Algerian Rebels Replace Leader, Vow Increased Armed Action

Reaffirm Negotiated Settlement Possible, But Talk Military Measures

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP)—The new Algerian rebel leadership asserted today it will bolster military action against French rule in Algeria, but at the same time reaffirmed that a negotiated solution to the rebellion is still possible.

The statement followed Sunday's announcement of a shuffle in the rebel provisional government, shelving moderate Premier Ferhat Abbas, 62, and replacing him with Ben Youssef ben Khedda, 41.

A communique issued at rebel headquarters here today said: "The decisions of the CNRA dealt principally with the reinforcement of the action of the national liberation army and the mobilization of the Algerian masses."

The CNRA "reaffirmed that a solution is possible within the fundamental principles safeguarding the territorial integrity of the Algerian territory, including the Sahara."

Recent peace talks with the French broke down largely on French insistence that the oil-rich Sahara is not part of Algeria.

The rebel statement today "underlined the importance of material, political and diplomatic support from the Socialist countries and the countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America."

Named as foreign minister in the reshuffle was Saad Dahleb, 42, who took part in the unsuccessful peace talks with France.

The government's Tunis headquarters announced the shakeup in a communique which said Ben Khedda would go as premier to Cairo for a meeting of chiefs of state of the Casablanca group of African countries, then head Algeria's delegation to the conference of nonaligned countries at Belgrade beginning Friday.

The communique made no mention of Abbas. Observers believe he was dumped because his policy of negotiations with France had failed.

"We are becoming convinced that the only way to carry our fight until the final victory," a rebel official said recently, "is to win Africa as at war against colonialism. This is no time for compromise. Our war will end when France is swept out of North Africa."

Tobacco Markets Look For Heavy Sales Today

Tobacco markets in Greenville and Farmville today anticipated heavy volumes as the second week of the auction season opened.

Quality appeared good this morning as buyers bid $73 per hundredweight consistently. Lugs, primings and a heavier volume of leaf grades dominated the floors today.

Planning Funds

Planning funds for 225 new low-rent homes to be built in Greenville have been authorized by the Public Housing Administration for the Housing Authority of the city of Greenville.

Rep. Herbert C. Bonner said he had been informed of this by Public Housing Commissioner Marie C. McGuire.

Twenty-five of the homes are scheduled to be designed and built specifically for the elderly. Under a preliminary loan contract to be signed as quickly as possible with the city housing authority, PHA will make planning loan of $38,750.

This will not be an annual contributions contract, but a planning loan agreement that will in all likelihood culminate in such a contract. A workable program to end slum and blight in Greenville has previously been approved.

Localities with approved, workable programs are eligible to apply for various types of federal assistance in carrying out their civic improvement campaigns.

This program must be approved by the PHA, and upon authorization by HHPA will serve as a basis for an annual contributions contract between PHA and Housing Authority.

East Germans Are Demanding Role In Future Parleys

BERLIN (AP)—East German Communists today demanded a voice in any East-West talks on Germany and said the subject of such talks could only be the conclusion of a peace treaty.

Neues Deutschland, organ of the East German Communist party, said in a front-page editorial: "It should be clear that negotiations about the German problems without the (East) German Democratic Republic are unthinkable."

The editorial said it should be clear now to everybody—after the slamming down of the Iron Curtain through Berlin—that East-West talks are inevitable.

Neues Deutschland said that if a separate peace treaty is signed with East Germany—as Soviet Premier Khrushchev has promised to do by the end of the year—all nations who want to use the land and air links between West Germany and West Berlin will have to make bilateral agreements on the subject with East Germany.

"Nobody should have any doubt, there will have to be bilateral talks and bilateral agreements on access to West Berlin," the paper said.

It added: "We are prepared to give any necessary guarantee that rightly can be expected from us against any violation of the free city status of West Berlin."

The Communist paper added, however, that the Red regime would demand "guarantees for the undisturbed peaceful life of our (East German) citizens, guarantees that West Berlin won't be turned into a center of subversion against the peaceful construction of socialism in our republic."

The Western Allies have always refused to negotiate with the East German government, contending that it was imposed illegally by the Soviets and is kept in power by the Red army.

The United States, Britain and France also contend that their rights in Berlin and their routes of access to the city were obtained by conquest in the war and can be subjects of negotiations only with the Soviet Union.

The East German Communists charged a group of West Berlin youths crossed the East German border Sunday night and were driven back by warning shots and water cannon.

West Berlin police said a patrol cruiser in the area heard several shots but they could not confirm the border crossing.

A policeman wounded yesterday, a white couple held hostage for several hours by Negroes, 20 shots fired at a carload of white persons passing a Negro integrationist's home, and sporadic fights downtown that resulted in at least 47 arrests.

Most of those arrested were charged with inciting to riot.

The grand jury reportedly was asked to consider an indictment against Robert F. Williams, head of the county NAACP chapter, in connection with the abduction of the white couple, Mr. and Mrs. C. Bruce Stegal of nearby Marshville.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Cliff Dutton quoted the Stegals as saying they were returning home from a visit to friends in the Macedonia community north of here about 6:30 p.m. yesterday.

In the area of Williams' home, they said, an armed group of Negroes stopped their car and forced them into Williams' home, where they were bound with rope. They were quoted as saying that a heated argument broke out among the Negroes about the need for holding the Stegals.

"They almost came to blows," Dutton quoted the white couple. "They argued about whether to turn the white people loose, or to kill them."

The Stegals said Williams, who apparently was against the kidnapping, nevertheless phoned Police Chief A. A. Mauney and told him the Stegals would be shot "within 30 minutes" if the pickets were not released from jail.

When Mauney refused, the Negroes again heatedly argued among themselves before finally deciding to release the white couple.

The Stegals were quoted as saying they were taken to an abandoned house nearby and left bound and gagged for another hour before being placed in their auto and escorted out of town by two carloads of Negroes.

Dutton said the Stegals told him they were stopped by about 200 Negroes, all of them armed with such weapons as guns, knives, bricks and sawed off ax handles.

Go On Trial

Three Kinston men today pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault with intent to kill as their case in connection with the shooting of Carolina Township Constable William Crandall was called for trial just before noon.

All three men—Bruce Clark, 25; Arthur Goff, 43; and Kenneth Earl Grant, 38—pleaded guilty to charges of breaking, entering and larceny.

After hearing the men's pleas, Solicitor Robert D. Rouse Jr. proceeded to present State's evidence in the assault case.

When presiding Judge Walter J. Bone of Sanford recessed today's session until 2:30 p.m., Crandall and Pitt deputy Ralph Tyson had taken the stand for the State.

The three defendants are charged in connection with the gunning down of Crandall in an attempt to rob a supermarket in Stokes in July, 1960.

County Schools Open Aug. 30

Pitt County schools will open on Wednesday morning, with school buses in operation for the teacher-orientation day, Superintendent D. H. Conley said today.

Wednesday will see the students reporting for school at their regular time, about 8:30 a.m., and being discharged at noon. Buses will take students home on Wednesday.

Thursday will be the first full day, Conley said, with students getting out of school at the regular time in the afternoon.

Workshops are now being conducted with teachers, and supplies, materials and transportation are being arranged prior to school opening so that the schools are ready for operation, Conley stated.

Bus drivers and principals are to meet at 8:30 Tuesday morning at the county garage, he announced.

Youth Had Gun, Airliner Returns

RALEIGH (AP)—A Piedmont Airlines plane returned to the Raleigh-Durham Airport today to disembark a passenger—a young man—after a gun was discovered in his possession while the plane was in flight.

C. B. Nutt, local manager for Piedmont, said he understood the youth, who boarded the plane in Charlotte, was taken into custody after the plane returned to Raleigh-Durham Airport.

Nutt said he understood there was no violence or threat of violence aboard the aircraft.

Monroe Officials Urgently Talk Measures To Halt Race Violence

MONROE, N.C. (AP)—City officials met in urgent session again today to decide on a course of action to halt violence set off by anti-segregation picketing in this city of 10,000.

City attorney John F. Milliken met with city and district prosecutors to decide whether to seek an injunction against further picketing by mixed Negro and white youths.

"We're going to try to prevent further violence," he said. "We want to work this thing out without it (an injunction) if possible. We're not sure that a restraining order is the proper remedy."

Superior Court Judge Allen H. Gwyn, addressing the Union County grand jury, said the jury would be asked to consider the interracial situation, and said in effect that if the picketing was being done to influence the court, "I'm not going to tolerate it."

The agricultural-industrial community 24 miles east of Charlotte was outwardly calm this morning after a tense weekend that resulted in:

A policeman wounded yesterday, a white couple held hostage for several hours by Negroes, 20 shots fired at a carload of white persons passing a Negro integrationist's home, and sporadic fights downtown that resulted in at least 47 arrests.

Most of those arrested were charged with inciting to riot.

The FBI sent agents into the area today after Mayor Fred Wilson telegraphed U.S.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy saying the city had been invaded by "freedom riders" and "carpet baggers." He asked that they be "restrained by your office."

Gov. Terry Sanford ordered two dozen state troopers into the area, and supplemented the investigating force by two State Bureau of Investigation agents.

Negro and white pickets from as far away as England and Chicago have been carrying placards in downtown Monroe for several days. They handed out leaflets charging discrimination in city's recreation facilities, in hiring by local factories and saying welfare officials deprive Negroes of relief.

Sunday's melee started as the pickets were about to disband. Officer J. W. Rushing said he tried to disarm a Negro picket who then fled but turned and shot him in the hip. The wound was not serious.

Another officer, who asked not to be named, said the incident began when an English girl, Constance Lever, 20, started to get into a car with some armed Negro pickets. This officer said Rushing tried to dissuade Miss Lever from getting into the car and that James Foreman of Chicago, a Negro integration leader, tried to pull her into it. Rushing disarmed two of the Negroes but another broke away, fired at Rushing, and fled.

Albert Rorie, 17, Monroe Negro who has taken part in the picketing, was arrested on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon but he denied shooting Rushing.

Police Chief A. A. Mauney said Mr. and Mrs. G. Bruce Stegal of nearby Marshville were released unharmed Sunday night after being taken hostage. Mauney said his first word that they were held came in a telephone call from Robert Williams, Monroe Negro integration leader, who said the Stegals would be held until Negro pickets under arrest were freed.

former war minister, five army colonels and a major were detained by military authorities. Another major was being sought.

Marshal Lott, Goulart's running mate who was defeated for president by Quadros at the last national election, was picked up at his apartment after issuing an explosive statement in which he declared Gen. Denys planned Goulart's arrest if he returned to Brazil. Lott called on the people to abide by the constitution. The five army colonels and a major were picked up at Lott's place.

Brazil, a sprawling giant of 67 million people, was thrown into turmoil suddenly Friday when Quadros resigned after seven months in office. He declared he had been overwhelmed by opponents, Brazilian and foreign, of his strict economic and independent foreign policies.

His foreign policies had included talks on restoring foreign relations with the Soviet Union and refusal to take sides against Fidel Castro.

Shortly after Quadros quit, the Communist press and Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro began leveling charges that the United States played a part in the resignation.

