ALL TEN BOND ISSUES REJECTED BY N. C.

'Sleeper' Vote Upsets Prediction

Jolting Rebuff Handed Sanford; Surprisingly Large Vote Of Near 350,000

RALEIGH (AP)—A strong tide of votes washed $61.6 million in proposed bond issues down the drain Tuesday in a statewide election.

The results showed two big surprises—the size of the total vote, running towards 350,000; and the margin of defeat for all ten bond issues on the ballot. It was a "sleeper vote."

The bonds were beaten despite the fact that no organized campaign of opposition was set up before the election. In contrast, Gov. Sanford named a large group of citizens, headed by veteran State Rep. John W. Umstead of Chapel Hill, to beat the drums for approval of the bonds.

Thus, it was a jolting rebuff for the governor, who had urged approval of the bonds as necessary for the state's continuing progress. Around half of the money would have gone for higher education institutions, while the remainder would have been spread out for purposes from ports expansion to mental institutions to state parks and forestry protection.

Closest among the ten items on the ballot was the proposed $7,396,000 issue for mental hospitals—and the margin of defeat there was better than 26,000.

Returns from 1,997 of the state's 2,100 precincts gave 187,675 votes against the bonds, to 161,404 in favor.

The count on the other issues: The largest of the lot, $31,008,000 for higher education institutions, with 2,016 precincts, 213,749 against, 133,858 for.

The second largest, $13.5 million for ports, 2,016 precincts 219,903 against, 122,841 for.

Capital area buildings, $2,858,000, with 1,998 precincts 237,574 against, 104,089 for.

State library-archives and history $2,560,000, with 2,009 precincts, 241,757 against, 100,047 for.

Community colleges, $1,483,000, with 2,009 precincts, 216,980 against, 128,486 for.

State training schools, $1,110,000, with 2,001 precincts, 206,885 against, 135,983 for.

Local hospitals construction, $500,000, with 2,009 precincts, 212,386 against, 133,706 for.

State parks and forestry protection, $961,000, with 2,024 precincts, 228,936 against, 117,619 for.

Agricultural research, $289,000, with 2,024 precincts, 228,860 against, 117,843 for.

Crowd Chanted 'We Want The Bond Issue'

ECC Students Demonstrate Over Bonds' Defeat; Big Disappointment

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

An estimated 1,500 East Carolina College students marched on downtown Greenville late last night as a demonstration against the defeat of the state-wide bond election which, if passed, would have meant three and one-half million dollars for the local college.

With cries of "We want the bond issue," the mass of students left the campus and headed down Fifth Street to Five Points. They then moved two blocks north on Evans where they congregated around ECC President, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins. Dr. Jenkins, who spoke to the group there from the top of a Greenville police car, asked the gathering to return to the campus and meet in front of the Austin Building.

Greenville Police emphasized that the group was not belligerent, but instead, demonstrating sincere disappointment in the defeat of the bond election.

Speaking at both the Austin Building and at Jones Hall on the South Campus, Dr. Jenkins commended the group on the orderly fashion in which they met and their sincere interest in public affairs. "I share your disappointment," he told the crowd, but, "our task now is to explain to our citizens that the needs are real and that future students will find it increasingly difficult to obtain a higher education because of this defeat."

When he told the demonstrators that "the vote in Greenville and Pitt County was in favor of the bond issue" and "We are among friends," a cheer went up from the crowd.

At another point in the demonstration, after Dr. Jenkins spoke, the students gave three cheers for him.

While the demonstrators were mostly men students, since it was after hours for women dormitory students, the girls wanted to participate.

As the college president spoke in front of Austin, girls in nearby dorms chanted "We want out."

This election was a tremendous disappointment to the students for they had worked untiringly trying to convince the citizens of the genuine need for the facilities," President Jenkins said today.

"The students are closer to this situation than anyone else and they wanted some explanation regarding future plans for the college. Their enthusiasm speaks well for the interest of young people in the growth of their state.

"The orderly manner in which they conducted themselves," Jenkins commented, "is a compliment to them and reveals that their interest was genuine."

The college head said, "They have already begun working on additional projects to raise the money for the stadium that was lost through the bond issue. Early this morning a group of men from Theta Chi fraternity presented a check to the college," he noted.

"I challenged them to carry the story of the relationship between higher education and our economy to all the counties represented by the group," Dr. Jenkins emphasized.

The college president said the demonstration was held in an orderly fashion, and noted that no one was hurt, no property destroyed and no vulgarities used. "When we wanted to talk, they were quiet and let me talk."

Only one incident marred the night for the demonstrators. One 20-year-old youth who participated in the demonstration was arrested on charges of disorderly conduct by officers for his actions in the business district after the remainder of the crowd had returned to their rooms.

Police Checking On Bomb Scare

Police were checking a bomb scare in Flanagan Auditorium this afternoon.

No classes were to be held in the building between 2 and 3 o'clock.

Pres. Leo W. Jenkins said a faculty wife told him that an unidentified person had called her. The caller said he overheard someone talking about doing this. He said the person appeared to be mentally disturbed.

"We have to check these things out," Dr. Jenkins said. City police and sheriff's deputies were searching the classroom building this afternoon.

Fifty Families Rushing Shelter

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP)—Members of 50 families in Laketon Township north of Muskegon are rushing construction of a huge privately owned fall-out shelter.

The shelter will accommodate 200 persons—members of families who are paying for it.

William Weisner, Muskegon insurance salesman who is chairman of the project, said the shelter will have well water, a bottled gas-powered generating plant, showers, toilets, decontamination equipment and medical supplies.

Stadium Drive Is Extended For Extra $50,000

A total of $230,058 so far has been pledged for construction of the new James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium at East Carolina College.

The committee also announced this morning that an additional $50,000 in contributions will be sought for the stadium to make up for the loss of that amount in the state-wide bond issue yesterday. Included in the $3.4 million for East Carolina College in the bond issue was $50,000 earmarked for athletic facilities.

Following a one-week campaign in Greenville the Stadium Committee announced that $212,000 had been pledged by businessmen and other citizens of Greenville for the project. Since that time an additional $18,000 in contributions has been received for the stadium.

"We feel that this is a project the people of Greenville and the friends of East Carolina College want to see through to completion," said W. M. Scales, chairman of the Stadium Committee this morning. "We regret that the voters of the state failed to approve the proposed bond issue for educational institutions, but that will not prevent East Carolina College from having the kind of stadium it needs. We know there are many people who have not been contacted who would like to have a part in providing this new facility for the college."

The stadium, which initially will have a capacity of 16,000, is to be constructed on college property between 14th Street and highway 43. The committee has announced it hopes that the stadium would be ready for use by next September.

Pitt Voted For Eight Of Ten Issues Tuesday

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer Pitt County voters—some 3,350 of them—turned out Tuesday to give favorable votes to eight of 10 bond issues that were soundly defeated in the state-wide election.

Pitt's vote failed to approve $2,858,000 for capital area buildings and $2,560,000 for an archives and history and state library building.

The remaining eight issues—including $31.5 million for colleges and $13.5 million for state ports—gained favorable votes in Pitt by margins ranging from about 220 votes for natural resources conservation and development to about 1,040 for state mental institutions.

Defeat of the $31.5 million issue for capital improvements at state-supported colleges was viewed by East Carolina College officials as a staggering blow. Students at the local college exhibited their feelings by staging an 11 p.m. demonstration in downtown Greenville and on the campus in protest of the issue's defeat.

East Carolina would have received $3.4 million of the bond funds for a new classroom building, two new dormitories, library expansion, land acquisition, students union expansion and outdoor athletic facilities. Three federal loans would have been boosted the school's total funds from the bond issue to about $4.6 million.

The school's president, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, today expressed disappointment that the voters failed to approve the bond funds.

He said: "We are now in a position whereby future enrollment will have to be curtailed until such time as arrangements can be made for construction of desperately needed additional facilities. It is too early at this time to predict how this will be carried out."

He said the proposed dormitories would have been ready for occupancy within 15 months to two years had the bond issue gained voter approval. "It is pretty obvious that this will not be the case and in view of our present expanded enrollment there will be fewer places for new students."

(Precinct-by-precinct tabulation of the Pitt County voting will be found on Page 5).

Dr. Jenkins spoke to the demonstrating students twice. After the group had been dispersed at Five Points in the center of Greenville's business district, it gathered again at one of the campus dormitories.

The college president told the group there: "We have just lost a battle, but we have not lost the war." The students chanted back: "We shall rise again."

Pitt voters favored the $31.5 million issue 2,041 to 1,301—a margin of 740 votes. Greenville's eight precincts gave the issue a majority of nearly 1,000 votes—1,247 to 253.

Included in the issue was $50,000 for outdoor athletic facilities for ECC. The college had been counting heavily on those funds to aid in moving stands and fencing from College Stadium to the proposed James S. Ficklen Memorial Stadium.

A recent drive conducted by Greenville businessmen and ECC alumni has raised at least $235,000 for the stadium. Dr. Jenkins said today: "I have been advised by the committee that they are going to continue their campaign in behalf of the stadium in order to raise the $50,000 for this project that was lost in the bond issue."

He praised the committee's efforts: "We are very grateful to this civic-minded group of men under the leadership of Mr. W. M. Scales for this expression of affection for and interest in the college."

Dr. Jenkins continued: "We are also grateful to the people of Greenville and Pitt County, not only for their support of the stadium, but for their support of the bond issue for the college. We are exceedingly confident that the stadium will be a reality."

The president expressed doubt that the college would be able to exercise an option on a proposed 73-acre addition of land to the campus. The option on the tract—scheduled for purchase with $217,000 in the bond issue—expires Feb. 1, 1962.

It would have allowed East Carolina to push its campus northwest across NC Highway 43 north of the US 264 by-pass. That area represents the only outlet for campus expansion not bounded by residential areas.

Hollywood Brush Fires Raging On

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An army of 2,300 men, hacking across flaming canyons, have encircled one of two monstrous fires in the Santa Monica Mountains—and fought the other to a standstill.

If winds stay down today, firemen hope to gain the upper hand against both blazes, termed the worst fire outbreak in Southern California history.

Firemen contained—but did not control—the fire in the Bel-Air area, home of millionaires and movie stars. They drove tractors and bulldozers around fiery brush and inaccessible canyons to clear a swath 20 to 50 feet wide around the flames' perimeter.

A few miles away, in sparsely settled Topanga Canyon, wind-fueled "hot spots" prevented similar encirclement. But firemen kept this blaze from expanding.

Assessing damage from the three-day-old fires, officials gave this estimate: more than $15 million worth of property damage; 259 homes destroyed (all but nine in the Bel-Air section); hundreds of others badly damaged and scorched; 11,900 acres of mountain watershed, prime defense against spring floods, destroyed.

Each blaze covered about 5,500 acres. At their closest points, the fires were about one to two miles apart.

There were no reports of death. About 100 firemen and residents were injured, none seriously.

ROCKY MOUNT—About a dozen Pitt Countyans brought their county's banner into the organizational meeting here Tuesday of a permanent regional development group involving six North-eastern North Carolina Counties.

Led by county industrial, commercial and agricultural development leaders, the Pitt delegation sat with representatives of Martin, Beaufort, Edgecombe, Nash and Wilson Counties to hear a keynote address by Gov. Sanford. The Governor urged the 150 delegates to make the area organization a success. He said youths from the six-county area are moving to other sections of the state to find jobs after their native counties have financed education for them.

Pitt's delegation and representatives of East Carolina College saw their invitation to the group to meet next in Greenville accepted. The six-county organization is scheduled to meet in Greenville Dec. 8. Among the Pitt delegation were Dr. C. Sylvester Green, Leonard P. Bloxam, W. A. Gaskins, S. Winchester, J. Howard Moye, T.

W. Willis, Mrs. Brantley Speight, Mrs. James Bell, Willard T. Kyrer, Robert L. Humber and Robert E. Cramer. The county's three official delegates to cast Pitt's votes were elected. They are Mrs. Bell, Dr. Green and W. W. Speight. State Sen. Dallas Alford of Nash County was re-elected temporary chairman of the group.

Farmville Commissioners Okay An Expanded Planning Board

FARMVILLE—A wider-reaching Planning Board was created for Farmville Tuesday as the town's Commissioners adopted a new ordinance that replaces the old Zoning Board with a long-range planning group.

The ordinance provides for a Farmville Planning Board whose primary goal will be to formulate a long-range, city-wide plan projecting into the future in an attempt to anticipate size and direction of town growth and expansion.

While the new board was created, its members were not appointed. The commissioners are expected to name its membership at a special meeting Friday night.

The commissioners favored the ordinance at their regular October meeting but handed it to legal advisers for examination before acting on the measure. Work is scheduled to begin on a 2,400-foot water main extension within a few days, according to spokesmen for S. M. Cozart Construction Co. of Wilson who attended the board meeting last night.

Spokesmen told the commissioners the company would begin the project immediately after the board awarded the contract to the Wilson contractor which submitted a low bid of $13,500. The project will stretch the town's eight-inch water main from its present terminal on S. Main Street southward along S. Main to the city limits.

