graves and W.H. Auden, as contrasted to the "good" ones done by authors like T.S. Eliot and Dylan Thomas.

Now, however, a writer in the Times Literary Supplement advances the proposition that actually there can be no such thing as a bad recording (aside from technical imperfections) of a writer reading his own works, since his rendition is the closest possible approximation to a literal presentation of what he intended in the first place for the poem to be in terms of tempo, tone, and emphasis.

Professional readers, generally actors, this article goes on to say, tend to add dramatic flourishes to their readings which may be interesting to the listener, but which may well distort the original intention of the author.

Writing For Recitation One wonders, however, how much of the work of such writers as Graves or Auden was ever written to be orally rendered via the gramophone, or any other way. Certainly most of what they wrote has very much less intrinsic ear appeal than, say some of the verse of Dylan Thomas, who apparently became increasingly conscious of his powers as a reciter of his own work as he went along (nobody wants to hear a whole raft of two-stanza poems on a program) and more mellifluous than his earlier ones.

Concern, for qualities which will make a poem click when recited, is what truly makes for an oral tradition. This interest actually finds its most obvious expression today in America among the Beatniks, whose main interest in poetry is to write it for recitation.

Whatever the state of oral poetry may be, we can be glad that we have recordings of the voices of all the major poets of the English-speaking world as far back as Tennyson and Browning, and that efforts are being made both here and in Britain to develop libraries of all the important records and tapes which these poets made.

In the new Harper's the lead article is an assessment by Adlai Stevenson of the problems which this country faces in reacting to the Russian challenge. Stevenson is always a pleasure to listen to or to read, and this article is no exception. His thesis is that we can and must avoid the "three great distempers of the modern mind: reaction, complacency, mediocrity."

In discussing the dangers of a reactionary response, he contrasts the brilliant improvisations of India in its struggle against British power with Hitler's senseless imitation of many of the worst features of communism in his attempt to defeat it.

Another blow at censorship was struck last month when Henry Miller's autobiographical novel "Tropic of Cancer" was published by Grove Press, after being on the contraband list of American customs since it was first issued in Paris in 1935. The legal question concerning its distribution in this country is apparently still somewhat in doubt, since in New York and elsewhere it is being sold under the counter by some timid booksellers. Naturally, therefore, sales are booming, and they are also being helped by rumors that this work will soon join the other works which have been banned in Boston by the city authorities.

Of course, the question of the quality of Miller's book is another matter which we have not personally explored, though critics like George Orwell, Eliot, Dos Passos, and Aldous Huxley have praised it highly. In fact, Lawrence Durrell compares Miller's formless mess with that of Melville and Whitman.

The whole question of smut in literature will have to be explored some other time. Having just finished Norman Mailer's "The Naked and the Dead," we feel like an authority on the subject, though this work escaped banning everywhere, so far as we know.

DeGaulle Calmly Takes Holiday As Problems And Dangers Mount Up

EDITOR'S NOTE — Auster Charles de Gaulle has gone on his mid-August holiday as usual, showing the same 'steadfast calmness he always has in times of great strife. Veteran AP correspondent Godfrey Anderson analyzes some of the problems confronting the French leader with some of De Gaulle's friends fearing for his life.

By GODFREY ANDERSON
PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle's government this year regards the mid-August holiday season much as Julius Caesar once regarded the Ides of March.

No soothsayer is needed to warn that the Fifth French Republic stands in danger. Some Frenchmen, and those among the best informed, see even the possibility of an attempted rightist coup d'état this month.

With De Gaulle the main obstacle to the success of rightist plans, they fear for his life. The lofty, disdainful president as usual gives no public sign that anything could be wrong with the serenity of his regime. Two days ago he started his usual vacation at his country retreat of Colombey-les-Deux-Églises, 120 miles from Paris.

There are plenty of problems. The painfully slow Algerian peace talks have broken down again amid the continuing explosion of plastic bombs. The louchy question of France's Bizerte naval base is still unsettled. The United Nations will debate it Aug. 21. The farmers are acting up again, pressing for Parliament's recall to discuss their problems. Behind it all, the Berlin crisis is looming ever larger.

Professional politicians who oppose De Gaulle see themselves relegated to the background of conducting foreign affairs, so long as the present strong man of France holds power. Many army officers bitterly oppose his proposed solution of the Algerian problem by letting the Algerians choose for themselves. They call it selling out the empire.