Moscow radio said Sunday night Quadros' resignation was the result of "crude intervention by the United States in Brazil's affairs." Robert Woodward, U.S. assistant secretary of state for Latin American affairs, termed the Soviet charge absurd and said: "Our relations with the Quadros administration have been very friendly and cooperative."

Goulart Sunday night reportedly sent word to Denys: "I am returning to Brazil to fulfill my presidential duty. You fulfill yours." The message was conveyed through Brazil's ambassador to the United Nations, Francisco Santiago Dantle, who talked by phone with the vice president in Paris.

Goulart himself kept in seclusion but an aide said that the vice president "will insist on his constitutional right" to succeed Quadros and wants to get back to Brazil as quickly as possible. But a member of his party said Goulart probably would wait in Paris to confer with members of Congress expected to fly there to discuss the situation.

work of international mischief makers." The statement noted past friendly U.S. relations with Quadros, cited U.S. aid to Brazil and that Quadros had been scheduled to visit the United States in December on President Kennedy's invitation.

The Communist suggestion of a U.S. role, Woodward said, was in line with the "regular procedure of making us the whipping boy in Latin America."

In his seven months in office Quadros pursued a self-styled policy of neutralism in foreign affairs. Brazil accepted aid from the United States and signed the Alliance for Progress program under which Latin American nations would receive 320 billion in U.S. loans over a 10-year period.

Quadros also expressed friendship for the Castro regime and drew Brazil closer to association with the Soviet Union. His resignation statement Friday alluded to pressures on him from "inside and also from outside" Brazil, but did not specify any country.

Governor Avers Will Control Monroe Crisis

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Sanford declared today that the situation at Monroe "is under control, and is going to be kept under control."

"We are not going to allow outside agitators to promote violence in our state," Sanford said in a statement regarding weekend racial violence at Monroe which was climaxed Sunday night when the governor ordered in a host of state highway patrolmen to help restore order.

"We are going to put an end to it immediately," Sanford added. "Sanford declared, 'It is well known that North Carolina has no trouble from people who seek their goals through legitimate means. It is also well known that this state will not tolerate violence from anybody for any purpose.'"

The governor asserted that "the band of agitators who have descended on Monroe came at the request of an outspoken advocate of violence, a self-styled Castro who has attempted to grow a beard, who wears a beret and who carries a loaded carbine. It is significant that he has been denounced by the respected leadership of both races."

Although Sanford did not mention him by name, who was an obvious reference to Robert E. Williams, fiery Negro anti-integrationist leader at Monroe.

"Mayor Fred Wilson, the sheriff, the chief of police and the people of Monroe and Union County have acted with utmost restraint," Sanford added. "I can easily understand that their patience is being sorely tried."

Youth Arrested On Theft Count

Greenville police arrested a 16-year-old white youth, William Emerson Edwards, of Route 1, Stokes, on charges of larceny, following the theft of fender skirts from an auto in North Greenville, last night.

Police reported Edwards was charged with the theft of the fender skirts from a vehicle owned by Mrs. Evelyn Whitte Buck, 1209 North Pitt St.

Officers noted the arrest was made after talking to three persons who witnessed the 2:15 p.m. theft.

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Supreme Court, which has been in recess for several weeks, convened its fall term today.

On Tuesday, the seven justices will begin hearing appeals from the first, second, 29th and 30th judicial districts. They are to hear 18 appeals during the week.

File Breaking, Entering Charge

A 20-year-old Negro, Jap Brown of 1116 Railroad St., was taken into custody early Saturday morning by Greenville Police, after officers saw the man in a pay telephone booth at the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and 10th St.

He was charged with breaking and entering, and placed under a $300 bond for city recorders court.

Detectives working on the case said uniformed officers, Lt. M. E. Buck and Sgt. J. A. Briley observed the man in the booth while on regular patrol about 12:05 a.m. When Brown saw the policemen, investigators noted, he ran but was taken into custody after a short chase.

Police noted that there had been two other pay phones broken into earlier in the evening, one at 109 East Second St., and the second near the intersection of Washington St. and Dickinson Ave.

Brown, police said, confessed to the 1:30 a.m. break-in but denied implication in the other two robberies. Damage to the phone was estimated to be about $15.

Investigation is continuing in the other two robberies, officers noted.

Good Time To Buy Gas, As Retail Prices In City Drop

Retail gasoline prices in Greenville dropped again today to a low of 25.9 cents per gallon. Indications were that the new low would spread to most service stations in the city.

Today's drop followed a general 4-cent-per-gallon reduction that affected most Greenville village service stations last Friday.

At noon today, most stations still maintained a price of 27.9 per gallon for "regular" gas while the city's two Sun Oil Co. outlets dropped the per-gallon price on a new economy gasoline

Free-Duty Change May Make Americans Sharper Shoppers

By Tonia Schilling
PARIS—(WNS)—The drastic cut in customers duty exemptions for American tourists may make better shoppers of them.

Until September 9, tourists may bring home up to $500 worth of foreign purchases free of duty. On that day the limit falls to $100.

"This will be a big blow to European shops," antiques dealer Jean-Robert Walmser told me. "They have been doing a great business with free-spending Americans. They will feel the pinch for a long time to come. And Americans should realize that the new regulation is a blow to their economic prestige among foreigners."

But, he added, in the long-run the results might be an improvement all around, as much for European dealers as for their American customers.

"The $500 exemption was a nifty such a terribly important thing in itself," he said, "but it created a free-spending atmosphere. Tourists felt compelled to spend right up to the limit and if they didn't they felt they were losing money. Very often as a result they wound up spending beyond the limit."

"In addition, they frequently bought items they didn't really want or they bought three of each when one would have been plenty. They didn't regard each purchase carefully, they didn't inquire closely into quality, they made impulsive purchases — these are all things which European customers ordinarily don't ever do."

"Shopkeepers over here were astonished. Word quickly got around that one could sell an American anything. This, of course, only made matters worse. Standards and ethics quickly declined."

But, Walmser continued, there was a reverse side to this coin which has been showing up more and more in recent years. When the American tourist got home—exemption or no exemption—the realization dawned on him that he had been "taken" or, at least, that he hadn't gotten real value for his money.

"American tourists consequently have become increasingly wary during the past couple of years of buying anything at all," he said. "Some had been cheated on one or more occasions. Others had received word-of-mouth warning. I have had many American visitors tell me that they liked to travel in Europe but bought as little as possible there nowadays."

The lowering of the customs exemption may help swing the pendulum the other way just in time, he thinks. It will obviously make the spending American more cagey and cautious about what he puts his money on.

"But, even more," he declared, "it is going to make the European seller more scrupulous about what he offers. This, in turn, will restore the Americans' confidence in European integrity and make them more willing to spend than they might otherwise be, whatever the customs exemption."

Why the difference? In addition to the standard explanation that children who are rebuffed by their parents withdraw from later social contacts, Dr. Schooler thinks this may also be because the mothers of such children are older, and there may be a link between the mother's increasing age and incidence of schizophrenia.

The situation is similar for the alcoholic who seeks to drown his problems in liquor, Dr. Schooler said. Other researchers, she added, have found that alcoholics are "disproportionately drawn from later birth ranks."

Interestingly, older brothers and sisters cannot apparently serve as stand-ins for their parents when the little ones are troubled, Dr. Schooler said.

"Later-born subjects, when anxious, did not particularly wish to be with other people," she reported.

Her conclusions were based on a study at Springfield State Hospital in Maryland which showed that 71 out of 120 schizophrenic patients were younger children in their families.

These studies suggested to Dr. Schooler that there is a relationship between birth order and the isolation that characterizes many schizophrenic patients.

Dr. Schooler classified the patients at the mental hospital according to birth order, showing whether they belonged to the older or younger half of the offspring in their families.

Country Doctor's Hospital Serves Poor Mountain Folk

WNS correspondent Marion Mill Premeringer, a well known author and lecturer, was guest of honor at the dedication of the first wing of the Albert Schweitzer Memorial Hospital in the mountains of North Carolina. She herself gave up a gay cafe-society life ten years ago to devote much of her time to Dr. Albert Schweitzer's leper colony in equatorial Africa. Each year since she has lived part of the year in a simple hut with chicken-wire walls in the leper village in Gabon.

By MARION PREMERINGER Women's News Service

BALSAM GROVE, N. C.—(WNS)—In this isolated little community in the Blue Ridge Mountains, almost as cut off from the outside world as the Congo, a country doctor named Edward Gaine Cannon, inspired by the work of Albert Schweitzer, is attempting to build a hospital. In deference to his inspiration it will be called the Albert Schweitzer Memorial Hospital.

Balsam Grove is a typical Appalachian community, covered with pine, oak, azalea, mountain laurel, rhododendron and beautiful balsam. The people are poor; some incomes are as low as $300 a year.

But in one way it is particularly distinguished, Albert Schweitzer's spirit reigns here. Dr. Cannon is probably the only doctor in the world who is paid with rocks for bringing a child into the world. The rocks are used to build the hospital, which, though only one wing is finished, is already a visible part of the mountain community.

I tried to draw out this soft-spoken 60-year-old man, but he is not inclined to talk about himself. But the local people do it for him, and with affection and awe.

"He is the closest man to Christ," one told me. "He helps anybody, whether you have a cent or not," said another.

Dr. Cannon is unassuming, almost self-effacing. He is disturbed by suffering. In everything he does he practices the philosophy of reverence for life conceived by his idol, Dr. Schweitzer. His approach to his patients is very much like Dr. Schweitzer's in the latter's own hospital in Lambarene in the former French Congo.

"We will not turn anyone away," he told me. "That's my principle, on which my hospital is built."

Dr. Cannon first came to Balsam Grove in 1953, to rest. On the first Sunday of his stay he saw 92 patients. He realized that the community was in desperate need of medical care.

He found out that Sunday is the day that people come for treatment because on that day they don't have to work. He sees 70 patients on an average Sunday; 116 is the record.

"The people are of good stock," Dr. Cannon said. "Even if they are sick during the whole week, they work through and wait till Sunday to see me."

Dr. Cannon bought the land on which the hospital is located a few years ago. He had already finished a hospital in Pickens, S. C., in memory of his father, a revered general practitioner who is still talked about by the mountain people as if he were alive.

It is a saga how the old doctor, who visited his patients on horseback, delivered a baby two days before his death at the age of 83, carried his doctor's satchel—practically a little pharmacy—tucked on the saddle as he rode into the mountains with no roads in snow and rain.

The new hospital is being built of smooth, flat river rock. The doctor said, "Ever since we started holding clinic in Balsam Grove, we ask each patient to bring two good-sized rocks to pay for the visits. Pretty soon we had a big pile of rocks to build with."

Dr. Cannon operates a clean but too small clinic in a small house in Balsam Grove. He will continue to work here until the hospital is built and equipped. The hospital will be a public center, it will belong to the people of the community, who put in 38,000 hours of free labor towards its construction between 1955 and 1961.

The hospital will serve between 8,000 and 10,000 poor mountain people in the remote parts of the mountains of three counties.

