

AEC Announces 2 More Nuclear Blasts By Soviet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has exploded two more nuclear devices, both much smaller than the massive Soviet blasts of Monday. The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission announced the explosions were touched off Tuesday at an Arctic test site. The first was reckoned at several megatons and the second was "probably below a megaton," the AEC reported. A megaton represents the energy from one million tons of TNT. The explosions were the 27th and 28th announced by the AEC since the Soviets resumed testing Sept. 1. Soviet Premier Khrushchev told the Communist party congress that Monday's big blast exceeded 50 megatons, which he said was more powerful than expected. In related developments: 1. Uruguay called on the Organization of American States to condemn nuclear tests. 2. The Voice of America announced an all-out attempt will be made Sunday to tell the Russian people about the Soviet tests and their worldwide effects. 3. A group studying nuclear attack estimated that a 20-megaton bomb exploding in midtown New York City would kill six million of the city's eight million residents. Carlos A. Chulow, Uruguay's ambassador, said his call for OAS

Pressuring U.S. To Cancel Tests

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States was under mounting pressure in the United Nations today to call off plans for any new nuclear weapons tests as support grew for an appeal to the big powers to agree to a voluntary test moratorium. The appeal appeared certain of General Assembly approval. But the United States has served notice it may resume test explosions in the atmosphere to counter the Soviet tests. The U.S. delegation announced Tuesday it would vote against the moratorium appeal since it makes no provision for effective controls. A number of pro-Western states from Latin America and Scandinavia declared their support for the moratorium call sponsored by India and other nonaligned nations. They declared it was up to both sides to stop testing. Japan aimed a direct appeal at the Americans to call off any test plans. Chief delegate Katsuo Okazaki denounced the Soviet Union for triggering its 50-megaton bomb but declared "another show of high statecraft is now demanded of the United States." "We are aware of another dan-

Justice Dept. Opposes Merger Of Railroads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department, which cannot invoke anti-trust laws against railroad mergers, has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to refuse permission for a merger of Seaboard Air Line Railroad with Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. In a brief filed with the ICC Tuesday, Asst. Atty. Gen. Lee Loewinger said the merger would be contrary to the policy of the anti-trust laws, the Interstate Commerce Act and the National Transportation Act. Loewinger said the Justice Department realized a railroad merger approved by the ICC is "insulated from" the anti-trust laws. But he said these competing railroads are financially sound and the merger "would impair adequate transportation in the areas served by these two railroads." The department's brief also said a merger would jeopardize the existence of several small railroads that "are vitally important to the Southeast," and impose unnecessary hardships on communities and shippers.

Honduras City Devastated By Hattie; Relief Rushed

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The first relief plane landed safely at Belize today with food and medicine for the hurricane-battered British Honduras capital. Capt. Dean Ricker, pilot of the Tan Airlines mercy flight which took off from Miami, reported from the air that the Central American seaport "appeared to be 50 to 75 per cent destroyed" by rampaging hurricane Hattie. The message was relayed to Miami via Honduras. The British frigate Trowbridge was expected to reach the stricken city today and so were two United States destroyers which had been cruising off Honduras. Tan Airlines' Miami office said its airplane was placed at the disposal of the governor of British Honduras to fly injured victims to hospitals in Guatemala and Honduras if advisable. Most of sea-level Belize's inhabitants apparently fled to higher ground before Hattie, the season's eighth tropical storm, flung 9 to 10 feet of water into the city. Hal Holler, operator of radio station HR3HH for the Standard Fruit Co. at La Cieba, Honduras, said only two known casualties had been reported but that Belize, with 31,000 population, was virtually destroyed. The government radio station and the tower at the air field were smashed, Holler reported, but a police emergency radio was in operation. "The damage is appalling" said a radio message from the governor of the crown colony. "Hurricane Hattie struck Belize with great severity. Damage to property is devastating. The sea invaded the town to depths of 9 to 10 feet," he said in an appeal for help intercepted by a ham radio operator. It was reported that 30,000 Belize residents had been evacuated. The Mexican consul in Belize sent a plea for aid in a message relayed by Compania Mexicana de Aviacion radio facilities in Merida, Yucatan. Mexico's minister of health and welfare put his

Dying Man's Car Plows Into Parade

ANOKA, Minn. (AP) — The noisy gale of costumed children and spectators drowned out warning cries as a car driven by a dying man plowed into rear ranks of a Halloween parade. "I shouted as loud as I could but nobody could hear against the hubbub," said Joseph Lindberg, a Civil Defense worker helping police. He also made a futile effort to halt the car after he saw its stricken driver slumped across the wheel. The careering car smashed into a parked car and stopped after leaving a trail of felled paraders and the adults Tuesday afternoon. Two women died of their injuries. Otto Erickson, 76, Anoka, was dead when police pulled him from the car. The car halted almost in front of a mortuary, the body slumped over the steering wheel to send out a continuous horn blast. Eight were hospitalized, some in critical condition, and police estimated another score were treated. It was the 42nd annual Halloween celebration staged by Anoka, a town of 10,000 just north of Minneapolis. Some 5,000 children from area schools were in the parade. Police Chief Cliff Petrick estimated about 7,000 persons lined streets as the youngsters showed off witch, goblin and clown costumes. The 75-foot projectile rose from its pad at 10:32 a.m. and it was apparent almost immediately something was wrong as the rocket lurched violently from side to side. The auto pilot system tried valiantly to put the Blue Scout on the proper course, but about 20 seconds after liftoff the vehicle spun out of control and blew apart. Pieces of the broken rocket tumbled back harmlessly to earth. There was no immediate word on what went wrong. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced that the rocket deviated from its planned path and was destroyed by the range safety officer. Despite the failure, an official reported it would not delay an attempt scheduled later this month to launch a chimpanzee into a three-times-around-the-world orbit. The chimp launching is the last scheduled Project Mercury flight before an astronaut is lofted in orbit, hopefully in December or January. Chris Kraft, Mercury flight director, said data which would have been gained from today's shot "was desirable but not mandatory." He added that presently there are no plans to repeat today's launching. Officials wanted to determine just how swiftly the farflung 18 stations in the tracking network can relay information from an orbiting object to the Mercury control center at Cape Canaveral. Speed is necessary if split-second decisions are to be made which could save a spaceman's life in case something goes wrong on manned flights.

Neutron Bomb Is Reportedly First Interest Of U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — The immediate goal of the United States in any resumption of nuclear tests would be development of a fantastic neutron death-ray bomb, according to published reports. The New York Daily News quoted an unidentified Washington official as saying: "It's a safe assumption that we will be testing the neutron bomb very soon." The New York Journal-American reported it had learned the death-ray bomb "is the prime goal in the resumption of nuclear tests by the United States, and not another H-bomb." The neutron bomb was described as producing death without destruction by blasting out neutrons, unfelt neutrons that could penetrate three feet of concrete. It could wipe out the populations of entire cities without major damage to the cities themselves. Essentially, the difference between neutrons and other types of radiation is that they penetrate man-made structures and kill animal and human life inside without leaving the building or nearby ground saturated with the casualty-producing contamination. There was no immediate comment from the White House, Pentagon and other sources in Washington on the report. The late Thomas E. Murray, a former Atomic Energy Commission member, told the presidential candidates in an open letter during the last election campaign that such a bomb is possible. He said conceptual designs for such a weapon existed in American laboratories and would have been tested had it not been for the moratorium on nuclear testing.

Night Saw Five False Alarms

False alarms, a small fire on a porch and a bottle through a window constituted the Halloween problems for local fire and police departments. Firemen and police were kept running from 8:40 to midnight with five false alarms. All of the alarms were not sounded on the fire whistle atop city hall. Fire officials disconnected this and took the call in the station. False alarms came as follows: 8:40, box 241, Wright and College; 9:50, box 71, Bancroft and Battle; 9:57, box 156, W. Fifth and Vance; 10:02, box 73, Douglas and Vance; 11:55, box 156, Fifth and Tyson. City police also were answering the calls in an attempt to catch the pranksters. Police in addition received a call to 112 W. 12th St. where a small fire was set on a porch, apparently by Halloween vandals. No damage resulted. Officers went to 702 Fleming St. during the evening where someone had thrown a bottle through a window.

Report 48 Dead In Crash Of Brazilian Plane

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A Brazilian airliner smashed into a hillside and burned in a Recife suburb today and an airline spokesman said 48 of the 85 persons aboard perished. He said 35 of the 76 passengers and two of the crew of nine survived. There were no U.S. citizens aboard, the airline said. The plane, a Panair do Brasil DC7 was en route from Lisbon, Portugal, and was coming in for a stop at Recife, on the northwest coast of Brazil, before making its final scheduled stop here. The two crewmen who escaped were the purser and a stewardess. The plane was making its land approach when it hit the hill-top near the Recife airport. Witnesses said two explosions occurred before the plane hit the hill and burst into flames.

Lightning Bolt Struck Airliner

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A twin-engine, turbo-prop airliner bound for Los Angeles was struck by lightning after it left Phoenix, Ariz., Tuesday night. There were no injuries. The plane made a scheduled stop at El Centro, Calif., then flew to San Diego where its 12 passengers were transferred to another plane. Bonanza Airlines officials said the plane was not seriously damaged. The Federal Aviation Agency said the lightning struck the radar dome in the nose of the plane.

Army Says Van Fleet Free To Give His Views

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has indicated that Gen. James A. Van Fleet may say what he wants to as long as he isn't acting in his role as special consultant to the secretary of the Army. This seemed to be the gist of official response Tuesday to queries about Van Fleet's reported comments on international relations and criticism of Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. Van Fleet was brought out of retirement as a part-time consultant on reserve combat readiness and anti-guerrilla warfare training. When he is not acting in this role, said the Army, his remarks "are made in his capacity as a private citizen." But, added the Army statement, when Van Fleet is "acting officially in his role as consultant, he is subject to the same regulations and directives as other military personnel and civilian employees of the defense establishment. The remarks attributed to Van Fleet Monday night, said the Army, were made in his role of private citizen. It added: "To date, he has performed no official duties as special consultant to the secretary of the Army." An Army spokesman said Van Fleet had not been recalled to active duty. The Tampa (Fla.) Tribune reported Tuesday that in a Monday night speech to a waterways resources conference, Van Fleet departed from his prepared text to say: "Stevenson should have been fired because of the failure of the Cuban invasion. Berlin and Laos are lost and there is only a 50-50 chance of keeping South Viet Nam out of Communist hands. Neither West Germany nor France will fight for West Berlin and the United States should not fight for them." Stevenson sent Van Fleet a telegram requesting the general to correct what he called a "totally false" statement about him. He referred to the statement attributed to Van Fleet that U.S. air cover for the invasion was called off at Stevenson's insistence. "If there is any doubt about this in your mind I suggest that you check the facts for yourself," said Stevenson. In Lakeland, Fla., the Ledger quoted Van Fleet's secretary as saying "the general's remarks were made at a question and answer session—a most informal question and answer period. The general says the article was taken out of context and is inaccurate."

