WRINKLES
 by Marie Davant

NEW YORK—Chemical science has found a white substance made with quicksilver that works wonders on wrinkled, roughened face and hands. Use it one time and it is entirely possible you will see improvement next morning. In a few days dry-skin wrinkles start to vanish. Many of the small ones around the eyes and mouth have already disappeared. But that is not all "Old-Age" (weathered) brown spots on hands and arms—brown "age" darkness on surface of face and neck fades away! Rich oils lubricate pores so blackheads can slip out without squeezing.

Surface pimples and blemishes and scars, outwardly caused, dry up or become less noticeable! But don't take my word for it. Make a 6-day test without risking one penny. Just get a jar of Peacock's Imperial Creme at your favorite department or drug store. Use this thrilling cream for 6 days—and if you are not delighted with results, full price will be refunded. No questions asked. Peacock's Imperial Creme can work wonders for wrinkles, lines, brown spots and other weathered blemishes. You may obtain Imperial Creme at Bisette's Drug Store. Clip this out.

Mrs. Dowd Is Club Hostess

Mrs. O. E. Dowd was gracious hostess to the Old Book Club at her home in Brookgreen Tuesday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. L. S. Ficklen, welcomed as guests Mrs. Jack Spain of Greenville and Washington, D. C., Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Thurston and Mrs. Starling of Wilson.

Mrs. Dowd introduced her husband, Mr. O. E. Dowd, principal of Rose High School, as guest speaker for the afternoon. Mr. Dowd took as his subject "The North Carolina Eye Bank." He told of his recent experience attending the Eye Bank Convention which was held at Winston-Salem. The project is worked in connection with Bowman Gray Hospital. Dr. Beverly Holt of Bowman Gray has been most instrumental in working with the corneal transplant. New use for the eye bank has been eye grafts which consists of patching injured eyes.

In telling of his experience at the convention he brought to the club the stories of several N. C. people whom he had seen at the convention who had had their sight restored.

Until 1945 there had been no hope for blindness, but now for some there is hope depending on the generosity of people willing their eyes to the N. C. Eye Bank. There is no charge for eyes from the bank but there are at present not near enough eyes for all the blind who could see.

Mrs. Dowd, assisted by Miss Hadley and Mrs. Starling, served a salad course with coffee.

Tobacco

Tips

By S. J. WELLEN
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

Experiments, demonstrations and farmers' experiences have shown that methyl bromide in liquid or vapor form effectively controls weeds, grasses, and nematodes in tobacco plant beds.

For best results the methyl bromide should be applied when the outside temperature is about 50 or 60 degrees F., or higher. The gas penetrates best if the soil is not wet. However, there should be sufficient moisture in the soil to soften the seed coat.

Much interest is being shown in the use of methyl bromide in the vapor form. There are some definite advantages in using vaporized methyl bromide (hot gas) over the cold liquid form that has generally been used over the last few years. Some of the advantages are:

(1) With the vaporized methyl bromide you can remove the plastic cover at the end of six hours, as compared with the usual 24 to 48 hours.

(2) It enables you to treat two beds in one day with the same cover.

(3) You can also treat more plant bed yardage in a short time while the air temperature and soil moisture are right.

The weather and soil conditions, rate of methyl bromide, method of setting up the plastic cover and other procedures are the same for vaporized treatment as for liquid treatment, except no pans are needed in the bed to catch the liquid.

Application

(1) Heat 10 to 15 gallons of water 180 degrees F. to boiling for use in vaporizing the methyl bromide. Put a bucket of hot water beside the plant bed.

(2) Fasten the applicator to can (holding the end to be punctured up) and puncture the can. While keeping can in upright position (punctured end up) put can in hot water. The hot water will vaporize the liquid and only the vapor or gas will be allowed to escape through applicator tube and under the cover. It takes about three to four minutes to vaporize a one pound can of methyl bromide.

(3) Apply three one pound cans at each of the three locations or a total of nine pounds per 100 square yards. One bucket of hot water should vaporize three cans before the water cools.

(Caution: Do not heat methyl before they are punctured because of the possibility of explosion.)

If your plant bed soil has enough moisture, now is a good time to treat your beds, while the weather is good.