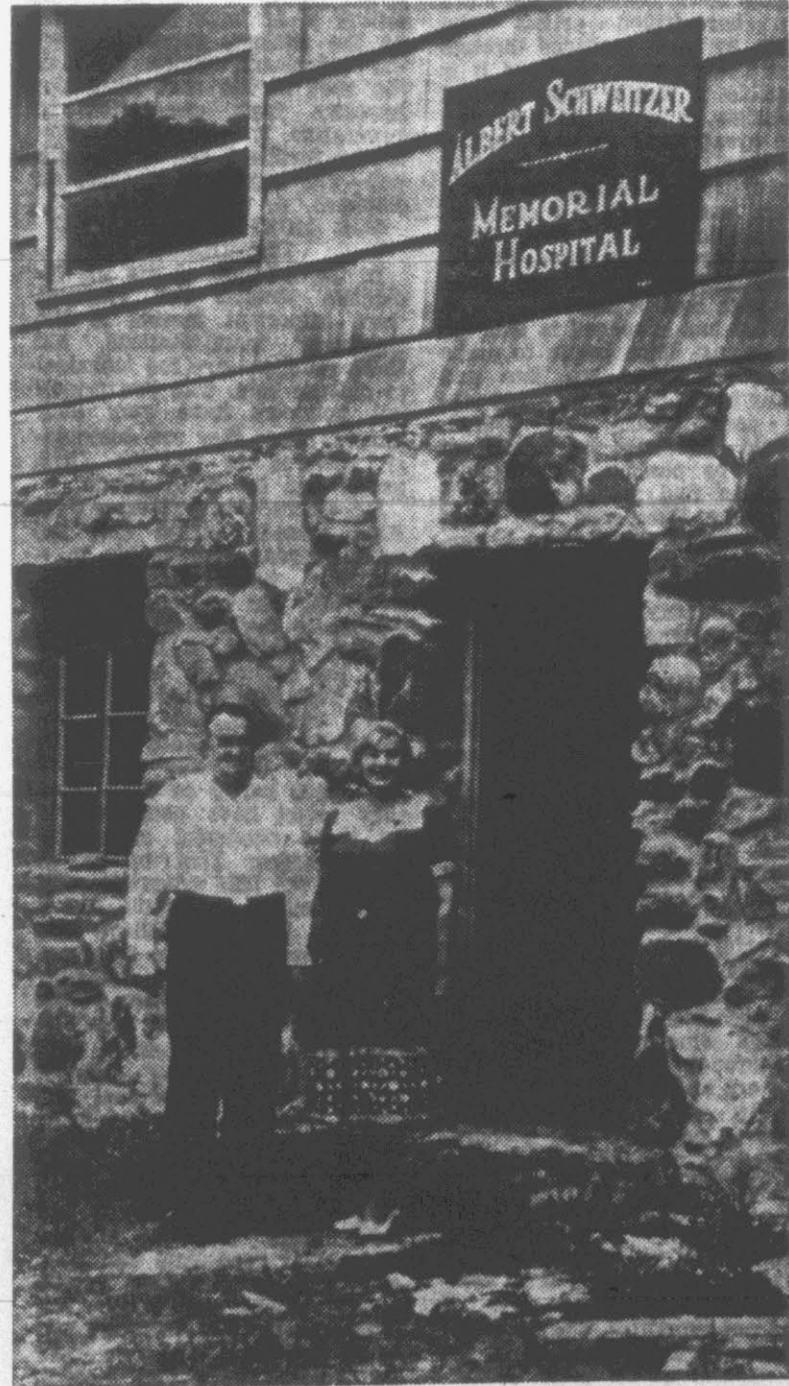

Yod can only contact Dr. Cannon in Balsam Grove by a Forestry Service telephone, or you can call the mother of his nurse, who then gives him the news by two-way radio. Still, in any case of emergency, "old Doc Cannon" is there; no one knows how.

It's a legend now how during the stormy March of 1960, Dr. Cannon was on his way to set a mountain patient's broken leg.

On the road he met a woman who was walking in the terrible cold towards his small clinic. She was about to give birth to a child.

In few minutes Dr. Cannon talked to her, delivered the baby by the side of the road, put the woman and infant in his jeep, covered them with his own coat and went on to set the leg.

It is hard to get a doctor to go up into the mountains in the night. There are mountain paths

By MAIDRED MORRIS MAKING JAMS AND JELLIES Emphasis has been placed on making jams and jellies recently in the Lenoir County Home Demonstration Clubs. Miss Marie Penue, home economics agent, reports they are encouraging the women to can the jelly stock now while they are busy and make the jelly when needed.

At the training meeting, the leaders had an opportunity to judge the appearance, texture and flavor of poor and high quality jelly.

DETAIL FINISHES GIVE THE READY-MADE LOOK
"Detail trims such as tucks, hemstitching, smocking, buttonholes, scallops and cord binding as well as trims you buy can give personal touches to hand-made garments," reports Miss Edith Hinshaw, home economics agent in Rowan County.

Home seamstresses recently learned to cut a slip-over sweater down the front and trim it plus many other money saving tricks.

SIMPLE WIRING OF LAMPS
Do you call on your husband often to wire plugs and sockets? Homemakers in Cabarrus County recently assembled a lamp receiving information and training on simple wiring.

Mrs. Sara Stewart, home economics agent, says the women learned to wire plugs and sockets and also to make a lamp and shade.

Fifty-eight lamps were made during the workshop.

RECORD KEEPING PAYS
Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Saunders are sure of the profits they make from their hatching egg flock of hens because they keep good records. Mrs. Elsie Edwards, assistant home economics agent, says that high labor costs are kept at a minimum since they do most of the work themselves.

Mrs. Edwards says that Mrs. Saunders is not only a full-time homemaker but also helps with the poultry operation.

GOD MANAGEMENT PRACTICES
"Which is most valuable to you as homemakers — time, energy or money? In discussing how to be a better buyer in Henderson County, the club women found how much money they would have if they practiced good money management."

Mrs. Peggie Davis, assistant home economics agent, pointed out that they should check their merchandise as well as the manufacturers and dealers; they should be wary of bargains and hard to believe prices and sales; and that they should receive and understand guarantees, sales sheets and information on care and use of the product.

CREDITS CLUB WORK WITH SUCCESS
Mrs. W. L. McClamrock of Durham County credits Home Demonstration Club work with many of her homemaking skills. At 80 years of age, Mrs. McClamrock is the oldest active member in the county.

Miss Martha Edmondson, home economics agent, says Mrs. McClamrock is a charter member of the Pineland Home Demonstration Club.

which not even a jeep can climb. Dr. Cannon told me, with great simplicity, "we delivered 30 babies in the last 30 days; that's about average. I work day and night. I am happy with every dollar I get. One dollar can buy four cinder blocks, and it will help greatly to achieve my dream."

Dr. Schweitzer wrote to him, "How courageous you are to build a hospital and how happy I am that you are naming it for me. I know how many difficulties it encounters."

"Anyone who proposes to do good must not expect people to roll stones out of his way, but must accept his fate calmly, if they will more stones upon it."

Dr. Cannon smiled as he showed me the letter. "I accept my fate calmly," he said. Because I know, with God's help and man's help such dreams come true."

Stuffed Veal Is Fit For A Gourmet
By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

Veal Cutlet goes fancy when it's stuffed. So if you'd enjoy a made-in-a-skillet meat to serve to company, here's your dish.

The pan gravy that accompanies this veal is delectable; don't neglect to make it according to the recipe directions. Garnish, too, as suggested: the dollop of sour cream with its crimson pimiento topping looks as pretty as can be and adds a real taste filip.

What to serve with this veal? Southern friends of ours insist on hot biscuit. We say have hot biscuit if you like, but hot buttered rice is a must. It won't hurt the rice a bit if you throw a handful of silvered toasted almonds into it. After all, company's coming. Any such green vegetable as snap beans, green peas, broccoli or cooked green celery will make another fine partner for the meat.

When we tried this veal dish in my test kitchen, there was a portion left over. Next day I reheated it and found it extra good.

Withla Council Meets At Woman's Club Tuesday
Members of Withla Council No. 42, Degree of Pochontas, met at the Woman's Club for their meeting Tuesday evening.

After ritualistic opening, seating of officers in March formation, presentation of American flag and salutation, the opening ode was sung and routine business dispensed with. A welcome was given one of the local Council's members, Mrs. Adele Little, who lives in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Pochontas Ollie Blythe presided over the Adoption ceremony and Mrs. Nancy Boyd received the degree of the Order. Nina Joyner gave a program of scripture and prayer.

After ritualistic closing Pochontas Blythe invited everyone to be seated for the Members Birthday Party.

Tables covered with white cloths were placed about the club room. On each table was a calendar for a month of the year and an arrangement of objects suitable to the month. Members found their tables according to the month of their birth. After everyone had found their month, a fitting sonnet was read to each month's group. Each group then planned and carried out a stunt for their month.

Ruby Hodges and her committee invited everyone into the parlor where the table was overlaid with a birthday cloth and all birthday plates, cups and napkins. Individual birthday cakes with candles, lime ice and nuts were served and everyone sang "Happy Birthday" to everyone.

CAB Recognizes 'Logical Approach'

Eastern Carolina communities which have sought successfully for years to find a workable solution to the area air facility problem should take a good look at the recent ruling of the Civil Aeronautics Board in connection with major service at the Greensboro and Winston-Salem airports.

The CAB has authorized both Eastern and United Air Lines to use one airport in serving the two major cities on three of their routes. Prior to the new CAB ruling the two airlines had been serving both Friendship Airport at Greensboro and Smith-Reynolds Airport at Winston-Salem on the flights. It is also significant that the CAB said that with the new arrangement—both cities being served by a single airport—a new flight will be gained by the communities, along with prospects for low-cost coach service "and the assurance ultimately of modern jet service."

In Eastern Carolina, where there are many small cities in a relatively small area, it has been difficult to obtain adequate commercial service with each community fighting the other for the limited service which is available. Furthermore, efforts to bring about a joint program to acquire air service at a central location has been unsuccessful except for the current joint undertaking of Greenville and Wilson, whose joint application for service is now awaiting final certification by the CAB.

The cities in this area of the state cannot begin to compare in size with Greensboro and Winston-Salem, two of the largest cities in North Carolina. And this latest ruling by the CAB indicates clearly that the Aeronautics Board recognizes there are advantages to these two major cities being served from one airport rather than from two on some major flights.

In the light of this CAB ruling, it would appear wise for the communities of Eastern Carolina to reappraise their individual situations with regard to obtaining adequate air service for themselves and for the area as a whole. If cities the size of Greensboro and Winston-Salem can obtain better air service on a joint basis, it would seem that it is the logical approach for Eastern Carolina communities. It is also important that the attitude of the CAB be considered when it pointed out that "All factors considered, we are satisfied that the net result (of both cities being served from one airport on the flights involved) will be an improvement rather than an impairment, of service."

It would appear, therefore, that the possibilities of Eastern Carolina's obtaining adequate commercial air service would be better in the future if the communities enter into a joint effort rather than to continue to fight among themselves for the limited amount of commercial air service which so far has been made available in this area.

