CARAVANERS . . . Kenneth Hite, president of the "Caravan," Gov. Sanford and W. M. Scales, Jr., organizer of the outing.

PART OF CROWD . . . on hand at train depot here for departure of the Security caravan passenger train Friday afternoon.

Governor Joins Special Train; Kids Rode, Too

Several hundred children, North Carolina's Chief executive and brief stops at Winterville and Bethel generated the fanfare Friday that started the 1961 version of the Security Caravan rolling toward the Nation's Capital for the weekend.

A carnival atmosphere prevailed at the Atlantic Coast Line Depot here when several hundred children and mothers boarded one of the few passenger trains to visit Greenville in the past decade, for a ride to Winterville and back. They were greeted by a band and the arrival of Gov. Sanford on their return.

The festivities were a part of an openly commercial promotion . . . the Security Caravan . . . organized by insurance man W. M. Scales, Jr.

The Governor was one of 140 men who boarded the special train, designed to take the Caravan to Washington, D. C. and the Sunday afternoon Washington-Philadelphia football game.

In addition to the children's ride to Winterville, one of the highlights of the train's departure from Pitt County was a stop in Pethel where the Caravan in general and Gov. Sanford in particular were welcomed by fireworks, another band and another large crowd.

It was here that Gov. Sanford nattered down another "plank" in his educational platform.

During the brief stop, the governor spoke to the crowd from the rear platform of the train about the forthcoming bond election, and urged the people to vote for money for education.

He told school student, who had gathered at the train station: "You may have to study more," but he emphasized the results would be "well worth the added effort."

A stop in Tarboro was also included on the schedule for the caravan, which reached Washington Friday night.

Honored Guest Cannot Attend

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Justice Minister Balthazar Vorster announced Friday night that Albert Luthuli, 1960 Nobel peace prize winner, would not be permitted to attend a multiracial meeting Saturday in his honor at Stanger, Natal Province.

The Zulu ex-chief still is restricted to his home district of Grootville near Stanger, because of his activities as leader of the African National Congress.

Vorster said the South African government's decision on the Stanger meeting has no bearing on Luthuli's application for a passport to travel to Norway in December to receive the Nobel prize.

Holding Man On Liquor Counts

A New Bern man was in Pitt County jail today facing charges of possession of and transporting illegal liquor, according to Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson.

The sheriff identified the man as Robert Ford Peters, 33-year-old Negro, of 836 Howard St. in New Bern.

Sheriff's deputies Ralph Tyson and Duke Andrews arrested Peters about 2:45 a.m. today. Sheriff Tyson said Peters was being held today under $200 bond pending trial Nov. 7 in Pitt County Recorder's Court.

U.S. And Russian Armor End Tense Confrontation

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet and American tanks withdrew from the touchy Berlin border front lines today after confronting each other all night long at 200-yards range.

Tension was eased for the moment, but less than two hours later the United States sent an Air Force transport plane over the Communist section of the city twice in defiance of the Soviets. The flights appeared intended to underline what the Western Allies consider one of their rights in Berlin—the right to fly over any part of Berlin, on the basis of postwar agreements.

The tanks had confronted each other Friday night at Friedrichstrasse — checkpoint Charlie — after the Americans for the third straight day had reasserted another right claimed by the West, the right to move into and out of the Eastern sector without being checked by East Germans.

As soon as the tanks pulled back the East Germans relaxed their stiff controls at the border and waved border crossers through with a smile.

A regularly scheduled U. S. Army sightseeing bus passed into East Berlin without being halted. It carried 22 officers and men, all in uniform. Last Wednesday two similar buses were refused entry by the East Germans and the Americans declined to make an issue of it, saying they did not wish to endanger women aboard.

The Soviets were the first to pull back their tanks. Ninety minutes after the last U. S. tank left, a U. S. Air Force C47 flew into East Berlin and circled for 10 minutes over the area where 40 tanks are parked.

This plane flew at about 600 feet, banking steeply for better vision. Its wing tips were painted a bright orange. The plane circled the immediate area behind the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint 8 to 10 times.

It was watched by Brig. Gen. Frederick O. Hartel, U. S. troops commander in Berlin, from the American side of the border.

Less than an hour later, another flight was made. This time, a C47 flew deeper into East Berlin and at a higher altitude. It made a wide circle over the inner part of East Berlin and then flew back to the West.

The Soviets, in a letter delivered Thursday and made public today, protested flights over East Berlin by U. S. helicopters, contending that East Berlin belongs to the East Germans. The United States rejected the protest, saying such flights were in accord with "long-established usage."

The flights could extend the dispute over rights in Berlin to the air lanes, where East and West are also at odds. Western planes use three air corridors between isolated West Berlin and the Western world. Traffic through them, across Soviet-occupied East Germany, is controlled with Soviet cooperation by the Berlin Air Safety Center—one of the few remnants of four-power control in Germany.

The East German Communist regime claims air sovereignty over its territory, and Moscow has threatened to recognize it by signing a separate peace treaty. The East Germans demand that the Western powers negotiate with them for continued use of the corridors, but the West refuses to talk to the satellite regime or have any dealing with it. Although there was a relieved calm at the Friedrichstrasse crossing point, an angry crowd of West Berliners surged around a Soviet staff car—carrying two officers and a uniformed driver—and tried to turn it over as it cruised on the western side of the border.

The Soviet car, making frequent crossings at Checkpoint Charlie without stopping, ran into the West Berliners on one of its westward trips. The crowd boomed and shouted insults and several youths in the crowd seized the car and tried to heave it over. Others banged on the side with their fists.

West German police came up on the double and cleared a way for the car. Five minutes later, the Soviet car was back on another roundtrip from the East, but this time it used a side street and avoided the crowd.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States apparently has decided to avoid if possible further armed incursions into East Berlin and to concentrate instead on seeking a diplomatic solution of the war-threatening Berlin border dispute.

Officials here declined to say flatly that there would be no more trips of U. S. civilians into East Berlin with armed escorts. They indicated they could not foresee immediately what steps might be necessary in the fast-moving and highly dangerous situation.

But one high government authority declared Friday night that "the focus of this situation now moves from Berlin to an inter-governmental level where it is under urgent and serious discussion."

If this report means what it seems to mean, it indicates the United States, Britain and France now prefer not to carry the border, quarrel into further risks of a shooting conflict between U. S. and Soviet tank forces.

U. S. and Soviet tanks were drawn up on opposite sides of the border at the Friedrichstrasse crossing point Friday. Barely 200 yards apart, they aimed their guns at each other.

The effort to get a solution of the dispute through diplomatic channels began Friday when U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson conferred in Moscow with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. Thompson made a bid for Soviet action to end East German insistence on examination of the identification documents of U. S. officials crossing from West to East Berlin. Gromyko is understood to have rebuffed the bid.

The State Department said Friday night the Thompson-Gromyko meeting was "unsatisfactory" from the U. S. point of view. But it referred to the meeting as "initial talks," leaving no doubt that Secretary of State Dean Rusk and presumably President Kennedy intend to have further efforts made.

THEY STILL FLEE BERLIN (AP) — During the night 22 East Germans escaped to freedom through the concrete and wire barriers encircling West Berlin, police reported. Three of them, including two young girls, swam across canals or rivers.

Extra Big Bomber Funds Regarded Not Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration announced Friday night that the military buildup will give the nation "a nuclear capability several times" that of the Soviet Union, and that the Pentagon will not spend extra millions ticketed by Congress for big bombers.

The decision not to use the $780 million Congress voted for the bombers and for pushing work on aircraft of the future was made public by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. He said he had President Kennedy's approval.

In announcing that the funds would be impounded, the Defense Department said: "The progress of the administration's accelerated defense buildup makes unnecessary the use of additional defense funds appropriated by the Congress above the amount requested by the administration."

The Pentagon originally opposed buying more of the long-range B52 bombers and a speedup in development of the B70, designed to fly at 2,000 miles an hour.

But when the Berlin crisis developed, Congress not only approved all the additional funds Kennedy had requested but added more for another 45-plane wing of the B52s, plus money to speed development of other projects.

There had been rumors and hints that the Pentagon might reverse itself. But Friday's decision was foreshadowed even when Congress was considering the bill. McNamara let it be known then he was disinclined to spend the money.

The announcement not to spend the money ran into opposition from Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate military preparedness subcommittee, who led the floor fight for the funds.

Stennis said Friday night in Jackson, Miss., that he is still convinced that "it will be an error not to proceed with the manned-bomber program."

He said in a statement that he will object to the use of the money for any purpose other than the bombers. He added: "I will continue to urge an increased program of B52 and B70 long-range bombers."

McNamara said his recommendation "in no way means that our bombers are becoming obsolete." He listed factors entering into the decision against using the money.

Greenville Tobacco Mart Closes Successful Season

Greenville's tobacco market Friday completed one of the most successful seasons in its entire history, according to sales supervisor W. L. Whedbee.

Of the successful auction season, Whedbee said: "Despite the fact that a large part of Greenville's drawing territory was visited this Spring by continuous damaging rainfall during the growing season, cutting the yield per acre more than half, the Greenville market sold $5,991,418 pounds for $35,959,547.08, average $64.22.

"This is truly a remarkable record in view of the fact that the tobacco crop in the lower end of Pitt, Beaufort, Craven, Jones, Onslow, Pamlico and Carteret counties, from which the Greenville tobacco market draws a substantial amount of its poundage each year, was almost completely destroyed."

