WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Officials said today they have some hope Soviet Premier Khrushchev may alter his course and accept a U.S.-British proposal for a ban on nuclear weapons tests in the earth's atmosphere.

nuclear explosions may be fired parallel with the maneuvers is also a subject of speculation.

The maneuvers are scheduled to start Sunday. The area designated is in the arctic and includes the island of Novaya Zemlya, where the Soviets shot some nuclear tests before the East-West moratorium on explosions three years ago.

President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan proposed to Khrushchev Sunday that their three governments agree, effective immediately, not to conduct nuclear tests which take place in atmosphere and produce radioactive fallout.

There is speculation that the Soviet announcement Friday of military maneuvers in the Baltics and Kara seas with various types of modern weapons fits into the same pattern of a power display designed to intimidate other nations. Whether

Ruth Young Marries Med Student

The marriage of Miss Ruth Berry Young and Mr. John Flint Rhodes was solemnized Saturday afternoon, September 2, at four o'clock in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Russell Young of Greenville and the bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John S. Rhodes of Raleigh.

Dr. Edgar B. Fisher officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Paul A. Toll, organist, and Miss Elizabeth White, soloist. Miss White sang "Because" by Hardelot, "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee" by Gounod, and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte.

The church was decorated with vases of white gladioli and mums on the altar. A white satin pillow was used in front of the altar where the couple knelt for prayer. Palmets palms and areca palms with silver branch candelabra holding tall cathedral candles formed a dignified setting for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk mist taffeta and alencon lace fashioned with a portrait neckline, basque bodice and long sleeves ending in calla points over the hands. A bouffant skirt featured lace appliques and a panel which extended into a chapel train. Her fingerless veil of silk illusion was attached to a coronet of silk braid and pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of phalaenopsis, centered with pure white orchids.

The bride was attended by Mrs. James A. Betts of Raleigh, sister of the bridegroom, as matron of honor. Maid of honor was Miss Judy Rhodes of Raleigh, sister of the bridegroom. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert P. Proctor of Lumberton and Mrs. Wilkie C. Burt of Greenville. The attendants wore dresses fashioned with a scoop neckline and bodices of royal purple velvets attached to a bouffant skirt of orchid taffeta. They carried cascade bouquets of orchid full mums tied with purple satin ribbon.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Lucian D. Bryan Jr. of Greenville, cousin of the bride, John Monroe of Chapel Hill, James A. Betts and Charles A. Reavis of Raleigh.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Young wore a sheath dress of blue silk with re-embroidered lace top. With this she chose a matching hat and accessories and wore a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Rhodes, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a sea-foam green sheath dress of peau de sole. She wore a matching hat and corsage of gardenias.

The bride is a graduate of Rex Hospital School of Nursing and will become a member of the nursing staff at North Carolina Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill in the fall.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and is currently enrolled in the School of Medicine at the University. He is a member of Alpha Kappa Kappa medical fraternity and Alpha Omega Alpha honorary medical fraternity.

Mrs. John Flint Rhodes

For a wedding trip to points unannounced the bride changed to a two-piece suit of beige knit with matching feather hat and brown skin accessories, and the orchids lifted from her bouquet.

Following the wedding trip the couple will be at home in Chapel Hill.

Reception Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church parlor. A color note of green and white with a touch of pale pink was used throughout the parlor.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Broadrick greeted the guests who were introduced to the receiving line by Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Bryan. The receiving line was composed of the parents of the couple, the bride and groom and the bride's attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Young directed the guests to the refreshment table which was covered with white satin cloth overlaid with net. A large silver epergne Wedding Breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Young, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Harrell and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hood entertained the Rhodes-Young wedding party and out-of-town guests at a wedding breakfast Saturday at noon at the Cinderella Restaurant.

Rehearsal Party On Friday evening at 9:00 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Lucian D. Bryan and Mr. Lucian Bryan Jr. entertained the "Rhodes-Young" wedding party and out-of-town guests at their home on Fairlane Road.

Upon arrival, the guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Bryan and invited into the den where they were served punch and hors d'oeuvres from a decorated table covered with dark green linen cloth. The punch bowl was encircled with greenery and frosted grapes.

Mrs. Toland H. Boykin invited guests into the dining room where Mrs. R. E. Fries and Mrs. Cecil Bilbro served them punch. Guests helped themselves to choice tidbits.

Centering the table was an arrangement of white mums and white carnations on a silver candelabra flanked with white candles. White daisies and tulle encircled the silver punch bowl.

Bridesmaids Luncheon Miss Ruth Young, bride-elect of Saturday, and her attendants were honored on Thursday at a luncheon by Mrs. W. F. Young at her home, 110 South Woodlawn Ave.

Guests were greeted by the hosts and Miss Young.

Arrangements of summer flowers were used throughout the home and the mantel featured an arrangement of a bride and groom and the bride's attendants with a background of Southern Smilax.

Bridal place cards and white mum corsages marked the places of each guest. A two course luncheon was served.

Miss Young, honoree, presented her attendants with sterling silver table openers and Mrs. Toland Boykin, her directress, with a gift of lingerie.

Others attending were Mrs. Russell Young, mother of the bride, Mrs. John Rhodes, the bridegroom's mother, and Mrs. Lucian Bryan, aunt of the bride.

ECC Freshman And Parents Entertained At Reception

Highlighting social events of the 52 Annual Orientation Program at East Carolina College, a reception Sunday afternoon at the home of college President and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins honored freshmen and their parents. Approximately 500 guests were present.

Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins, Mr. Otis Strother, president of the college Student Government Association, and Mrs. Strother; and Miss Ruth White, Dean of Women at East Carolina, welcomed those attending the social event.

Receiving guests elsewhere in the home were Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Holt, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. James Mallory, and Dr. and Mrs. John H. Horne.

An arrangement of white chrysanthemums, gladioli, and bells of Ireland was a center of attention in the entrance hall. A rose color scheme was carried out in the drawing room, where dahlias and roses were used.

Refreshments were served in the dining room from a table covered with a white organdy and lace cloth. The centerpiece, a silver epergne and candlestick arrangement, was colorful with yellow roses, chrysanthemums, and tapers.

Sixteen college students, all student counselors, received guests in the dining room and served refreshments of punch, cookies, mints, and nuts. They were Linda Eiland, Linda Flowers, Cindy Seckler, Ann Powell, Cindy Sturdivant, Carolyn Shearin, Susan Petty, Joan Gurkin, Ann Adkin, Brenda Reges, Georgia Hooks, Carol Andy,

Oakley-Bryant Wed In Presbyterian Ceremony

The First Presbyterian Church of Greenville was the setting of a wedding on Saturday afternoon, September 2, at four o'clock when Miss Mary Ann Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Herndon Bryant, and Godfrey Porter Oakley Jr., son of Mrs. Carrie Gray Oakley of Greenville and Mr. Oakley of Durham, were united in marriage.

The Rev. Richard Rhea Gammon, pastor of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony.

The vows were spoken before a white satin covered prayer bench. Other appointments in the sanctuary included an arrangement of white gladioli with huckleberry greenery, palms, and brass candelabra with cathedral tapers. The family pews were designated with greenery and white satin ribbons.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Guy V. Smith, church organist, and Mrs. Isawo Tanaka of Durham, contralto, who sang "O Lord, Most Holy" by Franck, Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," and Malotte's arrangement of "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. Smith's organ selections included "Andante" from Organ Concerto No. VII and "Air" in F Major from Water Music by Handel, and Bach's compositions, "Sheep May Safely Graze," and "Prelude and Fugue in G Minor." The procession was the "Chorale" from Wacht auf Ruft Uns die Stimme by Bach. Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary" was played for the recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an original design of peau de soie and imported Italian lace, styled with a portrait neckline and basque bodice. The lace formed an overskirt which accentuated the front panel of peau de soie. Her Dane original fingertip veil of silk illusion cascaded from a cap of lace trimmed with satin roses and seed pearls, and she wore lace mitts. She carried a colonial bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley centered with white orchids. Her twin sisters, Elizabeth Lee and Margaret Deeds, attended the bride as maids of honor. They wore street length dresses of sea spray blue silk organza over taffeta feathered satin cummerbunds accented with satin roses with A-shaped skirts pleated in front to give a redingote illusion. Their matching hats, with a scalloped brim of imported French silk, were topped with a large taffeta rose. They carried cascade bouquets of yellow lace chrysanthemums tied with blending ribbons.

The bride's youngest sister, Katharine Adams Bryant, was the junior bridesmaid, and Miss Catherine Gibson of Laurel Hill, a classmate of the bride, and Miss Sara Elizabeth Oakley, sister of the bridegroom, served as bridesmaids. Their dresses and flowers were identical to the honor attendants.

