BELLS AROUND THE WORLD

The Indians could send a rallying call many, many miles by drums. Each drummer, stationed on a lonely ridge, would listen for the sound of distant drums, and relay the message to others waiting across the valley. Overnight a dozen tribes could be rallied to a common cause.

We don't need such crude methods of communication today. Men with a common purpose can join forces around the world at a pre-arranged time.

World Wide Communion Sunday is such an expression of unity. In every Christian land the church bells will summon men and women to the Lord's Supper on this Sunday.

And the universality of this great religious event will not depend on bells relaying the message from town to town. It will depend on folks like yourself coming to their Church to receive this Holy Sacrament.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Wiseman-Dickens Marriage Solemnized Friday

Miss Wanda Roma Dickens became the bride of Cpl. David Lee Wiseman Friday night, September 29, at 6:30 p.m. in the First Pentecostal Holiness Church of Greenville. Rev. W. E. Thompson performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Dickens of Greenville. Cpl. Wiseman is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hayward Lynn Wiseman of Clarksville, West Virginia. A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Richard Parson, organist, aunt of the bride, of Goldsboro, and Miss Patsy Jones, soloist. Miss Jones sang "Sweet Mystery of Life" and "O Promise Me." "The Wedding Prayer" was sung as the benediction. The traditional wedding marches were used as the processional and recessional.

The vows were spoken before an altar centered with the pulpit featuring an open Bible and a single carnation. On either side were baskets of white gladioli flanked by emerald green palms, huckleberry and plumosa greenery and seven branched candelabras holding lighted tapers. Family pews were marked with white bridal ribbons and greenery. The couple knelt on a white wrought iron prie-dieu for the wedding prayer.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of beau de soie, fashioned with a Chantilly lace bodice. The lace extended to a floor length lace panel. The full skirt was accented by inverted pleats which formed a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a crown of seed pearls and flowers. She carried a white lace covered prayer book topped with a white hybrid orchid and showered with bridal ribbons and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Kenneth Russ of Greenville was matron of honor. She wore a street length dress of light blue taffeta with a semi-portrait neckline and short sleeves, featuring a wrap-around sash of taffeta and a matching picture hat. She carried a fall cascade bouquet of yellow pom poms centered with yellow fuji mums and showered with yellow ribbons.

Mrs. Gaston Eason of Newport News, Va. and Miss Pat Dickens, sister of the bride of Greenville, were bridesmaids. They wore yellow dresses identical to that of the honor attendant. They carried fall cascade bouquets of yellow pom poms centered with yellow fuji mums and showered with variegated bronze ribbons.

Misses Shirli Mitchell and Shirley Sugg, cousins of the bride from Goldsboro, Carolyn Rumbley, Gall

Gardner, Linda Cannon, and Joy Pollard, all of Greenville, served as honorary bridesmaids. They wore dresses of contrasting fall colors with matching accessories and carried a single long stemmed yellow chrysanthemum.

Cpl. Owen Clark of Parris Island, S. C. attended the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Kenneth Russ, Greenville, and Charles Dickens, brother of the bride, also of Greenville, and Gordon Cain, cousin of the bridegroom, of Clarksville, West Virginia.

The bride's mother was attired in a pink lace dress with matching pink accessories. Her corsage was a lavender orchid.

The bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Roy Cain of Clarksville, W. Va., wore a dark blue dress with matching accessories and a lavender orchid corsage.

Also in the wedding party were Mrs. T. E. Mitchell, maternal grandmother of the bride, from

Mrs. David Lee Wiseman

Goldboro, Mrs. Annie T. Dickens, paternal grandmother of the bride, Washington, N. C., and Miss Ruth Henderson, great aunt of the bridegroom, from Clarksville, W. Va. They each wore a white carnation corsage.

The bridal couple received in the vestibule of the church.

Mrs. John D. Cannon presided at the guest register, and Miss Elsie Briley directed the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Ruse High School, Greenville, and attended Baker Business College, Greenville. She is currently employed by Commercial Credit Corporation.

Mr. Wiseman is a graduate of Handley High School, Winchester, Va., and is presently serving with the U. S. Marine Corps, stationed in Norfolk, Va.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed to a dark fall cotton sheath dress. She wore matching black patent accessories, a black feathered hat and the orchid lifted from her prayer book. Following their wedding trip, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Cake Cutting

Following the wedding rehearsal Thursday night, Mrs. Annie Terry Dickens, grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Clarence Rawls, and Mrs. Terry Dickens, aunts of the bride, entertained the Wiseman-Dickens wedding party, family and out-of-town guests at a cake cutting at the Rawls home on Main Street in Washington, N. C.

The dining room was decorated in a pink and white color scheme, with the appointed table being covered with a handmade lace cloth over pink linen, centered with an arrangement of pink and white mums in a crystal bowl flanked by white candles.

After the bride and groom had cut the traditional first slice of the three tiered wedding cake, Mrs. W. S. McDowell served the guests punch and Miss Dulcie Terry served the cake. Guests also served themselves assorted nuts and mints from the appointed table.

The bride and groom presented their attendants with gifts.

Party Honors

Mrs. Jay Lewis entertained Sept. 29 bride-elect Miss Wanda Dickens at an informal party at her home on Raleigh Avenue Tuesday evening. Guests were served Banana Nut Bread, Coconut Cookies and soft drinks. They also enjoyed a social hour together.

Forest Hills Garden Club Has Meeting

The Forest Hills Garden Club met Wednesday night at the home of W. T. Bilbro, president.

Yearbooks were distributed and the meeting was given over to a planning session for the year's projects. Mrs. Bilbro read the rating sheet which appears in the "N. C. Gardens Yearbook" in an attempt to refresh memories as to what can be done throughout the year to gain points toward an Honor Roll award.

Mrs. Bilbro and Mrs. Coefield reported on the proceedings of the Garden Clubs Council meeting, and it was decided that in preparation for the Spring Flower Show the club will order jonquil and tulip bulbs. After studying various catalogues, members decided to order them from the Terra Ceta Farm in Pantego. Mrs. Howard Mims volunteered to drive down and pick up the order next week.

The motion was made and carried to assist other district members in giving a Lifetime Membership to all retiring district presidents. Mrs. Bilbro, Mrs. Mims and Mrs. Coefield will attend the district meeting in Washington Oct. 31. Mrs. Mims, landscape design chairman, reported that her committee is working on a plan for beautifying the entrances to Forest Hills.

The meeting was adjourned until Oct. 18 when members were invited to bring guests and prospective members. The speaker will be Mrs. Wellington B. Gray.

Laughinghouse Is Home Ec. Speaker

The second year home economics classes of J. H. Rose High School completed a study of housing with an informative talk by Mr. Billy Laughinghouse, a local furniture dealer.

