Tornado Follows In Destructive Wake Of Carla, Hits Galveston

Mercy Unit CAMP LEJEUNE, N. C. (AP) — More than 200 men from the 2nd Marine Division here left by air today to aid victims of Hurricane Carla in Texas and Louisiana. The Marines were taken to the Cherry Point Marine Air Station where they boarded planes for Pensacola, Fla. There they will board the Aircraft Carrier Shangri-la for the trip to stricken areas of the Gulf Coast. The Marine unit, commanded by Lt. Col. Lawrence E. Midkiff, is carrying food and medical supplies, emergency sanitation facilities and water purification equipment. The mercy unit will be ferried to disaster units by a squadron of 28 helicopters from the New River Marine Air Facility. The helicopters took off today for Pensacola to be placed aboard the aircraft carrier. Three Navy doctors and 50 corpsmen are among the group. A military police unit and salvage unit are also included.

Galveston, Tex. (AP) — A roar of the approaching twister and shouted for all persons to "Hit the floor." All fell to the floor as the storm hit. First reports indicated two twisters hit Galveston. One official described them as "localized water spouts"—twisters originating over the Gulf. Mrs. Marie Harris, 57, died as her home was wrecked. All of the injured were reported not seriously hurt. The twisters bounced southward across the city in an area eight blocks wide and 16 blocks long. Windows were shattered under the force of the blow. A county courtroom and a justice of the peace courtroom were wrecked. Three doctors set up a temporary hospital in the tax assessor's office to care for the injured.

Part of the tornado area is still under four to five feet of water from the towering tides kicked up by Hurricane Carla. Rescuers hurried to the scene in boats. About half of Galveston's 75,000 residents were in their homes or evacuation centers when the twister struck before dawn. The city has been without electric power since Monday. The big John Sealy Hospital and other hospitals are being supplied power from emergency units. Seawater over 90 per cent of the 35-mile long island is slowly receding, and is expected to be out of the business area by late today. A city policeman, Raymond Adams, was bitten by a snake while searching for tornado victims. He was taken to John Sealy Hospital.

Tobacco Prices Keep On Rising

Tobacco prices soared upward again today on the heels of new record-high prices bid on the Greenville tobacco market Monday. Sales supervisor W. L. Whedbee said: "The whole tone of the market today is much stronger than Monday's all-time high prices." The market yesterday posted a sales average of $64.81 per hundredweight—more than $1.50 above last Friday's $63.19. Whedbee said price jumps today were "particularly outstanding" among fully-ripe smoking tips and fully-ripe orange leaf grades. The tips, he said, jumped by $2 per 100. The fully-ripe orange leaf was reported selling for $72 per 100 to a high of $86. Whedbee said: "Whole rows are selling for prices like that. And that's unusual." Consistent company bids hit $84, $85 and $86 on row after row, the supervisor said. Today's volume was slightly less than yesterday's full sale. Whedbee said, but he indicated warehousemen are expecting heavier volumes through the remainder of the week. Tips and leaf grades still dominated today's sale with scatterings of cutters and nondescript. Today's price upturn followed advances Monday that ranged between $2 and $6 per 100 on most grades. Yesterday's volume totaled 2,060,618 and growers received a total of $1,335,513.53 for the $64.81 gross sales average.

Texans Suspect Hurricane Losses Will Run Into Hundreds Of Millions

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Texans started picking up the pieces along a battered coastline today and trying to guess how much Hurricane Carla cost. Relentless poundings from winds hitting 175 miles per hour at the worst and tides raging up to 15 feet above normal took a property toll running into millions of dollars. Qualified sources said they could only guess at the over-all total. Tentative estimates indicated the statewide figure easily could top 200 million. Homes and businesses from Corpus Christi, Tex., to Cameron, La. were flooded by the wild tides. The winds ripped off roofs and downed power lines as far inland as Austin. Crops were damaged throughout the south half of central Texas. Cattle left as their owners hastened inland drowned in the low coastal areas.

McDonald estimated property losses up to $10 million. Port Arthur—Some flooding. A weakened levee posed an even greater threat. Baytown—Flood conditions; Wooster, on Baytown's outskirts, was so flooded it was declared a disaster area. An estimated 1,700 people fled two inundated subdivisions. Texas City—Isolated by high waters and winds. Business district completely flooded. Keman—This Galveston Bay city had water up to the eaves of its stores and in many homes. The Keman yacht basin was a clutter of splintered yachts and sailing craft. Bay City—Torrential rains flooded streets and strong winds damaged roofs. Houston—Caught only a glancing blow but tides rose almost 15 feet above normal in its ship channel, 50 miles from the coast. Warehouses full of flour were flooded. Homes were smashed. Store windows were smashed.

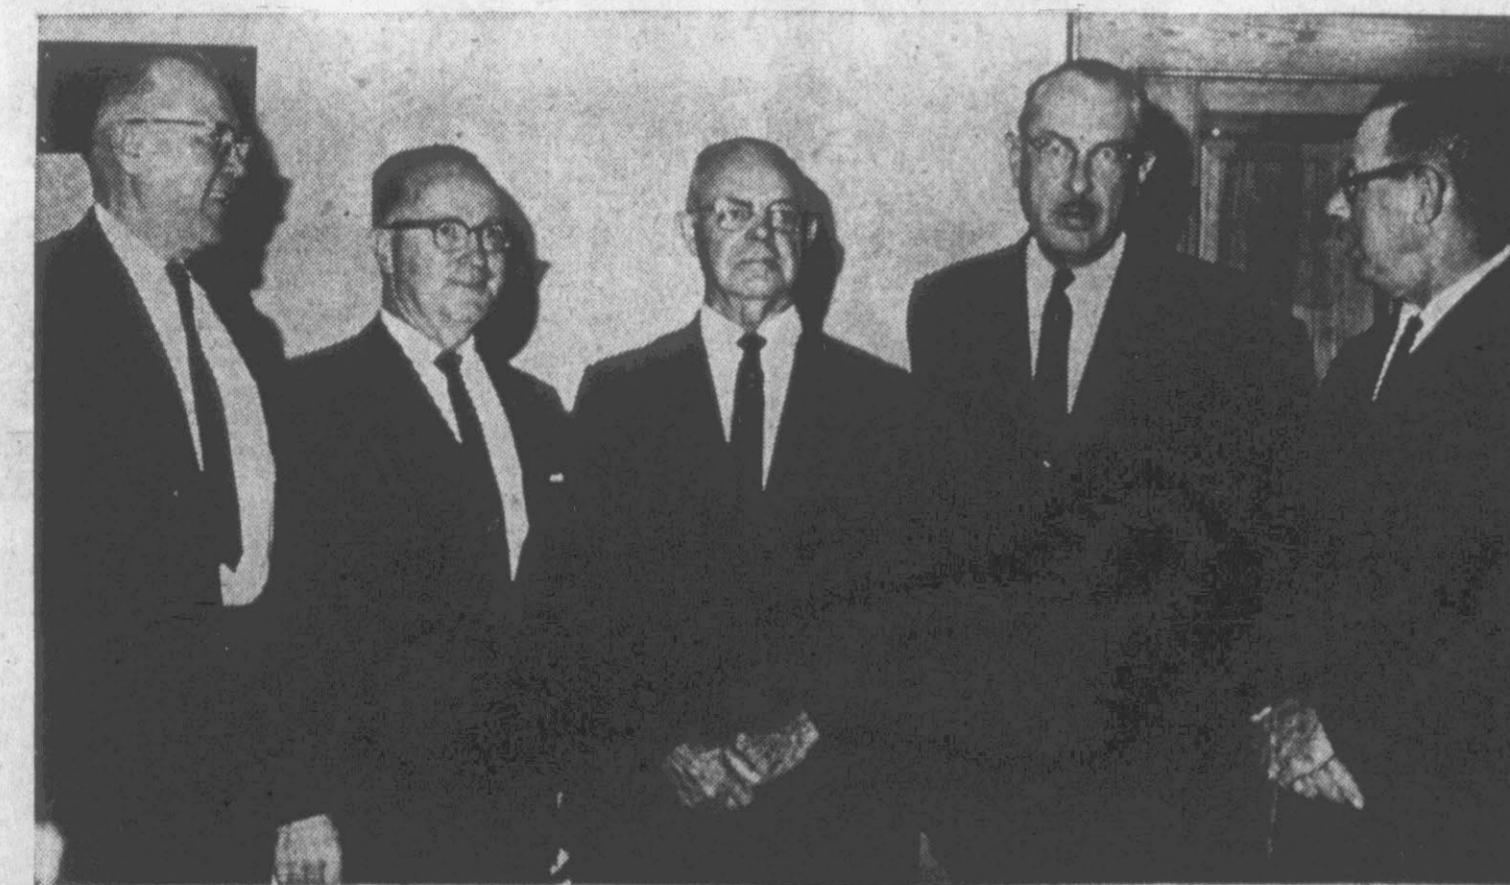

N.C. High Court Receives Appeal On Cobb Verdict

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina State Supreme Court today received an appeal from a Madison County jury's verdict that state Republican Chairman William E. Cobb libeled three Madison County election officials in two letters he released to news media. Attorneys for Cobb also filed a petition asking that the court give them more time to prepare for their arguments in the case. The appeal was to be heard Oct. 10. The attorneys asked that it be heard in the spring term of 1962. A Madison County jury on July 14 awarded Zeno Ponder, Marshall precinct registrar, $40,000 in damages. Two precinct election officials, Frank Rummion and Oren Rice, were awarded token damages of $4. All three had asked $300,000 each. Cobb contended in his petition that the lower court committed "serious and prejudicial errors" in overruling his motion for a jury from another county than Madison; in overruling his several motions for mistrial; in rulings upon objections to the admission and exclusion of evidence, and in overruling motions for judgment of non-suit. The two letters released by Cobb to news media charged there were voting irregularities in Madison County. Cobb charged in a letter Nov. 10, 1959, addressed to Gov. Luther H. Hodges there was vote fraud in the Marshall precinct during the Oct. 27, 1959, statewide bond election. In a letter to the State Board of Elections on May 6, 1960, the charges were reiterated. Cobb also said in the letter he was protesting in advance the conduct in the precinct of the general election of Nov. 8, 1960. The jury of 11 men and one woman, winding up a 13-day trial, found that Cobb committed malicious libel with the publication of both letters. The jury also found that Cobb's charges were vote fraud in both letters were not true.

Strike Issues Are Quickly Resolved By GMC, Union

DETROIT (AP)—The issue that triggered a snowballing plant-by-plant strike against General Motors Corp. by the United Auto Workers Union was settled overnight. When agreement came, 92 GM plants and 255,000 men were idle, with indications that the remainder of GM's 129 plants and 350,000 production workers would be idled in a matter of days, if not hours. The No. 1 issue on which local-level strikes started erupting Monday was the amount of relief time afforded assembly and production line workers. An all-night bargaining session Sunday failed to resolve the dispute and carried new contract negotiations past Monday's 10 a. m. strike deadline. But within four hours after a fresh start Monday night agreement was reached on a formula reportedly suggested by Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg. UAW President Walter P. Reuther predicted settlement of the relief time issue would materially speed wrapping up of a new three-year contract between the union and the world's largest automaker. They have agreed on an economic package which the union estimates is worth 12.04 cents hourly in take-home pay. Several issues left dangling at the national level included: production standards (required work per hour), the scheduling of overtime for employed men when some employees are on layoff, the time union representatives may spend in the processing of grievances on company-paid time, and work done by foremen which the union insists should be done by hourly workers. Still dangling at the local level were 11,811 demands ranging from factory air-conditioning and air cushions for truck drivers to automatic permission to take time off for deer hunting. Reuther postponed from 10 a. m. Wednesday to 1 p. m. Thursday a scheduled meeting of the UAW's 280-member General Motors Conference, which has authority to wrap up local issues and all-a new contract. The UAW will demand the contract be met by other members of the Big Three—Ford and Chrysler. Reuther said the GM conference meeting was delayed to provide more negotiating time at the local level. He predicted "real and meaningful progress" could be made with bargaining sessions today and tonight. Settlement of the relief time issue "was the key to unlock some of the most difficult problems we had at the local level," Reuther told newsmen. Under the settlement, the company keeps its basic rule of 24 minutes a day—divided into two 12-minute breaks—and the union wins its insistence that relief time, except in emergencies, be given within the last three hours of four-hour morning and afternoon shifts. Reuther said the in effect the company will have to provide a relief man for each 14 employees instead of 1 for each 18. GM Vice President Louis G. Seaton, the company's chief negotiator, said that the agreement "implements our policy in a positive way" and writes it for the first time into a national contract.

