Insurance Claims Run High

Adjusters Pour Into Southern California; Estimate $24 Million Loss

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Insurance claims from the devastating Bel-Air and Topanga Canyon fires ranging from $185 to $700,000, averaging about $50,000.

"They're running very high," one official said Friday.

Adjusters from many parts of the West have poured into the stricken area to sift the ruins of Southern California's worst fire and to help homeowners collect an estimated $24 million for insured losses.

Some homes in the area, he says, contained collections of original paintings and statuary.

Most policies will also pay holders for additional living expenses—the motel rooms and restaurant meals taken while a family's home is rebuilt.

Through the bureau is in contact with more than 500 homeowners—some since the first day of the fire—it is having difficulty locating others who moved to temporary quarters and left no contact number.

"In some areas of total devastation," said Simkins, "not so much as a single house number is left to guide the adjuster to the property."

Simkins said Bel-Air victims usually were insured to full value.

To recover valuables buried in debris but not destroyed, a shaker device similar to a gold-mining mechanism sifts ruins where a homeowner recalls leaving such items.

Nehru Call For Cold War Moratorium Sees Doubts

By TOM HOGE UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru's call for a moratorium on the cold war sets an elusive goal for the diplomats who must deal with East-West differences.

Many delegates felt the Indian leader's suggestion to the General Assembly Friday that the 103 U.N. members cease political bickering and devote a year to harmonious pursuits is admirable in concept but utopian in fact.

To comply fully with such a scheme, the world body would have to set aside for a year consideration of such overriding issues as disarmament and the stopping of nuclear weapons tests.

It would also virtually rule out debate on the many colonial questions foremost in the minds of the U.N.'s 49 Asian and African members.

and are closely intertwined with cold war issues. Various delegates hailed Nehru's call for a united attempt to avoid the terror of nuclear disaster instead of thinking about "burrowing under the earth like rats in a hole."

Many expressed disappointment, however, that the Indian leader did not advance more concrete proposals than a generalized appeal for political and cultural cooperation.

Interpretations of what he did propose varied. U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson said the idea of a year devoted to cooperation was a good one but hardly new.

One African delegate quoted a saying "When there is too much salt in the dish it is hard to improve."

"There is too much trouble at the U.N. now for Mr. Nehru's suggestions to have much effect," he said.

The United Nations in recent years. It has been accused of aggravating the explosive disarmament problem by trying to equate the Soviet Union's recent giant explosions in the air with U.S. underground testing.

One of the bitterest assailants of Portugal in the Angola debate and of South Africa on the stormy question of race segregation.

It also has played a key role in the hotly disputed question of seating Communist China in the United Nations, pressing perennial demands that Nationalist China be ousted in favor of Peking.

Nehru tempered his suggestion for a year of cooperation by noting there was nothing "new or wonderful about what I am saying — about the truths of the world."

"The words can easily be called hackneyed," he said. "But the truth is that violence and hatred are bad, and the great men of the world are those who have fought hatred and violence."

Bond Vote Effects Concern Gov. Sanford... Not Causes

RALEIGH (AP) — The effects and not the causes are occupying Gov. Sanford's thoughts after this week's defeat of $61.5 million in state bond proposals.

Sanford surveyed the election debacle and told his news conference Friday there were six areas of need which "cry out for urgent attention."

The governor also told reporters he has been thinking of the possibility of a special legislative session in an attempt to fill gaps left by the bond rejection.

He added, however, consultation with the Advisory Budget Commission and others would come first.

In a prepared statement, he brushed off the view that the outcome was "a personal or political slap in the face."

Sanford said, "I think most North Carolinians would not vote on important matters for such shallow reasons. I have greater faith than that in the sincerity and integrity of those who voted against the bonds issue and those who voted for it."

1. "The thousands of North Carolina boys and girls who will have to be denied admission to college over the next several years."

2. "The deaf children who will have no place to go for training."

3. "Hundreds of children with twisted bodies and defective minds who must continue to stand in line awaiting admission" to state schools.

4. "Those who should be receiving treatment as mental patients and who grow worse and must now remain as mental charges on their families because of lack of space in mental hospitals."

5. "Too many delinquent youths will be denied the uplifting influence of our training schools, instead later to become charges in our penal system."

6. "We could not grasp the good business proposition in bonds for port expansion."

Officials Await Clarification Of Soviet Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Puzzled U.S. officials awaited today clarification from Moscow of widely published reports that the Soviet Union has developed a four-point proposal for negotiation on a settlement of the Berlin crisis.

There was encouragement among high officials here as evidence that Soviet Premier Khrushchev seems to be moving into a negotiating position. But officials found no hint in the report of Soviet concessions that would give hope of an early East-West agreement on Berlin.

Furthermore, State Department informants said they lacked any official word from U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow to the effect that the Soviets had actually come up with a definite point-by-point position.

On the contrary, word from Thompson Friday was that as far as he could judge basic Soviet policy on West Berlin stands unchanged.

The whole situation is due for discussion by State Department officials and diplomatic representatives of Britain, France and West Germany Monday.

Press dispatches from Moscow Thursday night told of what was described as a new four-point plan being advanced by the Soviet Union for a Berlin solution.

The essence of the proposal, as described in these dispatches, was that Russia and the United States, Britain and France would agree on a new status for West Berlin, guaranteeing the freedom of the city and access to it. East Germany would respect this new Soviet-Western agreement in an accord to be reached by Russia and the East German Communist regime. For their part, the Western powers would undertake to respect the sovereignty of East Germany.

The agreements between Russia and the Western powers would be worked out in advance of Khrushchev's proposed Soviet peace treaty with East Germany.

The West German ambassador in Moscow, Hans Kroll, conferred with Khrushchev for 90 minutes Thursday. U.S. officials said the proposition reported in the Moscow dispatches could have been an outgrowth of the Khrushchev-Kroll meeting. But, if this is so, the lack of a fast fill-in for the U.S., British and French governments, from either the West Germans or the Soviets, was unexplained.

Hatchet 'Buried' By Ike, Truman

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower have buried the hatchet, and Truman was to speak today from a rostrum occupied Friday by Ike.

The two played leading roles in the rededication of the Liberty Memorial, a memorial to peace and the men who have fought for it. It was first dedicated 40 years ago.

Eisenhower, who commanded Allied forces in Europe in World War II, was the principal speaker on the first day of the two-day event.

Truman, who was a captain of artillery in World War I, was to be the speaker on this Veterans Day. He's an old hand at making speeches on Nov. 11, which originally was known as Armistice Day and marked the end of the war in which he fought.

The two former chiefs of state had been at odds since the 1952 political campaign, in which Eisenhower won his first term as president against Truman's bitter opposition.

Friday, on his arrival here, Eisenhower went directly from the airport to the Truman Memorial Library in adjoining Independence, Mo.

He found Truman standing at the door. "Come in, come in," Truman said with a smile, as the two shook hands.

"It's good to see you again," Eisenhower replied. "It was the first time either had called on the other since Eisenhower's inauguration as Truman's successor in January 1953.

Since then they had kept their distance except for a brief handshake at the funeral of Gen. George C. Marshall two years ago and a brief encounter at the funeral of Chief Justice Fred Vinson in 1953.

After exchanging greetings at the door of the library, they went to Truman's office, where they conferred in private for about 15 minutes. Then Truman escorted Eisenhower on the start of a tour through the library. He later excused himself and let the library director, Dr. Philip Brooks, conduct the remainder of the tour.

Truman said the meeting was arranged after Eisenhower had expressed to Joyce C. Hall, chairman of the rededication, a desire to see the Truman Library. A similar memorial in Eisenhower's name is located in Abilene, Kan., Ike's boyhood home, 150 miles west of Kansas City.

Police estimated that 40,000 people, including representatives of 57 nations, heard Eisenhower say that humanity's longing and aspiration for peace transcend geographic boundaries and political ideologies—even those behind the iron curtain.

But peace can be negotiated, the former president said, when people in walled-in nations are exposed to the truth.

NEHRU ACCEPTS CAIRO, Egypt, (AP) — India's Prime Minister Nehru has accepted an invitation by President Gamal Abdel Nasser to make a one-day stopover in Cairo Nov. 18 enroute home from the United States.

Six-Months Period Of Accident Research Slated

A six-month period of special accident investigation will start Dec. 1 in the Duplin, Onslow, Stokes and Rockingham County areas, according to Capt. S. H. Mitchell, Commander of Highway Patrol Troop "A."

Known as the Cornell Automotive Crash Injury Research, Capt. Mitchell explained, the study has state troopers and doctors collaborating in the preparation of special accident forms. Traffic mishaps in the sampling areas will be covered extensively with careful notations made as to the nature and extent of injuries suffered by victims.

This most recent study, being conducted in Troop "C," according to the Patrol officer, is a continuation of a program now being conducted in 20 other states. The pioneering study was first begun in North Carolina in 1954 under the direction of Motor Vehicle Commissioner Edward Scheidt and the State Board of Health.

Since that time Pitt and Edgecombe counties in District III and 16 other Troop "A" Counties have participated in the study. Sixty-nine other counties throughout North Carolina have also cooperated with the study in the past, Capt. Mitchell said.

Since North Carolina was a pioneering state in the research study, Mitchell quoted Scheidt as saying, participation will continue. Complete case histories include accident and medical reports and photographs which are forwarded to Cornell for analysis and statistical interpretation.

The resulting pool of accident data has produced findings that serve as a basis for specific auto design changes aimed at lessening injuries, the Patrol officer explained. Designed modifications based on these studies include improved door-holding mechanisms, recessed steering wheel hubs and seat belts. All have been effective in reducing injury, Cornell has reported.

Quoting from statements reported by Cornell, Capt. Mitchell said, "Common popular belief has been that 'being thrown clear of the car during an accident' heightens one's survival. Previous findings by Cornell have demonstrated conclusively that such is contrary to fact, and that the risk of death is increased nearly five times when a person is thrown from the vehicle.

Old Ironclad May Be Floated At Kinston Sunday

CONFEDERATE RAM "NEUSE"—Excavation of a Civil War craft—the 200-foot ironclad "Neuse"—is nearing completion in a lagoon of the Neuse River near Kinston. Workmen conducting the project said Friday they may have the Confederate relic afloat by Sunday. Excavation began about two weeks ago when dragline operations began removing a 10-foot depth of sand covering the hull. A major problem confronting "Operation Ram Neuse" was removal of sand filling the holds of the boat. Another segment of "Operation Ram Neuse" is a fund-raising drive for restoration of the historic boat. (Photo by Roy Hardee) over an outmanned Roanoke Rapids eleven to the tune of 48-7. At the same time, Kinston was upsetting New Bern's Bears, who were also in contention for the league crown, by a close 7-6 score. It was the Bears' second Northeastern loss against only one of Greenville.

Phanis Meet Roxboro In a telephone interview this morning, Phillips told the Daily Reflector that his Phantoms would host Roxboro in the first Eastern A playoff game. The contest is scheduled for next Friday, November 17, at 8:00 p.m. on the East Carolina College Stadium field.

The newly crowned champions began their scoring melee in the first period, and didn't quit until the final gun sounded. After holding the Yellow Jackets to no gain at the Roanoke Rapids 22, Greenville forced the losers to punt. Sonny Pruette's kick went off the side of his foot, and the Phantoms took over on the Roanoke Rapids 37.

Director J. S. Grimes said his staff will begin interviewing heads of needy households about 9 a.m. in the certification process for the next round of distribution of surplus commodities in the county in early December.

Surplus Foods

Certification of needy families for surplus foods is scheduled to begin again Monday at the Pitt County Welfare Department.

The program was undertaken in Pitt last spring when the County Commissioners agreed to participate in a state-wide plan to distribute surplus foods to hungry families through welfare department machinery. Initial response to the program in May included some 800 families.