Joseph T. Joyner, chairman of the Street Committee, reported to the board all the street department's vehicles are being painted a uniform color and are being adorned with identifying decals. He said commissioner Sam Wainwright is painting the vehicles at no cost to the town.

In other business, the board—accepted the low bid ($86,230) submitted by Commercial Insurance Agency for comprehensive automobile liability insurance for town employees. The insurance plan, according to town clerk H. M. Alred, has had its specifications altered and its coverage broadened.

—authorized the Street Committee to purchase a used motor grader for use by the Street Department. Cost of the equipment, including trade-in of the town's present motor grader, would be $3,750. Before purchasing the grader, the Street Committee will watch a demonstration of the equipment.

—approved payment of $75 as the town's share in cost of sending a Farmville resident to New York to enroll in a course in radiation detection.

—invited Olsen Engineering Co. of Raleigh to meet with the board at its regular December meeting to discuss a water and sewer main survey of the entire city. The board will call for cost estimates and estimates of the extent of an adequate network of water and sewer mains for the entire town. —purchased a 1960 model motorcycle to replace the Police Department's present vehicle. "For hospital or individual assistance and entertainment for needy veterans or service patients in local hospitals and in VA hospital." Mrs. Meeks, in urging the citizens of Greenville to purchase a Buddy Poppy, said that more than one-half of the total receipts are used for local veteran welfare work. "We are primarily an organization dedicated to serving our disabled and needy veterans, no matter in what way they may have fought or whether or not they be V.F.W. members."

Mrs. Frank Longino, Bloodmobile chairman, announced that the Bloodmobile would visit Greenville Dec. 8 from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

John Clark Is Cosmos Speaker

Mrs. Julian White Jr. was hostess to the Cosmos Book Club at her home Tuesday. Arrangements of mixed flowers were arranged throughout the house.

The members and guests, Mrs. Moulton Massey Jr., Mrs. James Harvey Ward Jr., Mrs. Charles Rowlette Jr. and Mrs. Milton Williamson, were served a luncheon by the hostess.

Mr. John Clark, who was a courier diplomat, gave a program on the diplomatic service. The importance of this service was stressed because it is the voice, eyes and ears of our government abroad. There are two extremes of diplomacy. One is being able to use one's own natural resources and wit. The other, Mr. Clark compared with that of the Myna bird, which is only repeating what one has been taught to say.

At the business meeting, the president, Mrs. Don Calloway, appointed a committee to find a needy family to help at Christmas.

The books were distributed and the meeting adjourned.

Words And Facts

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1961 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Many are puzzled by the difference between Socialism and Communism and write inquiring whether there is really a difference. There are many forms of confusion arising from the disassociation of word from fact. If, instead of using the words Socialism and Communism, we speak of Marxism, we come closer to the truth. Karl Marx, in association with Friedrich Engels, in 1848 wrote a pamphlet, "The Communist Manifesto," in which they attempted to recite concisely a theory of social development based on the evolution of mankind by historic forces.

"The history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles." The socialist movement can be traced back to the immediate aftermath of the French Revolution. If it is possible to have political equality, why not social and economic equality? Many attempts were made during the 1830's to effect these changes by mass demonstrations. In 1844, the "Society of the Deacons" or "Friends of All Nations" was organized but it was difficult to do more than stir up a sentiment for Socialism—that is, government ownership of the means of production and distribution and exchange.

Karl Marx was able to devote himself entirely to changing the world, not only by writing books and pamphlets but by organizing "The Worker's Educational Society" and similar organizations in European countries. Marx became a clearing house for these socialist organizations.

"The Communist League" was organized in 1847. It was for this association of socialist reformist and other Leftist groups that "The Communist Manifesto" was written. It was an error to assume that all of Marxism is stated in "The Communist Manifesto." Marx was a prolific writer on a myriad of subjects. Some of his other writings are more important, but the "Manifesto" established a working class movement which abandoned the Nationalism of the French Revolution and the Anarchism of those who held that all government is evil. It needs to be pointed out that many socialistic concepts were accepted by various European governments, particularly Prussia and other German states, and the Scandinavian countries and Great Britain.

From many standpoints the reformist ideas of Marx and Engels were making great headway throughout the world. The changes were not systematic, but met immediate circumstances in certain countries. In 1903, the Russian Social Democratic Party met in London. This meeting divided into two groups, the Majority or Bolshevik Group being led by Lenin. Most of those who attended this conference were refugees from Czarism who lived abroad. Lenin believed in the permanent revolution, in change as a necessity of historic development.

Bolshevism made no progress until the war of 1914-17, in which Russia was defeated. It was then possible for Lenin and his associates to seize power and to establish Communist government; that is, one in which all democratic processes were abolished, in which the state was taken over by the Communist Party which held the country in tutelage as a

Double Standard By Soviet Union

A typical Soviet propaganda campaign regarding nuclear testing is now making itself evident as should have been expected by the free world.

In effect it says that the recent Soviet tests do not count in any consideration of world's nuclear testing problem. Full responsibility for nuclear testing, past and future, will rest upon the shoulders of the United States and its allies. It obviously sets forth a double standard whereby the Soviets accord themselves the privilege of testing nuclear weapons any time they get ready, while the free world must accept responsibility for these tests because they have forced the issue.

Obviously the Soviet propaganda experts have carefully evaluated this new line before it was put out for world consumption, but in our opinion as laymen, we seriously doubt that the peoples of the world will accept the Soviets say in this regard.

How can the United States be blamed for the Soviets' making the first move to break the voluntary moratorium on nuclear testing which has been in effect for several years? How did actions by the United States prompt further testing by the Soviets when the U. S. had not conducted new tests until after the Soviets started? If the Soviets conducted tests, how can they expect the United States to sit back and not conduct further tests if it feels they are necessary.

Behind this new propaganda line there is the suggestion that the Soviets, in spite of their display of huge explosions in the recent tests, may not be sure that they have yet caught up with the free world in terms of nuclear weapons. The propaganda line indicates the Soviets perhaps desire an excuse for further testing—at a later date—when they have time to replace those explosives they have discharged, or when they have had time to make refinements in their weapons.

It is not always easy to evaluate through American eyes the impact of Soviet propaganda on neutral and uncommitted people of the world, but this is one case in which the Soviets appear to be yelling in a barrel in an attempt to justify their actions.

We may be sure—along with the rest of the world—that if the Soviets desire to make further nuclear tests they will do so regardless of the action of the United States or its allies. Such was the case with the current series of Soviet tests, and it will be true of the next.

North-South Artery Is Given Another Boost

Extension of U.S. Highway 13 another 51 miles from Goldsboro to the intersection of Interstate Highway 95 just north of Fayetteville gives another boost to the new major north-south artery through this section of Eastern North Carolina.

U. S. 13 is visualized by its boosters as eventually spanning more than 1,100 miles from its northern point across North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana to New Orleans. While a relatively small portion of this total mileage has been officially designated with the U.S. 13 number so far, the very fact that the new extension has become a reality holds out hope that some day the dream may be realized.

For this section of North Carolina through which the route passes, any new extension of the route makes U.S. 13 more important as an avenue of potential commerce and trade. The farther the route is extended, the more attractive it attracts, and the greater its potential traffic.

The extension of this 51 miles from Goldsboro to the point just north of Fayetteville is the first concrete step which has come in the extension of the highway designation in several years. It suggests, however, that the American Association of State Highway Officials, the organization which takes action on requests for extending U.S. highways is becoming more aware of this new route and its importance to interstate transportation. There is reason to believe this new step may open the door for further extension of the highway designation without as long a delay as was experienced between this most recent extension and the one which was officially recognized several years ago.

Tough Job For Burma Diplomat

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's not just the eyes watching that's going to make filling Dag Hammarskjold's job tough for his successor. The very title of the job, and the fight over it, force him into self-consciousness.

Besides, the power of the office has been diminished. So it will not be unexpected if U Thant, the Burmese diplomat who replaces Swedish Hammarskjold, does only a so-so job, and maybe not even so-so.

Hammarskjold, killed in an African plane crash in September, was secretary general of the United Nations. U Thant, chosen last Friday to succeed him, is simply acting secretary-general.

He will fill out the unexpired part of Hammarskjold's term which ends in about 18 months, April 1963.

It was Hammarskjold's willingness to assert responsibility to the fullest authority of his office, as he saw it—that sometimes angered several Western nations but particularly infuriated the Soviets.

In the Congo, for instance, it was the United Nations under Hammarskjold's leadership which frustrated Russian efforts to move in on a chaotic predicament. It was no wonder Premier Khrushchev said the Russians didn't trust the Swede.

Khrushchev in his anger went so far as to demand reorganization of the United Nations to provide not one secretary-general but three—one each representing the West, Russia, and the neutrals—and each with a veto over what the others wanted.

This so-called troika plan could have paralyzed the United Nations in any emergency.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

NATURE OF REAL HAPPINESS Phillips Brooks, the great preacher who stirred the hearts of much of the believing world a hundred years ago, wrote on one occasion: "It seems a wonderful thing that the supremely rich human nature of Jesus never for an instant turned with self-indulgence in on its own richness, or was beguiled by that besetting danger of all opulent souls, wish, in the deepest sense, just to enjoy himself."

There is enough heaviness in life, discouragement, pain, and disappointment to make everyone of us want to enjoy himself, or herself, if that is possible. It is natural to want to enjoy oneself and unnatural not to have this desire. Yet there is probably nothing which more often gets out of hand and goes to extremes than this wholesome, normal desire. People can very easily make self-satisfaction and pleasure-seeking ends in themselves. But Nature—or as most of us would say, a righteous God—handles such a situation in a disconcerting fashion. The fate of that person who puts self-enjoyment first is that the time comes when he not only cannot enjoy himself any longer, but when actually he can enjoy nothing at all. The sole recourse word—could step up and take it without buying anything else. GOVERNMENT VS. TRADITION But merchandisers did not take kindly to this idea. They pointed out that centuries before the FTC was born, merchandisers had been offering "buy one and take another free." By and truly turned the world organization, which is supposed to preserve peace, into a namby-pamby debating society.

The Russians, with Hammarskjold dead, saw their chance to push for the troika. The United States was dead against it.

After seven weeks of maneuvering the United States and Russia finally worked out a compromise in picking U Thant.

He would be only the acting secretary-general but he would pick U Thant as his advisor. He would name an American and a Russian as his advisers. He may name more.

In a way Russia lost. It didn't get three secretaries-general. In a sense it won—U Thant is committed to consulting certain advisers although what happens if the Russian or American disagrees with him remains to be seen.

This much is clear already: This very arrangement of commitment on consultation weakens the power of the office. Hammarskjold had a much freer hand than his successor.

The Russians haven't lost their fight for the troika. They may merely have postponed it until U Thant's term is up and the United Nations has to pick a full secretary-general.

Here, too, the acting secretary-general is on the spot since he knows or at least can suppose, that the way he handles his job will have some bearing on whether the Russians will insist on a troika in 18 months or settle for less.

On top of all this—with all these handicaps—U Thant knows that every one of the 103 member nations will be watching to see how he compares with Hammarskjold.

Big News On The Neuse

Remember the Ram Neuse? Of course not. That ill-fated ironclad briefly appeared on history's scene in 1865. It never fired a shot in anger and the story goes that the Neuse took its own life.

Three men are trying to raise the vessel from its resting place just to the rear of the Smith Douglas plant off Heritage Street in Kinston. The plan is a long-time dream of Tom Carlyle, Richards, drizzling operator. He says that not until now has the river level been so low for a protracted period, and other conditions so favorable, to undertake the job.

He, and two accomplices, is making considerable headway against a hundred years' accumulation of sand and silt. Barring unexpected difficulties, the Neuse might be clear sometime next week.

Back in 1940 the Corps of Engineers estimated such a project might cost $20,000. Carlyle and two Kinston men hope to prove it otherwise.

The Neuse was built at White Hall near Seven Springs and designed to be the most deadly ironclad in the Confederate Navy. She was 200 feet long and 50 feet wide. The turret was 50 feet wide and 60 feet long at the base, inclining gently from bottom to top.

She was brought downriver to Kinston for a final battle-readiness and disaster.

Kinston was besieged in March, 1865, and in trying to move the Neuse to safety she became stuck on a shoal. To prevent its capture, the crew set fire to the vessel. The flames reached one of the turrets, setting it off, tearing a hole below the waterline and flooding the boat. Naturally, the fire was extinguished.

Subsequently the Neuse was divested of her armor and as much of the equipment as could be salvaged. There's considerable doubt as to how much actually remains; some say there is very little.

The salvagers have recovered some timbers, described as heart pine with no evidence of water-logging, an old soldier's boot, some iron spikes, a hatch-cover, an iron bearing shaft and an ancient whiskey bottle.

Needless to say, the operation has been closely followed by the Kinston newspaper and scores of onlookers at the scene. Lenoir commissioners were approached for funds (work like this is bound to run into money), but the board was advised it couldn't legally appropriate for such a project.

