Gromyko Flies Home To Report On Talks With Kennedy And Macmillan Ditch Cave-In Kills Three Men Working On Sewer Line Project

MOSCOW (AP)—Foreign Minister Andre A. Gromyko said today his talks on Berlin with President Kennedy, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and other Western leaders "have been useful." But he declined to go into details.

lies have at last convinced the Russians they will resist interference with the West's access routes to Berlin.

Gromyko described his London talks, which followed similar meetings in the United States with President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, as "very useful."

By GEORGE BRYANT Reflector Staff Writer Three construction workers died instantly Tuesday afternoon when they were buried alive in a 20-foot ditch cave-in at the corner of Colonial Ave. and Cadillac St.

Pitt County Coroner Wilber Harvey listed the dead as William Mercer, 28, 1515 B Fleming Street, Mack Moya, 67, 431 W. Third St., and Larcuena Arrington, 36, 1209 S. Greene St. Harvey listed the cause of the three deaths as "suffocation." All were Negro.

The accident occurred shortly after 3 p.m. yesterday while the men were working on a sewer line project for Miller and Lewis Construction Co. of Greenville. The company was a sub-contractor on the job.

A. L. Miller, foreman on the job, said that other members of the work crew began digging as soon as the accident happened and that the Greenville Fire Department Rescue unit was called to the scene. He added that workers had reached two of the men when the Rescue team arrived, but were unable to free them from the pile of dirt and timbers which trapped them.

Rescue workers began resuscitation immediately, using both mouth-to-mouth methods and oxygen equipment, but efforts to revive the trapped men failed.

Rescue work continued for over an hour before the three bodies were recovered from the pile of dirt and timbers. Heavy railroad jacks, shovels, crowbars and a power chair saw were used before the bodies could be recovered.

RESCUERS LIFT BODY FROM CAVE-IN . . . three victims were dug from under tons of dirt one-by-one.

Pneumonia Hits Speaker Rayburn

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—House Speaker Sam Rayburn developed pneumonia during the night, his doctors reported today. "He is now considered critical," the physician said.

Rayburn entered Baylor Hospital 10 days ago and his condition was diagnosed as incurable cancer of the lymph system.

Murder-Suicide Theory Gains In 2 Poison Deaths

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Police Chief W. D. Blake said today there are strong indications that the deaths of two University of North Carolina students was murder-suicide.

Blake added, "We are close to a solution. It will be difficult to finally determine what happened. It may be that when a solution comes we may have to make it on circumstantial evidence rather than on natural facts or an eyewitness."

Sanford Doubts N.C. Receiving Its Fair Share

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Sanford said today that in his opinion North Carolina has not received its fair share of federal funds for highways.

Campus Bond Rally Draws Big Crowd Of Supporters

East Carolina College students this morning gave an enthusiastic kickoff to a campaign of support for the State Bond Issue to be voted on Nov. 7.

As East Carolina President and State Advisor of the recently organized Student Citizens Committee for a Better North Carolina, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins challenged students to participate actively in informing their parents and friends of the benefits to be derived from public approval of the Bond Issue.

"Most discerning people," he said, "are convinced that we are not going to have a better Carolina unless young people sincerely want it. Our future leaders, who are now in our colleges, must have a burning desire for something greater than their own personal well-being. It is rather obvious that this mass meeting and the things that may grow out of it."

Utilities Promise To Help Stadium

Greenville Utilities endorsed the proposed James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium last night and offered to participate to its proportionate share of the cost "within the scope of the commission's authority."

on the front of the uniforms along with "Greenville Utilities" and the employee's department.

Action was taken after members of the stadium committee appeared before the commission to ask for $10,000 on the quarter million dollar goal which the committee is seeking to raise.

Bloxam told the commissioners that its annual gas leak survey is to begin today. An independent firm is employed annually to check the city's gas distribution system for leaks.

The commission learned from City Attorney R. B. Lee that it probably would not be able to make a direct cash contribution. However, the equivalent amount of materials or work appeared to be the answer.

Adjustments to facilities in the lobby will cost an estimated $400 while approximately $700 will be required to move the switchboard from the plant to city hall.

Reynolds May told the commissioners on behalf of the committee, "East Carolina College is the finest, biggest asset Greenville has. It is something we should not only be proud of, but we should do something to make it bigger and better."

Commissioners told Bloxam to proceed with plans for installing an information desk and switchboard in City Hall lobby along with other changes.

The commission adopted the following resolution: "Greenville Utilities Commission after enthusiastic favorable discussion unanimously endorsed the proposed James S. Ficklen stadium and pledges to East Carolina College our fullest cooperation within the scope of the commission's authority."

Chairman Horns called on Director Bloxam to prepare a policy for purchases and letting contracts for presentation to the commission.

Director Leonard Bloxam said plans have been made to rent uniforms for Greenville Utilities personnel. The employee's last name will appear Blake said an unidentified student told officers Tuesday that Johnson had asked him about two weeks ago if he knew of an odorless and tasteless poison. The student asked why he wanted it. He said Johnson laughed and said he wanted it to get rid of rats in the basement of Cobb Dormitory where the students lived.

Foreman Miller said he was standing on the bank when he noticed the huge pile of dirt on the other side of the ditch begin to slide. He added that he yelled to the men in the ditch, but the noise of the air-hammer prevented them from hearing him.

Tests showed there was no cyanide in a jar of peanut butter and some crackers found in the room. Doctors earlier had said two large paper cups in the room were devoid of clues.

Miller and other workers in the area began digging through the pile of dirt on top of the men immediately but it was about 10 minutes before they reached the first one.

Bloodmobile

The Red Cross bloodmobile will begin its two-day visit to Pitt County with a stop in Farmville on Thursday at the armory from 12 noon until 6 p.m. Frank Allen and Tommy Willis are in charge of the program.

Robert Stancil, a bulldozer operator for the company, said he was standing nearby when he noticed the slide, and also tried to warn the men, but to no avail.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Temperatures for the next five days will average near or a few degrees above normal. Warm weather will be followed by cooler late Friday and over the weekend. Chance of showers about Friday and again about Sunday.

M. D. Lewis, a partner in the business with Miller, said that Mercer and Moya had been with the firm for over 12 years and Arrington had been employed about one year.

At times during the rescue operations it appeared that the high banks of dirt might begin to slide again, threatening the rescuers. Authorities continued to push the crowd of onlookers, which numbered into the hundreds, back away from the scene.

Sanford noted there have been many suggestions that the utility laws are outdated. "If this is true, what is the proper approach in regulating the utilities?" he said.

Sanford discussed a variety of matters, including utility laws, the State Fair, President Kennedy's visit to North Carolina Thursday and community colleges.

Miller said the ditch was properly shored and that it was braced every 3 1/2 feet. "This is the first major accident the company has suffered in over 10 years," he stated. "All three of the men were experienced pipe line workers," Miller added.

Local Educators 'Jumped The Gun' On President's Physical Fitness Program

(Editor's Note: Physical fitness is fast becoming a part of one's everyday living, since a special emphasis was put on it by President Kennedy and others who realized today's population is not as physically fit as they should be. This article, the third in a series of six dealing with selected areas in Greenville and Pitt County schools, explores the schools' plans for physical fitness.)

spent weeks testing elementary school children last year, and on the basis of test results, saw a need for better physical fitness programming. The wheels already were turning to provide a concentrated daily period of physical fitness for students when the President's suggestions were published. Director of Instruction Ellen L. Carroll reported.

There is a lack of muscular control and coordination among young children, pointing a need for a concentrated program.

Pitt County schools' plans for physical fitness, Conley replied, "I think it has; we are responding to the suggestions."

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

Even before President Kennedy's youth physical fitness program was publicized, interested school personnel in Greenville and Pitt County schools saw a need for an improved program in that area.

A committee on Safety, Health and Physical Education was established in the city school system about three years ago. The group made a study of children's eyes, which resulted in improvement, and next moved to physical fitness as a target.

Both J. H. Rose, superintendent of city schools, and Conley have indicated that "there is too much riding these days." It results in a decrease of exercise.

The Greenville schools have planned about the same program that the President recommended. Mrs. Carroll said that school officials had studied the recommendations and compared them to their own plans.

need exercise. The individual can do some of that for himself. We cannot do all of it in the schools; we can lay down the fundamental concepts and let the individual continue them," Conley said.

our youth is clearly established. Although today's young people are fundamentally healthier than the youth of any previous generation, the majority have not developed strong, agile bodies. The softening process of our civilization continues to carry on its persistent erosion.

Comparing sports and physical education programs, Mrs. Carroll stated in response to a question about de-emphasis of sports, "There is a de-emphasis on sports not only because of recent scandals but because of the quality education program in this state."

hope to correct such things as posture. She said that health-wise, the Pitt County Health Department "has been a big help" to the schools. They hold speech and hearing, heart and bone clinics that the schools use.

The Greenville schools have planned about the same program that the President recommended. Mrs. Carroll said that school officials had studied the recommendations and compared them to their own plans.

Children in city schools will be tested before taking exercises. For the first time this year, Greenville school authorities

"The emphasis is going to be on physical fitness for everybody rather than sports for the few, in my opinion," Mrs. Carroll said.

Mrs. Baker stated that in the county schools, "We plan to administer physical fitness tests." County school personnel are now in the process of getting out bulletins on the physical fitness program suggested for each grade.

Salmon Chowder From Bermuda

By CECILY BROWNSTONE, Associated Press Food Editor. A SALMON CHOWDER, adapted from a fish soup served in a Bermuda hotel restaurant, is one of the most delightful dishes we've come upon recently.

There really is something different about this chowder. The flour that thickens it is browned, and both beef consommé and clam juice are added.

The friend who brought us this recipe tells us that in Bermuda Pepper Sherry is served with this soup. When she got back to New York, she made the condiment by steeping six small whole red pepper pods (the sort that come with mixed pickling spices) in a bottle of inexpensive medium-dry sherry for a few days. She says that the peppers soften in the sherry and add their heat. The only commercially-made sherry and pepper sauce that we know of on the market is one made in Philadelphia.

If you want the last word on this interesting table addition, here's what Betsy Ross in her fascinating little book, "What's Cooking in Bermuda," says: "Pepper Sherry. A bottle of this unique condiment stands on almost every Bermudian dining table and is used on practically everything. It's as simple as this: fill a bottle about half-full of whole bird peppers and top it up with cooking sherry. Add more sherry when necessary.

"Bird peppers are grown in Bermuda and in the southern parts of the United States. They are small, very hot, red peppers. They are so named because birds love them."

ISLAND SALMON CHOWDER
 2 cups chopped onion
 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
 2 tablespoons flour
 1 can (10 1/4 ounces) beef consommé
 2 (each 8 ounces) bottles clam juice
 2 cups chopped green pepper
 3 cups medium white sauce
 1 can (1 pound) salmon
 1 cup diced cooked potato
 1/2 teaspoon dried crumbled thyme

Cook the onion slowly in 2 tablespoons of the butter until transparent; add the flour and allow it to brown. Add the undiluted consommé and the clam juice; cook and stir constantly until slightly thickened. Cook the green pepper until soft in the remaining 2 tablespoons butter; add to clam-juice mixture. Have the white sauce hot; add the salmon, broken into large pieces, and the salmon liquid, the potatoes and thyme; heat to serving temperature; add the hot clam-juice mixture. Makes 8 servings.

To make the medium white sauce use 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 6 tablespoons flour and 3 cups milk.

SALMON CHOWDER adapted from a Bermuda recipe and served there with the condiment called Pepper Sherry.

Bath Mat Placed At Bedside Satisfying

To enjoy the pleasure of stepping on a clean, soft, comfortable surface when you get out of bed in the morning, spread a small bath mat next to the bed at night. Even if the floor is carpeted, the mat will serve to protect the rug from soil, wear, and traces of bath powder.

This luxurious idea—discovered at a fine hotel in Scandinavia—is really practical from the laundering standpoint since bath mats can be machine-washed and dried along with any regular load.

The service is FREE! when you own a Kingstom vacuum cleaner. Dial 788-2019.

Push-Button, High-Couture, Perfect-Fit Apparel Coming

By SHIRLEY HENIN

NEW YORK—(WNS)—The day is not far off when women will step into a booth, push some buttons and emerge with a perfectly fitted, custom made dress, predicts designer Jack Lenor Larsen.

"You will push one button for the designer, say, Balenciaga, another for nutria brown, another for the fabric; electronic measurements such as no dressmaker ever made will be taken, and out will slide a garment that is truly custom in every respect," Mr. Larsen told an audience of fashion specialists.

"Paradoxically, although the garments would be completely machine-made—no human hand would touch them—there would be more individual styling than there is today.

"A woman could find her key and play it as long as she wanted. Now, when she finally finds what she likes, it's not around later when she decides to buy a similar style. But with machines there would be 'people-sized production.'"

Just how this system would affect prices is not certain, but one thing is clear: if garments go from machine to consumer with no middleman, prices will go down, and probably drastically.

Ultimately, even regional differences could be fed into the machine, he said.

"Now machines sell one brand of soft drinks in the South and another in the North," Mr. Larsen pointed out. "Similarly, machines in the South could spin dresses of linen, rayon or silk but no wool, which would be available in the North."

He predicts automation will start on a limited scale. "You will not buy a whole wardrobe in one booth. It will begin with small things, such as stockings and knit pants, where fit is really important.

"Actually, we already have machines for hats. When men go to a custom hatter, it's a machine that tells how to shape the hat. It measures almost every bump already compared to operations we have. Compared to thinking machines, they are kindergarten. And apparel is a big enough industry to make it worthwhile."

Booth sizing is not the only such fantasy "in the wind." Equally probable developments, Mr. Larsen believes, will be die-cutting, where clothes will be "stamped out like Nabisco cookies," and heat sealing, where thermoplastic fibers like Dacron—and possibly other fibers too—will be put together with heat instead of needle and thread. And they will be perfect—no ragged seams, no hanging threads.

Or, there will be the spray method, where clothes are sprayed on. "We will have people spinning themselves into cocoons, like silkworms," he said.

Disposability is also coming, predicts the designer, and this probably soonest of all. There will be disposable aprons, children's clothing, then underwear as consumers demand an alternative to "spending $20 to launder a $5 shirt."

Mr. Larsen, who heads his own design firm, is a weaver as well as a fabrics designer. He became interested in automation as he realized that his own tools, the loom and the power loom, had "reached the end of their development."

"Automation will come whether the consumer wants it or not," he said. "But quality will be up to the consumer, just as it is today.

"If women will buy anything that is put in front of them, then the aesthetic will not improve. They can add or detract to that aesthetic. It's in their control."

If your broiled hamburgers do not get that charred look that is so inviting, try brushing them with melted butter or margarine before they go under the heat.

Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Morgan gave a most enjoyable program on her trip abroad. The Woman's Club served supper for the occasion.