David Leonard Britton of Williamsburg, Va., cousin of the bride, and John Darlowe Gray, cousin of the bridegroom, were ringbearers.

The best man was John Heinz Venable Jr. of New Haven, Conn. The ushers included Jack Darlowe Gray, uncle of the bridegroom, Robert Bunn Johnston, Rufus Sidney Jones Jr., of Warrenton, and Eugene Charles Routh of Nashville, Tenn.

The bride's mother was dressed in a sheath of vert-d'eau green silk organza over taffeta. Appliques of imported Italian lace medallions accented the bodice. She wore a Dane's original headpiece and a white cymbidium orchid corsage.

Mrs. Oakley, mother of the bridegroom, chose a dress of turquoise silk organza over taffeta. Her hat, also a Dane's original, of matching organza, featured aurore sequins. At her shoulder she wore a corsage of white orchids. The bridegroom's maternal grandmother, Mrs. H. A. Gray, was attired in a navy blue sheer with appropriate accessories. Her corsage was a purple orchid.

For traveling, the bride changed to a sheath and jacket dress of transitional brown with matching accessories. She wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

This summer the bride completed work for her Bachelor of Arts degree at Duke University, and next January she will receive her diploma magna cum laude. While at Duke she was tapped for membership into Ivy, a scholastic honorary fraternity, and was a member of Alpha Chi Omega Social Sorority.

Mr. Oakley has been a student at Duke University for three years where he held membership in the Pre-Medical Society and in Delta Sigma Phi Social Fraternity. He has been awarded a Z. Smith Reynolds Scholarship for four years of medical school at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem. Following completion of his degree in medicine, the scholarship grants him two additional years of either hospital or post graduate training.

The couple will reside in Winston-Salem upon their return from a wedding trip to Western North Carolina.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Bryant entertained at a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Assisting with receiving were Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Bailey Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Uran Cox, Judge, and Mrs. Dink James, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Roseveare, Mr. and Mrs. D. C.

Wade, all from Greenville, and Mr and Mrs. Colon McLean of Washington.

Presiding at the punch bowl, an antique cut glass bowl that was used at the wedding reception on January 1, 1908, for the bride's paternal grandparents, were Mrs. John G. Clark Sr., Mrs. W. M. Johnston, and Mrs. N. O. Warren.

They were assisted in serving by Mrs. J. Bryan Brown, Mrs. Roy Coburn, Mrs. J. S. Jenkins, Mrs. I. B. Koonce, Donna Kay Cain, Flora MacDonald Gammon, and Linda Hunning of Greenville, and the following cousins of the bride and the bridegroom: Dianne Britton of Williamsburg, Va.; Leigh Deeds of Durham; Brenda Ann Gray of Stokes; and Velma Gray Harrison of Williamston.

Rehearsal Dinner

Honoring the Oakley-Bryant wedding party and out-of-town guests, a dinner at the Greenville Country Club prior to the rehearsal on Friday evening was given by Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Bailey Jr., the Rev. and Mrs. T. M. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Dunn, Mrs.

Charles Horne Sr., Mrs. W. C. Humbert, Judge and Mrs. Dink James, Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Koonce, and Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Steelman.

Cake Cutting

Following the rehearsal for the Oakley-Bryant wedding, a cake cutting was given by Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Gray at the Carrington home. Pink and white appointments were used throughout the home.

After the bride and the bridegroom cut the traditional first slice of the wedding cake, the bridegroom's mother served cake and the bride's mother poured punch.

Wedding Breakfast

The Greenville Country Club was the setting for the wedding breakfast honoring the Oakley-Bryant wedding party, family, and out-of-town guests at 11:30 Saturday morning. Hostesses were Mrs. D. A. We'll Need New School Facilities

It seems apparent from the initial enrollment figures for the Greenville City Schools this year that Greenville must begin soon to make plans for additional school facilities to alleviate the crowded conditions existing now in some of the city's schools and to provide for the increased enrollment in years to come.

In all probability, the Greenville School Board—like most other local school boards throughout the state—has marked time with its plans for new construction waiting to see what steps would be taken on the national and state levels toward financial assistance for school construction. North Carolina, at the state level, has done the same thing, waiting to see what Congress was going to do with the President's proposal for federal aid to education.

Congress has turned down the proposal for federal funds to be used in constructing public schools except in places where dependents of a large number of military personnel or federal employees are involved. At the state level, North Carolina is just beginning to formulate its state-wide plans after delaying six months to see what Uncle Sam was going to do.

The fact that the initial enrollment in Greenville's schools for this new year was up more than 200 from the opening day of school last year, plus the fact that total enrollment probably will go up an additional hundred in the near future, suggests that the city school officials should not delay any longer in formulating their own plans for expanding school facilities.

They could, of course, wait another six months, or a year or longer, to see what, if anything, the state is going to do in the way of providing funds for school construction. But during that period enrollment figures will continue to rise, and in all probability another school year would be underway before additional facilities were available. And there is always the possibility that the anticipated state program will not materialize—as was the case with the federal program. The matter therefore would come to rest with the local officials anyway. Such an eventuality would mean that considerably more valuable time would have been lost without gaining new classrooms.

If one takes as a rule a thumb that about 30 students should be in each classroom, the estimated 300 additional students in Greenville's schools this year means that at least 10 more classrooms are needed now than when schools closed last spring. In addition to that, one must consider the fact that in some of the grades in the city schools this year there are more than 40 students . . . with more expected to enroll in the weeks ahead.

In our opinion it would be unwise for Greenville to delay any longer before it begins making its own plans for providing the additional school facilities which are needed. Time is already running out if additional facilities are to be ready for occupancy even by the time the 1962 term of school opens a year from now.

Governor Turns To Road Safety

By LYNN NISBET
HIGHWAY SAFETY — During the last session of the Legislature Governor Sanford was subjected to rather caustic criticism for his failure to lend a hand in the enactment of highway safety laws. Sponsors of safety bills complained that just a word from down stairs at the proper time would have saved their program. The Governor let it be known he favored tighter safety laws, but he declined to let advocacy of any bill interfere with or hazard enactment of his quality education program.

Now that the quality education wagon is on the road, even if it has not moved far yet, the Governor is turning attention to traffic safety. That does not mean he is deserting the quality education project. He says he expects to keep prodding professional people and parents to make the fullest possible use of the additional facilities provided by the General Assembly. However, he believes that the extra money and improved administration made possible by legislation which he so strongly championed, now puts primary responsibility on the administrators, teachers and patrons in the schools.

His attitude is the Governor and the General Assembly have done their main job, and while both must see that intent of the law is carried out, the actual operation is up to the folks in the field. Rumors have been current since adjournment of the General Assembly that Governor Sanford would substitute traffic safety in place of quality education as the battle cry for his organization in political activities next summer and in the 1963 Legislature.

NOT WAITING — The Governor told newsmen at his latest conference that he has no idea of waiting until 1963 to launch a safety campaign. In fact, it has already been launched. The North Carolina Traffic Safety Council, Inc., has been organized and has a war chest of more than $15,000 contributed by business men and corporations in North Carolina. One of the first acts of this safety council was to call a meeting of all traffic court judges to discuss problems of law enforcement.

ures will continue to rise, and in all probability another school year would be underway before additional facilities were available. And there is always the possibility that the anticipated state program will not materialize—as was the case with the federal program. The matter therefore would come to rest with the local officials anyway. Such an eventuality would mean that considerably more valuable time would have been lost without gaining new classrooms.

If one takes as a rule a thumb that about 30 students should be in each classroom, the estimated 300 additional students in Greenville's schools this year means that at least 10 more classrooms are needed now than when schools closed last spring. In addition to that, one must consider the fact that in some of the grades in the city schools this year there are more than 40 students . . . with more expected to enroll in the weeks ahead.

In our opinion it would be unwise for Greenville to delay any longer before it begins making its own plans for providing the additional school facilities which are needed. Time is already running out if additional facilities are to be ready for occupancy even by the time the 1962 term of school opens a year from now.

So Many Motorists Had Lights Burning!

During this holiday weekend a large percentage of motorists in North Carolina were cooperating with the Highway Patrol "Light Your Pledge for Safety" campaign.

On the streets and on the highways there were many automobiles whose headlights were burning during daylight hours. As the holiday weekend progressed into the final day today, the number of automobile headlights glowing during the day seemed to increase.

In spite of the fact that North Carolina's accident toll during this holiday weekend has mounted steadily since Friday, there can be no question about the fact that the burning lights have reminded many drivers of the danger on the highways. Neither can there be any question about the fact that these reminders have contributed to a safer situation than otherwise would have been the case on the state's highways during the holiday.