In the meantime, speculation runs high. Just what are the salvagers going to raise? Can they really raise the craft? We'll probably know next week.

Other Editors Saying Degrees Of Fear

(Washington Daily News)

Russia has been busy lately setting off powerful explosions of nuclear bombs. The biggest explosion in history took place last Monday as Russia exploded a nuclear bomb variously estimated to be of a range between a 30 megaton and a 50 megaton size.

What does Russia hope to accomplish in a world already beset with grave tensions by setting off such powerful bombs? Does the Soviet Union realize that her actions serve as an invitation to other nations, particularly the United States, to set off huge bombs also?

There might be degrees of fear in the world. The people of one nation might be more fearful than the people of another nation. But are not the Russian people themselves sharing in the fears of the world? We suspect that they are. And we suspect that Russian people look at nuclear power in the same light as people of America are looking at it—as a power of destruction.

Somewhere along the line of fears, we wonder if humanity ever arrives at the point where one more big bomb will cause any more fear than already exists. We are told that the atomic bomb used to destroy Hiroshima. And the chances are that 2,500 times more radiation will result than came from the Hiroshima bomb.

What will America do in the face of such demonstrated destructive power? Will we merely sit still and bemoan the awful fact that Russia has taken such steps? Or will America now go into an active testing program with all the radioactive dangers which are evident?

If the world today is going to witness the spectacle of a nuclear race much as people look at a football game, then humanity is bound to pay a terrible price in the end. If we destroy the whole world, what has been gained?

The whole business of nuclear testing is a brutal anti-human episode in history. So many people are hungry and ill-clothed today over the world. We suspect that many Russian subjects are hungry at this very moment. But Russia spends huge sums to show to the world its destructive powers.

We just wonder if each exploding bomb means that fears are actually increased. It could be that many peoples over the world are already so afraid and trembling so much at the thought of what might happen that one more test explosion will make no difference. But we speculate that the fears are just as rampant among Russian people as they are among other people over the world—including America.

If we are afraid, then Russia is afraid too. Make no mistake about this matter of fears in today's world. No one nation has a monopoly on fear.

With all this attention being given to fallout clouds in the upper atmosphere, and warnings we may expect it to filter down with winter's snows and spring rains, my Missus encountered a suggestion that might be worth passing along.

Eating snowcream is something of a custom in eastern North Carolina, whenever the weatherman permits. Children are introduced to the dish at an early age; and it is nothing unusual for the young and not-so-young to scoop up a handful of fresh-fallen snow and eat it.

The suggestion this winter, is: Don't.

The snow might be... and it might not be... contaminated.

Have I just spoiled your winter for you?

The Word 'Free' Being Studied

By ELMER ROESSNER

The Federal Trade Commission appears to be taking a new squint at the use of the word "free" in advertising.

Almost ten years ago the FTC launched a campaign that would have made Noah Webster proud. It declared that nothing could be advertised as free unless it was for nothing. It started to rough up advertisers who offered lamps and end tables "free" to people who bought a couch and sofa, or who advertised a razor "free" to people who bought blades and soap.

The FTC indicated that if extras were offered "at no added cost," things might be all right, but that nothing could be free unless an advertiser—"Buy 1 and get 1 free," and "Every second can free."

He added that in various advertisements, "the word free invariably jumps out in the advertisement because it is in larger letters, bolder type or more strategically placed than the words of qualifications."

this time, they argued, the public was aware that free things were only free conditionally.

The FTC did not draw in its horns, but it did draw in its citations. In the last decade, except for a few blatant misrepresentations, the FTC has been inclined to let the free offers tempt those who may

But now the commission appears to be stiffening its definitions again. FTC Examiner Herman Tocker has issued an order requiring the Mary Carter Paint Co., Tampa, Fla., to "discontinue" deceptive "free" and related pricing claims.

It seems that Mary, or her associates, have been advertising paint with such slogans as "Buy 1 and get 1 free," and "Every second can free."

Thad Eure Went Home To Vote

By LYNN NISBET

TRAVELING VOTER — Thad Eure, Secretary of State, like most other State officials, went home Tuesday to vote in the bond election. Mr. and Mrs. Eure voted at Winton in Hertford county as they have in every election since 1932. Thad said he isn't sure exactly how many trips he has made between Raleigh and Winton in the past 30 years just to vote, but he knows the aggregate mileage is well above 12,000 miles. Although the law used to permit absentee voting in primaries and still allows it in general elections, Thad has utilized the absentee ballot only one time.

Governor Terry Sanford also went home to Fayetteville to cast his vote for the bonds. Unlike Eure and the other State officials, however, the Governor didn't have to dig into his pocket for expense money to make the trip. He had the State-owned "Kitty Hawk" plane at his service for an appearance in New York City Tuesday morning, a luncheon meeting and speech at Albemarle Community College at Elizabeth City at noon, a swift side trip to Fayetteville to vote, and then to Rocky Mount for an area development association meeting.

Some State employees below the rank of executive had to pass up the vote Tuesday. It was due to no lack of interest or patriotism but to some solid facts of life. The State could not allow pay for the time employees used in going to and from home to vote. The amount was charged against their vacation time—even if they could get off. Then it would cost from five to 12 cents a mile to make the trip, running in some instances to well more than a day's pay—plus the loss of time. Admittedly that is a rather heavy contribution to expect from the average employee.

Y. D. C. — The contest for president of the State Young Democratic Clubs offers a choice and a study in qualifications of the candidates. The outstanding entries, and there isn't likely to be any more, are W. Ray Lackey of Stony Point in Alexander county and W. E. (Dub) Graham of Charlotte. They are approximately the same age, in the mid-thirties. Both are very popular as persons and as Democrats.

Graham is a lawyer. Lackey is a layman with business training. Graham has manifested some interest in politics through the years, but this is his first venture into big time rough and tumble campaign procedure. Lackey has served as register of deeds for his county and as a representative in the General Assembly — and has won and been defeated for both places in election campaigns.

So the propaganda for and against the two candidates for YDC president now takes about this course: The Graham folks say the Y. D. C. organization should be a sort of training ground for political activity, that offices — especially the presidency — ought to go to promising young men and women who have shown capacity for leadership, so that they can be groomed for elective office later. They cite Terry Sanford, Gordon Gray, Clifton Blue and other former presidents who later achieved recognition in big party councils.

That is what YDC is for, argue these people, to groom and train future leaders. When we find a man capable of promotion, they say, we ought to carry him along. Let's boost these unknown into prominence and thereby get indirect credit for YDC.

OTHER SIDE—Then the supporters of Ray Lackey come along with a different approach. They point to their candidate as a man who has already attained recognition and can perhaps give to YDC some extra prestige on that account. There has been some disposition on part of regular party leaders to ignore the YDC as a sort of crackpot or irresponsible organization, seeking nothing more than headlines and the opportunity to wave flags in a political parade. Selection of a president who has worked with local government in an elective county office to well more than a year, plus the loss of time. Admittedly that is a rather heavy contribution to expect from the average employee.

Grindle Creek Projects Are Reviewed Monday

Coastal Plain Soil and Water Conservation District Supervisors and Pitt County Drainage District No. 2 commissioners Monday reviewed progress and inspected work on the Grindle Creek drainage and flood control project.

Pitt County Agent S. C. Winchester and Soil Conservation Service personnel accompanied the project's sponsors on the inspection tour.

R. P. Moore, SCS area conservationist from Goldsboro, reviewed the history of the watershed phase of the national conservation program. The five-year Grindle Creek project plan was then reviewed by SCS work unit conservationist Roy R. Beck.

Since the land treatment work is behind schedule, the sponsors asked Winchester to hold a combination educational meeting and tour of the project. The Grindle Creek project will be two and a half years old Dec. 26.

Clifton E. Mills, SCS government representative, reviewed the project agreement and the construction and maintenance agreement between the U. S. Government and the sponsors.

District supervisors Arch J. Flanagan and W. C. House, drainage district commissioners J. Paul Davenport, K. E. Manning and S. C. Ives, the agricultural workers and Charlie Whitehurst then toured the project.

The group rode boats from the mouth of Grindle Creek upstream about two miles and back to see problems encountered in construction. From there the group drove to Eric Whitchard's farm in the Station Mill community.

Whitchard discussed the basic conservation plan he has developed for his farm. Sam Cox, SCS soil conservationist, helped explain the land capability map of Whitchard's farm.

The group then looked at earth under the bridge on US Highway 13 and decided to order the contractor to excavate the canal to grade under highway bridges.

The Pitt County District Supervisor Board had met in the morning when they made arrangements to ask business interests in the county for financial support. The supervisors also completed arrangements for conducting the annual election of a supervisor during the first week of December.

The essential difference between one form of Socialism and another is a matter of speed. For instance, one does not think of Theodore Roosevelt, Robert La Follette or William Jennings Bryan as Socialists; yet some of the reforms they advocated were definitely socialist, as, for instance, the income tax. On the other hand, the speed of revolution and change, the abolition of all forms of democracy, the dictatorial authority of the state, as manifest in all Soviet countries—this is called Communism. But the father of all these movements was Karl Marx.

THE GREEN STONE

A suspense thriller by SUZANNE BLANC

CHAPTER 10

Following the guide's directions, Jessie Prewitt easily found the Villa Serena. It was built on the site of an old monastery. Over a century before, the building had been destroyed by fire, but the wall which enclosed the sloping grounds still stood, its rough stone covered with a mealy yellow plaster, its top encrusted by jagged pieces of colored glass. A heavy, wooden gate had once helped to protect the beautiful gardens, but in the thirties when the land was auctioned by the state, the gate was no longer in existence and the grounds were no longer beautiful. The wealthy merchant who bought the property was determined to have the most magnificent villa in the area. He started by restoring the gardens. Only the large, rare trees were left. The rank growth was stripped away and underneath, treasures of landscaping were found: stone walks that wandered down the slope, small fishponds, a miniature waterfall. The walks and fishponds were repaired and a massive oak-slab gate with antique fittings was designed for the wall. At the bottom of the slope, on the site of the old monastery, the merchant built his villa. Before it was finished, however, the work stopped abruptly. Through an error of judgment he was persuaded to back an ambitious general who promised, in return, leases to the rich, nationalized oil lands. Had the coup succeeded, the merchant would have indeed been very rich, but the incipient revolution was aborted, and, facing both ruin and disgrace, he hanged himself from one of the ancient rosewood trees. His sinful body was not placed in consecrated ground but buried alone at the corner of the estate under an inconspicuous marker. His heirs could neither afford to finish the villa nor find a buyer for it because of its malodorous reputation. The estate was said to be haunted and on starless nights, the story went, the body of the merchant could be seen swinging from the branches of the oak tree. It was a half decade before a lonely Michigan widow, attracted by its reasonable price, decided to convert the villa into a hotel. Two rambling wings were attached to the main building, a parking area was built outside the main wall, and an excellent chef was found. When the villa was finally ready to operate, it could accommodate only twenty-eight guests. But in spite of its limited capacity and the difficulties of operating a hotel in a foreign country, Ruth Alexander was moderately successful.

She overcame the difficulty of finding servants by importing help from the northern border who did not know the local superstitions. She trained them to cater to a North American clientele, paid them well, and they remained with her. Even after fifteen years in Mexico, she retained her identity, speaking flawless Spanish with a flat, Midwestern accent. Like the other tourists who came to the Villa, Jessie felt immediately at home with Mrs. Alexander. The tall, angular woman who greeted her was someone from her own familiar world. Everything about the Villa Serena reassured her. Mrs. Alexander's brisk, friendly efficiency, the magnificent expanse of gardens, the immaculate room with the tile fireplace and bath. "Cocktails are at seven, we eat at seven-thirty," Mrs. Alexander explained. "Just follow the walk of the main building. I hope you'll be comfortable." "I'm sure I will be. It's so beautiful here, I feel that I could stay forever." Ruth Alexander turned back from the door with a smile. "I know, I did!" Perhaps it was really the enchantment of the place, perhaps it was only that she was emotion-ally too tired to worry her problem any longer, but Jessie did feel that here was the peace she needed so desperately to find. She sat by the window, seeing the brilliance of the flamboyant flowers and shrubs. Now rays from the setting sun crept past the trees to tint the walks, the shrubs, the wall, all with the same golden hue. Then the brilliant light faded, and, as if that were a cue, the sleepy drone of insects began. A bullfrog jumped with a noisy splash into the pool. A cool breeze sprang up, bringing with it the peppery scent of eucalyptus and the faint, distant sounds of activity in the main lounge. Automatically Dan, like an unruly jack-in-the-box, popped up to remind her how difficult it was to enter a room of strangers alone. She pictured a formal dining room, another solitary meal like the one that had preceded it along her route, and dreaded the approaching ordeal. "You must face things squarely," Jessie told herself severely. "Dan doesn't want you. You will have to do things in the future without him. And there's no time like the present to start." To give herself courage she put on her new blue linen dress. It had been an extravagance, expensive and well cut with a soft color that brought out the cameo whiteness of her skin. It was, she decided, very becoming, and the hand-knit stole that matched it was not only attractive but warm. Outside the lounge she could hear the buzz of voices, the clink of glasses, and was momentarily overcome by stage fright. Then, much to a swimmer's plunges into icy water, she walked briskly into the room full of strangers.