Bedford's Tour Delays Duchess; She Wants To Cozy Up His Castle

By HELEN DENVER

LONDON—(WNS)—The Duke of Bedford's next lecture-tour in the United States in October will mean yet another delay for his new wife in settling into the apartment she is designing for the Duke and herself in a wing of his state-ly, 60-room home, Woburn Abbey. Since she married the Duke less than a year ago, the chic, friendly, uninhibited French-born Duchess, who was formerly television producer Nicole Millinari, has been trying to settle down as chateaine of one of England's greatest homes, which the Bedfords have owned for 500 years.

The process has been delayed constantly to accompany the Duke on trips abroad while he lectures or exhibits paintings from his collection of Old Masters. Aim of the tours is to help him to raise enough money to pay off the $13 million in taxes he inherited with his title and estates when his father died in 1953.

Now after a holiday this month in Yugoslavia, they are leaving for the United States in early October, do not expect to be back for several weeks. In January, they are going to Australia.

Although they have had comparatively little time at home, the Duchess has already taken her place as the Duke's right hand. She helps him with public appearances, sells souvenirs to swarms of 35-cent-a-head visitors who inspect the Abbey six days a week, signs autographs, opens bazaars and generally, as she says, "tries to behave like a Duchess."

Sometimes she gets caught out. On a recent Monday when the Abbey was closed to visitors.

She had decided to wash her hair and was under the shower when the Duke had a telephone message telling him a London tourist agency had muddled some arrangements. They had not realized the Abbey was closed and had sent off a couple of bus-loads of American tourists all looking forward to being shown through the rooms and grounds.

Not wanting to disappoint them, he gave orders for the gates to be opened.

"I didn't even have time to put my hair in pins!" said the Duchess indignantly. "I had to throw on some clothes, and still dripping, go down to sell souvenirs."

For several months, she has been designing a magnificent apartment from half a dozen rooms in the vast Abbey. It will be completely self-contained and she and the Duke can, if they feel like it, lock themselves away from staff and visitors.

They will each have a bathroom, and there will be a big bedroom, a drawing-room and a small kitchen. The Duke's wood-paneled bathroom, already furnished, contains, behind the paneling, a washing machine and drier.

"My husband insisted," explained the Duchess, who retains her French accent. "He says the time will come when there will be no servants and he may have to do his own laundry."

Her own bathroom is pink-tiled and contains a charming small French desk because she likes to work in the bathroom. "Et is so peaceful!"

She has chosen a color scheme of black and grey for her kitchen: black cupboards, pearly grey working surfaces. Into the center of each of the cupboard doors she has set a flower-print she cut from a book.

Although they will be home for a family Christmas (the Duchess has four children by her previous marriage, the Duke three) they will probably not be able to settle into the apartment until next year.

"I have always adored making homes," said the Duchess, "but the odd thing is that I never seem to have lived for any length of time in one of them. A few years ago I bought myself a charming 17th century house in Paris, with a view of Notre Dame. Brigitte Bardot was also after it—but I signed the check first."

I decided that house was where I would finish my life alone. It absolutely never occurred to me then that I would marry again. I decorated it with all the things women love. It was very feminine.

Kennedys Hosts At First White House Reception

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some changes were evident as President and Mrs. Kennedy entertained at the first official White House reception of the fall season.

Guests at Tuesday night's affair—honoring members of the Supreme Court, Judiciary and other top officials—wore informal clothes instead of traditional formal dress. The reception began at 6 p.m. instead of the usual 9 p.m. starting time.

The Kennedys greeted Vice President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and Chief Justice and Mrs. Earl Warren and other members of the Supreme Court for about 20 minutes in their private quarters.

Then as the Marine Corps band played, the President, the vice president and the chief justice descended the main staircase followed by their wives. Among the 300 to 400 guests they greeted were Atty. Gen. and Mrs. Robert Kennedy.

The President's wife wore a square-necked short black dress with black Ottoman skirt and heavily beaded jet black cameo-sole top.

Champagne, fruit juices and aperitifs were served. Guests had their choice of hot and cold canapés, mousse of foie gras, cold vegetables, dips, shrimp, lobster, cold turkey and ham from a buffet table.

"I bought back some marvelous ones last time I was in America," she said. "They have everything, but they cost the earth!"

Because they are seldom with-out guests, she has recently redecorated two charming guest suites.

They open off a private corridor where she has covered the walls with old, framed prints she found stacked in the Woburn cellars. She designed one of the prettiest bedrooms around a Dresden chandelier she extracted from one of the public rooms, where it was on exhibition.

Being French, she loves clothes, especially shoes.

I get most of my dress-up clothes from Balmain," she said, "but lots of others I buy ready-made in London. I always wear dresses totally plain and totally straight. I hate bows and ribbons."

"I like very little jewelry. Sometimes for a big party I wear a diamond tiara and necklace, but they are worth $4 million and I worry terribly until they are back in the safe."

Designer Cites First Lady's Attire Problems

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mollie Parnis, who designed clothes for two former first ladies, thinks Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy "ought to be able to wear what she wants"—including slacks, scarves and French fashions.

Now jokingly known among her New York fashion colleagues as "the out-of-season White House designer," Miss Parnis takes a sympathetic view of first ladies' fashion problems. They have plenty of them, she reports.

Miss Parnis rates Mrs. Kennedy 32, as having a natural flair for clothes—she looks good in just about anything from bathing suit to formal, says the designer.

If Mrs. Kennedy wants to wear a scarf on her head in the country, that's okay with Miss Parnis. She says some women, taking a look at that properly tied scarf, might learn something.

As for French styles: Miss Parnis says it's "old fashioned" to think a first lady has to wear only American-designed clothes. "If an occasional French dress gives Mrs. Kennedy a lift—and to what women would it not give a lift—why not?" says Miss Parnis.

Miss Parnis didn't just come out with these views. A group of Washington reporters besieged her with questions on the subject at a recent New York meeting. She designed clothes for Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Mrs. Harry S. Truman while they were White House occupants.

Citing problems of a first lady, Miss Parnis said it's "an agonizing experience" for a fashion-conscious young woman like Mrs. Kennedy, who loved to go into stores and shop, not to be able to do so.

Because she can't do that anymore, Miss Parnis explains, Mrs. Kennedy has to have someone she can trust—like Oleg Cassini, whom she chose as her personal designer, to shop for her.

A perfect size 10, Mrs. Kennedy is making use of many different fashion sources—both here and abroad, Miss Parnis disclosed.

What's more, Mrs. Kennedy is buying from New York department stores, with her secretary placing telephone orders, according to Miss Parnis.

"Unquestionably" Mrs. Kennedy is having a telling influence on American fashions, Miss Parnis reports. For example, she has had "a tremendous effect on the sale of sleeveless dresses."

There's one fashion trend for which Miss Parnis wouldn't give Mrs. Kennedy credit, though. She says there is now "a definite revival" of long dresses for evening wear.

Cassini announced months ago that Mrs. Kennedy preferred the long formal gown.

But, Miss Parnis claims fashions also sympathetically follow the nation's economy and this evening dress trend is something that happens when things are booming—"and we have had sort of a boom."

Celebrating 50th Anniversary Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Brooks are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary today. The Brookses, who reside on the Washington Highway, were married in 1911 in Pitt County. They have six children, nine grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Enough Time Devoted To Waiting

At their meeting early in September, the Pitt County Commissioners received official notification from the State Agricultural Extension Service of the discharge of the county's Negro Farm agent and the suspension of the Negro Home Demonstration Agent while the Extension Service conducted an inquiry into the operation of those offices in this county.

Subsequently the County Commissioners passed a resolution asserting they intended to abide by whatever decision the Extension Service reaches in these matters. This resolution was proper since it is the normal procedure for the county boards of commissioners to accept the recommendations of the Extension Service with regard to personnel in the various agricultural departments of the county.

It seems to us, however, that the County Commissioners would be entirely within their rights—and further would be carrying out their responsibility to the people of the county—to insist that the Extension Service conclude its inquiry and effect its recommendations as quickly as possible.

For more than a month now the county has been without a Negro Farm Agent or a Negro Home Demonstration Agent because of the action taken by the Extension Service. It would seem to us that such a period would provide ample time for the Extension Service to complete its inquiry and study, and to be prepared to recommend to the county the next move to get these departments back to their normal functions.

In some counties in other parts of the state, perhaps, the offices of the Negro farm and Negro home agent are not as important as they are in Pitt, because of the very economy of the county. In a county such as Pitt where the economy is dominated by agriculture, these offices and their functions are of considerable importance.

The functions of these offices in Pitt County have been carried on through make-shift arrangements since early September. The County Commissioners have properly indicated they will leave the matters involved to the Extension Service for solution. The Commissioners, however, should insist that the matters be resolved with all deliberate speed, and the offices be restored to their normal operations by the Extension Service as quickly as feasible.

Rockefeller, Goldwater Ticket Not Impossible

With former vice-president Nixon apparently out of the race for the GOP nomination in 1964 because of his candidacy for governor of California, there is interesting speculation on the national conventions and presidential campaign almost three years from now.

Many things can happen to change the picture, but barring drastic occurrences, it is a foregone conclusion that President Kennedy will run for re-election on the Democratic ticket, probably with Johnson as his running-mate.

On the Republican side, Gov. Rockefeller of New York and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, are the leading contenders with Mr. Nixon presumably either to be governor of California, or politically obscure because of his home-state defeat.

Gov. Rockefeller and Sen. Goldwater, in the minds of most people, represent the "ultra-liberal" and "ultra-conservative" wings of the Republican party. A heated campaign between the two for the GOP nomination could virtually split the Republican party in 1964 and cause wounds too deep to heal between convention time and election day.

Some of the veteran political observers, surprisingly, are already suggesting the possibility of a Rockefeller-Goldwater ticket in 1964.

They point to the apparent attempt of Gov. Rockefeller in recent weeks to shake the "liberal" label and to take on a more middle-of-the-road Republican appearance. If that is part of the strategy of the governor of New York, it would be, of course, to garner greater support from the Goldwater wing of the party.

The possibility of a Rockefeller-Goldwater ticket at first glance appears absurd. But, on the other hand, there were few who believed in 1962, even after Kennedy's nomination by the Democrats, that they would see a Kennedy-Johnson ticket come out of the convention.

The odds against a Rockefeller-Goldwater ticket coming out of the 1964 Republican convention would appear no greater than the pre-convention odds of 1962 that a Kennedy-Johnson ticket would emerge for the Democrats.

Livelier Race If Lodge Running

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's home state of Massachusetts will have one of 1962's liveliest Senate races if Henry Cabot Lodge—whose name can't be drafted—ends up a candidate for the Republican nomination.

An effort to bring Lodge, the 1960 GOP vice presidential nominee, into the race was launched Tuesday by a group headed by Paul Vaites Jr., a Boston attorney.

Lodge promptly told newsmen "I cannot be drafted. No attempt to draft me has my approval." The former U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations now is associated with Time, Life and Fortune magazines as an adviser on international affairs. He lost his Senate seat to Kennedy in 1952.

Vaites said later he wasn't surprised at Lodge's reaction. He said the Draft Lodge Committee will meet soon to see what to do next.

Should Lodge end up making the Senate race, he would be joining Richard M. Nixon, former vice president and the 1960 GOP presidential nominee, in trying for a comeback at the polls. Nixon is seeking the California governorship.

The Draft Lodge group would have no assurance, of course, that he could have the Republican nomination. That might depend on whether GOP Gov. John A. Volpe wants another term in the statehouse or would like to try for the Senate.

Volpe demonstrated his pulling power in winning in 1960 by a margin of 138,000 votes while Kennedy was carrying the state by more than a half million.

National headquarters Republicans think they would have a strong candidate in either Volpe or Lodge. They look with some glee on what they believe is a developing cleavage among Massachusetts Democrats.

This involves the scarcely disguised differences between factions headed by Kennedy and Rep. John W. McCormack, designated as acting speaker of the House in the illness of Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex.

McCormack has made it clear he is strongly interested in political advancement for his nephew, Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Edward J. McCormack. The acting speaker would like to get the party senatorial nomination for his favorite relative.

But Edward M. Teddy Kennedy, the President's youngest brother, has been acting like a potential candidate for the same nomination.

To complicate matters, Sen. Benjamin A. Smith II, D-Mass., appointed to Kennedy's seat when the latter became President, has shown signs of liking his job. The general understanding is that Smith would serve only until next election might turn out to be a misunderstanding if he chooses to bid for the nomination. Whoever is elected next year will serve two unexpired years of Kennedy's term.

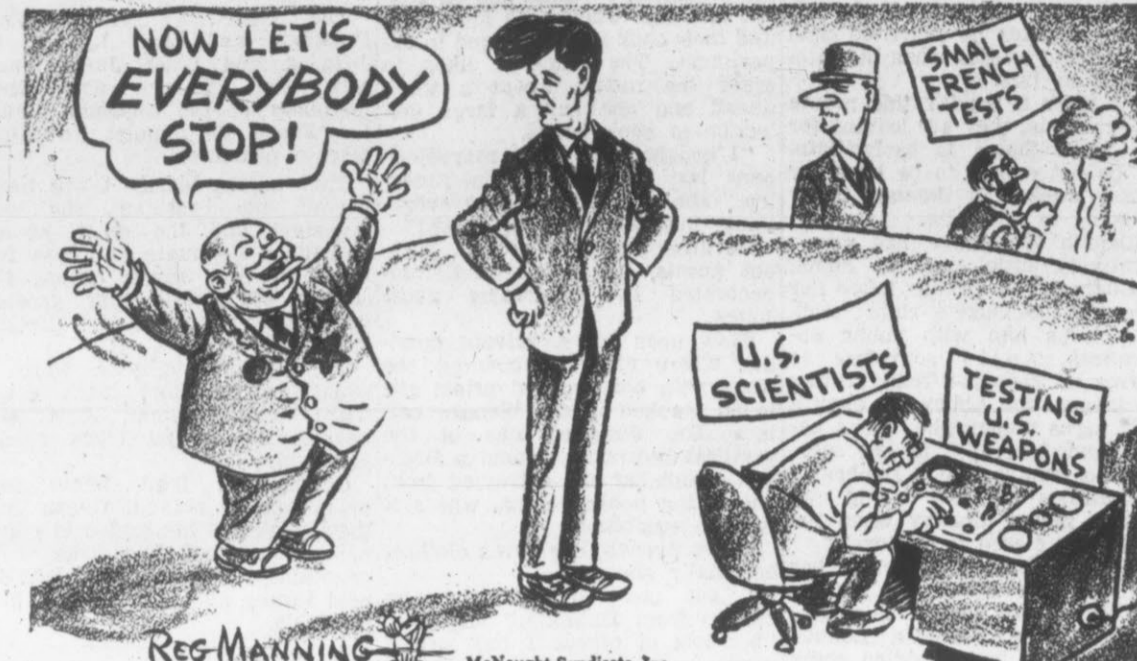

This three-pronged situation poses a problem for the President. He can ill-afford a Democratic squabble in his home state.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
HOPELESS AND HELPLESS
Self-conceit will ruin a man's character about as quickly and effectively as any vice under heaven. Bad as the sins of the flesh undoubtedly are, it is doubtful whether they ruin persons of promise more often than does the pig-headed obsession that one is always right and others are wrong. Longfellow once said that whenever nature leaves a hole in a person's mind, she generally plasters it over with a thick coat of self-conceit.

nature of a man is often the place where he thinks himself to be the wisest. Conceited people are those who are often in the wrong but can never endure to be thought so. Conceit is the refuge invariably sought after by those who cannot stand to face the fact that their judgement is more often wrong than right. When conceit arises from a desire to save one's face, it arises from ignorance. There are some people so stupid that they actually believe that they are always right and that everybody else is always wrong. When a man is that ignorant, he is probably beyond all human help; nothing but the grace of God, and that plenteously given, can save such a one from destruction.

