Gen. Taylor Indicates No U. S. Troops Are Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, just returned from Southeast Asia, has indicated he would not recommend sending U.S. troops to Communist-threatened South Viet Nam.

Taylor made his report to President Kennedy Friday in a two-hour conference.

Officials said Taylor recommended a series of actions for strengthening South Viet Nam against Communist guerrilla attacks.

What he told Kennedy was not revealed by the White House.

But Taylor told newsmen earlier, upon landing at Andrews Air Force Base, that "human resources" in South Viet Nam are adequate, thus indicating he did not plan to recommend sending U.S. forces there now.

The White House said Kennedy would consider Taylor's report after Secretary of State Dean Rusk returns Sunday from the Far East.

Also at Friday's conference was Walt W. Rostow, deputy special assistant to the President for national security affairs. He accompanied Taylor to Southeast Asia.

Jay W. Gildner, associate White House press secretary, would not comment on reports that Taylor had recommended the United States increase its aid to South Viet Nam rather than send U.S. forces there at this time.

The general's party spent seven days in South Viet Nam and two days in Thailand.

Among military changes recommended to Kennedy by Taylor, said officials, were these:

Better and faster collection of intelligence to enable the South Viet Nam army to strike back at guerrillas more swiftly.

Improved communications between government, army headquarters and outlying villages.

Intensification of training being provided by U.S. guerrilla warfare specialists and by military advisers.

He also recommended, said officials, that teams of U.S. and Vietnamese specialists in economics, psychological warfare and medicine be sent to operate with anti-guerrilla forces in areas reclaimed from Communist control.

Kennedy sent Taylor and a group of military and civilian advisers to South Viet Nam two weeks ago to make a thorough review of what may be done to save that country from Communist infiltration and domination.

On landing, Taylor told reporters there were plenty of assets available in South Viet Nam as far as "the determination, will, power and courage" are concerned.

Reorganization of the army's command structure to give officers in the field more authority to make decisions.

Melvin Daniels of Wanchese on Roanoke Island asked the association's new president, E. E. Harrell of Plymouth, for a show of the association's sentiment regarding Bonner's plug for the bond issue. However, when one of the delegates labeled the bonds as a controversial subject, Harrell said it "might be best not to take any action."

Harrell succeeds John Hatton Gurganus of Williamston as president.

Rep. Keith Fearing of Dare County offered the resolution asking the naming of the Ocracoke bridge for Bonner. Daniels said "no more appropriate name" could be found than Bonner's for the bridge.

He pointed to Bonner's long service in Congress and noted that the First District representative introduced a bill this year, which is expected to become law next session, authorizing the National Park Service to share in the cost of the Oregon Inlet span.

Former City Manager Leonard Bloxam said today he has not been asked by municipal officials to make any explanation about the city budget.

He was replying to a charge by Councilman Ford McGowan that the council had been misled concerning revenue estimates.

McGowan said at Thursday night's meeting that he felt Bloxam owed the council an explanation. Budget revisions showed the cash on hand figure at the beginning of the fiscal year to be $27,890.67. In making up the budget this was estimated to be $50,000.

"Nobody consulted with me so I'm not particularly concerned," Bloxam stated this morning.

He noted that the Utilities Commission made arrangements for him to be of service "in any capacity I could" after City Manager Louis Schelpers took office.

"Neither the city manager, city clerk, mayor or council consulted with me on any problems related to the budget so I don't know there is any explanation I could make," he declared.

Bloxam did meet with the council concerning certain bond issue and paving projects at which time he offered an explanation of the revolving paving fund and agreed to complete the heat pump installation supervision at Sheppard Memorial Library.

Grifton Editor Named To Post In Press Ass'n

DURHAM (AP) — Hal Tanner, publisher of The Goldsboro News Argus, today was elected president of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association. He succeeds Harry L. Oswald of the Wallace Enterprise.

Also chosen at the convention were Clyde Simmons of The Grifton Times, first vice president; and Frank Daniels Jr. of The News & Observer-Raleigh Times, second vice president.

J. Mayon Parker of The Ahoskie Herald, who had been secretary-treasurer since the association was organized, asked to be relieved of the responsibility, and was succeeded by Mrs. Ruth Grady of The Duplin Times, Kannapolis. Parker was given a standing ovation.

The association voted to cosponsor again the high school press institute at East Carolina College in Greenville. The institute gives guidance to editors and sponsors of high school newspapers and annuals.

Toll Of Hurricane's Known Dead In British Honduras Now 204; Belize Paralyzed

BELIZE, British Honduras (AP)—Thirty-six bodies dug out from the ruins of the courthouse raised the death toll of hurricane Hattie today to 204.

Cleanup crews found the bodies in the smashed British colonial administration building where residents fled for refuge when the storm struck early Tuesday.

This capital city remained paralyzed. All business places were out of operation, including three newspapers.

British soldiers from Jamaica patrolled the streets under martial law. Looting—rampant earlier in the week—appeared under control. Governor Sir Colin Thornley announced that "anyone who attempts to take any food illegally will be shot dead."

Evacuation of Belize's 15,000 homeless proceeded slowly for lack of transportation. But 4,000 persons from the Stann's Creek area, 50 miles south of the capital, were transported by boat to northern British Honduras.

American and British were being repatriated as fast as aircraft could be provided.

Tents were erected at Pine Ridge, 16 miles west of Belize, to harbor Belize refugees until a new capital is built still farther west. Shortage of trucks, gasoline and tents slowed the work.

Feeding centers and shelters in the capital were overcrowded. Food and water purification chemicals were arriving in abundance in a giant airlift from the United States, Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras, Jamaica and other countries.

Bodies recovered included 106 in Belize and 43 in Stann's Creek, a city of 7,000. There were the places hardest hit.

A Roman Catholic school, St. Catherine's Academy, closed has become a shelter for 200 homeless.

The nuns, Sisters of Mercy from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, England, Ireland and British Honduras, spent the night of the hurricane praying.

"The sisters went to their rooms early Monday night," related the sister superior, "Then, as the storm raged, they became nervous, and came out."

She continued: "We went to the chapel and said rosaries."

"The door to the chapel began to open under the impact of wind and water, even though it had been boarded up. I took the Blessed Sacrament to the second floor. We knelt by the sacrament and prayed.

"Our eardrums felt as though they were going to burst during the storm, something like on a high altitude airplane ride."

"We remained with the sacrament all night. We were unhurt. The next day we replaced the altar, which had been blown to another part of the chapel, and put the sacrament back."

In the garden between St. Catherine's and the sea only the Crucifix remained undamaged. The rest looked like the ruins after a bombing.

The storm refugees are being housed in the girls' high school, where 352 had been enrolled. The elementary school is ruined.

To help supply food and water for the refugees, another Catholic school, 65 miles away, was closed although unscathed by the hurricane.

Sister Mary Reginald of St. Catherine's, from New Bedford, Mass., reported that seven tons of food and 15 drums of drinking water already have been donated by the other school.

The night of the hurricane, St. Catherine's was thrown open to the public. Nearly 400 took refuge there.

Ask Bridge Be Named For Rep. Herbert Bonner

WILLIAMSTON—The Southern Albemarle Association Friday asked the State Highway Commission to name a planned $4 million bridge over Oregon Inlet for First District Congressman Herbert C. Bonner.

The association, at its 26th annual meeting at the Roanoke Country Club here, took its action by passing a resolution calling for Bonner's name for the bridge.

Previously, Bonner had urged a favorable vote for Tuesday's state-wide bond election that involves $61.5 million in bond funds for improvements across the state.

Melvin Daniels of Wanchese on Roanoke Island asked the association's new president, E. E. Harrell of Plymouth, for a show of the association's sentiment regarding Bonner's plug for the bond issue. However, when one of the delegates labeled the bonds as a controversial subject, Harrell said it "might be best not to take any action."

Harrell succeeds John Hatton Gurganus of Williamston as president.

Rep. Keith Fearing of Dare County offered the resolution asking the naming of the Ocracoke bridge for Bonner. Daniels said "no more appropriate name" could be found than Bonner's for the bridge.

He pointed to Bonner's long service in Congress and noted that the First District representative introduced a bill this year, which is expected to become law next session, authorizing the National Park Service to share in the cost of the Oregon Inlet span.

Adenauer Is Sure Of A Fourth Term

BONN, Germany (AP)—Konrad Adenauer's re-election as West German chancellor for the fourth time was virtually assured today.

His Christian Democratic party accepted a compromise agreement for a coalition government with the Free Democrats.

The Bundestag (Parliament) is expected to meet Tuesday to elect the chancellor.

The agreement ended a bitter, seven-week struggle by the 85-year-old chancellor to remain as head of the nation he led out of the rubble of World War II to become one of the world's most powerful industrial nations.

The compromise agreement was reached Friday between Adenauer, other Christian Democratic party leaders and Erich Mende, head of the Free Democrats.

The original coalition agreement was worked out last month but Adenauer then made various changes in an attempt to reduce the role in the new government of the smaller coalition partner.

