"SALADS—TRICK OR TREAT" was the topic of discussions by three home economics students of the Adult Homemaking Class under the instruction of Miss Alice Strawn at East Carolina College Thursday night, in the Flanagan building on the campus. 'Salads - Trick Or Treat' Topic

Students of the Adult Homemaking Class under the instruction of Miss Alice Strawn at the college are conducting a series of lecture meetings open to the public. The third class meeting will be held Tuesday, Oct. 31, at 7 p.m. in room 101 of the Flanagan building. The topic of discussion will be "Tips for Looking Tops."

"Salads—Trick or Treat," a tricky when careful handling of the ingredients of a salad is disregarded or a treat for guests who were present at the meeting Thursday to enjoy the salads prepared by the three home economics students.

In opening the second meeting, Sylvia Lamm of Rt. 2, Lucama stated that there are four classifications of salads. "Salads may be served as a first course; as an 'accompaniment salad' to be eaten with the main course; as a 'main dish salad' or 'salad plate'; and as a 'dessert salad' or 'party salad'.

As a first course salad, Miss Lamm demonstrated the colorful finger salad which included radishes, stuffed cream cheese celery, carrots, pickles, and green pepper rings. For an "accompaniment salad" to compliment the meat platter, she suggested a tossed salad, pear halves, mixed fruit, or a congealed salad. In choosing an "accompaniment salad," Miss Lamm displayed to the group a congealed ginger ale salad which had been prepared earlier in the day.

"A 'main dish salad' may consist of a luncheon meat or cooked ham and should be a heavier salad," according to Mrs. Helen Vinson of Goldsboro. She prepared a picnic potato salad which included luncheon meat, cooked potatoes, celery, salad dressing, chopped green pepper, minced onion and salt. Placing the salad on lettuce leaves made for an attractive main course dish.

"To stimulate the appetite, fruit cocktail placed in chilled glasses may be served as an appetizer salad," stated Janice Sessoms of Lumberton. Miss Sessoms prepared for her audience an apple dessert salad.

Sprinkle any citrus fruit juice over fresh peeled or cut pears to prevent discoloration.

"Can My Velvet Dress Be Drycleaned?"

—Mrs. R. T. J.

Dear Mrs. R. T. J.:

Yes, velvets are definitely drycleanable. However, some of the new novelty velvets which leaped to popularity this season need special care.

Some velvets are treated with a silicone finish. Some two-toned and others have many colors contrasting with white or black backgrounds. There is a rayon Lyons-type velvet which as a special finish for resiliency. There are some novelty velvets with designs on a moiré background. You can see that these velvets require special care when you wear them as well as when they are drycleaned. Your professional drycleaner will give your velvets the cleaning care they should have.

By the way, Mrs. R. T. J., you know what a nuisance lint is on your velvets. You will welcome this lint hint if you have to remove lint at home and do not have any of the many lint removers at hand. Wrap a small piece of adhesive tape, sticky side out, around a wooden block. Brush the surface of your velvet lightly and presto—no lint! Of course, always placing your velvet garment in a garment bag will protect it from lint, too.

Enjoy your velvets, Mrs. R. T. J. assured that your drycleaner can clean them perfectly for you. (Adv.)

Suggestion For Kitchen Work Area

Stainless steel and Monel metal make excellent sink and work surfaces for the kitchen because they can stand hard use without showing the "scars."

These surfaces need only washing after use with plenty of hot soap or detergent suds and rinses to keep them clean and sanitary. But, because both stainless steel and Monel tend to show "water marks," a fastidious homemaker should follow up by wiping all surfaces with a dry cloth.

Health Director Offers Halloween Safety Rules

Pitt County Health Director Dr. John Futrell has announced the following safety rules in conjunction with prevention of Halloween accidents:

Train Kills Five In Two Accidents

STUTTGART, Ark. (AP) — A freight train collided with a car here Sunday, killing three persons. Then the train proceeded to Altheimer, Ark., 20 miles southwest, and killed a mother and her daughter.

Killed at Stuttgart were Elzie Smith, Flavella Ransom and Willie B. Smith, all Negroes of Altheimer, Ark.

Killed at Altheimer was Mrs. Charles Farrer, 30, and her daughter, Charlotte, 2, of Altheimer. Deputy sheriff Pink Booher said the child ran onto the tracks and the mother pursued her, then slipped and fell.

- (1) Instead of using a mask, paint false faces on children with eyebrow pencil, grease paint, burnt cork or cosmetics. A mask may be dangerous because it may slide over a child's eyes and block his vision for a moment. Suffocation may occur if the mask is worn over the entire head.
- (2) Light colored materials should be used to make costumes since dull black witches costumes and skeleton suits are hard to see on dark streets and roads. Inexpensive colored muslin may be used.
- (3) Dipping costumes and decorations in the following solution of three quarts of warm water, seven ounces of borax and three ounces of boric acid will flame-proof them.
- (4) Avoid too loose fitting or too long costumes in order to prevent them from catching on fences, hedges and bushes.
- (5) A child should not be allowed to carry a knife or other sharp instrument. Instead a dummy should be made out of cardboard.

Submarine Really Cramps His Style

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Submarine quarters seemed cramped to most Navy sailors but to Midshipman Dick Webster they were positively shrinking.

He was active in the Girl Scout movement in Ayden during 1960. The Girl Scouts received their financial support from the Pitt County United Fund.

Our Regrets And Our Appreciation

The Daily Reflector regrets the inconvenience caused its readers with late deliveries Friday and Saturday when mechanical difficulties delayed editions for approximately two hours each day.

We are happy to inform our readers that our press was put back in operation Saturday afternoon in time for that day's edition to be printed in our own plant. The difficulty on the two days was caused when the drive motor of our press burned out and had to be sent to Raleigh for repairs.

Friday's edition of The Reflector was printed in the plant of the Washington Daily News in our neighboring city, and we wish to express our appreciation to that newspaper and its employees for coming to our assistance when we were in trouble.

We also express our appreciation to our many readers in Pitt County who were most cooperative and understanding during these two difficult days. Many called Friday afternoon to know why they had not received their papers on time, but they were most understanding when informed of the reason. We also wish to thank Utilities Superintendent Leonard Blomax and the Greenville Utilities Commission for the loan of equipment which enabled us to remove and re-install our press motor as quickly as we did.

Certainly this editorial would be amiss if it did not mention efforts of our own staff members in all departments who worked long and hard to assure an edition of this newspaper would not be missed during these two difficult days.

One Friend Who Does Not 'Use' Friendship

The Finns are commonly referred to as "hardy". Nobody questions the fitness of the term, as a people they have had to be strong, self-reliant and proud . . . just to survive.