When They'll Agree to Ban Tests

By DON SCHLIENZ

The 'Unthinkable' Isn't

People who were saying "nuclear war is unthinkable" should know by now how wrong they could be. A great many people are thinking about that "unthinkable" subject.

The fallout shelter displayed at the County Fair drew a steady stream of interested people... and questions they asked were indicative of familiarity with the subject.

What I would like to see is a practical shelter plan that is priced to fit a larger percentage of the population. I know it could be done, and eventually it will be available.

There will be another change in emphasis in Civil Defense people, too. As of now, the stress is on preparing for survival of people; the importance of protecting livestock on the farms is widely recognized, but the real job of selling the idea and showing how it will be done has not yet been put into gear.

Actually, I don't think a big promotional campaign will be needed. Once some of the basic problems on protecting livestock are laid out with possible solutions... farmers are going to work out their own problems.

The idea of home preparedness being likened to a form of insurance has pretty well taken hold; it should likewise find a ready and receptive attitude on the home front. Insurance is something all of us appreciate.

A natural hazard among newspaper publishers is to have an editor with a pet "ax to grind." Mine is civil defense... and I can envision only a greater national emphasis in that field for years to come. The subject has a brim fascination, the deeper one delves into the multitude of angles.

It is now something more than 40 hours since I "swore off" my pipe and smoking in general. The drastic step was taken during a moment of weakness... incurred by several weeks of struggle against a virus and related ills.

Abstaining from tobacco is nothing new for the writer; I do it every three or four years. But the near-immediate effects on my nervous system and general sense of well-being are always a surprise.

This first week should be a humdinger, if all goes according to past patterns:

- (a) My eyesight becomes sharper;
- (b) hearing becomes almost painfully sensitive;
- (c) taste and olfactory nerves awaken;
- (d) thought processes move faster, and a growing sense of impatience takes over
- (e) I lose all my friends and alienate my family.

The discomforts and sharply-awakened perceptions make the process an ordeal not lightly undertaken.

Other Editors Saying Farm Research Lags

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
Research—the key to future growth—is booming in every industry. Except agriculture.

While the average business spends more than five per cent of its annual gross income in quest of newer ways of producing old products and the development of new products from old materials, agriculture spends less than one per cent of its income toward this end.

Since the agricultural revolution removed the farmer's horse from the major labors of farm production, little has been done in the way of keeping the crop producer ahead of or at least even with the technical progress of the rest of civilization.

New irrigation techniques have turned desert land into fertile production, greatly-improved fertilizers and seeds have boosted harvests into phenomenal yields per acre and improved sprays and refrigeration techniques have provided more healthful foods for longer seasons.

But what has agriculture done to promote its product, or to find other uses for it than as food? Soybeans, for example, once were the exclusive source of plastic, but now a wide variety of plastic raw components are derived from non-agricultural materials.

Add to the plastics are synthetic fibers, rubbers and such relatively new products as detergents—all derived from non-farm raw materials. At the same time agricultural productivity has outmatched human consumption and rising stockpiles and lower farm incomes are the inevitable result, with or without government price supports.

Agriculture Department estimates are that of the $500 million spent for farm research, only $20 million is directed toward new outlets—the type of research farmers desperately need. This sum compares poorly with the $3 billion industry spends annually to find new uses for its products (many in competition with agriculture), out of a total $5 billion research bill.

Little of agriculture's total research expenditure comes from what is termed these days the private sector. Government agricultural laboratories and cooperative test stations carry on most of the experimentation, with only superficial attention to marketing and new product research. Their primary interest is productivity.

It is not unlikely that in the years ahead, if agriculture does not reassert its influence, more-synthetic production will turn from vegetable to chemical resources. And some of the new products could include food itself.

Opinions In Brief

Promotional Pitches Returning

By ELMER ROESSNER
The promotional pitches are coming back. This is a good sign.

When top business executives think that business is not expanding, they tend to trim promotions. When they think business is on the up beat, they uncork their schemes, many of which have been on ice for the propitious moment.

Here are some incidents of propitious moments:
A Southington, Conn., discount house, to dramatize its cut-price policy, offered $1 blocks of mint United States stamps for 88 cents. The stunt packed in 10,000 customers the first week.

A lottery dishing out $20,000 in prizes is being promoted in today's issue of Look magazine. There are numbered entry blanks in the Pillsbury ad and readers who check with local grocers can find if they have won $100 prizes.

"INSTANT DIVIDEND"
Four Hinky Dinky supermarkets in Ohio and Nebraska have introduced cash-register tape plans that, if successful, will surely be copied in other Dink markets and imitated by competitors.

Customers are invited to choose major appliances at no down payment. Then their weekly payments are reduced in proportion to their cash register tapes. They get approximately $2.50 off on installment payments for each $10 spent in the market. Thus a customer spending $30 a week can get a $7.50 discount on each weekly payment. A $40 weekly tape can make a $300 appliance free in 30 months.

The purchase contracts are with appliance dealers, and if a customer stops hinky-dinky, she must pay the balance forthwith. Customers using tapes for discounts do not get trading stamps.

I'll get questions about this scheme, so I'll send a 300-word summary to merchants who send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me.
HOW TO BEAT SUPERS
-Supermarkets generally refuse to go along with premium deals, simply because the costs of handling them wipe out profits. But William P. Dunham, the next president of the Premium Advertisers Association of America, is urging manufacturers to print offers right on packages, thereby outwitting supermarket operators.

Big promotions are coming for battery-powered mowers and indoor-powered tools. At the National Hardware Show in Chicago last week, interest largely focused on battery-powered mowers and battery-powered tools.

Gas-powered mowers are often difficult to start; electric cord mowers tend to get tangled up with their cord. The solution, battery-powered mowers, is being offered by a scare of manufacturers. Most mowers have built-in rechargers for their batteries.

Also drawing considerable attention are drills, shears, sanders, polishers and saw, operated by battery power. If a user wants to sand a boat in his

Music Discard Grows

By GEORGE E. SKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The following advertisement appeared in a New York newspaper:
"The Philadelphia Orchestra announces with regret that there will be no concerts until further notice. Notification regarding refunds or exchanges will be made at a later date."

The Philadelphia Orchestra has had its troubles. Now it is the Philharmonic. Only a few weeks ago it was the Metropolitan Opera House. Perhaps these musicians need someone to remind them that it is possible to kill the market for musicians.

The three leading orchestras in the United States are the Boston, the Philharmonic and the Philadelphia. Granted that the company is suffering from inflation, the musicians must realize that the United States operates a profit. Maybe the musicians are bored with Beethoven, Bach and Brahms and would prefer to organize combos to play in honky-tonks. After all, some of the new music they play is no better than progressive jazz and they may be bored. Of course, they can relieve their boredom by doing some hard physical work. There is no reason to strike. That solves no musical problem although it may have some economic significance.

When some time ago I wrote about the strike, at the Metropolitan Opera House, I received some very nasty letters, particularly from women who might have been musicians' wives. The tone of the letters was generally identical and was designed to prove that I am an ignoramus who hates musicians. The fact is that I know many musicians and usually find them interesting and charming but they do not understand the economics of their trade. A virtuoso gets an enormous reward for his efforts because he has good box office. Zino Francescatti or Isaac Stern will be paid because audiences pay to hear them. Maybe the 15th violinist of the Boston is as good a fiddler as one of these great ones, but not enough customers are willing to pay to prove that it is so. That is the very cold economics of the business.

Similarly crowds will come to see Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux, Eugene Ormandy or Leonard Bernstein conduct an orchestra. There may be superior conductors but they do not draw the crowd or have great standing among other musicians. I used to hear musicians say that Serge Koussevitzky was a better showman than a conductor, but there was a year at Tanglewood when the conductor stood several miles long to get into the grounds. It was a demonstration of respect and affection. There were similar demonstrations several times this year, particularly on the Sunday afternoon when Munch conducted Berlioz's "Romeo et Juliette."

The huge audience applauded until the lights went out in order of sheer pity for the great maestro. It was an acknowledgement of supreme achievement.

Maybe there are hidden men of brilliance who can outdo the great men to whom I refer, but too few are willing to buy a ticket for the chance of applauding them. This has nothing to do with democracy or giving the lights to an out of sheer pity for the great maestro. It was a sense of perfection. I have listened to the same orchestra for 20 years play under different conductors and what a difference! It may be true that some of the fiddlers in the Philharmonic are greater musicologists than Toscanini was, but their fame is known and they have not been accepted either by the general public or by other musicians.

So the strikers may strike each year, and it is even possible that they will put the orchestras out of existence and they themselves will be without jobs. They can fiddle at home and curse a world that does not appreciate them. But of this I can be sure, if the world does not appreciate them, their own opinion of themselves has little weight. It is too bad that few men are taken at their own valuation even if they have excellent press agents.

This many a writer has had to learn very early in life. One may have a high opinion of himself, and he may be right, but if he wants to be published, someone else must have an

Ayden To Study Piping In Of Natural Gas

AYDEN — A thorough study will be made of the possibility of bringing natural gas to Ayden, the Town Board of Commissioners decided at their Monday night's meeting, though no action has been taken relative to the matter.

L. J. Gaisert, a representative of the R. A. Ransom Co., Inc., consulting engineers of Washington, D. C., appeared at the meeting at the invitation of the board to discuss a proposal in connection with making such a study. Gaisert explained that the source of the gas would be either from a point just south of Greenville, or from a point north of the Kingston DuPont Plant, where the possible Ayden line would tie onto lines of the North Carolina Natural Gas Corporation.

In the event the study shows the project unfeasible, Gaisert said, there would be no charge for the work done in making the study. However, if the study shows the project to be practical, then the town would be expected to retain his firm as engineers in the actual construction, Gaisert said.

An example of a town in this vicinity using natural gas is Farmville.

In other action, Cleveland Paylor, town manager, was named Civil Defense director replacing Warren Kinlaw.

The board voted to purchase two air masks complete with carrying cases and cylinders, as well as two First Aid kits and litters, for use by the Fire Department.

Certain tax releases were granted in certain cases of double listing of out-of-town property for the years 1959, 1960 and 1962, Paylor said.

The board held a moment of prayer Paylor was asked to write tribute in memory of the late Judge Leon Kittrell. Town Manager ward it to the family.

Pitt Development Body Next Meets In Farmville

FARMVILLE — The revolving meeting plan of the Pitt County Development Commission takes its second turn next week as the county's industry-hunting body gathers Wednesday in Farmville.

Scheduled for a joint meeting with the Farmville Economic Council—Farmville's own economic development organization—the county development commissioners will have a planned tour of Farmville's industrial wealth and progress waiting for them.

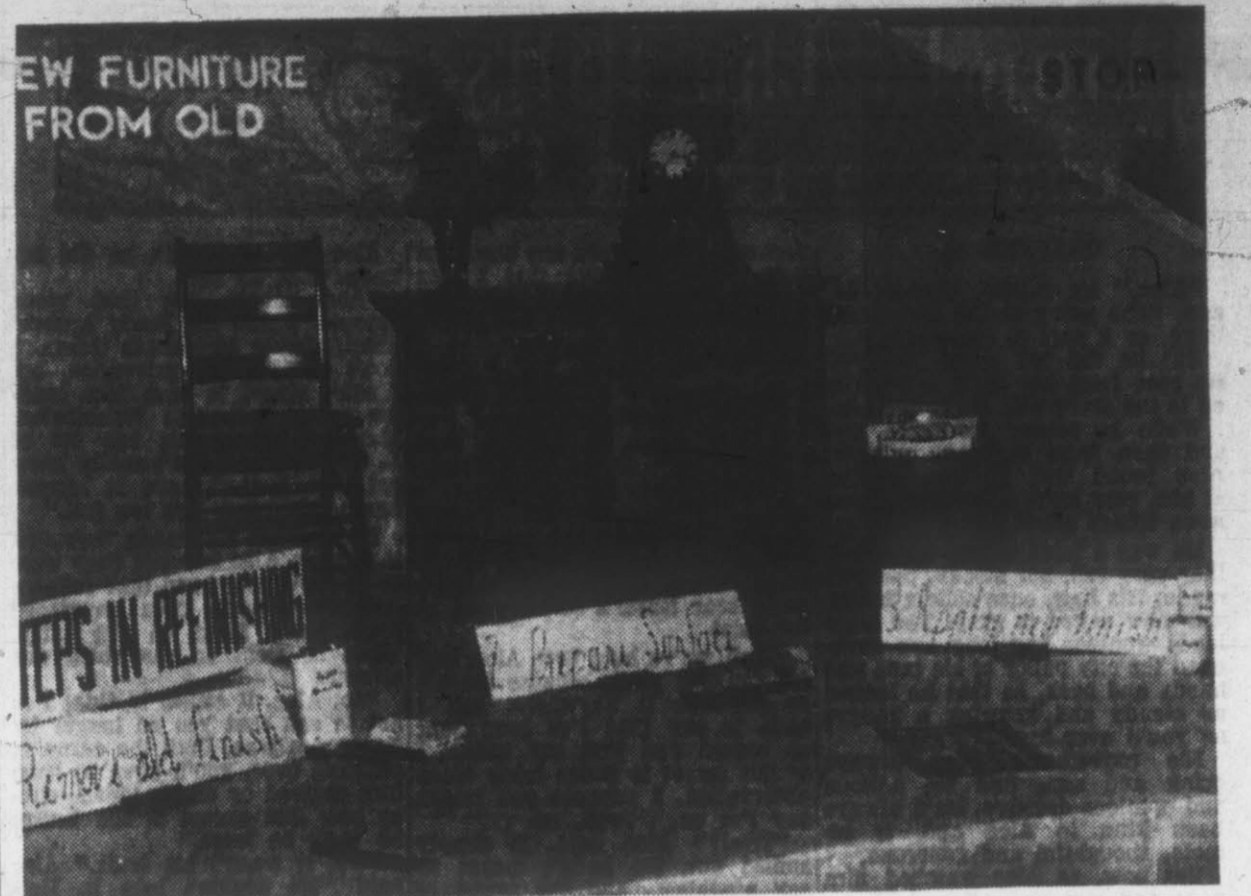

Plans provide for the commissioners to arrive here about 5 p.m. Wednesday to board a bus at the local country club for the short hop across town to American Cyanamid's Formica Flakeboard plant, then back for a tour of factory number two of the A. C. Monk Tobacco Co. before a 6:30 dinner at the country club. The commission's regular business session will follow.

Wednesday's meeting here will mark the second consecutive monthly meeting in the commission's new series that will provide for moving its monthly meeting sites around the county to better acquaint the taxpayers who support it with the organization's methods and functions.