Most of the difficulties were over domestic issues, such as social and financial legislation, and the Free Democrats insisted that the original agreement be allowed to stand.

There had been doubts as to whether the Christian Democrats would accept the compromise since many party members felt Adenauer had gone too far in giving in to the Free Democrats.

Adenauer apparently made concessions because he felt his continuance as chancellor was genuinely threatened for the first time in 12 years.

Although there is a strong opposition against the old leader within his own party, the decision left no doubt that Adenauer still held the reins securely.

The Free Democrats originally refused to serve in a government under Adenauer but the party gave in when it became clear that the majority of Christian Democrats gave full backing to the chancellor.

A victory for the Free Democrats in the long struggle was the forced resignation of Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano.

The Free Democrats insisted that Brentano be removed because he was an "incurable yes-man" in an office that called for a more "flexible" personality.

Russians Regard U Thant Mere Stop-Gap Figure

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—A mild-mannered Buddhist from Burma took over today as acting secretary-general endorsed by all 105 U. N. members but faced with a host of unsettled problems.

A six-week deadlock ended Friday when the General Assembly unanimously elected U Thant, 52-year-old career diplomat, to fill out the 17-month remainder of the late Dag Hammarskjöld's term.

But the Soviet Union made clear during the round of welcoming speeches that it had agreed only to a stop-gap solution and still insisted that the United Nations should be run by a troika.

U Thant stressed in his brief acceptance speech to diplomats jamming the great blue and gold hall that he was taking the job with no strings attached.

Taking the oath, he swore not to seek or accept instructions regarding his duties "from any government or other authority external to the United Nations."

U Thant also put forth his position on the main point of dispute that had held up East-West agreement on his appointment—how many advisers he should have. He said he would invite a limited number of U. N. under-secretaries "to act as my principal advisers on important questions."

He said these top aides would include Ralph Bunche of the United States and Georgy P. Arkadev of the Soviet Union, but did not name any others.

Diplomats speculated that U Thant would need an able corps of assistants to help him through such problems as finding $20 million by mid-December to keep the U. N. Congo force going until the assembly decides what its 1962 program will be.

He also has on his desk such hot-potato issues as the reorganization of the U. N. staff, brought up by Soviet Premier Khrushchev and now under debate, and the carrying out of the vast technical assistance programs upon which Hammarskjöld placed heavy stress.

The United States, which has led the resistance to the Soviet Union's attempts to water down the authority of the secretary-general, hailed U Thant's election as a move that bulwarked the U. N. executive.

U. S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson praised the Burmese diplomat for "independence of mind and spirit."

"There will be no veto in the secretariat and no weakening of the office of the secretary-general," Stevenson told the assembly.

Stevenson also read a telegram from President Kennedy who congratulated U Thant and said his election "is a splendid achievement in which the whole world can rejoice."

Soviet Delegate Valerian A. Zorin wished U Thant success but reminded delegates that after he fills out Hammarskjöld's term, the Soviet Union would insist on Premier Khrushchev's call for a troika.

Zorin said U Thant's intention to appoint advisers "gives us the hope that practical steps will be taken in order to eliminate the one-sided nature in the activities of the secretariat."

A statement to the press by Stevenson proposing that the hotly disputed issue of advisers be left up to U Thant was credited with breaking the stalemate.

Fifty-One Miles Added To U. S. Highway 13

Fifty-one real miles have been added to the 1,160 mile dream of highway hobbyist R. B. Nelson of Robertsonville.

The State Highway Commission has announced the extension of US Highway 13 from its present termination at Goldsboro, 51 miles southwest over NC Highway 102 to Interstate 95, about five miles north of Fayetteville.

For years, Nelson has pushed his proposal to extend the federal route from Tidewater Virginia through Eastern North Carolina. In recent years, he has proposed the route be eventually extended across South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana to New Orleans.

Official action on requests for initiating US routes or for extending them is taken by the American Association of State Highway Officials. Final approval of this group for the US 13 extension reached State Highway Commission headquarters Thursday.

The southwesterly extension of US 13, now a principal north-south route through Newton Grove, will enable motorists to travel the Interstate route (I-95) through Fayetteville and Lumberton, and it will give the traveling public a greater choice of trips from the north and from the south, the Commission said.

The extension, in effect, connects Fayetteville, Goldsboro and Greenville with Norfolk where the $200 million Chesapeake Bay Tunnel project is currently under construction.

Eastward, across the bay from Norfolk, US 13 follows the Eastern Shore of Virginia and Maryland northward into the Wilmington, Del. and Philadelphia areas.

The federal route extends southward from Norfolk through Suffolk and across the Virginia-North Carolina line into Gates County.

The highway crosses the Chowan River at Winton, then passes through Ahoskie, Windsor, Williamston, Robertsonville, Bethel, Greenville, Farmville, Snow Hill and Goldsboro.

Pitt Historical Items Going On Exhibition At Center Sunday

LAFAYETTE CHAIR has been in the family of David Lawrence Morrill of Falkland well over a century. When in the possession of Governor David Lawrence Morrill of Concord, New Hampshire, it was sat in by the famous Lafayette. (Reflector Staff Photos).

A chair that Lafayette sat in, uniforms worn by General Bryan Grimes, tools, utensils, costumes and various documents dating back to the Colonial, Revolutionary and Civil War periods and since that time are a part of the Bicentennial Exhibition opening Sunday at 3 p. m. at Greenville Art Center.

The exhibition was prepared by the Pitt County Historical Society and will continue until Dec. 28.

The Lafayette Chair, which has remained in remarkably good condition, was originally the property of Rev. Samuel Morrill of Wilmington, Mass., who died in 1785. It was then given to his son, Governor David Lawrence Morrill of Concord, New Hampshire.

When the famous Lafayette visited the United States in 1825, he was entertained at the home of Governor Morrill and sat in the chair, which is now the property of David Lawrence Morrill of Falkland.

The clothes worn by Maj. Gen. Bryan Grimes in 1863 now on exhibition include a blue military dress coat with wine colored sash belt, and other outfits including a tan vest, hat and cloth coat. The latter probably were made by slaves on his plantation, in the Grimesland area, Grimesland was so-named by his father, William Grimes.

A portrait of President George Washington and excerpts taken from his diary about Greenville and Pitt also appear: "At 6 o'clock I left Tarborough, accompanied by some of the most respectable people of the place for a few miles—dined at a trifling place called Greenville, 25 miles distant—and lodged at one Allan's 14 miles further, a very indifferent house."

Greenville the President described as "on Tar River and the exports from it as from Tarborough with a greater proportion of Tar—for the lower down the greater number of Tar Makers are there. . ."

Historical maps and photostatic copies of authentic maps first made of the state and this region in particular take the viewer back many years. Mrs. Jessamine Shumate of Martinsville, Va., who has exhibited at the art center previously, prepared a silk screen map of this area for the exhibition.

Mrs. Shumate specializes in serigraphs, an original design derived from silk stencil painting. The map is in color.

Original land grants, deeds, marriage licenses, letters and other documents appear in their authentic forms, given by people of the community especially for this bicentennial exhibition.

CLOTHES OF GRIMES—These vestments were worn by Maj. Gen. Bryan Grimes back in 1863, whose family bought land and named it Grimesland. Many other features are included in the Bicentennial Exhibition which begins Sunday at Greenville Art Center.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

These are the products of man's labor—and God's. From the moment the seedlings were placed in the warm earth, they have been under constant care.

First came the rain and the sun—and then the ceaseless work of fertilizing, cultivating, and spraying. Last, came harvest time, when the proud growers gathered the rewards of their labor.

Only by such diligence can we hope for a truly bountiful crop. God has given the refreshing rain and warm sunshine, but He expects us to do our part.

And so it is with the care and cultivation of our spiritual lives. Man is endowed with many talents and qualities, but unless he tends and nurtures these gifts, they will not increase and grow.

Harvest time in the life of every person is at maturity, when men are at the peak of their usefulness and wisdom. By attending the services of the Church and by studying the Scriptures, we will realize greater happiness and contentment here on earth—and will be preparing ourselves for the RICH HARVEST of a life hereafter.

All About Town

With Anne Mattox

Peggy Dixon and Ray Hardee have chosen Christmas Eve as their wedding date after four years of courtship. Peggy, a May graduate of East Carolina College, is a stenographer with Greenville Tobacco Company. Ray, who attended East Carolina College, completed six months military service with the Army in October and is now employed at Dupont. The couple will be married in a red and white wedding carrying out the Christmas motif in the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church.

East Carolina College students Evelyn Mauney and Leo Starling announced today their December 17 wedding plans to be held in Evelyn's hometown of Shelby. Evelyn, a junior, majoring in Spanish and Leo a sophomore business major, met at FCC in September of 1959.

Teachers have a lot in common as is the case of Greenville's Barbara Conway and Ron Kester of Severna Park, Maryland. Ron, a native of Spencer, is a teacher in the Annapolis, Maryland school system as is Barbara. Thanksgiving day has been chosen for the nuptial ceremonies in Memorial Baptist Church.