The newly-established nation was at the point of collapsing, about 50 years ago. Their country was ravaged by war and famine was hovering over the land.

Uncle Sam helped; and for this the Finns were anxious to pay. They paid despite assurances that "arrangements would be worked out". The Finns are still paying, and will be paying until 1981.

In 1939 the Soviet Union invaded Finland. It was something like a Goliath-vs-David epic, except that Little David couldn't win this one. The Finns were forced to cede 16,173 square miles.

Later, when the Nazis went to war against Russia, the Finns joined too . . . hoping to take back their land. They lost again . . . and the venture cost them more land as well as $300 million in reparations.

The peace treaty keeps them pretty well under Soviet domination; though their population of about 4.5 million hardly poses any threat to Russian security or peace of the world.

The friendly feeling between our country and Finland was not disturbed by World War II, and the United States did not formally declare war on the Finns.

The attitude of admiration individuals feel for people who are industrious, courageous and honorable would appear to be reflected by this country's attitude toward Finland. In turn, the Finns know that they have a friend . . . but they don't use that friendship as others might.

Instead, they work . . . and work hard, . . . for their own salvation.

Disagreeing On Inflation Danger

By RALPH ROBEY . . . Economists and business analysts frequently are in disagreement as to the outlook, but usually it is only a matter of degree. For example, one will believe that a business upturn will be sharp, another that it will be moderate; or one, that a recovery will be of long duration, another, that it will be short. But today we have a difference of opinion that is not of this character. This is on the question of whether we as a nation are on the verge of another round of inflation.

Most of the top economists of the Administration insist that there is no danger of inflation. Their argument is that with the present unused productive capacity, and a surplus of labor, it just is not possible for prices to be raised.

Some private analysts also come to this same conclusion. They use the two points just mentioned and add various others. Thus, they maintain that wage increases have been moderate and the average probably less than the rise in the output per hour. They cite the fact that the money supply has not been rising by enough to exert an upward pressure upon prices. They point out that competition is vigorous, both as between producers within the United States, and from abroad. And they say that the American public is tired of higher and higher prices, and will resist further increases.

Other economists, and almost all of these are privately employed, say all of this may well be true, but nonetheless there is inflation ahead—and not too far ahead. They answer the non-inflation group about as follows:

There is always unused capacity within the economic system, except, perhaps in a period of grave national emergency. But this is not a necessary protection against inflation. The unused capacity may be in the wrong fields, or may consist of obsolete equipment.

We have a surplus labor supply, but we also have labor shortages. The problem is not one of just getting additional workers, but of finding employees of the ability needed.

On wages, it is evident that almost every new agreement involves an increase. In many in-

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY Ex-Presidents Emerge

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc. I find ex-presidents more interesting than Presidents. Certainly Herbert Hoover has risen in stature, in thought, in independence since he has been an ex-President. Harry Truman was always a salty personality but he has a better understanding of the world today than he had as President of the United States.

Dwight D Eisenhower is quite a surprise. He sounds as though he writes his own speeches, which no President can any longer do. He sounds free, even gay. It is not so much that he can play golf without a television camera being on his heel; it is rather that he has been relieved of the controls of high office and perhaps what is more important, the advice of his underlings. President Kennedy might well watch the development of Eisenhower as ex-President and not how much better a man does when he ceases to be enslaved by his subordinates. The Republican Party requires intellectual and spiritual leadership. It has lost its way in the thirty years since Hoover. Today it is divided into four parts — the followers of Barry Goldwater, the followers of Nelson Rockefeller, the followers of Richard Nixon and those who hope that these three will give them back their party.

Other Editors Saying Too Smugly Satisfied?

(Goldsboro News Argus) You have heard it said and you may be one who agrees with the truth of the charge. It says that Eastern North Carolina could break out of its agricultural poverty and apathy if the men of property, land and money, weren't too satisfied with things as they are.

Elmer Brock of the Mount Olive Tribune, commenting on location of a new garment plant in his town, makes the assertion that actual opposition to industrialization has prevented growth in that direction.

We do not see the actual opposition but we do realize that those who have solid position, good tobacco farms and a good income may like things too much as they are. Dr. Clarence Poe long has campaigned for the business or professional man or the successful farmer to strike out in new directions. He has challenged the accepted philosophy of security, that the way to leisure and a sure income is to buy more tobacco land when money is available. Dr. Poe, one of the greatest minds of the past 50 years, insists, logically, responsibility to help develop an finance new ventures which utilize our materials and products.

Elmer Brock's discussion of the idea is titled in the Tribune "Industrial Break Through" says Mr. Brock:

For the first time in too many years, Mount Olive has the firm expectation of the addition of an industrial payroll to the local economy, in the announcement of the garment manufacturing operation to be established here. While comparatively small to begin with, as such operations go, it will have a decided impact locally. Not the least significant fact about the new industry to come here is that it might be called a "break-through" of the line of resistance to local industrial progress which, according to decades of rumors, has been used behind the public's back by individual too influential to ignore. In order to keep the status quo. If such resistance truly existed—and reports of it have been too numerous to discount completely—then this breakthrough may be of growing importance in the years ahead as these people who should have been helping instead of hurrying, find that what helps Mount Olive economically can have nothing but a beneficial effect on their own appreciatives.

Working in the face of influential and secret opposition must have been very discouraging because as the last defeated candidate, he cannot compete successfully with the last elected candidate for the usually meaningless titular headship of the Republican Party. In fact, politicians feel that Eisenhower is elbowing Nixon out of the picture.

At the end of the Al Smith dinner, at any rate, Eisenhower elbowed everyone out of the way. He took the applause and the cheers. Naturally, the politicians were not a little surprised that the speaker was Eisenhower and not President John F. Kennedy. On a previous occasion, Eisenhower spoke at this dinner when he was President of the United States. This event is arranged long in advance and the date is not so rigid that the dinner could not have been adjusted to the needs of the President of the United States. There is lots of politics in that.

Season Of Big Business

By ROGER BABSON BABSON PARK, Mass. — There are many reasons why we should be greatly interested in Christmas business, — whether we are clerks, storekeepers, manufacturers, or consumers.

CHRISTMAS TRADE AS A BUSINESS GAUGE The feelings of the nation are usually revealed in the volume and the temper of Christmas buying. A number of years ago I was of the opinion that statistics distated the nation's business, particularly as regards credit available and workers' wages. But now I have come to realize that business is ruled not only by figures, but also very much by feelings. It is encouraging to note at this time that an impartial study of the probabilities for 1961 Christmas business indicates that people throughout the country are feeling good.

