Lyndon Johnson Given Tumultuous Welcome On Mission Of Assurance

By JACK BELL BONN, Germany (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson drew a tumultuous welcome today on his mission of assurance to the Germans of American support. He said the United States does not intend to retreat before Communist threats in Berlin.

Flowers and flags symbolized the German reception. The vice president was welcomed on the arrival of his U.S. Air Force jet liner at Wahn Airport, 18 miles from Bonn, by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano. He was also greeted by U.S. Ambassador Walter B. Dowling and top members of the U.S. Embassy. A German honor guard stood by.

Adenauer told Johnson the entire German nation knows what it owes to the United States. A throng of about 1,000 spectators cheered the declarations in a statement read by Johnson: "We are united in America, regardless of parties and regardless of regions, in our concern for the German people in their present ordeal. "The endangered frontier of freedom now runs through divided but damless Berlin. The Communist dictatorship has the power temporarily to seal off a border, but no tyranny can survive beyond the shadow of its evil strength."

Prompt Rejection By Soviet

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government categorically rejected today the U.S. protest against closing the frontier between East and West Berlin and indicated the barrier is likely to stay there until a new Berlin arrangement is made.

The note was a swift reply to the protest made two days ago by the United States—along with Britain and France—against Germany's action in closing the Berlin border.

The note said "defensive measures" on the border are for a temporary period. They presumably would end with the conclusion of a peace treaty.

Premier Khrushchev has said he will sign a peace treaty with East Germany with or without approval of the Western powers. Blame for "certain temporary inconveniences for the city's population" was placed on the Western allied occupation authorities and the Soviet government.

Atlas On Pad For Preliminary Test Of Mercury Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An 86-foot Atlas missile stands on a launch pad here ready to provide a preliminary test in an all-out United States effort to send a man into orbit before the end of the year.

Within a few days it is scheduled to blast into the sky in an attempt to place an unmanned Project Mercury space capsule into orbit for the first time. The test will be a vital one.

If all goes right, the capsule automatically will return to earth after one 110-minute pass around the globe. It will reach an altitude of 154 miles.

Maximum capacity of the Atlas capsule combination is 18 orbits, one more than the 25-hour flight taken by Titov earlier this month.

The Western allies in identical notes Wednesday asserted the Berlin border closure was a "flagrant and particularly serious violation" of their occupation rights. They said the action "can only increase existing tension and dangers."

The space agency Friday cleared a possible obstacle to manned orbit flight this year when it cancelled any additional suborbital rocket rides like those of Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Virgil I. Grissom.

NASA said detailed evaluation of these two 15-minute up-and-down flights "revealed no problems which would require additional suborbital flights." The announcement said the space task group "will now devote its full energies and resources to the orbital phase of Project Mercury and to follow-on flight programs."

The West demanded that the Soviet Union "put an end to these illegal measures."

Two more Redstone rockets remained for suborbital flights. If they had been used, scores of tracking and instrumentation and tracking personnel would have been tied up. Now they are free to work on the orbital program.

The Atlas will be on trial in the upcoming shot. Four times it has come to the launch pad with a Mercury capsule. Three times it failed causing months delay in the project.

Satellite Found 2 Pacific Storms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Weather Bureau Friday credited the Tiros III hurricane-hunting satellite with discovering two new Pacific Ocean storms which didn't show on the weather maps.

The new storms were photographed in their infancy Thursday about 500 miles south and southeast of Hawaii. The area has no weather observation stations, and no indication of the storms had been received from other sources.

Prices for fryers and broilers hit record low. RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina prices for fryers and broilers are back to the record low level of 11 cents a pound following a two-cent drop Friday.

Twin U.S. Actions Serve As Notice Of Firmness To World

EDITOR'S NOTE President Kennedy Friday ordered reinforcement of the Allied garrison in West Berlin and sent Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson on a flying trip to Germany. John M. Hightower, Associated Press diplomatic affairs reporter, probes the significance of these twin actions in the following interpretive article.

Washington left Washington Friday night with plans to confer with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt. He carried a message from Kennedy to Brandt in reply to the mayor's appeal earlier this week for American action.

The designation of the route meant that they would traverse 110 miles of Communist East German territory. In a sense the movement of the troops constituted an exercise of one of the basic Allied rights to his repeated demand for withdrawal of the troops. The President's dispatch of Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson on a flying visit to West Berlin and to Bonn, the West German capital also is designed as a demonstration of reassurance, administration informants said.

to fulfill our pledge to preserve their freedom and their ties with the free world. Kennedy, meanwhile, abandoned plans to go to Hyannis Port, Mass., today. He will spend the day in the capital, presumably to keep in close touch with the Berlin situation, but may get away to his summer home Sunday.

Armed Military Convoy Ordered Reinforce Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 1,500-man battle group, under orders from President Kennedy, moved out from its base early today in a truck convoy headed through Soviet-dominated East Germany to reinforce the Allied garrison of West Berlin.

This was said to be behind the President's decision to send an additional 1,500 troops to West Berlin. This move was regarded in administration quarters as demonstrating that not only was the United States willing to deposit more man power in the Berlin garrison but was capable of doing it on short notice.

In reply to questions, Salinger described the troop dispatch as "the current increase." But he declined to go beyond that when asked if the United States plans further increases in the Berlin garrison.

The Pentagon said the 1st Battle Group, 18th Infantry Regiment of the 8th Infantry Division climbed into trucks with full battle equipment at its base in Sandhogen, near Mannheim in West Germany.

A battle group of approximately 1,500 men will proceed by way of the Helmstedt-Berlin Autobahn, arriving there on Sunday.

A 1,500-man figure mentioned by the White House suggested that the battle group would be augmented by 200 men. A battle group usually consists of 1,300. But sometimes extra mortar squads and communications men are added.

The brief announcement of the increase, read by White House press secretary Pierre Salinger, said: "In view of recent developments, including the movement of East German military forces into East Berlin, the President has directed an appropriate increase in the U.S. garrison in Berlin."

It was the exodus of thousands of East Germans into Western Germany which led the Communists last weekend to barricade the East-West border in Berlin. There have been reports that Britain and France also will augment their forces in Berlin. But when asked if the White House announcement signaled such moves, Salinger said merely: "I can only speak for the American government."

Such a reinforced battle group, a Pentagon spokesman said, would require more than 100 trucks to move the men, weapons, supplies and equipment—in addition to the tanks, jeeps and other vehicles.

Two Airmen Die In Bomber Crash

HASTY, Colo. (AP) — An Air Force B47 jet bomber crashed in a pasture on the southeastern Colorado plains just after midnight killing two airmen.

Grand Jury Will Get Bill Monday

Bills of indictment are scheduled to go to the grand jury Monday for three Kinston men charged with the July 17, 1960 shooting of Carolina Township constable William Crandall.

Crandall, shot six times around 1 a.m. on July 17, 1960, recovered and is back on duty.

The two other occupants of the $3-million four-engine jet parachuted from the plane and landed with minor injuries in wheatfields near the John Martin reservoir on the Arkansas River.

District Solicitor Robert D. Rouse Jr. said today he will seek assault and larceny indictments for Bruce Clark, 25, Arthur Goff, 43, and Kenneth Earl Grant, 30, when the grand jury convenes here Monday.

Rouse said trials for Clark, Goff and Grant, if they are indicted, will be docketed for the second week of the two-week term.

One of the survivors walked through the darkness to a farmhouse. The other was picked up by motorists on a nearby dirt road. They were being checked at Lamar Hospital today but Air Force officials said both were in good condition.

Set for trial Wednesday are three defendants in a perjury case, Jay Lee Stokes and his mother, Beatrice Stokes, face subornation of perjury charges and William Nathaniel Brown a trial for perjury. The triangle case ended in a mistrial during the last term of court here.

do everything in his power to restrain the long-range borrowing authority which, he said, "is the very heart of a workable foreign aid program."

The police department at Lamar, about 25 miles from the crash scene, said one body was found soon after the accident and the other was discovered at about daylight.

Both Lowry AFB and Ft. Carson, an Army base at Colorado Springs, sent helicopters with medical and rescue units to the crash and they cordoned off the wreckage.

Quiet Follows Tunisian Riots

TUNIS (AP) — Several hundred rioting Tunisian demonstrators in Bizerte clashed with French paratroopers in night-long disorders but calm returned to the seaport today.

Kennedy Names FPC Chairman

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy Friday appointed Joseph C. Swidler chairman of the Federal Power Commission effective Sept. 1.

Swidler replaces Jerome Kuykendall who continues as a member of the commission.

Swidler is a Kennedy appointee who was named to the commission last March.

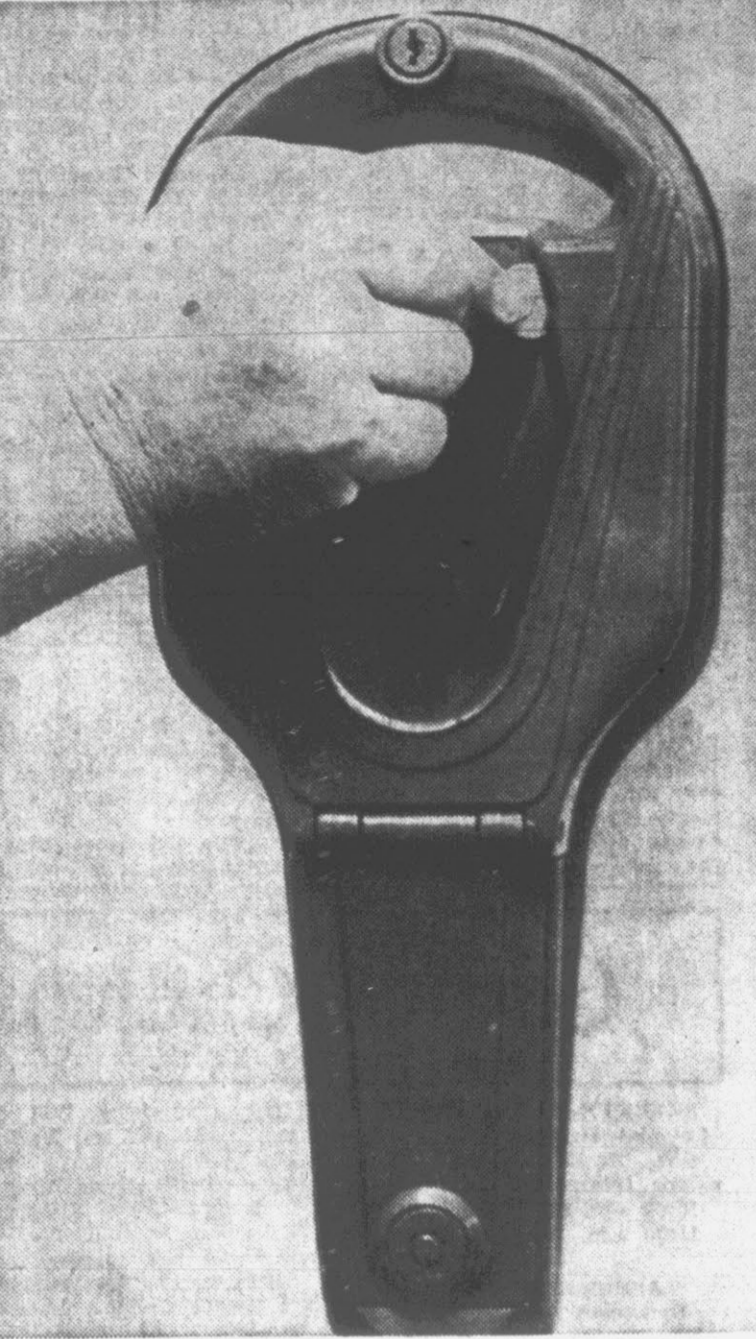

The demonstrators withdrew to the native casbah, held by Tunisian troops, early this morning, official sources said.

The 'Fine' Meter Awaits

COULD THIS BE YOUR HAND? . . . New parking regulations go into effect in Greenville Monday, and if downtown-parkers are not on their toes, their hand might be placing money in the "fine" meter pictured here, at the police department. Overtime parkers will be charged five-cents per hour for parking overtime, with a maximum fine of one dollar. Persons parking in a zone beyond the legal zone time limit, even though they keep placing money in the parking meter will be "charged" with the offense, according to police officials. They noted warrants will be issued for them. All parking fines for overtime parking must now be paid at the police department. The money for fines will have to be placed in the meter pictured above. Foreign Aid Hopes Pinned On Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration forces hope to put together again the pieces of President Kennedy's foreign aid program when the Senate and House blend into a compromise their sharply conflicting versions of the bill.

Kennedy, who campaigned long and hard for the program, got substantially what he asked for from the Senate Friday night. It approved a measure providing for a five-year, $8 billion lending program to be financed by borrowing from the Treasury rather than by annual congressional appropriations.

But the House, a little earlier, passed a bill stripped of the borrowing authority and limiting the program to one year with $1.2 billion for loans this year to be provided by congressional appropriation.

Kennedy considers the powers eliminated by the House to be essential to the success of the overseas development program. And administration leaders will try to get them for him when representatives of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee confer next week to hammer out a compromise of their two versions.

There was considerable speculation that the compromise would give the President three years of lending authority instead of the five he asked and the authority to borrow from the Treasury.

Sen. J. William Fulbright D-Ark. who will head the Senate conferees told a reporter he will do everything in his power to restrain the long-range borrowing authority which, he said, "is the very heart of a workable foreign aid program."

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said it was unlikely the conferees could get under way before Wednesday.

House conferees, for the most part, are regarded as friendly to the Kennedy approach, raising administration hopes it can come out of the conferees with a two or three-year borrowing authority.