Mr. Laughinghouse related to the students ways of checking for quality when purchasing furniture, mattresses, and upholstered fabrics. He brought illustrative materials so that the students might observe the construction of home furnishings and ask any questions pertaining to the furnishing of a home.

In concluding his talk, Mr. Laughinghouse stated that furnishing a home with the least expensive furniture obtainable may in the end become most expensive, and emphasized the importance of studying and knowing as much as possible about furniture prior to making a purchase.

The classes taught by Mrs. Mary Alice Hendrix have visited two new homes during their study of housing and have been fortunate in having associates in the related fields to speak to them.

All About Town Calendar

With Anne Mattox

Louis DeVorse, a member of the geography department at East Carolina College and his lovely wife Rosalyn are among Greenville's newer residents. They have been here only four weeks.

The young couple moved here from England where he was at London University, a candidate for the Ph.D. degree in geography doing research and a little teaching.

Upon arriving in this country the DeVorses visited with his parents in Lake Hopatcong, N. J. where they met his wife for the first time.

Mr. DeVorse who is from New Jersey went to Stockholm University for a year where he studied geography and the Swedish Language. He had studied in the states prior to this, but the lure of travel for a geographer is one of the reasons he went to the continent to further his studies.

Mrs. DeVorse, who is from Weybridge in the County of Surrey, met her husband in London. She worked as a stenographer for the English China Clay firm in London where the couple met. The couple had an unusual home in England in that they lived on a 40-foot houseboat. The floating home was tied up at Chertsey, 10 miles from London. Mr. DeVorse had bought the boat prior to marriage and had taken his bride to this home, called the Blue Goose II. They did a lot of repairing to their houseboat and took many trips. They were reluctant to leave their home on the water, but a married couple bought it and the DeVorses left with the feeling the new owners would enjoy it as much as they had.

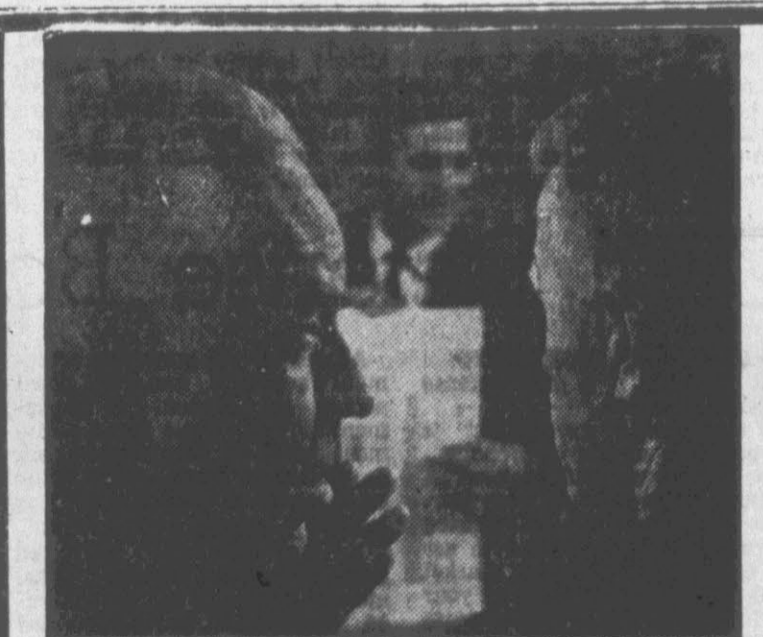

One thing the couple has enjoyed in Greenville was the thrill of tobacco. They went with neighbors to a tobacco-tying, and also visited a tobacco warehouse.

The geography professor is working on his dissertation which he must present in person sometime in the near future at London University.

Mrs. DeVorse is an associate member of the Weybridge Ladies Amateur Rowing Club and her sister, Christine Dennis, represented England in the Women's International Rowing Championship held in London last year.

When asked their first impressions of Greenville, Louis DeVorse said "The Tar River is a little bit different from the Thames." I think they had visions of maybe living on a house boat while in Greenville. We give our heartiest welcome to this young couple and hope their stay in Greenville will be one of pleasant memories in years to come.

At least two, and possibly four, members of the Democratic Women of Pitt County were scheduled to leave this afternoon for Goldsboro and a four-hour program there that includes an address by U. S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. Miss Janice Hardison, president of the Pitt women's organization that officially set sail Monday night, and Mrs. J. B. Spilman, who will represent the Pitt organization in Winston-Salem next Thursday and Friday at the first meeting of the Democratic Women of North Carolina, reported definite plans to attend today's affair in Goldsboro. Miss Hardison said "possibly a couple of other" members of the new organization will attend the event, sponsored by Goldsboro women Democrats.

Greater Use For Existing Bodies

Gov. Sanford is planning what we consider the proper approach for a study of the utilities laws of the state and the operations of the Utilities Commission by asking existing state groups to look into these matters.

At his news conference this week Gov. Sanford said he may ask the Commission on Reorganization of State Government to study the structure and operation of the Utilities Commission. Earlier he had said he may ask the General Statutes Commission to study the state laws relating to the companies which are governed by the Utilities Commission.

In the past in North Carolina there has been too great a tendency on the part of chief executives to name special groups to handle special study assignments of this sort. In many instances new commissions and bodies were named for special studies when there already existed one or more such groups which could look into the matter just as well.

This latest announcement by Gov. Sanford suggests that he may be in favor of using existing study groups for special inquiries into matters of interest to the state rather than cluttering the auxiliary organization of the state's government with new study groups and commissions. This, in our opinion, would be a wise course for the governor to follow.

North Carolina already has many such groups—on paper, at least—that can be called by the governor to make special studies and inquiries into any phase of the state's operations which he feels needs special attention. If the existing study groups were utilized to a greater extent, there would be no necessity for the naming of new study bodies. If the existing groups were used instead of creating new groups for special, one-time assignments, there probably would be greater continuity in the findings of these study projects, and in the long run considerably less time and money wasted in such studies.

It is well, we think, for the governor to ask particular groups from time to time to look into the operation of various phases of state government. It is also important, however, that the governor, insofar as practical, call on existing bodies to carry out these studies rather than creating time after time new study groups to be added to the long list of study groups and commissions that the state already has.

Federal Courts Faced By A Familiar Problem

The huge backlog of cases faced by the three new federal district judges in North Carolina suggests that the federal courts, like the state superior court in many counties, could use some streamlining to keep up with its increasing work load.

Appointment of three new federal district judges in the state, authorized this year by Congress, will afford each of the federal districts two judges. This in itself should enable the courts to reduce the backlog of cases as well as putting the district courts in a better position to keep up with the new cases on its docket.