The large number of motorists who were burning their headlights during the daylight hours is indicative of the desire of most motorists to cooperate in any way possible to make the highways of the state safer. It is the kind of driver participation in highway safety campaigns that eventually will lead to safer travel for the people of North Carolina.

Tax Overhaul Is Not In Sight

By RALPH ROBEY
At last it is positive that we shall not have a general overhaul of our tax system by this session of the Congress. This has been made clear by a statement issued by the Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee, through Chairman Wilbur Mills. The explanation given is that there is not enough time remaining to perfect a bill and carry it through. This, at best, is only part of the reason for not trying to have a bill introduced.

President Kennedy sent his tax message to the Congress last April 20, and the House Ways and Means Committee started hearings on May 3, with Secretary of the Treasury Dillon as the first witness. He supported every one of the President's recommendations, and so did other spokesmen for the Administration. But with practically no exceptions all other witnesses objected to the program.

The particular point which aroused the greatest opposition was the cockeyed proposal offered as a means for stimulating greater investment in plant and equipment by business. This was not a change in depreciation law, which is badly needed, but a tax credit the amount of which was to be determined by its relation to the flow of funds from existing depreciation schedules. Had the suggestion been adopted the loss of revenue, according to the estimate of the Treasury, would have been $1.7 billion, and this was to be made up by closing various so-called loopholes.

Even the Ways and Means Committee refused to buy this fantastic proposal, and, in its place, tentatively adopted a plan for giving a credit of 8 percent across the board for investment in tangible personal property. This was an improvement, but still left much to be desired and most organized business still opposed it.

The Administration's recommendations for offsetting the revenue loss from its tax credit on investment were extremely broad and varied. One was to place a top dollar limit that business could deduct as a legitimate expense. Another

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE PATTERN MAY BE REPEATED
All Bible students have been struck by the fact that the patriarch Abraham lived 2000 years B.C., that King David lived 1000 years B.C., and that 1000 years after David's time, Christ was born. Abraham was the first man to possess religious faith as we know it today. David was the founder of a spiritual kingdom of which the Bible assures us there is to be no end. Jesus gave us the imperishable gospel and history is dated from his birth.

Nothing of unusual consequence happened in the year A.D. 1000, although many people believed that the world would end at that time. We are now approaching Doesn't It Sometimes Worry You, Nikky?

Labor's Outlook Changes

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The attitude of American labor has, on the whole, changed since the unions have become enormously rich and the maintenance of union membership depends upon the prosperity of particular industries. For instance, some unions are losing members because the industries are being destroyed by competition from abroad and a sufficient loss of membership could lessen the significance of the union.

The coal industry, which for many years played a vital role in labor affairs, is rapidly losing in significance. In fact, the industry has suffered so from the substitution of natural gas and petroleum products for coal that West Virginia, which prospered on coal, is suffering economic distress. Also, as fewer workers are employed in the coal industry, the union loses membership. The days of John Mitchell and of John L. Lewis, when the United Mine Workers was the leading union in the United States are gone not because of labor union mismanagement but because the role of the coal industry has changed in the American economy. In the days of Mark Hanna, it was industry which demanded protection. The high tariff existed to protect infant industries. Today big industries have branches and subsidiaries scattered throughout the world. Their natural interests are mixed. An American automobile company may not deal with Red China or with Castro. This company's subsidiary, situated in Canada, not only may deal with Red China and Cuba, but under certain circumstances must obey Canada's policy on this subject. Thus, American capital may be used against the United States. In fact, certain American plants, established in Europe with the object of dealing with Iron Curtain countries, do in effect, betray the best interests of the United States. American labor has, on the whole, been uncompromisingly anti-Communist. Communist influence has disappeared altogether from the A.F.L.-C.I.O. and no important labor leader, no matter what his attitude was in the 1930's, would today join even a remote front organization.

When Mikoyan came to this country to seduce American industry, he met with considerable success among businessmen and bankers but he was given an antagonistic reception by American labor leaders. The same happened to Khrushchev. This attitude of American labor expresses itself even in such episodes as American longshoremen refusing to load or unload Communist goods.

The tariff is not an immediate issue in this country but some labor unions are demanding to know why their industries are being destroyed and their people put out of work because of the import of foreign goods, manufactured by lower priced labor. Often foreign governments subsidize their own industries to sell goods in the American market in order to get American dollars. This question will loom larger during the next few years, the more labor unions become conscious of the terrible cost in jobs and similar policies.

In a word, instead of American industry demanding a protective tariff, it is American labor which is already clamoring for protection. From a practical standpoint, unemployment is damaging in many ways. First of all, is the lack of family income. Unemployment must be measured not only by a total lack of work but also by partial lack of work. The man who works 20 hours a week is half-employed, which means that his family income has been decreased. If we take present figures and analyze them from that standpoint between 7,500,000 and 10,000,000 Americans are unemployed. Labor unions take this seriously.

Secondly, there has been an astonishing shift from manufacturing to service industries. The largest union in the United States, the Teamsters Union, is engaged in a service industry. Many of the older unions are losing members to the newer service industries.

Finally, it is to be noted that the type of leader that modern labor produces in the United States is, on the whole, professional rather than political. Even a union managed by James Hoffa, who does play politics, is in its upcoming echelons increasingly professional. The Secretary of Labor, Arthur Goldberg, is an unusual personality who brings to the (Continued on Page 6)

Other Editors Saying Not A True American

(Washington Daily News)

It is singular to us that people will get about the business of creating trouble and tension and then later yell "persecution." The present troubles in the Monroe area can apparently be traced to one man who dresses like Fidel Castro, wears a beard and a beret, and who openly admires the Cuban dictator. Some time ago Robert F. Williams allegedly said that "we should meet force with force."

If half of what we read about Williams is true, then he is not a true American. He believes in agitation in much the same sense that a communist believes in revolution. A month ago we would have said that the best thing to do with a man of this type is to buy him a one-way ticket to Cuba. Today he is charged with the serious crime of kidnapping. And if he is finally caught and tried and convicted, he is looking the prison walls straight in the face.

One Robert F. Williams, admittedly an agitator, can do more to stir up trouble and tension than a hundred dedicated and law abiding Americans can keep down. We have said many times before that when people set out to cause trouble, then it is a safe bet that we are going to have a lot of trouble.

These agitators flaunt the very laws under which they seek protection when they are caught. Williams surely will be caught soon if he is still in America. If he is in Cuba, perhaps he will now choose to stay there rather than return. If he is caught and brought to trial, he should be given a trial so fair that even the other agitators who are of a like mind with him will have no excuse to yell "persecution." If he is found guilty, he should be given the full extent of the law. If he is innocent, he should be freed.

The sad truth is that a man can be an agitator and not actually break the law. He can skirt around the law and cause great trouble and pain, but when brought to court, there seem to be no laws on the books under which he can be tried. In this case now a charge of kidnapping has been leveled against Williams.

We have no sympathy with "freedom riders" and others who make it their business to cause trouble. There is enough unrest in the world right now without professional agitators plying their trade.

We do not look upon Robert F. Williams as being a true American. Whatever heritage he might have possessed, whatever measure of sympathy and understanding he might have expected, and whatever mercy he might have needed, all now have gone by the boards. Even members of his own race have expressed sincere disgust and utter distress at his actions.

Robert F. Williams has forfeited whatever dignity is attached to that great label "American citizen."

Needed: Lots Of Water

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.—Most writers are talking about the population "explosion" ahead of us; but no one explains how the greatly increased population is to get enough fresh water for drinking and irrigation. Doctors tell me to drink one glass of water each morning while I am dressing, followed by two more during the forenoon. I drink very little water after 4 P.M. and never touch liquor or highballs.

As three-fifths or more of the world is covered by salt water, it may be better to try to turn it into fresh water. We may do far better to learn to live off the vegetable products of the ocean, as we do its fish etc. However, Congress has appropriated money to build two experimental plants for desalinating water— one on the East Coast and one on the West Coast. All chemists know this can be done; but it is very expensive. The Ionics Inc. Company of Cambridge, Mass., has the best success therewith; but I hear they recommend only that the "brackishness" be taken out of an existing source of water supply. I have recently visited such a plant. It is both practical and economical.

The plan which interests me greatly is to bring fresh water from Canada. Northwest Canada has three large lakes that drain the rainfall northward into the Arctic Ocean—which is very wasteful. Although it would be very expensive, great canals could be built for turning these streams and reversing their flow southward. Then this fresh water would be used to irrigate the dry plains of Montana, the Dakotas, Wyoming, Arizona, and New Mexico. For further details, readers should write Mr. John P. Jones, Jr., of Homewood, Alabama. The Atomic Energy Commission may now be considering such a "peace" project for fifty years hence.