The Senate measure provides $4,026,500,000 for the over-all program, including $1,187,000,000 for the first year's long-range lending, plus authority for the President to borrow $1.7 billion in each of the next four years.

Tobacco Ass'n Suggests Fullest Possible Coverage

Tobacco Association of the United States said today it has recommended to its members that their buyers cover "insofar as possible" all Eastern N. C. Belt auction sales beginning Tuesday.

J. Con Lanier of Greenville, association executive secretary, issued a statement this morning disclosing the association's recommendation to member companies.

Lanier's statement today followed a rejection Thursday by the Eastern Belt Warehouse Association of an earlier recommendation by the Tobacco Association to delay opening day for the belt's 13 markets until Thursday, Aug. 24.

A two-day delay was recommended to give tobacco buyers now operating on the Georgia-Frinda Belt time to arrive in Eastern North Carolina.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

Brotherhood will be a theme dealt with at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon on "Mind."

Paul's exhortation to the Colossians (3) will be included in the Scriptural readings:

"Lie not one to another, seeing that ye have put off the old man with his deeds; And have put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him: Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all."

To Speak Over WGTC Sunday morning at 8:30 Mr. Richard G. Gregory of Grace Free Will Baptist Church will speak over radio station WGTC. An invitation for Sabbath school and church attendance is extended in the church of your choice.

A correlative passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "With one Father even God, the whole family of man would be brethren; and with one Mind and that God, or good, the brotherhood of man would consist of Love and Truth, and have unity of Principle and spiritual power which constitute divine Science." (pp. 469, 470).

Nine Fields For 'Scientific Oil'

Nine cotton and corn fields in Pitt County are displaying red tags this growing season as part of an effort by the N. C. Crop and Livestock Reporting Service and the U. S. Department of Agriculture to "add a drop of scientific oil to a big and wonderful machine," according to state statistician Henry L. Rasor.

"The big and wonderful machine" referred to by Rasor is composed of 3,500 Tar Heel farmers across the state who report each month on growing conditions or yield per acre and total production for their farms.

There are 72 volunteer farmer-reporters in Pitt. These are used, as they have been for more than a century, to make state and national estimates of crop and livestock production.

All About Town With Anne Mattox

(All About Town is written by staffwriter Patricia Moore who is substituting for Woman's Editor Anne Mattox, now on vacation.)

Debutantes are more in the news every day, as their coming out date gets a little closer.

Among the parties this week was one given Tuesday night by Misses Vickie Avery, Frances Cozart and Beverly Slaton; who entertained the Greenville Debs and their escorts with a cookout at Frances' home on Oak Street.

The backyard of the home, where the guests gathered, was lighted by torches entwined with ivy. The appointed table held a centerpiece of fruit-filled melon surrounded by ivy. Hurricane lamps, placed at each end of the table, completed the table decorating.

The debs were remembered by the hostesses with candy-filled mugs.

An East Carolina English instructor, already well known as a Democratic party worker, has been tapped to spearhead organization of a Woman's Democrat Club in Pitt County. She is Miss Janice Hardison.

Janice was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention in Los Angeles last year. She is planning an organizational meeting for August 29. Democratic vice chairmen of the county's 25 precinct party organizations, all of whom are women, will be among invitees to the organizational session.

Miss Hardison says further details of the upcoming meeting will be announced later, probably next week. The move in Pitt to organize the woman's version of the Democratic Party is a part of a state-wide project backed by party leaders.

Mrs. Irma Worthington, Mrs. Kara Lynn Fennell, Mrs. Evelyn E. Blue and Mrs. Dorothy W. Johnson of the Greenville City Schools have been attending a workshop for supervising teachers at State University of New York, College of Education, Fredonia, N. Y.

The workshop is under the direction of Dr. Ernest Miller, coordinator of Student Teaching, Syracuse University.

Mrs. Marie Wallace and her daughter Anne returned on Tuesday from Boston, Mass. Mrs. Wallace has been gone several weeks while teaching at dance teacher conventions in Chicago, New York and Boston.

Anne was in New York for two weeks with her mother and during that time studied dance teaching under the leading teachers attending the conventions.

Mrs. Bill Sermons returned Tuesday from San Diego, Calif., where she was visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Adcock.

On Thursday, Mrs. Sermons, Mrs. J. C. Galloway and Mrs. J. R. Jackson left Greenville for Atlantic Beach, where they are the guests of Mrs. Gene West at the West Cottage.

Dr. and Mrs. James E. Bullock and sons, Alan and Charles, of Hartford, Conn., are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Bullock. Dr. Bullock, a native of Greenville, is now an assistant professor at Hartford University. This is their first visit here in about two years.

Paris: Men Shoppers' Paradise These Days?

By IRENE FERRIS
Women's News Service

PARIS—(WNS)—A questionnaire prepared by French tourism officials and put to women tourists in 14 Paris hotels indicates that the men are going home with the best loot.

"There's nothing here for women that we can't buy at home," was the general impression of lady visitors.

"But," they added, "shopping for men in Paris can be a thrill." The biggest delight of women shoppers is the elegance and opulence of men's lounging robes.

Favorite gift of Texas ladies for husbands who already have everything is the gold lame "robe de chambre" lined in black silk and shown at the swank Place Vendôme shop named Monsieur.

Matching gold slippers add extra glamor. If you can't wait for silk lame pajamas to be made to order, there are half a dozen other ready-to-wear gold garments for His Highness.

California wives prefer to spoil their mates with white dressing gowns in pure silk. The tops in price and elegance is found at Harbord on the famous Faubourg St. Honoré. It is made from heavy satin brocade woven for bridal gowns.

New York husbands who are too busy working at home to join wife in her Paris trip will receive more discreet robes, suitable for the conservative man of distinction. Roger Falvret's specialty is a robe cut in heavy tie-silk and printed in designs reminiscent of the paintings of Braque, Dubuffet and other modern artists.

One Southern lady liked Cardin's brown suede dressing gown so much that she ordered a His and Hers team for her husband and herself.

Other shopper's delights for men that are being snapped up as fast as they can be turned out in Paris:

Hermes' famous silk foulards.

Cardin's evening shirts with pleated bosoms and novelty cuffs.

Silk neckties hand-painted in abstract designs at St. Germain-des-Prés studios.

Necktie-and-socks sets by Jacques Fath.

The hubby who comes along has the time of his life trying on shirts, slacks, shoes and dressing gowns. The pretty, feminine French salesclerks think nothing of pulling, patting, buttoning, zipping and tying him into his clothes.

"It's embarrassing at first," commented Edward Ziff of Chicago, "but it's exhilarating when you get used to it."

Faculty Winners Named During Play

The Faculty Duplicate Club met for their regular bridge meeting last night with five tables in play. North-South winners were Mrs. Nell Willard and Mrs. S. M. Woolfolk, first; and Mrs. J. H. B. Moore and Miss Eunice McGee, second.

East-West winners were Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Goodman, first; and Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Conway, second.

The next game was announced for Friday, Sept. 1.

"Home Fashions" Stress Practicality

Though it may seem slightly illogical, "home fashions" are not fashions to be worn at home. Instead, it is the home itself which has its own fashions.

And the most popular fabrics in the home fashions field are those wonderful wash-and-use materials which need only sudsing and rinsing to keep them in top-notch condition.

Burlap Fashions Can Be Sudsed Safely

If that newly-fashionable fabric—burlap—has found its way into your wardrobe, you'll be happy to learn that it can be safely laundered at home.

A major producer of burlap recommends washing it separately by hand, in lukewarm soap or detergent suds and rinses. Just dip the garment up and down in the suds and rinses, hang it to drip, and smooth it while drying. If pressing is needed, use a warm—not hot—iron.

Reshape Smocking

Newly-popular smocking needs only a gentle snapping tug to be pulled back into shape when a garment is hung to dry after laundering.

Smocking should never be flattened by the use of an iron. Stubborn puffs can be poked into dimple shape with a fingertip.

Flagstone Popular Building Material

Flagstone—that popular material for outdoor terraces and walks—also makes an attractive and practical flooring for entrance halls and other indoor areas.

The only upkeep flagstone requires is scrubbing with hot soap or detergent suds and rinses. A stiff-bristled brush is best for cleaning the groats—those dirt-collecting cracks and crevices between the stones.

"What did he say?"

Failure to hear properly can be embarrassing and costly. Do you strain to hear? Do people seem to mumble? Better have your doctor test your hearing. Then, come to us. We're hearing specialists. We can give you expert advice on the efficient, inconspicuous instrument that can help you most.

Forget Guilt, Enjoy That Dessert!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

PETITE AND PERT Helen McCully recently finished a most pleasurable task. She ate her way through hundreds of desserts, in preparation for writing a cook book and didn't gain a pound.

Co-author with Eleanor Noderer of "Just Desserts," (Obolensky, $4.95), Helen McCully explains, "I feel one dessert a day is my right—and I'm never guilty about enjoying it."

"America has the biggest sweet tooth in the world. And what's wrong with this appreciation of delectable desserts?" Miss McCully says. "What gets us into trouble is our terrific guilt about enjoying sweets. So many women go round and round in a vicious circle of guilty feelings, crash diets and food binges."

"If you gain a few pounds, walk an extra mile, climb an extra hill, play an extra game of golf or tennis. Exercise is a weight-watcher's best friend."

"Unless you're on a doctor's diet, don't cut out your favorite foods. Learn the art of relishing small portions and give up second helpings." This is how Helen McCully keeps her own figure attractively trim.

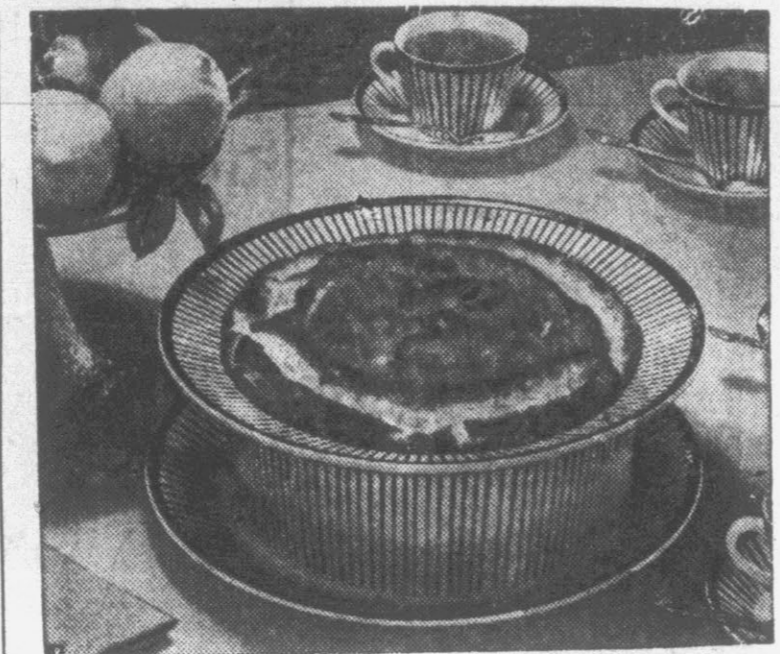

Another trick this dessert expert has discovered: "If you serve Chocolate Fudge Pie—and the recipe for it in our cook book is very rich, very good—precede it with foods only reasonably rich in calories. Plan backwards! It's fun, and really a practical way of working out a well-balanced menu."

Now a food consultant, Helen McCully made a superlative contribution during the 13 years she edited the food pages of a well-known woman's magazine. Now, as then, her recipes have true distinction, invaluable clarity—and asides.

She says she started adding the asides the day she watched a magazine beauty editor try to bake a cake in between telephone calls, brewing coffee, lighting cigarettes and making up her eyes.

That was when she decided to add precautions to recipes and re-wrote a cake rule like this: "When you start mixing this batter, get going! Don't fool around."

"Just Desserts" is every good cook's just dessert. The best lemon soufflé recipe we know comes from it:

REFRESHING LEMON SOUFFLE as made by Helen McCully and Eleanor Noderer, authors of the new cook book "Just Desserts."

Pay, Praise--Unknown Verbs Where Women Are Concerned

By JUNE WILSON
Women's News Service

Has your boss received an executive memo from the company president congratulating him on the fine report YOU wrote?

Have you ever slipped into the gap when so-and-so several rungs up became suddenly indisposed and nobody else would take the reins—only to have the superior you subbed for receive praise for the job YOU did? And you'll never get any credit for it?

Well, hundreds of women in the working world will understand, sympathize and get mad with you. But only one man.

Stephen Shadegg.

Have you watched The Great One having his hand pumped, his back slapped after some brilliant company party for which he arranged a single item—the date? Would he tie this up with some sticky vanilla phrase like: "... but that's the way men are, bless their boyish hearts! And in this man's world our sex prefers it that way ... don't we girls?"

Nuts!

Perhaps if there were an "associate" lurking in my shadow to insert the adjectives even this might read that way.

But no associate. And adjectives are cheap. It is only verbs that count, and they are hard to come by.

Like, "to credit," "to congratulate," "to praise." And, toughest of all, the verb "to pay."

Bridge Honors Bride-Elect

AYDEN—Miss Henrietta Taylor, bride-elect, was honored at a dessert bridge given by Mrs. Mac Whitehurst and Mrs. Sauls Rutledge Wednesday afternoon at the Rutledge home.

Upon arrival, the honoree was presented a corsage of miniature mums.

The living room was decorated with floral arrangements of lilies, phlox and gladioli in shades of purple and pink.

The guests were seated at tables decorated with centerpieces of white tapers in silver candleholders and tied with lily-of-the-valley and white satin.

