Success Up To Teachers, Speaker Tells Educators

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

"The whole system of education succeeds or fails, depending on the teachers," keynote speaker Joseph W. Hobbs told some 2,000 teachers assembled at East Carolina College today for the 39th annual convention of the Northeastern District of the North Carolina Education Association.

who works with the children and puts "flesh and blood" into the curriculum," Hobbs stated. Since the teacher is the most important factor in education, he said, he or she "deals with the needs, the problems, the longings of the children as well as imparting fundamental skills to them."

of Mason County Schools for 18 years, previously teaching 16 years. His teaching experience included being an elementary school principal and instructing in a junior high school. He received his B. S. degree and the M. A. degree in education from Bradley University in Peoria. He also attended Illinois State Normal University.

Prior to Hobbs' address, Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction in Raleigh, brought greetings and discussed the quality education program of North Carolina. "All over this state people are anticipating the arrival of quality education. We already know what we mean by quality education," he stated.

Lynn Urges Alertness, Active Farm Role

Farmers and farm interests were urged Thursday to become more alert of the nature of federal agricultural control measures and to assume more active roles on the local level in molding farm policy.

Lynn continued: "And our job will get harder as our farm population becomes a smaller percentage of the nation's people." He outlined briefly, during his 45-minute address, the programs Farm Bureau is currently undertaking to help raise the farm income. Among these, he said, is an effort to market peanuts in Western Europe, a new farm accounting program and bargaining in behalf of agricultural interests to obtain higher commodity prices on the market.

'K' Says USSR Will Negotiate

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev said today the Soviet Union is ready to negotiate any time, any place to insure peace. But he told Prime Minister Nehru of India, in a letter, the talks which the so-called non-aligned nations proposed between him and President Kennedy should be part of a wider scheme devoted to drawing up a German peace treaty.

His answer to the plea for negotiations was the same as he gave in a speech here during Nehru's visit.

BERLIN (AP) — Premier Khrushchev said today war over Germany would "inevitably lead to a nuclear world catastrophe." His words came in a message to the opening session of the Communist-dominated World Trade Federation meeting. Two hundred delegates from 40 countries are taking part in the East Berlin meeting "for a German peace treaty and the peaceful solution of the Berlin problem."

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Japanese Premier Nobusuke Kishi arrived Thursday for a two-week visit in the United States. He is to see President Kennedy at the White House next Wednesday morning and visit former President Dwight D. Eisenhower at Gettysburg, Pa. Thursday.

BERLIN (AP) — A British spokesman said today that Vladislav Shumsky, correspondent of the Soviet news agency Tass, has been expelled from West Berlin. The spokesman said Shumsky, 35, took up residence in the British sector of West Berlin last July without getting the proper permit.

UN Delegates Appeal For Berlin Crisis Settlement

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomats from widely separated parts of the world today appealed for a negotiated settlement of the Berlin crisis as the U.N. General Assembly opened its policy debate.

It quickly became clear that this was the issue which was causing the gravest concern in the 99-nation assembly. There also were expressions of anxiety over the situation created in the U.N. secretariat by the death of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

Brazilian Foreign Minister Afonso Arinos De Melo Franco, opening the annual policy debate, expressed hope that President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev would reach a compromise on Berlin.

way to reach a solution is through negotiations. He backed the Western power contention that the four power agreement on Berlin continues in effect and cannot be set aside by any one of the powers.

Hossein Ghods Nakhai, foreign minister of Iran, appealed to the big powers to rule out the use of force. He, like the representatives of Brazil and Japan, also urged that the German people be allowed to determine their own future.

Turning to the secretariat question, Kosaka declared he could not support the Soviet demands for a three-man directorate to replace the secretary-general. Both Kosaka and Nakhai expressed belief that such a system would paralyze the operations of the United Nations.

They spoke as U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, in a statement prepared for a luncheon of the Foreign Press Association, urged the assembly to name "an outstanding world leader" to take over temporarily the duties of the secretary-general.

Meanwhile, the explosive question of whether Red China should be seated in the United Nations was assured a full assembly debate for the first time in history.

The United States and the Soviet Union both voted to put it on the General Assembly's agenda but with different goals. Washington is trying to keep Peiping out of the world organization and Moscow wants to bring in its Chinese ally.

The balance of power in the voting may rest with the new African nations, some of whom are friendly toward Peiping.

The Chinese question was one of several issues that brought on sharp debate in the assembly's 21-nation steering committee on Thursday.

tions, the committee vowed to set up a separate debate on a treaty to end nuclear tests. The United States and Britain, sponsors of the move, hope this will spotlight the new round of tests started by the Soviet Union. Soviet representatives tried to have the question lumped with the assembly's debate on all disarmament questions.

Also approved for debate was the question of U.N. aid to prevent population growth. The topic was suggested by Sweden and Denmark and opposed by a number of Roman Catholic countries who fear this will lead to a U.N. debate on birth control.

Outside the committee, a move got underway to bypass Soviet opposition and name a stop-gap successor to the late Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. Support was growing for the assembly to name an interim chief of the U.N. secretariat.

Pitt Man Faces Charges Of Receiving Stolen Property

James Robert Stancill, Rt. 6, Box 257, Greenville, has been charged with receiving stolen property in connection with tobacco thefts near Plymouth and Edenton.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said the 45-year-old Penny Hill section farmer, presently on probation, posted $5,000 bond pending a hearing before Magistrate Luther Moore Saturday.

to be left at his farm one rainy night. Officials said Stancill owns the farm but rents out the tobacco allotment.

Sheriff Basnight reported that the tobacco found in Stancill's barn was allegedly taken Sept. 14 from Carl Robertson and H. J. Mills. The owners identified the tobacco by a canvas cover which was still on it.

Sheriff Basnight said indications were that Stancill allegedly received 4,000 pounds of tobacco taken Aug. 18 from Edward L. Owens of near Plymouth and 1,300 pounds taken Sept. 11 from Thomas B. Wood of Edenton.

Among the items which officers found on the farm were: 17 axes, six bushaxes, three shovels, a rake, five gallons of paint, a power chain saw, five wet cell batteries, nine truck tires and two auto tires.

Sheriff Tyson said deputies, SBI agents and Washington County authorities found about 1,300 pounds of graded tobacco in a packhouse on the Stancill farm yesterday afternoon. They also learned that 3,010 pounds of tobacco which came from Washington County had been sold on the market for $1,867.

Three Negroes—Cecil Drake of Plymouth, and David Junior Harrell and Mathew Bunch of Colerain—were arrested at Drake's home Monday. They were charged with stealing the tobacco.

State Highway Commission officials were called to check on the equipment.

Officers in conducting their search of the Stancill farm found a quantity of equipment and supplies, much of it bearing North Carolina state markings, on the farm.

Sheriff Paul Basnight of Washington County said the tobacco and Highway Department items would have a total value of at least $6,000.

State Highway Commission officials were called to check on the equipment.

Gasoline Price War Lingers In Greenville

By GEORGE BRYANT Reflector Staff Writer

The gas price war which hit Greenville the last week in August never really ended according to Jimmy Sutton, president of Greenville Oil Distributors Inc., and that is the reason for the price decreases which showed up this week.

confined to the city limits of Greenville, but distributors said today the low prices were beginning to show up in some areas within ten miles of Greenville.

Sutton said prices went back up about a week, but were still several cents below the original price before the war began. He added, "It is anybody's guess as to how long the low prices will continue." His prices for Amoco went down Thursday to 19.9 cents for regular at most dealers.

T. E. Carawan, local ESSO distributor, said this morning "I don't have anything but a headache." He said he can not cut his price to dealers until the regional office gives him a reduction.

Charter Night Mon. For Woman Demos

Plans have been completed for Monday's Charter Night meeting of a new Pitt County organization—the Democratic Women of Pitt.

members Mrs. Pierce Sumrell of Ayden, Mrs. Lala Steelman and Mrs. Harison of Greenville have prepared a proposed constitution for the Pitt organization. It will be submitted to the membership for approval.

The charter meeting, a Dutch Treat dinner gathering, is set for 8 p.m. at the Cinderella Restaurant on US 264 Bypass south of Greenville.

The Nominating Committee—Mrs. J. B. Spilman and Mrs. Brooks Beddingfield of Greenville and Mrs. Lela Bell Hoell of Grimesland—is scheduled to present to the membership its recommendations for the new organization's first group of officers.

Miss Janice Hardison, organizer of the county's version of a state-wide organization of women in the Democratic Party, said today Monday's meeting will include: Enrollment of charter members of the new organization The framework was laid in an Aug. 29 meeting here.

—Election of officers for the new group. Miss Hardison, as county organizer, has served as overall chairman pending Monday's election.

—Presentation to the entire membership of the proposal of the already-existent Constitution and By-laws Committee. Committee

Miss Hardison has urged all Democratic women in the county to attend Monday's charter session.

Homemaking Courses Held Block To Teen Marriages

By BETTY REEF

WASHINGTON — (WNS) — High-school boys should be increasingly involved in homemaking courses, as a deterrent to teen-age marriage, recommends Dr. Earl H. Hanson, superintendent of schools of Rock Island, Ill.

Since so many of the boy-girl liaisons which lead to premature marriages are formed by high schoolers, Dr. Hanson proposes that the regular curriculum should include "realistic preparation for the responsibilities of marriage."

Giving his views in the current "NEA Journal," the educator said the philosophical preparation for wedlock is much more important than the physiological.

"It is, in fact, the best type of sex education. Few young people these days need explanation of the reproductive process," he said. "They do need to appreciate the family unit as the basis of our society and the crucial necessity for intelligent parenthood."

As a brake on adolescent weddings, he advocates that both boys and girls be prepared for this future responsibility, instead of concentrating the information on female students. They have to be given an understanding, too, of the physical and emotional needs of children. In addition both sexes "need rigorous practice in budget-making and should understand the over-all problems of home financing."

This knowledge will discourage too-early marriage, since it strengthens the "pledge for the right time after the right preparation," Dr. Hanson wrote.

Though teachers and counselors may be treading on delicate ground when they deal with areas of personal life which are regarded as home responsibilities, schools must nevertheless take on the job, he said. The rising tide of high-school weddings results in school dropouts, limited educational preparation for jobs or living, and finally an amazingly high rate of divorce and separation.

"One study shows, for example, that among 240 married couples of school age, only 16 couples were still living together after five years," Dr. Hanson pointed out.

The attitude of some parents seems to be promoting either early sexual experience leading to pregnancy and marriage, or early marriage without such forms of coercion, he observed.

He described an encounter of Dean of Students Florence J. Liebke with one mother:

"One day, when a student flashed an engagement ring at her, Miss Liebke . . . cautioned: 'Before you set the date, take a hard look at what's ahead. You and he may decide that a long engagement is wiser than an early marriage and possible divorce.' Then she objectively reviewed for the girl some of the typical results of too-early marriage.

"That night Miss Liebke received an outraged call from the girl's mother: 'What are you trying to do? Get my girl and her boy friend dis-engaged?'"

Part of the solution therefore lies in educating parents, as well as students, through "frequent and searching discussion of such things as the relation between going and early marriage, and of the social, psychological, and economic reasons" for forestalling it in his own school system, Dr. Hanson is trying to find fresh ways to exercise the school's influence in this area. But he recommends meeting the situation with something besides disapproval if in spite of all deterrents, "two teen-agers walk down the aisle, elope, or take out a marriage license after the fact."

"We must remember that a new home is being formed," he declared.

Remick Stand-In Asks No Thanks, Thank You

The crew's beautician keeps every hair on Lee Remick's pretty head in place during location shooting in San Francisco. But stand-in Jeanne Robinson never even has time to get her hair washed, much less set.