Miss Emily Monk, a sophomore student at St. Catherine's School was a member of the Honor Choir at the annual St. Catherine's Day ceremony Friday afternoon. The traditional ceremony consists of reading prayers and hymns. The Honor Choir is made up of representatives chosen by each class. Emily is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Monk of Farmville.

East Carolina has the proud distinction of being the only College in Eastern North Carolina to have had women participating in the "Torch For Education" marathon Thursday in the wee hours of the morning. Clarence Galloway, Janice Tripp, Imogene Turner and Bunny McIlwain, members of the Physical Education Majors Club were some of the women carrying the Torch for the approximately one half mile each. Clarence Galloway, one of the Torch bearers, said he would "run again if it would get more votes for the Bond Issue."

On October 18, 40 years have passed since 40 executive business and professional women got together in Macon, Ga., and formed Pilot Club International. Announcing that their purpose would be "to do our part in boosting and putting over any movement for the betterment of the cities in which we exist."

The founders of the club choose Pilot because it means leader and guide.

The Pilot Club of Greenville participates in all community drives, with emphasis on the Tuberculosis Association, Mental Health, Cancer Campaigns, and The School for Retarded Children. This major project for the past two years has been the Pitt County Home. In that project they have furnished rocking chairs, a wheelchair, and beauty parlor facilities, and personal services have been rendered.

Participating in Chowan College Homecoming festivities today will be Mrs. Ted Lee Bissette, the former Betty Lane Evans, Miss North Carolina of 1958. A talent show will be held this afternoon at which Betty Lane will perform.

Ralph Napp and Clio Speaker

The spirit of Halloween prevailed when the Clio Book Club met Oct. 31st at the home of Mrs. Dink James.

A Jack-O-Lantern on the front porch greeted members as they arrived. The house was decorated with Halloween arrangements, featuring pumpkins and marigolds.

A short business meeting was held and in the absence of the president, Mrs. Luther Moore presided.

The hostess introduced her guest and speaker, Ralph Napp, who teaches history in the Social Studies Dept., at East Carolina College, who presented a program on "Germany, Yesterday and Today."

Mr. Napp, although of German descent is American born and served in World War II, and remained in Germany with the occupation forces as an interpreter. He prefaced his talk with some amusing and interesting personal experiences that occurred while he was serving in this capacity in the army.

Touching on Germany of yesterday, he traced the beginning of the German Empire and stated that through the centuries it has been a buffer state between Asia and Western Europe.

Today Western Germany is the strongest power in Western Europe after having suffered almost total destruction in World War II. What has restored Western Germany? The United States with its Marshall Plan and the German peoples' thrift and hard work. Mr. Napp made some comparisons between the rebuilding in Western Germany and what has happened in East Germany. The rebuilding in East Germany is for show and behind the facade of the show places are the rubble left from the war. He said he had the feeling when he looked behind these buildings, that the war had just ended.

At the conclusion of the program, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Jesse Moye Jr. served a salad plate with coffee, followed by a sweet, which carried out the Halloween theme.

She also gave demonstration on making bed jackets, robes, back rests and trays using material, etc., we have at home.

The club welcomed a new member, Mrs. Clifton Cannon.

The nominating committee reported on officers for the coming year which are: President—Mrs. Eugene Averette, Vice—Mrs. E. C. Davenport, Secretary—Mrs. Harry Dudley, Treasurer—Mrs. Charles Sapp.

The community service leader, Mrs. Eugene Averette urged the members to support the United Fund.

Local UNICEF Drive Success

Locally sponsored by the United Church Women of Greenville, this year's "Trick-or-Treat" for UNICEF received support from the community. "A total of 368-37 was received on Halloween night for the UNICEF cause," reports Mrs. A. L. Whitehurst, local chairman. "This reflects an increase of approximately $75.00 over last year," Mrs. Whitehurst added.

The treats of coins contributed will help UNICEF continue to assist 55 million needy children and mothers in over 100 countries. Local residents who were away from home Tuesday night, or were not reached by the young Trick or Treaters can still make their contribution. Friday night the Phantomettes were featured during half-time at the last football game of the season.

Co-headed by Donna Gammon and Sherby Everett, the group entered the field in a reverse-V formation. They then performed various drill movements including a roll-off and precision marching.

After forming two circles, the drill team performed a sun-burst routine. The Phantomettes ended their routine with a jazz dance to "Peter Gunn."

The band played a score of tunes including "Yankee Doodle," "America, the Beautiful," and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." As a closing tribute, the band, in the form of a G, played the "Alma Mater."

One Man Bears Much Of Burden

Election of U Thant of Burma as new secretary-general of the United Nations puts that international organization back into operation with a full-time administrator for the first time since the death of Dag Hammarskjold.

The neutralist U Thant did not hesitate in his address immediately following his election to call attention to trouble spots of the world, and he pledged the power of his new office to continue to work for international peace.

It is perhaps of significance that American Ambassador to the U.N. Adlai Stevenson heaped praise on U Thant and pledged this nation's support of the new secretary-general. In contrast, the Soviet representative who addressed the U.N. assembly immediately following the election declared that U Thant's election represents only a temporary arrangement until changes are brought about in the method of administration of the United Nations.

The position left vacant by the death of Dag Hammarskjold on September 18 will not be an easy one to fill by U Thant or any other diplomat. Particularly is this true in view of the apparent determination of the Soviet Union to continue to press for a drastic change in the powers of the office of secretary-general.

No Pressure On The N. C. Voter

By LYNN NISBET

PURPOSE — Governor Sanford reiterated to newsmen at his latest session with them that the primary purpose of his "press bonds" but to impress upon the people the responsibility they have for making the educational program productive.

Asked if he would make an urgent last minute appeal next Monday for the bond issues, he said he had no idea of doing that. In fact, he has not and does not intend to put on pressure for a bond vote. "Our purpose," he said, "is to provide factual information to the citizens. I think a good job has been done in that area. I just don't see how anybody who has this information and understands the situation can fail to support the bonds."

He finds sentiment strong for the bonds, and cannot believe they are in serious trouble. He has found, too, that morale is very high among school people with respect to the total program.

He was reluctant to give a forecast of the number of votes to be cast next Tuesday, but finally suggested "perhaps around 175,000 to 200,000." That is somewhat higher than most estimates, but still less than ten per cent of the registered voting strength. That casts some doubt on the claim of high morale and active interest.

Adverting to charges that government costs are going up too fast and these bonds would add to the cost, the Governor pointed out that State government costs are not rising as fast as population or per capita income, and that the normal course of progress would enable the State to pay off these bonds without additional tax levies.

EXTRA CURRICULAR — Governor Sanford has no patience with those who criticize college students for participating in the torch-carrying promotion of the bonds. With a grin he said he would also condone those who are old enough taking time out from classes to go and vote. He thinks college students should have larger participation in civic public affairs, both in discussion and action phases. Some sort of balance must be maintained. The class room must be the most important place in the college set up, and the regular courses of study must have priority over all other activities. But no sensible person has suggested that there should not be other extra-curricular activities for students—or that these extra activities are not necessary for development of a full man or woman.

IMMATURE? — One reporter asked the Governor if he did not think most of the students were too immature to take part in such programs. He referred to some admittedly off-color and almost crazy proposals made by students in the mock legislative assemblies staged in Raleigh every year. The Governor's answer to that can be accepted by preponderant majority of adults as sound reasoning. "Of course they are immature," said Sanford. Then he expanded that idea with observations that this is an inescapable problem in the business of growing up. But a lot of these college boys and girls are more mature in their thinking than many older people. Age is not the sole factor. Out of their ideas comes progress, and out of their enthusiasm comes the willingness to work to establish that progress.

Not only the college participants in the torch-bearing parade, but all the members of the Young Democratic Clubs assembling in Durham next week can find comfort and encouragement in Governor Sanford's position.

BALANCE — During his nearly one year in office Governor Sanford has shown more consideration and respect for the status of other constitutional elected State officials than any chief executive since Governor Clyde Hoey. There has been no serious breach in relations between the Governor and the members of the Council of State through the years since then, but there have been times when the Governor quite obviously resented the fact he could not "run" the departments headed by elected officials, and there have been instances when these officials resisted efforts of the Governor to exercise his statutory authority over fiscal and personnel matters in their departments.

Governor Sanford has leaned over backwards not to offend any of his elected associates in government, and relations have been very cordial. First intimation that Governor Sanford may be restive under constitutional limitations imposed came at his latest weekly news conference.

A reporter asked what had happened to the "Agricultural Opportunities" program launched with a lot of fanfare about three months ago. The Governor said it was working, but not as fast as he had hoped. He said the folks at State College and in the State Department of Agriculture were keeping in touch. He thought maybe the program needs a little shot in the arm—or something. And then something wistfully he observed, "You know the Governor's office does not have as much to do with agriculture as it does with commerce and industry, for example."