The group will gather in Ayden for its November session. The September meeting, first to be held outside Greenville, was hosted by Grifton.

In addition to development commissioners, scheduled to appear here Wednesday for the meeting are members of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and members of the Pitt legislative delegation.

Leonard P. Bloxam, chairman of the commission, will preside at the business session. He will be presented by Ed Davenport, chairman of the Farmville Economic Council. Davenport and T. W. (Tommy) Willis, director of the FEC, will relate to visitors economic development in Farmville during recent years.

No Termite Ever Flew So High

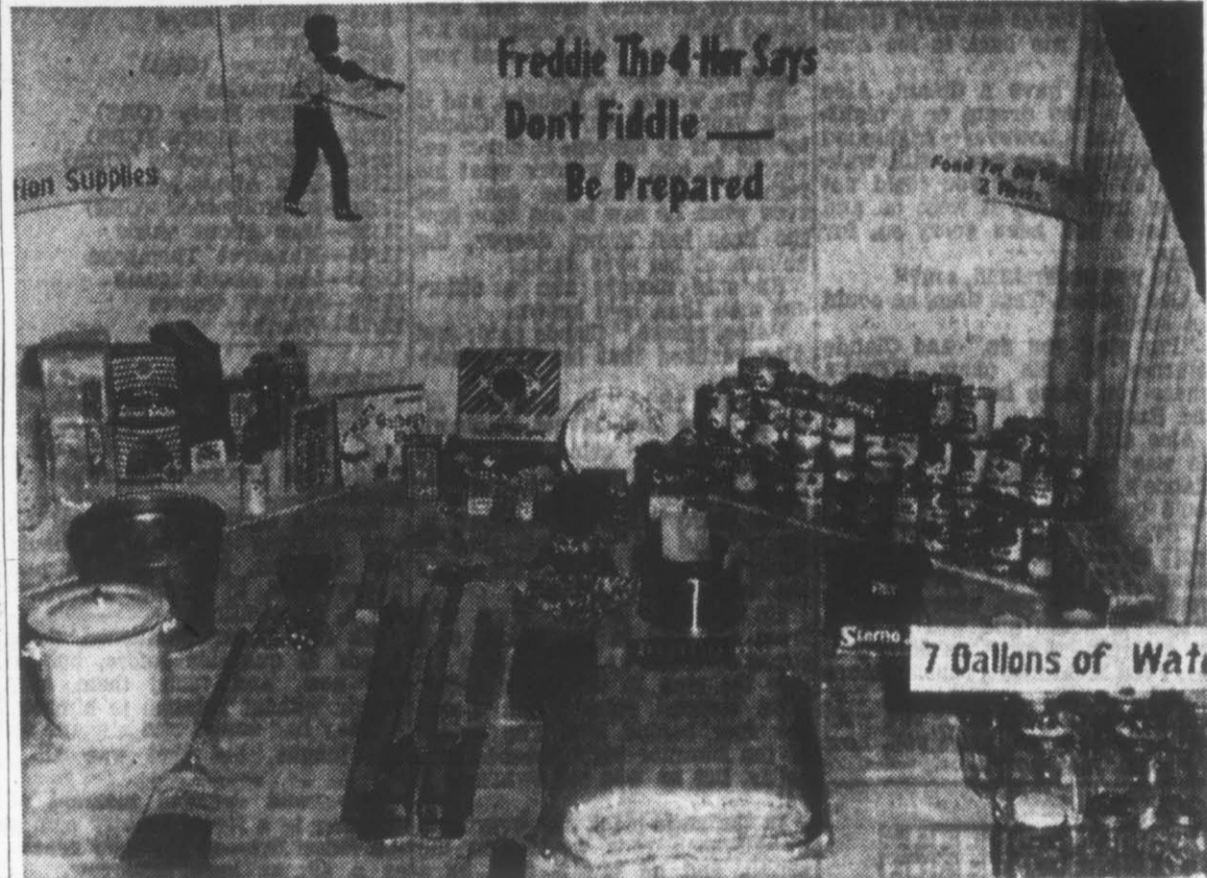

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Mrs. Leo Manz thought she had termites in her house when she noticed plaster on the floor of an unoccupied bedroom.

However, an exterminator discovered a hole in the ceiling and Mrs. Manz then found a .50-caliber machine gun bullet behind a closet door.

Police theorized that a military aircraft might have fired the bullet.

CHAPTER 16

"Alec," his father, Claude, began. "I'm going to tell you something, or a part of something."

But he did not begin just yet. He rose from his chair and walked to the stove with his coffee cup. While he poured from the pot, and then from the milk pitcher, Alec found that he was looking at him very hard, seeming to sense new things about him.

He was a middle-sized man, neither very tall, nor stocky, but well made. His hair, once solidly black, was now salted in gray. The highlands weather had long ago darkened the city pallor of his face and hands and neck, so that he looked as steady and knowing a ranger as you'd ever meet.

His movements were always quick and sure and his actions and opinions decisive. He'd always been kind to Alec and, if remote, thoughtful and generous. Yet now, as Alec watched him pour and stir his coffee, he wondered how well he really knew him.

Claude did not sit down yet, but remained near the stove holding his cup.

"One time, something happened in my work, Alec," he said. "Long ago. What it is, I can't tell you yet, but you'll learn in time. Everything comes out in time. But the main thing for now is that it did something to me. Up until then, the world was mine; I was younger at that time, of course, and you believe such things when you're young."

Claude paused a moment, to drink, and Alec wondered what it was. His mother crossed his mind, but it would not be her; it involved the forests in some way.

"But afterwards," Claude went on, "I changed. Things were different then. It was a matter of confidence—confidence in what I was and in what I did and was able to do. It was doubt, Alec, self-doubt, and I hope you never have it, because there's no worse affliction; it's like a disease that little by little eats you away."

When he stopped that time, he looked through a window into the surrounding night. It was as if watching an image of himself being eaten away, little by little.

derness to desk work any time, but I let myself believe that I was needed in Washington. I passed up opportunities for field work and more lately, suggestions that I take it once more. But I don't know. Somehow I simply couldn't bring myself to face it."

It was hard to believe that Claude was speaking of himself. Alec found himself wondering if he'd heard correctly, but he knew he had; he was wide awake, he felt his feet against the floor, his arms resting on the table, and he could hear Rusty's soft droning in the quiet.

"Well, we're here now, Alec, and for you I'm glad, because there's no life like it anywhere. But I have to say that I've been sent on orders and that my handling of this forest is under fairly close observation. I suppose you might say I'm on... well, on..."

"Trial?" Alec said. It simply spilled out. He hadn't meant to say anything, and the sound of his voice frightened him.

Claude's eye lay keenly upon him, then passed on.

"Trial, yes—probation if you like. Hard words, son, but they fit. If I fail expectations here, there'll be no other forest for me; I doubt they'll want me back in the Bureau either."

You could have a dream, Alec thought, a bad dream or a nightmare, and however frightened you became, you could still waken in sunlight. But you could not waken from this; it went on and on, as it had been going on, for years.

"Do you understand, son?" Alec nodded. That time, he could not speak.

"I'm glad you do," and Claude returned to his chair. "That's where you come in, you see. You and Rusty."

Alec did not rise to this either. He was too occupied in watching Claude's face, wondering how it could be that of someone else.

"I've got my hands full here, son; there's no telling yet how things will turn out. Most of my trouble's up on top, where the fire danger is acute and will be until we get rain, if ever we do. Then, too, Fred McMahon's running more stock than his permit calls for, and I've had a run-in or two with him. You can see, can't you, how it's touch and go?"

Alec nodded, though he did not know what he saw.

"And people like that pious camper, whose tent Rusty brought down, simply complicate things. I don't question his grievance, but I can't afford to have him sending raving letters to Washington. Maybe I talked this one out of it, maybe not; I don't really know yet. But I can't have it happen again. My hands are too full."

He spread his hands now, as if to show Alec how full they were or to show the shape that fullness had given them. Then he placed them palm down on the table. When he went on, his voice was quieter.

"So, Alec, it comes to this: I've got to ask that you no longer let Rusty run free. Until the camping season's over, you'll have to keep him chained or on his leash—either one. But except in the house, he can't be loose."

"But it was his fault," Alec said. "He couldn't help it. He's wild."

"I know, Alec, and that's just the point. You understand that, don't you?"

Alec felt his head move in a nod. But he only understood that whatever dreadful thing had happened to his father so long ago lived in his mind still and that now Rusty must pay for it.

It was wrong, he thought, and it was wrong and unjust for Claude to allow it to happen. It never occurred to him to wonder what his father's admission had cost, not even when he saw in his face how the lines had grown deeper, the hollows of his eyes darker.

He only thought him a different man than he'd known.

"Alec, please," Claude said; and Alec realized that he was standing.

"It's all right," he said. But all at once he had to get outdoors. All at once the cabin had grown stuffy and close and all in it out of focus and alien.

He heard his voice calling to Rusty, and he saw the silts of Rusty's eyelids open wide upon the amber lights within.

He walked to the door and from the nail in the frame took Rusty's leash and snapped it into the ring in the lion's collar. He stepped outside and closed the door behind him. The breath of the summer night touched him softly, but he was not aware of it.

In the satin-black sky overhead, a half-moon rode west from the zenith, and he saw it only as a luminescence upon the ground that showed the way for his feet.

He walked along the raised bank of the creek, somewhat south, but aimlessly, unaware of direction.

He was thinking of Claude; he was thinking of what he should feel for him, that which he had never tried to define: love, respect, admiration.

He had never questioned those words as qualities before, but he did now, and found them only words without relation to himself.

They had sound and a shape on the tongue, but that was all.

Pitt Shrine Club Presents Large $2,000 Donation

Pitt County's Shrine Club Tuesday handed the Sudan Temple a check for $2,000 for Shrine-sponsored crippled children's hospitals. It was the largest sum raised and donated by a Sudan Temple Shrine group this year.

Bill Prince of Goldsboro, chief Rabbian who will be the next potentate of Sudan Temple, and Cator Maddrey of Goldsboro, chairman of crippled children's hospitals for Sudan Temple, attended last night's meeting to accept the Pitt Shriners' profits from a mammoth fish fry staged here recently.

Presenting the check were Pitt Shrine President Joe Goodson and Nobles Ed Ricks and Roy Alcock, co-chairmen of the Shriners' fish fry and parade program that raised the funds.

In addition to Prince and Maddrey, Donald Bell, chief of the Wrecking Crew for Sudan Temple, and Nelson Banks, Sudan Temple's recorder, appeared at Tuesday's presentation ceremony.

Nearly 100 Pitt Shriners were on hand for the presentation, made at a special called meeting of the club that will count as the club's October meeting.

The $2,000 donation was raised by an all-day fish fry held in Greenville by the Pitt Shriners recently. The day-long affair, complete with a parade through Greenville's business district, will become an annual project for the Pitt club.

Novelist Upton Sinclair Is Planning Marriage At 83

(AP)—"I think I'm a very lucky old man," says Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist Upton Sinclair, 83.

Sinclair, author of more than 70 books, and Mary Elizabeth Willis, 79, a widow, took out a marriage license Tuesday. His first wife, Mary Craig Kimbrough Sinclair, died last April 26 at 78.

Sinclair said he and Mrs. Willis drew to San Bernardino for the license in an effort to avoid publicity.

"That shows you what duffers we are," he laughed. "We were very naive. We thought the ladies (in the clerk's office) up there wouldn't be learned. They didn't show any sign of recognizing me."

Deputy County Clerk Bernice Waddell said Sinclair, wearing a short-sleeved sport shirt and appearing tanned and healthy, "looked more nearly 70."

The author, who won the Pulitzer Prize in 1943 for his novel "Dragon's Teeth," said he and Mrs. Willis will be married at 11 a.m. Saturday in St. Ambrose Episcopal church in Claremont, home of the prospective bride.

"We never had any servants. I never even had a secretary. I'm something of a hermit."

Relatives said Mrs. Willis was born in Aiken, S.D., and lived many years in Birmingham, Ala. She has been a schoolteacher and Episcopal church worker. She has two daughters and a married granddaughter.

Sinclair said he now is revising an autobiography published in the 1930s and working on a new edition of a book on his former wife's mental telepathy experiments.

"I'm always working on a book," he said.

Judge Is Named For Ayden Court

AYDEN — The Ayden Town Board moved this week to name Larry Davis, judge of Ayden Recorder's Court to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge Leon Kittrell.

Davis was appointed vice recorder of the court in April when Kittrell became disabled and had served in the capacity of judge since that time. A lifelong resident of Ayden, he is a former city clerk and clerk of the court. At one time he was postmaster of the local Post Office, later transferring to the rural delivery service. Davis also has been a licensed tax accountant for a number of years.

Active in the community, he is a past president of the Ayden Rotary Club and a member of the First Baptist Church, where he has served as superintendent of the Sunday School for a number of years, is a past deacon and presently is church clerk.

Members of the board unanimously approved Davis' appointment. However, they deferred action on naming a vice recorder until the next regular meeting.

Mrs. Roosevelt Not Celebrating

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is 77 years old today, but she won't celebrate it.

Miss Maureen Corr, her secretary, said the former first lady has decided to mark her birthday only at five-year intervals.

"She won't give any special attention to her birthday now until she is 80," Miss Corr said.

Mr. Paul Hill Wins State Bank Prize Money

State Bank and Trust Company announced today that Paul Hill, 1305 Evans Street, Greenville, N. C., is the gentleman with the eagle eye and the IBM mind who won the "Guess How Much Is In The Bottle" contest. It was his guess . . . or calculation? . . . that won for him the contents of the giant Pepsi bottle. Mr. Hill's estimate of the amount in the bottle was $135.40, most accurate of all of the many hundreds who tried for the jackpot.

Payments Sent Agencies Of UF

Fourth quarter payments for the current year have been mailed to agencies of the Pitt County United Fund, President Walter B. Jones announced today.

Jones said checks mailed to the agencies and community service committees of the United Fund represented 88 per cent of the fourth quarter allotments. It is expected, he said, that receipt of additional payments on last year's pledges will enable the United Fund to pay agencies 100 per cent of the fourth quarter payment.

Agencies of the Pitt County United Fund, in addition to community services, include American Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Pitt County Mental Health Association, Pitt Association for the Blind, Salvation Army, Pitt County Association for Retarded Children, and Carolinas United.

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
What to do if you get the flu, how throat swabs may help stop some throat disease, and a new aid for heart surgeons are subjects for Focus on Health:

FLU THIS FALL?
Health experts warn another flu season approaches. While the chance of an epidemic cannot be predicted, certain protective measures can be taken. Pregnant women, the elderly and people with chronic diseases should be vaccinated.

Here are other suggestions from the Connecticut State Department of Health:
Stay away from sick people. If flu breaks out, keep away from crowds. Be sure to wash your hands well before eating—and don't use glasses or other utensils that others have used. Get plenty of sleep. Avoid being chilled. If you do get sick, call your doctor and go to bed—for your good and the good of others.

MEDICAL MESSENGER
A new attack against rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease involves the Post Office Department.