Grimes said the program was interrupted for non-public assistance cases during the summer months when more employment was available. Monday's registration is for families who do not receive public welfare grants.

Allen MacArthur, an All-Conference halfback who has been selected to play in the East-West Shrine Bowl game later this year, tried the middle of the Yellow Jacket line with no success, but on the next play, took a pitchout from quarterback Billy Neal James and proceeded to pass to his halfback running mate, Krohgie Andersen, for a 24 yard gain down to the losers' 13. Fullback Wayne Sumrell carried three yards to the 10, and a personal foul which sent Roanoke Rapids' Lett Carroll to the showers, moved the ball to the three yard line.

With four minutes showing on the scoreboard clock, Sumrell rammed through the middle of the "Yellow Jacket line for the touchdown, and Andersen, the Phantoms' place-kicking specialist, added the extra point.

Roanoke Rapids made a move after taking the kickoff from Jack Foley, and drove to the Greenville 39 as the first period came to a close. But on the first two plays of the second stanza, the Yellow Jacket backs found the going a little more rugged. Guard Russell Fields dropped Marvin Wood back on the 41, then Ronnie Williams, a 190 pound tackle, threw Pruette back nine more yards to the mid-field stripe. Pruette punted, but the ball rolled into the Rose High end zone for an automatic touchdown, and the Phantoms were on the move again, this time starting at their own 20.

Sumrell crashed to the 30, but a holding penalty moved the ball back to the 15. Andersen shot through for 11 yards to the 26, then found a small hole for two more yards to the 28. On third down and 14 yards to go for a first, James faded back and heaved a long one to MacArthur, who had eluded the Yellow Jacket's secondary and was in the open at the losers' 40. Mac hauled in the perfect strike and raced 39 more yards, but was caught from behind by Pruette at the one yard line. The play covered 61 yards.

Thirty seconds later, Sumrell again plunged over from the one for his and Greenville's second purpose of discussing the pollution and classification of waters of the Tar and Pamlico Rivers. Mayor Joe Butterworth disclosed today that the two oldest wells in Bethel have given trouble in recent weeks. Carolina Well Drilling of Sanford has already examined the two wells and hope to have one back in operation within two weeks.

The town has a new well which pumps 400 gallons of water per minute, which is in operation. One of the old wells, when repaired, is expected to pump about 250 gallons of water per minute. What will happen to the other old well is undecided at this point, the mayor said.

As for the sewage system, it was learned the original septic tank in Bethel was built to accommodate 500 people. However, not all the houses in Bethel utilize this tank, but have their own.

Sewage Problems Still Before Bethel Board; A New System?

BETHEL — Members of the Bethel Town Board discussed the possibility of having to put in a new sewage system at their monthly meeting Thursday night, but made no decision.

The discussion followed a meeting in Washington, when it was learned Bethel will be included in towns which will be reclassified. Representatives from Bethel attended the meeting in Washington this week, called for the

In other business, a report on Bethel's bonded indebtedness showed it has been reduced to $4,000. "That's all the debt Bethel owes," Mayor Butterworth commented, adding that Bethel is in good shape financially.

In other business, Walter Bunch was appointed to assist in Civil Defense work for the town.

All the commissioners were present for the meeting, which was held on Thursday instead of the first Tuesday in the month primarily because election day

Four Die When Car Overtakes Near Wilkesboro

WILKESBORO, N. C. (AP) — Four teen-agers died Friday night when their automobile went out of control on a curve near Roaring River and overturned.

The accident occurred about 10:15 p.m. about 10 miles east of here on N. C. 268. State Highway Patrolman T. C. Goodman identified the dead as: Archie Eugene Jordan, 17, and James Burchett, 17, both of Winston-Salem; Leonard H. Byrd, 15, and Joseph Charles Waddell, 15, both of Roaring River, N. C.

Portuguese Army Commander Dies

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A military plane crashed and burned Friday in Angola, killing the commander of the Portuguese army there and 17 other persons, officials announced.

The commander was Gen. Silva Freire. Other victims were 11 army and air force officers, three sergeants and three civilians.

Fisheries Expert Thinks Reds Getting Sub Data

BOSTON (AP)—A Boston fisheries official says he believes there are scientists aboard the Soviet fleet off the New England coast collecting information of value to Soviet submarine skippers.

Thomas Fulham, head of the firm that owns the Boston Fish Pier, said Friday night, "This whole business of coming down here to fish doesn't ring clear to me."

General Meeting Of The Women of Church

The general meeting of the Women of Johnson Memorial Presbyterian Church was held Friday night, November 3, in the Sunday School assembly room.

The program topic was, Jesus Christ, The Light of the World. The theme of the Third Assembly of the World Council of Churches. It gave to the women the early history of the World Council of Churches and brought to their remembrance some of the work of the council across the years. It was designed to help them to feel a part of the Third Assembly which meets in New Delhi, India, and be prepared to consider the messages and study papers which will be released to the churches by this world-wide representative Council of Christendom.

Mrs. Sam Wilson led in the Bible Study. The topic used was, "A Mirror is Revealing." This was based on James 1:19-27 from James 1:22-5, Philip's Testimony says, "The man who simply hears God's word and does nothing about it is like a man catching the reflection of his own face in a mirror. He sees himself, but he goes on with whatever he was doing without remembering the sort of person he saw in that mirror. James means this passage in a spiritual sense. The man or woman who looks into the mirror of God's word sees himself, his soul, as he really is in God's sight. Yet he goes away and forgets what he is like, perhaps the mirror was a sermon heard in church. The impulse for good for this person lasted for only a little while. Back at his work, he forgot what he was like and what he intended to do. We should be like the one who immediately forgot his inner condition and the vision he saw of becoming someone much higher and better. James describes the mirror as the perfect law, the law of liberty. James' theme is genuine religion. Pure religion, as James speaks of it, not only will keep us from evil, but it will force us out into service for others. Mrs. Wilson closed the lesson with prayer.

A social hour, Mrs. J. W. Tripp, the hostess served delectable refreshments to the fourteen members and the two visiting guests, Mrs. Elmer Whitehurst and Mrs. Harvey Edmondson.

Honor Society Inducts Members

Rose High News

By SHERBY EVERETT "I pledge myself to uphold the high purposes of this society to which I have been elected, striving in every way by word and deed to make its ideals the ideals of my school and of my life."

Seniors Grace Ann Stafford, William Allen, and Joe Gaston and juniors Brenda Thippen, Anne Daniel, Martha Henderson, Barbara Minges, Susan Laughter, Sherby Everett, and Jake Gaskins stated this pledge as they were formally inducted into the Haskekt chapter of the National Honor Society November 10, during an assembly.

These ten upperclassmen were chosen because of outstanding character, scholarship, leadership, and service. Each student must have at least a 90 average and be active in school activities.

Reynolds Welcomes Students After last year's members, nold- ing lighted candles, had marched in, Johnny Reynolds, president, welcomed the students and faculty to the assembly. Ebert Felton gave the devotionals.

Tracie Hooper, vice president of the local chapter, introduced Mrs. Herbert Waldrop, the speaker for the occasion, who stated, "These people inducted today were chosen on a large part, by achievement in grades, but also their whole person was measured by their capacity to grow in traits they possess."

"The way of integrity is not easy, but it is the only way to achieve the rare personal peace," she explained. "How I admire a person who fails an exam rather than passes by cheating."

She pointed out that if we set out to develop integrity, we develop a mature person. Our biggest decision is whether to be good or bad.

Mrs. Waldrop commented, "Everyone influences the people he meets. In this way his good and bad traits show up. Everyone should check to see whether he influences someone to be good or bad."

In conclusion she stated, "Our own judge is the sternest judge there is because we must judge ourselves. How do you judge yourself?"

Following the speaker, Theresa Wilson, secretary, distributed the envelopes containing the names of the new inductees. Previous members of the society then tapped (shaved a blue and yellow rosette centered with the N.H.S. pin).

At Oak Ridge Institute O. E. Dowd, principal, attended a nationwide institute November 8 and 9 at Oak Ridge, Tenn. He is one member of a seven man state committee in the Southern Association of Secondary Schools.

Cheerleaders Sponsor Buses The varsity cheerleaders, headed by Gigi Guice, sponsored three buses to Roanoke Rapids game Friday. Including the band bus, approximately 150 students traveled to the last game of the season by bus. Some sports fan drove their own cars which added to the number of spectators attending the game.

Valuable Reminder Of U.S. Power

President Kennedy's assertion that the United States is a military power second to none in the world and intends to remain so, is the kind of declaration which should make it clear that the U.S. intends to keep its pledge not only to defend its own interests but the interests of the free world wherever necessary.

The statement likewise reflects the fact that the United States has not been awed by the series of Soviet nuclear tests in spite of the size of some of the explosions the Russians set off.

This most recent statement by the President, coupled with his earlier statement that the United States would make preparations to carry out its own nuclear tests if they became necessary, puts this country on record so far as the rest of the world is concerned. Whether the nations be our allies, our enemies or uncommitted nations, they have been given a clear understanding of where the U.S. stands with respect to military potential and further testing of important weapons.

While some may take the position that such frank talk by the President tends to make the United States sound like a nation determined for a hot war, it appears to us that the statement will do more to prevent a conflict than to contribute to the beginning of one.

History has taught the nations of the world that in most cases it is the weak and unprepared who are singled out as victims by those who seek world power and conquest. The nations which have remained strong and prepared often have served as a deterrent to aggressors who would otherwise take advantage of weaker neighbors.

Unless and until a practical, workable agreement for disarmament is worked out, the United States would be making a grave error to place itself in a position of having to negotiate from weakness rather than from strength in the international field. It would be placing in jeopardy not only its own future, but the future of the other peoples of the free world as well.

President Kennedy's most recent statement on the military posture of the United States serves a useful purpose, in our opinion, in preventing an eruption of the cold into a hot war.

Looking Forward To A Future Hospital Need

Purchase of 12 additional acres of land for future use by Pitt Memorial Hospital is a forward looking step by the County Commissioners which will assure adequate area for the medical facility in the years immediately ahead.

Had the Commissioners failed to acquire the additional acreage while it is available, it is quite possible that the county would find in the future that land needed for the hospital would either not be available, or would cost considerably more than the estimated $42,000 the county will pay for the new property.

A good part of the initial area of 17 acres in the hospital site has been utilized by the hospital and other associated facilities constructed by the county. Additional area will be needed if there is to be adequate space for expanding the county's medical facilities in the future.

It was just 10 years ago that Pitt Memorial Hospital was completed and opened with a capacity of approximately 130 beds. Since that time it has been necessary to expand the hospital to its present capacity of approximately 200 beds. Should the next decade bring similar demands for additional medical care facilities, further expansions will have to be made.

Without adequate land for expansion, the problem of increasing the size of the hospital would be greatly complicated.

Most Pitt County citizens, we believe, recognize that this county has become an important medical center for this section of North Carolina. They also recognize that as this development continues, expanded medical facilities will be needed to meet the demands being made upon Pitt for medical care.

Nehru Points Up A U.S. Problem

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—It is no wonder President Kennedy and Indian Prime Minister Nehru, after four days of talks, issued a statement which shows they still disagree on some issues this country considers major.

Nehru, who is just four days short of being 72 and spent more than 13 years in British jails fighting for Indian independence which was won in 1947, is a complex and troubled man.

Sometimes in public statements from the American view, and probably from the Russian also, he can be an irritating man who acts with an air of superior wisdom as if talking down his nose to a couple of dead-end kids in a dynamite room.

There are also times, at least from the American view, when he looks like a confused man. For instance: when he calls for self-determination for Portuguese Angola but hedges about the same thing for Communist-held East Germany.

It has been said of him that he is a great Indian leader but a poor world one. Yet, he is forever talking on world affairs. He couldn't avoid it.

As head of more than 438 million people—more than in the United States and Soviet Russia combined—he's involved in the world in a big way and yet cannot bring his country into the 20th century without outside help.