Nikita's 20-Year Plan Adopted For Soviet Union

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Communist party ended its 22nd congress Tuesday night with endorsement of Premier Khrushchev's 20-year plan to transform the Soviet Union into the world's greatest industrial power with the world's highest standard of living. The resolution approved by the 4,400 wildly applauding delegates rang down the curtain on the eight-day session that also (1) un derlined policy differences between Khrushchev and Communist China's leaders, (2) brought Albania near to expulsion from the Soviet bloc, (3) branded Stalin as a mass murderer and took his body out of the hallowed Lenin tomb on Red Square, and (4) completed the disgrace of V. M. Molotov, Georgi Malenkov and Lazar Kaganovich. Khrushchev, re-elected to head the most powerful Communist party in the world, promised a horn of plenty under communism, which he described as "the most influential political force of our time." But he warned the delegates in a final address that only by hard work would the Soviet Union fulfill such goals as a production capacity of 250 million tons of steel—twice the present U.S. ca-

Satellite Launch Attempt At Cape Canaveral Fails

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A Blue Scout rocket spiraled crazily out of control and exploded in flight today shortly after it was launched in an effort to orbit a satellite to test the worldwide U.S. man-in-space tracking program. The 75-foot projectile rose from its pad at 10:32 a.m. and it was apparent almost immediately something was wrong as the rocket lurched violently from side to side. The auto pilot system tried valiantly to put the Blue Scout on the proper course, but about 20 seconds after liftoff the vehicle spun out of control and blew apart. Arrest Man In Shooting Case ADYEN — A 2 a.m. shooting today resulted in the arrest of Alfred Edwards, Negro, of near Ayden, who is now being held in Pitt County jail, Sheriff Ruel Tyson reported. Edwards will be charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill in the shooting of Rufin Artis, Negro, also of near Ayden, Sheriff Tyson said. The shooting apparently was the result of an argument between the two men. Edwards reportedly fired through a window of the Artis home, located south of Ayden on Highway 11. The case was investigated by Deputies Duke Andrews and Ralph Tyson, assisted by the Ayden Police Department. Artis was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital and released. No bond had been set for Edwards as of noon today.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN
These dry fall days are fine for drying out peanuts and soybeans. But for the gardener, it presents a serious problem. Many plants will, unless the rains come in sufficient amounts, go into the winter water poor. The gardener should see that all of his plants, those just planted and the established ones get enough water before the ground freezes.

Tucking in Time
As fast as the frost kills off the flowers in the gardens, we should clip the dead stems and flowers. In doing this the gardener will eliminate many bug hiding places. Look over your shrubs and trees for broken limbs. Cut them out and paint all wounds that are larger than the size of a quarter. Hunt for the spindle shaped bagworm cases. Burn them up along with other garden debris, such as diseased limbs and flower stalks. Use a 15 gal. drum with holes cut near the bottom sides, and place a piece of wire over top to keep sparks inside.

Camellia
Check camellias for scale and if found, spray with Volck (1 part to 50 parts water.) This should control the scale, but the big waxy ones has to be knocked off with water pressure or pinched off.

Give your camellias a shot of 0-14-14 fertilizer to harden up stem and give plant a safe winter tonic. Do not use fertilizers containing nitrogen.

The Wild Onions
On small areas dig them up. If you have a whole colony of them, use 29D full strength in a walking stick applicator. If left unchecked, these pests can make your lawn look pretty sorry.

Transplanting
If you are going to transplant large evergreen trees and shrubs, spray with Wilt-Pruf. This should enable your plants to stand the moving job and have only minimum moisture loss. Don't spray Wilt-Pruf on bare roots. Move woodland trees after they lose their leaves. Get all the roots you can when you undertake such a transplanting job.

Winter Frosting
Before it gets too cold, spray such exposed plants as box wood, gardenia hollies, and camellias with Wilt-Pruf. This should keep these plants from winter burning. But even with this protection, a lack of soil moisture can cause winter drying out of leaves.

Conclusion
Garden inspection during the off season means a better spring start for your plants. So look over your plants now and ready them for wintertime. All signs point to a tough one—so be prepared.

Ceil Chapman Features Bare Shoulders For Spring

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Because American women have enough on their shoulders these days, designer Ceil Chapman apparently decided that the least she could do was take off their shoulder straps.

As a result, willowy, lamp-tanned models strutted before the fashion press today in spring dresses with little more to hold them up than a deep breath.

Miss Chapman's breezy, naked-shoulder idea followed through a series of softly feminine dresses to be worn both under the sun and moon.

But knowing full well you can't ever count on weather to cooperate with fashion, Miss Chapman provided some ruffy cape and coat type coverings which she calls "shelter jackets." Although these may halt a breeze, they are too diaphanous to halt the nude look.

Some of Miss Chapman's costumes for spring have the personalities of a Dr. Jekyll and Mr.

Hyde. One, done in black crepe, is decorous enough for a Sunday School picnic with the jacket on. Without it the bare-shouldered dress is the uniform of a night club siren.

A favorite couturiere of Hollywood and TV stars whose business it is to have an abundance of sex appeal, Miss Chapman always did do her best to dramatize the feminine figure.

Last year she accomplished this by draping and shaping chiffons in the Grecian manner until women were floating, fluttering goddesses.

This year she is wrapping the figure of a woman the Egyptian way, nipping and tucking her favorite fabric (chiffon horizontally and diagonally from hem to neck — or as close to the neck as her dresses get).

She tops off her ladies of the Nile with headgear designed originally by Cleopatra's ancestors.

In the midst of the drapes and ruffles was another of Miss Chapman's severely tailored tuxedo suits originally inspired by her husband's formal wear. The floor-length version was a style rage last season.

Larry Aldrich, who directs the New York Couture Group, also showed his spring collection today to buyers in winter coats. Larry has sleeveless "nothing" dresses, and dresses with plenty of something—that is form, sleeves, collar and pleats now and then.

Terror Of The Spirit

Can't Help But Wonder At Tactics

The new official Soviet line of denunciation of the former dictator Joseph Stalin is bound to have a significant impact not only upon the people of the Soviet Union, but upon people throughout the world as well.

For the first time the former head of the Soviet Union, who in the past has been praised as one of the great communist leaders, has been branded a tyrant whose purges rained death upon literally thousands of innocent people within his party and among his countrymen.

Within a matter of hours the image of Stalin the great leader, Stalin the great worker for the good of common man, Stalin the very bulwark of communism, has been changed into an image of Stalin the murderer, Stalin the monster.

Present Soviet leaders, in usual communist fashion, will use the denunciation of Stalin to boost themselves to new heights of purity and devotion to the good of humanity. They obviously are seeking to create for themselves a popular image that they are the ones who have suddenly discovered the misdeeds of Stalin and have taken swift and forceful steps to see that such misdeeds never again happen under communist rule.

Some people in the Soviet Union and around the world may swallow this line and nod in agreement. Most people, however, probably will call back memories of the high praises which have been heaped upon Stalin, before his death and since, by some of the same Soviet leaders who have now branded him a tyrant and murderer. It will be difficult for them to accept this new Soviet line as a sincere effort to purify the tradition of communist government.

Noting that Khrushchev has made an all-out effort to annihilate the image of a dead leader that threatened his own dictatorship, one cannot help but wonder whether he would not do exactly what he is accusing Stalin of doing in order to perpetuate his own rule.

Reaching Goal Awaits Those Final Reports

Pitt County's United Fund so far has received approximately 85 per cent of its $91,000 goal for the current fund-raising campaign. It needs now for its workers throughout the county who have not completed their solicitations to do so quickly so that the total goal may be achieved.

Many communities throughout Pitt already have reported contributions equal to or exceeding their fair share quota of the total United Fund budget. In other communities, however, contributions have been reported at a slower rate. In spite of this, United Fund officials have expressed confidence that the goal will be reached. In their opinion, it is just a matter of volunteer workers completing their assignments by calling upon the people they are supposed to see during the campaign.

The month of October, which was set aside as United Fund Month in Pitt has now come to a close with many potential contributors to this county-wide undertaking still not contacted. It is important to the United Fund campaign and to the many agencies which look to the United Fund for their financial support, that workers who have not completed their assignments do so within the next few days so that the campaign will not be dragged out.

Citizens of Pitt, we are confident, will come forth with the remaining 15 per cent of the funds which is needed to put the United Fund campaign over the top. We trust that workers who have not completed their assignments will make a special effort in the next few days to do so. We also urge citizens who have not made their annual contribution to the United Fund to do so within the next few days.

Ghost Now Off Nikita's Back

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP)—At the very moment when he needed the utmost freedom and support at home in dealing with the West on Berlin, Premier Khrushchev has stifled his critics and gotten the full support of the Russian Communist party.

For him the throwing of Stalin's body out of his tomb meant his back to a troublesome ghost off his back. Stalin died in 1953 exactly at the end of an era. Khrushchev took over at the beginning of a new one which needed new ideas for dealings at home and abroad.

So long as Stalin remained a Communist saint, embossed in Moscow Square alongside Lenin, those who disagreed with Khrushchev's way of doing things, when they differed from Stalin's, could accuse him of heresy.

This is exactly what was done by the Red Chinese, the Albanians and some of the old Bolshevik companions of Stalin, like Vyacheslav Molotov who, although reduced to a minor position, this year still condemned Khrushchev's tactics.

If Khrushchev, in anger of exasperation, had sought by himself to downgrade Stalin or banish him from his tomb to get rid of the memory of him, he would have been accused not only of heresy but of sacrilege.

So he had the Russian Communist party at its 22nd congress this month do it for him when more than 5,000 cheering delegates ordered Stalin's body taken from his tomb and a monument built in Moscow to the victims of his tortures and purges.

Now the Molotovs, the Albanians, the Red Chinese—if they still want to find fault—must do it with the entire Russian Communist party, not with Khrushchev whom the party has so grandly supported.

But it has taken Khrushchev five years to achieve this final degradation of Stalin, pretty good evidence that after he first denounced Stalin in 1956:

1. The myth of Stalin, who the Russian people had been taught was always right, still persisted and remained a measuring stick by which to judge every new or different action Khrushchev took.

2. He had encountered a lot of criticism and even opposition within the Russian Communist party itself in his efforts to free his hands from the grip of the dead man.

Even one year later, in 1957, Khrushchev must have felt a little uncertain about how far he could go in trying to destroy both the myth and memory of Stalin. In that year, despite what he said in 1956, he still called Stalin a "great Communist" and added "this Stalin we do not want to abandon."

As late as 1959 Khrushchev conceded some Communist party members had opposed his attempt to demolish the Stalin image. So long as his anti-Stalinism could be interpreted as a one-man crusade, he was open to conflict at home, even though minor. And the Stalinist Red Chinese could go after him individually.