"In many instances the poundage produced per acre in these areas was reduced from 1,700 pounds per acre to 400 and 500 pounds per acre. Other parts of this same area were declared disaster areas by the Government due to the devastating rainfall."

"This loss in poundage was partly offset by an unusual effort on the part of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade to draw tobacco from areas west of Greenville which were not damaged by the Spring rains and which had unusually good yields per acre this year.

"Prices on the Greenville tobacco market were the highest that they have ever been in the entire history of the market and prices continued high through the final day's sale. The nearest approach to this high average came in 1953 when Greenville averaged $59.90 per hundred."

"Although the devastating rains cut Greenville's poundage approximately five million pounds, yet the money paid out on the Greenville tobacco market to farmers was almost the same amount that was paid out last year for a five million pound heavier crop. This likewise establishes a new record."

The two outstanding features of this year's season was first, the highest average in history on the Greenville market and second, the large number of customers from 100 to 150 miles away who sold on our floors daily and who had never sold here before."

Home Endangered By Burning Brush, Trees

A fire which got its start sometime last night between Route 903 just off Route 11, and the Station Mills Road, burned unchecked during the night and this morning had threatened the home of Mrs. Caille James.

Fire fighters from Station House Fire Department went to the scene of the fire about 11 a.m. today as it neared within 30 feet of Mrs. James' house, threatening a barn and nearby sheds.

However, damage to the burned area was confined to small trees and brush. Fireman Howard Forbes stated that if the wind had been greater, "The home of Mrs. James would probably have been lost."

It was reported that neighborhood residents in the general area had seen the fire but weren't sure what time it started last night.

Mrs. James first saw the fire about 9:30 this morning. It reportedly started near Highway 903 and the railroad track. As of 11 a.m. today, it was surrounded by Highway 11, 903, the railroad, and Station Mills Road. It had burned about a mile square of brush.

At one point, the smoke was so thick near Highway 11 that motorists were using headlights.

The blaze was believed to be under control around noon today.

Relatively Few Hepatitis Cases Found In County
Only scattered cases of infectious hepatitis have occurred in Pitt County recently, according to Dr. John Futrell, Pitt health director, even though heavy outbreaks have been reported in other parts of the United States. Not all the infectious hepatitis cases are reported, though, Dr. Futrell said. Those that have occurred do not seem to be exaggerated in number. Infectious hepatitis, also known as yellow jaundice, is generally caused by polluted water. Other causes may include other persons, milk, food and other sources. Proper chlorination of water helps to reduce the probability of infectious hepatitis, but may not always be a guarantee of prevention, Dr. Futrell noted.

All About Town

With Anne Mattox

A new Book Club has been organized in Greenville under the name of Biletante with Mrs. J. B. Cummings of the Anthemum Book Club as its sponsor.

Biletante, meaning lover of the fine art and one who pursues the arts for amusement, is the name and goal adopted by the new group which is made up of East Carolina College staff and faculty wives.

The club will meet the fourth Tuesday night of the month, excluding summer months, in the members' homes. Members of the club are Mrs. Cecil Heath, Mrs. Donald Simpson, Mrs. Clint Strong, Mrs. Odell Welborn, Mrs. Harry Rainey, Mrs. Ray Fennington, Mrs. Jack Boone, Mrs. Walter Calhoun and Mrs. Herbert Carlton.

The Pitt County Historical Society is sponsoring an exhibition at the Greenville Art Center for the months of November and December in celebration of the 200th anniversary of Pitt County.

The exhibition to open Sunday, November 5, will cover the Colonial and Revolutionary War periods, Ante Bellum and Civil War period, and Pitt County's development since January 1, 1761.

In addition to the exhibition in observance of the bi-centennial of Pitt County, there will be a dinner November 17 with Senator Robert Lee Humber speaking on the history of Pitt County. Co-sponsors with the Pitt Historical Society for this dinner will be the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Something unusual in the way of neighborhood entertainment was a street dance held in front of Miss Annie Laurie Askews home on Third and Warren Streets last night. The dance planned by Mrs. Tom Broadrick and Miss Askews was in celebration of the paving of a short length of Third Street running continuous pavement for the first time to Warren Street, and a chance for new neighbors and old to get better acquainted. I also understand the occasion called for a new bulb in their street light—so they would have plenty of light.

Louis R. McGlohon, an Ayden native, left New York recently for several weeks in Europe. He is touring Europe in connection with his work with Television Station WBTV in Charlotte.

Recent visitors in Greenville and Robersonville were Rev. and Mrs. William Fred Taylor (better known as Bill and Jerry). Bill, formerly of Robersonville, worked as News Photographer at WNCN while attending East Carolina College before going into the ministry.

The exhibition to open Sunday, November 5, will cover Louis R. McGlohon, an Ayden native, left New York since leaving Greenville, Bill served as pastor of the First Christian Church of Belhaven, where he met and married his wife. He is now continuing his studies and working on his doctorate at Midway Christian College in Lexington, Kentucky where he teaches and serves as counselor to students.

The Taylors have two children, Tommy who is three years old and Todd, three months old.

Rose High News

By SHERBY EVERETT
Using a Halloween masquerade party as their theme, the freshman class staged their annual class dance Friday night in the school cafeteria.

Only freshmen could attend the party which featured a floorshow, games, favors, refreshments, and dancing. Each person received a pumpkin or a black witch's hat as a souvenir of the occasion. Mrs. Kemp H. Baldwin and Anne Cobb were faculty chairman and student chairman of the favors committee, respectively.

Heading the games committee were Mrs. Thelma Smith, faculty chairman, and Bob Koebitz. The freshmen participated in dance mixers, musical chairs, an autograph game, and a relay, along with several other games.

Jackson Acts as Master of Ceremonies
In the floor show, which was presented about nine o'clock, Holt Jackson acted as master of ceremonies. Various acts including a jazz dance by Dolly Overton, Anne Cobb, and Joan Evans were featured.

Janet Farmer performed a twirling and dance routine after which five freshmen girls sang "Michael." These girls were Barbara Keck, Donna Roberson, Dorothy Stocks, Martha Sue Taff, and Anne Barbre.

Climaxing the floorshow, a spectacular presentation of the latest fashions was given by Bill Fisher, Bill Wilkerson, Jimmy Ashby, Charles Gaskins, Billy Davenport, and Bill Proctor. The boys modeled fashions from cocktail dresses to bathing suits.

Janet Farmer chaired the floorshow while Miss Alice L. Edwards supervised.

Cross Heads Dance
Mrs. Tennalia A. Gross headed the executive committee of the party as faculty adviser. Other executive committee members included Jimmy Ashby, Bill Mosier, Martha Sue Taff, and Bill Wilkerson who are the class officers.

Carleen Hjortsvang and Deanne Brackhouse were chairmen of the refreshment committee while Clayton Thomas led the dancing committee. Mrs. Grace Carraway and Ronald E. Capps were faculty advisers of the respective committees.

Other committee chairmen and faculty advisers were these: decorations, Dasie Hooks and Lynda Rogers, Roland B. Farley and Bud Phillips; and clean up, Bill Wilkerson and Wilkie C. Burt.

Two prizes for the most attractive costumes and two for the most ridiculous costumes were awarded to a boy and girl in each category. Harriett Tice and Bobby Eowen won for the most ridiculous costumes, while Beth Bass and Johnny Hester won for the most attractive outfits.

James Reynolds, Bissette Attends Convention
Billy Neal James, John Reynolds, and Chuck Bissette along with guidance counselor, George S. McRorie, attended the state wide Student Council Congress at Fayetteville this week.

The congress, which was held Sunday through Tuesday, discussed problems that arise in each school, thus benefiting every council by the experiences of others. The election of next year's state officers highlighted the three-day meeting.

The representatives visited Fort Bragg, Methodist college, and the Old Slave Market along with various other interesting places in Fayetteville. In order for delegates to meet one another, a banquet and dance was held Monday.

Juniors Take PSAT
Approximately 200 juniors and a few seniors took the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude test Oct. 24. George S. McRorie administered the two-hour test which contained verbal and math questions. The test were sent to Princeton for scoring and will be returned in November.

Each person who took the test will have a personal consultation with Mr. McRorie to learn his score on this test which is a warm-up for the Scholastic Aptitude test.

Math Instructors Attend Conference

Mrs. Kemp H. Baldwin, Miss Frances R. Smith, Mrs. Ruby Julian, and Miss Alice Lee Edwards, all math teachers at Rose High, attended a math conference October 20 and 21. Approximately two hundred instructors from North Carolina were at the meeting.

Dr. Seymour Schuster of Carleton College, who is teaching at the National Science Foundation, Institution was the main speaker on the featured subject geometry.

Delegates also met in groups to discuss textbooks.

Second Pro-Red Leader

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features
Syndicate, Inc.

Dr. Cheddi Jagan, the boss of British Guiana, knows the United States well. He was a student in this country, in Chicago, where he married a girl who was reputed to be a Communist. He is, by birth, an East Indian whose family settled in British Guiana, which lies on the north shore of South America.

British Guiana is a small country of only 90,000 square miles. It was originally founded by the Dutch but was taken over by the British in 1781. It was not, however, until 1815, at the Congress of Vienna, that it finally was acknowledged as British. Currently the population is estimated to be about 444,000, of whom 42 per cent are East Indians and 36 per cent are Chinese. Its economy is principally based on agriculture and minerals. Bauxite is the most important mineral product, though there are also diamonds. The agricultural exports include sugar, rum, rice and some coffee and cacao. It is not a poor country for its size.