He's jarred Americans, whose aid he has accepted, and he's jarred the Russians, who recently pledged India more than a half billion dollars, by disagreeing with both on some issues.

Because of this he is the prime example of the problem this country has in dealing with the leaders of many backward nations.

His idea of what's right, wrong or necessary—judged from where he stands and by his problems—cannot possibly coincide with the American or Russian views, or their interests, in every situation.

For this reason, and because of the size and importance of his nation, he does represent a view shared, some of the time if not always, by others among the so-called neutralists.

He made this point himself Thursday at the National Press Club when, asked whether he thinks the "neutrals have been fair to the United States," he said:

"The problem is difficult to answer on behalf of other countries. But please remember that all these countries are full of their own problems. Questions like this and such questions as Berlin and Germany are at the fringes of their minds."

Still, while he has fairly ready answers for others' problems, he has some of his own still unresolved. For instance, his dispute with the government of Pakistan over the state of Kashmir or with the Red Chinese over their invasion of India.

He still hasn't been able to cope with one of his most tormenting internal problems: the increase of 10 million people a year in India's population.

And even his economic progress, despite outside help, has been fairly slow. Last summer a U. N. survey showed that out of 32 developing countries India is almost slowest in progress.

Last September he visited Moscow and talked with Premier Khrushchev. And, just as in his meeting with Kennedy this week, he and the Russians agreed on some issues, disagreed on others.

He now denounces, although he didn't say it in the

Have A Job Of Tightening Up

By LYNN NISBET

CARRYING ON—None of the state's institutions face foreclosure or work stoppage because of failure of the bond issues to be approved. A few boys and girls may find it more difficult to get into college, and some persons who really need hospital care may be denied adequate treatment. If all the bonds had been approved the facilities the money would have provided would still have fallen far short of the admitted need. Many boys and girls could not have been accepted in college, and many persons in need of treatment could not have had access to a hospital bed.

Verdict of the voters last Tuesday means that the administrators of the state institutions must tighten up a little bit more and try a little bit harder to get the last dime's worth of value out of facilities available. The attitude of the head men in the institutions and service agencies has been very fine. In every instance they have promised to utilize as fully as possible the facilities they have.

The courage with which they face the new challenge tends to raise question whether the bonds ever were as desperately needed as claimed. That is particularly true with respect to the ports development bonds. The next day after the people voted down an issue of $13.5 million general full faith and credit bonds for ports improvement, the State Ports Authority announced it would issue its own revenue bonds for the same purpose. The interest rate will be a little higher, the profits of port operation will have to go to pay off bonds instead of salaries and expense accounts beyond the regular State budget level. But there is no indication ports development will be seriously retarded.

HOW COME?—Capitol Square denizens and visitors are spending most of their spare time this week, and probably will be doing it for some time, analyzing the bond election and trying to dope out "how come?" The average of more than two-to-one defeat for all ten items on the bond ballot was a terrific shock to the folks around Capitol Square. They haven't recovered enough for sober thinking.

A few facts stand out as obvious and are accepted as contributing influences on the vote. Most glaring of these was the over-confidence of the sponsors of the bonds and the attitude of the Sanford administration. The bond issue was not essentially and should never be adopted as a partisan matter. But when Bill Cobb, Republican state chairman, announced that the Republican organization would support some and oppose some of the proposals on partisan basis, Governor Sanford took the bait and put the whole force of his prestige as leader of the Democratic party behind the entire program. On several occasions high level Democratic officials speaking for the bond emphasized that approval would enhance Sanford's prestige. There were a lot of Democrats and even more Republicans who did not care to increase the State debt for the purpose of enhancing the Governor's prestige.

The over-confidence idea also resulted in some of the newcomers to State and Democratic party leadership declining to accept or respect reports from oldtimers that the bonds were in trouble in certain areas. Instances can be cited where reports of disaffection and trouble made by the oldtimers were brushed off by the newly come insiders with the statement that "we have had our folks to check that area and the situation is in good shape."

Perhaps the biggest surprise to everybody, and the item that threw all the expert calculations into the proverbial cocked hat, was the number of votes cast. Although the total was less than a third of that cast in the general election last November, it was twice as much as the most optimistic forecasts. That was the area in which the administration "spy-system" most utterly failed.

It is quite likely that emphasis on the small vote expected and frequent comment to the effect that a light vote would assure passage of the bonds, contributed to the heavier-than-expected turnout. It is known that some active workers for the bonds operated on the theory that an appeal for mass voting ought not to be made. For that reason there was no effective organization to get out the vote.

HANGOVER—There seems no doubt that hangover effects of the 1961 General Assembly had considerable influence on the bond voting. Heaviest majorities against the bonds were cast in the large counties which were penalized by redistricting and tax legislation last spring. The little counties have control in the General Assembly, but when it comes to statewide voting the populous counties can make their weight felt.

Most observers agree that a substantial part of the negative vote on bonds was a sort of indirect protest against the attitude of the Legislature and the Sanford administration—without too clear specification of the immediate object of protest.

To the Editor,
When the boys in the Greenville Rescue Squad left for Roanoke last Wednesday you probably thought, "There they go, God be with them. And if you know how many hours they had worked and trained for this IRFAA Convention you probably gave a sigh of relief, along with a prayer, that they would win. And then you, and the rest of Greenville, sat back to wait.

My wife and I checked into the Hotel Roanoke Wednesday evening, after your boys, along with the State Director, Mr. J. C. Purcell, and others in our party. We saw your boys for a short while Wednesday night, and then it was first now and then until after the Rescue competition Friday night. They were still at it, practicing, training, tired to death, but still able to smile when we did meet.

Because of the rough weather, our party couldn't take it. We left early—after we had seen Greenville go through their first problem. And they did look sharp, along with working without error.

We kept posted over the radio. At 2:00 o'clock they came in, tired, wet, but still smiling, and very hungry. Vienna's, crackers, potted meat never tasted so good. We came to their rescue.

Saturday they also stood out in the First Aid competition, and as you can imagine, along with the banquet menu Saturday night, your boys' fingerprints were also on the menu while they waited for the winners to be announced.

"Dixie" never sounded better than it did in that ballroom on Saturday night, and it was played many, many times after their victory was announced.

Elude The Radar Grasp?

State officials recently balked before conceding to purchase more speed traps for North Carolina law enforcement on the highways.

If an innovation we heard of recently catches hold in this state, the money may have been better spent on something else.

A 350-page automotive catalogue circulated by a Chicago mail-order firm advertises a device that will allow the speedster to elude the grasp of radar.

The advertisement proclaims that a $30 gadget, operated by night batteries, sounds off with little "beep-beeps" at least a half-mile before the driver reaches a radar traffic zone.

It's handy, too. It either clips onto the visor or sits firmly on the dashboard, held in place by its magnetized base. And it's a small little monster, only three inches wide and deep and two inches high. It couldn't get in the way.

The advertisement claims the gadget is "absolutely foolproof." It says the little transistor box "detects radar beams as far away as one-half mile—more than twice the distance necessary to slow down if you're traveling too fast."

It occurred to us that a driver who couldn't drop his speed within the legal limit in less than a quarter of a mile would most likely have more serious consequences than a radar speed trap.

If the trap nabbed him, it would be doing him a service.

The World Almanac has corners for little tidbits of information. One of the corners in the latest edition of the marathon fact-and-figure volume points out an oddity of the 1961 calendar.

It calls "a freak of the calendar rarer than the appearance of Halley's Comet its ability to turn the date of the year 1961 upside down and still be accurate."

It points out the last previous instances when this could be done were in 1691 and in 1881.

It concludes: "... but the New York Herald Tribune says it won't happen again until 6009."

And speaking of the calendar:

Be it hereby remembered that one day next week—it seems like next Saturday—is none other than Sadie Hawkins Day. Good luck.

Other Editors Saying Foe Of 'Painless' Courts

(The Charlotte (N. C.) News) The idea that a traffic court is an essential ingredient for a truly successful traffic safety campaign got an unsolicited boost this week from the solicitor of Greenville (N. C.) Municipal Recorder's Court, Solicitor Eli Bloom, addressing a Raleigh meeting of solicitors from all over the state, gave the Greenville formula for making the public safety conscious:

"There's no skipping court by pleading guilty, paying the fine and costs. In any case the judge requires evidence and delivers a stern lecture. Traffic cases are interspersed with other cases so that even those defendants who want to plead guilty to traffic violations have to wait their turn. Court dockets of traffic cases are printed in the local newspaper daily. Names of those acquitted as well as names of the guilty are included. Any teen-ager halted in court must be accompanied by one of his parents before the judge will pass sentence and deliver his lecture.

"We've even tried some stuff that was illegal," Bloom commented. He told of compulsory bumper stickers imprinted with "I Was Convicted Of Speeding" and other purposely embarrassing slogans, and explained how some reckless drivers were assigned to watch emergency rooms in hospitals.

Solicitor Bloom's experiences dovetail with the ideas of local traffic safety officials. One big advantage of a traffic court separate from an already crowded recorder's court is the opportunity to require each accused violator to appear in court—even to plead guilty. Local officials feel that the present procedure is too painless in order to be really effective. (All a minor traffic offender is now required to do is mail in his fine, a process which automatically pleads him guilty to the charge.)

Solicitor Bloom's experience in Greenville adds even more weight to arguments for a traffic court. And is further testimony to the fact that punishment for traffic violations can't be both effective and sugar-coated.

Merely forgetting injuries is not enough. Merely turning aside from injustice does not wholly settle the problem. There must be something positive. We must start taking a new attitude toward the person we formerly hated. Life is made up of positive and negative factors. Revenge is wholly negative. The world is put together in such a way that revenge never triumphs.

St. Paul urges his followers not to seek revenge. "Avenge not yourselves beloved," he says "for it is written, Vengeance belongeth unto me. I will repay saith the Lord" (Romans 12:19).

When Jesus counseled men to love their enemies and to do good to them that despitefully use them, he was showing bitter and frustrated humanity a way out of their difficulties.

Merely forgetting injuries is not enough. Merely turning aside from injustice does not wholly settle the problem. There must be something positive. We must start taking a new attitude toward the person we formerly hated. Life is made up of positive and negative factors. Revenge is wholly negative. The world is put together in such a way that revenge never triumphs.

Public Hearing Needed

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

General Edwin A. Walker has resigned from the armed services after serving his country as a commissioned officer for 30 years. He has not been given a trial. He has not been court-martialed for any violation of the military regulations of this country. As he stated to the United States Armed Services Committee:

"My career has been destroyed in its usefulness to my country. I cannot accept retirement with its emoluments and benefits. To do so would be a compromise with my principle."

Until General Walker has had his day in court, openly, so that all the American people can know exactly what happened, the conclusion must be that he has been unfairly treated, as General "Billy" Mitchell was unfairly treated, as General Douglas MacArthur was unfairly treated, as General Patton might have been more unfairly treated but for public opinion. There can be no excuse for improper treatment for men in uniform.

General Walker takes the position:

"We are at war. We are infiltrated. We are losing that war every day. Are our hands tied, yours and mine? We need a substitute for defeat. If it is not within the power of this Congress to provide it—then the people of these United States are not truly represented."

The theory that a military man is silenced by his uniform cannot be substantiated in a free country. A military officer does not lose his mind or his capacity for articulation by the simple act of joining the Army. General Walker quotes George Washington to uphold his own position:

"If men are to be precluded from offering their sentiments on a matter, which may involve the most serious and alarming consequences that can invite the consideration of mankind, reason is of no use to us; the freedom of speech may be taken away, and dumb and silent we may be led, like sheep to the slaughter."

