Nation's Buyers Promised Sensible Age By Spring

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Possibly for the first time in the history of womankind, fashion is entering an age of practicality — even though man had to laugh, prod, and finally shove her into it.

The nation's buyers who made the rounds of some of the best known couture houses Wednesday were promised the sensible age by springtime.

That's when the women's apparel introduced this week will be in retail stores.

Just putting the waistline back was practical for the garment industry financially; for men who ridiculed the sack, snickered at the easy-fitting dress and merely tolerated the semifitted suit have had a damaging effect on sales manufacturers admit.

Thus, Adele Simpson, Luis Esteves and of course, Jacqueline Kennedy's couturier, Oleg Cassini, have done more than nip the waistline in again, they've widened it all the way up to the bosom line.

To reemphasize that tiny waist, pint-sized Miss Simpson is also putting wedge-shaped shoulders on her customers. Doesn't looking physically fit have its practicality after an era of hunch-shouldered, emaciated fashion models?

For sitting down with grace and poise, or sprouting after a computer train, Miss Simpson offers ever-so-sensible knee-free skirts. Deep pleats or gores make the ample room for getaways.

Other points of practicality at dark little blouses, little coats, dresses to step into, and polka dots so gaudy you can't be overlooked.

A back zipper you can reach because it travels down the shoulder blade, not the spine, is Luis Esteves' contribution to practicality. His entire spring fashion collection is frothy, wispy and conducive to romance with silhouettes that are more than form fitting. For the sake of custom-ers who do not have nice forms with built-in foundations.

Little tailored dresses are the sensible contributions of the First Lady's personal designer, Cassini. Of course, these costumes go in and out where they ought to even though the kind he designs for Jacqueline often do not.

The international flavor for the day was provided by Christian Dior's New York stylist, Guy

Cone-Shaped Fashion Figure Introduced

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In this age of space cones it was only fitting and proper that somebody should introduce a cone-shaped fashion figure. So couturier Edward Abbott did it.

"This will be the look for 'you,'" he hopefully announced to buyers crowded into his elegant showroom for the first view of his spring collection.

"It's not high-waisted," Abbott said Tuesday before anyone could accuse him of just another Empire-inspired style. "But it's high-busted."

At any rate, Abbott's new silhouette nips in quite properly at the waistline and fits snugly all the way to the bosom, where a belt or a well seam accents the latter. Shoulders are wide. Skirts taper to wide at the hem.

During the show, Abbott's models usually were properly covered with choker necklines and sleeves reaching the elbows. "The covered-up look is well bred," he pointed out.

But since a summer tan is useless without a bare back for display purposes, Abbott took some exception to the season by introducing a few costumes with deep scoops or V's in back. Still tiny jackets slipped over this flesh in a flash in order to redeem the wellbred appearance.

But fastening them up wasn't simple, Abbott, by taking a total of five minutes to manipulate the button-down-the-back jackets for the models, drove home the point that any woman with back buttons and zippers should think twice before divorcing a man.

As for the highly controversial sleeveless, collarless nothing dress made popular by Jackie Kennedy, Abbott has made something of it. He added beads, embroidery ball fringe and bright sashes.

Albino versions joined his classic black crepe "cocktail mixer" dresses.

Other ingredients in his recipe for a spring wardrobe were ostrich feathers, polka dots, embroidered bodices and vibrant prints.

Mrs. Taft Is Club Hostess

Mrs. W. H. Taft was hostess to the Inter Se Book Club at her home on Fifth Street Tuesday afternoon.

The Taft home featured arrangements of fall flowers.

Mrs. Wyatt Brown, president, welcomed members and special guests, Mrs. G. C. Worsley, Mrs. Kay Batchelor and Mrs. C. L. Lupton.

Following a short business meeting, Mrs. Reynolds may give a paper on "The World of Soap Operas." She told stories concerning the reactions of the audience viewing the daily television series, some of which have been running for the past 10 years.

Mrs. Taft invited her guests into the dining room where Mrs. Melvin Hoot and Mrs. Joe Taft served tea and accompaniments from an appointed table.

Home Demo. Agent Is Home Life Dept. Speaker

The Home Life Department of the Greenville Woman's Club met Tuesday for a covered dish luncheon. Mrs. R. E. Laughter gave the use of her home which was decorated with autumn flowers and berries.

The speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Sue May, Pitt County Home Demonstration Agent. Her subject was "It is smart to be well dressed." Before going on to her specific subject, Mrs. May listed the areas in which the homemakers would be most interested. These were—growth, people, homemaking education, home management, human relations, nutrition, housing and clothing.

She said that the basic colors for dresses were black, navy blue and brown. She showed how a basic dress could be changed in appearance by the addition of accessories, to make it appropriate wear at any time.

A basic dress with plain neckline, and in a wash and wear material, can be the most important item in a woman's wardrobe.

By choosing various accessories such as a bright pen and matching earrings, a colorful belt or scarf, matching purse and shoes in a variety of colors, with several hats, a jacket and gloves, the wearer can transform her dress so that it can look smart for such outings as shopping, a luncheon

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

The shape of a leaf often means the difference between a good landscape picture and one that is distorted. In planning what type of foliage to employ on the grounds, take in consideration the size of your lot.

The Small Lot

Plants having small or a more refined foliage should be used in planting on the small lot. The Jap Hollies, Boxwood, and plants that have this type of leaf work to better advantage on small city lot or one about average size. Use deciduous shrubs like spirea prunifolia the small leaf coral berry and other leaf losers of similar habit. Dogwood, Jap Maple, and American Hornbeam are in keeping in such an area.

The Large Place

Go in for the larger foliaged plants on areas where you have plenty of room. Here the big leafed Magnolia is perfectly at home. (On the small lot it would take half the place. Big trees like the Sycamore are entirely out of keeping on a lawn, but where you have plenty of room, they add to the wood area. The winter coloration of their bark is a striking picture in the bare woods.

Shadows

If you live where a street has the annoying habit of shining brightly against the side of your porch or on your terrace, put it to work. Plant a tree or large shrub between the light and your place. The play of shadows against the wall or terrace floor or even the table tops of patio furniture can be very interesting. But here again, you should use a refined foliage. The dogwood, Cutlace Jap Maple or the Chastie tree (Virex) are good examples of such an arrangement because cool days are here, but planted now, you can change the nightly appearance of your outdoor sitting place for next summer's nights.

Garden Illusion

Light gray-green foliage gives an effect of depth. Used on the small lot, it makes lot appear larger. Dark green foliage makes plants seem closer and lot appear to be smaller. By planting the gray-green foliaged plants as background and the darker green ones as a foreground, you can create an illusion of depth or distance or any size lot. A few gray-green plants are Eleagnus, Oleander, and Juniper. Dark greens are Camellia, Holly, Pittosporum and Photinia. There are many others of both types the gardener can employ.

Garden Picture

The garden picture should always be one of interest. Each element should contribute its share to the making of it. Plants should be used that show spring at its best, summer in its beauty, fall in its gaiety and winter in its repose. The tulip of spring, the rose of summer, the scarlet leaf to fall and the tracery of twig patterns in winter time.

Conclusion

Now is the time to go about the planting of the things that will in their season build the garden, make the terrace a more enjoyable place and soften the lines of your house. For the ground is willing and the rains of fall will soon begin to ride the winds.

A Comeback For Salisbury Steak

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

HAMBURGERS ARE always with us, but nowadays one ground beef dish is neglected. Salisbury steak — relic of late Victorian cooking! Is the name familiar? Once in a while this dish is listed on a restaurant menu, but it's not often come upon in home kitchens.

A relic of the days when household-size food choppers (then called Salisbury chopping machines) first became available, Salisbury Steak has a big virtue: it offers the texture and flavor of meat loaf but it's quicker to cook because it is broiled rather than baked.

Salisbury Steak may be served with ready-prepared Mushroom Gravy. We find this product has excellent mushroom flavor and a good brown color. We also commend it to you because it's on the thin side—the way a fine gravy should be.

SALISBURY STEAK
½ cup soft break crumbs (crusts removed)
¼ cup milk
1 ½ pounds ground beef chuck
1 ½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon finely grated onion pulp and juice

Celery
1 can (10 ½ ounces) mushroom gravy

In a mixing bowl stir together the bread crumbs and milk so they combine. Add all remaining ingredients except celery and gravy; mix well. Turn out onto a sheet of waxed paper; shape meat into the form of a T-Bone or Porterhouse steak, 1-inch thick; press together well. Invert shaped meat onto a broiler rack, using a rack with holes rather than grids. Broil several inches from high heat about 10 minutes; with two wide spatulas or pancake turners, turn meat. Broil about 7 minutes or until meat is no longer pink in center. Remove to hot serving platter with spatulas. Use two short pieces cut from the root end of celery to simulate bone (at top) and fat (at bottom curve) of meat. Serve with mushroom gravy heated until very hot. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Cannes Hairdresser Named 'Miss Sweet Disposition'

CANNES—(WNS)—Gisele Lafleuve, a 27-year-old blonde hairdresser, has been named Mademoiselle Sweet Disposition of the French Riviera.

"I learned to be sweet by learning about hair," she explained. "One must never contradict the hair but go along with it without resistance."

The hair falls in a natural direction and it is the job of the hairdresser not to oppose it but to find beauty in the direction the hair indicates.

"When you learn not to fight the hair, then you become passive and agreeable. In that attitude, you discover a new, fresh beauty, and the hair almost does itself."

By applying the same technique in her relations with men and women, Mlle. Lafleuve has made life easy for herself and others.

"I never oppose anybody except my husband," the pretty little blonde confided. "If I did not 'contrarie' my husband occasionally, how would he know I love him?"

Three Cents Buys Good Memory

ANKARA—(WNS)—For a fee of 25 kuruah (about 3 cents) Turkey's National Telephone Service will now remind a subscriber of his wedding anniversary, his wife's birthday or at what coffee house he is to meet which girl at what time.

FUN TO FIX: Ground beef shaped to resemble a T-bone or Porterhouse steak. Make-believe 'bone' and 'fat' in this Salisbury steak are short lengths of celery.

Ritual Of The Office

Far-Fetched To Blame The Congress

It is far-fetched indeed for Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon to seek to blame Congress for the three-quarter billion deficit in U.S. Postal operations during the current fiscal year.

Perhaps the administration has rationalized the post office fiscal situation to the point it can conscientiously blame Congress for the deficit, but we seriously doubt the administration will be able to convince the American people the postal deficit is primarily because of "the lamentable failure of the Congress to increase postal rates."

In recent years postal rates have been increased several times, and in each case the pressure of deficit operations of the Post Office Department was cited as the need for the increase. But after the increases produced considerably more revenue for the Post Office Department, the deficits each year continued.

This year when the administration put forth the bid for another increase in postal rates, Congress balked.

Rather than glibly placing the blame for postal deficits on Congress, perhaps the administration should look to the Post Office Department for at least a share of the blame. Congress, after all, didn't run up the postal bill a significant amount in spite of all the mail distributed by members of Congress. Congress didn't create the deficit in the Post Office, it merely declined administration demands that it cover up the deficit by increasing postal rates.

On the basis of past experience, it is highly questionable whether Congress could wipe out the deficit in the Post Office Department even if it provided every increase postal authorities asked for. Even though postal rates have been increased by Congress in the past, the Post Office Department has managed to spend sufficient additional money to wind up in the red anyway.

If the administration wants to get the Post Office Department out of the red, it should put more pressure on that department to operate more economically and more nearly within its means, rather than pointing an accusing finger at Congress because it declined to raise postal rates.

Obvious Grand Finale To Propaganda Effort

The super bomb the Soviets propose to explode the last of this month is obviously the finale to a gigantic propaganda campaign as well as a nuclear testing program.