Just this month the Judicial Conference of the United States advised the U.S. district judges that they should consider as "judicial emergencies" pending cases that are three years old or older. And particularly in the Eastern district court, there is a huge backlog of these cases. The number of civil cases three years old or older in this district totals 157 in addition to 21 land condemnation cases in the same category. Each of the other two districts in the state has 17 such cases which are three years old or older.

Including these older cases, the federal courts of the three districts in North Carolina have a total of more than 700 cases on their dockets, more than half of this number in the Eastern District.

With the three new judges, the federal district courts of the state should be able to reduce considerably the number of cases awaiting trial, but care should be taken to see that the backlog does not continue to grow, particularly with regard to the older cases on the docket.

Mongolians Are A People Apart

By IGOR OGANESOFF
Wall Street Journal Reporter
ULAN BATOR, Mongolia (AP)—Mongolians, from top Communist officials to the lowliest yak herders, exhibit seemingly genuine surprise when their independence is questioned. They regard that their nation of 97,000 people and 23 million sheep, goats, camels and yaks is completely sovereign.

Rivalry between Red China and the Soviet Union over which is to be the dominant influence possibly allows Mongolia some independence it would not otherwise enjoy. Both China and the Soviet Union, in order to avert an open tug of war over Mongolia, try to observe the niceties of dealing with an independent state. Partly as a result of this, Mongolia appears free to draft domestic policies of its own, though well within the framework of Marxist-Leninist doctrine.

Mongolia, once a world power in the 12th Century spawned conqueror Genghis Khan and ruled an empire stretching from Shanghai to the Danube River. Mongolia now covers 606,000 square miles, an area not quite three times the size of France. It is a landlocked nation 2,000 miles from Moscow and the most remote, hard-to-get-to land in the Red Empire. Communism came in 1921 when Soviet troops, pursuing fleeing White Russian army units, helped local revolutionaries form a Red-style state.

With its vast pasture lands, the country continues to rely on live-stock-raising as the mainstay of its economy. But Mongolians, where winter temperatures sometimes dive to 50 degrees below zero, now boasts some of the trappings of an industrial state, thanks to aid from Red China and the Soviet Union.

Mongolia follows a course of unwavering loyalty to Communist ideology, perhaps in part as a price to restrain the Chinese or Soviets from seizing outright control. As for which of the two big powers plays a larger role here, Mongolia clearly favors the U. S. S. R. as a closer ally.

Some recent developments, however, do suggest growing national sovereignty. Mongolia has opened diplomatic relations with nine states outside the Communist bloc in the past five years, bringing to 21 the number of

GOD IS EVERYWHERE
The message of the Book of Jonah, one of the great books of the Bible, has often been forgotten as people have argued as to whether the whale did or did not swallow Jonah.

The narrative tells us of a man who tried to flee responsibility. God commanded Jonah to go and preach repentance to the wicked city of Nineveh. Like all good Jews, Jonah hated the Ninevites. When Jonah learned what God wanted him to do, he got aboard a ship and started for Tarshish (Spain). The rest of the story is well known to every Bible reader.

The Book of Jonah teaches two lessons. The first is that we can never flee responsibility.

The Bustlers Spoil Living

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—One of the things wrong with this world is that there are too many signs saying "Do it now!"
Do what now?
There are some of us who would like to change the signs to read "Why do it?"

The difference between those two signs spells the difference between two great classes of mankind—the bustlers and the procrastinators.
Which are you?
The bustlers, by and large, tend to be self-important people who pride themselves on their ability to save time and get a lot of things done. They regard themselves as practical, orderly, efficient and very, very businesslike.

Bustlers keep neat clean desks and are always hurrying from chore to chore and perpetually glancing at their watches to be sure they aren't late to the next appointment.
Bustlers don't like procrastinators. Bustlers complain procrastinators are dreamy idlers who never get anything done. Bustlers say they'd get a lot more things done themselves if it weren't for being impeded by shiftless procrastinators.

Fellow procrastinators, why do we take all this guff? Why do we let it give us a guilty feeling?
Let us put the bustler under a microscope for a change. What do we see?
The bustler makes up about one-tenth of the population and causes up to nine-tenths of its troubles.
The bustler often is a man who finds action so necessary he hops on a horse and rides off in all directions at once. As the dictionary says, he moves "with fussy or noisy activity, usually with more haste than purpose."

The bustler writes the billions of letters each year that don't need to be written. He makes the quick-on-the-spot decisions that really put his firm or country on the spot.
What does the bustler do with all the time he saves by all that rush and roar? Why, he spends it rushing and roaring around trying to correct the errors he made by not taking enough time to do things right in the first place—that is if they really needed to be done at all.

If we procrastinators who save the bustlers from destroying the earth.
It is the procrastinators, sometimes found feet on desk and sailing paper airplanes out the window, who are really practical, efficient and businesslike in their slow disorderly way.
They may put off doing a lot of things, but usually they are things that ought to be put off—sometimes forever. Isn't it better to do a right thing a day late than a wrong thing a week soon?

The motto of the bustler is, "Don't just stand there. Do something—and do it now."
The motto of the procrastinator is, "Don't just stand there. Sit down and be comfortable. Then do the unavoidable after you have avoided doing the unnecessary."

After that will come the equipment suppliers and, as noted above, the amount of equipment must be specialized—such as air-raid filters—other items are already in production.
USEFUL ITEMS
Among these are fabricated steel, concrete panels, rebar, metal panels, plywood, reinforced concrete pipe, reinforced concrete, corrugated metal, pre-fabricated aluminum and many other structural materials. And good, old lumber will be highly useful, too.
Other items will also be required.
Note: It will profit businessmen to examine present products to see which of them may be sold on this growing market; whether a slight adaptation of a current product will make it useful in shelters, or whether a new advertising campaign will make an ordinary product a prime item for shelters.

The do-it-yourself market will be stimulated because many people cannot afford the cost of contracting for shelters in occupied homes.
WARNING
As with all boomlets, the ready profits will attract the fast-back boys. Teams of high-pressure salesmen will roam neighborhoods, using scare techniques to get signatures on contracts for building shelters in basements or backyards.
Among the cheaters, there will be two techniques. One will be to get signatures on contracts and then to sell the contracts to local builders. The other will be to sign up victims and then to build a shelter at a cost to allow a fancy profit.

Oh, there will be variations: there will be the gentry who scare people into signing contracts and making down payments, and who then depart fairly permanently with that payment.
Home owners will be well advised to do business with over the years. And when the new "specialists" arrive, they should check with local Better Business Bureaus and read, read, read everything before signing.

Secretary of Defense McNamara is such a man. He is now embroiled in a Congressional investigation due to the General Walker Case. There can be no question but that Secretary McNamara stumbled in this matter. The question has been raised as to whether a business training is suitable in government negotiations. The question might also be asked whether the generals and admirals that are taken out of service into private enterprise adjust with sufficient speed from the manulistic red-tape of the military service to the flexibility essential in the market-place.