In view of the projected increase in population and greater per capita use, the cost of fresh water and "soft drinks" will increase. To help with this problem the first step might be for cities to build a separate plant to distribute only salt water. Thus each house and industry would have two water bills to pay. Unless there is a World War III, homes and factories with successful driven wells will be in demand, as will those bordering non-polluted rivers, streams, and lakes. My reference to World War III concerns the danger from "fall-out" when using water from streams, lakes, and uncovered reservoirs.

Covered wells, moreover, are wholly dependent upon electricity from pumping. Hence, as a part of any "shelters" such as the Civil Defense agencies are recommending, there should be included fully charged storage batteries along with the food and other needed supplies. Fresh water may be frozen and shipped as frozen food is now shipped. The purpose of this column now is to get readers thinking about when an economic revolution is ahead based upon a scarcity of fresh water.

When I was a boy most homes had brick cisterns in their cellars. These were kept filled by the rain which fell upon the roofs. People who could not afford cisterns went to the "town pump" twice a day to fill their pitchers and pails. Each community would have several of these "town pumps" for the convenience of the people. Sources of diphtheria, typhoid, and other diseases were traced to these public pumps—leading to the installation of city water systems and later to municipal sewerage. I have a granddaughter who lives at St. Thomas, one of the Virgin Islands. She has a cistern, but there is no rain to fill it. She drinks and uses water shipped by boat from Puerto Rico.

Therefore, my readers to consider the fresh water problem when locating their home. Select a state and city which borders an unpolluted running stream of river. Such a location today is worth a premium over inland locations. Look ahead and speculate on the information given in this column. You can make money therefrom when and if you ever need to sell. If you wish to speculate, but some sure land—well drained—along with life insurance and good stocks. Man can always build more houses and develop more subdivisions; but only God can make more natural fresh water.

Assets That May Be Forgotten

By ELMER ROESSNER

As business grows more complicated, many enterprisers may be diverted from close appraisal of their company's assets. Lying idle in the corporations are many valued assets—let's say $1 billion worth—that the owners are not utilizing and, in many cases, don't realize.

Here are some examples: Air rights If the company owns real estate, it usually owns the air rights above it and these rights can often be sold or leased to other businesses. Some companies have sold the air rights over their parking lots to people who have built structures above them, leaving the parking fields intact. Railroads, pinched more than ever, are selling or leasing rights above yards and urban tracks. Franchises: Many companies have franchising rights they do not appreciate. A company, for example, may develop and promote a cake in its local market. Companies in other markets can be sold the franchise to use the recipe and the name to sell the same cake. Firms elsewhere can be franchised to use any distinctive product or name that has proved effective in one market.

TRADEMARKS AND PATENTS Trademarks: Under recent changes in the law, the use of a trademark can be licensed to others. There are thousands of existing trademarks that could be licensed for use in non-competitive areas, or for other products within the scope of that mark. Patents: In the files of many companies are patents for devices that are not being fully exploited. Patents, including those used in only one part of the country, can be licensed for use elsewhere. Step 1: Search company records for patents; Step 2: talk to Commerce Department field offices about having the patents listed as available in the patent publications; step 3: don't stop there, but with salesman, mail offers and other advertising seek manufacturers who will pay for use of the patent.

SPACE Floor rights: There are many ways of making profits out of floor space not fully utilized. In a retail establishment, space can be leased to vendors of merchandise. (Look at how supermarkets have converted space to profitable selling of magazines, encyclopedias, variety items, toys, etc.) In larger stores, whole departments can be leased. Few departments stores operate their own fur, jewelry and millinery departments. Even in small stores, space for vending machines can be rented; in plants, space for other kinds of vending machines yield profits or otherwise wasted space. Reality: Many companies own real estate not thoroughly used. A plot held for future expansion can often bring in revenue. In some cities, stores can rent driveways, doorways and parking lots after hours to small enterprisers.

Credit operators: Many stores are finding that it is more profitable to lease or sell their credit operations to factors and others. A financing company will often take over the credit end of a business, returning greater profits to the company while it allows it to devote major energies to selling instead of banking.

There are many other convertible assets. A store may profit by selling its delivery system, or undertaking delivery for other stores. It may gain by taking fuller advantage of advertising materials offered by suppliers, or taking greater advantage of co-operative advertising deals. It may make space in its own advertising available to suppliers and others at a profitable rate. A Christmas catalog, for example, can often be made more profitable by payments by other business who want to share the results.

Miss Barbee And Mr. Gray Marry In Bethel

BETHEL—On Saturday, September 2, at 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon, Miss Patsy Ellen Barbee, daughter of the Reverend and Mrs. W. Barbee of Bethel, and James William Gray, Jr., of Enfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. James William Gray, Sr., were united in marriage in the Bethel Methodist Church. The Reverend Mr. Barbee, pastor of the church, officiated at his daughter's wedding.

Wedding music was rendered by Miss Lois Turner of Wadesboro, organist, and by Mrs. Tom Andrews, Jr., of Bethel, soloist. Mrs. Andrews sang "Through The Years" by Youman, "Thou Art So Like A Flower" by Chadwick, and "How Do I Love Thee?" by Browning. "O Perfect Love" was sung at the conclusion of the ceremony.

The chancel of the church was decorated with palms, southern greenery, tall standard baskets of white chrysanthemums, and pom-poms; and seven-branched spiral candelabra containing cathedral candles. A satin prayer-pillow centered the altar. The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Frank I. Robinson of Clinton, wore a wedding gown of tulle and lace over satin. The dress was designed with a portrait neckline and with gathered tulle inserts which graced the front of the bodice of imported chantilly lace. Vertical bands of lace accented the full skirt of tulle which extended into a sweep train in the back. The bride wore a short veil of silk illusion which was attached to a diamond-shape silk-petalled hat centered with a miniature crown of seed pearls. Her flowers were white roses showered with stephanotis.

Mrs. Leo R. LaJole, Jr., of Miami, Fla., was her sister's matron-of-honor and Miss Betty Gray of Enfield, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. They were attired in identical street-length dresses of Romance Blue silk organza over taffeta. The dresses were designed with scoop necklines and bouffant skirts which were accented in the back with puffs centered with roses of the blue organza. Their hats were five-petalled roses of silk organza over circles of net and they carried nosegays of white asters.

Little Miss Lisa Patricia LaJole, of Miami, Fla., niece of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a dress of white organdy, designed with a full skirt accented with lace inserts. The white bandeau of the dress was embroidered with delicate blue flowers. Her nosegay was composed of corresponding blue pom-poms and miniature chrysanthemums.

Master Richard Leo LaJole, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. He was attired in a white linen suit and carried a lace-encircled pillow of white satin.

Mr. James William Gray, Sr., served his son as best man. Ushers were: Eugene Gray and Howard Gray of Enfield, uncles of the bridegroom, Leo Richard LaJole, Jr., of Miami, Fla., brother-in-law of the bride, and James Lee Parker of Enfield.

Mrs. Barbee, mother of the bride, wore a street-length dress of turquoise-mist all silk peau de soie, fashioned princess-style with a square neckline, a bodice of chantilly lace trimmed with iridescent sequins and attached to a fold which extended into panels in the back. She wore a matching half-hat of flower design and her corsage was a white orchid.

Mrs. Gray, mother of the groom, wore a sheath dress of moss green lace over taffeta, black accessories, and a white orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home in honor of the bridal couple and their wedding party. The color scheme of pink was used in the lovely floral arrangements and in the refreshments.

Immediately after the reception Mr. and Mrs. Gray left for a wedding trip to unannounced points. The bride wore a kelly green dress of original design which was complimented with a short box coat of the same material and her accessories were of matching color.

The bride is a graduate of Enfield High School where she was valedictorian of her graduating class, and of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro where she graduated in 1960. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honor society, and is a Cum Laude Graduate of Woman's College. Presently she is working on a Masters of Library Science Degree at the University of North Carolina.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Enfield High School. He attended State College and for the past four years he has been an Electrician-Mate Second Class Chief Petty Officer in the United States Navy.

Smiths Will Reside At Chicod

In a ceremony Sunday, September 3, Miss Carolyn Ann Jones became the bride of Phillip Wesley Smith in the Sheldermine Pentecostal Holiness Church at three o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. W. B. Howell, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy L. Jones of Route 1, Vanceboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Smith of Route 2, Greenville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Grady Smith, pianist, and Mrs. Grover Morris, vocalist. Mrs. Morris sang "Because" and "Whither Thou Goest." "The Lord's Prayer" was sung as the benediction. Traditional marches were played as the processional and recessional.

