Over $165,000 Collected In 4 Days Here For Ficklen Stadium

Committee Reports 'Inspiring' Reception Given By Local Businessmen

James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium fund yesterday reached $165,650 toward the quarter million dollar goal for construction of the facility on the East Carolina College campus.

A committee, headed by W.M. Scales, Jr., has been contacting businessmen for the past four days

"I'm speaking for the committee in saying that it has been an inspiration to see the entire community participating in the campaign," Scales said.

Scales said it had originally been planned to make only one announcement, that to come when the goal was reached.

"But this is so heartwarming and inspiring we want to let the people know what the businessmen think of East Carolina College."

"The response of the business people of this community to this appeal from East Carolina College has been phenomenal. The enthusiastic and generous contributions to this project we have received from every person we have contacted has been overwhelming."

The committee as a group has been visiting businessmen of the community in behalf of the stadium fund to bring the amount of $165,650 through yesterday. Included in this is approximately $18,000 raised among the students and faculty at East Carolina College.

The committee has averaged $40,000 a day for the four days work. They are continuing to make contacts today. Through yesterday they reported actual participation by approximately 100 businessmen.

In addition, letters have been mailed to ECC's 14,000 alumni through another committee. Other sources are also being contacted.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECC president who has been with the committee this week, described the local response as the "most inspiring experience any of us have had. The college, faculty and students are deeply grateful to the people of the community. It is indeed a tremendous vote of confidence."

It was Dr. Jenkins who announced plans for a quarter million dollar drive to construct the James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium at the Society of Businessmen meeting on Homecoming Day.

A site for the stadium is now being graded west of Elmhurst School. Plans are to construct 10,000 seats, concrete stands on the north side of the field. All the steel stands at the present College Stadium would be erected on the south side of the field. Thus the stadium would seat approximately 16,000. It is to be designed so that it can eventually be expanded to an estimated 50,000 seats.

The present stadium site would be used for construction of classroom buildings.

In addition to the $165,650 raised through yesterday, officials to obtain $50,000 from the Nov. 7 bond issue to defray a portion of the cost of the stadium.

Serving on the local stadium committee with Scales are Reynolds May, Wally Howard, Howard Hodges, Jr., J. Con Lanier, Sr., James T. Little, Dr. E. B. Aycock and David Whiehard.

Dream Realized, Meets President

WASHINGTON (AP)—The smiling camel driver from Pakistan had his big dream come true today, he saw America's "king"—President Kennedy.

"I have met the man of the world," Bashir Ahmad said as he emerged from Kennedy's White House office.

Although the meeting with the President had not been arranged in advance, Bashir had hoped that he would get to see Kennedy.

The grinning Pakistani was taken to the President's office after a half-hour tour of the White House with Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, wife of the vice president.

Johnson, who is in Texas, invited the visitor to come to America on meeting the camel driver in Karachi on an Asian tour.

Through his interpreter, Bashir said the President had asked him how his visit was going. The camel driver said "wonderful" and thanked Kennedy for having sent Johnson to Karachi.

"What will you tell your neighbors about the President?" A reporter asked the 48-year-old camel driver as he stood on the White House steps in his black fur hat, long black frock coat, and baggy white trousers.

"So far over there, we've just been hearing about him. Now I have met the man of the world," he said.

Police Halted Car-Wrecking

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Police found Francis W. Abel, 48, hammering away Thursday with a crowbar at an old convertible auto. He already had punctured the roof and broken the windows and was about to start on the fenders.

Abel told police he had bought the car for his wife, Ruth, but things hadn't worked out and he didn't want her to drive it any longer.

Abel was charged with disorderly conduct and malicious mischief.

United Fund Cabinet Holds Meet; Sizeable Gains Seen

Campaign cabinet members of the Pitt County United Fund held a strategy review meeting last evening in Greenville to chart the United Fund Campaign to victory.

George Coffman, general chairman of the campaign, stated at the conclusion of the meeting, "We are confident that The United Fund this year can obtain its minimum objective of $91,350, if the volunteer salesmen in all divisions call upon their prospects and obtain fair share gifts during the next few days. The campaign is now scheduled to close on Friday, October 27 which gives everyone active in the campaign another week to finish their calls."

Additional reports for $4,512.07 came in last evening bringing the total raised to date for the United Fund to $55,329.62. This is 60 per cent of the minimum object of $91,350.

Two townships reported sizeable gains last evening. Belvoir, under the chairmanship of Ed Warren announced this community has raised a total of $877.08 to date. The teachers in the Sally Branch School and Belvoir-Falkland School pledged a total of $479.

Others from Belvoir, including school children, Boy Scouts, and township residents pledged a total of $388.08. Belvoir is the second community in Pitt County to achieve its fair share objective.

Chairman James Herring announced that Grifton Township has raised a total of $1,269.60 to date. This community has only been soliciting for a week and has shown good progress during this short time. Others present at the meeting from Grifton were Wiley A. Gaskins, vice-president of the Job Cutback In The State Dept.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department will have to cut out about 500 jobs because it is running short on funds, Deputy Undersecretary Roger W. Jones said Thursday.

Jones said the cutback will apply mainly to the department's operations in Washington, where there are 7,200 job holders.

The U.S. missions abroad, with their 16,000 employees, need all the staff they have, he said.

Jones, who handles administrative affairs for the department, said State Department appropriation this year fell about $10 million short of requests. Other factors are increases in special staffs undertaken by the Kennedy administration and price rises overseas, he said.

Officials hoped to accomplish much of the reduction by normal turnover through retirement and transfers and the like.

Advise Shelter For Synagogues

NEW YORK (AP)—The executive committee of the Rabbinical Council of America has asked Orthodox Jewish congregations contemplating construction of synagogues to include fallout shelters in their building plans.

Rabbi Charles Weinberg, president of the council, said the synagogue shelters could be constructed so they would serve also as social centers or halls.

FRANCE IN SPACE

PARIS (AP)—A stepped-up space program aimed at putting a 110-pound earth satellite into orbit by 1964 was announced by France today.

The National Assembly has approved a $17.5-million budget for space projects in 1962.

More Than 60 Farmvillites Join Shelter Project

FARMVILLE — Farmville citizens Thursday successfully launched their plan for community protection from radioactive fallout in case of emergency, officials reported today.

More than 250 Farmvillites attended the community shelter association's meeting at the local high school and pledge cards for more than 60 persons were signed.

Harold M. Allred, Farmville's town clerk and one of the leaders in the community protection plan, said more requests for pledge cards were being received today.

The plan unfolded for Farmville area residents, available to all at $125 per person, includes these benefits:

—Construction of a fallout shelter large enough to adequately protect each person who subscribes to the association.

—Food Committee to make certain that approved Civil Defense foods will be available in the shelter in adequate amounts for each member of the association.

—medical facilities and a doctor for the shelter and a treatment room for benefit patients within the shelter. In addition, there will be a "decontamination area" in the shelter for treatment of persons outside the shelter itself who would be brought inside for treatment by wardens equipped with protective clothing.

—a radio operator, who will furnish a radio set and independent power unit, to afford direct communications with points in the nation and around the world to keep association members informed and to issue calls for supplies or to offer Farmville supplies to other areas should there be a surplus here.

—members of the association who are trained in reading devices for radiation measurement to determine the exact content of fallout intensity on a day-by-day basis. Members would be informed when it would be safe to go outside for limited periods of time.

—a recreation committee whose duties include making available means of reducing the monotony of long periods of confinement. Games would be provided for both young and adult members.

All members of the association, including the radio operator, wardens, the doctor and other service personnel, are being assessed on the same basis. Families who join the shelter plan may subscribe a space for each member of the family at $125 each.

At last night's meeting a five-member Steering Committee was appointed to begin work on drafting by-laws, a charter, and rules and regulations to be submitted to a vote of the association at its next meeting, Monday, Oct. 30, in the high school auditorium at 8 p.m.

Serving on the committee are Allred, Cedric Davis, Jack McDavid, Emerson Smith and Dr. Charles Fitzgerald.

Speaking for the association today, Allred said, "We feel that since the association now has its feet on the ground, many other people in Farmville will learn more about what we are doing and will join the association."

He said all Farmvillites have been urged by the movement's leaders to join the community plan—first of its kind in Pitt County. Officials here are also hopeful, Allred said, that other Pitt communities will adopt and activate similar plans.

New Officers Elected And Reports Heard By Pitt Unit Of American Cancer Society

The Pitt County unit of the American Cancer Society Thursday night elected a new slate of officers, heard committee reports for the concluding year and presented tokens of appreciation for outstanding services to the cause of combating cancer.

New officers for the 1961-62 term are: Dr. Howard Gradis, president; Mrs. Albert Bell, 1st vice president; Roscoe King, 2nd vice president; Frank Little, treasurer; and Mrs. Cherry Easley, secretary.

Treasurer Little presented a financial report for the past year and a budget for the coming year which reflected success of the 1961 Crusade in the increased scope of planned service to the county.

Roscoe King, Crusade Chairman for 1961, reported contributions of almost $7,500—an average of eleven cents per person in Pitt County, as contrasted with the preceding year's average of 6.6 cents.

Memorial Fund Program chairman, Mrs. C. L. Lupton, described the Fund's first year of activity as "most promising." She said representatives for the Memorial Fund are now to be found in all Pitt communities, and forty-four gifts to that unit had been made thus far.

Mrs. Albert Bell reported on activities of the Education Committee, citing films that had been shown, a workshop for teachers, speaking programs, the distribution of literature, and an exhibit at the Pitt County Fair.

Retiring President Elbert Bennett remarked on the "privilege of serving for the past few years" and praised "the outstanding help" rendered by the Greenville Moose Lodge in its sponsorship of the 1961 Cancer Crusade.

Dr. Gradis told the gathering that "essentially, the American Cancer Society is made up of volunteers—they are the people who make it work." It fell to the

Rift Over Albania Rocking The Soviet-Red China Boat

MOSCOW (AP)—An open rift over Albania is rocking the Soviet-Chinese boat, but it has little or no chance of capsizing it.