Those who tried to unseat the regime by the Algiers revolt of January 1960 and April 1961, still thirst for revenge. Many of their leaders are still at large. Probably most of the Europeans in Algeria, feeling they now have little to lose, are ready to back them in a last, desperate throw.

Just as in April, well informed journalists warn of impending danger. The conservative Paris daily Figaro, the influential leftist weeklies Express and France-Observateur, all stress that the regime is in danger. Last time they were right. This time who knows?

August is a specially dangerous period because aristocratic plotters might profit from the midmonth vacuum when the capital is virtually emptied of its native population and given over to tourists.

Next Tuesday is the traditional Assumption Day holiday. Every Frenchman who can, and most can, claims an extra day on his vacation. Those who took off in the first half of August linger a day or two more before returning. Those due to leave in the second half of the month get away early.

The result is that the center of Paris and other big cities become a virtual desert for 48 hours or so. Authorities are taking precautions with this in mind.

Extra riot police have been brought into Paris. The government insists they are here for traffic control.

Road blocks at main entries to the capital operate nightly. Late-returning suburbanites are held up while identity papers are checked and luggage trunks searched.

Trade unions and leftist political organizations have arranged for their headquarters to be permanently staffed during the holidays. Duty officials maintain close contact with the Interior Ministry.

A joke going the rounds in Paris sums up distrust reigning in the higher echelons of the army.

Two generals meet. The first says: "Bon jour, mon general. What do you think of the situation?"

The second answers warily: "The safe as you, mon general."

"Ha!" cries the first. "Then I arrest you!"

Sit-Ins Fail In Legislative Try

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Civil rights demonstrators, who have been sitting in the rotunda of Wisconsin's Capitol for 13 days and nights prepared today to fold up their chairs and go home.

The demonstrators failed to win approval of legislation they were supporting but their leaders expressed satisfaction that the sit-in had brought attention to their problem.

The legislature slammed the door Friday on the last hope held by the demonstrators for favorable action on civil rights' bills supported by the group.

Bills aimed at prohibiting racial discrimination in public housing programs and to increase the power of the Governor's Commission on Human Rights were killed as both houses rushed through their business in the hopes of recessing today until next fall.

Lloyd Barbee Madison President of the Wisconsin chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) said his group was disappointed but not disheartened.

Barbee said he believed the demonstration had some good results.

"There was a time when legislators wouldn't even admit there was a housing discrimination problem in Wisconsin," Barbee said. "At least they recognize the problem now."

"I also believe the public has a better understanding of the situation because of this sit-in," he said.

Barbee added that when the demonstration ends the final group of sit-ins—16 persons seated before the 16 columns in the statehouse rotunda—will walk quietly out the west exit the same way they came in July 31.

Want U.S. Revive Letters Of Marque

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of Californians wants Congress to revive 'letters of marque and reprisal' used among others by corsairs who sailed the Spanish Main, capturing and plundering enemy ships.

The Conservative Americans of San Diego want the letters to authorize private persons to seize property in restitution for what they call thievery by Fidel Castro's Cuban regime.

Since taking office early in 1959, the Castro government has seized $1 billion in property of U.S. citizens operating businesses in Cuba.

The petition group filed with the House Commerce Committee and made public through the office of Rep. James B. Utt, R-Calif., does not specifically ask for authority to operate armed craft as privateers.

But Charles M. Barrack, one of the spokesmen, said in an interview privateering is certainly "one of the possibilities that could be opened up" if Congress authorized letters of marque.

He said "I personally would rather see the government itself take action. We purposely wrote the petition in general terms to arouse interest in the situation and discussion of what might be done."

Barrack and William K. Shearer, Oceanside, Calif., weekly newspaper publisher, said the petition represented "the advice and suggestions of approximately 1,000 Southern Californians."

It asks Congress to "define the recent acts of the Cuban, Castro, as piracies or offenses under the law of nations, and to issue letters of marque and reprisal to one or several of our number, or to those Americans best qualified in the judgment of Congress to act under the authority of such letters of marque and reprisal, or as Congress shall direct."

However, information available at the Library of Congress indicates most Western powers have specifically renounced the use of letters of marque.

President William McKinley declared the policy of the United States to be against the use of privateers. Ironically enough, this declaration came in 1899, during the war in which U.S. forces freed Cuba from Spanish rule.