Rollcall Requires A Long Weekend

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Once a month 1st Lt. Paris Eugene Smith travels 3,208 miles round-trip from Arizona just to make roll call in the Tennessee National Guard. It takes a five-day weekend—from Thursday through Monday.

Smith left his job at Sewanee, Tenn., to enroll in the American Institute for Foreign Trade at Phoenix. But the Arizona fighter unit had no opening for Smith—a navigator—and Tennessee still needed him.

So now Smith catches a commercial flight from Phoenix to Yuma on Thursday, hops a regularly scheduled Air Force flight from there to Smyrna, Tenn., the next day, and a fellow navigator provides a lift to Berry Field at Nashville where the two answer roll call at 8:30 a. m. Saturday.

Where the pools are Sacramento, Calif. (AP)—A state report notes that California has more than one-third of all the swimming pools in the United States. The number in California has grown from 25,000 in 1956 to 111,350.

Home-Wide Telephone Convenience

Add a Phone... Add a Lot to Living in the rooms where you work, live and play the most Because your family lives all over the house, it makes wonderful sense to have extension phones within reach in all rooms where you spend a lot of time.

A handy extension in the kitchen saves steps, time and trouble. In the family room, it's so easy to make or take calls, with a phone at hand. A bedroom extension affords privacy for intimate chats—and protection day and night. Wherever you need them most, extension phones add a lot to living for the whole family.

The cost for this home-wide telephone convenience is surprisingly small. Choose extensions in a choice of attractive colors and styles: the familiar wall and table models and the compact with or without night-light. To order, just call the telephone business office, or ask any telephone serviceman.

Fallout Protection For Family May Cost Only $30

By PROF. WILLARD F. LIBBY

My $30 fallout shelter consists of a hole in a backyard hill, bags of dirt, and some railroad ties.

Anyone with a basement is lucky—he could build a shelter more easily, and perhaps more cheaply.

My costs were:

|------------------------------------|---------|
| Burlap bags | $11.00 |
| Nylon string and needles | 1.00 |
| to sew bags | 9.00 |
| Railroad ties | 7.00 |
| Trucking in the ties | 2.00 |
| Zinc chromate to treat burlap bags | 2.00 |
| Total | $30.00 |

I dug horizontally into the slope of the hill, and put the dirt in bags, using them to build walls 5 feet high on both sides to make an enclosure of about 4 by 6 feet.

Another wall in front, with an offset, provides a door. It's wide open. Radiation from fallout cannot go around corners—but people can get in or out.

Railroad ties are the roof beams, with a two-foot layer of dirt-filled bags resting on top. That gives 28 inches thickness of dirt and wood.

A corner of your basement would provide two ready-made walls with a few feet of dirt or sandbags piled up outside. Then build walls consisting of sandbags or concrete blocks 1½ to 2 feet thick, again with an offset entrance.

The roof and upper stories of a house would keep much fallout at a distance, but for sure safety the shelter needs a roof made of beams and blocks of concrete or dirt.

Even Books May Help There is no limit to improvisations. Civil Defense offices can supply excellent plans.

The vital point is that lethal X-rays from intensive fallout are stopped by two feet of concrete, or anything with equal density or mass. Thus, it takes 10 feet of water or wood to do it, about two to three feet of

It is needed to tell you if seeping dust is reaching dangerous levels. If so, sweep it out with a broom. Fallout eventually becomes ordinary dirt. But you must avoid or get rid of it while it is radioactive.

Familiar Ingredients Of TV Show Given Realism

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The too-familiar ingredients of the television series are all there in the format of CBS' "The Defenders." There's the father-son team of dedicated lawyers, widower and bachelor. There are the weekly courtroom scenes. And there is, of course, the eternally fascinating peek into the lives of a different set of troubled people.

hours. Suppose fallout descends an hour after the burst. In seven more hours, it is only 10 per cent as intense as it was when it first landed. And 48 hours after landing, only one per cent of the initial radioactivity remains.

In the next 12 days, it declines to become only one-tenth of one per cent of the initial intensity. This is considered a safe level to permit moving about.

Try Sleeping Pills

The man with the expensive shelter could unwittingly track radioactive dust into his shelter on trips in and out, and so concentrate dangerous amounts, unless he knew about this hazard. So everyone needs a broom as well as a meter.

You should plan to stay inside your shelter at least 48 while it is radioactive.

Forty-eight hours in a small, cramped shelter or hole is no picnic.

You might well take sleeping pills to help wait out the most critical period of fallout danger.

(Tomorrow: More elaborate shelters)

An offset protects shelter from fallout rays.

dirt, but only two to three inches of lead. However, lead is very expensive.

A quick, life-saving emergency shelter could be fashioned by piling concrete blocks—or even stacks of books—on top and around a heavy table, placed in a basement corner, and getting under the table.

An air filter for the shelter is a good idea, but not absolutely necessary. Some radioactive dust

But there "The Defenders" resemblance to the average TV series stops abruptly. What makes the difference is Reginald Rose, a highly respected TV writer who fearlessly tackles controversial themes. He serves as the series' script editor and, often, as its writer.

Last Saturday, "The Defenders" started down a well-trodden path: the lippy, spoiled girl whose car strikes a child at an intersection. The child is rushed to the hospital and emergency surgery is ordered. You can almost finish the usual plot yourself, including the final scene, with the smiling child on his way to recovery.

But in "The Defenders," the child died. The story itself was primarily concerned with the boy's parents, whose religious beliefs forbade both blood transfusions and surgery—a touchy TV subject.

Other episodes have taken on such questions as mongolism and mercy-killing and unwed parents. Future shows will deal with a miscarriage of justice, abortion, a child rapist, and a consideration of bribery of college athletes.

Judges May Have Held Attention

ROME, Ga. (AP)—There may have been more eyes watching the judges than the contestants when the 1961 beauty queen was chosen at the Coosa Valley Fair. Miss Charlene Tarpley, 17, was picked for the title.

Other competition for spectator appeal came from Delores Hodges, Linda Brunson and Janet McGee—Miss Alabama, Miss Georgia and Miss South Carolina—judges for the contest.

"Many of these shows," said Rose, "are really morality shows. We're attempting to deal with the law realistically because we feel that the courtroom drama lies here. Other courtroom dramas are glamorized. We're trying to get to the real motives of real people."

Rose's previous TV credits include a number of "Studio One" shows including "Twelve Angry Men," and that two-part NBC show on Sacco and Vanzetti which blew up a storm of controversy and complaint.

It is strange that in all these years, nobody ever came up with the obvious, a comedy sketch kidding Perry Mason, the lawyer who never loses a case—until Jack Benny got around to it last Sunday.

Ever since CBS' "Gunsmoke" went to an hour's length and NBC started programming old feature movies opposite it, the show has slipped in popularity. NBC's "Bonanza," now released from "Perry Mason" competition, has zoomed right up to the top.

Beautiful Pest Is Also 'Worst'

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The violet and white water hyacinth is one of Florida's most attractive flowers—and the worst pest in its fresh water.

The state has spent thousands of dollars combating this floating plant, which often drifts into packed masses so thick that boat traffic is impossible. It is difficult to rid a stream of water hyacinths because they grow back from hidden buds and sprout from seeds which will lie dormant for years before bursting into growth.

A Lazy Run Or A Perilous Fight... All In Day's Work

CH in
By BRYAN HAINSLIP

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—A lazy run with supplies for an off-shore lightship, or a perilous battle with the roaring inferno of a burning oil tanker—it's all a day's work for the crew of the Chilula.

The trim U.S. Coast Guard cutter, at home in the Morehead City harbor, covers the North Carolina coast from Cape Hatteras southward.

Life for the seven officers and 68 enlisted men aboard, agreed to Norfolk, Va., to keep under surveillance a Cuban freighter from which 11 crew members defected.

More often, the duty is something as routine as checking pleasure boats to be sure they meet requirements of federal safety laws.

The most spectacular, and hazardous, assignment was fighting the fire on the Navy tanker, the Potomac.

An explosion as the tanker unloaded jet fuel late last September sent flaming slick on a rising tide up the harbor, setting fire to a railroad bridge. Fortunately, the tide ebbed, taking the fire back out, before serious shored-side fires resulted.

The Chilula was on a run to the Diamond Shoals lightship. She was urgently summoned back to port. Cmdr. George A. Philbrick pulled in close enough for his crew to feel the heat, pouring on foam and water to cool down the flames enough to remove the immediate threat to harbor installations.

Throughout the five days the tanker blazed, the Chilula stood by. From time to time, a landing craft was dispatched to check the fire. Finally, it was possible to move in and deliver the knock-out blow.

Morehead City used the occasion to renew its thankfulness for the Chilula and its gallant crew. "Why, we'd fell like we'd lost one of our hands if we had to do without the Chilula," exclaimed Mayor George W. Dill.

In times of hurricane and other emergencies, the Chilula has proved itself "not just an asset to the community, but a necessity," the mayor asserted.

"We fell the same way about the Coast Guard station at Ft. Macon. These people are a part of us," Dill added.

The mayor confessed himself at a loss for words to sum up local sentiment for the Chilula and its crew.

"What do we think of Cmdr. Philbrick? Why, he's such a fine fellow he doesn't even stand out. You know what I mean? He's just like the neighbor next door," Dill declared.

He added, sotto voce, "there's not much spit-and-polish to these fellows. They're just like the rest of us."

Ordinary men prove their mettle in time of emergency, and the Coast Guardsmen of the Chilula are no exception.

One of them, Sanford White of Beaufort, received the "Coast Guard Medal," the highest peacetime award for heroic action which saved the Chilula.

It happened last December when an explosion and fire occurred in the Chilula's engine room on a routine run.

Sprayed with lubricating oil by the explosion, hair and clothing aflame, White brought the fire under control with a portable extinguisher before he was helped from his station in a state of shock.

Ronald B. Savage of Wilmington, the crew member who came to White's aid, received a letter of commendation.

The citation for White said his action "beyond the call of duty" was vital in averting a possible major disaster.

Lt. Cmdr. Cretella, from Detroit, Mich., said the crew of the Chilula works together as a team to a remarkable degree.

"Sometimes a largely routine existence dulls the edge of performance for a group of men, but that's certainly not true in this case," the executive officer said.

During the Potomac fire, when the Chilula pulled in close enough to get the heat from the flames, the men were apprehensive but performed coolly, he explained.

While day-to-day duties are routine, the men must be prepared. For example, just before Christmas last year the Chilula was called out to the scene of the break-up of the tanker, Pine Ridge, to search for possible survivors and to stand guard over the section of tanker left at sea while the other half was towed to port.

The Chilula, named for an Indian tribe in the Pacific northwest, was a Navy tug when she was called out of the reserve fleet for Coast Guard duty.

She came to Morehead City in the fall of 1956, replacing a smaller vessel, Low and trim, she is built to take about anything the sea and the elements can offer, including hurricanes.

In addition, for her size (205 feet long, a 34-foot beam, and 14½ foot draft) she is one of the most powerful fire boats afloat. She is capable of pumping 1,500 gallons of water a minute to eight regular fire hoses and a fixed but revolving high pressure deck gun.

She carries 1,000 gallons of foam as standard equipment.

Much of the Chilula's time is spent transporting fuel, supplies and personnel to the lightships at Diamond and Frying Pan shoals, off the North Carolina coast.

The first permanent resident of St. Helena Island was Dom Fernando Lopez, a Portuguese nobleman exiled for treachery. He spent 30 years farming on the island.

Actor Fred MacMurray Again Switches Families

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Fred MacMurray switched families again this week.

Last week he was husband of Jane Wyman and father of Tommy Kirk, Deborah Walley and Kevin Corcoran in Walt Disney's "Bon Voyage."

This week he resumed as widower and father of Tim Considine, Don Grady and Stanley Livingston in TV's "My Three Sons."

He devotes his evenings and weekends to his real-life wife, June Haver, and their growing brood.

All this doesn't confuse or even exhaust MacMurray, a well-organized and resourceful man. "But it does cut into my golf time," he admitted.

I visited Fred as he prepared to make the switch from one screen family to another. He was crawling through a replica of the Paris sewers for final scenes of "Bon Voyage." When he emerged, he talked about his three lives, especially the TV one.

"It's working out all right," he remarked, "not exactly as planned, but all right." MacMurray was offered a little dream deal to induce him to undertake "My Three Sons"—fabulous money plus the assurance he would work only three months a year. The schedule was adjusted so he could do all his scenes in one batch.

"It didn't work out exactly as planned," Fred said. "I ended up working four months instead of three."

"We started out shooting all my scenes in each set. First we'd go to the kitchen and do all the kitchen scenes from all the shows, then move into the living room."

Well, that got a little tiresome. "The thing that got me down was changing clothes all the time. So now we shoot my scenes from each show in sequence, going from one room to another. The rest of the cast do their scenes afterward."