Even at a time when the world situation is dark, our people seem ready to honor Christmas in traditionally happy style. Let us all do whatever we can to encourage this attitude. Let us make gifts to those in need. Let us keep in mind what joy and happiness we can bring to others, instead of what profits the gifts may bring to us. To help guide my footsteps in this direction I have erected a sign near the Great Babson Globe (the largest revolving globe in the world) that reads: "FOR WHAT IS A MAN PROFFED, IF HE SHALL GAIN THE WHOLE WORLD AND LOSE HIS OWN SOUL?"

PURCHASING SUPPORTS EMPLOYMENT

There is, of course, more to Christmas buying than immediately greets the eye. When you select a present for a relative or a friend, you actually begin an individual business cycle. Not only do you give pleasure to the person receiving the gift, but you give material help to the retailer, providing him with the cash that he requires to conduct his important distributing operations. Remember, too, that your money not only gives him his small profit (a few cents out of your dollar), but it also moves along in part to the producer, the clerks, the landlord, the advertising outlets, and others directly or indirectly involved.

Of special significance is the fact that the storekeeper's payment to the manufacturer permits him to employ more people. The manufacturer's workers tend to spend their wages at the store, thus completing the all-important cycle. When the cycle described works smoothly, the entire nation enjoys prosperous times. If the cycle breaks down at any point, business and employment decline (they are two barometers that always move together). Then, unless something is done to repair the break, we are likely to slide into a depression.

HOLIDAY BUYING, 1961 All signs thus far point to a good Christmas buying season for 1961, even though it is always possible for some last-minute occurrence to change the outlook. Readers will get my detailed "Outlook for 1961" in this paper the last week of December. It will treat of Business, Inflation, Retail Trade, Wages, Employment, Politics, and the Stock Market. From what I see now, this forecast should indicate a Merry Christmas for you.

Building Shelters The present rush to build fallout shelters poses another question for business. Too much talk along these lines could hurt general trade. Manufacturers may ask, "If this fallout is coming, why work so hard? Why bother?" And workers may give more thought to the problem of finding shelter than to doing their jobs or spending their Christmas bonuses. Worry about the future could conceivably have a darkening effect on the outlook for retail trade this approaching Holiday Season.

Small Switch In Our Advertising

By LYNN NISBET HABIT — There has been a sort of subtle and almost indiscernible switch in the text of State industrial advertising from emphasis on the super salesmanship propensities of Governors Luther Hodges and Terry Sanford to the idea that in North Carolina good government is a habit. The folks responsible for promoting the selling of North Carolina have waked up to the fact that Luther Hodges is not Governor any more, and that Terry Sanford will not be Governor after early 1965, but that North Carolina as a state where good government has been a confirmed habit will be here for a long time. The promoters are recognizing that the product is more important than the salesman.

There may be controversy over who first used the expression about good government being a habit in North Carolina. Certainly many people for a long number of years have had the idea, but did not put it into words. Preponderant authority credits the first use of the expression to Edwin Gill, State treasurer, in an article written for the Manufacturers Record in January 1954. He used it also in later speeches and articles in his campaign literature for election as treasurer in 1954. In commenting on the development of the thought, Treasurer Gill says, "It is hard to trace the exact ancestry of a phrase."

It is because of this tradition of sound government rather than the immediate fiscal condition of the State that enables North Carolina to sell bonds easily and at attractive interest rates. "Because of North Carolina's long record of fiscal integrity," says Mr. Gill, "I anticipate that we will be able to market successfully and to good advantage the $61,665,000 of bonds, if voted on favorable by our good people (on November 7)."

"LOCAL TOURISTS" — This column is indebted to Bugs Barringer of Rocky Mount for some figures emphasizing the contribution of "local tourists" to the economy of a community. In his exhaustive survey of the travel industry in North Carolina, Dr. Lewis Copeland finds that out-of-state travelers spend $245 million in North Carolina in 1960, while in-state travelers spent $163 million. These expenditures included only essentials to travel, not a lot of optional spending for miscellaneous items. Barringer reports briefly on two short trips.

Recently he spent several days at Kerr Lake, and went over to Clarksville, Va., to get some steaks, cigarettes, etc. "While there the wife purchased some sheets and bedspreads for the owner of the cabin. I figure we spent about $35 as 'tourists'. Under ordinary sense we would not be classed as tourists—yet that was $35 we would not ordinarily have spent."

Another instance was a party of six on a fishing trip to Morehead City. The total bill for boat, food, lodging, etc., was around $150.00. We would not be called tourists in the average sense, but "I am sure the folks in Morehead were glad to get that $150."

The shorter work week, with workers being free from Friday to Monday, and the facilities for comfortable travel have occasioned a definite trend toward shorter but more frequent trips. Very few people now go to one place for two weeks or a month, as was the necessary custom when travel was difficult. The time now is divided into two or three weekend trips to the beach or the mountains, with numerous one day jaunts interspersed to places of interest. This has created a tremendous economic force of "local tourists."

ACTIVITY — Evidence accumulates that both Democratic and Republican party organizations in North Carolina are depending a lot on development in the 1962 by-election to determine results of the 1964 election for Governor and President. Oldtimers cannot recall another time when as much political activity occurred in the early fall three years before the "big" elections. There have been more Democratic Women's Clubs organized this year than ever before, and more Young Republican Clubs. The Young Democratic Clubs are displaying unusual energy. Prospect of a real fight for state president and other officers at the Durham convention next month has stimulated interest in YDC.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS CONCERNING INSPIRATION The word "inspiration" is derived from two Latin words which mean to breathe into. An inspired writing is one which has had something breathed into it. An inspired person has had power and skill breathed into him. Inspiration is the state which results when something has been breathed into a person or thing.

Unusual Business Developments

By ELMER ROESSNER Here are some unusually significant business developments: Aluminum whiskey bottles are coming. The Internal Revenue Service has decided that seamless aluminum "liquor bottles" may be used as containers for liquor of not less than half pints, providing that they may not be readily opened with household can openers, that they carry the usual warning against re-use of the bottle, and that the aluminum not mingle with the alcohol to dangerous extents.

Nieman-Marcus of Dallas has come up with a Christmas gimmick that will make other department store promotion managers turn red and green. Shoppers who don't know what to get for friends and relatives need only check off a form, listing age, sex, relationship, vocation, marital status, dwelling place, hobbies, collections, economic status, habits, entertainment, sports, health, personality and size, and price of gift wanted. The data are fed into an IBM machine and out comes a list of 10 gift suggestions.