Chicago doctors are getting throat swab kits suitable for mailing as the latest aid to diagnosing the disease that brings on rheumatic fever. Caught in the early stages it can be cured. A type of streptococcus germ sets the stage for rheumatic fever. Doctors will be able to take a throat swab from a sick patient, seal it in an envelope and mail it to a laboratory where the type of germ can be identified. If the specimen is the dangerous kind, the doctor can find out quickly before rheumatic fever has a chance to develop. The mail-in system was devised by the Chicago Heart Association and Board of Health.

HEARTBEAT TRIGGER
In the heart there is a critical bundle of nerves which controls the heartbeat. Some children are born with defective hearts. For surgeons trying to repair those hearts, the heartbeat center is often a hazard.

An operation in which surgeons try to mend a hole between two chambers of the heart comes dangerously close to the heart-

Science Can Be More Than Cool

NEW YORK (AP)—An extremely deep freeze process, that has given birth to a new science, is producing some interesting results on the American technological front.

Called Cryogenics, this science's stock in trade is supercold, ranging nearly all the way down to absolute zero (minus 459 degrees Fahrenheit). This super cold is generated by liquified gases. By applying these gasses to common items and processes, says Steelways, the publication of the American Iron and Steel Institute, scientists have produced: microwave amplifiers hundreds of times more sensitive than present radar, natural gas converted into liquid form for easy shipments abroad, greater speed in computers and other electronic devices.

Full realization of Cryogenics' promise depends on successful fabrication of materials to store the super-cold gases, the magazine says. The steel industry recently has made what may become a significant breakthrough—a new steel that could cut 10 per cent from the cost of erecting storage vessels to hold the gases.

Must Pay Son Of Stompanato

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Lana Turner must pay $20,000 to the 13-year-old son of Johnny Stompanato, who was slain in her house.

Superior Court approved the settlement Monday. Stompanato was stabbed to death in Miss Turner's Beverly Hills home April 4, 1958, by her daughter, Cheryl Crane, now 17. A coroner's jury termed it justifiable homicide after the girl said Stompanato had threatened her mother. Stompanato's divorced wife, Sara Stompanato of Hammond, Ind., sought $750,000 from Miss Turner and her former husband, Stephen Crane. She claimed negligence caused the death and deprived Stompanato's son, John III, of support.

Mainz, Germany, is a manufacturing and commercial city of about 127,000.

102 Prisoners Paying Cost Of Their Keep

RALEIGH (AP)—For the first time in four years, the number of prisoners with work release privileges has passed 100. State Prisons Director George W. Randall reported Monday that 102 prisoners are paying the cost of their keep, paying their share of state and federal taxes, and supporting their dependents while serving sentences to the state prison system.

Prisoners with sentences of five years and under are eligible for the program. They keep their regular jobs, but spend leisure hours behind bars.

The Prison Department takes over their paychecks, makes deductions for the inmate's keep and personal expenses, and pays an amount to dependents. Any left over is held for the prisoner to receive on his release. Randall said work release inmates since 1957 have earned $157,000, and payments to dependents have amounted to $52,000. In some cases, this has eliminated welfare payments to dependents. In other cases, it has reduced the need for welfare assistance.

New Dramatic Anthology Recalls 'Playhouse 90'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—A dramatic anthology series with something of the quality of "Playhouse 90" made its debut on ABC Tuesday night.

The comparison between the two is inevitable because the first program of the weekly series and one of the last "Playhouse 90" dramas were pegged to the same theme: group psychiatric treatment. The "Premiere" theater's hour-long play "People Need People" was based on cases actually handled by Dr. Harry Wilmer, a physician who experimented with group handling of seriously disturbed male patients in a Navy hospital. "Playhouse 90's" treatment, "Journey to the Day," took place in a state institution and included women in the group.

Progress of Dr. Wilmer's first group, some 10 enlisted men and officers, was the plot of the show. There was particular concentration on the most violent patients, a Marine sergeant who arrived in a straightjacket and was both homicidal and suicidal. Lee Marvin played the disturbed man, and very authoritatively.

There was no banal happy ending or any quick cure, but the program held a hopeful note for the futures of many mental patients.

It was a gripping, well-knit drama, both thoughtful and constructive, if it is typical of the weekly series, we really have something to cheer about. Fred Astaire made his debut as host of the series, but didn't have much to do except greet us and tell us about next week.

NBC's "Hitchcock Presents" returned with its first new program of the season Tuesday night with format unchanged after six seasons. The story concerned a middle-aged biology professor caught throwing away a new woman's hat, a suspicious circumstance when combined with the fact that his wife had been away for a visit for some two months. Although the professor explained her absence to police convincingly, the audience learned the real inside story. The trouble was that the surprise ending was easy to anticipate. In fact, I recall an earlier Hitchcock story with the same general bone structure, except that it was played out in a museum instead of a laboratory.

Three Hollywood 'Greats' Working On One Film

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—In a time when the movie giants have been disappearing from the Hollywood scene, it's news when two of the remaining greats are working together.

Three, actually. James Stewart and John Wayne are being directed in "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" by another legendary figure, John Ford.

When I arrived on Stage 10 at P. amount, both stars were in the dressing rooms. Characteristically, Wayne was on the telephone. Stewart was on the couch. They scarcely had time to say hello when they were called to school.

At least it looked like a school—a canvas-enclosed classroom where the actors sat around a table and rehearsed the next scene. Stewart was taskmaster Ford, a rare figure with black eye patch, baseball cap, faded yachting jacket, rumpled cotton pants and brown and white saddle shoes.

Over and over Ford drilled his cast: Wayne and Stewart as the Western heroes, Edmund O'Brien and Ken Murray as the town's drunken editor and doctor, and Lee Marvin as the soon-to-beperforated Liberty Valance. "Okay, let's shoot it," said Ford.

The scene called for Marvin to try to get himself elected delegate to the territorial convention so he could sabotage statehood on behalf of his rancher bosses. Obviously he had no chance against the combined strength of Stewart and Wayne.

They appeared in their classic roles—Stewart as the lean, earnest lawyer in his Easterner's tweeds, Wayne as the rangy, slow-talking cowpoke with six-shooter dangling at the ready.

Two and a half hours later, they emerged from the scene for a brief respite.

"Never worked with Duke before," Stewart said. "Like to. Good working with Ford, too. Guy keeps a tight rein on the whole thing."

"He a good actor," Wayne said of his co-star. "You never have trouble working with good actors. It's the lousy ones who might be picking their noses or scratching their rear ends while you're doing your big scene. But they don't get away with it when a guy like Ford is directing."

Horse Responded With Swift Kick

YALE, Okla. (AP)—Eight-year-old Berry Hunter wound up with a swift kick when he chased a sick chick.

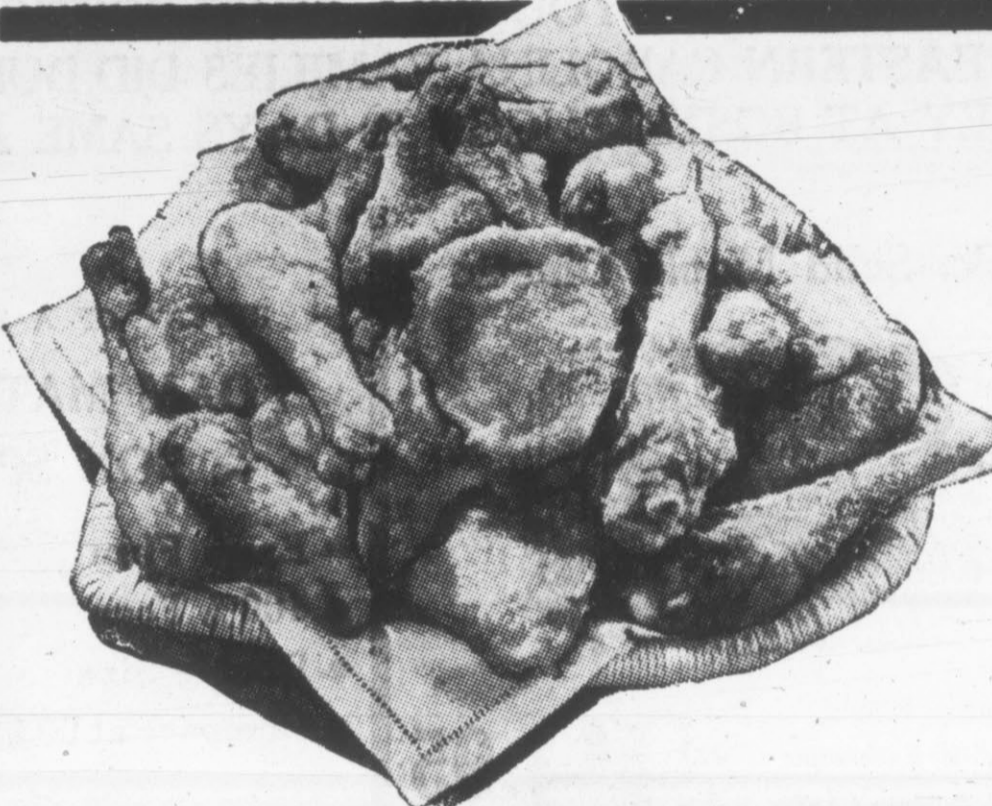

Berry was trying to chase down a lost chick and return it to the brood. But as he was about to sneak up on the chicken through tall grass, he inadvertently slipped up on a horse. The surprised horse responded with a kick that sent Berry head over heels. The chick took off—and Berry was taken to a hospital for treatment of head and face lacerations.

Lax About Lacks, Almost No Car

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP)—"Are you sure you had a car?" Judge Harry S. Wykoff asked a 20-year-old motorist brought before him in Municipal Court.

The young man was charged with operating an unsafe motor vehicle. Police said it lacked headlights, tail lights, emergency brakes and a horn. It also had an unconnected gearshift and loose seats, they said.

The motorist pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs. He indicated he would return the car to his home city by truck.

Uncle Sam Needs Double Mission For Some Specialists UAW's Top Board

Eligible and qualified residents of the Eastern North Carolina area are being offered direct commissions in the U. S. Army to fill vacancies in their specialized professions, according to J. H. Waldrop, member of the Greenville Army Advisory Committee.

The civilian specialists, along with qualified Army Reserve officers volunteering for active duty, are now needed, Waldrop said, in some 68 specialized fields ranging from hospital dietitian and other medical specialties to railway ruster mechanic and meat and dairy products inspection officers.

Civilians who qualify in any of the fields will be given direct appointments and called to active duty. In the case of Reserve officers, Waldrop said, those qualified and accepted will be called to active duty in their established military occupational specialties.

Commission grades offered range from company grade (second lieutenant, first lieutenant and captain) through field grade (major, lieutenant colonel and full colonel).

Waldrop urged interested individuals to contact the nearest Army installation, Reserve or National Guard advisor or Army recruiter for additional information.

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers' International Executive Board meets tonight with a double mission—to review the Ford Motor Co. negotiations and to consider what to do about the American Motors Corp. contract.

Top-level Ford and UAW negotiators were to resume sessions today on the last two national non-economic issues standing in the way of ending the nine-day-old strike of 120,000 hourly paid Ford workers.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, said there is a possibility of an all-night session tonight.

The union is driving to get a new contract in time to present it to a scheduled meeting of its Ford Council Thursday afternoon. The two remaining non-economic national problems at Ford are production standards and a union demand for more company-paid union representatives to handle plant grievances.

Reuther and Malcolm L. Denise, Ford vice president and company bargaining chief, said both issues were discussed Tuesday but nothing was decided.

Reuther said the executive board meeting will hear reports from UAW regional directors around the country on the progress of local Ford negotiations. The wage package already has been settled.

Another problem facing the board is that of the AMC contract rejection by Local 72 at Kenosha, Wis. The 12,000-member local, AMC's biggest, voted 1,507-1,444 against ratifying the profit-sharing contract. A majority of the locals have approved it.

George Romney, AMC president said the contract is "better than any contract in the industry. I am confident that when the people in Kenosha are completely informed, they will approve."

Of the 85 bargaining units at Ford, 42 have settled and 31 still have unresolved problems. Twelve had no local demands.

Annual Checkups For Eisenhowers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower were getting their annual physical checkups today at Walter Reed Army Medical Center here.

Officials at the hospital said the tests would be completed today or Thursday.

The Eisenhowers came by auto from their Gettysburg, Pa., home late Tuesday.

Eisenhower will be 71 Saturday.

President Plans News Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy holds a news conference today at 4:30 EDT. It will be his first before live television cameras since March 23, but press secretary Pierre Salinger says there is no special reason for the decision.

All of the television and radio networks plan live coverage of Kennedy's 16th presidential news conference.

Jenkins Says Pirate Club Can Help A Lot With Stadium Project

Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina College, told the Pirate Club last night that it could be very instrumental in the new stadium project by passing on the information and stadium plans to other organizations to help build up interest in the project.

Bulldogs To Host Elizabeth City

The C. M. Eppes Bulldogs will host Elizabeth City Friday night at 8 o'clock seeking their second win of the season in a homecoming contest.

The starting lineup for the Bulldogs this week will be sophomore Alton Harris and freshman Alton Daniels holding down the end positions.

In the backfield Coach Percy Daniels will have sophomore Willie Blount calling the signals at quarterback and senior Marvin Anderson will play fullback.

Coach Daniels stated today, "The Bulldogs started the season with a very green team. Thus, they have worked hard to get where they are."

Center Columbus Hunt has also done a fine job this season. He is extra fast, according to the coach, and has done a lot of downfield blocking.

Cromwell and Brown are two of the hardest hitting halfbacks the Bulldogs have ever had.

Brown has run the ball a great deal this year along with Johnny Tyson. Both boys have picked up valuable yardage for the Bulldogs.

Levon Little and Blount, quarterback and running back, are also doing some of these punting for the Eppes eleven.

Colts' Units Not Up To Par

BALTIMORE (AP) — Johnny Unitas has been a mystery to National Football League opponents of the Baltimore Colts for six years. But the all-pro quarterback has not been particularly hard to solve in four games so far this season.

Enemy defenders have picked off nine of his passes and his completion percentage has dropped to 49.4. Unitas also is far behind his pace of last year when he threw for 3,099 yards, an NFL record.

Coach Weeb Ewbank, who indicated Tuesday he might bench Unitas and start Lamar McHan Sunday against the Bears in Chicago, frankly admits he doesn't know for sure.

Ewbank said Unitas' sub-par performance so far stems partly from a sore finger. "I looked at his finger and it's swollen. It's sore, there's no question about it," said the Colt coach.

Speculation that Unitas has been rushed more this season than in past years was discounted by Ewbank. "We figure that in last Sunday's game, there were only four plays on which there was poor pass protection and that's average for any game," he said.

Against the Green Bay Packers, who stunned the Colts 45-7, Unitas clicked on only 11 of 24 passes. Five were intercepted.

A reticent player who won't offer alibis for his "off-days," Unitas has not been much help in explaining his dilemma. He hasn't even confided in Ewbank.

TO WHOM IS THE QUESTION

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Powerful Maryland, which has won one league game by beating Clemson, and has five more conference battles to go, has the rest of the Atlantic Coast Conference concerned.