The ceremony was held in a setting of palms and other greenery. Two tall baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums and two seven-branched candelabras holding cathedral candles flanked the altar. The couple knelt on the prie dieu for the benediction. The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. She wore a long gown of Chantilly lace featuring long sleeves ending in calla points at the wrists with a modified Sabrina neckline. Her fingertip veil was attached to a cap of illusion and lace embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a prayer book, topped with an orchid and other summer flowers.

Mrs. Phillip Wesley Smith

Miss Pansy Jones, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a street length dress of pink lace over taffeta. Her headpiece and mitts were of matching lace. She carried a cascade of pink and blue carnations. Bridesmaids were Miss Betsy Smith, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Edith Porter, aunt of the bride, and Miss Kay Mills. They wore blue lace dresses identical to that of the maid of honor. They also carried cascade bouquets of pink and blue carnations.

Miss Judy Jones, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Her dress was identical to the maid of honor's. She carried pink and blue carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by his cousin, Ephraim Smith, as best man. Ushers were Franklin Porter, uncle of the bride, Ola Linwood Porter, Clarence Mills and Wayland Hardee, all of Ayden. Wayne Jones, brother of the bride, was ringbearer. Mrs. Jones, mother of the bride, chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of pink lace with which she wore matching accessories and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Smith, mother of the groom, wore a navy dress with matching accessories and a pink carnation corsage. Mrs. Ola Porter, grandmother of the bride, wore a baby blue dress with white accessories and a red rose corsage.

The bride and the bridegroom are both graduates of Chicod High School. They are now engaged in farming.

For traveling, the bride chose a fall cotton suit with black kid accessories and the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will be at home at Route 2, Greenville.

Cake Cutting
After the wedding rehearsal, the Smith-Jones wedding party and out-of-town guests were entertained by the bride's parents at a cake cutting.

Complains Women Hide Beauty Frills

FLORENCE, Italy—(WNS)—Women cannot compete with the exciting, frothy femininity of the dummies in the windows of lingerie shops, complained Luigi Bellini, the 83-year-old actor-painter-poet.

He said women should stop wearing lovely, lacy, beribboned stuff underneath and start displaying it on the outside.

"When I pass a lingerie shop, I cannot help but wink at the dummies," the short, plump bachelor confessed.

After admiring a window full of fluff and froth, Bellini looks eagerly for a real, live woman instead of a dummy.

"What a disappointment!" he moaned. "The live lady has on either a tight, straight sausage skirt and a Truman shirt, or a suit like mine, but even more shapeless."

"Even a soda jerker knows enough to put the whipped cream on top instead of hiding it underneath."

Male Heads Nursing School

NEWARK, N. J.—(WNS)—Robert E. Briggs, a male nurse, has just been appointed head of an all-girl school of nursing at St. Michael's Hospital. The 38-year-old RN recently completed a study of the use of male nurses in delivering babies. He reported the mothers bore no resentment against the male nurses.

During His Lifetime Coburn Lived It Up

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The will of the late Charles Coburn contained a classic understatement—"I am content with the knowledge that I have lived."

The 84-year-old actor, until he married a widow more than 40 years his junior last year, was one of Hollywood's amazing swingers.

He lived the kind of life Frank Sinatra would have loved to live. Once I spotted him up in Las Vegas at 8 a. m. He was surrounded by a couple of showgirls in their early twenties. Charlie was wide awake and the girls were half-dead.

Coburn called me over. "Hey, Jim, where in the hell can you go around this town at 8 a. m. Everything's folded up."

At this, one of the showgirls could do nothing but moan.

The other pleaded: "Take him with you. He's killing us. He hasn't stopped since played too much slow, dreamy music.

"Let's rock it, boys," he would yell.

Once he told me the two secrets of his amazing vitality.

"I believe a man is a damn fool if he takes a drink before 40 and a bigger damn fool if he doesn't take plenty after he's 40. 'I never fight sleep. When I feel sleepy, I sleep no matter where I am.'"

I never saw him asleep in a nightclub but once after his recent marriage to the widow of an opera star. I watched Charlie snooze comfortably through a symphony concert.

After the concert he was the life of the party at a swinging soiree in Beverly Hills.

"I know when to save myself," he smiled.

Baker-Sherrod Vows Spoken Here

MRS. JOE BAKER

The marriage of Miss Geraldine Sherrod and Mr. Joe Baker was solemnized Sunday afternoon, August 20, at four o'clock in the Sycamore Hill Baptist Church. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Leareau Sherrod and the late Charlie Sherrod and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Baker.

The Rev. J. A. Nimmo, pastor of the church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums banked with emerald greens and seven-branched candelabra with tall cathedral candles.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. W. H. Davenport, organist, and Miss Mavis Gardner, soloist, cousin of the bride. Miss Gardner sang "O Perfect Love," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her brother, Charlie Sherrod Jr., the bride wore a gown of silk organza with a bouffant skirt appliqued with Chantilly lace and embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. Her headpiece was of silk organza styled in a large rose with a butterfly veil. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid.

Miss Delois Sherrod of Plainfield, N. J., sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a lavender silk peau de goie dress with a detachable skirt in sheath effect and a bouffant overskirt and matching headpiece and slippers. She carried a nosegay of yellow mums and pom poms.

Bridesmaids were Miss Mildred Sherrod of Emerson, N. J., sister of the bride, Miss Dorothy Baker, sister of the groom, and Miss Sylvia Yarrell of Brooklyn, N. Y. They wore dresses of sunny yellow identical to that of the honor attendant. They wore matching headpieces and slippers and carried nosegays of yellow mums and lavender pom poms.

Miss Berial Gall Gardner, cousin of the bride, dressed in white, was flower girl. She carried a white basket trimmed with a lavender mum holding yellow rose petals. Ernest Carlton Adams Jr. served as ring bearer.

Quinton Baker served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Earl Gardner, cousin of the bride, John Lloyd, and James Gardner. Door ushers were Alton Harris and Hugh Morris Grimes.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Sherrod wore a street length sheath dress of Nile green silk organza over taffeta and matching accessories, and a purple orchid corsage. Mrs. Baker, mother of the bridegroom, wore a beige sheath dress with green accessories and a purple orchid corsage.

The bride and groom are graduates of C. M. Eppees High School. The groom served four years with the U.S. Marines.

Following the ceremony, the bride's sisters entertained at a reception at the Elk Hall.

For traveling, the bride wore a mint green silk suit with bone accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside in Newark, N. J.

Parties

The bride was feted at showers given by her sister, Delois Sherrod in Plainfield, N. J. and by the Youth Department of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church.

An after-rehearsal party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Gardner in honor of the bridal party. The hostesses were Mrs. Rufus Gardner, Mrs. Dixie Adams, and Misses Lillie and Annie Harris.

Requirements governing food-handling booths at the Pitt County Fair have been released by Linwood Kilpatrick of the Pitt County Health Department.

Temporary food stands and temporary drink stands are not subject to grading, but some requirements must be satisfied in order to qualify for permits. Temporary food stands and drink stands are food or drink stands which operate for a period of one week or less, as in connection with a fair, carnival, circus, public exhibition or other similar gathering.

Requirements are:

- (1) Temporary food or drink stands are to be located in relatively clean surroundings and kept in a clean and sanitary condition. They should be so constructed and arranged that food, drink, utensils and equipment will not be exposed to insects, dust and other contamination. Protection against flies and other insects shall be provided by screening, or by effective use of fans. Sawdust, shavings or equal may be accepted as satisfactory floors.
- (2) Where food or griddles are exposed to the public or to dust or insects, they shall be protected by glass, or otherwise, on the front, top and ends and exposed only as much as may be necessary to permit handling and serving of the food.
- (3) All griddles, warmers, spatulas, refrigerators and other utensils and equipment shall be cleaned routinely and maintained in a sanitary manner.
- (4) Running water under pressure shall be provided. The water supply shall be of a safe sanitary quality. Provision shall be made for heating water for the washing of utensils and equipment.
- (5) Facilities shall be provided for employees' handwashing. These may consist of a pan, soap and single-use towels.
- (6) Adequate provision shall be made for the refrigeration of perishable food and drink, and the proper storage of other foods and equipment.
- (7) Garbage and refuse shall be collected and stored in standard water tight garbage cans provided with tight-fitting lids. Garbage and refuse shall be removed at least daily and disposed of in a sanitary manner. Waste water shall be so disposed of as not to create a nuisance. Each operator shall keep his immediate premises clean.
- (8) All food served shall be clean wholesome and free from adulteration. Highly perishable foods such as cream-filled pastries and pies, and salad such as potato, chicken, ham, crab, etc. shall not be served in a temporary food stand. Hamburgers shall be obtained from an approved market or plant in patties separated by clean paper, or other wrapping material and ready to cook. Wrapped sandwiches shall be obtained from an approved source. Poultry shall be prepared for cooking in an approved market or plant. Drinks served shall be limited to bottled beverages from approved dispensing devices.