Shelved

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, after careful study, has decided not to set up diplomatic relations with Outer Mongolia at this time.

The State Department announcement Friday said: "We believe that in view of the existing world situation it is in the best interest of the United States to suspend further exploration of that matter at this time."

Outer Mongolia, a sprawling desert and mountain land about one-sixth the size of the United States, has a population of about one million.

It lies between Red China and the Soviet Union and advocates of U. S. recognition said a U. S. embassy at Ulan Bator, the Mongolian capital, would provide a useful listening post deep inside Communist territory.

Nationalist China expressed strong opposition to U. S. recognition of Outer Mongolia and this view drew support from some senators, mostly Republicans.

CONSISTENCY!

Newspaper Advertising Hits the Mark with a Large and Constant Audience

There's nothing hit-or-miss about the newspaper audience—it's a constant audience that varies little throughout the year. That's because newspaper circulation remains constant with little variation from month to month. There is no summer slump in newspaper reading habits. Furthermore, readers can pick their own time—day or night—to enjoy the paper. And they do—over 107,000,000 of them every day in the U. S. For sure-fire results, advertise consistently in the daily newspaper.

Echo Satellite Still Orbits After A Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—Echo I—a satellite you can see with the naked eye—observed its first birthday today still whizzing about the earth months after experts had predicted it would have fallen to a flaming death in the earth's atmosphere.

U.S. experts now estimate the huge balloon satellite viewed by millions around the world during the past year may sail around the earth for another year. Although it has proved much more durable than anticipated the 100-foot-diameter aluminum-coated sphere is only about two-thirds as effective now as when it was in its prime.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said today that in recent experiments in the bouncing of radio signals off the oversized space ball the average reflected energy was about 40 per cent less than when it was injected into orbit last Aug. 12.

"Satisfactory transmission of voice teletype and facsimile communications is still possible," NASA said.

NASA scientists offer several theories as to what has happened to Echo I.

Most agree that the once-smooth surface has become wrinkled with the passage of time and the recurrent transitions from sunlight to darkness and from intense heat to bitter cold. Some believe it may have shrunk to a diameter of perhaps 70 feet. Others suggest that it has lost its spherical symmetry and has taken somewhat the form of a football—and thus distorts signals.

Still others speculate that the extremely thin skin may have been punctured or even riddled by impact with micrometeorites.

During its first year in which it will have made 4480 revolutions of the earth and traveled more than 136 million miles Echo has been used in some 150 significant communications experiments.

Mom May Lose Welfare Aid For A Swimming Pool

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Even though it may mean losing public assistance for her 10 children, Elina Sawicki says she plans to accept and install the $4,000 swimming pool she won recently on a national television show.

The welfare department said Friday it was unlikely that Mrs. Sawicki could accept the pool and still draw public aid.

Her children are so set on getting the pool, Mrs. Sawicki said she would go to work if welfare payments are discontinued. "I worked before and can again," she said. Mrs. Sawicki is a divorcee.

Ruth Bowman, welfare director, said her department was not so much concerned with the pool itself as with the added costs it would bring. She said it certainly would raise insurance rates on the Sawicki home and might boost the value of the property beyond the figure needed to qualify for aid.

To meet safety laws, Mrs. Sawicki will have to construct a fence around the pool. She said that relatives had volunteered to meet that expense.

A welfare spokesman said that if relatives were willing to do that, they also should be able to contribute to support of the children.

Mrs. Sawicki said she regards that stand as unreasonable because the 16 by 32-foot pool was a windfall and doesn't change the status of the family in requiring support.

In addition to the pool, Mrs. Sawicki also won two lounge chairs, a freezer and other gifts on the show, ABC's "Queen for a Day," which was telecast from the Twin Cities for a week last month.

Nine of the children—Estelle, 17, Alex, 16, Rosemary, 14, Fred, 12, Deborah, 11, Michael, 10, Norma, 5, Roxanne, 3, and Catherine, 1½ are at home. John, 9, is a patient at the Cambridge State Hospital.

N. C. Pentecostal Holiness Church Conference Holding Annual Session

Several ministers of the Pentecostal Holiness Church are serving on important committees reporting on policies and programs of work during the 51st annual session of the North Carolina Conference now meeting at Falcon.

The conference began Friday morning and will continue through Sunday night.