Admittedly the 50-megaton bomb is considerably larger than any nuclear weapon the United States has tested. The very fact that the Soviets has a bomb of such magnitude will impress many people around the world. It will serve as another weapon of intimidation just because of its size.

There is, however, another side of the coin. The fact that the bomb is 5,000 times more powerful than the bomb which devastated Hiroshima does not spread its destructive force anywhere near the distance implied by the additional power. American scientists have been quick to point out that the destruction by such an explosion would not be considerably more than that of smaller nuclear devices the United States has exploded in the past. From the practical standpoint of actual use as a weapon, they point out, the smaller devices would have a broader application and could be used collectively to bring about greater destruction than a huge bomb of the 50-megaton variety.

Some consideration must also be given to the adverse world reaction which might result if fallout from the huge Soviet bomb drifts across other nations. Already there have been statements indicating resentment among neutral nations to the atmospheric contamination caused by the series of Soviet tests. This last big explosion could intensify such resentment.

This, presumably the last of the current series of Soviet nuclear tests, points up the fact that the tests have been of propaganda as well as of scientific importance to the Soviets. Like other feats of Russian scientists, the final big splash is to be played for all the propaganda the communists can make of it.

New Argument Of Retreatism

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The News Office of Columbia University has issued a mimeograph about an article by a sociologist, Professor Amital Etzioni, which is another argument for retreatism. This disease, retreatism, is a moral degeneration which destroys a nation from within.

From the mimeograph, Dr. Etzioni's thesis is based upon the irrationality of man. In a word, if man were a rational creature, he would never respond emotionally to the stimuli of public disturbances.

He would always react with sound judgement. For instance, Dr. Etzioni says:

"... a defeat-crazed leader - Hitler in his burning bunker, a dictator about to lose the last remnant of his semi-global empire - might still unleash the Domsday Bomb."

Why drag in Hitler? Why not say a crazed imitator of Napoleon, or even a crazed imitator of Napoleon, might set forth to destroy all the world, including himself.

Thus far, nobody has appeared who is that crazy, Khrushchev is presently engaged blowing up bombs like a child fires off firecrackers on the Fourth of July, but he does his firing in remote places lest he damage his own country.

It would make more sense, if Khrushchev's nonsense becomes too troublesome, to blow him up than to retreat. There is no advantage in a retreat because the enemy will make life unlivable anyhow.

Dr. Etzioni maintains:

"Most of my colleagues who are experts on these matters assert that the bombs we now have can wipe out civilization on one continent, if not the entire globe. (Herman) Kahn, though, insists that it will take ten more years to build the Domsday Machine."

So what is the answer? Shall we retreat before a mad enemy? Shall we surrender to him? Shall we give up our national existence? What would he have us do? It would seem to me that the alternative to meeting the enemy is to capitulate to him. In a word, here we have an argument for total retreatism - "It is better to be Red than dead."

As Dr. Etzioni lives in fear of a war by accident, the sanest thing to do is to commit suicide. An accident may occur anywhere, at any time; anybody might go crazy and blow up the world. If every night, before we go to bed, we have to think of that, we might just as well blow ourselves up now and not wait for the enemy to do it. Cowards often do commit suicide because they have no other solution for their problems. We witnessed examples of that during the 1929 panic when men who were down to their last million jumped out of windows. The men, who did not commit suicide, survived the depression and are now sitting around worrying about what the inflation will do to their remaining assets.

Writes the learned professor: "... revenge-allowance is an effective safeguard if we view life through the rationalistic, cool, blue glasses of a game-theorist - not, however, when we view it through a flickering radar screen propped up against a wall of suspicion."

But how can we look "through rationalistic, cool, blue glasses" if we are frightened out of our wits? For it is Khrushchev's technique to scare us out of our wits; he is engaged in a campaign of terror. And there are those in this country who join him in the advocacy of terror. Their idea is to scare us into retreating before Khrushchev's threats. Professor Etzioni says:

"The spread of nuclear arms is the surest road - via many small disasters, several middling ones, or one big one - to Domsday."

But we might die before, Domsday comes and thus we shall live out our lives without fear. Of course, a sociologist is likely to be pessimistic because he deals with a science which attempts to understand society.

But it is undoubtedly history, psychology and philosophy which help one to understand society. And out of that understanding usually comes faith or pessimism which is the response of man to society. A society without faith in itself and its institutions is close to death. What retreatism offers us is a formula for death by suicide.

It is interesting to note that the professors who developed and produced nuclear fission and fusion are so scared by what they have done that the only solution they can find for their alchemy is to retreat before a wicked and mad enemy. Yet to retreat is suicide, not only national but individual suicide. Hitler, at any rate, waited to be defeated before he hit upon that solution.

Countdown On Telephone

Remember the telephone pranks of the teenagers? How they select your number, dial it and have some witty little something to say when you answer?

By now there must be thousands of telephone gags teenagers can use on you when they're "just looking for something to do."

Yesterday we heard a new one. At least it was new to us. It shows the far-reaching effects of the space age. Who would ever think space age technology would influence telephone pranks?

The particular prank was a repeating one to the victim. The plight was that of a Jefferson City, Mo., doctor whose phone number was 5-4321.

According to a report we had, teenagers in Jefferson City discovered his number and had been calling constantly.

They would inquire: "What number is this, please?" The doctor's receptionist would reply: "This is 5-4321."

The kids would shout back: "Blast off."

We were discussing the other day the formation of new words in the dear old English language.

At least one in the discussion was violently opposed to what he said was "absolute murder of English."

The one example he cited that he said really galled him to death was one he found painted in a roadside signboard in letters at least four feet high. It was a play on the word "estimate" and its meaning. "What resulted, he said, was "Guesstimate." He shuddered when he uttered it.

He objected to other new words (?) that are enjoying common and consistent usage. One such was another composition of two "good" words—the coming together of "fantastic and "fabulous" for the popular "fantabulous." The contraction of "motor hotel" into the universally-accepted "motel" was not too bad.

Thus the discussion continued. New word forms, particularly those like "Guesstimate," it was decided, are completely terrible.

(On the other hand, the persons who develop high groupings of letters are seeking to gain attention for something. Mission accomplished!)

One new one, though, that didn't make the discussion was a promotional gimmick we received through the mails recently. To a grand old word like "October" it could have easily been called atrocious in our discussion.

The North Carolina organization for promotion of the sale of eggs had dubbed the month we're now going through as the time to promote the egg industry.

We just wondered how our friend who so violently objected to "guesstimate" would take to "EGGtober."

Other Editors Saying Can A Company Move? Opinions In Brief

(The Charlotte News) Though it might be tremendously blessed by a pinch of Solomon's wisdom, the National Labor Relations Board seems little dismayed by the complexity of the cases before it. After reversing itself and legitimizing the agency shop in the "right-to-work" state of Indiana, the board has now reversed an NLRB examiner and given a Ware Shoals, S. C., firm this pretty choice:

The firm can re-open in Philadelphia the operation it moved to Ware Shoals or it can offer to move to Ware Shoals its former Philadelphia workers, displacing in the process as many as necessary of its new South Carolina workers.

The NLRB decision is based on a finding that the firm used the threat of moving its operation as an unfair bargaining technique. The firm was union in Philadelphia and is non-union in South Carolina.

For all we know, this firm may be a prize industrial catch for Ware Shoals or it may be a firm of the sort that the South is becoming wary of enticing. It may be making a genuine contribution to South Carolina or it may be paying unduly low wages and returning unduly high profits to its owners.

That the South has lived to regret luring some of the latter type of industries is pretty well established. There is no great value in industry per se. North Carolina's Conservation and Development Department is putting needed emphasis on appealing to "the best types of industry—those which plan to settle here to stay and which prefer a climate of good government and fiscal integrity to promotional gimmicks" or com-

We simply know nothing about the Ware Shoals firm, but it is a matter of wonder that a government board should have the power to limit the freedom of movement of a business enterprise. Unions, after all, have considerable power in their own right; the country found it desirable, in fact, to enact some limitations in the Landrum-Griffin act. Supposedly, they have the power to bankrupt a firm that cannot escape by movement.

An agency empowered to prevent or penalize such movement takes a great deal upon itself, particularly in a case where the import of the facts is disputed between the agency and the person charged with examining in-charge. It attitude, at the least, ought to be judicial but since the NLRB's attitude seems to change from election to election, it gives the impression of being highly political.

"Researchers who are always coming up with some astonishing facts now say that red heads have a right to their traditional hot tempers—simply because they are more sensitive to pain than other people."—The Sanford Herald.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS THE PERFECTIVE OF HAPPINESS

One of the moving experiences expressed so unforgettably by the great British poet William Wordsworth concerned a simple walk on the moor which he took one morning. Despite the radiance of the day and the beauty of the surrounding countryside, he fell into a black mood of despair, foreseeing poverty and distress for himself, and an unpromising future as a poet. Presently he met a man at least half a century older than himself, bent with age, feebly stirring up the waters of a small pool with his bare feet. Upon the poet's inquiring, the old man explained that he made his living by gathering blood-sucking leeches and selling them to physicians. But what chiefly impressed Wordsworth was the man's cheerfulness, confidence, and independent spirit, despite of his age and poverty. In a flash, Wordsworth realized how foolish and ill-founded his own despair was:

"I could have laughed myself to scorn to find myself so sad."

In that decrepit man so firm a mind.

So much of our happiness is merely a matter of perspective. We complain and grieve because we do not have what we think we want, while all the time we are the possessors of so much richness that we do not even take time to notice. Let us stop to consider all we have, and give thanks, and be happy.

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—One of the great rituals of American life is the business conference.

The conferences are usually held behind closed doors to give them an air of secrecy. That is a great shame.

They should be thrown open and tickets sold to the public. For the average business conference has better acting and far more drama than an off-Broadway production.

In some offices they hold conferences weekly — some even have them daily. In others the boss merely calls them whenever he is lonely and feels like bawling out the staff.

If you have ever attended one of these office matinees, you probably remember some of these typical characters:

Statistical Syd — He shows up with an armful of charts to prove his points. Halfway through his presentation, he discovers he has hung the charts upside down. This makes no real difference to Syd. His figures read the same forward, backward, upside down, or sideways.

Bulldozer Bert — "What this firm needs is some real down-to-earth aggressive thinking!" He cries, thumping the table. Everybody bows. They're all in favor of aggressive thinking, whatever that is. They are also in favor of motherhood and the federal highway program.

Mumbo-jumbo Jack — He once read a book on psychology and never quite recovered. "It's about time we paid more attention to our socio-economic public opinion," he says. "Everybody's got to be a psychologist, whatever you do." He is also in favor of motherhood and the federal highway program.

Procrastinating Phil — When his turn comes he looks mysterious and says, "I pass for now. I'm working on something I think will solve all our problems, but I haven't got it in final form yet. Phil has used this same line so many times he is beginning to believe it himself."

Whereas Wilbur — The company lawyer never makes a suggestion himself. He is there for only one purpose—to arise and announce why the suggestions anyone else in the firm makes are legally impossible, plus being against public policy.

Doodling Dan — The boss's nephew sits and silently draws pictures of pretty girls on the pad before him. His plans are all made. As soon as he inherits the business, he intends to fire everybody and sell the firm to its biggest competitor.

Sylvester the Spouter — The sales manager is a master of glowing, pushy button prose. "While our figures are down a mite this month," he says cheerily, "all signs indicate that next month will see a record." All signs point to a record all right — a record loss.

Omnipotent Oliver — "This confab got us exactly nowhere," says the boss, winding it all up. "The next time I call you boys in for a meeting, show up with some real ideas—or there'll be some new faces at this conference table."

The session is over. The executives march out, firm confidence showing in every face. Industry marches on!

Forced Into Faster Write-Offs

By ELMER ROESSNER

The action of the Kennedy Administration in granting faster write-offs of the cost of machinery may have been timed to convince business that the Administration is not anti-business. It tends to offset the anti-business implications of President Kennedy's tough request that the steel industry not raise prices.