Warm And Humid Weather Slated During Holiday

Warm and humid weather with chance of thundershowers will predominate the Labor Day holiday, the weatherman predicted for Greenville.

At 8 o'clock this morning the thermometer at the Greenville Utilities Plant registered a warm 80 degrees, L. M. Bullock reported. Sunday's temperatures were a high of 97 and a low of 74 degrees, he said.

The Tar River this morning was at a four-foot standstill, and there was very little wind to cool things.

Some rain was reported in scattered sections of Greenville yesterday afternoon, but no rain occurred at the utilities plant, so that none was recorded.

For Tuesday, the weatherman has predicted a continuation of the weekend weather, with warm and humid continuing and a chance of widely scattered afternoon thundershowers.

Shriners Selling Bowl Tickets

Pitt County Shriners are selling tickets to the Sudan Temple bowl game to be played by the University of North Carolina and North Carolina State Sept. 29.

Proceeds will go to the Greenville unit of the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children. Tickets may be obtained from any Shriner or at the gate on the day of the game.

Rosalind Roulston Will Head Ass'n Committee

Rosalind Roulston, director of radio and television at East Carolina College, has accepted an appointment as chairman for education in the new Northeastern Regional Mental Health Association, a division of the state Mental Health Association.

The purpose of the regional committee which Miss Roulston will head is to improve the programs of county chapters in the Northeastern part of the state.

As one of forty North Carolinians invited to be present she will attend Sept. 27-28 in Southern Pines, N. C., a two-day workshop sponsored by the North Carolina Mental Health Association, the Mental Health Section of the State Board of Health, and the National Institute of Mental Health.

The purpose of the workshop, according to Mrs. J. B. Spilman of Greenville, Executive Secretary of the N. C. Mental Health Association, is "to develop, in a selected group of mental health association workers, a better understanding of the mental health program, future developments and problems of the State Board of Health and the North Carolina Hospitals Board of Control."

Miss Roulston, a faculty member at East Carolina since 1955, is widely known in this section of the state as director and announcer for the weekly TV program "Let's Go To College," sponsored by East Carolina College and broadcast over Station WNCT-TV of Greenville.

Mother Learns In Shelter Stay

ROME, Ga. (AP)—A mother of three ended a week's stay in a fallout shelter Sunday, convinced that she has learned "something of importance to help my family survive in the event of a nuclear blast."

Mrs. James Birdsong, 30, entered the family's fallout shelter on Aug. 22, saying it was no publicity stunt but that she wanted to know how to care for her family if necessary.

Mrs. Birdsong said the shelter, 12 feet long, 6 feet wide and 6 feet high, "wasn't exactly like home, but then it wasn't intended to be like home. However, I'm sure that my family and I could live in the shelter fairly comfortably for whatever length of time necessary to survive."

Why Do Spots Stay In Wash-N-Wear?

Dear Mrs. L. R. D.:

It's natural to think that Wash-N-Wear fabrics have a coating that causes all soil to roll off easily in washing. That isn't so. Oily stains will penetrate the fibers then old age or heat from an iron used to "touch up" Wash-N-Wear can set a grease stain so that it cannot be removed. Of course, any garment can be soiled and usually is soiled, after a few washings, even though it does not appear to be. But if Wash-N-Wear has spots, get the garment to your drycleaner before the spots are too old or before you touch them with a hot iron.

Many customers complain about spots on Wash-N-Wear fabrics. So, Mrs. L. R. D., spots stay in Wash-N-Wear because they never have been removed entirely. Such removal requires the skill of a professional with his many implements and methods. Get your spotted Wash-N-Wear to your cleaner as soon as possible and you'll have longer pleasurable service from it.—(Adv.)

Pioneer In Auto Industry Dies

DETROIT (AP)—Lawrence P. Fisher, 72, who started as an apprentice carriage-maker at the age of 14 and rose to a directorship of General Motors Corp., died in Harper Hospital Sunday after a long illness.

Fisher was one of seven brothers who pioneered in the auto industry and had extensive holdings in other businesses.

Born in Norwalk, Ohio, Oct. 19, 1888, he went to work in 1901 for C. F. Wilson Body Co., and later joined his older brothers, who, with an uncle, Albert Fisher, founded the Fisher Body Co.

General Motors purchased an interest in the firm in 1919 and in 1926 Fisher Body Co. became a division of GM. Fisher was made a vice president of GM in 1925 and was placed in charge of the firm's Cadillac division.

Fisher introduced the LaSalle as a companion car to the Cadillac in 1927 and in 1930 introduced America's first 16-cylinder car, the Cadillac V-16. Later in the year, he introduced a Cadillac V-12.

Fisher, a GM director since 1924, became vice president in charge of the body division in 1941.

In 1944, Fisher and three of his brothers who held GM executive positions resigned from their posts. No reason ever was given. Lawrence and his brother Edward, however, continued as directors.

The Fisher brothers had been building up other financial holdings. As early as 1929 their industrial and financial empire was believed to be worth $3.5 billion.

Their other interests have included the towering Fisher Building in Detroit, the National Bank of Detroit, a boat building company, several small manufacturing companies and the investment firm of Fisher & Co.

Art Dept. Offering Free Classes To Young People

As a public service to Greenville young people who are interested in art, the department of art at East Carolina College is offering this fall classes for 25 junior and senior high school students and for 25 pupils in the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades. Dr. Wellington B. Gray, director of the department, has announced.

Entitled "Participation" and presented this fall as a new venture of the art department, the courses will be offered free of charge to those enrolled. Materials for use by students will be supplied gratis.

Each of the two groups will hold a meeting once each week in the Rawl building, Dr. Gray stated. Junior and senior high school students will attend class each Tuesday from 4 to 5 p.m. Pupils in the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades will meet each Thursday from 4 to 5 p.m.

Instruction will be supervised by Ruby Claire Ball, who joined the East Carolina faculty this fall as supervisor of student teaching in art. Faculty members of the art department will act as instructors; and junior art majors at the college, as assistants.

Types of training will include drawing, painting, design, and simple crafts.

Miss Ball, who holds the A.B. degree from Berea College and the M. Ed. from the University of Virginia, is an experienced instructor who has taught art on both the public school and the college levels. She comes to the college here from Winona State College in Minnesota. Her previous assignments include public-school teaching in Winona, Minnesota; public relations work at Berea, Kentucky; and direction of the department of art at Virginia International College.

Students interested in the "participation" classes are asked to enroll at the following place and time: Tuesday, Sept. 5 and 7 and Thursday, Sept. 12 and 14, at Miss Ball's office, third floor, Rawl building, from 4:00 to 4:30 p. m.

Classes will begin on Tuesday, Sept. 19.

The President, his wife and daughter Caroline, 3 1/2, braved threatening weather Sunday and spent two hours on foggy Nantucket Sound aboard the 52-foot cruiser Marlin.

Despite the overcast, chilly weather, Mrs. Kennedy did a little water skiing — including some fancy, one-legged turns. She wore a rubber skin diving suit as the speedboat Caroline K. allowed her over the choppy water. The President's youngest brother, Edward (Ted) Kennedy and his wife, Joan, also were aboard the Marlin. Edward went water skiing, too.

Kennedy Family Together Today

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy and his family combined the Labor Day holiday with a homecoming and birthday festivities today as the chief executive spent his 10th summer weekend on Cape Cod.

The outlook was good for another cruise on Nantucket Sound, and the President's father, Joseph P. Kennedy, was on hand to enjoy the family fun.

The elder Kennedy came back to Cape Cod Sunday after vaca-

The Daily Newspaper
Is the Safer, Surer
Advertising Investment

Two questions influence the choice of an advertising medium. First, what does it cost to reach a person with a sales message? Second, how many of those you reach will buy? A typical advertiser can reach a person through newspapers at least as economically as through other media. And the newspaper delivers an audience that likes to read advertising, prefers newspapers with advertising, and shops from advertising. Such an audience guarantees more sales action per message delivered, and makes newspapers the safer, surer ad medium. Why not send the daily newspaper to bat for you?

Even The 'Stopgap School Bill' Threatened

WASHINGTON (AP) — A stopgap school bill as Congress rounds into the final stretch, threatened today to block passage of a Kennedy education program.

Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich., said he isn't going to sit still and let opponents of school construction and teacher salary aid whisk through bills limited to continuing federal help for so-called impacted areas and for student loans.

"If Congress is not willing to pass a full-fledged aid to education bill, then let the boys who are against it go home empty-handed and face the music," he said. "That filibuster business works both ways."

Civil rights proponents are seeking to substitute for the present debate-limitation requirement of approval by two-thirds of those voting a provision allowing three-fifths of those voting to close debate.