But now, after the action of the 22nd party congress, Khrushchev can claim full support by his party got his anti-Stalinism for whatever he does that is for the opposite of what Stalin might have done. Anyone who differs with him now inside Russia or outside must be considered anti-party and anti-Russian but not anti-Khrushchev.

By the time Stalin died in 1953 a new world, different from the one he always knew, was coming to birth. New nations, freshly freed from colonialism, were being born.

New techniques for dealing with them were needed. The Russians couldn't overrun Africa and Asia as they had overrun the satellite nations of Europe in the war. Stalin was unusable. Men in authority have tried to impose their will on others: persuasion, power, Stalin knew only power as he demonstrated in Korea and the Berlin blockade.

At the time of his death, Russia lacked the power of its main (Continued on Page 7)

Most Interest In Good Govmt

By LYNN NISBET MOTIVES — More than 1,000 Democrats from 83 counties in every corner of North Carolina converged on Asheville last Saturday night for a political pow-wow. They paid $25 each for a steak dinner they could have gotten at home and eaten in more comfort for five bucks or less, and they listened to some speechmaking that was not very interesting.

Why did they do it? One man said the attendance was due to a sense of camaraderie, to the ballyhoo buildup that had been given the affair by the Democratic party organization. And it was as well organized and as thoroughly promoted as any event of its kind in many years. Another man said the folks came out of curiosity, they just wanted to see and hear at first hand what other people are doing and saying. Another said the occasion afforded a reasonable excuse for taking a trip to the highlands and the gorgeous extravaganza of color thrown over the mountainsides.

Undoubtedly all of these and other factors entered into the decisions of people to attend the first Vance-Yeocock Democratic fund-raising dinner. A few had more specific and selfish reasons. They were the active candidates for elective office and the small groups of supporters around them.

It was quite evident that for most of the guests the motivating desire was somewhat more than curiosity. It was a genuine interest and concern for good government, and a sort of public confession of belief that good government is more certain under Democratic administration than under other conditions.

CLEARING HOUSE — The Grove Park Inn for the weekend was a clearinghouse of political and economic information, a forum for the exchange of ideas and opinions. The atmosphere was filled with optimistic determination to increase Democratic majorities in the next election; but there were small clouds of warning that the Republicans also are optimistic and determined.

Two or three impressions were inescapable. One is that the Sanford administration faces a major test in the bond election next week. Although the bonds are supposed to be non-partisan, and many Republican leaders are supporting most or all of them, the Sanford administration has adopted the project as a major objective and the Republican organization has announced opposition to all but the college and hospital items. Failure of the bond to carry, or if they win by a very narrow margin in a small vote, will tend to depreciate the administration prestige and leadership. And a small vote seems indicated.

There was evidence of feeling that the people ought to be given more time to digest and assimilate the increased taxes levied by the 1961 General Assembly before adding another $8-10 millions to the debt service obligations every year for the next quarter century. The size of the total vote and the margin of victory for the bonds will have substantial influence on the prestige of the Sanford administration.

ORGANIZATION — Another impression gained from casual conversations around the lobby and the rooms, as well as by some more formal interviews, is that the Democrats are both happy and disturbed over the way the Sanford-Bennett-Hyde group is building the party organization.

They are happy because there is coming back into the picture an organization commanding and demanding respectful allegiance of the rank and file voters. Lacking the regime party integrity was not a vital consideration. Gratification over restoration of the dignity and integrity of the party, as such is slightly dimmed by fear that the new organization may be "too new," that many of the oldtimers who have borne the burden and heat of the battle are being too rapidly replaced by younger inexperienced people.

Lacking knowledge of the historic efforts, these younger folks are inclined to personalize rather than idealize the issues, and to "follow the leader" into a personal machine.

IMPEDIMENTS — While the Sanford-Bennett faction definitely was in majority at Asheville, and they had the backing of the Washington members of the Kennedy staff, they were acutely conscious that other ideas were represented.

Beverly Lake who ran Sanford into a scared second primary last year, was much in evidence — surrounded by a staunch corps of loyal financial and working supporters. Lake is not "running for Governor" now — but it's easy to get bets he will be in 1964. Woodrow Jones, sided by Ben Sumner and other conservatives, was the center of a lot of attention. So was Joe Hunt, Speaker of the 1961 House and now more or less actively campaigning for Governor.

What most of the folks went to Asheville for was to find out, if they could, how these several potential candidates are getting along. Perhaps no positive conclusions could be drawn from the information gathered, except the general opinion that the next two or three years will be very interesting in North Carolina politics, and that predictions now about what will happen in 1964 have little factual basis.

And now another observance is on the way, and it effects an important one, since it effects so many people — American Education Week, beginning Sunday, Nov. 5.

Relating to this observance, we received some information that tells us the school bus system is the largest transportation system in the world.

This is why: More school buses carry more children to and from school now than ever before, according to recent statistics from the U. S. Office of Education. The number of school buses in service last year totaled 161,391.

In addition to these, some 18,388 station wagons and other vehicles driven by education minded mothers transported children to school.

Over twelve and a half million children are transported to school at public expense. Next week, after American Education Week starts, tip your hat to the orange transportation system as a reminder of schools and children who attend them, and the teachers in particular.

Other Editors Saying More Than A Stadium

Two interesting items in the newspapers recently point up a good lesson in the field of education. The first is that there were 4,500 qualified students turned away from the colleges in this state at the beginning of the school term, because the rolls were filled.

is worthy of the highest praise. When our citizens provide the extra college facilities, and tax money the necessities, a full and adequate educational program is assured.

There are some unmistakable conclusions which may be drawn from this record enrollment. The first is the fact that demand for higher education is still on the rise and is not falling as some predicted it would. Secondly, the need for larger facilities at Greenville, which is being met in every way possible, will reach a limit as available space is converted to new dormitories and college facilities. Finally, it means the need for more community colleges all over the area has not been filled and until it has been, the greatest potential of ECC itself cannot be reached.

A Challenge to Kinston (Kinston Free Press) East Carolina College has reached a new peak enrollment of 5,283 students. This includes a freshman class of 1,977 persons, but does not include the more than 1,800 students now taking extension work at ECC branch units at Camp Lejeune, Cherry Point and Seymour Johnson Air Base, as well as at other points over Eastern Carolina.

The effort to secure a community college for Lenoir County, which is now nearing a new and crucial stage in the completion of another survey, is an issue that should be pushed with all possible vigor. The people should know how much it will mean to them in savings for their own children's education, and in the total picture for the whole State.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS ARE YOU? The story is told of a certain Irishman who one day entered a fashionable restaurant intent on getting himself the meal of his life. He ordered the first item on the menu and it was soup. Then he ordered the second item. That was soup, also. Then the third—soup. Then the fourth—soup.

At last he pushed back his chair and wiping his mouth with the back of his hand said, "Patrick, you had the change of your life to have a swell meal, and you're full of soup."

Many people today are in the same situation. Wonderful books have been written through the centuries and these people waste their time reading trash. There is good music—heavenly music—which has been composed to solace and thrill the heart of men yet many people content themselves with a variety of discords which threaten to drive some of us oldsters to distraction.

There are opportunities for culture which many of us fail to take by day, for we are full of soup. We can't appreciate the best because we have glutted ourselves perhaps with the good, or the mediocre, or the bad. Read carefully and with discrimination. Some great books are being written today. Musical masterpieces have never died. Culture is being created right now, not so fast probably as it was in the days of Pericles and his fellow Greeks, but nevertheless quite rapidly.

What's Going On When Wife Treats You Like A Sultan?

By DENNIS MURRAY
Women's New Service

I got home a wee bit late the other night, having lingered at Costello's store with Mike McAuliffe, and smelling slightly of Dublin Dew, having lingered with Mike McAuliffe.

Jenny met me at the door with a kiss and said, "You must be tired. Slip off your shoes and sit in the easy chair. Dinner will be ready as soon as you finish the cocktail I'm going to make for you."

One of the more amazing points of this adventure is that she put more gin than vermouth in my martini, a phenomenon that has rarely occurred since my family landed at Castle Garden several generations ago.

We had steak and oyster pie, one of my favorite dishes, although I know Jenny doesn't like oysters and always slips hers into the pocket of her plastic apron. When I said I didn't care to watch television with her because there were no fights nor wrestling, she did not object and said, "Why don't you go to bed?"

For breakfast the next morning she served me thick, smoked-cured bacon with two eggs and a mess of hash-browned potatoes along with coffee and toast which, the saints be praised, was burned on neither side.

She called me at work early in the afternoon to ask how I felt and what I would like for dinner. Cagily, I said I would leave it up to her and when I got home we had prime ribs of beef with lots of rare meat, Yorkshire pudding and asparagus with hollandaise sauce.

I thought I saw through all this when she remarked that her mother would like to come over that evening. So that was it!

"No," I said, in a sort of exploratory fashion, "I want to go bowling tonight."

"Of course, Dennis, my dove," she said, "I'll phone mother to come over later on. You go bowl and be sure to take the front door key with you because I will probably be sound asleep when you get home."

I had mentioned bowling on the spur of the moment, only to try out my parole officer and I had, in fact, no date at the alleys. I saw no one I knew, so I bowled a few practice games and adjourned myself to the neighborhood tavern until I thought Jenny was asleep.

"Jenny, I can stand this no longer!" I said. "What is all this about? Have you finally bought that mink you have been talking about for six years? Has your mother lost her savings and decided to live with us? Has your boyhood sweetheart just returned from the Gobi desert?"

"Dennis, I don't know what you are talking about," she replied sweetly. "What would you like for dinner tonight?"

"Fresh peaches stuffed with Morro crab!" I snapped.

"I'll do it," she said. "I can get the fresh peaches from an importing fruiterer downtown. The Morro crab will be a lot more difficult, because we have cut off imports from Cuba, where most of them grow. But perhaps I can have some flown in from the Bahamas. Good-by, Dennis, and have a good day."

I departed, more concerned than ever. I was sure Jenny hadn't done anything wrong. I was sure she hadn't committed my salary beyond my ability to pay. I was sure she wasn't interested in another man.

I determined to get to the bottom of it that night.

"Jenny!" I demanded when I came home. "I demand to know what this is all about. Why steak and oyster pie? Why all this sweetness and light? Why this bowling pass? Souffles for breakfast? Yorkshire pudding?"

"Have you put our savings into a Canadian gold mine? Have you adopted an orphan? Did you burn my stamp collection?"

Jenny's eyelids quivered and then she threw herself into my arms, sobbing. "I only read an article in a woman's magazine, she blubbered. "It was on how to make your husband fall in love with you again. I said to cater to his every whim. Dennis, I've just been trying."

I kissed the end of her runny nose and said I had to go upstairs and sort my socks. I locked the bedroom door after me and lay down on the bed. I don't think it's unmanly for a man to cry a little bit, do you?

Abandon City Evacuation Plans In Event Of Attack

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has abandoned, for all practical purposes, the idea of evacuating city dwellers ahead of any oncoming nuclear bombs and missiles.