First Delivery Of Session Laws

By LYNN NISBET

SESSION LAWS Secretary of State Thad Eure received from the printer and delivered to Governor Terry Sanford the first copy of the Session Laws of 1961 just exactly nine weeks after the General Assembly adjourned. Two books were received last Thursday. One went to the Governor's office, the other to the Attorney General. The printers promised delivery of 400 or more over the weekend with others to follow shortly. The books are distributed free to judges, solicitors and other officials, including members of the Legislature. Copies are available to the public at a price not to exceed 10 per cent above actual printing cost. The 1961 volume is somewhat larger than the 1959 book, despite the fewer number of laws enacted. The price has not been determined, but it will be between $9 and $10. Delivery of the Session Laws within nine weeks is almost a record. The prompt delivery was made possible by a change in the indexing system adopted several years ago. Statutes are now indexed by chapter number instead of page number. The change enabled the indexing to move along with the legislative action, and when the last bill was ratified it became the last chapter in the book—and the indexing work was completed.

COLLECTOR — Former Senator Cutler Moore of Robeson county was sworn in as collector of customs for the Wilmington district last Thursday. The oath was administered by the retiring collector, Josiah A. Maulsby as his final official act. As soon as Moore had taken the oath Maulsby was out of office. One instance where a man actually did talk himself out of a job.

SPEAKERSHIP — Reps. Clifton Blue of Moore and Tom Woodard of Wilson are pepping up their campaigns for Speaker of the 1963 House of Representatives, the members of which will not be nominated until nearly six months from now and will not be elected until November of next year.

There will be a total maximum possibility of 120 votes to be cast for Speaker, including the candidates. Because action of the Democratic caucus is controlling, chances are the votes which have value will not exceed 110, probably not more than 104. That means 53 to 56 votes will assure victory. Blue presently claims a minimum of 8-9, and Woodard claims "enough to win."

These claims and the commitments upon which they are based do not mean much, except for a bit of political propaganda value. These counts are of members in the 1961 House, and not a single one of them will have a vote for the next Speaker by reason of that membership. They must be re-elected next year in order to vote for Speaker next time.

It is already certain that at least half a dozen members of the 1961 House will not be back, regardless of election hazards. One member from Cabarrus and one from Pitt will be "bumped off" by reapportionment. Rep. Ike Andrews of Chatham has been appointed solicitor or a new 10-A district; Rep. John McLaughlin of Iredell has been named to the Industrial Commission, and Rep. D.G. Bell of Carteret has been placed on the Highway Commission. Rep. Roger Jackson of Hertford is set for the public relations post in the Highway Department, and Rep. Charles Cohoon of Tyrrell is in the works for a good salary position in State Government.

OTHERS—A number of other members stated about the time the 1961 session adjourned that they would not seek re-election. That happens every two years, and then along about this time of year, when talk about probable candidates is the next primary is just beginning to warm up, many of them change their minds—and by filling time for the primary will have decided to try again. Some of the retirement announcements this year are respected, because they are predicated on such obvious reasons of health and economic as to demand respect.

All of which means that the 105 Democrats in the 1961 House perhaps not more than 75 will be back to vote in 1963. Yet the current claims of support by the early-bird candidates for Speaker are based on commitments by the 105 who were in the 1961 House.

TIMELY? — Despite all these recognized discrepancies and hazards, the boys may be smart in organizing their campaigns for Speaker this far in advance. There will be no statewide candidates in the primary next year except one U.S. Senator (Ervin) and two Supreme Court Justices (Bobbitt and Rodman).

There will be a sort of "fruit basket turnover" situation with respect to nomination and election of members of the Congress in three or four districts, where lines were changed by the 1961 districting act. For most part, however, the 1962 primary and election will be concerned with the Legislature and the county court house officers. That affords opportunity for partisans of candidates for Speaker to move into the several counties and help candidates for the House who are known to be favorable to their choice for Speaker. And that means, whether good or bad, there may be more "outside" influence in county elections than ever before.

New Department Has Huge N. C. Potential

The new department of food science and processing that has been established in the State College of Agriculture could provide a multi-million dollar boost to the agricultural and business economy of the state in future years by enabling North Carolina to make better use of what it can produce.

A portion of the work of this new department will be devoted to finding new uses for foods which North Carolina produces and new means of processing them for consumer use.

For years North Carolina has recognized that a large portion of its agricultural products leave the state as raw materials that go to plants in other states for packaging or processing. The state has likewise recognized that North Carolinians are missing out on a potential additional income of many millions of dollars a year because only a small percentage of the food which is produced on the farms of this state is likewise processed in the state.

In recent years several processing plants have been established in various agricultural sections of the state to process particular commodities. Where these plants have moved into agricultural regions they have proved an asset not only by providing industrial jobs to supplement those of agriculture, but they have likewise provided new markets for farm commodities.

By devoting greater attention to food science and processing, the School of Agriculture at State College will be able to provide the agricultural sections of the state with considerable information that will provide new sources of income for farmers and at the same time provide new industrial possibilities for agricultural areas.

For too many years North Carolina has lagged behind other states in processing the products of its agricultural regions. This new department at State College will provide the state with at least one additional means of speeding up the development of the industry of food processing within the state.

Business Better Week By Week

By RALPH ROBEY

It is becoming rather repetitious to report on good business news but week by week it comes along and it is all important. Among the latest items is the report of the Federal Reserve on production. The Federal Reserve is the only organization which compiles overall statistics each month on the volume of production. It is presented by means of an index which uses 1957 as an index to 100, and since the reports to the Board are in physical units a change of prices does not affect the index. In January 1960 this index was 111, and that reflected to some degree the effects of the long steel strike. For the next six months the figure remained at only one or two points below that, and in July was 110. Then came a decline which gradually brought the index down to 102 in February of this year. That was the low of the recession.

The figure which has just been announced is for July and it is 112, or one point above the previous high. This means that in five months, in so far as production is involved, the entire recession has been overcome. That is an amazing record, and better than in any other post-war recovery. Equally impressive is the fact that the improvement has been almost completely across the list of industries included in the index. In some instances the increase was small, as is to be expected but a rise is significant no matter how slight it may be. For the index as a whole the July figure was 2 percent above June, and 2 1/2 percent above the plateau in the first half of 1960.

It also has just been announced that personal income in July made a new high record of $42.8 billion. This includes $21.8 billion of a special government life insurance dividend to veterans, but even without this the total is $2 billion above June. This special dividend was made possible because the death date among this group continues to be lower than the basis upon which the premiums were calculated. Some of the details in this personal income report are worth noting. Rental income was the same as in the preceding two months, but lower than in the corresponding period of 1960. Dividends were identical with June, and slightly above a year earlier. Personal interest revealed a rise of $100 million over June, and that month had shown the same increase over May. Business and professional proprietors had an increase of $200 million, which followed a rise of half that amount from May to June. All of this together amounts to only $300 million. In other words, the substantial proportion of the growth of personal income was in wage and salary disbursements. The total of these alone amounted to $282.5 billion, or some two-thirds of the personal income of the nation. No longer is there any legitimate basis for maintaining that it is a shortage of consumer buying power which is holding up recovery.

But President Kennedy is not satisfied with the rate of business improvement. This is shown by his order to Secretary of Commerce Hedges a few days ago to release ahead of schedule another large amount of money to the states for the purpose of speeding up road building. It also is shown by his almost continuous requests to the Congress for more and more money for practically everything under the sun. When such increases are for the military there may be some justification for them, but the majority of the others represent extravagance and waste to a greater or lesser degree. With recovery going along as well as it is, it is most unfortunate that a more conservative government spending attitude is not adopted by the Congress.

Motor Trouble

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Genius Does Not Bargain

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The strike of the Metropolitan Opera musicians may be settled before this is printed, but the subject requires discussion just the same. The musicians of the Metropolitan opera have demanded an increase of from $170 to $248 a week, with a decrease of performances from seven to six weekly. This demand was made despite the fact that the total deficit of the Opera last year was $840,000. If business is business when there is a deficit of this magnitude the place must sooner or later close down.

It can be argued that if a man works on a job he is entitled to the pay he can get despite deficits. But that does not hold for an opera company which always produces a deficit. As a matter of fact, many of the subscribers, in addition to paying for their seats, make a contribution to cut down the deficit. This cannot go on forever.

A musician does not earn as much as many truck drivers, but then he has freedom of choice. He can stop playing the bassoon and get a job as a truck driver and join Mr. Hoffa's union.

This characteristic of a free society, namely, that a man chooses his own way of life and suffers the consequences of his choice, is too often forgotten these days. All fiddlers start out more or less the same but one becomes a Kreisler or an Elman and another plays sweet music in a dark restaurant. All sorts of factors enter into this one fact in life. Toscanini played a cello, Montoux played a violin; Kussevitzy played a bass fiddle—but these men became great conductors, among the greatest of all time. Who can explain why Mozart could play the piano at three years of age or that Beethoven could compose the world's most glorious music in spite of being deaf?

Those who play in the Metropolitan Orchestra must be excellent musicians just as those who sing in the chorus possess fine quality but there was only one Caruso, one Farrar, one Schuman-Heink, only one Chaliapin. There are no choruses of such voices or of such actors.

The Metropolitan is not a burlesque show and cannot find artists in the honky-tonks. Its stars are difficult to discover. It is true that sometimes a wonder is found in a Rumanian restaurant or in a movie house but this happens so rarely that it makes news. Generally the stars are hard-drilled artists who come by their positions through Herculean labors. Whereas it is possible to find a dozen second violinists, it is not easy to find one great tenor or one glorious baritone. This takes constant searching and seeking and among opera houses there is a constant, competition for the best. European opera houses have government subsidies which help cover the high cost of stars.

Other Editors Saying Creating An Image

(Washington Daily News)

Observers are now freely predicting that Charles R. Jonas, North Carolina's only Republican congressman, and Paul Kitchen, Democratic congressman from North Carolina's Eighth district, will tangle in a real knock down drag out political battle next Spring.

This fight is seen because in redistricting in North Carolina, Mr. Jonas, from the present Tenth district, has been put into the same district with Mr. Kitchen, present Eighth district congressman. North Carolina loses a congressman on the basis of the census, and this redistricting was mandatory.

Somehow an image is being created in regard to Mr. Jonas. Perhaps the Democratic over North Carolina are more guilty of giving the image a measure of credence than are the Republicans.

Many political observers have talked from time to time of making a martyr out of Mr. Jonas. Now these same observers are saying that Mr. Jonas has everything to gain and very little to lose in a congressional political race.

They reason it this way. If he runs against Mr. Kitchen and is victorious, the Republicans can point with pride to the victory and say "I told you so." Then Mr. Jonas will definitely be a man to deal with in the next gubernatorial race two years hence. He will have shown definitely his vote-getting ability, and he will have become a man of destiny over North Carolina.

On the other hand if he is defeated by Mr. Kitchen, he can point to the redistricting plan as one designed to get him out. He can claim that he was not defeated at the polls but at the hands of the district makers. In this event, it is reasoned that he has thus actually become that martyr about which so much has been heard. And as a martyr he would be a most formidable candidate for governor in 1964.

With such talk going on, it would appear that he stands in the limelight, win or lose. Of course it may not be that simple, but in politics observers seem to have a way of rationalizing any given situation, regardless of how difficult that situation might be at times.

What has happened is that the musicians' union began to make its compromises too late and many of the best stars made other commitments. Of course, should the strike be settled, it might be possible for Rudolph Bing to find young Americans or young Europeans who could step forward. It might be a wonderful opportunity for a young man or young woman.

