Some Clouds And A Haze, But Area Residents Could Get A View Of Moon's Eclipse

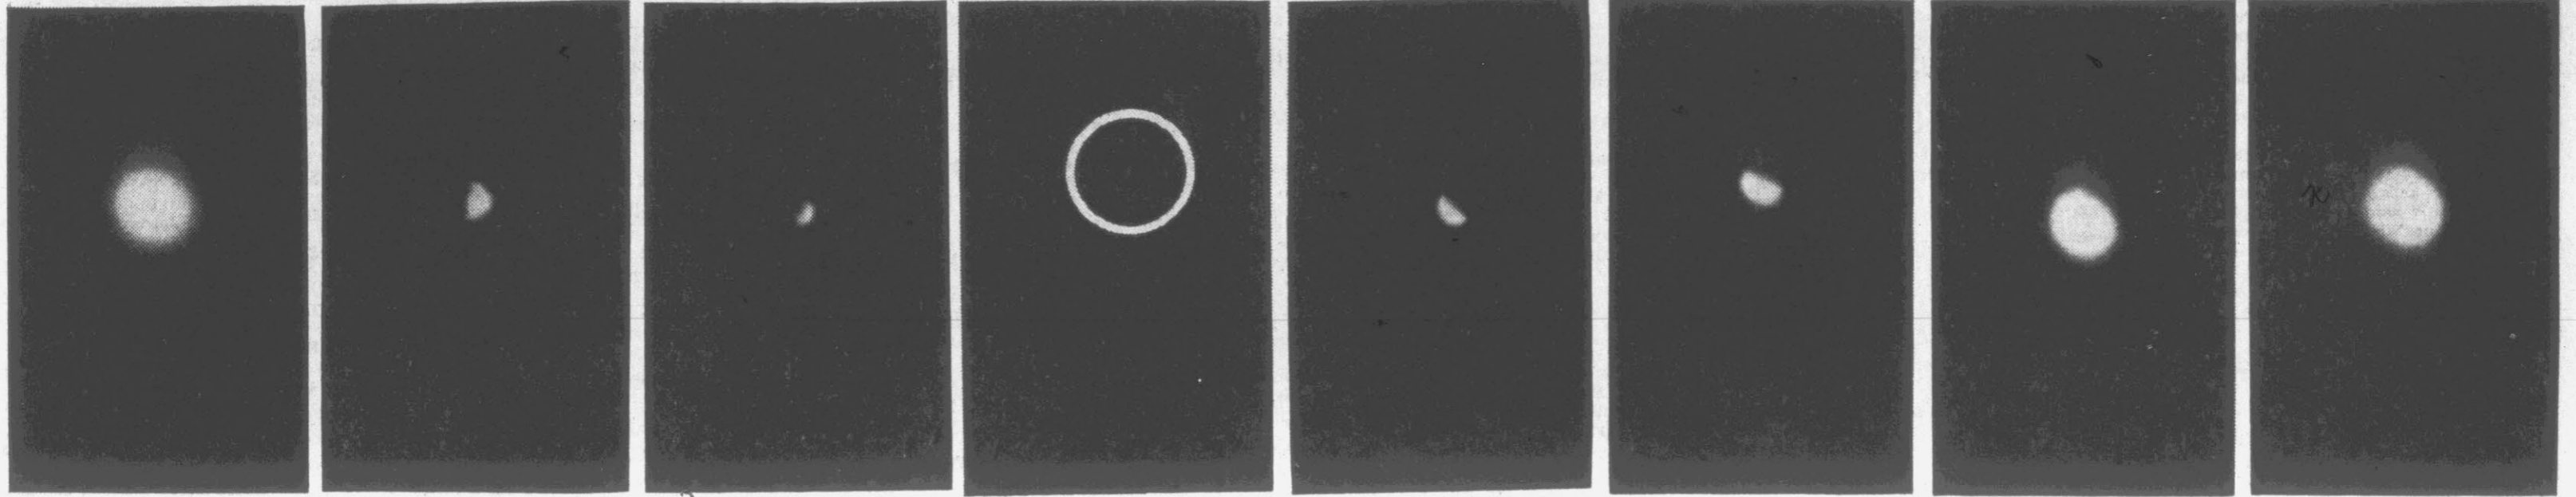

PHOTO-RECORD OF MOON'S ECLIPSE—Pitt Countians were among millions who peered through hazy skies last night at the full August moon as it moved through the earth's shadow into a rare 99 per cent eclipse. Reflector staff photographer Stuart Savage captured the photographic record of the

appeared (moon circled in white) at 10:09. By 10:35 (fifth from left), the moon had begun to emerge from the earth's shadow. At 11:00 (sixth photo) nearly half the moon's surface had reappeared through the haze. By 11:25 (second from right) only a crescent of the earth's shadow covered the moon and by 11:42 (far right) the visible portion of the eclipse had ended

Officially the eclipse ended at 12:41 a.m. today as the moon moved entirely free from the faint outer portion of the earth's shadow—called the penumbra—and the full moon was again "full." While persons in the immediate area could view the entire eclipse, a low-hanging cloud cover limited persons in the northeastern United States to an occasional glimpse.

Rusk And Ambassadors Of Big Three Meet On Berlin Defense Dept. Calls Up 76,500 Reservists, Guardsmen To Duty

By LEWIS GULICK WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk met with the Western Big Three ambassadors today in a suddenly-announced meeting on Berlin.

Also attending the 10:30 a.m. session at the State Department were Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, McGeorge Bundy, presidential adviser on security affairs, and other high U.S. officials.

Rusk's summoning of the group was announced only a few minutes before the meeting took place.

About the same time, the United States, Britain and France delivered formal notes to Moscow warning the Reds against any tampering with the air corridors to West Berlin.

In Berlin, the U.S. commandant protested Communist regulations limiting crossing points between East and West Berlin.

French Ambassador Herve Alphand said upon entering Rusk's office that the allied group would consider "the Berlin situation in general."

The State Department announced no reason for the meeting.

The other ambassadors called in were Harold Caccia of Britain and Wilhelm Grewe of West Germany.

The Western Allies agreed Friday on the wording of notes replying to a Soviet charge that the Allies have been airlifting West-German spies and provocateurs to West Berlin.

The Western capitals have rejected the Moscow charges in public statements.

The White House saw the Kremlin allegation—contained in a Soviet note Wednesday—as a threat to interfere with flights to West Berlin and voiced a "solemn warning" against any such "aggressive act" by the Communists.

More words were fired back and forth across the Iron Curtain.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk writing in a foreword to a State Department booklet on Berlin, said: "For the third time in just over 13 years, the Soviets have launched a major threat to the freedom of West Berlin."

He voiced confidence that the United States, its Allies "and the stalwart people of West Berlin" will meet the Soviet challenge.

In Berlin, East Germany's chief of state, declared Walter Ulbricht, declared Friday all Western "intervention" in the divided city must go and claimed the right to take control of the access routes—land, water and air—after Moscow signs a peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

The State Department has no comment on Ulbricht's remarks. U.S. officials consider him only a Moscow puppet.

The Western ambassadorial group which has been conferring in Washington on the Berlin crisis had little trouble agreeing on a firm stand in their new note to Moscow. But the Allies are having more difficulty thrashing out an answer to another Soviet note.

This Soviet document, dated Aug. 3, spoke of negotiations for peaceful settlement of the German issue but did not retreat from proposals the West deems unacceptable. The West's problem: whether to enter into negotiations with the Communists soon or hold off for a while.

France's President Charles de Gaulle has let it be known he sees "no good in rushing into negotiations—not so long as the Russians continue their Berlin threats and show no willingness to modify their position."

The United States, Britain and West Germany lean toward early negotiations. They feel too much delay could allow the crisis to grow beyond the chance of peaceful settlement.

One possible high-level contact between the West and the Soviet Union could be at New York next month when the foreign ministers attend early sessions of the U.N. General Assembly's fall meeting.

The State Department booklet on Berlin published Friday outlines, as Rusk put it, "our patient and persistent efforts to resolve the issues involved by peaceful means."

The 48-page booklet, containing the two parts of Germany and photographs and maps, compares some 16 million inhabitants of the Eastern zone are ruled by the Soviet Union "through its Communist creature, the East German regime which calls itself the German Democratic Republic."

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department, in the biggest mobilization since the Korean War, is ordering 76,500 reservists and National Guardsmen to active duty.

Most of the men are being ordered to report Oct. 1.

The call-up is part of the Kennedy administration's military build-up to be ready to deal with the Berlin situation and other world trouble spots.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced the call to active duty at a news conference late Friday.

Army and Air Force National Guard and reserve units that were alerted two weeks ago to possible duty are now being called up, he said. Navy men needed to man ships being added to the fleet also are being ordered to report.

The orders are going out to 311 units of the three services—210 of them Army, 58 Navy, 33 Air Force, plus miscellaneous outfits.

The call-up involves 46,500 Army Reservists and National Guardsmen, 23,600 Air Force men and 6,400 Navy Reservists.

McNamara said the orders do not specify how long the men will be held on active duty, but he noted that the authorization resolution passed by Congress placed a one-year limit on most recalls.

The secretary said the Defense Department hopes to release many of those being called as voluntary enlistments and draft inductions provide needed manpower.

In reply to newsmen's questions, McNamara said that if any of the activated units are sent overseas, dependents would not be allowed to go along.

Orders to the recalled units began going out Friday and kept flowing today. Commanding officers will get the first word and then notify individual reservists. It will take up to three weeks for individuals to get their personal orders.

When the beefing-up is completed, the Army will have 1,008,000 in uniform, the Navy 657,000, the Air Force 888,227, and the Marine Corps 190,000.

No Marine Reservists are being called, McNamara said, because the corps is getting an adequate number of volunteers to build its strength.

The exception to the Oct. 1 reporting date applies to about 4,000 men of a training division ordered to report Sept. 25 to Ft. Polk, La., where the Army is reopening a second base as a training center.

Ft. Polk, together with Ft. Carson, Colo., will be used in the training program for added regular Army manpower from draft and volunteer enlistments.

With the direction to 76,500 men to get ready for service, there was a reprieve for others. The Defense Department decided that about a score of Army and Air Force units that had been alerted for possible duty now are not needed. It informed those units they were off the list.

McNamara was asked how many are being called up who were not alerted. He estimated 300, including the Navy Reservists, none of whom had been put on alert.

The 6,400 Navy Reservists being summoned back to duty help man 58 ships which are being brought into commission, McNamara said. These additions to the fleet include antisubmarine ships and aircraft, destroyers and destroyer escorts, as well as noncombatant vessels.

The addition of the 58 ships will be part of an overall addition of 85 ships to the fleet. Some of these ships will be new, delivered during the months ahead. Others will be ships, originally scheduled for moth-balling, that will be held in the fleet. Still others will be transports and amphibious ships, tankers and other vessels brought out of moth balls.

Bloodmobile Gets Eighty Pints Here Yesterday

Blood donations here yesterday totaled 80 pints as the Red Cross Bloodmobile closed out its two-day Pitt County vi sitwith a total of 156 units—94 short of its goal.

But in spite of the unmet quota, Blood Program Chairman W. K. Whichard said today he felt "we did about as good a job as we could have hoped for under the circumstances."

"We owe a debt of gratitude to the donors and those who showed up but were rejected," Whichard said. He pointed out, "I don't think we did so badly. This is a hard season for an overwhelming response."

Whichard said the county Bloodmobile organization "is now looking ahead to the next visit," another two-day round scheduled tentatively for October.