But regardless of reasons for the timing, the action itself was mandatory to stave off serious economic troubles.

The Administration reduced the period over which textile machinery could be depreciated for tax purposes, and it proposes to make similar reductions in other industries.

In the past, the textile industry could depreciate most machinery only over 25 years. Now it can amortize its investment in 15 years in most cases and to 12 years in a few others.

secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler conceded that "the depreciation allowances authorized for Federal income tax deductions in this country are probably among the most limited in the world."

This corroborates a point often made here: that American manufacturers are at great tax disadvantages in competing with German, Japanese and other industrial nations.

LOBBYING OKAYED Mr. Fowler who announced that other industries would receive similar tax relief.

Two days before he made this announcement, The Internal Revenue Service issued a ruling which appears to lift the bars against some lobbying. In Rev. Rul. 61-177, it announced:

"A corporation organized and operated primarily for the purpose of promoting a common business interest and bettering the business conditions of one or more lines of business, which otherwise meets the tests for exemption under section 501 (c) (6) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, is exempt under that section as a business league even though its sole activity is directed to the influencing of legislation which is germane to such common business interest."

This appears to give a green light to business leagues, chambers of commerce and boards of trade to raise money to pressure both Congress and the Treasury for tax relief. It and the present tough depreciation schedules, will probably prompt the organization of scores of "business leagues" to generate such pressures.

For full text of the ruling and the explanation, send 20 cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., for Internal Revenue Bulletin No. 1961-41.

BREWERS SPEND $1 A BARREL TO ADVERTISE THEIR BREWS

The annual study by Advertising Age shows that in 1960, the 22 leading American brewers spent an average of $1.09 a barrel and 7.8 cents a case to advertise their wares last year. Sales rose from $9.9 million barrels in 1959 to 69.5 million barrels in 1960.

Former Chorus Girl's Burglary Trial Ends In Hung Jury; Panel Dismissed

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP)—The burglary trial of former chorus girl Lillian Reis ended with a hung jury Wednesday night after the panel was unable to reach a verdict on prosecution charges that she plotted a $478,000 theft, then used some of the money to purchase a nightclub.

Judge Charles W. Staudenmeier dismissed the panel of five women and seven men after it had reported for the second time it was hopelessly deadlocked. The jury, which had heard more than 17 prosecution witnesses and 15 defense witnesses during the five-week trial, had deliberated 16½ hours since receiving the case late Tuesday.

An unimpeachable source said that on the first ballot the vote was 6-6; then on the second ballot and at least 18 thereafter the vote was a steady 7 for conviction and 5 for acquittal. The source said that all five women were for convicting her in the Aug. 7, 1959, burglary at the home of coal magnate John B. Rich.

Miss Reis, 32, a striking brunette, stood without expression as she heard the jury foreman, Cora

Thompson, told the judge: "There is no change whatsoever; it is still the same as before."

Then Staudenmeier, who presided over the trials of three men convicted in the burglary last spring, told the jury: "This is something we regret, that you are unable to arrive at a verdict. All he court can do for its part is to explain the law. The jury must find the facts. You are discharged."

Miss Reis, who was released in $15,000 bail, told a newsmen she felt she should have been acquitted.

But, she added, "It's pretty much of a relief and a step in the right direction, don't you think?"

Asst. Dist. Atty. Calvin Friedberg, the prosecutor, said that he assumed Dist. Atty. Robert Harris intends to retry Miss Reis on the burglary charges.

"I'm convinced the evidence warranted a conviction," said Friedberg, "and I'm hoping when the case is retried there will be one."

Harris' term expires at the end of this year, and he is not seeking reelection. The next term of Schuykill County Court is Nov. 6.

An odd twist to the case is that Miss Reis' defense attorney, John Lavelle, is running for district attorney on the Democratic ticket in the November election. Should he be elected and a retrial scheduled after Harris leaves office, a special prosecutor would have to be appointed, probably by the Pennsylvania attorney general, to try the case.

Miss Reis still is under indictment by an Atlantic County, N.J. grand jury on a murder charge in the August 1960 slaying of Vincent Blaney, whose body was found in the Atlantic Ocean. Police said Blaney, one of the six defendants in the case, had been killed to keep him from turning state's evidence.

Vincent's brother, Richard, also was killed in gangland fashion last summer after he had testified for the prosecution at the trials of the three men who were convicted—Robert Poulson, John

Home-School Ass'n Has Meet

The Home-School Association of St. Raphael's School held its first meeting of the term Tuesday night.

Association officers are Nick Simonowich, president; Dall Laughinghouse Jr., vice president, and Mrs. Mary Lou Baxter, secretary-treasurer.

A discussion of civil defense preparedness, in relation to the school, occupied a portion of the meeting.

Remedial reading needs in the third and fourth grades were brought up, and a committee assigned to look into availability of a tape-recorder to assist with the program.

School enrollment for the term was reported as 98.

Mrs. Dolly Hill and Mrs. Daisy Bassos were named to the refreshment committee. Refreshments following the first meeting were served by Mrs. Carolyn Dorroll.

Hallowe'en parties this year will be held by each room rather than a combined party, it was announced.

Parents and teachers held individual discussions prior to, and after, the meeting.

TO ATTEND COURSE

Ex-President Of Philippines Dies In Manila Today

MANILA (AP)—Sergio Osmena, 63, president of the Philippine Commonwealth after World War II, died today of heart and kidney ailments.

Osmena died in the Veterans Memorial Hospital in Manila. He had been ailing for months and was transferred from his home in Cebu recently when his condition grew grave.

A leader in Philippine politics for nearly 40 years, he became vice president when the commonwealth was born Nov. 15, 1935, and succeeded to the presidency in exile in Washington Aug. 1, 1944, a few hours after his longtime associate and sometime rival, President Manuel L. Quezon, died of tuberculosis.

A few months later Osmena landed with Gen. Douglas MacArthur on Leyte at the start of the Philippines' liberation. Osmena took over direction of the monumental task of restoring order, cleaning up the widespread destruction of the war, and dealing with those Filipinos who had collaborated with the Japanese during the occupation.

With independence in the offing, he became a candidate for the presidency in the April, 1946, election. Despite dissension within his party and public impatience at the slow pace of recovery from the war, he stayed at his desk and refused to campaign.

The Manuel Roxas cabinet chose Manuel Roxas to be the first president of the new republic.

After his defeat Osmena retired from active politics.

He and MacArthur had a poignant reunion—their first in 15 years—last July when the general made his farewell tour of the islands. Osmena was too sick even to go to the Cebu harbor to greet his wartime comrade, and MacArthur called at his home.

Over 40 No Bar To Job Seekers

CHICAGO (AP) — Over forty now is no bar to job seekers in fifteen states.

Commerce Clearing Houses reports that California and Ohio enacted laws this year that prohibit employers from discriminating against workers because of age.

Alaska, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Montana, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Washington and Wisconsin are the other states with laws.

Most of the laws specify the nondiscriminatory age bracket embracing the years between 40 and normal retirement of 65 or less.

Happy Camel Driver Takes Naturally To Role Of VIP

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The happy camel driver from Pakistan is taking quite naturally to being a VIP.

Jet planes, flashing camera bulbs, sleek limousines and sights beyond his wildest dreams just bring a broader smile to Bashir Ahmad's moustachioed countenance.

Bashir smiles and smiles. He's amazed at how Americans are all smiling with him, too.

Unable to read or write his native language, Urdu, when he arrived in the United States as the guest of Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, Bashir has quickly learned about autograph seekers. Now, he painstakingly signs his name—a wavy line and a series of specially placed dots. You'd be surprised how many times he's asked to make his sign.

Bashir is so famous his wife back in Karachi says she's worried about whether she should welcome her husband back in their same hut after his visit to America. She's looking for a two-room house or a flat, reports from Karachi say.

And, Bashir's camel must be worried, too. It is refusing to eat.

But none of these reports, relayed to Bashir on his American tour, can dim his enthusiasm for his adventure, which is unfolding in the best fairy-tale style.

Today Bashir, 48, in his black frock coat and white pants, sees the sights of Washington and lunches with the ambassador of Pakistan in his country's embassy here.

Bashir met former President Harry S. Truman Wednesday in Independence, Mo.

Bashir, who speaks eloquently through his interpreter, Saeed Khan, told Truman he was honored to meet someone with so much experience in world affairs. He said Truman's gray hair was evidence of that experience.

The camel driver talked with the former president about such far off things as camels.

"I hope some day I can come to Pakistan and, with your help, actually ride it," said Truman of the camel.

With Mrs. Johnson as his guide, Bashir will visit the White House Friday. It's still not known whether he'll get a personal hello from President Kennedy.

Surely nothing can surprise this smiling little man from Pakistan. In his absence from home, the U.S. Embassy is supporting Bashir's family with 20 rupees—about $4-a day, the sum he normally earned with his camel cart.

But now Bashir has been told he has been appointed a director of a Pakistan movie company, and his first remuneration on his return will be 2,000 rupees—$400. "God is very kind," said Bashir when he heard that news.

No Body In The Pool Of Sunset Boulevard Home

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The mansion was hard by Sunset Boulevard.

I crunched my way up the gravel driveway to the double doors, each with a small glass peephole. A sign said rather forbiddingly, "Unexpected guests must use telephone."

Was I unexpected? No, I had made a date with the great lady. I summoned enough courage to ring the bell.

"Who's there?" demanded a voice.

I announced myself and was prompted, "Closer to the speaker." I repeated my identification and was answered with a metallic click.

The door swung open. A handsome young butler ushered me into the sitting room, which was decorated with old and new masters—the real things.

"Miss Swanson will be down presently," the butler announced. The uneasy wait. Her heels could be heard on the marble hall. Then she swept in, slim and surprisingly small, wearing a brocaded lounging suit, her arms a-clank with metallic jewelry. Her skin was smooth and flawless. There was scant gray in her shiny hair, atop which perched her spectacles.

"Let's go in the den, where it's more comfortable," said Gloria Swanson after ordering vodka on the rocks from the butler. We went to the den, which was dominated by a full-length portrait of the actress.

As we began to talk, the lights went out. The butler entered with lighted candles and said the trouble was being attended to. Miss Swanson reclined on the couch and continued talking in the candlelight, while I felt for all the world as if I were in the second reel of "Sunset Boulevard."

Miss Swanson soon brought me back to reality. The house was not hers but that of a family she had known for years. And she is not Norma Desmond, the silent star she played in "Sunset Boulevard."

"My God, how the legend hangs on!" she declared. "Just a few weeks ago I had to get tough with an interviewer on BBC in England. He kept trying to link me up with the picture."

"I finally told him, 'No, I don't have a body floating in my swimming pool. I don't even have a swimming pool. I don't live in the past. I am concerned only with the present and the future.'"

Miss Swanson was here after a seven-week European trip, partly to view the new Paris fashions for her dress business, partly to

Free Vaccine Is Offered People

NEWBERRY, S.C. (AP)—Free doses of oral vaccine were offered to all residents of Newberry County today in an effort to curb an outbreak of polio.

Medical authorities said this is the first time that the oral vaccine has been used in South Carolina.

The emergency immunization program was planned after injections of Salk Vaccine did not provide the desired immunity to the type of polio in Newberry County, public health officials said.

Twenty-one persons have suffered polio since late June. Sixteen of the cases occurred since Sept. 2. There has been one death and 16 cases of paralysis. The 21st case, a 32-year-old white man, was reported Wednesday night.

Two drops of oral vaccine, developed by Dr. Albert Sabin with funds provided by the March of Dimes organization, were to be placed on a sugar cube and swallowed. Babies were to receive their two drops on the tongue by way of a medicine dropper.

