SATISFIED FARMERS... These are just two of the many farmers who left the Greenville Tobacco Market with smiles on their faces yesterday.

Greenville Market Opens With $1 Million Day, $64.18 Average

Tanks, Troops Sent To Berlin's Borders

BERLIN (AP)—The three Western Allies pushed tanks and infantry up to the sector border dividing Berlin today in the face of new Communist restrictions on traffic between the East and West parts of the city.

Patton tanks from the U. S. Army appeared at the Friedrichstrasse crossing point, which the East German Communists now insist must be used by all foreigners going into East Berlin.

For the first time since the Reds set up barricades 10 days ago to halt the flow of refugees, the East German regime was telling Americans and other Westerners where they could and could not enter East Berlin.

Farmville Mart Opens With Big $63.36 Average

FARMVILLE — Farmville's tobacco market yesterday opened its 1961 auction season with a booming sales average of $63.36—more than $10 per 100 pounds above the opening day sales average a year ago.

Williams termed yesterday's opening "the most radical change I've ever seen in one year." Farmville's market climbed to the peak in its 57-year history after recording a $53.33 average on opening day a year ago.

Prices today, Williams said, were about the same as yesterday except that slightly higher bids were seen for leaf grades.

"We had a surprising volume of tips on the market yesterday," Williams noted. He said the leaf grades usually begin showing up on the floors in heavy volumes later in the selling season.

Prices bid for tips ranged down into the high $50s, he said, but Williams predicted buyers would pay more for the leaf grades when the Imperial Tobacco Co.'s buyers arrive here for tomorrow's sale.

Still dominating the local warehouse floors today were baskets of fair to fine lugs and lower primings. Those grades brought $71 and $72 per hundredweight consistently.

Williams reported growers on the market here "are very well-pleased with prices they are being paid." Some, he said, have deplored carting segments of their crops to auctions on the Border Belt and the Georgia-Florida market.

Williams attributed the high sales average recorded here and around the 17-market Eastern Belt to the apparent fact that "the buyers found when they arrived a much better crop than they had anticipated."

In selling the 626,570 pounds—not quite a full sale—yesterday, the Farmville market paid growers a total of $397,016 for the high average. Its average stood 84 cents per 100 below the belt average but represented a greater increase over last year's opening averages than any market on the belt.

Williams said volume would probably pick up for sales tomorrow and Friday. He predicted a full sale Monday.

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

Opening - day records were smashed here yesterday as Greenville's tobacco market notched a sales average of $64.18 per hundredweight and marked its second consecutive million-dollar season opening.

Volume for today's sales was reported somewhat down, but prices were "still riding at an all-time record high," according to Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee. He reported "row after row is selling at $70 or better."

In marking the highest opening-day sales average in its 71-year history, the Greenville market placed just two cents per 100 pounds below the Eastern Belt's average of $64.20 reported by the Federal-State Marketing News Service in Wilson.

In boosting its opening-day average by $8.69 per 100 above last year's season-opening sale, Greenville's market led the entire belt in pounds sold and receipts paid growers. A total of 1,798,682 pounds—crossed the 10 local warehouse floors and happy growers pocketed a total of $1,154,485.

Greenville joined Kinston and Wilson, the other two belt markets chalking up million-dollar days, in paying growers more than $1 million for their offerings yesterday.

Whedbee said this morning quality is "almost as good as yesterday's sale." As was the case Tuesday, day, lugs and primings—more lemon than orange—and a scattering of leaf grades comprised today's offering.

The sales supervisor said today's sale is repeating yesterday's activity in that "the buying companies are anxious for the tobacco and farmers are overjoyed at prices they are receiving."

Reflecting on yesterday's and today's offerings, Whedbee said the 1961 crop's "quality as a whole seems to be much better than last year." Of yesterday's sale, he said, "Never before has Greenville had such an opening day."

Sales averages on the huge Eastern Belt yesterday ranged from a high of $66.74 from the sale of 365,000 pounds in Ahoakie to a low of $62.22 recorded in Washington from the sale of 344,000 pounds.

While Greenville's opening average fell just shy of the average reported for the belt, the local overall gain from last year's opening average out-pointed the belt's increase by $1.48 per 100 pounds. The belt opened a year ago with $56.99 while Greenville posted an opening average of $55.49.

Totals reported by the marketing news service showed a total of 12,317,998 pounds brought growers a total of $798,790 on the 17-market belt yesterday. The receipts figure was nearly $1 million above last year's opening-day receipts total of $688,009. Opening-day volume for the belt a year ago was 12,075,372.

Listed below are opening-day figures for the Eastern Belt as furnished by the market news service:

Eastern Belt Sees Opening Record Average Of $64.20

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A record high price average for an opening day was set on Tuesday's sales on the huge Eastern North Carolina Tobacco Belt.

The Federal-State Market News Service reported today the 17 Eastern markets moved a total of 12,317,998 pounds at their opening sales, and that pleased growers received an average of $64.20 for their leaf.

The Tuesday average on the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt, meanwhile, was off $1.02 from Monday's all-time record average of $67.78.

The News Service said the belt sold 12,527,107 pounds at a $66.76 average Tuesday. South Carolina markets sold 6,497,661 pounds of this for an average of $67.18 while the belt's North Carolina markets were chalking up an average of $68.31 on sales totaling 6,029,446 pounds.

Although the Eastern average Tuesday was a record for an opening day, it was not as high as the averages recorded on several days last season. The all-time high average for the East came last Oct. 3—when it reached $66.31. Meanwhile, indications were that the eastern sales would be lighter today, and lower quality leaf probably would bring the average price down somewhat.

The Eastern Belt opening average exceeded last year's opening day figure by more than $7.

The news service reported that virtually all grade averages were higher Tuesday than on last year's opening.

Most price gains over last year's opening were $2 to $6 per hundred, but some low quality primings leaped $12 to $19 above a year ago. The practical top in most cases was $72 a hundred, although a few baskets returned as much as $73 and at least one $74 sale was reported.

Volume, which was heavy on the Eastern Belt for the first day, is expected to taper off somewhat in the next few days.

A larger percentage of good quality leaf and less low, poor nondescript tobacco was on the warehouse floors this year. Among markets sampled by the news service came reports that 1 to 2 per cent of the tobacco was turned over to the Stabilization Corporation compared with 5 per cent of last year's crop which went to the price support program.

The South Carolina-North Carolina Border Belt, meanwhile, reported fairly steady prices Tuesday on the heels of a record breaking performance Monday.

The news service said losses on the Border Belt were more noticeable for leaf and primings Tuesday while increased proportions of nondescript and poor leaf lowered the general quality. Volume remained heavy.

For the season, 3.4 per cent of the Border Belt crop has gone to the Stabilization Corporation.

The belt sold 13,438,670 pounds of tobacco Monday at $67.78 per hundred, which was $3.11 over last Friday's average. By states, Monday's sales were:

North Carolina—6,457,948 pounds sold at $67.28 per hundred; South Carolina—6,980,722 pounds sold at $68.24 per hundred.

These price averages were reported Tuesday on the Eastern Belt for a number of representative grades, compared with the 1960 opening day figures:

Leaf—Fair lemon $68, up $2; low orange 66, up 4; poor orange 63, up 6.

Lugs—Good lemon 72, up 2; fair lemon 71, up 4; fair orange 70, up 2.

Primings—Good lemon 70, up 5; fair lemon 69, up 6; low lemon 65, up 13; good orange 70, up 3; poor orange 67, up 4; low orange 61, up 15.

Nondescript—Best thin body 46, up 19.

Williams reported growers on the market here "are very well-pleased with prices they are being paid." Some, he said, have deplored carting segments of their crops to auctions on the Border Belt and the Georgia-Florida market.

Williams attributed the high sales average recorded here and around the 17-market Eastern Belt to the apparent fact that "the buyers found when they arrived a much better crop than they had anticipated."

In selling the 626,570 pounds—not quite a full sale—yesterday, the Farmville market paid growers a total of $397,016 for the high average. Its average stood 84 cents per 100 below the belt average but represented a greater increase over last year's opening averages than any market on the belt.

Williams said volume would probably pick up for sales tomorrow and Friday. He predicted a full sale Monday.

Grand Jury Indicts 3 With Intent To Kill

Three Kinston men charged with gunning down a Carolina Township constable in a Stokes robbery attempt more than a year ago were indicted by the Pitt County Grand Jury Monday.

Named in indictments charging assault with intent to kill and breaking, entering and larceny were Bruce Clark, 25, Arthur Goff, 43, and Kenneth Earl Grant, 30. Solicitor Robert D. Rouse said trial of the three men is set for Monday as the current term of Pitt Superior Court begins its second and final week.

Clark and Goff are confined in Pitt County jail awaiting trial under $20,000 bond while Grant, serving a sentence imposed in Greene County, is currently at Caledonia Prison Farm in Halifax County. Officers will bring Grant to Greenville for trial Monday, according to reports today.

The grand jury also returned true bills naming three defendants in secret assault and conspiracy charges growing from an Aug. 11 incident in which a rural Ayden storekeeper was struck on the head with a brick in what Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson called a robbery attempt.