Fred is happy with the way the series has gone, as well he should be: It is one of the top-rated shows. He'll be making only one change this season.

"I had only one brush with romance in the first show, when a girl took me to her apartment and I backed off," he said. "The rest of the time I've just been sitting around the house. People might start to wonder about this guy, so I think we'll be having a little romance this year."

DeGaulle Firm In Warnings Of Any Concession

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst
PARIS (AP)—Westerners who see President Charles de Gaulle frequently are picturing him as convinced that the Kremlin is intent upon sending a shock wave of neutralism through the heart of Europe.
This is the reason, they say, why De Gaulle raises his voice against any negotiations with the Soviets in an atmosphere of manufactured crisis, why he considers feelers toward the Russians would be a sign of Western weakness. De Gaulle is represented as solemnly warning the West: Beware of summit meetings. Beware of negotiating under the appearance of Soviet threat. Beware of Soviet designs in Western Germany.
De Gaulle is said to feel the Kremlin is operating on the theory of "disarming the enemy." It considers West Germany an important link in the North Atlantic Treaty alliance, a link which must be removed if the alliance is to be broken up.
The Kremlin, so the thinking goes, wants to neutralize West Germany and create a no-man's-land extending to the Rhine and the borders of France. De Gaulle considers this a peril.
Western sources enthusiastically credit De Gaulle with remarkable success in achieving French-West German cooperation, which De Gaulle seems to consider basic, a key to continued solidarity of the West.
But De Gaulle would look deeply upon the notion of negotiations which even implied recognition formally of Communist rule in East Germany, or of any negotiations having the appearance of sacrificing West German interests, damaging West German relations with the West or frightening the West Germans.
It seems to be why De Gaulle at times appearing to some British and Americans as stubborn, is cautious on tactics involving talks with the Russians. De Gaulle apparently sees no basis for negotiation with the Kremlin so long as it continues to generate crises and raise threats.
He is pictured as saying: Suppose a summit meeting were held on the German-Berlin questions and failed? What would be left? What possibly could come next?
France's president is said to feel the Russians will not take long risks to gobble up West Berlin. His argument is relayed like this: If the Russians are intent on going to war, there is no point in negotiating. If they are not going to war, there is still no point in negotiating.
This means he sees no reason to negotiate until the West is sure it is not approaching the Soviets from positions of weakness.
The French president is reported to have put the matter this way: If the Russians want a relaxation of tensions, there must be a balance in Europe and the world, there must be equilibrium. There could be no equilibrium in Europe without West Germany on the Western side, tightly tied in with Western policy.
De Gaulle, of course, is aware that eventually the Kremlin may go through with its plan to sign a separate peace treaty with the East German Communist regime. If that happened, it is likely the West would be forced to deal with the East Germans, even if insisting they were only agents of the Soviet occupation.
De Gaulle seems to concede not much could be done about such a development. But apparently he remains dead set against any willing concessions to the Russians, and insists that the Russians make some concessions to the West, at least to the extent of easing the noise the Soviets make, the less De Gaulle is inclined to talk with them.
De Gaulle does not view his own stand as presenting any complications with regard to building a united Western attitude toward the Russians. He admires President Kennedy, has faith in his ultimate ability to counter Soviet threats. He seems to understand Washington's eagerness to bring about some relaxation of the cold war.
But De Gaulle thinks in terms of continental solidarity and is unwilling to commit the continental powers to any course he considers dangerous to the future of Western Europe.

Art Students Offer Exhibit

An exhibit of prints and ceramics by two of East Carolina College's senior art students is now being shown in the Kate Lewis Gallery, Rawl building, on the campus. The show is sponsored by the college department of art as one of a series of student exhibitions to be presented during the academic year. It will be open to the public through November 11.
Alvin Dunkle of St. Petersburg, Florida, is represented in the show by a group of woodcuts and colored etchings. Robert Dale Schmitz of Erie, Pa., is exhibiting pottery in different designs, glazes and sizes.
Dunkle's work has been exhibited at the 22nd and 23rd Annual North Carolina Artist's Exhibition at the show at the Contemporary Art Gallery at Pinellas Park, Florida; and at the Greenville Art Center.
Last summer he received a fellowship to the Intaglio Workshop in New York where he worked as assistant to the director.
Schmitz has his work exhibited at the North Carolina State Crafts Fair in Raleigh, Pennsylvania State University, and the Rocky Mount and the Greenville

Drummond May Soon Be Overtaken In Scoring

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Dick Drummond keeps on gaining yardage for George Washington, but if he doesn't get back to the business of making touchdowns, he'll be overtaken soon in the Southern Conference football scoring race.

Only three weekends ago, after a 24-point performance against William and Mary, the hard-running "Mr. Double-4" looked like a sure winner, with 48 points for the season and three games to go.

But two of those games now have been played and in both of them, Drummond was blanked. Time is running out. Only a Nov. 17 test at Virginia Tech remains on the GW schedule.

Meantime, Richmond's Earl Stoudt is steadily picking up ground. Stoudt kicked a field goal in the Spiders' 11-0 win over Tech last Saturday and now has 41 points — with two games still ahead.

Hurting Stoudt's chances, though, is a knee injury suffered in the Tech game which may keep the All-Southern ace on the bench when Richmond meets unbeaten Alabama this week.

At Davidson Tuesday, the Wildcats set up defenses against what Coach Bill Dole described as the "unusual, hard to stop offense" employed by Wofford College. The Wildcats play the Terriers at Davidson Saturday. Meanwhile, the Furman Paladins put special stress on pass defense and underwent a tough blocking drill in a rough practice Tuesday as the club stepped up preparations for Saturday night's game at Greenville, S. C., against East Carolina.

At Blacksburg, Virginia Tech wound up its practice with a full speed offensive scrimmage.

University of Richmond Coach Ed Merrick was singing the blues. Already undermanned, his Spiders will have to face mighty Alabama this Saturday without the use of several key players.

At Williamsburg, William and Mary worked on a new defense pattern it plans to use against Army at West Point on Saturday.

West Virginia held spirited offensive and defensive drills Tuesday as the Mountaineers stepped up preparations for Saturday's clash with Penn State at Morgantown.

At Charleston, S.C., quarterback Bill Whaley returned to action as The Citadel held a rough workout in preparation for its clash with Florida State at Tallahassee on Saturday.

A short workout and a long skull session were the order of the day at VMI as the Keydets made ready for Saturday's game at Buffalo.

Reflecting On SPORTS

By George Bryant

A Tough One

Saturday's loss to Lenoir Rhyne was a tough one for the Pirates and was almost a repeat of two years ago. Coach Jack Boone's forces fought a hard battle in what will probably be the best ball game the Pirates will play all season. Every team member did his best as far as we were concerned and all deserve a great deal of credit. As a matter of fact, Boone said, "This was the best effort of any ball club I have ever had."

A loss is always hard to take, but those that occur in the final minute of the game are even a bit rougher. There is really no one place to put the blame for Saturday's defeat. The play which gave Lenoir Rhyne the ball and the chance to score the winning touchdown is where the game was lost. In this case it happened to be a fumble play. But, no one player can or should take the blame for this. Quarterback Dan Rouse could have made the fumble, but it also might have been done by center Chuck Gordon. And then there is the possibility that it was a combination of the two. Nobody knows just which one fumbled and we doubt that even the players themselves are sure. However, both boys played excellent ball and they deserve a lot of credit for this.

We feel that the fumble was caused by anxiety. It appeared that East Carolina had the game and there was a chance to make the margin greater than the one point they already had. The players are only human and thus subject to all the faults of any other person.

A Tragedy

We feel that the climax to the ball game at East Carolina Stadium Saturday was tragic. Not the end result of the game, but the fact that the college officials felt the need to have the referees carried off the field by the Greenville Police Department. Especially the fact that they thought the situation bad enough to drive the patrol cars to the middle of the field with red lights and sirens to pick up the game officials. This we feel was degrading to the students of the college. There are many games in which officials have to be escorted off the field, but most of the time several policemen walking with them is enough.

The decision was made by the coaches and Director of Athletics N. M. Jorgensen. In commenting on the decision Jorgensen said, "We felt the need. It would have indeed been tragic if physical force had been used on those officials." He added, "As the game progressed we saw and heard evidence which was rather alarming in our eyes and we wanted to take the precautionary measures that we felt we must take."

An official's job is not an easy one and it is always subject to criticism. There has probably never been a game played that someone was not dissatisfied with one or more of the decisions made by the officials. Saturday night there were several calls made which were questionable in our eyes, but there is nothing we or anybody else could do about that. Threatening or even physical contact with the

Optimism & Desire At UNC

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Football coaches agree that optimism and desire are two psychological weapons that mean a lot in winning football games. Most also agree that you have to have some real shock troops to win the big ones.

There's optimism and desire, and some shock troops, at the University of North Carolina, where Jim Hickey's Tar Heels are preparing for the invasion Saturday of LSU's Tigers, ranked No. 4 in the current Associated Press poll.

"We know how tough they are. Nevertheless, we're looking forward to this game," Hickey told his press luncheon Tuesday. The Tar Heels are 4-2 on the season, but Hickey says that in only one game has the team failed to live up to its potential. That was in a 28-0 loss to Clemson in the second game of the season. Hickey gave the Tar Heels a public dressing down following that one, and it apparently did the trick.

"The boys are looking up now," said Hickey. "Their attitude is good and I think they'll give LSU a whale of a ball game. Nobody except Mississippi has had any success penetrating their defenses. We're going to give it the old college try."

Tuesday's practice was devoted to offense, with some new plays included on the agenda. Hickey indicated much of the remaining practice time will be devoted to defense.

Elsewhere in Atlantic Coast Conference football camps, South Carolina's Gamecocks worked behind locked gates with two things in mind: Improve the offense, and downfield blocking. The Gamecocks entertain Clemson's tough Tigers before a sellout crowd Saturday.

Clemson worked two hours on offense and defense, but still awaited the return to action of quarterback Jim Parker. The 195-pound, 6-1 soph has missed two games because of an injured hand. Coach Frank Howard said he isn't sure whether Parker will be available this week.

At Wake Forest, where the Deacons are preparing for a "Parent's Day" visit from Virginia Tech, the stress was on punt protection and punt coverage. The quarterback keeper play, as executed by VPI signal caller Warren Prince, also got attention.

At College Park, Coach Tom Nugent sought replacements for two and possibly three players who will miss the N.C. State game Saturday. Right end Dick Burland and guard Tom Sankovich are out for the season with injuries. Sophomore Ernie Arzuffi has a sprained ankle. Three other players are on the doubtful list.

At N.C. State, Roman Gabriel limbered up his passing arm and Coach Earle Edwards set up defensive patterns against Maryland's "I" formation.

Duke worked on its passing game, with quarterbacks Walt

Rappold and Gil Garner using plays that will be thrown against Navy's Midshipmen in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, Va.

Virginia has an open date Saturday and took things easy.

The East Carolina Pirates Club heard a scouting report by Assistant Coach Ray Pennington last night in which he said Furman was a strong club and would be a tough match for the Pirates this week.

Pennington pointed out that Furman has plenty of depth. "They are probably three deep at every position," he said. He also noted that the Pirates' opponent this week has some outstanding players who are ranked at the top of the national statistics list. Among these are their first string fullback, one halfback and the quarterback.

The assistant Pirate coach told the club that Furman runs a multiple offense and they throw the ball quite a bit.

Coach Odell Welborn showed the Lenoir Rhyne films and commented on them.

Quarterback Dan Rouse was the guest of the club last night. He told the group how bad he hated that fumble, but added that the best thing to do was to forget about it and work for the next two games.

Year For Freak Formation In Nat'l FB League

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

This is the year of the freak formation in the National Football League. San Francisco has its shotgun, New York calls its variation the BB gun. Now Detroit has come up with a "Zephyr" formation.

The "Zephyr" comes from Glenn Davis, the two-time Olympic 400-meter hurdle champion, who is a key man in this new attack conceived by Coach George Wilson of the Lions. Actually it is another variation of the popular spread to make more men available for pass catching.

Davis, 6-0-180, played some football in high school at Barberton, Ohio, but was too busy with track at Ohio State. He has been learning the game the hard way in the NFL. Last year Davis caught one pass for 17 yards. In the first six games this year he was used sparingly and caught only one more pass.

When Coach Wilson switched to the "zephyr" — named that because of Davis' blinding speed — Davis suddenly came to life. He caught four passes against Los Angeles Oct. 29 and four more last Sunday before his ankle was injured in the first half.

"The main idea is to get more speed on the receiving end," Wilson explained in Detroit. "We use Davis as the weak side end and move Gail Cogdill from the end to slot back on the other side. With Jim Gibbon on the strong side end and Terry Barr as a flanker we try to flood one side, giving Davis a chance to get in the clear. Davis hasn't played much football but he is learning and he really can go like the wind."

"We started scoring more with the offense. The quarterback (Jim Ninowski) has more time to throw, because they can't red dog so much. We also mix in the T formation down close."