Soviet Insists E. Germany Has Regulatory Authority

BERLIN (AP)—In a note assailing Western troop movements to Berlin, the Soviet Union has told the West that the Communist East German regime has the right to regulate foreign travel to East Berlin. Rejecting an Aug. 26 note from the U.S., British and French ambassadors to West Germany protesting the sealing of the border in divided Berlin, the Soviets told the ambassadors Monday to take their complaints to the East German regime. One major aim of Premier Khrushchev's pressure on Berlin is to force Western recognition of East Germany. The Western powers regard the East German regime as a Soviet puppet. Mikhail Pervukhin, Soviet ambassador to East Germany, complained in his note that the Western powers had brought troop reinforcements to Berlin and had posted soldiers on West Berlin's border. Pervukhin declared such troop movements could encourage "West Berlin's fascist and revenge-seeking elements" and this could result in serious consequences. Foreigners now are admitted to East Berlin but Pervukhin's note raised the possibility that they soon would be barred. Foreigners may cross into East Berlin on subway and elevated trains or on foot and by car at a special gate at the corner of Friedrichstrasse and Zimmerstrasse. Pervukhin's letter to U.S. Ambassador Walter C. Dowling was published Monday night by the East German news agency ADN. The Soviet ambassador said: "Visits by citizens of foreign states to the (East) German Democratic Republic, known as an independent sovereign state, and to its capital are regulated by the government of the G.D.R. If you have any wishes in this connection you must take them up with the authorities of the G.D.R." In his reference to foreigners, Pervukhin did not distinguish between civilians and troops. In their military dealings, the Western Allies have so far avoided formal contact with East German officials.

May Evacuate North Norway

OSLO (AP)—Authorities plan to evacuate the population in large areas of northern Norway if Soviet nuclear explosions cause a dangerous increase in the radioactive fallout, a civil defense spokesman said today. Sverre Servan, civil defense adjutant, said that 60 observation stations are operating in the north of Norway to warn the population if any of the Soviet test explosions create dangerous conditions.

Bulgaria 'Alerts' Border Forces

VIENNA (AP) — Communist Bulgaria has alerted its forces along the borders with Greece and Turkey "to meet the threat of imperialist aggression," the party newspaper Rabotnichesko Delo today reported. The paper said forthcoming amphibious landing maneuvers of the U.S. 6th Fleet together with Greek and Turkish forces in the Aegean Sea "increased tensions in the Balkans and created the danger of war."

Farmville Sees Sales Record

FARMVILLE — Farmville's tobacco market cracked sales records across-the-board as Monday's sales activity here posted a sales average of $66.87 per hundredweight — highest ever recorded here. The market also saw its largest volume and largest receipts figure as 943,840 pounds brought growers a total of $631,178.16. Sales supervisor Louis Williams accounted for the overall improvement in quality of offerings. Grade-for-grade prices, he said, were mostly steady with moderate increases of $1 to $2 per 100 among some grades. He noted advances in "good quality leaf tobacco and good-bodied leaf . . ."

Typhoon Roars Across Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Typhoon Pamela smashed across northern Formosa today, killing at least 17 persons, leaving thousands homeless, and ravaging this capital of Nationalist China. The great storm, with maximum winds of 135 miles an hour, was the worst in the memory of long-time resident of Formosa. None of the Americans in this city of 320,000 was injured, but some were isolated by flash floods. Authorities estimated damage throughout the storm area in the millions of dollars. The winds, hitting a peak of 108 miles an hour in Taipei, ripped off roofs, uprooted trees, blew down signboards and fences and leveled telephone lines. Light, power and water service was disrupted. Most of Taipei's residents were kept awake through the night by howling winds that shook their homes.

Hearing Set Tomorrow For 2 In Kinston Robbery And Murder

KINSTON—A preliminary hearing for two Rt. 2, Grifton, Negroes charged with first degree murder and robbery in the slaying of a rural storekeeper near here Sunday night is scheduled for tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the Lenoir County Courthouse, Lenoir County Sheriff H. C. Broadway told The Daily Reflector today. Broadway identified the two men charged in the case as George Dixon, 30, of Rt. 2, Grifton in Greene County, and Jesse James Arnold, 25, of Rt. 2, Grifton in Lenoir County. They are being held in Lenoir County jail without bond. They are charged with shooting to death George T. McArthur, 68, a farmer and produce operator, at his store halfway between Grifton and Kinston on N. C. Highway 11 early Sunday night. The men were apprehended at their homes early Monday morning, where they surrendered peacefully, Broadway stated. They were arrested on "some information that we received," Broadway said. Motive for the murder was robbery, the sheriff said. He added that McArthur was struck in the head with "some" instrument prior to being shot two or three times. McArthur's wife found the body about 7:30 Sunday evening. The couple occupied a home located about 40 yards behind the store. However, Mrs. McArthur apparently did not hear the shots, Broadway said. It was reported that a cash register was taken from the store, but it contained no money and had not been recovered. Sheriff Broadway stated that "This department appreciates the cooperation of the Highway Patrol and the prison departments of Pitt, Greene and Lenoir Counties in the case."

Baby Dies Of Kerosene Drink

A 23-month-old Martin County Negro girl died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Sunday afternoon as a result of strangulation after drinking kerosene from a bottle in her home near Robersonville. Pitt coroner E. W. Harvey ruled the infant's death due to strangulation after severe vomiting resulted from ingestion of the kerosene. The infant, Cynthia La-vede Lloyd, died at 12:15 p. m. Sunday, Harvey said, as doctors were administering treatment at the hospital. He said she was taken to doctors in Bethel about 10 a. m. Sunday before being transferred to the local hospital immediately. The coroner said the soft drink bottle containing kerosene had been left on a pump shelf in the home of Betty Lloyd, the child's grandmother. He said the child drank only part of the bottle's contents. Gloria P. Lloyd of Route 1, Box 303, Robersonville, was listed as the victim's mother. Dr. John M. Futrell, Pitt County health director, in connection with the accidental death, warned the general public against leaving containers of kerosene or other poisonous substances within the reach of small children.

Here's A Test To Tell If Man Loves His Wife

By IRENE FERRIS

ZURICH—(WNS) — Dr. Maria Roelke, administrator of Europe's Council on Marital Harmony, has been bombarded with letters from American women ever since she offered a test for wives to determine their love for their husbands.

"What about the men?" demand wives from all over America. "Why shouldn't they find out if they really love us?"

So Dr. Roelke has prepared the following questionnaire as a test for husbands to determine whether they love their wives:

1. Are you the master of your home or not?
2. Do you inspect your home daily, offering appreciation when the housekeeping job is well done as well as reproving when it is not?
3. Are you a gourmet at the dining table, insisting upon fine cooking, praising it when it deserves praise, and inspiring your wife to greater efforts in the kitchen?
4. Do you add to the enjoyment of the meal by dressing for it, providing a floral bouquet, talking charmingly and inviting your mate to dance if the music calls for it?
5. Do you notice what your wife is wearing and how her hair is fixed? Have you selected her clothes, her make-up and her hair style?
6. Do you bring her a little nonsense gift once a week? Something special once a month? Something very special once a year?
7. Do you avoid bringing friends home for meals without warning?
8. Does your wife come first in your daily planning? Does business keep you late at the office, or does love make you late to work?
9. Do you primp to impress your wife, or do you just throw on anything comfortable for around the house? Are you a man of distinction for her or only for your friends and business acquaintances?
10. Do you refuse to give your wife any money for clothes and beauty parlors and then react perceptibly to other women who are "all fixed up"?
11. When you are at a party, do you avoid telling the stories that your wife has heard a dozen times? Are you more interested in entertaining her than the others?

12. Do you keep a strict eye on her family budget so that she has your help in learning how to spend wisely and well?

13. Do you give her a little spare money above the household needs so that she can surprise you with a birthday gift or theatre tickets on your wedding anniversary?

14. Do you accept rearrangements of the furniture? Or do you suggest changing things around so that nobody gets into a rut?

15. Do you avoid raving at home about the efficiency and orderliness of your secretary? Or are you always telling your secretary at the office what a lovely wife you have?

16. When you go on hunting and fishing trips, do you leave your wife sufficient money so that she can run the house and perhaps invite her sister or mother to stay with her?

17. After supper do you discreetly go to the corner cafe for a demitasse so that your wife can clean up the kitchen without having you in the way?

18. Do you let your wife stroke your hair and kiss your hand, even if it makes you feel a little juvenile?

19. Do you patiently permit your wife to pamper you? Do you let her help you on with your coat, light your cigarette, put on your slippers and carry the packages?

20. Do you say, "I love you," so often that she never gets a chance to ask, "Do you love me?" And do you mean it?

The man who can honestly answer "yes" to those questions, consciously loves his wife, Dr. Roelke said. "But I am afraid most men who look honestly at their married lives will find they are only using their wives, not loving them."

"Others will find that they have become indifferent to marriage so that they no longer lead the family, but tend to ignore it, asking only for peace at any price."

However, without a strong leader there is not peace, but only family anarchy, she added. "How can a wife fulfill her promise to love, honor and obey if her husband does not love, honor and command?"

Honored On Birthday

On Sunday, September 10, Mrs. P. S. Rasberry of Bell Arthur was honored on her 69th birthday with a luncheon at her home.

Sharing honors with her were her grandchildren, Miss Rachel Rivenbark of Greenville, whose birthday was Saturday, and Stevie Rasberry of Goldsboro, whose birthday was on Sunday. A picnic luncheon was served on the back lawn.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Earl Flake and family, Mr. D. J. Rasberry, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Moore and Mrs. Richard Strickland, all of Bell Arthur; Mr. and Mrs. George A. Crawford and son, Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Rivenbark and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilbur Smith and family, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Moye, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James E. Lewis, Mrs. Cecil Butler and son, and Misses Lois and Ann Tunnell of Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Rasberry and family of Charlotte, and Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Rasberry and family of Goldsboro.

PICTURE SELECTION AND HANGING. Many homemakers in Surry County are busy now rehanging their pictures after a demonstration on correct methods of hanging pictures. Mrs. Richard Wilmoth reported she was going to rehang all her pictures using the blind hang instead of the ornate cord.

Mrs. Evelyn Nifong, home economics agent, reports they also discussed line, rhythm, balance and color of pictures.

MONEY RAISING SCHEMES. Half chicken or quarter chicken barbecued. That was the idea to raise money for the 4-H development fund in Jones County. But who was willing to cut up 350 chickens?

Mrs. Ann Brock, assistant home economics agent, says a local butcher trained the volunteers so they could cut up the chickens easily and quickly.

NEW PILLOWS IN HOKE. Approximately 125 new pillows are now being used in Hoke County homes, according to Miss Josephine Hall, home economics agent.

About 400 pounds of shredded foam rubber were purchased from a furniture company. The home-makers brought the foam rubber to make bed and sofa pillows. By buying the inexpensive rubber and making the pillows, they estimate having saved at least half the cost of ready-made pillows.

REMODELED LAMPS. Do you need a new lamp for one of your rooms? If you do, look around the house before you buy one. Perhaps you will find an old kerosene lamp as Jo Ann Corbin did recently when she was redecorating her bedroom.

Mrs. Ruth Patton, assistant home economics agent in Macon County, says Joe Ann enameled two old oil lamps and converted them into electric lamps for less than six dollars.

HOUSING BEAUTIFICATION TOUR. Mecklenburg County Home Demonstration Club women viewed some 14 homes, schools, and churches on an 85-mile tour recently. Miss Kathleen Nelson, home economics agent, reports the women viewed different type homes.

"Club members were able to see actual building materials—types which had been studied at club meetings during the year," says Miss Nelson. "The women looked for special storage, lighting, color coordination and room arrangement."

KNOWLEDGE OF HANDICRAFTS PAYS OFF. Mrs. Pete Harris, a young homemaker in Halifax County, was recently flat on her back for four months with a serious back operation. During this time, she made use of the instructions she had received in handicraft.