Under vocations, "newspaperman" is omitted. Under dwelling place, in addition to apartment, house, farm, etc., "jail" is also listed. SHAGGY STORY Sol Abrams, a shaggy publicity man, has sent us a story about a toy poodle puppy and Alfred J. DeLauretis, assigned to a government mission in Karachi, Pakistan. Mr. Abrams writes that Mr. DeLauretis fell in love with the puppy in a window of Max Hess's pet shop in Allentown, Pa. He paid $179.50 (marked down from $180) for it, on condition that it be shipped so as to arrive in Karachi the same time DeLauretis did. Hess, who misses no bet, also has a travel bureau which set up the delivery. DeLauretis is going to Europe for a fortnight before embarking for Pakistan, but the shipping schedule was worked out so finely that, on the last leg of the flight, both DeLauretis and the pup will be on the same plane. If the diplomat doesn't name the pup "Max" or "Maxine" his worthiness to represent the United States abroad should be re-examined.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

The Massachusetts family of Adames is staging a real revival in public interest at the moment.

Several weeks ago there were some remarks here about old John and his correspondence with Jefferson. Now it is to be noted that President Kennedy has got on the bandwagon, mentioning John Quincy last week at Chapel Hill in his excellent remarks about education.

According to Publisher's Week-ly, he also took the time to speak at the book luncheon sponsored by the Washington Post the other day in celebration of the publication by Harvard of the Adams diaries.

One thing about John and John Quincy that seems to intrigue the President, and which he mentioned at the luncheon, is that they were both really outstanding men, yet both failed to secure second terms in the White House. This is just the sort of things which would interest JFK at the moment.

Boston Irish
 Dealing with contemporary Massachusetts, the Boston of the Irish, is Edwin O'Connor's fine novel "The Edge of Sadness." O'Connor, who made a study of a city politician in his "The Last Hurrah," now deals with an aged self-made Irishman, Charlie Carmody, who has damaged everyone in his family through his domineering and ruthless character.

But this is really mainly the story of Father Hugh Kennedy, the narrator whose promising career in the Church has been shattered by alcoholism, and who has consequently lost his place in the prosperous, if not very happy, Irish American society for which his background had destined him.

Drawn back by degrees into the circle dominated by the Carmody's, Father Kennedy discovers that there is more to the difficulties of these people than simply old Charlie's meanness, and, as a result, he gains some insights which help him both as a man and a priest.

This is a book which well deserves the place which it holds on the bestseller list. Its characterizations are superb, and its plot is convincing, if not exciting. O'Connor's ability to modulate his dialogue to fit the various speakers is nothing short of brilliant.

Graham Greene
 A very different book, though it also deals with an alcoholic priest, is Graham Greene's masterpiece, "The Power and the Glory." This work, now fifteen years old, is back in the news because it is being republished in hard covers.

It will also be produced on TV by CBS, Sunday, Oct. 9, with Olivier and Julie Harris. More on that next week.

The Budget and Propaganda
 Much has been written about the refusal of Congress to pass the President's education bill. More crucial, in some respects, was the slashing which the budget of the United States Information Agency received at the hands of this same Congress.

Senator Javits of New York, in his opposition to this economy measure, must have spoken for many people when he said: "Premier Khrushchev's effort to tell one story to the Russian people and another to the rest of the world reveals a Communist weakness which we should exploit through a crash USA program.

 "I cannot see the sense of stepping up our efforts in the military and economic fields without taking an equally large step forward in the field of propaganda."

Business Abroad
 Meanwhile, in the face of an increasing post office deficit, Congressmen granted themselves the right to send out junk mail (that is, stuff not addressed to any individual, but simply to an address) under their franking privilege; then many of them departed, at government expense, for places like the French Riviera, Old Vienna, and Rome (the mecca of movie stars) to check on our military preparedness and the departments of our allies.

Local Events
 The Greenville Art Center has announced an art sale, beginning Sunday and continuing through Friday, Oct. 7.

According to reports, there will be something at this sale for every sort of taste and for pocketbooks of all sizes. With so many good practicing artists in this community, the time has come when anyone can own a few nice prints, a collection of handmade pots, or a good piece of sculpture for his home or place of business.

An open house at the Center on Sunday, 12-4, will initiate this project.

On Wednesday, Oct. 25, at the Woman's Club, United Nations Week will be celebrated with a banquet. Speakers will be Professor Keener Frazer of UNC and foreign students at the College will be honor guests. Anyone wishing to attend should get in touch with Mrs. Howard Mims.

entire first half, threw up a stonewall defense and stopped the Bucs just short of pay dirt. Newberry took over with one minute and 30 seconds left in the contest. Indian quarterback, Tom Gorman, pitched out to his fullback, Orsini, but Honeycutt came up with the defensive play of the night. The big 200-pound sophomore from Portsmouth, Va., crashed through the Indian line and stole the ball out of the arms of Orsini at the Newberry nine yard line.

was the first to break the scoring ice. The Indians put together a 55-yard drive, which was climaxed when Carl Harris crashed into the Pirate end zone from the one. The conversion made it 7-0, and to the few Pirate fans who were present, those seven points looked mighty big.

Coach Boone, now in his 10th season at the Pirate helm, sent third-string quarterback, Vince Elduke into the Pirate lineup to try to get things started. The 5-8, 150-pound Washington, Pa., native supplied the battery charge that the Bucs needed as he generated the winners 71 yards for their first score of the contest.

Tommy Matthews, a senior halfback from Herford, and the team's leading ground gainer for the night with 52 yards in 12 carries, climaxed the drive with an 11-yard scoring romp. Muldrow converted to knot the count at 7-7.

Late in the final stanza, the Pucs, behind the passing arm of Rouse, began to move again. A 20-yard aerial sent the winners into enemy territory with Bob Baumgardner on the receiving end.

Rouse then completed passes to Matthews and fullback Billy Strickland, only to see the drive stopped at the one foot line. The goal line stand, however, set the stage for Honeycutt's robbery.

Spartans Stave Off Notre Dame; Helped By Schedule

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
With the college football season at the halfway point, Michigan State's big and bruising Spartans today headed the list of candidates for the national championship.

Michigan State (4-0) just did beat the Irish, 17-7, Saturday after sputtering along well into the third quarter. Notre Dame (3-1) scored the first touchdown of the year against Daugherty's behemoths.

The big factor in Michigan State's favor is the schedule. The Spartans do not meet either Iowa, (4-0) which steamrolled Wisconsin, 47-15, to remain one of the nine major teams still undefeated and untied, or Ohio State, (3-0-1). The Buckeyes had a tough time with Northwestern Saturday, finally pulling it out, 10-0. They, too, have had only one touchdown scored against them in four games.

Minnesota, the defending Big Ten champion, could be a problem for Michigan State in two weeks and so could Northwestern on Nov. 18. The chances are the Spartans, No. 1 in the current Associated Press weekly poll, will take them in stride.

Iowa and Ohio State still are very much in the running for the national title, but they come to grips on Nov. 4. Mississippi (5-0), Texas (5-0) and Alabama (5-0) also have a chance of coming out on top. Ole Miss and 'bama, two Southeastern Conference powers, do not tangle, so there is no chance of killing each other off.