Last Sunday, I heard such a baritone who sang Berlioz's "Romeo et Juliette" at Tanglewood. You may recall that the very end of this operatic symphony deals with the reconciliation of the two quarrelsome households. It is such music as can only come from Heaven and Donald Gramm, the baritone, sang like an angel. Something happened to that audience of several thousand. During the performance, the silence was as powerful as the music and when Charles Munch put down his baton, the huge audience rose as one man, and cheered as though somehow they had broken through all the miseries of this era and had found the road to an armistice and peace. True an orchestra and a chorus helped to produce this glorious music, but certain artists stood out because art is individual. I must have gone to many hundreds of concerts in my day but I never encountered an emotional experience like this. It was not superb; it was grandiose and one felt small as before. (Continued on page five)

When we look at the last election figures and see that in the race for governor, a total of about $1,349,000 votes was cast. Of this amount Terry Sanford beat a relatively unknown Republican by only 121,000 votes. Actually Robert L. Gavin polled about 614,000 votes, while Mr. Sanford polled about 735,000 votes.

Mr. Jonas is far better known today than is Mr. Gavin. People have a greater respect for his ability and leadership.

Mr. Jonas would still be a strong contender regardless of redistricting. But still the image is being formed of a man who gains either way.

Look-Aheads In Business World

By ELMER ROESSNER

Steel production will rise, despite the possibility of an auto strike. The reason is that other industries, including many with new defense contracts, are placing orders. While the coming rise in steel output will be better if there is no strike, it will be good even if the United Auto Workers lay down their tools.

Here are more look-aheads in business:

Higher cement prices: Several manufacturers have indicated they will increase prices in September because costs have risen faster than prices, and if they do other companies will follow quickly. A general rise will affect prices of homes, highways, apartments, office buildings, factories and almost all other structures, including silos.

"V" in 10 years: The chances of America giving up ultra-high frequency television broadcasting and sticking to very-high frequency bands are about the same as the chances of the United States returning to sails and wooden hulls. The shift is imperative unless TV is to be frozen into its present pattern. The big question is: how can the shift be made without sudden junking of existing transmitters, production lines and sets at home? The Federal Communications Commission is working on a new faster timetable. The FCC will license more UHF stations, limit new VHF licenses, encourage new UHF stations, and encourage manufacturers to produce more UHF receivers.

It may not be necessary now, but in a few years it will be reckless to buy a set without UHF channels.

LOOK FOR GAS AIR-CONDITIONERS

More gas air-conditioners: The natural gas industry is plagued by the fact that demands for gas drop when winter heaters are turned back. One solution now getting great attention of researchers is the development of better gas air-conditioners. Some engineers say they can be more efficient than electric coolers. Development of a cheap gas air-conditioner can help maintain sales whether weather is hot or cold.

Shelter boom: It looks as if the Administration's campaign to get families to prepare fallout shelters will soon intensify. This will result in a boom not unlike the swimming pool boom of the last few years.

As in the pool field, companies will pop up with plans, formulas, details and promotional campaigns for fallout shelters. There will be as much franchising of shelter companies as there was of pool assemblers. In fact, the boom may be even greater, since the government will guarantee loans for shelters in many cases but will underwrite pool loans in exceptional instances.

HIGHER PRICES

Rise in the consumer price index: The consumer price index, which was 119 per cent of the 1947-49 average in July, has held remarkably level during the Kennedy Administration. But despite all Democratic avowals to hold the line against inflation, the index will rise in the months ahead.

The Administration is acting to boost farm prices, wages in steel, auto and other heavy in-

Genes And The Future

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.—For thousands of years scientists have been interested in alchemy, or the turning of a base metal like lead into some precious metal like gold. No one has thus far succeeded in doing this. Attempts have also been made to insulate gravity by mixing two or more elements and finding an alloy which will shield gravity. Here again this has failed ever since the days of Sir Isaac Newton, 250 years ago. Recently, various studies have been made of inheritance, which I will discuss in this column under the general subject of "polymers".

WHAT HAS BEEN TAUGHT

It has been generally accepted that both the father and the mother supply certain genes which are attached together into "strings" known as chromosomes. These genes carry special talents down through the generations. As to how far back they originate, or how long they have traveled through some mother's body, we do not know. We further do not know just what traits or talents will come through, or when. History, however, does show that the greater the number of children a mother has, the greater her chance of having one of more famous children. This helps to explain why our nation has been built up by large families and why so often an "only child" has not amounted to much.

THE FAMOUS IBM ADVERTISEMENT

The stock of International Business Machines Company is one of the highest-selling stocks on the New York Stock Exchange. Furthermore the company has a great reputation to uphold. Hence its advertisement on the inside front cover of U. S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT for July 24, 1961 has created great interest. It shows in a spectacular way that what we are depends upon the arrangement of the molecules which comprise the cells of which we are made.

Last spring an article on polymers appeared in the MIT TECHNOLOGY REVIEW, written by P. W. Billmeyer, Jr., and A. S. Michaels. In addition, I have been much interested in the report of the Long Island Biological Association recently in session at Cold Spring Harbor, New York, attended by the leading biologists of the U. S. and abroad, including Dr. Monod, whom I endeavored to meet when I was in Paris. Conclusions were that the basic unit of all living things is the cell—consisting of an inner part, known as the nucleus, surrounded by the cytoplasm, which contains the seed of life that transmits heredity from generation to generation. It determines whether the fertilized egg—a single cell—will become a mouse, an elephant, or a human being.

OUR MOST REMARKABLE CHEMICALS

In the creation of life the biologists thought the enzymes were important factors in the polymers' manifestations, but these reactions are too technical to discuss here. The two principal polymers have very long names, hence they are commonly referred to as the DNA group and the RNA group.

Dr. Charles Monod, Professor of Biology at the University of Paris, has insisted that the genes appear comparable to a complex computing machine governing the operations of an automatic factory. These regulate the output of the factory and the endurance of the factory. They also stated that, accidents excepted, we could live to be 100 or 120 years old; furthermore, many of us who have been buried as dead when they might have been revived by these wonderful chemicals.

Conclusions: This brings us back to the IBM advertisement. I am neither a chemist nor a biologist, but I do believe that the discovery of these polymers is the most wonderful discovery of this generation. When people really understand their possibilities, both in peace and in war, we may enjoy our greatest prosperity—with occasional economic readjustments—during the next ten years.

It also means that we should urge our children and grandchildren to seek good mates and raise large families. History shows that good land and good children are the best investments. Stocks and bonds will come and go; but polymers will go on forever. I wish this could be taught to human beings.

British Press "Boils" Over Mac's Remark

LONDON (AP) — Britain's morning newspapers still boiled today at Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's golf course dismissal of the Berlin crisis as something "got up by the press."

The editors' ire was little mollified by a news conference Sunday at which Macmillan said the Berlin situation is "serious and there is a danger arising from rash and provocative actions such as have recently been taken in East Berlin."

Macmillan said he and Lord Home, his foreign secretary, believe that East-West negotiations on Berlin and Germany should take place but to be effective, "these must be held in the right atmosphere and at the right time."

Macmillan threw out the remark that aroused the editors during an impromptu chat with newsmen on the 18th hole at Gleneagles, the Scottish resort where the prime minister is on vacation.

To a question about Berlin he replied: "I think it is all got up by the press. Nobody is going to fight about it."

Commented the right-wing Daily Express: "That really is intolerable. Does Mr. Macmillan really know what is going on in Berlin?"

"Is Mr. Macmillan living in the same world as other people?" the pro-labor Daily Mirror asked. "Everybody else knows there is a Berlin crisis."

But the Mirror drew some satisfaction from the news conference and said "perhaps the prime minister was seeing things more clearly after a good night's sleep."

The laborite Daily Herald said Macmillan was right in refusing to be an alarmist but added: "Cautious is no substitute for leadership. What is now needed is a positive move to bring about negotiations with the Russians."

The Herald said Macmillan should try to persuade President Kennedy of the need for prompt negotiations with the Communists.

"But, unlike Mr. Macmillan, Mr. Kennedy does not have a public at home that is anxious for a quick and calm settlement of the Berlin problem," the Herald said.

The conservative Daily Mail said Macmillan's "unflapability" can be carried too far.

The press and some members of Parliament have criticized Macmillan and Lord Home for taking a vacation during the new Berlin crisis.

Home is on holiday at another Scottish spot. He drove to Gleneagles Sunday for a three-hour conference with Macmillan and other advisers to the prime minister.

Border Guards Ask For Asylum

BRUNSWICK, Germany (AP)—A 28-year-old East German border policeman slipped into West Germany Sunday night while patrolling the Iron Curtain border and has asked for political asylum. Western border guards reported today.

A second defection to the West was reported by Bavarian Border Patrol headquarters, which said an East German border guard crossed near Pressig, wearing his full uniform and carrying his arms.

Accused Killer Dies Of Cancer

MONTREAL (AP) — Lung cancer has claimed the life of Abel Vosburgh, 63, who was to have been tried this fall on charges of murdering his wife and 11 of their 15 children.

Vosburgh died Sunday in the hospital to which he had been transferred from jail last month after medical examination showed he was suffering from advanced cancer of the left lung.

Vosburgh had denied responsibility for the fire that killed his wife Marjorie and the 11 children and destroyed their frame home at Noyan, Que., Dec. 29.

News Releases From Cuba Are Altered To 'Satisfy'

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (AP) — The Cuban government has no official press censors and asserts there is no censorship of press dispatches sent out of the country. But it concedes that members of the Cuban Telecommunications Syndicate who transmit the copy, have authority to decide whether dispatches are based on truth, and may delete or alter copy accordingly.

During a three-month assignment in Cuba as a reporter for the Canadian Press I kept copies of cabled stories. A comparison of these with the stories reaching Canada shows that the syndicate members exercise their authority in free-wheeling fashion. Stories may be revised and distorted.

For instance: The word "priests" in stories about expulsion of foreign missionaries became "fascist priests" in transmission.

"Mercenaries" was substituted for "prisoners" in stories about men captured in the April invasion.

In a story filed May 17 seeking to describe life in Havana a reference to a "small force" of Cuban exiles was altered to "heavily armed force."

The Telecommunications Syndicate seemed to show a particular sensitivity about references to the underground and sabotage, and also touchiness on references to communism and the Soviet Union.

On June 29 an explosion demolished four cars in a parking lot in Havana's Vedado district. The story said: "It was assumed that the bombing was the work of the long inactive anti-Castro underground." That sentence was expunged.

A Czechoslovak exhibition was under way in Havana, and my story said Western diplomats were impressed by the evident care and effort that Communist Czechoslovakia had put into it. The word "Communist" was eliminated.

The manager of the communications company office in Havana said all this was out of his hands. Pedro Luis Torres, director-general of Telecommunications, said: "The truth is black and white. If on account of the personality of the observer he begins to see a gray tone, the authorities have a right to say, 'it is not gray but black and white,' and to try to correct his vision."

City Measures 5.8 Miles From North To South

Greenville measures 5.8 miles from north to south and 3.2 miles east to west, in case you've ever wondered.