In the last two games (a 28-10 victory over Los Angeles and a 20-20 tie with San Francisco, both on the road) the Lions have gained a total of 811 yards, almost half as much as they picked up in their first six games. When they operate from the "zephyr," fullback Nick Pietrosante is the only running back.

Heyman Fined In Recorder's Court

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Art Heyman, Duke's quick-tempered basketball star, was fined $25 and costs Tuesday in the aftermath of an affray with a pre-med student.

Recorder's Court Judge A. R. Wilson leveled the fine which was not appealed.

Heyman's attorney, A. H. Borland, asked the judge to let the Duke University Judicial Board handle the matter. "Let the university wash its own linen," he said.

Heyman was convicted of striking Taylor Greenberg, 19-year-old Norfolk, Va., student in a fraternity house ruckus the night of Oct. 28. Greenberg was hospitalized for several days with an eye hemorrhage and a split lip.

He told the judge he was not sure whether the blow had impaired the sight in his right eye.

Last February, Heyman, junior from Rockville Centre, N.Y., was hauled into court on a charge of striking a University of North Carolina student during intermission at a basketball game.

Heyman was acquitted of assault by Judge Wilson. Testimony Tuesday revealed the fight broke out at the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity after Larry Harrison and Heyman arrived at the house. Neither are fraternity members.

Fraternity president Carl Zielonka said he, Greenberg and some other students had been drinking beer. He said Heyman came by the room and said they were unable to hold their beer.

Greenberg testified he asked Harrison to leave and, when he failed to leave, Greenberg said, "Get the hell out and take your schmucks (jerks) with you."

Zielonka said Heyman then charged across the room and said, "No one can say that to me."

Harrison said Heyman hit Greenberg with an open hand. Greenberg fell on a couch.

Field Goal Ultimate Weapon This Season

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The field goal has become the ultimate weapon in close football games this year as the college footballers have adopted the pros' attitude that three points is better than a long-shot chance for six.

Almost two-dozen major college games have been decided by the field goal so far, with many crucial conference and prestige games still to come.

The trend toward increased use of the three-pointer began when the rule-makers widened the goal posts a few years back instead of moving them 10 yards forward to the goal line.

So far the Southeastern and Southwest conferences have been the key users of the field goal. Durwood Pennington of Georgia has won three games for the Bulldogs with his accurate kicking, one a 52-yard shot that beat Kentucky 16-15. This came after he had made one from 47-yards only to have a five-yard penalty nullify the goal and force his longer-range boot.

At Southern Methodist, John Richey kicks 'em barefoot if he has to. He beat the Air Force 9-7, breaking a 13-game victory drought for the Mustangs, with a 30-yard barefoot shot.

"The teams all are trying to protect themselves against the two-point situation," says SMU Coach Bill Meek. "And a field goal does it."

Greg Mather, Navy's fine end, beat Notre Dame 13-10 last week with a 22-yard field goal, his second of the game, and eighth of the year. He kicked three in one game, a 37-19 win over Detroit.

Weekend College FB Picks

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—A poet once wrote that "once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide." That doesn't include college football forecasting where you must decide every Wednesday. Last week there were 36 correct decisions, 16 wrong for 692. This week's picks:
Texas over Baylor; Texas has romped over four conference foes to the average tune of 34.7. What makes you think they won't do the same to Baylor?

Alabama over Richmond: Almost like an open date for the Alabama.
Ohio State over Indiana: Where do you find a better fullback than Bob Ferguson of the 'Buckeyes?
Louisiana State over North Carolina: This very easily could go the other way if the LSU Tigers spend too much time re-reading the clippings of their triumph over Mississippi last weekend.

Iowa over Minnesota: The nation's No. 1 team in September needs a victory here to save its season from complete collapse.
Michigan State over Purdue: They can't stop the Spartans two weeks in a row. But the Boiler-makers are rugged.
Mississippi over Chattanooga: The Rebels start another winning streak.
Colorado over Utah: Gale Weidner and his Colorado mates are headed for the Orange Bowl and they are not to be side-tracked at this stage.
Tennessee over Georgia Tech: Some of the wolves are beginning to yelp in Tennessee and that should inspire the Vols.
Missouri over Oklahoma: But not by last year's 41-19 margin.
Syracuse over Colgate: Just when Colgate starts on the road back it runs into an angry Ernie Davis.
Duke over Navy: This is the Oyster Bowl game. The Duke razzie-dazzle will decide it.

Big Ten Team May Not Get Rose Bowl Invite

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—The always cloudy college football picture has a new element of uncertainty this year—a Big Ten team may not be invited to the biggest of them all, the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. There is at least a fair chance Alabama might get the bid.

Top-ranked Texas seems sure to be host team. Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana State, Georgia Tech and Auburn of the Southeastern Conference are all possible opponents.
SUGAR, at New Orleans, Jan. 1—The stands are segregated and no teams with Negro players will be invited. That points to an all-Southeastern Conference game, and again the possibilities are Louisiana State, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia Tech and Auburn.

UCLA over Texas Christian: A toughie but the home field helps the Californians. It is a Friday night contest.
Washington over Oregon State: Too much Huskie speed in the person of Charlie Mitchell.
The others without comment:
Friday
Detroit over Villanova, Furman over East Carolina.
Saturday
EAST: Army over William & Mary, Boston University over Connecticut, Buffalo over Virginia Military, Columbia over Dartmouth, Cornell over Brown, Princeton over Harvard, Holy Cross over Massachusetts, Yale over Pennsylvania, Notre Dame

The work-in-agreement between the West Coast and the Big Ten has expired, although Minnesota was invited last year. There is some disagreement within the Big Ten over the game and the upshot could be a switch by the West Coast group to another area for the visiting team.
Among the teams almost certain to be invited somewhere come the bowl season are Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana State and possibly Georgia Tech of the Southeastern Conference; all-conquering Texas of the Southwest Conference; Maryland and Syracuse on the Eastern seaboard and Army and Navy if they condescend to go. Any way the pie is cut, the Southeastern Conference gets the big bowl share.

ORANGE, at Miami, Jan. 1—One team will come from the Big Eight but this does not have to be the conference champion, now shaping up as Colorado. "If Colorado falls by the wayside, then we have Missouri or Kansas," says Ernie Seiler, Orange Bowl president. Georgia Tech and Syracuse are possible opponents to the Big Eight representative.
Gator, at Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 30—The goal is to match a Southeastern team against one from the East. The Eastern group includes Maryland, Syracuse, Army and Navy.
BLUEBONNET, at Houston, Dec. 16—One of the top Southeastern teams is wanted for one opponent, or possibly Navy. For the home team the runner-up in the Southwest Conference will be sought. This could be the winner of Saturday's Rice-Arkansas contest.

LIBERTY BOWL, at Philadelphia, Dec. 16—Maryland, Syracuse, Villanova, Rutgers, Army and Navy are best prospects for host team. For opponents, one of the tough Southeastern Conference teams is being considered along with Rice, Utah State, Miami of Florida, North Carolina and Duke.
GOTHAM, at New York, Dec. 9—Army and Syracuse have been invited. Both are proving coy. Maryland, Miami of Florida, and Georgia Tech are possibilities. Coming as it does the week after the NAA television program concludes with the Army-Navy game, this new bowl has a momentum TV audience that could help in landing a major attraction.

Liston Restored As No. 1 Challenger For Patterson

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—"That's good, that's good, now I won't have to knock off that Britisher to get to that title."
This was Sonny Liston talking today after the National Boxing Association Tuesday restored him as No. 1 challenger for Floyd Patterson's heavyweight title in its month ratings.

side the ring and never quite catching up with Patterson.
At the moment, he may be on the glory trail. He now goes to his "rehabilitation center"—to train for his Dec. 4 bout with Germany's Albert Westphal, a master baker from Hamburg. The Philadelphia bout will be part of a fist TV doubleheader, also including Patterson's title defense against Tom McNeely in Toronto.

32 of 33 bouts and knocked out 2 opponents.
Liston hasn't fought a regular bout since last March when he kayoed Howard King in Philadelphia for his Dec. 4 bout with Westphal. He had to be brought him before a Congressional committee and also straightened out once more after a brush with the law.

In its previous ratings, the NBA had listed England's Henry Cooper as the ranking contender for Patterson's crown, ignoring Liston because of his most recent brush with the law. "Maybe I don't have to fight that Cooper row to show who's who," grinned Sonny, who doesn't grin easily. The NBA now rates Cooper fourth.

Liston also rated the No. 1 contender by Ring Magazine, not only has put himself in the hands of a new manager, George Katz, but also those of a Denver priest, Rev. Edward Murphy.
"I'm glad of a new chance and I hope to make the best of it," said Liston who was in Chicago for a Monday night exhibition with Chicago's Ernest Terrell.

Liston looked a little pained at 219 pounds Monday night. "I'll get down to 210 or 215," he said. "I don't know much about this German, but I try to make him live up to his name—he's gonna fall—maybe west, maybe east, but some place."
After Westphal?
"I don't think Patterson can duck me much more," said Sonny. "If he does, maybe I can tour Europe and fight some of those heavies over there—just to keep ready when Patterson can't duck me no more."

NBA Top Scorer Has 25.3 Average

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Bridges, a 6-foot-5 forward with Kansas City, is leading the American Basketball League in scoring with a 25.3 game average through Monday's games.
Bridges has 76 points in three games and holds a narrow lead over Roger Taylor of Cleveland in the newly formed league. Taylor has averaged 24.5 in two games and Hal Lear of Los Angeles has a 24.0 mark.
Defense apparently is receiving considerable attention in the ABL. Only one team is averaging better than 100 points a game and that is the Los Angeles Jets with a 109.3 average.

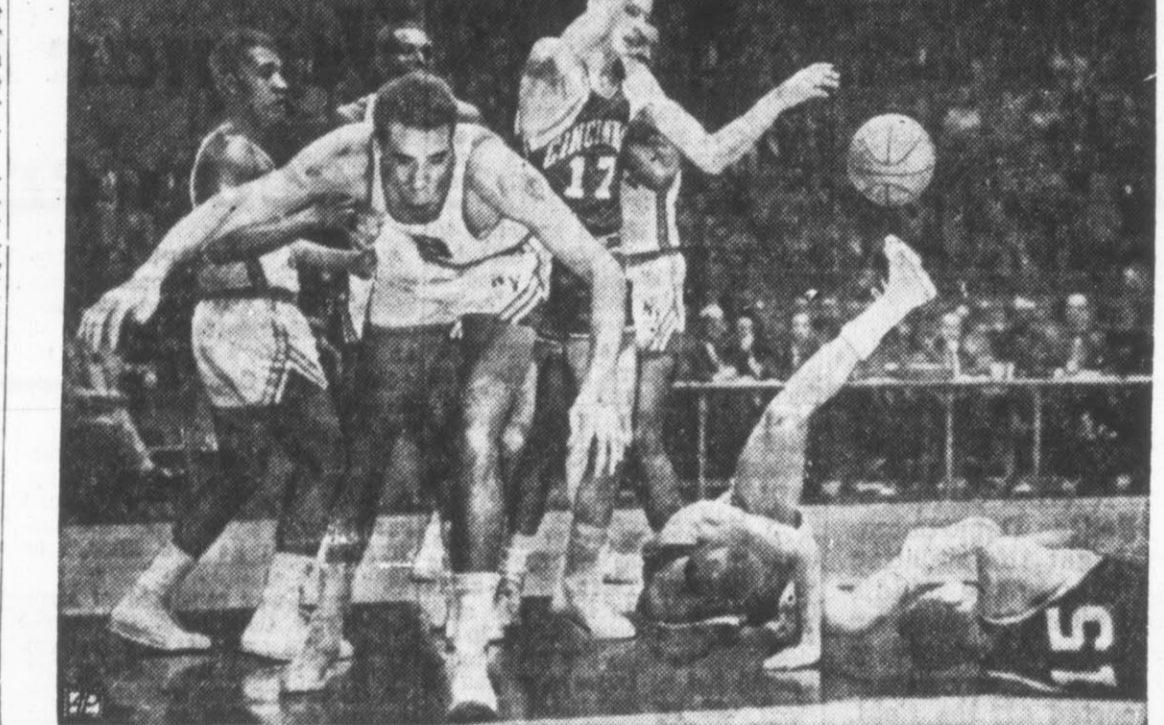

western, Wichita over Drake, Xavier (Ohio) over Marshall, Utah State over Western Michigan.

Jimmy Clark scored nine birdies in succession in the California Open this year but finished second.

ROSE, at Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 1—UCLA, 2-0 in Big Five play, seems to have the inside track as the Western team, with the issue probably to be decided Nov. 25 in the game with Southern California. Ohio State and Minnesota, unbeaten in the Big Ten, would seem to have first call, but Ken Hooton, a director of the Big Ten Club of Southern California, thinks the academic Senate of Georgia Tech are possibilities. Coming as it does the week after the NAA television program concludes with the Army-Navy game, this new bowl has a momentum TV audience that could help in landing a major attraction.