Mississippi, knocked out of first place in the AP poll by Michigan State, clobbered Tulan Saturday night, 41-0. Texas smothered Arkansas, 33-7, and Alabama cut down Tennessee, 34-3 in a regional TV game. This week Mississippi engages Vanderbilt, Texas takes on Rice, and Alabama meets Houston, and Alabama meets Houston.

Guglielmi Sorry For Rookie Back

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I felt sorry for him," said Ralph Guglielmi. "I sure was glad it wasn't me."
The St. Louis quarterback referred to the chorus of boos for Washington's Norman Snead in the final period Sunday as the Cardinals thrashed the Redskins 24-0 in a National Football League game.

Snead, rookie Redskins quarterback, had a rough afternoon. A hard-charging Cardinal line dropped him trying to pass seven times for losses totaling 42 yards. He completed only seven of 17 passes, and had one intercepted. Guglielmi, who never quite became the standout in five seasons as a Redskin that his All-America college career promised, was traded to the Cardinals a week before the season began. He has complained bitterly about the abrupt way the trade was handled.

Against his old team, the former Notre Dame star completed 15 of 22 passes for 167 yards and two touchdowns. Asked his reaction to the game, Guglielmi replied simply "Tremendous."
At first, it looked like a long afternoon for "The Goog," as Washington fans called him. He was thrown four times trying to pass for losses totaling 32 yards in the first half.

Guglielmi completed three of six passes in the first quarter and three of four in the second quarter, however, including a long looper to end Taz Anderson on a 42-yard touchdown play. He connected for three out of four in the third period and six of seven in the fourth quarter on a 59-yard march that ended with Guglielmi tossing nine yards to Prentice Gault for the Cardinals' second touchdown.

For the Redskins, the loss was the sixth in a row this year and 14th in two seasons. The Cardinals now have a 3-3 mark.

Carolinas Conference Now Wide-Open Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Lenoir Rhyne Bears, trying for their seventh straight football crown in the Carolinas Conference, are in the midst of a wide-open race with three other teams: East Carolina, Appalachian and Newberry.

Newberry, which had defeated Lenoir Rhyne and was the only undefeated team within the conference, suffered its first loss last Saturday, 13-7 to East Carolina on a last-second pass.

East Carolina now leads on a 4-1 conference record, with Lenoir Rhyne and Appalachian 3-1 and Newberry 2-1. Next in order come Catawba 2-3, Elon and Western Carolina 1-3, and Guilford 0-3.

In other games last Saturday, Lenoir Rhyne whipped Western Carolina 24-14, Catawba beat Elon 23-8, and Don Gardner scored all three Appalachian touchdowns in a 22-7 victory over Carson-Newman.

Lenoir Rhyne and East Carolina have a seeming advantage in the race because they play more conference games than Appalachian and Newberry. However, that is partially nullified because Lenoir Rhyne and East Carolina play each other, on Nov. 4 at Greenville, N.C., while Appalachian and Newberry do not meet.

Games this Saturday are Appalachian vs. East Carolina at Hickory (night), Catawba at Presbyterian (night), Western Carolina at Elon, Newberry at Guilford, and Lenoir Rhyne at Wittenberg in Springfield, Ohio.

Wysong Bids For Mexican Title

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP)—Dudley Wysong, one of the individual stars of the United States sixth Americas cup victory, goes out after another international golf jewel today — the Mexican amateur national championships.

The 22-year-old McKinney, Tex., insurance man was the only member of Uncle Sam's star-studded Americas Cup Team who could spare the time to compete in Mexico's big tournament here next week.

Wysong figured in 6½ points as the U.S. team swept to another Americas Cup triumph over Mexico and Canada. The Yanks scored a total of 29 points compared with 14 for Canada and 11 for Mexico over the 7,063-yard, par 72 Clug Campestre course.

It was a resounding victory and young Wysong's star was one of the brightest on the victorious U.S. team consisting of Jack Nicklaus, plagued with a bad back; former champions Charles Coe and Deane Beman; and Bill Hyndman III, Bob Gardner and Charles Smith.

The U.S. players won 4½ of a possible 6 points in the final day's team matches and 10 of a possible 12 in the individual battles. They had scored 14½ points also on Saturday.

Wysong teamed with Nicklaus to score 4 points without a loss in the team competition and he won 2½ points in individual play.

Louise Suggs Is Biggest Winner

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Today Louise Suggs is the biggest tournament winner in the Ladies Professional Golf Association.

Her record 49th victory came Sunday on the final hole of the 54-hole San Antonio Civitan Open when she sank a clutch eight-foot par putt. This enabled her to maintain a one-under par 70 and a total of 212 strokes to edge out Kathy Whitworth, who had one stroke more.

Miss Suggs has won all three women's tournaments held in San Antonio — this one worth $1,247. The victory broke the record of 48 she shared previously with Patty Berg.

A scrambling finale on the Brackenridge Park course showed Miss Suggs outlasting Miss Whitworth, Mary Lena Faulk and Ruth Jessen, finishing in that order.

Regatta Marred By Choppy Water

Game Films

Films of East Carolina's 13-7 conquest Saturday of league-leader Newberry will highlight Tuesday's weekly meeting of the EC Pirates Club.

At the 6:30 p.m. Dutch dinner meeting, Buc Coach Jack Boone and his assistants during the films will furnish commentary on the Pirates' upsetting the Indians as Carolinas Conference leaders.

A Pirate touchdown in the final seconds of the game allowed East Carolina to move into first place in the standings, dumping Newberry, now conference member, into a second place tie with Lenoir Rhyne and Appalachian.

As usual, the Pirates Club meeting will be held in the Bucanier Room of the college's dining hall. Club officials have extended an invitation to visitors who wish to attend.

More Antiques In Ring Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sugar Ray Robinson had his fling last week. Now it's the turn of light heavyweight champion Archie Moore and lightweight king Joey Brown, another pair of antique gladiators.

Moore, who will be 45 (by his count) on Dec. 13, ends a four-month vacation tonight by taking on Pete Rademacher in a non-title ten rounder in Baltimore. Archie hasn't fought since he whipped young Giulio Rinaldi last June in defense of his piece of the 175-pound crown.

Rademacher, 33, the 1956 Olympic heavyweight champion, was stopped in his last two fights by Doug Jones and George Logan.

Brown, 35 and a pro 15½ years at least, makes the 11th defense of his 135-pound crown at Manila Saturday night. Old Bones takes on Bert Somodio, a Filipino billed as the "Nursery Kid," in the 36,000-seat Arena Stadium just outside of Manila.