That was the diplomatic assessment here today after the startling disclosure that Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai in a speech to the 22nd Soviet Communist party congress Thursday had severely criticized Premier Khrushchev's condemnation of the tiny Communist nation on the Adriatic.

The Albanian regime sides with the Chinese Communists in their contention that war is still a legitimate weapon to spread communism. In what Western observers considered an implied criticism of Peiping's rulers, Khrushchev, in opening the party congress Tuesday, had accused Premier Enver Hoxha and other Albanian Communist leaders of failing to support his policy of peaceful coexistence with the non-Communist world and of trying to lead their country back to the era of Stalinist repression.

Chou did not name names, but Khrushchev was plainly his target when he declared: "Any public, one-sided censure of any fraternal party does not help unity and is not helpful to resolving problems."

"To lay bare a dispute between fraternal parties or fraternal

Greece Rejects Soviet Protest

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Greece told the Soviet Union Thursday that the Soviet protest against recent NATO maneuvers in north-eastern Greece "constitutes an interference with Greece's domestic affairs, especially with matters pertaining to her security."

An official note added: "It is up to the sovereign Greek people and to their lawfully elected government to decide on such matters. Any intervention of any kind is contrary to internationally accepted rules."

Kennedy's Top Economist Warns 1962 May Bring Critical Inflation Danger

By STERLING F. GREEN

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—President Kennedy's chief economist told industry today that 1962 may bring the "critical period" when renewed inflation could halt the advance toward a full-employment economy.

Dr. Walter W. Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, appealed for restraint in price and wage decisions. He spoke at the fall meeting of the Business Council, attended by the heads of nearly 100 of the country's biggest corporations.

The prospect for price stability in the immediate future is good, Heller said in his address, but the business upsurge could stall next year—as it did two years ago—short of full utilization of men and machines.

"By the middle of next year we will probably have not reached full employment but we will have reached about that stage of the business cycle that we reached in 1959 and did not then manage to surpass," Heller said.

"The test next year will be whether the surge of recovery will continue toward full employment or whether a revival of creeping inflation will hamper our efforts to use the full potential of the economy in the service of our national goals.

"Every person who wants the United States to continue to discharge its world responsibilities, and every person who favors full recovery and a faster rate of economic growth, is tied by the bonds of logic to the cause of price stability."

The business group, headed by Roger M. Blough, board chairman of the United States Steel Corp., heard Heller praise Kennedy's letter to Blough and 11 other major steel producers, asking them to forego a proposed Oct. 1 steel price increase.

The letters, said Heller, were a logical appeal for moderation in the long-range interest of steelmakers, steelworkers and the public.

The absence of a price rise to date is "reassuring," as is the pledge of President David J. McDonald of the United Steelworkers that the union will remain aware of its public responsibilities when the new round of wage bargaining begins next year, Heller said.

Heller spoke at a closed meeting of the council, he gave newsmen advance copies of his remarks. He told the corporation heads the future of U.S. competitiveness in world trade depends on learning "to limit the increase in money incomes—wages and non-wage both—roughly to the rate of productivity increase, as some other countries have done."

The government has a two-fold obligation in this effort, Heller said, continuing: "In the first place it can try by persuasion and by the encouragement of healthy competition—both foreign and domestic—to induce both business and labor to conduct their negotiations and make their decisions in a way responsive to public as well as private interests."

"The second responsibility of government is this: The federal government pledges to use its traditional fiscal and monetary powers to defend the economy against inflation arising from excessive demands on our productive capacity, as well as against deflationary pressures resulting from weak over-all demand."

"This task, in all its rigor, we are determined to carry out," Heller said.

The President's economists also brought to the council a blueprint of the hoped-for American economy of 1963.

Film On "North Carolina" Shown Pickwick Book Club

Mrs. David J. Whichard was hostess to the Pickwick Book Club Tuesday at her home on Forest Hills Drive.

Members and guests, Mrs. W. L. Steel, Mrs. Charles Stephens and Miss Elizabeth Copeland, enjoyed a three course luncheon prior to the program given by Miss Copeland. Arrangements of fall berries and leaves decorated the home.

"North Carolina", film made available by the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development in cooperation with the Bell Telephone Company, was shown by Miss Copeland. The vital facet—faith—has been the strongest of all agencies in the development of North Carolina.

in agriculture, industry and education has been the by-product of determined people. North Carolina has one of the country's largest state road systems, is a leader in the manufacturing of pulp and paper products, and has one of the largest and most progressive school systems in the country. One half of the stockings sold each year in the United States have their origin in North Carolina. State products are exported to every important market in the world from the Wilmington and Morehead City Ports and by means of a well organized trucking system.

History has been preserved through outdoor dramas, state parks and the restoration of Old Salem, Tryon Palace and plantations such as Orton.

North Carolina's geography makes possible a large variety of sport activities including fishing, hunting, golfing and camping.

Miss Copeland pointed out that Pitt County history is being preserved and recorded in the North Carolina Room of the Sheppard Memorial Library. As Librarian, Miss Copeland has worked closely with this project. The room was opened two years ago for the purpose of collecting articles, books and historical documents. Material for research is now available in the form of films, documents and periodicals.

Mrs. Moulton Massey, Jr., vice president, welcomed guests and presided over a short business, books were distributed and the meeting adjourned.

Only Thing Not "Little" Are Fashion Price Tags

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON AP Fashion Writer NEW YORK (AP)—"Little" is an overworked word in the garment district. Perspiring, woolen-clad buyers shopping here this week for next spring's styles can vouch for that.

At nearly every show room on Thursday the conversation centered around the "little" nothing or snob dress, the "little" suit, or the "little" blouse.

Adele Simpson had a good excuse for using the word. In this diet-conscious age her customers have pared off so much weight that she is now manufacturing dresses in size 6.

But even though designer Hannah Troy has established a reputation for flattering diminutive women, she didn't really mean size when she talked about "little" things.

She meant "minimum amount of fabric and style detail." That's the new definition arrived at by the so-called fashion intellectuals.

Miss Troy's collection there were many chic "little" suits (for large size women, too) in black and white, navy, red, and pastels. Sometimes the lining matched the "little" blouses. At other times it was a bright, different hue.

Her suits and dresses went along with the spring trend to slightly higher waistlines. And, as the majority of other fashion houses thus far, her styles were figure-conscious.

Even the usually bony models seemed to be heavier, either having added calories or underpinnings to accommodate the voluptuous look.

Along with front interest, Miss Troy added plenty of back interest to summer sun and moon dresses. On a few, the spaghetti string shoulder straps were the only visible means of support. Many costumes cross-wrapped in back, forming plunging V's.

The only things about fashion this year that are not "little" or "minimum" are price tags.

A silver bowl filled with white chrysanthemums and purple ageratum graced the table as a centerpiece, with three branched candelabra and white candles on either side. Home Ec. Students Discuss "Food Sense Saves Cents"

"Food Sense Saves Cents" was the topic of discussions by four senior home economics students of the Home Economics Methods Class at East Carolina College Tuesday night, Oct. 17, in the Flanagan classroom building on the campus.

Students of the class are now conducting a series of lecture meetings open to the public. The second class meeting will be held Thursday, Oct. 19, at 7 p.m. in room 101 of the Flanagan building. The topic of discussion will be "Salads Trick or Treat."

Brenda Smith of Thomasville opened Tuesday's meeting. "Before purchasing groceries," she said, "in order to 'save cents' the buyer can maintain 'food sense' by sitting down and compiling a grocery list, reading the weekly food ads in the newspaper, planning well balanced meals, knowing 'what you eat,' and keeping menus and shopping lists flexible."

"It makes 'sense and saves cents' to read labels carefully," according to Grace Whitman of Edenton. "Taking time to compare prices, brands, and quality of foods can be advantageous," she said.

"Quality of meat influences the price," stated Sandra Jennette of Rt. 1, Swan Quarter. "In order to 'save cents,' look for the economy cuts," she explained. "However, it makes 'food sense' to know that the price of meat does not measure its food value," she added.

Norma Steward of Rt. 1, Broadway, in concluding the lecture, stated "purchasing seasonal foods can protect the budget. It is important," she concluded, "to realize that 'food sense saves cents' by utilizing the most food value for the money spent."

Queen Plucks Princess Anne From Buckingham's Cloister

By MARGARET ANDERSON
LONDON—(WNS)—Queen Elizabeth has decided to end Princess Anne's cloistered upbringing behind the Buckingham Palace walls and give her the same sort of outside schooling as her brother, Charles.

Palace sources say the Queen already has picked the school to which the 11-year-old Princess will be sent. It is Heathfield School, sometimes called the girls' Eton, Heathfield, which is near Eton and not far from Windsor Castle, stresses the cultivation of the common touch in uncommon girls. "It is where you learn to be a top girl," a palace staff member explained. "If you are a top girl you just simply go to Heathfield."

At the moment Heathfield's best-known alumna is the sporty Princess Alexandra, whose expected engagement to Lord O'Neill, the Irish baron, has titillated London.

Princess Fazieta of Iran has just finished at Heathfield, and Christina Onassis, daughter of Tina and Aristotle Onassis, the shipping magnate, is a pupil there now, as is Vivien Clore, daughter of Charles Clore, Britain's mercantile tycoon.

If you have a son at Eton, they say in Britain, your daughter probably will be at Heathfield. Old Etonians tend to marry Heathfield girls, who in turn send their daughters to Heathfield too.

Paraphrasing the boast that Britain's wars "are won on the playing fields of Eton," Heathfield's slogan proclaims, "Britain's roots are put down in the gardens of Heathfield."

In fact, gardens are to Heathfield what the playing fields are to Eton. Heathfield believes firmly that girls make better top girls if they learn to be top gardeners.

"There is a certain discipline about gardening we feel every girl requires," insists Priscilla Jamieson, Heathfield's headmistress.

"For a girl, flowers symbolize grace and elegance—beauty in its rarest form. A girl who understands and loves flowers must become a lady in spirit and breeding."

Every Heathfield girl has her own garden plot. Princess Alexandra specialized in chrysanthemums, and Princess Fazieta in dahlias.