The Pentagon will not discourage local and state civil defense authorities from making evacuation plans if they choose, said a spokesman for the Office of Civil Defense.

But he added, "Evacuation certainly takes second place to fallout shelters in Washington's planning."

The fact now recognized, but never clearly acknowledged previously, is that fleeing into open countryside—even if there was ample warning time—would not protect populations from the mafor nuclear hazard, radioactive fallout.

One member of Congress, Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., has demanded the removal of the blue "Civil Defense Route" signs that mark the highways of his state and others.

The signs are dangerous and misleading, Kastenmeier said in a letter to OGD Director Stuart L. Pittman, because they breed false hopes of escape by flight and "deceive people as to the real danger they would face in nuclear war."

While Kastenmeier waited for a reply, an OGD spokesman called attention to a little-noted talk by Pittman at a conference of local Civil Defense officials on Oct. 19. It amounted to a repudiation of evacuation as a basis for national protective planning.

"For many years reliance has been placed on evacuation as a cornerstone of Civil Defense planning," Pittman said. "As applied to the problem of surprise attack a new emphasis is clearly necessary. In general we all know that short warning time in the missile age and the long reach of fallout requires reorientation of many local plans around the movement of people into nearby shelters."

The shift in emphasis from evacuation to the shelter concept was crystallized in President Kennedy's decision to give the Defense department money and authority for a vast, nationwide shelter program. The goal is to provide perhaps 250,000 shelter areas in cities, mainly in existing structures. Until the Pentagon took over, however, Civil Defense officials seemed reluctant to admit the evacuation planning—for which the government formerly provided financial help—has become an outdated concept.

An official said, "The idea has been developing a long while. It's just a case of the Pentagon being brave enough to speak out."

In testimony in August Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara told a government operations subcommittee that "the rust out from the city is impractical simply because of the time available."

THE GREEN STONE

A suspense thriller by SUZANNE BLANC

From the novel published by Harper & Row. Copyright © 1961 by Suzanne Blanc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
 On a lonely stretch of the Monterey-Mexico City highway, death struck like lightning. Mr. and Mrs. Randall, tourists from the United States, were motoring southward when, at a curve, an expertly placed bullet struck Randall the driver, through the eye into the brain. The car careened into a crash that killed Mrs. Randall, too. Then three native Indians scurried from behind the rocks, and while the eldest searched for and took the pesos from the corpse of the man, his son Manuel disobeyed by taking an emerald ring from the woman's finger. Rings could be traced, the father had warned, but pesos could not be.

That night, fearful of discovery by his father and police, the youth hid the emerald from his father. Keeping the stone, he fled the setting from a hill, and as morning sunshine glistened upon the metal, a crow swooped down, and carried it away.

The crash looked like an ordinary highway accident to Inspector Roberto of the police until the fact that no pesos were found on the bodies caused them to suspect that the wreck had been looted, and they went to work on the case.

CHAPTER 4
 Inspector Menendes, who had been tossing all night on the living room couch, covered himself with an afghan and settled back for another hour of rest. So far his sleep had been punctuated by worry about the accident report that would have to be written.

The questions he had asked of Sergeant Roberto were the very ones that would be asked of him. Since his subordinate insisted on following exact police procedure let him at least be thorough. Knowing the sergeant's attitude toward his own unorthodox methods, the inspector took grim pleasure in pointing out Roberto's omissions; yet on the whole he preferred working with Roberto than with any of the other regular police.

Honest and painstaking in time, with the proper guidance, he would make a good detective. Already he was beginning to notice facts that were out of context, like the shortage of pesos. Nevertheless, the inspector knew that tracers would be futile. And as for anything else, the untouched quality of the wreck as shown in the photographs indicated that nothing of importance would be missing.

Now, as he closed his eyes again, Menendes thought of the photographs, searching for something that eluded him. Only for a moment he saw them clearly, then wait. Shortly before three o'clock a policeman brought him two white envelopes containing the bullets. One had been found on the road, apparently shattered by the rocks. The other taken from the wreckage of the car, was also damaged and, as evidence, equally useless.

The bullets were thirty-thirty's, confirming the mortician's conclusion that Mr. Randall had been killed by a high-velocity rifle—probably, the inspector decided, a Winchester.

After examining the bullets, the inspector no longer doubted that the crime had been committed by an Indian from the nearby village. But which Indian? The bullets couldn't tell him. His only hope of finding the murderer lay in Sergeant Roberto's return with the ring.

Brando Says 'Mutiny On Bounty' Worst Ordeal

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Mutiny on the Bounty" is scheduled to finish shooting today. Thus will end what Marlon Brando called "the worst experience of my acting career."

Except that it won't be the end. He has been told that the company will take off two weeks while the finished product is assembled, then shoot added scenes which will take "between three and six weeks." Brando fears it may be months.

The actor was eloquent when I visited his dressing room. He had been on the set since 9 a.m. and was being dismissed for lunch without having worked. "Yesterday I was here at 9 and we got the first shot at 3," he said. "That's the way the picture has gone."

"Yes, I know some people will crab. 'What's he got to bleed about? He's getting well paid' ($5,000 a day overtime). But after you've got enough, money doesn't matter."

Brando said he had volunteered to forego his salary when the film hit a reef in Tahiti. He wanted the company to shut down until a playable script could be written. The offer was rejected.

"I've asked for a finished script for a year and a half," he said. "There have been 30 different versions of the script, but never have I received a finished script."

"We went to Tahiti with no idea of how the final third of the picture was going to be. How could you write a novel if you didn't know how it was going to end?"

"A week ago I decided I'd had it—plus eight. I was so frustrated, so tied up, I was getting palpitations. I had indigestion all the time. I was snapping at aspirin like a Christmas goose pecking corn."

"I finally went to the front office and said no more show until I get the last 10 pages of script. I was promised them first thing in the morning. I didn't get them in the morning. They promised them at 2. The pages came at 2 and I asked if they would be the final, unchanged version. I was told they would be. And look—"

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo. (AP)

—Somebody put up a homemade sign on Bennett Avenue: "Caution, Radar patrolled." Bill Rader is the police chief.

He displayed the pages, a mass of revisions.

Recent printed reports portrayed Brando as a villain in pushing the film to a record cost—now $18.5 million.

"If I do something stupid, I expect to get rapped for it," he said. "If I give a lousy performance I expect to get num reviews. But I don't expect to get blamed for something I haven't done."

At the end of his report he sighed a deep, Brando sigh.

"I don't care what happens now," he said. "I just want to get it over with—before I lose my mind."

adversary: the United States. This country at the time of Stalin's death had the hydrogen bomb and Russia didn't. Russia didn't develop its own hydrogen weapon until some months after Stalin's death.

But once it got it—just because its power of annihilation was so enormous—one wrong step by either great power could mean annihilation for both. So new tactics—like subversion, guerrilla war, foreign aid, propaganda, just to mention a few—were needed.

Khrushchev himself perhaps best summed up his realization of why and how he had to shove the memory of Stalin out of sight when, in 1959, explaining his attacks on Stalin, he said it had to be done to "liberate the creative forces of the people, to open the road toward something new."

Yet, from this moment on Khrushchev is not likely to have peace in his lifetime. For, having degraded Stalin with party support, no matter how hard he works he must always wonder whether the same thing will happen to him when he's dead and some successor wants to free himself from the memory of Khrushchev.

Fallout Hazards Believed To Be Largely For Future

EDITOR'S NOTE—Soviet weapons testing has set off a worldwide wave of concern over radioactive fallout. Can the hazards to you and your family be accurately assessed? What's the best scientific consensus? This is the first of three articles on the subject.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The scariest word of the day is fallout. But experts say no one can point to any human being and declare: "He's been hurt by fallout from bomb tests." Or: "That woman's baby will be born defective because of fallout, or her grandchildren will."

pie—from fallout already loosed by bomb tests.
The Soviet 50-megaton bomb test could add perhaps hundreds or even thousands of potential victims to the list.
But one fact must be made clear. All such estimates mean thousands out of hundreds of millions or even billions of persons who would be born in the next 30, 50 to 100 years or more.
"Fallout" triggers a host of other scary words: Radioactivity. Mystery. Bone cancer. "Poisoned milk" for babies. Children doomed from bad genes. Leukemia. Strontium. Ashes of death.
Fallout stirs vast emotions, including worry that testing of weapons increases chances of nuclear war.
For 15 years, scientists have been gathering the story about fallout.
But they cannot yet answer a key question: Exactly how little radiation does it take to cause human cancer or leukemia? Or to damage the genes which determine the inheritance of our children?

This is one basis for statements by scientists which seem confusing often to the public.
Some say the effects from past and present fallout are too tiny even to measure. They do not deny there will not be some effects.
Others estimate numbers.
Thus Dr. Linus Pauling, Nobel Prize-winning chemist, estimates 40,000 children would be born with physical and mental defects as a direct consequence of a single 50-megaton bomb. He says this would happen during the next several generations—60 to 90 years or more—among an estimated 100 million children born each year all around the world.
Fallout even from the Soviet tests, says a U. S. Public Health Service official, "is a cause for concern, but not yet for alarm."
Look at the significant details in the fallout story, and you can judge better for yourself what the hazards are.

in the ground, and in rocks, in cement and in bricks, shoot at you constantly with X rays.
All of this unavoidably adds up to an average exposure of about 4½ roentgens of radiation in 30 years of living. Roentgens are a measure of radiation intensity.
An efficient X ray of the chest exposes you to 1-10th to 1-25 of one roentgen.
A 5 per cent increase in radiation due to bomb test fallout means that in 30 years, the average person would get exposed to about 1-5th of a roentgen more.

But there are other important considerations beyond this.
Thursday: Fallout and effects on heredity.

Noted Pianist Plays At College Tonight

Geza Anda, internationally renowned pianist, who will appear on the East College Entertainment Series tonight, has received "rave" reviews following his concerts and his appearances with leading orchestras in this country and abroad. He is now touring the United States for the fourth time.
The concert here, a highlight of the series of attractions offered at the college this school year, will take place at 8:15 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium.

that I can recollect hearing here."
Anda began the study of music at the Royal Academy of Music in his native Hungary at the age of thirteen. At the academy he was for two years a pupil of the famous composer-pianist Ernst von Dohnanyi. He won there the national Franz Liszt Prize, which was awarded every three years to the best young pianist in Hungary on a competitive basis.
At nineteen he made his Budapest debut and later in 1942 his Berlin debut.

The Hungarian-born virtuoso, who now lives in Switzerland, is described by the Saturday Review as a "star of the first magnitude." Reviewing his appearance in Washington, D. C., with the Philadelphia Orchestra, Paul Hume of the Washington Post described the performance as "absolute perfection" and "a model for other pianists, few of whom will ever succeed in approaching it."

After the close of the war he filled engagements throughout Europe, playing in Holland, Belgium, Spain, Portugal, Norway, Denmark, and Sweden.