Secretary of Defense McNamara was asked by Dave Garraway: "Mr. Secretary, how would you define the managerial philosophy which you bring to the job?"
To this the head of the Pentagon replied: "That's a question I've been asking myself for years—what exactly is the role of the manager in any large organization, private or public. And I think that the role of public manager is very similar to the role of a private manager; in each case the option of following one of two major alternative courses of action, chooses among them, and leads the organization to their accomplishment. In the one case it's a passive role; in the other case, an active role."

The answer is not good enough. In business, the limitation upon a chief executive is principally his Directors who in most instances are friendly to the Executive whom they most likely chose or who were chosen by him. Some of them may be dependent upon the Executive for their jobs, they serving in the dual capacity of members of a Board of Directors and subordinate Executives.

In a public position, the managerial person is dependent upon the good-will of Congress, both Houses and the committees of each that are concerned with his affairs; public opinion as expressed in the press; the support of irremovable subordinates, some of whom are likely to have a superior standing with the public. When, for instance, the Secretary of Defense censure statements made by senior military officers, some of whom may have had experience far beyond anything that the Secretary has, the question not only of judgement but of good taste arises.

Secretary McNamara justified the censorship of an address by Admiral Burke as follows: "Among the first policy decisions you made, Admiral Burke, the Chief of Naval Operations, was asked by you to discuss a speech that he made on foreign policy that was very critical of the Russians. Now what's the thinking behind that restraint on the admiral's public statement?"

"McNamara: Well, it's in line, with a very simple and strongly held belief of mine that it's inappropriate for any member of the Defense Department to speak on the subject of foreign policy."

Ability Is Oft Curbed

One of the tasks of government is to recruit able, competent, trained men for governmental purposes. During a war period, it is essential to bring into government the most able men in the country. Yet, we place upon such men restrictions which make it difficult for them to accept government positions. Some tasks in our very complicated operations require men of enormous experience and technical training. Such men are generally found in private industry and in the universities.

Secretary of Defense McNamara is such a man. He is now embroiled in a Congressional investigation due to the General Walker Case. There can be no question but that Secretary McNamara stumbled in this matter. The question has been raised as to whether a business training is suitable in government negotiations. # Strength For Today

No matter how far or how fast we run, we are never outside God's reach. The second lesson taught is that God's loving purpose takes in the wicked Ninevites as well as people who love and serve Him. Just as men cannot flee responsibility and get beyond God's reach, so men cannot sin themselves into a state where God has no further interests in them.

We can resist God. He permits us to do so. But His heart is saddened by our resistance and the responsibility rests upon us to our sorrow.
Don't try to flee responsibility. Never believe that you have sinned yourself beyond the possibility of God's redemption. We can never get beyond the love of God.

The Rose High Phantoms came from behind in the second quarter last night for a 35-20 win over the Pam Pack of Washington in a crucial Northeastern Conference contest in the East Carolina Stadium.

Visitors Score Early

The visitors scored early in the game in a drive which began on their own 25 yard line after a fourth down kick by Greenville's Alan McArthur. After gaining one first down Washington's Phil Moore swept the left end for a long 64 yard run and a touchdown. Alan Boyer ran the extra point giving the Pam Pack the lead 7-0.

McArthur returned the visitor's kick to the Greenville 40 yard line which was the beginning of the Phantom's first scoring drive. After three first downs with the ball resting on the Washington 15 yard line Wayne Sumrell and Kroghie Andresen carried for a first down on the Pack's five yard line. McArthur carried to the one yard line with Sumrell running through the left guard spot for the touchdown. The extra point kick by Andresen was good as were the other four he kicked during the Rodney Knowles kicked off to Washington and luck was with the Phantoms when Sumrell recovered the kick on the visitor's 45 yard line. This was the beginning of the Phantom's second touchdown drive. Despite a five yard penalty on Greenville, the Phantoms moved down to the Washington 25 yard line. McArthur ran around the right end into the end zone, but the touchdown was called back on a holding penalty against Greenville. On the next play Billy James completed a pass to McArthur who went over for the second Greenville touchdown. With a good kick by Andresen the Phantom's took the lead 14-7.

Sumrell Recovers

McArthur Goes Distance

After a series of downs by both teams McArthur recovered a Washington fumble in the air on the Greenville 35 yard line and went the distance for another touchdown with Andresen again making the conversion in the final 25 seconds of the first half.

Second Pack Touchdown

Washington then drove to the Greenville 6 yard line and aided by a five yard penalty on the Phantoms, Manning carried to the 1 foot line. Grey Winfield carried the ball on a quarterback sneak over for the second Pam Pack touchdown. Alan Boyer's extra point run was stopped by the strong Phantom line.

Greenville ran a series of downs and James was thrown for a 10 yard loss making it fourth and 14 to go. McArthur kicked and Boyer returned the ball to the Greenville 45 yard line. Washington then drove down to the Greenville three yard line with Boyer going up the middle for the third and final Washington touchdown. Winfield ran the extra point making the score 35-20 in favor of Greenville with two minutes left in the game.

Ayden Halts 4th Quarter Drive For Close 14-12 Win

FARMVILLE — Ayden, defending Coastal Conference Championships, may well have sewn up its second straight conference crown last night by defeating a strong Farmville eleven in a nip and tuck 14-12 contest.

The Tornados, sporting one of the best offensive machines in Pitt County, had a rough time trying to move the ball against the scrappy Red Devils.

Ayden took the opening kickoff, and on the first series from scrimmage, William Edwards, an All-Conference fullback, fumbled and the losers' Rex Hodges recovered on the Farmville 44. Danny Dilda, the flashiest runner in the Red Devil backfield, picked up a first down on the Ayden 28 on a twenty yard skirt around his left end.

The Farmville backs bowed their way over the Ayden defenders as if they were duck pins, with Hodges smashing ten more yards for a first down on the Ayden 18. After Hodges tried another wedge up the middle that netted two yards, Dilda cracked through to the Ayden 5 for another first.

Two more plunges to the center of the beefy Tornado line moved the pigskin to the two yard line, but a backfield in motion infraction against the Red Devils put them back on the seven. On the next play, Farmville quarterback Dean Oglesby dropped back to pass, but Clem McLawhorn, a giant of a left end, threw him for a seven yard loss back to the Ayden 14 yard stripe.

On a fourth down and 14 yard situation for a touchdown, Oglesby pitched out to Dilda, who in turn threw to Hodges who was all alone in the end zone for the first score of the evening. Oglesby's pass to Dilda for the extra point was incomplete.

The first quarter ended with Ayden on the Farmville 49 yard line.