By BETTY REEF

SAN FRANCISCO—(WNS)—Of all the unglamorous, behind-scenes movie jobs, one of the most thankless is that of stand-in—unless a girl can get herself "discovered" in the process.

Still undiscovered is pretty Jeanne Adrienne Robinson, who wants "no thanks, thank you!" for relieving Lee Remick of some of the more boring aspects of repetitious scene shooting on Columbia Pictures' "Operation Terror."

A fragile British lass of 26, Mrs. Robinson pronounces her name, in the French way, but uses Adrienne for professional purposes. Modeling, secretarial work, and making film documentaries with her young husband Frank, an American she met in Australia.

The first time I saw her, she was crouching on a mattress smack in the center of a street intersection in the middle of the night, a huge truck bumper less than an inch from her face. The truck backed up half a block, came roaring down again, jerking and screeching to a sudden halt—a hair from her blonde head.

Jeanne held her ground, or rather her mattress, without flinching.

For this, she earns $22.47 a day, less taxes and agent's fees. Qualifications for the job are a tractable disposition and an agreeable composite of graceful body contours, pale hair, blue eyes and creamy skin, not unlike those of Lee Remick.

Night after foggy night, she stands-in, lies-in, and stands-in for meter readings and camera angles as "Operation Terror" is made on location during San Francisco's wee small hours. Jeanne's hair is disheveled, her clothes unpressed and her throat a little sore from the chill night air.

But that's the job. When all is ready, a slickly groomed, well rested Lee Remick emerges from her portable dressing room to take over the acting.

Snags in the location shooting—fogs over Twin Peaks, crowds in Chinatown, Seventh Day Adventists setting up their annual meetings at the shooting area in Candlestick Park, and a helicopter which wouldn't hover properly over the baseball diamond—meant a lot of overtime and weekend double time for Jeanne.

"The money is nice," was her cheerful comment. "But Frank is feeling neglected. We've both run completely out of clean clothes. I don't even have time to get my hair washed. And he's tired of cooking and eating alone."

"Still, it's temporary and the pay is a lot better than I made at secretarial jobs," she said. One day she earned $33, Screen Extras Guild rates, for acting as Lee's photographic double, a higher classification than stand-in. In the scene, Jeanne drove a car.

She insists she is not trying to be discovered. "I like actors and enjoy the atmosphere of movie making, but I am much more interested in the other end of the camera," she said.

After English grammar school

(equivalent of our high school), she worked as a production secretary in London for the BBC and also "did some modeling and little theater."

A yen to see the world led her and a girl friend to take up the Australian government's offer to pay their fares from England, in return for a promise to work for two years.

"To make sure we did, they took away our passports," explained Jeanne. "But they're nice about it. They let you work in any city you please and move around if you have a mind to."

While on a minor film editing job in Sidney, she met Frank, a film cutter on the same project. They hit it off at once. Later, they made a film together, a 20-minute documentary in color about Australia, called it "Brown Dust," and put it in the hands of a New York film distributor.

After they married, Frank decided they ought to come back to his native San Francisco, where they have now lived for two years. As a free-lance movie maker, he recently directed a series of 13 half-hour historical films about California for TV station KGO.

"One of the shows won an award," Jeanne exclaimed, a flash of pride suffusing her perfect English complexion.

"How do I collaborate? I work on the editing. I'm assistant director, or anything else that is needed. I help plan the segments. In the last one, called 'The Melting Pot,' I played a Swedish girl, a French girl and a Swiss girl—all residents of this beautiful state.

"Maybe there's more opportunity in New York or Hollywood, but we like it here. We'd rather stay little fish in a little pond, with stimulating friends and lovely surroundings."

Between Robinson film projects, Jeanne takes odd jobs to help pay the bills. Through a local agent,

Old Suntans Never Die Unless You Do Them In

By JUNE WILSON
Women's News Service

Ready or not, it's here.

The slant of the sun is different. There's a nip in the morning air, even if it is gone before noon. You're sleeper when the clock goes off, and of course, there hasn't been a cotton dress in the store for months.

Autumn has arrived and you are trapped with an old suntan that is going to look just grimy with the fall colors.

There is hope, but not much. Do something about your skin. Cherish the blues and greens that make your complexion seem clearer by contrast, but get busy. If you're to be your usual chic autumn self you have to brighten your skin before you dip into the deep reds the browned grays, the grayed browns and the ever present blacks.

You can remember and recall while you're about it the routine pre-school "cleaning" with calomel and castor oil administered by a strong-minded mama. But it had its uses. Drop by your doctor's on a lunch hour. Let him listen to your heart, check your reflexes. Then ask him what's new in liver pills.

The soft drinks (and otherwise?), potato chips and snack foods so much a part of summer menus were great on patio and picnic, but they are enemies of a fresh-looking skin. Good skin starts on the inside. Get acquainted again with the chopped salad sprinkled with lemon juice, grated carrots and the lowly, lovely-making cabbage.

Even with no weight problem you will do yourself a good turn to stop by the health shop and see what's new. Being healthy is great, but it is looking that way which makes it a blessing for the working girl.

Treat yourself to a couple of steam baths and be amazed to find how clean you aren't! Take a long, hard look at your bare face in a strong, morning light. If you've never used a facial mask it's time you did. Unless you live in a single room you have all you'll need in the refrigerator.

One egg white, a tablespoon or two of cornmeal, mixed with a swish of lemon juice make a fine, messy-looking mask for face and neck. The meal is for cleansing, lemon juice for brightening and egg white tightens lazy skin. The egg white tightens lazy skin. The egg white tightens lazy skin. The egg white tightens lazy skin.

And hurry! Do you want folks to think you're a grandma?

Mrs. John Grier was hostess when the Elmhurst Garden Club held its first meeting of the year. Mrs. Phil Goodson Jr., president, called the meeting to order and welcomed two visitors, Mrs. Dallas Whitford and Mrs. Betty Willis.

The club voted to hold its annual Curb Market on Friday afternoon, October 20. The president announced that the District 10 meeting will be held October 31 in Washington. Also, the beautification chairman is now titled "Landscape Design" chairman.

Two films were shown to the club. "Basic Techniques for Home Landscaping" showed how to develop the three functional outdoor areas of your home. "Cultivate Your Garden Birds" showed families enjoying fifteen common bird species which have been attracted by a friendly environment.

Mrs. Grier served refreshments to the members and guests during the social hour.

Cutter Case Moves Closer To Jury; Prosecution Asking Death Penalty

By CHARLES L. WEST

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The first degree murder trial of millionaire George King Cutter for the death of Mrs. Delette Nycum should reach the jury late today. The prosecution seeks the death penalty.

The evidence is all in, the testimony has ended and the summations are almost complete.

Lawyers James E. Walker and Robert G. Sanders argue the defense's case this morning, followed by private prosecutor Allen A. Bailey's summation for the state. Four lawyers — two defense, two prosecution — argued Thursday.

Then Superior Court Judge W. Jack Hooks will charge the four women and eight men of the jury, a process expected to take most of the afternoon.

The jury must decide:

—The cause of death. Was the 38-year-old divorcee beaten to death? There were 251 bruises on her body. Did she drink herself to death? Her blood contained 42 per cent alcohol, enough to be fatal in some instances, and her liver was greasy or fatty, consistent with alcoholism. Or did death result July 4 from a combination of beating and drinking, as Coroner W. M. Summerville has testified?

—Did Cutter beat her? No one saw him. He denies it. Several witnesses said they heard the two talk of beatings during the July 4 holidays after her return from an unexplained overnight absence, and Mrs. Nycum's maid said the victim told her Cutter threatened to kill her.

Also to be considered are Cutter's admissions during his 2½ days on the witness stand: That he found her dead in a bunk at his apartment bus, searched for her shoes and belongings, moved the body to her own bed, clothed her in pajamas, washed dirt from her feet, asked her son to report finding her dead in bed, and burned the clothing in which she died.

"I ask you to return a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree," Solicitor Kenneth Downs said to the jury Thursday in the first argument for the state.

"Who and what caused the death of this lady?" asked Wallace S. Osborne, leading off for the defense.

"He is not being charged here with being a fool. He is charged with murder in the first degree," Osborne added.

Don't convict Cutter, a married man, of murder for keeping company with Mrs. Nycum since 1948, for drinking too much with her, for acting unwisely after her death, Osborne pleaded.

"If he walks out that door," he continued, "he has served his sentence for the life he led with that woman. It will remain forever in the minds of Charlotte."

Henry W. Harkney, another defense attorney, argued that in his actions after the death "he was thinking of two families — his family and her family" and trying to avoid a scandal.

Private Prosecutor Charles E. Knox countered that in "trying to cover his tracks as he went," Cutter never once took Mrs. Nycum to a doctor to be certain there was no life in her, not even after the body emitted a moan when he removed it from his car at her home after the trip from the bus.

"At least he could have given that poor woman a chance and called a doctor," Knox said.

He continued: "You will come to one conclusion: that George Cutter, through his jealousy, undertook a campaign of beating that woman until he beat her to death."

Knox gestured toward the victim's two teen-aged children, sitting in front of the jury box, and said: "I don't stand here and contend to you that their mother was perfect. But she had a right to live!"

Rushes To Scene, Meets Old Friend

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Mike Mombrea, news cameraman, rushed to Buffalo International Airport when a small plane made a forced landing. The pilot, who was unurt, turned out to be an old friend Mombrea knew when he was an aviation cadet during World War II.

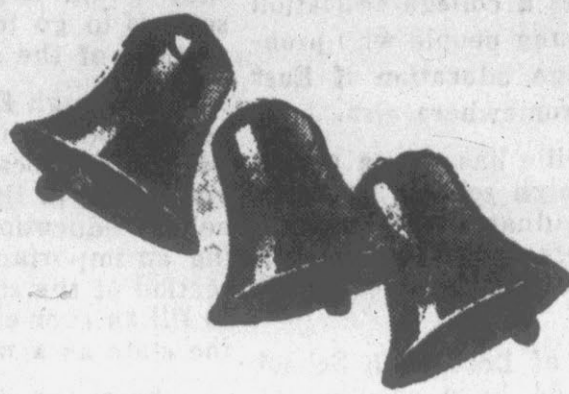

They had not seen each other since they were discharged from the armed services.

Rocket Detection For Jodrell Bank

LONDON (AP)— Britain will supplement its Jodrell Bank radio telescope with equipment for detecting H-bomb rockets, a ministry of defense spokesman said Thursday night.

The new equipment will help Prof. Sir Alfred Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank Experimental Station, in his work of observing satellite behavior while also offering "some capacity for the detection of ballistic missiles," said a spokesman.

THE TOLLING BELL

"...and therefore, never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for Thee..."

John Donne, 1624

"No man is an island unto himself," wrote this shrewd English poet of the 17th Century. Even a lowly clod of earth is a part of the continent, he observed - - - nothing, by itself.

So it is today with us all, if we will only stop long enough to see it. We come into this world without asking. We stay awhile with our fellow man and then vanish without knowing it.

Most of what we know concerns the world in which we live and our fellow man. Our lives are inseparable from those of our fellow man, for around them resolve all our human needs and frailties.

Thus, each of us needs the other. Every man's sorrow is partly our own.

In our modern day, man has to proceed at a rapid pace. So rigid are our business necessities, so organized at our whole society, that time will not often allow us the joy of personally helping some particular individual, as in days gone by.

Helping a sick friend, assisting some special boy to realize noble ambitions, helping to finance the treatment of some dread disease in a next-door neighbor - - - these are simple joys of personal service which too often now-a-days are denied us in a personal way, because of the frenzy of our daily lives.