The mobile unit collected 76 pints of blood in Ayden Thursday as 102 persons visited the donation center between noon and 6 p.m. A total of 91 volunteers went to the local Moose Lodge yesterday between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. and 11 were rejected for various physical reasons.

Whichard again extended "the debt of gratitude we owe those people" who visited the collection centers Thursday and Friday. The chairman had a special commendation for "those who were willing but were rejected."

Generator Arrives For Pitt CD Use

A five-kilowatt gasoline-powered electric generator has been received by the Pitt County Civil Defense Council to be installed in the county's Civil Defense headquarters under the east steps of the Pitt Courthouse.

County CD Director J. H. Rose announced receipt of the emergency generator yesterday and said an electrical contractor Monday is scheduled to "begin making plans for the wiring for utilization of this generator and also putting in the necessary extra wiring for lines in the headquarters area."

Rose said Heber Adams, member of the CD communications staff, selected the 1,400-pound generator on a recent trip to Raleigh. The generator, Rose said, will be installed at the courthouse at the proper time and will be used to furnish emergency power for county Civil Defense operations.

Half the cost of the new equipment, Rose pointed out, will be paid by the federal government. He added federal funds will finance half of the county's planned communications network for which the county has appropriated $2,500.

Rose said application for the complete county-wide communications program has been forwarded to state headquarters, approved there, and sent on to regional headquarters. He said as soon as final approval is given the plan, the council will proceed with plans for purchase by the county and county municipalities of necessary equipment to make the communications network operative.

Rose said the RACES network for state-wide CD communications has been approved for Pitt and "when the new equipment is installed we will be tied into the state network for all emergencies."

The CD director said an announcement will be made next week of classes in first aid, home nursing and radiological defense. The American Red Cross is furnishing instructors for "the first aid and nursing courses 'not only in Greenville but throughout the county,'

Rose said.

Two classrooms are being prepared for training in Greenville, Rose added, on the second floor of the Greenville Schools Administration Building. Dates and locations for the radiological courses will be announced later, he added.

Rose said Dr. Frank Eller of the East Carolina College faculty, "a certified instructor," will conduct the radiological course.

Also planned, according to the director, are classes in rescue work.

Rose also announced the next meeting of the county CD Council is scheduled for next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the office of the Greenville Board of Education

Auto Liability Rate Boost Is Given Approval

RALEIGH (AP) — Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold has approved an 18.7 per cent boost in auto liability coverage rates in North Carolina.

Gold coupled his action with a strong plea for safer driving.

"Insurance rates are based primarily on claim costs resulting from accidents," he said. "Improved driving habits of all drivers is the only sure way to cut down on accidents and insurance costs."

In his decision, released Friday, Gold said the rate boost would take effect Sept. 1. He said the liability increase would be offset partially by credits under a new safe driver reward plan.

The North Carolina automobile rate administrative office requested the increase and put forth its case during a recent public hearing.

"It is hoped that the safe driver reward plan, which will become effective at the same time as the rate increase, will serve as an incentive for safety on our highways," Gold said.

Under the plan, persons having clear driving records for the preceding three years will receive a 10 per cent credit below the basic annual premium rate. Drivers having poor records will pay above the basic rate.

Gold attributed the increase to inflationary conditions and the ever-rising number of private passenger car accidents.

He said under the new rate schedule, North Carolina premiums still will be below the average of neighboring states.

Greenville Mart Sees $62.20 Day

Greenville's tobacco market Friday inched its sales average upward as prices remained steady at an all-time high and offerings seemed about the same.

Overall quality of primings and lugs was still described as good with a practical top for company purchases of $73 per 100 pounds.

The market posted a gross sales average of $62.20 per hundredweight, three cents per 100 above Thursday's mark.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee noted prices continued at an all-time high with more and more farmers averaging above $70," Whedbee said, "I've never seen anything like it."

Lugs and primings, Whedbee said, still dominated the warehouse floors, but he noted an appearance of more leaf grades. Overall quality, he said, appeared to be off slightly Friday with the appearance of more non-descript tobacco.

The market chalked up its second million-dollar recorded during the young auction season.

A total of 1,669,374 pounds crossed the 10 warehouse floors for a total receipts figure of $1,038,456.32, according to figures compiled by the Federal-State Marketing News Service in Wilson.

Another heavy sale was forecast for Monday with the possibility of a full sales on the local market during next week.

Deliveries to the Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp. still involved a low percentage of offerings as competition among the buying companies continued keen.

Yesterday's activity left Greenville's market with the following totals for the young auction season: pounds—5,431,068; receipts—$3,412,897.73; and sales average—$62.84.

Whedbee continued to predict a shorter auction season than a year ago as growers apparently were completing their grading and tying operations to take advantage of current record-high prices.

Shooting Death Probe Continues

Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey said today that investigation is continuing in the shooting death of a 75-year-old Route 2, Greenville man yesterday.

Harvey, who identified the victim as Jim B. Haddock of near Black Jack, reported that Haddock died only minutes after reaching Pitt Memorial Hospital last night, from a 22-caliber bullet wound in his chest.

The coroner said Haddock was found lying on the ground in a pool of blood behind an outbuilding by his son and a Negro worker on his farm about 7 p.m. He had been last seen about 3:30.

The coroner said he had "apparently been shooting rats" behind the barn as he was "in the habit of doing," when the fatal wound was inflicted.

He listed cause of death as extensive hemorrhage, both internal and external.

Harvey noted Haddock is a widower and lived at his home with his son.

Farmville Mart Prices Steady

FARMVILLE — Farmville's tobacco market Friday saw its largest volume of the young season as prices seemed steady and more smoking leaf grades appeared.

Sales supervisor Louis Williams reported "a considerable number of $73 sales" as the market chalked up a sales average of $63.52 from the sale of 649,254 pounds—25,000 pounds more than Tuesday's opening volume.

Williams said "good, ripe tips" were consistently bringing $73 per hundredweight and more leaf grades appeared on the warehouse floors.

Friday's practical top, he said, appeared to be $73.

Primings were still strong, Williams said, with quality of offerings about the same. He reported still a "considerable volume" of lugs bringing "satisfactory" prices.

The supervisor forecast the local market's first full sale for Monday given favorable weather. Farmville's authorized limit is 4,400 baskets.

Yesterday's activity ran the local market's season totals to: pounds—1,883,644; receipts—$1,182,080.31; and sales average—$62.75.

U.S. Orbits Another Satellite For Study Space Dust

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "beer can satellite" whirled around the earth today on a space dust-hunting mission that may help insure the safety of astronauts on interplanetary flights.

The 127-pound space messenger—the 50th American satellite to be placed in orbit since January, 1958—was launched around the globe once every 98 minutes at altitudes estimated at 275 miles at the closest point and 565 at the farthest.

The satellite was hurled aloft Friday afternoon by a Scout launching rocket in what space agency scientists hailed as a virtually perfect operation, with the achieved orbit very close to the 280 to 610-mile orbit originally planned.

Scientists of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration termed the venture a signal success for the Scout—the world's first known all-solid fuel booster. It is considered a major potential tool in the space race with the Soviet Union, though it is limited to relatively moderate payloads.

The still under-development Scout—known as the "poor man's rocket" because of its relatively low cost—had failed in two of three previous attempts to launch a satellite into orbit.

ord of the Scout shows "it has worked essentially properly." And they said the future looks bright for it as an operational vehicle.

The job of the orbiting satellite, which began radioing information to the earth soon after launch, is to make the best study yet of the number and penetrating power of tiny space bullets called micrometeoroids which could strike a space vehicle at speeds from 7 to 45 miles a second.

Composed of iron and other substances, these cosmic dust particles—possibly the final debris from an exploded planet—are deemed potentially damaging to space vehicles and even a possible lethal threat to astronauts unless proper shielding is provided.

What scientists need to know is just how dangerous they really are. It is so that space vehicles can be designed to offset any hazard without unnecessarily overweighting the space craft with shielding.

The satellite, launched from the space agency's Wallops Island, Va., station, is formally named Explorer XIII and has the technical name micrometeoroid satellite.

But some space agency technicians informally dubbed it the "beer can satellite" because of the shape of some of its dust-detecting instruments.

The satellite is a cylinder about 6 feet tall and 2 feet in diameter—about the size of a home water heater—wrapped round the burned-out carcass of the fourth stage of the launching rocket. The weight of the fourth-stage makes the total weight in orbit approximately 190 pounds.

The most obvious feature of the instrument package is an arrangement of 160 metallic cylinders that look like beer cans cut lengthwise. Arranged in tiers, they are filled with helium gas, and if a space bullet penetrated one of them, the gas would be released, triggering a radio circuit.

Greenville Man Held Without Bond In Shooting Early Today

A 31-year-old white man was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital early this morning suffering from a wound in his right arm being shot with a 12 gauge shotgun allegedly by a 32-year-old Negro.

Officers identified the victim as John Robert Griffin of 1402 Chestnut St. The assault occurred at 12th and Pitt Sts.

Henry Staton Jr. of 712 Pitt St. is being held in city jail without privilege of bond in connection with the case.

Investigators reported Griffin was shot at the climax of an argument between Staton and a second Negro, William Barrett of 1209 Greene St. Time of the shooting was set at 12:30 a.m.

The sequence of events which led to the incident was reported by police who quoted Barrett.

Barrett told officers that Staton had been to his place "earlier" and had "words" with him and threatened to get a gun and kill him (Barrett). He continued by saying that later, Staton drove up with a white man and three or four more Negroes, Staton got out with a gun, and at that point, Barrett said he went inside the building.

Officers reported Staton shot at Barrett through the door once, then Barrett closed the door. Barrett related he then heard three or four more shots, and heard the men leaving.

get up and fall again, then saw Staton help the man into the auto, which drove off.

Police, who gave no explanation for the shooting of Griffin, noted that the injured man was taken to the hospital by Staton.

Police charged Staton with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and discharging firearms in the city. They also served a warrant on the Negro charging him with assault with a deadly weapon on William Barrett. That warrant, police reported, was signed by Barrett.

She mistook the Randolph for the Forrestal and climbed the gangway—she thought to meet her husband.

Then, as the Forrestal made for the pier, the Randolph cast off her lines and put out to sea.

"I was petrified," said Mrs. Burnette. Added Mrs. Burnette: "I was sick. Just felt like crying."

Burnette said, "We pulled in expecting to meet our wives as soon as the dependents came on board. We got a phone call from the Randolph after we tied up."

The caller was his wife, explaining sheepishly, "Honey, I thought I was aboard the Forrestal, but I'm aboard the Randolph."

"It's funny now, but wasn't at first," Burnette said later. "After seven months at sea, we find our wives at sea. It's a helluva mess."

The Randolph remained at sea just for the day.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

Significance for today of the healing theology of Christ Jesus will be explained at Christian Science services Sunday.

Scriptural readings in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Christ Jesus" will include this verse from Matthew (9): "And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people."

One of the correlative citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "The highest earthly representative of God, speaking of human ability to reflect divine power, prophetically said to his disciples, speaking not for their day only but for all time: 'He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and these signs shall follow that that believe.'" (p. 52).

First Presbyterian Announcements

"The Thrill of Christianity" is the title of the sermon to be delivered by the Rev. Richard R. Gammon Sunday morning at the 9:00 and 11:00 o'clock services at the First Presbyterian Church.