Frenchwomen Wearing Heart On Their Lips

By IRENE FERRIS
Women's News Service
PARIS — (WNS) — The new French heart-throb for Fall is the heart-shaped mouth.

From the fashionable Faubourg St. Honore to the fabulous Boulevard St. Germain, chic Parisiennes are wearing their hearts on their lips and looking more kissable than ever.

"When winter approaches and the weather becomes gray, it is the duty of woman to warm her man's heart with some new attraction," declared Gisele Roy, who specializes in making women attractive. "The heart-shaped mouth is this season's enchantment."

Instructions emanating from its Paris headquarters on the celebrated Avenue George V:

1. Draw on the outline of your new heart-shaped mouth with a sharply pointed lipstick.
2. To attain the heart shape, leave a deep V in the center of your upper lip, and heighten the lip slightly toward the center.
3. Extend the lower lip deeply, but only at the center. This gives your mouth the sweet form of a heart with its lower point cut off.
4. To fill in the lips, use a fine brush.

"One more step is needed which you cannot accomplish with rouge or brush," added feminine-relations expert, Gisele Roy. "Turn the corners of your mouth sweetly up, and never permit them to droop. Without this you cannot be that adorable new creature, the girl with the heart-shaped smile."

Keep veils crisp. This may be done by pressing between two layers of wax paper.

Season Of Sensitive Congressmen

In the months between now and January, Congressmen who are hobnobbing with the folks back home will be getting grassroots opinion of business conducted by Congress during the past year and business expected to be before that body during the coming year.

The fact that 1962 is a congressional election year will make Congress unusually sensitive to majority opinion they find in their own bailiwicks during these months away from Washington. The fact that 1962 is an election year will likewise make Congress extremely sensitive to various pressure groups who will seek to use the forthcoming election as a lever to bring congressmen around to their way of thinking on particular pieces of legislation.

It is our guess that most congressmen will find in their person-to-person opinion polls that primarily concern among the people centers around the international situation and the growing deficit figures that are appearing in the national budget.

Congressmen, of course, will hear many theories from individuals about how to balance the budget. Some will advocate less government spending in this particular field or that; others will insist on greater efficiency and less waste in government operations.

and a few, perhaps, will assert it's not so much the spending which bothers them as it is the government isn't balancing the spending with sufficient revenue. All of these things the congressmen have heard before. Between now and January members of Congress will piece together the bits of information, the various opinions they hear in their home districts.

In determining how the people really feel—the majority of the people—it will not be simply a matter of deciding whether people want a more "conservative" or a more "liberal" Congress after January. It is far more complicated than that. When one person wants more federal spending for agriculture and lambasts foreign aid as a squandering of public funds, does it mean he is becoming more conservative or more liberal? When the next fellow feels exactly the opposite, which category does he fall into? And what about the fellow who insists that the budget should be balanced, government spending should be cut, but this particular program or that should be given considerably more money to spend during the coming fiscal year?

How individual congressmen throughout the country evaluate what they hear at home in the next few months may well determine the course taken on Capitol Hill when Congress reconvenes in January.

Not The Only Spending Source

By LYNN NISBET
PAYROLLS — Many people think of payrolls in terms of industrial enterprises or big corporations. That is why it is so often said that Eastern Carolina has no payrolls and that the greatest need is for industrial development to provide them. During the past ten years many big industries have come into the east with payrolls that contribute tremendously to the economy of the section.

But industrial and business corporation payrolls are not the only source of spendable payroll money. Educational institutions are important factors. Perhaps the biggest paymaster in Eastern Carolina is the U. S. Department of Defense, meaning the payroll of civilian employees and excluding the many millions paid each month to uniformed personnel.

A substantial part of the money paid service men goes back home for family allotments, insurance and similar objects. A very substantial part is spent in the community by the men who receive it. They support numerous private businesses, including entertainment and recreation. And the military installations spend many millions locally for food and other supplies.

CIVILIAN — Restrictions on some types of information makes it difficult to get accurate figures for each individual unit. Information has been obtained that in Eastern North Carolina the U. S. Army employs about 6,000 civilians; the Navy about 3,000 and the Air Force about 1,000. That is a total of 10,000 civilian employees, and the payroll for them is approximately $4 million a month, or $50 million a year.

WAGE SCALE — Civilian jobs around military installations, like those at big manufacturing plants, range all the way from the lowest menial class to the highest paid Federal employee. The highest paid Federal employee falls short of the level achieved by his counterpart in private industry, but for the overall spread the pay scale for civilians at military places is somewhat higher than the average in local industry. In any event when 10,000 workers plus into the regional economy fifty million dollars a year, it is "payroll" business that cannot be ignored.

INSTITUTIONAL — Another source of payrolls which many people are inclined to overlook are the colleges and hospitals. One man participating in a discussion on this subject confessed that he was astonished a few years ago to find that the biggest payroll in Durham was not American Tobacco, Liggett & Myers, Erwin Mills or any other

Enemies Will Magnify Peace Corps Troubles

The Nigerian uproar set off by a post card of a member of the American Peace Corps probably will not be the last international incident in which the fledgling organization finds itself involved.

Most Americans recognize the great amount of good the Peace Corps operations can accomplish in many countries of the world and the good will its members can create for the United States. If we recognize this, certainly we cannot expect our enemies to ignore it. Neither can we expect that enemies of the United States and the free world will sit by quietly while the Peace Corps goes about doing its work. They will not overlook an opportunity to place the Peace Corps and the United States in an embarrassing position.

The wording on the post card which brought about the uproar at the Nigerian university would hardly appear to be of sufficient import to bring about such an incident. It is reasonable to assume, that the post card was an excuse for the demonstration against the Peace Corps and its members rather than a genuine reason.

What happened in Nigeria may be repeated in various forms in other countries where the Peace Corps has sent representatives to work and study with the people of those countries. The United States should not be surprised if similar events occur in the future. Every effort should be made to see that members of the Peace Corps do nothing to provoke such incidents, but at the same time it would be folly to assume that enemies of the United States will not find insignificant occurrences which they will seek to magnify into major international incidents.

The Peace Corps, like other agencies which enter the field of international service, must expect to be criticized, often severely and unjustly.

Gals Of Smith Ignore The Score

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Members of Congress have received a petition from 252 students of Smith College who object to the amount of control exercised by the United States House of Representatives over one of its standing committees, the House Committee on Un-American Activities. We suggest the rewording of the House's mandate in order to specifically limit the Committee's power of investigation to those matters concerning which Congress has full authority to legislate. There is a wide gulf between responsibility for the use of investigatory power and the actual exercise of that power.

Precisely what powers of investigation does Congress lack? The business of Congress is to legislate, and to legislate intelligently, Congress requires knowledge. In pursuit of such knowledge, Congressional committees hold hearings. Sometimes the hearings are interesting, valuable, even amusing; sometimes they are stupidly conducted and are very dull. Nevertheless, the hearings, over the whole of American history, as the Smith gals must know, have proved invaluable.