Most doctors in the county planned to join some 100 volunteers in administering the vaccine. Stations for administering the vaccine were set up in three schools in the city of Newberry and at five schools in Newberry County.

William the Conqueror's "Doomsday Book" was a tax survey of the medieval England.

Shutdowns Face Ford Co. Plants

DETROIT (AP)—Despite a new national contract and plant working agreements, except at one factory, Ford Motor Co. today faced the threat of a shutdown of some assembly plants within a week.

Ford and United Auto Workers Union bargainers broke off their attempts to reach a local-level working agreement covering some 3,300 employees at a key stamping plant at Walton Hills, Ohio, outside Cleveland.

At Chrysler Corp., top-level negotiations were in recess while bargaining continued on the sub-committee level.

The union accused Ford of insisting that pay rates of 435 jobs be reduced 5 to 15 cents an hour at the Walton Hills plant. It said all other issues had been settled. "We are not proposing that anyone's pay be cut," Ford said in a statement. "Some of our employees at the Cleveland stamping plant are receiving pay in excess of rates negotiated for the work they are doing at Cleveland, and for comparable work elsewhere in the company."

A six-day wildcat strike at the Walton Hills plant closed several Ford assembly lines a year ago, and both the company and union agreed continuance of the current strike there would have serious effects within a week on newly restarted assembly of 1962 models.

Laborites Write Protest Letter

LONDON (AP)—Sixty-two Labor members of the House of Commons delivered a letter to the Soviet Embassy Wednesday night protesting Premier Khrushchev's plan to explode a 50-megaton hydrogen bomb.

One of the group, Sir Lynn Ungoed-Thomas, told an embassy official the explosion would be "humanely criminal and politically tragic." The embassy said the letter would be forwarded to Moscow.

DELIVERY WITH CELERITY—MARIETTA, Ga. (AP)—The Marietta, Ga., Post Office has recorded another victory in the never-ending struggle with vaguely addressed mail.

The Post Office delivered a letter sent "care the Cross Bar Hotel" to a prisoner in the county jail.

Paid A 'Debt' To Herbert Hoover

By ANDREW MEISELS

NEW YORK (AP)—When Finnish President Urho K. Kekkonen visited Herbert Hoover Wednesday, he was paying a debt of honor to a man renowned in Finland as that country's savior.

And Finland holds no virtue higher than payment of its debts—unless, perhaps, it is honor. Hoover's involvement with the small Scandinavian country began in November, 1918, less than two weeks after the Armistice that ended World War I. The former president, now 87, tells of it in Volume III of his book, "An American Epic."

Hoover, then head of the American Relief Administration, was visited by a Finnish delegation seeking food to save their ravaged country from starvation.

The American promised 10,000 tons of emergency supplies, and the Finns left. But they returned a few moments later.

"How much will it cost?" they asked.

"Don't worry about it," said Hoover. "Arrangements will be worked out."

"We will pay," said the Finns resolutely. "Our people will work and pay."

The Finns kept that promise. They have been working and paying regularly ever since—despite depression and war, despite the heavy demands made on the country by the Soviet Union since Finland's heroic "winter war" with its giant neighbor in 1939-40.

And they have felt and expressed a great gratitude toward this country in general and toward Herbert Hoover in particular.

In the days after the Armistice, Hoover's relief agency provided

Finland with $28 million in food and clothing. The Finns still call this "the Hoover loan."

As this monumental work of relief got under way, Hoover received a letter from Finland's food minister, saying: "You have completed the greatest and most humanitarian act that anyone has ever performed. . . . You, esteemed sir, have saved Finland."

Hoover, who also played a leading role in the recognition of Finland as an independent government by the Allies after World War I, describes in his book a visit to the country: "The government of Finland had repeatedly invited me to visit that country in order that the Finns might express their appreciation. I did so early in 1938. Their recognition was tremendous, with events staged over five days."

But gratitude, the Finns felt, was not enough. There was still a debt to be paid—$9 million—and they got to work paying it. They are still paying it, and they have made clear that they intend to continue paying until 1981, when the 62-year payment program ends.

In 1949 the United States urged Finland to forget the rest of the debt. The Finns graciously refused. There was, after all, the question of honor.

This country had no intention of wounding the small nation's pride. Instead, it invested the Finnish payments in a special fund that has enabled about 1,000 Finns to study here over the past 10 years.

Since the first Hoover loan, Finland has borrowed about $150 million more for improvement projects. They are, of course, paying this back, too.

Business Notes

Jewel Box Consolidates

Stockholders of 46 Jewel Box jewelry stores in five southern states have voted to consolidate their separate corporations into a North Carolina corporation with headquarters in Greensboro.

The company will be known as Jewel Box Stores Corporation, and will have a staff of 30 in the home offices located in the Guilford Building in Greensboro.

Ned W. Cohen of Greensboro, who founded the first store in the Jewel Box chain in Greensboro in 1922, was named chairman of the board of the new firm. He is the father of the reorganized firm's president, Lawrence M. Cohen, who is also a director.

Among the stores in the newly formed corporation is The Jewel Box Inc. of Greenville which was established in 1955. The store is managed by Nicholas Dorrell and will be supervised by William Thunberg of Goldsboro, who also supervises three other stores in the corporation.

Ranks Eighth

J. Frank Strawn, general agent in Greenville for the Franklin Life Insurance Co., Springfield, Ill., ranked eighth in September sales among approximately 3,000 field representatives across the nation.

Strawn has three times this year attained coveted membership in the Franklin President's Club for outstanding sales achievement.

To Head Branch

Walter E. Gladstone, Jr., will manage The Planters National Bank and Trust Company's proposed new branch in Siler City. A native of Winston-Salem, Gladstone is currently serving his eighth year The Bank of Candor as cashier, executive vice president and director.

Call Off Active Hunt For Plane

NEW YORK (AP)—The Coast Guard today called off active search for the Air Force jet bomber missing since Saturday with its crew of eight.

The unofficial word was that hope of finding any of the men alive had been abandoned.

All armed service and commercial aircraft and ships will keep on the lookout indefinitely.

Coast Guard search and rescue headquarters said no planes or ships were assigned today to the search, which had been in progress day and night since the bomber disappeared during the Sky Shield II air defense maneuvers.

The Coast Guard said planes and ships had searched and re-searched in good visibility over an expanse of 286,000 square miles of the Atlantic around the spot about 650 miles east of New York where the bomber was last reported.

Seventy-nine planes participated in the search. These included 59 Air Force, 13 Coast Guard, 5 Navy and 2 Canadian. Five Coast Guard cutters and two merchant ships also were in the active search.

Civil Air Patrol and other planes searched inland.

The missing plane was out of Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, N. C.

New Benefit For Male Teachers

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—Male teachers in the Magnolia elementary School district have a brand new fringe benefit: "Paternity leave." The district's board of trustees voted Tuesday night to give them one day off on the day they become papas.

Total insurance premiums paid in 1960 in the United States approximated $32 billion, up $1.4 billion over 1959.

Lion In The Hills

By JOHN B. PRESCOTT

CHAPTER 23
 Ravished of life and beauty, when the wandering mare lay couched in the pale spring grass and torn earth of the red lands. Sam Fellows had dismounted from Jock and, along with Jupiter, was beginning his ritual of examining the sign about the carcass. The rest of the hounds, all nose and ears and eyes, remained in the pickup, which, along with the trailer, had been brought up within a hundred and fifty yards of the kill. But Jupiter, as the scribe-hound, had to know about things first.

Only Alec Temple among the humans and creatures ignored the sprawling death in the grass; but the sight of such death, so total, so wanton, and in this case somewhat personal to himself, still bothered him.

Instead, he kept his eye on the country about them, letting it pick its own way across the rolling grasslands toward the cliffs. It hadn't changed very much, he thought, from last year.

"Well, he's been here, sure enough," Sam said after what seemed an hour.

Alec brought his eye and mind back from far away, sliding his glance around the wreckage of Vixen to Sam.

"Rusky, you mean?"

"Uh-huh," Sam said, still on his hands and knees in the grass, feeling down through the stems with his fingers to search out the padmarks.

"He did it, then," Alec said, and hope, or what had remained of it, floundered.

"I only said he's been here," Sam said, moving along a few feet, his fingers and eyes searching. "There's been another, too, a little earlier."

Hope rekindled in Alec. "Then he didn't do it?"

"He didn't kill, no, but he et," Sam looked up. "I looks to me like that friend of ours, the old tom, done the real dirty work."

"What?" Of all the other lions that Rusky might have teamed up with, or trailed for leftovers, the old tom was the last one he'd have picked. "But he's scared of him, isn't he? Or would be?"

Sam, getting his knees under him, pushed upward and finally stood creaking on both feet.

"You'd think he'd be, if he's got a memory. But then we can't be certain what he remembers," Alec said.

"That's as may be," Sam said. "And when the time comes to find out, I hope you're right."

It was a cryptic remark that puzzled Alec, but before he could ask what it meant, Sam had gone on.

"But the point is that he remembers about that tom," he said. "If he don't remember anything about him, then it likely means that circumstances—may be not yet knowing how to hunt well for himself—have obliged him to feed on whatever he can find. After all, it's a lion's ma that gives it teaching on hunting and such, and Rusky had none."

"What if he does, though?" Alec said, and thought again how Rusky seemed lessened by making his living in that fashion.

"Remembers the tom?" Sam said. And when Alec nodded, he said, "Then I'd say that he's more lion than we figured. Then I'd say he ain't afraid of him; he might be a better hunter than we know, too, and is feeding on the tom's kills through devilment."

As this pattern of behavior was kinder to Rusky than the other, it appealed to Alec; but at the same time it seemed to endow Rusky with attributes that a lion wouldn't have. And it surprised him a little that Sam should take such a view, if he really did, because Sam had often warned him about his attitude toward Rusky.

"You make him sound like a person," Alec said. He meant that Sam appeared to credit Rusky with intelligence.

"Well, I don't mean that," Sam answered as he took Jock's reins from a bush, where he had led them. "I only mean that animals vary, too, one from the other. They're pretty much bound in their ways by instinct, but you still find different-acting ones. Now and then you get a real surprise."

He paused and, in the pause, jerked his head toward what was left of the dead mare.

"That Vixen's a case in point." "How do you mean that?" Alec said, and made himself look at the ruin of hide and bone and ravaged flesh.

"Well, she foaled last month, down at Fred's place. But here she is up here, run off from her responsibilities, and look what it got her. Being understrength from birthing, she was fair game for a lion. Even the old tom. What I mean is, it ain't normal."

"What about the foal?" Alec asked, though he told himself he wasn't really interested. But he remembered Vixen's last foal, the buckskin filly who had come to

Mississippi Has Two Objectives This Week

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mississippi's football team has two objectives this weekend at Tulane, and not necessarily in order of importance.

They are: Get back the No. 1 spot among the college football teams in next week's Associated Press poll, and beat the Green Wave, increasing their defeatless string to 20 games.

Despite a 47-7 victory over Houston last week, Ole Miss went from first to second, with Michigan State now No. 1.

The Rebels have put the mission in good hands—the offense and the defense. Both have been dynamic. The offense is ranked second nationally and the defense 10th. Tulane, which has lost three of four games, is not close to the top 10.

Don Elmore is in charge of the offensive. He is successor to the graduated All-America quarterback Jake Gibbs, who has hardly been missed. Elmore has gained 599 yards in the Rebels' four victories, and has been handicapped by his team's greatness. He just hasn't been able to play for an extended period in any one game.

The defense is a team proposition. Ole Miss Coach John Vaught is blessed with enough manpower for three fine teams.

But still Mississippi ranks second to Michigan State, and all the statistics in the world don't mean a thing today to the Rebels. They may mean more next week if objective No. 1 is accomplished.