The Rev. W. E. Thompson, minister of the First P. H. Church in Greenville, is chairman of the Conference Evangelism Committee and the Rev. Joe L. Russell, Jr., pastor of St. Paul P. H. Church, on the Washington highway, is chairman of the Decorum Committee. The Rev. Wiley T. Clark of Bethel is a member of the Conference Evangelism Committee.

During the past week, the 61st annual Falcon Camp Meeting has featured sermons by ministers of the North Carolina Conference, with the Rev. Mr. Thompson as one of the guest speakers.

The Rev. Mr. Thompson will be a delegate to the Quadrennial General Conference in Meet in Richmond, Va., October 18-25, and Mrs. Thompson will be a delegate to the general convention of the Woman's Auxiliary, also meeting in Richmond, for three days preceding the church-wide international gathering.

Wash't Passed

RALEIGH (AP)—No. Mr. homemaker, you can't deduct the cost of building a fallout shelter from either your North Carolina state income tax or your local property taxes.

Maj. Gen. Edward F. Griffin, state director of Civil Defense, announced this in an effort to clear up some confusion on the matter.

Griffin said the confusion apparently resulted from the fact that a bill to permit deduction of costs of shelter construction from state income taxes was considered by the General Assembly—but was not passed.

Firemen Depart For New Truck

Greenville Fire Department Captains Jessen Allen and Claude Christopher left today for Elmira, N. Y., where they will take delivery of the Fire Department's new 1,000-gallon-per-minute American LaFrance pumper.

The purchase of the $26,136 truck was approved by the City Council April 13. A second and identical truck has since been approved and delivery on that vehicle is scheduled for October, fire department officials noted.

According to Chief George W. Gardner, the two officers, both of whom are training instructors for the department, will spend several days at the American LaFrance factory familiarizing themselves with the construction and operation of the truck.

They will drive the big vehicle back to Greenville and are expected to arrive here the last of next week.

The chief noted the truck will be on display over the weekend after it arrives and extended an invitation for interested persons to visit the department and inspect the unit.

Chief Gardner emphasized that the department is always open to visitors, explaining that this was simply a "special" invitation.

Barn Saved, But Tobacco Burned

GRIMESLAND—A fire this morning destroyed approximately 600 sticks of curing tobacco on the farm of Mrs. Percolia Boyd at Hans Crossroads about two and a half miles from here.

Elmore Hodges, assistant chief of the Grimesland Rural Fire Department, said firemen were able to save the barn and the gas-burners, but the contents were lost.

Hodges said the alarm came in about 7:45 this morning. The tobacco belonged to a tenant, Bob Mills.

Today's fire, Hodges reported, marked the fifth tobacco barn fire this season for the Grimesland rural fire company.

Pipeline Plans Cooled Received

MOREHEAD CITY (AP)—A proposal that Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad participate in the construction of a $2 million fuel pipeline from here to Seymour Johnson Air Force Base met a cool reception Friday.

The railroad's directors took no action on the request made by E. M. Callis of the North Carolina Storage and Pipeline Corp., Raleigh.

Callis said the interests involved would share in profits from the project. He added the Air Force had directed that construction of the 98.7 mile pipeline go forward immediately. Callis proposed that about 30.6 miles of the pipeline be on the railroad right-of-way.

George Akers Moore Jr. of Raleigh, railroad president, told the directors "We (A&NC) have had no request from the Air Force in regard to this pipe line."

The state owns two-thirds of the stock in the A&NC which runs from Goldsboro to Morehead City. It was leased to the Atlantic and East Carolina Railway, which later leased the road to Southern Railway.

Distillery Odor Reduced Taxes

INVERNESS, Scotland, (AP)—City officials reduced taxes for more than 100 home owners Friday because the householders objected to the smell of scotch whisky.

The houses are located near one of Inverness' distilleries and a spokesman for the residents said the aroma was at times unbearable. So, the home owners appealed for a reduction in property taxes.

"They really have no case," said James Mitchell, assistant tax assessor, but the city council decided to shave two pounds ($5.60) annually off the taxes.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

Mankind's need for a spiritually meaningful set of values will be brought out at Christian Science services this Sunday.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon on "Soul" is the Golden Text from Psalm 62: "My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from him. He only is my rock and my salvation."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy this passage will be read: "Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual,—they must meet the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite—in order that sin and mortality may put off."

(p. 265).