Colleges Shortchanged, Asserts Univ. Prexy

By G. K. HODENFIELD

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—State colleges and universities, needing money as never before, are being shortchanged in the battle for tax dollars, President John A. Perkins of the University of Delaware said today.

Action in the last session of Congress was blocked, Perkins said, by "ecclesiastical politics and obsessive fear of federal control."

In a keynote address prepared for the centennial convocation of the American Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities, Perkins said the states are reluctant or unable to levy taxes for public colleges.

The association is observing, during the 1961-62 academic year, the signing of the Morrill Act by President Abraham Lincoln in 1862. That act, in effect, set aside federal funds for the establishment of at least one public college in every state. There are now 68 land grant colleges in the 50 states and Puerto Rico.

Perkins said the Morrill Act inaugurated "a dramatic revolution in higher education" and established federal revenues "solely for instruction without leading to federal controls."

President Kennedy struck the same note in a filmed message to the association Sunday night.

Land grant colleges, Kennedy said, "are one of the finest examples of our federal system, the fruitful cooperation between federal and state governments in the pursuit of a decent education for all our citizens."

"Founded at federal initiative, strongly supported by federal funds — funds which were specifically appropriated for instruction, rather than the construction of buildings and facilities — these institutions have built a proud tradition of independence and academic integrity untroubled by government interference of any kind," he said.

Perkins said that "because of the pinched tax and budget circumstances of the states, our financial prospects are not at all bright."

ONE-ROOM SCHOOLS

NASHVILLE (AP)—The traditional one-room school isn't completely removed from Tennessee. In 1960 there were 364 serving 7,280 students in the state, Tennessee education commissioner Joe Morgan says, however, this is only a fifth of the number which taught 21,980 students 10 years ago.

Squeakless Rocker Awaiting President

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—A squeakless rocking chair and a tradition-laden ceremony will welcome President Kennedy to Seattle Thursday.

Shortly before Kennedy addresses the academic centennial convocation of the University of Washington a century-old bell will toll 10 times, once for each decade of the school's history.

Thus will Washington, the oldest state-supported institution of higher learning on the Pacific Coast, observe its 100th anniversary. The White House has announced that Kennedy's speech will be devoted to foreign policy. About 11,000 persons, mostly faculty and students, are expected to jam Edmondson Athletic Pavilion for the convocation.

Thursday night, Kennedy will speak at a $100-a-plate dinner marking the 25th anniversary in Congress of Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash. Among the diners will be Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The event will kick off a campaign fund drive for Magnuson, who plans to seek a fourth term next year.

Magnuson isn't expected to have opposition in next September's Democratic primary. The only Republican who has expressed interest in opposing him in the election is the Rev. Richard G. Christensen of Edmonds, a Lutheran minister.

Kennedy will spend the night in the Olympic Hotel. When he gets there he'll find a squeakless rocker, carried from Spokane.

The President is due at Seattle's Boeing Field at noon and will be driven to the university in a motor caravan. If there is time, the caravan will detour by the 1962 World's Fair grounds.

The University of Washington closed its doors four times in its early years for lack of students or money or both. Now it has a daytime enrollment of 18,000. Another 10,500 take night and correspondence courses.

Far-Reaching Impact In Bonds Vote

Whatever the cause of the overwhelming defeat of North Carolina's $61.5 million bond issue last week, there can be no doubt that the outcome of the referendum will have considerable effect upon the state for the next several years.

Literally thousands of words already have been written speculating on the underlying reasons for defeat of the bond issues which most people expected to be approved.

Obviously the result of the vote was a severe setback for the Sanford administration and its program for a "New Day" in North Carolina. If the vote is regarded as a rejection of the program Gov. Sanford has proposed for the state, it cannot be separated from the popularity of Sanford as the state's chief executive. It will have a bearing on the future course of his administration, and perhaps on the political future of Sanford after he leaves the governor's mansion. And if it has a bearing on Sanford's political future, it will also affect the political future of those most closely associated with his administration.

The defeat of the bond proposals—which received almost unanimous endorsement by members of the 1961 General Assembly—will likewise have an impact upon both the attitude and perhaps the membership of the 1961 General Assembly.

If a cause of the bond issue's defeat was—as many have said—widespread resentment of the sales tax on food and medicine—movement for repeal of these measures may be major issues in the 1962 legislative campaigns and in the 1963 legislative session.