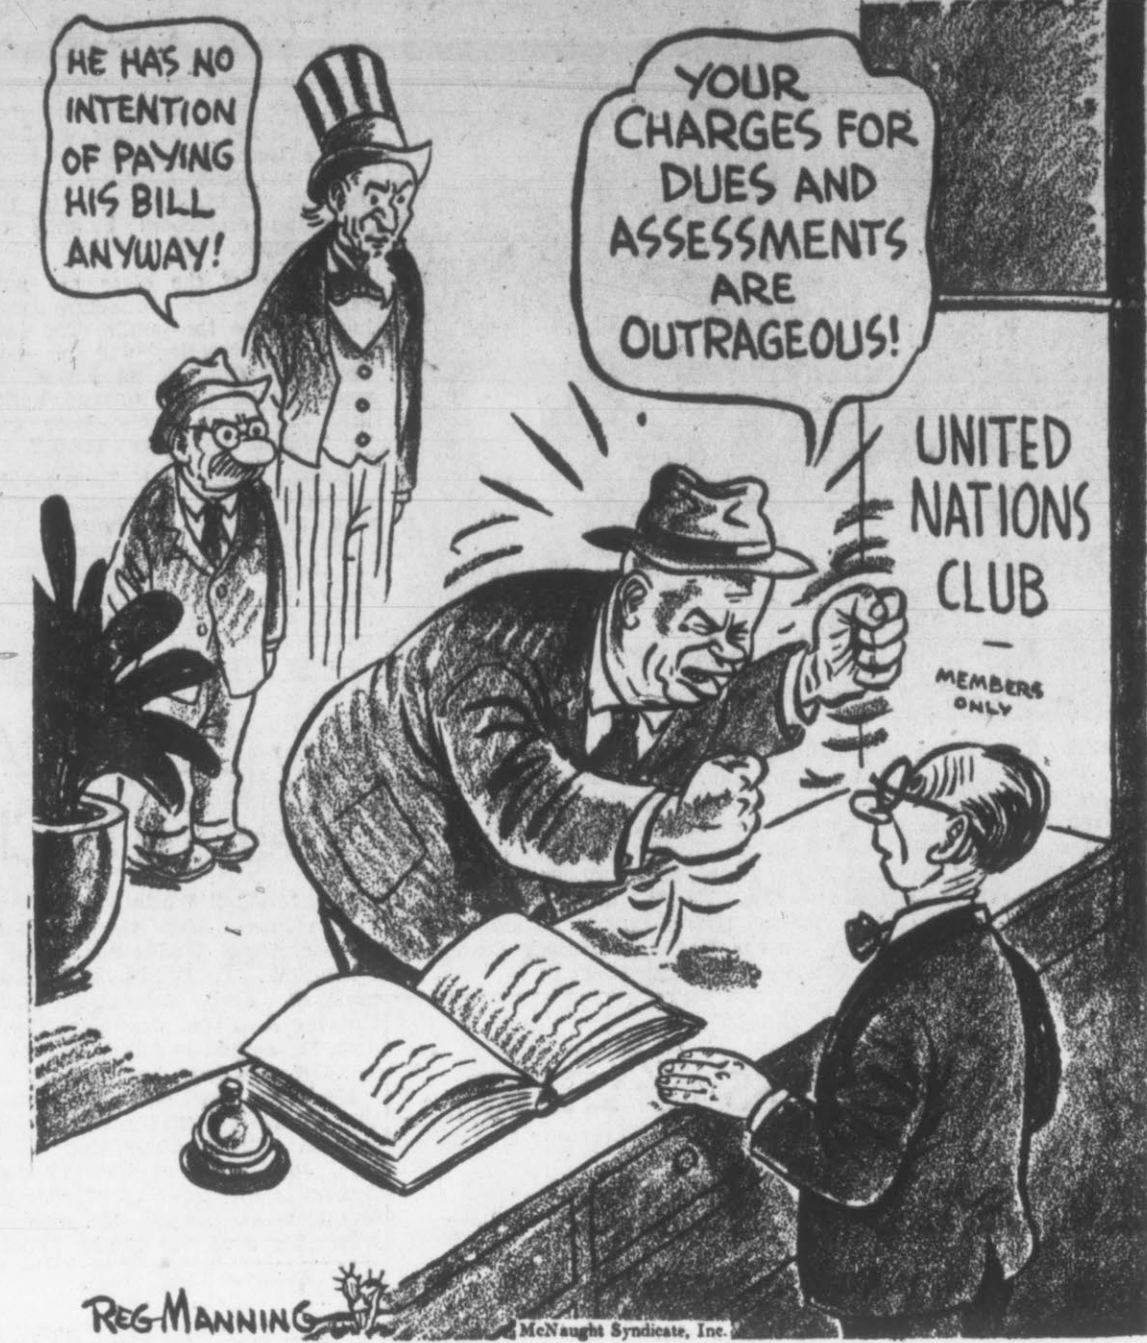

The Smith young ladies say: "To date the House Committee has extended and abused its power. It has indulged in some irresponsible accusations under the protection of Congressional immunity. The right to dissent as well as that of orderly protest is any American's cherished freedom and inalienable right."

Everytime a Congressional committee has had before it a Communist, there are those who insist that the Committee exceeded its powers; but when a committee had before it such financiers as J. P. Morgan, no one protested.

Congressman Edwin B. Dooley replying to one of the girls who happens to be a constituent of his, wrote: "... the House quite properly declines to exercise control over 'particular inquiries.' The sheer volume of legislation to be considered would by itself preclude such an arrangement. Besides, what might otherwise at first glance seem like a lack of control over committee activities is in reality the essence of our committee structure; the element of trust implicit in such an arrangement is the very foundation upon which the House and Senate conduct their daily order of business."

The gathering of data is very difficult. For instance, at present a Senate committee is investigating the relations between Jimmy Hoffa and Harry Bridges. The young ladies may feel that this is an invasion of the privacy of Hoffa and Bridges, two very powerful citizens who, if time of war can, if they choose, imperil the transportation system of the country. Hoffa has not been accused of Communist relationships; Bridges has. Hoffa is engaged in marginal capitalism, investing his union's funds in various enterprises; Bridges is ideologically not associated with capitalism. How does it happen that these two are so close?

Why Should HE Complain?

By PATRICIA MOORE

New 'Garden Of Eden'

Working on a feature story in the vicinity of Ayden recently, we came upon some archaic information that has sparked the imagination.

Poetically, speaking of Ayden, a history of Atlantic Christian College was discussing an earlier college located in the "village" of Ayden.

A press agent, quoted in the history book, said that Ayden was named for the Garden of Eden because it nestled "in the bosom of a paradise of agricultural glory."

Back then, in the 1890's, Ayden was described as a "trade center with 11 mercantile stores and a steam mill." There also was one resident physician, a notable fact. Located on a railroad line, Ayden had a growing population of 300 in 1893.

The author makes Ayden seem almost like one of those dreamy, wispily villages of long ago — lovely and sweet.

Things have changed. Ayden has a population of about 3,100 now; the railroad doesn't give passenger service anymore and there isn't a steam mill. Instead there is a growing pickle industry, a trucking service, and numerous businesses of varied descriptions.

All the other towns are the same — changed. People very likely wouldn't notice even if we had a nearby paradise since they are always in a hurry to get somewhere. Minds are more intent on saving skins than flower gardens.

Even in small communities around Pitt, attention is focusing on fallout shelters, and in Ayden, that former glorious village of the past, there is serious talk of building a community fallout shelter for 100 people.

Other towns, too, are talking about shelters and emergency food, and such.

They have come a long way since village time and paradise.

Other Editors Saying Industry, Revenue Bonds

(The Wilson Times) We are not advocating the procedure, but the logic is interesting and it is working successfully in several southern and mid-western states. The subject is getting industry.

Babson says, in a financial release, that areas are not getting industry because old industries are dying faster than new ones locate or are organized. He is speaking of the northeastern states.

Again the reasons given for the industries going out of business are the same you have heard many times before, too far away from the source of the raw materials, high state taxes, unionism, over-population.

The solution given to the problem of obtaining industry is the interesting part of the story. In the six states where the revenue bonds have been tried, with marked success, the state constitutions had to be amended.

The revenue bonds are on the same principle as the revenue bonds for building highways. These tax exempt interest bearing bonds must be voted by a majority of the citizens. The bonds are freely bought by out of state investors. The bonds are paid off by the company for whom they were issued to build the industry.

Take for example the City of Cherokee, Alabama. Twenty-five million dollars was issued in revenue bonds to build a fertilizer plant to be leased to Armour and Company. Armour agreed to pay off the bonds at four and three-quarter percent interest over a period of 20 years. Both interest and principal will come entirely from Armour's lease payment.

Investors who buy the bonds have a highly desirable tax exemption.

adding, "Some observers contend that further upgrading and expansion of state and local services will continue to keep state revenue systems under pressure."

Commerce Clearing House pointed out that the record high collection in the last fiscal year amounted to a record tax burden of $106.03 on every man, woman and child in the nation. The per capita ranged from a low of $63.23 in New Jersey to a high of $206.92 per person in Hawaii. Well, those islanders kept demanding statehood!

The largest per capita increase was levied in Kentucky, where state levies rose from $76 to $99 a person. Only three states, Oregon, Wyoming and Ohio, decreased total collections during the year.

California was the taxiest state, taking $2.25 billion from its 15.9 million people; New York was second, imposing $2 billion on its 16.5 million souls. South Carolina was third, levying $1.16 billion on 11.3 million people.

REASONS The increase in the number of states had very little to do with the rise over the last 70 years.

Cabinet Man On The Run

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Probably the government's busiest guided missile today is Luther H. Hodges, a rolling stone upon whom no moss grows.

At 63, Hodges, secretary of Commerce, is the oldest member of President Kennedy's Cabinet but he likes to point out he is also the only Cabinet member who drives a sports car.

In nine months on his new job Hodges has traveled 60,000 miles, visited most sections of the country, been to Mexico and made two whirlwind trips to Europe. Next week's destination: Tokyo.

"I've never worked so hard in my life," he said during a pause here en route from Madrid to Washington. "This New Frontier is exciting and moves pretty fast."

Hodges, one of nine children of a North Carolina tobacco farmer, has always enjoyed going on a fast clip. He helped work his way through college selling Bibles, made a fortune in business and quit at 52 to enter politics.

Soon after taking office, the new Commerce secretary moved to help businessmen by simplifying the issuance of patents and speeding up U. S. census reports.

But Hodges, a strongly built, blue-eyed man with a vast amount of urbane as well as folksy Southern charm, is too restless to stay long behind a desk.

He isn't the board chairman type. He is a super-salesman, a missionary with a message. This is his message:

"America needs to sell more goods abroad, and it needs more foreign tourists to come over and spend money here.

"The average American firm has had such a good market at home it hasn't felt it necessary to sell abroad. But it's time now they got into the export field as an insurance.

"As to travel, our people spend $2.1 billion abroad each year. But all the rest of the world spends less than $1 billion on trips to our country."

Hodges hugely enjoys his new role as the federal government's first official travel agent. And he has spread his gospel in person before audiences abroad from Finland to Spain.

What does he tell them? He tells them: "You've got more money now. We've got deficits, you've got surpluses.

"Why not spend some of it seeing America—and invest some of it there, too?"

Hodges believes the message is getting across.

"Practically everyone abroad has a basic desire to visit America," he said. "We hope to increase the spending of foreign tourists here by $100 million next year."

He is opening seven U. S. travel agencies abroad to spread information on the scenic and economic advantages of the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave.

"The big obstacle is that many people over there think travel in America is too expensive. I told them in West Germany, 'Why it cost me more to come see you, than it would you to come see us.' That's the truth.

"Why, in one hotel it cost me 120 marks—about $30—(Continued on Page 9)

Growth in Relations

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Philippians 2:1-8; Colossians 3:1-4.

During his first imprisonment, Paul wrote to various Christian groups, urging more love in their relations with one another. No matter how differing their beliefs, they must be humble with one another. — Philippians 2:1-8.

Since Christ had redeemed them, Paul wrote, they must "seek the things which are above," putting to death such earthly sins as "im-morality... covetousness... anger, wrath, malice, slander and foul talk." — Colossians 3:1-9.

They must "put on the new nature" in keeping with their redemption. With Christian love, "there cannot be Greek and Jew... barbarian, Scythian, bondman, free-man; but Christ is all, and in all." — Colossians 3:10-11.

Paul urges better relationships between man and wife, children and parents, and masters and slaves. "Wives, be subject to your husbands," he advises.—Colossians 3:18-4:1.

GOLDEN TEXT: Philippians 2:4.

Growth in Christian Relations

THE CONDUCT CHRISTIANS SHOULD DISPLAY TOWARD ONE ANOTHER

Scripture—Philippians 2:1-8; Colossians 3:1-4.

By N. SPEER JONES
THE SUBJECT matter in today's lesson is taken from two of the letters Paul wrote during his first imprisonment in Rome, about 64 A.D. The first is to the Christians in Philippi, a group which on the whole made Paul very happy in their religious growth.