ANOTHER UNION

Playing with the Chicago Symphony, Anda "scored spectacularly," according to Roger Detmer of the Chicago American, and made the "most spectacular debut

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Brur Langhorne, 11, of Raleigh, N.C., was disgusted when he found a "union made" sticker on his Confederate hat. He sold it. But he got another and wore it happily after it was explained that union didn't mean Yankee in this instance.

Scientists generally agree that all the radioactivity from testing—until the Soviets resumed—had increased by only a few per cent the amount of natural radioactivity in which all humans have always lived.
Current Soviet tests could increase the added amount by two-thirds. But that still means perhaps a total over-all of 5 to 6 per cent more radiation than has always existed naturally.
What, first of all, is the natural or background radiation?
It means that every minute, 5,400 potassium atoms break down and emit rays in the body of a 130-pound person.
Every minute, more than 2,000 radioactive carbon-14 atoms explode also.
You get in food the radioactive potassium, which has always been on the earth. Carbon-14 atoms, created by cosmic rays, drift down from the atmosphere to enter living plants, animals, and human beings.
Cosmic rays zip through the human body at a rate of about 1,000 per minute, and some might cause genetic changes. If you live at an altitude of one mile, as in Denver, you are hit by twice as many cosmic rays as persons at sea level.
We all breathe radioactive gases from radium and thorium. Uranium, radium and thorium

Miami Has Big Refugee Problem

EDITOR'S NOTE—The arrival in Miami of thousands of Cubans fleeing Castro's dictatorship has strained the city's resources in many ways. One of the greatest challenges is in the schools.

By LOUIS UCHITELLE

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — After a frustrating first-grade reading period, the young teacher told her pupils to sit down and put their papers in their desks.

A few did. Most didn't. Of the entire class of 25 Cuban refugees, only three speak English.

As the pupils stood there, milling uncertainly, the teacher tried a bit: "Sit down—sitase. Put your papers away—like this." Finally, as even her demonstration failed, she asked a bilingual student to tell the others what she had said. A burst of Spanish from Juanita brought quick action and neat desks.

This teacher was trying to deal with one of the most difficult situations in Miami's widespread effort to teach English to more than 89,000 Cubans who have fled from Fidel Castro's regime and settled here.

Perhaps as many as 18,000 are speaking English, including 9,500 children in the public schools, 3,000 in the parochial schools and 3,000 in adult classes run by the public school system.

The Riverside Elementary School has 1,380 pupils and 90 per cent of them are Cubans.

The classes have been divided into those in which all the students speak English and those in which few speak English.

"Until this year, we mixed the English and non-English speaking students in the same classes and I think the Cuban youngsters learned faster because children are natural mimics," said Edith Chase, Riverside's principal.

Ed Hurst, an assistant superintendent of schools, explained: "We must run an American school system. Since a teacher teaches to the level of the majority of her class, if too many Spanish-speaking students change the level, then the classes must be separated."

School officials have announced that 7,500 of the 9,500 Cuban children can't speak English. Most of them are at the elementary level. Roughly 25 of the 150 elementary schools in the system have separated their classes along language lines.

The junior and senior high schools, with Cuban enrollments of less than 10 per cent for the most part, continue to mix classes although those who can't speak English attend an orientation class for at least one period a day. The Catholic parochial schools do the same, although three have Cuban enrollments of more than 50 per cent.

The Cubans prefer mixed classes.

Shenandoah Junior High School has 340 Cubans in a total enrollment of 1,760. School Principal H. H. Plotts says many Cubans are sending their children to live with relatives and friends in the district.

"Although the practice is illegal, it is difficult to catch them," Plotts said. "The Cubans know that the best way for their children to learn English is to send them to school with Americans."

To help solve the English problem, the school system has hired a special adviser: Dr. Pauline M. Rojas, former language consultant to the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and former head of the English section for the government of Puerto Rico.

"All over Miami people are teaching English to Cubans," Dr. Rojas said. "Many of them are wasting their time because they don't know how to teach a language."

"What the public schools really need right now are the right sort of books for teaching English. This is a scientific problem which has been studied and solved in textbook form."

Hurst has replied that the money is not available to buy the books which Dr. Rojas suggests.

Noise Is Merely Singing Tires

DECATUR, Ala. (AP) — After Interstate 65 was opened through north Alabama last year, the highway was dotted with cars pulled up on the shoulder, drivers peering under the hoods.

Service stations along the route were busy with motorists seeking a mechanical checkup.

But that noise drivers feared was motor trouble was merely their tires singing. The singing is caused by tiny ridges in the concrete to help make the highway skid-resistant.

Now the department has placed signs along the route advising travelers the cause of the noise.

Tree-Growing Shortcut Sought

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Forestry experts are trying to find shortcuts in growing trees. They are trying to find ways to reforest southwest Florida's cut-over lands with tropical hardwoods that grow and mature faster than the native slash pine.

The latest experiment is a planting of eucalyptus which mature in 20 years or less, compared to 30 years for a native slash pine. Some tropical hardwoods can be cut in less than 10 years for making pulp paper. Others, such as casahuate, produce oils for medicine such as cough drops and

Reflecting On SPORTS

By George Bryant

Athletes and College

With college entrance requirements getting stiffer and stiffer each year, so goes the days when a boy could go to college just because he could play football or any other intercollegiate sport. This is a topic which has been talked about and hashed and rehashed all over the nation for years and years. Recently the plight of the college athlete has been discussed at the Rose High Touchdown Club meetings by representatives of all of the big four schools and also East Carolina.

The fact that the school representatives brought scholastic ability into their talks is coincidental. They were not asked to discuss the problem, but all thought it important enough to mention. Probably the major change is the fact that athletes have to score the same thing on the college boards that other students do. In the past this has not been the case. Schools would take them on their athletic ability and tutor them until their eligibility ran out.

With the stiffer requirements the colleges and universities have found that it doesn't pay to take a boy who can not pass the work. Coaches have found that it is too costly to have a boy who can play only one or two years and then flunk out. Coach Jack Boone of East Carolina says that is the reason for the different type football players in schools today. By this he meant that the big bruiser type is no longer around.

The harder requirements also contribute to the fact that many schools look to other states for ball players. The explanation for this is that there are just not enough good football players graduating from North Carolina high schools who can get in college and stay there. Ernie Williamson of the University of North Carolina said that the student with a C average in high school is just about left out as far as college is concerned, or at least it will come to that very soon.

We feel the stiffer requirements are just and that students, especially athletes, who plan to go to college should take this into consideration and buckle down scholastically all the way through high school, not just their senior year as many have done in the past. Colleges are now looking over the entire high school record of prospective athletes and students and not just the senior year as in the past.

Football This Week

East Carolina will face a tough Lenoir Rhyne eleven Saturday night here in Greenville for the last home game of the season. Coach Jack Boone and his staff seem to feel that it will be an interesting and exciting ball game as it is a championship game for the visiting Bears. A win would almost assure them of their sixth consecutive conference championship and their ninth championship since 1951. A win for East Carolina would not necessarily put the Pirates back in the race for championship honors, but it would certainly be a moral victory over their old nemesis.

Margin Will Be Slim If Citadel Wins Conference

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
If The Citadel's rambunctious Cadets win the Southern Conference football championship this year the margin by which they'll do it will be one foot. Bill Gilgo's foot to be exact.

Gilgo is a 295-pound senior end whose talents cause Coach Eddie Teague to wax lyrical. He can block—he can defend, he can catch passes—but most of all, he can kick extra points and field goals.

Two of the Cadets' four conference victories—10-8 over William and Mary, 9-8 over Furman—have been achieved on Gilgo field goals. Last week, one of his placements enabled The Citadel to edge Xavier, 7-6.

Minus Gilgo, the Cadets now would be 2-3 instead of 4-1 in the conference standings, and 3-4-1 instead of 5-2 against all comers.

Teague finds Gilgo's availability a comforting thing as he prepares the Cadets, who have a five-game winning streak, for the game at VMI Saturday that could bring them their first conference championship.

"We know if we can get the ball as far as the other team's 30-yard line, Bill can kick a field goal for us," says Teague. "He's the pro-type kicker—strong and accurate, and without a nerve in his body."

Gilgo has booted three field goals this season and has connected on 8 of 11 extra-point kicks.

There are four league games this week. Besides The Citadel at VMI, they have Davidson at William and Mary, Virginia Tech at Richmond and West Virginia at George Washington. Furman takes on tough non-league Memphis State, 40-0 winner over The Citadel in the Bulldogs' opening game.

John R. Chuckran, former Penn State athlete, is football coach at Allegheny College.

Unimpressive In Uniform But Brilliant Quarterback

By JERRY GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP)—Jerry Gross is an unimpressive sight in a football uniform—short, light, dwarfed by his Detroit teammates. Then he takes charge of the Titans and cocks his right arm and a brilliant quarterback is in action.

The nation's major college individual total offense leader weighs only 170 pounds and must stand up rigidly to reach 5-foot-10. But Gross is the biggest since to wear a Detroit uniform since the fabled days of Lloyd Brazil, more than 30 years ago.

Lenoir Rhyne Fast According To Scout

The East Carolina Pirates Club heard Assistant Pirate Coach Sal Gero give a scouting report on Lenoir Rhyne last night in which he said that the Bears are a fast club, but they make mistakes.

Gero scouted the Lenoir Rhyne-Wittenberg game Saturday night in preparation for the East Carolina game this week. He reported that fullback Richard Kemp is an excellent ball player and does a fine job for the Bears. A single wing club, the Bears have three boys playing the tailback spot.

However, Gero said that Tom Erown seems to be carrying a good bit of the tailback load. "He has a great deal of running and passing ability," Gero said.

Although the Lenoir Rhyne eleven won the game with Wittenberg, they did it in the final few minutes of the contest. Gero said that even though the Bears made a lot of mistakes, East Carolina could look for a real hard game to top off their home schedule.

Fullback Billy Strickland was the guest of the Club last night from the team. He talked about

Every year about this time, the North Carolina football team groans, holds its nose and prepares to down a bitter pill—the University of Tennessee and its hard-hitting single wing.

How does Coach Jim Hickey feel about meeting the Volunteers next Saturday?
"I hate it," Hickey told his weekly press luncheon.

Hickey and his predecessors have reason to hate it for the past several seasons. Since the heyday of Charlie Justice in the late 1940s, North Carolina has beaten Tennessee only once in the past 12 years. Most of those years it wasn't even close.

Hickey remarked that the single wing "poses so many different defensive problems, especially for your ends, and we have only three days to get ready."

He and assistant coach Vito Razzzo singled out tailbacks Malton Faircloth, George Canale and Glenn Glass, and fullback Bunny Orr among Tennessee's best backfield men.

The Tar Heels continued work on new defenses Tuesday. Senior halfback Lenny Beck likely will miss his third straight game because of a knee injury.