Indicted on both charges were two Ayden youths, Jimmy Braxton, 18, and Harvey Lee Stone, 21. The third party, who had not been arrested at noon today, was identified as Annie Ruth Jones, about 35, of near Ayden. Rouse said a capias for the woman's arrest was issued this morning.

Trial of the three alleged assailants of the storekeeper, Thad McLawhorn, is also scheduled for Monday, according to the solicitor.

A murder indictment was returned by the jury charging Walter David Johnson with the Aug. 6 slaying of Robert Barnes.

Aug. 5 and found Barnes, 31, had been shot to death.

Johnson was held without bond for Superior Court action and action by the grand jury. Officers said both Johnson and Barnes were residents of the Fleming Street house where Johnson was arrested.

Other true bills returned Monday by the grand jury included: Charles Matthews, escape; Lloyd Lane, escape; Edgar Davenport, escape (third offense); Joe Walter May, assault; Bertha Lee Pitt, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey and possession for sale; J. C. Edwards, drunken driving and exceeding a safe speed; Perry Bender Cannon, drunken driving; Robert H. Nelms and Marvin Earl Bottoms, false pretense; J. R. Haddock, worthless check; and William Earl Phillips, fraudulently obtaining money upon promise to work.

Waives Hearing On Murder Count

Essie Mae Alston, 36-year-old Negro woman of Rt. 1, Ayden, has waived preliminary hearing on a murder charge.

Miss Alston is accused of stabbing Jessie Lane, Jr., 34, in the arm. Lane bled to death. The case will go directly to the Grand Jury.

Clark and Goff are confined in Pitt County jail awaiting trial under $20,000 bond while Grant, serving a sentence imposed in Greene County, is currently at Caledonia Prison Farm in Halifax County. Officers will bring Grant to Greenville for trial Monday, according to reports today.

Bloodmobile In Pitt Two Days

The Bloodmobile will be at the Ayden Community building tomorrow from 12 noon until 6 p.m. Friday, the mobile blood-collecting unit will be set up at the Greenville Moose Lodge from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Quota for the two-day visit to Pitt County is 250 pints.

Tom V. Wheelis is chairman of Ayden's Bloodmobile committee and his assistant is Grady Dixon, Jr.

County Chairman W. K. Whichard said that a corps of church and civic organization workers have done "an excellent job in organizing for this visit."

In Ayden and Greenville cards have been distributed by clubs and other organizations scheduling definite appointments for donors.

Whichard said donors will be reminded by telephone.

Satellite Launch Platform In Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States fired a satellite launch platform into orbit today but it failed to send a piggyback payload on a projected million-mile round-trip into space.

It was indicated—but not immediately certain—that the two units did not separate.

Nevertheless, scientists expected signals from the space craft to yield some measure of valuable data. The purpose of the flight was to test techniques for launching future vehicles to the moon, Mars and Venus.

A powerful Atlas-Agena rocket blasted off at 5:04 a.m. The Agena second stage spun into a "parking orbit" from which the 675-pound payload, Ranger I, was to have been flung into space.

The Agena, with power shut off, was designed to follow its orbit for 14 minutes until it reached a proper point before reigniting to build up speed to 23,800 miles an hour and kick Ranger loose.

Ranger was intended to go into a highly elliptical orbit with a high point of 500,000 miles. The Agena was to continue on a path about 100 miles up.

But the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced 3 1/2 hours after the launching that the Agena rocket stage and the space craft are in a near earth orbit rather than the highly eccentric orbit planned for the flight.

Exact orbit details were not known. It is possible, an official said, that the two vehicles are in separate orbits, close together. NASA said radio data are being studied to determine what went wrong.

Officials said radio data from the orbiting vehicle is being analyzed to determine why Ranger I did not separate.

Primary mission of the flight was to test operation of the space craft. Since data are being received it is likely that this objective will be achieved in part, they said.

Earlier James D. Burke, Project Range manager, had reported all communication lost. At that time it could not be determined whether any part of the device had gone into orbit.

The last affirmative word, some 50 minutes after blast-off, had been that the second stage of the big booster had fired on schedule a second time, after cutting off as planned for a coasting interval.

The second firing was to have injected the package into orbit for the launching of the piggyback rider.

NASA had hoped the flight would prove the feasibility of the space launch platform system and test techniques for sending future space vehicles to the moon, Mars and Venus.

Another rocket and payload, Ranger II, are available to repeat the mission. That effort is tentatively set for late fall.

MEET TONIGHT

The Planning-Zoning Commission will meet tonight in City Hall. The meeting will begin at 8:00 in the council chambers.

The moves to tone down the resolution were prompted mainly by reports the United States would abstain in the vote so as not to offend France at this crucial stage in the East-West dispute over Berlin.

Chief U. S. delegate Adlai Stevenson made plain to the Assembly that his government is cold to the resolution as it stands.

Stevenson at the same time voiced considerable support for the Tunisians, saying the principle of full Tunisian sovereignty over Tunisian territory should be universally accepted.

Many of Tunisia's backers felt more stress should be put in the resolution, which omits any open condemnation of France.

The Soviet Union warned that if any delegation submitted amendments to weaken the resolution, it would put in counter-proposals to strengthen it.

Detectives Theorize Over Big Art Theft

LONDON (AP)—Detectives believe that the thief who stole the $392,000 Goya portrait of the Duke of Wellington hid with it for more than 12 hours in Britain's National Gallery, then walked out with it under a topcoat or in a briefcase.

The 19th century masterpiece, center of a British-American controversy over its ownership earlier this summer, was taken from its place in the gallery Monday night. The theft was discovered Tuesday after the gallery opened.

The head and chest portrait of the Iron Duke, Britain's victor at Waterloo, was last seen by the gallery's security guards at 7:40 p.m. A guard noticed it was gone at 10:08 p.m. and reported it, but it was thought it had been moved to another part of the building since the fragile panel on which it was painted was due for repair.

The theft was established after the gallery's staff reported for work Tuesday morning. Detectives combed the big classic-style building on Trafalgar Square for 10 hours. There was no sign of forced entry and no word that significant fingerprints had been found.

Investigators evoked this theory: The thief hid himself inside the gallery just before closing time. From his hiding place he timed the movements of the five night security guards. Then he slipped out when the room was empty, grabbed the painting and scurried back to his hiding place. When the gallery filled with visitors in the morning, he calmly walked out with his loot.

Guards were placed on airfields and ports amid speculation that the theft was the work of the gang believed responsible for a rash of art thefts in France. Only 10 days ago eight Cezanne paintings valued at $2 million were stolen from the museum at Aix-en-Provence.

The Cezannes were covered by insurance but the Goya was not. A British Treasury spokesman explained that government property is not insured, "whether it is battleships, buildings or pictures."

The Goya portrait, one of three the Spaniard did of Wellington, was bought at auction two months ago for $392,000 by the American oilman collector Charles B. Wrightman. The seller was the Duke of Leeds, and word that one of Britain's national treasures was on the way to America raised a howl in British art circles and Parliament. Wrightman offered to sell it to the National Gallery, and the Wolfson Foundation and the British government finally put up the money.

Ask Imprisoning Of 74 Persons

HAVANA (AP)—The Cuban government has asked prison terms of 10 to 30 years for 74 persons, including two Roman Catholic priests and a number of students, charged with plotting against the regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

At the trial in Santiago the prosecution asked 20 years for priests Reinerio Letovic Martinez and Jose Luis Rojo Seljas and 30 years for Alberto Muller, a student leader.

All are accused of working against Castro "under the influence of Church and the (U.S.) Central Intelligence Agency."

Nehru Questions Allied Rights

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru indicated today he believes the Communists have the right to control movements between West Berlin and East Berlin and between West Germany and Berlin.

Winding up a foreign affairs debate in Parliament, Nehru asserted that Western access to Berlin is "not a right, but a concession by the Soviets." German occupation zones only granted the Allies the right to occupy Berlin and free access between the Western zones and Berlin was granted by the Soviets a year later.

Is Motherhood Enough? Supposed To 'Do,' Not Think, She Learned Too Much Too Soon

A young mother who married when she and her husband were in college urges others to learn "who they are" before marrying. This is the third story in a series in which the problems of young homemakers are examined.

As told to Barbara Somerville Women's News Service
Our first baby was born when I was 20. We were forced to leave college just three months before graduation, and it was two years before we could return and finish. I feel trapped and depressed by the momentous task of homemaking.

It is overwhelming. I feel like I'm just supposed to "do" and not think. But I can never do enough—I'm never finished with my work.

I wish to urge any girl contemplating marriage: Wait until you are mature enough to know what you are—and please don't have a baby until you learn, first, how to cope with marriage. It's misery to learn too much, too soon.

My neighbors don't seem to have my problem. With them everything revolves around their homes. They seem to be absorbed in buying new things or improving old things. I'm just not that way. I feel I've reached a higher plane. I want to be able to organize my house so I can go on to other activities.