Ole Miss is not above taking a helping hand from Notre Dame, which plays Michigan State this week. The Irish got a psychological lift Wednesday—if they needed one with five straight losses to the Spartans—when their practice field was invaded by 2,000 whooping students who staged a rare, impromptu demonstration.

Bill Schoonover, Syracuse's first string halfback, was sidelined for Saturday's game against Penn State with a broken hand, joining varsity performer Dick Easterly, another halfback, on the sidelines along with a flock of second team performers.

Texas Christian worked its all-sophomore backfield of quarterback Gary Mills, halves Larry and Gary Thomas and fullback Tom Crutcher, along with injured quarterback Sonny Gibbs, in preparation for the Texas Tech game.

Fullback Bill Merlino and end Hank Large of Princeton will be out of Saturday's game against Colgate with injuries while Cornell halfback Marcy Tino will miss the Big Red's homecoming contest against Yale after being sidelined with recurring knee trouble.

Weight Lifting Demonstration

ROBERSONVILLE— This week the Rams take to the road to play Greene Central High School at Snow Hill hoping for their second Coastal Conference win of the season.

At the present time the Robersonville eleven has a 1-5 overall record with a 1-3 conference record. Greene Central's season record is 1-5 with the conference record being 0-5. The Rams lost a non-conference contest last Friday to Plymouth and will probably be up for this one.

Coach Bob Lee conducted a hard practice session Monday, but gave the boys the day off Tuesday to go to the S. C. Fair. Monday's session included going over some plays, punting, passing and blocking. Wednesday a scrimmage session was held and another was scheduled for today.

Robersonville Lineup

The lineup for the Rams tomorrow night will probably consist of Billy Cratt calling the signals, Joe Bullock, a freshman, at fullback with Charlie Forbes at tailback and Linwood Bunting at wingback.

In the Robersonville line will be Butch Brown at left end, Haywood Andrews at left guard and Eddie Boone at center. The right end will be handled by Tony Warren with Jim Mobley at outside tackle and Keeter Ross at inside tackle. The right guard will be taken care of by Frankie Rogerson.

Greene Central Coach James Corbin said he is hoping his boys can give the Rams a good game. Both teams have been having a hard time this season as far as the win column is concerned and should be about equally matched.

Greene Central Injuries

Corbin added that his boys will be playing without one of their starting tackles, Jackie Harrell, who suffered a fractured vertebrae last week against Contentnea. Also the left end, Larry Taylor, is out with a knee injury. Taylor has not been able to play in the past two games, but has been working out in light gear some this week. His replacement came up with a broken finger this week and will also be out of the game Friday.

Eppes Meets Darden In Away Contest Friday

The C. M. Eppes Bulldogs will seek a comeback tomorrow night from an unsuccessful homecoming game when they meet the Darden eleven in Wilson at 8 o'clock.

The lineup this week will be junior Alton Harris and freshman Alton Daniels playing the end positions. Sophomores Raymond Tucker and Nathan Cromwell will handle the tackle spots with junior James Green and sophomore Columbus Hunt holding down the guard positions. Levon Little, a sophomore, will head up the line at center.

In the backfield Coach Percy Daniels has made a few changes, putting in Walter Gatlin and James Barnes, both freshmen, at the halfback spots. Sophomore Willie Blount will call the signals at quarterback for the Bulldogs. Marvin Anderson will probably handle the fullback position.

This week the Bulldogs have worked on speed and efficiency, according to Coach Daniels. "This seems to be what the boys need to gain," he said. "With the aid of speed I think the team will come out on top." Daniels continued.

The defensive unit for the Eppes eleven has again been working on the outside running plays the opponents have used against

Gamecocks Host To Tar Heels For Homecoming

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The hot and cold Tar Heels of North Carolina visit a South Carolina team Saturday that will be aiming for a State Fair week victory after losing its last two home games.

The Gamecocks lost their Atlantic Coast Conference opener in Columbia, 6-7 to Duke and last week lost another home game 0-12 to Louisiana State. In other games against Wake Forest, 10-7 and lost to Georgia 14-17.

The pressure is always on Coach Marvin Bass' Gamecocks when they play at home during the State Fair. On top of that, it's homecoming day.

It's hard to tell how the Tar Heels will play. Last week they beat Maryland, 10th ranked nationally at the time, 14-8 in one of the week's biggest upsets. But the week before they put on a lackluster performance in losing to Clemson 0-27 and Coach Jim Hickey was irked with what he called lack of effort.

Hickey, who made a lot of changes in the lineup before the Maryland game, said the men who helped add renewed vigor to the Squad will remain starters. One of these was halfback Roger Smith who intercepted two passes against the Terps.

Elsewhere in the conference Wednesday: Duke worked on its ground game as it finished heavy preparations for Saturday's ACC game with Clemson. Both teams will be trying to get back into the win column. Duke lost to Georgia Tech last week 0-21 and the Tigers bowed to Wake Forest 13-17.

Clemson Coach Frank Howard had his three teams concentrating on offense.

Wake Forest devoted equal time to its ground game and passing attack in preparation for Saturday night's game against N.C. State.

State Coach Earle Edwards had four injured backs working at less than full speed and said it's uncertain whether they'll play against the Deacons. They were Jim D'Antonio, Mike Clark, Tony Kozarsky and Carson Bosher.

Maryland, knocked out of the top ten after last week's loss to North Carolina, named replacements for three first string backs who will miss the Air Force game because of injuries.

Virginia Coach Bill Elias divided practice time equally between defense and offense to prepare for Saturday's Virginia Tech game in Roanoke. Pass defense seemed improved, he said.

Rangers Downed By Canadians

NEW YORK (AP)—It could be that it's over already. The short, happy season of the New York Rangers, that is.

"We didn't skate, we didn't check, we didn't think" summarized player-coach Doug Harvey after Wednesday night's 5-2 pounding by the Montreal Canadiens.

The Rangers, who got off to a flying start, now face a two-game road trip before returning to Madison Square Garden against tough Detroit.

They're in Chicago tonight and visit Detroit Saturday.

The Rangers, who haven't made the playoffs in three seasons, won three of their first four games—losing only to the Canadiens at Montreal 3-1.

NOW EXPLORE A NEW WORLD OF WORTH

at your Chevrolet dealer's one-stop shopping center!

Discovering your kind of car just couldn't be simpler! Why? Because your Chevrolet dealer is offering three separate and complete lines of cars—the Corvette—for 1962.

If you like your cars full size, by all means consider the beautiful new Jet-smooth '62 Chevrolets. Fourteen models to choose from, including elegant new Impalas, sure-to-please new Bel Airs and neat new Biscaynes.

If you like your cars trim and sporty, then one of the nine new Corvairs, with their sure-footed rear-engine agility, may be just the model for you.

And, if in-between size is your size . . . you couldn't have come to a better place. You can pick one of the brand-new Chevy II models—each built a new way for a new kind of modern, basic transportation. With so much to choose from, you're sure to find just the size, the model and the worth you want . . . in one easy stop at your Chevrolet dealer's.

'62 CHEVROLET IMPALA SPORT COUPE

Folks look twice at this Impala hardtop and they still think it's a soft top. The sculptured steel roof is molded into crisp convertible contours . . . it's the sweetest trick of the year. All the plush roominess, Jet-smooth silkeness and extra Impala refinements are here just as you want them. You'd expect no less from the top of the Chevrolet line—and you'd scarcely expect more from the top of anybody's line. So why pay more?

THE NEW CHEVY II 100 4-DOOR SEDAN

Here's a new-sized family sedan as spacious as many recent-model full-sized cars inside. Built to save you money on service and maintenance. Fenders bolt on for easy fixin'. Your choice of a frugal 4- or savin' 6-cylinder engine (in most models). And those new Mono-Plate rear springs ride satiny smooth.

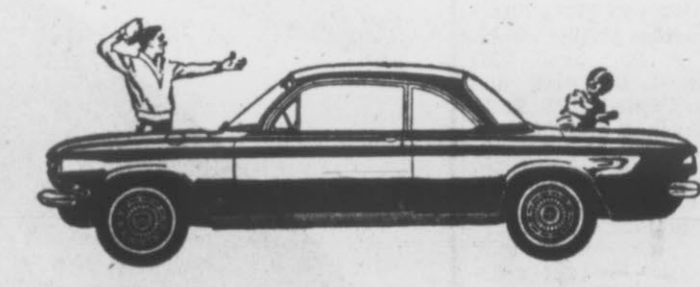

'62 CHEVROLET BEL AIR STATION WAGON

Chevrolet station wagon fever is delightfully contagious—and here's one reason why. This one has an easy-loading cargo opening nearly 5 ft. across. Sports a spunky standard Six or V8 . . . optional extra-cost V8's up to 409 hp. Keeps its good looks (front fenders, for instance, have new steel underskirts to resist corrosion).

THE NEW CHEVY II NOVA 400 SPORT COUPE

Here's a heart-stopper that's not a budget-stopper. It's soon-to-be-available Chevy II hardtop. Front bucket seats are optional at extra cost, along with plenty of other options and accessories. And there's a snappy Chevy II convertible coming to join it soon.

'62 CORVAIR MONZA CLUB COUPE

If you want sports car spice on a budget—this one's for you. Corvairs have a perky new look for '62, sporty new interiors and bigger new brakes. They climb, corner and cling with road-rally reflexes, what with that 4-wheel independent suspension and the engine in the rear.

Ban May Cause Tattoo Artist Go Underground

By JOHN T. CUNIFF
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Mike Colantuona, 22, paced his 8th Avenue tattoo parlor gesturing furiously with arms that emerged from an undershirt inscribed with skin paintings.

The tattooists say they will sue to remain open. Leonard Rubin, a lawyer representing several tattooists, notes that cigarettes weren't outlawed because of claimed statistical links with cancer. And neither, he points out, was the automobile industry, despite an obvious association with accidents. Tattooing is a small industry. The department says the city's six full-time and three part-time parlors do about 10,000 tattoos a year. The tattooists say they do many more than that. Gross income apparently is between $50-

000 and $100,000 a year. There is no formal association of members. And the business requires no certificate. Skill is passed down from one person to another. There is no real tattoo school in the city. "People want tattoos," said one tattooist, who then added a reference to prohibition not preventing the sale of liquor—because people wanted liquor. "I'll be tattooing Nov. 2," said Mike Calantuona. "I think tattoos do the city good," said his brother James, 26. "How many guys the FBI caught from tattoos? How many people we helped by covering up scars?"

LAND OF CONTRASTS — Soviet-made autos parked near yurts, traditional dwellings for Mongols, lend a modern touch to village near Ulan Bator, capital of Outer Mongolia. The remote country is bordered by the Soviet Union and Red China.

Edwin Ludwig, director of the Bureau of Food and Drugs, said that if the case went to court, "I don't know if we could prove it." "Well," he added, "if a guy gets tattooed and then comes down with hepatitis three or four months later the presumptive evidence is there. But you mightn't convince the supreme court."

Reflector Staff Writer
Cpl. J. G. Thomas of the North Carolina Highway Patrol District III, Friday, after being promoted to the rank in ceremonies at Highway Patrol Headquarters in Raleigh last Thursday.

Thomas, a native of Beaulieu in Duplin County, is a veteran of 15 years service with the state law enforcement agency. Cpl. Thomas, who "had always wanted to be a patrolman" joined the law enforcement group in 1946. He had graduated from Beaulieu High School, then entered the U. S. Army Air Force in World War II, during which time he served two years in the Hawaiian Islands as Radar Technician. He entered the Highway Patrol school a short time after his discharge in 1946. The officer's first duty station was at Swanquarter where he served for 14 months before moving to Belhaven, in 1948. He had been stationed in that Beaufort County community until his promotion last week. Thomas' duties as corporal of the patrol include assisting the sergeant of District III (Pitt and Edgecombe Counties) in the administration and supervision of two counties. He will be in direct charge of the officers in Pitt County.