What has been General Walker's crime? He is opposed to Communism. He has recognized Soviet Russia as our enemy and in the indoctrination of the troops under his command he said so. Discussing this, General Walker said:

"We have yet to agree among ourselves, and with our allies, to reach a simple definition—Communism is the enemy. We employ its agents in the teaching professions, allowing them to work on the fertile minds of youth seeking a champion to pit against a scapegoat. They infest our entertainment media. They long ago have infiltrated our government so that a scheme of subversion can be traced through three decades."

"Even our free press is exploited by Communist propagandists. Communist collaborators find rabid and militant defense among certain groups of our citizens, some of whom are sincerely confused and misguided. Governments which oppose the leaders of these groups and their purposes often are branded reactionary. In other nations of our hemisphere, we have seen these groups seize absolute power. In Cuba, it was with our help."

The time has come for a public hearing for and against General Walker. Let us get at the facts, whatever they may be. General Walker has already made a statement to the U. S. Senate Armed Services Committee but this has not received the circulation that it deserved. "The Bookmiller, Inc." in New York has issued General Walker's statement in pamphlet form and that is now available to the public. It is reported that this Senate Committee will hold a public hearing late in November but unless it is fully open, it will serve no constructive purpose.

It will be impossible in an open hearing to avoid calling Adam Yarominsky to the stand to testify to the nature and cause of his opposition to General Walker, if any, and the relationship of that opposition to the Fund for the Republic of which Yarominsky was Secretary, although he is now Special Assistant to the Secretary of Defense. What Yarominsky played in the elimination of

The Old Promoter Has Solution

By the Old Promoter
I have an idea so impregnated with justice and common sense that the regular writer of this column, Elmer Roessner, has asked me to take over today.

My proposal is that any person who has paid at least $50,000 in income taxes up to the time he is 65 be granted a $50-a-month increase in his Social Security benefits, and that any person who has paid at least $100,000 in income taxes be granted a $100-a-month increase in those benefits.

My proposal is based on these basic principles:
1. Each person, by means of his talents and ability, sets a certain standard of living for himself and his family. A private detective may happily adjust to an income of $7,500 a year. An underpaid college professor may accommodate himself to an income of $15,000, and a top executive may accustom his family to the amenities that a $50,000-a-year salary provides.

THE BAN ON SAVINGS
2. The American economy has been so rejiggered that it is almost impossible for a citizen to provide for his own retirement.

It is no accident that the income tax, Social Security, inflation and farm supports came in the same generation. Before that, a man tried to lay a little money by to take care of himself and his wife in their old age. If he couldn't make it, he could always go to live with relatives on a farm when he got too old for anything but chores.

But when the government imposed income taxes and the rates began to climb, it became difficult for most people—even hard-working, talented people—too lay much by. And when inflation hit the fan, saving for retirement became futile, except for those with capital gains and enormous incomes.

Income taxes hit the farmers, too, and there are few today who can afford to take in relatives.

GOVERNMENT SAVINGS SUBSTITUTED
So it became necessary to institute a system by which the government would provide retirement income. This had the added advantage of making everybody dependent on the government, not only for protection but for bread and milk, too.

While the maximum individual Social Security payment of $127 a month may be a comfortable retirement income for one who has earned little more than the required $400 a month, it would be a cruel situation for a man who had been earning $10,000 or $20,000 a year, but who had been unable to save for his retirement because of high taxes and inflation.

Therefore, my proposal that anybody who has paid at least $50,000 in income taxes by the time he is 65 get an additional $50 a month in Social Security benefits, and anyone who has paid at least $100,000 get $100 is humane and fair.

It is not expensive, either. Life expectancy at the age of 65 is not great. For a man who paid $50,000 in taxes, an added $50 a month for the remainder of his life would be only about 3 per cent of what he had paid in taxes.

I hope some Congressman is reading. Legislation to make his idea a reality would make him the champion of the tax-impooverished millions.

AUTO STRIKES HIT INSTALMENT CREDIT
The total instalment credit dropped $82 million in September, the Federal Reserve reports. While most of the categories showed increases, the overall drop was caused by a decline of $171 million in auto credit.

The reason: the auto strike, which cut the sale of cars. The outlook: a sharp rise in October and November instalment credit because of the cash-up purchase of autos on time.

Rams End Season, Down Bath 12-6

ROBERSONVILLE — Halfback Jimmy Cherry intercepted a Bath pass on the Pirates' 24 yard line in the final seconds of the game last night and scampered the distance to the goal line to close out the season with a 12-6 victory over the visitors.

The winning touchdown left the local Rams with a 4-4 conference record and the visiting Pirates with a 4-2 conference record to close out the season for both clubs.

During the first quarter of the game neither team could muster enough strength to score. Robersonville threatened one time, but they fumbled the ball on the Bath 21 yard line with the visitors making the recovery.

The first touchdown of the night came in the second quarter of the game after Robersonville lost the ball on downs on the Bath 30 yard line. A penalty pushed the Pirates back to their own 11 yard line and they were forced to punt. The Rams took over on the Bath 37 yard line and went on to score.

With Charlie Forbes and Jimmy Cherry carrying for the Rams, they moved the ball to the Bath 15 yard line. On the next play Forbes completed a pass to Cherry who went over for the touchdown. The conversion failed and the Rams took the lead 6-0.

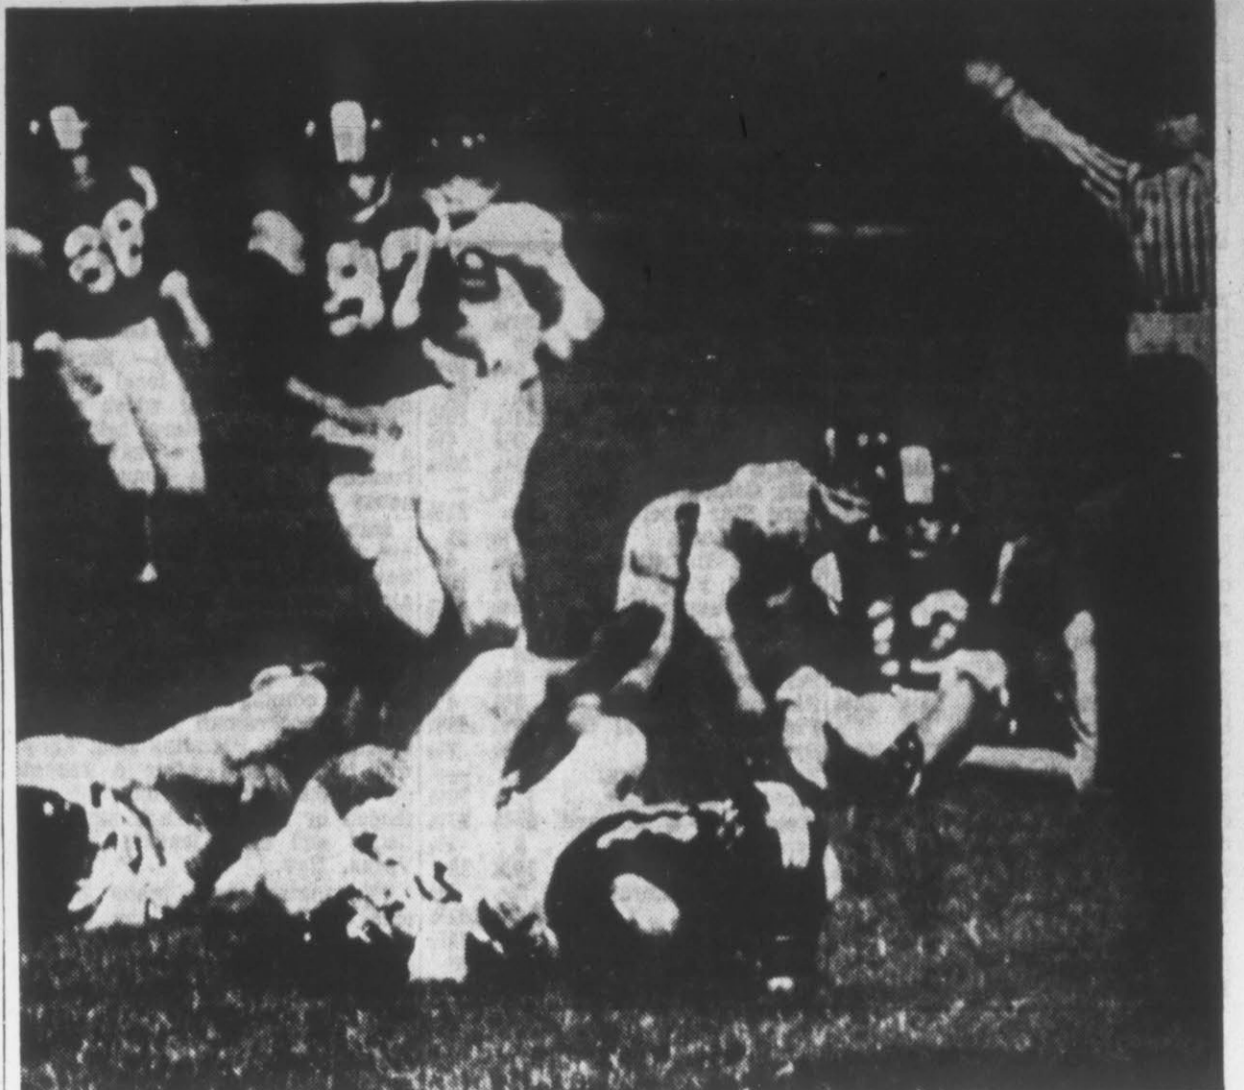

The Pirates wasted no time in tying the score with Frankie Respass and David Everett, carrying the ball from their own 33 yard line to the Robersonville 39. On the next play a pass from Everett to Bruce Biggs moved the ball to the Robersonville one yard line. Respass dove over on the next play for the score.

In the fourth quarter Robersonville managed to push the visitors down to their own one yard line, but the Pirates rallied and moved the ball out to the 32 yard line before they were stopped just short of a first down.

With Forbes carrying the ball for the Rams they got down to the Bath nine yard line before they were stopped and the Pirates took over.

On the last play of the game Cherry intercepted the Bath pass and scored the winning touchdown.

touchdown of the evening. Andresen booted the extra point, and the Phants held a 14-0 lead with nine minutes and two seconds remaining in the second quarter.

MacArthur Scores

Just 37 seconds after Sumrell made his one yard plunge to paydirt, the Phantoms scored again. The Yellow Jackets took the kickoff and returned to their own 41, and decided to take to the airways. It proved a bad decision because on the first pass attempt MacArthur intercepted on the Roanoke Rapids 43 and scampered all the way to the end zone. After an off side penalty against the Yellow Jackets caused Andresen's kick for the extra point to go wide, the little (160-pound) halfback calmly booted another, this one splitting the uprights for a 21-0 lead.

With about five minutes left in the first half, the Phantoms got their hands on the ball again, this time on the Roanoke Rapids 27, where MacArthur had returned a punt. An illegal procedure penalty moved the ball back to the 32. Two incomplete passes and a two yard gain by MacArthur made it fourth and 13 at the 30, but James found his mark on the next play, a 30 yard touchdown pass to Andresen with 2:49 left in the half. Andresen's extra point attempt was wide, but the Phants held a comfortable 27-0 lead.

Pruette Shines

After taking the kickoff, and moving to the 28 yard line, the Yellow Jackets sent Pruetie on an end sweep to his left, but the flashy halfback saw no opening. Immediately, he cut back to his right, found daylight, and raced 55 yards to the Greenville 17 yard line. On the next play, Pruetie took a screen pass from Wood at the Phantom 20, and rambled into the Rose High end zone untouched. Wood kicked the extra point for the Yellow Jackets' first and last score of the night.

In the third period, the Phantoms ate up most of the time on a 79 yard sustained drive that produced another touchdown. The passing arm of James and the running of MacArthur and reserve halfback John Adams moved the ball to the Roanoke Rapids 10, where it was third down and inches to go for a first. Fullback Sumrell was again called upon for the needed first down and once again the stocky 175 pounder produced, with a first down at the Yellow Jacket 8.