If defeat of the bond issue was caused by a widespread feeling that the state is spending too much money, there could be a powerful move for an austerity program in state government by 1963 with regard both to capital improvements and to recurring operational expenses. The impact could well go far beyond the question of capital improvements and reach over into all other areas of the state's fiscal policies.

There are some who say a major issue in defeat of the bond proposals was a matter of timing . . . they came too close on the heels of approval of a record budget for the state. If that is true, it might be expected that in another year or so—after a wait-and-see period for evaluating spending programs already in effect—the people of the state may have an attitude toward more capital improvements different from that exhibited in the referendum.

Although time alone will tell exactly what effect the referendum has upon the future of the state, it appears certain that the effect will be considerably more far-reaching than the items immediately involved in the bond issues.

Rose High Athletes Earn New High Honor

Rose High School's Phantoms are to be highly commended for winning the Northeastern Conference championship and bringing to the school's athletic program another high honor.

This is the first year that a Greenville High School football team has copped a conference championship, but throughout the season the football players under the direction of Coach Bud Phillips have played like champions. Their one loss to Tarboro during the regular season play threatened to knock them out of the conference title which most football fans throughout this area agreed Greenville should have this year. With determination the local players roared back from the defeat to win the remainder of the games and gain undisputed control of the title.

The Rose High Phantoms this year have their stars and outstanding players, but the building of a championship team is not accomplished with one outstanding player or a handful. Greenville's championship this year has in the truest sense been brought about by a team effort by all the members of the football squad.

Friday night in College Stadium here the Phantoms will test their football prowess against the Roxboro High School team which has won the 3-A championship in the District Three Conference. Certainly the local high school football team, which has had excellent support from townspeople throughout this season deserves the support of local citizens at the game Friday night.

It is our hope that Greenville citizens will fill College Stadium here Friday night as a tribute to the local high school players who have brought a football championship to Greenville.

Higher Profits Are Necessary

Not long ago this space was devoted to reporting the views from a dinner of private business economists upon the outlook. Also included were a few opinions of the Secretary of Commerce, who made projections for the remainder of the year. In both there was a brief reference to business profits.

Specifically, it was stated that "overall profits today are increasing but the total is still too low for the growing volume of business, and making a profit is getting more and more difficult. But to Secretary Hodges the profit picture is highly favorable" and he "predicts that by the end of the year we shall be at or above 50 billion, which would mean a new all-time high." Then we went ahead to say: "such a growth of profits would necessitate higher prices in many directions. . . Costs of production are continuing to rise in many instances and not too much more can be done in getting greater output per manhour. The inevitable choice, thus, becomes higher prices or lower and lower profits." Our conclusion was: "This is one of the reasons that there is growing fear of inflation."

We give these complete quotations because in the Oct. 20 issue of the Labor Herald there is an article by C. S. Bernstein under the heading, "Less Profits Will Prevent Inflation," which completely distorts what we said. According to Bernstein our point of view is "that business can take less and less profits and thus prevent inflation." He goes ahead to say that "this is strongly at variance with the daily cry of the NAM that in business, high wages, alone, bring inflation."

He concludes "It should be repeated, that in sequence, Robey finds profits are growing, which is inflationary; and that less profits will prevent inflation."

Such an interpretation is beyond comprehension. It reflects either complete ignorance of even elementary economics or an appalling prejudice. Corporate profits after taxes in 1960 were a little lower than they were in 1959. The actual figures were $22.7 billion in 1960 and $22.8 billion in 1959. During the same period gross national product, in 1960 prices, had increased from $362 billion to $504 billion. Profit per dollar of sales, therefore, was less in 1960 than it was in 1959, and this is the profit figure which is of most importance in thinking of inflation.

From official government statistics we know that corporate profits after taxes reached a recent low of $20 billion in the first quarter of this year and in the second three months advanced to $22.8 billion. And from reports in the newspapers it is evident that the total is still rising, but there are many companies doing less well profit-wise than they did in 1960.

It also is agreed that for the year as a whole the total will be above that of 1960, and that 1962 will be still better. This means nothing more than that the recovery will continue, and if it does there is no question that the aggregate of profits has to increase, or else the number of bankruptcies will grow by leaps and bounds. And to have an increase of profits it is absolutely necessary for many prices to rise.