Bobo Olson, the former middleweight champion, meets Sixto Rodriguez of San Anselmo, Calif., in a light heavyweight ten rounder at San Francisco tonight.

The Farm Scene

By S. C. WINCHESTER

Agricultural progress in Pitt County is on the move. Almost any commodity you will name has increased in size during the last decade.

We have just completed a study of progress resulting from a committee study made in 1955 to determine what needed to be done to improve agriculture throughout the county.

The committee considered the total agricultural and home-making situation at that time and made recommendations to agricultural workers as to specific recommendations and enterprises to place special emphasis on.

Tobacco being the number one money maker in Pitt County, it naturally came in for close study. The committee suggested a concentrated educational program for all phases of tobacco production and marketing from the time of making a decision on variety to an evaluation of results at the end of the marketing season—suggestions as to ways to improve grain yields, feed the home grown grains to livestock or poultry, and many other commodity suggestions to ways for improving family living and community betterment.

The results of this effort have been very gratifying. A sample of the progress should serve to show how progress is possible when large groups of farmers work together to improve their situations.

Statistics in the table below give an indication of the county's agricultural production during the past decade.

The figures are more phenomenal when you begin to analyze them. For instance, it takes about 43 to 45 bushels of corn per acre to pay the cost of producing corn. In 1950 and in 1955, as a whole, we were losing money growing corn. In 1960 a net profit of nine bushels per acre on 80,000 acres.

Tobacco production of 50.2 million pounds on 24,800 acres in 1955 was more than the 1950 production of 49.5 million pounds on 34,500 acres.

Egg sales rose 14 percent between 1950 and 1955, but rose a whopping 332 percent between 1955 and 1960. This happened in spite of less layers on the farm in 1960 than there were in 1950.

Better quality, better feed, better management accounted for the tremendous increase.

Pitt County is a great agricultural county—ranking number one in North Carolina many years. Pitt, Johnston and Robeson Counties share the top three rankings each year. Nation-wide, we ranked as follows with the gross agricultural income as noted:

1953—Ranked 71; Gross agricultural income: $36,514,000.

1954—Ranked 67; Gross agricultural income: $35,026,000.

1960—Ranked 74; Gross agricultural income: $39,714,000.

Study Improving Defense Set-Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Department of Defense is conducting a number of studies designed to improve the nation's military organization, a spokesman for the department said Sunday night.

The spokesman said any resulting change in organization probably would follow the pattern of reorganizations effected earlier this year.

He indicated that one area under study involves such technical services as ordnance, quartermaster and chemical divisions of the Army.

He said pending reorganizations might be conducted within a service rather than pooling of the facilities of two or more services.

The Pentagon also has organized the U.S. Strike Command under which certain strategic units report directly to the department rather than through Army, Navy or Air Force commanders.

Tobacco

Tips

By S. J. WELLEN
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

Most of the farms in Pitt County are infested with one or more tobacco disease organisms. The situation creates a strong demand for good disease resistant varieties of tobacco.

Much progress has been made in the development of disease resistant varieties. For example, at the present time, several varieties are available with resistance to black shank, Granville wilt, Fusarium wilt, or combinations of these diseases. In addition to varieties with resistance as described above, there is a need for varieties that will also control such diseases as root knot.

Plant breeders and other experiment station scientists, are working diligently toward the development of varieties that will fill this demand. Workers are testing some 600 different breeding lines each year.

All of these lines are checked for resistance to the several diseases under study and about half of them for performance in terms of yield and quality. There are three major parts of the program for the development of disease resistant varieties.

Black shank resistant varieties now being grown were developed by using a cigar wrapper variety (301) as the source of resistance to Granville wilt and Fusarium wilt.

Much progress has been made since the early 1940's when this work was begun. However, many problems have been encountered on levels of resistance, field type and handling characteristics. An attempt is now being made to develop varieties with even higher levels of resistance to these diseases.

The purpose of the multiple disease resistance program is to develop varieties with resistance to as many as six major tobacco diseases. First attempts to develop varieties resistant to nematodes began some 20 years ago.

That first attempt failed because of poor quality, small plant type and other undesirable characteristics.

During 1957, several of the lines resistant to root knot nematodes produced acceptable yields that showed promise of producing quality tobacco. These lines are resistant to black shank, Granville wilt, root knot and mosaic. Experiment station personnel are continuing to make progress in developing these multiple resistant lines.

Several wild species of tobacco, or botanically related plants, have a very high level of resistance to black shank. Through breeding techniques, Dr. J. L. Apple, N. C. State College, has been successful in transferring the black shank resistance factor in a wild species of tobacco to 402, a fine-cured variety.

This accomplishment of stabilizing a new source of black shank resistance, should make it easier for scientists to develop varieties with higher levels of resistance, and with better quality than the black shank resistant varieties now being used.

However, varieties developed by this breeding technique will be thoroughly tested before being released for production of tobacco.

Movie's Ceiling Falls; One Dies

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—The ceiling of a neighborhood movie house collapsed Sunday night, plunging the fantasy world inside into a real-life nightmare. One woman was crushed to death under the tons of rubble. Officials said 50 or more persons, including many children, were hurt, apparently none critically.

"I screamed and screamed and jumped under the seat and screamed some more as all this stuff fell on top of the seat," said Lida Montelara, 13.

She escaped unhurt but her cousin, Michael Lenz, 7, was injured. Bruised and stunned as he was led to an ambulance, Michael said over and over: "I ran and I crawled."

An audience estimated at 65 + 100 was in the one-story Nola Theater—about 5 miles east of downtown New Orleans—watching the thriller "Homicidal."

Fire Chief Howard Dey said the projectionist told him there was a sudden cracking noise. A few seconds later, a two-foot layer of plaster and steel mesh fell from the 35-foot ceiling. It dropped in one massive piece like a blanket, covering the entire 400-seat theater except for the last four rows.

Heavy palls of dust clogged the air as crawling rescue workers cut a hole near the center of the rubble to pull out the body of Mrs. Bertrand Odinet, 64.

Reports were given and plans discussed for the Halloween Carnival at the Thursday night meeting of the Agnes Fullilove School P.T.A. with Mrs. J. T. Cox, president, presiding.

Following the business session and the program, parents adjourned to the classrooms for a visit with the teachers.

The Rev. W. J. Hadden Jr., pastor of Eighth Street Christian Church, led the devotional.

'Robin Hood' Scores With Young In Heart

The young in years and the young in heart gathered Friday night for a presentation at East Carolina College of "Robin Hood," dramatization by James Norris of the adventures of the doughty outlaw of Sherwood Forest.

The audience gave an enthusiastic response to the East Carolina Playhouse production of its annual play for children.

H. Denard Harris of Havelock, in his first starring role with the college dramatic club, appeared in a spirited interpretation of Robin Hood. Sue Little of Roanoke, Va., was a charming Maid Marian.