James kept on the option play for a seven yard gain to the one, then Adams hurdled the Roanoke Rapids defensive line for the score. Andresen's extra point kick made it 34-7.

Subs Look Good

The Phantoms pushed across two more tallies in the final period, with the reserves providing the punch for both of them.

Taking over on the losers' 35, James passed to Andresen for a first down at the RR 23, the play covering 21 yards. Then substitute halfbacks Joe Waters and Kenny Joyner gave the fans an idea of what is in store for next season with some superb running to the losers' 6. A jubilant Waters romped the remaining six yards for the touchdown, his first of his high school career, and Andresen booted the extra point with 5:13 left in the game.

The substitutes were not finished, however, as they again took over on their own 43 with only three minutes left to play.

With James calling the plays, Waters and Joyner provided the ground attack in the drive. Then James took to the air, hitting end Roger Collins just short of a first down at the Roanoke Rapids 47. Waters got the first down on the next play at the 44. Joyner went one yard to the 43, then Chester Walden droge to the 35.

James then passed to Collins again for another first down on the 29. On the last play of the game, James passed the remaining 29 yards to Joyner, who leaped from the one yard line, gathered in the pass, and fell into the end zone for the score. Andresen's extra point made it 48-7, and a happy throng of Greenville fans, who had accompanied the Phantoms to Roanoke Rapids, swarmed on the field to extend congratulatory embraces.

Phillips Has Praise

"I thought it was a real team effort," said a happy Coach Phillips after the game. "Our boys played real well," he continued, "including the reserves." Phillips singled out the outstanding play of Waters and Joyner in their fourth quarter performance. "All our backs ran well, and the line play was outstanding," smiled the well-liked Phantom mentor. The entire starting line, including ends Jack Foley and Burney Morris, tackles Rommie Brock and Van Harris, guards Elbert Peiton and Fields, and center Ken Cox, were listed among the outstanding players.

MacArthur, Sumrell and Andresen led the Phantom scoring department, which has produced a total of 131 points in the last three games. It might be interesting to note that Andresen has kicked a total of 34 extra points for the season, which is an accomplishment that many college placement kickers would envy.

Dodger Stadium Is Given Name

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The $16 million stadium of the Los Angeles Dodgers now nearing completion in the Chavez Ravine will be known as — what else? — Dodger Stadium.

The Dodgers announced this Friday, and said they had given serious consideration to many other suggestions.

One problem: The Los Angeles Angels of the American League will lease the stadium, and the Dodgers aren't certain the Angels will acknowledge the park as Dodger Stadium.

Unbeaten Alongi Faces Big Test

NEW YORK (AP) — Tony Alongi, an unbeaten young heavyweight from Hollywood, Fla., with 27 victories, faces his most important test tonight when he takes on George Logan of Boise, Idaho, at Madison Square Garden.

Alongi, 22, a rangy 6-4, has been brought along slowly under the guidance of Charlie Goldman, Rocky Marciano's old trainer. Young Tony has knocked out 16 opponents.

Logan, 25, is known hereabouts for three losing fights with Tom McNeely, the Bostonian who challenges Floyd Patterson for the title Dec. 4 in Toronto. Logan's record is 21-5-1.

The fight will be seen on network (ABC) television starting at 10 p.m. (EST).

Baylor Called For Active Duty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 6th Army has called up Elgin Baylor for active duty, riddling the chances of the Los Angeles Lakers to bring a National Basketball Association championship to their new home.

An Army spokesman at San Francisco said Friday night that Baylor's orders had been mailed to him in Los Angeles. He said that Baylor probably would have to report to active duty in about a month.

Baylor said he hasn't received the orders. His coach, Fred Schaus, was stunned by the announcement.

Baylor, who is married and has one child, has served six months of reserve training.

The Lakers have compiled a 9-2 record in the NBA and seemed headed for a Western Division title.

Baylor is the first major professional basketball star to be called up. Many of the leading players in the game are not eligible for military service because they exceed the height limit of 6 feet, 6 inches.

Baylor, 6-5 and weighing 230, is generally recognized as one of the greatest all-around players in the history of professional basketball. A product of Seattle University, he was an instant success in the tough NBA. He holds the league record of 71 points in a single game and is an outstanding rebounder and playmaker.

Furman Hopes For 5th Non-Conference Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Furman didn't win the Southern Conference football championship, as many had thought possible before the season began, but the Paladins are doing better than any league team against outside opposition.

Going into tonight's game against East Carolina, in which they're favored, the Paladins have taken on four non-league opponents and whipped them all. The most impressive of these victories came last week in a 7-6 decision over tough Memphis State.

The Paladins were fortunate to catch Memphis State with its star quarterback, James Earl Wright, sidelined for the season by an injury, but Memphis State is no slouch even without Wright.

Furman's tilt with East Carolina is one of two non-conference scraps on tap tonight. League champion The Citadel goes to Florida State, and the Seminoles will provide a tough hurdle for the Bulldogs' six-game winning streak compiled since they lost their first two games.

At that, Furman and The Citadel — plus dethroned champion VMI, Davidson and West Virginia — have the best chance to get the conference over the 500 mark against outside foes. Going into an eight-game card against non-conference opponents today and tonight, league clubs are 12-13.

VMI is at Buffalo, Davidson plays host to Wofford and West Virginia entertains tough Penn State in three afternoon encounters.

Three others find conference teams on the short end of the odds — particularly Richmond, which takes on No. 2 ranked Alabama, and William and Mary, which is at Army. Virginia Tech is at Wake Forest.

George Washington has the weekend off.

Nearly everyone in town reads a daily newspaper. Among the heaviest readers, according to a survey by the Psychological Corporation, are upper social-economic urban families. Another study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture found middle and high income groups were heavier newspaper readers than low income groups. This survey showed 73% of the low income group said they had read the newspaper, while the score increased to 88% for middle income groups and 95% for high income groups. No matter what service or product you sell, no matter what income group you want to reach, you reach more people through the daily newspaper.

Marilyn Maxwell Walks Out On 'Bus Stop' Series

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I just turned in my apron and took the next bus out of town." That was Marilyn Maxwell's comment about her departure from "Bus Stop."

It is not often that a star leaves a good-paying TV series. Pretty darned seldom, in fact. But Marilyn took a walk (or bus ride) after the first 13 weeks of the ABC hour for a simple reason: "There was nothing for me to do but pour a second cup of coffee and point the way to the men's room."

Marilyn signed up to play the proprietor of Grace's Diner in the TV version of the Marilyn Monroe movie.

"I thought the idea was to play the diner, so I went around the diner, so I would have things to do," said Miss Maxwell. "But it got to be too limiting to have the characters in the drama arrive on the bus every time."

"So the studio built a town around the bus stop and the stories began to get involved with the happenings in the town. That left Grace out in the cold. So I told them I wanted to leave."

She did. She wasn't idle long. Warners sent her to play a movie queen in a "77 Sunset Strip." Red Skelton summoned her for a show this month. And Ruth Gordon Kanin talked about a TV series she is creating.

Survival Lessons For State And Local Govm'ts

By STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Survival lessons for state and local governments—thousands of which might be isolated from federal help after a nuclear attack—have been launched by White House emergency planners.

Standby skeleton governments are to be formed in cities, counties and states to deal with post-attack wage and price control, rationing, housing and health and economic problems.

Planning conferences will be held in coming months in every state, a spokesman for the Office of Emergency Planning said. They will be modeled after a recent post-attack survival meeting attended by 200 local and state officials and civic leaders in Las Vegas, Nev.

"No matter how many negotiations are dumped on the United States, the country's surviving resources will be more than adequate for the surviving population," the spokesman said.

He added: "The gravest post-attack problem could be a lapse of local civil authority when communities find themselves cut off from state and federal direction, unless they are able to do the things the state and federal governments do. If they should lapse, there would be martial law—which we are determined to avoid if possible."

At the planning sessions the governors, mayors, county boards and businessmen will be brought face to face for the first time with the post-attack problems of survival and recovery, the spokesman said.

The planning should contemplate local self-reliance for up to 90 days after an attack, federal officials say. In that period local authorities and volunteers will have to deal with decontamination, distribution of drugs and medical services, controls over rents, prices and wages, rationing of food, fuel and clothing, the restoration of credit and the provision of cash.

Federal planning for "continuity of government" is well advanced. Provision has been made for emergency successors to every high official from the President down. All agencies have given on-the-spot training to key personnel in permanent, well-protected relocation centers in several states.

Efforts to induce state governments to take similar steps are beginning to bear fruit. The first hurdle, in many states, is to remove obstacles from state constitutions which, for instance, forbid the removal of the seat of government from the established capital.

But by now, authorities report, 45 states have enacted some of the legislation needed to provide for continuity of government. Twenty have amended their constitutions. 29 have designated emergency successors to the governor. 18 have provided for continuity of state legislatures, and 26 now permit relocation of the state government to non-target areas.

Second Autopsy On Child's Body

MOORESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A second autopsy was performed Friday on the body of a 3-year-old boy whose parents are being held on a murder charge.

Results of the second autopsy won't be known for a week, Dr. Lewis B. MacBrayer of Mooresville, who conducted a previous autopsy, said the boy, Thomas Langlois, apparently died of a ruptured intestine caused by a blow.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Langlois, are being held under $10,000 bond each.

The parents have denied mistreating the child. They said he was subject to falls. They have two other children, 4 and 2, are in good health and being cared for by county authorities.

New Laboratory Is Dedicated At Triangle Park

DURHAM (AP) — A new research laboratory was dedicated in Research Triangle Park Friday, and a leading British scientist said it will be watched with interest throughout the world.

Sir Harry Melville, secretary of the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research of the United Kingdom, told 200 industrialists from throughout the nation, "The Camille Dreyfus Laboratory will be a scientific experiment that the world over will watch with interest."

He spoke at a dinner Friday night following dedication of the $600,000 facility. The new laboratory will be used to advance research in polymer chemistry, the science that spawned the plastics and synthetic fibers industries.

The facility is named for Camille Dreyfus, who with his brother, Henry, founded Celanese Corp. of America.

Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges spoke at the dedication of the laboratory. It was Hodges who, as governor of North Carolina, led in development of the Research Triangle.

Bethel Rotarians Mear Minister

BETHEL — The Rev. T. N. Cooper of Bethel Baptist Church, speaking to members of the Bethel Rotary Club on "Making Bad Days into Good Days," said that "Living is a community project."

He stated that the world can be made into a better place if people keep heads cool, hearts warm and try to help other people in every way. He pointed out that if one could keep on the good side until about 10 o'clock in the day, the day would be probably saved and what appeared a bad day could be made into a good day.

"It is the set of the sail that determines the direction of the ship," the Rev. Cooper said, as he called attention to Psalms 118 and 139. He quoted the Psalmist: "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it."

Man should remember that there is a power greater and a mind more masterful than his own, he said.

Rotarian J. L. Gurganus, program chairman, introduced the speaker. Vice President Walter Gray presided at the meeting, and Ronald Riddick gave the invocation.

Y. Z. Foss reported briefly on a movement underway for a swimming pool in Bethel. Harold Staton expressed appreciation to the Rotary Club for support in the program and dedication of McWhorter Park recently.

Draws Prison In Paintings Theft

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A real estate salesman was sentenced Friday to from 2 to 10 years in prison on his plea of guilty to stealing $670,000 worth of paintings from a Bel-Air mansion.

The say the salesman, Edward Ashdown, 39, Costa Mesa, Calif., forced his way into industrialist David E. Bright's home with a gun Sept. 10, locked a maid in a closet and took four modern masterpieces—two by Picasso.

After his arrest Ashdown said he had staged the theft to "make a big splash" in the newspapers. The paintings were returned.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The explosion of an Atlas missile that killed a small monkey will not delay an attempt to launch a chimpanzee into orbit next week, officials report.