But this is part of our present day society. Absentee ownership, specialization, corporate growth - - - these and other factors have tended to obscure the basically personal approach for helping our fellow man which was possible long ago when our needs were less because life was simpler.

Life is no longer simple. We need much of our progressive modern system, because it makes available to more people the knowledge and products of our highly developed industrial and scientific skills.

What we need to remember is that our fellow man is still a personal responsibility for each of us. We can exercise this responsibility in a new way, a modern way, by acting together.

We need to remember that though we cannot often enjoy the thrill of giving our own blood to a neighbor personally, we can—if we think upon it rightly—accomplish such a thing by giving with others, in a modern joint effort which a complex society must make.

We must learn to step back, out of the hectic highway of life, and realize, in perspective, that we can help this neighbor of ours with cancer by joining with others in cancer research for the good of all men.

This underprivileged child whom you would like to help—if you had time—you can do it, and more effectively, by joining with others in helping all such children.

So in our modern day, a means has been devised to enable busy people to help their neighbors by joining with all men in a united community effort.

This is the United Fund—our own United Fund. It is designed to do for you what you would do if you had time—it will do more and it will be done more effectively. It is dedicated to serving your fellow man, though you may not know him as a neighbor.

This is the real meaning of the writer 300 years ago when he said, in effect, "when you see the vested choir walking slowly through the churchyard, when you hear the sad tolling of the sexton's bell—it matters not for whom the bell is tolling—it is tolling for thee."

Here in our bank—as in many organizations in our county—our employees have all already indicated to our "key man" that they are ready to pledge 100% support to the formula devised for success in our united county effort to help in the expansion of cancer cure research, Red Cross disaster relief, mental illness, crippled children care, training and treatment for the blind, Girl & Boy Scout development—and every other area of community need.

We urge every citizen of this county to join in our United County Campaign. This is the modern way of personal giving for the betterment of mankind and our community.

ECC Extension Offers 2-Semester TV Course

The Extension Division of East Carolina College, joining with an estimated 200 colleges and universities through the country, is offering a CONTINENTAL CLASSROOM televised course in "The Structure and Functions of American Government" for credit this fall.

The two-semester course, each carrying five quarter hours of undergraduate credit, will be televised on Station WITN, Channel 7, Monday through Friday from 6:30 a.m. to 7:00 a.m., local time beginning Monday, September 25, stated Dr. Ralph Brimley, director of extension.

Students will be required to attend four Saturday morning sessions each semester on the East Carolina College campus with Dr. Wilmon Droze, new faculty member of the social studies department at the college, presiding.

The cost of the course will be $40 per semester, Dr. Brimley said.

Viewers interested in registering for college credit may do so from September 25 to October 25 in the Extension Office at East Carolina College. For further information write the Extension Division, Box 307, East Carolina College, or telephone PLaza 2-6101, Extension 217.

The American Government course will be taught by one of the nation's outstanding political scientists, Dr. Peter H. Odegard, professor of political science at the University of California at Berkeley. He will be joined periodically by guest lecturers with expert knowledge in specialized areas related to the subject under discussion.

More than 170 NBC television stations will carry the program to every part of the United States.

Varied Art Work In Exhibition

Barbara Tucker of Greenville, senior at East Carolina College, is now exhibiting in the Kate Lewis Gallery, Rawl building, varied examples of her work as a student artist. The show will continue through Thursday, Sept. 28, and is open to the public.

Mrs. Tucker began her study of art at Woman's College in Greensboro, where she specialized in fashion design and art education. For the past year and a half she has attended East Carolina and is scheduled for graduation in February.

In the current exhibition, Mrs. Tucker's interest in design courses offered at East Carolina is indicated in two three-dimensional designs in wood. A still-life oil painting, figure drawings; prints, including a wood cut, a wood engraving, etching, and a monoprint; a ceramic vase; examples of lettering, and other works are also included in the exhibition.

Mrs. Tucker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Tripp of Madison, Tenn.

School Gets 2nd Large Donation

UVALDE, Tex. (AP)— Former Vice President John N. Garner has made a second gift to Uvalde's Southwest Texas Junior College, this one for $400,000.

Three weeks ago Garner gave the school $600,000.

In making the gift Wednesday Garner said: "Everything I have was obtained from this area and I decided to give it back where it came from."

Garner, who will be 83 Nov. 22, had represented this district in Congress before becoming vice president during the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Southwest Texas Junior College has an enrollment of 300 full time and 200 part-time students.

For Many It Means An Education

East Carolina College means a great deal to Pitt County Communities in many ways, but not the least of these is the fact that it makes a college education possible for many Pitt County young people who probably would not receive a college education if East Carolina College were located somewhere else.

Rose High School in Greenville has over a period of years ranked at the top of high schools in North Carolina in the number of its graduates who continue their education in college. The presence of East Carolina college in Greenville is to a considerable degree responsible for this fact.

Of the 103 June graduates of Rose High School who entered college this fall, 64 have enrolled at East Carolina College. Many of these, to be sure, probably would have attended college elsewhere if East Carolina were not located in Greenville. Some of these 64, however, probably would not have been able to further their education in college had it not been for the presence of East Carolina in this community.

To a lesser degree, the same thing applies in communities throughout Pitt and neighboring counties.

Happy Energies Were 'Wasted'

By LYNN NISBET
HAPPY — Governor Sanford and others who had part in plans to relieve impact of Hurricane Ester are very happy about having wasted a lot of energy and perhaps some money. They operated on the theory that it is better to be safe than sorry. In commending the cooperative response of all government agencies, organizations like the Red Cross and the citizens of the threatened areas, Governor Sanford said he was sure none of them was disappointed that some of the protective measures were not needed. "I don't think anybody was mad to find upon returning to the beach that the house he had boarded up had not blown away," he said.

The Governor with civil defense and other relief agency officials flew over the northeastern coast Wednesday to appraise storm damage. The total damage was much less than had been feared, but Governor Sanford emphasized that if one farmer lost his entire crop it meant disaster for him.

The hurricane alert and mobilization was a splendid training exercise. It was much better than just a phony set up drill, when all participants knew there was no real danger. This was the real thing. The fact that there was no serious breakdown of electric power or in communications, and that the fact that auxiliary generators were in place and manned—and could have been put into production in a matter of minutes. Self-contained ham radio broadcast stations were ready, if they had been needed to maintain communication with the outside world.

SHELTERS — Another gratifying phase of the overall hurricane episode was availability of food and shelter for residents evacuated from menaced areas. The Governor estimated that some four thousand people found overnight sanctuary in Red Cross, civil defense and other havens Monday and Tuesday nights.

These shelters gave protection against the wind and the rain and the cold, but they would not have afforded any protection from nuclear fallout. The type of shelter for that purpose is entirely different and much more expensive. Even so, the sponsors of nuclear fallout shelters at family level find support for their campaign in the experiences of Easterners during the recent hurricane.

SEAWELL — Capitol Square folks are trying to figure the various angles in the case of Malcolm Seawell, whom President Kennedy said this week he would not nominate for a Federal judgeship despite his endorsement by both Senators Sam Ervin and Everett Jordan. The President gave no reason—and is not called upon to give one—for his decision. However, opinion hereabouts is that the main reason was objection of organized labor to Seawell because of his part in prosecuting the labor rioters at Henderson three years ago. Check of the record will show Seawell had far less to do with that case than his labor opponents indicate.

This situation is reminiscent of the 1927 incident when Labor blocked confirmation of another North Carolinian, Judge John J. Parker, for the Supreme Court. Parker survived to become the chief judge of the Fourth Circuit Court, whose opinions were accepted by the judiciary of the nation.

LOCAL — At local or state level there was objection to Seawell for appointments as a judge in the Middle District when he had not lived in that district long enough to establish voting residence. It appeared that this objection was raised not so much against Seawell as in behalf of another resident of the district. And besides the positive support for Judge Richardson Preyer and the opposition to Malcolm Seawell, there is involved an element of national and state politics.

Refusal to send in the name of Seawell for district judge was the second time in one week that President Kennedy had slapped Senator Ervin. Earlier he had nominated Spencer Bell of Charlotte for a circuit judgeship when Senator Ervin had vigorously supported Judge Will Pless for that post. It is important here to remember that Sam Ervin is something more than just one among a 100 senators. He is a member of the Senate Judiciary committee and chairman of the sub-committee which must pass upon presidential nominees for judges and district attorneys. In twice slapping him the President must have been pretty sure of his ground.

One can argue until blue in the face that there should not be politics in judicial appointments. It might be possible to make out a case on the record to substantiate that claim "off the record."

Senators Ervin in a statement about the matter conceded that the President has full right to appoint whomever he pleases, and the Senator is disposed to go along with the presidential selection. It should be remembered, however, that the system of check-and-balance provides the Senate must confirm the appointment before the officer can assume his duties. And it should not be forgotten that Sam Ervin is up for reelection next year, and that he is not in highest favor with the State administration folks who are closest to President Kennedy.

Many youngsters find it feasible from an economic standpoint to attend East Carolina College whereas they would not be able to muster the financial resources to go to college in the Piedmont or Western sections of the state.

Although East Carolina College can no longer be considered a small college in any sense of the term, its geographic location has made it possible for many youngsters in this and other communities to receive a college education. In the past, and at present it is filling an important need for the people of the Eastern section of the state, and in the future it will continue to fill an ever expanding need for this section and for the state as a whole.

From the standpoint of Greenville and Pitt County, the fact that East Carolina puts a college education within the reach of many youngsters who otherwise would not have the opportunity to go to college, is often overlooked by individuals who consider what the college means to this immediate area.

Considerable Hope; Little Confidence

President Kennedy disarmament proposals that are to be laid before the United Nations offer continued hope that nations of the world may some day reach agreement on eliminating war as a means of settling international disputes. While attention is being turned again to disarmament agreement talks, however, major powers are simultaneously boosting their present military might against the possibility of war.

The Soviet Union has resumed testing nuclear weapons in the atmosphere, and the United States is carrying out smaller nuclear tests on a more limited basis. At the same time the United States is calling some of its reserve military units to active duty and Soviet satellite states are mounting drives to boost their number of men under arms.

Although there is probably hope at top echelons of government in the major powers that disarmament under a satisfactory agreement may one day be achieved, there apparently is little expectation that such an agreement will be realized any time soon.

Certainly the growing number of small, uncommitted nations throughout the world will increase their pressure upon major powers to move positively in the direction of disarmament. Many small nations will likewise increase the pressure on the major powers for the gift or loan of arms for their own protection as the major powers continue to strengthen their own military position and that of their closest allies.

The overall picture, therefore is one of conflicting desires, with the acknowledged immediate need of being in a position of military strength taking precedence over the desired long-range program which eventually may eliminate the need for the major military machines.

Generally the small nations have placed the blame on major powers for not bringing about disarmament but the small nations themselves have participated in the build-up of military might just as the major powers have.

Water On The Spark Of 'Hope'

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Optimism, that little fire burning brightly in the dark woods of the world, got rained on again. So those who insist man is too intelligent to blow himself to blazes must still wait and see.

Talks between the United States and Russia, not only on banning nuclear tests but on disarmament in general, have broken down. On Sept. 9 the two powers recessed their conversations on banning nuclear tests after 340 sessions in 34 months. It was about time, since the Soviets, after a layoff of almost three years, had already resumed testing.

Premier Khrushchev brushed aside such talks anyway. He said there would be no more moratoriums on nuclear tests until there was agreement on general disarmament.

For the inhabitants of the sunny side of the street this was indeed gloomy news but not altogether black because ever since midsummer the United States and Russia had been holding separate talks on disarmament.