High scores were won by Mrs. Ray T. Cox of Winterville and Mrs. H. W. Gooding. Consolation prize was presented to Mrs. Robert N. Johnson.

Miss Taylor was presented a dinner plate in her chosen pattern.

Cooking Is Fun

THE BRIDE COOKS SUPPER

This savory Chinese recipe is repeated by request.

Shrimp and Cucumber Salad
Green Pepper Steak
Ice Cream with Fruit Sauce
Fortune Cookies
Green Tea

GREEN PEPPER STEAK

1 pound boneless flank steak
2 tablespoons each cornstarch and soy sauce
1 tablespoon dry sherry
1 teaspoon sugar
1 large clove garlic (crushed)
3 medium-size green peppers
2 tablespoons salad oil
½ cup water or unsalted chicken broth

If necessary, trim steak of most of outside fat; if meat is regular width, cut in half lengthwise; freeze. Before preparing, allow meat to stand at room temperature.

Safety 'Corners'

To protect small children from bumps and bruises caused by falls against sharp edges on furniture, cushion such danger points with "corners" made of thick molded foam plastic.

These safeguards, which cling by suction cups, come off for washing in soap or detergent suds.

Card of Thanks

We would like to thank our friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy shown during the recent death of our loved one. The food, flowers, cards and prayers brought comfort to our hearts. May God add His many blessings to each and everyone of you.

Mrs. Marie Elks and Family

Removable Windows Help Reduce Chore

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Instant cleaning is the goal of ever-homemaker, now that she has been educated to culinary short-cuts. Any house renovation is likely to put her in the mood to question whether the proposed project is going to make more work for her, as this letter indicates:

"My husband is installing new Colonial windows throughout our house, beginning with the living room. I admit the little pane are pretty but I don't want them because of the cleaning problem. The windows will be difficult to clean, and even though those on the lower floor might be cleaned from the outside, it will be a nuisance. I haven't been able to dissuade my husband. Is there anything you know of that could be sprayed on windows to make cleaning them less of a problem?"

I don't know that such a solution exists. Why not suggest your husband investigate the possibilities offered by removable windows. These are available in the Colonial style he admires. The windows are easily removed by pressing down levers at the sides. There are many good days even in colder weather when the windows can be removed, cleaned and replaced without problems. Small windows may be dunked in suds so that muntins and rails may be cleaned at the same time.

Are women tidier than men? A frequent complaint of women homemakers is that their husbands do not see the little flaws in the home that matter to them, as this letter complains:

"My husband doesn't do anything around the house and when he does employ handymen he never insists that the job be expertly finished. We have a beautiful new deck off our living room that overlooks a lake. But it can't be used because it has been so messily installed at the point where it meets the house. There is two-inch gap between the bottom slings and the deck floor. I have no idea why it was designed that way, but my husband has not had it fixed. Do you know of any way to conceal this area meanwhile, so that could have guests on the deck during the nice weather?"

A low narrow planter would not only suit your purpose but look very attractive as a border along the deck floor where it meets the house shingles. If that

One Tangible Result Being Seen

North Carolina's efforts to increase the quality of its public education will show results only gradually, because of the very nature of the long-range task and the many facets which are involved in the broad term "quality education".

At least one tangible result of the state's program for better education is already being seen, however, in the fact that more teachers apparently are becoming interested in teaching in North Carolina.

In recent months, according to officials of the State Department of Public Instruction, there has been a 50 per cent increase in the number of applications for jobs for teachers in at least three categories: teachers trained in North Carolina, but now teaching in other states; teachers trained in other states who are interested in teaching in North Carolina; and inactive teachers who are interested in returning to classroom positions.

This situation alone suggests that the current program of quality education which includes better teacher salaries in North Carolina already is helping in obtaining a sufficient number of good teachers to fill the classrooms of the state. There are still many young teachers, trained in North Carolina, who are going to other states because of the better salaries offered. And there are still many teachers who are leaving their classrooms in North Carolina to assume better paying jobs in other states. But at least North Carolina is in a better position now to attract teachers for its public schools than was the case this time last year.

North Carolina cannot reasonably expect that its quality of education during the coming year will be far above that of the past years. It takes time for a school system to increase its quality on a state-wide basis. It takes considerable time to implement a program of school improvement such as the one envisioned by North Carolina.

The fact that at least one tangible result which points to better education has already begun to develop, however, should indicate to the people of the state that with continued effort the calibre of the schools will be raised appreciably over a period of years.

Tourists Should Have Better Access Means

North Carolina's Highway Commissioners this week saw an example of the heavy demand that is being placed on the ferries along the outer banks of the state in the Ocracoke and Hatteras National Seashore Park area.

It has been apparent to people who have visited these areas this summer that better transportation facilities must be provided if the areas are to develop to their full potential. It has also been apparent that the influx of tourists to the area has been far beyond what the existing ferries could adequately handle.

Particularly at the southern end of the "ferry route" there has been almost a continuous bottleneck throughout the summer months. Usually before dawn cars are lined up to board the Sealevel, pride of the state's ferry fleet, and more often than not many of those waiting for transportation to Ocracoke have watched the ferry pull out, loaded to capacity, with the cars of disgruntled tourists left at the dock.

Such an experience for a tourist—who usually is trying to cram as much as possible into his all-too-short vacation time—is most disheartening. Particularly for those out-of-state tourists who are visiting that area of North Carolina for the first time the experience could be sufficiently discouraging for them not to visit the area again. Further, it might prompt the disappointed tourists to advise their friends back home not to take the chance of losing a vacation day waiting for ferries along the famous outer banks of the Tar Heel state.

North Carolina will not be able to solve the problem in an easy, inexpensive manner. Admittedly it is a problem which exists only a few months each year. In allotting its limited highway funds, the Highway Commission has to spend the money where it will provide the greatest possible benefit for the greatest number of people.

Some carefully planned and sound approach to the transportation in this and other tourist areas of the state must be developed, however, if North Carolina is to realize the potential it expects from its rapidly expanding tourist industry. Regardless of the tourist attractions North Carolina has, the tourists will not visit them unless adequate access is provided.

Sanford Injected State Fair Plug

By LYNN NISBET
BIG FAIR—Governor Sanford put in a plug for the State Fair at his news conference this week. There had been some complaint that the State Trade Fair in Charlotte (which began as the International Trade Fair) and scheduled to be in progress at the same time would detract from support of the century and a half old State Fair at Raleigh.

Governor Sanford said he could see no reason to fear conflict. The two events are entirely different in organization, appeal and purpose. The State fair at Raleigh will open on Monday, October 16, and run through Saturday of that week. The Trade Fair in Charlotte will open on the previous Thursday, October 12, and run through the 21st. Governor Sanford explained that the date was chosen because President Kennedy will be in North Carolina on October 12 and it is expected that he will open the Trade Fair.

The State Fair is an exposition of livestock, field crops and fruits, cooking and sewing and farm machinery, plus cultural exhibits of schools and civic organizations, all designed for the education and entertainment of North Carolinians. There also is attached to the fair a carnival show and a series of auto and horse races for entertainment of the visitors.

The Trade Fair is an exposition of products manufactured in North Carolina and displayed for the purpose of selling to people who are expected to come from every part of the world. Originally set up for the Charlotte Coliseum, demands for exhibit space soon required expanding into the nearby Merchandise Mart—and it may have moved into outdoor tents.

PROMOTION—Seldom has any event in North Carolina had the promotional build-up given the Trade Fair. Governor Sanford and other State officials have been all over the United States boosting the fair and inviting customers. Several dozen business men have gone at their expense to Europe and South America for the purpose of boosting attendance. They are not seeking exhibits. In fact, they don't want 'em. The products on display will be made in North Carolina.

PASSING—Your reporter met Adjutant General Claude Bowers at the capitol the other day and somewhat facetiously asked "When are you going to Berlin?" The general grinned and replied he thought he would pass that trip up. "I went one time, and didn't especially like it," he said. Then more seriously he said he thinks the 30th National Guard Division, which he commands, is in as good condition as any comparable units in the country for quick active service—if required.

GODDESS OF LINVILLE—The Hickory Daily Record makes interesting note of the "Goddess of Linville," an unusual natural freak along the western slopes of Table Rock and Hawk's Bill Mountains in Burke county. It can be seen only from a very rough mountain road running along the western banks of Linville Gorge. This road has other scenic spots worth putting out trouble to visit, like the Pinnacle and Wiseman's View, and the far-famed Linville Falls. Your reporter has been over that a number of times, but the Record story was his first introduction to the Goddess.

"It doesn't require any more imagination than it does to make out the lines of old Grandfather Mountain, to see the Goddess of Linville," says the piece. "Her facial lines and general contour are made by the tracings at the back of Hawk's Bill."

TOUGH TALK—Not long ago Hargrove Bowles, Jr., Director of Conservation and Development, spoke to the tourist-travel section of the Asheville chamber of commerce. He indulged in some plain talk about what the community needed to do in order to capitalize on its natural assets as a recreation resort area. He was not caustically critical, and mixed in a lot of commendation for efforts being made.

A few days later Dr. David J. Rose, retired surgeon, former State Senator and long-time sponsor of the conservation of water resources, made a talk to the N. C. Chamber of Commerce Executives Association at Goldsboro. Dr. Rose didn't pull any punches in criticism of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and other conservative business groups for their attitude in trying to block full utilization of water resources. He, too, had some kind words to soften the criticism.

Both the Bowles and the Rose talks got wide publicity throughout the state—and some outside—because it is recognized that the subject matter has general interest at this time, and that the problems are not confined to one community or one state. It is significant, too, that most of the comment indicated full approval of the "touch talk" line taken by the speakers since it obviously was intended to be constructive rather than just mean criticism.

Nikita 'Goofed' On Refugee Item

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—The tough task in judging Premier Khrushchev's tactics on Berlin is to try to look at them from both the American and the Soviet view to see what makes sense.

From either view there's no doubt he goofed on one thing: the refugee flight from East Berlin.

But this is the short-run Berlin problem. On the more important one—whether he can grab off West Berlin—he may turn out to have been much smarter than he seems.

By his threats and talk of war, he frightened thousands of Germans in Communist East Germany to flee through Red-held East Berlin into West Berlin, a Western outpost 110 miles inside East Germany.

This was the last thing he wanted to do since the East German Communist regime badly needs their skills and talents. So he had miscalculated and overplayed his hand, and had to seal off East Berlin to stop them.

From any viewpoint this was bad propaganda for Moscow. But it doesn't follow that he has miscalculated—although it might be comforting to the West to think so—on his main purpose which falls into two parts:

1. To take over West Berlin, if not immediately, then eventually.

2. To split the Allies on whether they should stick together—even at the risk of war—to keep him from snatching the city.

This order could be reversed. If he could split the Allies before a showdown on Berlin, he would not have any trouble taking it over. Once this alliance against him was weakened, his power everywhere would be increased enormously.

This is where what he did has to be examined from two sides. Early in June he threatened before the year's end to turn over to the Communist East Germans control of all the access routes from the West to West Berlin.

Since they're his puppets anyway, this is more a matter of principle than anything else because now the Allies refuse to recognize the East Germans as a legitimate government and then they'd have to for all practical purposes.

But it would be a first step—at the least—to weakening the Western Allies' links with their city and their claim to the right to have access to it. It would be the start, even though slow, to a takeover.

From the American view it might have seemed shrewd if, after making his initial threat in June, he had played it this way: Avoid threats which might have the effect of driving the Allies together. Let them think he might not be in earnest. In this way they'd be less prepared for a showdown.

Then at year's end, with or without negotiating, suddenly sign a peace treaty with the East Germans and turn control of all Berlin routes over to them.

Then, confronted with this accomplished fact at the last moment, they might be less willing to band together for a showdown. Certainly they might not be prepared to act fast.