Blocking was emphasized in North Carolina State's workout for the Saturday night game with Mississippi Southern at Jackson. Several players who missed the practice were expected back today.

Wake Forest, which is near the bottom of the Atlantic Coast Conference in rushing defense, got in intensive line work. "We'll have to play good defense if we expect to stay in the game with Auburn," said Coach Bill Hildebrand.

Jim Costen had the range on long and short passes to John Caskey and Ken Lester as South Carolina worked out for the Virginia game. Henry Crosby's broken field running also was notable.

At Virginia, it was a day for passing, too—particularly for distance. Coach Bill Elias juggled his starting backfield somewhat, putting Stan Fischer at quarterback Bobby Freeman and Carl Kunn at halves, and Willis Williams at fullback.

A one practice session was held at Duke, touching on passing, running, kicking and defense. Trainer Bob Chambers said the Blue Devils suffered no disabling injuries against North Carolina State. Duke plays at Michigan Saturday.

Maryland Coach Tom Nugent said Tuesday there might be some lineup changes after today's scrimmage.

Sophomore quarterback Tommy Black, recovered from an injury, returned to practice at Clemson as did Joe Anderson, Mac Renwick and Gary Rankin. But No. 1 quarterback Jim Parker still was sidelined with an injured hand. The Tigers meet Tulane Saturday.

British promoter Jack Solomons hopes to stage the bout in London in a month. Details still have to be worked out.

Chargers Could 'Do All Right' In Any League

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
Sid Gillman claims his unbeaten San Diego Chargers would "do all right" in any pro football league and could win the championship anywhere with about six more players.

Gillman's Chargers, winners of eight straight, can clinch a tie for the Western Division title of the American Football League this weekend. If the second-place Dallas Texans (3-4) lose to Boston Friday night, and San Diego (8-0) thumps the New York Titans in a rematch Sunday, the Chargers could lose them all and still wind up in a playoff.

The Chargers' coach, who bossed the Los Angeles Rams in the National Football League from 1955 to 1959, said in San Diego today that he was not concerned about throwing the new league out of balance.

"I don't care how many we win," he said. "As far as I'm concerned the kind of balance I'd like to see in this league is underneath with the Chargers way out front."

"We think we have a good football team. Give us about six more good football players and we'd win anywhere."

Gillman couldn't say enough nice things about Jack Kemp, his 26-year-old passer who has been bothered by an injury to his left shoulder.

"I think Kemp will be one of the great ones," said Gillman. "The kid had a few opportunities in the other league where he always was playing behind a veteran. If Kemp doesn't hit his pace as the greatest in the game, blame it on mishandling."

But it was the defense that really set off Gillman. "We have the biggest defensive line in pro football," he said. He wasn't kidding.

Rookie Ernie Ladd (6-9, 310) of Grambling, rookie Earl Faison (6-4, 260) of Indiana and holdovers Bill Hudson (6-4, 275), the defensive captain, and Ron Nery (6-6, 240) have to be among the biggest.

"Chuck Allen (middle linebacker) is the find of the year," he added. "He is the kid from Washington's Rose Bowl team. Our Defense has intercepted about 30 passes, four a game. And Charlie McNeil and Dick Harris have been sensational."

In the fields near his Bay City, Mich., home.

Detroit, seeking national football recognition, figures its potato picking passer can spring an upset against Army.

"We came pretty close to beating Navy," said John Idzik, Detroit's offensive backfield coach, "and we feel Navy is tougher than Army."

Pirates Take Lead In Pass Defense

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Appalachian lost one of its departmental leads but gained another during the past week's football games in the Carolinas Conference.

The Mountaineers leadership in the two major departments, total offense and total defense, remains unthreatened, and the Apps also lead in rushing and passing of offense.

East Carolina took over from the Apps as the No. 1 team on pass defense and Lenoir Rhyne remains the staunchest defense on the ground.

Although their average per game dropped somewhat in turning back East Carolina 16-14 last Saturday, Appalachian still is the league's total offense leader with an average of 266 yards per contest, according to Carolinas Conference Service Bureau figures.

On defense, the Mountaineers have checked the foe on an average of 180.1 yards.

Lenoir Rhyne is the No. 2 team on total offense at 246.1, and New-

Ohio State's Ferguson Is Almost Unstoppable

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer
To say that Ohio State fullback Bob Ferguson is unstoppable may be a slight exaggeration but it is closer to the truth than the Iowa Hawkeyes would like to believe. Iowa has to face the fifth-ranked Buckeyes this Saturday in a crucial Big Ten game that earlier had the implications of a showdown for the conference title and perhaps national championship honors. But Iowa was upset last week by Purdue while Ferguson powered the Buckeyes to a 30-21 victory over Wisconsin. So now the Hawkeyes, ranked ninth nationally, turn to try and check the 216-pound senior All-American from Troy, Ohio. Last week against Wisconsin, he gained 124 yards, getting 52 in 7 carries on the Buckeyes second touchdown drive.

In another crucial big Ten clash Saturday, pitting top-ranked Michigan State against Minnesota, the latter will have its top backfield intact now that Bill Munsey is back at right halfback after being injured. Michigan State still isn't sure if backs Gary Ballman and Herman Johnson will be ready.

Army hit the injury doldrums when Joe Blackgrove, its speedy halfback who can also take a turn as a quarterback, was idled by a sprained ankle. The Cadets already have lost No. 1 signal-caller Dick Eckert for two weeks and will use soph Jim Beierschmitt against the University of Detroit this week.

Missouri, prepping for its key Big Eight contest against Colorado lost Larry Nichols, its top pass receiver, for the season. He had been advised to drop football because of evidence of organic heart disease.

Syracuse's veteran backfield was reunited for its battle against Pitt when co-captain Dick Easterly returned at right half after being injured three weeks ago. Soph quarterback Tom O'Grady was elevated to the No. 1 spot at Northwestern for his work against Notre Dame while the Irish may have lost center Tom Hecomo-

Michigan tackle John Schopf will miss this week's game against Duke because of injuries.

Ray Berry, offensive end of the Baltimore Colts, and Jim Welch, defensive halfback, both attended SMU.

YALE IS FIRST
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The longest, if not the best run of the day, as Yale conquered Brown 14-3 was turned in by the losing football team's cheerleader who swiped a Yale megaphone. It was a 70-yard jaunt. He was hauled down by a pair of Yale counterparts.

Michigan State Is Picked

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Every so often it pays to be reminded of the late Bob Zuppke's statement that a football is a prolate spheroid filled with crazy bounces. Last week there were 17 crazy bounces that were not anticipated in 55 chances. That's .691.

Now for this week's bounces: Michigan State over Minnesota; Sandy Stephens has been as good a quarterback as there is in the country for the Gophers these past two weeks but he hasn't encountered such a horde of talent as Michigan State will display. Mississippi over Louisiana State: The Ole Miss defense is so stingy it has given up only 13 points to a total of six foes. Texas over Southern Methodist: The nation's best offensive team won't miss fullback Ray Poage.

Alabama over Mississippi State: Pat (Trammell) and Mike (Prachis) give Alabama a big edge. Ohio State over Iowa: Bob Ferguson, the Ohio State fullback, is the difference.

Elsewhere in other major games: Georgia Tech over Florida, Colorado over Missouri, Notre Dame over Navy, Purdue over Illinois, Utah State over Brigham Young, Northwestern over Indiana, Kansas over Nebraska, Penn State over Maryland, Syracuse over Pitt, Washington over Southern Cal, Miami (Fla.) over Georgia.

EAST: Army over Detroit, Iowa State over Boston College, Princeton over Brown, Cornell over Columbia, Holy Cross over Dayton, Rutgers over Lafayette, Colgate over Lehigh, Dartmouth over Yale.

SOUTH: Auburn over Wake Forest, Clemson over Tulane.

West Virginia over George Washington, Kentucky over Florida State, Memphis State over Furman, North Carolina State over Mississippi Southern, Richmond over Virginia Tech, South Carolina over Virginia, William & Mary over Davidson, North Carolina over Tennessee.

MIDWEST: Bowling Green over West Texas State, Oklahoma over Kansas State, Cincinnati over Tulsa, Wichita over Oklahoma State, Xavier over Louisville.

SOUTHWEST: Arkansas over California, Texas A & M, Baylor over Texas Christian, Texas Western over Hardin Simmons, North Texas State over Drake, Rice over Texas Tech, New Mexico State over Trinity.

FAR WEST: Air Force over Colorado State University, Wyoming over Arizona, University of Pacific over Idaho, Utah over New Mexico, Oregon State over Washington State, Arizona State over San Jose State, Stanford over Oregon, UCLA over California.

Lineman Of The Week Is Barnett

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Steve Barnett, known as the "Baby Buffalo" to his University of Oregon teammates, was selected as the Lineman of the Week today by The Associated Press.

Barnett, a 252-pound tackle, won the honor in the weekly Associated Press poll of sportswriters and broadcasters for his sterling play that helped Oregon beat Washington 7-6 last Saturday.

Gifted with exceptional speed and agility, he played a terrific defensive game. Len Casanova, Oregon coach, reportedly said after the game that Barnett played a "perfect defensive game."

Steve is a 20-year-old junior from Fremont, Calif. He stands 6 feet, 1 inch and is very durable. He played 378 minutes last year as a sophomore and is regarded as one of the best tackles on the Pacific Coast.

Barnett beat out his teammate, Kent Petersen, a senior end from Long Beach, Calif. Petersen caught several key passes and, like Barnett, played a bangup game on defense.

Two other ends, Hal Bedsole of Southern California and Pat Richter of Wisconsin, were cited for their fine play.

Texas Is Top Offensive nit

NEW YORK (AP)—Texas' undefeated and untied Longhorns are the No. 1 offensive unit in the country and could bring new honors to the Southwest Conference, which never has provided major college football's total offense leader.

Texas has rolled to 2,632 total yards in conquering six opponents and leads Mississippi's Rebels by 20 yards in the latest tabulations released today by the NCAA Service Bureau. Together they have compiled the best six-game total yardage figures for two teams in a decade.

The Texas juggernaut was rammed to 1,967 yards on the ground, an average of 327.8 which also gives the Longhorns the No. 1 spot in rushing offense, and have averaged 438.7 a game over-all. Mississippi, second in passing with a 185.0 per game mark, is No. 2 in total offense with a 433.7 average.

Detroit is the top team in passing with 1,070 yards gained via the aerial route in five games for a 214.0 a game clip.

The Longhorns also can become the first team in the pass-conscious SWC to nail down a rushing championship. They lead runner-up New Mexico State, which has averaged 284.6 a game on the ground.

Tough Soviet Line Makes Parley Difficult

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials said today the present tough line of Soviet policy makes it extremely difficult to work toward constructive negotiations on Berlin and German problems.

While some sudden switch to more peaceful Soviet tactics is not ruled out, the United States and its Western allies are now discussing more urgently possible countermeasures and sanctions which may be applied if there is no improvement in the situation.