Special music will consist of a solo, "Ninety First Psalm," by Miss Elizabeth White, soprano. Fifteen members of the Senior High Fellowship, accompanied by Mr. Gammon, Miss Sally Day and Mrs. E. Withers Harvey Jr., went on a field trip to Richmond, Va. Thursday and Friday. This was part of the observance of Youth Week, and the purpose of the trip was to visit some of the agencies of the Presbyterian Church. Representatives of the group will share their experiences at the morning worship Sunday.

Memorial Baptist Announcements

The Torchbearer's Sunday School class will meet Monday evening at 8:00 with Mrs. Willard Wilson, Mrs. Bob Holt and Mrs. Kenneth Brown will be the assisting hostesses.

Mississippi Pays Tribute To Hero

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A Negro who gave his life fighting an oil truck fire won high praise Friday from the Mississippi House of Representatives.

House Speaker Walter Sillers of Bolivar County offered a resolution commending Alfred D. McNair's heroism and offering sympathy to the wife and children of this brave and unselfish citizen.

The House adopted the resolution by unanimous voice vote. McNair, 35, suffered burns over more than 70 per cent of his body last week when he took a fire extinguisher and waded into the flames pouring from a burning oil truck owned by his employer. He died Thursday.

Canada Risks A Friend

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The Canadian airlift to Cuba makes no sense. The business is not large enough to justify the inevitable loss of American friendship. To most Americans, it looks like spite and spite is cheap, no matter why it is done or by whom.

The Cubans are, of course, taking every advantage of the Canadians because they assume that the Canadians are greedy and are willing to make any sacrifice to get business. The best example is the use of Cuban-hired Canadian planes rather than shipping on Canadian freight planes.

Another instance from "The Financial Post" of Toronto: "One airline - World-Wide Airways Inc. of Montreal - holds an Air Transport Board license to airlift freight from Canada to Cuba.

"Company complains it's not getting any business, and a DC-4 sits idle at Montreal airport.

Another airline - International Airfreighters Ltd. of Edmonton - bought a North Star plane from Trans-Canada Air Lines in May, assembled Canadian airmen, and 'dry leased' the plane and crew to Cubans (the Cuban airline).

"This company has been moving practically all of the Canadian air cargo to and from Cuba, and the owners say they are making money."

What the Canadians expected of the Cubans is hard to say. Cuba is a Communist State and like all Communists, assumes that the capitalists will do anything to get income; that capitalists have no sense of honor or patriotism and that therefore all that is necessary is to hold a carrot in front of the capitalist and he rushes forward even into a cesspool. The Communists assume that the capitalists will kill each other off economically and that will result in a bloodless victory for World Marxism.

The Air Industries and Transport Association of Canada has urged the Canadian government "act, immediately, to withdraw permission for further Cuban flights such time as the Cuban government agrees to live up to a firm understanding."

The Canadians thought they had a 50-50 deal with the Cubans, but they now discover that they have been done in. There are always selfish businessmen who adopt the attitude that a sale is a sale and it does not matter to whom or what for. They are like some American companies who situate branches in European countries so that they can sell to Soviet Russia, in absolute betrayal of their own country. On Sunday, 1,500 American boys risked their lives by riding into West Berlin along a 10-mile lane of peril; they might have been shot down by steel-manufactured by American-owned plants situated in European countries. This nobility seems to think about these days when the competition for the dollar in all markets is becoming so serious.

The Cubans, being Marxists, figure on that attitude on the part of Canadian sellers of chicks and pigs and other foodstuffs which are flown from Canada to Cuba. Sell anything to any buyer is a good rule unless the buyer turns around to sell the goods to someone else. This has been happening with astonishing regularity during the past 40 years. Americans may have forgotten that when this country was short of steel and iron scrap, the Sixth Avenue railroad scrap, an enormous amount, was sold to Japan which shortly thereafter went to war against us.

No American can develop much sympathy for any Canadian who loses by his trading with Cuba. The Canadians went into the Cuban market with the intention of capturing an American market even if it do so meant to hurt the United States. Canada cannot hurt the United States much; it can hurt Canada more in the long run. Suffering from false pride and petty nationalism, there are those in Canada who believe that it does not matter that they damage United States-Canadian relations; that the United States will take anything that comes along. The truth is that the American people are weary of being abused by countries which depend upon American capital for their development and the American market for their trade.

The Cuban problem has become for us also a Canadian (Continued on Page 6)

Better Transportation Would Help

One cannot look at the development potential of Eastern North Carolina without being aware that a greater effort toward developing better transportation facilities could bring many benefits to this section.

That is not to say that Eastern Carolina does not have good transportation facilities now. It does. But these facilities could be greatly improved. Compared with the Piedmont section of the state—particularly in terms of major-highways and commercial air service—Eastern Carolina could stand a great deal of improvement.

Where Eastern Carolina has very few major highways which channel large volumes of traffic through this area from other states, the more industrialized and more populated Piedmont section has a considerable number. Where four-lane highways stretch for miles through the Piedmont in various directions, they are relatively few and far between in this section of the state.

The opening of the new tunnel system south of Norfolk in the near future has been heralded by many people as a highway link which will considerably increase the flow of traffic through this section of the state. As it does so, affording an easier access to this area for tourists and for commercial vehicles, it will enhance the development potential of the area. But it will do so only if adequate measures are taken to see that after the old bottleneck is broken north of the Virginia line, a new one does not develop on the North Carolina side of the line.

Generally recognized in this section is the lack of commercial air service in this section of the state. Many communities find themselves far removed from airports served by commercial airlines, while in the Piedmont section airports with commercial service seem to be more plentiful and their service more adequate. And of course Eastern Carolina has the built-in potential for water transportation—which the Piedmont will never have—that could contribute greatly to the economic development of the area if the potential were only exploited.

Progress in all these fields of transportation has been made in Eastern Carolina in recent years, but we seriously question whether the rate of progress has been in keeping with the needs of the section. Eastern Carolina communities, individually and collectively could do a great deal more toward the development of better transportation facilities if they would set their minds to the problem.

To be sure, as we develop economically in this section better transportation facilities will be provided. But conversely, if we provide ourselves with better transportation facilities, these facilities will increase the pace of economic development of the area.

Observations By The Governor

By LYNN NISBET
GOVERNOR—Governor Sanford used his weekly news conference as a forum to get off a number of quasi-personal observations, but about subjects in which there is lively public interest.

For one thing, he sees no point in talking about a special session of the Senate in order to elect a president just so there could be established a line of succession to the Governor's office. "I have no intention of allowing a vacancy to occur in the Governor's office," he said. "So it doesn't matter whether there is a fixed order of succession at this time." He added that in event a vacancy did occur there is machinery for filling it—but so far as he is concerned he is not going to encourage the thought that he might not complete his term.

In another area, he definitely put to rest rumors suggesting that he might set up in his office a sort of over-riding control over public relations activities of all State agencies and departments. Implication in the rumors was that this would constitute censorship.

The Governor was emphatic in denial of any such intent. To the contrary, he said, he wanted every agency to afford free access to all information, and he urged the reporters to dig in for facts a little deeper than the departmental handouts covered.

CENTRAL—The rumor of a proposed central censorship office on State news needed killing—fast. A similar rumor gained currency about the time the Department of Administration was being established during the Hodges regime. Then and now, the idea was probably expanded from the practical suggestion that there should be some central point around Capitol Square where newsmen could pick up departmental releases for tips and as basis for further checking.

TRAVEL—In response to a question from a reporter about who would be in position to take over control of State government, if such take-over became necessary, while the Governor is out of the state, he launched into a detail discussion of his travel program—and the light rein he keeps on his office. Adverting to criticism that he should "stay closer home and 'keep store,'" he said the critics failed to recognize the modern facilities for communication, and the business-like organization of the Governor's office.

Even when he is in Raleigh, he said, details of office management were handled by assignments. When away from Raleigh, whether in or out of the state, he maintains constant communication with the office by telephone—and he assumes full responsibility for its operations.

He concedes that there are certain functions of the office required by the constitution which he cannot perform when beyond the borders of the state. This does not preclude announcement of what will be done when he gets inside North Carolina, and has no bearing on general statements of opinion or policy emanating from his office.

PROGRESS—Regardless of merit in criticism of Governors Hodges and Sanford for spending too much time traveling away from the capitol at Raleigh, and particularly excessive out of state travel, the fact is that conditions now are greatly different from those maintaining when the constitutional prohibition against out of state exercise of authority was written into the law books.

Some oldtimers will recall that as late as 1931 Governor Max Gardner was afraid to leave the state for fear the Lieutenant Governor Dick Fountain would take over the administration.

NATIONAL GUARD—Announcement that Maj. Gen. Edward F. Griffin is retiring as commander of the 30th National Guard Division and is being replaced by Brig. Gen. Weston H. Willis, occasioned the question of whether this change involved the alleged "arrangement" as to succession in this post which was publicized several years ago. The Governor insisted it does not. He thinks there was a lot of misunderstanding about that alleged "deal."

By the time a National Guard officer reaches the rank which makes him eligible to command a division he is close to retirement age anyhow. Policy is not to keep one man in the top post longer than two or three years.

Incidentally, retirement of General Griffin as commander of the 30th National Guard division does not in the slightest degree affect his status as Director of Civil Defense for North Carolina.

BATTLESHIP—In answer to questions by reporters about probability of Contingency and Emergency funds for getting the battleship USS North Carolina into its permanent berth at Wilmington, the Governor said he didn't think such money would be available. Faciously he quipped that if the battleship gets stuck, maybe we can charge 15 cents "admission" for folks to look at it—and raise enough money to get it loose.

LOST DAY—Governor Sanford was 18 minutes late for his news conference Thursday. Meantime 20 reporters and technicians, several thousand dollars worth of camera, radio and television equipment idly waited. That adds up to just about one full day work time for one person wasted.

Seeing School Bus Is Reminder Of Caution

Remember a few months ago in the early mornings and mid-afternoons when those large yellow school buses were traveling the highways of this and every other county of the state?

They have been gone from the highways since late May, but they will return toward the end of next week as the schools open for another term. They will be carrying each day a portion of the most precious cargo North Carolina has . . . its youngsters. And the youngsters in the mornings will be hurrying to board their buses for school; in the afternoons hurrying to leave the buses to get about their chores or their play.

For the drivers of Pitt and every other county of the state the return of the school buses to the highways for another nine months should be the signal for exercising extra caution. Although most of the youngsters who ride the buses are well trained, one occasionally will dart from the bus across the highway. And although the school bus drivers of the state have an impressive record, one occasionally will be involved in a traffic accident. Either of these situations could result in tragedy.

North Carolina's school children collectively will travel millions of miles to and from school on the huge yellow buses during the next nine months. The motorists share the responsibility of seeking that these daily trips are safe trips for the youngsters.

Just How Tough Is Mr. Kennedy

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—After seven months in office there is still a major unknown about President Kennedy: Just how tough is he?

Headaches piled up on him after he became president, forcing him to look and operate in 10 different directions at once. But this is how he's been:

1. With Congress—Mild and not tough-talking at all, although three of his most important programs were slaughtered.

Question: Is this how he'll deal with Congress the next three years?

2. In foreign affairs—Generally restrained but tough-talking with the Soviets when they pushed him into it on Berlin. There's a difference between tough talk and tough action.

Question: How tough will he be in a showdown? Judging from the way the Soviets have been probing and testing him, they want to know the answer too.

At home two things may have been a psychological handicap to him, giving him the feeling he didn't have a so-called mandate to get rough with Congress:

1. The narrow margin by which he squeaked through in the 1960 election.

While his Democrats outnumbered Republicans 65-35 in the Senate and 263-174 in the House, the margin is thinner than it looks.