To a great extent, the effectiveness of the international organization for keeping world peace now rests upon the shoulders of its new secretary-general. If he proves to be a strong administrator like Hammarskjold, the organization will forge ahead, taking positive action to cope with dangers in trouble spots around the world. If, on the other hand, he proves to be indecisive in the face of impending crisis, the effectiveness of the U.N. in preserving peace may wane drastically.

U Thant's election as secretary-general puts the U.N. over one of the greatest hurdles it has faced in its history, but it by no means provides a panacea for all the problems which face the international organization and the role it plays in world affairs.

It Is Well The U. S.

Has Stated Position

• With both the Soviet Union and the United States having asserted they will not be bound by a moratorium on nuclear testing proposed before the United Nations, the adoption of such a measure will merely serve to indicate the feeling of other nations with regard to such tests.

President Kennedy has not said the United States will engage in nuclear tests in the atmosphere, but he has clearly indicated the United States will undertake such tests if they are deemed necessary to safeguard security. He has further said the United States will make preparations to set off such tests if they are believed necessary.

Russia, on the other hand, has rejected any new U.N. moratorium on nuclear bomb testing as unfeasible in practice. At the same time they renewed their oft-heard pitch for complete disarmament.

The situation thus resolves itself to a point where the nations which do not have nuclear capabilities may clamor for a moratorium, but those which have such a capability will reserve themselves the right to determine whether they will make such tests.

If the United Nations membership goes on record in favor of a moratorium against nuclear bomb tests, the measure will carry with it a certain amount of pressure in the form of world opinion. It will not, however, offer any sort of guarantee to any nation that these tests will not continue from time to time.

It is well, we think, that the United States has made clear its position on the matter before the U.N. membership takes its vote. At least we have served notice to the world as well as to the U.N. where we stand on the matter and why.

Truman Career Built On Party

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry Truman made a career—albeit the way up to the presidency—of being a Democrat and banging the Republicans. At 77 he's still at it, full of pep and partisanship.

The one-sidedness gets monotonous, as it does with any politician. But he has an aggressive directness and terseness that make Presidents Kennedy and Eisenhower look as cautious as Calvin Coolidge beside him.

At the National Press Club Thursday he was in typical form although he got to bed late the night before as Kennedy's guest at the White House. He said nothing that could even jokingly be considered criticism of Kennedy except for this:

Asked how often he thought a president should hold news conferences, Truman said once a week. In the 1960 campaign Kennedy talked of once-a-week conferences if elected. But, not that he's President, weeks go by without one.

Otherwise, Truman had nothing but praise for Kennedy's administration, nothing but blame for Eisenhower's, although he never mentioned Eisenhower by name.

The split which began between Truman and Eisenhower in the 1952 campaign is still there, and, judging from Truman's performance Thursday, he won't be the first to try to heal it. At the same time, Truman and President Hoover are friends.

Truman has mellowed, but only a little. He had a kind word for the Republican-run 80th Congress which in the 1948 campaign, he called the "do-nothing" Congress.

He said Thursday it passed "some of the most significant foreign policy legislation in our history"—like aid for Greece and Turkey, and the Marshall Plan—but he still blamed it for being "do-nothing" on problems at home.

It was no accident he stressed the significance of the aid for Greece and Turkey—when the Communists were breathing down their necks—or the Marshall Plan whose economic help got shattered Europe back on its feet.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

PEOPLE OF A SPECIAL MOLD — At the funeral of Lenin in 1924, Stalin spoke as follows: "Comrades, we communists are people of a special mold. There is nothing higher than the title of a member of a party whose founder and leader was comrade Lenin. It is not given to everyone to withstand the stresses and storms that accompany membership in such a party. It is the sons of war and struggle, the sons of incredible privation and heroic effort who before all should be members of such a party."

Think of the devotion here reflected. And devotion to what? To the most murderous system of tyranny the world has ever known. It moves in on defenseless people, fastens the

It's something to be self-conscious about. He knows his place in history—and his rank among the presidents—hinges on his foreign record: What he did when the cold war with Russia began and what he did when it turned frigid.

His major foreign decisions—besides the two just mentioned—were putting this country into military alliance with Western Europe, setting up bases around the world of communism to contain it, and going into Korea.

Truman, through these actions, laid down the foreign policy which Eisenhower and Kennedy followed without any major change or addition.

But if Eisenhower and Kennedy were his heirs in foreign policy they were not in dealings at home.

The most obvious difference in the way the three men handled Congress.

Truman was far more aggressive than the other two in fighting for legislation he thought was needed. And he made the presidency a lot more personal in the sense of fighting openly with individuals whose policies or tactics he had no use for.

Best examples: his open and prolonged quarrels with Sens. Robert Taft and Joseph McCarthy. Eisenhower avoided personal disputes completely. Kennedy has so far.

Whether Truman's method was better is debatable. Despite Truman's antagonism, McCarthy got bolder and stronger. It was the Eisenhower administration, although Eisenhower himself avoided a head-on clash, which laid the foundation for the destruction of the Wisconsin senator with the Army-McCarthy hearings.

But one thing is for sure: The White House under Truman was a far more lively and colorful place than it has ever been under Eisenhower or Kennedy. Truman is a man who met life head-on, grabbed it, shook it, and loved every minute of it. Anyone who doubts his love of life should have heard him Thursday. He said he hopes he lives to be 100. And then, in the only somber note of the day, he said: "I don't think I'll make it."

I'm Taking Your Advice—

By HENRY HOWARD

Money-Raising Not Easy

State Democratic Chairman Bert Bennett, while paying Pitt Democrats a visit the other night, hit the nerve that runs through the center of practically any organization—money.

In discussing the business of money-raising to pay for large scale politicking, Bennett said he'd be the first to admit: "This money business is a tough proposition."

To punctuate his discussion, he related a story of a money-raising campaign during Gov. Sanford's politicking tours of 1960. It revealed an old characteristic: "A man's hesitant about greasing the palm, but his own is always outstretched."

Scratching the back of his head lightly, Bennett recalled about that many donations come in small denominations. "Then, sometimes we'd get a check," he said.

He said he and the Governor (before he won the office) were just before leaving a political rally in the West. They had picked up several donations for the campaign.

Then one of the Westerners sidled up to Bennett and very inconspicuously handed him a folded check.

Bennett remembered how he and the candidate were forced to resist themselves from peeking at the amount of the check donation until they were in private. "It's just not polite to take a check like that and immediately look to see how much," he said.

But soon they were far enough away and both eagerly unfolded the check to find only a scrawled message:

"Terry: When you win this election, how about a job?"

Rather elaborate eulogies at dinner meetings with speakers are anything but the exception.

At the Scottish Rite party at the Moose Lodge Thursday, at least three tributes to dignitaries about to be introduced drew good-natured insults. One inspired the other two.

It all started when Judge Dick Bundy heaped praise upon New Bern's Bob Pugh before bringing him to the microphone.

As Pugh took his place, he handed the judge a one-dollar bill. "Thank you, Dick," he said, and the crowd roared.

Later, Bundy in his most eloquent language, did the honors for U. S. Sen. Sam Ervin who was attending the Scottish Rite affair as a guest.

As Sen. Ervin took his stand behind the mike, he expressed his gratitude for the tribute by handing Judge Bundy two one-dollar bills.

Still later, Bundy took the mike again to introduce the evening's speaker. Again, out flowed the flowery words of superlative praise. This time for Rev. Lauren R. Sharpe of Kenansville.

Not to be outdone, Rev. Sharpe warmly and roundly thanked Judge Bundy for the eulogy. He declared: "I'd give you five dollars, if my wife had given me money tonight."

Opinions In Brief

"We regret the passing of the day when movie-going was often a family enterprise. Nowadays parents must pick and choose with care lest the family confront an 'adults only' sign or discover to their embarrassment later that one should have been posted."—The Miami (Fla.) Herald.

"Let's stop kidding ourselves or allowing our enemies to kid us. Profits have a place — an honored place — in American life and American society. Without profit there would be no America as we know it. Junk the profit motive and we would have as dull, as drab and as unpleasant a place as the communist countries which would like to have us abolish profits in favor of socialism."—Dallas Times Herald.

"The Common Market has long made it evident that American companies wishing to sell in Western Europe must produce or, at least, finish products within the group. High tariffs against outside products can keep American goods out; low tariffs between Common Market nations will speed the sale of goods made within the group, even if production facilities are American-owned."

Some American companies have been content to produce within the Common Market, relying on its tariff barriers to keep British goods out. But if Britain joins, competition will take a new turn and changes will be imperative. Continental factories will be no longer protected by the English Channel from British competition.

MORE FACTORY EXPORTS — Here are other look-aheads in business:

MORE OVERSEAS BRANCHES: The fact that Britain, one toe at a time is getting into the European Common Market is causing drastic revision of plans inside large American corporations.

The fall-out boom will grow. Look for: Greater promotions for food in cans, which protect the contents; canned water; water in plastic containers that won't fracture under blasts; and low-cost Geiger counters and other radiation detectors.

You will see, in the months ahead, vigorous promotions for bracelet, pin and even ring devices to warn wearers of concentration of radiation.