I'd like to belong to a playmakers group or have time to write or sew or go to an art museum. I want more time to study and improve my mind and be a more interesting person to my husband. I don't want to be just a better housekeeper and buy new furnis-

September Bride-Elect Is Honored

Saturday at noon, Mrs. Robert Grech of LaGrange was hostess for a luncheon at the Silo Restaurant, honoring Miss Henrietta McMillan Taylor of Ayden. The marriage of Miss Taylor to Donald Bruce Plier of Atlanta will be solemnized on September 30 in the Ayden Christian Church.

The private dining room was decorated in the traditional bridal colors. The table, covered with a linen cloth, was centered with a floral arrangement of gladioli and fern, interspersed with silver wedding bells. Auxiliary arrangements at either end of the table featured a miniature bride and groom in costume and a cupid arrangement, accented with small white flowers.

A three course luncheon was served, during which Mrs. O. C. Stroud Sr. gave a toast in rhyme to the bride, in behalf of the hostess, and including best wishes from all the guests.

Goodbyes were said to the hostess and her niece, Miss Mary Ruggles Gooding, who assisted with the entertainment.

Girl Scout District Adviser Begins Duties

Miss Kathryn Crumpler of Goldsboro has begun work as a District Adviser for the Girl Scout Council of Coastal Carolina, it was announced today by Miss Elizabeth Hawley, Executive Director of the Council.

Miss Crumpler will be bringing field services to the area known as Districts seven and eight. These districts include Pitt, Martin, Washington and Beaufort Counties. Her primary responsibility is to advise and enable the volunteers in the area to effectively manage, maintain and develop Girl Scouting in the area.

After having been graduated from Goldsboro High School, Miss Crumpler attended and was graduated from East Carolina College where she received a B.S. degree in Primary Education. While at East Carolina she was Secretary of the Alpha Phi Sorority, a member of the Association of Childhood Education.

FHA Officers Discuss Plans

The officers of the Belvoir-Falkland Future Homemakers of America met Tuesday to discuss plans for the coming year. Mrs. Lucille Mayo, the supervisor and new Home Economics teacher, was present with a list of the forthcoming activities.

The purpose of the meeting was to get the approval of this season's work from the officers. Attending the meeting were Andra Wooten, Audry Harris, Harvette Turner, Judy Burface, Mary Mills and Frances Stepps. Mrs. Mayo suggested that the class make a yearbook. Items taken into consideration were "ways to make money in F.H.A." Other activities discussed for the year are as follows:

September—Program on Personal Grooming; Initiation; dance will be held for the purpose of raising funds for future use.

November—Program with speaker from E.C.C. to discuss the Nursing School.

December—V.E.P.C. demonstrators.

January—Speech dedicated to the purpose of group relations in the home.

March—Program consisting of a movie on "Manners at the Prom."

April—Mother-Daughter Banquet.

May—Welter Roast.

After decisions were made and other school activities discussed, apple pie and ice cream were served. Mr. Ed Warren, principal of Belvoir-Falkland, later joined the group. The meeting was then adjourned by Mrs. Mayo.

Luncheon Fetes Greenville Debs

Thursday when Mrs. H. L. Ormond entertained at luncheon for the Greenville debutantes and their mothers and honored Miss Mary Harrington, on the table were frilly pink and blue garters, paired for each deb with the following verse:

"Two little garters side by side, One for a deb and one for a bride. Wear the blue when you say 'I do,' Wear the pink when you make your debut."

Centerpiece for the luncheon table was a debutante doll dressed in satin and tulle and surrounded by dainty pink roses. Place cards were replicas of the guests, and had streamers extending to the center deb-doll forming the traditional cart wheel.

The mothers, who were seated at auxiliary tables, were remembered with sachets which further carried out the pink and blue color scheme. Miss Harrington was given a demi-tasse spoon engraved "Debutante 1961."

Personals

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

On your fall garden schedule, (if you have the space) add a few vegetables to help out your food bill. The gardener has a wide choice of vegetables to plant in his fall garden.

Vegetables growing in the cool months haven't the tough sliding of summer vegetables. Insects are on the decrease, so you don't have to plaster your plants to insure getting your share.

Here are some things that you can plant in August for the fall and winter months: Snap beans and early peas. You should get in quite a few pickings before frost hits here. Irish potatoes planted in August will give you a break from store bought potatoes and taste a lot better. Among the other August plantings, use: radish, turnips, spinach, kale, carrots, brussels sprouts, broccoli, chard, and collards.

September can be used to plant out snap beans, beets, cabbage, cress, lettuce, onion seed and onion sets. While some of this late planting may be snipped off by frost, you should at least get your money's worth.

October narrows the field down quite a bit but there are a few items for planting: Cabbage, cauliflower, lettuce, and onions seem to be the best bets, but radish and turnips can be planted also.

You might try a few seeds of radish, spinach and turnips in November and take your chances. A good warm month may come and you will be the winner.

The fall vegetable garden should take a more prominent place in the gardening schedule. Not only will you benefit table wise but the ground will benefit from being covered. Proper fertilization should ease your fears as to weeding out of the ground. And the trash left from the fall garden will each year add to the humus content of your soil, if turned under before the spring planting.

Beach-Bunting Vows Spoken

In a ceremony of simplicity and beauty, Miss Melva Kathryn Bunting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Bunting, and Robert McDaniel Beach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Daniel Beach, were solemnized at the Robersonville Methodist Church Thursday afternoon August 17. The Reverend John S. Pearsall officiated.

Music was presented by Mrs. R.K. Adkins, organist and Mrs. Irving L. Smith, Jr. vocalist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street length dress of blue satin and silk organza. Her veil was attached to a crown with seeded pearls. She carried a Bible topped with a white orchid.

The couple was unattended. The bride attended East Carolina College, Greenville and the groom is a student at the University of North Carolina.

For a bridal trip to Nags Head she chose a blue sheath cotton with a matching coat.

Line Of Succession Needs Action

When Gov. William B. Umstead died in office eight years ago, Lt. Gov. Luther Hodges moved up to the post of Chief Executive of North Carolina leaving the second highest office in the state vacant for more than three years. Now, with the sudden death of Lt. Gov. Floyd Philpott the second highest office of the state will be vacant for the remainder of the four-year term which the prominent leader was serving.

The same question which arose following the death of Gov. Umstead has now arisen on the heels of the death of Lt. Gov. Philpott: Who will be governor if something happens to the man now in the office?

North Carolina has never faced the problem of having to decide who would succeed to the position of Chief Executive if both its governor and lieutenant governor both were to die or become incapacitated during a single four-year term. Certainly it is to be hoped that such a situation never exists. But regardless of the remoteness of the possibility, there should be a clear-cut stipulation as to who would succeed to the office if such a thing should happen.

Attorney General Wade Bruton has expressed the opinion that the death of Philpott has left the state without a successor to the governor. Should something happen to the governor, the procedure apparently be for the Secretary of State to call a special session of the Senate and for the Senate in turn to elect a president to carry out the duties of the governor.

While this procedure might suffice in an emergency, it would seem much more logical for the legislature, through constitutional amendment, to clarify the line of succession to the office of Chief Executive during its next session.

The business of operating the state of North Carolina is far too important to be left to the present cumbersome procedure of succession to the state's highest office. The business of the state is far too important not to have the top chain of succession go beyond two offices or two officials. There should be a clear-cut line of succession without having to go through a series of time-consuming operations to determine who should succeed to the state's highest office if something happens to both the governor and the lieutenant governor.

A Good Beginning For The Tobacco Market

The sky was overcast and the weather gloomy in Pitt County yesterday, but prospects were never brighter for the tobacco farmers as record prices were paid on opening sales of the auction markets.

One robin doesn't make a Spring and one day's sale doesn't make a successful marketing season for farmers, but if the prices which tobacco brought on the Eastern belt yesterday were any indication of what farmers can expect for their crop, a record year for tobacco markets and for the tobacco farmers is in the making.

Most observers who have followed the tobacco market for years agreed that prices paid for the offerings were higher than had been anticipated even though prices on earlier belts had paved the way for optimism. Most observers were likewise pleased with the quality of tobacco which was being offered on the Greenville market . . . quality considerably above that which was on the opening sales last year.

For the second consecutive year the Greenville market paid out more than a million dollars on its opening day's sales. The market also reached a new record high average for opening day, posting a figure of $64.18, which rivals the past days at any time during any season in the history of the market.

The figure brings prospects for a good year for tobacco farmers of this area which prevailed prior to the opening of the market appear even brighter now.

Quiet Strength In Lt. Governor

By LYNN NISBET

PHILPOTT—Near 3000 years ago the Prophet Isaiah relayed to ancient Judah the promise of Jehovah that "in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength." Later the prophet berated the Jews for failing to utilize that source of strength.

Review of the life of Cloyd Philpott incident to his death last Saturday night reminded of that historic episode and led to conclusion that he early recognized and through the years respected "quietness and confidence" as source of strength. There have been few men of stronger convictions and integrity than the late Lieutenant Governor, and none who was less obtrusive or effusive in exercising that strength. It was not necessary for him to shout or wave his arms to demonstrate his capacity for leadership.

Philpott's quietness was noticeable. His confidence was less obvious, until it is remembered that confidence is another word for faith. His beliefs in the vitality of the Christian religion, the dignity of all human beings and their right to equal opportunities in a democratic society, and above all his faith in the future of North Carolina, were continually demonstrated. Although an ardent member of the Baptist church and the Democratic party, he was more concerned with the principles of Christianity and democracy than with the particular tenets of any sect.