Any time the Southern Democrats in either house get mad at him, they can team up with Republicans to frustrate him.

This fear of angering the Southern—may explain why he failed to make good on his campaign promise to hand Congress civil rights bill very early in 1961.

To get what he wanted from Congress he has used reason, persuasion and White House pressure. He has aides who specialize in working on Congress.

So he has operated with Congress strictly as a politician dealing with politicians. Congress responded by putting through for him a number of programs he asked for. In large measure they were noncontroversial.

But on the highly controversial one—like medical care for the aged, foreign aid, federal aid to education—he got sunk.

The medical care bill seems completely dead for this year. Any aid to education he gets will be a drastically saved-off version of what he said he wanted. Almost certainly any foreign bill finally passed will provide much less than he said is needed.

If Kennedy operates the next three years as he did in his first one—particularly in not carrying his case to the people—the record probably will not be impressive.

All this raises an old question: Should a president, not backed up by overwhelming majorities in Congress, try to play it soft and compromise or should he assert a vigorous, tough, outspoken leadership to get what he wants in full?

Kennedy got off to a bad start in foreign affairs by approving the anti-Castro invasion, by Cuban exiles, which fell flat on its face. The invasion was poorly thought out, was unsupported and never should have been permitted unless the United States meant business all the way.

This embarrassed Kennedy, and may have shaken his self-confidence a bit, undoubtedly made him cautious about any other direct action he might want to take anywhere. But he accepted full responsibility for the decision.

He knew he faced a showdown on Berlin, of some kind. Premier Khrushchev threatened that before Kennedy was even a presidential candidate. Khrushchev became increasingly belligerent, began pushing his luck.

Under the circumstances—since direct action might have meant war—Kennedy did the best he could: He talked tough to Khrushchev and about Berlin.

So far this hasn't discouraged the Soviets. They're still pushing. In the end talk may not be enough.

Opinions In Brief

they're graceful and quick, and they are forever washing their hair, and they smell nice."—The Corona (Cal.) Independent.

"Life is more than one thing after another these days. The things overlap."—Hutchinson (Kansas) News.

A Computer Would Help

NEW YORK (AP)—Every housewife needs a purse-size electronic computer, to take to the supermarket along with the grocery list.

Failing this, she should at least have a master's degree in higher mathematics if she hopes to make her money go to its stretchiest limits.

Arrayed on the shelves are cans, packages and boxes in all sizes from wee tiny ones, through middle-sized ones and on up to great big ones. And it's up to Mamma Bear to decide just which one will provide most dinner for her dollar.

For instance two packages of cheese sit humbly side by side. But Mamma's frugal eye notes that one is 29 cents and the other 35 cents.

"Six pennies saved is six pennies earned," she mutters happily to herself as she tosses the cheaper one into her basket.

But it's not that easy. The two brands look just alike but there may be more to this than meets the eye. How about seeing if they weigh the same, a thrifty inner voice cautions.

Aha: Just as she thought. The 29-cent package contains six ounces, but the 35-cent kind boasts a full eight ounces.

Now poor Mamma, long since having forgotten her multiplication tables, to say nothing of her division tables, must somehow figure out which is the better buy.

By adding to 35, multiplying by 16 and dividing by the number of holes in the cheese, she comes out with a headache—and a four-ounce can of grated cheese.

Everything comes in the large economy-size tube, jar, box, can, package or bottle nowadays. But by a lot of fancy figuring a math-minded shopper often discovers it's more economical to buy two of the uneconomical sizes than one of the economy sizes.

Cans are the biggest problem. These require a special algebraic formula to arrive at the price per ounce of avoidupois.

If A equals the No. 303 can and B equals the buffet-size can and C equals the No. 2 can and the buffet-size can is really 227 grams, whereas the 8-ounce can serves 1 to 2, what can we have for supper tonight that the whole family will like?

It might be easier at that just to count the number of peas.

Other Editors Saying Tardy Judges Are Costly

(Hertford County Herald)

How one of the state's high-salaried superior Court judges helped to impede the justice he is being paid to dispense promptly and impartially—and at a cost to the public of $40 per hour—is the subject of a critical editorial in the News of Orange County.

There are criminal cases on the docket in Orange County, in which the University of North Carolina and its Institute of Government are located, that are eight years old and the newly appointed district solicitor announced during the first day of court that he was going to seek an extra special term of court in which to get the cases tried, the newspaper points out.

But at this same opening day of court, the judge who was to preside was two hours late in showing up on the job. While jurors, witnesses, police officers, and other court officials sat around in the summer heat, the jurors and witnesses summoned by legal order to attend and subject to penalty at the will of the judge should they fail to be in place at the appointed hour for the court opening, the judge showed at 11:00 o'clock, just two hours late, the editorial relates.

Figuring the cost of jurors (who in Orange are paid only $6 per day) and other costs of operating the court that are paid out of public funds, but not counting the lost time of witnesses, the newspaper came up with the estimate that it costs $40 per hour in county funds to operate its Superior Court. The newspaper asks the pertinent question of how it can be expected that cases will be tried at a special term, at heavy additional public expense, if the judge does not show up to perform the duty for which he is paid. The newspaper suggests that the Orange County Commissioners should ascertain from the proper authorities the assurance that the court is going to function properly before a special session should be sought, stating reasonably that "At a cost of $40 an hour Orange County cannot afford to pay for a court that is not in session. And the public should not tolerate such contempt for its convenience and necessity."

And, this brings up the question of who the authorities are to whom the officials of a county may look to be assured that Superior Court judges perform their duties efficiently and with proper respect for their obligation to the public who pay their salaries. Hertford County has had similar experience with judges who have been late for their work and who have appeared to operate the courts according to personal convenience rather than in consideration of fairness and justice to the public the courts are established to serve. It is not infrequent that judges from the bench instruct grand juries to make critical reports of the performance of county commissioners. There are some cases when grand juries should reverse the process and bring in reports critical of the work performance of the judge. This business of being late for work is one of those cases. Judges are paid too well not to be required to set an example for the lesser hired hands of government.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SIGNIFICANCE OF RESURRECTION

Every Sunday is Easter Sunday. In fact, we set this one day aside because we wish to remind ourselves that on the first day of the week Christ arose from the dead. Yet in mid-summer months people very seldom think about the resurrection. They assume that this is only a spring festival. It is a great day when the churches are filled and overflowing and everybody tries to have a new dress or hat or both, and the pictures of the high-and-mighty walking up and down Fifth Avenue, New York, are devoured by people all over the country, and probably all over the world.

But Christ as the ever-present resurrected Spirit and Saviour—this we find hard to think about after the actual Easter season is passed. Yet if we only think about it for a moment we are aware that if the resurrection has the spiritual significance we claim it has, as we sing and praise and listen with approval to the sermon on Easter Sunday, then that saving power operates every day of the year, every year of the century, every century of the age.

"Christ is risen." That is as true and significant at this season of the year as it is at the Easter season. Our Lord has never really left the world. Cosmic geography is something beyond human knowledge. How Christ can be in heaven and on earth at the same time we do not know, but we are assured that he is both there in glory and here to the comfort and strengthening of our hearts.

Every Sunday is resurrection day for the Christian.

Strike That Can Hit Prosperity

By ELMER ROESSNER

The biggest single threat to the rising prosperity in America is a strike of the United Auto Workers. Such a strike, possible at the end of this month, can sweep into the profits of almost every businessman, the income of many investors, and the earnings of a considerable number of workers.

The United Auto Workers has served notice ending its agreement with Chrysler on August 31. Similar contracts will expire with Ford and General Motors the same day. The American Motors negotiations appear to be proceeding normally.

A strike against one or more of the Big Three on September 1 would throw as big a sabot into the economic machinery as has been done for some time. This would happen just as the industry was about to introduce its expanded 1962 lines.

SPREADING EFFECT This would have an immediate effect on workers in plants supplying parts to the auto industry. Thousands would be laid off. It would also cut earnings of auto salesmen and other employees of dealers. It would bring layoffs of truckers and railroad men who move cars from plants to market, and thousands of satellite industries and businesses would feel the impact of an auto strike.

The secondary effects would be much greater. The steel industry would suffer a great setback. It has not been prospering much lately. The recession that started last year and now seems to be over caused producers to cut back steel production sharply. Scores of furnaces are now cold.

A pay rise for steel workers becomes effective September 1. Since this is certain to result in a rise in steel prices, big users had been expected to be buying steel heavily now. In anticipation, the big steel companies have been firing up cold furnaces.

But the increase in orders has been very small. A big reason is that auto companies, in fear of strike, have not been increasing orders. If a strike comes, orders will be suspended.

OTHER COMPETITION The position of the steel industry has been worsened by foreign competition. Foreseeing another price rise as a consequence of pay increases, foreign producers have been offering bargains. Some steel users have been encouraging foreign companies to ship steel here in the hope that imports will prevent domestic steel companies from increasing prices.

Shipments of 11,000 tons of British tinplate (which is mostly steel) will be landed on the West Coast in October and November. In this way, car companies are warning American steel companies that they will do more shopping abroad if steel prices rise here.

This is another "export of jobs" situation. Steel workers demanding higher wages than steel companies can pay at present prices (if such is the case, which union leaders dispute) are reducing the number of domestic jobs available.

steel-making jobs abroad. That's "exporting jobs."

Other beneficiaries will be foreign manufacturers of small cars. With the exception of the Volkswagen, sales of foreign cars in America have been sharply cut by the success of the compact. If manufacture of domestic compacts is struck, the market for foreign cars will grow again.

PROPER WAY TO OBSERVE NATIONAL SLEEP MONTH September has been designated as Better Sleep Month.

Don't try to celebrate it by taking a sleeping pill. That's not the idea. The correct way to observe it is by buying a new mattress. You see, the month has been invested by the Latex Foam Rubber Council not with the purpose of putting America to sleep (it'll take care of that) but to sell more mattresses.

The Los Angeles Dodgers' 10-game losing string is a thing of the past, and it was Duke Snider, their old power guy of the past, who shook them free of the slump.

Old And Young Play In Semifinal

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The two "pappy guys" of the Trans-Mississippi Amateur Golf Tournament were paired in today's 36-hole semifinal round and the two youngsters still remaining were to meet in the other match.

Jones Takes On Clay Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Unbeaten Doug Jones (38-0) take on Von Clay for the third time tonight and is the 13-5 choice to run his record in his personal rivalry to three-for-three.

Tom Arnold of Asheville, N. C., appeared to be doing push-ups on the 12th green of Welshire Golf Course in Denver, Colo., where he competed in the International Junior Jaycee Golf Tournament. He was pictured carefully checking the green before missing a long putt.

Cincinnati 7-2 in the opener of a four-game showdown with the Reds Friday night.

Ooddy, the victory put the second-place Dodgers within 2½ games of the Reds in the National League race—exactly where they were when they started the losing string Aug. 14.

San Francisco, in third place, stayed five games behind as the Giants, after winning six straight, lost their second in a row, 7-3, at St. Louis. Pittsburgh defeated the Chicago Cubs 1-0, and Milwaukee and Philadelphia split 9-4 decisions in a two-night pair.

In the American League, the New York Yankees retained a two-game lead with a 3-0 victory at Kansas City, but Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle again failed to hit a home run. Second-place Detroit beat Washington 6-0 in a game held to eight innings by rain. Baltimore won 5-2 at Minnesota, the Chicago White Sox defeated Cleveland 3-2, and Boston belted the Los Angeles Angels 12-6.