The fall-out fever is rising, and merchandisers are quickening efforts to take advantage of it. Some gimmicks are phony: others solid. Check with Civil Defense experts before retailing or buying new gadgets.

Nehru Is Not An Ally

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

There are those who have believed that India could be bribed into favoring the United States. Up to now, India has been a neutral that favored Soviet Russia. On the other hand, Krishna Menon, India's delegate to the United Nations, has been antagonistic to the United States, supporting Soviet Russia on every program, including the firing of 23 atomic bombs in succession.

India's position is beyond understanding, as Nehru postures as a moralist, a person who lives by a code rather than by political expediency. The fact is that India has pursued a policy in the United Nations which has no explanation in historic reason. In fact, Nehru's support of the Two China Policy can only create confusion in Asia by Red China. Nehru has not protested Tibet or Nepal or Kashmir against Red China, although it is impossible to find any moral explanation for India's postures, particularly as Nehru postures as a moralist and there can be no morality in India's attitude toward Tibet.

At the Geneva Conference which was called to put an end to the nuclear bombing of humanity, the Indian delegation always equated the United States and Soviet Russia, although the United States had stopped testing and Soviet Russia is exploding increasingly larger bombs, culminating in the futile and monstrous 50 megaton bomb.

The American delegate, Arthur Dean, said:

"It may seem a matter of indifference to the Indian delegation whether a state conducts upward or twenty atmospheric tests in a very week, culminating in a fifty-megaton shot and other shots of up to thirty-megatons, and continues to test in the atmosphere, even this very morning, while another state conducts but three underground explosions in the small kiloton, or thousand-ton, range which involves no radioactive fall-out."

Nehru would like, if he is regarded and respected as the principal moral force in the Asia-African world today, Asia and Africa cannot be associated realistically as one area, which it is not, although at certain points the two continents meet ethnologically and religiously. The Bandung Conference (April 1955) sought to build a unit among the Asiatic and African states to offset the colonial powers which are organized in NATO.

But Red China sought to build the Bandung Conference into an anti-American, pro-Soviet bloc and to a degree succeeded largely because Nehru would not take a moral stand but submitted to Soviet testing and the Indians, En-lai, the Red Chinese Premier, asserted himself as superior to everybody else at that Conference.

Krishna Menon has attempted to give the impression that explosions in the atmosphere are the same as explosions underground which he knows not to be true. The object of Menon's statement was to cause the Indian people the false impression that the United States was more wicked than Soviet Russia, that underground tests did more harm than atmospheric tests which he also knew to be untrue. In a word, Krishna Menon has acted on behalf of Soviet Russia and sets out to damage the United States although he pretends to represent a neutral nation. This neutrality is hard to define.

Most Americans are growing weary of both Nehru and Menon and the time has come when aid to India must be regarded as aid to an enemy state. No alternative is available, particularly in view of Menon's constant attacks upon the United States.

There is no excuse for the shooting of the 50 megaton bomb. No scientific purpose is achieved by shooting off this bomb. If a five or 10 megaton bomb can be fired, it stands to reason that in due course a 50 or 100 megaton bomb can be fired. But what is proved by this? What does it serve? What benefit is it to mankind?

Soviet Russia is filthy the atmosphere and dirtying the soil of all countries including its own and that of its allies. Soviet Russia has become an outlaw nation, a horror to mankind, a brute force on Earth. If India (Continued on Page 6)

COLLEGE STADIUM—Wilson's 4A Cyclones throttled Greenville's air and ground attack in the first half of play last night, but the locals opened up with a devastating offense in the last 24 minutes to win going away by a 41-7 score.

Scoreless Quarter

After a scoreless first period in which both teams played at the midfield stripe, Greenville finally broke the ice. Starting on their own 35 yard line, the Phantoms, led by the running of halfbacks Allen MacArthur and Kroghe Andresen, and fullback Wayne Sumrell, moved deep into Wilson territory.

On second down from the Cyclone 19, MacArthur broke through the right side of the Wilson line, cut back, and raced laterally for a touchdown, only to have the play nullified by an illegal procedure infraction.

The Phantoms were not to be denied a score, however, because on the next play, quarterback Billy Neal James pitched out to MacArthur, who went to his right, stopped, and tossed 24 yards to end Jack Foley who was all alone in the end zone. Andresen split the uprights for the extra point with 4:50 left in the first half.

Greenville stopped the Cyclones immediately, and took over on their own 26. Three running plays netted a first down at the 38, but three incomplete passes ate up the remainder of the time showing on the scoreboard clock, and the Phantoms left the field at intermission with a slim 7-0 advantage.

Rugged Defense

The rugged Greenville defensive unit, led by Rommie Brock, Russell Fields, and Foley, bottled up the Cyclone single wing attack for most of the third quarter. After receiving the second half kickoff, Wilson found the going a little rough as far as gaining yards was concerned. Beginning on their own 38, the visitors were thrown for successive losses back to the 21 by Foley and Fields.

On fourth down and 25 yards to go, Wilson tailback George Wainwright went into punt formation, but a bad snap from center sent him chasing the ball back to the 13, where he was smothered by Fields. Just three plays later, Greenville pushed across their second touchdown, with James sneaking into the Cyclone end zone from six yard out. Andresen's conversion kick was good.

George Jenkins, Wilson halfback, fumbled Foley's kickoff, but managed to recover at the Cyclone 38. Wainwright personally moved the ball to the midfield stripe on two plays for a first down, then skirted his left end, was stopped cold by three Greenville linemen, but shook loose and raced down the sideline for 49 yards before he was brought down from behind by James at the 1 yard line. On the next play, however, the stocky tailback plunged over from the one for the score. Fullback Knox McMillan bulled his way over for the extra point, and the Cyclones cut the local lead to 14-7 with 5:10 left in the third period.

Phants Open Up

The Wilson touchdown must have been just what the doctor ordered for Greenville, because they opened up with a scoring barrage which could be stopped only by the final gun.

Exactly one minute after the visitors had pushed across their lone touchdown, MacArthur broke through the Cyclone secondary and raced 57 yards for a score. Andresen's kick once again split the uprights for the extra point, and the Phantoms were on their way with a 21-7 lead.

The locals managed to get in another seven points before the end of the third quarter. The Cyclones again fumbled on the kickoff, but this time Richard Taft recovered on the Wilson 34. James passed to end Burney Morris for a first down at the 20. Then James pitched to MacArthur, who passed to Foley for another first down at the Cyclone 8 yard line. After a loss of four yards back to the 12, MacArthur once again skirted his left end and rammed untouched into the land of promise. With 1:55 left in the third quarter, Andresen booted his fourth consecutive extra point.

Two More

The locals pushed across two more tallies in the fourth quarter. Sumrell climaxed a 66 yard drive with 3:25 left on a one yard plunge. Halfbacks Andresen and John Adams, the latter returning to action after being sidelined most of the season with a leg injury, set up the score. Adams picked up 21 yards in two carries HAVELOCK — The Farmville Red Devils ended their football season last night with an 18-13 win over the Havelock eleven for second place in the final Coastal Conference standings.

The winning touchdown for the Farmville eleven came in the final minute of the game when halfback Robin Rouse intercepted a Havelock pass by quarterback Dave Wormuth and ran 60 yards for the score.

During the first quarter neither team could muster enough strength to score, but Farmville penetrated deep into Havelock territory, getting down to the one yard line before they were stopped.

First Farmville Touchdown
The first touchdown for the Red Devils came late in the second quarter after short drives by senior halfback Danny Dilda and senior fullback Rex Hodges moved the ball from their own 20 yard line to the Havelock 42. A pass from Dilda to Hodges moved the ball to the 19 yard line from which Dilda scored on a screen pass from Dean Oglesby. The extra point pass from Dilda to David Quinn was no good.

The Red Devils wasted no time in gaining their second touchdown of the night when Havelock's Billy Turcotte fumbled the ball and Farmville guard Johnny Nichols recovered on the Havelock 40 yard line. A completed pass from Oglesby to Dilda put the Red Devils on the Havelock 22 yard line. The scoring play was a pass from Dilda to Hodges who went over from five yards out for the touchdown. Again the extra point try failed.

Havelock Rallies

With about a minute left to go in the first half of the game Havelock rallied and gained one touchdown. A pass from quarterback Billy Burchette to end Buddy Zimmer was good for 11 yards to the Havelock 49 yard line. A second pass covering 51 yards from Tommy Melton to Turcotte was good for the score. The extra point try by Melton through the middle of the Farmville line was good.

All of the first half scoring by both teams came in the last five minutes of the second quarter. Havelock moved the ball well during the second half with drives by Jimmy Bishoff, Burchette and Melton carrying the ball down to the Farmville two yard line. On a fourth down play Dilda forced quarterback Dave Wormuth out of bounds to stop the scoring attempt.

Fumble Lost

However, this left Farmville in bad shape as they took over on their own two yard line. After moving the ball out to the 20 yard line Dilda fumbled and Melton recovered for the Havelock eleven. This time the home team marched to the goal in a series of short yardage plays and a 17 yard run by Buddy Zimmer. A few plays later Zimmer went over for the touchdown from two yards out, putting Havelock in the lead 13-12.