The Daily Reflector measured the distance including recently annexed subdivisions.

If the city's north-south distance sounds like a long stretch, it is. It was measured from the intersection of U. S. 13 and the old Bethel Highway, along that highway and Greene St., to Eighth St., then to Evans and out to Pinewood Road beyond the television tower.

There are, of course, some open spaces along the route and the measuring vehicle was out of the city limits, at times, but this was the shortest route between the two points.

Much of the additional area has been added fairly recently. At the northern end, Greenfield Terrace was annexed May 4. Formerly the city limits had stopped at the end of the airport property, but city councilmen annexed a strip along Memorial Drive to reach the subdivision. There the city limits balloons out to take in the residential area. This is at the U.S. 13-Old Bethel highway intersection.

A year or so ago Lakewood Flies, an older subdivision, was annexed, extending the city limits from the Norfolk and Southern Railroad out Evans St. Ext. Then on May 15, councilmen annexed a strip of land from Evans St. Ext. to U.S. 264 to include Lynndale, a new subdivision which will stretch from U.S. 264 to Pinewood Forest.

The east-west distance was measured on Fifth St., parallel to Colonial Heights to Memorial Drive.

Moose Gather At Williamston

WILLIAMSTON — A four-district meeting of the Loyal Order of Moose was held here Sunday, with the Williamston Lodge host to the gathering.

Seven members of Greenville Lodge 885 were among those attending. The four districts represented at yesterday's affair are comprised of eighteen lodges in eastern North Carolina.

The program was based on a series of talks by Moose officials dealing with specific problems with which they were most familiar, and periods of general discussion.

The next quarterly district meeting will be hosted by the Roanoke Rapids Lodge, in November.

A barbecue and Brunswick stew luncheon was served, and guests dined on picnic tables placed on the spacious grounds of the Williamston Lodge.

Lodges comprising the four-district membership are in Enfield, Tarboro, Rocky Mount, Roanoke Rapids, Greenville, Plymouth, Washington, Williamston, Elizabeth City, Kinston, Goldsboro, Wallace, Jacksonville, New Bern, Havelock, Morehead City, and Wilmington.

Moose attending from Greenville, were: Gov. Charles McAndrew, Sec. E. M. Baldrée, Treasurer James Harris, S. L. Rowland, D. C. Schlenz, A. A. Carrigan and Max Pollard.

Hunting Man In Abduction Report

RALEIGH (AP) — Police were on the lookout today for a man about 55 years old accused of abducting and robbing a Wilson banker here Saturday night.

Clarence Lucas, a vice president of Branch Banking & Trust Co. at Wilson, said he was walking on a downtown street when a man forced him at knifepoint into a car.

Lucas told police the man drove about five miles from Raleigh to a wooded area and robbed him of about $2, his car keys and a gold watch valued at $100.

UN Troops In Katanga Capital Act To Put Province Into Adoula Camp

By JOHN LATZ
ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP)—U.N. troops put Elisabethville under a virtual state of siege and arrested various foreigners today in a move apparently aimed at swinging secessionist Katanga province into the Congo government of Premier Cyrille Adoula.

U.N. detachments seized several key points in President Moïse Tshombe's capital, took over the airport to assure the safe arrival of reinforcements and launched a roundup of white officers, chiefly Belgian, in the Katanga army. There were some minor clashes and a scattering of gunshot, but a U.N. representative said nobody was hit.

man said the operation was intended to remove all 500 foreign officers from Katanga's army and added: "The operation is going ahead smoothly without opposition and with the full cooperation of the Katanga gendarmerie and police." He reiterated previous denials that the U.N. intended to disarm the entire Katanga army.

Many Injured As Jet Hits Store

By GEORGE ESPER
WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (AP)—A jet plane coming in for a landing at the Willow Grove naval air station Sunday crashed through the roof of a department store, a half-mile from the runway. The pilot was killed and between 30 and 35 persons injured.

even see the plane. When I saw everyone running I picked up my child and started to run, too. It seemed like everyone was for himself."

Navy authorities launched an investigation into the cause of the crash which killed Lt. Cmdr Robert Haven, 36, of Columbus, Ohio, a reservist described as a "veteran with 4,000 flying hours and the best pilot in his squadron."

All the injured, including four firemen, were treated at nearby Abington Memorial Hospital and released with the exception of Meta Kennedy, 52, of Horsham, Pa.

Officials said there were 75 to 100 shoppers and 30 to 40 employees in the discount store operated by a chain known as Bargain City, USA. Less than one-fourth of the departments were open, due to Pennsylvania's blue laws which permit only sales of certain essential merchandise on Sundays.

Ed Fernandez said he was sitting on his porch about 150 feet away when he saw the plane "loop over once."

An eyewitness said that after the plane crashed there appeared to be panic as persons inside the store tried to get out.

Fire Chief Samuel Salerno, of nearby Horsham, who directed 400 civilian firemen, said the Navy FJ3 Fury fighter landed in a section of the store in which the departments were closed.

"It was very quiet," said Peggy Gotwoltz, 23, of Hatboro, Pa., "then all of a sudden this crash. There was glass falling. I didn't Salerno said the plane exploded twice after it hit and burst into flames.

Bolstered By Profit-Sharing Deal, Reuther Uses Pressure

DETROIT (AP) — Armed with a profit-sharing settlement at American Motors and with strike authorization, the United Auto Workers Union applied home-stretch pressure today on General Motors, Ford and Chrysler for new contracts.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther says there will be a strike against one of the Big Three. Workers have rolled up overwhelming majorities to back up demands with walkouts, if necessary.

Union practice is to strike one company, win a contract there and then demand that the others meet or beat it or be shut down. Under the new three-year American Motors agreement production workers get 10 per cent of profits, after the first 10 per cent is set aside for stockholders.

Boy Killed By Miniature Train

DENVER (AP) — A teen-ager was struck by a miniature train, dragged 60 feet and killed in an East Denver park Sunday as passengers and bystanders looked on in horror.

Reuther said there still is time for agreement "if there is good will on both sides." He pointed out the AMC-UAW pact was put together between Tuesday and Saturday.

Additionally, a seven-cut annual productivity pay increase is carried forward. So is the cost-of-living formula that carries wages up or down with the government's consumer price index.

The victim was Gilbert LeBols, 15, one of three youths who were running along the tracks when the 1/2 ton locomotive approached.

The Big Three have said they have no intention of following a profit sharing path. They insist production workers have shared in industry progress over the years through wage increases that have brought the average wage to $2.8 hourly and added fringe benefits worth 35 to 40 cents hourly. They have offered wage raising packages that the union has rejected.

Police Break Up Opposition Rally

C UDAJ TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—National police, swinging clubs and firing rifles into the air, broke up an opposition political rally at nearby San Pedro de Macoris Sunday.

The three were crossing a miniature trestle over a duck pond when LeBols tripped and fell. He was unable to rise, and the train's pilot was unable to stop the locomotive in time to avoid the accident.

UAW Vice President Norman Matthews raised a strike threat Sunday against Chrysler, a money-loser in this year's first half. He said he would ask the UAW's International Executive Board Tuesday for authority to call a Chrysler walkout at midnight Thursday if no agreement is reached by that time.

Ten or more persons were hurt, none seriously. The National Civic Union, a self-styled nonpartisan organization that has led criticism of the government, sponsored the rally. Union officials protested the police action.

Kasavubu's move appeared to be a prelude to an attempt to take over the province and end Tshombe's long defiance of the central government at Leopoldville.

Directors of the union's GM and Ford departments previously had said they would do the same A grant of strike authority, however, does not necessarily mean that it will be used.

U.N. officials acted under a central government decree requiring immediate removal of all foreign military personnel who had not signed contracts with the Leopoldville regime. This includes about 300 Belgians, French, British, South Africans and Italians in the Katanga forces.

WILD ANIMAL PARK

Directions and warnings for autoists in park.

It's not a bad dream; it's reality. You're driving your car through African bush country. Suddenly, before you, looms an elephant, as big as a house, crossing the road in leisurely fashion. Nearby, the tall neck of a giraffe stretches over the underbrush. A zebra comes dashing up. You stop the car for a moment, and a monkey leaps onto the hood.

All this can happen when you tour South Africa's Kruger National Park, the largest wild game sanctuary in the world, nearly 8,000 square miles of virgin country roamed by thousands of lions, elephants, hippos, giraffes, zebras, monkeys and many different species of deer and antelope.

Wildlife has prospered in the park. During the past 50 years, the elephant herd has doubled, now numbering about 1,200. The ox-like antelope called the eland, near extinction in 1900, now numbers 400. And the same rate of increase holds true for most of the other animals.

To keep animals safely in the park, and poachers out, the park is building the longest fence in the world—600 miles of it. When finished, sometime in the fall, it will completely encircle the park.

Tourists are cautioned to stay in their cars, keep to the roads, and drive slowly. They're not allowed to carry firearms. At night, they retire to the safety of rest camps.

BIG THRILL. Bull elephant crosses road in front of automobile at Letaba, Kruger Park. Tourists travel road during daylight hours.

Monkeys climb car to get close look at visitors.

Two lions saunter down the road completely unconcerned about the cars that are following them.

A bull kudu, large African antelope, lifts his head to pose.