The economy is essentially British. The invested capital is British. The East Indians were brought into the country by the British to provide a labor force. Jagan's power is based on the extensive East Indian population which gives him a solid political base.

Dr. Cheddi Jagan now avoids declaring himself to be a Communist but his history leaves nothing to the imagination. There is no question of his close relations to Moscow. Thus, the Soviet Universal State has two heads of government in Latin America who will accept the Kremlin program, namely Castro in Cuba and Jagan in British Guiana. The men are different in all respects. Castro is Latin by birth and by education; Jagan is an East Indian whose early education was in British schools and who completed his studies in Chicago. Jagan appears to be more cultured. Nevertheless, Jagan's whole line of political activity, prior to becoming Prime Minister of British Guiana, has been pro-Russian. He now seeks American financial aid but accepts Russian aid.

The first test of Jagan's attitude will appear in his sequestration of British-owned property, particularly the sugar cane lands. He has indicated that he will take over private property as soon as the British governor leaves, probably sometime in 1962. This is the pattern that Castro established in Cuba and the Communist have pursued in all countries.

The State Department is pursuing a policy of dealing with Jagan with its eyes closed to reality. Their attitude is that as long as he is Prime Minister, they have to deal with him. However, they would not deal with Trujillo, although he was head of state. The realities of the situation require that we reject Jagan as a Communist until he proves by his conduct that he is not one.

The growth of Communist influence upon the American continent is indeed perilous. Soviet Russia can defeat us on American continental soil without fighting a battle. Should the Cuban Communists base be disturbed, the Kremlin will have another base ready in British Guiana, with a base in the making in Brazil. From a Russian standpoint, everything is going well and Jagan's emergence as Prime Minister of British Guiana is a partial victory, clearly won by Soviet Russia.

The question must be asked why an American educated person, married to an American woman, prefers Soviet Russia to the United States. There must be something wrong with our system of education and in our social institutions that so many young people who have benefited from our ways of life have turned against us. In China, large numbers of American Returned Students, as they are called, graduates of American Colleges and universities, are the supporters of the Communist movement. In Africa many graduates of American colleges are in the so-called neutralist governments, which tend to move further to the left each year.

An experience cannot be so widespread and general without being a sign of something wrong. (Continued on Page 6)

Greater Danger Of Little Effort

It is difficult to imagine that more study, harder schooling and increased lesson assignments in our public schools will drive children to hate learning and cause the public to look upon schools as unpleasant places.

Yet, this theory was advanced by a Raleigh minister recently speaking before a teachers night audience at a Dunn civic club. The speaker asserted, "No longer are we making school a pleasant place. There are too many lesson assignments, too much study, too much drudgery . . . and many children actually are learning to hate it. All they want is to get it over with." He likewise asserted that the intensified school program and curriculum under "quality education" is forcing many students out of the classrooms.

There may be some basis for such assertions, but we are of the opinion there is a far greater danger of too little study, too few lesson assignments and too little work among the students of the public schools of North Carolina. And we would also venture the opinion there is just as great a possibility of forcing youngsters out of public schools by not holding their interest with intensive study as there is of forcing them out of schools because of too much study.

Most youngsters today, we believe, genuinely desire the best possible education they can get from public schools. Most youngsters also expect to have to work hard in school if they are to get out of it what they want. An increasing number of them look upon studying and learning as a personal responsibility . . .

not wholly the responsibility of the teacher or the school to hand them an education on a silver platter.

The kind of quality education envisioned in North Carolina will assure that the individual child is well equipped from an educational standpoint, insofar as possible, to meet the challenges which lie before him. The educational program must be sufficiently broad in scope to meet the different needs of different individuals, and it also must be sufficiently specialized in various fields to meet the special needs of the individuals.

This goal will not be reached by offering a program that fails to challenge the best in the individual. It will not be reached by giving the child the impression that he merely has to attend class to learn all he needs to know. The process of learning, regardless of age, is one of the most pleasant experiences an individual has. It is inconceivable that the youngsters in our public schools of today and tomorrow will assume the attitude that learning is an unpleasant experience to be regarded as drudgery rather than an opportunity.

School Bus Accidents Can, And Do, Occur

The great potential tragedy that could result from accidents involving school buses was pointed up vividly for North Carolina in the two school bus accidents on the same day which resulted in injuries to more than 40 youngsters.

Fortunately, none of the youngsters involved in the accidents were fatally injured. Most of them received only minor injuries. Even so, the fact that the buses carried a precious cargo of youngsters emphasizes the great responsibility that rests upon the drivers of these buses and the other motorists on the highways of the state.

School buses across North Carolina travel literally millions of passenger miles each year transporting youngsters to and from schools five days a week. Over a long period of years North Carolina has held an enviable safety record for its school buses. In spite of this record, however, the potential of tragedy still rides with every bus loaded with youngsters.

Motorists of North Carolina have come to regard school buses on the highway with special respect and special caution, for they recognize the value of the cargo they transport. Generally speaking, motorists of the state do everything they can to see that the big yellow buses are not put in a dangerous position by other highway traffic. At the same time school officials and traffic enforcement agencies exercise every possible care to see that those who drive the school buses do so with the greatest of care. In the classrooms the youngsters who ride the buses are cautioned about good passenger behavior which contributes to the safety of each trip.

In spite of these and other precautions which are taken to assure the safe journey of many thousands of youngsters to and from school each day, accidents such as those in which the 40 youngsters were injured do occur. They serve as a reminder that school bus accidents can happen; and when they do a great many lives often are at stake.

National Budget Keeps Going Up

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The budget is like a black balloon. It keeps going up but you can't see through it.

Since it's what the government spends, for everything from missiles to pencils, it affects all our lives.

But no ordinary citizen can understand it. It's too big, too detailed, too complicated.

Yet, a brawl over it is building up between the politicians of both parties. It will get worse in the weeks ahead.

Over this weekend the Kennedy administration will make a forecast.

That this year's spending will be near $89 billion, a peacetime record; that government income, or revenue, will be only about $82 billion; and that therefore the budget deficit will be around $7 billion.

Two good reasons make the budget opaque:

1. What goes into it—meaning what the President and his aides, and later Congress, think it is necessary to spend—is after all a matter of judgment.

That alone means disagreement.

2. The budget figures—the last of expenses the President thinks necessary and submits to Congress every year for approval—fill a volume as big as a metropolitan telephone directory.

No uninitiated man could understand it all. In fact, just five days ago a congressional committee complained the whole budget procedure is 40 years out of date and should be modernized.

When President Eisenhower

ran deficits the Democrats quickly gave him what-for. And he had some beaux, too.

One year it was $12.5 billion. For the fiscal year ending last June 30, President Kennedy announced in July, Eisenhower's deficit was $3.9 billion.

Not that Kennedy is running a deficit, the Republicans are returning the compliment. Eisenhower already has started banging away.

He not only recently criticized Kennedy's spending but added: "The state of confusion I now sense in Washington is like a tornado—on a spring day."

Democrats—but not Kennedy—promptly reminded him of that $12.5 billion deficit of his own. But after Kennedy goes into some detail in this weekend report there will be enough ammunition to keep the politicians shooting for months.

Meanwhile Kennedy has some ready explanations for his deficit: Getting the economy out of a tailspin, building up necessary defenses.

As if to take some of the edge off the Republican criticism he can expect after this weekend, Kennedy has done things like these:

He urged his Cabinet and agency heads to be frugal in spending and hold down the number of government workers "to the minimum consistent with getting the job done."

But his administration has promised a balanced budget next year. The Republicans will tell him so before he ever tells Congress next January what the next year's budget should be.

Now, Bike Jokes Abound

A wealth of bicycle jokes have come out of the bike bandits' heist of Wachovia West End Branch.

For instance there was the auto dealer who reported that he saw the youth shortly after the robbery. He stopped off and traded the bike in on a new car, it was said.

Paid cash. Then there was the wag who—undoubtedly via the Stadium fund committee last week—commented, upon hearing of the robbery: "Oh good, I'll bet its for the stadium."

And, of course, there are the expected rumors about local law enforcement agencies putting in courses in bicycle pursuit. Naturally there would be special interceptor bikes equipped with generator operated blinker lights and souped up coaster brakes.

The word is out, according to the jokesters, that FBI agents have their orders to be equipped with bicycle for all future bank robberies. The rumor is that bicyclists are being trained for special chases.

The Dog's Head boys say the bike bandit would have made it if he hadn't run the rubber right off the bicycle tires. This story has it that his downfall came when he had to stop for recaps.

Makes one year for the day when the bank robber was a tough guy—indeed, a whole group of tough guys. They rode in big black cars equipped with bullet proof glass. At least one carried a violin case, equipped with a special kind of music maker.

One stayed behind in the auto to keep the car running and after the cohorts had robbed the bank, they jumped in the big car and sped away.

That was the old days. Bank robbing has changed now. Its usually a lone man or even a woman as has happened in North Carolina recently—who sticks up the bank. But times have changed—now its bicycles!