On that foundation he built the prestige which had carried him far before middling age, and it appeared as late as a week ago that he was destined to go much higher. His passing leaves some big holes.

VACANCIES — Officially, the office of Lieutenant Governor of North Carolina is vacant and will remain so until the man—or woman—elected to the position in 1964 takes the oath of office in January of 1965. That is not a serious omission, unless for some reason the Governor of North Carolina should become incapacitated to serve. There was no Lieutenant Governor from November of 1954 until January of 1957. Because of the accession of Luther Hodges to the governorship.

The 1955 Senate elected a president (Luther Barnhardt), who performed many of the functions of the Lieutenant Governor without the title. The 1963 Senate will follow the same course. Meantime, the Governor can designate Senate President pro tem Lunsford Crew, or some other State official, to fill gaps for service which usually the No. 2 man would perform. If a special extra session of the 1961 General Assembly should be held, Senator Crew as constitutionally elected president pro tem, would preside over the Senate—and no further election would be necessary.

There are confusing ramifications and uncertainties in procedure in the event of a vacancy occurring in the Governor's office before the next election. Unless such vacancy occurs there appears no serious problem.

Besides the official vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor the death of Cloyd Philpott occasioned a very big hole in the ranks of real statesmen and recognized leaders in the Democratic party State government in other than official capacities.

BALLAST—One of the places where Cloyd Philpott will be missed most is one that many people perhaps did not realize he occupied. That was his position as a sort of balance wheel in the machinery or ballast to the ship of the dominant Sanford faction in the Democratic party organization. Or, if you want to go highbrow, he was the unofficial liaison between the economic segments represented on one extreme by labor unions and on the other by the big business interests. He enjoyed the full respect and confidence of both groups, and often said he was a card carrying member of a labor union and a member of the National Association of Manufacturers.

He saw no conflict in these relationships. The quietness and confidence with which he approached solution of problems between them will be sorely missed. It is conceivable that this may prove to be the biggest hole his departure occasioned, although it may not be generally recognized because of the unobtrusive way in which he filled that now empty spot.

It is quite likely that Governor Sanford had this in mind when he said that Philpott's death was a "shattering blow to the state and to me personally." It has been proven many times over that there is no such thing as an indispensable man. The State of North Carolina will survive the loss of Cloyd Philpott, as it has survived the loss of many other great persons. Consensus round capitol square is that very few men, if any others, occupied as significant place in current governmental and political areas, as did the late Lieutenant Governor.

What Is Really Bugging Nikita?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—It may seem unbelievable but after months of East-West shouting and maneuvering over Berlin this one main point still isn't clear: What's really driving Premier Khrushchev in all this? Why does he consider it a "toothache" and a bone in his throat? There are plenty of ideas on it—such as pressure from his partners in the Kremlin, pressure from the East Germans, and so on—but so far as is publicly known they're guesses and perhaps not even good ones.

The answer may be much simpler—that Khrushchev, as the leader of communism, considers it necessary and the time right to start shifting West Berlin off from the West—once the background is considered.

Since 1945 communism has been able to take over mainland China, North Korea, North Viet Nam, Estonia, Lithuania, Latvia, Poland, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Albania, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and East Berlin. But here in West Berlin which the Communists haven't been able to absorb even though it lies 110 miles inside Communist East Germany, has 12,500 Allied troops there, and a 2 1/2 million anti-Communist population devoted to the West.

This makes it a Western and capitalist island in a Communist ocean. Worse still, from the Communist view, West Berlin's brilliant economic success make it a shining contrast to the drab Communist world around it. So long as it stands free—deep inside the Communist world—it is a constant reminder to Khrushchev and his partners that their threat to communicate the world looks absurd.

So, without trying to figure who's twisting Khrushchev's arm to seal off West Berlin, it's easier and perhaps more sensible to assume he or anyone else who happens to be leading the Communist world would on his own want to grab the city.

This much can be taken for granted: Khrushchev is going to try to take over the city, if not immediately then eventually, and without war if he can avoid it. It wouldn't be smart for him to risk war to get the city this year—since he could destroy Russia itself if he thinks, and he probably does, that he can get it in a few more years peacefully anyway. How could he do that?

By trickery, by promises he intends to break, by diminishing bit by bit the Western Allies' willingness to fight for the city until in the end, having made a number of concessions, they make the final one.

For example:

1. He wants the Allied troops out of Berlin. But those 12,500 men, surrounded as they are by 30 to 40 times their number in Communist troops in East Germany, are really not a defensive force at all. They're only a symbol of the Allies' claim to the legal right to have them there under wartime and postwar agreements with Russia. The main Allied fighting forces are outside the East German borders.

But if the Allies agree to withdraw these symbolic forces, they have yielded on a point they have made a principle in their dispute over Berlin. It would be a big concession.

2. He's threatened to turn over to the East German Communists control of all the routes over which people and supplies, civilian and military, move from the West through East Germany to West Berlin.

In actual practice this wouldn't mean much since 95 per cent of such traffic is civilian and the East Germans control that. The Russians control the remaining 5 per cent which is Allied military. But agreeing to this—even though Khrushchev guaranteed none of the traffic would be blocked by the East Germans—would be one more concession although it's hard to see what the Allies can do about it if Khrushchev makes good his threat.

The West might not want to fight over dealing with the East Germans on that 5 per cent of military traffic, particularly if Khrushchev promises it would not be interfered with. And so on.

Once the concessions are made—temporarily settling the Berlin dispute—the Communists in a year or so can find some other excuse for tightening the Berlin noose.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

IDEENESS The Bible, and many other specimens of good literature, abound in denunciation of idleness. The word "idle" comes from an Anglo-Saxon word which means "vain, empty, useless." The idler is a worthless person whose life is dedicated to nothingness.

Unemployment is a dreadful reality in modern life and one which needs to be dealt with vigorously by every social and governmental agency, but idleness is another matter. The idler is another matter. The idler is the person who wants to be idle. If he is poor he is referred to as a hobo. If he (or she) happens to have inherited wealth, then the social columns note the peregrinations of such people and speak about them as if they really had some worth. As a matter of fact, such people are a liability to society. Work is not the chief end of life. It is an invigorating reality without which life can have no real significance. If you want to know something worth doing and do it so well that both you and others will be filled with satisfaction over the achievement.

Idleness stands for emptiness. Do not feel that you will be happy in idleness. There is nothing in idleness but boredom. If you really want to get the best out of life live it up to the hilt every day.

And A Bright Day Dawns

By necessity this column is written the evening prior to the day it appears in print. So there's a risk in predicating what's said therein on what is supposed to be prevailing at the time of actual publication.

Sometimes I live dangerously. For instance:

The sun rose bright and glorious this (Wednesday) morning. Clear was the sky, and blue; birds twittered noisily and happily around the house eaves and in nearby trees.

All over Pitt County the man of the house was arisen even earlier than usual; the minor aches that had plagued him most of the summer were miraculously gone. Eyes clear. And at times the usually taciturn face was actually smiling.

The young people were chatting even noisier than usual; but for once it didn't seem to annoy the grown-ups.

And throughout the county the lady of the house was bustling about with a brisker step than had been displayed in months. The atmosphere was charged with subdued excitement, hope, and good cheer.

The kitchen cat, more or less accustomed to relaxing just about any place, sensed all this and moved to an out-of-the-way corner . . . (no sense in taking unnecessary risks). In keeping with the spirit of the day, the family car started easily with the first turn of the starter and purred smoothly. This was particularly unusual, for of late it had given every sign of needing a new set of sparkplugs.

All this came about despite Tuesday's forecast of cloudy skies and scattered showers. For even if the weatherman guessed "right" he would still be wrong.

Because the weather is always fair, the outlook is always bright, the small problems disappear and worries forgotten the day after a day like Tuesday.

Did you hear what the tobacco market did on its opening day?

Well, that explains why, on this day of all days, God is in His Heaven and all is right with the world.

The conversation had been pretty dull around the supper table. For that reason, as well as an idea of a little preliminary psychological preparation, we brought up the subject of fallout shelters and why they might be a good thing to have around.

To go a bit further, the Missus and I pulled out an OCDM pamphlet with shelter illustrations and, using it as a "visual aid" explained that a family might have to live for several days in a very confined space.

Our six-year-old drank it all in. He could hardly wait to pass on this new knowledge to neighbors.

The gospel of Civil Defense has a new apostle. I told his mother. And sure enough, in no time at all he was deep in the subject with one of his buddies . . . explaining how food and water had to be stored in a shelter in case "the Yankees started dropping bombs."

Oh well, scratch one from the ranks of the informed citizenry. He was brainwashed before the supper table lesson.

Other Editors Saying . . . The State's Loss

(Greensboro Daily News)

It is difficult to think of Lt. Gov. H. Cloyd Philpott, personable, friendly, alert, a key figure, in both private and public life, in North Carolina's program of progress and a dedicated leader for whom greater honor and responsibility loomed, as still in death.