Tornados Close Regular Play With 19-6 Victory

BATH — Coastal Conference Champion Ayden, holder of the title for the second straight year, closed out its regular season last night with its tenth consecutive victory, a 19-6 win over conference foe, Bath.

34 Yard Drive

The Tornados, who now await the Single A playoffs two weeks from tonight, drew first blood in the battle, driving 54 yards for the initial score. Rudolph Cannon, William Edwards, and Joe Harrington put their running talents together to move the ball to the Bath 7 yard line, but at that point the losers put up a goal line stand for three downs. On fourth down, Cannon scored on a double reverse. The pass attempt from quarterback Tommy Dunn to Emmitt Gibson was incomplete.

Bath bounced right back with a touchdown of their own, capitalizing on a Cannon fumble on the Ayden 25. A fifteen yard penalty set the losers back to the 40, but quarterback David Everette passed to Sam Jarvis to the Tornado 19. On fourth down, Everette swept his left end for the touchdown, but the try for the extra point failed, and the score at the end of the first period was tied at 6-6.

Gambled And Lost

After Bath stopped the Tornados, Edwards punted to the losers' 1 yard line. Bath moved the ball out to the 22, and on fourth down they gambled and lost, and winners took over on the Bath 25. Three plays later, Cannon swept his right end for 19 yards and a touchdown. Edwards ran for the extra point, and the Tornados held a 13-6 halftime advantage.

team gave their kicking toes a workout, as neither club would give ground. Near the end of the quarter, however, Ayden got another break. Still gambling, and deep in their own territory, Bath tried another pass, but Billy Bateman picked it off at the losers' 15 and returned it to the 9. An off-sides penalty moved the ball back to the 14 as the third stanza came to an end.

First Play

On the first play of the fourth quarter, Clem McLawhorn romped 14 yards to paydirt on an end around run to give the Tornados the winning margin. Dunn's pass attempt for the extra point was incomplete.

The victory gave Ayden its second undefeated season, although the Tornados were tied with Beaufort last year 0-0. Since then, Beaufort has moved up into the Double A ranks. The Tornados stopped the Seadogs last week by a slim 7-0 score.

Tornado victims this season have been Havelock, Snow Hill, Vanceboro, Robersonville, Farmville, Williamston, LaGrange, Contentnea, Beaufort, and Bath. Ayden coach, Stuart Tripp, who said that it was hard to tell what he was going to have at the beginning of the season, has undoubtedly changed his views of his Tornados since early in September. Tripp was quoted as saying, "Cars and girls will give a great deal of competition," but, judging from some of the scores that the Tornados have turned in against a few of their foes, that's the only competition they have had this fall.

Pirates Meet Bears Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Lenoir Rhyme, seeking its seventh straight conference title, collides with East Carolina tonight at Greenville, N.C., in an important Carolinas Conference football game.

Lenoir Rhyme takes a 3-1 league record into the game and the Bears can with the championship by winning the rest of their conference games. EEC has lost two conference games but could possibly tie for the conference title by beating Lenoir Rhyme, but only if Appalachian and Newberry should each lose another game.

It other games, Appalachian met Guilford this afternoon. Elon plays at Newberry tonight. Catawba is at Wofford, and Western Carolina entertains Emory and Henry.

H.B. Sugg Wins Over Snow Hill

FARMVILLE—H. B. Sugg racked up its sixth win against only three losses last night in closing out the regular season, dropping Snow Hill by a 20-0 score.

After a scoreless first half, the Sugg offense finally began to click. Sammy McKennedy raced 55 yards for the first Sugg score. Jess Taylor ran for the two extra points.

Later in the third quarter, Taylor raced around his left end for 38 yards and another Sugg score. The run for extra points was stopped short of the Snow Hill goal line.

The winners scored their last touchdown in the final stanza on a pass interception by Willy Ellis. Ellis snagged the pass on the Snow Hill 32 and rammed untouched into the losers end zone. The attempt for the extra points failed.

Seniors playing their last game for H. B. Sugg were guards Willy Ellis and Jesse Ross, center Willie Steele, fullback Roscoe Hines, and halfback James Thomas.

Backfield standouts for the winners were freshman Bobby Jones, McKennedy Taylor, and quarterback, Johnny Richardson. Jones carried nine times and picked up 72 yards. McKennedy carried 10 times and gained 136 yards, and Taylor toted the pigskin eight times for 89 yards.

Spearheading the Sugg forward wall were tackles Curt Johnson and Willie Moore, and ends C. D. Greene and William Holmes.

Jackie Kennedy To Make Trip To Asia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, who already has visited five foreign countries in her 10 months as First Lady, has scheduled an unofficial and private visit to India and Pakistan, starting about Nov. 20.

She will be gone about two weeks, according to a White House announcement made late Friday.

There were no details of the places she will visit or how she will travel on the journey some 8,000 miles from Washington.

The White House said only that the First Lady would go to the two countries "in a private and personal capacity" to visit educational and research centers and to view the historical art treasures of the two neighboring nations.

She made a similar vacation visit to Greece last June after accompanying the President on earlier state visits to Canada, France, Austria and England.

Mrs. Kennedy will be traveling at her own expense, the White House said.

The Indian Embassy indicated that some of the planning on the Indian portion of her trip may be made Monday when President and Mrs. Kennedy entertain Indian prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, and his daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, in Newport, R.I. They extended the invitation to Mrs. Kennedy through U. S. Ambassador J. Kenneth Galbraith and will be Mrs. Kennedy's hosts in India.

In Pakistan, the First Lady will be the guest of President Ayub Khan and his wife.

The White House said Ayub discussed the visit with Mrs. Kennedy when he was here on a state visit last July. The Kennedys gave the visiting Pakistani president an unusual state dinner at Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington.

There were rumors at the time that an invitation had been extended. Recently there were reports from Pakistan that both President and Mrs. Kennedy planned to visit there next spring.

If Mrs. Kennedy leaves about Nov. 20 as reported, she will miss the birthdays of her two young children, Caroline, who will be 4 on Nov. 27, and John Jr., who will be 1 year old Nov. 25.

She also would be absent from the traditional Kennedy family gathering at Hyannis Port, Mass., for the Thanksgiving holiday.

It is not known now whether Mrs. Kennedy will be accompanied by anyone from her family or from her White House staff. When she went to Greece, she was accompanied by her sister and brother-in-law, Prince and Princess Stanislaus Radziwill, who live in London, and her White House social secretary, Letitia Baldrige.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

Today's need for spiritual discernment will be emphasized Sunday at Christian Science church services.

Scriptural readings in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Adam and Fallen Man" will include these words of St. Paul (1 Cor. 2): "Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual. But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned."

This citation will be among those read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 203): "Spiritual perception brings out the possibilities of being destroyed reliance on aught but God, and so makes man the image of his Maker in deed and in truth."

Princess And New Son Said To Be Doing 'Fine'

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret and her newly born son are getting along fine, court officials announced today.

Mother and baby were visited by her three doctors—Sir John Peel, Lord Evans and Sir John Weir—at Clarence House during the morning. They stayed about 40 minutes.

Later this bulletin was issued: "The princess and her baby had a good night and the condition of both is entirely satisfactory."

The report was reassuring to Britain's millions, many of whom saluted the princess' blue-eyed son simply as "the Jones boy," even though he has a title and rights of succession to the throne.

Viscount Linley, who weighed into the world Friday at 6 pounds 4 ounces, prompted a nationwide guessing game as to what the princess and her husband, Lord Snowdon, will call their first child.

There was no indication when the royal announcement would come designating a name for the fair-haired baby.

Likely choices appeared to include Albert, George, Antony, Owen and David. Royal babies usually have a string of names.

Albert has been selected 15 times since the reign of Queen Victoria. George was the name of the baby's grandfather, George VI.

The first child of the princess, 31, and Lord Snowdon, who were married May 6, 1960, is fifth in line of succession to the throne behind his cousins, Prince Charles, Prince Andrew, Princess Anne—Queen Elizabeth's children—and his mother.

"To my son, God bless him," proposed the father, the former Anthony Armstrong-Jones.

He called the staff together at Clarence House, where the baby was born, to meet the child, attended the princess and personally filled their glasses with champagne in a British ritual—"wet the baby's head."

Permits For 19 Dwellings Issued

Construction for which permits were issued during the month of October totaled $313,900, according to Building Inspector J. W. Wilson's report.

The monthly building brought the total for the fiscal year, which began July 1, to $2,355,054.

Biggest item for the month was the 19 dwellings for which permits were issued. Their value was reported at $291,500.

Five residence additions were valued at $7,250, two residence alterations at $800, one storage building at $150; one duplex apartment at $15,000.

Twenty-eight permits were issued during the month bringing to 112 the number issued during the fiscal year.

Wilson also made 31 plumbing and sewer inspections and he has made 143 such inspection for the first four months of the fiscal year.