They were a zealous group, full of vigor and fervor. However, this very energy presented a problem which it quite often presents—dissention. The group which always presents a state of calm and unity is liable to be a dead one; the energy of conviction is essential for growth.

However, as Paul reminds the Philippians, differences of opinion, though healthy, should be overlaid with an attitude of Christian love. This love is rooted in humility.

It is the realization that, although you uphold your beliefs as right, they do not make you ed; they old selves have died and they have been reborn in God.

They have only to embrace the blessings already conferred on them, to "seek the things which are above" instead of earthly values. (Verses 1-4).

They must therefore "put to death" earthly sins, both of the flesh (verses 5-7) and of the spirit (verses 8-9). Dr. Wilbur Smith tells us (in "Peloubet's Select Notes," p. 352) that in almost all of his letters Paul includes a list of sins common to man; tallied up, they total more than 50.

The licentiousness and covetousness mentioned in verses 5-7 are forms of wicked love, according to Alexander MacLaren ("Peloubet's," p. 352); in 8 and 9 are listed some forms of wicked hate. The former often turn into the latter, as "malice is evil desire lead," and "lust ever passes into cruelty." The imagery of verses 10-17 more worthy than your fellow man. The true Christian seeks not for himself, but for the good of all.

Paul clinches his argument for humility in verses 5-8, in which he points to the supreme example of this virtue in Christ.—One equal with God Himself, who "emptied Himself," taking on the form of a servant, in man's image, "obedient unto death."

Even as a man He humbled Himself, seeking to help the weak and lowly, those who happened to be at hand. He resisted all temptation to prove Himself the exalted Being He really was.

The second letter in today's lesson was written to the members of the church at Colossae, a city deep in the hinterland of the Roman province of Asia, inland from Ephesus.

Paul reminds them that in effect they have been resurrected with Christ already; they have been forgiven and redeemed.

is very meaningful. We are told to "put on" our "new nature" stemming from our spiritual rebirth with Christ, as a new suit of clothes. We are told to adorn ourselves with compassion, kindness, lowliness, meekness, patience.

"And above all these put on love." Love is not only the most important, but it overlays and enwraps all other Christian virtues, as an overcoat does our other clothing.

The humility stressed here and earlier in the lesson is defined by Alexander MacLaren not as blindness to our strong points; we must be conscious of our power, yet not allow it to make us prideful.

The last part of the lesson deals specifically with three relationships—man and wife, children and parents, and masters and slaves. More space is devoted to the latter, perhaps because it is the most difficult form of obedience.

Eighth St. Christian Announcements

"You and World Peace" will be the topic of the sermon this Sunday by the Rev. William J. Hadden, Jr. This will be in keeping with the theme of World Peace Sunday. The Junior Choir will sing, "The Creator" by Brewer. Mrs. Jack Kittrell has chosen the following selections for the organ: "Adagio" by Mendelssohn, "Træudunion in E-Moll" by Bach, and "March" by Ereckel.

The officers of Eighth Street Christian Church have been well pleased with the response of members shown during the past three Sundays of Church Loyalty Month. However, they continue to urge the presence of every member at both Church School and Church.

Church School begins at 9:45 a.m. and Worship is at 11:00 a.m. A Nursery is kept during Church and Church School. An invitation is extended to all who are not affiliated with a church in Greenville to attend.

First Art Sale At Art Center Begins Sunday

The Greenville Art Center will conduct its first art sale for one week beginning Sunday, with both amateur and professional artists represented.
East Carolina College faculty and students will be represented in a variety of media including paintings, drawings, prints, pottery, sculpture and jewelry. Methods of expression will vary from the realistic to the abstract.
The sale itself has been spurred by a number of inquires made in recent weeks for art work to be used in decorating offices and new homes. This has indicated a need for some kind of sales gallery in this area, where the artist can place his work and the patron has a variety to select from, it was stated by Mrs. Bernard Jackson, director of the art center.
"We are fortunate to have more than the usual number of accomplished and professional artists within our community," Mrs. Jackson said.
The only previous public sale of art work here has been at the Sidewalk Art Show, held annually each spring during Fine Arts Festival.

Fraternity Lists Its Five Pledges

The Delta Zeta Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi at East Carolina College has announced its pledges following Fall Quarter Rush. From October to December, the "rushes" will go through a period of pledge and will on December 9 be formally initiated into the professional business fraternity on campus.

Delta Zeta's five pledges include William R. Thompson, Jr., of Kingston; Frank D. Layne of Smithfield; Robert H. Lovic of Savannah, Tenn.; Theodore Whimmyer of Rt. 3, Hammon, N.J.; and William L. Hudson of Rocky Mount.

Dorm Officers Are Elected

East Carolina College's dormitory for male upperclassmen has elected Robert Washer of Merrick, New York to head its governing body for the 1961-1962 school year. As president of the Paul Jones Dormitory, Washer will also serve on the Men's Judiciary, a part of the college student government association which serves as a disciplinary council for men students.
Also serving with Washer are Henry L. Taylor of Oxford, vice president; and James B. Kirkland of Raleigh, secretary.

Lutherans And Presbyterians To Study Doctrinal Difference

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, Associated Press Religion Writer
NEW ORK (AP)—Lutherans and Presbyterians of America, in a historic move today set out to discover how closely—or far apart—they now stand on matters of doctrine.
It is the first such step of its scope, involving a score of denominations in these two main branches of Christianity that grew out of the Protestant Reformation. Their leaders will engage in a long-range series of talks on historical theological differences and to what extent the differences still exist. The discussions are not, however, aimed at merger, it was said.
The Rev. Dr. James I. McCord, president of Princeton Theological Seminary—Presbyterian—and the Rev. Dr. Paul C. Empe, executive director of the National Lutheran Council, said in announcing the project: "These conversations are to be purely theological to discover to what extent differences which have divided these communions in the past still constitute obstacles to mutual understanding."
There are more than 72 million Lutherans in the world and 45 million Presbyterians and Reformed believers.
In the American talks, representatives of at least a dozen Presbyterian bodies, with 6.5 million members, and of seven Lutheran bodies, with 8.5 million members—a total of 15 million Christians—will take part.
Both traditions stemmed from the 16th century Protestant break from Rome.
Most other Protestant bodies are offshoots, or else developed separately but in the simultaneous environment, such as Baptists in Germany and Methodists, Episcopalians and Congregationalists out of the Church of England.

Nuclear Race Is Blamed On Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk says the Soviet Union's adoption of a policy leading to a thermonuclear arms race imperiling peace is "one of the great tragedies of history."
Rusk, in a letter Thursday to President Kennedy reviewing the unsuccessful Geneva negotiations for a treaty to ban atomic tests, noted that in 1946 the United States offered a plan to put atomic weapons under U.N. control.
The United States advanced the Baruch plan—named after U.S. financier Bernard Baruch—when it was the world's only atomic power, said Rusk.
It was endorsed, he added, by a majority of the U.N. members and "could have controlled the nuclear threat in its infancy."
"It is one of the great tragedies of history that the Soviet Union chose to reject it and to adopt a policy that has led to a thermonuclear arms race imperiling the peace of the world," said Rusk.
Rusk's letter accompanied a State Department white paper on the three-year-long Geneva conference which is dormant now as the United Nations debates the issue.

Proposes Church-Colleges As Targets Of Integration

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Integration of church-supported colleges in South Carolina was urged by an official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.
The Rev. Edward J. Odom Jr. of New York, NAACP church secretary, told the state NAACP conference here Thursday that Baptist-related Furman University and Episcopalian-supported Columbia College should be integrated "in the near future."
"This is a moral obligation and challenge which would have impact on public institutions such as the University of South Carolina and Clemson College," he declared.
The Rev. Mr. Odom and Gloucester C. Burrell, director of branches for the NAACP, were the speakers on the opening day's program. J. Arthur Brown of Charleston, state president of the NAACP, will speak tonight. The conference end Sunday.
In a talk Thursday night, Current said South Carolina Democrats "should not be permitted to forget that it was the Negro vote that carried this state of Kennedy."
Current said the Negro vote is entitled to be seated at the banquet table in every hotel in South Carolina whenever the Democratic party gives an affair—and he must be seated on an equal basis "without discrimination."

Pirates Travel To Newberry For Conference Contest

By GEORGE BRYANT
Reflector Sports Writer

The East Carolina Pirates take to the road this weekend for a trip south of the border and an important Carolinas Conference game with Newberry in hopes of a comeback after last Saturday's loss to the Catamounts of Western Carolina.

At the present time Newberry is the only undefeated team in the conference and has to its credit a win over the powerful Lenoir Rhyne Bears. This alone is a great achievement, especially for a newcomer to the conference this season.

Crucial Game

Pirate Head Coach Jack Boone said today that the game Saturday is very crucial to both teams and a win is a must if either want to stay in the running for the conference championship. Boone noted that Newberry is at a disadvantage in the conference because they are only playing five conference games. One loss would just about drop them out of the running unless most of the other teams suffer two or more conference losses during the season.

Boone said that the game is a crucial one for the Pirates because of their loss last week to Western Carolina. In order to stay in the running East Carolina must stay in the win column from now on. "I feel sure that the players are well aware of the job before them and of the importance of it," Boone stated. The Buc coach added that the fact it is homecoming for the Newberry eleven gives them even more reason to be up for the game and to work hard for a victory.

Hopes Passing Improved

The veteran Pirate mentor said that he felt the East Carolina eleven had eliminated the loop holes in its passing game on the practice field this week. At least he said he hoped that the passing offense would be improved over the past games as that is where the Bucs have been falling down. "If the passing is improved it will open up the game more and enable us to gain more points," Boone said.

The Pirate coach also noted that many of his freshmen ball players were showing a great deal of improvement and he said this should be a lot of help to the squad. "They will add a lot to the depth of the team, especially in the backfield," Boone said.

By name, Boone mentioned Richard Jackson and Peter Thorell as coming along real well. They have been used sparingly so far this season, but the coach said they will probably see more action from now on. Both boys are halfbacks.