But that is how Fate, no respecter of persons, is. The lieutenant-governor, stricken with a dissecting aneurysm of the aorta last Wednesday, battled against hopeless odds. But battle he did, with all the strength and will power within him, as was his wont. Shocked by his sudden attack, friends over the state prayed and hoped against hope that he could win what was recognized as the greatest battle of his life. It was in character that he remained alert and talked with members of his family only a few minutes before the end Saturday afternoon.

Cloyd Philpott represented the sort of leadership we need and have fortunately had in North Carolina. With his feet solidly on the ground, as attested by his business and his political record, he recognized that progress must be continuous, that the past was something upon which to build the future and that adjustments must be made in state and nation to get and to stay in the mainstream of national and international life. There is a tide in the affairs of both men and nations; and Cloyd Philpott saw such an inevitability; he rose, in his full strength, to meet it.

The measure, the quality, the philosophy and even the humor—so essential to bearing the burden of public life of the man—were illustrated in his own card-carrying Democrat in the N. A. M.

The high regard, respect and esteem in which fellow citizens held Cloyd Philpott are written in the votes which he received at the polls, in his home county of Lexington, his county of Davidson and over the state when he emerged a heavy winner in a three-cornered battle, against two other formidable opponents, for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant-governor.

As one of the architects of the Pearson plan, an advocate of a state minimum wage law, despite opposition of fellow industrialists, a fair and popular presiding officer of the 1961 State Fair and a leader in making North Carolina's "quality education" program a reality, he cast a political shadow which pointed well into the future. There is little doubt that, had death not struck him down, he would have been a candidate for Governor—and a formidable candidate for anyone to beat in 1964.

Death played a cruel trick on North Carolina Saturday. But it did not claim Cloyd Philpott; he served his state well, wrote a record which will survive down the years and led North Carolina along the road to a richer, fuller and more serviceable destiny.

His counsel and his leadership will be sorely missed; his friendship, in its personal facets and characteristics, even more.

The New Business Opportunities

By ELMER ROESSNER

Some of us might find it worth taking a little time off from watching the Kennedy Administration's drift toward socialism to investigate the new business opportunities offered by the 6 per cent home-improvement loans recently legislated by Congress.

This 6 per cent is a true annual interest rate, and that's what makes these loans unique and important. Up to now, the lowest-cost FHA home-improvement loans carried a rate of 5 per $100 for the first $2,500 of loan, and 4 per $100 from $2,500 to $3,500. But the fee is calculated on the original amount of debt, not on the declining balance as on the new loans. On that basis, the 5 per $100 is a true per-annum interest rate of just under 10 per cent.

In addition, the new plan provides for modernization loans up to $10,000, with as long as 20 years to pay.

BOON TO BUSINESS

If handled with care and respect, this new program can give the already-huge (over $11 billion-a-year) home-improvement industry and many related businesses, a genuine boost. Minimum loan under the new 6 per cent program is $2,500. But in urban renewal areas, the new loans can go as low as $1,000. Most banks already are studying the new program. Some say they are reluctant to participate. They don't like to tie up money in small amounts over a long period, especially since the new loans will probably be handled as second mortgages or secured by other liens against borrowers' property. That causes more paperwork and administrative detail than some bankers care to contemplate for the sake of relatively modest loans.

However, enough banks, including some of the biggest in the country, have indicated they will go into the program, so that many of the others will have to participate willy-nilly. Savings and loan associations are reported to be enthusiastic about the new loans. Lenders are insured against loss by FHA, with borrowers as usual paying the FHA insurance premium of one-half of 1 per cent in addition to the 6 per cent.

"VEHICLE" FOR SHARPER But the banks have one legitimate concern. They are afraid that the program could become another vehicle for the fringe of unscrupulous sellers of home-improvement jobs who gave the FHA title loans a bad name several years ago.

Bankers tell this reporter they plan to scrutinize home-improvement promoters with great care this time. They also hope that FHA will have a close inspection program, and will educate the homeowners themselves to get at least several bids before they sign contracts.

The education job is one not only for FHA, but also for the legitimate home-improvement dealers. The new program is too

2-China Issue And UN

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY. Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A magazine which goes by the name of War-Peace Report has appeared with a long article entitled "United States Policy—in the Jaws of the Vise," taker of the San Francisco State College.

The object of the article is to encourage a recognition of Red by Mr. Z. Mr. Z is Urban Whit-China. It begins with these sentences:

"For nearly 12 years now the United States has avoided formal relations with the most populous political entity of the earth and has prevented its representation in the United Nations. Thus the serious defeat that the forces of world anti-communism suffered in 1949 in China has not yet been registered officially on the diplomatic books either in the United States or in the world organization."

If the establishment of Red China is so important, why do we have to recognize it or to use the phrase of the author, register, it officially on the diplomatic books. The conclusion that Whit-taker reaches is:

"In short, the General Assembly, by a large majority, appears determined to seat both China, but if it is eventually forced to choose between them, it is prepared to choose 600 millions in preference to the 12 millions."

The author admits that the Two Chinas idea is opposed by both Communist China and Nationalist China. The author believes that if the United States continues to reject the Two Chinas idea, the United Nations will accept a one China, namely, Red China.

Urban Whitaker devoted himself to an attack on the Committee of One Million, which to him is "the remains of the Old China Lobby under one umbrella." When one uses the term China Lobby, he speaks of something that never existed; that is, the Kuomintang government in Formosa never maintained more than a small presence here.

However, Alfred Kohlberg, a handkerchief manufacturer and merchant, who at one time had business interests in China, spent his own money opposing Communist China. When Alfred Kohlberg died, those who had an opportunity to know, were astonished at the enormous amount spent by Kohlberg for various anti-Communist causes. And it was all his own money. Kohlberg enjoyed calling himself "The China Lobby." It was an absurd appellation which led to false connotations. However, that is what the China Lobby was for many years—a one man effort by an American citizen who hated Communism. The Committee of One Million is a public body which is managed by Marvin Liebman, who is also active in other anti-Communist causes.

The Committee of One Million is bipartisan and includes many important persons. Urban Whit-taker says:

"Nothing on the American political scene today is quite so absurd or quite so fraught with dangerous international consequences as the alliance of Hubert Humphrey with Barry Gold-water, of Paul Douglas with Everett Dirksen and of Clifford Case with Walter Judd on the Committee of One Million."

This sounds a bit hysterical. Most Americans are opposed to Red China and it is therefore not surprising to see both Republicans and Democrats on this committee.

Urban Whitaker has prepared a research memorandum on "Chinese Representation in the United Nations" which is marked "Confidential (for limited circulation only)." According to this memorandum, he interviewed the delegates of 91 member states. He finds that there are five possible solutions to the China problem. These he states as follows:

"Solution 1. One, non-communist China, de facto and de jure. This is the pre-1949 situation. It would require the victorious return of Nationalists to the Mainland.

"Solution 2. Two Chinas, de facto, with non-communist government represented de jure at the United Nations. This is the status quo solution, the situation as it has actually existed since 1949.

"Solution 3. Two Chinas, one communist and one non-communist, de facto and de jure. This (Continued on page five)

Astronomers Want Space Rackets Probers Probe To Pierce A Comet Studying Cheats

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Astronomers are eager to try some celestial sharpshooting and hit a comet.

They want to shoot a space probe, complete with camera, clean through a comet's huge glowing head. That would answer many mysteries about comets, which are thought to be dirty snowballs trailing tails millions of miles long.

In fact, world astronomers meeting here suggest a good target is Encke's comet, due to visit three years hence.

It will be a neat trick, for the closest Encke's comet comes to earth will be 25 million miles, July 12, 1964. And since comets wheel along about 50,000 miles an hour, the probe needs a good and accurate headstart to make the rendezvous.

Comet and meteor specialists from 33 countries in the International Astronomical Union have endorsed the comet shot as a valuable scientific goal, acting on resolutions proposed by Czechoslovakian scientists and Dr. Pol Swings of Liege, Belgium. It also has been discussed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as a potential project.

Encke's comet has a gaseous head about 60,000 miles wide but the core is believed to be only a mile-wide hunk of frozen gases and dirt, like "a dirty snowball" in Chicago," said Dr. Gerard Kuiper of the University of Arizona.

One plan, he and Dr. Gerhardt Herzberg of Ottawa, Canada, explained today, would be to send the probe through the head, coming within perhaps 10,000 miles of its snowball heart. A telescopic camera 40 inches long could take pictures of the core and televise them back for the first look at the structure of the heart.

Other instruments could take samples of the chemicals in the head—presumed to be various forms of carbon atoms and combinations of carbon, nitrogen, hydrogen and oxygen—and other comet parts.

The smaller heart is thought to be mainly frozen ammonia and water and solid particles of heavier matter or metals.

Heat from the sun as a comet swings near causes melting of the comet's head and long tail development. There are scientific arguments whether just the pressure of sunlight, or chemical reactions produce the tail.

Comets now are thought to produce 99 per cent of all ordinary meteors which flash through the skies as shooting stars, said Dr. Fred L. Whipple of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Harvard University.

These solid meteor particles are left when the snowbank melts. The frozen cores in comets vary from a few hundred yards across to a number of miles, he said.