The Terrapins won the double distinction Tuesday of being ranked 10th among the nation's major college football teams and having end Gary Collins named "Lineman of the Week."

Saturday, North Carolina visits Maryland and the Tar Heels have yet to show they have the horses to swing back into the win column after losing to Clemson last week 27-0.

North Carolina Coach Jim Hickey irked because of what he considered lack of effort in the Clemson game, drove his players hard for the second straight scrimmage session Tuesday.

Hickey said, "There's absolutely no excuse for it. We just didn't play. I don't anticipate it happening again."

Wake Forest, winless in its three games, worked hard on offense Tuesday with hopes of putting more zip into its play against Clemson Saturday.

Deacon Coach Billy Hildebrand said, "Our defensive work has improved tremendously but we have got to start moving the ball better."

At Clemson, the team concentrated on defense after being briefed on Deacon tactics. Duke underwent a rugged drill Tuesday with Coach Bill Murray hoping to clear up errors he saw in last week's game against Wake Forest in time for Saturday's tough tussle with Georgia Tech.

N.C. State worked on blocking and its passing game Tuesday to prepare for this week's game with Alabama, ranked third nationally. South Carolina worked on plays it expects to use against Louisiana State Saturday.

Coach Marvin Bass came up with a note of confidence: "I think we've played three pretty good teams (Duke, Wake Forest, and Georgia) already," said Bass. "No one has embarrassed us. We may upset a few teams, we aren't supposed to beat."

At Virginia, the Cavaliers rehearsed defensive assignments for Saturday's VMI game in Norfolk, Va. Virginia hasn't beaten VMI since 1956.

Today the main emphasis was to have been on defense as the Pirates prepare to meet Western Carolina here Saturday night.

Some time Tuesday was devoted to "just plain fundamentals" according to the Buc mentor. The latter part of the session was spent working on pass protection and pass patterns with some punting under pressure.

Sled work was in order at the end of the practice session.

Nugent Fooled By Collins' Height

By GEORGE BOWEN Associated Press Sports Writer COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Gary Collins is a bigger fellow than even Tom Nugent, his Maryland football coach, realized.

"We had him listed as 6 foot, 3 inches until we measured him the other day and found out he's an inch and a half taller," said Nugent.

At times, Collins must seem 10 feet tall to Maryland opponents. The senior end from Williamsport, Pa., has an uncanny knack for leaping above defenders and snagging touchdown passes.

After he grabbed one for a touchdown and another for the winning two-point conversion in last Saturday's 22-21 victory over Syracuse, Collins was picked "lineman of the week" today by The Associated Press as much for his defensive play.

"He's also our punter and when the going gets tough on defense, I have to get him in there," said Nugent. "So it's hard to give him a rest and when I can, I do it on offense."

For that reason, Collins' passing statistics aren't too impressive. He's caught only seven in Maryland's three victories. This was the second time Collins was named lineman of the Alabama, and Matt Black, Yale.

Nominated along with Collins for last week's play were ends Greg Mather, Navy; Tom Hutchinson, Kentucky; John Baker, Mississippi State and Sam Tidmore, Ohio State; tackles Bob Asack, Columbia, Jim Beaver, Florida, Jim Dunaway, Mississippi, and Tom Kopner, Louisiana State; John Kozaka, Massachusetts, and Fred Stockpole, Connecticut; centers Larry Onesti, Northwestern, Lee Roy Jordan, Northwestern, and Matt Black, Yale.

At Virginia, the Cavaliers rehearsed defensive assignments for Saturday's VMI game in Norfolk, Va. Virginia hasn't beaten VMI since 1956.

Today the main emphasis was to have been on defense as the Pirates prepare to meet Western Carolina here Saturday night.

Some time Tuesday was devoted to "just plain fundamentals" according to the Buc mentor.

The latter part of the session was spent working on pass protection and pass patterns with some punting under pressure.

Sled work was in order at the end of the practice session.

Drivers Begin Qualifying For Charlotte Race

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Against a background of near-record practice speeds, drivers began qualifying here today for Sunday's $50,000 National 400-mile stock car race.

A bonus of $500 has been posted for the first driver who breaks 140 miles per hour for a lap over the 1 1/2-mile high banked Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Several drivers came close to the 140 mark in practice laps Tuesday. Fred Lorenzen of Elmhurst, Ill., pushed his 1961 Ford up to 138.107 m.p.h., just short of the world's record of 138.710 for a 1 1/2-mile track.

The mark was set here in May by Marvin Panch of Daytona Beach, Fla., who got his Pontiac up to 136.329 in practice Tuesday.

Today's top speed will earn the coveted pole position for the Suncoast 400, which will pay $9,700, plus lap money, to the winner. The field will be limited to the fastest 44 cars, with qualifying to end Saturday morning.

Weekend Football Picks

By HAROLD CLAASSEN Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP)—Be sure to equip your TV set with a shatter proof screen for this weekend's viewing of the Michigan State at Michigan football game.

Each team has powerful and mobile linemen. Each, also, has speedy and versatile backs. But Michigan also has Bill Tunnell, a 230-pound fullback and he gives the Wolverines a slight edge.

Iowa over Indiana: The Hawkeyes have been sputtering in their first two games, but despite a long injury list among the Iowa backs, the Hoosiers haven't enough to hold their foes in check.

Alabama over North Carolina State: The Crimson Tide has yielded an average of only four points each to three foes stronger than State.

Texas over Oklahoma: The one-time Big Eight power will wear itself out trying to catch Jim Saxon and Jack Collins.

Mississippi over Houston: The Rebels' biggest worry will be to decide which of their three top teams to start.

Ohio State over Illinois: The line still too green even if the Buckeyes aren't as fierce as they were rated to be.

Notre Dame over Southern California: The Irish are on the way back as any team would be that had their backfield array.

Elsewhere: Baylor over Arkansas; Maryland over North Carolina; Louisiana State over South Carolina; Northwestern over Minnesota; Washington over California; Georgia Tech over Duke; Miami over Colorado; Navy over Cornell.

Friday Night: Boston College over Detroit, Tulane over Virginia Tech. Saturday EAST: Holy Cross over Boston University, Rutgers over Bucknell, Dartmouth over Brown, Harvard over Colgate, Penn State over Army, Pittsburgh over West Virginia, Princeton over Penn, Villanova over Buffalo, Yale over Columbia. SOUTH: Auburn over Chattanooga, Clemson over Wake Forest, Davidson over Presbyterian, Florida State over Georgia, Furman over Howard, Kentucky over Kansas State, Memphis State over Mississippi Southern, Mississippi State over Arkansas State, George Washington over Richmond, Tennessee over Tulsa, Virginia Military over Virginia, William & Mary over The Citadel.

Houston, New York Buy Teams At $2 Million Each

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — At a cost of nearly two million dollars each, Houston and New York have assembled teams today that probably will battle it out for ninth place in 1962 in the expanded Western National League. The only hope for the Colts and Mets to finish among the first eight is to improve the club through trades, purchases or the sudden emergence of thus far unheralded bonus youngsters.

Despite the seemingly meager pickings in Tuesday's regular and special draft, players from the eight established National League clubs, both President George Weiss of the Mets and General Manager Paul Richards of the Colts appeared satisfied, at least outwardly.

"We have a strong nucleus for a fine club in a short time," said Richards. "From now on, we ask no favors from anyone."

"We went for fellows who had been top players," explained Weiss, "and we got most of them. We went for young pitching and hitters tailored for the Polo Grounds. I think Houston has the edge over us in infielders while we have the edge in pitching."

If the Colts and Mets were to open the 1962 National League season tomorrow, here is how the starting teams probably would shape up:

Colts	position
Norm Laker	1b
Joe Amalfitano	2b
Bob Aspromonte	3b
Eddie Bressoud	ss
Al Spangler	lf
Al Heist	cf
Don Tausig	rf
Hal Smith	c
Sam Jones	p
Mets
Gil Hodges	1b
Don Zimmer or Elio Chacon	2b
Lee Walls	3b
Felix Mantilla	ss
Gus Bell	lf
Bobby Gene Smith	cf
John Demerit	rf
Hobie Landrith	c
Roger Craig	p

Don't bet that these lineups will prevail opening day. Both clubs already have asserted they intend to be active in the trade mart this winter.

"Please don't think this is our opening day lineup," said Weiss.

"We hope to make some trades and acquire new players by purchase." "We already know we can trade a couple of the players to other clubs, who have expressed an interest in them. I look for lots of interleague trading this winter."

The Mets, in an effort to get power, concentrated mostly on veteran players, except for pitcher.

Pirates Leading In Total Offense

GREENSBORO (AP)—East Carolina, the only unbeaten, untied team in the Carolinas Conference, took over the total offense lead this week from Newberry, which suffered its first loss.

The Pirates, relying mainly on a strong ground game, have averaged 270.2 yards per game, rolling up 1,081 yards in four contests.

Of that total, 872 yards have come on the ground, where the Bucs also lead with an average of 218.0. Newberry held on to second in total offense with 296.2 yards per game.

Elton took over undisputed possession as the passing leader. The Christians have attempted 56 aerials in four games, connecting on 25 for 360 yards and 90 yards a game.

Defensively, Newberry dominates the conference. Coach Harvey Kirkland's teams leads both the total defense and rushing defense.

Newberry has limited its four foes to 182 total yards per game and an average of 129 on the

Layne Sidelined, May Be Through

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An injury has sidelined Bobby Layne of the Pittsburgh Steelers, but the veteran quarterback vows he'll be back in the lineup before the end of the season.

Coach Buddy Parker feels Layne is through for the year. Layne played only a brief time against Los Angeles and last week he did not dress for the Philadelphia game.

He is suffering from hematoma on the left side of his body. Hematoma is a tumor or swelling containing blood.

The Colts stressed youth, speed and defense. The Mets picked up 22 players which cost them $1,800,000. The Colts spent $1,850,000 for 23 players.

New York took 7 pitchers, 6 infielders, 6 outfielders and 3 catchers. The premium $125,000 players include Don Zimmer of Chicago and infielder-outfielder Lee Walls of Philadelphia.

Houston got 9 pitchers, 7 infielders, 5 outfielders and 2 catchers. Its premium players were catcher Hal Smith of Pittsburgh, pitcher Dick Farrell of Los Angeles, infielder Joey Amalfitano of San Francisco and outfielder Al Spangler of Milwaukee.

Turley, Arroyo Aren't Waiting

NEW YORK (AP) — For most of the New York Yankees, the main business at hand today was to sit back and wait for their fair World Series checks.

Not so for Bob Turley and Luis Arroyo. Both pitchers have operations scheduled. Turley's is important. It could send him back on the firing line as one of the top Yank hurlers. Arroyo's is a cyst on his wrist.

"I'm going into the hospital to have some bone chips removed from my right elbow this week," said Turley, the hero of the 1958 World Series.

"If it is successful, and I sure hope it is, I'll have the entire winter to recuperate. Then maybe I can start throwing hard in the spring. This has been a tough year for me. I wouldn't want to have another line like it."

Turley won only three games all season. He was sidelined with a sore arm in early May, and when it didn't come around, he was placed on the disabled list.

Reliever Arroyo was scheduled to go in the hospital with Turley for the cyst removal, but instead he's heading home for Ponce, Puerto Rico, where his youngest daughter is ailing.

"My operation can wait," said Arroyo. "Right now the only thing on my mind is to see my daughter. I'll be back as soon as she is all right."

Appalachian leads in pass defense, limiting opponents to 35.2 yards per game and 18 pass completions.

U.S. Davis Cup Team Playing Italians Next

ROME (AP)—Four young men carrying America's hopes for the Davis Cup planned to pour it on today in their last intensive practice before facing Italy's seasoned tennis squad in the interzone finals this weekend.

The U.S. and Italian teams will know tonight who faces who in the opening singles matches. Friday on the clay courts of the Rome Tennis Club, David Freed, non-playing captain of the American Davis Cuppers, said it matters little which Italian—Fausto Gardini or Nicola Pietrangeli — gets the opening assignment.

"They are both good and it wouldn't make any difference," said Freed.

He's definitely set on Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., in the singles. By the time the drawings are begun, Freed will have decided whether Donald Dell of Bethesda, Md., or Jon Douglas of Santa Monica, Calif., will handle the other match.

By tonight Freed also must decide who will pair with Dell for the doubles.

Douglas' strong showing in practice makes him the likely choice, although a determined Martin Riessen of Hinsdale, Ill., is in the running.

Ohio State Head-Knocking Workouts Prove Costly

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
They really knock heads together at Ohio State's football drills. It's getting costly.

The seventh-ranked Buckeyes lost two men with head injuries Tuesday as they went through tier paces in a midweek head-knocking drill for Saturday's opening Big Ten conference clash with Illinois.

Left end Chuck Bryant had to be carried off the field on a stretcher after being knocked unconscious in a collision. Moments later left tackle Boy Vogel was formed to the sidelines when he was hit in the head. Both are expected to be ready for the Illinois game.

around the nation as college football's elite collided in preparation for upcoming tests, with Illinois, Michigan, Southern California, Syracuse, Missouri, Iowa and Navy among others reporting serious injuries to key personnel.

The Illinois lost quarterback Mike Tallafiero for the rest of the season when the team physician ordered the signal-caller removed from the roster after checking a nerve injury in Tallafiero's neck. Fullback Mike Summers and linebacker Joe Mota did not take part in the scrimmage.

Michigan's sixth-ranked Wolverines will be shy two key linemen for their nationally televised test against fifth-ranked Michigan. First-string right guard Joe O'Donnell and replacement Lou Pavloff have not recovered from their injuries.

Southern Cal's Trojans will face eighth-ranked Notre Dame Saturday without the services of halfback Willie Brown, who has a torn ligament in his right foot. Syracuse, which meets Nebraska, learned Soph tackle John Pasillo has a broken left wrist and probably is out for the year.

Quarterback Ron Taylor was sidelined with a thigh injury as Missouri worked out for its Big Eight conference opener against Oklahoma State. He may be back for the clash but halfback Gerald Stevenson definitely is lost and fullback Andy Russell remains a question mark.

Iowa's second-ranked Hawkeyes, preparing for Indiana, drilled for two hours while quarterback Wilburn Hollis watched from the bench with his arm in a cast. Others on the injured list are centers Bill Van Buren and Dayton Perry, tackle Al Hinton and halfbacks Bernie Wyatt and Larry Ferguson.

End Ed Gill will miss Navy's game with Cornell due to a virus infection, and will be replaced by sophomore Jim Campbell, who has been a stalwart on the defensive unit.

Elsewhere, Oklahoma moved Duane Cook to left tackle in place of injured Tof Cox for the Texas meeting. Nebraska may be without linemen Mickey Tinselhoff, Ed Mitchell and Bob Browne for its game against Syracuse, missed Minnesota's workout and UCLA end Mel Profit is in the hospital with an injury suffered against Ohio State.

Hockey Season Opens In Boston

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins and New York Rangers open the National Hockey League season tonight at Boston Garden with both teams showing new faces.

The Boston club wound up last season in the cellar; the Rangers in fifth place.