Jackson is 5 feet, 11 inches and weighs 175 pounds, while Thorell, also 5 feet, 11 inches, is from Stratford-Wayne, Pa. Boone said that both boys will give the team a big lift and should do a fine job.

WC Loss Could Be Turning Point

In his discussion of the game Saturday with Newberry, Boone pointed out that last week's loss to Western Carolina could be the turning point for the East Carolina eleven, "a turning point in the right direction," Boone said. "In many cases young boys respond once they have been beaten. The loss makes them realize that breaks can turn a win into a loss very easily. It usually takes experience to counteract the many things that can happen in a football game and to take advantage of the breaks."

Other freshmen who have been doing outstanding jobs for the Bucs so far this season and becoming what you might call experienced, are Tom Michel, Frank Galloway and Larry Rudisill. All three have come into their own and are now carrying a large portion of the Pirate offensive load. Boone has also been pleased with the impressive play of All-American candidate Clayton Piliand and center Chuck Gordon. The East Carolina mentor said today that sophomore end Richard Honeycutt is coming around real well along with freshman Gene Isenhour who has been doing most of the punting for the club.

"Speed, Hustle, Desire"

Assistant Coach Sal Gero said after a scouting trip to Newberry that the team has "great speed, hustle and desire." He added that the Indians play a hard game and that quarterback Tom Gorman loves to run the ball and is also an excellent passer. The Plainfield, N.J. sophomore holds the school passing record of 676 yards.

In commenting on some of the other Newberry players Gero said that guard Jimmy Villeponteux is "one of the best linemen I have seen all season."

The starting lineup for the Pirates will probably consist of Bobby Bumgardner on the left end, Clayton Piliand at left tackle, Earl Sweet at left guard and Chuck Gordon at center. On the right side of the line will be Dallas Hollingsworth at guard, Skipper Duke at tackle and Jones Lockerman will handle the right end.

In the backfield for the Bucs will be Dan Rouse calling the signals at quarterback and Nick Hilbert will handle the fullback position. The halfbacks will consist of Tommy Matthews on the right and Thomas Michel or Larry Rudisill on the left.

Newberry Starting Team

The Newberry backfield will be made up of Gorman at quarterback, Carl Harris at left half, Phil Orsini at right half and Bill Herndon at fullback.

The East Carolina boys left this morning at 8:30 for the trip south to Newberry. Boone emphasized yesterday that it was a long way, but it was not for pleasure. "Don't relax too much and be ready for a hard fight when you get there," he told the team. The Pirates will return to Greenville right after the game Saturday.

Next week the Bucs travel to Hickory to meet Appalachian in a conference game.

George Washington Meets W&M Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

William and Mary and George Washington, both of whom had the Southern Conference football championship hopes jolted by last period defeats last week, square off tonight in the District of Columbia's new stadium in an effort to rub out some unpleasant memories.

The scrap between the Indians and Colonials, who must be considered temporarily out of the title picture, kicks off a busy weekend that might go a long way toward determining just who will win the league crown.

Saturday afternoon's biggest collision sends Furman (2-1 in conference play) to front-running The Citadel (3-1). This will be Furman's final league game, and the Paladins must win to remain in contention. By the same token, a Furman victory would knock The Citadel out of the running.

In the other league clash Saturday afternoon, defending champion Virginia Military Institute (1-1) invades Davidson (0-2) and also must win to remain in the picture with any degree of certainty.

William and Mary (1-2 and 1-4 over-all) lost to The Citadel 10-8 last week on a field goal by Bill Gilgo with one second left. GW (2-2 and 2-3) was upended by Richmond 16-15 as the Spiders scored in the final period.

Unless Furman loses tomorrow, both WIM and the Colonials have no title chances. Both, however, will be shooting the works tonight because the loser will be eliminated under any circumstances.

Even if The Citadel links Furman Saturday, the Bulldogs won't be out of the woods, for they'll still have one big one left—Nov. 4 against VMI at Lexington, Va. Furman boasts the better over-all record, 4-1, but the Bulldogs' 3-2 mark has been posted against possibly stronger opposition.

VMI is 2-3 over-all, the first Keydet eleven to lose three games in a season since the 1956 club. Davidson has split even in four games against all opposition. The key may be whether the Keydets finally have found their offense, as was indicated despite a 14-6 defeat by Virginia last week.

Three conference teams take on outside foes, Virginia Tech (1-2 in all games) meets Virginia in the Harvest Bowl at Roanoke, Va., Saturday. Saturday night Richmond (2-3) is at Florida State and West Virginia (2-3) is at Boston University.

Buffalo Going After 3rd Straight Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Buffalo goes after its third straight victory and a possible climb into first place in the Eastern Division of the American Football League tonight.

In the way is another team that hasn't been doing so well but knows now it's the time for it—Boston.

Buffalo and Boston clash at Boston as the first game of a full league schedule.

Sunday the other members hook up with San Diego, leading the Western Division by 2½ games and unbeaten for the season, traveling to Oakland; New York going to Denver, and Dallas playing at Houston.

Should Buffalo beat Boston and New York lose to Denver, the Bills would take over first place in the Eastern Division. A Boston victory, however, would mean a tie for the division lead between Boston and New York.

Buffalo last Sunday almost ruined Dallas' chances by toppling the Texans 27-24. The previous week the Bills had whipped Houston 22-12 to put Coach Lou Rymkus of the Oilers on the skids.

Then on Sunday when Boston played Houston, the 1960 league champions, to a 31-31 tie, Rymkus slid all the way out of a coaching job. San Diego can't be bothered much even if it should, in some strange way, lose to the lowly Oakland Raiders. The Chargers are so far ahead they can keep the lead for two weeks no matter what happens. Oakland is mired in the Western Division cellar; and although the Raiders have played much better football since a coaching change, they still haven't won any.

Houston and Dallas meet in a game that has the two highest rated clubs in the circuit fighting just to hang on. Houston was the favorite for both the Western Division and the league titles before the season started.

New York will be returning a Denver visit of a month ago. In New York the Titans managed a 35-28 victory. Denver won at home last Sunday, beating Oakland by 27-24. New York lost at home, taking a 25-10 licking from San Diego.

ACC Coaches Not Viewing This Weekend With Joy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Against non-conference teams, Atlantic Coast Conference schools this season have been a struggling crew, hardly calculated to arouse awe within a golden age sewing circle. The mark is 11 non-league games is four victories, none impressive.

But almost any ACC coach will tell you he'd rather lead his team through a mine field than onto the yard of another ACC school. When it comes to neighborhood games, it's a conference of spoilers.

None of the six coaches whose teams play inside the conference this weekend can be expected to view the prospect with joy.

North Carolina, which derailed Maryland 14-8 last week — and the week before was dumped by Clemson, and the week before that surprised North Carolina State — will keep its guard high for Saturday's game at South Carolina.

The Gamecocks have won only one of four. Last week they were almost run out of their own stadium by Louisiana State in a 42-0 rout, not exactly Coach Marvin Bass' version of "football for fun." But South Carolina is one of those ACC teams regarded as capable of much better things.

Another team in that category is Clemson. The Tigers, in fact, were so regarded all last season, which they wound up with a disappointing 6-4 record. This year Clemson is 1-3, and would like nothing better Saturday than to hand highly rated Duke (3-1) its second straight loss.

Wake Forest, a so-so team that lost its first three games, upset Clemson 17-13 last week. The Deacons Saturday are at North Carolina State — and there goes that song again — a team that sadly disappointed its supporters by dropping three of its first four games.

Outside the ACC, Maryland tries to recoup some of its prestige in a game at the Air Force Academy. The Terps took their first three games and were rated No. 10 nationally in the Associated Press poll, then took their lumps from North Carolina. Coach Tom Nugent said halfback Dennis Condie, the ACC's leading ground gainer, is not expected to play due to a knee injury.

Virginia, happy with a 2-2 record after a 28-game losing streak, plays Virginia Tech of the Southern Conference at Roanoke, Va. It will be the 45th in the series between the two teams. Virginia holds the edge with 21 victories. There have been four ties.

Bowl Of Flowers Upsets Race

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Bowl of Flowers' upset in the $84,400 Spinster Stakes at Keeneland race course has put her on top of the 3-year-old filly picture.

The Brookmeade Stable entry, last year's 2-year-old champion filly, sped through the stretch Thursday to edge John W. Galbreath's Primonetta, her chief challenger for 3-year-old honors. The margin was three-quarters of a length in the mile and an eighth event.

Bowl of Flowers, with jockey Eddie Arcaro up, equaled the record of 1:49 1-5 for the Spinster.

Times Two finished third. The victory gave Bowl of Flowers the winner's share of $50,640 and raised her total earnings to $392,884.

State Game Will Be Televised

Newspaperboys Rate High In Leading Citizens' Views

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Two former newspaperboys now in the Cabinet have taken a look at today's youngest generation and done some head shaking. Too much coddling of children, too little parental discipline, too little urging of offspring to get gainful jobs perhaps because allowances are higher these days.

But a publisher who has business relations with some 32,000 youngsters across the land comes to the kids' defense. They're as good as ever, he says, at least in the smaller towns where his publication largely is distributed.

Saturday is Newspaperboy Day. So a lot of famous former newspaperboys may be looking over the shoulders of the two Cabinet members: Commerce Secretary

Luther H. Hodges; and Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff.

Some in the list are former Presidents Hoover, Eisenhower and Truman, Chief Justice Warren, Gen. Gruentier, Sens. Sparkman, Mundt and Yarborough; Jack Dempsey and Walt Disney—to name only a few.

Hodges says today's parents aren't using discipline to teach children the joys and rewards of work. He fears this is helping to make the nation soft.

Ribicoff also decries coddling and lays a lot of the blame to restrictive laws on hiring youngsters. But he sees a growing feeling against teaching of self-respect and a sense of responsibility through work.

The publisher who thinks neither er the boys nor the parents, especially in the multitude of smaller cities, are that bad is George R. Lamade of Williamsport, Pa. His newspaper, Grit, is billed as a national publication devoting itself to small-town America.