Mrs. Estelle White, home economics agent, reports Mrs. Harris smoked dresses for her two girls and also used Swedish darning on many household items.

Parents Held To Blame If Kids Dislike School

By RUTH WINTER
EAST ORANGE, N. J.—(WNS) —Children would love school if their parents would let them, maintains Dr. Irving Markowitz, director of the Child Guidance Clinic in this area.

"Kids are born with curiosity and a capacity for enthusiasm," the child psychiatrist explained. "Most often, it is the parents' fault that children do not have a zest for school."

He said when a younger child cries and refuses to leave the parent's side, the child is actually catering to the parent's need to be "overly wanted."

"It is really the parents who are unable to detach themselves from the child and give the child over to the school," he explained.

"Some parents cannot accept the fact that the child is not solely theirs but partially society's. They subconsciously do not want to give the child to society to educate."

"The parents feels the child will not be able to get a contribution from anyone outside the family. Ideally, the school and the parents should work as co-partners. This is very difficult for most parents."

In the case of older children who are reluctant to go to school or who insist on quitting, Dr. Markowitz said the reason is probably because the child does not want to expose himself to ridicule by participating in activities in which he is not an expert.

"The child is secure at home where they will make allowances for him," Dr. Markowitz explained, "but at school, he doubts his skills."

As far as encouraging your children to do well in school, the child psychiatrist advises you to avoid two major pitfalls.

When your child comes home and tells you what he accomplished, don't:

Say you did well, BUT you could have done better. Heap lavish praise when it isn't deserved.

In the first instance, you are minimizing the child's accomplishments and in the second, you are giving him a false impression, Dr. Markowitz said.

The child psychiatrist does not believe in bestowing money on a child for getting good marks. "That's a bribe, not a reward," he said.

"If you want to encourage your child, be realistically enthusiastic about his work," Dr. Markowitz advised. "Really share in his experience and take joy in it. If he did not do well, sit down with him and help him."

"Unfortunately, most parents do not 'sit down' with their children. They 'sit over' them. They say 'you are going to sit here until you do it right.'"

As a parting thought, Dr. Markowitz said: "Some parents actually do not want their children to do well in school because they themselves did not do well."

Well-Groomed Legs Vs. Long Skirt

It's best not to try to camouflage heavy legs with a long skirt. This looks dowdy and emphasizes the legs.

Instead, try exercising to slim the calves and ankles. And also create a trim illusion by sitting with the legs crossed at the ankles, and standing with the heel of one foot placed at the arch of the other.

It is also important to scrub your legs with thick soapsuds every day and to shave regularly. Legs which have a smooth, clean "complexion" look better, regardless of size.

Keep Medical Tags Legibly Clean

Those medical "warning" tags, now widely worn or carried as a safety precaution, need to be kept clean for legibility.

Made of durable stainless steel, these tags should be washed regularly in hot soap or detergent suds, then polished dry.

If you enjoy stepping from your bath onto a soft, springy surface, use a plastic-covered patio cushion as a bath mat. To launder it on the spot, wipe each side with suds and rinse it at the tub.

It's Home Away From Home

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The pied a terre (meaning foot of earth) is a fashionable city apartment for the frequent visitor who can afford it.

It's a haven where a wardrobe and other personal effects may be in readiness, and where one can entertain city friends.

Former screen star Irene Dunne has foyer, living-dining room, bedroom, kitchen and two baths, which cover a good deal more than a foot of earth.

This was to be a trial run to see how she could manage in an apartment," she says. "Well, get used to it, but when you call something home, it should be home."

Like many people who travel as they grow older, Miss Dunne and her husband, Dr. Francis Griffin, looked forward to shedding the responsibilities of a big house such as they own in California, seeking an occasional respite in an easy-to-maintain dwelling.

"I even thought we'd do something completely different, like choosing modern furnishings. I've lived through old things, I thought happily, and I bought my last antique."

"But there is a built-in hominess about traditional furniture, a feeling, a mood that is necessary to some people. I just couldn't go through with it," she says.

Miss Dunne's activities with the United States Committee to the United Nations, various charities and her speech making bring her to New York often.

"We use this place for entertaining," she says, "and I've tried to make it cheerful. Our California home is in pastels. I love pale colors and white rugs, but you can't have them gathering dust when you close up an apartment," she says.

Miss Dunne looks as if she should always be in a background of pink roses and periwinkle to complement her vivid blue eyes and strawberry blonde hair.

But her friends do not get the pitch, she says, and the usual comment is, "It's lovely, but..."

The room is in shades of copper, gold, and greens, a color scheme that evolved from a pair of olive green and gold bath towels, says Miss Dunne's decorator Edyth McCoon.

There Is A Deadline To Remember

Recommendations of Greenville's Redevelopment Commission drew a "yes" vote and a "no" vote from the City Council last Thursday while a proposal from the city's Public Housing Authority was again delayed by the Council for later action.

Although the Council rejected by a three to two vote the Redevelopment Commission's recommendation that the boundaries of the study areas be amended, there was at least a note of progress in the approval by a majority of the Council of the Commission's application for additional study funds.

The delay in action on the proposal by the Housing Authority was attributed to the fact that members of the Council had not received copies of the proposal which were delivered to the city hall almost a month before to allow Councilmen time to study the matter before last Thursday's meeting. Certainly the Council should move as quickly as practical to act on the proposal of the Housing Authority, and further the Council should make an effort to see that in the future the mislaying of papers does not cause unnecessary delays in such matters that are for consideration by the Council.

The Redevelopment Commission at present has a deadline of December 22, 1961 for submitting an acceptable redevelopment plan to the Housing and Home Finance Agency in connection with the proposed redevelopment program for Greenville. While this date is still three months away, there is a great deal of study and planning which must be done before such a plan can be completed.

Attention Is On Lt. Governorship

By LYNN NISBET
LEUTENANT GOVERNOR—The vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor occasioned by the recent death of Cloyd Philpott has focused attention on this office. Most of the comment has related to the office as a link in the chain of succession to the governorship in event of vacancy there. There is provision in the constitution, albeit somewhat cumbersome, for filling a permanent vacancy in the office of the chief executive. In absence of a Lieutenant Governor there is uncertainty about who should have responsibility in event of temporary incapacity of the chief executive to perform his duties.

Nothing recent reference in this column to the fact that Governor Max Gardner was reluctant to leave the state because of fear that Lt. Gov. Dick Fountain might "take over." Hidden Ramsey of Asheville, retired newspaperman and recognized authority on Western North Carolina history, comes up with these interesting observations: "This reference reminds me of what Lieutenant Governor James L. Robinson of Macon county did during an absence of Governor Jarvis from the state in September, 1883. Robinson signed many papers and grants as Acting Governor and even issued at least one pardon to a Cherokee county resident convicted of perjury.

"Actually, I don't know that the actions taken by Robinson were objectionable to Jarvis. I do know that Robinson did not hesitate to function effectively during Jarvis' absence from the state."

DIFFERENT — As Governor Sanford pointed out the other day, conditions are vastly different now as compared with 1883 with respect to incapacity of the Governor to act by reason of absence from the state. Communications are such that he can maintain hourly contact with his office from anywhere in the world. There is no material change with respect to other causes of incapacity, such as the illness of Governor Fowie in 1880 when Lt. Gov. Thomas M. Holt served as acting governor for a few months. Governor Fowie subsequently resumed his duties, but died in 1891, and Holt became Governor.

Governor William Umstead was seriously ill and out of the office for several months early in his administration, but was never officially rated as incapable of functioning as Governor. He delegated many of his duties to his private secretary, Ed Rankin, and his legislative counsel, Frank Taylor, rather than to Lieutenant Governor Luther Hodges. Umstead died in November, 1954, and Hodges assumed responsibilities of the top office.

Although Hodges functioned as Governor rather than as "acting Governor" for the remainder of that term it is interesting to note that Chief Justice Maurice Barnhill wrote a special form of oath for his induction into office. Governor Hodges ascension to the top place left a vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor. It was partially filled by the 1955 Senate electing Luther Barnhardt as "president of the Senate," and Governor Hodges accorded him most of the recognition and respect to which the No. 2 man in State government is entitled. In 1956 the people elected Hodges Governor and Barnhardt Lieutenant Governor. They took office in January of 1957—and conditions were back to normal.

NEW THOUGHT—Hidden Ramsey comes up with another thought, which apparently has not occurred to those who have worked so diligently in drafting constitutional amendments designed to take care of the situation.

"I have long felt," he says, "that the State should never be for long without a Lieutenant Governor chosen by the people. The office should be filled at the next general election if the vacancy falls in the first half of a Governor's administration—as it has in the present instance."

Ramsey did not elaborate on that idea, but the fact is that any vacancy occurring in any other constitutional elective office more than three months before the next general election would have to be filled by popular vote for remainder of the term.

Previous vacancies in the office of Lieutenant Governor (1891 and 1954) occurred after the mid-term general election, and the office was filled by popular vote at the next opportunity. In the present situation the vacancy has occurred more than a year before the next general election, more than three years before expiration of the term to which Philpott was elected.

Nothing can be done to change the existing provisions that could affect the present terms. It is something for the constitutional architects to keep in mind for future developments.

Further delays by the City Council in giving prompt consideration to matters which may come before it in connection with these programs could seriously jeopardize the entire undertaking for Greenville and contribute to circumventing the will of the people as expressed in the special referendum four months ago.

A Tar Heel Beauty Is Ambassador For State

A Tar Heel Miss has finally stepped into the golden circle of Miss Americas, reflecting credit on her home state and upon the talented and charming group of young ladies who over a period of years have represented this state in the annual pageant at Atlantic City.

In recent years North Carolina's representatives in the Miss America Pageant have consistently wound up in the top five or top ten contestants, but the coveted crown of Miss America has just as consistently eluded them. This year, however, the story had a different ending as Miss North Carolina remained seated as the runners-up were called, one-by-one to accept their consolation prizes. This year it was the North Carolina Beauty, Miss Maria Beale Fletcher of Asheville who was chosen to wear the robe and the crown of Miss America.

While representing the nation in her new role of Miss America, Maria will likewise serve as a good-will ambassador for North Carolina during the next twelve months as she travels about the country making numerous public appearances. We have no doubt that she will reflect credit upon the title of Miss America and that she will likewise reflect credit on her home state as she wears the crown as the most beautiful and talented young lady of the land.

Nikita Proves Very Consistent

WASHINGTON (AP)—Western diplomats, like scholars with magnifying glasses, examine Premier Khrushchev's every word on Berlin, looking and hoping for some shift, some change. There isn't any. Khrushchev and his government have pumped out thousands of words in speeches and statements, playing nice guy and tough guy as they thought fit, since their first blockbuster on Nov. 27, 1958.

In that historic document Russia stated its case on Berlin. In the three years since it has made no basic change in its position.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk summed it up last Friday night when he said there is nothing in the "fine print" of Khrushchev's statements on Berlin to "show the path to agreement."

It was the diplomat's way of saying Russia hasn't budged. Three classic examples of Khrushchev's position can be taken—from instances scattered over three years—to show the consistency of Moscow's views on Berlin.

My admiration for the "regulars" (whether Army, Navy or Marine Corps) goes back to high school days. Later I learned one could turn up some oddballs among the professional ranks as easily as you could by walking down a town's main street; but regardless of this, whenever the term "Regular Army" was used, to me it carried a connotation of professional competence and confidence.

Students of American military history generally agree these qualities held true even during the years when military outlays were reduced to a trickle and about the only manpower in uniform consisted of a handful of traditionalists and men who could not fit into the civilian scheme of things.

Always there was a hard corps of men who retained the lessons of Baron Friedrich Wilhelm Ludolf Gerhard Augustin von Steuben (and I bet my knowing that name surprised you). This corps kept traditions alive that time and again have been mightily important to our country.

My respect for these men skyrocketed during the halcyon days of R.O.T.C. study (1937-38-39) when a weatherbeaten little Major pounded home his first lesson to us—that without exception the authority and power of the military branch was wholly dependent upon the will of the civilian government.

(That was at a time when the Army could count a grand total of less than 250,000 men in uniform, and horse-drawn artillery was still commonplace.)