LIBERTY BOWL, at Philadelphia, Dec. 16—Maryland, Syracuse, Villanova, Rutgers, Army and Navy are best prospects for host team. For opponents, one of the tough Southeastern Conference teams is being considered along with Rice, Utah State, Miami of Florida, North Carolina and Duke.
GOTHAM, at New York, Dec. 9—Army and Syracuse have been invited. Both are proving coy. Maryland, Miami of Florida, and Georgia Tech are possibilities. Coming as it does the week after the NAA television program concludes with the Army-Navy game, this new bowl has a momentum TV audience that could help in landing a major attraction.

REBOUND CONTACT—Cincinnati's Wayne Embry (15) and Arlen Bockhorn hit floor during rebound battle with Phil Jordan (8) of New York in pro game at Madison Square Garden. Hub Reed (17) reaches for the loose ball. New York won, 120-117.

GOOD HAUL—Adlai Stevenson holds up pinnacled ducks bagged near Colusa, Calif. The U. S. ambassador to United Nations went hunting after San Francisco speech.

GOP Takes Stunning Blows In New York, New Jersey

Lenoir Man Plans Move Family In His Permanent Underground Home

By RUSH H. COLE
Lenoir News-Topic Staff Writer
Written for The Associated Press

LENOIR, N.C. (AP)—"I've been thinking ever since the atom bomb explosion on Japan about moving my family into an underground home, or into one that will give us adequate protection."

This was the explanation of Charles W. (Bob) McDade when asked why he had decided to move his family into a permanent fallout shelter home which is nearly completed and will be ready for occupancy next week.

McDade, 43, a carpenter and mechanic, began in June making inquiries for information required for the construction of a fallout shelter.

He first consulted the county Civil Defense director and was supplied with all the information and plans available here. After considerable studying and planning, he enlarged upon these plans for the construction of a permanent shelter home large enough for his family of six. Work was begun Aug. 1.

The McDades have four children, Judy Marie, 13, Juanita, 14, Charles Jr., 18, and Norma Jean, 20.

Asked how his children felt about moving into the windowless home, McDade replied, "I've had no objection from the family. They're all excited about it and can't wait to move in."

"I've learned a lot about this fallout business while building this thing. I've made a lot of expensive and needless mistakes during the construction that had to be corrected, but now I believe I have a home that will give the best in fallout protection. Dampness is one of the main problems of a permanent residence, but I believe I have it whipped now."

"The recent world situations, I guess, was the spark that made me go ahead with this fallout home, and I have found out that much of the materials needed for a home of this type are not as readily available as one would think."

"I got to thinking how hard it would be to try to get all the necessary items for a home of this type if everyone was trying to construct one at the same time," McDade was referring here mainly to manually operated water and air pumps and filters of proper size and to the excessive amount of steel-reinforced concrete that would be necessary for mass construction of the dwelling.

Because of the adequate fallout protection this home will offer through its construction, McDade does not plan to completely cover it with dirt as originally planned. Should it become necessary at a later date, "a bulldozer can do it in a matter of hours," he said.

"Come spring, I might build a regularly constructed room or two on the front for living-room space in case we feel we need it," he said.

"Of course, if the children feel that they need windows, I can always put in artificial ones around a pretty picture."

"This home is going to cost me around $7,000 and I just might sell stock to the people in this neighborhood. In an emergency I can take care of 47 people sleeping in shifts. If needed, they could use my home as their fallout shelter. I have not figured it out exactly yet but I believe for about 75 cents per month per per-

By JACK BELL

NEW YORK (AP)—Republicans took a stunning one-two punch on the chin in New Jersey and New York City elections Tuesday that threatened to leave them groggy for 1962 and 1964 contests.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York rolled up a smashing re-election victory that could single him out as the most likely Democratic opponent of Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller next year. Or Wagner might wait to bid for a Senate seat in 1964.

Across the Hudson in New Jersey, a little known liberal Democrat, Richard J. Hughes, knocked off a nationally known liberal Republican, James P. Mitchell, in a cliff-hanger finish to a governor's race in which President Kennedy put his campaign prestige on the line.

Kennedy also added to his political bank deposits by appearances with an endorsement of Wagner.

These two weathervane contests, plus a victory in a special congressional election in Texas last Saturday, lifted Democratic morale for 1962 off-year congressional elections, which traditionally go against the party in possession of the White House.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who campaigned for Mitchell, had said the New Jersey results "unequivocally" would affect the outcome of House and Senate battles in 1962.

Eisenhower's new career as a GOP political leader got a double setback in the two major contests. He also campaigned in New York for defeated GOP candidate Louis J. Lefkowitz.

Rockefeller, who bids for re-election next year, also collected a couple of political shiners. He campaigned hard for Lefkowitz with the hope of building Republican strength in the city for his 1962 statewide race.

With City Comptroller Lawrence E. Gerosa, a Democrat running as an independent, cutting into the vote, Wagner's margin was far less than the 923,000 he rolled up four years ago. But it still was substantial enough to contest Rockefeller's claim that Lefkowitz and the GOP ticket had "revitalized the two party system in New York City."

John M. Bailey, Democratic national chairman, called Wagner's re-election a rebuff to Rockefeller's "efforts to use the New York mayoralty campaign to advance his own personal national ambitions and a warning to him that he faces a hard fight for re-election as governor."

As a possible preliminary to a 1964 bid for the GOP presidential nomination, Rockefeller also lent a helping hand to Mitchell, Eisenhower's former secretary of labor.

Mitchell's upset left conservative Republicans like Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., in a position to say "I told you so." Goldwater has hammered at the theme that only conservative Republicans can win.

Hughes, 52, a bespectacled six-footer, was moved into the national spotlight by his election.

Like Wagner in New York, Hughes will become the man in New Jersey with whom the Kennedy administration now will deal. This should simplify what has previously been a fuzzy White House relationship with party leaders in both states.

A kangaroo doe normally gives birth to only one baby, or Joey, but she seems to produce with unflagging enthusiasm.

JFK Hopes For Quick Accord With Adenauer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy hopes to reach quick agreement with German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer later this month on issues that the Western powers may negotiate with the Soviet Union in the search for a peaceful solution to the Berlin crisis.

The White House announced Tuesday that Adenauer would visit Washington Nov. 20-21 for talks with the President, on Berlin problems and "other matters of common interest."

If the U. S.-West German summit discussions are successful, they will be followed by efforts to reach detailed agreements among the Western powers on a Berlin negotiating position.

In this prospective second stage, the President's task will be to try to win an accord with French President Charles de Gaulle, who has been opposed to negotiations with the Soviets until Premier Khrushchev has modified his position on Berlin.

The Adenauer visit to Washington will be held about a month later than U. S. officials had hoped. The delay was occasioned by Adenauer's need to form a coalition government following the Sept. 17 elections, which reduced his political strength. His domestic problems were finally resolved Friday and the announcement of his visit to Washington followed quickly.

For several weeks Allied policy-making on Berlin has been largely paralyzed by differences among the four Western Governments involved. All understood that until the reorganized West German government took office final decisions could not be made.

Kennedy and other officials are said to feel that if U. S.-West German understanding can be reached, the problem of coming to agreement with France should be easier. The British and Americans have had no difficulty on the problem of negotiations.

Adenauer obviously wants first hand information from Kennedy on what the United States does consider negotiable and wants to tell the President what the chancellor himself does not consider negotiable.

Their discussions are expected to include such issues as whether the Western powers should accept the existence of a Communist regime in East Germany, though without any kind of formal recognition; whether they should recognize in any diplomatic way the Oder-Niese boundary between German and Polish territory; what guarantees would be necessary to assure Western access to West Berlin, and what if any measures otherwise might be taken or rejected which would have the effect of reducing East-West tensions centered on Berlin.

The basic U. S. position is that allied forces must be maintained in West Berlin, access routes across Communist East Germany must be kept open and that the people of West Berlin must be assured of freedom and economic well-being.

Youth Appreciation Week Is Observed

Greenville Optimists Monday met with J. H. Rose High School officials to discuss the club's Stay-In-School program and lay plans for next week's observance of Youth Appreciation Week.

Principal O. E. Dowd and guidance counselor George McRorie attended Monday's meeting to express gratitude for the club's Youth Appreciation Week observance and pledge cooperation with the club in the Stay-In-School venture.

For the first time since the club adopted the program aimed at curbing school drop-outs, authentic figures for the local high school were revealed to the club's membership.

McRorie told Optimists a total of 37 potential members of this year's Rose High Senior Class had dropped out of school to get married or to accept a job. This figure, he said, represented about 15 per cent of the 221 students who entered the high school as freshmen in 1958.

The guidance counselor said, however, the 37 did not include all students who are not current members of the Senior Class at Rose High. He revealed the following breakdown:

Eighteen students through transfer from other schools joined the 221 to establish a total potential 1961 graduating class of 239. The current enrollment totals 146 leaving an overall reduction of 93 students.

The 93 were divided like this: transferred to other schools—33; joined armed services—8; retained in 11th grade—11; deceased—1; girls married—15; graduated in three years—1; and boys dropped out to work—22.

McRorie said students who joined the services cannot be counted realistically as drop-outs since they continued their education in the service.

Optimist President H. Thomas Money said McRorie will serve as the Optimists' prime contact at the high school for the Stay-In-School program.

The club plans to begin its program of helping school drop-outs in the ninth and 10th grades as soon as a list of names is made available by McRorie and other officials. Under the plan, Optimists will investigate each case to determine what the student needs to continue in school. The club, then, will supply the need and encourage the students to return to school.

Dowd addressed the club Monday and expressed gratitude on behalf of school officials and students for local Optimist sponsorship of Youth Appreciation Week, Nov. 13-18.

The club announced three "outstanding Senior boys" at Rose High will be honored during the week. They include Billy Neal James, student body president; Elbert Felton, Senior Class president; and Johnny Reynolds, president of the school's honor society.

Money cited each Senior as an "outstanding all-round student with outstanding characteristics in many phases of student activity."

Turkey Shoots Will See Start Here Saturday

TALKING IT OVER—Brocato and drill team captain James Harris.

A Turkey-Shoot will be held at the Greenville Golf Range (Ayden Highway) Saturdays, Nov. 11, 18 and 25.

Chairmanned by Mike Brocato, the "shoot" is planned to be staged in 12-man relays... with a 10-12 pound "Butterball" turkey for the winner in each relay.

Brocato advises entries to "bring your own gun. For those who do not have a gun," he says, "one will be available, and ammunition will be supplied."

Shooters will be firing at 7-inch targets, forty yards away. The competitor with the greatest number of shots within the circle is a winner.

Permissible guns for firing, are .410 gauge to 12-gauge; and a maximum barrel length of 32 inches.

Firing is scheduled to begin at 2:00 p.m. and will continue to dusk "if the number of competitors warrants it," says Brocato.

The turkey shoot is being sponsored by the drill team of the Greenville Moose Lodge as a project to enable the team to participate in international competition at Atlanta next spring. The Greenville group won State honor at the North Carolina convention this year and have raised their sights to the forthcoming international convention competition.

New Jersey Vote Jolts GOP Comeback Hope

Ecuador's President Is Forced To Step Down

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP)—Congress reportedly proclaimed leftist Vice President Carlos Arosemena Ecuador's president Tuesday night after Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra abandoned the office under pressure of rising violence and military and public opposition.

Reports from Quito, the inland capital, said the legislators handed over the presidency to Arosemena after his release from the arrest Velasco Ibarra had ordered.

Velasco Ibarra had accused his one-time political ally of being a Communist and of trying to establish a dictatorship.

Informed sources in Quito said Velasco Ibarra and his wife took refuge in the Argentine Embassy.

Quito's Radio Espejo said military leaders decried the executive power to Camilo Gallegos, president of the Supreme Court, after the president's abdication.

The broadcast said Arosemena, along with senators and congressmen arrested with him, was freed an hour later and Congress immediately met and elevated the 43-year-old vice president to the top post in accordance with the constitution.

The Quito broadcast said Arosemena told Congress after taking the oath of office that all the nation's political parties would participate in his regime.

Communications channels with Quito were closed during the night and there was no word whether the army accepted Arosemena as president or would try to unseat him. Earlier Gen. Gonzalo Vilela, director of the National Military Academy, had urged both Velasco Ibarra and Arosemena to resign.

Velasco Ibarra's popularity began to wane several months ago as a result of economic hardship resulting from falling prices for Ecuador's chief exports—bananas, coffee, cocoa and rice—and a host of new taxes the president decreed to combat inflation.

U Thant Sounds Hopeful Note

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Acting Secretary-General U Thant expressed optimism Tuesday that despite "apparent differences or divisions" the United Nations will solve its financial difficulties.

Appearing before the assembly's budgetary committee, he said it is clear the United Nations "will inevitably be weakened, and seriously so, if its administrative and financial integrity is not zealously maintained."

He did not refer specifically to the situation caused by refusal of the Soviet bloc, France, South Africa and some others to pay assessments for the multimillion-dollar Congo operation, and Soviet bloc and Arab refusal to pay for the U. N. Emergency Force in the Middle East.

Australia's aborigines, the Arunta tribesmen, sleep naked in freezing weather. A United States Office of Naval Research team of scientists headed by Dr. H. T. Hammel of the University of Pennsylvania reported that the Arunta have an inborn ability to regulate body cooling.