Instead of all this, Khrushchev has bullied, threatened, talked war, warned of making super-bombs. As a result he has driven the Allies into conference.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
AS YOU TRAVEL

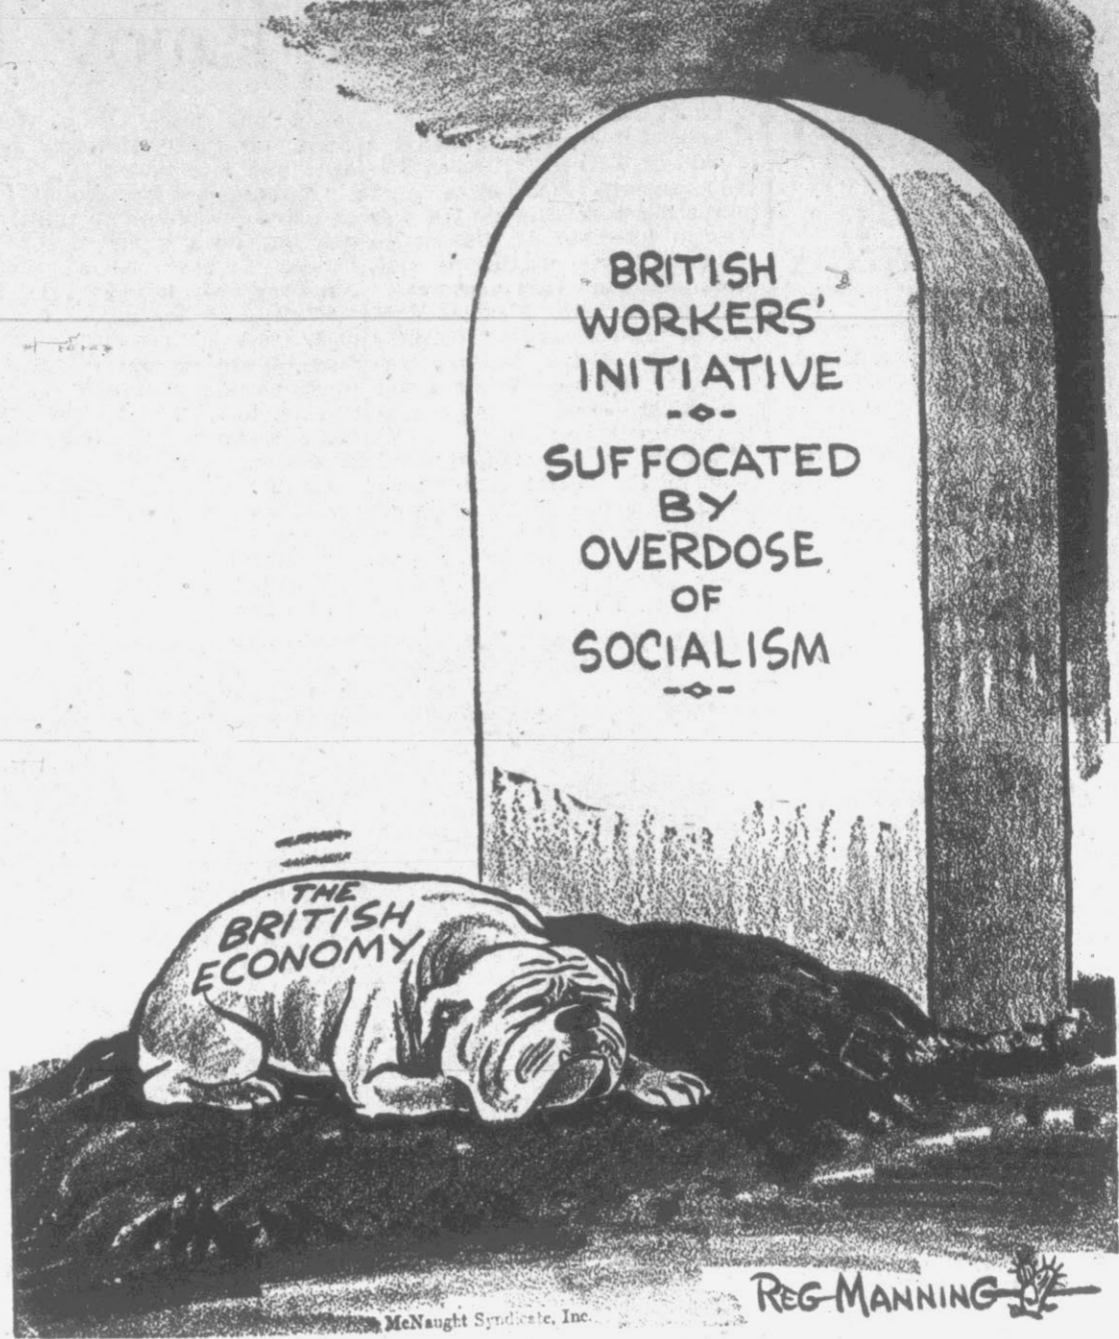

Do you enjoy travel? Most people do. As we go about the world, we have unrolled before us a panorama of how nations and races of different cultures and standards have developed their life over the centuries.

Some of this development may appear quaint to us. Some of it appears to indicate an indisposition to take advantage of opportunities for progress. Most of it, however, represents to us the heroism, the artistic ability the diligence of generations which have lived out their lives doing what they've necessarily brought to hand, and finding satisfaction in so doing. As foreign visitors come to our shores, they marvel at many things, smile at others, and are frankly critical of many things we do and the ideas we have. No race or nation has a monopoly on goodness or wisdom. We have had several savage wars in history because wild men thought they could establish themselves and their way of life over the destiny of the rest of mankind. They were taught in much blood, suffering and tears that such ideas are erroneous, such procedures fallacious, and such projects doomed to disaster.

If you travel, travel with an open mind and a heart full of appreciation for the goodness and honesty of men everywhere, a sympathy for their aspirations, an understanding of why they think and live as they do, and a good word and a good wish for everyone everywhere trying to live a gallant, courageous, and honest life.

Lost His Will to Live?

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Why Some Go To College

Now it can be told. Why some girls go to college, that is.

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins cleared it all up in a talk to the Jaycees Thursday night. He was appealing to the club to assist in finding rooms for students who wish to enter East Carolina College next month.

Dr. Jenkins told the Jaycees that for a few weeks in Greenville homes would only be needed for a few weeks in many cases. Many first quarter students will drop out, leaving rooms open in the dorms for others to move in.

"You'd be surprised how many come to school so when they get married they can say in their wedding write-ups they attended East Carolina College," the president confided.

"I've been told a high bank official answered a lovely young thing if she were going to wear her bikini for the AIB swimming party at the Country Club last night.

"I just might," she replied brightly. "Where is it," the banker inquired.

"In my wallet," the young lady answered sweetly. "That I'd like to have seen.

City vehicles will take on a new look in the near future. City Manager Louis Scheepers says all the vehicles will be painted green for obvious reasons.

The Greenville seal will be dropped and the words City of Greenville painted on the doors. Underneath this will be lettered the department name such as "Department of Public Works."

City firemen are bursting with pride over their new fire truck. The vehicle has been placed in the main fire station and will soon be fitted out by "American LaFrance" engineers.

In a couple of months another identical piece of equipment will be delivered to the department. Plans are to keep both new trucks in the main fire station. An older one will be moved to the new substitution which is to be built in east Greenville.

Volunteer firemen have found an enthusiastic friend in City Manager Louis Scheepers. So enthusiastic is Scheepers that he has joined up.

The city manager has become a full fledged dues paying member of the Greenville Volunteer Fire Department. Scheepers says he plans to do what he can as a volunteer including attending training sessions which the firemen have periodically.

While weapons technology and hence disarmament planning grow more complex, no U.S. plan has ever been rejected by the Soviets on the ground of technical inadequacy. A case in point is the elusive atomic test-ban treaty. Negotiations, now nearly three years old, have failed because the Soviets insist that any inspection system be politically determined, a mountain of scientific data is summarily swept aside by Moscow.

The truth is, the Communists are interested only in disarming their intended victims. The most brazen imperialists in history ask "total and complete" disarmament first, and talk of safeguards later. So long as the Communists and their ambitions remain unchanged, so long must free men keep their heads clear.

We Americans especially must beware of the easy, habitual optimism that sometimes lures us into supposing our wishes will be fulfilled if we can just hit upon the right institutional device. Before we begin creating agencies, rooted in our wishes about the world, the world must become a quite a different place. And wishful thinking in the meantime only weakens our power to make it so.

As the Communists throw a ring of steel around East Berlin, the last thing on the minds of most Americans, we imagine, is reducing U. S. military strength. Indeed, the multi-billion-dollar buildup of U.S. arms inspired by the threat to Berlin is in full swing.

And yet, in the midst of crisis and war fears, the best minds of the Administration are turned to pleading for a U.S. Disarmament Agency for World Peace and Security. Recurring cold war crises, says Secretary of State Rusk, should not sink the U.S. into a slough of despond and "prevent us from addressing ourselves to the kind of world we hope to see."

The country must be prepared for "new opportunities" that may arise from "the ebb of tension as a particular crisis passes."

No one can argue with a U.S. policy of seizing every opportunity that arises to ease tensions. But the proposed "department of peace" could not manufacture opportunity nor bring closer the distant goal of disarmament. At best, it is irrelevant; at worst, it could hamper U.S. ability to fulfill its hopes in the world.

For one thing, consider the responsibility the Administration would lay upon well-intentioned but humally limited men. Conceivably, the 250-man bureaucracy and its near-Cabinet rank director might resign themselves to seeing their labors come to the same frustrating dead-end as earlier planners. But, being human, they might be tempted to pursue their declared objective singlemindedly, spurred by pressures arising from the Administration's commitment to a "new approach." Since new possibilities could be exploited only as past assumptions about the Soviet were reconsidered, the planners might find themselves bound to make the risky assumptions necessary to perfect their blueprint in order to justify themselves.

As certain specialized services—and base his merchandising program on these omissions.

3. Join the enemy, probably not by floating a stock issue to open a chain of discount stores—although this too is being done—but more likely by seeking a leased department in a discount center.

MORE SELF-SERVING SEEN—The National Association of Real Estate Boards does consider the discount department stores—closed or open type—a durable influence. The association quoted Richard L. Nelson, a Chicago real-estate research expert, as advising that the future retailer must have a larger store and more checkouts to handle greater volume and reduce overhead through more self-service. Nelson's studies, "show that more shopping centers will be completed and four times as many discount stores built in the next ten years as in the last." However, Nelson also warned the recent Discount Management Conference in New York there is a great likelihood of overbuilding of discount stores.

His suggestions on arranging a store to handle greater volume and reduce overhead are worth noting. So is the analysis of appliance—merchandise Samuel Murtzel, reported here yesterday that the closed-door stores cut costs by reducing the need to carry large assortments, through selectivity of clientele.

LOCAL STUDY NEEDED—In effect, this means studying the local market—its income family composition, sources of employment, size of homes, tastes and needs. One model refrigerator with a big freezer compartment may be right for one neighborhood but not for another.

But this by no means is a sign that all retailers should try to reduce assortments. Some specialty stores can beat the competition by deepening assortments—by having, for example, more classic dresses or more linoleum patterns to choose from than anyone else in town, including the discount stores.

Another potential edge is independent merchant has is his knowledge of his merchandise, and his ability to supply repair services and planning and decorating counsel. This is something a girl at a checkout counter can't quite do or, at least, won't.

SIGNIFICANT DEVELOPMENT IN BUSINESS NEWS—These items may mean opportunity to somebody: A big bedding manufacturer is giving retailers' salesmen trading stamps instead of "push money" awards for selling the manufacturer's bedding. . . . A big mail-and-catalog chain is opening three order depots in gas service stations on an experimental basis. . . . The smallest car in the world has gone into production in Japan. It is a two-seater priced at $625. Export plans are still in the making.

Peace Prize Honors

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc. . . .

I see in a Soviet publication a list of Lenin Peace winners and I wonder who some of them are and what they got the Peace Prize for. The winners, this year, are:

"Premier Fidel Castro (Cuba), President Sekou Toure (Guinea), Mme. Rameshwari Nehru (India) writer Mihail Sadoveanu (Rumania), architect Antoine George Tabet (Lebanon), Ostap Dluski (Poland) and William Morrow (Australia)."

Precisely what have these people done to bring peace to the world? Certainly Fidel Castro has not helped the world toward peace; rather he has brought the world closer to war. From this one example, it is possible to wonder whether in the Aesopian language of Soviet Russia peace is not war and war is not peace.

The name of William Morrow of Australia is here. What has William Morrow done to achieve world peace or, for that matter, what could he have done? Or to go a step further, what in particular can Australia do about war or peace?

One gets to wonder about prizes. What do the Nobel Peace Prizes represent in history? I take the first dozen names from 1901-1908:

1901-H. Dunant (Swi.); Fred Passy (Fr.); 1902-E. Ducommun & Gobat (Swi.); 1903-Sir William R. Cremer (Br.); 1904-Institute of International Law; 1905-Bertha von Suttner (Aus.); 1906-Theodore Roosevelt (A.); 1907-E.T. Moneta (E.); L. Renault (Fr.); 1908-Klas P. Arnoldson (Swe.); Frederick Bajer (Dn.).

Except for Theodore Roosevelt and L. Renault, what role have these men played in history? But let us go a step further: what actually did Theodore Roosevelt do for peace? He got his prize for bringing the Russo-Japanese War to an end by the Treaty of Portsmouth which may be an act of peace, depending upon how one views the consequences of historic acts.

The last Nobel Peace Prize winner found in making any selection at all. In 1959, a Britisher, Noel-Baker was chosen; in 1958, the Reverend Dominick Georges Pire another Britisher got it; in 1957, it went to Lester Pearson of Canada and then they could find no one for some years because in 1953, it was given to General George Marshall. Certainly Lester Pearson and General Marshall never did anything for peace. I could not find Reverend Pire's name in any reference book.

While I was looking at lists of prize-winners, I had a look at the Pulitzer Prizes and found a few important names who have left some reputation behind, but too many of the really great have been omitted.

It is cruel to look at such lists for how many of us will survive a decade of memory or even six months? Of the billion of human beings in the long history of man, few names survive. The peace-makers, in particular of those, few achieved peace. The war-makers have been more famous. Everybody knows the name, Napoleon, who never won a peace prize. Very few know of Alexander I of Russia who really tried to make peace but failed.

I wonder if Abraham Lincoln would have won peace prize if such were around in his day? In his heart, he wanted peace. He did not make a war but when it came upon him, he fought it to a success. But he hated war and would have made peace at any time. His program for peace, after the war, might have saved the country from much grief. But he won no prizes.

There is no telling who of the present figures in our society will last a decade or a century in history. Will the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt or Harry Truman or Dwight D. Eisenhower stand out monumentally? Will they count for as much in history as Stalin or Khrushchev or even Hitler? History has curious ways of picking its great figures and curiously enough it is not the peace-maker but the war-maker who fills pages. True, we do know something about Aristotle, but more about his pupil, Alexander, Alexander or Iskander, as he is sometimes (Continued on page 24)

Discount Stores Grew Rapidly

By ELMER ROESSNER
That fountain pen I bought from a little upstairs discount store 20 years ago certainly started a big trend in retailing. I didn't realize my own influence.

As reported here yesterday, discount department stores are growing rapidly, especially the membership or "closed-door" stores. Now some of the biggest variety and department-store chains in the country are joining their recent enemy by opening their own discount stores.