After an exchange of punts in the early minutes of the second stanza, the Tornados finally got their offense clicking. Beginning on their own 38, Ayden moved the ball in three plays to the Farmville 30, with Rudolph Cannon and Edwards doing the running. On a second down situation, Cannon swept his left end and eluded several Red Devil defenders to scamper 30 yards to paydirt. Edwards plunged three yards for the all-important point after touchdown. At the halfway point, the Tornados led, 7-6.

The Ayden defense tightened in the third quarter, holding the Red Devils and forcing them to punt. At that point, Ayden's Cannon started a personal rushing attack, picking up two first downs on two plays to the Farmville 39. The stocky halfback stepped off 12 more yards on the next play, carrying to the Red Devil 17. Edwards then romped 10 yards to the 7. Two plays later Edwards plunged into the Farmville end zone from the one yard stripe. Quarterback Tommy Dunn's aerial to Emmitt Gibson was complete for the extra point, giving the Tornados a 14-6 advantage.

The Red Devils fought right back, however, with Dilda taking the kickoff back to the Farmville 47. Hodges peeled off 11 yards to the Ayden 40. Dilda gathered a first down on the Ayden 30. Oglesby passed to Dilda to the Ayden 21 as the third quarter ended.

On the first play of the last stanza, Oglesby tossed to halfback Robin Rouse for 21 yards and a touchdown. Oglesby's pass for the point after touchdown was incomplete, and the Red Devils were forced with a 14-12 deficit. Extra points began to look plenty big to the Farmville followers.

Ayden bobbed it's chance to put Farmville entirely out of reach of a victory when they marched to the Red Devil nine, but fumbled and the losers recovered on their own 13.

With the Farmville fans shouting encouragement, the Red Devils began to move the ball down field with ease. With four minutes left in the contest, Oglesby passed to James Everette for a first down on the Red Devil 44. Dilda scampered 11 yards to the Ayden 45 for another first down. The Red Devils were working against the clock, but they were doing it successfully.

Oglesby pitched to Dilda for another first on the Tornado 35, as screams could be heard from both sides of the field.

With less than two minutes left in the contest, Oglesby dropped back for another aerial, but this one proved the downfall of the Red Devils, as Edwards grabbed it on his own 25 and scampered to the 40 before he was brought down by a host of Farmville tacklers.

The Tornados then kept the ball on the ground to eat up the rest of the time remaining in the contest. When the game ended, the winners were on the Farmville 35 with a first down.

The win gives the Tornados a 5-0 Coastal Conference record to keep them on the top rung of the league ladder. Farmville, in second place before the contest last night, holds on to that position with a 2-1 Coastal slate.

First To Swim Molokai Channel

HONOLULU (AP) — A 40-year-old physical education teacher Friday night became the first to swim the treacherous, shark-infested 27-mile Molokai Channel.

Smiling and joking, Keo Nakama waded ashore at Haunama Bay east of Honolulu after making the crossing in 15 hours, 37 minutes.

The swim started at 3 a.m. Hawaiian time. Nakama was accompanied by four boats and two surfboard riders. No sharks were sighted.

RED DEVIL ON THE RUN . . . Danny Dilda, Farmville halfback, is on the run for a short gain as Ayden's Rudolph Cannon moves in to make the tackle. Dilda was the big ground gainer for the Red Devils in their 12-12 loss to the Tornados, defending Coastal Conference Championships. Cannon, incidentally, was the leading rusher for Ayden, and also paced the Tornado defense with his many bone-crushing tackles. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Eppes Tops P. S. Jones 14-0 In 1st Season Win

WASHINGTON — The C. M. Eppes Bulldogs made a successful journey to Washington last night, bringing home a 14-0 win over the Yellow Jackets. The win was the first of the season for the Bulldogs, against three losses.

The winners struck for touchdowns in the first and third quarters, while the Bulldog defense kept the Yellow Jackets without their backs against the wall the entire game.

Halfbacks Johnny Tyson and Milton Brown got the Bulldogs moving on their first scoring jaunt. The halfback duo moved the ball to the Washington 25 yard line. At that point, quarterback Levon Little handed off to his husky fullback, Marvin Anderson, who smashed his way into the Yellow Jacket end zone. Anderson also ran over for the point after touchdown.

The defenses of both teams toughened in the second period, and the score at halftime remained 7-0.

In the third quarter, the Bulldogs oiled up their offensive machine once again, this time on a 52 yard scoring play. Little passed to Tyson near the midfield stripe, then Tyson lateraled to Anderson, who scampered all the way into the Washington end zone. The extra point attempt was successful, and the Bulldogs led 14-0.

In the fourth quarter, Alton Harris, a big right end for the winners, was shaken up and replaced by Alton Daniels, somewhat of a tenderfoot for the Bulldogs. Daniels showed that he was very much ready for varsity competition, however, as he picked up some valuable first downs in the final period for the winners. In the words of Percy Daniels, Bulldog head coach, "Daniels played a very good ball game last night, both offensively and defensively."

Standouts in the forward wall for Eppes were tackles Jesse Holliday and Raymond Tucker, and guards Bobby Brown and James Green.

Next week, the Bulldogs will travel to Kinston for another conference battle.

Rams Capture 41-0 Win Over Vanceboro

ROBERSONVILLE — The Rams netted exactly nothing for the Robersonville captured their first Coastal Conference victory last night, drubbing winless Vanceboro, 41-0.

Charlie Forbes intercepted a Vanceboro pass, and returned it to the losers' 27 yard line to set up the Rams' first score. Three tries at the Vanceboro line moved the ball to the 16 yard line, then Forbes passed to Jimmy Cherry for the touchdown. Forbes ran for the extra point.

A bad snap from center set up the second Ram score. The ball went sailing over Cecil Wellington's head from the Vanceboro 25 for a 20-yard loss back to the five.

On the next play, the same thing happened, this time Wellington being tackled in the end zone for a safety, giving the Rams a 9-0 lead.

After holding the Vanceboro eleven to no gain in four downs, the Rams took over again on their own 45. With the help of a 15-yard penalty against Vanceboro, the winners drove to the losers' 26. Forbes passed to Burch, and when he was about to be tackled he lateraled to Joe Bullock, who carried to the one foot line. On the next play, Bullock toted the pigskin into the Vanceboro end zone. The attempt for the extra point failed.

Vanceboro managed to hold the Rams scoreless in the second period, but in the third, the winners began to roll again.

Robersonville took the second half kickoff and returned to their own 44. Two plays up the middle netted exactly nothing for the Rams, but on third down and long yardage, Forbes circled his left end and scrambled all the way to touchdown land, covering 55 yards. The try for the extra point failed.