Fees turned over to the city clerk's office amounted to $590.50 for October. For the fiscal year the fees have amounted to $2,147.

Caseworker Reports On Pitt Aid To The Blind

The Pitt County Welfare Department's caseworker for the blind has reported a total of 147 persons in the county receiving Aid to the Blind payments during October.

The report said one case was closed, reviews were made of Aid to the Blind cases and revisions in grants were recommended as circumstances of recipients changed.

Forty-six persons were given eye examinations, the report continued. Glasses were recommended for 31, surgery for five, treatment for seven and no recommendation for three. Seven persons were removed from the classification of blindness and two eye operations were performed.

The Greenville Lions Club arranged for payment for glasses for 13 persons, and approved payment for glasses for 15 persons, transportation to Duke for two and special drugs for one.

Holding Man For Poisoning Nine Beef Cattle

A 42-year-old Belvoir Negro was in Pitt County jail under $500 bond awaiting trial Tuesday on charges of poisoning nine beef cattle on the farm of his employer.

Pitt Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson identified the alleged animal-poisoner at Richard Sheppard, an employee of Dempsey Holland, a farmer in the Belvoir area.

Tyson said Sheppard had admitted poisoning Texaphene, a tobacco pest poison, in the cattle's drinking water. The sheriff said one of the nine cows had died. Deputies estimated the loss at about $150.

Sheriff Tyson said two of his deputies, Ralph Tyson and Brooks Oakley, arrested Sheppard Thursday night. He said the Negro was alleged to have poisoned the animals because of a grudge against his employer.

Sheppard is scheduled for trial Tuesday before Judge Dink James in Pitt County Recorder's Court.

US Unemployment Figure Drops Below Four Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment dropped in October below 4 million for the first time in a year but the Labor Department says the decline was only seasonal.

Department officials said the jobs total could sound back up above 5 million this winter.

Unemployment dipped 151,000 from September to 3,934,000, while employment rose by 786,000 to 67,824,000 a record for the month.

The dent in unemployment announced Friday was expected. The job figures normally make a good showing in October.

Labor Department officials said, however, there has been no basic improvement in the employment situation despite over-all economic gains.

A Republican congressman said the situation not only hasn't improved but has gotten worse.

Rep. Thomas M. Curtis of Missouri said the figures revealed 350,000 more people were unemployed last month than were unemployed a year earlier. He said the unemployment rate was 4 per cent higher than it was last October.

Labor Department officials noted that the seasonally adjusted rate of involuntary idleness remained at its recession level of 6.8 per cent of the work force. It has stuck near that point for 11 consecutive months.

Unless this rate declines, Labor Department officials predicted, unemployment will climb to 4.4 million this month, 4.5 million in December and 5.5 million in January. Such a January figure would top the 5,385,000 unemployed last January.

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg radioed a statement from Japan, where he is attending a trade conference, saying he was naturally gratified with the October employment and unemployment improvements.

But he said the unemployment "underscores that we have a stubborn and continuing unemployment problem."

"We shall renew our proposal to Congress for speedy enactment of the manpower and retraining bill so that hundreds of thousands of long-term unemployed can be retrained with upgraded skills for useful jobs," he said.

Nonfarm employment increased by 288,000 to 61,860,000 to set a record for October. Farm employment increased by about 300,000 to 5,964,000.

On the encouraging side, the number of workers idled 15 weeks or longer dropped by 17,000 to 1,240,000. The number of workers employed part-time involuntarily declined by 139,000 to 2,333,000.

The record October employment of 67,824,000 is about 335,000 higher than the prior record set in October 1960.

Noted Physicist To Lecture Here

A noted nuclear physicist and professor at Yale University, one of the designers of the "atom smasher" at Yale and the University of California at Berkeley, will visit East Carolina College Monday and Tuesday, November 6-7, and will make an address open to the public Monday night at 7 p.m. in the Austin auditorium on the campus.

E. Robert Beringer, professor of physics and director of the Heavy Ion Linear Accelerator Laboratory at Yale, will visit the college here under the sponsorship of the American Association of Physics Teachers and the American Institute of Physics. Director Charles W. Reynolds of the East Carolina Science Department, has announced.

Lectures, informal discussions, assistance to faculty members concerning curriculum and research problems in physics, and talks with students will feature Dr. Beringer's activities on the campus, Dr. Reynolds stated.

Professor Beringer not only assisted in designing but also directed the actual construction of the powerful Yale accelerator. This Yale "atom smasher," as well as the California machine of which he is one of the designers, was financed by the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission at a cost of $1,800,000 each. With the completion of the machine, Professor Beringer was named director of the Heavy Ion Linear Accelerator Laboratory and is Project Director.

Responded To 68 Calls In October

Sixty-eight fire and rescue calls were answered by fire department personnel during the month of October, Fire Chief George Gardner reported.

There were 30 rescue calls, 28 telephone calls to fires and ten box alarms.

The fire calls were as follows: residence, 16; non-residence, 1; mercantile, 4; auto, 5; service calls, 3; trash fires, 6; false, 3.

Firemen made 70 home inspections during the month and they called at 52 houses where residents were not at home.

The fire inspector made 134 visits to business and public buildings including 25 in the fire district, 85 in outlying district, 15 rechecks and nine fire drills in city schools.

Fire losses for the calendar year through September amounted $83,601.62, the chief reported. Volunteer payroll for October was $412.50 and for the fiscal year, $876.75.

Enthusiasm Unfaded After 27 Years Of Teaching

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Two articles appear on this page today in observance of American Education Week, which begins Sunday. Through interviews with Mrs. Margaret Speight, who has taught in the Pitt County schools for almost 28 years, and Miss Evelyn Johnson, who is teaching her first year at Greenville Junior High School, The Daily Reflector hopes to bring the reader closer to those who are teaching your children.)

in education, veteran elementary school teacher Mrs. Margaret Speight of Farmville believes.

After teaching for 28 years, she says, "I think you grow each year with your teaching." Contrary to the thought that teaching after these many years could become the same thing over and over, Mrs. Speight says each year for her is different, each class is different and each child is different.

She feels strongly that each child needs understanding, a feeling of personal achievement and love. If you understand a child, you can teach him much better. Fulfilling these three needs constitute Mrs. Speight's personal responsibilities to the child, incorporated with the duties of administering learning material. When the needs are met, the learning processes are more effective and productive.

But there is more to Mrs. Speight's teaching than this. She includes discipline. "I think the secret of good teaching is good discipline, where it is the teacher's place to hold the child learn self-discipline, so that he trains himself to listen and follow directions.

She doesn't have problem discipline with her students, because she keeps them busy in class. "Idleness is the devil's workshop," she quotes a well known adage.

Margaret Lewis Speight's interest in teaching dates back to the third grade, when she decided she wanted to become a teacher. "I guess because I just liked the atmosphere."

Ironically, she has admitted she enjoys teaching others more than she enjoyed her own schooling.

Under the guidance of Ola Ross, who was her practice teacher during her two years at East Carolina College, she felt a strong desire to teach as well as her instructor. Mrs. Speight graduated upon completion of the two-year normal course.

It was not until 1955 that she completed requirements for the "A" teaching certificate at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson. Her ambition to teach never changed.

Since the time she began teaching in 1930, Mrs. Speight has just missed four years—three after her daughter Louise was born and the fourth during her daughter's first grade schooling.

Her daughter has had quite an effect on Mrs. Speight's career as an educator. "I feel that I've been a better teacher since I became a mother. I try to teach my students the way I would like for my own child to be taught. That makes you have a closer relationship with the children," she believes. She has found that each student needs a different kind of attention, and she tries to grade according to the individual student's abilities.

In her teaching, she tries to guide instruction to the average level, enriching the programs of those who are able to do the work. For those who are slower, she tries to give more attention and drill.

Her ideas on teaching are the product of her 27 years—this is the 28th—in the classroom. She has changed her method of teaching three times in those years, for different reasons. The approach to the subject matter has changed since she began teaching. "I think we teach more mental thinking now. We teach the 'why,'" she says.

What about homework and play for the elementary school student?

She gives homework as practice work or practice of work she has already taught them in school. This drill serves to imprint the lesson in the student's mind. But Mrs. Speight believes young children need to get outdoors and play, too. "I tell them to go home and play at least an hour. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

These days, she says there is no reason for anyone who wants to teach not to do it well. Guide-books are distributed now which detail procedures, and even present questions to ask children. If a teacher studies these books, his or her teaching can be aided.

As for quality education, a term becoming more common in North Carolina everyday, Mrs. Speight believes that some teachers may be taking quantity into their programs rather than quality. The idea is, she believes, to teach more thoroughly and bring quality in.

She has not tired of teaching these years. "When I'm in the classroom, I just think about my children and school. Books are just the tools we use in teaching," she muses.

And if she had her life to live over again, she would still be teaching. She teaches because she loves teaching. And the rewards are rich in personal satisfaction, such as seeing one whom you thought could not learn multiplication be reached, and to realize that "you have helped someone."