Rather, the two sides—in sessions in Washington, Moscow and New York—had not actually been discussing disarmament but only how to set up full-scale discussion on disarmament.

Then Wednesday this collapsed too. The United States and Russia reported to the United Nations the complete failure of their talks on how to start talking about disarmament in general.

Since the end of the war in RELIGION AND THE STARS
What of the stars? They are indeed practically without number. One of the world's greatest astronomers declares that the number of heavenly bodies is a hundred thousand million billion. Try to write that on a long blackboard, but keep out of the way of the ciphers else they will crowd you out of the room. And remember that most of these bodies are suns and perhaps—probably—have planetary systems revolving about them. We have nine planets in our system. If every solar system had that number, the heavenly bodies would indeed be without number.

Some people would have us believe that these bodies came into being by accident. It looks to us like a well-planned, scientific job with a Master Mind behind it. And the fact that the universe keeps going with other worlds and galaxies apparently in the making adds up to a bigger picture than our little minds can comprehend. The Bible answers seem the most simple and satisfying: "In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth. "God is love." "Your heavenly Father knoweth what things ye have need of." "Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

(Richmond News-Leader)

Members of the growing cult of non-violence on TV should all go into mourning for the demise of a children's adventure show in which not a man was ever killed, or even wounded. The Lone Ranger, like the Phantom of the comic strips, always shot guns out of hands, that's all. And Tombo never did anything more permanently harmful than arch a brow over some unsuspecting victim. The Lone Ranger was this kind of story. It had a simplicity that was unimpeachable, in its narrative presentation of a silver bullet that always blessed, of a gun that dealt life. ## In U.S., Jim Would Be Fired

By ELMER ROESSNER

Jim Fairfax would be fired in America but he would have been kept on the payroll in France.
Jim Fairfax is the hypothetical trouble shooter for an imaginary company discussed here yesterday. Brought in when the company is on the verge of bankruptcy, he restores discipline, makes all decisions and drives his people at a terrific pace.
American management conferences have been asked what should be done with him after the company is made profitable again.
PINK SLIPS FOR HIM
At a Corn Products conference, executives voted and the results were in line with results at other American management conferences. They were, in percentages:
Dismiss Jim Fairfax 83
Make him president of company 2
Give him an assistant 3
Appoint him company ad-

When the French magazine "Entreprise" polled French executives, the results were:
Dismiss Jim Fairfax 2
Make him president of company 28
Give him an assistant 22
Appoint him company advisor 26
Miscellaneous 22
Analysis of the American replies indicated that most executives regarded Fairfax as a general capable of winning a battle but not a war. American executives regarded him as a doctor, who, once having performed an appendectomy, was no longer needed.
The other solutions seemed impractical to American managers. Their miscellaneous suggestions offered no significant ideas.
DON'T LOSE A WINNER
The French attitude was that since Fairfax saved the company, he did not deserve dismissal. Since he was so intelligent, the French reasoned, he could adapt himself to a changed situation.

There were other considerations. Top executives in France get large severance payments and it would be economical to keep Monsieur Fairfax. Furthermore, a French company that loses an executive loses esteem.
It also developed that the French—perhaps as a hangover from the days of the Louis's—have an admiration for authority.
"There is a fear of losing a man who might offer his services to a competitor," said one Frenchman. "The important thing is to remain humane, even in business," said an industrialist.

Has His Day In Court

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Herbert Matthews, an editor of "The New York Times" and its principal correspondent in Cuba, has written an apology to explain away the various attacks made on him as a result of the Cuban fiasco. Matthews is entitled to his day in court and this book is just that. It is his opportunity to state wherein he has been to affirm, deny, to explain or explain away various charges.

Toward the end of the book appears this paragraph:
"I consider it almost an honor to be attacked by the Eastland-Dodd Committee, by writers like the columnist George Sokolsky and William Buckley of the National Review, by publications like The American Legion Magazine and the Brooklyn Tablet. If such people did not attack me I would feel that there was something wrong with my work."

What he calls the Eastland-Dodd Committee is the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee. This Committee has been holding Executive Session hearings with regard to Cuba. As for the "National Review," "The American Legion Magazine" and the "Tablet," the official publication of the Brooklyn and Long Island dioceses of the Roman Catholic Church, they will survive Matthews' satisfaction that they were critical of him. As for Bill Buckley and myself, we can well afford to ask Herbert Matthews to state wherein we have been incorrect.

For what I said was that when Earl E. T. Smith was appointed Ambassador to Cuba, he was instructed to accept briefing from Herbert Matthews who was not connected with the State Department but was a "New York Times" reporter. This is what Matthews has to say on the subject:

"The fact that I was supposed to have briefed Earl Smith before he went to Cuba came up somewhat sensationally in 1960, and especially in the Senate Subcommittee hearing which I have already mentioned. Arthur Gardner, who apparently did not approve of his successor, first testified that (the meaning me) briefed Earl Smith."
As for Arthur Gardner, am responsible for first calling attention to the briefing of Smith by Matthews, wherein have I sinned? After citing Smith's testimony before the aforesaid Senate Subcommittee to the effect:

"Mr. Sourwine. Is it true, sir, that you were instructed to get a briefing on your new job as Ambassador to Cuba from Herbert Matthews of The New York Times?"

"Mr. Smith. Yes, that is correct."
"Mr. Sourwine. Who gave you these instructions?"
"Mr. Smith. William Wieland, Director of the Caribbean Division and Mexico."

There is more to this, but what is significant is that Herbert Matthews admits to the truth of Smith's testimony and if Smith was truthful, I was, for I wrote of this, not in 1960 but in 1959. Matthews says:
"Allowing for a sour note or two, this was accurate testimony. It was correct information and good advice that I gave to Earl Smith, and it was a pity that neither he nor the State Department based their policies on it."

I cannot go into the consequences of the State Department and Earl E. T. Smith not taking Herbert Matthews' advice. "It was and is, a great injustice to two devoted and competent" men who were chosen to follow my advice, fate might have smiled upon them more benevolently. Herbert Matthews believes:

"Newspapermen are not turned out like Ford's on an assembly line—at least, not the top-flight ones. They are unique works of art, not cogs in a machine. When they go, others come along to do just as good or better work, but it will be different work."
It is indeed fortunate that a man has so high an opinion of his craft and himself. Herbert Matthews apparently believes that he is "a unique work of art," which he may be, but that does not at all answer how we happened to make so many costly errors regarding Cuba, ending in such a cruel fiasco. Matthews says:
"It was and is, a great injustice to two devoted and competent"

Gaius, Christian Layman

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—III John.

John the Baptist spent the last years of his long life overseeing the churches in Asia. He was about 95 when he wrote the letter known as John III—to Gaius, an influential layman in one of the churches.—III John 1.

He commends Gaius for his Christian hospitality. When evangelists were sent out from the church at Ephesus they depended on men like Gaius "to welcome such," and to provide expenses for their trips.—III John 6-8.

In the same town as Gaius, lived another influential layman named Diotrephes, a haughty, vain man "who loveth to have the preeminence." Jealous of the traveling evangelists, he treated them badly.—III John 9-10.

John has learned all this from evangelists he sent out, who return to him and report the work and attitudes of Gaius and Diotrephes.—III John 3.

GOLDEN TEXT: III John 4.

Gaius, a Christian Layman

HOW AN AGED APOSTLE ENCOURAGED FAITHFUL FRIENDS IN AN EARLY CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Scripture—III John.

By N. SPEER JONES
TODAY'S lesson sheds more light on the methods by which the early Christian church maintained its unity and grew despite the relatively small numbers of its members and the vast distances between them.

The book of III John was probably written about 95 A.D., when its author, John the Baptist, was nearly a hundred years old.

Earlier in his long life he had suffered many injustices for his loyalty to his religion. In his closing years he enjoyed the love and respect of his fellow Christians everywhere as a sort of patriarch of all the churches of the Roman province of Asia. His headquarters was probably Ephesus.

This third letter of his which is our subject was written to a Christian layman named Gaius, who lived in one of the Asian cities where a Christian church among the heathen as well as to maintain communication and uniformity of doctrine. In order to discourage personal gain, these evangelists were not supposed to take any money or hospitality from the Gentiles (III John 7), but depended for their existence on the good grace of the various church members. Gaius is told how much his hospitality has been appreciated and urged to continue his good work as a "fellow-worker for the truth" (III John 8).

The same evangelists who found Gaius so hospitable were repulsed by Diotrephes. Apparently he was a man of considerable influence in the church, for he not only refused to receive them himself, despite a letter of introduction from John, but spoke against them to other church members and even threatened to have them "cast out of the church."

GOLDEN TEXT

"Greater joy have I none than this, to hear of my children walking in the truth."—III John 4.

was established, John identifies himself simply as "the elder." This Gaius is not to be confused with three others of the same name—a Macedonian (Acts 19: 29), one from Derbe (Acts 20: 4) and a Corinthian (Rom. 16:23; I Cor. 1:14).

He was a man like many to be found today in our own churches—a man outwardly upright and moral, who has risen to a position of prominence. Rather than see someone else "steal his thunder," he denounces him as false.

Chapter 12 refers to a man named Demetrius. We know nothing of him other than what may be gathered from this single reference.

It seems probable that he was an evangelist, probably the one who had caused such strife in Gaius' church, with Diotrephes' denouncement.

He was a fine Christian and evangelist, according to John, but he may have had personal characteristics which made some men dislike him. Perhaps, on the other hand, he bore only the opprobrium of Diotrephes, who carried so much weight that he was able to turn many against him.

It was the custom in those times to send certain members as evangelists from various churches to other churches and cities to spread the gospel.

Rose High JV Drops Opener 6-0 To Kinston In 4th Quarter

The Rose High School junior varsity football team lost their first game of the season yesterday to Kinston 6-0 after the visitors completed a 60-yard drive for a touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Both teams played a fairly even ball game until Kinston scored after switching from a T-formation to a single wing with an unbalanced line. Greenville coach Ed Farley estimated that his boys gained eight first downs while Kinston made 12. The total yardage gained for Greenville was about 130 with Kinston making about 180. Both squads received about the same amount of penalties, estimated to be 40 yards.

The Greenville team penetrated to the Kinston 20 yard line twice during the game, but were stopped both times on fourth downs. The visitors gained all of their yardage on the ground as they were unable to complete a pass. Halfback Tommy Smith of Greenville intercepted one of the visitor's passes. The home team attempted three passes during the afternoon with one complete. Lee Whitehurst was calling the signals for the local club.

Coach Farley said his boys played an excellent opening game with Smith and fullback Bill Mosier doing an outstanding job in the backfield for the Greenville squad. Pete Dixon also did a fine job for the locals at halfback on offense and defense. Farley added that his line held up well against the bigger Kinston team with center John Flanagan, tackles Steve Forbes and Ken Williams along with guards Charles Davenport and Bill Proctor doing real well, especially on defense.

The Kinston club is made up of mostly sophomores while the Greenville team has mostly freshmen. This was the third win of the season for Kinston. They beat Wilson 7-0 and Smithfield 14-0.

Farley reported that his club came through the game in fine shape as far as injuries were concerned, but Kinston had two players injured during the second half. Dan Hardy was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital with neck injury. Farley added that hospital authorities said Hardy was coming along well and the injury was not too serious.

Greenville will travel to Washington next Thursday afternoon for their second game of the season.

CO-CAPTAINS halfback Alan McArthur and end Burney Morris will lead the Phantoms on the field tonight when they meet the Red Devils in Kinston at 8 o'clock. Tonight's game will be the first away contest for the Rose High club and they will be seeking their third victory. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Yanks Drop 5-3 Game To Orioles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Roger Maris' date with destiny is at least a day away.