Where does that leave the small independent retailer? He can follow one of several courses:

1. Adapt the merchandising techniques used by the discount department stores to reduce his own overhead so he can compete tooth for tooth and nail for nail.

2. Take an exactly opposite tack, study what the public might want that the discount stores are failing to give—such as certain specialized services—and base his merchandising program on these omissions.

3. Join the enemy, probably not by floating a stock issue to open a chain of discount stores—although this too is being done—but more likely by seeking a leased department in a discount center.

So is the analysis of appliance—merchandise Samuel Murtzel, reported here yesterday that the closed-door stores cut costs by reducing the need to carry large assortments, through selectivity of clientele.

LOCAL STUDY NEEDED—In effect, this means studying the local market—its income family composition, sources of employment, size of homes, tastes and needs. One model refrigerator with a big freezer compartment may be right for one neighborhood but not for another.

But this by no means is a sign that all retailers should try to reduce assortments. Some specialty stores can beat the competition by deepening assortments—by having, for example, more classic dresses or more linoleum patterns to choose from than anyone else in town, including the discount stores.

Another potential edge is independent merchant has is his knowledge of his merchandise, and his ability to supply repair services and planning and decorating counsel. This is something a girl at a checkout counter can't quite do or, at least, won't.

SIGNIFICANT DEVELOPMENT IN BUSINESS NEWS—These items may mean opportunity to somebody: A big bedding manufacturer is giving retailers' salesmen trading stamps instead of "push money" awards for selling the manufacturer's bedding. . . . A big mail-and-catalog chain is opening three order depots in gas service stations on an experimental basis. . . . The smallest car in the world has gone into production in Japan. It is a two-seater priced at $625. Export plans are still in the making.

Work Continues On Playing Area

Work on East Carolina College's new athletic fields has been underway for about one month, according to Business Manager F. D. Duncan.

The present work on the fields which consists of grading and shaping some 54,000 square yards of land, installation of 1,500 feet of drainage pipe, 28 surface inlets and four manholes is being done by Arrow Inc. of Rocky Mount at a cost of $14,500.

Duncan said that as soon as the work is completed and water lines put in, the turf would be sowed. It takes about a year before the grass on a playing field is ready to use.

Currently located on the school's original 100-acre campus, the athletic facilities are being relocated to make room for a $905,000 replacement for Austin Building, which depends on a state-wide bond election Nov. 7.

Duncan said the preliminary work on the new athletic fields, is in addition to the school's $50,000 request that would be used to enclose the fields with fences, move lighting facilities and transfer the existing stands. Also a comparatively small and modest field house which Duncan said would be adequate for the present needs would be included.

It is possible that the new baseball field will be in use by next spring according to Duncan, because they hope to start building on the present field soon. If the new facilities are not ready for use by then, the baseball team will have to find somewhere else to play during the spring of 1962.

The baseball facility will have its leftfield fence near and parallel to N.C. 43 on the Branch land. The left field foul line will be at right angles to the highway

Two Records Set At AAU Meet

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The nation's best swimmers aimed at more world records today as two new ones were written into the books in the Men's National AAU Outdoor Swimming and Diving Championships.

Best yet for a possible new standard was posed in the 200-meter breaststroke by Chet Jastremski of the Indianapolis Athletic Club shooting at the world mark of 2:36.5.

Jastremski has a pending mark of 2:33.6 and the Los Angeles Swim Stadium, a regulation Olympic size 50-meter pool, seems ideal for record making.

Two world and one American marks were smashed in Friday's opening program.

Steve Clark, 18, of the Santa Clara, Calif. Swim Club eclipsed the world 100-meter freestyle with a clocking of 54.4.

Ted Sticker for the second time lowered the world mark of the 400-meter individual medley, swimming the butterfly backstroke, breaststroke and freestyle in 4:55.6.

The most exciting and startling result came in the featured 1,500-meter freestyle when 16-year-old Roy Saari of nearby El Segundo lowered the American mark with a time of 17:29.8.

Salted as a battle between the California high school kid and Japan's international star, Tsuyoshi Yamanaoka, the race turned out to be a struggle between Alan Somers of Indianapolis while Yamanaoka pulled up a badly beaten sixth. The American mark was 17:30.6.

Much of the appeal of the 1,500 was lost when Murray Rose, Australia's great swimmer who lives here now, had to withdraw on doctor's orders.

Rose has had dietary troubles and he was advised not to try the arduous 1,500.

Kline Hurls 1st Shutout In Three Years, Tigers Win 5-0

Associated Press Sports Writer
Pittsburgh Pirates may have ended a year too soon, but he's come around just in time for the Detroit Tigers in the American League pennant race.

The right-hander, a sometime winner with St. Louis and the Los Angeles Angels after he was traded by the Pirates in 1959, was picked up by the Tigers last week from the Angels despite a 3-6 record.

Kline made it pay off Friday night, blanking Boston on four hits for his first shutout in more than three years and a 5-0 victory that moved the Tigers within three games of first place New York.

The Yankees were choked off on three hits by Jim (Mudcat) Grant, who shut out Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle, and were whipped 5-1 at Cleveland. The M-men each struck out twice, and both were 0-for-4.

Baltimore got past Washington 3-2, Kansas City defeated the Chicago White Sox 3-1 and Los Angeles rapped Minnesota 5-2.

Will Try For New Speed Mark

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—If the weather is good, another attempt to speed 180 miles an hour around Daytona International Speedway is planned for some time today.

The Mad Dog IV race car, specially adapted to go after the $10,000 prize for the first to circle the 2.5-mile Daytona Track at 180 or better, has been overhauled and pronounced ready.

Al Malone of Tampa, who set a record of 177.479 m.p.h. in the car Aug. 5, took it around the high banked track a few times Friday. He turned one lap at 176.279 but said he didn't try breaking in a new set of tires.

The car, built by Bob Osiecki of Charlotte, is basically an Indianapolis-type racer. However, it has a large stabilizer on the rear and air foils to prevent a tendency to lift at high speed.

Reduced Limits For Hunters

RALEIGH (AP) — Reduced bag limits and other restrictions will be placed on duck hunting this year as a result of poor production on the summer nesting grounds.

The Wildlife Resources Commission announced Friday that the daily opening time for duck hunting will be changed from half an hour before sunrise to sunrise. This is designed to lower the duck harvest.

The commission reported it has been offered a framework of shooting dates by the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, which regulates hunting of migratory waterfowl.

The commission must make a decision on its choice of dates not later than Aug. 25. Dates may be chosen between Oct. 1 and Jan. 8 for Canada geese and brant, and from Oct. 13 to Dec. 30 for ducks and coots.

North Carolina was offered the alternatives of a 40-day duck season with three ducks daily and six in possession, or a 50-day season with two ducks daily and four in possession.

A split season would be allowed under another alternative with a 10 per cent penalty in the number of days allowed.

North Carolina will be allowed 60 days of hunting for Canada geese and brant. There will be a daily limit of two and possession limit of four for geese and 10 brant daily and 10 in possession.

The daily bag limit on loot remains at six, but number in possession was reduced from 12 to six.

Trapshoot Goes Into 2nd Round

VANDALIA, Ohio. (AP) — A bit of record-breaking was in the making today as the 62nd Grand American Trapshoot went into its second round of preliminary firing.

Vic Reinders, 54-year-old chemistry professor in the University of Wisconsin's Milwaukee branch, was about to set a mark which has eluded all other clay target experts.

When he finishes today's 16-year 10-target race, he will have fired at 99,950 clays since he started in 1934. The fact that he has broken better than 98 per cent of these 16-year targets puts him in a class by himself.

With the completion of the first 50 of Sunday's 200-target race, Reinders will become the first ever to fire at 100,000 targets with an average of less than two misses per 100.

He broke 100 straight Friday as the Roaring Grand opened.

Firing through Sunday is in a tuneup for championship races starting Monday and running through next Saturday.

FIGHTS TONIGHT

NEW YORK (AP) — Jorge Gernandez, third ranking welterweight from Buenos Aires, will meet Isaac Logart of Camaguey, Cuba, tonight in a 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden. The bout will be televised nationally (ABC) start at 9 p.m., EST.

Dodgers Two Games Behind Reds After 5 Losses In Row

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Los Angeles Dodgers' first real slump of the season was a long time coming, but now it's here—and it's a pip.

After losing as many as three in a row only twice through their first 109 games, the Dodgers now have skidded out of first place by losing five straight, dropping two games behind Cincinnati with a 2-1, 10-inning defeat at San Francisco Friday night.

Until they forced the extra inning with a tying run in the ninth against the Giants, the Dodgers hadn't scored in 34 2-3 innings and hadn't managed an extra-base hit in 45 1-3 innings.

That may have checked the shutout spell, but Orlando Cepeda's leadoff home run extended the slump in the 10th and ate into the Dodgers' edge over Cincinnati in the decisive "lost" column.

more than the Dodgers, ran their winning streak to five with a 6-3 victory over St. Louis behind the six-hit pitching of Ken Johnson, an American League castoff.

Last place Philadelphia set a modern major league record when Milwaukee handed the Phils their 21st consecutive defeat, 4-1. It was the eighth straight success for the Braves, who remained a half-game back of third place San Francisco. The Chicago Cubs out-lasted Pittsburgh 2-1 in 11 innings.

In the American League, Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle again were held without a home run and the New York Yankees lost 5-1 at Cleveland. Detroit defeated Boston 5-0, Baltimore beat Washington 3-2, Kansas City defeated the Chicago White Sox 3-1 and the Los Angeles Angels whipped Minnesota 5-2.

The Dodgers were shut-out on two hits by Billy Loes. Billy O'Dell and Stu Miller for eight innings. Then they tied it in the ninth on a double by Ron Fairly—their first extra-base hit in the slump—and two walks plus a two-out single by John Roseboro.

Miller put down the Dodgers in order in the 10th and became a 10-game winner for the first time in the nine-year major league career when Cepeda tagged Larry Sherry (4-4) for his 33rd home run.

Beaufort Stars Defeat Pitt 1-0

The Beaufort County All-Stars got their revenge last night over the Pitt County Stars when they won 1-0. Last week Pitt County took Beaufort 10-5.

On the Guy Smith mound for the visitors was Howard Bryan who struck out seven, walked three and allowed one hit. Pitching for Pitt County were Tommy Dunn who pitched the first four innings, Hayward Outland pitched the fifth, J. C. Hamil who hurled the next three and Larry Roberts who pitched the final inning of the game. The Pitt County hurlers struck out five, walked four and allowed eight hits.

Beaufort County scored the only run of the game in the third frame when Morgan Harris came in on a single by Bruce Biggs.

Eighteen Inning Game In CL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
By now the Durham Bulls consider themselves veterans when it comes to playing in long extra-inning games.

Durham and Winston-Salem battled to a 7-7 tie in an 18-inning contest Friday night — the fourth longest in Carolina League history. The Bulls have played in all four, winning two and tying two.

Tonight the two teams resume their tie game. Durham and Winston-Salem each got 15 hits.

The Bulls rallied for three runs in the seventh to tie the regulation game at 5-5. Each team scored in the 12th and again in the 14th. The game was called because of the midnight curfew.

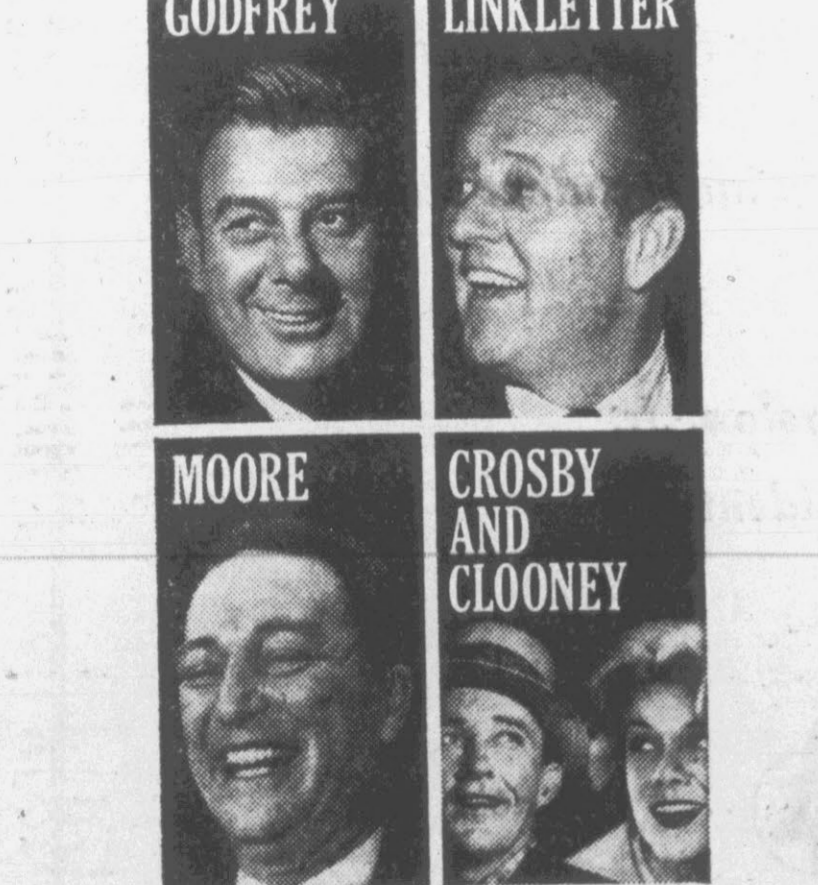

Meanwhile, the league pennant race tightened as Greensboro moved within one game of top place Wilson. Burlington edged Wilson 4-3 to climb within a game and a half of the top.