Mrs. Speight is the wife of Archie Speight of Farmville. She was born in Pitt County near Farmville, daughter of the late Samuel Taylor Lewis and Elsie Joyner. She has taught in Bell Arthur and in Farmville High Schools the entirety of her career.

Relative Newcomer Feels Her Responsibility To The Student

DAILY PREPARATION . . . goes into any teaching job. Above, Miss Evelyn Johnson, eighth grade teacher at Greenville Junior High School, begins reviewing her lesson plans. She is a first year teacher.

First-year teacher Evelyn Johnson of Greenville Junior High School has joined the profession realizing a long-time ambition and conceding that her ideas probably will change over the years.

Her desire to teach dates back to the first grade and the time she helped a smaller sister learn things. She now holds her college degree from East Carolina College, and hopes to complete requirements for the Master's Degree, in supervision and administration on the elementary level.

A 1960 graduate of E. C. C., she already has taken graduate work, and was a graduate assistant in the college education department, teaching remedial reading.

As a teacher, she feels strongly that her chief responsibility to her students is "to provide a learning situation in which they can learn, and I try to do this by giving an environment in which there is not a tremendous amount of pressure." She concedes she wants enough pressure to make students work, but not to hinder them.

She thinks it important to eliminate boredom from the classroom, and give freedom for expression.

Miss Johnson teaches a self-contained eighth grade at the school, which, like all classrooms, demands preparation daily and as much individual attention as possible.

Of her first year of teaching so far, she says, "I think the students have tried as hard as I have tried. They realize this is my first year." The fact that she is teaching some of the same students she had as a practice teacher has made her job easier, since the students realize what her standards are.

She is pleased with her age group, since she always wanted to work with junior high school students. "I think you can teach more to this age group," she says, adding that she feels she "blends" with the group she is teaching.

A strong advocate of the teacher-child relationship, she feels the teacher should treat students as individuals. "You should respect them, let them tell why they do things. As long as you respect them as individuals you can find out reasons behind their actions." This is a tool she uses in working out problems among the students themselves.

Like Mrs. Speight in Farmville, she likes for her students to know when they have done something well and commends them. She would like to build a stronger parent-teacher relationship, however.

Dealing with the students in teaching, she derives a great deal of satisfaction from seeing a "feeling of accomplishment" on their faces. She stands in the classroom so that she can see these expressions which often are an indicator of whether students have understood something or not.

If she believes a number of students have not gotten a point, she reteaches it. If there are a few "I ask them to remain after school, with their permission and go over the material," Miss Johnson says. She issues the "invitation" thusly, "Would you like to stay after school to learn this?"

The results are much better than if she simply asked or ordered. Sometimes other students ask if they can remain to get more explanation, also.

Asked what she believed education should do for the child, she answered, "I think you should train him for what he has the ability to do. Some may never be more than laborers, but I think I should prepare them as best I can for that. Others may do much more."

She wants to create in her students a desire to always be interested in education, to be interested in reading, to enjoy reading and to get some pleasure from it. Having worked in the language arts, she is interested in working with reading programs. "So much depends on listening and reading," she added.

"As a first year teacher, everything is new to me. I may not know how to attack a problem as skillfully as an experienced teacher," she stated. But Miss Johnson will seek out advice when she needs it from those who are more experienced.

Her own practice teacher, Mrs. Anna H. Cartner also teaches at the Junior High School, and Miss Johnson feels she owes quite a bit to her guidance.

However, her own enthusiasm for the classroom and her feelings for her students will doubtless carry her into many years in education.

A native of Clinton, she is a graduate of Clinton High School.

No Life Of Riley For Reynolds

By JIM POINDEXTER

DENVER, Colo. (AP) Bob Reynolds has a one-word answer in reply to folks who tell him a game warden's job is a life of ease. "Baloney," says Reynolds whose proper title is wildlife conservation officer, a post he has held for seven years. Reynolds has experiences to justify his answer to those who insist all a game warden does is wander through hunting and fishing areas handing out tickets to persons without licenses and those who violate the legal limit. Reynolds says he's been shot at—and hit—by skunks, run over by foxes, kicked by deer, asked to remove muskrats from back yards, golf courses and the city airport's runways. "To get a deer out of some place," explains Reynolds, "you've usually got to lasso him. And your troubles are only beginning when you get one rope on — that just brings you and the deer closer together. I've been kicked in the stomach so hard so many times that

An interesting fact, considering how many books are published, is the relative stability of items on the bestseller lists from week to week.

Some books, like "To Kill a Mockingbird" and "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," seem to be able to stay up there almost indefinitely. Both of these are going into their second year of astronomical sales. Still, as someone was pointing out the other day the popular titles which are really perennial favorites never make the bestseller lists, like the one in the New York Times, at all. Such a work, for example, as the government pamphlet entitled "Infant Care," which has had a steady sale in ten editions ever since 1914. Another prime favorite among government publications is "ABC's of Mending," which has been plugging steadily along since 1946.

Favorite Subjects

There are also certain subjects which seem to call for at least one book a year. Sir Walter Raleigh is one of these. Lord Byron's life also seems to have endless fascination for the writers and, presumably, for the reading public.

In fact, at present, there is an extremely obscure feud being waged among some literary people in England over who is going to have the right to exploit the recently available archives of Byron's grandson, Lord Lovelace, which contain much information about the poet. Some say that this cache will yield six volumes, and this is a very dismal prospect indeed.

It is perfectly possible to know too much about a poet. Nothing has deamoralized Wordsworth like the exposure by the scholars of practically every thought and feeling which he ever experienced. No one can survive such exposure and not the least important of the many lucky breaks which Shakespeare has received is the fact that we know almost nothing whatsoever about his life and absolutely nothing where he was and what he was writing in his diary on a certain date gives us a better chance to concentrate on his plays.

Sharpened History

Another popular subject for writers these days, of course is World War II. The records about that event are so complete and the survivors are still so numerous that authors have had a ball recounting certain episodes of it in great detail. Walter Lord set the style for this sort of writing in his "Pearl Harbor," in which the recollections of hundreds of participants are presented in a quick-shifting pattern which gives the reader a sharp, close-up impression of the event.

This same technique was used in Cornelius Ryan's "The Longest Day," an exciting account of the Allied invasion of Europe, and now John Toland employs it again in "But Not in Shame: The First Six Months after Pearl Harbor." This work culminates in an account of the Battle of Midway, which naval historians now designate as the turning point of the war in the Pacific, though it occurred only six months after Pearl Harbor.

North Carolina Authors

A couple of North Carolina items which are not exactly new, but which are worth more than a casual mention anyway are Inglis Fletcher's "Pay, Pack, and Follow" and John Hardin's "The Devil's Tramping Ground."

Mrs. Fletcher's autobiography will be particularly interesting to readers of her novels, since she here chronicles the development of each of them in her mind and through her research, which often led her to interesting people and places all enthusiastically recreated in this book. This is a fine memoir by a lady of great integrity who has done more than anyone else to fictionalize the history of this region.

"The Devil's Tramping Ground" retells some of the best Tar Heel mystery stories. Many of these are already generally familiar, such as the tale of Theodosia, Burr's portrait, the New mystery, and the puzzle connected with the disappearance of the Lost Colony, but Hardin tells each of them well, often suggesting various explanations which are not generally known.

Capsule Review

"The Christian Century" recently characterized the new movie version of "The King of Kings" as "The King James Version of 'Gone with the Wind.'"

Police Film The Bad Actors

By ROBERT H. CLARK
Kansas City Star Writer

TOPEKA (AP) — Movie strips of persons arrested as drunken drivers are becoming effective weapons of the Topeka Police Department.

Still in the experimental stage, the process has not been used as evidence in the trial of a case but it already has been the clincher that won a plea of guilty in several cases, according to Capt. John Dillon, head of the Topeka traffic division.

In addition Capt. Dillon said, traffic officers have strips on about 25 drivers in reserve in case their cases do reach the jury trial stage. The movies are taken as the man is booked, with the person having full knowledge the pictures are being taken, according to Lt. Fred Feaker, public relations officer of the department.

The sequence follows such reactions as the finger-to-the-nose test, walking a straight line, lighting a cigarette, fumbling for the driver's license from the billfold or knee bends.

"We've had several pleas after the man calls us next morning asking what happened and is told among other things, that we have a movie of him at the station showing he was flying pretty high," Feaker said. There is no problem of getting pictures of drunks, Capt. Dillon stated. "Drunks just love to have their pictures taken — they like to show off."

Several test showings of the films have been made to judges and prosecuting officials and all seem in agreement that the strips can be introduced in court, Capt. Dillon said.

There is the possibility, however, that admissibility as evidence will be challenged so Topeka police are not building their drunk driving cases solely on the film strips. Feaker said: "It is just another tool in ridding down a case."

TOPEKA POLICE DEPARTMENT makes movies of the actions of persons charged with drunken driving during their booking at police headquarters. Demonstrating the technique are Capt. John C. Dillon, head of the traffic division, with camera, traffic officers Ted Baehue and Russell Hill and Sgt. Joe Frazier, posing as a suspected drunken driver.