After 17 Years, Awaiting Orders

TYLER, Tex. (AP)—They told John Markowitz to wait. Like a good soldier he's been waiting—17 years.

Markowitz, inducted into the Army May 1, 1944, is waiting for his first order.

If the Army isn't going to give him any orders, he says, he wants a discharge.

The east Texas insurance man told the Dallas News troubles started in Pecos, Tex., when he was classified by his draft board as I-A, limited service, because of a skin condition.

In 1944 he went to Ft. Bliss, Tex., where he took an oath inducting him into the Army of the United States.

Then he was told to return home and be ready for basic training in 21 days.

Back in Pecos, Markowitz put on a going-out-of-business sale at his shoe store.

He later learned that the Army was no longer taking limited service men and when he notified his draft board he was told his classification would be changed to I-A. He was told to wait for orders.

Markowitz has been waiting ever since. Markowitz went to the Veterans Administration a week ago to get his problem straightened out. He doesn't expect to get back pay for 17 years.

"I'd just like an honorable discharge," he says.

Western Historical Novel The BURNWOOD MEN

CHAPTER 20

In the quiet of the tent, Dove Demarest could hear the spoken words beyond the partition. In spite of herself, she listened.

The voice of Chance Flagg broke in. "LaCroix, assuming it were possible for us to get hold of more weapons, what would be the absolute minimum that would satisfy your men?"

Dove lifted her head. Chance Flagg was the nominal commanding officer of this crude little army. He was tall and lean and fined down like many of the others, but even more bitter than most, a cashiered West Pointer, Dove guessed.

Flagg was handsome in his stony way, and in his short encounter earlier, he had been most pleasant to her. More friendly, she had to admit, than her own husband, who was terse, preoccupied, wrapped in clouds of glory.

Pierre LaCroix was answering. "We have but forty repeating rifles. For them, each one a hundred cartridges of forty-four caliber. For my other men, a hundred and fifty new repeaters, with one hundred cartridges each. And two cannons—my men love the little cannon. They will not move without them. Those are my minimum terms. Major Flagg—a hundred and fifty new rifles, twenty thousand cartridges, two cannons, our own food—and our own knives."

"You ask the impossible!" Cleland Strike snapped. "Don't you realize, LaCroix, that this will cost a fortune? Thirty thousand dollars wouldn't cover it, delivered here."

"What does cost concern me?" There was acid in the words of LaCroix. "You promised—you have guaranteed—that when I found two hundred fighting Metis to spearhead your revolt, you would furnish the money and the arms, and an equal band of trained men. M'sieu' Strike, we hold you to that promise."

"If I knew you would..." Strike said, and stopped. Dove heard his chair scrape back, heard the thud of his boots as he paced the wood floor.

"I keep my promises," he flung at LaCroix. "How do I know you will keep yours? You have promised me the fur concession, the mining concession, a monopoly on all means of transportation. But when you are in power, you can keep my men guarding the frontier, fighting off the Dominion forces while you grow stronger. How do I know you will not renege?"

"You have the word of a Metis," LaCroix said, with dangerous quietness. "M'sieu', this enterprise is based on mutual trust. But it is easier to trust when you have equal forces. Most of your men are well armed. When your men are armed equally, why then we will trust each other!"

"Are you threatening me, LaCroix? Do you want to pull out of the plan? Then go ahead. I can get Valier. I can get even the Great Louis Riel."

LaCroix laughed. "I think not, m'sieu'. Of a surety the Bois Brules would follow my good Gabriel Valier. But Gabriel is a practical man. He is not sure in his heart that our crusade will succeed. Though it must, I tell you it must succeed..."

His voice rose high, almost breaking, momentarily pitched like the voice of a fanatic. The he grew calm. "Nor would Gabriel consent to paying tribute later, as I have agreed to pay. As for Riel, m'sieu', Louis Riel is a dreamer, a dreamer of dreams. He uses the law to get justice from Old Tomorrow, the man Macdonald. He will never give up the cause of the Metis. But he will go along the legal way until all resources are exhausted, before he will take up arms again. This is too slow for me. M'sieu', I am also a practical man. I believe we will win. So, m'sieu', do not talk to me of Valier and Riel. Both of them may be better men than Pierre LaCroix, but they lack a certain hard ruthlessness of spirit that will, to win its ends, even make an alliance with such a one as you, M'sieu' Strike!"

"Why, you damn—!" Strike rasped. Dove heard the sound of a scuffle. Chance Flagg cried out, "No, no, Cle!"

There was the noise of a chair falling over, and the heavy breathing of the men. Flagg said: "We can't stand any personal feud; there's too much at stake. Come to your senses. None of us can back out now, and you both know it. Sit down here."

"He is right, M'sieu' Strike," LaCroix said tensely. "Damn it, he is," Strike said. "All right, I'll get rifles for you. And ammunition, and the two cannons. Some way. But, LaCroix—you march the day after you get them. By the following sunset I want every policeman of the Royal Mounted in Northwest Canada dead or behind bars."

"That is a bargain," LaCroix said. "Name the day."

"The 20th of August," Chance Flagg whistled softly. "That's damned few days," he said.

I like this man Valier, Tam Barrie thought. Though he has a romantic turn of mind, he's as solid as a granite boulder here."

"He is a realist enough to believe in the destiny of the Metis nation, but he can think straight enough to see the tremendous odds. He will, I think, do the best thing for his people. He would not be one to send men to death without a chance of winning justice for his people."

Since time was running out, Colly Devoe and Tam had gone to Valier with the statements of Clip O'Boyle. LaCroix was still away at the Hay Lake camp.

"I am not much surprised," Valier said gravely, when they were done. "Strike I do not trust. That is why my sister, Sophie, is housekeeper for the man. She picks up small bits of information now and again. Strike treats her well because she is good cook. But Sophie she is afraid of his terrible temper."

"Like everyone that knows the man," Colly Devoe said. "He could be a great man, Gabriel, but there's something wrong in his nature. He's like a railroad engine runnin' wild off its track, smashin' every pore devil in his road."

"I do not know what is an engine," Valier said, puffing at his stubby pipe, "but I think he is like the bull moose, who charge everything in the forest. But again, this Strike is like the caracajou, wily and cunning, his mind a secret thing."

"He is no friend of mine," Tam said. "But he is a leader. Will he lead your people straight, Gabriel?"

The Metis leader stared at him unwinking. He puffed on his pipe, then took it from his lips. He pointed the stem at Tam. "M'sieu' Barrie, our kinsmen across the border will not give up easily what they have won by their hard work, their skill—aye, even their blood. None of the Metis fear Strike. If he give us the rifle, the ammunition, we follow him. We are a proud people; we cannot live for slave. Better die quick, brave, and strong, than be tie up like dumb oxen."

"If the Metis follow Cleve Strike, plenty of them will die," Tam said bluntly. "Gabriel, do you realize the forces that will be arrayed against the Metis? No matter how brave and strong your people are..."

Valier grunted deep in his throat. "You think, young Barrie, you are saying things new to me? I know those things. And yet they are not the most deadly dangers to the success of rebellion."

"I don't understand," Tam said.

"The danger is in the nature of these my people. Forty years ago, or thirty, the Bois Brules were tireless on the trail, masters of the hunt. Even ten years ago, when they rose up in Manitoba, when they were strong enough to win. But even then they were not strong like in the old times."

He paused, staring out across the vacant land. He looked back, straight at Tam. "M'sieu', the Metis are no longer the grand voyageurs. Strong of body, yes. Good shots, good trackers, yes. But the spirit, it is not so strong as when life was a hard struggle. The Metis love too much the dance, the drink, the making of love. They get angry, they fight, but like small boys they soon forget why. The fan for a fight is bitter hungry—he hate hard and he fight hard. My people, they are fine and good, but their spirit has grown soft."

Tam's exclamation "I've got to go to Dove!" is going to get him deeper in trouble. Continue the story tomorrow.

Auto Workers Use Labor Day Preparing For Strike

Britons Conduct 'March Of Shame' On Red Embassy

LONDON (AP) — About 5,000 Britons staged a "march of shame" on the Soviet Embassy Sunday to protest the Soviet Union's resumption of nuclear tests.

Gathered under the banners of Britain's Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, the marchers more than doubled their numbers in a two-mile trek from the Thames embankment.

The demonstrators waved placards reading "Stop it Mr. K." and "Russia is shamed in the eyes of the world."

Prevented by law from entering the private road outside the embassy, the marchers stood their ground in Kensington High Street while a one-minute call was paid on the embassy by their leader, Anglican Canon John Collins of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Canon Collins presented a letter addressed to Soviet Premier Khrushchev protesting Soviet test plans. The canon said he had been assured the letter would reach Khrushchev.