The New York Yankees' slugger, one shy of matching Babe Ruth's record 60-homer total of 1927, failed to get the elusive commodity Thursday night as the American League champions lost to Baltimore 5-3, going hitless in four trips to the plate.

That left Maris, who no longer can officially tie the Bambino's mark under the 154-decision limit set by Commissioner Ford Frick, with seven games in which to match or surpass the Babe on the AL's expanded 162-game program.

The Yankees, tied today, move into Boston next for a two-game set Saturday and Sunday, then return home for a pair with the Orioles and a windup three-game series with the Red Sox.

"I intend to play every game the rest of the season," insists Maris, who hit No. 50 at Baltimore Wednesday night and became the first player in major league history to come that close to Ruth's record.

He didn't get anywhere with Jack Fisher who brought his record to 10-12 with a three-hitter.

Fisher kept the Yanks—using mostly reserves—away from the plate except in the sixth when they came up with two unearned tallies as Bob Hale reached base on an error and Tony Kubek hit a two-out, pinch-hit homer.

The Orioles had snapped a 1-1 tie in the seventh with a four-run uprising against Bill Stafford (13-8).

Reiley To Pilot Deacons In Opener With Baylor

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS For two years Charles Edwin (Chuck) Reiley understudied Norman Sneed as Wake Forest quarterback. Which was akin to "caddy" for Ted Williams as substitute left fielder during the closing years of the Boston Red Sox baseball great's long career.

Now Sneed has left the college scene and Reiley is the man who must make Coach Billy Hildebrand's Deacons tick, starting with the awesome assignment of battling Baylor's Bears Saturday night at Waco, Tex.

With Sneed throwing, Reiley was relegated to defensive work here and there and did a good job of it. So few were his offensive opportunities that in two years he threw only 35 passes with 8 completions.

He goes into the Baylor game carrying the added responsibility of serving as captain, a post to which his teammates recently named him.

Of his new duties, he has this to say: "I think every football player, particularly a back, prefers to play offense, and I am anxious to prove that I can do the job. I don't think I'll have any trouble running the team. The fact that I have seen considerable duty on defense should help me a great deal. At least, I'll have a pretty good idea how the defensive man is thinking."

The new offense Hildebrand has installed should be to Reiley's liking. He runs well and likes to carry the ball. He plans to throw the short, quick pass because "it's not so easy to intercept and you can be more accurate with it."

Elsewhere in the Atlantic Coast Conference Thursday: Duke held a light workout, brushing up on signals and reviewing assignments for the Saturday night opener at South Carolina.

South Carolina had a no-contact session, reviewing plays and practicing punting and passing. A big student pep rally is set for the campus tonight.

North Carolina worked with a few new plays as well as running through old ones. Defense also got attention. The Tar Heels don't open until Sept. 30, a home game with North Carolina State.

Clemson's first four teams spent about 10 minutes each on offense, then 10 on defense in a light but brisk workout. Extra-point kicking closed out the session. The Tigers were to leave by plane today for their opener Saturday at the University of Florida.

Virginia Coach Bill Elias said his squad was in sound shape for the opener with William and Mary except for first string guard Turney Todd, who may miss the game because of illness. His spot is being taken by senior Emory Thomas.

Maryland practiced kicking and passing under lights to get used to night conditions for the opener at Southern Methodist. Coach Tom Nugent and 41 players—including halfback Tom Brown, pronounced recovered from a knee injury—were to leave by plane today.

North Carolina State's Wolfpack went West Thursday. The team opens at Wyoming, which smacked Montana 29-0 last week.

The East Carolina Pirates travel to Greensboro this weekend for a Saturday afternoon game with Guilford College and the first conference contest of the season for the Bucs.

Guilford will be trying to bounce back when the team hits the grid at 2 p.m. from its loss to Elon in the last six minutes of the game last week. Elon scored twice late in the game for a 12-8 victory. Sal Gero, assistant coach at East Carolina, said Guilford has a good hustling ball club, but they lack depth. Gero scouted the Guilford game with Elon.

Coach Jack Boone has been working his boys hard this week to prepare for the conference clash Saturday. He has been concentrating on correcting the mistakes which the Pirates made in their opener with Indiana, Pa. College. The EC eleven showed a definite weakness as far as their passing game was concerned and also in punt protection.

Worked On Timing Boone said the real trouble where passing was concerned last week was in the timing and he has been drilling the boys a great deal on this. Also they were only able to make one extra point in three tries last week. The Indiana line was getting through too fast. The Pirate coach said Thursday that he hoped these troubles were improved and the club should benefit a great deal this week.

As far as physical shape is concerned, the East Carolina boys were in good shape when they left Greenville at 12:30 p.m. today. Many of the boys suffered minor cuts and bruises last week, but Boone reported that these were healing up well. The ECC skipper added that the morale and spirit of the team was also very high. He added, "We are looking for a rough game from Guilford." They appear to have a fine team and are aggressive. For what the Guilford club lacks in depth, their aggressiveness and hustling make up for, the coach added.

Squad Looks Good Coach Boone said most of his squad looked good on the practice field this week. He cited Clayton Piland, an All-Conference and All-Stater of last season, as looking especially fine this week. Others mentioned were Thomas Michel, a 5-foot, 11-inch freshman halfback from Arlington, Va. Michel scored all three of the Pirate touchdowns against Indiana. Jones Lockerman also has been doing a fine job at end this week along with Bobby Bumgardner.

Senior guard Dallas Hollingsworth of Clinton has shown up well on the practice field along with center Chuck Gordon and fullback Nick Hilgert. James McDiarmid and Skipper Duke have looked real well at tackle, according to the Pirate coaching staff.

Starting Lineup The starting lineup for Saturday will probably be about the same as last week, according to Boone. Bumgardner will handle the left end with Lockerman playing opposite him on the right. Left tackle will be Piland and Duke will handle the right tackle spot. The guards will be Earl Sweet on the left and Hollingsworth on the right. The line will be headed up by 200-pound Gordon, a senior center from Clayton.

In the backfield Boone plans to have Dan Rouse calling the signals again from the quarterback spot with Nick Hilgert at fullback. Michel will again handle the right half position with Tommy Matthews taking care of the left half. Others seeing action this week will probably be Cary Parker at quarterback, Pete Thorell and Larry Rudisill at halfback. Phil Halstead and Billy Strickland will probably see some action at fullback. In the line Perry Lane will probably be used some as guard along with McDiarmid. Lane has been moved to guard this week to help strengthen that weak spot for the Bucs.

Eisenhour to Kick Freshman Gene Eisenhour is slated to do most of the kicking against Guilford, according to Boone. He did an outstanding job last week which was his first college game. Hilgert will also do a little kicking along with Rouse, but Rouse is still recovering from a slight back injury and will be doing very little kicking.

Coach Herb Appenzeller of Guilford will also use much the same starting lineup he did last week, according to reports. The line will probably consist of Frank Simpson at left end, Walter Wiggins, a 190-pound senior at left guard, Jack Holley, a 200-pound senior at center. On the right side of the line will be Sherrill Doby at guard, Charlie Abernathy at tackle and Tommy Barnes at end.

Guilford Backfield In the backfield will be sophomore Larry Adelson at quarterback. Dan Rouse will again be in the starting lineup when the Bucs meet Guilford away Saturday afternoon. This will be the first conference game for the East Carolina eleven. (Reflector Staff Photo)

New Bikes Await Moose Rodeo Champs

Three shining new bicycles went on display this week as prizes awaiting winners of the Moose Bicycle Rodeo scheduled for September 30.

The event, keyed to the safety element in cycling, puts special emphasis on knowledge of traffic safety rules and on riding skill.

Questionnaires, which constitute a written test for competitors, have been distributed among schools in the county. Prepared by the N. C. Dept. of Motor Vehicles, the answers will be scored and figure prominently in adjudging the winners.

Sam Brooks, co-chairman of the Greenville Lodge Civic Affairs Committee, said today a bicycle would be awarded to each winner of three divisions—which have been set up in categories of age.

The first division runs from age six through eight; the second, from age nine through eleven; the third, twelve years and over.

Other prizes are being prepared. Free refreshments and tickets for playing on the Moose miniature golf course will be given all contestants.

Seven License Examiners from the N. C. Dept. of Motor Vehicles will help in the judging and conducting of the bicycle rodeo. A bicycle safety film prepared by that department will be shown to the youngsters. Demonstrating their interest in the program, three examiners stationed in Wilson will come to Greenville to help representatives of the Greenville Police Dept. and the Pitt County Sheriff's Dept. will also be in attendance.

The bicycle safety rodeo will be held on the Moose Lodge parking lot. Starting time: 2:00 p.m., Saturday, September 30.

Health Official Warns Against Flu Outbreak

An upswing in the influenza cycle is likely to hit this country during the fall and winter, Dr. Luther L. Terry, surgeon general of the Public Health Service, warned local health directors recently.

"We are probably due for some Asian Flu outbreaks, since they come in two to three year cycles, and we are overdue for type B Flu outbreaks which come in four to six year cycles," Dr. Terry said. "Asian Flu has been dormant here since March, 1960, and it has been more than six years since we had much type B Flu in this country," he added.

He recommended immediate vaccinations for persons in the three groups which accounted for most of the 86,000 flu-triggered deaths between September 1957 and March 1960. The groups are: persons with heart disease; pulmonary diseases, diabetes and other chronic illnesses; persons over 65; and pregnant women.

The Public Health Service is alerting physicians and health officers about the possible influenza increase, and the Bureau of Public Assistance, another unit of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is urging States Welfare Agencies to include Flu immunizations in the medical care

Dr. D. R. Jones Is Appointed To Advisory Council

Dr. Douglas R. Jones, director of the department of education at East Carolina College, has accepted an appointment as a member of the State Advisory Council on Teacher Education and Professional Standards.

Appointed by Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Jones will serve on the Council during 1961-1963.

As a member of the group, Dr. Jones will work with the In-Service Education Committee.

A native of Farmville and an alumnus of East Carolina, Dr. Jones joined the college faculty here in 1957 as a professor in the department of education and last May became director of the department. He replaced Dr. Ed J. Carter, who assumed the position of director of graduate studies.

Berlin Decision Facing Nikita

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev apparently must decide in the next week or so whether he wants to negotiate on a compromise settlement of the Berlin crisis or force his demands for Western concessions closer to the brink of war.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk is understood to have told Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko here Thursday that the Western powers have no intention of accepting Khrushchev's terms for negotiation. The Soviet leader has insisted the West must accept his proposal for a peace treaty with divided Germany as the basis of a deal over West Berlin.

Rusk told Gromyko the United States, Britain, France and West Germany want a peaceful solution of the Berlin issue but that they will never yield to Soviet threats or bargain away their basic rights in the disputed city.

Gromyko gave no sign of willingness to modify the Soviet position, but did agree to meet Rusk again next week.

The interval between sessions gives both men time to report to their respective chiefs—President Kennedy and Khrushchev. Rusk is expected also to inform Allied governments. While there is no time limit on the talks, Western diplomats say Khrushchev's decision on a basis for East-West negotiations should be made known in a week or so.

Rusk has an opportunity today to explain publicly the stand of the United States and its Allies as developed in a Western foreign ministers conference at Washington a week ago. He will address a luncheon meeting of the Foreign Press Association with a question and answer session to follow.

The U. S. and Soviet foreign policy chiefs met in Rusk's skyscraper suite in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel for 4½ hours Thursday. The session was the first in a series initiated by Rusk to find out whether a basis for East-West negotiations is possible.

Half a dozen aides and advisers of each attended the luncheon, including Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson and Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin, the top U. S. and Soviet delegates to the United Nations.