The Atlas exploded in flight Friday and a 1 1/2-pound squirrel monkey named Goliath died in the fiery blast. Scientists had hoped to earn his reaction to stresses of space travel during the intended 650-mile high 5,000-mile down range flight.

Goliath is the 29th known rocket-borne animal, Russian and American, to die in man's effort to learn how he might be affected by journeys into space. Several other animal deaths undoubtedly have occurred but have not been made public.

Careful analysis of data radioed from the missile showed the trouble should not be experienced on another Atlas scheduled to lift the chimpanzee into orbit on the last scheduled Project Mercury launching before an American astronaut is whirled into orbit.

The missile, the 10th Atlas launched, was an advanced E model. This is a more powerful and vastly different rocket than the more thoroughly tested and reliable Atlas D used in the Mercury program.

The D and E Atlases have many similar characteristics. If a part or system common to both missiles had been at fault Friday, the chimpanzee shot probably would have been held up until the trouble was corrected.

A delay of more than a week in the chimp orbit attempt—which will be a three-times-around-the-world effort—probably would make orbiting an American this year impossible. This is the goal of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The launch Friday was not connected with Project Mercury. The Air Force made no official announcement on what went wrong. But reliable sources reported the main sustainer engine shut down inexplicably 15 seconds after launching. The two booster engines were unable to hold the course and the range safety officer destroyed the big missile after 30 seconds of flight.

Bethel Rotarians Mear Minister

BETHEL — The Rev. T. N. Cooper of Bethel Baptist Church, speaking to members of the Bethel Rotary Club on "Making Bad Days into Good Days," said that "Living is a community project."

He stated that the world can be made into a better place if people keep heads cool, hearts warm and try to help other people in every way. He pointed out that if one could keep on the good side until about 10 o'clock in the day, the day would be probably saved and what appeared a bad day could be made into a good day.

"It is the set of the sail that determines the direction of the ship," the Rev. Cooper said, as he called attention to Psalms 118 and 139. He quoted the Psalmist: "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it."

Man should remember that there is a power greater and a mind more masterful than his own, he said.

Rotarian J. L. Gurganus, program chairman, introduced the speaker. Vice President Walter Gray presided at the meeting, and Ronald Riddick gave the invocation.

Y. Z. Foss reported briefly on a movement underway for a swimming pool in Bethel. Harold Staton expressed appreciation to the Rotary Club for support in the program and dedication of McWhorter Park recently.

Three Are Named To Dean's List

DURHAM — Three Duke University students from Greenville were named to the Dean's List this fall on the basis of high academic standing for the spring semester, 1961.

The Greenville students are Margaret Ann Harrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Harrell; Godfrey P. Oakley Jr., son of Mrs. W. H. Oakley; and Charles Van Taft, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Taft.

An overall academic average of 3.0 of a possible 4.0 for the semester is required in order to receive this recognition.

Dr. J. W. Batten of East Carolina College spoke on space science for parents at the Elmhurst Parent-Teacher Association meeting Thursday in the school auditorium.

During the evening, the P.T.A. presented memorial gifts of books to the school library in memory of Mrs. Hal Waddell and Mrs. Harold R. Hoke.

Dr. Batten was introduced by program chairman Arthur Alford. He urged parents to develop an inquisitive attitude in their children, and noted that motivation is necessary in helping a child understand and enjoy the science of space.

Dr. Batten participated in the training program for the United States' astronauts as an instructor.

Mrs. William S. Corbit presided over a brief business session, during which time committee reports were given.

Pitt Men Helped Make Proud N.C. Boast Possible

By JOHN DUNCAN

It has been and still is the proud boast of North Carolinians that they were first at Bethel, farthest at Gettysburg, and last at Appomattox.

Henry Lawson Wyatt was born in Richmond in 1842. While a small boy, he and his parents, Isham and Lucinda Wyatt, moved to Pitt County.

First At Bethel On June 6, 1861, Magruder learned that the Federals intended to move from Hampton Inland. He ordered the First Carolina Regiment under Colonel D. H. Hill to move to Big Yankees.

GEN. J. BRYAN GRIMES

The young parade ground soldiers, dazzled by their new uniforms, the martial music and rousing speeches of the politicians, moved up with anticipation.

When ordered to dig and throw up breastworks, they went about it with zest. They did this work on June 7, 8 and 9th. By Monday morning, June 10th, the works were completed and occupied.

Company A under Capt. J.L. Bridges was deployed as skirmishers. Federal sharpshooters were using a house between the lines as a shelter. Bridges asked for volunteers to move out and destroy the house.

The 55th In the early part of 1862, the 55th North Carolina Regiment was organized at Camp Mangum near Raleigh. Company E was composed mostly of Pitt County men.

Gettysburg On the night of June 29th, 1862, Davis' Brigade reached Cashtown, Maryland. Early on July 1st, it moved out down the Chamberburg Turnpike toward Gettysburg.

Appomattox The lean footsore Confederate infantrymen was just before climbing his last fence, jumping his last ditch, eating his last ear of unripe corn, and munching his last green apple.

all, they would remember Ziegler's Grove and the Benner barn. For here they would write history with the bloody ink of war.

Friday, July 3, 1863 Although the 55th had suffered greatly in action on July 1st, it was still a force to be reckoned with.

Appomattox The lean footsore Confederate infantrymen was just before climbing his last fence, jumping his last ditch, eating his last ear of unripe corn, and munching his last green apple.

'Survival Class' First, Then Viet Nam

By MARTI MARTIN

"I really had a close call one night," said Nancy E. Freiberg, a member of the jungle camp in Mexico for student linguistic translators of the Wycliffe Bible Incorporated.

Nancy Freiberg is a native of Buffalo, N. Y., and has been spending a few days this week with two of her former professors, Dr. Clifton Nixon and Dr. Ruth Nixon, faculty members of East Carolina College. She is expecting to leave for Viet Nam sometime in January 1962 to establish a written language for some of the villages in that country which have never seen their language written.

"The jungle camp," explained Miss Freiberg, "is a three month program for the linguistic translation students. About forty-six campers were there this past January and we sent through a rugged training program which included a 20 mile hike and a survival trip.

"During the first six weeks the campers receive instruction on various languages and cultures at the main base of the camp. Instruction and classes are also given on mechanics, carpentry, dentistry, first aid, tropical diseases and a number of other topics that might prove beneficial in working in primitive areas.

"In these classes we learn such things as how to build furniture and houses without nails, repair carburetors and pull teeth. Canoeing and swimming are essential," she said, "because in many areas the only means we will have for transportation to any great extent will be by canoe. "All fresh vegetables secured from the market while at the main base had to be scalded before eating because of the variety of tropical diseases in that area. Water always had to be boiled before drinking.

"Our twenty mile hike led us to the camp of the Lacandon, the most primitive Indian tribe in Central America. The Lacandon, men have long hair and wear tunic type dress. The Lacandon worship pots and call them "god pots". If the "god pots" do not work, that is comply to the request of the worshiper, the Lacandon put the pot on a shelf outside the hut.

"The Lacandon are generally afraid of outsiders and are a small group which are dying out because of disease and their objection to mixing and mingling with other tribes.

"On our survival hike we ate roasted armadillo, which tastes very similar to pork. The armadillo is a burrowing, chiefly nocturnal, edentate mammal of South and Tropical America, having the body encased in an armor of small bony plates.

"When the hike was over, all of us were covered at least knee deep with mud because of the wet and muddy trails we had to use. The ruggedness of the trip was tiresome, but at least we had the scenic view of the beautiful mountains and valleys in the area of Chiapas, southernmost state of Mexico where the jungle camp was located.

"On the survival trip we are sent out separately without any food or provisions and were to set up shelter, secure food and build a fire. It was while I was on the survival trip that I ran into the poisonous potato."

Miss Freiberg will have a partner for the Viet Nam assignment: Janice Saul, 30, from Schuylkill Haven, Penn. She met Miss Saul while she was at Jungle Camp this past summer. There are usually two persons assigned per language, who work for three five-year periods with a year's break between each period.

Miss Freiberg, 24, first met Mr. and Mrs. Nixon at Bryan College at Dayton, Tenn., where she was a student in 1955. She transferred to East Tennessee State College in Johnson City, Tenn., and received a B. S. degree, majoring in English and minoring in psychology.

After graduation in 1960, she went to the University of Oklahoma to attend the Summer Institute of Linguistics, which is part of the linguistic training given by the Wycliffe Bible

Brothers Play 3 Court Roles

By JOE MCKNIGHT

DECATUR, Ala. (AP)—Three brothers—all lawyers—form a trinity of justice in this North Alabama city.

The eldest, Newton B. Powell, at 50, is a judge in the 8th Judicial Circuit of Alabama.

Next is 46-year-old Sherman B. Powell, who has stuck to a private law practice. He handles both civil and criminal cases.

Third is Miles T. Powell, 34, solicitor (prosecutor) for Morgan County.

Their father, J. N. Powell, was an attorney and often discussed law with his sons while they were growing up. All three attended the University of Alabama law school.

A state law provides that a solicitor may not have a partner who defends in the court in which the solicitor prosecutes. So the Powells maintain separate offices.

When two or all three of the brothers appear in court at the same time their conduct is extremely formal.

"We try to keep our relationship on such a level as to avoid criticism," says Judge Powell.

J. N. Powell Jr., 27, a fourth brother, is following tradition. He's winding up his studies at the University of Alabama law school. And he plans to practice in Decatur.

Garden Seed Are Gifts Of A Seafaring Man

HONOLULU (AP) — Aloysius Eugene Francis Patrick Mozier is a modern-day Johnny Appleseed.

Mozier, engineering officer aboard a Matson Navigation Co. freighter, has for 10 years been busy delivering millions of vegetable seeds to hungry people in Indonesia, the Philippines, India, Italy, Thailand, China, Japan, Korea, Israel, Pakistan and Egypt.

The project started when Mozier was struck with the hunger of children in Korea. He noticed that soil in the area was fertile but fresh vegetables were unknown.

Returning home, he withdrew his $1,500 savings, bought vegetable seeds and went into distribution.

Patty Gardenseed, as Mozier calls himself, always wears the garb of a western television hero so he will be "mistakenly American" and he always delivers the seeds personally, giving them to missions, schools and orphanages.

Now Mozier has undertaken a new project. When his ship is in a U. S. port, he makes the rounds of service clubs, speaking and soliciting money to build homes for boys in Okinawa and the Philippines.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

Several weeks ago there were some remarks here about the Establishment in America and Britain—that respectable, safe fellowship that manages things that are important, no matter who is ostensibly in power in the state.

At the moment, Washington is interested in the arrival of a new ambassador from England, the Right Honorable William D. Ormsby-Gore. It is not so much that Ormsby-Gore is a shiny mint piece from the British Establishment, but that he is closely related to the Duke of Devonshire, who is also a relative of Prime Minister Macmillan of Great Britain.

In The Family This would not be remarkable either, except for the fact that President Kennedy is related, after a fashion, to the Duke too, since one of his sisters married the present Duke's brother, who was killed in the war.

This makes the Ambassador and the President nearly cousins, a fact unprecedented in the diplomatic history of the two nations, it seems. Kennedy is thus practically a member of the British Establishment, no matter how beclouded his status in the American Establishment may be.

The Big Winner The real winner, however, seems to be the Duke of Devonshire, who is sitting pretty as the head of a family which, as Northcote Parkinson pointed out in the Times not long ago, is unique "in having secured for its relatives, and simultaneously, the Presidency of the United States and the Premiership of Great Britain."

Mr. Ormsby-Gore should not have any more trouble getting access to the White House than the Duke will have in marrying off his remaining single relatives, if there are any.