Strength For Today

FACING LIFE CHEERFULLY

Jesus was constantly urging his disciples to be of good cheer. Scores of times these words were upon his lips. No man ever uttered more sober words than Jesus. Although his words are full of light and love, he occasionally became so stern that in the whole of the Bible we find no denunciations more severe than his. Yet this was the man who besought us to be of good cheer.

Why should we be of good cheer? For the simple reason that the God of love presides over the world and its life, and such being the case we have nothing to fear. This does not mean that we do not have problems. This does not mean that we shall not be times be stricken to the earth and left lying with the disconsolate feeling that we can never arise. But we can. Millions have done so in the past. We can too. Some people live and act as if the world were presided over by the devil instead of by a God of love. The devil would pounce, revenge and destroy. The God of love can always be depended upon to lift up and heal.

How much we all need at times the divine assurance that God's reality and presence are so benign and thrilling that we can lift up our heads even in the darkest hour and know that all is well.

It was a Man who faced crucifixion and knew all the time it was coming who kept calling out, "Be of good cheer."

Public Forum

October 26, 1961

To The Editor, As students of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, we would like to express our interest in the coming Bond Election, which will take place on November 7. We urge the citizens of Pitt County to support this vital issue.

We feel that the acceptance of the Bond Issue is necessary for the continued growth of North Carolina as a progressive state. As students of a state supported educational institution we can acutely feel and recognize some of the needs which the acceptance of this measure would fulfill.

In the way of material support students in the state supported university and colleges of our state are now paying toward capital improvements, through increased fees, more than $2,000,000 over and above their living expenses. The money obtained from the sale of bonds would serve as a supplement to this sum.

We have enclosed a copy of a resolution which was passed by the Woman's College Student Legislature on October 18, 1961. We believe that this resolution reflects the opinion of students throughout the state.

Sincerely,

Mildred Coleman, Dot Davis, Carole Wilkerson, Polly Poindecker, Sara Collins, Melinda

More Look-Aheads In Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are more look-aheads in business, based on analyses of developing trends, spiced with a dash of advance information.

Standardized envelope sizes may be sooner than expected. The Post Office is stepping up studies and may establish some standards in a little more than a year. First step will be to set a number of standard sizes, with higher rates on nonstandard envelopes. This will be followed by tougher standards later, with higher penalties on off-size mailings. Don't order stationery too far in advance.

Opinions In Brief

"It is well the elderly should understand their health problems, their retirement rights, the dangers of being bilked of savings. But shouldn't it be assumed that at 60 to 70 most people have a whale of a lot of individual resourcefulness left in them? Don't they retire at least partly to get beyond the planner's long arm?" — Sumner (S.C.) Daily Item.

"One of the great domestic annoyances is a toothpaste tube improperly squeezed. It begins to look like a Gibson girl with a pinched waist. "Sure," he said. "Vice President Johnson brought in a Pakistan camel driver. To promote the sale of Peruvian handicrafts, another outfit brought in three Incas from the Andes to New York.

"I am going to offer Gunga Dins from India, reindeer skinner from Lapland, head shrinkers from the Amazon, the slightly reformed cannibals from Africa. I think I can deliver gold mines of publicity for retailers, politicians and showmen for moderate, but profitable prices!

Phants Spoil Hertford Homecoming With 42-13 Win

BARKING SEADOG . . . Wingback Mahlon Williams picks up a sizable gain in last night's Ayden-Beaufort Coastal Conference battle, as Ray Hassell and Bill Harris look on. Ayden won the game by a slim 7-0 margin before a capacity Homecoming throng.

Coastal Champs Squeak By Beaufort For 7-0 Victory

AYDEN — Ayden High School's Homecoming proved successful last night, as the Tornadoes whipped Beaufort's Seadogs 7-0. There was a large homecoming crowd on hand to watch the newly crowned single A Coastal Conference champions defeat a good double A team.

moved the ball to the Ayden 30 yard line. Before the Seadogs could get the next play underway, the gun went off, signaling the end of the game.

The victory was Ayden's ninth win against no losses for the current campaign.

Standouts for the Tornadoes were William Edwards, Harrington, and Rudolph Cannon in the backfield. Spearheading the Ayden forward wall were Carroll and Clem McLawhorn and Gibson. On the first play from scrimmage, Harrington took a handoff from quarterback Dunn and ran through Beaufort defenders for a gain of 65 yards before he was caught from behind on the Beaufort 25 yard stripe. Two plays later, Dunn connected with Gibson in the end zone for the score. Dunn's aerial to Gibson also provided the extra point to give the Tornadoes a 7-0 advantage.

The remainder of the first half was played in Beaufort territory as the Seadogs were unable to rally their attack against an inspired Ayden eleven.

Seadogs Drive Ayden kicked off to Beaufort to start the second half and the Seadogs responded with a 49 yard drive into Ayden territory. Beaufort received the second half kickoff on their own 10 yard line and returned it to the 20. The Seadogs then picked up a first down on a plunge to the 31 yard line. On the next play, tailback Ray Hassell ran a double reverse 45 yards to the Ayden 31 to put the Seadogs in scoring position.

However, on the next play Beaufort fumbled and Clem McLawhorn recovered to stop the Seadogs scoring threat.

It wasn't until late in the fourth period that Beaufort was again able to muster another scoring attack. In the final moments of play, Beaufort took over on downs on their own 48 yard line. Then Ray Hassell put on a one-man show by picking up three successive first downs and

Cricked Neck Aids Hornung

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Hornung, runner, blocker and kicker for the Green Bay Packers, has been tabbed for Army duty but a crick in the neck could keep him playing professional football.

Hornung was slated for Army duty next Monday. However, he has been directed to take another physical examination.

As a result, the former Notre Dame football star, might be bypassed in Uncle Sam's latest needs for service.

Hornung, 26, and a bachelor, has been slated for another physical examination which will take about 10 days to be evaluated. He has had trouble with a pinched nerve in his neck.

The Packers currently lead the Western Division of the National Football League with a 5-1 record. In addition to Hornung, the Army has recalled linebacker Ray Nitschke and end Boyd Dowler from Green Bay.

Sen. Alexander Wiley, R-Wis., has requested that the Defense Department reconsider. Wiley stated that he is aware of the manpower need in the armed forces, but added that he received numerous protests from Green Bay fans.

Also jumping into the picture was Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski, R-Wis. O'Konski, taking a slap at Sen. Wiley, said that to single out entertainment stars for deferment would demoralize the whole picture.

Havelock Victor Over Robersonville, 14-13

ROBERSONVILLE — Havelock came from behind in the final quarter last night to ruin Robersonville's chances for a homecoming win. The visitors struck for a touchdown and made good on the vital extra point attempt to grab a 14-13 Coastal Conference victory.

Havelock got things started in the first quarter, blocking a Ram punt on the Robersonville 43 yard line. Tommy Melton led the winners to the Ram 7 yard stripe, then carried the ball the remaining yardage for the touchdown. Melton swept his left end for the point after touchdown to give the winners a 7-0 advantage.

The lead was short-lived, however, as the Rams bounced right back with a score of their own. Ram Quarterback, Charles Forbes, who supplies most of the Robersonville offensive attack, returned the kickoff to the Havelock 49. On the next play, Forbes got away for a 21 yard scam to the 28 yard stripe. The stocky quarterback then began to loosen up his passing arm, as he connected on three straight aerials for the first Ram score. Forbes hit Butch Brown and Tony Warner on successive plays to the Havelock 4. Forbes then connected with Brown again, this time in the Havelock end zone for the touchdown. Forbes ran for the point after to knot the count at 7-7 at halftime.

The winners took Robersonville's kickoff to start the second half, but found the going rough against the Ram defense and were forced to punt. The Rams took over on the Havelock 40 yard line.

With Forbes carrying the offensive load, the losers moved to the Havelock 3. From that point, Forbes plunged into the promised land for Robersonville's last score. Poor blocking failed to open a hole for the extra point attempt, which eventually proved detrimental to the Rams.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—As George Mira goes, so goes Miami's football team.

This was proven again Friday night when the great sophomore quarterback, recovered from torn rib cartilage, moved back into action to guide the Hurricanes to a 10-0 victory over North Carolina on rain-splashed Orange Bowl field before 29,614 homecoming fans.

With Mira on the sidelines, a sluggish Miami team lost successive games to Navy and Colorado.

With Mira back, the Hurricanes clicked with ground and air precision and except for a fumble and an ill-timed illegal procedure might have run the score two touchdowns higher against North Carolina.

A 40-yard touchdown pass from Mira to Larry Wilson brought the game's only touchdown. Bobby Wilson booted a 30-yard field goal into a 20-mile-an-hour wind and kicked the extra point after the touchdown.

The 176-pound Mira accounted for 124 yards on 10 completed passes and his skillful handling of the option play broke his running backs through for 216 more yards.

Except for mistakes by his teammates, he might have taken them to a higher score.

Once, he shot an 11-yard pass to Bill Miller on the North Carolina 2, only to have the play called back for an illegal procedure penalty. The Tar Heels then held for downs.

Another time, he directed the Hurricanes to the North Carolina 5, where Jim Vollenweider fumbled the ball to the Tar Heel's Jim Shumate.

The North Carolina passing ace Ray Farris, completed 11 of 22 for 155 yards as his receivers frequently found clear spots in the Miami secondary, but two interceptions by Nick Ryder and Charley Yanda hurt him badly.

Another time, he directed the Hurricanes to the North Carolina 5, where Jim Vollenweider fumbled the ball to the Tar Heel's Jim Shumate.