In many instances, these price increases will be the direct result of wages rising by more than the increase in output per manhour. Such wage advances are not the only cause of inflation, and in recent years have been especially significant.

The nation as a whole would be much better off if business profits were substantially higher than they are, or have any real chance of being in the near future. Such profits would help provide the funds necessary to develop new products and to carry out the modernization of our plants which is necessary to pay existing wages and be able to compete with foreign producers. Higher profits, in other words, are of primary interest to wage earners, as well as to the owners of businesses.

Ees Fun to Flirt With Commies!

Kennedy Must Be Right

At the moment of writing, the Russians have detonated more than 30 major bombs, one of them the largest ever detonated by man, the more than 50 megaton bomb. The Russian series cannot be altogether without purpose although it was suspected for a time, that Khrushchev was using the bomb for terroristic propaganda. The series is too large and is over too long a period of time to be merely terroristic propaganda. There must be other purposes.

Other Editors Saying Research Funds Needed

through, clinicians may not be able to use 23 promising new drugs which have been tested in the lab stage at the National Institutes of Health. Rep. Fogarty, who opposes the cuts, although he is a Democrat and a Kennedy supporter, noted that Ribicoff, responding to economy pleas from President Kennedy is planning a $102 million cut in the Welfare Department budget.

Fogarty said $60 million of this would come out of health funds, including a $15 million cut in cancer research funds. Drugs alone have produced dramatic results in one type of rare deadly cancer. Because it is believed cancer is caused by virus, most specialists believe there will never be such a thing as a single cure-all for all cancer types. There may be many types of cancer.

For this reason, drug-cancer research may be virtually endless, though successful. And for this type of research lots of funds will be needed. When the research specialists are now on the verge of many new discoveries in the use of drugs in connection with treating cancer, it would be a pity if the work they are doing is suddenly suspended because of a lack of funds at a time when the government is spending billions on agricultural policy that is at best questionable.

Regional Differences In Drink

By ELMER ROESSNER A pre-Prohibition toast ran: "The Frenchman loves his native wine, the German loves his beer; the Englishman loves his 'ard-and-arf' - because it brings good cheer-The Irishman loves his whisky straight-because it gives him dizziness; the American has no choice at all-so he drinks the whole blamed bizzness."

That may still be true. But a compilation by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association shows that there are tremendous regional differences in what Americans drink.

The study covers the annual consumption by states and the District of Columbia by the population between 18 and 64. SWIGGING AMERICA The figures show Nevadans drink five times as much vodka as the national average; that Kentuckians buy almost seven times as much bonded whiskey as the average, and that Wisconsin adults drink ten times as much brandy as the average. In summary: Vodka: Nevada drinks 428.8 fifths of vodka per 100 population, compared with the national average of 83. The District of Columbia buys 243.3 fifths per 100; Alaska, 235.0; California, 198.4, and New Hampshire, 172.4. Pennsylvania, where vodka is often regarded as a communist potion, drinks only 31.2 fifths per 100. Right here let's note that Washington, D. C., is a victim of statistics. "Consumption" in this and other studies is measured only by retail sales. But many people who live elsewhere, and who are not counted in the capital's population, have drinks at lunches, dinners, cocktail parties and receptions. Furthermore, because the taxes in the capital are low, many people living outside buy in the district and take the stuff home. Straight: The District of Columbia leads in straight whiskeys, with 1,529.6 fifths per 100 persons. Nevada is second with 1,331.5 and all other states have less than half that. Maine is lowest with 58.9. The national average is 275.5 fifths per 100 people. THE STATE WITH BOURBON COUNTY Bonded whiskey: As might be expected, Kentucky leads with 311.7 fifths per 100 adults, compared with the national average of 46.4 fifths per 100. The District of Columbia is second with

Babson Doubts A-War

By ROGER BABSON BABSON PARK, Mass. — At the present time most Americans seem to believe that there will be a nuclear war and that Russian missiles may fall on some United States city and absolutely destroy it. To the contrary, I am for the first time sure there will be no such war. I suppose one reason why the people are now taking this so seriously is because their brothers and neighbors are being called into the service and are being transported to Berlin. Every magazine has pictures of our soldiers in Berlin. Naturally, those with relatives over there study these pictures. Well, here are two main reasons why we should not now expect such a World War III.