The Soviet Union's demand on Finland for consultations on defense measures and its related propaganda attacks on other Scandinavian countries are seen here as evidences of increasing belligerency on the part of Soviet leaders.

here as part of the larger strategy of terror which the Soviets are employing, U.S. officials judge, in order to frighten the Western powers to make concessions.

Western diplomats here say that the Soviet pattern in the past has often been to create a high peak of alarm in the world, then follow up with peaceful gestures and calls for negotiation. They say such a maneuver is still considered a possibility.

But it is now considered more probable that Premier Khrushchev will continue to press his case on many fronts in an aggressive manner and seek to force the Western powers into Berlin negotiations on his terms. Some authorities believe he may push the world much closer to the brink of war in coming weeks.

that so far as they are concerned the next move is up to the Russians. Meanwhile hopes for some kind of negotiated agreement dimmed and the Berlin border issue, though quiet for the moment, remains a source of potential danger.

The State Department statement on Moscow's note to Helsinki described it as a diversionary effort to "sow confusion" in the world about the Soviet Union's own activities. The note did not deal with the more serious policy implications of the Soviet demand which could mean that Moscow intends to insist on some kind of new military arrangements on Finland's borders.

Illness And Prevention Costs Business, Too

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Illness and its prevention—grows more costly. Individuals don't have to be told this. And business is finding it more expensive, too. Both are well aware of the rise in medical and hospital costs in recent years.

More firms are offering employee medical services. This grows both more extensive and more expensive. Companies also are increasingly involved in meeting all or part of their employees' health insurance costs.

Medical fees and hospital care grow more expensive because costs themselves have gone up but also because care is increasingly being widened and improved.

Hospitals have higher operating costs and pay employees more. They also offer services today with equipment unknown a few years back. New drugs, new doctoring and nursing techniques, new equipment—all push up costs. Adding to the total outlay is that Americans, with increased incomes, are seeking more medical care all the time. Each year a larger share of the spending is for prevention rather than cure.

This all adds up to more than $16 billion a year that Americans now pay for medical service.

Many individuals have had to go into debt to meet costs in major emergencies. But many have had help from various sources little used by earlier generations.

One is from health insurance payments. Insurance companies are estimated to have paid out $3 billion in benefits in 1960.

A second aid to individuals faced with illness or accidents is the growing role of corporate medical departments.

Those offer services all the way from preventative shots for influenza and other epidemics and patching up of on-job injuries to regular and complete medical examinations—the latter usually for the top echelon of executives or key employees.

The National Industrial Conference Board finds the cost of such services up more than 10 per cent in the last five years for 96 companies queried. The firms now pay about $17.5 million a year to provide medical facilities for 890,000 employees.

Included are physical examinations, visiting nurse service, on-job nursing care, accident prevention programs, dental care and medical supplies and equipment. Excluded are company supported health insurance programs or sick-leave pay.

Higher salaries in the medical departments, increased supply and equipment costs, and expanded medical facilities are cited as reasons for the rise in spending.

Companies employing more than 10,000 persons report visits that range from four to eight a year per worker. Visits range between eight and ten in the smaller firms.

Three Die, Five Injured As Train Struck Vehicle

BURGAW, N.C. (AP) — Three young persons were killed and five others injured late Tuesday night when the station wagon in which they were riding was struck by a Southbound Atlantic Coast Line Freight train here. Eight persons were reported in the car and they were returning from a Halloween party.

The dead were identified by Chief of Police J. Porter Ward as Bobby Smith, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Smith of near Burgaw; and Frances Best, 10, and Eleanor Best, 17, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Best of Burgaw.

Agnes Smith, 15, a sister of the dead boy, was listed in critical condition today at the Pender County Hospital in Burgaw. Also injured, but in satisfactory condition, are Nellie Vdovich, 17, of Burgaw; Johnette Johnson, 15, and Roy Barnhill Jr., 15 son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Barnhill Sr. of Burgaw.

Ward said he had not determined who was driving the station wagon, which belonged to the Johnson family. He said bodies of the injured were strewn over a 50-yard area after the train struck the station wagon at the Fremont St. railroad crossing in Burgaw.

The officer said the train was running several hours behind schedule. He said the car was traveling west and a car moving in that direction cannot see a southbound train at the crossing because of an obstruction. The crossing, Ward added, does not have electric signals.

JFK Speeches Are Collected

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Kennedy's campaign speeches—all of them—are now available in a 1,440-page collection, Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., announced Tuesday.

The collection is the first part of a six part report being prepared by the Senate Freedom Communications subcommittee which Yarborough heads.

Part two will be the complete campaign speeches of former vice president Richard M. Nixon. The report also will include transcripts of the television debates between Nixon and Kennedy, hearings before the Freedom Information subcommittee, and recommendations.

"This is the first time in American political history that everything that both the winning and losing candidates said and wrote in their campaign efforts has been published," Yarborough's office said.

Like all House and Senate committee reports, copies may be procured from the Government Printing Office, Washington, 25, D.C. or by writing to members of Congress.

Threats Mailed Israeli Leaders

JERUSALEM, Israel Sector (AP) — For the second straight day, public figures and organizations received threatening anti-Jewish "Heil Eichmann" leaflets in their morning mail.

The leaflets, posted in various parts of Israel, warned of grave consequences if the Israeli court that tried Adolf Eichmann earlier this year hands down a death sentence. The judgment may come in November or December against Eichmann, accused of responsibility for the killing of 6 million Jews under Hitler.

Town Will Honor Humble Overall

ERWIN, N.C. (AP)—This Harnett County town plans to pay tribute to that humble garment—overall.

Much of the fabric used to manufacture overalls is made at one of the Orwin Mills plants here.

"Overalls Days" are set for Nov 16-18. Merchants of the town plan to make it an annual event.

Have 'Stuff' Of Record-Breakers

BROCKPORT, N.Y. (AP)—Men at the State University College at Brockport say they have the stuff to be record-breakers.

In the latest collegiate craze—room-stuffing—the undergraduates claimed 197 in a room 15 by 10 by 8 feet Tuesday night.

"We were trying for 200, but three guys chickened out," a staffer spokesman said.

Pulled Pistol In Trick-Or-Treat

DETROIT (AP) — Two "trick-or-treaters" in clown costumes produced a pistol at the front door of Garland Deshazer's home in suburban Ecorse Tuesday night.

Deshazer, 50, owner of a grocery store, told police the pair, apparently full-grown men, took $675 in rolled coins and two revolvers from his bedroom.

Raw Onion Was Major Craving

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — After living for 10 days on survival ration cereal bars, black coffee and water, a Nebraska penitentiary inmate reports the food he craved most was raw onion.

The reaction of convict Tom Caster was reported by The Forum, prison newspaper. Caster was one of several prisoners participating in a civil preparedness experiment arranged by Gov. Frank Morrison.

Automation Problem Is Given Close-Up Survey

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The 20th Century problem of automation, now spreading inexorably into wider job areas with the development of sophisticated machines and computers, was explored effectively and disturbingly by television Tuesday night.

The program was ABC's excellent "Close-Up." It focused on the efficient machines tirelessly baking pies, sorting lemons, packing pills, even skinning slaughtered animals. And then, with sympathy, it moved to the men thrown out of work and often onto welfare rolls by improved manufacturing techniques.

As one U.S. senator summed up the automation situation: "We are producing workers faster than jobs; products faster than product consumers; more work but more unemployment. The solution: none really, for the poorly educated and unskilled, but job retraining for skilled and semi-skilled. And for the younger generation, advice to stay in school and learn as much as possible.

The three television networks seem to be pursuing different policies in their handling of news. Now that Howard K. Smith is leaving his network in "a difference in interpretation of CBS news policy," there remains only one newscaster in the organization dedicated to deep thinking.

That is Eric Sevareid, who has been with CBS for years, and was considered the No. 2 man in the days of Edward R. Murrow, and was the logical person to take his place. Instead, Sevareid spent some time quietly in London, and since his return has been seen scarcely at all by the living room viewers.

Walter Cronkite now has moved into the No. 1 spot, and for the past year or more has picked up all the assignment plums. Like Douglas Edwards, another CBS veteran, Cronkite rarely strikes out in sharp commentary, preferring the strict role of observer and narrator.

Smith's departure indicates that policy at CBS currently tends toward straight news reporting and middle-of-the-road interpretation.

NBC seems to be encouraging its newscasters, particularly its valuable Chet Huntley and David Brinkley, to express themselves freely on issues of the day. So far, the NBC policy seems to be working out, for it is now conceded to be the leading network in news coverage.

Meanwhile, ABC is working with Vice President James Hagerty's experiment of turning reporters into newscasters and vice versa. The idea is to have the same man cover the story and tell it on the air.

To this bystander it would appear that Smith could neatly fit into Hagerty's expanding staff, which is long on veteran reporters but short on broadcasters with personality and broadcasting experience.

REUNION with the

"BELLE"

MISSIONS COMPLETED - 1943.

The "Memphis Belle" prepares to leave England for the U. S. after dropping her 25th bombload on Germany in World War II. She also shot down eight German planes.

CREW AND PLANE - 1961.

The "Memphis Belle" was the same, and so was the crew, except for receding hairlines and expanding waists, as they posed in Memphis during reunion.

Waist gunner Cecil Scott, right, greets his old pals, Robert Morgan and Vincent Evans at Memphis airport, as Robert Hansen and C. E. Winchell look on.

Though all class reunions are pretty much alike, a recent get together in Memphis, Tenn., was pretty different.