'Ducktail' Case Is Court Issue

PERRY, Ga. (AP)—Does an American teen-ager have a basic right to wear any kind of haircut he chooses?

Yes, says the father of a boy suspended from school for wearing a ducktail haircut.

No, says the school principal and the school board.

The father, Walter C. Sorrells, argued Tuesday that the ducktail is a harmless passing fancy and he is going to court to prove his point.

Ducktail haircuts are popular among the rock 'n' roll set. The hair is worn long and combed to a point in the back.

The principal, Eric Staples, said the school board recently banned "unconventional haircuts" because they sometimes were associated with delinquency.

But Stanley Sorrells, 17, center of the controversy, contended that the ducktail was "the kind you see on all the popular young actors, singers and politicians."

At a hearing before the Houston County School Board, Sorrells said his son has a basic American right to wear any hairstyle he chooses.

"The right of choice was won when Cornwallis surrendered to General Washington at Yorktown," he asserted, "and I mean to defend that right."

Stanley's mother agreed.

"Why, if Stanley is willing to stand the ridicule, he has the right to wear a Chinese queue or go to a beauty shop and get a permanent," she told the school board.

The Sorrells argued unsuccessfully. The board voted unanimously to uphold the eight-day suspension.

Sorrells said he would appeal to the State Board of Education. He has filed suit in Superior Court to enjoin the principal from enforcing the no-ducktail rule.

"Nothing has ever worried me as much as this," said Sorrells, a civilian employe at Robins Air Force Base. "With our freedom being challenged by Communism on all the world fronts the least we can do is fight to protect our rights at home."

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—A startling, paper-thin victory by Democrat Richard J. Hughes in the race for governor of New Jersey boosted President Kennedy's political stock today, and jolted Republican hopes for a comeback next year.

It was the first great test of strength between the two major parties since Kennedy took office.

Hughes led by a fraction of a percentage point over Republican James P. Mitchell, secretary of labor under former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Hughes will be the first Roman Catholic governor in New Jersey's history when he takes office in January. Mitchell also is a Catholic.

Returns from 4,277 of the state's 4,395 districts showed: Hughes 1,054,344, Mitchell 1,014,760.

However, Hughes did not immediately claim victory. Mitchell issued no statement conceding the election.

"I am going to wait until there is a concession by Mr. Mitchell," Hughes said. Shortly after 1 a.m., he said he was going home to bed.

Kennedy laid a measure of his own political prestige on the line when he said, in a campaign speech for Hughes last week: "What we are trying to do in the nation's capital is what Judge Hughes will do when he is elected governor."

Former President Harry S. Truman also came into New Jersey to stump for Hughes.

Eisenhower, campaigning for Mitchell, said the New Jersey election "unquestionably" would affect the 1962 congressional races. Like political analysts across the nation, he said he saw the gubernatorial battle as an omen of the future.

Kennedy carried New Jersey by 22,000 last year.

The most optimistic prediction, by Hughes' supporters, was that he would win by 25,000 votes. His campaign manager, Richard Burkhardt, said he thought the final tally might be so close that a recount would be necessary.

Hughes was not well known in his own state. He is a former State Superior Court judge who left the bench to resume his law practice.

He is six feet tall, a big-bodied man with a shock of curly hair. He has six children and three step-children. His first wife died in 1950, leaving him with four children. He married Betty Murphy in 1954. She had three children, and they have two of their own now.

Two days before the election, Hughes' 85-year-old father died.

"We had hoped that dad would be around to share it (the victory) with us," Hughes said.

Mitchell was rated the favorite by most political analysts largely because his seven years as a Cabinet member had made him better known in New Jersey.

Hughes argued that, by reason of Mitchell's long absence from the state, he was not familiar with its problems. Hughes also challenged Mitchell to a series of public debates, and assailed him sharply when Mitchell refused.

He made himself known by nine months of nonstop campaigning. His aides estimated he shook hands with more than 200,000 persons.

Mitchell hammered on the theme of "bossism" among the Democrats. He broke his leg during the campaign and was immobilized for a time.

Molotov Absent From Reception

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Vyacheslav M. Molotov, who participated in the 1917 Bolshevik revolution, was conspicuously absent Tuesday night from a Soviet Embassy reception here celebrating the revolution's 44th anniversary.

Soviet informants said he had been invited but excused himself because of a cold.

Premier Khrushchev denounced Molotov as head of an anti-party group at the recent Moscow party congress. He told correspondents in Moscow Tuesday Molotov's fate had not yet been decided.

Molotov is a Soviet representative at the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna.

Nasser Dissolves Nat'l Assembly

CAIRO (AP)—President Nasser Tuesday night formally dissolved the National Assembly, formed when Egypt and Syria were partners in the United Arab Republic.

The action came three days after Nasser announced new reforms, including eventual formation of a new political party for Egypt and elections for a constitutional convention.

in the big Democratic counties Essex and Hudson, put Hughes into an early lead. They embrace the major cities of Newark and Jersey City and are highly industrialized.

Bergen County, a Republican stronghold facing New York City across the Hudson River, was Mitchell's mainstay. It gave him a margin of about 45,000 over Hughes.

Mitchell also carried the swing counties of Gloucester and Union, which went for Gov. Robert B. Meyner, the Democratic incumbent, in 1957.

Meyner was barred by law from a third consecutive term.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Inspired by General Motors' extra dividend, the stock market surged ahead early this afternoon in the most vigorous session in months.

Trading was extremely heavy. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.80, with industrials up 3.00, rails up 1.20 and utilities up .60.

While gains of most key stocks were in a 1-point range, there were some wider moves.

Large blocks were traded in a variety of issues.

Wall Streeters agreed that the declaration of a 50-cent extra dividend by GM after the Monday close was a great token of confidence by the nation's biggest manufacturing firm — and promised considerable extra cash for holders of GM's 283 million shares of stock.

Motors, utilities, oils, tobaccos, electrical equipments, rails, electronics and selected chemicals rose, but there were losers here and there. It was far from a runaway rally.

GM spurred more than 2 points, touching a new high. DuPont, a big holder of GM shares, advanced about 4.

Litton Industries ran up about 3. Magnavox rose 1 1/2 and Universal Match and Amerada more than 1 each.

International Business Machines was up about 7.

Steeles was wobbly as a group. Volume for the first two hours was 2.51 million shares compared with 1.81 million Monday.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 4.65 to 719.25.

Prices rose on the American Stock Exchange as trading swelled to the heaviest rate in months.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds were mixed.

Voters Of Six Counties Approved Own Bond Issues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Voters in six North Carolina counties went against the statewide voting trend Tuesday, when it came to local financing, and approved local bond issues. Voters in two other counties turned down local issues.

A $5.5 million bond issue for a new hospital in New Hanover County was approved by the narrow margin of 273 votes with 7,168 voting for and 6,895 voting against. At the same time, Wilmington voters approved a $2.25 million bond issue to extend and improve water facilities.

In Scotland County, a $400,000 issue for school improvements was approved 724 votes to 538. Martin County voters voted 1,636 to 1,546 in favor of a $215,000 bond issue that will match Duke Endowment funds as the first step toward a county hospital.

Bertie County voters approved a $1,550,000 bond issue to finance school construction. The vote was 1,557 for and 1,160 against.

Voters in Henderson County approved $900,000 in bonds for construction of an addition to the county hospital. The vote was 4,319 in favor, 2,545 against.

A $225,000 Greene County bond issue for school improvements was approved by the narrow margin of 693 to 540 votes.

Johnston County voters defeated a proposed $1.25 bond issue for school consolidation. The vote was 2,613 against, 2,264 in favor.

A $1.1 million proposal was defeated in Person County. The money would have been used for school consolidation.

Burlington voters voted in favor of a water fluoridation project. The vote was 1,487 to 1,467.

Hertford County voters defeated a proposal to establish ABC stores 1,532 to 1,098. They approved a proposal to allow not more than two county commissioners from any one township. The vote was 1,509 to 1,046.

Ports Authority Will Issue Bonds
RALEIGH (AP)—Despite defeat of the bond issues Tuesday, the State Ports Authority plans to issue revenue bonds to finance $13.5 million for expansions at state ports at Wilmington and Morehead City.

However, state-supported colleges can do little, if anything, about raising funds for improvements proposed at their institutions under one of the bond issues.

William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, said today that "right now, as we see it, there is very little, if anything, that can be done about getting the money until the 1963 Legislature meets."

He added, "the only availability open is to borrow funds from the Federal Housing Administration and this is very limited in its use."

Friday said he plans to meet Thursday morning with his staff "to take a look at the whole problem."

Two Sentenced To Die By Rope
RUSSELL, Kan. (AP)—Two young soldiers who boasted of killing seven persons in a cross-country rampage of robbery and murder have been condemned to hang for killing a Kansas railroad man, their sixth victim, in Utah, last June 10.

"I hate the world," said Latham. The all-male jury convicted them of first-degree murder for the shooting of Otto E. Ziegler, 62, of Oakley, Kan., June 9. Ziegler was robbed of $51.

Returning their verdict after deliberating six hours and 45 minutes, the jurors rejected defense contentions that the youths are insane and too young to be executed. The jury could have sentenced them to life imprisonment.

York and Latham were tried only for Ziegler's death, but in signed statements they also admitted slayings in Florida, Tennessee, Illinois and Colorado. Their crime spree began May 24 when they broke out of the Army stockade at Ft. Hood, Tex.

Bachelor's Alibi No Longer Holds
LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Attention confirmed bachelors: your excuse of waiting for the right woman no longer holds water.

The Rev. Troy M. Strong, a Methodist pastor and family life counselor from Seattle, Wash., says you could marry any one of 10,000 women and live happily.

Lecturing to a group of Florida Southern College students Strong said: "Courtship is just like buying a dress or suit of clothes—you shop around before making a choice.

"You don't fall in love, you grow into it."

Judge Will Seek To Get A Juror
TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Alonzo Smith Jr., asked to be excused from jury duty because he had to work.

"The boss man said I had to work or there wouldn't be any place for me to work," Smith said Tuesday.

"Well, then, maybe we can straighten your boss man out," said Judge Carl Durrance. "Who do you work for?"

"The city," said Smith. Durrance said he would talk to Mayor Julian Lane about the situation.

Home Destroyed By Second Fire Many Hear Area CD Director Talk In Ayden

AYDEN—After two tries, fire finally took its toll here early Monday morning and destroyed the Isaac Allen home on Venter Street, Ayden firemen reported.

The house first caught fire about 9:30 p.m. Sunday, and volunteer firemen responded, extinguishing the flames, Chief Tillman Chauncey said. This blaze caused minor damage, and the source of fire was undetermined.

Firemen were called to the same house about 3:40 a.m. Monday but the fire was beyond control when they arrived. Chauncey said the firemen managed to save adjacent buildings, however.

The Negro family occupying the home left after the first fire to spend the remainder of the night with relatives in Greenville. The building was reported to be partially covered by insurance.

Cause of the second fire is undetermined as yet.

AYDEN—Over 100 residents of Ayden attended the local Rotary Club meeting Thursday evening, which was thrown open to the public so that they could hear a talk by Col. David W. Spivey, area A director of Civil Defense.

Col Spivey explained in detail the atomic explosions, breaking them into four parts: blast effect, thermal effect, initial radiation and fallout. He explained thermology connected with the explosions.

He then explained the symptoms of persons who had been affected by radioactive material.

Col. Spivey pointed out that no fallout remains once the source is removed. Two things can protect a person from radiation: distance, and density of the mass of material between the person and the radiation. The mass of material would be the fallout shelter.

Three inches of lead per square foot, two feet of concrete, three feet of dirt or brick four feet of water or 90 inches of wood—all per square foot—would give maximum protection. We must know and understand enough of this to provide protection within our own means," Col. Spivey stated.

He said the citizen has a responsibility to himself, his family and his country to protect against destruction. The public can retard Civil Defense as a deterrent to this, he said.

The address was followed by a question and answer period.

Col. Spivey was introduced by Program Chairman Cleveland Paylor, who is Civil Defense director for Ayden.

The meeting was held in the elementary school cafeteria.

Chimps Training For Orbital Ride

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Five frolicsome chimpanzees, including veteran space traveler Ham, and a rhesus monkey are training here for a pair of important rocket launchings.

One of the chimps is scheduled to spin into orbit within two weeks in the last scheduled Project Mercury trial flight before an American astronaut is lofted on an orbital mission.

The monkey, a radio transmitter and biomedical sensors imbedded in his body, is slated for a suborbital trip this week to determine feasibility of using implanted devices in human spaceflights.

Ham is the freckle-faced chimp that rode a Redstone rocket 156 miles high on a 15-minute flight last January, blazing the trail for the suborbital space trips of Astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Virgil I. Grissom.

The orbit assignment is intended to swing the Mercury capsule three times around the world in 4 1/2 hours at 17,400 miles an hour. This is the same course the National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans for the first orbit of a U.S. astronaut.