NEED OF ANTI-MISSILE MISSILES

We have already made great progress on "Nike-Zeus" missiles to intercept and destroy airplanes coming toward us. The faster bombers go only from 1,000 to 2,000 miles an hour, hence it is fairly easy to prepare a missile that will catch and destroy them. Moreover, our country is surrounded by a bank of radar installations. These are supposed to find any Russian planes flying through the radar banks and give our country at least twenty minutes notice of what to expect. The principle is that a "Nike-Zeus" would throw a beam into the air, and when it intercepts an incoming enemy plane it would explode it. The "Nike-Zeus" would not need to hit the incoming enemy airplane, the explosion would be enough to make its bomb useless. It would all happen within a few minutes.

The above "Nike-Zeus" may be able to protect us from Russia's fastest bombers, but success has not yet been achieved by any nation to intercept and destroy intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs). They go too rapidly. Russia will not fire these ICBMs unless she has a stock of practical sure-hit anti-missile missiles. Nations may talk about going to the moon or orbiting the earth, but they are working day and night to make an anti-missile missile.

SOVIET TESTS IN SIBERIA AND THE ARCTIC

The purpose of the present testing by Russia is to make an anti-missile missile. It would be impossible to place these tests underground. The big atomic and hydrogen bombs Khrushchev talks about are only a bluff to take our minds off of what he is really doing.

Of course, these anti-missile missiles are very expensive. We are supposed to be carrying on our tests in the Pacific Ocean, under the United States defense system. The best offense is defense which the Russians would now have would be to send up a number of decoys, since we would be unable thus far to tell one from the real missile, which could be launched from Poland.

RUSSIA'S GEOGRAPHICAL ADVANTAGE

Russia does not want the United States in ruins; she wishes to capture us as a "going concern." This is to get the benefit not only of our factories but also of our climate and geography. Although Russia is double the area of the United States, yet she has much less land suitable for crops. A very large portion of Russia is too cold, too dry, and too salty for agriculture. Almost all of the Soviet Union is farther north than the Canadian-U. S. border. Russia has no "Florida." Even Yalta is as far north as Minnesota. All this means that Russia has shorter growing seasons.

RUSSIA BECOMING CAPITALISTIC

Whether the forced organizations into big cooperatives has more than offset the impact of the new private independent farmer, I do not know. Then I was in Russia I was told that in addition to being a part of a big cooperative each farmer is given a little patch for a personal garden. This is another reason why I do not now fear that the Russians will drop any nuclear bomb on the United States.

I am an optimist. I even believe that the present war scare will increase consumer buying on the theory: "What's the use" (Continued on page five)

Every Word Of 22nd Soviet Congress Being Studied

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

LONDON (AP)—The recently ended 22nd Soviet Communist party congress is regarded by many in West European capitals as the most significant event in Soviet history since Stalin died.

Every word made public about that meeting is being examined in an effort to guess what the congress may mean with regard to cold war crisis.

Diplomats, in the roles of Kremlinologists, are trying to find hints of answers to questions like these: How free an agent is Nikita Khrushchev?

What role has the Soviet military played in the extraordinary drama of the congress?

Do the results mean more or less danger for the world in situations like the chronic Berlin crisis?

Why did the Soviet Communist party find it necessary to shock the whole Communist world by making the dramatic destruction of Stalin and Stalinism a public spectacle?

More and more diplomats are learning the theory that the Soviet military had a large role to play in what went on in Moscow.

There is a growing belief that Khrushchev had been in a truly tough spot, that he wriggled out of it by going along with the public display, and that he emerged as a boss who lacks complete freedom of action.

The incident of the U2 spy plane of May 1960 is believed to have had a large part in Khrushchev's political troubles in advance of the 22nd congress.

The reasoning goes this way: Khrushchev returned from the United States late in 1959 convinced that he had struck a blow for peace. He assured the Soviet people that so long as Dwight D. Eisenhower remained president there would be no world war, no nuclear holocaust.

A date was fixed for a four-power summit meeting: Paris in mid-May 1960.

But on May 1, while Soviet generals reviewed a parade of military might, they learned that the U.S. plane had been shot down deep inside Soviet territory.