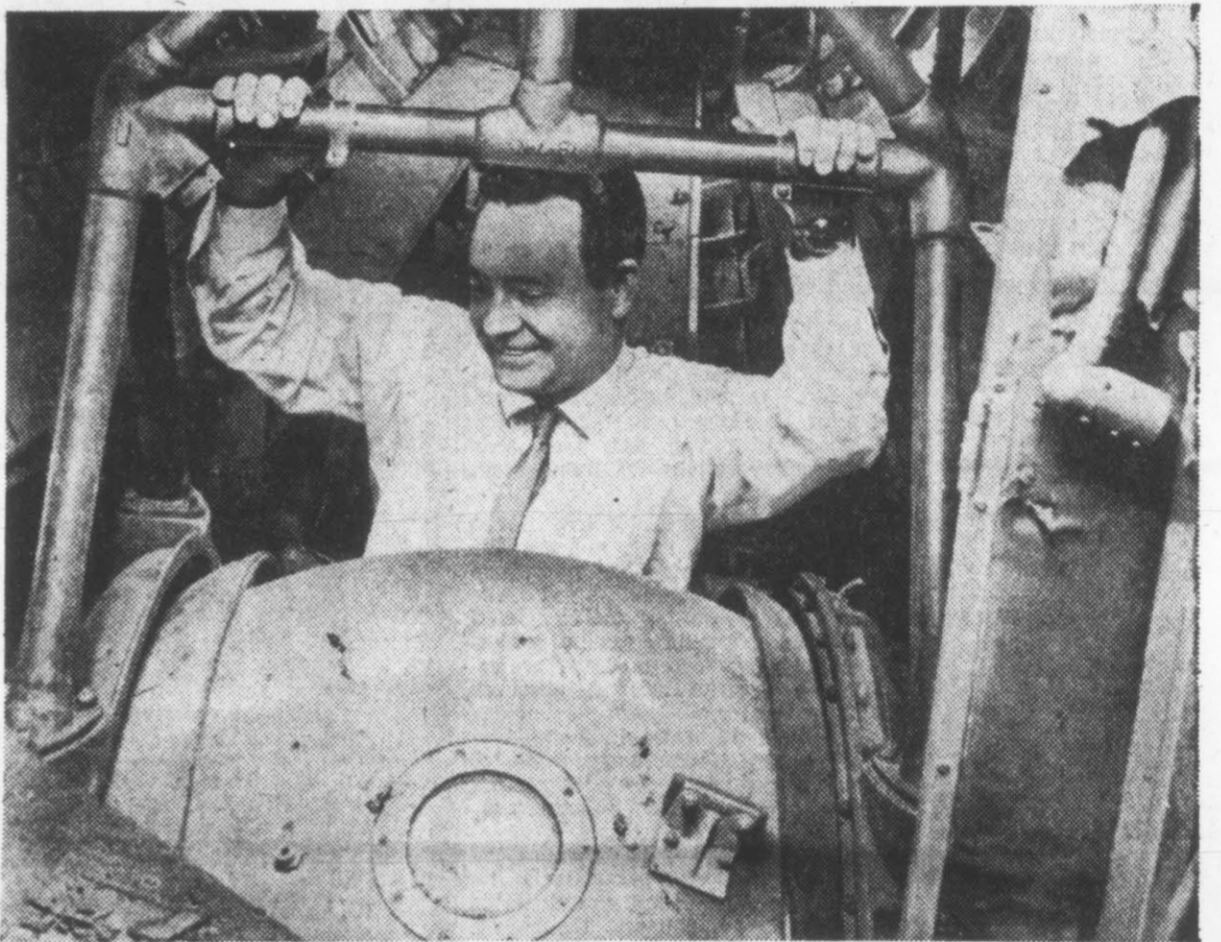

As is often the case, waistlines are bigger, hairlines have receded and talk is all about the old school. That was true here. But the "class" was quite special. They are the crew of the "Memphis Belle," one of the most famous bombers in World War II.

The first American bombing crew to fly 25 missions, their much decorated group returned to the States in 1943 where their B-17, the "Memphis Belle" was retired. It is now on permanent display in Memphis.

For the first time since the crew broke up in 1943, the men got together to see the old plane, reminisce, and to visit the girl the plane was named for—Miss Margaret Polk of Memphis. They came from California, New York, North Carolina—all over.

Though they had to struggle to get everyone to Memphis, they had a ball. Assiduously avoiding any schedule, they managed to spend a weekend telling tales and catching up with present situations of each man and laying plans for the next reunion.

Their exploits were told in a movie, "The Memphis Belle," but some were known only to the men. Like the time when flak hit the nose and one flier thought it was snowing in the plane. The shrapnel had hit some books and filled the air with little bits of flying paper. . . or when one man thought he was hit when a broken hydraulic line shot red fluid all over him and was ready to bail out. . . Endless tales. . .

Waist gunner Cecil Scott enters plane and tries on the turret for size.

While his buddies listen, Casimer A. Nastal, right, has the floor for one of the innumerable war stories that flowed during the reunion.

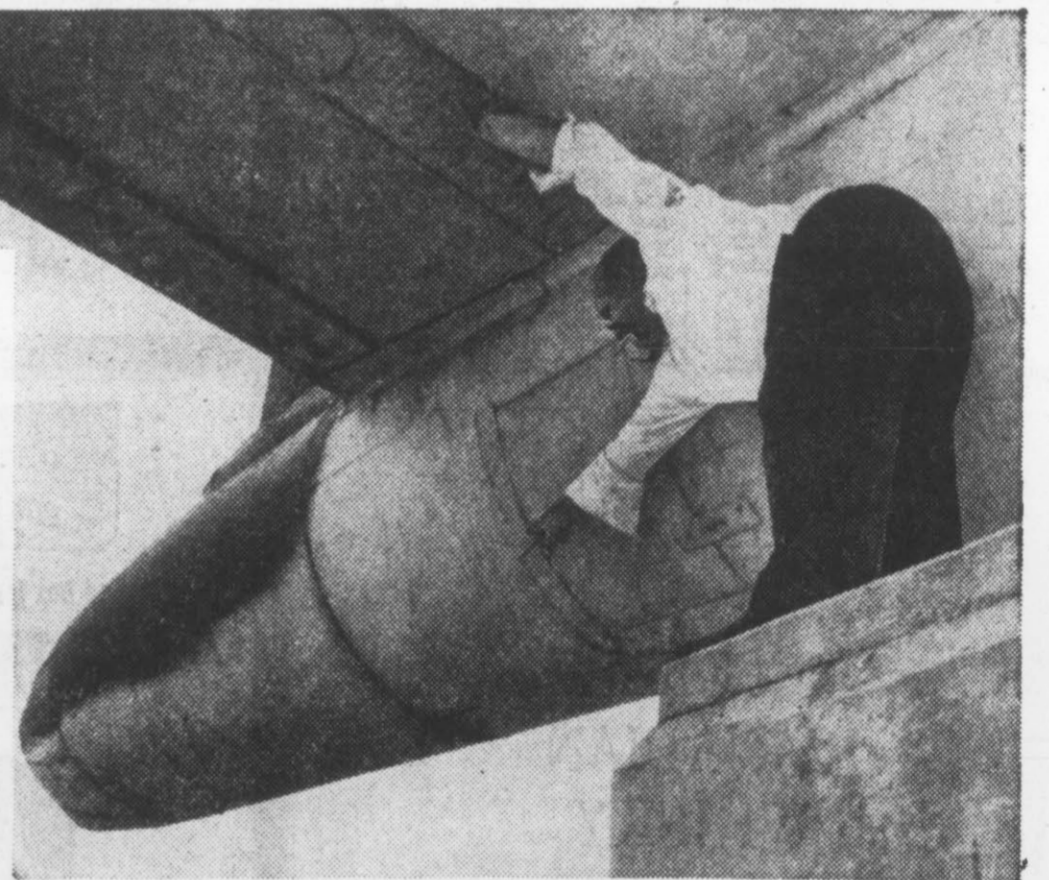

"BELLE" AND CAPTAIN - 1943.

The original "Memphis Belle," Miss Margaret Polk smiles as she greets Capt. Robert Morgan as he and crew of the B-17 arrive in Memphis.

Standing near the B-17, Robert Hansen, left, and Robert Morgan reminisce with Miss Margaret Polk, for whom the plane was named.

John P. Quinlan tries to open the door to his old tail gunner's spot. It is now sealed and he was unable to get in.

First Such Case In A Long Time

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The spirit of the Old West apparently isn't completely dead. Suburban residents were awakened in the middle of the night recently by the sound of hoofbeats as a horse, with a man astride, galloped off into the distance. Robert Sloan checked his stable and found his favorite mount missing. For the first time in many years, the Milwaukee County sheriff had a case of horse theft on his hands.

Plane Hijacker Planning Appeal Life Sentence
EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Airplane hijacker Leon Bearden, 38, sentenced to life in a federal prison, says he will appeal.
The Coolidge, Ariz., resident and his son, Cody, were sentenced Tuesday for the Aug. 3 hijacking of a Continental Airlines jet over southern New Mexico.
Bearden drew the life sentence on a kidnaping count. He got another 25 years on two other charges.
Cody, who will be 17 Nov. 13, was sentenced to a federal correctional institution until he is 21. He pleaded guilty to taking a stolen vehicle across a state line. The elder Bearden said his ap-

Indiana Hunting Its Tax Dodgers
INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Last week Indiana started cross-checking state gross income tax returns to ferret out tax dodgers.
Tuesday the State Revenue Department received a letter containing four $100 and two $50 dollar bills and an unsigned note saying: "Conscience gross tax money, please forgive."
The $500, representing gross tax on an income of $333,333.33, was put in the regular gross tax receipts.
The appeal would be based on the contention that his court-appointed attorney, Robert S. Pine, hadn't made an adequate defense. U.S. Dist. Judge R. E. Thomason told Bearden he had received a fair trial.

Independent 4 Years, Ghana Is A Dictatorship

By DENNIS NEED

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — After four years of independence, Ghana today is a virtual dictatorship, often flirting with the Communist camp.
President Kwame Nkrumah likes to be known as osagyefo (the redeemer). His picture is everywhere. He uses Parliament to rubber stamp his decrees. The threat of arbitrary arrest hangs over all who speak out against him. Eavesdropping informers have made a nervous place over the shoulder almost a national characteristic.
Nearly 400 political prisoners are in jail. "They will never see the sun," said a minister privately recently.
New legislation will set up special courts that can hang a man for "offenses against the state." There will be no appeal against the courts' decisions.
Many qualified observers believe if there were a national election tomorrow, Nkrumah would be bundled out of office. He has no intention of calling an election, and the opposition has no prospect of toppling him from power by constitutional means.
Against this background President Kennedy's team of experts, headed by Clarence Randall, must decide whether to recommend the United States go ahead with the financing of Ghana's Volta dam project.
If the United States fails to put up money for the Volta, Ghana may turn to the Soviet Union for help and may finally swing into the Soviet camp.
Already, Nkrumah's regime has trappings barely distinguishable from those of communism.
The government is recognized as agent of the ruling Convention People's Party (CPP). Nkrumah heads both. By direct and indirect means everyone is induced to join the party.
The party "stands at the beginning of the straight road to socialism," says Nkrumah. "socialism is the only pattern that can within the shortest possible time bring the good life to the people."
Ghana has been promised loans from the Communist bloc, and during his tour of the Soviet Union last month, Nkrumah laid the foundations for new trade and payments, economic and technical cooperation and culture agreements.
Ghana's civil air fleet is equipped partly with Soviet Ilyushin planes.
Some 60 leaders of Ghana's new youth movement, the Young Pioneers, which teaches obedience to Nkrumah, are to receive Soviet training.
On the other side of the ledger Ghana's economy is still closely tied in with the West's, and investment is principally British. Hundreds of Ghanaian students are training in Britain and the United States.

Doubt that Nkrumah will go over to the Communists by choice is expressed among some diplomats here.
As they see it: Pan Africanism—a dream of African political unity—seems to be the Ghanaian leader's major driving force.
To achieve this, Nkrumah first means to turn Ghana into a showplace. To do it he is willing to accept aid from both East and West.
Ghana has certainly become Africa's latest arena for a clash between the ideologies of East and West. The way Ghana goes will have far-reaching repercussions throughout the continent.