"I believe in a lot of strict law enforcement," Cpl. Thomas explained, noting that strict enforcement leads to a reduction in traffic mishaps. He said that officers, while being strict, should not be "personal" in their enforcement but rather "are looking at the infraction of the law and not the individual." "That is what the tax payers are paying for," the officer said, "and good enforcement is what the patrol tries to give." "Clear cut violations" are what the officers are looking for, "and that is what we want them to find," he noted. Hazardous moving violations such as "failure to dim headlights, speeding, reckless driving" and the like are the violations which cause death on our roads and while "we want patrolmen to be fair, efficient and courteous, the officers will be strict," and looking for this type of law breaker.

Governor Due At State Fair Today
RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina State Fair moved into the second half of its six-day run today with Governor's Day and the annual running of the Governor's Cup harness race. Gov. Sanford was to attend the race and present the cup to the victor. In another highlight today, a parade of livestock champions will move through the arena in the early evening after judging is completed. Fair attendance reached the 10,000 mark for the second day in a row Wednesday. Highway patrolmen reported that traffic was heavy but moving. Clear and mild weather was forecast again today. There was barely a cloud in the sky for the first three days of the exposition. Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine said, "Wednesday and Thursday are usually our weak days, but this year I believe we are going to have a good crowd every day." Fair officials said they felt attendance would be smoothed out as a result of a new policy in which passes to school children are good any day except Saturday.

Cabarrus County Drought Critical
CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — An 8-week drought is nearing the critical stage in rural areas of Cabarrus County, officials said today. "This is as bad a drought as I can remember for this time of year," said Assistant County Agent J. Paul Bowles. He said many ponds, streams and wells around the county will soon dry up unless the drought is broken. Farmers in the southern part of Cabarrus County, Bowles added, have begun to shift cattle in an effort to secure water for the animals. Small grain crops also are in danger of being wiped out unless they get rain soon. City officials said thus far the dry period has not caused any serious dangers to their water supplies.

No Amusement In Fun House Fire
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — It was anything but amusement Wednesday for firemen who battled a blaze in the Fun House at Euclid Peach Park, which caused damage estimated at $25,000. Arriving at the amusement park they took over for maintenance men who had manned a fire hose. The firemen entered the fun house and found themselves confronted with a maze of partitions that are doors and vice versa. According to Sixth Battalion Chief Emmet H. Byrne, it took the firemen five minutes to figure out how to get through the maze. Then, they had to run their hoses through the darkened passages, across the tiled floor, to the blaze, which they put out in 36 minutes. Sparks from a workman's torch had started the fire.

Insurance Companies Relaxing On Previous Bars To Coverage

NEW YORK (AP) — Persons who have snapped back satisfactorily from a heart attack are finding life insurance companies today willing, even eager, to take them on as insurable risks.

So are those who have been cured of tuberculosis or whose cancer operation has been pronounced successful after a period of time.

Nor does total blindness any longer bar a person from getting an insurance policy. And the number of job categories on the prescribed list shrinks steadily.

Some newer companies are specializing in insuring cardiacs, diabetics, and those with a history of other serious ailments.

Many in the insurance business see a definite trend toward expanding coverage by tapping the vast field that once was barred, or penalized by much larger premiums, as substandard risks.

One move that was widely publicized was into the field of insuring persons over 65, a steadily growing sector of the population.

The Institute of Life Insurance reports only three out of every 100 applicants today are turned down for reasons of health, occupation, habits or family medical history.

As an example it cites a recent trend which has swung a large majority of companies to issuing permanent policies to healthy and well-adjusted blind persons at standard premium rates. And where an extra premium is charged it usually runs to no more than $2.50 a year for $1,000 of protection.

An example of a specialist in the field once barred as substandard ard risks is the United Equity Life Insurance Co. of Chicago, a legal reserve company chartered by the State of Illinois.

Its president, Jerome Garland, is a cardiac alumnus. He says his experience led him to study the actuarial tables on similar victims who returned to normal everyday activities. As a result early this year his comparatively new firm began offering to insure heart disease victims whose doctors report, after a period of time, that they have recovered.

In the first six weeks the company wrote nearly $2 million in policies—all on the doctor's say-so without any physical checkup by the company.

United Equity is now extending insurance coverage to those with medical histories of arrested tuberculosis, controlled diabetes, cancer that hasn't returned after

Will Appear In 5 Piano Recitals

Dr. Wolfgang Fetsch, pianist and faculty member of the department of music at East Carolina College, will appear during early December in recitals at five North Carolina colleges. His program will include works by Bach, Beethoven, Schumann, and Miklos Rozsa.

Performances by Dr. Fetsch are scheduled at Methodist College, Fayetteville, Dec. 1; Woman's College, Greensboro, Dec. 3; N. C. Wesleyan College, Rocky Mount, Dec. 5; East Carolina College, Dec. 7; and Queens College, Charlotte, Dec. 9.

Dr. Fetsch appeared as soloist with the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra during the 1960 season, in concerts in Smithfield, Clinton, Rocky Mount, and Mars Hill. He also gave solo recitals in Southern Pines, and at the N. C. Art Museum in Raleigh and Campbell College.

He has been a faculty member of the department of music at East Carolina since 1957. As a teacher of piano, he worked previously with the U. S. Army Education Program for four years. He has taught also at Osaka Music College in Japan, the University of Denver, and Indiana University.

French Farmers In Price Protest

QUIMPER, France (AP) — More than 2,000 farmers held a mass rally Wednesday to protest the price of peas and green beans.

It was the first mass demonstration in many weeks by French farmers who blocked highways and railroads during the summer in protest against low farm prices.

Farmers organizations have been a thorn in the side of the De Gaulle government for many months, but they agreed to call off their dogs on condition the government would work out solutions to their problems.

JFK, FDR Might Not Meet New Standards

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard's retiring dean of admissions says President Kennedy and both Roosevelts probably could not have entered Harvard under a more selective admission policy.

The same thing applies to Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican candidate for vice president a year ago, former Dean Wilbur J. Bender says in his final report.

Bender, as dean of admissions of Harvard College, the university's undergraduate school, directed admission policy for eight years.

His final report defended his policy against critics and said he was not at all sure he would support a so-called top one per cent policy — restricting admission to students of topmost rank academic ability.

In his reference to the Harvard graduates who reached the White House, Bender said: "I might point out, in passing, that two of the four major candidates for the two top positions in the 1960 presidential campaign were not only Harvard graduates and from Boston; they were both Harvard sons and private school graduates and thus included in the two groups which have been the favorite whipping boys of some of the most vociferous critics of present admission policy.

"I have not examined their admission records, but it is entirely possible, in fact probable, that one or both of these men would have been denied admission to Harvard under a top one per cent policy.

"If we push this point a bit further, we can ask whether the two preceding Harvard graduates in the White House, F.D.R. and T.R. would be admitted to or would want to attend an academically elite Harvard.

"The answer is probably no, un-historical and foolish as it may be to discuss a question of this sort. I do not believe that the country, or Harvard, has been the worse because of its Harvard-educated presidents (and senators and Cabinet officers), few of whom have made brilliant academic records at Harvard."

As an alternative to a top one per cent policy, Bender suggested a top five per cent policy to include a variety of personalities, talents, backgrounds and career goals.

Bender posed this question: "Does Harvard want a student body selected solely on the basis of apparent relative academic promise, selected, that is, on a single-factor basis, or are there other considerations, largely non-academic, which should influence selection, and if so, what are they and how much weight should be placed on them."

Quietly Move On Obscene Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office Department said today its quiet campaign against obscenity in the mails has shown an increase in arrests and convictions so far this year.

Postmaster General J. Edward Day said the Postal Inspection Service had arrested 98 persons on charges of violating postal obscenity statutes through the third quarter of 1961, which ended Sept. 15.

This represents a 21 per cent increase over the same period last year, he said.

There were 83 convictions obtained as a result of postal investigations, an increase of 13.9 per cent over last year's total for the period.

Jury Required 22 Minutes To Convict Hijacker

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—An all-male jury took only 22 minutes Wednesday to convict Leon Bearden, 38, of hijacking a continental airlines jet airliner over New Mexico Aug. 3.

Bearden was found guilty of kidnaping, obstruction of interstate commerce, and violating the Federal Motor Vehicle Theft Act. Bearden and his son, Cody, 16, both of Coolidge, Ariz., await sentencing.

Attorneys told jurors the Bearden trial was the first of its kind. Cody Bearden went on trial with his father but Monday pleaded guilty under the Juvenile Corrections Act to transporting a stolen vehicle across a state line.

U.S. Dist. Judge E. E. Thomas said he would wait on presentencing reports on both father and son before setting a sentencing date.

Defense attorney Robert S. Pine asks for a verdict of innocent by reason of insanity for Leon Bearden.

As an example, Pine pointed to Bearden's withholding until his trial the claim that government intelligence agents were responsible for the hijacking.

Bearden testified Tuesday that U.S. intelligence agents had threatened to put him and his wife, Mary Ruth, 34, in prison if the hijacking wasn't carried out.

Prosecutor Lawrence Fuller told the jury, "Bearden apparently went to great lengths to cook up the cloak and dagger story."

"Bearden is crazy like a fox," he added. "It took a smart man to realize the possibilities of shoplifting a $5.5-million item."

Court sources said they expect Bearden to appeal in his own behalf. He has 10 days in which to file the motion.

The prosecution asked life imprisonment for Leon, Cody being confined beyond his 21st birthday, Nov. 13, 1965.

The Bearden seized control by pistol point of the 707 jet airliner over Columbus, N.M., on a flight from Phoenix to El Paso.

Leon Bearden ordered the pilot to head for Cuba, but the pilot talked him into allowing a landing at El Paso for fuel.

At El Paso, the pair held the 5 crewmen and four of the plane's 55 passengers hostage. Federal officers surrounded the plane.

The tense standoff lasted several hours. The Bearden ordered the pilot to take off, but officers punctured the plane's tires with machine-gun fire. The Bearden then were overpowered.

A 12-Year-Old Really Knows Facts In Case

By ASHLEY B. FUTRELL
Editor & Publisher
Washington Daily News
Washington, N.C. (AP) — "What happened?"

That was a strange question coming from a 12-year-old boy. It was strange because if any one in the world knew what had happened, it was this youngster. After all, he had masterminded the series of events which led to the question.

The youngster, who lives some 12 miles northeast of Washington on the Plymouth highway, is a normal youngster in every respect. Perhaps he has a little of the adventurer in his heart, and perhaps for obvious reasons he does not want his true identity known. Anyway this boy, John Doe we'll call him, was playing in the yard of his home when suddenly he saw a black snake crawling slowly on the grass. Knowing that a black snake is non-poisonous, he went over and picked him up pronto.

Then he suddenly remembered something, and perhaps a bright idea struck him at the same time. His mother had given him an old pocketbook in which he kept his fishing tackle. It was right there on the front porch.

With the snake wriggling in his hands, he went over to the porch, picked up the pocketbook, emptied its contents, and carefully placed the snake inside.

He half walked, half ran toward the highway in front of his home. Now the devilish plot was fast unfolding. He dropped that pocketbook—with its unusual contents inside—on the center line of the highway. He then retreated to nearby honeysuckle vines to see what might happen.

It did not take long. In a couple of minutes dramatic action was unfolding before his very eyes. A 1954 automobile carrying eight persons approached, the unsuspecting driver slammed on brakes skidded the tires, and came to a halt some 30 feet beyond the pocketbook. He hurriedly alighted from the car, ran back, picked up the pocketbook, and scooted back to the car.

Quickly jumping inside and slamming the door, the car took off in spectacular hot rod fashion. But then something happened. About 150 feet away four car doors opened simultaneously and eight teen-aged boys jumped or scrambled out of that car onto the highway. The car continued its zig-zagging route, ending up in a nearby field after jumping a small ditch. It turned over on its side, and was practically demolished.