The Rams scored once more in the third period, this time copping a 52-yard drive. Forbes broke loose and wormed his way to the Vanceboro 35. Cherry carried to the 14 yard stripe, then lugged the pigskin again to the losers' five. Cherry then carried for the third straight time, this time in the Vanceboro end zone for another Ram score. Forbes carried for the extra point.

At the end of the third quarter, the Rams led 28-0.

Robersonville struck for two more touchdowns in the final stanza. The first was on a 56-yard drive with Forbes passing to Cherry for the score. Forbes ran over for the point after touchdown.

The final Ram score was set up by a Vanceboro fumble. With Ram coach Bob Lee substituting freely, the Robersonville reserves proved to be too much for the losers. The Rams drove to the Vanceboro 11, where reserve halfback Harry Everett carried it over for the score. The attempt for the extra point failed and the Rams had compiled a 41-0 winning margin.

Clifton Everett Is Club Speaker

"Even though the floor of the House sounds like a tobacco action there is planned order in the legislative procedure," the Hon. Clifton Everett assured members of the Exchange Club at its weekly meeting last night.

Everette, a Bethel attorney and a member of the Legislature, stated, "No one pays much attention to local bills except those from the affected county. Last session, a local bill abolishing the crime of usury in Gaston County was slipped through and made into law only to be spotted by an alert legislator and repealed at the end of the session."

He commented on the Court Reform Bill which will be voted on in 1962 as a State Constitutional Amendment. This change if voted in will revamp the inferior court system in N.C. putting the court judges and magistrates under central supervision and a uniform scale of costs and fines across the state.

President Luther Moore presided at last night's meeting held at the Woman's Club. The club voted to have its annual oyster roast this Friday at Cliff's Oyster Bar. The program was arranged by Hon. Frank M. Wooten, Pitt County's senior member of the House of Representatives of the State Legislature.

Move To Enlarge Ft. Raleigh Site

RALEIGH (AP) — A private donation of $125,000 matched with a like amount of state money has given impetus to plans to enlarge and develop Ft. Raleigh national historical site.

At a special news conference Friday, Gov. Sanford announced that Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morrison of Washington, D.C., had made the donation.

The funds are to be used to acquire an additional 120 acres at the site on Roanoke Island near Manteo. The island was inhabited by Sir Walter Raleigh's lost colony and was the first English settlement in the New World.

Present for the announcement were the Morrisons, former Gov. Luther Hodges, now secretary of commerce, and officials of the National Park Service.

The plans for the project were begun when Hodges was governor.

Morrison and his wife are North Carolina natives. An attorney, Morrison was a law partner of the late O. Max Gardner, former Tar Heel governor.

Elbert Cox, regional director for the National Park Service, said work already under way at the site will cost about $100,000. He said plans contemplate spending some $500,000 eventually.

In the works are a new visitors' center and a new and more permanent theater for the outdoor drama "The Lost Colony."

First Church of Christ, Scientist

The importance of distinguishing between sound and unsound thoughts will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

Scriptural readings in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Unreality" will include these verses from Psalm 119: "I hate vain thoughts; but thy law I do love. . . Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and thy law is the truth."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy this citation will be read (p. 288): "The suppositional warfare between truth and error is only the mental conflict between the evidence of the spiritual senses and the testimony of the material senses, and this warfare between the Spirit and flesh will settle all questions through faith in and the understanding of divine Love."

A buffet supper was offered to the guests attending last night's opening.

Officials said the latest in modern bowling equipment has been installed in the center. Included is automatic pin spotting equip-

So Hard To Understand ... Unwanted, Unloved

(Editor's Note: In conjunction with National Dog Week, Reflector staffwriter Marti Martin and photographer Stuart Savage visited the local Dog Pound to give a firsthand story of what happens to the dogs who don't have homes.)

By MARTI MARTIN Reflector Staff Writer

Their eyes had said a lot that they couldn't have said. They had had sad, lonely eyes. . . eyes that belonged only to the unwanted, the unloved.

These were the eyes of 17 dogs at the Pitt County Dog Pound who were put to death because no one wanted them. Every Friday all dogs that have been in the pound for five days are gassed in a small house beside the pound. Over 1,500 of the 2,000 that were brought to the pound last year met with such a fate.

Like all of those before them, their eyes held a glimmer of hope, even until the last. They constantly reached out for love from each stranger who came by. Few came. Even less claimed a dog or purchased an unclaimed dog.

Many of the dogs brought to the pound are strays that have never had a home. Some are picked up because their owners don't want to bother with getting the required tags.

A large number that were put to death yesterday looked healthy and seemed to have belonged to someone at one time or another. But no one called for them. No one cared.

Many dog owners call the Dog Pound officials, Willie Bell and George Crawford, to come and pick up their pets.

"Often the dogs are close to death and the owners are too lazy to bury them, so they call us to pick up the dog, Bell said. "In most cases the animals had nearly perished and were so weak that they could barely get up by the time we went to pick them up in the truck."

"I remember one particular case," cited Bell, "when a man called me to come and pick up his dog. The dog had been used for hunting for over 15 years and during the last year would not eat as he should. The owner made no effort to carry him to a veterinarian, but just let the dog's strength dwindle to nothing."

After a dog has been in the pound for five days, anyone may purchase him by paying a fee of $2 and 50 cents a day for the number of days the dog has been in the pound. The owner may claim his dog during the 5 day period the animal is kept in the pound, but he must also pay the same fee.

Over 140 dogs were born in the Pitt County Dog Pound last year. Last week 17 dogs were born in the pound—they were gassed along with their mothers.

When there is a report of a mad dog, the Pitt County Dog Pound officials often use a tranquilizer gun to paralyze the dog. The gun resembles a .22 rifle, and a needle with a metal container is shot through the barrel. When the needle hits the dog, the medicine is injected and the needle pops out, ready for re-use after sterilization. This gun is accurate at a distance up to 40 feet and the medication usually keeps the dog unconscious for 45 minutes.

"Pound officials have to be very careful, Bell added, "in using this gun. If one is prescribed for a dog weighing 25 pounds, then that amount would kill a dog that weighed only 15 pounds."

Bell pointed out that whenever a dog is reported to have rabies, pound officials must cut the dogs head off and send it to Raleigh for examination. If the test proves negative, there is another test for rabies. Fluid is withdrawn from the dog's brain and through the use of a needle, it is injected into white mice. If the mice live, the dog did not have rabies.

"Most of the dogs brought to the pound are not dangerous. "A dumbek of the dogs that snip at children have good reason to do so," said Bell. "Children play too rough with them and often abuse the dogs. I would heartily suggest that dogs not be allowed to follow the children to school, as many children often aggravate the dog into such an action when the dog is ordinarily quite gentle."