A successful probe could learn much about the composition, structure, dynamics, and perhaps origin of comets, radioing back its data before it went roasting forever in space itself.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate racket probers, having heard and seen how gamblers stack the deck in their favor with rigged equipment and crooked officials, explore today the ways hoodlums cheat on taxes and prey on race tracks.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee, called for testimony from Internal Revenue Commissioner Mortimer E. Caplin and Angelo Rosetti, a Boston race wire operator.

The subcommittee described Rosetti as the operator of Sports Day Weekly, a race wire service. In Tuesday's first day of hearings, the senators witnessed some startling demonstrations of paraphernalia used by crooked gamblers in illicit card and dice rooms.

They also heard how off-track bookmakers try to get the jump on their bettors by constantly attempting to get reports of horse race results well before any customer can get the word. The fast report gives the bookie a dual advantage: a chance to accept more bets on horses that lost and a cast iron assurance no patron can bet a known winner.

The subcommittee, heard an estimate that the total play handled by illegal handbooks may be $50 billion a year, from which the bookies' profit would be about $5.5 billion.

John Scarne, who described himself as "somewhat of an expert" in protecting the public from being fleeced by gamblers, gave the estimates and charged that $750 million of this money is spent each year to "corrupt law enforcement officers."

He said he is employed by the Hilton hotel chain and the governments of Panama and Puerto Rico.

Scarne described elaborate tricks used to introduce marked cards into poker and other card games. Of every five poker games where the stakes are as high as $10, he said, at least one of them has a professional cheat among the players. He estimated that 40,000 marked decks are in use in the country.

Paul P. Karnov, a Chicago manufacturer, testified his firm sells loaded dice, marked cards, rose-colored contact lenses with which "to read the backs" of marked cards, and trick mirrors used by gamblers to see the hands of other card players. He said he is president of the H. E. Mason Co., also known as the K.C. Card Co.

Governorship's Succession Could Be Settled In '62

RALEIGH (AP)—Succession to the governorship, long in doubt in North Carolina and made more than a moot question by recent developments, could be settled next year.

In the 1962 general election, Tar heel voters will act on two proposed amendments to the state constitution. Should they be ratified, they would activate a 1961 law providing for succession below the level of lieutenant governor.

The question came up six years ago when Lt. Gov. Luther Hodges succeeded Gov. William Umstead, who died, and was posted again Saturday with the death of Lt. Gov. Cloyd Philpott.

State Sen. Claude Currie, who has worked with the problem for the past two legislative sessions, said Tuesday that the 1961 assembly enacted a bill broad enough to cover almost all succession questions.

However, the bill must lie dormant until it is given constitutional legality by passage of the amendments in a statewide referendum held in November, 1962. Under present procedure, according to Atty. Gen. Wade Branton, the secretary of state would convene the Senate in the event Gov. Sanford were to vacate his office.

The Senate would then elect a president of the Senate who would serve as acting governor.

Currie's amendments provide (1) that the president pro-tempore of the Senate automatically would become president of the Senate if the lieutenant governorship were vacated; and (2) require the legislature to enact a law providing a line of succession.

Currie's law, geared to answer the directive of the second amendment, provides that the line of succession below lieutenant governor extend to the Senate president pro-tempore, House speaker, secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction, attorney general, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of labor and commissioner of insurance.

Want Veterans

RALEIGH (AP)—The National Guard has announced it will not accept enlistments between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31 of men over 20 without prior military service.

Headquarters of the 30th Infantry Division, key unit of the state's National Guard, said Tuesday the announcement implemented an order from the Department of the Army.

The order also provided that men under 20 could enlist during the September-December period but would have to wait until Jan. 1, 1962, before they could begin their six-month active duty hitch.

The order also extended for one year enlistments which would normally terminate between Oct. 1, 1961, and June 30, 1962.

Sell Show Share For $1 Million

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Television comic George Gobel and partner David O'Malley Tuesday sold their 50 per cent share in the TV series, "Leave It to Beaver," for $1 million.

Revue productions, the purchaser, now owns the ABC-TV series outright. "Beaver" recently completed its fourth year.

Gobel and O'Malley, doing business as Gomaclo Productions, said they decided to sell because the comic now is busy preparing for a Broadway show.

The children nibbled cookies and drank lemonade served by children of White House staff members. As they went home they were given the bright balloons that decorated the tent-pavilion.

Grifton Grad Is Awarded Bonner Scholarship

GRIFTON—Allen Jackson, 1961 Grifton High graduate, has been awarded a $500 scholarship by Congressman Herbert C. Bonner. The announcement was made by Sam Nelson, chairman of the Grifton School Committee.

Nelson said he received notification of the award in a letter from Rep. Bonner. The congressman said the scholarship will be made available to Allen this fall when he enrolls at East Carolina College to continue his formal education.

Sister Of Greenville Woman Succumbs

WILMINGTON—Mrs. Katherine K. Clark died at her residence in Lakeland, Fla., Monday. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 11 o'clock from the chapel of the Ward Funeral Home, Wilmington, with the Rev. R. L. Bame officiating. Interment will be in Oakdale Cemetery in Wilmington. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Douglas E. Bark of Lakeland Fla., two sisters, Mrs. L. D. Marshburn of Greenville and Mrs. O. P. Makepeace of Sanford, four brothers, B. Frank King of Jacksonville, Fla., the Rev. M. K. King of Raleigh, H. E. King of Thomasville, Ga. and William B. King of Atlanta, Ga., four grandchildren. She was a member of the Methodist Church at St. Petersburg, Fla.

"Solution 4. Two Chinas de facto, with the communist government represented de jure at the United Nations. This is the reverse of Solution 2, the present situation.
"Solution 5. One, communist China, de facto and de jure. This is the reverse of the original, pre-1949 situation."

Play For JFK And Disabled Youngsters

WASHINGTON (AP)—An orchestra of youngsters struck up "Hail to the Chief" and President Kennedy strode across the White House lawn to meet his guests. Some of them couldn't see him and others couldn't rise to greet him. But they were delighted as he moved along a line of wheel chairs smiling and shaking hands.

The occasion Tuesday was the first of a series of "Concerts for Young People by Young People" at the White House.

The special guests were 325 children who are blind, crippled or have heart trouble. They heard a varied program from Wagner, Brahms and Prokofiev to Aaron Copland and Sousa, played by the 85-piece Transylvania Symphony Orchestra from Brevard, N. C., made up of musicians aged 12 to 18. Kennedy complimented their spirited playing of "Hail to the Chief," saying he thought they played it "better than the Marine Corps Band, and we are grateful to them."

The President mounted the bandstand to shake hands with the conductor, James Christian Pfohl.

Kennedy said "as an American I have the greatest possible pride in the work that is being done in dozens of schools stretching across the United States—schools where devoted teachers are studying with interested young men and opening up the whole wide horizon of serious music."
"This is a great national cultural asset, and therefore it is a great source of satisfaction to me, representing as I do today my wife, to welcome all of you here at the White House."

Mrs. Kennedy, who is sponsoring the concerts, is vacationing on Cape Cod.

Kennedy said he couldn't leave his desk long enough to stay for the 75-minute program but he promised he would leave his office door open so that he could hear the music.

The children, many of whose crutches lay on the grass during the concert, seemed to enjoy the highbrow music too.

The biggest hit was Beverly Wolff, 30, a mother from Atlanta, Ga., who sang a Brahms lullaby and a spiritual, "Let Us Break Bread Together." The youngsters applauded so loud and long she had to sing another selection, "Climb Every Mountain."

BURNWOOD MEN

CHAPTER 10

Stephanie Devoe said softly: "Tam, I'm frightened for my people. To be a success, a rebellion needs four things—men, money, arms and bold leadership. All these things are being promised to the Metis. And even with them, this rebellion would fail, against the might of the Dominion and the Empire."

"Who offers them this?" Tam asked. Cleland Strike?

"I think so. Women have small standing in the councils of the Metis, but I have heard things. Tam, heaven help—the Bois Brules if they ever come under the domination of Cleland Strike."

"But what would he gain? What's in it for him?"

"You've never seen it, Tam. But it is wide, rich country. Raw and formless now, but it holds furs and gold and land. The man behind the throne in the Northwest Territory could reap a vast fortune, if he were cunning and ruthless enough. And Cleland Strike is all of that."

"I agree. You hate him, Stephanie."

"Once I loved him. Tam, you must know this—I was coming back from St. Louis by steamer after my schooling. Cleland Strike was aboard. He flattered me with his attentions, and by the time we reached Fort Benton I had promised to marry him."

"Damn him! To hoodwink an innocent child."

"I don't know how innocent, Tam. I had acquired fine airs during my schooling in the big city. It was like a romantic novel to have this fine gentleman wooing the little Metisse girl from the backwoods. When Cleland wanted a quick wedding, I was even too happy with the situation to agree. I delayed."

"Something must have warned you."

She shook her head. "Good luck more than good sense. Cleland wanted a mistress to marry us. But I was strong in the Faith. Then he argued for a prairie wedding, which the Church does permit if it is blessed by the priest at the first opportunity. Again I refused, for I had secret knowledge that Father Imoda was coming soon on his long and arduous circuit. When he arrived from St. Peter's Mission, I rushed to tell him my plans. At Cleland Strike's name, he said: 'My daughter, this man—I married him last winter to a Cree woman, Maria Easty Walker. You cannot marry him.'