Around the blue-clothed dining table the conferees talked over the problems of peace in Laos, where Red military successes earlier this year forced the U.S.-supported Laotian government and the Western powers to seek a solution in neutrality for the Asian kingdom.

They also discussed the leadership crisis in the United Nations following the death of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. Rusk told Gromyko a big majority of the U.N.'s 99 members oppose the Soviet Union's plan to replace Hammarskjold with a three-man board. The U.N. secretary must have a single director in order to function, Rusk argued. Gromyko stuck firmly to Khrushchev's proposal.

But most of the time in the closed door meeting was devoted to talking about German and Berlin problems. The only formal statement after the meeting came from the U.S. side. It said the two men talked over "a number of problems of importance to each country, including the problem of Germany and Berlin."

"The talks took place in a friendly and businesslike atmosphere," the statement added.

Later as more information became available it was evident that while Rusk and Gromyko spoke in quiet tones there was no budging from known positions by either. Their diplomatic courtesy masked but did not obscure the underlying toughness and danger of two great powers in conflict.

Gromyko is understood to have described Khrushchev's proposal to sign a peace treaty with Communist East Germany later this year. He reminded Rusk that Khrushchev has said West Berlin could become a "free city" with rights of access from West Germany guaranteed. He also denounced "revanchism," a word often used by Moscow for alleged revenge-seeking in West Germany. He argued that the Khrushchev plan would bolster peace and security in Europe.

Rusk is understood to have emphasized determination of the Western powers to defend their basic rights to have troops in West Berlin, to have access to the city across East Germany, and to protect the independence of the West Berliners from Red rule. At the same time he indicated Western readiness to negotiate if a suitable basis can be found.

Demand Up As Week Nears End

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Demand increased at markets of three of the blue-cured tobacco belts of the Carolinas and Virginia Thursday, as the end of the sales week approached.

On the fourth belt, the Eastern North Carolina, prices were unchanged to slightly lower. Prices were steady to higher on the North Carolina Middle Belt, South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt, and Virginia - North Carolina Old Belt.

The Federal-State Market News Service made this report by belts:

Eastern — More than half the grade averages Thursday were down from Wednesday, when sales were 8,037,519 pounds at an average of $66.01 per 100 pounds. Season sales are 265,516,372 pounds at $64.87. Stabilization Corp. took 4.9 per cent of Wednesday's sales, 3.2 for the season.

Middle-Sales Wednesday were 3,149,008 pounds, smallest volume of the season, at $64.50, down $1. Season sales 62,018,409 pounds at $65.50.

Old-Wednesday's sales 2,588,130 pounds at $65.04, up 3 cents. North Carolina markets sold 1,534,724 pounds at $65.06. Virginia 1,053,406 at $65.03. Season sales 25,584,142 pounds at $65.44. Stabilization took 2.8 per cent of Wednesday's sales, 2.3 per cent for the season.

Broder-Sales Wednesday 1,614,836 pound at $62.64, down $2.28. Season sales 314,155,882 pounds at $65.56. Stabilization has taken 2.6 per cent for the season. The belt will close its season next week.

Hammarskjold's Death Brings Neutral Sweden To New Efforts

By BRACK CURRY
STOCKHOLM (AP) — The death of Dag Hammarskjold has brought traditionally neutral Sweden to new efforts to carry on his task in the troubled Congo.

The government, the press and public opinion seem united in the view that the loss of Hammarskjold should not change U.N. policy in the former Belgian colony.

Sweden has not fought a war since 1815. Nevertheless a considerable number of Swedes hope the U.N. will smash what they consider foreign rule and influence in secessionist Katanga—by force if necessary.

The mood in this nation of 7½ million people is one of sorrow, and bitterness that its most distinguished son of modern times lost his life in a remote African woods under what are widely regarded here as suspicious circumstances.

Defense Minister Sven Anderson voiced the views of the government Wednesday: "The Swedish standpoint in regard to Sweden's obligation in the service of the United Nations is unchanged. And the Swedish defense staff is now enrolling new battalions to replace Swedish U.N. forces in the Congo and Palestine as their present terms run out."

Anderson announced that Sweden will send four jet fighters to the Congo to reinforce U.N. forces there. These are Swedish-made Saab "Flying Barrels." They can go 650 miles an hour and are armed with four 36-millimeter cannon and rockets.

The Swedish defense staff less than 48 hours after Hammarskjold's death flew an extra supply of 11 tons of ammunition to the Swedish contingent in the Congo.

The bitterness toward the Katanga regime is expressed by government leaders, the press and the man-on-the-street. Foreign Minister Oesten Unden said in a comment on Hammarskjold's death: "The latest fighting in the Congo which has caused us so much concern seems essentially to have been caused by a few hundred white officers who systematically tried to sabotage the work of the U.N."

Belvoir Falkland Has PTA Session

By MELBA EVERETTE
BELVOIR — Belvoir-Falkland Parent-Teacher Association Monday held its first meeting of the 1961-62 school term here.

Highlighting the program was the presentation of a film: "The History of American Education," by Principal E. N. Warren.

Following the film program, Warren introduced to the PTA Belvoir-Falkland's new faculty members.

Among these was Mrs. Jim Sawyer, second grade; George James, eighth grade; Mrs. David Mayo, home economics; Mrs. Lois Tetterton, 10th grade; Bob Warren, 11th grade; and Mrs. Barbara Parker, 12th grade. Warren also introduced the school's seven student teachers from East Carolina College.

Kisse Zahner's first grade received the highest rating of parents attending the first PTA gathering. The door prize, a cake, was presented to Mrs. Earl Lewis.

Local PTA President Mrs. Joyce Peader called the meeting to order and read the minutes of the organization's last meeting.

J. T. Cobb presented a brief devotion that included singing of a hymn and a prayer by Mrs. Floyd Harris.

It was announced that the Executive Committee had proposed a PTA-conducted tobacco drive Sept. 19-21 to raise funds for new library books and other school improvements.

Warren commented on the "excellent luncheon participation" by the students. He said he is "very well-pleased" at this year's enrollment increase and urged parents to "give us any suggestions here at Belvoir-Falkland."

Following the business session, refreshments were served in the library by Mrs. Mayo and her economics department staff.

Auto Smash Kills Three Young Men

MARION, N.C. (AP) — A head-on collision of two automobiles here Thursday night brought death to three young men in one car. The occupants of the other car, man and wife, were injured.

Charles Jarrett Padgett, 21, of Marion and Ernest Swenson, 19, of Hopkinton, Mass., were killed outright. Swenson was visiting relatives here. Stanley Briggs, 24, of Marion died at an Asheville hospital early today.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mace, 21, of Marion was critically injured and her husband, Jewell Allen Mace, 27, was less seriously hurt.

Trooper Alvin Wise said investigation indicated the car occupied by Swenson, Padgett and Briggs was in the wrong lane of U.S. 221.

In 2nd Year Of Dentistry School

CHAPEL HILL—Larry G. Jorgensen and Donald Ray Patrick, both of Greenville, are in their second year of the four-year program of the School of Dentistry at the University of North Carolina.

Jorgensen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Jorgensen of 505 E. Eighth St., Greenville. He attended Greenville High School and his pre-dental work was done at East Carolina College.

Patrick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Patrick of 123 N. Harding St., Greenville. Having attended Greenville High School, he completed his pre-dental work at the University of North Carolina.

The program of the U. N. C. School of Dentistry leads to a degree of doctor of dental surgery.

Rose Speaks To First PTA Meet

J. H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville schools, was the speaker at the first PTA meeting of Agnes Fullilove School held last night in the school auditorium.

Rose spoke on quality education.

The Rev. John A. Moore led the devotional and Mrs. J. T. Cox, president, presided during the business session. Also during the business session new teachers were introduced, the budget for the school year, 1961-62, was presented and adopted and new committee chairmen were recognized.

Following the business, the parents visited the school rooms and met with the teachers and then a social hour was held.

Heart Attack Is Fatal To Jesuit

ROME (AP)—The Rev. Filippo Soccorati, director emeritus of Vatican Radio, died of a heart attack Thursday night. He was 61.

A Jesuit, he directed the Vatican City radio station, 1934-53, and was a noted specialist in radioelectronics. He was a graduate engineer before entering the Roman Catholic order of priests in 1922.

CHAPTER 36

The Malcolm Marshall was loading for St. Louis at the Port Benton levee this afternoon in early fall.

Tam Barrie had obtained passage on her for himself and Dove Demarest. He supervised the loading of their luggage into the two cubicles the Marshall-called cabins and went out on deck. Dove was standing near the bow. He joined her.

She was looking at the sunbaked little city. "How happy I am to leave this hateful place!" she said, her hand going unconsciously to her cheek, the bruises now fading.

"So your spirit of adventure is satisfied," Tam said.

"Adventure? Rather say night-mare. Tam, what a headstrong little fool I was—and how I paid for it! I think I'll be perfectly happy in old Philadelphia the rest of my life."

"Life does run more smoothly. But the blood pumps slower, too."

"You want that as I do, Tam. I know. For there was never a drop of the blood of the adventurer in you, Tammy. And with the fine position they will reward you at the bank, for the way you salvaged more than a third of their loan to Cleo Strike, you can settle down in comfort and enjoy the finer things in life."

"A vice presidency, perhaps?" Tam asked. "Dove, I'm afraid my exploits out here will hardly recommend me to the sober officers of Seaboard & Continental. The few talents I've acquired in the past months are seldom called upon in financial circles."

"Oh, I'll see to it that Daddy knows how brave you were, riding alone after that devil, Cleo, Tam, I'm glad you killed him," she dabbled at her eyes with a tiny handkerchief. "I loved him once. But for what he did to me..."

"That's over and done, Dove," he said. "The thing that haunts me is the waste of it, the waste of a man. For I've looked into the cattle business that he played up as the excuse for his loan. It's going to be a great thing. If he had followed it, with his great talents he could have built a real empire, a lawful one. But there was something twisted in the man—I never can forgive his willingness to destroy, perhaps enslave the Metis for his own selfish purpose."

"You love those people, don't you, Tam?"

"I love them as a brother," he said soberly. His hand went to his vest pocket, feeling the crackle of paper there. He knew he would not use it now. But he was tempted, thinking back on the men and women whose paths had crossed his this short summer.

"You even acquired for the bank the piece of land Cleo had bought as a cattle ranch, didn't you, Tam?" Dove asked.

"I was obviously bought with part of the loan," Tam said.

"A pleasant surprise, hearing you two were going downriver on this boat," a voice said behind them. They turned. It was Chance Flagg, trim in blue uniform, the metal gleaming.

"Where are you heading?" Tam asked, shaking hands.

"Bismarck and Fort Lincoln, for reassignment," Flagg said.

"Shooting trouble somewhere else, I suppose," Tam said. "Or is there a sinecure waiting for you somewhere because you sroached this dangerous affair without out gunfire, and with a minimum of publicity?"

"Little enough I did, Flagg said smiling. "If the Metis had erupted across the border in a blaze of guns, and killed the Mounties as Strike wanted, the fat would still have been in the fire, and it likely would be Private Flagg of the rear ranks of the Metis for their dead," Tam said.

"Yes, those fine simple people," Flagg said. "But you, Mrs. Strike? You return to Philadelphia?"

Dove held up a dainty gloved hand. "Please, Lieutenant. Dove Demarest. Not — Not that other. That belongs, as you well know, to a little Cree maiden, in Batoche, across the border."

"My apologies, Miss Demarest," Flagg said, flushing. "And at this late date, may I offer my heartfelt excuses for what I did while you were at Hay Lake? There were times when I would gladly have shot Cleland Strike for the way he treated you. But I had my orders, and I did not dare compromise my hard-earned vantage. I was living in deadly danger as it was, with the chance a deserter might expose me at any moment."