The Greensboro Yankees turned back Raleigh 9-2 on a five-hitter by Chuck Loyd.

Tonight's games:
Durham at Winston-Salem. Raleigh at Greensboro and Wilson at Burlington.

Mexico Favored Over The U.S. In Davis Cup Meet

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mexico's doubles team of Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox enters the American Zone Davis Cup tennis championships today as a slight favorite over the United States' Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston.

Francisco (Pancho) Contreras, Mexican team captain, feels his boys have the edge, but it's the possible pressure accompanying the Davis Cup test that worries him.

With both teams tied at 1-all, the doubles' action means neither country can wrap up the championship until Sunday's final pair of singles.

"Antonio, who hits everything hard, probably has more general class than his teammates," said Contreras, "but he tends to be a nervous player. He could be very hot or very cold." Palafox is Mexico's national champion.

He said he thought Osuna probably would be as sharp as he was Friday when he played brilliantly to overwhelm McKinley 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

Every part of Osuna's game was outstanding. His serves were like rockets and his backhands at the net completely baffled the St. Louis netter in the 70-minute match.

McKinley, never able to break through the Mexican's service, cried out after missing a shot early in the second set: "How long is it going to take me to lose this one, too?"

Bernard (Tut) Barten used his long loft strokes and near-perfect placement to bolster the Americans' spirits Friday. He downed Mario Llamas, Mexico's No. 1 man, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, in the second round of singles play.

"Condition was the difference," beamed Dave Fred, U.S. team captain after the victory. "Tut Ralston, from Bakersfield, Calif., nursed a sore throat for a few days earlier in the week but expects to be ready.

The doubles triumph last year gave the United States a 2-1 edge and it went on to win the matches 3-2. Mexico never has beaten the United States.

Gastonia Retains Teen-er Title

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Candor Bumgardner pitched no hit baseball and his teammates whapped things up with a 4-run first inning Friday as Gastonia, N.C., retained the VFW Teen-er baseball championship, defeating Bossier City, La., 4-1.

Bumgardner lost a shutout because of a wild streak in the seventh inning.

Gastonia scored on a walk, a triple by Fred MacMurray, an error and singles by Ray Pike and Tony Hill. Hill was chosen outstanding player of the tournament.

Gastonia was unbeaten in the four-day event and has won eight straight over a two-year period. The double championship is unprecedented.

Housekeeper Calmly Relates How She Killed 2 Small Boys

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A pudgy housekeeper sat in a Milwaukee prosecutor's office Friday night, and, without emotion, told how she suffocated two young brothers by "pressing their heads against my left shoulder."

The slaying of Donald Craig, 4, and his brother, Ronald, 2, turned into tragedy a day in which their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Craig Jr., had hoped they would patch up their broken marriage. Lucille Adams, 34, the housekeeper, a pudgy brunette, was hired by Craig to care for his children after he and his wife separated about three months ago. He left the two boys in Miss Adams' custody Thursday night when he went to work. He returned home early Friday to find them smothered—and Miss Adams asleep in another room.

Craig was expecting his wife to return to Milwaukee Friday for a reconciliation. She returned and found her two children dead and her husband in a state of shock. Mrs. Craig is expecting a third child in two months.

Miss Adams was charged with two counts of first-degree murder after she told Dist. Atty. William J. McCauley she enveloped little Donald and Ronald "until they went limp." She could give no reason for her action except to say "everything went haywire."

She told McCauley that she woke up Ronald about 2 a.m. Friday to caress him.

"Then it happened so fast," she said, "something wanted me to hurt the kids. Just like that it happened," she added, snapping her fingers.

McCauley said Miss Adams told him she got the idea to smother the children after "hearing that story on the radio." He said she apparently referred to a Dubuque, Iowa, babysitter involved in similar deaths of three children.

The district attorney also quoted the woman as saying she had burned the fingertips and ears of the children but claimed she did this in the hope of bringing them back to life. McCauley said that when she was 10 she smothered a cat—because she hated cats.

Craig, a night shipping clerk at a wholesale grocery firm, found the bodies of his sons, dressed in undershirts and shorts, lying on their beds when he came home at 9 a.m. A teddy bear, a red ball and a toy truck were on the floor between them.

Tobacco Grading Demonstration

A federal tobacco grader is scheduled to visit Pitt County next week to conduct a series of nine tobacco grading demonstration sessions, Pitt Negro Farm Agent James M. Goode announced today.

Goode said Dr. Jones E. Jefferies of Raleigh is scheduled to arrive for the first session at 2 p.m. Tuesday on the farm of Pleasant Jones near Falkland.

The remainder of the schedule: Tuesday, 7:30 p.m.—Henry Hooks farm on Pactious Highway; Wednesday, 10:30 a.m.—Simon C. Mills farm, Hadlocks Crossroads; Wednesday, 2 p.m.—Richard Leary farm, Calico; Wednesday, 7:30 p.m.—James King farm, Swift Creek.

Thursday, 10:30 a.m.—Pitt County Training School in Grimesland; Thursday, 2 p.m.—A. J. Johnston farm on the River Road; and Thursday, 7:30 p.m.—Arthur Council farm, Sally Branch Community.

In appealing to tobacco growers to attend the sessions, Goode said, "We feel that the information from Dr. Jefferies will increase the dollar value on every barn of tobacco. There are many new marketing trends and tobacco grades that should be known about."

The agent said the sessions would last about one hour each and issued a special invitation to women.

Eddie Bracken Looks Back On 'Career' Of Mistakes

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Mistakes?" said Eddie Bracken with a bitter smile. "Nobody made more mistakes than I did."

Bracken was speaking of his movie career, which flourished in the 40s and then dribbled away. He's back after nine years on the stage to do a dramatic role in a "Roaring Twenties" TV segment.

This could open a whole new horizon for him. He is already working on another horizon, producing his own films in Rome. So he can afford to look back on past failures with candor.

After Broadway success in "Brother Rat," "What a Life" and "Too Many Girls," he was brought to Hollywood where he starred in film after film for Paramount, most notably in "Miracle of Morgan's Creek" and "Hail the Conquering Hero." Then he virtually talked himself out of a contract.

"You've got to realize what kind of a guy I was. I had never graduated from grammar school—I was held back five times! I never read a book until I was 24—'Rebecca' it was.

"So you can see I had a lot to learn. And I learned, brother, the hard way. You can go along on nerve so long and then suddenly you get hit in the gut. You wake up."

Bracken woke up to find his career and money slipped away from him. The career ebbed because of the old bosey — type casting.

The money vanished in a TV venture that was too much too soon.

Bracken had to take movie roles at less than his usual salary. His price spiraled downward, and the roles got worse. In 1952 he pulled out of Hollywood and played four years of "The Seven Year Itch." He has kept busy with plays and occasional TV.

Eddie won't tell his age, but he needn't worry—he still looks like Henry Aldrich.

Pre-Registered At Univ. Of N. C.

CHAPEL HILL—Two Pitt County boys were among the students pre-registering at the University of North Carolina for the fall semester this week.

Taking part in the program were Scott Landram Smiley, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Smiley of Greenville, and William W. Walker Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walker of Fountain.

The purpose of the pre-registration program is to enable students entering the University to take required placement tests in advance, to select his subjects, and to have the opportunity to consult officials of the University regarding ROTC, housing and other matters.

Holiday, while devoting his time primarily to municipal work, had in the past been employed by the Greenville Utilities Commission. The engineering work he did on city projects was billed to the municipal government by the Utilities.

Scheipers said the change will mean the establishment of a Department of Engineering within the city government.

Holiday's salary with the city will be $6,900 annually.

Retired Justice Learned Hand, 89, Dies Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — Judge Learned Hand, distinguished jurist revered by his colleagues as the apostle of liberty under the law, is dead at the age of 89.

His death of heart failure at St. Luke's Hospital Friday brought expressions of regret and respect from across the nation.

"He was one of the great legal minds of our history, ranking with John Marshall and Oliver Wendell Holmes," said Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy in Washington.

"His indomitable spirit, his unflinching faith in his fellow man and his unshakable belief in a free democratic society have made this country a better place for his fellow Americans," Kennedy added.

Associate U. S. Supreme Court Justice John M. Harlan said Hands "place in the American judiciary will live on as an inspiration to all lawyers on both sides of the Atlantic who recognize him as one of the great jurists of his generation."

Hand, who retired in 1951 as chief judge of the second Circuit Court of Appeals—the busiest federal appeals court in the land—often was called the "20th justice of the U. S. Supreme Court."

Hand never achieved the highest court bench. The verbal tribute stemmed from the high regard in which he and his opinions were held by those who did.

He wrote 2,000 opinions during his 42 years of active service as a federal judge—27 of which were spent on the appeals court bench and 15 on a district bench. Many of his opinions won literary acclaim.

In one famous opinion, he wrote: "The spirit of liberty is the spirit which is not too sure that it is right . . . the spirit of liberty is the spirit of Him who, nearly 2,000 years ago, taught mankind a lesson that it has never learned. That there may be a kingdom where the least shall be heard and considered side by side with the greatest."

Supreme Court Justice Benjamin Cardozo once described him as "the most distinguished living English-speaking jurist."

The jurist was born Billings Learned Hand in Albany, N. Y., on Jan. 27, 1872, into a family of colonial stock. He dropped his first name in early manhood in favor of Learned, his mother's maiden name.

He was graduated from Harvard after a brilliant academic career and went into a law office in Albany, subsequently becoming a partner in the firm. He moved to New York City several years later and soon was established as a successful lawyer.

Four Midwives Practicing In Pitt County Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Beatrice Harper of near Ayden, who has been practicing midwifery for three years, became a midwife because she felt that "the Lord had called her."

Beatrice says she has about 15, or a little more, deliveries each year. She is the youngest of the Pitt County midwives, and from the few words spoken during an interview with her at her home on the edge of a cornfield on the Jolly Farm, you realize she is dedicated to her calling. Beatrice attended the Fayetteville Midwife Institute. For her service, she is paid $30. for each delivery. She is one of four midwives in Pitt County as of today. The others are: Queen Ester Gardner of Ayden, Bessie Harris, Greenville, Annie Mobley of Winterville. These midwives are licensed by the Pitt County Health Department.

History hasn't the slightest notion where and when midwifery started. Somewhere back in the hazy picture of man's beginnings, here on earth, some female members of the tribe must have, out of kindness and mercy, stood by one of the women as she gave birth. This was the end to that lonely, horrifying, and more often tragic ordeal that ancient women had since the first birth fallen heir to. For as the years came on, the midwife (person with the wife) became more and more in demand. Crude, and full of superstition as their methods must have been, they accomplished a few things. What had once been entirely an individual act, now had an assist. And, if nothing else, some of the helplessness was gone.

Day Before Yesterday

Midwives were referred to in the Bible. It was a midwife that told the troubled Rachel "Thou shalt have this son also." It was to the midwives that Pharaoh gave instructions to kill off the male offspring of the Hebrew women.

Back as far as 3500 B.C. the Egyptians had maternities and it can be assumed midwives played an important part in maintaining these.

Hippocrates and his pupils studied midwifery about 400 B.C. In his day, midwives were plentiful. And the midwife was the only one allowed in the lying-in chamber. Any male doctor, who ventured in on the delivery of a child, was contemptuously referred to as a "he grandmother."

Socrates' mother was said to have been an excellent midwife. Singing was carried on during the period of labor and the midwife, not only brought the child into the world, but led the singing. After the birth of the child, the midwife presented it to the father. If the father refused to recognize the child as his by lifting it up, it became the duty of the midwife to "expose" the child on the temple steps or on a hillside. Unless some kind person rescued the child so exposed, it died of starvation.

Yesterday

Schools for midwifery were established in Europe. Some of the midwives, who attended such schools, no doubt were found among the midwives of early America. Such a person was Anne Hutchinson, who came to Boston in the year of 1634. As she was accomplished in the art, she soon was hailed as the most "celebrated" midwife in the colony. But her fame soon faded and she was charged with consorting with the devil or some similar stupid charge. For on the 17th day of October, 1637, she had the misfortune to preside at the delivery of a stillborn child that had the earmarks of an "ancepholous monster." Anne Hutchinson was forced to leave the colony. She was later murdered in an Indian raid.

Other famous midwives of Colonial America in the New England area were: Ruth Barnaby, who before she died at the age of 101, is said to have delivered 4,000 children. Another famous midwife, whose tombstone is in Charlestown, Mass., Cemetery, proclaims that she was commissioned by John Lord, Bishop of London, in the year 1718, to practice midwifery in that city and by the blessings of God to perform likewise in this country in the year 1719. She brought into this world 3,000 children and died May 6, 1761 at the age of 76 years.

In 1716 the city of New York passed an ordinance to regulate the practice of midwifery. No one could perform those duties without taking an oath. As it was not until the middle of the Eighteenth Century that the male physician was allowed entrance into the lying-in chambers, the office of midwife was in most cases, one of esteem.

Today

The role of the midwife slowly decreased as more doctors and new methods of delivery came into being. But in some areas, the mid-wife was still in demand. There were 9,000 licensed midwives in Georgia in 1925 but in 1944, the number had dropped to 2,200. And each year since the number has dropped lower and lower. Modern and more accessible hospitals, staffed with efficient doctors, have steadily pulled together the curtain on the stage of midwifery. While in some of the out-of-the-way places, among people of small means, the service of the granny-midwife is still required. But that art, whose origin is lost in antiquity is now losing out to the advancing years.