Snider's lugging, making up for an 0-for-4 performance when he was moved into the lineup by Mer. Walt Alston Thursday night, was matched by a pair of home runs by Frank Howard in the Dodgers' 11-hit assault on Bob Purkey (14-9) and two relievers.

The Giants collapsed en masse at St. Louis. The Cards tagged Billy O'Dell (4-5) and two relievers for 13 hits and had the added help of three San Francisco errors, a wild pitch and a passed ball. An error, a walk and three singles counted two runs with two out in the fourth. Southpaw Ray Sadecki (12-6), who singled across the deciding run, gave up six hits and struck out eight.

A sixth-inning home run by Roberto Clemente backed right-hander Tom Sturdivant (3-1) of the Pirates in his duel with Don Cardwell (11-11). Sturdivant gave up six hits in gaining his first NL shutout. Cardwell allowed only five hits.

Final Round In LL Tournament

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — El Cajon, Calif., and El Campo, Tex., who meet today for the Little League World Series Championship, are two teams with similar problems.

Both have depleted their pitching staffs and both have managers whose sons are stars of the club.

Woodrow Winfield, manager of the El Campo team, has two offspring playing under his wing — Mike, 11, in left field, and Woodrow Philip Jr., 12, at shortstop.

The latter probably will be replacing starting pitcher David Vaclavik after the fourth inning because Vaclavik will have used up his eligibility. Little League rules specify that a pitcher can't work successive games or more than 12 innings a week.

Mike Salvatore will open on the mound for El Cajon but can pitch only five innings because he already has used up seven. His replacement will be Mickey Aliasantoro.

$800 Settled A $40,000 Action

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge Friday approved an $800 settlement of a $40,000 suit brought by twins Jerry and Mike Colburn, 12, against TV entertainer Art Linkletter and Mayfair Music Co.

The suit charged neither the boys nor their mother, Mae Colburn, had authorized use of their picture with Linkletter on a piece of sheet music entitled, "Kids Say the Darndest Things."

Mrs. Colburn said the picture was taken when the twins appeared on Linkletter's TV show in 1958. Linkletter and the music company contended they did have permission but agreed to settle the action to avoid litigation.

RALLYING CRY — A sign in the student supply store at North Carolina State College says: "Help fight TV—Buy a Book."

SOUVENIR STRETCH — A foul ball is the reason for all the activity along rail of third base box seats in Milwaukee's County Stadium. Man at right fell on the playing field to secure his prize. Others were satisfied as the Braves won the game.

Football Notes

WINSTON-SALEM — With the start of fall grid drills just a few days away, Wake Forest Coach Billy Hildebrand feels the best capsule analysis of his 1961 Demon Deacons is "a stronger backfield, over-all, and a less impressive line."

Hildebrand, starting his sixth year with the Deacs and his second as head coach, has already made it clear that this year's club will be a little more on the conservative side than Deacon elevens have been over the past several years.

"We don't have a passer to fill the shoes left vacant by the graduation of Norman Sneed," the Deacon coach points out. "Therefore, fans will see a completely different offense out there this fall. Chuck Reiley, who has played in Sneed's shadow for two years, will be our No. 1 quarterback, at least from the start, and when we pass it will be more from the roll-out, running-pass patterns."

Hildebrand said the Deacon pattern of widely split ends, which served as the main offensive weapon for three years, is now a thing of the past. "Our ends are our best linemen, and we will play them in close so we can take advantage of their blocking," he said.

The Deacons will have a small-by-comparison squad, of only 55 players, including 19 lettermen, 16 non-lettermen from last year's squad, and 20 candidate up from the freshman ranks. This group is broken down into 11 ends, eight tackles, 10 guards, five centers, four quarterbacks, 11 halfbacks and six fullbacks.

"We may have to do a little more adjusting of the personnel when we get down to work," Hildebrand said. He revealed he has already made one late change, moving letterman Bruce Nation from guard to a tackle slot.

Ends, where four lettermen are available, and halfback, with five monogram wearers on hand, appear to be the two strongest positions on the squad. The tackle position and center are the biggest cause of worry. Paul Martin, last year's starting right guard, and Kent Martin, the No. 3 center a year ago, were moved to tackle during spring drills and are expected to man the starting jobs this fall.

"We know we face a rough road," Hildebrand said, "but we'll be swinging from the ground up and we could surprise a few people."

Wins Clay Target Championship

VANDALIA, Ohio. (AP) — Pressure from his father-in-law forced Steve Barringer of Russell, Kan., into the trapshooting game three years ago, and today the 26-year-old petroleum engineer is the clay target champion of the world.

The class C novice did it with a flourish Friday as he broke 99 of 100 from 20 yards to take the 62nd Grand American Handicap title from a field of 2,353, third largest in the event's history.

The new champion's father-in-law, Carl Friesen, urged Barringer, who up to that time had never seen a clay target, to get into the shooting game with him. Steve fired practice rounds for a couple of years, got into the registered target phase this year and made his first trip to "the Roaring Grand."

Yankees Take Kansas City 3-0, M&M Fail To Connect

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Babe Ruth, always a guy to rise to a challenge, now is only 30 games behind Roger Maris. And he's within four of Mickey Mantle.

With tongue in cheek, that's the way the three Yankee sluggers stand in their battle for the home-run record after Maris and Mantle again failed to add to their totals Friday night in New York's 3-0 victory at Kansas City.

Maris, who hasn't connected in three games, still has 50 after going 0-for-3 against left-hander Jim Archer of the A's in the Yankees' 128th game of the season. Mantle had two hits, both singles,

Gold Cup Races Begin Today

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Speedboat racing's world series opens today at Pyramid Lake where at least eight roaring hydroplanes compete for the Gold Cup and $35,000 in prizes.

When it looked Friday night as though only four would win entry into the big race at the lake 33 miles northeast of here, officials altered the rules.

First they made 90 miles per hour the qualifying speed instead of 100 and then they added three more hours of qualifying time today.

Those still not qualified, even with the changed rules, were defending champion Miss Reno, Seattle, Too, Fascination, Fascination I, and Cutie Radio.

Earlier qualifiers were Miss U.S. I from Detroit at a 110.656, the Seattle boats Miss Bardahl at 108.072 and Century 21 at 107.712 and Miss Spokane at 103.647.

Finals races are scheduled Sunday with the final placings determined on a point system after each boat has competed in three heats of 30 miles each.

in four trips against Archer and right-handed reliever Bill Fischer, leaving his home-run count at 46. He had belted just one in 12 games.

Ruth hit his 46th in game No. 132 and his 50th in game No. 138 en route to his record 60 in 1927. Despite the lack of home runs, the Yankees held to a two-game lead in the American League race behind the five-hit pitching of Ralph Terry. Second-place Detroit won 6-0 at Washington in a game held to eight innings by rain, as Jim Bunning checked the Senators on two singles for the Tigers' second straight shutout success and seventh victory in eight games.

Third-place Baltimore beat Minnesota 5-2, the Chicago White Sox defeated Cleveland 3-2 in a battle for fourth place, and Boston won 12-9 at Los Angeles, overpowering the Angels with four home runs.

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers shook loose from a 10-game losing string and edged within 2½ games of first-place Cincinnati by belting the Reds 7-2. St. Louis smacked San Francisco 7-3, and Pittsburgh defeated the Chicago Cubs 1-0. Philadelphia and Milwaukee split 9-4 decisions in a two-night pair. The Yankees broke a scoreless duel after Archer (8-10) hit Maris with a pitch leading off the fourth inning. Maris scooted to second on Mantle's fly to deep left and then came in in Bill Skowron's stride. The other two runs came in the ninth on singles by Mantle, Elston Howard, pinch-hitter Yogi Berra and Terry, who won his sixth in a row for an 11-1 record. Terry has a string of 22 scoreless innings.

Bunning (15-9), a loam right-hander, didn't allow a hit for 6-1-3 innings at Washington, then gave up singles by Gene Woodling and Willie Tasby in the seventh for the second two-hitter of his major league career.

Dick McAuliffe had two of the Tigers' eight hits off lost John Gabler (3-6) and two relievers and drove in three runs, two with a fourth-inning double.

Jack Fisher (7-11) delivered the key single as the Orioles beat the Twins and Jack Krackel (11-9) with four runs in the sixth. Dave Philley of the Birds set a major-league record with his 23rd pinch hit, bettering the record set by Sam Leslie with 22 for the New York Giants in 1932.

Oilers Down Titans In NFL Exhibition Game

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Take 'em away from the swaying palm trees, and the American Football League champion Houston Oilers will play the aggressive game Coach Lou Rymkus insists on from his troops.

That's exactly what happened Friday night as the Oilers whipped the New York Titans 30-20 in an exhibition at Greenville, S.C., and vindicated Rymkus' blast at the Houston management for their generosity in sending the team to Hawaii.

"We found it hard to think football around the palm trees," said an angry Rymkus last week when he brought his crew back from the 50th state after an unimpressive two-game stand. "A preseason camp has to be hard, and you have to work hard. You can't do it in a place like Hawaii."

Apparently you can do it in Greenville, where quarterback George Blanda tossed an 83-yard touchdown pass to Bill Groman and kicked three field goals while the Oilers evened their preseason record at 2-2.

The Dallas Texans kept their record unblemished by winning their fourth straight, 29-27, over the Denver Broncos, and Boston kept Buffalo winless by thumping the Bills 28-10.

In the National League, Eagles handed Detroit its first loss and remained unbeaten with a 23-14 triumph over the Lions and Cleveland's Browns defeated the Los Angeles Rams 34-17.

Decker-Preuss Meet In Finals

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Phyllis Preuss, a slim Florida blonde who never has won a major tournament, met former champion Anne Quast Decker of Seattle today in the 36-hole final of the USGA Women's Amateur Golf Tournament.

Miss Preuss, 22, whipped the sentimental favorite in Friday's 18-hole semifinals. Roberta Albers, 14-year-old sensation from Tampa, Fla., was beaten 2 and 1 by her rival from Pompano Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Decker, 23, whose brilliance in this tournament has almost amounted to monotony, defeated Mrs. Gaines Wilson Jr. of Louisville, Ky., 5 and 4. Mrs. Decker won the title in 1958 and now stands four under par after six winning matches in her campaign for the 1961 championship.

While Miss Preuss played steady golf, Miss Albers made the decisive mistakes. They were even after nine holes but Roberta three-putted to lose the 11th and missed a two-foot putt which would have pulled her even on 14. When Miss Albers hit short and missed a 12-foot putt on the 17th, Miss Preuss quietly tapped in a two-footer to end the match.

Coach Speaks To Exchangites

There are 28 players in the varsity line-up, with 17 of them being lettermen, Coach Bud Phillips of J. H. Rose High School told members of the Greenville Exchange Club last night at their meeting.

Phillips pointed out that this year approximately 55 boys came out for football. The backfield this year will be the same as last year, with the exception of the loss of one man by graduation. The entire first string line was graduated in June but the new line, last year's second string, is composed of lettermen and will probably be the heaviest line ever fielded by Rose High. He reviewed the make-up of the football team for this fall, the schedule, and the work of the Boosters Club in supporting athletic programs in Rose High School.

For the boys most of the early season games will be home games, with the Washington-Greenville game being played on the home field. Other schools spend a great deal more on their athletes than Greenville does, Phillips said. The entire program for the local school is made up from the sale of tickets, donations, and the activities of the Boosters Club. Coach Phillips was introduced by program chairman Bill Talton.