The next occasion for wholehearted delight the "regulars" were on our side came about a year after Pearl Harbor and the Army Transport I was serving at the time was bringing a cadre of about 200 jungle warfare instructors from Panama C.Z. to the States for training the men who would fight in the South Pacific. They were all RA, and hard as nails.

One corporal volunteered to show me what an unarmed man could do against an enemy lunging with a bayonet. I was to be the rifle presumed fitted with a bayonet. (He offered to let me use the real thing, but I was afraid of hurting government property . . . namely, him.)

So, with "bayonet" and steely glance, I lunged at my unarmed, defenseless little corporal. I lunged . . . and kept right on going to the deck . . . bounced twice when I hit, and found my adversary was now armed with my rifle and bayonet, and had one foot on my chest and the bayonet at my throat. He wasn't even breathing hard.

When Chips Are Down

This kind of thing subsequently became rather commonplace among the troops; but at the time it made quite an impression.

Then there was Sergeant Douglas Ford, who exuded a quality of primness and selfcontrol out of character with the popular conception of "old Army". He knew Army Regulations, procedures for just about everything short of creating a new universe, and was a goldmine of information that everyone tapped . . . from the CO on down. There came a time when the Army had to make him a Major because it just wasn't fitting for a Sergeant to run the show. Anyhow, the Sergeant transformed this grasshopper into an ant for the duration.

My infrequent encounters and impressions of the regulars has been generally favorable. And so, when the wires carried a story of 40,000 of this breed was ordered overseas you can well understand the small thrill it generated.

When the chips are down, you need professionals. Thank goodness, we've got them.

The Desired Effect

By DON SCHLIENZ

Other Editors Saying History Repeating Itself

(Wilson Times)

A certain paper hanger came to power in Germany. He organized the youth of the land, burned books, seized the industrial might of the nation and built a war machine of great power. Heels clicked and goose stepping was the order of the day.

The peace loving nations of the world went about their business, always with an eye to Germany. The propaganda effect of this mighty buildup was felt in every nation. Mr. Chamberlain and his umbrella, traveled and met with the dictator, Hitler. One concession followed another in an effort to avert war. Every traveler into Germany came back with the same story and opinion, Germany is an armed camp, no nation could win a war against Germany. So the giving continued and Germany sliced off the small nations around her borders, one at the time, with the blessings of the peace loving countries that were willing to do most anything rather than fight the monster.

Don't you recognize the parallel? As Toynee says, "history repeats itself because we do not learn from the lessons of history." Today Khrushchev is going the same way. He has broken the ban on nuclear testing, which he advocated, some say in order to catch up with this nation. He is threatening a demand that could destroy mankind. He has picked off the small nations around him, now he wants all of Germany, not just East Germany.

He talks of peace when there can be no peace on his terms.

There is but one course the allies can follow. This is to back down the Russian bear in his den. He is not ready to fight, Mr. K will take every chance certain in the fact that the allies will not fight either. He knows history and the success this policy brought Hitler.

His bluff must be called before it is too late, before the bomb 100 times powerful than 100 tons of TNT is exploded. For remember it was the Russians who made such useful propaganda out of nuclear bomb fall-out. Today the same Russians evidently have decided what they said about fall-out was false and propaganda.

The world is now condemning the Russians. Therefore the allies must get to the Russian people and tell them what is going on, that it is their Mr. Khrushchev who is spreading fall-out and threatening war. It is the allies who must call the Russian bluff while there is yet time.

Organized labor, after a big hurrah over the profit-sharing plan of American Motors, is taking another look at this kind of partnership. The profit-sharing demand was quickly dropped from General Motors negotiations. It looks as if unionists urged a bit of caution.

Profit sharing has worked and worked well in hundreds of American companies. Profit sharing is not an employee invention; like coffee on the employer's time, but was devised by employers. Sharing the profits, in theory at least, resulted in more profits for management as well as workers to share.

But profit-sharing plans must be carefully devised. A faulty calculation here, or a lack of foresight there, can make a plan a plague.

MAY BE A LOSS
Take, for instance, profit-sharing plans that are presented to employees in lieu of a pay raise. Say, for example, that instead of a 6-cent-an-hour increase, an employer offers a 9 per cent share of profits.

On current and even on near-future operations this may be a fat reward, far exceeding the sought-for pay raise. But if profits fall off in 1962 and 1963, the employees will be unhappy. Instead of getting an increase over current rates they may be getting no more, and even less than workers who took a straight increase instead.

Furthermore, a profit-sharing plan may plague union leaders in other ways. If a company falls to increase its profit, union leaders must shoulder the blame for the workers who failed to add the extra zing that made profits profitable.

On the other hand, if the company increases profits, workers may take less interest in their unions. They have become partners in the company and may become management-oriented.

TREND TOWARD SOCIALIZATION
There are other difficulties affecting management. Sharing profits may be considered a step toward socialism. Giving away profits may be considered a communization of the business.

But the greatest danger is that sharing profits also implies a sharing of management. If the employees figure their earnings are reduced because management lost money in bringing out, say, a new model car, then they would seem to have grounds to demand that the management bring out no new models without workers' approval.

Again, an investor who owns 10 per cent of a company's stock may insist that he elect one of ten directors. And a union whose members were entitled to 10 per cent of a company's profits may also reasonably argue that it is also entitled to have one of ten directors.

MORALS
There are two menials there. Profit-sharing plans have worked successfully and have increased stockholder's profits. Such plans should be carefully worked out, so that the risks and dangers may be avoided.

NEW CHANCE FOR PRESSURE PLAY
The American Academy of General Practice, consisting of Senator George A. Smathers (D. Fla.) to permit families to deduct costs of fall-out shelters in computing income taxes.

There's a bonanza here for contractors, suppliers, architects and other profiting on shelters. They should urge their Congressmen (not Senator Smathers unless they live in Florida) to support this bill.

World Sees Change

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It is perhaps preferable to be very young and to know only the beginning of the current confusion. Those who started in the 1929 Depression, which lasted until about 1938, have never known economic stability. Those who started in the regime of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Adolf Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, have never known political peace and order.

Those of us who go back much further can remember an altogether different world—one of order and progress. Our greatest excitement, in my memory, was William Jennings Bryan's demand for soft money. We were told that that was demagogic and senseless, but Bryan's 16 to 1 money is nothing to be compared with the flat money to which we have now become so accustomed.

When I was a young fellow, an exciting movement of our time was for woman's right. I recall when free marriage was unusual. By free marriage is meant that the young people choose each other without parental interference. I recall when women hardly found work other than to be school teachers, household servants, seamstresses and salesladies. The female typist and stenographer was just coming in but it was not considered quite proper. I can recall how the Finkhner sisters stirred the Anglo-Saxon world to a recognition of the equality of women and when "votes for women" was an actual accomplishment, it was believed that political virtue had been achieved, that motherly goodness would cure politics.

So, many of us believed that peace was just around the corner. Andrew Carnegie, who had amassed the greatest fortune known at that time, devoted much of his wealth to the pursuit of peace. Alfred Nobel of Sweden left some of his money for peace prizes, although he had earned it making explosives. It was believed that war would never come again and that all international grievances would be settled by the International Tribunal at The Hague. Theodore Roosevelt was a pacifist but when war did come in 1914, he was not to fight passively. He and his sons went to war as an example of the Spartan character of his family.

When World War I appeared on the horizon, Henry Ford was so shocked that he hired the old Oscar II and filled it with pacifists, led by Rosika Schwimmer, to sail to Europe to convince the European nations to stop fighting. Henry Ford and those who traveled with him believed that they could talk Europe out of World War I. Certainly, William Randolph Hearst, whose voice was then loud and potent, opposed our going into World War I.

When the United States entered World War I, it was not to punish Germany for being too late in imperialistic history but rather to make the world safe for democracy. And most of us believed that this was really our purpose. Woodrow Wilson went to Paris to establish the League of Nations which he and General Smuts of South Africa conceived as a body to end war forever.

But Wilson's concept of a peaceful and orderly world was upset by the Russian Revolution, an unanticipated event but inevitable as a result of the political and moral corruption of Czarist Russia. There was, at first, some hope that the revolution would lead to the establishment of a democratic country modeled after Great Britain.

This movement failed and the Revolution was taken over by the Bolsheviks, a comparatively small party which was then led by Lenin and Trotsky. The Bolsheviks were ruthless in their rigid adherence to a Marxist program to use Russia as a base to change the world.

Thus our time of peace and order was destroyed in 1917 and since then for 44 years now, we have had war and the consequences of war and our lives have been changed far beyond what anyone could have believed possible in 1917.

One example that might be cited is our economic system which, in 1917, was definitely capitalist, government interference, which was appearing slowly in the Theodore Roosevelt and the Taft Administrations, was regarded as improper and a violation of American life. After 1917, it was expected that the government would control everything. Herbert Hoover (Continued on page five)

Woodrow Wilson Jones Has A Race In Mind

By PAT POSTON
Shelby Star Staff Writer
Written for The Associated Press
RUTHERFORD, N. C. (AP)—To be or not to be a candidate for governor in 1964—that's the question facing former congressman Woodrow Wilson Jones.

Since the recent death of Lt. Gov. H. Cloyd Philpott, Jones, former state Democratic party chairman, has been widely mentioned as a gubernatorial possibility.

"Right now," said Jones recently, "I am not a candidate and haven't the faintest idea if I'm going to run."

The death of Philpott, considered by many to be the front-running 1964 Democratic gubernatorial candidate, left a void in the Democratic ranks.

After Philpott's untimely death, speculation as to the 1964 race included the names of Jones and Speaker of the House Joseph M. Hunt, Greensboro insurance executive.

Jones said he was approached by supporters who encouraged him to run. He said they asked if they might seek the reaction of their Democratic friends in putting his name on the gubernatorial ticket. Jones said he was willing.

Calls made by two of his friends, State Sen. Ben Sumner and former Rep. J. Toliver Davis, to other party leaders became publicly known. But Jones said he still is a long way from deciding.

"It'll be a year or two, I would assume, before anybody makes up his mind," said Jones. "If the situation looks right, if my friends want me to run, if the people of the state want me as governor, I will consider running."

Jones describes himself as a "country lawyer" who keeps a close eye on state and national politics from his book-lined office over a downtown drug store.

Jones, a native of Rutherford

County, headed a debate team at Mars Hill College. He studied law at Wake Forest and began his practice in 1937.

Jones' first and last political defeat came in 1938 when he was defeated for Rutherford County solicitor. He ran again for solicitor in 1940 and won.

During World War II, he served in the Navy, and was discharged as a lieutenant junior grade. He then was elected to two terms in the State House of Representatives.

A general election in November, 1950, sent him to Congress to fill the unexpired term of Rep. A. L. Bulwinkle, representing the old 11th District.

Jones declined to run after three terms in Congress. "I decided I didn't want to try to make a career in Washington since my family and practice were here," he said.

After leaving Congress, Jones served as state Democratic chairman from July, 1953, to August, 1960.

He foresees a good, hard fight for Democrats in the 1964 gubernatorial election against Republican inroads.

Former Rep. Davis is enthusiastic about support for Jones; He said that he contacted 15 or 20 state leaders and that "without any exception," the question of Jones' running was received favorably.