Little Johnny Doe crouched behind the honeysuckle vines for a brief moment, then slowly made his way to the highway where a lot of mumbling and yelling was taking place.

By this time a couple of cars passing that way had stopped. Everybody kept asking, "What happened?" Johnny knew, but he was afraid to tell. He too joined in the chorus of "What happened?"

Even today there are some aspects of this mystery which still remain unsolved. To this day no one has seen that snake anymore, and no one has found that pocketbook.

Eight teen-age boys are a bit wiser—and sadder, and Johnny Doe is a bit wiser too—particularly when his father found out "what really happened."

CUTTING WEEDS
GRIFTON — Employees of the Grifton Utilities Department this week will be cutting weeds and bushes around ditches. Superintendent Luther Lewis stated Tuesday.

The new government-inspired interest in fallout shelters has produced millions of words and hundreds of working drawings of many different types and shapes of these protective retreats.

Materials used in fallout shelter construction include steel, reinforced concrete and concrete block and brick, among others. Wood has been pretty well ignored because of concern over its resistance to moisture and insects when used underground. There also have been reservations about its value in resistance to fallout.

Now, however, the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization has approved a new series of wooden fallout shelters, produced after almost two years of engineering research by the Douglas Fir Plywood Association, an industry-wide organization. There are three models, to be built underground, above ground and in existing basements. All three exceed the requirements for protection against fallout. They also offer some resistance to blast, the underground model in particular being listed in the "substantial" resistance category.

All three models are assembled from standard sizes of exterior-type plywood, which is waterproof, and ordinary lumber available at any lumber yard. However, materials used for the underground shelter must be pressure treated against decay. This model is completely assembled above ground and then lowered into an excavation. Earth is then backfilled around the sides and three feet of earth loaded on top. The shelter has been tested to prove that it will resist a 10-foot head of water and the blast of a 20-megaton nuclear bomb. It also will afford protection against the heaviest fallout.

Each of the wooden shelters is large enough to accommodate six people for the two weeks recommended by OCDM. Plans include directions for installing venting equipment that can be operated by electricity or by hand. It is felt that the models for above ground and in existing basements can be constructed by the average home handyman, with the underground model requiring a higher degree of skill.

Ready-Made Vacation Spot

ZALESKI, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University at Athens now has a ready-made vacation spot for faculty members.

It's a beautiful century-old home on spacious grounds at Zaleski, about 25 miles away by road from the Athens campus. The house and grounds were presented to the university by Miss Margaret Jane Fischer, who now lives in New York City.

The house, built by Miss Fischer's grandfather, one of the area's original settlers, is completely furnished down to the table linens. Ohio University is using it as a faculty vacation spot, study retreat, conference headquarters and—under faculty supervision—has let students hold weekend meetings at "Fischer House."

Former Swiss President Dies

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—Rodolphe Rubattel, 65, former Swiss president and minister of public economy, died after a heart attack in his home here Wednesday.

Rubattel, a lawyer, joined the seven-man Council of cabinet in 1947 and retired in 1954 when it was his turn under the Swiss system of rotation to hold the presidency.

Gen. Taylor Gets Viet Nam Report

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. guerrilla warfare experts gave Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor a secret appraisal today of the way South Viet Nam's American-trained army is standing up under the Communist Viet Cong offensive.

President Kennedy's special military adviser drove from the U.S. Embassy to headquarters of the U.S. military assistance advisory group for what was described as a detailed situation analysis.

The briefing prepared the general and his staff for a flying inspection tour he will make Friday and Saturday into some of the delta and highland areas where the "quiet war" is raging in mostly small, vicious guerrilla actions.

President Ngo Dinh Diem's newly declared state of national emergency did not have any noticeable effect in Saigon.

Armed guards stood before the president's palace. Sentinels with machine guns patrolled the National Assembly Building. Police and soldiers were seen at key points all over the city. But that has been normal for some time.

U.S. officials said they were taking normal security precautions for Taylor's tour of the outlands. They obviously were on the alert against a possible effort by the Communist Viet Cong or their supporters either to harm or embarrass Taylor. So far there have been no incidents of this sort.

HORSEPOWERED HARVEST

This may be the day of the big power combines on the broad grain fields of the west but they're still using horses to gather the harvest in North Dakota, on seven neighboring farms 20 miles northwest of New Salem.

Headed by John Weber, a Hereford breeder, the seven farm owners team up each year to harvest 1,000 acres of assorted grains—all by horsepower. Together they use eight teams of horses, keeping one in pasture as a spare. When the wagons roll into the fields for the crops and head back for the threshing on Tobias Weber's ranch, it's like a scene one remembers of an earlier day.

The same farmers have been working together for the past 20 years and have used only horses for the harvesting. The horses are preferred to tractors, says John Weber, the crew chief, because the team moves as a man pitches and the farmer doesn't have to get on and off as he does on a tractor. "There's no competition here," says one, "just cooperation."

When the harvest is in full swing the crew works 12 to 14 hours a day. But there's the big happy break when the men pile into the Weber ranchhouse for dinner with plenty of hot food for all.

LIKE DAYS OF OLD, Otto Lennick moves up to the threshing rig to unload . . . and bundles of oats fly into the wagon as the horses stand by.

Henry Gerving takes a long pull at a cool drink of water—something necessary for any threshing crew.

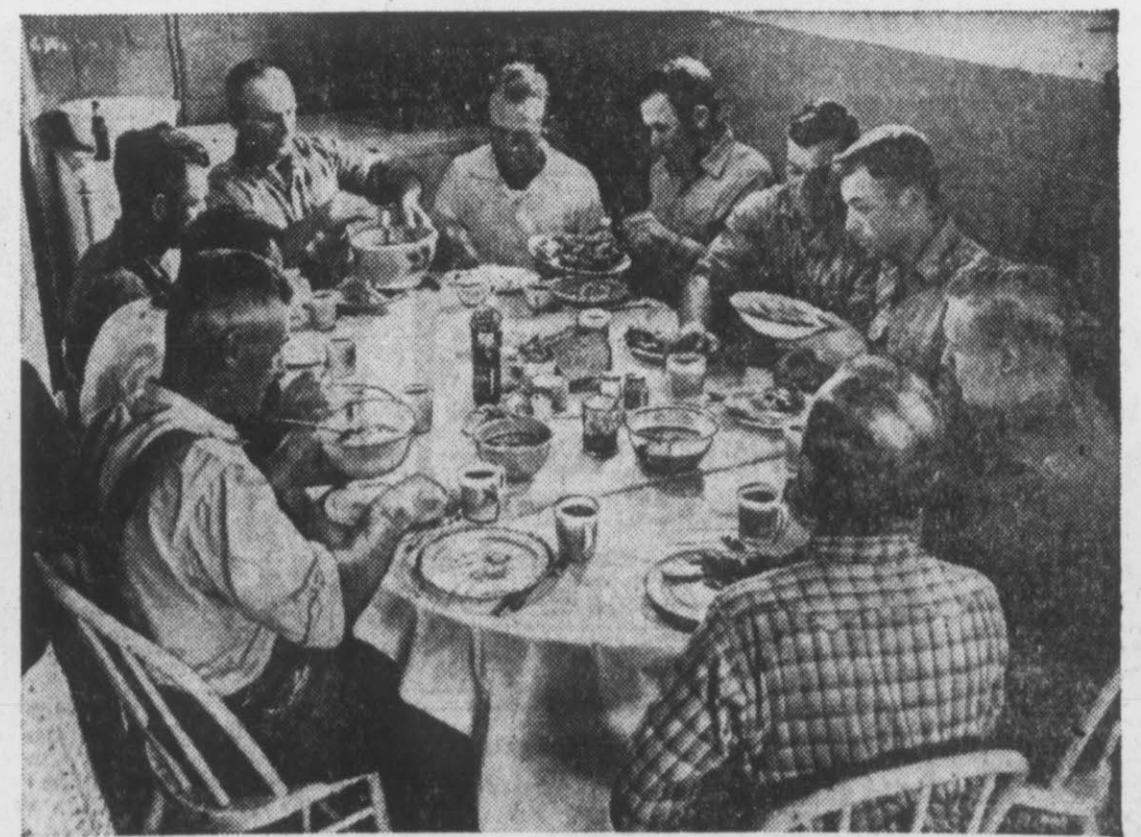

Farmers George Doll and Eugene Schaaf take turns pushing oats into the hopper of the threshing machine. As two wagons are unloaded, two others stand by, ready to keep the oats flying.

His wagon loaded, George Doll guides his team up the hill to the threshing machine.

PLENTY OF HORSE POWER. These eight teams stand by with their loads of grain at the threshing rig on the Tobias Weber ranch.

Appetites are at full peak at harvest time. The men sit down to a big, hot dinner which the womenfolk had prepared.

Moose Clothing Bank Campaign To Start With A Movie On Saturday

EARLY CONTRIBUTORS to the Clothing Bank, Mrs. Pelham Martin with young Matt and Marilyn, have something for Garrison and J. A. Schachner. (Photo by S. L. Rowland)

The annual Clothing Bank drive by Greenville Moose formally gets underway this weekend, though Chairman Norman Garrison confides "we've already received calls from a number of contributors".

As in other years the collected clothing will be cleaned, sorted and stored for distribution to needy Pitt County families.

Last winter, says Garrison, "we were able to help something like 275 people". The cold weather, he recalled, "always seems to bring out the need few of us are aware of."

Used articles of clothing that still have some wear, are the prime need. Many families, notes Garrison, have clothing that has been outgrown or shows signs of wear that ordinarily relegates it to the back of a closet or a little-used drawer. These items are in demand.

A movie is being offered by the State Theater, in behalf of the Clothing Bank, for children Saturday at 9:30 a.m. The price of admission will be a contribution of used-but-still-usable clothing.

"We acquired boxes of clothing from this feature last year" says the Bank chairman; "and we're grateful for the source of help again this year."

College View Cleaners has again offered to clean and process the clothing collected by the Moose this year.

Teams of volunteers have been allotted certain sections of Greenville for the collecting of contributions on Monday night.

"We're asking that on Monday night, people with articles they'd like to have picked up for the Clothing Bank, to turn on their front lights so that pickups can be readily made", says Garrison.

The pickup teams will begin operating at 7:00 p.m. and hope to be finished by 8:00 o'clock.

Greenville Moose Lodge Governor, Dr. Charles McAndrew, noted today that "this project of collecting used clothing is a logical means of getting the most good out of what otherwise becomes something to be eventually thrown away."

"Our experience in this field has proven the Clothing Bank to be one of the biggest little services the Moose can provide this community. The Lodge is grateful to all who help us in this service."

Observers Believe Puppet Ulbricht Soon To Be Fired

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
BERLIN (AP) — Officials and commentators in West Berlin speculated today that Moscow may soon fire its East German puppet, Walter Ulbricht.

There was widespread belief that East Germany's spade-bearded chief of state would disappear from the scene in an effort to make direct negotiations with the East German regime more palatable to the West.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev dealt Ulbricht a bitter blow in his Kremlin speech Tuesday by abandoning the Dec. 31 deadline he had set for signing a peace treaty with East Germany.

The peace treaty is the main instrument for Khrushchev's threats against West Berlin. With it the Soviet Union threatens to turn over to the East German Reds control of the Western Allies' access routes to West Berlin, forcing them to negotiate with the East Germans they have so far refused to recognize or fight their way through if the East Germans try to block their traffic.

"A peace treaty before the end of the year" has been the keynote of all East German propaganda for months. It seemed almost as though Ulbricht had staked his career on it.