Today In Pitt County

About the only requirements the midwives of a few years back had to have was to "feel a calling." While the modern midwife also may "feel a calling," the law has laid down certain things that the person who applies for a midwife permit must: She must be between the ages of 21 and 45, a high school graduate, in good health, and have a good character. Permits are renewed every five years.

But the getting of a permit is only the beginning. She must complete satisfactorily a course at the midwife institute that is held usually at Fayetteville. She must observe ten deliveries by a selected midwife, and attend ten maternity and infant clinics. She must attend all midwife meetings.

Those midwives that live in the county are supervised by the Pitt County Health Department. One nurse from the department is assigned to take charge of the monthly scheduled meetings. Mrs. Addie Griffith has this job for the local health department. Staff nurses inspect periodically the midwives' home and the bags they carry in performing their duties. Midwives deliver only supervised cases through the health department and local physician. Any abnormalities of a case are reported at once to the health department. Midwives must have physical examinations each year by the health department. Retirement age is 65.

While the number of midwives has decreased quite a bit in the last ten years, the number of deliveries by midwives hadn't shown an appreciable decrease until 1950. In 1951 there were 22 midwives in the county and four years later there were only 10. These ten delivered 201 babies. In 1959 the five midwives on the roll delivered 219 babies. One year later the same five delivered only 123 babies. This is an average of 23 deliveries each. While the number of midwives has decreased 50 percent since 1955, the average delivery per midwife has increased from 20 to 25.

Tomorrow

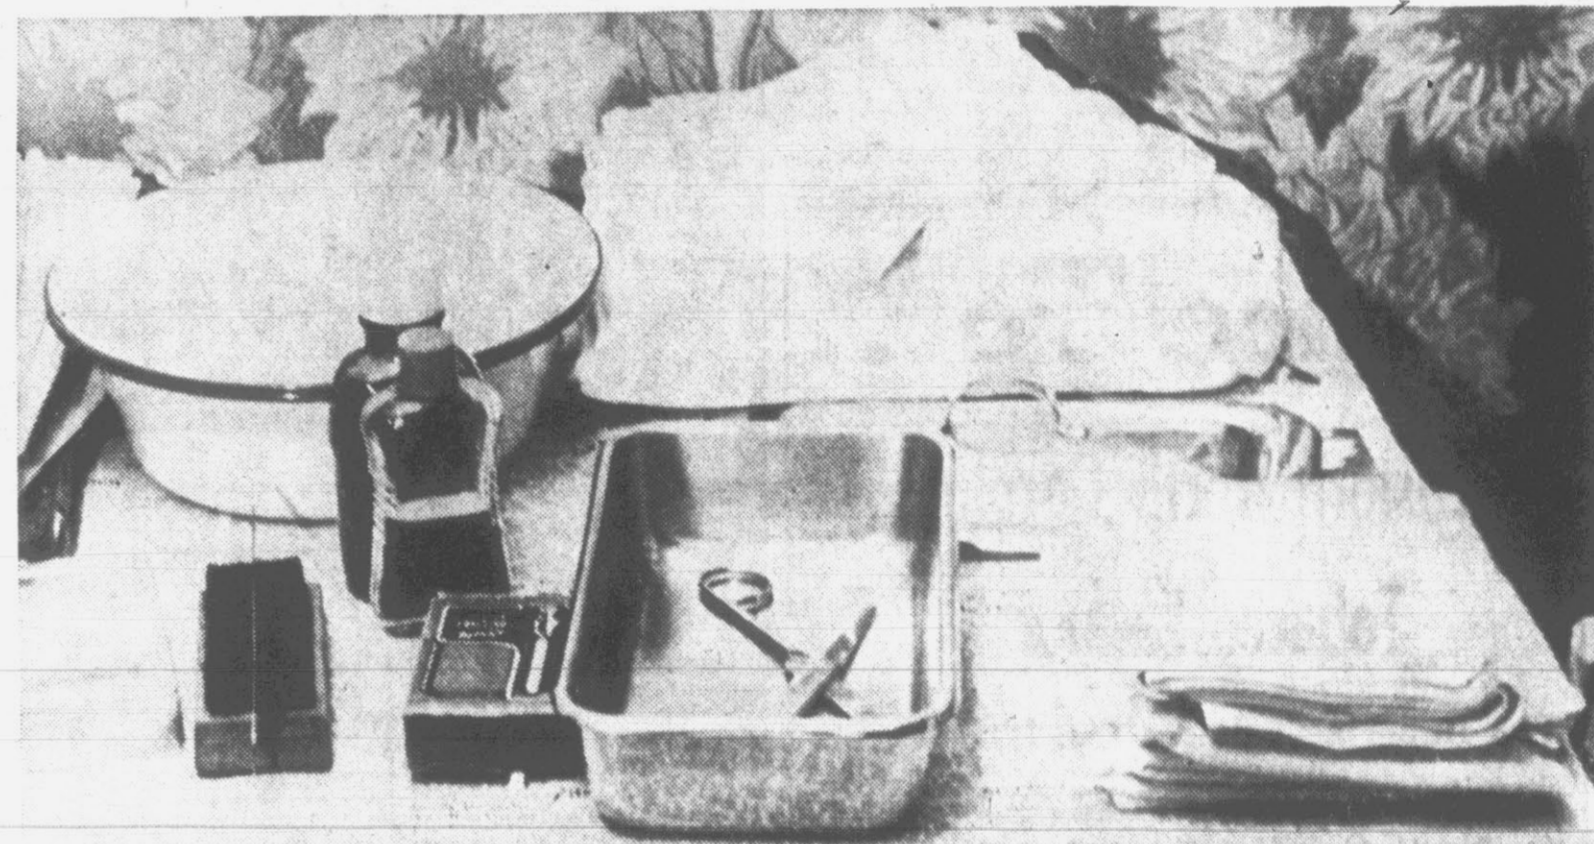

It seems safe to assume that in the next decade or so, here in Pitt County at least, midwifery will pass out entirely, and become only a word in a book or a definition in a dictionary.

And, mankind will never fully realize the real worth of "that person with the wife." But to those dedicated women, whose only real qualification was the feeling that they were called by God to perform this task, the world owes a lot. For, who knows how many women, in their great hour of pain and fear, have pulled through due to the understanding heart, the soothing voice, and steady hand of the midwife. And time can give them no greater recognition than that they cared and served. They had a great reverent concern about the mother and child, or as Aunt Jeanie in Marie Campbell's book, "Folks Do Get Born", prays:

"Give folks the minds to know and the strength to do, so they can manage for better ways of looking after their women folks when they birth their babies. Take care of this whole peopled world. And Lord, in all your hurry, don't forget to take care of yourself."

A MIDWIFE HAS INSTRUMENTS AND MATERIAL FOR HER WORK... here are some of the items laid out for photographer.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

"If Shakespeare were alive, he would be among the first to buy this fascinating biography of one of England's most maligned kings."

Thus the John Day Company headlines its ad this week for Harold Hutchinson's "The Hollow Crown," a new life of Richard II, which is being published in September.

The publisher compares this work with "Richard III" by Paul Kendall, which came out a few years ago, and indicates that just as Kendall showed that Shakespeare's villainous Richard III was a pretty nice guy after all, so Hutchinson will prove that Richard II, viewed by Shakespeare as a mixed-up neurotic, was actually "one of the most arresting and sympathetic figures in English Annals." Now it remains for someone to step across the Scottish border and clean up Macbeth's record.

Age of Reason

Another fall item in the field of history to watch for is Will Durani's "The Age of Reason Begins," a work which covers the nine decades between 1558 and 1648. These were pretty important years, probably as significant as any equal span in history, what with the appearance then of Queen Elizabeth, Shakespeare, Milton, Descartes, Montaigne, Galileo, Kepler, Bacon, El Greco, and many others all of whom played a part in shaping the world which we know—or which we knew until 1945.

Fiction

In the field of fiction there are important items coming up too. One of these is J. D. Salinger's "Franny and Zooey" a work which has already appeared in the New Yorker with critical acclaim. Salinger is widely known as the author of "Catcher in the Rye," a work which has delighted and shocked thousands since it was first published about a decade ago, and he has emerged as one of the most widely discussed writers in America.

Other fiction writers of note on the fall list are Carson McCullers ("The Heart is a Lonely Hunter"), whose new novel is called "Clock without Hands," and Eugene Burdick ("The Ugly American") with "The Blue of Capricorn."

New Law Ever since Northcote Parkinson, the British economist, formulated Parkinson's Law (which says that as business organization increases arithmetically, the bureaucracy attending it increases geometrically), others have tried their hands at this sort of succinct way of characterizing our institutions.

The Wall Street Journal took a shot at this sort of thing the other day and came up with this formula: the amount of talk and effort expended by Congress on any subject is in direct proportion to the amount of talk expended on that subject by Washington lobbyists.

The occasion for such a formulation by this paper was its effort to report Congressional reaction to the lobbyist-studded contest between California fruit growers who desired a high tariff on imported dates, nuts, and figs, and the candy and cookies makers who wanted them brought in duty-free.

Romantic East—Congressional Division

Nobody knows quite what happened, but the controversy excited some classical Senatorial oratory, including this passage uttered by Senator Dirksen: "I am sure that if I had the opportunity to buy a carload of dates from that area made famous by Sinbad the Sailor in the Persian Gulf where the date wind blows and where Omar Khayyam sat under a fig tree with a jug of wine reading and writing verses, I would want to buy at the best price I could."

Essay Contest

One way that a college student could make $2,300 would be to win the essay contest sponsored by the John Birch Society. Subject: "Why the Chief Justice Should be impeached." Or he could win the rival contest sponsored by Publisher Thomas Storke. The subject for this contest is "The Problem of Character Assassination," and it is open only to law students and students of psychiatry.

Chatter

In London "Lady Chatterley's Lover" has created a boom of books with titles like "Lady Lovelady's Chatter," "Lady Lovelady's Mother," and "Lady Chatterley's Grandfather."

Local Movies

Currently, there are films to note at both the Pitt and the State. The Pitt is showing "Fanny," an adaptation of the stage musical by Behrman and Logan. The movie is not a musical, but with veteran hands like Charles Boyer and Maurice Chevalier, in the cast, it has been extremely well received. Especially noteworthy is the fine photography of French scenes.

The State is running the latest movie version of an old favorite, Edna Ferber's "Cimarron." This should be worth looking in on too.

Women Behind Bars... Her Job

BALTIMORE (AP) — You were young and I sort of grew up can't afford to become heartbroken or hard boiled over individual cases if you are a women's prison superintendent, says Alice Blum.

"You'd lose your perspective," Miss Blum is the superintendent of the Maryland State Reformatory for women, about 20 miles south of here.

Rather than become hardened, she says, "we must look for something constructive to do, some way to help. I get discouraged when I see a girl wasting her potential, saying outright she doesn't intend to change. You run into those, you know."

Miss Blum says she tries "to reach that one little tender spot in a girl we thought unreachable." She says this usually is difficult because most inmates won't admit their guilt.

"Many women claim to have been framed and say they are innocent," she said.

Some Young as 14

Confined at the reformatory are women whose sentences range from three months to life. The offenses run the gamut—from vagrancy and narcotics violations to first degree murder, robbery and manslaughter.

The prisoners average about 23 or 24 years old, "but we've had them as young as 14."

Isn't the job dangerous? "Certainly there is danger. Many of the women are psychopaths. But I came here when I with Blum's interest in sociology while a pre-med student at the University of Maryland led to her career as a reformatory superintendent.

She Attends Games

She started at the bottom of the prison staff in 1939 when she went to Jessup temporarily to work on her master's degree.

The challenge of preparing women for parole captured her interest. Eventually she became steno-steroom supervisor, cottage supervisor and then superintendent.

"A jack-of-all trades sort of thing," she describes her work.

Miss Blum says she tries to establish a personal relationship with the inmates by listening to their problems. And she attends their sporting competitions as one of the ways to better understand the women at the reformatory.

Hard to Face Families

Among the major problems confronting the reformatory staff, she says, are those arising from dealings with the families of the inmates.

"One of the most difficult tasks we have here is facing these families and telling them their girls aren't what they thought they were. Often the families are prejudiced in favor of their girls."

Then there are problems after parole—helping the women find jobs, places to live and preparing

Puerto Rican Statehood Battle Continues An Uphill Struggle

By J. W. DAVIS

AP Newfeatures Writer SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) —The effort to make Puerto Rico the 51st state in the American Union continues—but it's an uphill battle almost all the way.

Statehood advocates in recent years have been encouraged by the admission of Alaska in 1958 and Hawaii in 1959.

Their hopes leaped again this year when residents of the District of Columbia finally were given the right to vote.

But the obstacles, if not numerous, are big and important.

For one thing, there is now comparatively little agitation in the U.S. Congress to vote statehood for this Caribbean island.

For another, Gov. Luis Munoz Marin of Puerto Rico is squarely against statehood in this generation or the next one. Economic lunacy, he called it when a reported broached the question. Suiidal, he told an inquiring congressman.

On the other hand, former Gov. Rexford G. Tugwell, who served by appointment in the Franklin D. Roosevelt New Deal days, declared on a visit here this Spring:

"The island's evolution is toward statehood."

And Luis A. Ferre, who ran for governor against Munoz last year, is still hopefully carrying on the fight for statehood.

Ferre, an important leader of Puerto Rico's business community, contends that statehood would help give stability to the island's economy.

But, primarily, he argued, the thing at stake is "the hallowed sacred right of Americans to exercise the right of self-determination and to enjoy the full blessings of representative democracy."

Since 1952, Puerto Rico has existed as a self-governing commonwealth within the American Union. Its residents do not have a vote for president or any voting representation in Congress. They do not pay federal taxes.