Sharing honors with them were John F. Parker of Durham as the cowardly Sheriff of Nottingham and Howard Mallard of Smithfield, who played Sir Guy of Gisborne with a fine flair for villainy and for comedy. Eloise Hewitt of Marion turned in an excellent performance as Robin's mother.

The Merry Outlaws of Sherwood Forest, well portrayed by the student actors, included Robert Christesen of Washington, D. C., as a very tall and daring Little John; Michael Lewis of Morehead City as plump, brave Friar Tuck (He was especially appealing to the audience in his comic disguise as an old woman); and Jerry Higgins of Smithfield, as bold Will Scarlett.

Settings for the play were attractively designed and well executed. Three locales were included as backgrounds for the action of the drama for young people—a room in Robin's home, a beautiful glade in Sherwood Forest, and the colorful scene at Nottingham Fair. Lighting effects by Bob Imamura of Los Angeles, Calif., especially at the opening of the forest scene, were artistically handled.

Most colorful and full of suspense and quick action were the Nottingham Fair episodes, with their gay costumes, dances to folk tunes, and the lively quarter-staff and archery contests. Recorded music and sound effects here and elsewhere in the play were well chosen, appropriate to the action, and pleasing to the ear.

Costumes designed by Mrs. Lois Garren of Greenville added much to the appeal of the play. The Lincoln green of the outlaw's costumes, Maid Marian's bright rose-colored satin gown, the ridiculous horse-skin outfit of Sir Guy, the rich gold robes of the timid sheriff, and the graceful headress of and gown of Robin's mother were among the many attractive period costumes used in the production.

unsophisticated with its quick action, suspense, and comedy. Hull was assisted by William Rackley of Goldsboro as technical director and by a large production staff, working with Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives, assistant director of the Playhouse, as consultant and supervisor.

"Robin Hood" is one of a series of annual children's plays staged since 1941 for children of Pitt County by the Playhouse and sponsored by the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women.

Three groups of city and county school children saw the play with evident enjoyment before Friday night's presentation. This week performances will be given in several Pitt County schools. Dr. Kathleen Dunlop of the college social studies department is in charge of arrangements for a tour to off-campus schools.

CHAPTER 26

Sam Fellos follows until Billy Shivers was forty yards off before he spoke. Then he leaned toward Alec Temple.

"Son," he said, "at times like this, it's allus best to play dumb. Even at the cost of pride."

Alec understood about the spilled coffee now.

"I'm sorry," he said, feeling simple-minded, a real dube. "I was scared for Rusty, I guess. That's all I thought of."

"I know. And don't get me wrong. I ain't scoldin' you. We just don't want to let on what we know, that's all."

A little shiver went through Alec. He remembered the way that Shivers had looked at him when he'd awakened. That look had frightened him, and now he wondered again, as he had earlier, if Sam feared him, too, not as a man, but as a hunter.

"He means to kill Rusty, doesn't he?"

"That's what he's bein' paid for."

"Does he know we hunted him yesterday?"

"Maybe; maybe not. Could be they didn't hear the hounds down at Fred's place. But he'll know soon enough. We just got to make the most of the time we got until he does."

Billy Shivers, trailing a calico horse and leading his chained hounds, came past the fire. He waved at them and grinned.

Passing out of camp, he called, "I'm all through waitin' on you, Sam Fellos. You can wait on me now—at the kill."

Then he was gone, the shapes of himself and his animals blending softly into the graying day.

Of a sudden, Sam grew earnest.

"Now we got to be quick," he said to Alec. "But not too quick. Mainly we got to be quick at the right time."

Alec nodded. There was nothing he could say to that.

"Right now, you can bring in the hounds," Sam said. "Hurry; it don't matter if he sees."

Alec scrambled up to do Sam's bidding. There might be hope yet; he thought; if they hurried enough, they could catch up with Shivers. When he came in with the hounds, Sam was still at the fire.

"Sam," Alec said, "he's going to get away. We better hurry."

"Let him," Sam said. He began to pour the coffee into the fire. "You can saddle up now, if you like." He glanced away toward Shivers. "Ain't quite time to really hurry."

It was for Alec, though. Running to the pile of rigging, he grabbed up all he could in one load and staggered back. On his second trip, he brought the saddle blankets, and then fell to rigging the two mounts. Sam, dawdling with the coffepot, watched Shivers begin to ease off toward the northwest.

"I could get the hounds now," he said, as if he had all day. "Keep agoin' there."

Alec didn't have to be told. By the time Sam returned with the hounds, he'd finished with Jock and was well along with Sandy. Pitching in to help, Sam kept watching Shivers over Sandy's back. The other hunter was working toward a ridge.

"Pretty near time to scoot," Sam said as he finished a cinch. "Soon's he turns them hounds loose. You can mount, if you like, now."

Alec got up quickly, then looked to Sam for word to shove off. But Sam remained where he was his eye yet upon Shivers, who now began to pass from sight behind the ridge. Then, when he was altogether gone, Sam came to life.

"Now, son, listen," he said. "If Shivers turns them hounds loose, it means he's taken the bait and has gone off on that old trail. If he don't, it means he's grown wise. Then he'll come looking for us. It'll all depend on how far out he goes before he figures out that we already worked that trail yesterday. He'll know when it gets light enough for him to see Jock's and Sandy's prints. Sooner or later, that'll happen; but if he turns them hounds loose first, we got a chance to beat him. I'll take a time to call them back to him."

In Alec's mind there came to be a glimmer of understanding; but he didn't speak, because Sam had more to say.

"It's that time we're counting on. Soon's them hounds open, we'll head south, get around that line of hills down there, then make for the old tom. With luck we'll be on the new trail well ahead of him."

"Sooo!" Alec said. It was simple, so simple that he might have thought of it himself.

Sam fell silent and put up his hand, listening. At first there was nothing, but then the clear, rising bay of one of Shivers' hounds sounded in the still morning.

"There!" Sam said. "He's opened! That'll be that big bluebird—not bad, either." Tossing Jock's reins up to Alec, Sam gathered in the chains that held the hounds. "Come on, boy, let's go!"

As they slanted westerly, Sam, panting and puffing, sat himself on a rock to rest. While he mopped his streaming face with his handanna, Alec remained mounted; listening, he was glad to hear the music of Shivers' hounds.

"They're running yet," he said in a moment. "Still ignorant."

Sparing words, Sam only grinned while he mopped, but it was plain that he was glad himself, and maybe relieved.

Gathered about, the hounds tuned in on the lifting, falling lilt, too; it came from afar but urged them to nose the earth and air around them, as if the sign was nearby if they could just find it. Only Jupiter remained still. Knowing better, he simply listened. On his haunches, he aimed his old gray muzzle at the sound, as if breathing it in.