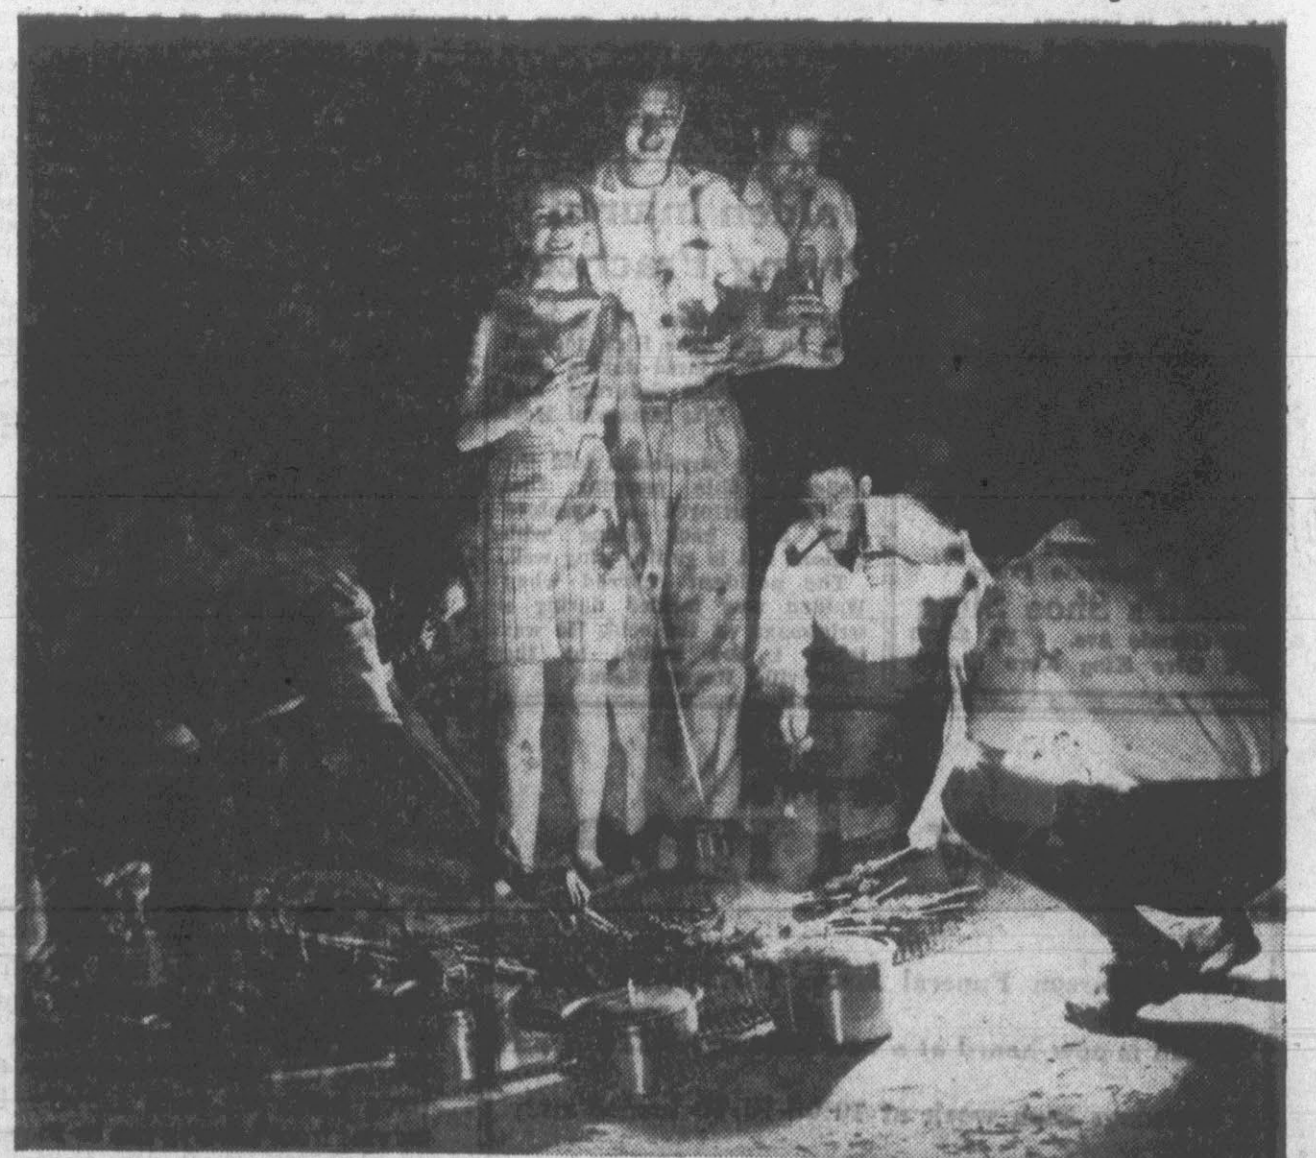

Deep in the bush, workmen erect fence which will completely encircle Kruger Park. When finished, fence will cover distance of 600 miles, making it world's longest.

Giraffes step to refresh themselves at stream in park.

At rest camp, a couple dine inside a rondival, a furnished thatched roof cabin. This will be their home during stay in park.

CAMP NIGHT. Food sizzles on grill over barbecue pit while tourists wait to get their share. From the darkness beyond come the wild cries of the African night.

BURNWOOD MEN

CHAPTER 14

Early in the morning, Tam Barrie felt Colly Devoe shaking him. He wedged open his eyes. A thin beam of sunlight was streaming through a knothole in the barn roof. "Time to get up?" he mumbled.

"And long past," Colly said. He reached for his vest. "Come alive, son. Man has to be in topnotch condition to cope with Jim's flapjacks."

They walked to the house in the crisp bright sunlight. Jim had the batter mixed, and dished up his tough, filling flapjacks as long as the two would eat. On the side he had home-cured bacon, wild honey and, wonder of wonders, fresh eggs.

The stringy rancher came over with his own filled plate and his cup of inky coffee. "Say, what's so all-fired important over to Fort Shaw?" he asked. "Half o' Benton's been there." Colly Devoe put down his fork. "Who, for instance?"

"Why, yestiddy, when I was deliverin' my garden truck, I seen Gintal Donnell ride in. A white rider here come Clee Strike, ridin' hard. I was visitin' Washboard Row when I ketcht sight of the gintal ride out through the gate, his coatails clawhammered inter the wind, that phiz of his lookin' like a spanked baby. Then, jest about when I headed back I dang near run inter the Portugese, Lisbon Frank, and that ape Con Aleff, ridin' fer the fort, hellbent fer leather."

"Has Strike gone by then?" Tam asked.

"Naw. As I went by the coloneel's office I looked in the open window. There was Clee Strike as big as life, smokin' a big black stogie; and the coloneel, he was laughin' at somethin' Strike had told him. Strike's boss was still switchin' flies at the rail when I rode out."

Colly said, "Well, that tears the rag off'n the bush."

"Guess we wasted a long ride," Tam agreed, disappointed and sulky angry. The trader must have corrupted Army personnel, on the face of it. Now there was no remedy.

"Jem, we changed our minds," Colly told the rancher. "We're headin' straight across for Benton. But I'd like to borrow the lend of that Winchester of yours. Send it back on the stage."

Jem reached up and took the rifle from its pegs.

"They say there's a varmint or two betwixt here and Benton," he said.

Deeds Nerves Taut On Start Of New TV Action Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Radio-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — As the beginning of television's 1961-62 season draws closer, visitors can feel the atmosphere in the studios growing more tense. It's not excitement or anticipation, it's more like an epidemic of nervous fear.

The fall and winter TV schedules are loaded with so-called "action" shows planned and often written before violence became a dirty word in Washington and in the offices of network top brass. But although you heard rumors of drastic revisions of story lines and re-shooting of sequences to erase mass slaughters, almost nobody will admit making changes.

According to a pretty authoritative report — it trickled to me from an employee of one network who knows somebody who works for another network who knows somebody who works in the show — the opening show of one very popular Western had a script that was revised five times.

The original story called for six killings, a stomping and a lingering, agonized death from a gunshot wound in the abdomen. By the third rewrite the mortality had been chopped to three, the stomping removed, but the lingering death had been cut mercifully short. By the fifth, there was one death-off-camera.

In one of the police stories, a death by poison which was scheduled to be shown in detail was reported by a third party.

Two brave men, both producers admit the existence of anti-violence pressures.

Hubbell Robinson, executive producer of NBC's new "7th Precinct," now wishes he had written out one scene of the opening show. It involves an attack with a broken bottle and some judo by a police officer. The scene is there because they wanted to show the reaction of a wife the first time she sees her husband not as an indulgent and affectionate man but as a cop on duty.

"I don't think it quite came off," confessed Robinson. "It was very effective in Ed McBain's book because he could describe what the wife was thinking. But it was impossible to get this effect on film, and I wish we had eliminated it."

Paul Monash, the producer of "Cain's 100," another new NBC show, also had a problem scene in the first show.

"We had a man killed in what I thought was a tasteful way," he explained. "Then the network suggested that perhaps we could just have him arrested instead of being killed. I said no. Then they asked if he could be shot. I wanted him to stay dead, but in the final version he moves slightly as he is carried off onto the stretcher."

"Of course he could have just been arrested. But for dramatic purposes it was much more effective to have him killed."

Although few are talking about the down-hold on battles and killings, producers, directors and performers involved in action series are known to be unhappy about the watering down of the strong scripts.

The city of St. Charles was the capital of Missouri when the state was admitted to the union in 1820. The original capitol building still stands on South Main Street.

There was a whine in Lisbon's voice. "I tell you, Clee, we done our damndest."

Shifting in the saddle, Strike stared at the Portugese. "You call it that?" he asked coldly. "The two of you lay around Benton for one whole day because of a little rain. The next, you let Barrie and Devoe get to Clip O'Boyle before you. Then, when you had the three of them under your sights, you missed. I'm even wondering if you killed O'Boyle."

"He's dead all right," Lisbon Frank said. "I got him four times, right in the brisquet. I seen the dust jump out of his undershirt as the slugs took him."

"What happened to Barrie and Devoe?"

The Portugese slid an uneasy glance toward Con Aleff. The surly giant said: "He give me first shot and I missed 'em clean. Dam' gun run three high, and they got out fast."

"Con, the truth—were you drunk two days ago?" Strike's voice was biting.

The big man scowled. Slowly he nodded.

"And the day before? And the day before that? And the only reason you weren't drunk yesterday was that Frank dragged you out of town before you had time to skir-mish up a bottle?"

Refugee Baggage Flight Banned

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two Pan American World Airways planes brought in 24,000 pounds of excess baggage for Cuban refugees over the weekend, but a third was turned back by Cuban authorities.

A Saturday flight and a Sunday morning flight brought in bags, parcels and trunks left at the Havana airport when refugees boarded planes for the United States.

A second Sunday flight from Miami turned back when advised by radio that Cuban authorities did not wish it to land. No reason was given.

The Cuban government decreed Friday that all baggage must follow its owners within 48 hours.

Pan American operates two flights daily between Miami and Havana, but space out of Havana is so limited that refugees are limited to hand luggage.

Pan American said its flights out of Havana are booked solid through next March.

This school will provide managers with systematic procedures for more orderly planning, the business, more effective direction of the various jobs, stronger controls over the variable processes, and a closer coordination of the multitude of tasks in management. It will show how to make decisions, improve personnel relations, and how to analyze and improve management skills and abilities. A limited number of people can be accepted at either of these schools. Applications are available at the county agent's office and should be forwarded at least 10 days to two weeks ahead of the courses.

Hemingway's Movie Works Being Shown

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The Motion Picture Academy, which usually awards its slumbers, but usually a year to hand out Oscars, is currently running a film series, "Tribute To Ernest Hemingway." Members are being treated to showings of three Hemingway adaptations: "For Whom the Bell Tolls," "To Have and Have Not," and "The Sun Also Rises." The choice is not the most apt. "For Whom the Bell Tolls" (1943) is the best of the lot, a faithful, well-cast version of Hemingway's magnum (in size) opus. Gary Cooper made a perfect Robert Jordan, and Ingrid Bergman, Katina Paxinou and the other Spanish guerrillas were excellent. "To Have and Have Not" (1944) was an amusing and successful film, but it wasn't Hemingway. It was tailored to introduce Lauren Bacall to the screen—and to Humphrey Bogart. Only the outline of the novel remained. "The Sun Also Rises" (1957) ran into creative and censorship problems. The hero's emasculation could not be treated as frankly as in the book. And the gay, idle international set seemed somehow dated after 30 years.

'Vamp' Of Early Movies Is Dead

NEW YORK (AP)—A famous stage and screen "vamp" of the Twenties, Vera Michelena, 77, died Sunday at her home in Queens. She retired in 1933. For 20 years she was a singing and acting star of motion pictures, musical comedy and vaudeville. She was born in New York of a stage family and went to San Francisco as a girl. She made her first stage appearance there at 11. She was married in 1910 to Fred Hillebrand. He is her only survivor.