One of its early newsboys was Luther B. Hodges himself. Others include "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky and Ford Frick, present baseball commissioner. House Republican Leader Halleck, Carl Sandburg and Gene Autry.

Many city newspaper publishers report having their troubles recruiting youthful distributors these days.

But in big and small cities they are likely to agree that newsboys still can learn a lot that's useful later on. They cite training in salesmanship, learning to talk on their feet, making contacts with various types of people getting poise and self-assurance, training in the virtues of reliability and promptness.

Juvenile delinquency may make the headlines these days. But Lamade says that in large sections of the land there are plenty of American parents who want to improve their children's position in life by encouraging them to take jobs—where the laws allow—that will give them the training and experience they need.

"Give a boy something to do that will improve himself," he says, "and you help him keep out of trouble."

So the secretaries and the publisher really get together after all. And Lamade also agrees that "many parents seem inclined to delegate the responsibility to cultivate good work habits and attitudes among youngsters to the schools and churches."

All three say this should primarily be a job for parents, without downgrading the roles of the schools, churches and lawmakers.

So, if you're a newsboy today, you can see you rate high with many persons. And if you belong to the big army of onetime newspaper delivery boys, you might pause to spare a smile for one of your successors. It might even be a girl.

'Acquaintance Of A Tree' Put Movie Off Schedule

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"We are shooting three days in Hollywood," said Billy Wilder, "because Mr. Buchholz decided to make the acquaintance of a tree."

The director did not seem perturbed by the inconvenience. At least not now that he has the final scenes of "One, Two, Three" safely in the can. Last month it might have been a different matter.

Wilder planned to shoot the comedy of present-day Berlin entirely in Berlin and Munich. Then his young star, Horst Buchholz, slammed his Cadillac into a West German tree. Wilder couldn't wait for the actor to get out of the hospital and then the courts. Hence the company was dismissed and reassembled here this week.

According to Buchholz, getting out of the hospital was easier than getting out of the courts. "I had internal injuries—how do you call it, intestines," said the actor. "Even so, I recovered quickly. It is because I have no fat on my belly and because I am young."

After 10 days in the hospital, I wanted to go home. The doctors pleaded with me to stay four or five more days. They said, "Horst, you are a horse."

He bounced back fast from his injuries, only to get staggered by German justice. The decision: a $6,500 fine and revocation of license.

"Such a fine has never been heard of before!" he declared. "It was fantastic, especially since no one else was hurt in the accident; no one died. It was just me and the tree."

"I know what the reasoning was. They knew I was a young actor in the public eye. They knew I was the idol of young Germans. They thought they could make an example of me."

"They did it very cleverly. I might have appealed, but I had to leave the country. If I protested, they could have lifted my passport, since I am a Swiss citizen. They knew all that. So I paid."

"Driving in the United States is much safer than in Germany," said he. "There are too many country roads over there, too many hills and curves."

Also too many trees.

Read what the experts say about anti-freeze:

Car manufacturers:
 Check your car owner's manual. Most Detroit car manufacturers advise draining the cooling system, then filling with fresh anti-freeze every fall.

Automotive engineers:
 Engineers have been quick to point out that there's nothing really new in anti-freeze. The so-called "2-year" and "no-drain" products are ethylene glycol plus inhibitors. Ethylene glycol was introduced by "Prestone" Anti-Freeze in 1927.

Experienced owners:
 By making it today's best-selling anti-freeze, millions of car owners say "Prestone" Anti-Freeze is best. Insist on the world's most tested, most trusted winter protection: "Prestone" brand Anti-Freeze with its exclusive Magnetic Film.

Lion In The Hills

By JOHN B. PRESCOTT

Excited and worried, Alec began to get down, but Sam waved him back.

"He ain't up there now, boy; keep your seat."

"Couldn't he be?" Sam said.

"I'd bet against it," Sam said. "But we ought to gain something on him, though."

Alec had to ponder Sam's words a moment before he understood, and by the time he did, the baying of the hounds, wild and much louder now, bore out the meaning.

"They found his bedground," Sam said. "They'll have a better trail now, coming down, than they had going up. It's hard to say how much we'll pick up, but anyhow as much as he stayed there. Maybe a day."

Whether a day or an hour, the sustained excitement of the hounds told surely that something had been gained and that likely it was significant, for they poured down the far side of the monument in a torrent of frenzied sound.

"Gone off west again!" Sam said. "We got something now. Come on!"

Reining Jock to the right, he set off on a skirting movement around the base of the monument. Alec, trailing on Sandy, listened to the sweep of sound descending on the unseen side beyond them, knowing that the hounds would be far ahead of them by the time they got around.

They were, and as they swung around more to the left to get behind them once more, Sam threw up his hand. Halting, he cocked his head to the side to listen.

"They're ahead and to the right!" he said. "The trail goes back to the travelway, further west."

The mounds moved on along the new trail of sound that lay ahead. The pace now as faster, for the hound's excitement had seized on them all, whether man or animal, and ran through them in the way of an electric current.

Then, as the downslope and the swale beyond it came into view, Alec saw the hounds below "gathered into a snarling knot of animal motion."

Something that was dark and furry and lion-shaped lay in the grass underneath them.

Alec has good reason to fear for Rusty's life now. Continue the story tomorrow.

CHAPTER 24

Rusty's trail seemed clear enough. The hounds were having no trouble so far.

Being close to thirty-six hours old, it wasn't yet the trail of a creature in flight, but one that had just finished eating its fill.

Just now or when he'd laid down the sign they followed, Rusty seemed to be ambulating along, maybe thinking of a place to lie up for a while. It was their way after eating heavy.

The trail moved nearer the cliffs, yet not too near. It was as if he liked to have space around him while he moved along.

"Seems leery," Sam. Fellows said once.

"Maybe just careful," Alec Temple said.

"Well, it's time he learned a little of that, all right," Sam said. They stopped often to examine sign, and on the whole moved slowly. More slowly, anyhow, than Alec's remembrance of that first race through here last year. Beyond them, far out of sight, but still in good hearing range, the hounds were moving more slowly, too, for old sign took close working.

Then, around midmorning, Sam raised his hand and they halted.

"There he is," he said.

Half expecting Rusty's shape to leap into view, Alec stared around the hair lifting on his neck. Then he saw where Sam was pointing—at a piece of bare ground before them, where water seeped down from a tumble of rock, and then on toward a draw below. A spray of tracks marked the moist, shaded red earth, and Rusty's looking clean and quite fresh, were among them.

"Had himself a drink here," Sam said.

Alec could tell that himself, but it was their size that struck him now. They were bigger than his hand outspread.

"His' growl!" he said in a breath.

"Ain't that the truth," Sam said, swinging down to the ground to look closer. He made a cast around to study some of the others, but Alec kept his seat, staring down still at Rusty's tracks.

It was hard for him to believe that he had once held the maker of those great marks in his arms and had tenderly dressed and bound the one foot whose print in the earth below established clearly the identity of the others.

Sam had stepped across the dribble of water and now poked and peered among the stone ledges where the seep headed.

"The tom's been here, too," Sam said, stepping back across the water toward Jock.

Mourning, he led out across the water and on once again. But the pace was slow now, really slow, and Sam was looking around to the sides of him more than ahead.

Now and then he'd stop, too, and bend over while he eyed the ground underneath the mounds.

"I'd not be surprised but what we're on a travelway," he said. Alec knew about travelways. It was the line of movement that a lion might follow through the country. The full range of travel might cover twenty-five miles and more, and all that a lion might need to live on would be found somewhere along its length.

To look around him, though, as Sam was doing, didn't tell Alec much.

Says GOP Needs Louder Voices

SALEM, Ore. (AP)—The Republican party needs no new image, only new muscle, more work and louder voices to win elections in 1962, its national chairman said Thursday.

Rep. William Miller of New York, the national chairman, told a Salem luncheon the Republican record is one the party can claim with pride.

In an attack on the foreign policy of President Kennedy, Miller said it is the duty of the minority party to stand up for what it believes.

Kennedy, he said, had promised to contain the Communists in Laos but stood around while they took over strategic points. Miller also blamed the failure of the Cuban invasion upon Kennedy.

'Glass Menagerie' To Open Saturday

A fluttery hen named Amanda Wingfield clucks over her two sour-missshapen brood on the stage of McGinnis auditorium as the East Carolina Playhouse puts Tennessee Williams' imaginative drama "The Glass Menagerie" through rehearsals in preparation for an opening there November 1 at 8 p.m.

The Broadway hit play about an amusingly vague and old-womanish mother determined to get a Gentleman Caller for her daughter will continue for three performances through November 3.

The aged mother of the play lives, with her two children, in an apartment off an alley in St. Louis, recalling her past glories, her seventeen suitors, and the old and better life. She is a bit of a scold, a bit of a snob, her finery has worn threadbare, but she has kept it for occasions of state.

Such an occasion comes when Tom, her poetry-writing son who "goes to the movies" to get tight, brings to dinner with him a gum-chewing fellow-worker from the warehouse. Amanda's efforts to make a match between the Gentleman Caller and her pathetically shy and crippled daughter Laura provide some of the play's most touching and yet humorous scenes.

Lucile Dew of Rt. 1, Rose Hill, will be seen here as the fading Amanda, while Ben Avery of Goldsboro will portray her dutiful but resentful son, Tom. As Laura, the sensitive girl who plays with her collection of glass animals, Taylor of Greenville, Thomas Hull of Durham will have the part of the good-natured Gentleman Caller, who disappoints Amanda by already being engaged to be married.

Dr. J. A. Wilhey, director of the East Carolina Playhouse, is director of the Williams play.

Pitt UF Goals Outlined To Club

Dr. G. Earl Trevathan, Jr., local physician, outlined at the weekly meeting of the Greenville Civilian Club Thursday the goals of this year's Pitt County United Fund campaign.

Using a graphic presentation, Dr. Trevathan described the "vital work being done" in the community by agencies in the UF.

Prior to the doctor's address, Dr. Ed Carter of East Carolina College urged support for the upcoming state-wide bond election. If the issue is approved Nov. 7, Dr. Carter noted, East Carolina College would receive more than $3 million for capital improvements.