Gov. Munoz contends that federal taxes, on top of those the commonwealth has to impose, would either break the back of the taxpayer or force a ruinous cut-down of public service. Federal taxes would accompany statehood.

In the last 20 years Puerto Rico has made great economic strides, most of them under Munoz' administration, but its per capita income is still far below the lowest of any of the 50 states in the Union.

During an inquiry into island issues by a visiting U. S. House subcommittee, there was this exchange:

Rep. Jack Westland, R-Wash. —"I wanted to ask you, governor, what effect statehood for Hawaii and Alaska has had here in Puerto Rico."

Gov. Munoz—"A psychological effect rendering the understanding of economics obscure." That itself sounded obscure to Westland, so the governor explained:

"I mean, Congressman, that some people that are for statehood have become so enthusiastic about it that they forget all the economic facts of life."

Ferre's reply to that line of argument: "Whatever additional taxes were paid, we would gladly pay to assure the stability which would come to Puerto Rico from the enjoyment of its sovereign rights, convinced that in the long run they would be greatly compensated by increased economic activity."

In an interview, Munoz was reminded that some statehood advocates had spoken of him as their only real obstacle, and he commented: "I doubt it very much. Their obstacle is that the people of Puerto Rico like the commonwealth government. They have shown so repeatedly at the polls."

The people showed most recently, in the election last November, that they certainly liked Munoz, or his party, or both. They gave Munoz' Popular Democrats 457,887 votes, or more than the other three parties combined.

Still, Ferre's Republican Statehood party could find reason to feel encouraged. They have shown so repeatedly at the polls.

The people showed most recently, in the election last November, that they certainly liked Munoz, or his party, or both. They gave Munoz' Popular Democrats 457,887 votes, or more than the other three parties combined.

Munoz is conceded by all to be an extraordinarily popular individual. The party-by-party returns might have been vastly different had he not headed the Popular Democratic ticket.

Munoz is 63 years old now and some day, of course, he'll be out of the political picture. When that day comes, Puerto Ricans of all sorts say, anything can happen.

Epidemic Brings Red Charges

HONG KONG (AP) — The current cholera epidemic in South China has brought a revival of Peiping's Korean War charge of germ warfare by the United States, the South China Morning Post reported today.

The epidemic reportedly has been raging in southeast Kwangtung province. The English-language newspaper, quoting a recent arrival from the mainland, said deaths were estimated at 30,000.

The traveler said Communist officials at mass meetings in South China accused "agents of the American bacteriological warfare bureau of plotting the cholera epidemic."

Forgot To Thank Them... Got Him

DUISBURG, Germany (AP)—A man called the police from a local bar and asked them to drive his car home because he had had one too many.

Obligingly, two officers complied, sent the man to bed put his car into his garage.

Half an hour later, there was a knock at the police station window. It was the motorist, happily waving a bottle of schnapps.

"I forgot to thank you for your kind help," he explained. Parked beside him was his car. The officers picked up his license.

Sports Cars For British Police

LONDON (AP) — British highway police are being equipped with 130-mile-an-hour sports cars to help them chase bandits, speeding motorists and teen-age motorcyclists who roar through crowded areas at high speed.

The cars are low, sleek Daimler Darts. The first will take the roads Monday.

Oldtimers Of Wall Street Feel SBIC Speculative

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Popularity of small business investment company (SBIC) stocks enlivened the summer season well before the Berlin crisis stirred the market in general.

But the rush to buy SBIC shares also raised some Wall Street eyebrows. Old-timers regard these new investment firms as still highly speculative despite some impressive growth records in the short time they've been around, and some flashy advances in the price of their stocks.

Many businessmen also are wondering about the new source of financial aid, although about 1,500 of them already have used them to raise capital. Many old-line lenders, such as banks, regard SBICs with less than enthusiasm. For one thing the newcomers have certain tax advantages and have access to some government financial aid themselves.

What are SBICs? What kind of business concerns do they aid? Congress in 1958 authorized the Small Business Administration to license investment firms to specialize in financial aid to small concerns. Total assets must be under $5 million and net income under $250,000 a year for a firm to qualify for a loan from a SBIC.

Of the 331 investment companies the SBA has licensed, most are small and serve limited areas. But some have grown and cover wide sections. There are now 31 publicly held—that is, they have offered their stock to public subscription. Eleven more have registered stock applications with the Securities & Exchange Commission.

The first SBIC stock offerings hit the market in June 1959. But the SBIC Evaluation Service, Chicago, says in its initial monthly analysis that offerings really got rolling only this year. It says the biggest spurt has come since late June and will bring the total assets of publicly held companies close to $250 million by the end of this month. A big booster of sales is that almost all of the stocks offered earlier quickly rose to prices well above the issuing quotations.

The top five, in order of assets, are: Electronics Capital Corp., San Diego, Calif., $33.3 million; Boston Capital Corp., Boston, Mass., $21.2 million; Midland Capital Corp., Buffalo, N.Y., $16.4 million; Electro Science Investors, Dallas, Tex., $14.9 million; and Capital Southwest Corp., Dallas, $10.1 million.

Some SBICs specialize in one or two types of business. Electronics Capital, for example, as of mid-summer had made 18 investments, 12 in firms in being 1 1/2 years or less, but all closely allied to electronics and technical fields. Only two of the companies have publicly traded stocks.

Western Historical Novel The BURNWOOD MEN

CHAPTER 7

"Is that you, Papa?" came a girl's cautious voice from the cabin door. She ran toward the three riders, a rifle held ready against her slim body.

Colly Devoe swung down from his horse. He caught her up in a great bear hug, rifle and all. Then, with his arm around her, he started for the cabin. Over his shoulder he said: "Brock, take care of the horses. Will you? Tam, grab your possibilities and come along."

Dismounting, Tam untied carpet-bag and coat, and gave the reins of his horse to Brock. He walked into the cabin, blinking in the lamplight.

The size of it surprised him. This was a room of hand-hewn beams, at the far end a great stone fireplace, and around the room low benches and chairs grouped at random. Hooked rugs of bright colors decorated a floor of rammed earth. At the end opposite the fireplace, another door appeared to lead to other rooms. At one side a vertical ladder led to an attic opening.

There was pride in Colly Devoe's voice as he said, "Tam Barrie, this is my daughter Stephanie."

Tam blinked. The girl was a lovely thing, her dark eyes startled and shy. There was a hint of copper in the gold of her skin; her hair was the blue-black of a crow's wing feathers. Color suffused her cheeks under Tam's frank stare. She dropped him a quaint small curtsy.

"How do you do, Mr. Barrie," she said.

Before Tam could speak, her father said: "Ain't she a jim-dandy, Tam? Brung up in the mission, this girl. But she wasn't too proud to come back to keep house for an old reprobate like me."

"I'm Metisse, Papa," the girl said, with a touch of pride. "Walls of stone and brick are not for me. Nor the crowding of hundreds of strangers. That's as much the reason I came back to the prairies as the fact that you can't get along without me."

"What did I tell ye, Tam? Stevie, I'm glad you keep that rifle handy."

edge of her own beauty. She took a final glance at her reflection, smiling at herself over her bare shoulder before she left the room. In the parlor, she settled herself against the horsehair of the sofa in a conscious effect. Picking up a magazine, two months old, she leafed through it. The styles, she thought, are changing. Still, they will do well by me. How lucky, to have a real woman's figure, not needing hip pads or bust pads! I'm a concited wench, she thought, smiling at herself.

There was a knock at the front door, but Dove did not rise. The 'broad woman padded past the parlor door to answer, as Dove had shown her. Dove tossed her magazine aside, leaning forward to hear the low-voiced colloquy at the door.

When footsteps came down the hall she took the magazine again, looking up from it to the two men who stood with some uncertainty in the doorway of the parlor.

"Why it's Mr. LaCroix!" Dove cried. She came gracefully to her feet. "Sophie, for heaven's sake bring them in. Then make a pitcher of cold lemonade and bring it here."

The woman stared at her, spat out a short guttural that might have been assent, and left. Dove thought she saw a faint smile on the ascetic face of Pierre LaCroix. It irritated her.

"But she did not show it as she indicated chairs. This man held some key place in the plans of her husband. It would be well to butter him up."

"So nice to see you again, Mr. LaCroix," she said. "But I do not know your friend."

"An associate, Gabriel Valier," LaCroix said, inclining his head toward the powerfully built, grizzled man with him. Valier gave her a courtly bow.

"Mr. Valier," Dove murmured. "You wished to see my husband, Mr. LaCroix? He did not mention an appointment to me, but Cleland tells me little of his affairs."

Sophie entered the room carrying a tray with a pitcher and three glasses. She looked helplessly for a place to put it down.

"Over here," Dove said sharply.

The woman lowered the tray to a table beside Dove. The heavy pitcher slid sideways. Sophie made a wild grab for it. It overturned, dumping a flood of sticky liquid into Dove's lap.

Dove sprang up, holding the soaked fabric away from her. Her lovely dress, the first time she had worn it! Sophie, concern on her dark face, tried to dab at the stains with a cloth.

Dove slashed the back of her hand across the woman's cheek. "Get away from me, you ignorant animal!" she cried. And on the instant she realized what she had done. But it was too late to mend.

The woman flung the damp cloth on the table and stalked from the room. Dove, still holding the wet dress away from her body, looked at the two men. Her heart sank.

There were disdain and anger on the narrow face of LaCroix. Valier was looking away, his iron face set and harsh. Both men were standing.

"I'm sorry," Dove said uncertainly.

LaCroix said stiffly: "Your husband can come to our camp, if he wishes to talk to us. We do not come through doors where our people are not welcome."

Dove hurried after them to the front door. She made a final plea. "But, gentlemen, I didn't mean..."

Valier. He turned his back, smile, white teeth gleaming in his bearded face. "Madame Strike, you do not even bother to learn the name of this woman you slap and call 'animal.' But she is Sophie Valier, sister to me, Gabriel Valier." He turned his back squarely on her and strode across the yard.

Communists Create Chaos On Border Of East Berlin

EDITOR'S NOTE—Lynn Heizerling, AP's Pulitzer prize-winning foreign correspondent, observed and wrote about Berlin in Hitler's day. Now he's back. And here's what he has found.

By LYNN HEIZERLING
BERLIN (AP)—It is pure chaos in Harzerstrasse.

Everything north of Harzerstrasse is in Communist-ruled East Berlin. But the street and sidewalks are in West Berlin. The people living along the north side of the street have had the best of two worlds. Their back doors opened up on the bounteous life of West Berlin.

A little farther along the street Communist soldiers took up positions in some gardens, clumping through the neat cabbage patches and the petunias. All this resulted apparently from the fact that concrete walls across the end of the three side streets leading into Harzerstrasse from the north. Several hundred people living in the four-story apartment buildings along the street were consigned to the restrictions of Communist living.

Communist police and soldiers took up positions on nearby roofs to see that nobody tried to jump cut of windows. They also took up positions behind the walls in the street. And they laid barbed wire in one flower bed at a corner where the occupants might possibly jump six feet from a balcony to freedom.

Harzerstrasse was a popular exit for fed-up East Berliners early in the week.

The blocked-up doors and the new walls at the intersections attracted crowds all day. And the young "people's police" and soldiers on the other side of the walls took a lot of heckling.

"Yesterday 10 of you men came over," shouted a man from the capitalist side of the wall. "Maybe there'll be more."

"Maybe," said one of the soldiers.

An aged and bent little lady who had come 25 miles to see a friend couldn't get in the house to see her. The friend was sobbing from a third floor window.

A Communist policeman blandly told the old lady to walk to the nearest authorized entry to Communist Berlin, a walk of about four miles.

"You must be crazy," a West German shouted at him. "Can't you see she's not going to start a revolution?"

Along the street there were similar scenes. One woman shouted up at the third floor of an apartment: "Tell Elsa to come to the window!"

"I suppose that's permitted," she said to a soldier with a sub machine gun. The 18-year-old soldier smiled wanly.

Another woman shouted: "Tell Auntie to get through Elsenstrasse and come over." Auntie lives across the street and Elsenstrasse is about two miles away.

Neighbors said they knew of one Communist living in the affected buildings. He dropped a flower pot from the third floor on demonstrating West Berliners last Sunday, they said. He also is the only man in the building with a television set, they stated, as though this proved he was a Communist.

A West Berlin policeman who had been watching the antics of the Communist forces all day shrugged and said "other countries have their customs." He said many of the soldiers across the wall were not Berliners.

He said the East German soldiers seemed to be depressed and would not talk with him. He looked down the pleasant shaded street and sighed.

The new wall, described by some West German policeman as the "Chinese Wall," is made of concrete building blocks, nearly six feet high. Iron bars have been inserted along the top for holding barbed wire. The wall is not continuous, but is laid across every street or vacant area which might be an escape exit.

At Potsdamerplatz, once one of the busiest intersections in Berlin, the wall stretches across Potsdamerstrasse and Bellevuestrasse which lead into West Berlin.

Crowds gathered there and asked the soldiers on the other side whether they intended to build it any farther. There was no answer. The police were using it to lurk from photographers.

"They're not unfriendly," a West Berlin policeman said. "They just aren't allowed to talk."

The lady who runs a small shop with heavy dresses and cosmetics at Potsdamerplatz had a bad day. She said she had a good many customers from East Berlin and usually did a business of $250 daily. At 5 p.m. today she had taken in 35 cents.

Another unhappy German was the driver of a tractor who was working the day before on a building site on Lindenstrasse. The wall across Linden Street trapped his huge tractor and the People's Police said he couldn't remove it because it would involve knocking down the wall.