"I realize your position, Lieutenant," Dove said, touching his hand. "And at the end, it was the thing that prevented a war. I understand."

"You understand, but do you forgive?" Flagg asked, his voice serious.

Tam waited for a tingle of jealousy to touch him. But it did not. He stood watching the two, watching them draw away from him, seemingly unaware that he stood beside them. And pleasant relief flooded him. Dove's broken life was fast mending. If lifted away the responsibility he had unconsciously felt for her future.

When Tam stepped back and away, they did not even see him go. He walked down the deck and entered Dove's cubbyhole of a cabin. In the center of the bed he laid the envelope from his pocket. It held her ticket to St. Louis.

and a letter. He walked on, closing the door firmly behind him, as if by that act he shut away forever a way of life that once had been his.

He knew now that his mind had been made up last night, or he would not have written the letter. He had deceived himself that the letter was a might-have-been thing, a thing he would never use. His farewell to Dove, that letter. An enclosure held Tam's resignation from Seaboard & Continental, a complete account of the Cleland Strike affair, and an offer of Tam's small bank account for the Strike ranch land that would be awarded the bank in due course. He did not doubt the bank would accept the offer.

He got his own luggage from the adjoining cabin. Down the deck Dove and Flagg were still engrossed in conversation. Smiling, Tam shouldered his way past the man at the stageplank. He said: "My plans have changed. Tell the captain I won't be going, and to take good care of Miss Demarest."

He went down to the levee where he had seen them standing back from the river's edge. He put down his luggage and walked toward them. As he approached, he started to speak, but the bull roar of the Marshall's steam whistle shattered the air, drowning his words.

When silence surged back, Collyer Devoe said: "Whistle means they're gettin' ready to cast off, Tam. Better git back." Tam's eyes were on Stephanie's lovely face. "I'm not going," he said.

"Ain't goin'? What would ye be doin' out here in the Whoop-Up?"

"Anything," Tam said, taking the girl's hand. "Raise cattle, run a bank, peddle whisky — who knows? But I'm staying."

"But what about that pretty little gal?" Collyer persisted. "She ain't goin' to like this ope bit."

"She'll make out all right," Tam said, inclining his head toward the two still standing at the bow of the steamboat. "I'll wager she has a proposal from the lieutenant before they reach the Musselshell, and that she accepts him. Good man, the lieutenant."

Capturing Stephanie's other hand, he went on. "Stevie, this is not the time or place to say I love you. Will you be my wife?"

Using Himself As 'Guinea Pig'

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese atomic scientist is using himself as a guinea pig to test the rate of elimination and effects of dangerous strontium 85 when taken by humans.

Dr. Toshio Aoki, 52, of the Atomic Energy Research Institute swallowed a dose of the radioactive element on Aug. 16 by mixing it with his coffee. The amount was one-tenth of the level considered dangerous to human bodies.

He estimated today about 1 percent of the strontium still remains in his body. He figured it will remain with him until late next year. The radiation readings revealed the strontium lodged in the bones of his shoulder, hip and spine.

Soil drainage is an important factor for farmers to consider in choosing a forage seeding mixture.

Kennedy Acting To Ease Secrecy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has set up a system for automatically taking the secrecy wraps off a considerable amount of classified government material.

Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., who along with newspaper editor groups has frequently criticized excessive governmental secrecy, said the action Wednesday was "a major improvement in the information protection system."

Moss, chairman of the House Information Subcommittee and newspaper groups have protested that classified labels sometimes are used by government officials to conceal mistakes or policies that should be made public.

Moss said the system was recommended by his group three years ago and supported by the American Society of Newspaper Editors and Sigma Delta Chi, professional-journalistic society.

The executive order provides for downgrading the secrecy classification of documents at regular intervals, or sooner if officials decide they no longer need special protection.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said the details of the system were worked out by an interdepartmental committee on internal security after a long study of government classification methods.

Cadillac presents for 1962 the Masterwork of the Motoring Age

You have had your first look at the new "car of cars". Its name is Cadillac—and its destiny is a place among the most renowned automobiles of our time.

Its new styling is remarkably clean and crisp and graceful—with a look of "rightness" in every line and contour and detail.

Cadillac's new Fleetwood interiors beckon with a jewel-like beauty. There are marvelous new fabrics and leathers... and new conveniences on every hand.

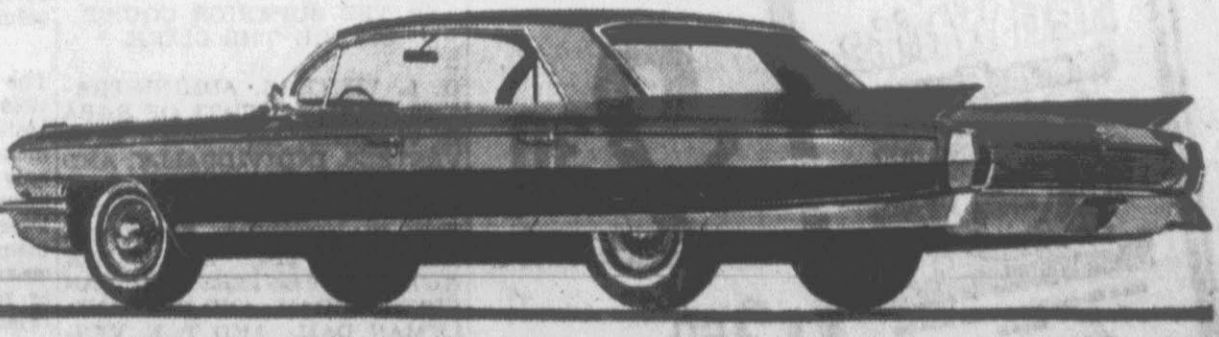

Engineering triumphs include independent front and rear braking... exclusive new cornering lamps that light your way around turns... a revolutionary three-phase rear lighting system... and many other important advances.

Yet, some of the noblest advances cannot be seen. They must be felt and sensed—performance that is incredibly quiet and smooth and nimble... handling ease so great that the mere weight of your hand puts you in command of the road... craftsmanship that is so practiced and so precise that the car has become a marvel of construction and a paragon of dependability.

These new Cadillac wonders are evident in each of twelve new body styles—and are available with the widest selection of interiors in Cadillac history.

Even if you have never before considered a Cadillac—you should take a journey in this one.

It's Cadillac for 1962. You'll be hearing a lot about it.

Producer Not Disturbed By Movie's $18 Million Outlay

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How does it feel to spend $18 million? Not bad, says Aaron Rosenberg. He is clear of eye, light of foot and free of ulcers.

In fact, you would hardly know that he is spending a record sum for any movie and inheriting a record number of headaches with it. He is producing the second "Mutiny On The Bounty."

"Spending umpteen million on a movie is no different than spending one million," said Rosenberg, a man who uses his own style of calculation. "The only difference is the bills come larger."

So do the rumors. There have been all kinds about the massive production, which started last Nov. 28 and will finish in three weeks. The most recurrent one is that star Marlon Brando has been the cause of delays for various reasons.

Brando, who seldom reacts to what is printed about him, is hopping mad about the reports. Rosenberg added his endorsement of the star.

"The reports are nonsense," the producer said. "Then what has caused the delays?"

Rosenberg rattled them off by the dozen.

The Bounty replica was four months late in delivery. ("It was a bad year for lumber.")

The writers' strike stalled production. The film had to start with half a script because of actor commitments. The ship delay put the company in Tahiti at the rainy season.

Carol Reed was replaced as director by Louis Milestone. ("The dispute was between Reed and me over how the film was to be shot; Marlon was not involved.")

An alcoholic actor kicked up a fuss and was sent home—where the actor died.

Even with all the problems, the mind fails to comprehend how $18 million can be spent on one motion picture. "It's easy," the producer explained. "You've got 2 million tied up in a cast. Another 2 million goes to build, outfit and man the Bounty. You spend half a million for the story rights from MGM. Four and a half million go to the studio for overhead—30 per cent of the total bill. "Then you have director costs—two of them, and script costs; we've had five writers, none of them cheap. You spend a couple of million on the Tahiti location. Take a few items like 1,000 canoes and you see how it mounts up."

'Kukla, Fran And Ollie' Making Comeback On NBC

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A few years ago in the halcyon days of television, one of the joys for the adult, semi-literate-and-better viewer was a nightly puppet show called "Kukla, Fran and Ollie," which specialized in a rather sophisticated brand of wry, droll whimsy.

The attractive little show subsequently suffered the slings and arrows of low ratings and finally disappeared from the networks. Now, in one of the pleasant but puzzling events of the season, NBC is bringing it back.

In the black and white world of television, thinking, it is ordained that puppet shows are for children. Hence, the new "Kukla and Ollie" returns next Monday as a daily show—and at an hour reserved for the little ones.

NBC obligingly provided reviewers with a preview of the first week's batch of programs. They are only five minutes long, including the commercials, and really don't give Kukla, Oliver J. Drayton and Beulah Witch, to name a few of the delightful puppet regulars, to do much more than hit-and-run comedy. But it is still long enough to them to provide a bright spot in an adult's day, a moment of sharp satire, bright wit and topical comedy. But the hour is impossible—5-5:05 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time, when most groupings are either just leaving the office or busy in the kitchen preparing dinner. This is a shame.

The official name of Steve Allen's new ABC variety hour, which will have its premiere next Wednesday, is "The New Steve Allen Show," although Steve himself insists the format will be very much like that of the old, NBC one. Things have come to a pretty pass: The Wayne and Shuster situation comedy series which is the summer replacement for Jack Benny will go into repeat broadcasts before it disappears, and the shows were not particularly entertaining even the first time out.

Recommended week-end viewing: "Eyewitness," season premiere, CBS, tonight, 10:30-11 (Eastern Daylight Time)—round-up of top news stories; "Saturday Night at the Movies," premiere, Saturday, NBC, 9-11—"How to Marry a Millionaire" with Marilyn Monroe and William Powell; "The Bullwinkle Show," premiere, NBC, Sunday, 7-7:30—new animated cartoon series; "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color," NBC weekly series debuts on new network with an animated cartoon show introducing a new Disney character.

Statesman's Body Expected Sunday

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The body of Dag Hammarskjöld is expected to arrive here Sunday with an escort of Swedish jet fighters.

The specially chartered U.N. plane will fly the body from Rohnedisa, the foreign ministry said Thursday night.

Hammarskjöld's coffin will be met by relatives and members of the Swedish government. Following a brief ceremony at the airport, where a guard of honor is scheduled to parade, the coffin will rest in the Uppsala Cathedral until Sept. 29. There will be a Swedish state funeral in the afternoon, attended by the king and queen of Sweden and representatives of other heads of state.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined in moderate trading today, weakened by losses of some blue chips and by a flurry of selling in Studebaker-Packard.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down .80 at 251.10 with industrials down 1.50, rails down .40 and utilities down .20.

Losses of the general run of key stocks went from fractions to about a point but some high quality chemicals were down 2 points or more.

Du Pont was apparently dampened by overnight news that a filibuster is being planned against the bill to provide tax relief for Du Pont holders when that company's General Motors stock is distributed.

Big three motors, oils, aircrafts, chemicals, rails and electronics displayed a generally lower trend while a mixed pattern prevailed in a number of other important groups.

P. P. and Union Carbide were off 2 points or more. Eastman Kodak and Allied Chemical dropped about a point each.

Texas Instruments lost another 3 points. American Home Products dropped about 4 and Corning Glass 5 points or so.

Trading was halted in Studebaker-Packard for six minutes as stop-loss orders were touched off. The stock reopened at 11 3/4, off 3/4 on the day, in a transaction of 12,000 shares.