In a business session, Jim Rodgers and Joe Dudley, co-chairmen of the Civilian Fruit Cake Committee, told members of plans for this year's cake sale. Proceeds from fruit cake sales are used for advancing civilian projects including the Junius H. Rose High School Bank, the Boys Home at Lake Waccamaw and the Trainable School for mentally retarded children.

Col. Zeb Hopkins of Havelock, lieutenant governor of Civitan Club last night and conducted induction proceedings for new member Gilbert Hopkins.

Dr. Jack Silvers attended the meeting as a guest of Civitan member Kenneth Quiggins.

'Bank' Movie

A movie to benefit the Moose Clothing Bank will be given at the State Theater Saturday morning at 10:00 o'clock.

Prices for three grades on the Greenville tobacco market advanced today while others held firm at Thursday's level, according to sales supervisor W. L. Whedbee.

Greenville Mart Has $61.56 Day

Volume today, Whedbee said, was "much larger" than the 208-158 pounds Thursday that brought growers a total of $128,148.04 for a gross sales average of $61.56.

The three grades that advanced today, Whedbee said, were medium quality smoking leaf, green tobacco and nondescript tobacco.

Overall quality today, he said, was about the same as offerings Thursday. Season totals through Thursday stood at: pounds — 58,174,704; receipts—$35,476,293.04; sales average—$64.29.

After the sale today, Greenville market will remain open for one more full week, the final sale scheduled for Friday, Oct. 27.

Mother Of Greenville Women Is Dead

ROLAND—Mrs. W. E. Evans, 86, died Thursday afternoon. Funeral services were held Friday at 2 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church here. Burial followed in the family cemetery at Carthage.

Mrs. Evans had been in failing health for 10 months and critically ill for a month.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Savage of Greenville and Miss Agnes Evans of the home; a son, W. S. Evans of Robbins; a sister, Miss Bess Stuart of Carthage; two grandchildren.

TORNADO KILLS SEVEN

RAGUSA, Sicily (AP) — A tornado cut a swath through the countryside near Ragusa Thursday night, killing at least seven persons. The cone of wind, a rarity in Italy and its islands, whirled in from the Mediterranean and moved through a sparsely settled farm area.

Press Failure

The Daily Reflector's press was idle today after its big, 40-horsepower electric motor developed short-circuit trouble near the end of Thursday's $300 copy press run.

Friday's edition was printed in Washington on the press of the Daily News there. Saturday's Reflector, too, was scheduled to go to press in the neighboring city before delivery in Pitt County.

A Raleigh crew dismantled the 1,500-pound motor Thursday night and hauled it to the Capital City for "round-the-clock-repair work over the weekend."

It was expected today that the giant motor would be in position again in time for Monday's edition of the Reflector to be published at home again.

A bit of irony in the motor's breakdown was that it punctuated the warning days of National Newspaper Week.

Plan Newcomers Party Nov. 16

The Board of Directors of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium project and also the bond issue to be held on Nov. 7, urging residents to vote for the issue.

In other business at the board's monthly meeting this week, it was announced that the 10th annual Greenville newcomers party will be held at the Moose Lodge Nov. 16 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

T. Kyzer, secretary of the chamber of commerce, said that the party is given to provide new families who have moved into the city in the past year an opportunity to get acquainted and make them feel at home in Greenville.

The board also reported that the third and final brochure in a series on Greenville has been received. The leaflet contains illustrations of various city buildings and aerial photos of the area. The other two brochures are on facts and figures for potential industry on the economic, business and educational aspects of the city.

Kyzer said the completed series contains the most recent information on Greenville and its activities.

Food Handlers Required Have Health Cards

Employers hiring food handlers and domestic help have again been reminded that these people should have health cards from the Pitt County Health Department, in order to protect against contagious infectious diseases.

These diseases include Tuberculosis, venereal diseases and other infectious diseases, Dr. John Futrell, county health director, stated.

All food handlers and domestic help should have these cards, Dr. Futrell said. Employers should wait for results from the application before letting prospective employees begin work. Issuance of the health card hinges mainly around a blood test and an X-ray.

Graveyard Shift Met Problem

Add to problems faced by police officers on the graveyard shift: Lady on Sherwood Drive called the station at 3:35 a.m. Thursday morning to report an opossum in her bird feeder.

She wanted police to get the animal out.

"Service rendered," the officers remarked on their report.

Reports Theft Of Tools Here

W. C. Clark reported to police that some tools were taken from his place of business.

Police said the tools were valued at $12. Apparently the intruder climbed a fence to take them from an open shed.

Six Nations Will Ask UN Action

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Six nations on the fringe of the Soviet nuclear test area readied a resolution for the U.N. General Assembly today calling on Premier Khrushchev to cancel his plans to explode a 50-megaton bomb before the end of the month.

Informed sources said the six would demand top priority for the resolution when the 101-nation Political Committee resumes debate this morning on proposals to halt nuclear testing.

Diplomats predicted overwhelming support for the resolution sponsored by Canada, Denmark, Norway, Iceland, Sweden, and Japan.

Asian-African nations reportedly had planned to introduce a similar resolution, but they apparently decided to leave the initiative to nations more likely to be affected by fallout from the giant blast.

Several U.N. delegates have expressed the suspicion that Khrushchev had no intention of setting off the bomb despite his dramatic announcement before the Soviet Communist party Congress Tuesday. They believe the Soviet leader, knowing the alarm his announcement would arouse, intends to let the full impact sink in, then, as a magnanimous gesture, say he has decided for the sake of world harmony to heed the appeals.

Arms experts have pointed out that there is little military value in exploding such a superbomb. They say that after test bombs reach a certain size, they furnish no useful information.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson told the Political Committee Thursday there is "no military purpose whatever in such weapons."

"For years the United States has been able to build such weapons," Stevenson said, "but we are not interested in the business of intimidation or bigger blasts."

Stevenson declared that unless a nuclear test ban treaty is signed the United States must prepare to take all steps needed to protect its security, including nuclear tests in the atmosphere as well as underground.

He challenged the Soviet Union to sign such a treaty at once, declaring: "I pray we do not lose another chance to meet this challenge of our time and stop this death dance."

Plans Expansion For Pitt TB X-Ray Clinic

Further expansion in the tuberculosis X-ray clinic was announced this week by Pitt Health Director Dr. John Futrell.

In addition to monthly clinics to be held on Wednesdays beginning in November, the X-rays will be taken on Monday mornings through the efforts of the Tuberculosis Association.

Dr. Futrell stated that it is hoped that the clinics will accomplish a closer contact with the tuberculosis patient in order to prevent resistant cases from recurring.

"There is a tremendous percentage of resistances in cases where there is not a continuous consumption of medication," Dr. Futrell said.

Another reason for the clinic is the fact that "we can write someone from two blocks to 15 miles from here to come in on a specified day to this clinic, instead of what would be 60 miles," Dr. Futrell said. The effectiveness of dealing with the problem would be increased, he said.

The close proximity of the clinic would decrease the problem of transportation for many people. Patients who have suspected but unproven lesions could be more readily evaluated than they could be under the present set up of working through the Health Department for an appointment in Wilson, for example.

On the whole, the location of more expanded X-ray clinics here is expected to be a positive step in cutting down the high tuberculosis rate.

Firemen Called To Grass Fire

The Greenville Fire Department responded to a field fire at 4:15 p.m. Thursday in the 400 block of Hickory St.

Department officials said that the fire caused no damage and they let it burn out. Cause of the fire was listed as a match or cigarette tossed into the dry grass.

Rites Saturday For W. Randolph Eagles

CRISP—W. Randolph Eagles, 54, of Crisp, was killed in an automobile accident Thursday night in Fayetteville. He was a past president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau and a director of the North Carolina F.C.C.

He was also a director of the Merchants and Farmers Bank in Macesfield, director of the N. C. Farm Bureau Insurance Co., director of the State Life and Health Insurance Co. and director of the Board of Trustees of Edgecombe General Hospital. He also was a deacon in the Pinetops Presbyterian Church.

Born near Crisp, he had lived in that area all his life. He was the son of Rosa L. and the late I. Dow Eagles.

Surviving are his wife, the former Margaret McKinnon of Maxton; one foster daughter, Mrs. Janice Bland Stanton of Laurel, Md.; four brothers, W. C. of Greenville, Albert of Macesfield, Dow of Florence, S. C. and John I. Eagles of Crisp.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home in Crisp on Saturday at 3 p.m. with interment in the Queen Anne Cemetery in Fountain. The Rev. Daniel K. Snyder will officiate.

Missing Bomber Search Near End

ROBINS AIR FORCE BASE, Ga. (AP) — The official search for a missing B52G jet bomber from Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, N.C., may be nearing its end.

The West Virginia Civil Air Patrol suspended its hunt Thursday after a 30-man search party hunted through woods north of Allamore, W. Va., without a trace of the ship. A Delaware National Guard pilot had reported seeing flashes of light, as if from a signal device.

The Coast Guard called off a four-day search by 79 aircraft in the North Atlantic Ocean. Planes and ships on routine duty above the Atlantic were asked to continue their lookout.

The Eastern Air Rescue Coordination Center here said it wants to check out several leads. If these turn up nothing, a spokesman said, the center will consider whether it is worthwhile to continue.

The plane, with eight men aboard, took part last Saturday in Operation Sky Shield II, an air defense exercise. Among the crew men was Airman 1C Francis B. Jones, Columbia, S.C.

The City Council of Homestead, Fla., recently termed the town "The City of Bicycles" because of community-wide interest in cycling.

Dr. Douglas Jones, director of the department of education at East Carolina College, has been appointed as an associate member of the N. C. Committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

In this position, Dr. Jones will meet with the state committee to discuss problems of the Southern Association and its member schools and to participate in the evaluation of schools seeking membership in the organization.

Dr. Jones was also recently appointed a member of the State Advisory Council on Teacher Education and Professional Standards.

A native of Farmville and an East Carolina alumnus, he taught at George Peabody College before joining the college staff here in 1957 as professor of education.