My Life The satire to put the quietest on silly ghost-written autobiographies of brainless movie stars has at last appeared. Called "Little Me: The Intimate Memoirs of Belle Poitrine," it is by Patrick Dennis. Not only does it contain all the cliches but a great many "illustrations" showing La Poitrine negotiating the rocky road up from the slums to stardom, and worse, over the mangled bodies of husbands (including, of course, a British peer) and children. This book is lively enough to have already been purchased for a Broadway musical.

The Poetic Dag On a more serious note, there is an appealing article in the current Atlas which brings out a little-known facet of the personality of Dag Hammarskjold. It was he who translated the poetry of St. John Perse into Swedish for the Swedish Academy, thus opening the way for Perse to win the Nobel Prize in 1950.

In justification of his interest in poetry, Hammarskjold had this to say: "The diplomat, like the poet, deals with words, transposes words, uses them as a key that is not necessarily a master key."

Fast Urban Renewal? In New York, Jane Jacobs, author of the recent "Death and Life of Great American Cities," has led a successful campaign of protest against the demolition of part of Greenwich Village to make room for a big urban renewal project.

Miss Jacobs was acting on the principle set forth in her book that nowadays bulldozers give us itchy fingers so that city planners are prone to demolish indiscriminately and too quickly. This could be a valid criticism, though hardly in Greenville.

Home Again Via McGuffey The other week the government bulletin "Infant Care" was suggested as one of the greatest bestsellers of all times. Now "McGuffey's Reader" enters the list, since 122 million copies of it were sold between 1837 and 1920. More remarkable, it is still going at the rate of 30 thousand a year, mostly to clubs, libraries, and sentimental individuals, though some schools have gone back to it in a vain effort, in our view, to recapture the educational magic of the nineteenth century.

The Best Medicine Laughter is The Best Medicine. The magazine Mad has come out with a take-off on the Reader's Digest. Featured in the table of contents of the "Reader's Digest" are such articles as "What to Do When the 20th Century Comes," by Barry Goldwater; "A Promising Rein-edy for Old Age Youth," and "How I Licked those Nagging Headaches," by Marie Antoinette.

Despite Statistics, Dr. Best Declines Take Credit

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

A Negro physician here has originated, developed, financed, promoted and engineered a program in Eastern North Carolina that is credited with effecting a reduction in illegitimate childbirth among Negroes.

Dr. Andrew A. Best, 44-year-old Kinston native who settled here in 1953, is aware of the statistical decline of the illegitimacy rate in Pitt County; however, he modestly declines to credit his brain-child with the social improvement.

"Perhaps what we have done has helped bring this about," he says, "but we base our feelings that our program is a good one on the fact that it has grown and is growing."

And growth of the plan, as the doctor claims, is a fact. By next June, it is well within reason to expect, Dr. Best's sex education courses will have been taught to at least 2,000 seniors graduating from Negro high schools in 25 to 30 Eastern counties. The program was initiated in Greenville and Pitt County Negro schools in 1957.

What began as a small-scale operation in only one school five years ago is now a much wider-reaching program sponsored by the North Carolina Joint Council on Health and Citizenship. The Greenville doctor is the organization's president.

Gov. Sanford is to address the first anniversary meeting of the council in Greenville Nov. 12. Dr. Best hopes the governor's appearance "will show our people that the highest official in the state is interested in their welfare."

What Dr. Best considers the acid test for the plan has been met and hurdled with ease. "In some cases we've had difficulty getting into the schools," he confides. "Once started, we've never been asked out. We've always grown wherever we've been able to plant ourselves."

A general practitioner who maintains his practice in a quiet, modest frame building on an unimproved Greenville street, Dr. Best constructed his educational venture around a framework of basic philosophy.

At an early age, Dr. Best recalls, he recorded indelible mental notes of three obvious "don'ts" among Eastern Carolina Negroes. Generalizing his impression, he came up with: "We don't know, we don't care, we don't have."

Upon his graduation at Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn., in 1947, he realized the first of the three "don'ts":

would necessarily present the first obstacle to raising the standard of life for the Negro.

"If we can correct the 'Don't know' don't, the remaining two will take care of themselves," the doctor believes. "To know is to be able to do" is a pet Dr. Best philosophy.

Now in its fifth year, the educational program is enjoying a growth cycle that has been geometric each year.

With the benefit of four full years of the sex education plan, Pitt County has, in fact, recorded a reduction in the illegitimate birth rate among Negroes.

State Board of Health statistics show 385 illegitimate Negro babies joined Pitt's population during 1956. For 1957, the department counted 305. The following year the total rose again to 291 before a drop to 271 during 1959 and 245 in 1960.

A count through Oct. 24 showed 233 Negro births out of wedlock for 1961. Projecting that total through November and December based on monthly averages, county health officials predict a 1961 total of 272.

"Even a constant annual figure would represent a reduction because of the population increase," theorizes Dr. John M. Futrell, Pitt County's health director. The county's population grew from the 1950 census count of 63,789 to the official population of 69,942.

The health director relays an observation by his Negro public health nurses: "They tell me that the impact of this thing (Dr. Best's program) may show up better after a few more years. They say the main area of improvement has been the large reduction in the number of high school girls who drop out of school because of pregnancy."

At least state-wide effects from the program are envisioned by Dr. Best. Last summer he found time to pass the outlines of his course along to high school teachers in summer school sessions at North Carolina A & T College in Greensboro and at Fayetteville State Teachers College in Fayetteville. He feels those teachers, teachers from all parts of the state have carried interest in the Council's social improvement program home with them.

Financing the operation of the Council now, however, presents a problem. At the outset, Dr. Best carried the burden. As it spread outside Pitt County, other members of the medical profession pitched in.

With the weekly classroom sessions now operating in nearly 30 counties, the need for full-time administration of the council's program is great.

Currently Dr. Best is heading a sale of low-cost Council memberships to raise revenue. Plans include immediate application for grants from philanthropic organizations.

The council, with headquarters in Greenville, recently received its charter from Secretary of State Thad Eure as a non-profit corporation. It has adopted and recorded a seal as its official emblem.

While the emphasis on sex education has shown, through statistics, that it is meeting a need among Eastern North Carolina Negroes, it is not the only phase of the program.

At the outset Dr. Best made it clear that his was a three-pronged plan of attack: To reduce illegitimate births among Negroes, to curb juvenile delinquency and to seek cures for generally maladjusted individuals (primarily aimed at school-age Negroes who were victims of illegitimate births).

He envisions reasonable controls on the three primary targets of the council within 20 years. "After we get these under control, there are many more that we can go to work on."

Police List 234 Arrests During Month Of October

According to the monthly report of activities of the Greenville Police Department for October, 241 cases were known to Police, while a total of 452 complaints were recorded.

Police Chief Guy C. Langston, in his report of the department's activities during October, said that 234 arrests were made by the local department, while 11 arrests were recorded for other authorities.

Departmental vehicles traveled 22,352 miles on regular patrol duties, the report showed.

Included in the arrests were 127 white males, 88 Negro males, 21 white females and six Negro females.

Cases reported to the department included 36 for drunkenness and 127 for violations of motor vehicle and driving laws.

An analysis of the traffic charges shows 31 charged with speeding, 16 for having improper registration or license, 12 for non-observance of traffic lights or signals and 15 for improper equipment.

Property damage caused by motor vehicle accidents during the 31 day period totaled $12,360, while 13 persons were reported injured.

Twenty-one of the 42 accidents investigated occurred at intersections while the remaining 21 were non-intersection mishaps. Traffic control lights at 13 of the intersections were present in 13 of the mishaps while no control was present in 23 of the collisions.

Worst days for driving in Greenville during October appeared to be Saturdays, which saw 13 of the 42 mishaps, while the safest days were Fridays, which recorded only one mishap.

Nineteen collisions were investigated between the hours of 12 noon and 8 p.m., making that eight-hour period the most hazardous. Safest for driving was the period between 12 midnight and 8 a.m. which saw only four wrecks during the month.

Clean Getaway By Trio In $62,693 Bank Theft

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Police concede that three gunmen who robbed the world's largest privately owned bank of $62,693 Friday made a clean getaway.

Efforts to identify the bandits, who also kidnaped two Bank of America officials and their families, were fruitless. Police studied rogues' gallery photographs and sketches by the victims to no avail.

The three, one disguised as a red-haired woman, cleaned out the Union and Webster branch of the Bank of America.

At 7 p.m. Thursday the trio began the robbery by going to the Larkspur home of the branch manager, Joseph Pinocchio, 55, 15 miles north of San Francisco's Golden Gate.

"Move in," the "woman" snapped when Pinocchio opened the door.

One gunman stayed with Pinocchio's wife and daughter. The other two forced Pinocchio to drive them in his car to Millbrae, 15 miles south of San Francisco, to the home of Henry Lupori, 53, assistant manager of the branch.

"They made me go to the door and tell Mr. Lupori I had to discuss some bank matters with him," Pinocchio said later. "When he let me in, they came in too."

One gunman then forced Lupori and his son into the Lupori car. The other gunman took Lupori's wife and other son in Pinocchio's car.

When all were back at the Pinocchio home, the gunmen made coffee and served it to everybody.

"They were very nice young men," Lupori said later. "Actually, you could have taken them for good-looking college graduates."

During the night two of the gunmen dozed while the third took his turn standing guard. Of the hostages, "everyone but me catnapped during the long hours," Pinocchio said.

After dawn the gunmen began tying all their victims except Lupori with drapery cords.

Two gunmen forced him into Pinocchio's car and they drove to the bank, arriving at 7 a.m.

Lupori was forced to open the bank and the vault. Two tellers, Susan Romweber and Carol Hickentham, were forced to help scoop up the cash.

Twice during the robbery one of the men called back to the Pinocchio home to find out if all was well.

Before fleeing the bank the gunmen tied the tellers and Lupori with adhesive tape.

The previous high loot in San Francisco's history of bank robberies was on Dec. 9, 1954, when robbers using walkie-talkies took $29,000 from the Geary-Arguello branch of Bank of America.

Police have two reasons for thinking one of Friday's bandits was a man disguised as a woman.

"The one that was dressed like a lady had pedal pushers and a green sweater," said Bobby Lupori, 13. "She had hair on her chest and a tattoo on her arm and she was no lady."

Bobby's mother said, "She looked very nice as a woman in those capri pants and Eisenhower jacket. But she sat down like a man."

Stalingrad Has Name Changed

LONDON (AP)—Remember the battle of Volograd?

Clue: It was a turning point in German-Russian phase of World War II.

Volograd is on the Volga. In czarist times it was called Tsaritsyn. Still draw a blank?

Well, then, maybe the name Stalingrad will help.

The Russians, rewriting history, substituted the name Volograd for Stalingrad Friday to go along with the downgrading of Joseph Stalin.

A leading European Communist, Palmiro Togliatti of Italy, has questioned the wisdom of Moscow's nomenclature de-Stalinization.

He told the Italian Communist hierarchy:

"I personally remain perplexed by the decision to change the name of the city of Stalingrad, and not for any regard for Stalin, but because with this name millions of men identify the famous battle which changed the course of World War II."

Stalingrad became the third Soviet city to be stripped of its connection with the late dictator. Stalinsk in western Siberia has been renamed Novokuznetsk and the Ukrainian city of Stalino now is Donetsk.

Volograd—the new name—is obviously for the Volga River. The city sprawls across both banks of the Volga. It has a population of about 300,000.

Soviet troops at Stalingrad—pardon, Volograd—in 1943 turned back a long, relentless offensive commanded by German Field Marshal Paulus. The name Stalingrad goes back to the early days of the Bolshevik Revolution. Stalin held the city against the counterrevolutionary White Army, and it was renamed in his honor.

Max Gardner Jr. Dies In Night

SHELBY, NNC. (AP)—O. Max Gardner Jr., who had waged a courageous and determined fight against multiple sclerosis since being stricken 11 years ago, died Friday night.

Gardner, 39, son of the late governor and U. S. senator, was stricken in 1950. He was running for the State Senate from Cleveland County at the time. He later withdrew.