The Camp Lejeune Marine Base uses dogs weighing over 25 pounds for laboratory experiments. They often call the Pitt County Dog Pound officials for these dogs. They also have to take the dogs from the pound.

Yesterday's "death row" consisted of a variety of dogs: Shepards, Collie, just plain mutt—and one of the dogs had not yet opened his eyes. With such a record of faithfulness and devotion behind the history of dogs, it is difficult to understand why each of these 17 dogs was not able to find a home. It is difficult to understand why no one cared. Next week more will die. It is difficult to understand.

THEIR EYES SAID A LOT . . . It was evident that these dogs wanted to be loved, by the way they greeted every stranger.

ATTENTION EASY TO GET . . . The dogs are all eyes, ears and friendly barks whenever visitors, big or small, come to look for a new or lost dog. Each of these special "orphans" eagerly look for a home.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

By now, calling conformity America's most prevalent fault has become a cliché. To illustrate, last Sunday's Herald Tribune contained book reviews by both Gerald Jonsson and Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court, and both reviews ended deploring conformity.

For example, Douglas concludes his review of Louis Eisenstein's "The Ideologies of Taxation" by saying: "It is a book that will make thoughtful people mad—a quality of the American people that has been fast disappearing in this age of complacency and conformity."

It is hardly possible for a close observer to quarrel with this statement and the thousands of others in recent years which have pointed to this characteristic of our society. But to this extent is it peculiar to this age?

Nothing New

When Alexis de Tocqueville visited this country from France in 1831, he was amazed at the amount of conformity practiced here then, and so were many in the long file of European observers and newspapers. While they were reacting strongly against conformity during the same period.

Poindexter

In fact, criticism of America on this point is of ancient vintage and has been a continuous feature of our literature, as has been true of the literature of England and France ever since the Industrial Revolution.

We are inclined to believe, therefore, that the conformist is probably no more prevalent in America's society than he has always been, but is just more articulate in a period of mass-produced communication—and more frightening and exasperating to our intellectuals at a time of great crisis, such as the present.

Foreign Eyes The tendency to evaluate American society, is certainly understandable these days when so much depends upon its fibre, and D. W. Brogan, the Cambridge don who spends his time trying to unravel us for the British, has added his tuppence worth in his "America in the Modern World."

Brogan feels that one of our weaknesses is a tendency to overvalue the businessman and that another is the failure of American education to instill into students a feeling of reverence for intelligence.

On the credit side he places our success in making good Americans of a great miscellany of people from different traditions and our ability to minimize class jealousies.

Maybe one could interpret this to mean that Brogan is unconsciously complimenting us for developing conformity (that word again!) among our people, though "good Americans" in its best sense should surely mean more than that.

To be recommended is the new Harper's with its 64-page supplement on "The College Scene." The articles in this run from an account of the Freedom Riders to an article on undergraduate religion (actually, according to several of the writers, these two topics are not always so far apart), and there are a good many insights presented which could be valuable to parents with children of college age.

Tallyho The quote of the week comes from a speech by a British peer, Lord Knutsford, as "printed in the New Statesman": "There has never been a bad foxhunter. Whatever job he has taken, he can be relied upon for good companionship, straight dealing and a cheerful disposition. He succeeds in every walk of life."

Except satisfactorily suppressing foxes, it seems, since in the same magazine, same issue, there is a letter from the Secretary of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals offering an award of 1,000 pounds for a "device which will humanely and effectively control foxes."

'Perpetual Motion' In Day With Wernher von Braun

By JACK STILLMAN HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — For a scientist greatly responsible for the push-button era, Dr. Wernher von Braun pushes mightily few buttons. Marshall Space Flight Center, which he directs, is a kind of perpetual motion machine—full of wheels—and most of them revolve around this hard-working, 50-year-old German-born scientist.

The space center, an agency of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, is filled with "eggheads." But few of the center's employees consider von Braun in this capacity. They see him as their genial boss, always bent on some errand of such urgency that their cooperation is given without question.

Each work day at Redstone Arsenal, where the space center is located, thousands of automobiles pour into the reservation. And somewhere in the line is an oyster white Mercedes Benz with von Braun at the wheel.

Flexible Schedule His schedule is so flexible that the only thing he and his staff can be sure of is that he will park the car at about 8:15 a.m. and bound into the space center headquarters building.

A day with von Braun begins smoothly enough. He reads and decides on the importance of a list of telephone calls and other reminders which his secretary, Mrs. Bonnie Holmes, has left on his desk.

Von Braun recently was named "Boss of the Year" by the National Secretaries Association. He was nominated by Mrs. Holmes.

Appears Ordinary As he goes over his agenda, von Braun looks like an average business executive. His desk is cleared of all but the most pressing business. There is a calendar, desk pen, memo pad and a photograph of his wife.

Behind the desk is a table containing seven rocket models.

Conferences are numerous. They come one after the other. Most of them deal with various phases of the Saturn, the nation's biggest rocket system.

At 8:30 a.m., Oswald Lange, director of the Saturn systems office, arrives. He and von Braun review immediate problems involving the Saturn until Mrs. Holmes reminds them of a 9 a.m. appointment.

A briefing at the Guidance Control Laboratory begins 10 minutes late because von Braun stopped along the way to chat with a friend.

Chauffeurs Himself He drives his own car most of the time and refuses to accept a personal driver. His co-workers say a driver probably wouldn't be able to keep up with him.

At the Guidance Control Laboratory, Dr. Walter Hausermann brings the boss up to date on some modifications in the Saturn's guidance system. New tests are set up.

After leaving the guidance control lab, he meets a missile contractor who has some new ideas about the Saturn. They talk for an hour.

To von Braun, speaking and listening are two inherent responsibilities of a scientist. When someone addresses him, he listens intently, as if these were the last words he would ever hear.

At 11:30 a.m. each day he tries to complete long-distance telephone calls. He may talk to Washington, or Cape Canaveral, or to some of the widely scattered Saturn contractors over the country.

At noon, von Braun goes to lunch, or rather, lunch comes to him. He has stoup, fruit and coffee at his desk.

This is when he catches up on his reading, mostly technical publications and newspapers.

During the afternoon, various assistants are given their turn. Karl Heimburg, director of the test laboratory; Edward Rees, deputy for research and development; Delmar Morris, administrative assistant, and several others bring their problems to von Braun.

A Saturn test firing is scheduled in the afternoon.

While they are talking, a call comes from the Saturn blockhouse. It's 20 minutes before zero and the Saturn static test.

A DRIVING MAN—Dr. Wernher von Braun, director of Marshall Space Flight Center, usually drives his own car. Admiring co-workers say a chauffeur probably couldn't keep up with him.

Unitarian Announcements

Sunday evening at 8:00 the adult fellowship will meet in the E. C. C. "v" Hut to discuss "What Are We Here For?" This is one of a series of six pertinent religious problems included in this fall's Unitarian program.