The record books say Salim has lost only one of 34 and has fought two draws. The 25-year-old invader has 14 knockouts to his credit.

Wright, 24, has a 37-6-3 record with 18 knockouts.

The 10-round match at 9 p.m. (EST) will be carried on network (ABC) television.

HERTFORD—The Rose High Phantoms turned a cold night into a hot one as they defeated the Hertford Indians 42-13 for the seventh victory of the season taking advantage of a five yard plunge, four passes and a 70 yard kickoff return in gaining the win.

After gaining 14 points in the first quarter the Phants came through in the final four minutes of the first half for three touchdowns on seven plays from the line of scrimmage. All three were made on passes by quarterback Billy James. End Jack Foley caught the first one and halfback Alan McArthur grabbed the next two and carried them over for the score. The halftime score was 35-0 in favor of Greenville.

Spoil Homecoming In spoiling the Hertford homecoming game, the Greenville eleven scored in the early minutes of the game after they received the kickoff and drove to the five yard line. On the next play fullback Wayne Sumrell plunged across the line from five yards out. Halfback Krohrie Andresen kicked the extra point as well as the five others during the course of the game.

The second Rose High score came near the end of the first quarter when the Phantoms took over the ball on their own 30 yard line after an Indian punt. Andresen carried for five yards and on the next play McArthur completed a running pass to Andresen who ran the distance for the touchdown.

Phant Defense Holds During the first half of the game the Greenville defense managed to hold the opponents to only 17 yards rushing. The Phantoms gained 148 yards on the ground during the first two quarters.

As the second half got underway, Coach Bud Phillips put in his second string and they played most of the rest of the game with the exception of one offensive play.

On the first play after receiving the kickoff to open the second half Indian halfback Freddie Combs carried the ball 55 yards to the Greenville 10 yard line. Three plays later to Hodges for the extra point to give the Red Devils a 27-0 lead.

LaGrange finally got its offense clicking in the final minutes of the contest. Taking the Farmville kickoff on their own 10 yard line, the losers called on Pridden, Carter, Howe, and Smith to march to the Red Devil 22. On a third down situation, Howe moved the ball to the Farmville 10 for a first down. On the next play, Howe went over for the score. The extra point attempt failed.

Outstanding for the Red Devil on offense were Oglesby, Dilda and Hodges. Defensive stalwarts were Jim Everette and Ben Monk.

For LaGrange, Pridden, Carter, and Howe led the offensive showing.

In the statistics department, LaGrange piled up 16 first downs to Farmville's 5. Farmville was penalized 70 yards to 55 for the losers. Three pass interceptions for the Red Devils against none for LaGrange proved the difference in the game. Neither team fumbled.

The Red Devils close out their season next week when they travel to Havelock, a 14-13 victor over Robersonville last night.

Deacon Frosh Beat Gamecocks

Wake Forest's freshman football team was nearly-run out of South Carolina Friday before recovering for a 26-20 victory over the Gamecock frosh.

The Deacon yearlings were down 20-0 before they started rolling late in the second period. They scored one touchdown in that quarter and added 20 points in the fourth period.

In other games Friday involving ACC frosh teams, Clemson beat previously undefeated Georgia Tech 14-13 to close out with a 3-2 record; Duke's Blue Imps scored their third straight victory by beating N.C. State's frosh team 23-20 in another come-from-behind effort, and the North Carolina freshmen defeated Virginia's Cavayearlings 20-0.

James Bailey's two extra points for Clemson proved the difference and lifted the Tiger freshmen to victory.

The Blue Imps trailed 12-0 at the half, but roared back to score their 23 points in the second half.

The North Carolina frosh scored a first-period touchdown, and added two more in the fourth quarter. North Carolina is 2-2 for the season and Virginia is winless in two games.

Red Devil Interceptions Lead To 27-6 Win Over LaGrange

LAGRANGE — Farmville's Red Devils scored three times in the second quarter and added another tally in the fourth stanza to hand LaGrange a 27-6 Coastal Conference loss.

Three pass interceptions set up all of Farmville's second period scores. LaGrange quarterback John Parrish's first pass was picked off by Danny Dilda on the losers 40 yard line. Dilda later turned in the first score for the Red Devils on a 7 yard plunge through the middle of the LaGrange line. Farmville quarterback Dean Oglesby passed to Rex Hodges for the extra point to give the Red Devils a 7-0 advantage.

Farmville's second tally was turned in by Dilda as he intercepted another of Parrish's aerials on the Red Devil 5 yard line, and behind excellent blocking, the flashy halfback raced 95 yards for the score. Oglesby passed to Dilda for the point after touchdown.

Jimmy Everette intercepted another LaGrange pass on the winners 49 to set up the third score. Oglesby, with his passing arm working to perfection, hit Dilda for another score. The play covered 51 yards. The try for the extra point failed.

Groundbreaking Slated Today

NEW YORK (AP)—Ground will be broken today for the $18 million, 55,000-seat Flushing Meadow stadium that will be the home park starting in 1963 for the New York Mets of the National Baseball League and the New York Titans of the American Football League.

Mayor Robert Wagner and Bill Shea, chairman of the mayor's baseball committee that helped obtain the return of the National League to New York, will be among the officials at the ceremonies.

The stadium will be located on the site of the 1939-40 World's Fair, and the site of the World's Fair planned for 1964 — about a 20-minute trip by car from midtown Manhattan.

The architect's figure construction of the three-tiered, circular stadium will take at least 14 months.

The Mets, managed by Casey Stengel, will make their debut next spring and will play their games in the Polo Grounds, home of the Giants before they moved to San Francisco. The Titans have played their home games at the Polo Grounds since the AFL began in 1960.

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Hornung, runner, blocker and kicker for the Green Bay Packers, has been tabbed for Army duty but a crick in the neck could keep him playing professional football.

Hornung was slated for Army duty next Monday. However, he has been directed to take another physical examination.

As a result, the former Notre Dame football star, might be bypassed in Uncle Sam's latest needs for service.

Hornung, 26, and a bachelor, has been slated for another physical examination which will take about 10 days to be evaluated. He has had trouble with a pinched nerve in his neck.

The Packers currently lead the Western Division of the National Football League with a 5-1 record. In addition to Hornung, the Army has recalled linebacker Ray Nitschke and end Boyd Dowler from Green Bay.

Sen. Alexander Wiley, R-Wis., has requested that the Defense Department reconsider. Wiley stated that he is aware of the manpower need in the armed forces, but added that he received numerous protests from Green Bay fans.

Also jumping into the picture was Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski, R-Wis. O'Konski, taking a slap at Sen. Wiley, said that to single out entertainment stars for deferment would demoralize the whole picture.

Parents Shown School Routine

By MELBA EVERETTE
BELVOIR — About 100 parents "put the shoe on the other foot" at Belvoir-Falkland High School here Monday night.

At the regular meeting of the school's chapter of the Parent-Teacher Association, the parents of high school students attended regular classes during a program designed to introduce the parents to the daily routine in effect here.

Parents were offered the opportunity to discuss the courses, homework and individual student progress with each teacher.

Parents of elementary students met with the elementary teachers and discussed various phases of education.

A continuation of the film, "History of Education," was shown by E. N. Warren, principal, announced that the school had recently purchased many new library books, and that the United Fund's goal had been exceeded. He also urged parents to keep their children in school as much as possible, and asked all members to vote in the November 8 state bond election for the support of public institutions.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Joyce Peaden. J. T. Cobb introduced the speaker, Rev. Matthew Knight, Pastor at Mount Pleasant Church. Following Rev. Knight's talk, the secretary's report was given by Mrs. J. T. Cobb, vice president, in the absence of the secretary.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

How to avoid the mistakes of the past will be brought out Sunday in all Christian Sciences churches.

Highlighting the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Everlasting Punishment" is the Golden Text from the Bible: "Wherefore doth a living man complain, a man for the punishment of his sin? Let us search and try our ways, and turn again to the Lord" (Lam. 3).

One of the citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "Mortals move onward towards good or evil as time glides on. If mortals are not progressive, past failures will be repeated until all wrong work is effaced or rectified. The divine method of paying sin's wages involves unwinding one's snarls, and learning from experience how to divide between sense and Soul" (p. 240).

Plan Hallowe'en Carnival Monday

Children of school age in Greenville and the surrounding community were invited today by Mrs. Mack Gardner, to participate in a Hallowe'en Carnival Monday evening, sponsored by Modern Woodmen of America and Royal Ambassador boys.

The party will start at 7:45 p.m. and will be held at the Red Men Hall, where costumes will be judged, souvenirs and refreshments distributed.

Mrs. Gardner called special attention to the "Witch Wagon" which will award special prizes to five of the costumed paraders who can be found at home thirty minutes after the carnival's close.

Some 125 children participated in last year's Hallowe'en Carnival, and the chairman indicated confidence a still larger crowd would attend the 1961 program.

Sally Branch PTA Discusses Curriculum Study

Sally Branch School P. T. A. met Tuesday evening and discussed the curriculum study the teachers are making this year.

After a short business session, parents were informed that the Sally Branch faculty chose as its theme "A Study of the School Curriculum" for the in-service training program.

In the curriculum study, the teachers will inform the parents of the requirements for promotion for each grade, one through eight. It is hoped this consultation will inform parents as to how they can help their children study and improve their grades.