J. M. Whitehurst was a guest of the club. President Luther Moore presided over the meeting.

She held a graduate fellowship while completing her Master's studies in the School of Business, with a major in business administration. She is a member of the Sigma Pi Alpha, honorary foreign language fraternity.

Following her graduation from East Carolina, for several months she held a position on the clerical staff of a United States committee, after which she toured European countries for a few weeks.

Rash Of Five Traffic Accidents Here Friday

Greenville police reported that over $1,400 damage resulted in an outbreak of motor vehicle collisions in the city yesterday.

Heaviest damage in the five mishaps resulted from the collision of two vehicles about 3:21 p.m. at the intersection of 11th and Cotanche Sts.

Police said the vehicles involved were operated by Herman Lee Garris Jr., 26, of Route 2, Greenville, and John O'Geary, 75, of Route 3, Greenville.

Damage to the Garris vehicle was estimated to be $400 while officers set damage to the O'Geary vehicle at $200.

As the result of the investigation, O'Geary was charged with failure to yield the right of way. An estimated $500 damage resulted to a vehicle operated by Robert Lawrence Osswald of Rt. 1, Greenville, in a wreck at the intersection of 14th St. and Boyd Ave. about 4:16 p.m.

Investigators said the Oswald vehicle struck the rear of a car driven by Carlisle Smith, 55-year-old Negro of 1502 Railroad St., then struck a tree and utilities pole when the brakes on his vehicle failed.

Damage to the Smith car was estimated to be about $50.

No charges were made by officers, and no injuries were reported.

Mrs. Ward Moore Tripp of 200 Washington St. was charged with failure to yield the right of way following the investigation of a collision at the Dickinson and Grand Ave. intersection.

Operator of the second vehicle involved was identified as Victor Lee McDaniel, 37, of Winterville.

Damage to the Tripp vehicle was listed as $125.

No charges were made and only $15 damage reported, when vehicles operated by Odie Frank Gooden, 48, of 608 Wiley St. and Leslie Edmond Wall, 40, of Route 2, Washington, collided.

The 11:22 a.m. collision occurred on Grande Ave.

A collision near the intersection of Third and Evans Sts. about 11:31 a.m. involved cars operated by David Albert Wiggins, 29, Rt. 3, Greenville, and Harry Finn Kelly Jr., 37, of West Covina, Calif.

No charges were made and damage in the collision was set by police at $10.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—Brazil was plunged into a crisis by the sudden resignation of President Janio Quadros, with touring leftist Vice President Joao Goulart flying home today to take over power.

Supporters of Goulart, 43, threatened a general strike in the country already beset by financial troubles if any attempt is made to block him from taking over the presidency if he wants to and an aide says he does.

Goulart, a wealthy rancher who heads Brazil's Labor party, is flying from Singapore after touring Red China, where he sang the praises of Mao Tse-tung and accomplishments under the Peiping regime.

Goulart favors the same foreign policy for Brazil that brought Quadros under attack—neutrality with "friendship" for all, including the Communist bloc.

The army and police kept a firm hold in the big country of 55 million, South America's largest, but factions were boiling up.

The resignation of the unpredictable Quadros Friday came with such suddenness it stunned the nation and plunged it into confusion over its future. Quitting a week short of seven turbulent months in office, Quadros declared: "I am beaten by forces against me." He accused forces inside and outside Brazil of fighting him but did not identify them.

Pro-Quadros student demonstrations erupted Friday night in at least three cities. A mob of 200 stone-hurling attackers smashed two windows and a front glass door of the U.S. Embassy in Brasilia, the capital, before military men drove them off with tear gas and rubber clubs.

Other students rioted in the Communist stronghold of Recife, port city on the Atlantic. In Rio de Janeiro, troops and police fired shots into the air and threw tear gas bombs to break up student demonstrators.

Quadros' resignation automatically dumped the presidency into Goulart's lap. But there was some speculation that Quadros, a shrewd politician with a flare for dramatics, had quit merely to gather more public support than he had for his landslide election victory last year. Then he got 4,300,000 votes—more than anyone in Brazilian history.

Since then his overtures to the Soviet Union and friendly gestures toward Fidel Castro's Cuba have stirred a growing revolt against him.

Growing economic distress in Brazil had contributed to the mounting opposition, with many of his supporters in the 1960 election campaign turning on him. Although favoring a policy that included accepting aid from the United States, Quadros went out of way to show friendship for Castro's Cuba and drew closer to the Soviet Union.

Quadros was about to resume diplomatic ties with the Soviet Union, broken in 1947, and opposed any U.S. attempts to put pressure on Cuba.

Quadros made his exit quietly and flew to his home city of Sao Paulo, where he got his start as a teacher and lawyer before entering politics.

Claiming forces at home and abroad had crushed him, Quadros declared: "I am beaten by forces against me, and so I leave the government. . . I wanted Brazil for Brazilians. . . I had to face and fight corruption, lies and cowards, whose only goals are to subject the general needs of the nation to some ambitious groups and individuals from inside and also outside."

The crisis broke within a week after the controversial visit to Brazil of Cuban economic czar Ernesto Guevara. Quadros received Guevara and escorted him with one of Brazil's highest honors.

The resignation came after strongly anti-Communist Gov. Carlos Lacerda of Guanabara State, a former Quadros supporter, publicly had accused the government of plotting a dictatorship.

Congress accepted Quadros' resignation and named Raulier Mazzilli, 51, speaker of the Chamber of Deputies, as interim president until Goulart's arrival. Mazzilli, a moderate Social Democrat, said he would hold office only until "my successor" takes over.

Under the constitution elections would be required after 60 days if a vice president fails to succeed to the presidency.

Goulart, who comes from Brazil's south cattle country, served as vice president under former President Juscelino Kubitschek and was re-elected last October by a slim margin over two candidates who ran on the Quadros ticket. In Brazil the two top offices are elected separately, and the candidates need not be members of the same party. Quadros ran as an independent.

Hospital Ship Ending Six Months In Southeast Asia

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The American hospital ship Hope is sailing for home after six months in Southeast Asia.

Dr. William Walsh, Washington heart specialist, who heads the People's Health Foundation sponsoring the big white vessel, says: "Both Indonesia and South Viet Nam have asked us to come back. That is the most encouraging thing about our work."

He also has invitations from South Korea, Pakistan, and several South American countries.

"The Indonesian government is going to build its own Hope ship for use among its islands. The British are planning to send one out. So are the Scandinavian countries. I think that shows the merits of the idea," Dr. Walsh says.

"How far the Hope will sail again after reaching San Francisco depends on money. A fund this fall will seek $10 million—enough to finance two additional Hope ships Walsh wants.

The present 15,000-ton Hope costs about $13,000 a month, or over $1.8 million a year to operate, Walsh says. A big part of this is crew wages.

In its long voyage through Indonesia's islands and its brief stay tied up in downtown Saigon, more than 20,000 persons have been examined or treated aboard ship or by teams ashore.

Indonesian and Vietnamese doctors and nurses had the chance to work with American specialists, learning new techniques and at times gaining confidence to try complicated operations.

The board's Commercial Fisheries Committee met here Friday and voted to ask for between $2,500 and $3,000 to pay for the survey.

To be determined would be whether the dredging operation would be beneficial to the Albemarle economy and whether it would harm fish and wildlife in the area.

State Sen. N. Elton Aydtlett of Pasquotank County, who gave the project the "gold mine" label appeared on behalf of an Elizabeth City firm, North Carolina Shell Products Co., at a hearing in Raleigh earlier in the week.

Textile Union To Open Drive For Extra Benefits

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP)—The Textile Workers Union of America says a campaign will be launched for higher wages and fringe benefits in the industry to bring labor standards "more nearly in line" with those in other industries.

The TWUA Executive Council, at its quarterly meeting here Thursday, termed present pay and benefits for textile workers "inequitable."

The council also adopted a resolution claiming economic conditions within the textile industry improved 25 per cent since the start of 1961.

It said man-hour production in recent years has risen 4.5 per cent annually in textile plants and that prices of the products already have begun to increase.

The group also noted that a new multi-lateral agreement negotiated by the federal government limits importing of textile fabrics from low-wage countries throughout the world.

Nancy Harris Speaks At Bethel Rotary Meeting

BETHEL — Miss Nancy Harris of Greenville was speaker at the Bethel Rotary Club this week.

Miss Harris, who the past year was a Rotary International exchange student and attended the University of Grenoble in France, gave an informative account of her travels abroad. The speaker represented Rotary District 773 which she said included about one third of the Rotarians in North Carolina.

She said that there were about one thousand foreign students in the university she attended and that it was a center for communism. She said that she was an "even stronger American" from this experience and she favorably compared her one year away to four years in college here for the valuable experience that was gained.

Miss Harris stated that high school in France was the equivalent to junior college in America. She said that boys and girls in France are more mature for their age than here. The speaker said that she was disappointed to find that the French people did not attend church very well but that she did find them religious in their daily living. She said that in the main they were a home-loving people and took time for family association such as closing their places of business for meals, and being together in evenings.

"This is a wonderful gift you have given us," she said in closing, "and I believe this is one of the best means of bringing about world peace since there are three hundred and fifteen exchange students from America every year."

Miss Harris was introduced by Russell Hunnicutt, program chairman. Visitors included Mrs. Ruth Harris of Greenville, the speaker's mother, Mrs. Russell Hunnicutt, Joe and Sue Hunnicutt, and Rotarian J. Grover Raby of Tarboro. President Linwood Briley presided. Carl Barbee gave the invocation.

Reports Demonstrations Given At Tobacco Farm

According to J. M. Goode, County Negro Agricultural Agent, two field tobacco demonstrations were held this week on the farm of Lyman Hardy, R-1, Grimesland and Henry Hooks, R-5, Greenville. The demonstrations consisted of planning a tobacco nematode control program. Sam Weeks, Pitt County Tobacco Specialist, assisted with the meetings.

The purpose of the meetings were: (1) to teach adults how to recognize root-knot and meadow nematode damage on root system and the why behind checking tobacco fields; (2) collecting the roots; and (3) making root-knot readings and last setting up a two or three year rotation program in line with the results found. This would include plowing out tobacco stubbles just as soon as harvest is complete, including certain crops in rotation and what fumigant to use if there is a need from the checks made three years from now.

Weeks stated, at the meetings, "If the farmer would do just one thing—plow out those tobacco stubbles immediately after harvesting the time spent at the demonstration would be worth while." Goode found as a result of visitation around in the county that very little damage from nematodes occurred this year in tobacco fields planted in new N.C. 95 variety, where other damage ranged from moderate to severe.

Sub-soiling tobacco land gave good results for Nelson Hopkins, R-6, Greenville, this season, according to J. M. Goode. Hopkins first recognized the benefit from this practice when he was transplanting his crop after a heavy rain. Most of the field was in good condition but a small plot in his field that had not been sub-soiled was too wet to plant or the tractor to operate.

During a summer dry spell Hopkins noticed that tobacco held up well where the land was sub-soiled. Where there were heavy rains the same thing was true.

Volunteer Firemen Are Training

STATON-HOUSE AND STOKES DEPTS. ATTACK BUILDING . . . this house was donated to departments for practice purposes. (Photos by Roy Hardee).

STOKES VOLUNTEERS PRACTICE ON A HOUSE . . . firemen are taught to find the center of the blaze before opening the nozzle.

Rural fire fighting departments have been springing up all over the county during the past few years.

Each has purchased its own specially equipped truck for rural fires and they are manned by volunteer fire departments.