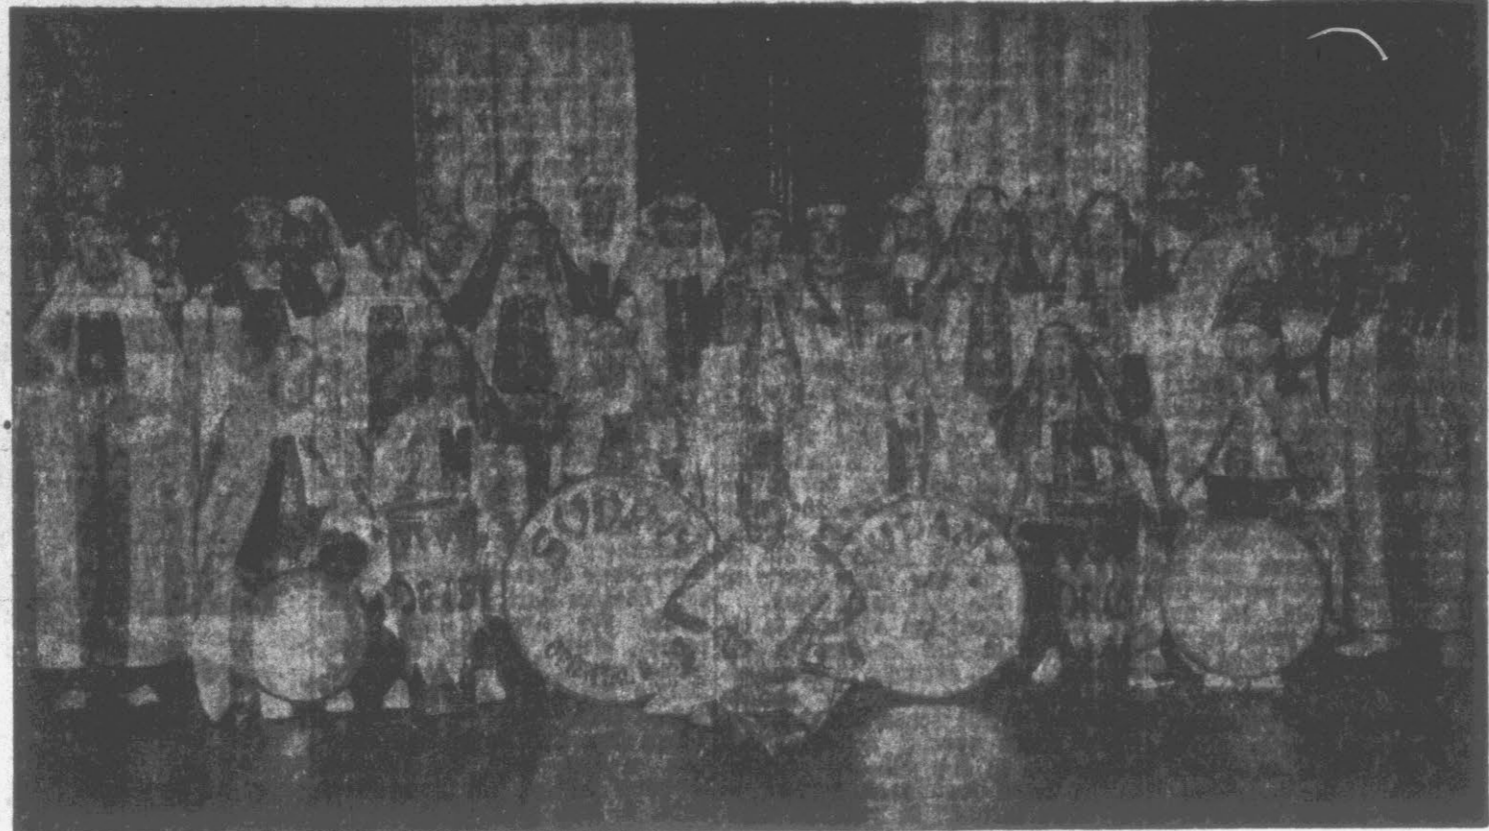

He noted that western North Carolina has had little representation at state levels since the Cleveland County governors held office.

"Jones is the best chance we've had since Gov. Hoey for representation of this part of the state," said Davis.

Others, like State Rep. Hollis Owens Jr. of Rutherford County, mention that another Rutherford County native, Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold, could be a candidate for governor.

Jack Wofford of Forest City, who handled Gov. Terry Sanford's campaign in that county, told the Forest City Courier, "I'd like to see Rutherford County have a governor, but I always had a feeling that our governor from Rutherford County would be Charlie Gold."

SHRINER'S ORIENTAL BAND—This uniformed unit of the Sudan Temple, an Oriental Band hailing from Dunn, is scheduled to appear in the Pitt County Shrine Club's parade here Friday. Support of hospitals for crippled children dotted around the nation is the sole project of the Shriners of North America.

Moose Prepare For Annual Bicyclist Safety Program

HAYES and BERRYMAN
... bicycles for the winners.

Plans for the annual Bicycle Safety Rodeo staged by Greenville Moose Lodge were further advanced last night.

The program, keyed to promoting a greater safety-consciousness among school-age youngsters, will again include a qualifying written test as well as a demonstration of riding safety skills by the contestants.

New bicycles will be presented to the winners, and other awards are being prepared for runners-up in various categories.

Qualifying questionnaires—which constitute a form of safety test for competitors in the actual riding demonstration—have been issued for city and county schools. The questionnaires were prepared by the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles specifically for the promotion of bicycle safety.

The layout for the test of safe bicycle riding demonstration was also prepared by that department. Representatives of the Greenville Police Department, the Pitt County Sheriff's Department and the State Highway Patrol will assist in the program.

The Bike Safety Rodeo is under the general direction of the Greenville Moose Lodge Civic Affairs Committee, co-chairmanned by Russ and Sam Brooks. However, George Hayes and Henry Berryman are laying the groundwork for the Bicycle Rodeo which is scheduled for September 30 on the Lodge parking lot.

On the basis of past Moose experience with the Bicycle Rodeo, Berryman and Hayes are looking for a large turnout of youngsters. "In the light of the recent series of accidents involving young bicyclists," says Hayes, "this rodeo event is most timely. If, by arousing an element of safety awareness, we can deter even one possibly fatal or injurious accident, the Moose program can be considered a success."

"I would suggest," added Berryman, "that this rodeo is something of special interest to parents of bike-riding children. They should be keenly interested in anything that furthers the safety element on our streets and highways."

Winners of the 1960 Greenville Moose Lodge Bike Safety Rodeo were Phyllis Fields, Gregory Baxter and Robin Thompson. All three were presented bicycles as prizes.

Last night the Greenville Lodge inducted ten new members. They were:

Roger A. Hollingsworth Jr., Barry E. Mercer, John D. Rouse, Dr. John Futrell, M. E. Hodges Jr., John C. Ellen Jr., G. Samuel Cox, Johnnie May, Joseph McGuire and Anthony Gargaro.

JAMES H. CRAWFORD

Promotion For Ex-Greenville

DANVILLE, Va. — James H. (Jim) Crawford, native of Greenville, N. C., has been made vice president in charge of programming for radio station WBTM in Danville. It was announced recently.

His promotion was one of three to positions of vice president of the radio station, as announced by W. E. Gardner Jr., president of Piedmont Broadcasting Corp., which operates the station.

Crawford attended East Carolina College in Greenville, where he majored in speech and radio, following four years' service in the Navy from 1945-48. He has a background of 13 years in radio, including four in the field of television.

For the past three years, he has been program director of Radio Station WBTM in Danville, one of the oldest and top-rated stations in the country. Radio surveys taken in the Danville area have shown consistently that Crawford's three daily personality shows are the top three.

Active in community work, he was voted Danville's Outstanding Young Citizen in 1959. His activities include membership on the School Board, Advisory Board of the Salvation Army, Board of Directors of the Rotary Club, Board of Managers of YMCA. He is president of the Danville Council of Religious Education and an elder of the Christian Church.

Arrests Rise In North Rhodesia

LUSAKA, Northern Rhodesia (AP)—The number of Africans arrested in Northern Rhodesia mounted to more than 2,000 over the weekend as security forces combed villages in the northern province for trouble makers.

Government forces are attempting to stamp out a revolt by African nationalists, now in its seventh week, who are fighting a proposed constitution which they claim is not fair to the African majority.

Six More Students At Winterville High

By Ann Jackson

WINTERVILLE — Winterville High opened its 1961-62 school term here with a half dozen more students enrolled than the 225 last term.

Principal Paul J. Clark opened the new school year officially by calling a student assembly in the auditorium. He welcomed students and called on Mrs. Clarissa May, public school music teacher, to lead the group in singing the Winterville High song.

Participating in the opening assembly were the Rev. Henry Melvin, former pastor of Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church near here, and his successor, the Rev. Charles Sapp.

Rev. Sapp and Rev. Melvin conducted the assembly's devotional, with Rev. Melvin discussing the "importance of the three unions of mankind—soul, heart and body." He challenged students to read the Bible and "find the real meaning of the Great Book."

Hard Work
At the conclusion of the devotional, the principal urged students to make this a successful term. "Hard work for 180 days of the school year is necessary for a successful year," he said.

He announced that there was a new regulation for making up assigned tests or work. The students will not be able to make up the missed work in study hall as they did last year but in the last 45 minutes before the close of school—3:10 - 4 p.m. During this period the teachers will be finishing up the day's work or planning the next day's work.

Clark asked the students to cooperate in the up-keep of the school plant, not only from the educational viewpoint, but also in regard to the school's cleanliness. He made special notice of the up-keep of the school's supplies. He asked that each student be "extra careful" in handling them.

New Teachers
There are five new teachers in Winterville School this year:

Miss Marilyn Ann Buck is a native of Vanceboro. She is a graduate of East Carolina College with a B. S. degree in biology. Last spring she did her practice teaching in the WHS science department. This year she will be teaching science in the junior high school.

Willis Johnston Stancill, a native of Greenville, is the new high school science teacher. He is a graduate of East Carolina College with a B. S. in science and math.

This year something new has been added the WHS library. Miss Betty Faye Moore, native of Lillington and former Raleigh resident, will be the librarian three periods a day. She will be teaching English and science during the remaining periods each day. She is a graduate of ECC with a B.S. in English and library science.

Mrs. Peggy Wood, a native of Granite Falls, is the new seventh and eighth grade reading teacher. She is a graduate of ECC with a B. S. in grammar grade education.

Jerry Van Dyke, a native of Belmont, is the new band director. He is also an ECC graduate with a B. S. in band instruction.

Ladies Night At Pactolus Ruritan

FACTOLUS—Pactolus' Ruritan Club Monday night entertained some 80 members, wives and guests at the club's annual Ladies Night observance in the Pactolus Community Building here.

Dr. C. Sylvester Green, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, addressed the gathering following a barbecued chicken dinner.

With the facilities of Stokes-Pactolus High School and Pactolus Elementary School among the audience, Dr. Green presented his views on the current critical world situation. He told the group: "Only through maintaining a close affinity with God can we keep a rosy outlook on the future."

The past college president and minister explained his opinion of the current world situation in terms of education, economics and politics. These aspects of world life he related to the importance of each individual's maintaining a close God-to-man relationship.

Ruritan Burnie Baker extended an official welcome to the members of the two area schools' faculties. Mrs. Guilford Lewis of Stokes-Pactolus High and Mrs. Jessie Little of Pactolus Elementary responded to Baker's welcome. The Ruritan guests in addition to members' wives and the two faculty groups.

Ex-Senator Is Critically Ailing

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The condition of former U.S. Sen. Theodore Francis Green, 93, was described as critical today at Jane Brown Hospital.

Green, oldest man ever to serve in the Senate, retired early this year after 23 years there.

He has been a hospital patient with a heart block since last Friday.

Party Opposing NATO In Norway Gains Dominance

OSLO, Norway (AP)—The ruling Labor party lost its majority in Parliament and the balance of power fell today to the new Socialist People's party which wants Norway to pull out of the Atlantic Alliance.

The Socialist People's party won only two seats in the 150-member chamber, but these were crucial. Results from Monday's national elections gave the Labor party 74 seats and the same total for the four parties of the non-Socialist opposition. The Laborites had 78 seats in the old Parliament.

Thus Premier Einar Gerhardsen was left in an even worse position than last September, when Labor party members who refused to back the party's pro-Western platform were expelled.

The rebels formed the Socialist People's party, with a platform of neutralism, pacifism and a leftist economic policy strongly reminiscent of the early days of the Labor party, now a moderate Social Democratic group.

Gerhardsen forms a new government, the tiny new Socialist party's members will be free to harass their former colleagues. The nation's membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization did not appear in immediate danger since all major parties support it. It remains to be seen what might happen if the Socialist People's party demands concessions toward its anti-NATO policy in exchange for votes on a key domestic issue.

During a generally dull campaign that attracted little public interest because of the nation's booming economy, Gerhardsen had warned that his Laborites would not form another government unless they held their absolute majority. They have ruled Norway since 1935.

When the returns began coming in, Gerhardsen appeared to relent. "If the Socialist People's party gets in the position where it makes up the difference in a Socialist majority," he said, "we will have to think again about forming a government."