In 1953, he lost the ability to speak. Despite being almost totally paralyzed and unable to talk, he took an active part in civic affairs, served at one time as trustee and treasurer of Gardner-Webb College, and was active in affairs of First Baptist Church.

He died in Cleveland Memorial Hospital here, where he had been a patient since Wednesday. Death was attributed to complications of the disease.

His friends—and they were numbered in the thousands—said he never gave up hope that some day someone would find a cure for multiple sclerosis. All who went to his bedside marveled at his ready sense of humor and the determination with which he fought his battle.

A pastor once said after a visit to the Gardner home, "I went to minister, and I was ministered to."

Last May, he was named "Father of the Year" in Shelby. He was the father of two sons, O. Max III, 16, and John Mull Gardner, 12.

Surviving, in addition to the widow and two sons, is his mother, Mrs. Gardner.

Funeral rites are to be conducted at First Baptist Church, probably Sunday.

Gardner—his friends called him Max Junior—went to Albany, N.Y., after being stricken in 1950 for consultations with Dr. Ashton Graves, a famous neurologist.

"Since 1950, we have worked together, with me as the guinea pig," Gardner wrote in a manuscript called "MS, My Story."

In his story, he told of the lonely hours when he had only to think—"During those moments, the reality of God has been ever present and most comforting. That reassurance, and the ability to laugh at myself, have kept me going."

He prepared "MS, My Story," through use of a speed-reading system he developed three years ago with the aid of secretaries, Mrs. Jean Phillips and Mrs. Kathleen Hunt. The system enabled him to express himself with the use of blocks.

Gardner was graduated from N. C. State College, where he was president of the student body and from the University of North Carolina School of Law.

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

Conservation Notes

John King, district cooperater in Farmville—Seven Pines community, is revising his basic soil and water conservation plan to include 45 acres of fescue and small grain in his tobacco rotation.

He has 45 acres now for tobacco in 1963. He is also planning to install three grassed waterways this fall, and next year begin to construct terraces.

King is doing this to keep Norfolk sandy loam soil from washing away.

L. R. Jones, of the Langs Cross Roads community showed Soil Conservation Service personnel the crop residue use he has been practicing for several years.

Jones used a bushhog to shred the residue from corn, yielding over 100 bushels per acre onto the soil surface. According to Jones, this residue gives total protection to the soil during four winter months.

Ted Maurer, Soil Conservation Service Agronomist for Southeastern United States, was pleased to see how some farmers cooperate.

Sherrill M. Bryant, farm representative for the trust department for Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, says a basic soil and water conservation farm plan is a big help to them in controlling soil loss on the farms they have in trust.

He states that it saves them time and money to have a well-balanced rotation plan worked out on each field. It also helps new tenants to know what fields are best suited to grow a particular crop, or the cropping history of that farm, he says.

Bryant further states that he would like to have with the District a basic soil and water plan developed on each one of their farms that they have in charge, as soon as assistance is available from the Soil Conservation Service.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

The indestructible relationship of God and man will be explained at Christian Science services Sunday in a Lesson-Sermon on the subject "Mortals and Immortals."

These words of Paul will be included in the readings from the Bible: "The spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God; And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together" (Rom. 8).

A correlative citation from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "It is only by acknowledging the supremacy of Spirit, which annuls the claims of mortality, that mortals can lay off mortality and find the indissoluble spiritual link which establishes man forever in the divine likeness, inseparable from his creator" (p. 491).

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON THE QUESTION OF THE ADOPTION OF AN ORDINANCE AMENDING THE ZONING ORDINANCE AND ZONE MAP OF THE CITY OF GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA.

Pursuant to the provisions of G. S. 160-175, public notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Greenville, North Carolina, will hold a public hearing in the Council Room of the Municipal Building in the City of Greenville, North Carolina, at 8 o'clock P.M. on Thursday, the 7th day of December, 1961, on the question of the adoption of an ordinance amending the Zoning Ordinance and Zone Map of the City so as to re-zone the area hereinafter described from "Residential District" to "Business District" property.

First Area: All the land located within the city extending from Pitt Street on the east to the A. C. L. Railroad right of way on the west, and from the north property line of West Fifth Street in a northerly direction for a distance equal to the depth of the lot having the greatest depth.

Second Area: All the land located within the city extending from Pitt Street on the east to the A. C. L. Railroad right of way on the west, and from the south property line of West Fifth Street

DR. ALLEN P. BRANTLEY, Executive Director of Christian Higher Education of the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church, will bring the message at St. James Methodist Church Sunday at 11:00 o'clock. His topic is "Builders for a Greater Tomorrow." The pastor, Rev. C. F. Hirsch, will preside over the service of worship.

Says 2nd-Hand Center 'Needed'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—What Oklahoma City could use, suggested a nationally known city planner Friday, is a downtown second-hand shopping center.

"You already have many second-hand stores in the downtown area," S. B. Zisman, San Antonio, a city planner, told members of the Downtown Association here, "and you could make them a virtue."

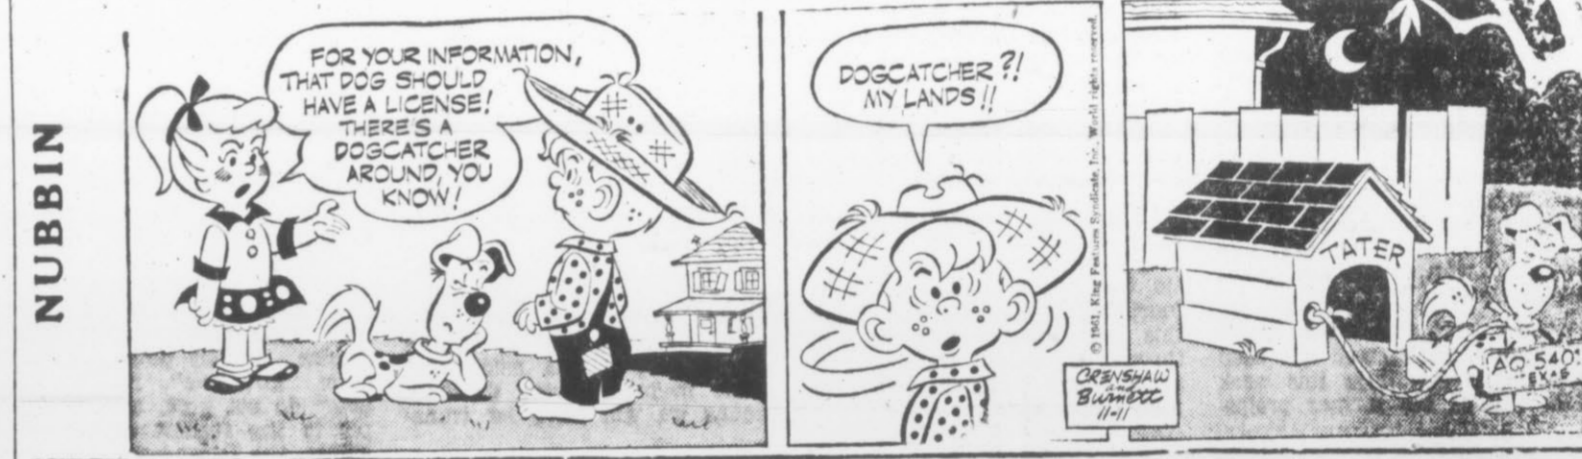

Zisman defended his unusual suggestion by saying second-hand stores need not be unkempt, but could be an attractive means of bringing people into the downtown area to shop.

Survival Caravan Is Starting Tour

BOSTON (AP)—A survival caravan, featuring a full-sized cutout of a fallout shelter mounted on a trailer started on a nationwide tour Friday.

The driver, Edwin P. Fifelek, of Chicago, national commander of the American Veterans of World War II and Korea, is scheduled to drive the display to 48 state capitols.

After a luncheon with Gov. John A. Volpe and a meeting with Mayor John Collins, Fifelek expressed scorn for the "defeatists and faint-hearted" who see something immoral in preparing to survive nuclear attack.

ABOUT THE PHANTOM AND QUEEN SAMARIS THE 12TH... PATIENCE. YOU WILL SEE.

AND STAY YOUNG AND BEAUTIFUL, GRANDPA?

HOW COULD A WOMAN LIVE 300 YEARS?

"WHERE THE JUNGLE ENDS, THE GREAT MOUNTAIN KINGS LIVED IN HUGE CASTLES--"

"IN THE GREATEST CASTLE, SUITORS FLOCKED TO WOO QUEEN SAMARIS-- SAID TO BE THE WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN-- THIS WAS 300 YEARS AGO--"

FIFTY SUITORS AWAIT YOUR PLEASURE, HIGHNESS.

SEND THEM AWAY. NO MAN IS WORTHY OF ME!

"YEARS PASSED-- SHE WAS STILL BEAUTIFUL-- BUT WRINKLES WERE STARTING TO COME-- AND AGE--"

IN THE LAND OF SAMARIS, 300 YEARS AGO, THERE WERE MANY POWERFUL WITCHES

AT THE QUEEN'S ORDERS ALL THE WITCHES WERE ROUNDED UP-- NO TRICKS, GRANDMA, OR OFF GOES YOUR HEAD!

UNHAND ME-- OR I'LL CAST A SPELL--

"THEY WERE LEFT ALONE WITH THE QUEEN--" MAKE ME YOUNG AND BEAUTIFUL-- OR YOU DIE!

Boy Carried Lit Dynamite Stick

PALSRMO, Sicily (AP)—Down the main street in nearby Bagheria Thursday came an 8-year-old boy nonchalantly holding a lighted stick of dynamite, its fuse sputtering. A policeman grabbed it away, removed the fuse and began a search. Twelve more sticks and a detonator were found behind a doorway. The police are trying to find out where it came from.

When Confederate soldiers sang their ironic song about "sober peas" they were singing about peanuts.

CHAPTER 13
While Inspector Mendes and Sergeant Roberto were talking in the cantina, a tourist in a wrinkled, gray suit wandered in from the street.
Somewhere along the line he had picked up a woman. She looked like a gypsy with long, dark hair that fell down her back, a gaudy hand-painted skirt, gold earrings and a skin that was deep olive.

was all at once, personally aware of the pressures that would result from the news break.
Unexpected compensations came with the evil wind of mischance. The premature announcement of the Randall murder that would complicate the inspector's job suddenly worked to make his personal relationships easier. It formed a bridge between him and the sergeant and it affected Theresa, too.

Considers Note With Reminder

Pitt County Health Director Dr. John Putrell said this week he is considering sending a note out with each birth certificate noting that it is state law that infants be immunized against certain diseases.
The state law provides that a child should be immunized against polio, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough before reaching the age of one year, and against small pox before attending any public, private or parochial school.

Tobacco Vote Is Slated Dec. 12

North Carolina tobacco farmers engaged in the 1961 referendum to decide whether to continue for three more years a self-assessment program for promotion of tobacco sales.

A. C. Edwards, board chairman of Tobacco Associates, Inc., has announced the referendum date. To be decided in the referendum is whether the program of assessing farmers up to but not exceeding $1 per acre will be continued during 1962, 1963 and 1964. A two-thirds majority will be necessary for approval of the program.

Edwards, in announcing the referendum's date, said growers engaged in the 1961 production of flue-cured tobacco — landlord, tenant or sharecropper — are eligible to vote. The voting will be conducted, he said, in every tobacco-producing county in the state at the regular community polling places observing the usual voting hours.

Administration of the program is handled by Tobacco Associates, a non-profit organization formed in 1947 with offices in Washington, D. C., Raleigh, Dillon, S. C., and Brussels, Belgium. Tobacco Associates is headed by J. B. Hutson, a former U. S. undersecretary of agriculture, and a 24-member board of directors with authority to set the annual rate of assessment for sales promotion not higher than $1 per acre.