But as the departments have grown, so has the need for training of the volunteers. Thus training courses have been organized through the Pitt County Firemen's Association.

Recently a training school was held in Greenville for all rural departments and 105 firemen attended to learn basic fire fighting techniques. It is planned as an annual event by the Firemen's Association.

This and other training is paying off, not only in more efficient fire fighting but as a safety factor for the men involved.

Indicative of this is the fact that more burning tobacco barns have been saved by rural departments this year than ever before.

The rural volunteers are also being familiarized with city fire hydrants and the larger hose so that, if they are ever called on to assist with a major municipal conflagration they will be ready.

There are plans within the Firemen's Association to conduct a pump school to bring the volunteers up to date on pumping equipment.

As better trained men, the rural volunteers will be more able to cope with the blazes which they find when they answer the screaming siren in the middle of the night.

Navy Lady Will See The Sea

By WARREN LERUDE SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Pretty Charlene Suneson joined the Navy for the usual reason:

LT. CHARLENE SUNESON Welcome Aboard

"I didn't think I wouldn't be allowed to go to sea. The Navy was the first place I met any restriction because I was a woman. At home (in Chicago) and at the University of Chicago, I never was told I couldn't do some kinds of work because I was a woman."

African Odyssey Based On Trust In Education

By DAN MARSTON AP Staff Writer

MOUNT VERNON, Wash. (AP)—I met an Indian walking to London. With him I traveled 120 miles. I had two pieces of bread, and he had a paw paw (a tropical fruit) and some sugar. When we were hungry we either ate bread or drank water mixed with sugar. . . .

For most of his young life, Legson Kayira of Nyasaland dreamed of going to school in America.

Now, some three years and 12,000 miles after he took the first step on the trail to education, he is a student at Skagit Valley Junior College in northwestern Washington.

Kayira spent slightly less than two years of that time walking, hitching rides and working his way from his home in Karonga, Nyasaland, across 2,000 miles of Africa to Khartoum, Sudan.

"One time when I was in Uganda, I was hungry, thirsty and tired. I knew nobody in the village. I did not understand their language and they did not understand mine."

"It was late in the evening. The dark clouds were slowly gathering in the sky, heralding the coming of rain. People in the village chased me and so I decided not to stay in the village. . . ."

Kayira obtained his first education from Scottish missionaries near Karonga (pop. 200), where he was born between 18 and 22 years ago—"Mother says, 'You were born when people were harvesting.'"

He studied English, history, geography, agriculture, Latin, algebra, arithmetic and the Scriptures. He has read the Bible and "Pilgrim's Progress" three times.

"One day we (he and another youth) were without food, so we went to look for jobs. We went to some farm owned by an Indian. On the gate was this inscription: 'NO ADMITTANCE.'"

"We found some workers and one of them asked us to sit down while he went to report to the owner of the farm. The Indian came and without saying anything, he caught me by the neck and pushed me."

"My friend showed a clean pair of heels. . . ."

Kayira was in Uganda when he selected Skagit Valley Junior College from a directory of American schools. That was in January, 1959. He still had a year to travel.

"One time another boy was interested in what I was trying to do. He asked me if I could let him go with me. He had some money with him.

"I did not have money, but I had some books, and two shirts (old ones given to me by some of the people I worked for) and a short trousers."

"He suggested that we should go by car to Kampala on the understanding that he would pay for both tickets. We took a car and in a matter of hours we were in Kampala."

"He paid for his ticket, but did not pay for mine, and since I had no money, the driver of that car took my books and my shirt. I was never so disappointed."

"It took me 35 days before I earned enough money to get back my books and shirt."

From Kampala, Kayira wrote to Skagit Valley asking admission. In two weeks he was not only accepted but was offered a scholarship. He was still about 10,000 miles from the college.

"While sailing along the River Nile, I met an American from Chicago. He fed me all the way along. I rode in the fourth class prisoners."

"I arrived in Khartoum where I was fed, cared for and clothed by officials of the American embassy."

"I met someone who suggested that I should go to Yugoslavia. I also met people who gave me a severe warning of the racial conflicts in the United States."

Kayira applied for a visa in Khartoum but was turned down because he had no money, no medical certificate and no credentials from Skagit Valley.

Then one day both credentials and money arrived. Dr. George Hodson, dean of students at Skagit Valley, had led the undergraduate body in a community drive that raised $1,173. Kayira arrived last January.

"I have learned many things during the two quarters (of school), but there are still innumerable things I need to learn. . . . I have tried to rise to the height of this society."

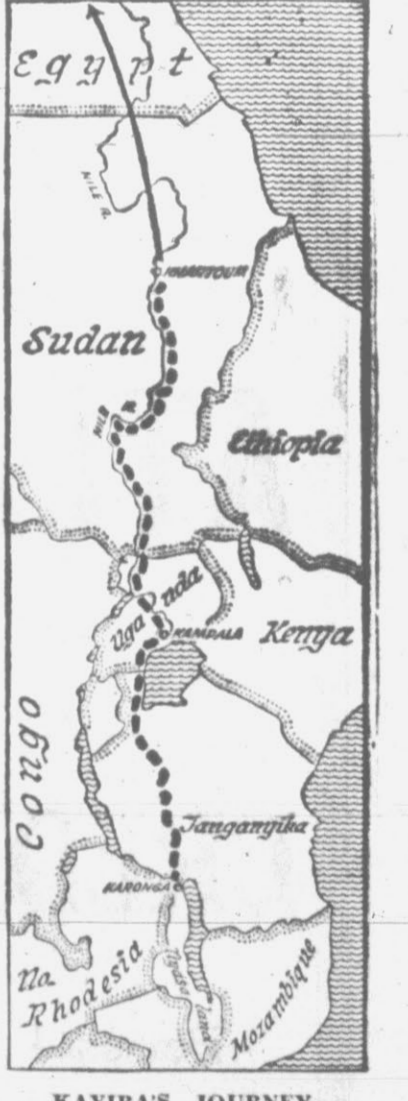

"On the whole I am very confident that I have buried much of the ignorance I had when I arrived. . . ."

In Mt. Vernon, Kayira has made his home with Mr. and Mrs. William Atwood and their seven children. They took him in as an "obviously deserving boy." He helps with the chores, takes care of the younger children.

"I have had many letters from boys back in Africa. I have sent them many addresses of colleges and universities in the United States so that they may apply to colleges of their choice."

"Some have suggested they should walk (through Africa) and have asked me for an advice. I have advised them to work, collect enough money, buy

Quadros Saw He Faced A Failure

By TOM MASTERSON
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—A Brazilian standing on a Rio de Janeiro street corner just two hours before Janio Quadros resigned as president was shouting, "Give Janio a chance!" he cried. "We Brazilians vote for a man. Then as soon as he gets into power, we start knocking him down."

His remark explained—perhaps even more than Quadros' own resignation statement—why Quadros resigned after only seven months in office.

It is now clear Quadros quit because his back was to the wall. To Quadros the future looked bleak. Obviously he saw no immediate prospect of fulfilling his promise to lift Brazil out of financial chaos and make it a world power with a strong voice in the international struggle.

Many political experts say it was Quadros' own fault that he appeared headed for failure. He had tried to do too much too fast. Right or wrong, it also is clear Brazilians themselves were partly at fault—just as the man standing on the street corner said.

To easy-going Brazilians Quadros' tough and demanding tactics brought only resentment. Even his own men began dragging their feet. Some of his staunchest supporters turned violently against him—such as Carlos Lacerda, governor of Guanabara State.

Strongly anti-Communist, Lacerda, who inherited a virtually bankrupt state, was demanding huge federal funds to restore Rio de Janeiro, which has become run-down.

Like Lacerda, governors of 20 other states and the Federal District of Brasilia were demanding federal help which Quadros had promised them.

Faced with the stark fact that the national coffers were empty, that the government was heavily in debt and couldn't get foreign aid fast enough to keep his promises, Quadros gave in.

This was only one of a dozen nagging problems Quadros faced and finally came to realize he could not cope with.

For Brazil, Quadros' resignation solves nothing. The problems still exist, and his successor will inherit them.

Planning Attend Physicists' Meet

Dr. R.M. Helms, professor of physics at East Carolina College, will join in a conference of physicists who have a special interest in subcritical nuclear reactors being held at Gattingburg, Tenn., August 28-31.

Identified as a University Subcritical Assemblies Conference, the conference is being conducted under the auspices of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, and the Education Committee of the American Nuclear Society, in co-operation with the United States Atomic Energy Commission.

Subcritical reactors, or assemblies, consist typically of 4,000 to 5,000 pounds of pure natural uranium surrounded by either graphite or pure water contained in an inert vessel, says Dr. Helms, and the uranium is activated by neutrons emitted from a cylinder about the size of a small olive bottle.

Dr. Helms will discuss the use of an intermittent activation of subcritical reactors for instructional purposes with experts in attendance at the conference. He is interested in getting such a reactor for East Carolina College. Helms teaches atomic and nuclear physics.

Wood A Favorite For Furniture

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—Wood is the favored material of designers and manufacturers of high quality furniture, as well as with the housewife, a North Carolinian told the Alabama Chapter, Society of American Foresters, today.

The speaker, Howard J. Doyle of Statesville, council forester for the Furniture, Plywood and Veneer Council, said, "Wood offers many advantages to the furniture manufacturer which give every indication that it will continue its place of prominence in this field."

Some of these advantages, he said, are adequate renewable supply, unsurpassed beauty and character, easy working qualities and flexibility, and great stability and performance.

"Wood has proved a superior material for furniture manufacture, compared with other materials, in one or more of these ways."

Doyle said more wood will be demanded for furniture in future years, particularly high quality hardwood from which most wood furniture is made.

The forester said there is a pressing need for better management and utilization of our present hardwood forests.

"Better forestry practices will depend on more sound research and wider application of the information we already have at hand," he added.

Most Grads Are Staying In N. C.

The majority of East Carolina College graduates going into teaching are remaining in the North Carolina public school systems, I. L. (Jack) Edwards Jr., director of the College Placement Service, said today.

In a report on interviews arranged for graduates with prospective employers, Edwards pointed out that while school systems of other states are sending representatives here for East Carolina graduates, more than two-thirds of the teachers are accepting positions in North Carolina schools.

A total of 1,543 interviews for all types of employment had been arranged by the Placement Service during 1960-1961, while in the same period of 1959-60 only 1,033 interviews had been conducted with East Carolina students and graduates, for an increase of 49 percent.

Edwards noted that in the past 29 firms and industries in North Carolina and 12 from other states had requested interviews with East Carolina graduates for non-teaching positions.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The General Assembly gave overwhelming approval Friday night to a demand that France negotiate withdrawal of its troops from Tunisia.

The United States, Britain and other NATO powers abstained when the vote came. France boycotted the debate.

With a thumping vote of 66 to 0, the assembly approved the resolution sponsored by 31 Asian-African countries* and Communist Yugoslavia.

It called on France to pull back its forces from territory seized during last month's bloody battle around Bizerte naval base and to negotiate a timetable for complete troop withdrawal from Tunisia.

The United States and Britain had made clear during the week-long debate they would not take part in any implied censure of France at this crucial stage in the Berlin showdown.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson said after the vote that his delegation had abstained because it feared that the resolution might retard negotiations between France and Tunisia.

Stevenson repeated his pledge that the United States would do all in its power to bring about an early solution of the dispute through negotiations.

The balloting came in the wake of a threat by Tunisia to use force unless France pulls back troops occupying Bizerte city. The warning, delivered to the assembly by Tunisian Ambassador Mongi Slim, was given added weight by the Soviet Union's earlier pledge to aid Tunisia in its struggle with France.