"You'd think Shivers'd call them in," Alec said when all had listened for another moment. "He must've seen our tracks by this time."

Waving his arm northerly, Sam said, "If he's under the cliffs, the shadow could hide them."

They didn't pause for long. Less than five minutes passed before they lined out again. Sam led as before, afoot, with the hounds beside him on their chains and Alec and the mounts rearward. While it seemed to Alec that better time could be made with Sam riding, too, Sam had once said that tethered hounds, when led by a mounted man, often snagged their chains or got snarled up with each other.

Nor did it pay to let them run free, either—not yet, anyhow. With no sure sign to follow, the younger ones, not yet fully educated, could get teased away from the main things by chance scents. Of course, old Jupe wouldn't; but the others, when they did it, held

The way lay ahead, almost due west. It was clear down by now, the tall, broad sky flooding with sunlight and the colors of the land deep and rich.

It wasn't too long before Alec gradually came to notice that, as a little nagging concern grew in him, so did it seem to grow in Sam.

It was nothing that he noticed right off; it was all built of small things, not thought of as much of anything in themselves, until he looked back on them all together and knew then that something was wrong and maybe had been all along.

But when it first seemed to him that Sam was giving more heed to the remote baying on their right, he didn't think anything of it.

There was another thing that Alec noticed how carefully Sam listened. He sat on a stone, mopping his face, as was his way, holding his head to one side.

There was another thing that Alec slowly grew aware of. While they seemed to stop more often as time went on, so, too, were the stops shorter. Hardly would Sam ease down on a rock, or whatever there was for him to sit on, than the baying of Shiver's hounds, miles off though it seemed, would pull him willy-nilly to his feet again.

"Only one clear thought secured itself in Alec's consciousness. Rusty. Rusty had done this thing, crushing thing. . . The story continues here tomorrow."

Mongolians On Way To The UN

NEW YORK (AP) — A four-man delegation from the Mongolian Peoples Republic arrived by plane Sunday for the United Nations debate on whether to admit the republic to the United Nations.

Valerian Zorin, head of the Soviet U.N. delegation, and six other Soviet officials met the delegation.

Dondog Tsevegmid, Mongolian vice foreign minister, said the group will remain here until the question of U.N. membership is resolved.

Flu Immunization For Public Is Being Urged

Local persons have been urged to get the influenza immunization now, since there is good reason to believe there may be an influenza outbreak this year. Dr. John Futrell, Pitt Health director, stated this week. The Surgeon General of the United States and other authorities have predicted that if influenza follows true to pattern, there is probability that there will be an outbreak this year. If the influenza immunization is given—Asiatc, and types A and B—some doctors have opposed the immunization since it has not been effective when given during epidemics. However, in these cases, Dr. Futrell said the immunization has not had time to take effect. "It takes two months for the shot to be entirely effective," he said; "before then, it may be partially effective."

Already members of the Greenville Utilities Department, Police Department, Fire Department, Rescue Squad and Health Department have been immunized. Dr. Futrell stated that "There is no question in my mind that the immunization is especially valuable in the following groups: heart disease, tuberculosis; pregnancy; the over 65-age group; in any of the chronic diseases; for those individuals in professions where there is undue exposure to weather; in groups where there is tendency to be exposed, such as in hospitals."

However, he said the immunization is good for everyone if given in time. Announcement from the U. S. Surgeon General and others that there may be an outbreak this year in the United States has created a concern in some areas where advice has been heeded which has caused the influenza vaccine to become scarce. In some instances doctors may be having difficulty obtaining the vaccine. "People should be patient until the vaccine can be obtained," Futrell stated.

Happy-medium size—guaranteed not to shrink!

Some cars play a cute little trick: They look nice and big from outside with plenty of length, big trunk lines and all—but the minute you try to get inside they seem to shrink. Not so the 1962 Buick Special. This great car is exactly what it was built to be—America's happy-medium size car. And it's guaranteed not to shrink when you get in or when you fill it with people and cruise all day long. This Buick Special is designed for six adult people—with hats, with hips, with shoulders and with a great desire for quiet comfort and smooth going. For 1962 there are eight Buick Special models including the wonderful new convertible, every one a Buick, through and through. You can have your choice of power plants, all with the kind of gas miserliness that wins economy awards. A Buick Special shrinks just three things: Miles, operating cost and parking space—never your comfort, your power or your quality. Your nearest Buick Dealer has America's No. 1 happy-medium size car—Buick Special '62

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—A few wide moves featured an otherwise dull and irregular stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderate.

The Associated Press average of 90 stocks at noon was unchanged at 259.40 with industrials off .40, rails off .10 and utilities up .30.

Changes of most key stocks were from fractions to around a point but there were wider moves to the plus or minus side by some issues.

Steels seemed depressed by a report that hopes for a sharp rise in output in the current quarter are fading. Autos also showed a tendency to go lower.

Some of the aircrafts advanced but tobacco sagged, influenced by a newspaper article over the weekend, linking cigarette smoking with heart disease.

Liggett & Myers dropped more than a point while Lorillard and American Tobacco lost fractions. Jones & Laughlin was off about a point.

International Business Machines reached another new high as it advanced more than 5. A jump of about 4 by General Foods was linked by brokers with the current tendency toward defensive issues.

Pullman Inc. fell more than 2 on a report of lower earnings. Texas Instruments sluffed off about 4 points. Amerasia, which advanced about 10 points last week, encountered some profit taking and was down more than a point.

Chrysler, now facing intensive bargaining with the auto union, was ahead about a point.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .73 at 704.89. Prices on the American Stock Exchange were irregularly higher in moderately active trading.

Corporate bonds were mixed in slow trading. U. S. government bonds were unchanged in quiet dealings over the counter.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog prices mostly 25 lower. Tops of 17.25-17.75 at Rocky Mount; 16.75-17.75 at Wilson, Nahunta, Kingston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive and Newton Grove; 17-17.25 at Bethel and Murfreesboro; 16.75-17.25 at Spring Hope; 16.50-17 at Pembroke; 17.50 at Castle Hayne, Kenly and Burgaw; 17.25 at Clinton, Fayetteville, Elizabethtown and Pink Hill; 17 at Siler City, Greensboro, Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck, Rich Square, Alton and Dunn; 16.75 at Lillington and Goldsboro.

Wilson cash cattle prices steady: Steers and heifers, choice 22.50-24.50, good 21-23, standards 16-19; beef cows 13.50-16, heavy cutters 12.50-14.50, light bulls 12-15, heavy bulls 15-18.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers steady; base farm price 12, f.o.b. plant price 12.75-13.50.