H.B. Sugg High School Enrollment Hits 1,042

FARMVILLE—H. B. Sugg High School opened here last week with a total enrollment of 1,042 students, an increase by eight students over the opening day last year, Principal F. H. Mebane said.

The enrollment includes 697 in the elementary school and 345 in the high school. Many students have not returned from summer employment, Mebane pointed out.

School policies were explained to the student body on Wednesday, the first day of school, during an assembly.

Earlier, on Monday, teachers met at the school and accepted a challenge by Governor Sanford to strive for quality education in North Carolina. General policies of the Pitt County Board of Education, the local board and the school were discussed and explained by Mebane. Also, teacher assignments and schedules were evaluated and committees were appointed for the 1961-62 term. H. B. Sugg, the principal emeritus, also made remarks. Mebane entertained faculty members with the fifth annual luncheon.

On Monday afternoon, planning was continued and new teacher orientation groups were conducted by Mrs. H. W. Evans for the high school teachers and Miss E. G. Wiggins for the elementary group. Both groups were assisted by Mebane.

On Tuesday, books were issued, classrooms were prepared and orientation bulletin boards were completed. Leroy Redden, owner and manager of a Farmville cleaners, entertained the faculty at a luncheon and welcomed teachers back to the community.

Some 305,000 UAW members and 24,000 members of the International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) were on strike alert at all but one of GM's 129 plants in 71 U.S. cities. The two unions are conducting parallel negotiations with GM. The UAW withheld a strike threat at a Milwaukee plant which makes missile parts for the government.

Union members were told not to go on vacation under penalty of being refused strike benefits from union funds. They were advised to start making picket signs and to start setting up soup kitchens.

Speculation centered on whether GM would make a new offer as UAW President Walter P. Reuther and GM Vice President Louis G. Seaton went into a Labor Day bargaining session.

Neither appeared optimistic following a five-hour Sunday session. Reuther was asked about Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg's comment in a television interview that he didn't think there would be a strike.

"Unless we make a great deal more progress than we've made to date, I don't see how we can avoid a strike," Reuther replied grimly. But he said, "We are going to work and do the best we can to avoid one."

Seaton's only comment was "I hope the secretary is right."

Reuther modified his demands on GM Sunday by withdrawing the profit-sharing demand he submitted Saturday. He offered to settle for a contract that matched the extra benefits provided in the recent settlement with American Motor Corp., which included a profit-sharing plan. He proposed that GM pay the cost of extra benefits for pensions, short work week pay and medical-hospital insurance out of the company's treasury. Under the American Motors settlement, the profit-sharing fund is to be used to pay for some of the benefits.

Reuther in effect offered to settle for less with GM than with American Motors to the extent that the cost of new benefits falls short of what UAW members would receive from a 15 per cent cut of profits. The union has put no cost tag on the new benefits.

Reuther also offered GM what he called a "safety valve" contained in the AMC settlement. He said if GM fails to maintain his profit position, the workers themselves would supplement extra benefits out of their annual 2 1/2 per cent wage increases for as long as necessary.

It was revealed, meanwhile, the AMC profit sharing plan was under study by G. Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange to determine whether it confirms with rules of the exchange.

Police Chief Guy C. Langston asked today that parents taking students to and from Rose High School use the "unloading zone" which has been established at the front of the school.

Chief Langston requested the use of the drive-in connection with a safety program being conducted by the department designed to insure the safety of children going to and from local schools.

The police head said a circular drive has been constructed and urged that in the interest of safety, parents use this drive for unloading and picking up students at the school. He noted that by using the off-street area, the chances of a student or car being struck by a passing motorist will be greatly reduced.

Chief Langston also urged that motorists passing that school and other schools in the city be on the lookout for children crossing the street, playing in or near the street or riding bicycles in the roadway.

The chief, noting he is "extremely concerned" about traffic near Greenville schools, emphasized that when caution lights are blinking at approaches to the city schools, a speed limit of 15-miles per hour is enforced. He pointed out, however, that the caution lights are only on when students are traveling to and from school, but urged drivers to "use extreme caution" at all other times.

He warned that officers have been instructed to "issue citations" for all violators of the speed limits and said they will be strictly enforced.

Snow And Cold 'Ruin' Labor Day In Rockies

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Snow and cold, snapping all kinds of records, ruined the Labor Day weekend in the Rockies for campers, fishermen, golfers, boaters and others who revel under sunny skies.

The storm, sloshing four inches of wet, fast-melting snow on Denver, stranded briefly thousands of travelers in mountain areas where the snowfall measured up to two feet. There were no reports of severe hardships.

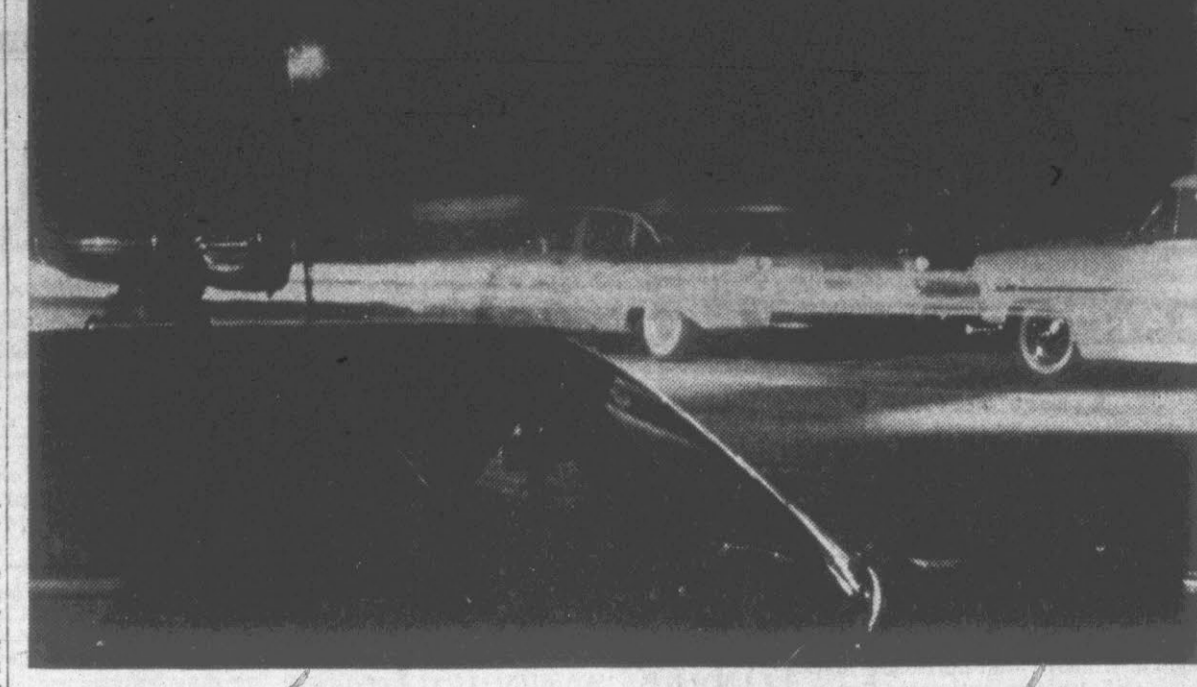

Two Collisions Here Saturday

Two collisions were reported by Greenville police in Greenville Saturday, one of which involved a car and bicycle at the intersection of Hooker Road and Pendleton St.

The same storm, sweeping across Montana late Friday, was blamed for the disappearance of a light plane carrying three men.

Mutual Madness Seen In H-Bomb Threat Of War

By ALTON BLAKESLEE NEW YORK (AP) — Psychologists today said the threat of H-bomb war "is a form of collective insanity" and called for new thinking to put the world well again.

FLOODLIGHT CHECKING STATIONS . . . such as this took their toll of traffic law violators in Pitt over the weekend. Patrol officials today reported that 20 persons were charged with law violations at a floodlight check station set up on N. C. 30 at the intersection of Hooker Road Saturday night.

TV Experimenting With Early Curtain This Fall

By CYNTHIA LOWRY HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The 1961-62 television season, with 34 new programs making their debuts on the three major networks, is experimenting with early curtains this year.

In past seasons, new shows started moving onto the home screens in late September, and continued until late October. This year they will start in the middle of this month, and by the first week in October premiere performances will reach a peak.

All three networks have been noodling around with their line-ups, and the viewers are in for a period of readjusting our viewing habits. Among the many shows which will turn up at new times are "National Velvet," "The Price is Right," "The Untouchables," "Checkmate," "Sing Along with Mitch," "Tales of the Froggy Bottom," "Dinah Shore," "Robert Taylor's Detectives" moves from ABC to NBC and will be an hour-long show.