Forgot To Lock The Bank Door

EAST POINT, Ga. (AP)—A policeman making a routine check found a side door unlocked at the Citizens & Southern Bank of East Point. Police squad cars rushed to the scene Friday. Investigation showed nothing was taken, Sgt. H. L. Smith reported. "Apparently somebody just forgot to lock the door," Smith said.

Tips

By S. J. WEEKS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

Root knot nematodes reduce the net return from many fields of tobacco each year. This loss is brought about in three ways: (1) Nematodes stunt the growth of plants and thereby reduce yields. (2) The tobacco from affected plants is usually thin and chaffy and of lower quality. (3) The root damaging activities of nematodes increase the damage from black shank, Granville wilt and other diseases.

Root knot nematodes multiply rapidly when planted to susceptible crops like tobacco. For example, the female nematode will lay about 400 eggs and it requires only 20 to 30 days to complete this life cycle from egg to adult.

A nematode can lay a lot of eggs and the life cycle is short. By plowing out the stubbles you can kill a large percentage of nematodes and eggs.

Nematode reproduction and development takes place most rapidly during the warm summer and fall months.

The results of research tests and farm demonstrations indicate that when the tobacco stubbles are plowed out immediately after harvest the nematode population can be reduced 70 to 90 per cent.

Use of this practice alone will not give adequate nematode control but supplements control obtained with crop rotation and soil fumigation.

In a winter management demonstration conducted at the Oxford Experiment Station 1956-1959, where the roots were plowed out the per acre value was $933 as compared with $745 in a plot where the roots were not plowed out.

In plots where the roots were plowed out and oats were used as a cover crop, the per acre value was $989. The use of the oat cover crop in addition to plowing out the roots also lowered the root index. In all these plots tobacco was being grown continuously.

Remember the most effective results will be obtained where the roots are plowed out early. If you have not already plowed out your tobacco roots, do so as soon as possible and reduce the nematode population on your farm.

Soviet Culture 'Accepts' Jazz

MOSCOW (AP)—From now on jazz is in around here, man, but it's got to be Soviet style. You know, with melody, harmony, rhythm and all that stuff.

This is the word from the Soviet Union's leading "dzhaz" composer, Aleksander Tsfasman. In an article in Izvestia, Tsfasman said he doesn't like the bad press jazz has been getting in Soviet newspapers.

"When do they mention jazz?" the composer asked. "Only when it appears as an accomplice to criminal offenses and leads disolutes of the inner 'sweet life' to the defendant's bench."

Even in the movies, he complained, a positive hero is backed up with national songs and "for the negative one—jazz."

This has got to stop, Tsfasman said, adding: "Jazz has firmly entered into our daily life and has become an integral part of our musical culture."

He noted that in the Russian Federated Soviet Republic alone more than 3,000 jazz bands are playing in various locales. But at the rate Soviet factories are turning out saxophones and clarinets it will take 50 years to fit them out, he said.

"No less important is the question of professional training," Tsfasman went on. He feels the time has come to open classes in music schools to train jazz band leaders, musicians and vocalists.

Tsfasman criticized some Western jazzmen he said are paying "unemotionally and phlegmatically." He said they are using "cold and dead sounds."

Sanford Plans Trip To Mexico

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Sanford and Director Hargrave Bowles Jr. of the Department of Conservation and Development will make a five-day visit to Mexico City next month to promote the North Carolina Trade Fair.

Sanford indicated that others may go with them on their trip Sept. 10-14. He disclosed plans for the visit at a news conference here Saturday with Alberto Becerra Sierra acting counsel-general of the Mexican Embassy.

"The broad purpose of the visit," Sanford stated, "is to promote generally the good will aspects of North Carolina and its interest in many fields. The specific project, of course, is the Trade Fair."

The fair will be held in Charlotte Oct. 12-21.

Sanford discussed with Becerra the possibility of whether Mexican President Adolfo Lopez Mateos will be able to accept an invitation to visit North Carolina during October.

If Mateos does visit the state it will be for the October Celebration of the 100th anniversary of the Morrill Act which laid the groundwork for land grant colleges.

Sanford said the invitation was suggested by President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Steele, air-crafts and some chemicals paced a market advance early this afternoon in moderate trading.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.20 at 254.40 with industrials up 2.80, rails up .30 and utilities off .10.

Gains of fractions to a point or so among key stocks outnumbered losers.

American Motors was fairly steady in active trading following news that it had agreed "in principle" over the weekend on a new labor contract. Ford and Chrysler sagged and General Motors kept a fractional gain as its chances of avoiding a strike remained in doubt.

Jones & Laughlin, up about 2, made the best showing among the major steel producers. U.S. Steel and Youngstown Sheet were up about a point each. Lukens advanced more than a point. Bethlehem and Republic added substantial fractions.

American Telephone traded off about a point and Jersey Standard erased a fractional gain and traded about unchanged.

Eastman Kodak rose more than a point. Lorillard, Air Reduction and Republic Aviation were up about a point each.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.31 at 719.01.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were generally higher in moderate trading.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were mostly unchanged.

Neighbors Find Actress Dead

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Gail Russell, 36, who a year ago said "I'm an alcoholic" but declared she had put drinking behind her, died with an empty vodka bottle by her side.

The brunette beauty was found dead on the floor of her West Los Angeles apartment late Saturday night by two women neighbors.

There were other empty liquor bottles throughout her four-room, $130-a-month quarters.

Police said Miss Russell's death apparently was from natural causes. They said she had been hospitalized in recent years with a serious liver ailment.

An 18-year-old coed at Santa Monica High School, discovery by a Paramount talent scout, election by exhibitors and critics in 1947 as "Star of Tomorrow," stardom in pictures like "Lady in the Dark" and "Our Hearts were Young and Gay," four years' marriage to star Guy Madison—these were some of her life's highlights.

The low points were a series of drunken driving arrests in the 1950s. In 1957 she lost her driver's license when her new white convertible smashed through the front of a coffee shop and hurt a janitor.

The judge fined her $420 and put her on three years' probation. She vowed never to drink again.

Explaining a year ago how she had stopped drinking, Miss Russell said: "I'm an alcoholic. You don't get over alcoholism. You just don't drink."

Madison said in divorcing her in 1954 that she refused to have servants in the home and discouraged visitors.

New Miss USA Visits New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Statuesque Jo Ann Odum of Huntington, W. Va., swirled through New York today. But she had London on her mind and Dayton, Ohio, at heart.

The 18-year-old, green-eyed lass, who stands 5-7, weighs 125 pounds and measures 36-24-36, is "doing" New York for the next few days in the company of her mother.

She had a nice word for the other 33 girls in the contest. "Each one is a queen in her own right, and I'd hate to have been a judge in this contest," she said.

Miss New York State, 18-year-old Janet Boring of Williston Park, N.Y., was second in the competition. Miss California, Mariena Loren of Los Angeles, was third while Miss Maryland, Diane White of Baltimore was fourth and Miss Missouri, Barbara Kohler of Columbia, Mo., was fifth.

Cost Of Living Likely Will Keep On Rising

NEW YORK (AP)—According to the official figures, the cost of living has moved to a new high—and probably will keep rising.

According to many harassed heads of families, making both ends meet keeps getting harder.

But some business and financial spokesmen hold that the cost of living hasn't risen as much as the Labor Department's consumer price index indicates. They say the quality of many items has increased as well as the price and the index isn't adjusted to show that.

Many of you may report that neither is it adjusted to take into account the numerous cases where quality of consumer items isn't what it used to be.

Another argument is that the rising cost of living has been offset by the increase in personal incomes—in many cases a rise from wage scales tied directly to the index itself. In other words, both prices and wages have risen, and only the marketplace value of the dollar has dropped.

In judging the worth of the index, others point out that in America individualists are still liberally sprinkled among the conformists. And the increasingly sophisticated housewife or head of the family often can switch from one item to another when prices seem out of line.

So, while the official index goes up seasonally or chronically, many families may simply have changed the items on the dinner table for the time being, or put off buying something or other, or otherwise changed their spending habits. The individual family budget, in other words, may be far different from the average which the consumer price index is supposed to mirror.

All these arguments would tend to minimize the threat of further inflation which some see in the steadily rising cost of living index.

And the official Washington view just now is that there is little danger because of abundant supplies of most things due to unused industrial capacity, or a lack of any rush to buy by either consumers or businessmen.

Auto labor negotiations, talk of a price rise in steel this fall, or more and bigger increases in government spending if the Berlin crisis worsens—all these may affect the stock market, but official thinking is as yet.

But at the family level, rising costs are a very present problem. Seasonal changes in the cost of food are more or less accepted. But always there is that periodic purchase or fee. The replacement always seems to cost more than the original bought a while back. Or you may be surprised, in spite of all the warnings you had, how much more it will cost you to send your child to college this fall than it cost your parents when you went.

And each year there is something new that your family wants badly if it is to be as happy as the others in the neighborhood or as the families of your fellows at the office or the factory. These wants may be for goods or, increasingly, they may be for services.

This is known as the rising standard of living and is one of the glories of a prosperous American economy.

But it is also known as the rising cost of living. Prices may go up, but also do the qualities we demand of the goods, services or conveniences we insist on—when we can pay for them.

Anniversary Of A Union Landing

HATTERAS, N. C. (AP)—One hundred years ago today Union troops stormed ashore on North Carolina's Outer Banks. Twenty-four hours later they had taken Ft. Hatteras and Ft. Clark in comparatively bloodless battles.

The invasion by 800 infantrymen—but only 318 actually made it ashore—under Gen. Benjamin F. Butler marked the first time Union forces set foot on North Carolina soil during the Civil War.

Seven war vessels, manned by 1,972 men, brought the infantrymen to North Carolina. The plan was to take possession of the two coastal installations and stop, or greatly reduce, interference to Northern shipping by Confederates who found a haven in the sounds along the Tar Heel coast.

The victory also opened the way to later federal invasion that resulted in the eventual capture of Roanoke Island, Elizabeth City, Washington, Plymouth, Winton, and New Bern. It also led to a "back door" into the South's port at Norfolk, Va.

When the fighting ended Aug. 29, Federal troops reported not a soldier lost. The Confederate toll was 2 killed and 25 or 30 wounded. Union gunboats also sprung a new type of Naval attack on the Confederate forts. The war vessels, instead of dropping anchor, sailed in a circling column, firing at Ft. Hatteras as they passed.

Japan's Premier Raps 'Meddling'

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda today told Soviet Premier Khrushchev he was meddling in Japan's affairs by demanding abrogation of the U.S.-Japan security treaty.

In reply to a personal message from Khrushchev, Ikeda said in effect that unless the Soviet Union gave up aggressive intentions against Japan, the U.S.-Japan pact could not be a threat to Moscow.

The text of Ikeda's message, delivered to Khrushchev by the Japanese ambassador in Moscow, was released by the Japanese Foreign Office.

Ikeda also told Khrushchev Japan will stay allied with the free world.

"Japan pursues freedom and democracy as the highest political ideal. This is and will continue to be our immutable policy," he said.

Khrushchev's message said the Soviet Union could not remain indifferent to the U.S.-Japan security treaty and the presence of foreign troops. He said these hampered normal relations between the two countries.

The message was delivered earlier this month by First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan during a visit to Japan in which he repeatedly attacked Japan's military alliance.