The Bruins have six rookies on their roster. New York has four.

Boston made a last-minute addition to its roster by calling up Tom Williams of the Kingston, Ont. Frontenacs, a Bruins farm team in the Eastern Professional League.

He will remain with the Bruins for their first two games, at least, said General Manager Lynn Patrick.

FIRST CHOICE
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Mississippi, the nation's No. 1 football team, heads a list of 10 teams under consideration for the Gator Bowl game Dec. 30.

The selection committee also lists two from the Atlantic Coast Conference—Maryland and Duke.

Royal Links Is A Tough Course

By RONALD THOMSON
LYTHAM ST. ANNE'S, England (AP) — America's Ryder Cup golfers agreed today that, come wind or rain, or both, this royal links is a true and tough test for the biennial match against Britain Friday and Saturday.

The Yanks reached this unanimous opinion after playing their first practice rounds over the Lytham St. Anne's course in a drizzling rain, but without the wind that can turn the layout into 6,635 yards of treachery.

"It's a real tight course," said Gene Littler, U.S. Open champion, after playing his first 18 holes over British soil.

"You have to hit the ball straight. If you don't—well, brother you're in trouble."

The Ryder Cup battle—14th in the series and won 10 times by the United States—is certain to draw huge crowds to this vacation coastline in England's northwest.

Upwards of 10,000 people are expected to swarm over the sea-side links on each day of the match—eight foursomes on Friday and 16 singles on Saturday, all over 18 holes, morning and afternoon under the new revised Ryder Cup system.

"The course is in terrific condition," said Mike Souchak, of Grossinger, N.Y. "It only penalizes you when you get where you're not supposed to be."

Jay Herbert, the U.S. team's 38-year-old bachelor, said: "This course is going to need a lot of local knowledge. It's got plenty of hidden traps, but I guess we'll have the feel of it before the match starts."

American captain Jerry Barber ended his first practice round with raindrops dripping from his glasses.

"Sometimes I think the English have an automatic sprinkling system which they turn on whenever foreigners come here to play," Barber said.

SIDELINE STEP—Detroit Lions coach George Wilson points toward field during play in game between his team and Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee. Lions won.

49ers Lead Loop In Offense Dept.

NEW YORK (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers have moved out front as the National Football League's leading team on offense.

The 49ers and their explosive "shotgun" attack have mustered a total of 1,470 yards through the defenses of Washington, Green Bay, Detroit and Los Angeles, the NFL's weekly statistical charts showed today. San Francisco has won three games and lost one.

The Chicago Bears, despite their 2-2 record, have made the second best showing on offense. The Bears have picked up 1,307 yards. Dallas is third with 1,289.

The 49ers lead the league in total rushing yardage with 686, the best pass completion average with 58.8, the most touchdowns with 18, the most touchdowns on running plays with 13 and the most points with 129.

Caddy Leon Salkowski of Wethersfield, Conn. collects golf score cards from all over the world. He has 750 in his collection and he's only 14.

AFL-CIO Leaders Appear Unwilling To Battle Hoffa

NEW YORK (AP)—Organized labor's leadership, having refused to take back the expelled Teamsters Union, appeared equally unwilling today to declare open war on James R. Hoffa's controversial truck drivers organization.

After overwhelmingly voting down a proposal to end a four-year Teamsters exile for alleged corruption, the AFL-CIO Executive Council met to consider forming a rival union to try to snatch members away from Hoffa.

Hoffa replied to the challenge at Portland, Ore., saying: "We'll meet them anywhere, any time, and we'll come out on top."

Hoffa told the Western Conference of the Teamsters Union that the Teamsters are not asking to return to the AFL-CIO. If they ever did so, he added, it would be with the understanding that they could run their own affairs and organize workers without worrying about jurisdiction.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, made a counterdrive against the 1.5 million-member Teamsters look attractive by reporting here that some 100 of the nearly 900 Teamsters locals have applied to quit Hoffa's outfit and come into the main labor federation.

However, Meany's fellow AFL-CIO chiefs seem to have little appetite for an all-out fight against Hoffa's powerful Teamsters.

One top federation leader predicted that issuing a formal welcome to locals defecting from Hoffa's union is about as far as the AFL-CIO leaders are ready to go.

The labor chiefs, for one thing, don't feel overly optimistic about outdoing Hoffa for members in his own trucking industry field.

Secondly, day-to-day working relationships with Teamsters have continued right along at state and local labor echelons despite the fireworks set off at the top union level after Senate disclosures involving Hoffa and his predecessor, Dave Beck, as Teamsters president.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council voted 24-3 to refuse to invite the Teamsters back so long as Hoffa runs the union. Those voting to invite him back were Presidents Joseph Curran of the Maritime Workers, A. Philip Randolph of the Sleeping Car Porters, and David J. McDonald of the Steelworkers.

Meany said the lopsided vote represented a feeling that Hoffa is "unfit" to head a trade union. He said that from all indications the Teamsters are more dominated now by corrupt and criminal elements than when the union was ousted in 1957.

In order for the Teamsters to be accepted back, Meany said, they will have to conform to the AFL-CIO ethical practices code, and Hoffa should take a cue from the Bible and "go off into the wilderness for a year and repent."

Petrillo Pension Spoiled Harmony

CHICAGO (AP)—The sound of the Chicago Federation of Musicians Union meeting was anything but harmonious during a debate over the amount of pension that should be granted the local's veteran maestro.

But harmony was restored, more or less, when the maestro himself, James C. Petrillo, took the podium Tuesday and waived a pension, stipulating that the money be used to set up the James C. Petrillo Music Appreciation Fund.

The fund, to be used to present music education and performances in grade schools, will be financed by the local at the rate of $25,000 a year, beginning Jan. 1.

But before Petrillo, president of the local for 39 years, agreed to this proposal by one of 600 members at the local's annual meeting the debate was loud and long and punctuated with sour notes.

The local's directors had proposed that Petrillo, 69, be pensioned at full salary, $500 a week, when he retires—if he does. In 1958 Petrillo retired as president of the American Federation of Musicians after holding office 18 years. He declined the federation's offer of $20,000 pension.

At Tuesday's meeting, several delegates presented proposals for lesser pensions. Lillian Poenisch, a clarinet player, suggested the music foundation for school children.

During the dissonance over the size of the pension, a baldheaded member spoke in favor of $25,000, crediting Petrillo for the union's being "in the black for $5 million."

But a red-haired woman who works in clubs wanted to know why Petrillo should get $500 a week pension while some members get none at all. She suggested $100 a week.

Petrillo injected in tremulo, "I fought for a principle. I'll continue to fight for principle until I'm dead. Give me what you're going to give me with your heart. You're not going to give it to me with muscle."

The next annual meeting and election of officers is scheduled for November 1962.

Newsman asked Petrillo his plans after the meeting. "I don't know what I'm going to do," he said.

REV. L. B. SCARBOROUGH, Minister of the Holloway Street Christian Church of Durham, will be guest evangelist at the fall revival at Red Oak Christian Church. He will speak for the Homecoming Day service at 11:00 a.m., October 15, and services will continue through Friday night at 7:30 each evening. A Fellowship Hour of singing will follow the dinner. The Rev. Mr. Scarborough is a former minister of Red Oak Christian Church.

Seven Years Of Faith In People

SPARTA, Wis. (AP)—Thomas O'Hearn told an employe in his grocery in 1954 that he thought most people are honest. To prove it, O'Hearn put a dollar bill on the visor of his car in full sight.

The bill was stolen from O'Hearn's unlocked car, but not until it had remained there for seven years.

On the dollar, O'Hearn had written, "I believe people are honest. If you take this dollar, I won't believe that any more."

Outlines Goals At Rotary Meet

AYDEN — Rotarian Thelbert Worthington presented a program on the Vocational Service Committee of the Ayden Rotary Club at a meeting Friday at the Community Building.

Worthington, program chairman for the evening and chairman of the committee, outlined work that the committee hopes to do and the goals it will strive to attain this year.

He was assisted by Guy Corbett, Walter Stroud and S. F. Peterson, sub-committee chairmen, who spoke briefly on their plans for this year's work.

It was announced that the annual Pancake Supper will be held Nov. 3. Other details will be given later.

During the evening, Cleveland Paylor instigated a new feature called "Thirty-four Years Ago Today" by reading from Oct. 13, 1927 "Ayden Dispatch" on the Rotary Club's meeting the previous week of Oct. 6, 1927.

Visitors of the club were Vanceboro Rotarian Dick Cannon and Berryle Garner, president of the Newport Rotary Club.

Gwynn Merritt, president presided.

Gin Caused The 'Dead' Telephone

PILSWORTH, England (AP)—It was gin that made the telephone in the Three Arrows pub go dead around closing time each night.

"You might say the phone got dead drunk," said the manager, Stanley Payne.

The phone went out like a light every night and came on again in the morning. Repairmen could find nothing wrong.

Then one of them spotted the gin bottle, upended for quick, measured service, hanging above the phone.

During the pub's trading hours, they found, drips from the bottle were falling on the phone. The gin was seeping into the mechanism, putting it out of action.

By morning the gin in the phone had evaporated and the mechanism worked again.

Payne has moved the phone to a dry spot.

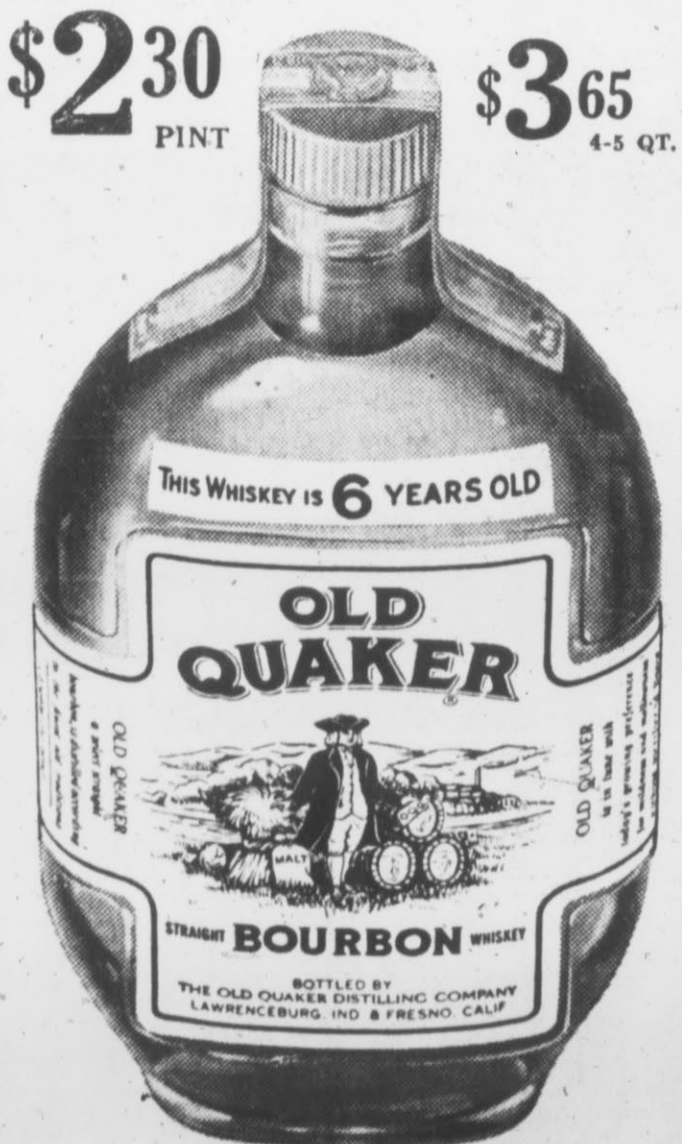

Machine To Pick Vacation Spots

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—An electronic brain which picks a vacation spot where the tourist will enjoy himself is on view at an office-machine exhibition in Hamburg.

The prospective vacationer who doesn't know where to go answers six questions for a clerk who punches them on a tape and feeds it to the robot. Distance he wants to travel, size of the town, scenery, comforts required, sports interests and whether he wants quiet or lots of company.

The experimental machine, called the "Zuse Z23," has more than 500 vacation spots on file.

Gradual Spread In Desegregating; No New Violence

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A survey of 17 Southern and Border states showed today that 31 more school districts were desegregated this fall.

Southern School News, which maintains special correspondents in all the states, said 392 Negroes enrolled in the previously white schools 31 districts. But three Deep South states—Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina—maintained their segregated policies.

Among those admitting Negroes for the first time were Dallas, Tex., Atlanta, Ga., and Memphis, Tenn. Dallas admitted 18 Negroes, Memphis 13 and Atlanta 9.

For the second year in a row, the survey showed, public schools opened this fall without violence in any of the Dixie or Border states.

Six public colleges and universities revised their policies to admit Negroes and white students to the same institutions. They are Georgia Tech, Texas Tech, Texas Women's University, St. Petersburg (Fla.) Junior College, Charlotte (N.C.) College and Asheville-Biltmore (N.C.) College.

Southern School News said incomplete enrollment figures indicated an increase in the number of Negroes attending classes with white students in schools previously desegregated.

The survey showed 6,599 school districts in the 17 Southern and Border states and the District of Columbia. Of these, 824 have been desegregated.

Teacher Prefers Numbers Games

HONOLULU (AP)—School teacher John Flanagan of Adelaide, Australia, who once taught mathematics with a dartboard, believes arithmetic can be fun. He hopes soon to publish a numbers dictionary and textbook "to eliminate completely all work, drudgery and boredom from arithmetic and make it fun and games for the kiddies."

Flanagan started making arithmetic games 16 years ago when he taught in a one-room schoolhouse in the bush country of Australia. His system—concentrating on making arithmetic a numbers game involving practical objects.

"For a while I taught arithmetic by having my students throw darts at a board and then work problems involving the scores," he said. "The game element is terrific but the school inspector made me give it up. He said it was too dangerous."

Flanagan said he accomplished the same objective by devising a deck of numbered playing cards for children. "They're not nearly as dangerous as darts—if you don't get the habit."

PHS Licenses 2nd Oral Polio Vaccine-Maker

WASHINGTON (AP)—The second of three oral polio vaccines has been licensed by the Public Health Service for manufacture by a pharmaceutical firm.

Pfizer, Ltd., will make the Type 2 Sabin oral vaccine at Sandwich, England. It also received the license for Type 1 vaccine last Aug. 17. The third type of oral vaccine is not expected to be available for several months, the health service said.

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry stressed that Salk polio vaccine—given in a series of shots—is the only vaccine available that protects against all three types of polio.

Terry said the health service is ordering 1.8 million doses—at 9 cents a dose—of the tasteless, colorless Type 2 vaccine to go in its epidemic stockpile at Atlanta, Ga.

New York's Candidates For Mayor Argue Issues In Television Debate

NEW YORK (AP)—The two major party candidates for mayor clashed over political ethics, bossism, fund-raising practices and other issues as they debated on television Tuesday night.

Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner and State Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz, his Republican opponent, appeared for an hour on a program similar to the Kennedy-Nixon debates in last year's presidential campaign.