Requirements for grade one were given at the meeting, which drew a large attendance. Delegates for the district and state P.T.A. were elected.

Pitt Farm Bureau In Membership Drive

FARMVILLE — Charles Quinerly, county membership chairman for Pitt County's Farm Bureau, said today a "small army" of membership workers are canvassing the county to bolster the county unit's membership strength.

Quinerly, organizer of this year's Farm Bureau membership drive, announced the names of 16 local chairmen heading membership campaigns in 15 communities in the county.

In announcing the drive, Quinerly said: "It is a well-known fact that if an organization is to accomplish its goals, then it must give responsibility to as many of its members as possible. Our Farm Bureau, in keeping with this philosophy, is placing a lot of responsibility on its membership 'captains'."

The captains, Quinerly said, are responsible for securing township or community memberships and assigning areas of coverage for the "small army" of membership workers.

County captains announced by Quinerly include: Glenn Strick-

Starting White Cane Drive In Ayden, Today

AYDEN — The Ayden Lion's Club will sponsor its annual White Cane Drive beginning today. The White Cane Drive is the annual fund raising drive of the North Carolina State Association for the Blind.

All funds derived from this drive are spent either directly or indirectly on the Blind people of North Carolina. There is no paid staff. Last year, the outstanding achievement of the N.C.S.A. was the establishment of seven Free Glaucoma Clinics in North Carolina. Glaucoma is a disease that gradually robs a person of his sight without warning and without pain.

Glaucoma strikes about after 40 in most cases. It is estimated that approximately 800,000 Americans have Glaucoma and don't know it. It can be easily cured if caught in its early stages.

Grey Davenport, Kaye Williams and Sandra Frye have volunteered to sell White Cane pins in Ayden Saturday.

The people of Brittany are of Celtic descent.

out some explanation. The State Department kids itself that it will change Jagan's attitude by a visit to the White House and a small loan as a starter. There is not one instance to show that loans and aid have produced a pro-American attitude or than a visit to the White House has made anyone pro-American.

Maybe one of the foundations, seeking a place to spend its money, may set up a study of this chagrining phenomenon.

Two Fan The Sparks Of Creative Art

GETTING THE PERSPECTIVE . . . Mrs. Hugh Roberson pauses in her studio to study an oil portrait she is painting.

By MARTI MARTIN Reflector Staff Writer ROBERSONVILLE—Art bursts forth in all areas of the world and though one usually associates art with such centers as Paris or Greenwich Village, small towns have their love of art and their artists as well.

Helping to fulfill this need in Robersonville are artists Marcella Jenkins and Maybell Roberson.

Both are wives of farmers and have families, yet somehow, with the creative urge within each of them to paint, they have found time to work professionally in the community which requires varied artistic talents.

Mrs. Carl W. Jenkins is a native of Stokes and has lived in Robersonville five years. After graduating from Stokes High School in 1944 she attended the Abbot School of Art in Washington, D. C., for a year's training in pictorial illustration. Water color was the primary medium stressed during her attendance there.

A BACKYARD COUNTRY SCENE . . . furnished the subject of a water color painting by Mrs. Carl Jenkins.

she said, "the critical analysis was personal and highly constructive." "Mediums used during this course were water colors and oils," she said. "The school would take photographs in black and white of the work we had sent in, as flaws in our paintings would be more obvious and accurate."

Famous Artists School commented that Mrs. Jenkins had an almost natural talent for water colors and complimented her on several particular paintings that she had sent in.

At the age of 35 and the mother of four children, the youngest two years of age, Marcella Jenkins has difficulty in finding adequate time to devote to her study in painting portraits, still life, scenery, wedding and graduation announcements and even lampshades.

—Answers Call— Mrs. Hugh Roberson also answers ardently to the call of art. As well as artist, Mrs. Roberson illustrated her book of poetry, "Windows of Life," which was published this year. Exposition Press said in publishing her book: "Maybell Roberson is one of those rarely gifted individuals who have not only one talent to offer the world, but two. She draws as well as she writes, and as the reader will learn, she writes very well indeed."

Mrs. Roberson has lived in Robersonville since early childhood. She attended Davenport College in Lenoir, N. C., where she studied art from 1919 to 1920. The next year she studied art at Fairfax Hall in Waynesville, Va. Mrs. Roberson completed her art training in 1923 at Anderson College in Anderson, S. C. Voted the most talented member of her graduating class at Anderson, she studied under Miss Mard D. Ramseur, who received much of her training in Europe.

During 1923 Miss Ramseur asked Mrs. Roberson, then Maybell

MRS. CARL JENKINS

Barhill, if she would be able to accompany her and nine students for study abroad. These students had been selected over a period of years and represented some of the most talented of Miss Ramseur's pupils. "Unfortunately," said Mrs. Roberson, "I was unable to go, but it was quite a thrill to have been selected."

"Although I enjoy creative work, I often find something so beautiful that I would like to copy it myself with some minor changes in interpretation. This is somewhat against the rules of art," laughed Mrs. Roberson, "but I really can't force myself to feel guilty by wanting to paint something that has already been given expression. Whenever I do copy a work in some way or another, you will know it is because I thoroughly enjoy and respect that portion of the artists work that I have reproduced."

She has had some teaching experience in art at the Robersonville High School and has also conducted classes in art which have been in high demand among community residents. Each year that she teaches such classes a showing of the pupils work is conducted with the community invited to observe.

Mrs. Roberson, 59, works commercially in Robersonville doing painting in portraits, scenery, still life and coat of arms. She works with the mediums of oil, water color, pastels, india ink and charcoal.

A Night When Superstition, Fancy Prevails

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

The ancient Druids called it Samhain — summer's end. To them, it was a festive time. It was a sacred time — the yearly cropping of mistletoe from the oak tree at the midnight hour in the full of the moon with a golden sickle. It was a time when ghosts, witches, elves roamed around doing mischief. Huge bonfires were built to drive these unwanted creatures away.

We call it Halloween — October's last night — night of the hunter's moon and the laying down of frost. A night when the stars have a well scrubbed look and the pathways of the sky look like they have been swept with a broom — a witches-broom. Trick or treat night — a night when superstition and fancy hold sway.

Superstition

In the past, people of all ages had at times attached superstition to such things as the existence of ghosts, witches, the raising of crops, marriage, and the granting of desires.

In these days, we have become too smart for such things, or have we? How thin is the veneer that covers the little superstitions that almost all of us have and hide? Is it a matter of electricity or intellect?

In these days of abundant electric light, and all the ghost and witches you want to see on television, the opportunity to see "supin" is almost nil.

Well, anyhow, there was a time and not so far back when folks were mighty superstitious about a lot of things.

They Used To Say—

Witches were humans that turned themselves into demons and went around doing harm to those that incurred their displeasure. Witches were fond of riding horses. They would ride the poor beast all night. In the morning when the farmer went to hitch up his horse for the day's plowing, he found a pooped horse. And it wasn't sickness either; for the witch had left its trademark — a platted tail. But they had a preventer — a horse shoe hung over the stable door, or for double protection a shoe and a flour sifter. As the witch had to travel as far as the horse shoe had gone and count the holes in the sifter, it was safe to assume it wouldn't get back until daylight. And witches couldn't function in the daytime. Witches rode people too — that was why people had nightmares.

Sleeping with a fork under your pillow would insure a good night's rest and no witch trouble. They say that witches can't stand anything electric. So it can be taken for granted that this Halloween, you'll have no trouble from a witch — that is unless we have a power failure.

Ghosts

These filmy ones have often been the bane of many a human's existence. But indoor plumbing and well lighted houses have to a great extent removed the stage for ghostly performances. However, it wouldn't be bad to know a few tricks to thwart a ghost.

Ghosts do not like anything new. So a new door knob on your bedroom door should keep them out. A cheaper way is to sprinkle collard seed on your doorknob, or cook a pot of beans on Halloween day. Another way is to do away with things that attract them. Don't throw scraps of food out doors after dark. Don't sleep with your feet towards an open window, or leave half a pumpkin on the kitchen table.

Ghosts don't like to hear the Bible quoted or being preached to. Neither do they like to be asked for money. This shows they still retain some of their firmer nature.

Ghosts can't stand the smell of burning old shoes and sulphur—but who can?

Whiskey attracts ghosts but it also is a means of getting away from them. If one happens to be after you, simply sprinkle some on the ground and when the hant stops to lap it up, you can be on your way unpursued.

If everything else fails, you can get rid of a ghost by shooting it. But it is a waste of time to use lead bullets—only silver ones halt a hant.

Child Raising

While the raising up of children isn't strictly a Halloween topic, it wouldn't do any harm to help ensure a later crop of "trick or treaters" by knowing a few things superstitions wise.

If the baby of the house is growing too slow, sweep across his feet every morning with a broom. If the child has bow legs, use a broom made of broomsedge.

To make a child walk faster, place him on the floor and sweep the dust into his lap.

A fretful child can be quieted by holding his head out in the rain for a few minutes. This treatment may also quiet him permanently.

To make sure your child will grow up, put him on the bed so he will fall off. This performance has double value; it will also insure him of not becoming a fool.

Never wash the inside of a baby's hand. If you do, you will wash away his luck. This may explain the great number of people who claim they are unlucky—a mother who puts soap above her offspring's welfare.

Agricultural Aids

Whether you plant by the almanac or upon the advice of your county agent, you might go out on a limb and try something different.