A citation to be read from the Bible (Matt. 16) states: "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"

Western Historical Novel THE BURNEDWOOD MEN

CHAPTER 1

The clanking of the Mountain Queen's sternwheel walked rhythmically across the water. Her whistle mourned, the sound striking back from the high outbanks across the Missouri.

Tam Barrie walked along the levee as the Queen's blunt prow beat toward the bank. He could hear the jangle of her bells as with her paddlewheel turning dead slow, she followed her bow wave almost into the bank.

At the last moment her reversed wheel flung up a flurry of white water. The Mountain Queen was safe in Fort Benton, at the end of her long journey from St. Louis.

Tam Barrie stood among the crates striding down the bank and hogsheads piled in gross confusion on the Fort Benton levee. He watched as a hundred eager hands reached for the boat's mooring lines. As the deck hands ran the staveplank out, he moved forward.

If Dove Demarest and Cleland Strike are on her, he thought, no use in holding back. I might as well let Strike know a representative of the bank is on the job, even if it does roar that devil's temper of his. And I'll see Dove, maybe have at least a word with her.

Tam moved close to the water's edge, where he could scan the face of each passenger. The main press reached the levee, the crowd on deck thinned. Tam moved forward around a mountain of crates.

Strike saw him. He took the last step to the levee, frowning.

"What on earth—you here, Barrie?" he asked.

Tam nodded. "On business for Seaboard and Continental. I want to meet with you, Strike, at the very first opportunity."

Strike stared at him. "All right, tomorrow, then, at my place. Though I don't know why—never thought you'd be here, Barrie. I have business afoot. Don't set in my way." There was the finest edge of threat in the words. Cleland Strike swung around, his broad back toward Tam.

Tam, irritated, stepped back. He turned to see Dove Demarest coming down the stageplank.

She's as lovely as ever, he thought, watching this distant cousin of his as she came down the ramp with her lilting walk. Impetuous, headstrong, wild as a prairie hawk, she had never seemed in fear of man or devil. A good trait, Tam thought, if she's thrown in her lot with Cleland Strike. They'd damned well better be married, he thought grimly.

He was close enough to catch the words Strike had answered that question at least.

"Good morning, Mrs. Strike."

"Good morning, Mr. Strike." She tucked her hand under his arm, laughing up at him. He patted her hand, and said something in a low voice that made her laugh anew. Though she did not look in Tam's direction, he suddenly felt the urge to get away, finding the thought of facing her now unbearable. He stepped back, almost bumping into a group of bystanders.

"Land sakes," a saunt frontier woman said, touching the fresh cheek of a young woman passenger. "Nellie! I just can't believe it's you. So grown up and all, and married to such a handsome husband. I'll bet this place don't look like shucks to you, Nellie. Well, it's mighty rough, and life in Montanny Territory ain't never easy. But you'll find it a good life, child, you wait and see."

"I hope you're right, Aunt Bessie," the girl said. "But this country's so big..."

Tam moved away, knowing how she felt, meeting the raw force of the wide and ugly land. There was a struggle waiting for the girl, and anyone else who was not even a small corner of it. So different from the settle graciousness of the land he had come from.

Most of the passengers had gone from the levee. Tam threaded his way among crates of machinery toward the foot of the stageplank, hoping for a way to watch Dove without being observed, for he still wasn't ready to talk to her. But he didn't approach within hearing distance of the group, for a gentleman didn't eavesdrop. He saw them look toward the head of the ramp.

A man came unobtrusively along the deck, he paused at the top of the stageplank, with a flair for drama. Tam watched him, finding him an interesting figure. His skin was a dull bronze, his hair black, and he wore plain dark clothing, except for a bright Assomption sash twisted around his middle.

As the man came down the ramp, Tam saw that he had an air about him, the cheekbones high, the lips thin and mobile. Here, Tam thought, is a man who has subjugated the flesh to his own discipline. Not large in stature, but with a power in him, so inner light of dedication or fanaticism.

"LaCroix!" Strike called. The man paused, then came on down the stageplank. Strike asked him something, and LaCroix shook his head, and the two men hurrying toward the boat.

Tam saw that they were dark of skin, with an Indian cast to their features. Their jackets were fringed buckskin. They wore dark trousers and a kind of legging made of heavy wool decorated with signs in colored beads. Like LaCroix, they wore the gay Assomption sash.

Strike turned toward them, laughing, and said something to