Diplomats believed the landslide vote and Tunisia's warning would not go unheeded by France, which had angered the powerful Asian-African group through the assembly boycott and defiance of an earlier call by the Security Council to pull back from Bizerte.

Few delegates expected France to take direct cognizance of the assembly action, but many felt the Paris government might act quietly to ease the tension in Tunisia and even make some token withdrawals.

President Charles de Gaulle has offered to open bilateral negotiations with Tunisia outside the United Nations. He has insisted he will not pull back his troops in Bizerte city unless the Tunisian government guarantees free movement between various parts of France's sprawling Mediterranean base nearby.

The De Gaulle government was bound to be impressed by the yes votes cast by the eight members of the Brazzaville group of African countries, which maintain ties with France. They originally had tried to get the sponsors to tone down the resolution.

Support for the resolution from the five countries of the Scandinavian group, usually neutral in such disputes, also was considered significant.

'Fastest Woman In The World' Flew 842 MPH

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — "I'm the fastest woman in the world," said Jacqueline Cochran after she claimed a new women's speed record of 842.6 miles an hour.

The famed flyer, now in her early 50s, announced Friday that she had piloted a needle-nosed Northrop T38 jet to the world mark Thursday. She traveled 126.7 m.p.h. faster than the record set six years ago by her friend, Jacqueline Auriol, of France.

Miss Cochran said she plans to crack other world marks in the T38, including her 1953 record of 590.321 m.p.h. for 500 kilometers. Northrop says its T38, dubbed the Talon, is the world's first supersonic jet trainer. The model was accepted by the Air Force last March.

The aviatrix, married since 1936 to financier Floyd Odlum, also is a businesswoman and a one-time politician. A Republican, she was defeated in a 1958 bid for congress. She is chairman of the board of her own cosmetic company, Jacqueline Cochran, Inc., started in 1935.

She says she has no immediate political plans, but "one can't say what you will do two, three or four years from now."

A pilot since 1932, her flying records number about 70. In 1938 she won the Bendix Transcontinental Air Race against 14 men.

"I don't see any difference between men and women in aviation," she told newsmen Friday. She admitted she would like to ride in a Mercury space capsule.

"Just give me the opportunity," she said.

The Soviet Union may have put women into space, she said, adding: "They've put up a lot of people we don't know of. Only their successful flights are announced."

In her flight Thursday, Miss Cochran was followed in another aircraft by Air Force Col. Charles Yeager, the first man to fly faster than sound. Yeager taught her to fly the T38.

Next Wednesday, Miss Cochran said, she'll cut in the T38's afterburners and roar over this desert test center in quest of a new record for 1,000 kilometers.

Soldiers' Wives Have Organized

MANNHEIM, Germany (AP)—Some 300 women are working together here to solve the problems that result when the head of the family suddenly leaves home.

They are the wives left behind when the 1,500 members of the 1st Battle Group, 18th Infantry, pulled out on short notice last weekend to reinforce the U.S. garrison in Berlin.

"Are we going to Berlin too? What happens to us now? When can we expect to see our husbands again?" Those are the questions they ask, and for the time being there is no answer.

The women have organized to help each other. An information center has been set up to handle both routine inquiries and special tasks.

At a meeting of the wives Thursday, Mrs. Glover S. Johns, wife of the commanding colonel, told the women not to add to the men's burdens.

"We must not worry them by writing the latest rumors we hear," she said. "We must keep their morale high through our actions and our telephone calls and letters."

Tax Suits Filed On Entertainers

Comedian Ernie Kovacs and his wife, Edith Adams, for $13,401; singer Billy Eckstine and his wife, Carole, $16,099; comedian Ken Murray and his wife, Betty, $7,234; comedienne Marie Wilson, and her husband, Robert Fallon, $4,130; accordionist Dick Contino and his wife, Leigh, $1,745; music director Max Steiner and his wife, Leonett, $22,386.

A Western Historical Novel The BURNWOOD MEN

Colly Devoe swore bitterly as he took a last look at the corpse of Clip O'Boyle. He motioned to Tam Barrie and they spurred their horses up the trail.

"We can't do a thing fer Clip," Colly said. "But we kin save our own lives. Let's git out before they flank us."

The rifles had fired from the Fort Benton side. So they turned south and west, into the long breaks, caring little for direction, concentrating on distance. Several miles of broken country lay behind them when Colly pulled his tired horse to a halt on the top of a ridge. Tam reined up beside him.

Their back trail lay empty. But far back, where the river glistened at a bend, a thin haze of blue smoke plumed up and away on the wind that would be the pyre of Clip O'Boyle. Tam knew. The killers had put the torch to the cabin. Tam leaned forward, palms on the saddle horns. "The devils! That was close, Colly. How much trun did O'Boyle talk?"

"One part Irish brag, three, four parts truth, I'd judge. What he said fits. Explains why Pierre La-Croix is so thick with Strike. La-Croix is an ambitious man, though he is truly on the side of the Metis. I'll bet Pierre thinks he is outsmarting Clee Strike, using him fer his own ends. Tam, if he is he'll be almighty sorry. Strike's too big fer him."

"And too ruthless. O'Boyle must have been on the inside, or he wouldn't have been gunned down. Nor did they aim to let us get away, either." He shivered a little. "Wonder who they were?"

"A couple of Strike's bully boys," Colly said. "Maybe Lisbon Frank and another. Lucky the one who was using the 45-70 was such a poor shot. That miss warned us. The other, the one that pumped the exter 44-40 slugs into pore Clip, he would have shot us inter doll rags, given a second or two. He kin shoot."

Tam shook his head. "Colly, I've been scared to death from the day I came into Montana Territory. I'm getting more scared by the minute. But scared or not, this plan of Strike's must be broken up. The Metis can't stand up against the armed might of the British Empire for long and that's what it would come to, sooner or later. I don't care about Pierre LaCroix, but I like these burnwood people. I would hate to see these good men die trying to make good Strike's crazy dreams of empire."

"I'm with ye," Devoe said, spitting into the parched earth. "But you tell me how to stop it."

"The sheriff? The U.S. Marshal?"

"They are good men, and brave. But Strike has enough men to eat both of 'em alive, together with any posse they might gather."

"That leaves the Army."

Colly Devoe frowned. "You ever deal with the Army, Tam? Clee Strike could git to be king of Canada and Borneo and Timbuktu, by the time the Army got done sending telegrams to Fort Koenig and Fort Snelling and Wash'n'ton and all the way back again, tryin' to git a little live ammunition to shoot at the renegades. Tam, if Sittin' Bull ever busts back across the border and his braves cut them telegraph wires, the Army will bog down like a freight hitch in quicksand."

"Still, it looks like our only chance," Tam said. "I'd like to talk to the commanding officer at Fort Shaw."

"S'posen he was on Clee Strike's payroll?"

Tam was aghast. Would Strike dare bribe an Army officer? "Strike will dare anything. Them lads in blue is paid for. Poor Tam. The life is hard and advancement don't amount to shucks in the peacetime Army. And if this same man honestly believed the U. S. had a good claim to all the land from here plumb to Alaska, mebbe he wouldn't feel wrong to take money fer helpin' makin' it a fact."

"But we've got to try," Tam said stubbornly.

Colly Devoe shrugged. "All right. It's better'n forty mile from here to Fort Shaw. There's a ranch on Sun River where we kin sleep, and hit Shaw in the mornin'. But promise one thing, Tam. When you talk to this officer, don't blurt out the whole story. Kinda feel him out. Or we might be left with our tails in the gate."

"I'll agree to that," Tam said, for he respected the force of Colly's logic. "Let's go."

They made their way through the broken country along the south bank of the river over the faintest of trails. The coulees were deep, some of them almost canyons by the time they hit the river. It was well past noon a wider valley. They stopped for noon-

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

This is being written from Washington City, where the motorist must navigate not only with map but also with watch, compass, calendar, telescope (to read the fine print on the traffic signs) and a good deal of sheer luck.

Between traffic jams, the talk hereabouts frequently gets around to Irving Stone's "The Agony and the Ecstasy," the new novel about Michael Angelo. This work, like Stone's earlier lives of Van Gogh and a half-dozen other notables, is carefully based upon the historical and biological data available in the records and is therefore about as authentic as a biographical novel could be.

Biography vs Fiction

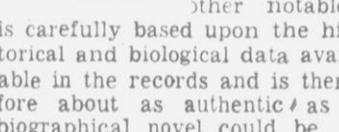

Still, biography and fiction are two different things, and reading a biographical novel is both-ersome for that reason. One is always asking himself where truth ends and the writer's imagination takes over in such a work, and that's why we'll take each type separate and straight.

Yet Washington this summer is talking about "The Agony and the Ecstasy"—and feeling much of the former and little of the latter as Russia wages its battle of nerves over Berlin.

Bull Run At Duke

One pleasing feature of great libraries is the exhibits which they present. This summer the Duke Library has had on display an impressive exhibit of Confederate letters dealing with the battle of Bull Run.

In addition to the formal reports and requests from the generals, there are fresh insights from the pens of a good many green soldiers and civilians reacting to their utterly new experience. One soldier writes that the musket balls were so thick grass "they kept my face warm," and another tells of being knocked flat by the "wind" from a cannon ball. A third, more matter of fact, recounts capturing a "Yankee gun and a sword and silver fork."

One of the few Northern items in the exhibit is a letter from a man in New York State who heatedly argues that the Yankees lost the battle because of their irreverence in starting it on Sunday.

Lincoln Exhibit

The Library of Congress is currently showing a choice exhibit of manuscripts in honor of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Lincoln's birth. It contains practically everything dealing with Lincoln's career that one could imagine. One general impression which one takes away from it is renewed admiration for Lincoln's sheer earnestness as a writer. Jargon seems to have been contrary to his nature, and these days that is most refreshing.

Poetry Consultant

It was announced the other day that the new Consultant in Poetry of the Library of Congress will be Louis Untermeyer. This is a rather surprising appointment, since Untermeyer has not been in the public eye in recent years and has always been more of an anthologist and editor of poetry than a poet. Still he has served the cause of letters well over a long period, and probably no one will quarrel with his appointment. It has even been suggested that in his new post he might go about making an anthology composed of selections from the works of earlier Consultants in Poetry.

Hollywood And The Arts

Speaking of poetry, there is an interesting short article by Anita Loos, the former scenario writer for the movies, in the current Saturday Review. Call it "Vachel, Mae, and I," this article deals with the romance between Mae Murray, the film star, and the poet Vachel Lindsay and the role of Miss Loos in fostering it by writing Miss

Rule Membership In NEA 'Illegal'

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—A Louisiana attorney general's office ruling said Friday membership in the National Education Association is illegal and any teacher associated with the group is subject to removal by the local school board.

The opinion by Asst. Atty. Gen. Scallan Walsh recommended that Louisiana teachers resign from the NEA and local school boards refrain from collecting dues from teachers and other employees of the school systems for forwarding to the NEA.

Walsh said NEA policies are in direct violation of Louisiana laws on segregation. He said a resolution adopted at the 196 NEA convention pledged continued support of the U.S. Supreme Court in carrying out its 1954 decision on school desegregation.

Murray's love letters.

Also from the Saturday Review, in John Fuller's column, is this news release from Hollywood: "One of the exhibits being sought for the new Motion Picture Museum is the torn T-shirt worn by Marlon Brando in 'A Streetcar Named Desire.'"