If your crop gets dry and rain seems far away, set fire to a stump on a cloudy day. And when it has rained enough to suit you, shut it off. This is done by sleeping with a flower under your pillow.

Let an angry person plant your peppers. For complete perfection with the crop, let an angry red headed person do the planting.

Large vegetables like collards, cabbage, and watermelons should be planted by small children. These plants grow along with the child. You can get the same result and save a lot of fussing by planting them yourself from a squatting position.

Marriage

Don't cry at a wedding. If you do, someone will have bad luck. This may be the cause of some marriages getting off on the wrong foot.

Never hand a girl a letter in her left hand. It will turn a friendship sour.

If a girl kisses a boy in the dark and misses her mark and kisses his nose — she lost a husband.

Wednesday is the best day to get married and the best color for the bride's dress is white. However, if you want your husband to remain true, marry him in blue.

Wishing

Many people are told to wish upon a star if they want a desire to come true. But if the thing you wish for most of all is a dress, and you aren't squeamish, bite off a butterfly's head and the dress will be yours.

Show your money to the new moon and you will have money as much.

If a friend of yours has something you want, borrow it and show it to the moon and before the month is out, you'll have one for your own.

If you long for a letter from someone that means a lot to you, throw three kisses at a red bird and make a wish. Time and the U. S. mail will make your wish come true—some-

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTE

Just out is a new book which goes to bat for spinster.

This book is "The Single Woman," and its author, Phyllis I. Rosentour (marital status: single, of course), asserts that single women have all the advantages over their married sisters in emotional adjustment, self-reliance, idealism, ethical sense, fastidiousness, and steadfastness.

That certain four-letter words have finally made the International (useful in reading Henry Miller). Also, some expressions like "ain't" are no longer classified as illiterate. Whether we knew it or not, we have been speaking good English all along, and those Yankee dictionary makers are finally catching on.

Is This Book Necessary

The other day Georgio di Santillana, the brilliant historian of science at M.I.T. was asked why he considers his new "History of Scientific Thought" necessary.

His answer was that he didn't consider it necessary at all. "No book is necessary save the Good Book. I thought it might possibly be useful."

Africa's Need

Again comes an appeal for books from Africa, where there is only about one volume per five inhabitants and where almost anything in print is prized.

It would make a fine Christmas project for a club or Sunday school class to assemble a collection of works suitable for secondary school children and send them to M. M. Makgelling, Box 43, Sibosa, North Transvaal, South Africa. Mr. Makgelling is trying to scrape together a library for a school being built upon a tribal reserve.

After all, not all foreign aid has to be government-sponsored. Mailing rates on books are nominal too.

Historical Exhibit

On November 1, at the Art Center, the celebration of the bicentennial of the founding of Pitt County will begin with an exhibit of historical objects collected to illustrate life in this locality. This exhibit will include everything from documents and portraits to plows and waffle irons. It is being sponsored by the Pitt County Historical Society. There is still some available space, and the Society would welcome additional items. Anyone with an interesting old bustle, currycomb, dresden tureen, collection of arrowheads, or anything illustrating life in the past should notify Mrs. J. H. B. Moore.

Play At College

Opening at McGinnis, November 1, 8:15, and continuing through November 3, is a Playhouse production of Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie."

That is probably Williams' masterpiece. It deals with a displaced Southern family on the edge of despair in a St. Louis slum. It derives its name from the set of glass animals in which Laura, the crippled daughter of the family, finds her solace and her escape.

Pianist

Also on November 1, 8:15, Wright will be a concert in the College entertainment series. Performer will be Geza Anda, prominent young Swiss pianist. The program has not been announced.

East Carolina College Students To Carry Education's Torch 100 Miles

East Carolina College students dent at the intersection of US 258 ville. N. C. State College's delegation is scheduled to carry the "Torch of Education" for about 100 miles along the final leg of its journey from Wilmington each carrying the torch one mile, the journey — from Fayetteville to Raleigh via Greenville next will bring the state-wide marathon through Lillington and Fuquay to week as collegians of 11 state-supported institutions exhibit support for the Nov. 7 bond issue.

Twelve delegations from the 11 schools will participate in the marathon. East Carolina is the only institution in the state scheduled for double duty.

Scheduled to begin its trip to Rocky Mount and relay it — via Raleigh from Wilmington at 8 Wilson — to Selma where students Bruce on NC Highway 43 at 5:30 a.m. Wednesday, the torch will be handed to the first ECC student.

The second group from East Carolina is scheduled to receive the torch in Rocky Mount at 10:30 a.m. and relay it to Selma by 5:50 p.m.

The delegation of torch-bearers from Pembroke State College is scheduled to deliver the symbolic lamp to ECC students near Richlands at 7 p.m. Wednesday after a trip from Wilmington via Holly Ridge and Jacksonville.

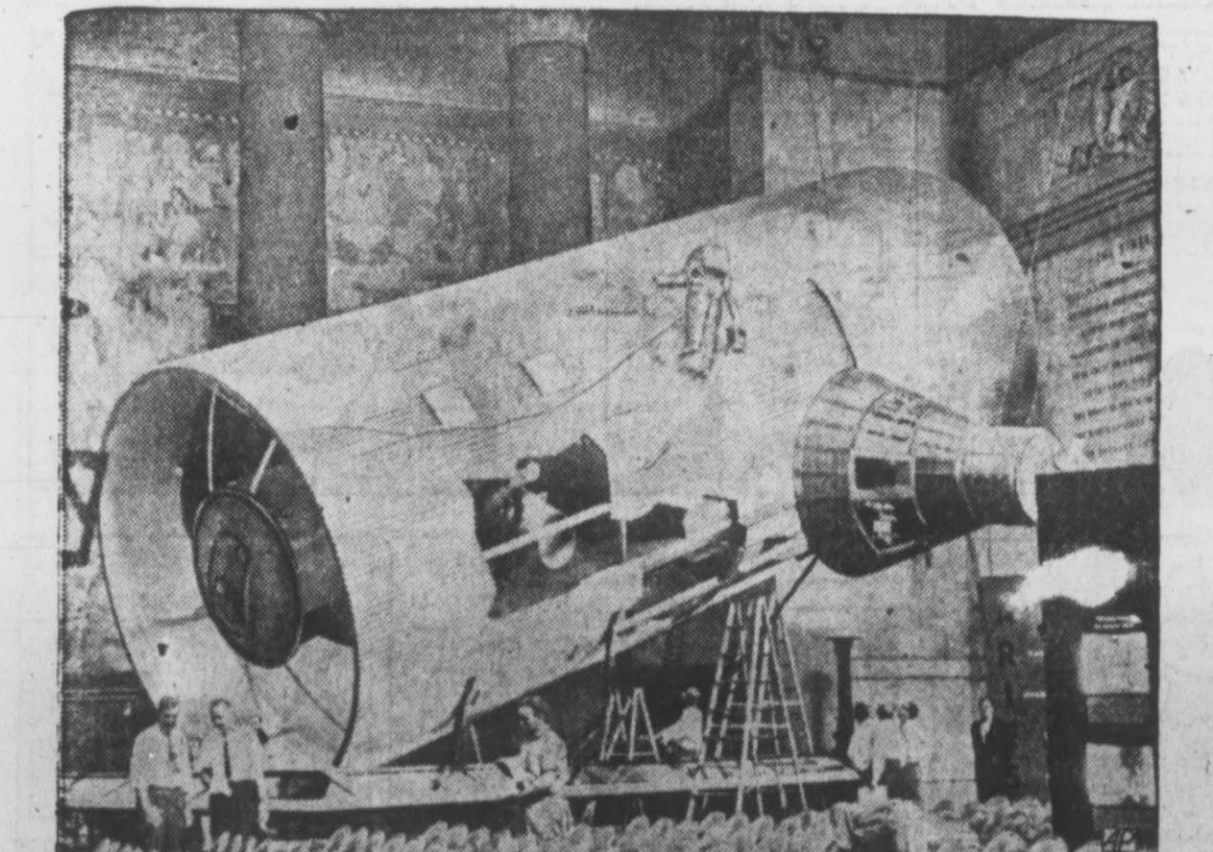

Eastward from Murphy and westward from Wilmington, each of the approximately 700 volunteer students runners will cover a mile in about 10 minutes. As the 70-hour run closes, finalists will meet in Raleigh at 12 noon Nov. 3. The entire route extends 698 miles from the mountains to the sea.

The marathon is sponsored by the State Students Citizens Committee for a Better North Carolina. The organization is composed of students from state-supported institutions and headed by Bill Harris of Burlington, president of the Student Government Association at the University of North Carolina.

A sound truck or car accompanying each student in the marathon will broadcast in each town the news that the runner is passing through. It will also urge support of the bond issue that includes about $30 million for capital improvements at state-supported institutions.

Participating in the eastern half of the marathon will be the University of North Carolina, Western Carolina College, Appalachian State Teachers College, Winston-Salem State Teachers College, North Carolina A&T College and North Carolina College of Durham.

Each torch-bearer will be accompanied by a car with other runners who will provide relief in case of emergency. The State Highway Patrol will also be ready to give aid if need should arise.

Soviet Gov't Is Distributing Advice On Fallout Measures

MOSCOW (AP) — Come out of your shelter after seven days and wash everything, including the family pig and even the fish you eat.

That's part of the advice given Soviet citizens who want to survive nuclear fallout.