For the generals this was embarrassing. They probably let Khrushchev know of their annoyance, too.

Khrushchev said it was all the work of the Pentagon and U.S. warmongers, and that probably Eisenhower knew nothing of it.

Then Eisenhower took full responsibility for U2 flights, and the fat was in the fire. Khrushchev now had no answer at all to his generals. The summit meeting blew up with a flow of bitter Khrushchev invective poured upon the American president. Thereafter, Soviet policy began to harden. Khrushchev was assaulted by the Red Chinese—and the Stalinists of little Albania to boot—for having suggested that President Eisenhower was a man of peace. Generals in the Soviet Union had an argument against Khrushchev's plans to demobilize 250,000 officers and almost 2 million men from the top-heavy conventional forces.

Khrushchev, steadily more belligerent, put on a spectacle of bellicosity at the United Nations last fall.

Perhaps Khrushchev figured the U.S. election of a year ago might bring a change. In any case, he wanted to size up the new president. He and President Kennedy met in Vienna in June to size up one another. Probably to the surprise of Khrushchev, he found the young U.S. president in general unyielding.

Khrushchev's own political troubles were growing. The Red Chinese were nagging at him, calling him a heretic from Leninist gospel on the ground that he said war between communism and capitalism could be avoided. Stalinists were saying, "I told you so."

Khrushchev knew what had to be done at the October congress. He would need a noisy crisis outside, with Berlin the logical spot, to deflect some of the world's attention, but he would have to make his all-out bid for the final destruction of Stalinism and the Stalinists or be himself in grave danger.

It had to be a clear victory, a public one. He could get the support of the military by proving to them that he was not at all as soft as he was being pictured. He was the man who ordered the resumption of nuclear tests. He was the man who, ignoring world outcry, gave the order for the explosion first of a 30-megaton bomb, then a 50-megaton device.

Some of the diplomats studying the record, Khrushchev looks like a man still beholden to those who supported him, including the watchful military men. He may now be permitted to act in international politics in his own way for a while, so long as he remains careful. Thus he may be able to sustain a period of relative quiet to permit diplomatic probing in the central Berlin-German crisis.

He also remained a good political maneuverer. He lost ground in the election of the new and supposedly ruling party Presidium by agreeing to the removal of four members who had been his supporters and proteges.

But in exchange he got a Communist party secretariat slightly weighted in his favor, and he was able to keep his strong influence in spite of a sweeping housecleaning of the party Central Committee.

Hold Rehearsals For 'Rashomon'

Rehearsals are now in progress for "Rashomon," the premier Players Studio Production of the East Carolina Playhouse for the current academic year.

The tentative date for performance is December 14.

Based on the famous stories of Japanese author Akutagawa, the play was first made into a prize motion picture and was later adapted by Fay and Michael Kamin for Broadway.

Assisted by Bob Imamura of Los Angeles, Calif. and George Gardner of Greenville, "Rashomon" is being directed by J. Alfred Willis of Gloucester, N. C.

Appearing in the production as the priest, woodcutter, and wig-maker, are C. Thomas Jackson of Washington, N. C.; Clyde E. Funnam of Tarboro; and Milton G. Crocker of South Hill, Va.; Gerald Harrell of Rt. 3, Edenton; Minnie Gaster of Rt. 1, Elon College; and Joe Brannon of Sanford have the roles of the husband, wife, and bandit, around whom the plot of the play is based. Jerry Higens of Smithfield will be seen as the deputy; Joyce Evans of Rt. 2, Robersonville, as the mother; and Linda Gale of Lumberton, as a maid.

Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives, Associate Director of the East Carolina Playhouse, is in charge of the Players Studio productions and is serving as advisor and consultant for "Rashomon."

Parental Advice: Don't Panic

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The leader of a Brownie Scout troop sent a questionnaire to parents of her Brownies asking them to list addresses, telephone numbers and similar information.

In case of emergency, she asked, what should she do if she couldn't reach either the father or mother of the child?

"Don't panic," responded the mother of one lively 8 year old.

Jazz Finds Respectability; Jazz Museum Is Dedicated

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—The old men of jazz and the joyous ragtime music they spawned here have at last become officially respectable.