The public service program was carried by station WPIX, owned by the New York Daily News. The candidates replied to questions asked by three newspapermen commented on each other's replies and delivered summaries at the end.

Wagner, seeking a third four-year term, said Lefkowitz is a "boss-picked candidate."

Lefkowitz, who has the active support of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and other GOP leaders, declared he has acted without interference during five years as the state's top law officer and would continue to do so if elected mayor.

Wagner said bossism has been eliminated in the Democratic party here since the Sept. 7 primary election in which he and his running mates won nomination over a ticket backed by the city's Democratic leaders.

Lefkowitz blasted the recent Democratic luncheon at which $25,000 was pledged to Wagner's campaign fund. Two score men at the luncheon—including a number of real estate men and builders doing business with the city—answered a roll call and made their pledges. Wagner, who attended the luncheon, said later he had had no knowledge that any of those present was dealing with the city. After the luncheon became a hot political issue, he rejected the pledges.

Lefkowitz, discussing a Republican breakfast meeting on the TV program, made an obvious reference to the Democratic luncheon by saying of the GOP gathering: "There was no extortion, no hitting on the head, no effort to get persons doing business with the state to give—or else."

Wagner said it would be interesting to see if Lefkowitz would make public a list of those who attended the GOP breakfast "to see if the bankers who are responsible for financing the Republican party and therefore own the Republican party" made campaign contributions.

Among those at the breakfast were former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Lefkowitz and Rockefeller.

Lefkowitz said in the debate that the breakfast was for 250 campaign workers, and no funds were raised.

Lefkowitz denounced crime conditions in the city. Wagner replied that every large city in the world has similar law enforcement problems. He claimed New York City's record is good in comparison with other major American cities.

Lefkowitz said Wagner is asking for four more years at city hall in the Nov. 7 election "to clean up the mess he made in eight years."

Wagner said he and his aides have taken the lead in uncovering wrongdoing in the city administration and the administration would never "sweep anything under the rug."

Shortly before the debate, city Republican leaders announced that Eisenhower will throw his influence into the campaign by speaking at a GOP dinner at the Coliseum Oct. 24.

Commercial Manned Space Flights Coming

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—If your children are eager to go rocketing into space, tell them to start saving their money.

Commercial manned space flights could be a reality by 1975-80, a space researcher predicted today.

Space transportation techniques are expected to develop rapidly in the next 20 years, greatly reducing the cost of a round-trip from earth into an orbit, or to the moon, said H. H. Koelle of the George E. Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala. This could be the timetable.

Koelle told the space flight report to the nation sponsored by the American Rocket Society:

Large, orbiting space stations carrying men in 1968-69.

A permanent, manned station on the moon, 1970.

A lunar settlement by 1975.

Manned expeditions to other planets starting in the 1972-74 period.

Round-trips from earth to low latitude orbits involving 5,000 men every year by 1975. Several men would be involved in each trip.

About 500 annual man round-trips from earth to moon by 1975.

Commercial manned space flights developing in the 1975-80 period.

"It will be witnessed by the middle-aged generation of today, with the younger generation of today taking an active part in it," Koelle suggested.

His prepared paper did not estimate the cost of the round-trip ticket into orbital flight or to the moon.

But he said space flights could become relatively economical, with commercial interests developing in it, through bigger launching rockets, greater reliability of such rockets, return of the rockets as they could be used again, more efficient propulsion systems, and eventual use of resources outside the earth.

KP Profitable For 11-Year-Old

TURON, Kan. (AP)—Eleven-year-old Bobby Fluke is proof that girls aren't the only ones who like to cook.

Young Bobby started in the fourth grade when he needed a 4-H club project. He began with sandwiches, then progressed to cookies, gingerbread and finally cakes. He has won 32 blue ribbons with his cold water white and chocolate special cake. And he delivers them daily to a local cafe for $1.25 each.

This summer he prepared three meals for members of the Turon Lyons Club. One time it was fried chicken, mashed potatoes and cole slaw; the next cold cuts and potato salad, and the last, a ham loaf.

Bobby's baking has netted him a bank balance of more than $125. But he is still a typical boy. He plays basketball, softball, and football, wrestles with his two brothers and helps on the family farm.

Does he want to be a professional cook when he grows up? "No, I don't like to do the dishes," he replied.

Mainz, Germany, the cradle of modern printing, will celebrate the 2,000th anniversary of its founding in 1962.

Jesse James and his gang hid out at Meramec Caverns, Stanton, Mo., for 15 years.

Koelle said his study should not be taken to mean such capabilities are planned or would necessarily be desirable from the national viewpoint.

But he said "one can conclude that the outlook for economic space flight is promising."

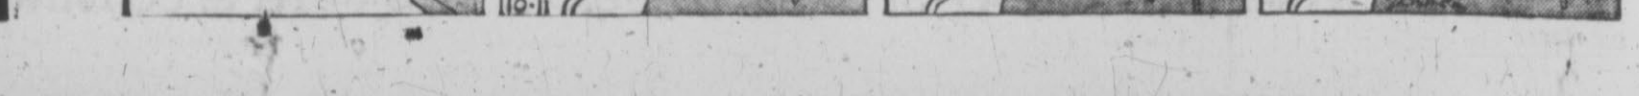

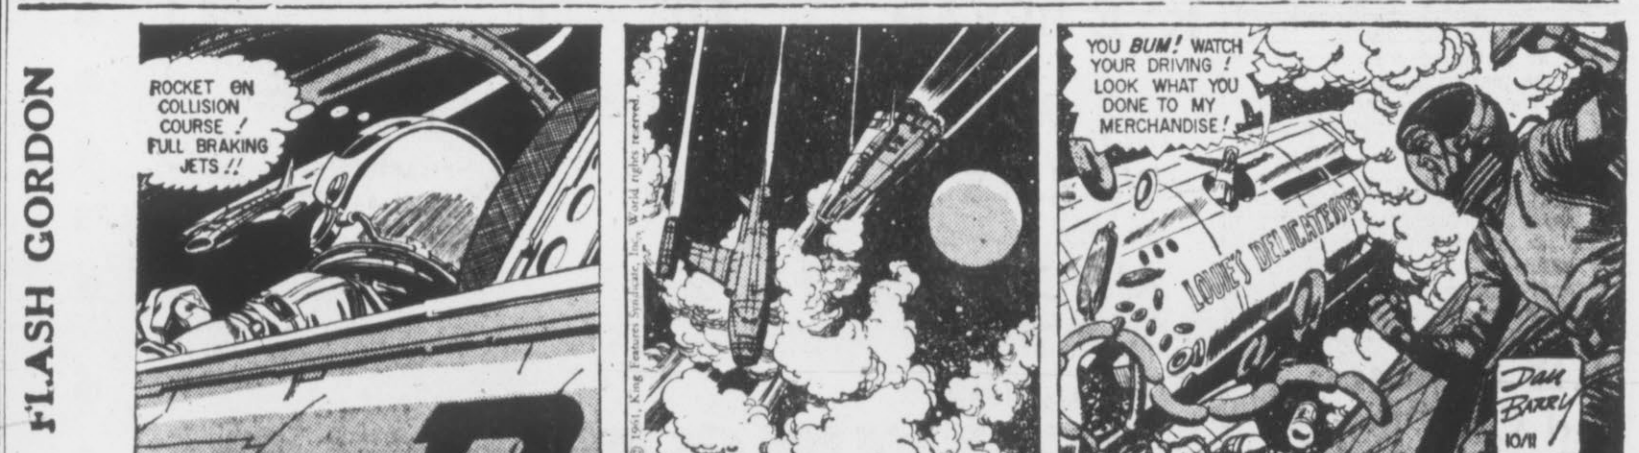

Koelle is director of the Future Projects Office at the Huntsville center.

Hints Riots Set Off By Reds

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The home minister of India's largest state hinted Tuesday that the Hindu-Muslim riots that caused 32 deaths there were Communist-inspired.

Charan Singh said in the manner in which the disorders spread throughout Uttar Pradesh State "leads one to suspect there is a conspiracy behind these incidents."

He would single out no faction but said that students who rioted at Aligarh Muslim University looted every bookstore in the town except one offering Communist literature.

Had A Grudge Against Board

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP)—Fred Babish, 21, walked into the draft board office Monday with a baseball bat and started swinging. Before he was subdued by patrolmen, he had smashed six windows, ruined several venetian blinds and chased the clerks into the hallway. Babish told police he had "a grudge against the board." He was charged with malicious mischief and disorderly conduct.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market showed cautious irregularity early this afternoon as uncertainties continued in the labor picture and on the international front. Trading was moderate.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up a minimum .10 at 256.50 with industrials unchanged, rails up .20 and utilities unchanged.

The Ford strike dragged into its second week and Ford stock was weak, adversely affecting others in its group.

The buildup in Communist military forces in "maneuvers" of the Warsaw Pact powers near West Germany's border was a disquieting influence as diplomacy remained stalled on the Berlin crisis.

Changes of most key stocks were small and there was some strong action by selected issues not represented in market averages. On balance, blue chips remained fairly steady although there was a casualty here and there.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .53 at 706.14. Prices on the American Stock Exchange were generally higher in moderate trading.

Corporate bonds advanced. U.S. government bonds showed signs of steadying after a series of declines.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets steady. Supplies adequate, demand good. Prices paid producers for clean, ungraded eggs delivered nearby grading stations 67¢ a grade-yield basis, cassettes exchanged; grade A large, whites 44-45; medium, whites 33-33; small, whites 20-21 1/2.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog markets mostly steady. Tops of 19-19.50 at Rocky Mount; 18-19.25 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Newton Grove, Mount Olive, Wilson and Murfreesboro; 18-25 at Bethel and Spring Hope; 18-18.50 at Pembroke; 19 at Clinton, Fayetteville, Elizabethtown and Pink.

Rehearsal will be held at the church Thursday at 7:30 p.m. for the Sweet Hope Senior Choir.

Les Gaylenettes Social Club will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Vana Mae Allen on Fleming St.

The J. A. Nimmo Jubilee Singers of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church will not have rehearsal tonight. The group will present the music at Cornerstone Baptist Church Thursday night.

AYDEN—All parents are asked to meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at South Ayden High School for a business meeting.

AYDEN—Quarterly meeting will be held at Little Creek Disciple Church Saturday and Sunday. Conference will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday and holy communion Saturday night.

Sunday school will be held at 9:30 a.m. and the sermon at 11 a.m. will be by the pastor, The Rev. C. E. Williams will be the speaker at 3 p.m. and music by the Grainger Chapel Choir.

The Senior Choir has rehearsal on Wednesday nights and the Junior Choir on the first and third Thursday nights.

One Of Children Recognized Tragedy

Bond Rally . . .

It are not for the cynics or the selfish.

The purpose of the rally, he continued, is "not to talk theoretically." "We are," he said, "concerned with an immediate task—the successful completion of which may well be determined by the leadership you can exert on this campus and the effectiveness of students at other state supported institutions. I am referring to the $61,665,000 capital improvement bond issue to be voted on November 7. It is no secret that our state will take a great step backward if this is defeated."

If the $31,000,000 capital improvements program for the state's educational institutions is lost, Dr. Jenkins declared, education "will not be available to the many thousands of young people who would and should follow you . . ."

"Fortunately," he assured students, "you are in a position to prevent this. I am not being unrealistic," he asserted, "when I say that our college students throughout the state can produce 50,000 favorable votes at this election."

Dr. Jenkins told students that the campus rally here was sponsored by the Student Citizens Committee for a Better North Carolina and was part of a statewide student movement in support of progress.

Bill Harris, president of the Student Government Association at the University of North Carolina, he said, heads activities of the organization. Under Harris' leadership, he announced, radio and television releases and newspaper articles in support of the Bond Issue are being prepared by students in various state colleges.

A special feature of the committee's program, he stated, will be a Marathon from the Tennessee border to the Atlantic Ocean. Runners from the two tip ends of North Carolina will bear the Torch of Learning for a meeting at a central point in the state.

Dr. Jenkins informed students that the other nine items included in the Bond Issue are also of prime importance to the building of North Carolina into a better state.

Norris Tolson, president of the Student Association at N. C. State College, urged East Carolina students to "get out and do a job" for the issue. "It is time," he declared, "for students to stand up and be counted."

The Bond Issue, he said, is "oriented toward providing a better North Carolina for us as students and as citizens." The job of working for the entire bond issue is not one solely for the politicians and the elder citizens, he told the audience. "It is your and my responsibility to exert our best efforts toward a favorable vote on November 7."

Otis Strother of Wilmington, president of the East Carolina Student Government Association, described the Bond Issue as "a tool with which to build a bigger and better North Carolina."

In a democracy, he said, the people control. "If we, the students, as people of the state get out and work," he maintained, "we can do much to assure the approval of the Bond Issue."

Representative Thomas H. Woodard of Wilson, chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of the 1961 N. C. House of Representatives, told students that items included in the Bond Issue had been studied with great care in the General Assembly before being presented to the people. "I sincerely urge you to support the Bond Issue that will so greatly affect this institution and other institutions of the state," he said.

President Jenkins read a telegram from L. P. McLendon of Greensboro in which the chairman of the State Board of Higher Education described a defeat for the Bond Issue as a "tragedy for hundreds of students in the state."

Students present at the rally this morning indicated their support by an enthusiastic waving of hands in response to the challenge presented by speakers.

Platform guests this morning included J. Herbert Waldrop of Greenville, chairman of the East Carolina College, Board of Trustees.

Music by the East Carolina Band was included on the rally program.

FUNDS FOR CLINTON
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Health Service today announced that it had awarded Clinton, N. C., a grant of $200,400 on a sewage disposal project costing $668,000.

Grifton Board Members Hold Routine Meeting

GRIFTON—Grifton Town Board members went through a routine meeting last night at their regular session, hearing monthly reports, an audit report, and a discussion of the municipal gas system.

A representative of the R. A. Ransom Co. Inc. appeared to explain the municipal gas system. Following his discussion, members held a question and answer period. No action was taken regarding the matter.

John Hollowell of Greensboro presented the 1960-61 audit to the board. The audit is to be looked over and approved at the next regular meeting, Town Clerk Joyce McCoy reported.

Reports included the Police Department, Recorder's Court and Grifton Library. The Police Department listed 36 arrests during September, with 30 found guilty and four cases pending. Officers worked 963 hours, investigated accidents, attended two funerals and three fires.

The Recorder's Court balance was reported as $1,071.05.

Some 572 books were issued from the library, which was open 22 days and 44 hours during September.

E. H. Owens made a report on the clearing of vacant lots which had been started here. However, not a great deal of progress has been made to date.

SHP Promoting Corporal Jenkins

Highway Patrol Cpl. J. T. Jenkins will be promoted to sergeant in ceremonies at Patrol Headquarters in Raleigh, tomorrow. As sergeant, he will be placed in command of Troop "B" District II, in Goldsboro.

Troop "A" Commanding Officer, Capt. S. H. Mitchell announced today that the local officer will be sworn in at 3 p.m. tomorrow and will be transferred to the Goldsboro station. He has been stationed in Greenville as corporal of District III, Troop "A", since April 1, 1961.