"What did Strike say?"

"He was wild. He swore the good father lied. He said the woman was dead. And if she were not dead she was just a squaw. Marriage to a white man meant nothing. I was crushed and sick. I gave him his ring but I gave him one last chance. 'If the records at St. Peter's do not hold your name, I'll marry you,' I told him."

"The record was there, since you are not married."

"Yes, I'm past being sorry for myself," Stephanie said. "But I feel sad for the little Cree girl, with her baby."

"And this is the man Dove thinks she is married to," Tam said.

"I don't know this Dove. But may heaven help her, too, if she is tied to Cleland Strike," Stephanie said softly.

the wall. Strike pulled a handkerchief from his pocket and wiped his hands.

"But none of 'em is in Benton, Boss," the Portuguese whined. "We been lookin' for 'em."

"Fine Pinkertons you are—I was in the Metis camp less than a hour when one of the 'breeds slipped me the word. Barrie and Devoe are at Devoe's cabin, by the river beyond the Metis camp. O'Boyle is lying low at Tuckatosee's cabin, hard by the portage upriver. So you know. Now I'm giving you five days, Lisbon. That's three days more than you ought to need. Then if the job isn't done, and done right, you and Aleff are for it. I'll call in Bryce Flinn and some other new scavengers, and put you two on the list!"

Spade Cooley Given Life Term For Slaying Wife

BAKERSFIELD Calif. (AP)—Spade Cooley, who parlayed six cents and an old fiddle into fame and fortune as the "king of Western swing," was sentenced to life in prison Tuesday for the brutal murder of his wife.

The unexpected climax of the case followed a dramatic meeting between opposing attorneys and Superior Court Judge William L. Bradshaw while Cooley was preparing to show he was insane April 3 when he beat, and stomped his wife, Ella Mae, 37, to death.

The jury which Saturday found Cooley guilty of first-degree murder was to rule first on the insanity plea and then set the penalty if Cooley, born Donnell Clyde 50 years ago in a storm cellar near Pack Saddle Creek, Okla., was judged sane.

The nickname Spade came after the entertainer once drew five spade flushes in a poker game.

After the conference in Judge Bradshaw's chambers, Cooley's attorney, P. Basil Lambros, conferred for more than an hour with his client, who then waived his right to a sanity trial and also waived his right to have the jury set the sentence.

Persons serving life sentences in California normally are eligible for parole after seven years.

Melody Cooley, 14, Spade's daughter, told of watching Cooley drag her mother, partially nude, by the hair from a shower. She said she had seen her father then with the Cooley band, slam her head against the floor, stomp her, and burn her with cigarettes.

Cooley said he hit his wife after she had told him she was joining a free love cult and told him of the initiation rites.

"I must have hurt her terribly," Spade said. "I have a hazy recollection it was an animal, not Ella Mae."

Cooley showed up at the gate of Republic Pictures in 1934, with a fiddle and six cents. Cowboy star Roy Rogers got him a job, and Spade became Roy's stand-in.

Later the Scotch-Irish-Cherokee Indian fiddler built his own band and became famous as a radio star. He also wrote songs, including "Shame, Shame on You."

Giants Perk Up, Five Games Behind Reds In League Race

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer Do the San Francisco Giants have "The Little Miracle of Pricco Bay" in mind as a sequel to "The Little Miracle of Coogan's Bluff" which they staged back in New York 10 years ago? That off-Broadway success of 1951 had them coming from 13 1/2 games behind on August 11, nailing a tie on the final day of the season and whipping the then Brooklyn Dodgers in a playoff for the National League flag.

Putting Tourney Held Tuesday

In Tuesday night's 54-hole amateur tournament sponsored by the Greenville Putt-Putt Golf Club, Mike Smith won the junior division with 106 and Jesse Mills took the senior division with 100. The senior division consists of players 16 years old and over while the junior division participants must be 15 years old and under. Par for the contest was 108. Finishing second in the junior division was Jimmie Hale with 109, third was Dickie Allen with 109 and Donnie Taylor came in fourth with 111. A nine hole playoff was held between Hale and Allen for second place because of the tie score.

of the Reds, who have lost 3 in a row for the first time in a month. Half-way between Cincinnati and San Francisco stand the Los Angeles Dodgers, who are 2 1/2 games back of the Reds after losing 5-4 at St. Louis. It was the Dodgers' eighth consecutive defeat—their longest skid since 1948.

Pittsburgh rapped Milwaukee 4-1 and last-place Philadelphia dropped the Chicago Cubs 6-0 behind the one-hit pitching of Art Mahaffey. In the American League, Roger Maris hit his 50th home run, going 13 games ahead of Babe Ruth's record-60 pace of 1927, but the New York Yankees lost 4-3 at Los Angeles. Second-place Detroit closed within two games of the Yanks by drubbing Cleveland 8-1. Kansas City beat Baltimore 3-2 in 10 innings, the Chicago White Sox defeated Minnesota 4-3 and Boston beat Washington 3-2 in 11 innings.

Willie Mays, the lone holdover from the Giants' miracle men of 1951, set the pace with five hits in the opener at Cincinnati, one a two-run homer. And then clinched the sweep with his 33rd home run. A two-run shot in the sixth inning of the second game, Willie McCovey belted a pair of solo home runs in the first game as the Giants collected 20 hits, and Orlando Cepeda, who drove in two runs in the opener, socked his 35th home run in the nightcap.

Southpaw Mike McCormick (10-12), the Giants' only loser in their last 14 games, got into the swing with an eight-hit job against the Reds in the opener. Sam Jones (8-7) won the nightcap, but needed Stu Miller's relief when Jerry Lynch hit a three-run homer that broke up Sad Sam's three-hit shutout in the sixth inning. Bob Purkey (14-8) and Ken Johnson

Farmville Coach Pleased But Squad Inexperienced

By GEORGE BRYANT Reflector Sports Writer FARMVILLE — Head Coach Elbert Moyer of the Farmville High Red Devils appears very enthusiastic about the coming grid season, but admits that he has some young inexperienced boys to work with.

The Red Devils' skipper says he is hoping the players can learn fast. "That is the only way we can have a really good ball club this year," Moyer added. He lost 11 veterans at the '61 commencement exercises.

Squad Lacks Depth. The Farmville skipper says his squad will lack depth at fullback, right halfback, guard and there is only one veteran end and center returning.

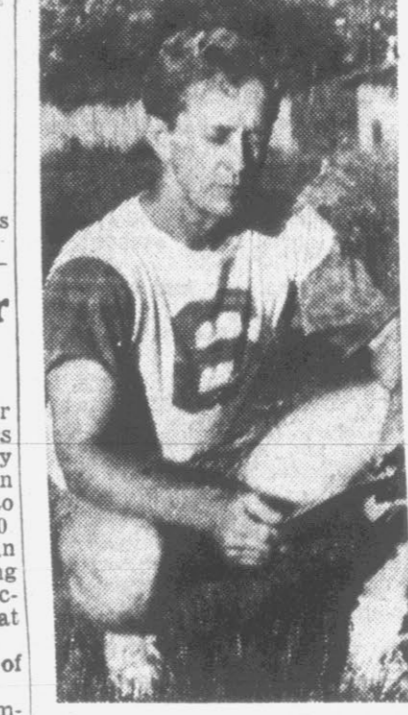

Maris Hit Number 'Fifty' Tuesday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roger Maris of the New York Yankees hit his 50th home run Tuesday night and needs only 11 more in the Yanks' next 30 games to break Babe Ruth's record of 60. Maris' 50th came with a man on base in the sixth inning against right-hander Ken McBride as the Yankees lost 4-3 at Los Angeles.

back and Danny Dilda at halfback. Moyer describes Dilda as an excellent runner, passer and punter. He is also good on defense. Prospective backs are Tommy Joyner, a junior who saw some action last year, Robin Rouse, a freshman, John King, a sophomore and Bob Fiser, a junior who is out for football for the first time.

Rex Hodges, a letterman end and a good pass receiver, will again be used at that position, but will probably be used some as a defensive halfback. Other end candidates are senior Jimmy Everett who is out for the first time, Chester Outland, who saw limited action last year, Danny Windham, a junior and freshman Johnny Hardison.

Filling the tackle spots for the Red Devils will be letterman Ben Monk, a senior, and Johnny Nichols, a senior letterman who saw limited action in '60. Other end candidates are David Quinn who was on last year's squad, Rennie (Screwball) Turner, a freshman and an excellent prospect, according to Coach Moyer.

ELBERT MOYER

ing to Coach Moyer, and sophomore Dickie Holloman who is out for the first time.

No Guards Returning. While there are no returning guards, Moyer hopes that Albert Mosley, C. E. Matthews, Billy Martin and Tommy Thompson who was on the '60 squad, all sophomores, can fill the post adequately.

The Red Devils lost both of last year's centers at graduation time, but the Farmville skipper hopes sophomore Ernie Petteway who was injured during the first week of practice last year can handle the post with David Ryan backing him up.