Finn Gustavsen, 27, the Socialist People's party's Oslo representative, said he will do all in his power to stop the non-Socialists from forming a government.

The four non-Socialist parties are the Conservatives, a free enterprise and pro-NATO group, 29 seats; the Center, a farmers' party which supports NATO, 17 seats; the Christian Democrats, also pro-NATO and favoring social legislation, 15 seats; and the Liberals, a catch-all party that includes fishermen, state planners, free enterprise supporters and minority language groups, 13 seats. The Communists lost their only seat.

Rumor Attempt On Famed Tower

PISA, Italy (AP)—Reports circulated in this central Italian city today that saboteurs might try to blow up the famed leaning tower of Pisa.

The rumors spread after a weekend of terrorist bombings in Rome and half a dozen other cities. Government officials blamed the bombings on German-speaking extremists seeking greater autonomy in South Tyrol.

City authorities in Pisa said they felt normal security measures around the leaning tower are adequate. The monument, a 14th century bell tower standing next to the Cathedral of Pisa, is constantly guarded by at least two policemen.

Puts Emphasis On Attendance

Greenville Superintendent of Schools J.H. Rose today urged parents of school children to keep their children in school every day unless sickness prevents.

He also asked organizations which sponsor youth activities to cooperate with the parents in keeping children in school, by carrying out their programs during the summer, on holidays and on weekends.

Rose linked school attendance both to the child's progress and to state appropriations, which are based on the average daily attendance in the schools or the previous year.

He stated that individuals and groups should not request principals to dismiss children from schools except for reasons of health or emergency.

As for the appropriations, the state appropriation per child per year of 180 days is approximately $180. This is $1 per day per child, if the child is present for classes. The state does pay the appropriation if the child is absent because of a contagious sickness, however.

"Five thousand four hundred children are enrolled in our schools," Rose said. "So, if every child is absent just one day, the Greenville Schools lose $5,400.00 on next year's budget. If every child is absent five days during this school year, we will lose $27,000.00 from the State on next year's appropriation," he added.

Outlook Is Good For East Carolina Grid Team

EAST CAROLINA footballers in a huddle as Coach Jack Boone ran the various units through offensive plays during Monday's practice session.

By GEORGE BRYANT, Reflector Sports Writer

The East Carolina football outlook so far is good and Coach Jack Boone feels like the team will be strong at center, quarterback and fullback with some weakness in the halfback spots and at guard.

Boone told the Reflector that Tommy Matthews is the only returning veteran who has any experience at halfback.

Another loss which could hinder the ECC club, but probably not as much as was thought earlier, is Henry Kwiatkowski.

End Spot Improved. The end spot this year for the Pirates should be improved over that of the '60 squad as last year the team had no good offensive boys in this spot.

Route At Quarterback. Calling the signals for the Bucs this season in the quarterback spot will most likely be junior Don Rouse.

All-State Possibility. A tackle who has a strong possibility of making all-state, according to Coach Boone, is the other tri-captain, Clayton Piland.

Fight Tonight. PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joey Giardello, 10th ranked middle-weight contender, meets Jesse Smith, his one-time sparring partner, tonight in a 10-round bout at the Philadelphia Arena.

NCS Is Big And Tough This Year

By REESE HART

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State, armed with perhaps the nation's best college passer and quarterback in Roman Gabriel, will be big and tough this season.

Some observers have pegged the Wolfpack to win the Atlantic Coast Conference crown mainly on the prowess of Gabriel, 6-4, 224-pound senior and captain from Wilmington.

Edwards has veterans at all positions except center, where Bill Hill and Jim Fitzgerald were lost by graduation.

The success of the Wolfpack will be riding to a large extent on the big, tanned shoulders of Gabriel, chosen in advance by several publications as college player of the year.

Walt Kudryan, 6-2, 210-pound junior, who saw little action last season, is the No. 1 center.

State opens its season against Wyoming in Laramie, Wyo., Sept. 23. The remainder of the schedule: Sept. 30 at North Carolina; Oct. 7, at Virginia; 14, at Alabama; 21, Wake Forest; 28, Duke; Nov. 4, Mississippi Southern at Mobile, Ala.; 11, at Maryland; 18, South Carolina (homecoming); 25, at Clemson.

Practice Briefs

Rose High

The Rose High Phantoms yesterday concentrated on defense and working on mistakes which showed up in films of Friday night's game with Ahoskie.

Rommie Brock and Van Harris looked real good during a scrimmage late yesterday afternoon according to the coach, Alan MacArthur.

The Rose High JV team plays their first game Thursday afternoon with Jacksonville away the coach noted.

With respect to the varsity game with Jacksonville, Phillips said that their coach has been saving his main players for conference contests. So far they have played two non-conference games.

East Carolina

The East Carolina Pirates are spending most of this week preparing for their first grid contest of the new season with Penn. State Teachers. Game time is set for 8 p.m. Saturday in the college stadium.

Yesterday Coach Jack Boone spent part of the practice session working on offensive plays using a dummy defense.

The ECC skipper said he plans to work the boys hard through Wednesday and then begin tapering off Thursday and Friday.

The general outlook for the Pirates is good according to the ECC mentor.

By MIKE RATHET, Associated Press Sports Writer

The magic number for Roger Maris is four. Make it seven for the New York Yankees' charmed digit, and that's the situation as the chase for Babe Ruth's home run record and the American League pennant resumes tonight.

After a one-day respite, the M&M homer hammerers move into Chicago with 10 games in an eight-day period remaining in which to tie or surpass the Bambino's home run record of 60 under the 154-decision allotment decreed by Commissioner Ford Frick.

Maris, with 56 homers, is four games ahead of Ruth's record pace of 1927, while Mantle, with 53, has fallen two behind for the showdown stretch—night games at Chicago tonight and Wednesday and a day tilt Thursday, a twin-nighter at Detroit Friday followed by day contests Saturday and Sunday, a twin-nighter at Baltimore Tuesday, and a night game Wednesday.

The Yankees, leading the runner-up Detroit Tigers by 1 1/2 games, need any combination of eight wins or Detroit losses to wrap up their 11th pennant in the last 13 years and the first for rookie Manager Ralph Houk.

Mantle, who has hit 29 homers on the road to 24 at Yankee Stadium was looking forward to the road battles. But Maris, who has hit half away and half at home, expressed indifference to his surroundings.

The Yankees, riding a 12-game winning streak, and the Tigers sat it out Monday, maintaining the status quo at the top of the standings. In the only games played, Boston walloped Washington 14-4, and Minnesota beat Los Angeles 5-2.

In the National League, Gordon Windhorn's pinch-hit homer in the inning gave the Los Angeles Dodgers a 6-5 victory over Philadelphia, and moved the Dodgers within 3 1/2 games of idle, first-place Cincinnati.

San Francisco edged Pittsburgh 4-3 in 10 innings and St. Louis defeated Milwaukee 4-1.

The Twins scored four in the eighth to beat the Angels and rookie Dean Chance, making his pitching debut in the majors.

Knowing Rules Called Big Factor In Enjoying Sports

Walter Jones, head of the North-eastern Booking Association for football and basketball officials, told the Rose High Touchdown Club that a better understanding of rules is a key factor in enjoying any sport.

Jones spoke to club members last night at their second meeting of the new grid season in the school cafeteria. He told the group of about 30 men that when rules are necessary there must be someone to enforce them.

He explained that the men in striped uniforms who travel up and down high school and college football fields on weekends come from all walks of life.

At the end of the meeting, Phantom Coach Bud Phillips took over to show films of last week's game and he discussed the mistakes which were made.

At the beginning of the war with eight area schools relying on him for officials, today it has grown to the point that he is furnishing officials for schools as far west as Burlington and east to Manteo.

Jones told the group that sports rules are designed for the safety of the players, especially high school rules. He discussed some of the differences between high school rules and college rules, concentrating on football as that is what people are concerned with at the present time.

During the business part of the meeting, Wiley Forbes reported that ECC Coach Jack Boone would be the speaker at next week's meeting.

Old-fashioned heating oil may form solids that can choke the nozzle opening of the burner. This produces an unbalanced flame that can cause heat bills to run high.

The cleanliness of new Shell Heating Oil helps guard against clogging. The oil swirls through the opening and burns evenly with a balanced, cone-shaped flame.

HOMEOWNERS:

Shell answers ten questions you might ask about Shell Heating Oil—and tells how it can save you money winter after winter

There's a new, improved additive in today's Shell Heating Oil.

Called FOA-5X[®], this unique additive works round the clock—guards filters and critical passages in your burner fuel system—helps keep Shell heating oil burning with a hot, radiant flame. The results: more warmth per gallon, top heating performance.

Now, Shell experts answer ten questions you might ask about heating oils, and reveal how new Shell Heating Oil can reduce your oil heat bills in two important ways.

#1. Are there really differences among heating oils?

Indeed there are. Major differences. You can actually see some of them. For instance, some oils are stable. Others form visible sediment quickly.

You can see differences in other ways, too. In your heating bill, for example. And the amount of service your burner needs.

Now—with FOA-5X in today's Shell Heating Oil—the differences among oils are greater than ever.

#2. What causes these differences?

Many things. The basic quality of the oil. How it is refined and treated. With Shell

Heating Oil, additive FOA-5X makes a big difference.

#3. What is FOA-5X?

FOA-5X is the trademark for a special additive developed by Shell Research. It was first used in Shell Heating Oil back in 1948. Over the years, Shell improved it. Today's Shell Heating Oil contains FOA-5X in a new and more effective form. Its job is simple, but exacting.

It is the nature of ordinary heating oils to form tiny unseen components, which float in suspension. If these minute particles join forces, they form visible solids that can cause trouble. FOA-5X helps keep them apart.

Only Shell Heating Oil contains new, improved FOA-5X.

#4. Does FOA-5X add to the selling price of new Shell Heating Oil?

No. The benefits of FOA-5X don't cost you one penny extra—yet the additive itself cost Shell many thousands of dollars to create and perfect.

#5. What are the benefits?

Shell's advanced refining techniques and FOA-5X help Shell Heating Oil guard against sediment build-up more effectively than other heating oils.

Consider the Filter Test.

After accelerated laboratory aging equal to 12 months in your storage tank, Shell and several competitive oils were passed through fine filter paper.

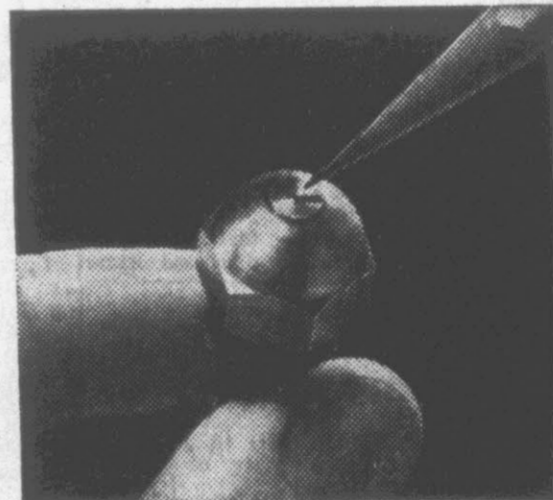

The openings in this tissue screen are 8/10ths of a micron in diameter. That's much less than the width of an eyelash. The other oils left up to 30 times more sediment than new Shell Heating Oil.

#6. Does the cleanliness of new Shell Heating Oil mean that it will produce more heat?

Yes—but not for the reason you might expect. An oil that isn't as clean as the new Shell oil may burn just as well, but only for as long as the burner stays clean. And a burner can become clogged very quickly if the oil isn't clean. It's easy to see why.

The nozzle opening of your oil burner is actually smaller than the eye of a needle.

Needle-eye opening in burner nozzle calls for a heating oil that is exceptionally clean.

Through this tiny opening must flow hundreds of gallons of heating oil every winter.

If that opening becomes partly blocked, the flame that creates your heat will burn in a lopsided ragged pattern. When this happens, heat losses can run higher. So will heat bills.

An exceptionally clean and stable heating oil, such as Shell with FOA-5X, helps guard against harmful deposits which could distort the flame and waste heat.

#7. Will the unusual cleanliness of Shell Heating Oil reduce oil heat costs?