Sunday school will meet at 10 a.m. in the "v" Hut. Students working on the United Nations program are reminded to bring their lists of items to be used on the program. All students are urged to bring their "Wonder" questions to class.

"All names that divide 'religion' are to us of little consequence compared with religion itself. Whoever loves Truth and lives the Good life, in a broad sense, of our religious fellowship, whoever loves the one or lives the other better than ourselves is our teacher, whatever church or age he may belong to."
—W. C. Gannett

Anyone wishing to join us in fellowship will be warmly received.

Lion In The Hills

By JOHN B. PRESCOTT

CHAPTER 7
It was almost nine o'clock when Claude Temple's pickup truck climbed the grade from the ford. Alec was out getting wood from the stack beneath the eaves, when the sound reached him. He went in with the load, dropped it into the box at the fireplace, and fed a length of split log into the flames. Having heard, too, Sam Fellows turned up the heat beneath the stew pan and coffeepot.

Made wary by the flurry, the lion cub went under the table; a timely move, Alec thought, for he was all at once doubtful of Claude's reaction. "Sam," he said, but there was no time to ask his help now. Sam was giving the coffeepot a study anyway.

"It's best make more," Sam said. "I doubt there's three cups." "It's enough," Alec said. "He seldom drinks it at night. He says it keeps him awake." Sam replaced the lid. Out in front, the pickup halted. The metal door opened and closed, and Claude's step crossed to the stoop. Entering, he paused a moment, blinking, as the light struck him. Then he grew used to it, saw the lion and smiled.

"Well, howdy. That smells good." "Well, we're waitin' on you," Sam said. "I near about set the dogs on your trail." Claude moved heavily to a chair and sat down. He was tired, Alec thought. It wasn't just the red dust of saw, and his jeans and boots and jacket were thick with dust. It wasn't just the red dust of Chapparral Tank either; some was of that deep, rich brown found only on top of the Rim. His face, which smiled now at Alec, showed another weariness, as of burdens held in the mind.

His fingers moved slowly, undoing his jacket. "Well, son, how was the hunt?" "It was fine," Alec said as he ladled stew out for Claude and set the plate on the table. "But Sam can tell it better than I can." He glanced at Sam, hoping the meaning was clear. Sam snorted. "I can tell part of it. But your boy'll have to tell the rest. Maybe the main part." Pouring out more coffee, Sam got himself settled and comfortable and began the tale of the hunt. Claude listened while he ate. Alec moved to a chair across the table from them, in order to see Claude's face when the cub was mentioned — if Sam didn't quit before then and make him finish it.

Sam's stories were likely to make you grip the edge of your chair, listening. And even thought Alec belonged in this one himself, the telling was just as exciting as the happening, so that the wild pounding chase possessed the same life and truth as the time of occurrence.

Sam waved his pipe in the air before him and let his voice lift or sink with the tempo of pursuit, drawing you in. When the lioness spilled down among the gathered hounds, her golden eyes dimming, he halted. Alec thought at first that Sam intended now that he go on with it; then he saw Sam glance at the floor.

His own glance moved down. The cub was there, nosing at the milk pan once more, the fright of Claude's arrival lulled by stilled motion and a known voice. When Claude saw it, too, as he saw it, he leaned forward, looking.

"Well, I'll be," Claude said. "What's this, Sam? Why, it's a lion." Sam laughed. "That's the part of the tale that belongs to Alec. I've finished mine." "Can I keep him, Dad; can I?" Alec reached and took it into his lap; all at once he was stricken with fear that Claude would say no.

Slowly Claude set down his fork. His eye stayed on the lion, as if he must bring his mind away from other problems to bear on this one. "Why, I don't know. Where did you find it anyhow?" Alec's telling hardly came up to Sam's. He stumbled through it, ridden by doubt and anxiety. "I was either take him or leave him to starve," he said at the end. "Unless the old tom got him first, or something else." Sam eyed the bowl of his pipe. "I could have shot him" — as if to make plain he would be no help. But then Sam had said Alec would have to fix it up with Claude.

Claude's glance went from Sam to Alec to the cub and back to Sam. "How about it, Sam?" Claude said. "What do you say about it?" Laughing, Sam backed off from the question; Alec felt half angry. "Don't ask me, Ranger. You know animals, or ought to." "I'll take care of him, Dad." Alec said. "Do all the feeding and cleaning up. You won't even have to think about him." "I'll grow," Claude said, and thought a moment before he said, "What about temperament, Sam?" Sam shrugged. "A lion's a lion." Then he made a concession. "A lot could depend on the raising. Maybe."

"I'll raise him right," Alec said. "I'll take care of him. He'll give no trouble to anyone." Accustomed to him by now, the cub began to burrow into Alec's shirt, prodding his ribs and stomach with his moist nose. Deep within his furry warmth, a small electric motor seemed to be running. Feeling these infant vibrations against him, Alec could not conceive of a time when the cub might be a bother or problem. All at once he burst out, "With his ma shot down, he hasn't any one but us. And unless we keep

Recreation Dept. Classes To Start

The Greenville Recreation Department will initiate its new series of adult classes beginning the first week in October, according to Director Gordon Goodman.

All classes will be held weekly at Elm Street Recreation Center throughout the rest of this school year. No registration charge is required, Goodman emphasized. Classes scheduled are as follows: A Ladies Sewing Class will be held Monday nights, from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m., beginning October 2, omitting the second Monday night of each month. This class is designed to give instruction in all phases of sewing, with each person bringing her own sewing project for individual guidance by the instructor. Two sewing machines are available at the center, but those owning portable machines are urged to bring them. Teacher for the course will be Mrs. Aaron Baxter.

Beginner's Bridge classes, intended to give instruction and practice in the fundamentals of bridge, will be offered at two different times this year. Each Tuesday night, beginning October 3, from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m., a class open to couples as well as individuals will be initiated. A Wednesday morning class held from 10:00 to 12:00 for ladies only will be held as last year, beginning October 4. Instructor for both bridge classes is Mrs. Lacy Harrell.

A program of Arts and Crafts will be offered on Thursday nights, beginning October 5, from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m. Such crafts as copper enameling, mosaic tile work, weaving, creative stichery, and others will be included. Mrs. Don Sexaur, the instructor, said the class will be designed to meet the interests of the group and invited those attending to bring their ideas as to specific interests to the first meeting on October 5. The only charge for the course is the cost of materials used.

The Adult Dancing Class, open to couples, will continue this year on Wednesday nights, but will not begin until later in October. Further details as to the beginning date will be released soon.

Any inquiries concerning one or more of these classes may be made by calling Elm Street Recreation Center, Goodman commented.