Gillette was up about 2. International Business Machines was a 10-point loser.

American Motors held a fractional gain. Other auto stocks were slightly lower. Steels were very narrowly mixed.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 3.69 at 702.62. Prices on the American Stock Exchange were irregularly lower.

Corporate bond were higher on balance. U.S. government bonds advanced in moderate dealings.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog prices mostly steady to 25 high. Tops of 18.50-19.50 Kingston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive, Newton Grove; 18.25-19.25 Nahant, Smithfield, Dunn, Wilson; 18.75-19 Bethel, Murfreesboro; 18.50-19 Rocky Mount, Spring Hope; 18-18.50 Pembroke; 19.25 Clinton, Fayetteville, Elizabethtown, Pine Hill; 19 Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck; 18.75 Widsboro Albion, Greensboro, Rich Square.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina sweet potato growers will go to the polls Saturday to vote on a self-help program to promote their product.

They will decide whether to assess themselves for promotional purposes 2 cents a bushel for fresh market potatoes and 2 cents for each 100 pounds of canner's stock.

If the referendum carries by the required two-thirds vote, an estimated $25,000 would be collected the first year.

Ballots will be cast in the counties of Warren, Vance, Granville, Wake, Lee, Harnett, Franklin, Scotland, Hoke and all counties to the east.

Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine has endorsed the program and predicted it would improve the state's farm economy.

"Sweet potatoes constitute one of our state's most important crops," he said, "and they can increase in importance with the kind of promotion program essential in today's competitive marketing."

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers, one cent higher, farm price 11 to 13, weighted average price 12.00.

Some dealers are taking as much as a seven-cent loss Caravan reported. Caravan stated that the price war can't last long for us. "I can't see how the company can allow the dealers to go broke."

W. L. Allen, local Gulf distributor said his suggested retail price for the last three or four days has been 20.9 for regular. However, he said he can not tell the dealers what they have to sell for. "I think most of them are following the suggested price," he added.

The Texaco and Sinclair distributors in the city said they have been given a 9.9 cent reduction from the regional office and that the decrease has been passed on to dealers.

Alton Stocks, of the Shell distributor office said this morning that the company has received a 9.9 cent reduction also and that most of the dealers were selling regular for 19.9 and high test for 24.9 today. The last price change for Shell came Tuesday, but he said another cent reduction is being requested today. However, the regional office has not yet confirmed the extra cent.

It appears that the present low prices will continue for several days and none of the distributors in the area can forecast the end. John Clark, Sinclair distributor said, "Business is good, but this price war is a very foolish thing. Nobody is making any money."

The first power-operated laundry was started in 1851 in Oakland, Calif., by a man named Davis. He used a 10-horsepower donkey engine.

Individual child.

We warned that there is fear that in a program to improve education the individual will be over-looked and submerged—"This must not happen."

"Let's don't try to fit every child into the same mold; we know we cannot teach any two of them alike because they are not alike," Dr. Carroll said, stressing the importance of the individual in education.

He brought into his text mention of the ungraded primary system being used at Greenville's Eimhurst School, commenting that it was based on the individual child.

Also appearing on the program during this morning's opening session were Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina College, who brought greetings, Dr. Frank G. Eller, district director, N.C.E.A., and Bert Ishee, N.E.A. director, Fayetteville, spoke briefly, Dr. A. C. Dawson Jr., N.C.E.A. executive secretary from Raleigh, discussed N.C.E.A. activities.

District officers included several from Pitt County: A. Woodrow Taylor, president, Ahoskie High School, presiding; Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, vice president, supervisor of Pitt County Schools; Mrs. Irma S. Worthington, secretary of Greenville Junior High School; and Dr. Fuller, district director.

The East Carolina College Choir, under the direction of Gordon Johnson, provided music prior to the beginning speakers, and the Rev. John W. Drake Jr., rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, gave the invocation.

Theme for the sessions is "A Profession Dedicated to the Science and Art of Teaching." The Northeastern District of the N. C. E. A. includes the following counties: Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Edgecombe, Gates, Halifax, Hertford, Hyde, Martin, Nash, Northampton, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Tyrell and Washington.

Divisions and Departments of the district held their individual meetings in the afternoon, during which election of officers was to take place.

Rightists Blast Algiers' TV; Test De Gaulle

ALGIERS (AP)—The French rightist underground army blasted Algiers' television Thursday night with explosives and called for demonstrations to test its strength against President Charles de Gaulle.

"De Gaulle, it is you who will disappear, you who will fall," declared the voice of Raou Salan, fugitive ex-general who was stripped of his rank and sentenced to death for leading the abortive revolt last April against De Gaulle and his policy of self-determination for Algeria.

Salan is a leader of the secret army organization, a European terrorist group sworn to keep this big African territory part of France. He accused De Gaulle of planning to "sell out" the Europeans in Algeria.

Salan, former French commander in Algeria, spoke on a 25-minute pirate program. Its command knocked out the government TV station in a blast staged with military precision. Five pyons of the TV antenna tumbled.

TV screens flickered with black and white lines, and secret army broadcast a clandestine transmitter on the audio frequency.

This cut off the channel just before the scheduled start of a program showing De Gaulle on a grass roots tour of southern France, where he inveighed against these same terrorist tactics—"these agitators, these pretensions, these crimes."

Salan called on residents of Algiers to come to their windows and balconies tonight for half an hour to demonstrate in the "classical" manner. This means shouting and beating on pots and pans.

For nextxxxxx Three days ago, Algiers military headquarters called for an all-out campaign against the secret army. The broadcast and a dozen new plastic bomb blasts in Algiers indicated that the secret army is far from crushed.

Roy E. Overman Dies In Grifton Thursday
Mr. Roy E. Overman, 69, died in Grifton Thursday afternoon after suffering a heart attack. Funeral services will be conducted at the Gardner's Crossroads community Saturday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock and burial will be in the Ayden cemetery. The Rev. Kenneth A. Moore, pastor of the Winnetville Christian Church, assisted by the Rev. Wm. E. Roberts, the pastor, will conduct the services. The body will be taken from the Wilkerson Funeral Home to the church two hours prior to the time of service.

Mr. Overman spent most of his life in Wilson and had lived in the Gardner's Crossroads community since 1951. He was a member of the First Christian Church in Wilson.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Rebekah Moore Overman; three sons: Roy Mack Overman of Wilson, Harvey Robert Overman of the U. S. Air Force, now in the Pacific area, and Timothy Edwin Overman of Wilson; three daughters: Mrs. F. R. Harrelson of Newport News, Va., Mrs. Larry T. # Kennedy Reminds Congress Of Emergency Recall Possibility

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy told leaders of both parties today he would contact them promptly if the international situation requires after Congress adjourns.

Republican and Democratic leaders of House and Senate said they would be available in the event of an emergency.

Leaders are aiming for adjournment Saturday night.

Kennedy called the leaders to breakfast at the White House just before departing on a trip that will take him to the United Nations for a speech on Monday.

Both Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said there was general agreement that the leaders could be contacted within 24 hours.

Dirksen added this would apply to all members of Congress except those abroad.

Dirksen reported that Kennedy's only comment on former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's speech raking the Democratic administration was that "it was quite a dinner in Chicago."

Eisenhower delivered his harshest criticism of the Kennedy administration to date at a dinner honoring Dirksen in Chicago last Saturday night.

Kennedy invited the top Democrats of both Senate and House to breakfast before taking off for his summer home at Hyannis Port, Mass., on Cape Cod. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson said with the group but left early to bid formal farewell to departing President Manuel Prado of Peru.

During the weekend at Hyannis Port, Kennedy will polish the speech he is to deliver to the United Nations General Assembly Monday.

Dirksen predicted one of the last hurdles to adjournment—agreement on foreign aid spending—would be cleared with an agreement.

Farmville Season Mark Reaches $65
FARMVILLE—Tobacco poundage was 784,000 selling for $528-144.85 to average $67.36 on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday.

Sales Supervisor Louis Williams reported that this brings the season's pounds to 16,529,320 which has sold for $10,747,365.40. The season's average is now $65.02.

Williams said today's prices are about the same with the offerings consisting of lugs, leaf and non-descript grades.

It looked as if there is to be a full sale today with another full sale expected Monday.

Prices continue to run between seven and eight cents above the corresponding period last year, Williams said. Several piles sold as high as 83 cents per pound and several sales averaged over 75 cents.

Child Injured In Mishap Thursday
A five-year-old Negro girl was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital yesterday for abrasions received when she ran from the side of the roadway into a car here yesterday Police said.

Investigators reported that the child, Jo Ann Jenkins of 208 Cadillac St. ran into the side of a vehicle being driven by Mary H. Daniels, Negro of 202 Hudson St. on Colonial Ave near the intersection of Cadillac St.

Time of the mishap was listed as 1:02 p.m.

No charges were made by investigating officers and no damage resulted to the car.

Greenville Mart Has $66.62 Day

GREENVILLE—The mart here chucked up another million dollar day—a commonplace occurrence this year—on yesterday's tobacco market sale.

Supervisor W. L. Whedbee said the market sold 1,679,372 pounds for $1,118,892.42 yesterday to average $66.62.

Whedbee reported prices on the local market advanced again today as several grades increased to new high levels.

Medium quality leaf was up three to four dollars above yesterday's level, he reported.

The common end of the smoking leaf, which had already advanced the day before, took another increase today of from two to three dollars per hundred, the sales supervisor said.

Many farmers continue to average over $76 and highest company purchases were $86 per hundred, Whedbee reported.

Mrs. Cammie Moore Dies Here Thursday
Mrs. Cammie P. Moore, 88, died at her home, 505 East Ninth Street, Thursday afternoon at 2:15. She had been critically ill for the past several weeks. Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Saturday morning at 11 o'clock by her pastor, the Rev. Tom Money. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Moore, a native of Pitt County, had lived in Greenville since 1936. She was a member of the Hooker Christian Church.

Surviving are two daughters, Misses Eliza and Sonora Moore of the home; five sons, David S. Moore of Chevy Chase, Md., Luther D. and William O. Moore of Greenville, J. Meredith Moore of Greensboro, and F. Ray Moore of Washington; 12 grandchildren; 11 great grandchildren; and a sister, Mrs. Robert R. Fleming of Arkadelphia, Arkansas.

The family requests that flowers be omitted.

Club Preparing For Cake Sale

About 2,000 pounds of fruit cake has been ordered by the Greenville Civitan Club for sale to finance the club's projects for the coming year, according to an announcement at the club's meeting last night.

Herbert Wilkerson, president, said the co-chairmen of the Fruit Cake Committee, Jim Rogers and Joe Dudley, reported the top of cake is expected to arrive in Greenville next week.

Proceeds from the annual cake sales, Wilkerson emphasized, is the only source of income for the Civitan projects, which include financial support of the J. H. Rose High School Band; aid to retarded children and support to Boys Home at Lake Waccamaw, N. C.

Dr. Kenneth Quiggins, immediate past president of the Civitan Club, was presented a Citation Award from Civitan International for "distinguished service in membership building" during the past year. According to the president, the club itself was one in the North Carolina district which qualified for the "Honor Club Award" this year.

The program for the meeting was presented by Dr. George Douglas of East Carolina College. It was on citizenship and how it relates to all citizens on a local level.

Drivers Decline Unionization
RALEIGH—Winn-Dixie truck drivers voted 38 to 12 against unionization at a National Labor Relations Board election held at the Raleigh Winn-Dixie warehouse Sept. 20.

Company officials said this is the first election to be held by the union in the Raleigh division.

At the present time no department of Winn-Dixie's eight divisions throughout the southeast is unionized.