It appears in a pamphlet that sells for 10 kopeks—about a dime. There are no indications it is a best seller. It tells how to build a simple shelter, but there are no exhibits around of such shelters, no, does one run into anyone who has seen a shelter.

Villagers are advised to use cellars.

Colored posters, on sale cheaply, tell how to dig trenches and cover them with logs and earth. They also detail how to wash a cow: do it soon before the fallout on the outside gets inside. Until it gets inside, the milk can be drunk. Or the cow can be eaten if killed early enough.

The pamphlet, one of a series dealing with air raids and the like bears the date Dec. 21, 1960. No mention is made of Soviet bombs. It says testing "by some imperialist states" endangers people even though explosions take place far from inhabited regions.

This correspondent has made a sustained but unsuccessful hunt to find either a bomb shelter or anybody who has seen one in the Soviet Union.

Attaches from embassies who have looked around the country for signs of shelters have found nothing. One reported that a building near the harbor at Riga, on the Baltic, might be a bomb shelter, but it might also be to protect some installation the Russians don't want to be damaged, or looked at by prying eyes.

Foreigners live in many of the newest buildings in Moscow, and they have no bomb shelters. One of the notes in the pamphlet points out that in case of bomb attack the safest place is in the middle floors, neither top nor bottom.

Nina Khrushchev, wife of the Premier, told a group of American peace marchers that the Soviet Union is not building bomb shelters. That comment seems to have left many Americans disbelieving, but it reflects the situation as far as it can be observed.

Some buildings in New York have signs indicating the route to shelters, but not one is seen here. It is easy to drive around new building areas. At a single building site, you see everything from first earth removals to completed buildings. The basements are not reinforced.

It says there is no use taking to the highways, either afoot or by automobile. Fallout, carried by the wind at many miles an hour, will catch you, or there might be fallout from another bomb right where you are running to.

"Defense from radioactive infection is a complicated problem," the pamphlet says, "but is successfully enough solved by air raid defense."

In big administrative centers and industrial sites such as Moscow the main defense will be covered trenches, it states.

However, no rocket trenches show up around Moscow.

As a special note for a population which might wait for directions before acting, the booklet adds: "People who see the explosion should begin themselves taking measures of necessary defense without waiting for a signal."

INSPECTION OF THE OLD ESTATE OF EDAH—THE LATE CRIME KING, CONTINUES—

THEY WERE A VICIOUS BUNCH, JUNIOR.

THIS WAS THEIR RANGE WHERE THEY PRACTICED SHOOTING—AT POLICE TARGETS, YOU NOTICE.

BOY, HOW THEY HATED YOU.

THE ESTATE WAS SAID TO HAVE COST 2 MILLION DOLLARS AT THE TIME, AND WAS BUILT ENTIRELY WITH BLOOD MONEY.

BOY, WHAT A WEIRD PLACE! AND PEOPLE STILL LIVE THERE??

YES, RENTERS—AN OLD LADY AND TWO LITTLE CHILDREN, BUT THEY'RE WELL PROVIDED FOR. IN FACT, THE PLACE IS FAIRLY COZY INSIDE.

WHAT A FINE YOUNG MAN HE'S GROWN INTO.

A HANDSOME, CLEAN-LOOKING LAD!

HE WAS JUST EIGHT WHEN I LAST SAW HIM.

GRANNY, YOU KEEP WATCHING THAT BOY—WHY?

YES, WHY?

DID YOU KNOW HIM?

THE GREEN STONE

A suspense thriller by SUZANNE BLANC

CHAPTER 1

The new highway from Monterey to Mexico City sweeps through rocky, barren countryside. It is a fast, lonely road, traveled little by tourists who have time to take the more picturesque coastal routes.

Here and there are a few clumps of trees that have not yet been cut down for the rude lean-tos of the northern Indian villages. Stretching out on either side are the rolling hills that grow gradually steeper as the road nears San Luis.

The landscape subtly changes, growing rockier. The twig villages are replaced by an occasional adobe hut, but most of the villages lie out of sight, just behind the crest of the flanking hills, so that the road seems to race through an empty, untenanted world.

From one of these little villages, just twenty-five miles north of San Luis, three men walked down a rough dirt road to the intersection with the highway.

Their flat, dark faces were shaded by huge, worn hats, their dun-colored clothes merged into the background behind them, the sun glinted on the long barrels of their rifles. They walked single file along the highway until they came to a sharp curve and there they squatted down behind the rocks.

When the first, faint throb of a distant motor reached them the oldest man stood up, reaching for his rifle. He spat on the ground beside the others. "One of the big ones," he said. They watched silently and unseen as the huge truck, skidding as it took the sharp turn, tumbled by.

Finally a car appeared, just a shimmering speck in the distance at first, but even before they could see it clearly, they all stood up, grabbing their rifles. As the car grew larger, the old one grinned. "Turista," he said and crouched down again, bracing the barrel of the gun on the high rock in front of him. The others knelt beside him in tense waiting.

In the big yellow sedan, Mrs. Randall, a plump, rather pretty woman in her late forties, said for the hundredth time, "I don't know why we took this road—

(there's nothing to see. We might as well have flown down. — Mr. Randall, who secretly liked the fast, empty road, increased his speed and said placatingly, "I know, Clara, but you'll have to admit we made good time. We'll be in San Luis in less than an hour."

It was that second that the bullet shattered the windshield and struck him in the left eye. The impact turned him around and his hand convulsively gripped the steering wheel so that the car careened across the road, missing the curve and crashing into the rocks, a tangled mass of glass, chrome and metal.

It happened so fast that Mrs. Randall had no time even to scream. She was suspended for a second in space, then thrown through the broken windshield and onto the crumpled hood.

The Indians scurried from behind the rocks. The oldest one was saying with satisfaction, "Just like the last time, remember, nothing but the pesos." His sons looked and nodded with respect.

It was not hard for the father to find the man's wallet stuffed fat with peso notes. His son Carlos saw the expensive camera lying on the floor and reached for it. Manuel, scarcely more than a boy, simply stood in the road staring at the broken body of Mrs. Randall stretched on the hood of the car.

One arm was outstretched at a grotesque, rigid angle and seemed to be pointing at him. On one of the white, plump fingers was a ring a silvery ring with a translucent green stone. Gingerly Manuel reached out and pulled the ring from her finger, held it for a minute, then slipped it under his belt.

"Hey, Manuel, what are you doing?" the old man asked.

"Nothing, Father, just looking."

Just then the old man noticed the camera already slung over Carlos's shoulder. He reached out and cuffed his son viciously across the face. "Put it back," he said. "Remember the last time."

It was not easy to forget the

Voter Charges Promise Unkept

BONN, Germany (AP) — It has happened at last: A voter is taking a politician into court on a charge of failing to keep a campaign promise.

The stunned politician's reaction: "Why, I've never heard of a case like it before. It can't be legally possible."

Dr. Manfred Freise, a dentist, has filed a complaint in court against Erich Mende, head of the Free Democratic party, which won 67 seats in West Germany's parliamentary election last month and gained the balance of power.

Dr. Freise said Mende had promised him and other West German voters that his party would never enter into a coalition government under Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and on this basis got four million votes.

Now the dentist said, it seems that just such a coalition government is about to be formed. This, he said, constituted "breach of faith with the voters."

A hearing will be held soon in Bonn's lowest court to determine if there are legal grounds for the complaint.

Dr. Freise said he is not seeking damages but only to establish the principle that a politician can be held to his promises.

A spokesman for Mende protested the anti-Adenauer promise had never been made in a completely unequivocal form during the campaign. This, he said, happened only later, so there could be no real breach of confidence of the kind Dr. Freise meant.

NAVAL RESERVE INSPECTION . . . Lt. (jg) N. E. Files, representing the commandant of the Sixth Naval District, Charleston, S. C., is shown checking records of Composite Company 6-26 with CDR. Grover Everett, Commanding Officer of the local unit. The annual inspection was held last night at Austin Building on the East Carolina Campus, where the reserve unit meets each Tuesday night at 8 p.m. The reserve unit was activated here in 1949.

Eighth St. Christian Announcements

The officers of Eighth Street Christian Church have been well pleased with the response this month, Church Loyalty Month. It is hoped, however, that loyalty to the church will continue to be witnessed not only during Church Loyalty Month, but throughout the year. This Sunday will be observed by the congregation as "Reformation Sunday". In keeping with this, Rev. W. J. Hadden, Jr. has chosen, "Be Glad You Are a Protestant," for his sermon topic during the morning worship hour. Upon special request, Mrs. Martha Bradner will sing "The Lord's Prayer".

Board members are reminded about the special board meeting to be held immediately following the service Sunday morning.

World Community Day will be observed by the Greenville church women Friday, November 3, 10:30-11:30 in the sanctuary of Eighth Street Church. The women of Eighth Street Church are strongly urged to attend the meeting and to bring the stamps, book bags, clothing, and hose they are contributing. If they cannot attend, they are asked to take the articles to Mrs. J. R. Carrington.

Boys and girls 8-10 years old are asked to meet at the Church Halloween night, October 31, at 5:00 to help with the UNICEF Drive. The children will return to the church at 7:00 for refreshments.

Mrs. J. B. Jackson, member of the Advisory Board of N.E.A., has returned from a visit to our two benevolent homes. She visited the children's home in Atlanta and the home for the aged in Jackson-