Yes—in many cases it will. However, Shell Heating Oil cannot remove all residue caused by an inferior oil. In order for Shell to give you top heating performance, the burner must be in good condition and properly adjusted.

When this has been done, Shell Heating Oil can help reduce your annual oil heat bill.

#8. Will new Shell Heating Oil cut maintenance costs?

Any heating system needs a periodic checkup.

But—if you've had more than your share of service calls, Shell Heating Oil with FOA-5X additive can help you reduce them. Here's why.

Once it's adjusted properly, your burner will stay that way for a longer period of time. You can expect less frequent replacement of filters. This can mean fewer service calls, longer burner life.

#9. With all the benefits that Shell Heating Oil provides, does it offer the usual advantages of oil heating?

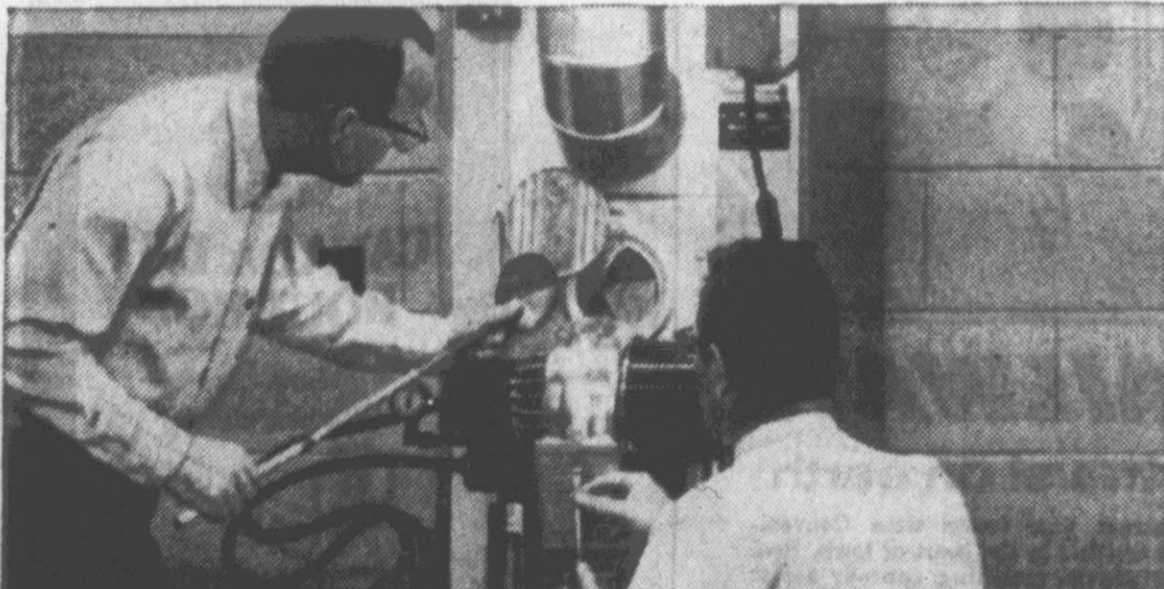

Yes. The extra benefits that Shell Heating Oil provides can now be added to all the features that have made oil such an enormously popular source of warmth. Here are a few:

An oil-fired heating system is designed to go on whenever you need it. Flick a switch—the heat's on. There's no pilot light to fuss with.

With oil, you've got your own private supply of fuel. You and your family are protected against a sudden fuel supply breakdown many miles away.

#10. Is Shell Heating Oil with FOA-5X available now?

Yes. We can deliver your first tankful of Shell Heating Oil at your convenience. Call us today.

Above: Scientists adjust flame pattern of test furnace in a Shell laboratory. Here, Shell conducts continuous research into heating efficiency. One result of Shell's research is the remarkable Shell Combustion Head. Tests using Shell Heating Oil have shown that this head can cut fuel bills up to 20 per cent.

CITY SURROUNDS SUBURBS
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—This city and two of its suburbs have a peculiar layout. Starting in Columbus and heading in a straight line due east on Broad Street, you hit suburban Beavercreek, then Columbus again, then suburban Whitehall, then Columbus. The two suburban cities are virtually islands within Ohio's capital.

BURNTWOOD MEN

CHAPTER 27

"Tam! Tam! Wake up!" came Stephanie Devoe's urgent whisper. "Here comes Strike's wagon train."

Tam Barrie jerked awake, reaching for his rifle. How long he had been asleep he did not know, but he was cold and the muscles of his shoulders ached. The world spun and fell into place. "How far?" he asked.

"Maybe ten minutes," she said. "It's getting along toward midnight."

"Why didn't you wake me?" "You were tired," she said simply. When he tried to protest further, she touched his lips with strong warm fingers. "No, Tam. I did so because I wished to do so. Listen, the wagons."

Across the quiet night came the clink of trace chains, the creak of leather, the grind and crunch of steel tires on the gravel of the trail. The first wagon came up the little slope and stopped in the clearing by the river's edge. Behind it came a small group of horsemen, then another wagon, and a third. Half a dozen men rode in the rear guard, the star blaze glinting from the steel of rifle barrels.

"By Harry, here's the ford at last," one of them said. He was not speaking loudly, but the night was so still, he sounded so close, that Tam held his breath. "You been talkin' this ford, and braggin' this ford so long. I thought maybe you made it up."

"Well, I warn't lyin', was I? Here she is, and she's not more'n hub deep. And all around as quiet as the grave."

"Damn it, Phil, if you don't think of the cussedest ways of puttin' things, you make me shiver." The man Phil laughed. "You oughta be ready to turn in your checks, Barney. Tonight or some other night, what's the difference?"

"Because, blast you, I still got some hosses to ride and some whisky to drink and some women to kiss afore they pat me in the face with a shovel. And I aim to do some."

"Say, what you need..." Phil began. Then his voice dropped. "Take it easy. Here's the boss."

"What's holdin' you men up?" Strike's voice demanded. His horse came splashing up out of the stream.

"Is everything all right?" Barney asked.

"Of course it's all right, you fool! Get these wagons moving, one at a time. We've marked the safe line of the ford with white rags on stakes. Stay west of 'em. You get these rigs into quicksand and I'll skin every mother's son of you alive. Roll 'em now!"

His horse went splashing back into the river. From the seat of the lead wagon a whiplash crackled. The hitch moved, the big wagon surged down the bank to the water. Faintly in the star glow, Tam spotted several riders outlined for a moment at the crest of the bank. Now the second wagon lurched down to the river's edge, and stopped.

Tam rose to his knees, looking out over the river. The second wagon began to move. The two wagon tops made faintly lighter blurs against the dim silver sheet of the river. They lurched on, moving with slow care. Tam touched Stephanie on the shoulder. She knelt beside him. He could hear her excited, rapid breathing. He gripped his rifle.

With a jolting shock, the far bank erupted in flame, the starm of rifle fire. In the dark, coming without warning, the guns sounded like those of a small army. "Ambush!" a man yelled. Answering gunshots winked from the dark water.

One of the riders near Tam yelled, "Get 'em," and spurred into the water. Others raced after him. A long cry of pain went up from the ford.

"Now!" Tam said, and pressed Stephanie's shoulder. They slid over the bank. Bent low, they raced for the remaining wagon. It's holding back. Tam thought, seeing the gray bulk of it in the starlight. He ran behind it.

He slammed into someone who recoiled in surprise. Tam whipped the barrel of his rifle toward the spot, felt it smash against flesh and bone. With a moan, and over him dropped. Tam jumped over him and clambered up a front wheel, onto the wagon box. With frantic haste, he fumbled for the reins. He found them. He felt rather than saw movement beside him.

"Steve?" he asked softly.

"Yes. Get this rig moving, Tam!"

He threaded the leather ribbons between his fingers. He had done some coaching, a little tandem driving. But no one had ever taught him how to turn a four-horse hitch on an unknown trail in pitch darkness. He had to learn fast.

Reaching for the whip, he made it sing over the flanks of the leaders, then the wheelers. The teams surged forward. His feet braced against the dash, he bore them hard to the left. Brush cracked and the wagon lurched, he was hardly aware of the man clambering up the side of the wagon, until pistol flame lanced the night. The man yelled, and was gone.

"Good work, Steve," Tam said between set teeth. He eased the hitch around, fighting for the back trail. It came, and he laid the lash hard onto the teams. They took the trail with a rush, the wagon rocking and swaying. Behind them, shots crashed. Tam thought, that will be Ouellette and Laurier. But he had small time to speculate, trying to guide the frightened horses through the scrub and the rocks, his only marker the faintest of notches in the brush.

He tried to pull the horses down, but they had the bits in their teeth. The wheels slammed over rocks, sparks streaming from the steel tires. The horses laid their bellies to the ground and began to run.

From the edge of the trail, three quick shots flamed up at them, blinding orange. Stephanie fired down, once. There was a scream, and they were past, the wagon climbing up on two wheels, to drop back with a crash. The horses raced faster into the blackness.

The brush fell away. The wagon turned, the lurch almost ripping the reins from Tam's hands. By the crunch of stones, they had lost the road.

"Tam, cutback ahead!" Stephanie cried. "Jump!"

He sensed that she was gone from the wagon. He flipped the reins aside and, reckless of neck or limb, unaided over the side of the wagon. Brush raked his face but broke his fall. He crashed through the bushes, rolling, to hang up against a small tree. Half dazed, dull with fresh pain, he sat up. He heard the wagon receding across the gravel, then suddenly there was silence. Tam held his breath.

The night opened up in a monstrous gout of flame. The earth rocked. Debris thumped and clattered, kicking through the leaves. Something warm and wet struck Tam's face. In horror he clawed it away. He struggled to his feet, swaying, trying to blink away the blinding glare of the aftermath. The monstrous detonation filled him with awe. Strike had something more than a handgun in that wagon. Dynamite! Perhaps, and the blasting caps next to it.

Then the thought hit him—Stephanie! Panic stabbed at him. With a terrible urgency he ran back along the trail, following the deep ruts the loaded wagon had left. "Steve!" he called. "Steve!"

He blundered into brush, caromed from a tree. Then his heart leaped. Her voice came from the night. "Here, Tam. Over here."

He stumbled over rocks. As he caught her in his arms, held her close, he could feel the quivering of her body.

"Steve! I thought I'd lost you!" he said. "Are you all right, girl?"

"I'm alive. I'm bruised all over, my ankle is twisted, and my skin is ripped and slashed by cactuses. But I'm alive." She managed a shaky laugh.

"I can't hear any more firing at the ford," he said. "Lean on my shoulder, kid. We'll go back. Watch out—that last man might still be gunning for us."

Cleveland Strike's ambition to rule the Northwest is driving him to worse deeds. Continue the story tomorrow.

Saud Reshuffles Cabinet Makeup

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—King Saud of Saudi Arabia reshuffled his Cabinet Monday in an apparent move to patch up differences with his brother and ex-premier, Crown Prince Faisal.

Mecca radio announced a royal decree naming Saud's nephew, Prince Faisal ben Turki ben Abdul Aziz, minister of the interior and dismissing his brother, Prince Talal ben Abdus Aziz, from his post as minister of finance and economy, among other Cabinet changes.

Talal reportedly has been one of the major causes of differences between Saud and Faisal, who was dismissed by the king from the premiership last year.

Senate Ratifies 2 New Treaties

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate formally ratified Monday new commercial treaties with Belgium and Viet Nam in one 83-to-0 roll-call vote.

Their purpose is to provide protection for the property and interests of American citizens and companies and to assure fair treatment in commercial, industrial and financial activities.

Each treaty provides that the property of companies of either country is not to be taken except for public purpose, nor without the prompt payment of just compensation.

Oddities In News Of The Day

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS LUCKY DUCK

A wounded duck, his body pitted with buckshot, plummeted into a high school yard at Tucson, Ariz. He couldn't have picked a better place.

A student, Richard Orbaker, took the high dead fowl into a biology classroom and, with classmates for an audience, operated with scissors and tweezers to remove the buckshot.

At one point, the duck's heart stopped beating. But that was no problem to his 18-year-old benefactor.

The youth grabbed a glass tube, put it inside the bird's beak and blew into it. A half-minute later, the duck was alive again.

"And he's going to stay that way," Orbaker predicted happily.