Ulbricht apparently has been trying to force the Kremlin's hand. Western observers said Khrushchev's speech abruptly put him back in his place, and like a true puppet he accepted the new line without any sign of hesi-itation. Western diplomats listening to the speech by Khrushchev were amused to notice Ulbricht "applauding his master like crazy after every period and every comma," the West Berlin newspaper B.Z. reported.

Ulbricht's chained Communist press reported that Khrushchev's speech under bannerlines proclaiming "the triumph of communism." The key passage of the speech on Berlin was carried without prominence and without comment.

The Berlin Nacht-Depeche said the removal of the deadline "cannot have put Ulbricht in a very cheerful mood." The West Berlin newspaper Telegraf, which has close connections with Mayor Willy Brandt, said Khrushchev could afford to drop his deadline without losing face, but Ulbricht was so committed to it that the announcement of the new line marked a black day for him.

Ulbricht has serious difficulties within his own party as a result of the wall of concrete and abed wire he threw across Berlin in August.

East German papers admit more and more openly that there is visorious opposition to the wall and to the atmosphere of Stalinist oppression in East Germany.

Moscow-trained, Ulbricht at 68 is an unconstructed Stalinist. His regime paid lip service to Khrushchev's abolition of the "personality cult" in the Soviet empire but never made the new line effective in East Germany.

Kiwanians Elect Fine Arts Series Is Opened By Vocalist

Greenville's Kiwanis Club at its regular meeting tomorrow night will elect its officers and directors for 1962 from a slate of members selected by the nominating committee.

Nominated were: Ed E. Rawl for president; Elbert Bennett and Grover Everett for vice president; and Banks Cozart, Hicks Corey, Badger Clark, Billy Laughinghouse, John Messick, Raymond Smith, Joe Taft and Atec White for director. Four directors will be elected.

Grover Everett, the club's program chairman, will present the program at the meeting, scheduled for 6:30 Friday at the Rotary Club.

The Kiwanians annual fruit cake sale is underway with Bill and Charles Hudson as co-chairmen. Proceeds from the sale of the three-pound cakes will go into the Kiwanis fund for underprivileged children.

Probe Cause Of Plant Explosion

CHICAGO (AP) — Investigation teams sought today the cause of a high-impact explosion which demolished a cosmetic company's chemical mixing building, injured more than 250 persons, and shattered windows up to a mile away.

No one was killed in the West Side blast Wednesday, which destroyed a one-story reinforced concrete building used by Helene Curtis Industries to blend cosmetic chemicals. Authorities said they had reached no conclusion immediately as to the cause of the explosion.

Teen-Age Girls Vying For Crown

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — More than 100 girls are vying in a beauty contest that has everything but a bathing suit division. The girls — ranging in age from 13 to 17 — are contestants in the first annual Miss Teen-Age America Pageant.

One winner from among the 105 contestants will be announced Friday night.

The 1961-62 Fine Arts Series presented by the Student Government Association of East Carolina College opened last night with a vocal recital in Wright Auditorium by the young American tenor, Walter Carringer.

Carringer is a native of Murphy, North Carolina who now resides in New York City.

The program that Carringer presented was widely varied and encompassed several centuries of vocal literature. His program (excluding a number of encores) included works by twelve composers in four languages. With such an extensive representation the demands on the performer regarding to style, diction, and tonal shading are imposing to say the least. Mr. Carringer's background in oratorio singing undoubtedly enabled him to render the three Handel numbers that opened the program with the style and tone quality that is so often associated with the great Baroque Composer. The selections that followed by the 19th Century German Composers, Schubert and Schumann, were sung with control, good dynamic contrast, and an understanding of these lovely songs. The first half of the program closed with an aria from Tosca and an encore.

The second half of the program was devoted to works by French and American Composers. The French were represented by Lalo, Debussy, and Poulenc. The American selections included works by Charles Ives, Robert Birch, Douglas Moore, Richard Cummings, and John Edmunds. Of these Americans Ives and Moore are by far the best known. Although both use folk elements in their music they are as different as night and day.

Ives, who died recently, has been the subject of much controversy in musical circles. Many feel he was one of the outstanding composers this country has yet produced. His short song, ANN STREET, which was on last night's program was well received, well performed, and would suggest that further attention to this composer would be well worth the effort.

The enthusiasm of the audience was rewarded by Carringer with many encores. He was accompanied by Gene Featherstone whose playing of the Puccini aria from Tosca favorably impressed this listener.

"That the Fine Art Series is a very worthy project, there is no doubt. It deserves the support of every music lover in the community. Those that attended last night were rewarded by a varied and interesting program that was presented by a talented singer. Those responsible for bringing Carringer to Wright Auditorium should be congratulated."

Barrie Chase Learns Cold Facts Of TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY, AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Barrie Chase, an unknown dancer before she appeared two seasons ago as Fred Astaire's partner in the first of his television specials, currently is learning the cold hard facts of life in the medium.

Barrie, a pretty, dark-haired girl in her early 20s, will make her first Astaire-less appearance on TV as the dancing star of an ABC variety special, "The Seasons of Youth," next Wednesday night. She came to New York for the assignment. But as recently as two days ago she had met no one connected with the program except the choreographer, and had no notion how her numbers fit into the show.

"I haven't an idea what it's all about," she confessed. "I'm rehearsing the dances. But that's about it, although I suppose that's all right—the only reason I wanted to do the show was because of Bob Fosse, the choreographer. He did those exciting dances in 'West Side Story.'"

"But I tell you, it's very different from working with Fred. His shows were planned ahead of time, from the beginning to the end, and we were all in on the planning. We were consulted about the wardrobe, and we all knew what we were doing long before we started rehearsals."

The dancer—she started lessons at age 7—is more concerned with developing an acting career in motion pictures than dancing in TV shows, anyway.

Barrie, by the way, is tired of reports of a romance with widower Astaire. He's a good friend, a great teacher and benefactor, but that, she says firmly, is that.

Now that "Bachelor Father" has moved to ABC and Noreen Corcoran has grown up enough to have lost her ponytail and to attend junior college, John Forsythe seems a little elderly and conservative to be playing a gay, fancy-free bachelor.

If the show goes on another season, maybe they could marry up a supporting role and retitlle the series "Uncle Knows Best."

But little Jay North, who at nine is playing a third season as a child of 6, is holding onto his youthful appearance and shrill voice amazingly well. But over the months "Dennis the Menace" has settled down to a weekly struggle between Dennis and his neighbor, Mr. Wilson. This can get a bit tiresome—and does —week after week.

Gift Turkey To White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House will receive a gift turkey today from the National Federation of Turkey Growers.

Miss Pamela Turnure, press secretary to Mrs. John F. Kennedy, said the turkey will be accepted by J. B. West, the chief usher.

As a result, she said, turkey will be served in the White House in the near future.

Religious Evaluation Week Slated To Begin Monday At East Carolina

Religious Evaluation Week at East Carolina College Monday through Thursday, October 23-27, will feature lectures by Dr. George K. Schweitzer of Knoxville, Tenn., nuclear chemist and professor at the University of Tennessee; Lt. Col. Martin L. Shaner, Base Chaplain at Seymour - Johnson Air Force Base; and Ichiro Matsuda, student from Japan.

Locked 10 Days Inside A Boxcar

WEED, Calif. (AP) — A man was rescued today after being locked in a boxcar for 10 days without food or water.

Police Chief David Dawson said Patrick Kelly, 51, an itinerant, was very weak but in good condition.

Dawson said he understood Kelly had boarded the train in Los Angeles Oct. 8, headed for Oakland, Calif. He soon discovered the door had been latched. He pounded on it to no avail.

Dawson said the empty car had been on a siding in Weed since Oct. 13.

Kelly was found by employees of a box factory when they opened the car to load it.

Monday's program, opening the series of events for the week, will be a service of meditation and will include music of a popular type. Scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in the Wright auditorium, the service will be led by William F. Mitchell, Jr., of Rt. 3, Louisburg, president of the Wesley Foundation at the college, and Peter J. J. of Groton, Conn., vocalist.

Dr. Schweitzer's topic Tuesday at 11 a.m. in the Wright auditorium will be "The Two-edged Sword of Science." The College Chapel Choir will appear in a program of religious music.

At a seminar at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Joyner Library Dr. Schweitzer will lead a seminar for honor students, seniors, graduate students, and faculty members on "The Hebrew-Christian Tradition and the Origins of Modern Science."

"The Sand Box," a one-act play by Albee, will be presented Wednesday at 7 p.m. over the college closed-circuit television system. A discussion of the drama will be included on the program.

Chaplain Shaner will speak at 12 noon Thursday in the Austin auditorium at a program for Air Force ROTC cadets, faculty members, and other students.

"Evaluating Religion" will be Mr. Matsuda's topic when he addresses students and faculty members at 3 p.m. Thursday in the Joyner Library. While on the campus, he will also appear as guest speaker in several college classes.

A literary contest, with prizes of $10 each being offered for the best essay short story, and poem or one-act play, is being conducted during the week. Works presented, it has been announced, "must deal with religion, but not necessarily in support of pre-emption of conventional religion."

Russians Reject Bomb Protest

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker said on Wednesday night Canada had attempted to lodge a protest with the Soviet government over its announced intention to explode a 50-megaton nuclear bomb but it was rejected.

Diefenbaker told a newsmen the protest had been rejected by the Soviet Embassy here on the ground that the bomb launching was a domestic matter.

necessarily in support of pre-emption of conventional religion. The contest will close October 28, and winners will be chosen by a committee of faculty members of the English department.

The program for the week has been arranged by a committee of students working with D. D. Gross, director of religious activities at the college.

The Pitt County United Fund announced this morning that a total of $50,817.55 has been raised to date throughout the county, an increase of $20,323.55 since last Thursday and the largest increase that the United Fund has shown in any week this year.

Thus the United Fund has 55 per cent of its $91,350 minimum goal.

Weekend 'Wolf Pack' Scheduled

Motorists who go afoul of the law in Pitt County had better watch out, according to the N. C. Highway Patrol, especially this weekend.

Cpl. J. G. Thomas of the Patrol here in Pitt, said officers working in the county will, again this weekend, hold a Wolf Pack Patrol saturating a designated area in the county with a number of patrol vehicles, then moving to another small area.

Purpose of the special enforcement measure, Cpl. Thomas reported, is to seek out and arrest all violators found in the area. "Generally," according to the officer, "the special enforcement patrols such as this concentrate every vehicle is stopped, even if just to check the driver's operator's license," Cpl. Thomas noted.

Last week during an eight-hour Wolf Pack operation, 34 motorists were arrested on traffic charges by officers participating in the program. The Wolf Pack saturation was conducted in the Belvoir, Bethel and Pactolus areas then, Cpl. Thomas said.

Local Firemen Responded To 2 Calls Yesterday

Greenville Firemen responded to two calls yesterday, according to fire department reports.

First of the calls came when Box 156 was turned in at 10:15 a.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Tyson Sts. A truck backfired and caught fire, the reports showed.

The blaze, which was out on arrival of fire units, caused damage to the wiring in the vehicle.

The second call was received at 1:32 p.m. when an acetylene torch hose broke and caught fire. Fire officers said the mishap occurred in a storage building at Blount Fertilizer Company on Boyd Ave. at the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. The blaze was extinguished by cutting off the gas, officers said.

Only minor damage was done, the report showed.

Radiation Class 'Group C' Will Meet Tonight

Group "C" which includes Greenville representatives of the Radiological Detection class at East Carolina College are to meet tonight at the regular place, Civil Defense Director J. H. Rose announced today.

If any members of the entire class missed the laboratory session of the course they can attend tonight's meeting and make it up, Rose noted. Dr. Frank Eller is directing the course, which is the first offered here.

Progress is being made in other areas of Civil Defense preparation, as two classes in home nursing, directed by the Red Cross are underway at the Greenville School Administration Office on Fifth Street. Both classes have the maximum enrollment.