Hold Suspect In Jewelry Theft

GREENVILLE, S.C. — (AP) — One man was in custody and another was being sought today in the $150,000 armed robbery of the Smithwick Jewelry Store here Aug. 15.

The FBI said Tuesday that charges had been filed against Frederick Ray Williams, 20, in custody at Houston, Tex., and Donald Lee Jackson, 29, a native of Quinter, Kan., and still at large.

Donald E. Roney, special agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office, said Williams surrendered early Tuesday on a Texas murder warrant.

Roney said Williams was charged in Houston in the Aug. 5 stabbing death of Gaylord Berry Barnes at the Turf Club.

Williams is a native of Shreveport, La.

Two unmasked men took diamond and pearl jewelry, valued at $150,000, from the Smithwick Jewelry Store. They forced seven persons at gunpoint to lie on the floor while they ransacked show cases.

Roney said none of the jewelry had been recovered.

The FBI first charged Williams and Jackson with transporting some of the stolen jewelry from Greenville to Gastonia, N.C. It later issued the fugitive warrant after local police charged the men with the actual robbery.

The FBI said Jackson was last seen driving a 1961 Thunderbird convertible with a light body and white canvas top bearing Texas license plates.

Jackson was described by the FBI as standing 6-1, weighing between 170 and 180 pounds, medium complexion, dark brown hair, hazel eyes, athletic build and wearing dark horned-rim glasses.

Roney said Greenville authorities and federal officers filed the charges with the U.S. attorney in Greenville. Bond of $100,000 each was recommended.

Williams was to appear at a bond hearing this afternoon before Dist. Judge Miron A. Love.

J. M. Guarino, an assistant district attorney, said the murder charge in Houston would take precedence over the robbery charge but that Williams would be held for federal authorities even if bond is made on the murder charge.

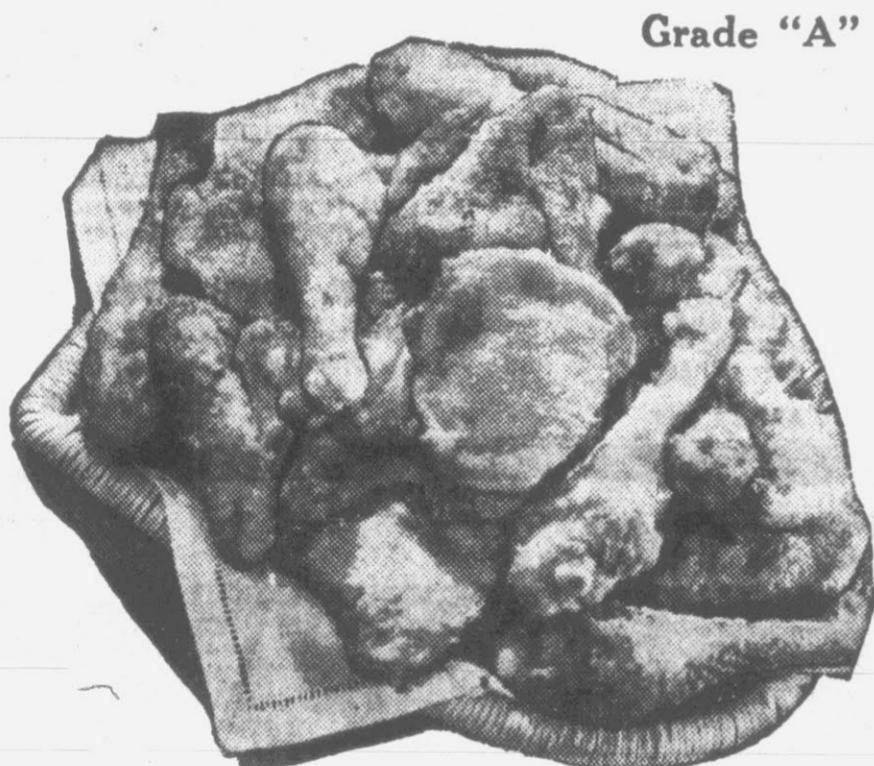

Guarino said he opposes bond for Williams.

Winterville Bank Is Modernized

WINTERVILLE—The Bank of Winterville's 39-year-old home has had a face-lifting.

Bank president Don Langston said improvements have now been completed in the modernizing of the bank's present offices, occupied since 1922. The up-dating of the bank was begun in July, he added.

J. L. Rollins, vice-president and cashier of the banking firm, said improvements included lowering and replacing of the old ceiling with a modern one; installation of modern lighting; installation of wallpaper and walnut paneling; and a new front door.

The tellers' cages have been reworked and cut down, a new vault installed, and a new office for officials built, he noted. A new heating plant and air conditioner has also been included.

In addition to the physical appearance, a new posting machine for the bookkeeping department has been added.

The firm was founded in 1906, according to Langston, and moved into its present offices in 1922. This is the first major renovation of the building since that time, he explained, noting that the changes have been made for the comfort and convenience of the customers.

Parents Invited To Junior High

Parents of students entering the seventh grade were invited to attend a meeting in the Junior High School auditorium tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Principal Joe Smith said Supt. J. H. Rose and Supervisor Mrs. Ellen Carroll will talk generally about the program for the coming year. The physical education program will also be discussed. Parents will have the opportunity to ask questions about the coming year's work.

Smith said approximately 300 seventh graders are expected to enter Junior High along with an equal number of eighth graders.

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE TEACHERS from Pitt, Greene, Wilson and Wayne Counties participated in a welding workshop, a re-training course for teachers in the field of farm mechanics. The welding school was held in connection with a revision in the farm mechanics phase of the course of study taught by the men during the regular school year. The workshop, held at the Winterville High School was conducted by V. B. Hair, District Superintendent of Vocational Education, and E. L. Howell, of the Agriculture Engineering Department of State College.

Two Accidents In City Tuesday

Linwood A. Wilson, Route 1, Ayden, was charged with failure to see his intended movement could be made in safety following a collision at the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and Memorial Drive yesterday at 9:15 a.m.

Greenville Police said the Wilson vehicle collided with a car operated by Horace W. Sheppard of Kinston, causing an estimated $100 damage to each vehicle.

No one was injured, officers reported. Investigation is continuing in a second mishap, according to officers, which occurred at the intersection of Third and Washington Sts. at 10:55 p.m. yesterday, and involved a hit-and-run vehicle.

Police reported that a car operated by Mrs. Virginia J. Harrell of 2401 East Fourth St. was damaged when a truck headed west on Third St. made a turn at the intersection and struck her car.

Mrs. Harrell was quoted as saying the truck, in addition to striking her car, failed to stop for the traffic light, which was red.

Officers listed damage to the car as $25.

Wagner's opera, "Tannhauser," was first performed in Dresden, in 1845. This is a story of sacred and profane love in the heart of a minstrel noble.

Educators Told To Indoctrinate

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's top schoolman told his country's teachers Tuesday their main task is putting across Communist doctrine, not the three R's.

In an address to the annual National Teachers' Conference, Education Minister P. Kahuda declared that "development of Communist education continues to remain the paramount task of the schools," the Czech news agency Ceteka reported.

Russians Seize 12 Jap Vessels

TOKYO (AP) — Soviet patrol boats seized 12 Japanese fishing boats off the east coast of Japan's northernmost island of Hokkaido today, the Maritime Safety Agency reported.

The agency said three speedy Russian boats dashed into a fleet of about 250 fishing craft operating near the Russian-held Kurile Islands and captured 12 of them.

Offered Low Bid On Road Work

A low bid of $33,848, was submitted yesterday for the improvement of 2.68 miles on Pitt County Road 1925.

The secondary road runs from a point on Road 1725, approximately 1.3 miles east of Gardenersville, northeast to a point on N.C. 102, approximately 0.4 mile west of Calico.

The bid was submitted by S. T. Wooten Construction Co. of Stanfordsville.

It was one of 18 projects on which the State Highway Commission received bids in Raleigh yesterday.

Wreck In Jones County Kills 3

TRENTON, N.C. (AP) — Three men burned to death today and four persons were seriously injured when their pickup truck crashed into a ditch on U.S. 41 near here, police reported.

Officers said the vehicle swerved to avoid collision with another truck and burst into flames as it struck the ditch.

The dead were identified as George Lee, 47, of Atkinson; J.D. Clark, 44; and Sullivan Foy Lloyd, 19, both Currie Negroes.

Four of the five persons riding in the bed of the truck were hospitalized at Kinston Hospital. One reportedly was badly burned.

Their identities were not immediately known.

Officers quoted the driver of the vehicle, Wilbur C. Woodcock of Atkinson, as saying he swerved to avoid collision with another truck which Woodcock said pulled into U.S. 41 from a side road. No contact was involved between the two vehicles. Driver of the second truck was identified as Thomas Turner Jr.

Police said the men were members of a logging crew which had been working in Pamlico County. Due to rainy weather, officers said, they could not work today and were returning home.

Ethiopian Bible For Eisenhower

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — A beautiful bound Bible autographed by Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia was presented to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower Tuesday by Berhanou Dinke, Ethiopian ambassador to the United States.

The Bible is a translation from Greek and Latin into Ethiopian.