STRICTLY ACADEMIC Suzanne Healy, 5, of Kings Park, N.Y., skipped a grade at Indian Head School—and the resulting situation was a frantic one. Last Wednesday, Suzanne's mother, Mrs. Howard Healy, took her by the hand and led her to the school six blocks away. It was Suzanne's first day in kindergarten.

Monday, Mrs. Howard decided it was time for Suzanne to go it alone. She did, and when she reached the school she sauntered into a first-grade classroom and sat down. The teacher mistook her for another girl.

Mrs. Healy checked the school later in the day and was told by the kindergarten teacher that Suzanne was absent.

It took scores of police, neighbors and school officials to locate Suzanne—and get her back in the right grade.

MOTION ON THE FLOOR At Cornville, Maine, 190 citizens filed into the 150-year-old town hall to discuss a proposed building code.

Midway through the meeting, the floor of the hall buckled and dropped about two feet in the center.

The meeting was moved to the school house.

Truck Firm Has Own Chaplain

CHERRYVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The Carolina Freight Corp. has a full-time chaplain for its 400 truck drivers and 1,000 other employees.

He is the Rev. Jack H. Cooks, 40, a Methodist minister, who performs his duties on an inter-denominational basis.

Each work day morning he conducts a seven-minute devotional service, broadcast through loudspeakers to all departments in the sprawling home office here.

His "congregation" includes 24 outlying terminals from Boston to Miami. He tries to visit each of them twice a year.

The Rev. Mr. Cooks does not usurp the duties of the employees' home clergymen.

"When a person comes to me for advice and counsel," he says, "I advise him to talk the matter over with his regular minister."

"When he says that he does not have a minister or that he prefers to talk to me, I do all I can to help."

The minister also edits company publication, writes letters of congratulation, encouragement and condolence to employees, and visits the sick.

Teacher Injured In Copter Crash

CHICAGO (AP)—A high school science teacher was injured Monday when his homemade helicopter crashed into a field.

Chester Bera, 45, a teacher at West Leyden High School, in Northlake, a Chicago suburb, was riding in the 200-pound aircraft when a tow rope broke, plummeting the craft to earth.

Officials said the machine crashed apparently because its engine had not achieved enough power to keep it airborne without the tow rope.

Bera had built the machine from a $1,100 "do it yourself" kit.

To Seek Revising Of Canal Treaty

PANAMA (AP) — President Roberto F. Chiari said Monday his administration will seek total revision of the treaty with the United States on the Panama Canal at what he called an opportune time.

Chiari said Panama's geographical position is a natural resource and the people feel the United States does not give fair compensation for the 500-square mile Canal Zone which bisects the country. The present annuity is $1.9 million.

Guam, the largest of the Marianas Islands, was ceded to the United States by Spain in 1898.

Key issues rose fractions to a point or so with some wide movers up several points.

Ford and Chrysler were ahead around 2 points each. General Motors rose nearly a point amid hopes the company's complex labor situation can be ironed out soon.

Steeels, too, were strong with U.S. Steel, Jones & Laughlin and Republic up a point or so.

Electronics swung higher as Beckman rose around 3, Litton nearly 4 and Zenith almost 5.

North American Aviation rose better than a point on word it was picked for $140 million in work on the advanced Saturn rocket booster.

Analysts noted that volume was running a little better than Monday as prices rose, an encouraging sign. As was the case Monday, trading was held down somewhat by the Jewish religious holidays.

Rubber firms, metals, chemicals and oils were mostly higher, along with the steels and motors. Chemicals were especially

Rain Put Pounds On Tobacco Crop

RALEIGH (AP)—August rains added pounds to the North Carolina flue-cured tobacco crop, according to the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service.

The agency said Monday it looks for production of 832.5 million pounds, up nearly 13 million pounds from its forecast made a month earlier. If realized, such a crop would be 7.3 million pounds under last year, and down 16.2 million pounds from the 10-year average.

At the same time, heavy August rains in the mountains were blamed for a reduction in the burley tobacco forecast. The production estimate was 20,342,000 pounds.

The flue-cured estimates, by belts: Old Middle, 298 million pounds; Eastern, 427.5 million pounds; Border, 106.4 million pounds.

Other crop forecasts: Corn—67.2 million bushels, off 20 per cent from last year because of reduced acreage. A yield of 48 bushels per acre, same as last year, was forecast.

Soybeans—13.7 million bushels, up 15 per cent from 1960. Grain sorghum—1,980,000 bushels, down 35 per cent from last year.

Peanuts—316.8 million pounds, down slightly from 1960.

Greenville firemen responded to three calls yesterday, only one of which was from a fire alarm box.

Officers said the first call was to the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and the ACL Railroad when grass at the intersection caught fire. No damage resulted from the fire.

The second fire was located at 607 Roosevelt Ave. when a gas stove at the residence flared up. Officers reported the blaze was out when they arrived, and noted no damage resulted.

Time of the call was reported at 7:10 p.m.

An alarm was received from Box 153 at the intersection of Fifth and Elizabeth Sts. at 9:42 p.m. and responding firefighters found a car at the intersection of Pamlico Ave. and Bonner's Lane had caught fire.

Noting that blaze was out on arrival, officers said light damage was done to the vehicle, owned by the City Cab Company.

Miss America Of '58 Said Seeking Divorce

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Gary Nady, the former Colorado football star who married Miss America of 1958, Marilyn Vanderbur, said Monday night, "Marilyn is suing me for divorce."

In New York City, where she is making television appearances, Miss Vanderbur refused to comment.

The desk at the Savoy Hilton Hotel first told reporters she had asked not to be disturbed until 10 a.m. At that time the hotel said she had checked out without leaving a forwarding address.

Nady, 27, football coach at Parsons College in Iowa, said he had received a telephone call from his wife's Denver attorney Monday night.

In a telephone interview with the Rocky Mountain News, Nady said later it was "the biggest shock of my life."

The couple was married June 1 in a well-publicized ceremony at St. John the Evangelist Catholic church in Denver.

Marilyn, 23, has made numerous television appearances for the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. She was TV hostess for the Miss America pageant at Atlantic City, N. J., last weekend.

She and Nady met at the University of Colorado as students and became engaged at Christmas, 1959. Three months later, Miss Vanderbur broke the engagement, saying "Gary and I just weren't able to work things out."

But last March their wedding plans were announced.

"I thought it was an ideal marriage," Nady said Monday night. "I always felt she was happy here in Fairfield (Iowa). The only thing I can think of is that since she's been gone, some new horizons in her career have presented themselves."

CD Film Shown To Lions Club

Members of the Greenville Lions Club saw a Civil Defense movie on "Fallout" shown by Charles Price, who was in charge of the program for last night's meeting.

The film explained atomic radiation and what precautions may be taken to preserve life after atomic attack.

J. D. Higgins presented the report of the caseworker for the blind, which showed that the Lions Club arranged for payment of glasses for 14 persons and transportation for one, and approved payment of glasses for four persons and transportation for Duke for two. The club also approved payment of clothing for one child entering the State School for the Blind.

The report said that 46 persons were given eye examinations; glasses were recommended for 31; surgery for four; and treatment for 11. Six persons were removed from the classification of blindness. Four eye operations were performed.

Visitors at the meeting included Tom Arthur, Junior Lion; Howard Whitaker; and Dick Johnson.

Rural House Is Lost To Flames

ROBERSONVILLE—Fire totally destroyed a one-story, frame farm house near here early Saturday morning. No one was injured.

Earl James, occupant of the home, discovered the fire about 1 a.m. Saturday when he awoke to find flames over the ceiling and the whole top of the house on fire. The tenant farmer alerted the Robersonville Fire Department after awakening his wife and four children and seeing them to safety.

The farm, owned by Clifford Woolard, is located about two miles north of Robersonville on State 903. Except for the clothing of James' 12-year-old daughter, all contents of the house were destroyed.

Robersonville Fire Chief Wiley Rogerson stated that electrical wiring in the attic of the house was the cause of the fire. He estimated the damage at $7,000.

Knight Will Run For Calif. Governorship

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Goodwin Knight, California Republican governor from 1953 to 1959, has announced he'll seek the governorship again next year.

"I'm in this race all the way," Knight, 64, old reporter Monday. He said scores of party leaders with whom he discussed his action "all felt I should run and that I should make the announcement now."

Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who is expected to seek re-election, said "Knight's announcement at this early date—a full nine months before the primary—is a transparent attempt to keep Richard Nixon out of the race. But I will leave it to these two worthies to fight their own battles."

Former Vice President Nixon was unavailable for comment. He has said he'll become a candidate only if no Republican "who can win" enters the race.

Some political observers speculated that Knight is out to settle some old political scores by declaring his plans ahead of Nixon. Knight has made it plain that he hasn't forgotten 1958—the year of the Big Switch.

In August of that year, Knight sought re-election as governor. By mid-November, Knight had gone through the painful experience of giving it up for a try for the U.S. Senate.

What happened in between is that powerful Republican factions, including Nixon, agreed to support then Sen. William F. Knowland over Knight as their choice for governor.

Both Knight and Knowland lost. Knight's resignation was effective at 12:15 p.m. yesterday.

Officers said no damage was done to the second car, driven by Idell Williams White of 1303 Washington St.

Temp Clark, executive director of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, attended the 47th annual meeting of the Southern Tuberculosis Association in Hot Springs, Ark. last week.

Dr. William Schwartz of Oteen, president of the Southern Thoracic Society, presided over sessions of the society.

Among the speakers was Charles Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, who is honorary seal chairman this year.

The 1962 Southern Tuberculosis Conference will be held at the Battery Park Hotel in Asheville in September.

Light Damage To Parked Car

An estimated $20 damage was done to a car owned by James Smith of 313 Line Ave. yesterday after the parked vehicle was struck by a second car in the City's Evans Street Parking lot about 12:15 p.m. yesterday.

Officers said no damage was done to the second car, driven by Idell Williams White of 1303 Washington St.

No charges were made in the collision; the only one reported during the day.

Consider Buying More Whammies

RALEIGH (AP)—The Advisory Budget Commission will consider whether to proceed with the purchase of 30 radar "whammies" for the State Highway Patrol to use in catching speeders.

Director William White of the purchase and contract division revealed Monday that the State Board of Awards last Friday decided to put off action on buying the equipment.

A low bid of $22,350, submitted by Traffic Engineers Supply Corp. of Alexandria, Va., was before the board. The legislature put up $36,000 for the equipment.

An Open Letter To The Man Or Woman Who Says... "I Just Can't Save A Cent!"
 (One Of A Series Of Letters That May Be Helpful To YOU.)

The Planters National Bank & Trust Company
 SEPTEMBER 12, 1961

If the headline over this letter applies to you, may I suggest that you "Stop Kidding Yourself!"

That's what you're doing, you know. Anybody can save a part of his income if he can resist the temptation to spend all of it.

"Oh," you say, "if you want to get technical about it, I suppose I could save a little something. But it would be so little it wouldn't be worth saving!"

Stop kidding yourself—please!

Unless yours is an unusual case, you're just providing yourself with an excuse. Most folks who spend all they earn eventually begin to feel uneasy, even guilty about it. So they give themselves an excuse—"I can't save enough to amount to anything." If they still feel a little uneasy, they promise themselves that they'll start saving as soon as they get a raise or get a few bills out of the way.

The truth is, they don't know how much they can save. There's no way for them to know until they try. And they're forgetting that the less they have left over to save, the more they need to save it!

The way to save money is to make up your mind you want to save it. Don't start unless you can make this decision and make it stick. Then organize your spending. List the "musts." Don't be too ambitious. Allow something for fun and luxuries—but screen them well! Put yourself on a "money diet"—and consume only as much as you must to stay healthy and sensibly happy. No more bank the rest

The amount you discover you can save out of each paycheck probably will be much larger than you thought. But if you've been a heavy spender, it still might look a little small. Don't let this bother you—just remember that small sums saved regularly have a way of mushrooming into big sums before you realize it. At Planters National, we know this is true—we see it happen every day.

And every time you're tempted to "let up," think of the future. You're not surrendering a part of your income—you're just putting it aside for security . . . for tomorrow. It's still yours—to use when you need it more than you do now.

Just can't save a cent?
 Stop Kidding Yourself!

Cordially yours
 Archie W. McLean