About 200 jazz fans—ranging from beatniks to college professors—huddled in a downpour as officials dedicated the New Orleans Jazz Museum Sunday.

The museum, which will preserve the history of America's native music, is the world's first, said Mayor Victor Schiro.

"Laud, for a music that came from sporting houses," an old Negro musician said, "it sure has gotten mighty uppity."

Brief, rain-drenched ceremonies were held in Congo Square where in antebellum days slaves gathered to dance on Sundays.

Then the Eureka brass band led by flowers-bedecked Fats Houston started parading to the museum, belting out the Dixieland tunes of yesterday.

They played "Saints," "Bourbon Street Parade," and "Didn't He Ramble." A handclapping troupe trailed the band, dancing in the streets.

Housed in a reconstructed brick French Quarter cottage and slave quarters, the museum holds the largest collection of jazz memorabilia, said museum chairman Harry Souchon.

It has a banjo used by Emile (Stalebread) Laouene, one of those who claims to have originated jazz; Papa Laine's drum; a bass fiddle made and played by 73-year-old Emile (Slow drag) Pavageau; and Pete Fountain's first clarinet.

Display cases have devoted to the origin of the blues, the instruments of blues musicians, and the beginnings of jazz in Chicago. A research area has hundreds of books on jazz, plus sheet music, piano rolls and records.

One showcase is devoted to Storyville—New Orleans' infamous pre-World War I red light district where musicologists say jazz was born. The case has a stained glass window from Lulu White's establishment.

The museum also has a panel of 10 telephones. A listener can dial and hear as much as five hours of jazz.

"Why, as long as I've been playing and as long as the rest of these men have been playing, certainly we needed something to show for it," said Sweet Emma the bell gal, an old-time pianist who keeps time with bells on her ankles.

"Ain't it nice," she added with a big smile, her red hat dripping with rain, "I think it's real, real cute."

Will Hold Peace Corps Test Here

The entrance test for the Peace Corps will be given for local residents on Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 28 and 29, it was announced today by Postmaster J. Knott Proctor.

Information on time and place for the examination in this area will be posted on the bulletin board of the local post office, including stations and branches, in a few days. Those interested in taking the test should watch for complete information at the local post office.

Postmaster Proctor added that he would inform the press when the information has been received.

It does no good to object to the errors of predecessors; that is the function of the historian not of the statesman who goes right ahead accepting what he finds no matter who is responsible. When one writes historically, he must determine how much mischief was done by Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt. But politically, it is only possible to deal with today and tomorrow.

This then is the tough and trying task of President Kennedy. His judgement must be immediately right. His advisers need to be men of impeccable wisdom and patriotism. We are in a war crisis which calls for great minds and courageous spirits.

Stocking Your Fallout Shelter Is Important

By PROF. WILLARD F. LIBBY

To draw up a list of essentials needed in a fallout shelter, imagine you are actually living in it for 48 hours, or two weeks.

Do you find you have plenty of canned foods—and no can opener? Put one aside, now. A jar of instant coffee, but no cup or glass?

Hot coffee, or warmed milk for a baby, could be morale boosters. If power is knocked out, have you thought to provide a supply of canned heat which burns without smoke, or a camp stove if your shelter has enough room for it?

I have a friend who built a $25,000 shelter, perhaps the best ever built. He has stocked it well, and gone on to add a set of the Encyclopedia Britannica as a choice of reading matter. The Bible, a dictionary, Shakespeare, current novels, your selection of books taking relatively little space can help adults pass the boring time, even if the shelter only permits reading by daylight. For insurance, however, take sleeping pills too. Ask your doctor what kind.

But let's look at true essentials for survival in your shelter.

Radio and Meter Top List

I'd list highest the transistor radio, radiation meter, flashlights and candles. AND plenty of spare batteries, checked at intervals for age and condition. Check whether YOUR shelter needs an aerial for your radio. This could be especially important in rural or farm areas, and in underground shelters.

Add a shovel, even an axe and pick, in case your shelter collapses and you must dig your way out. And a broom to sweep out fallout dust, and a first aid kit.

Let me emphasize again that the main thing in protecting yourself is an understanding of what you might face, what these weapons might do, and then having the equipment to deal with situations.

You need water. Your shelter should have a minimum of five gallons of bottled water per person using the shelter. Plan a 14-day supply, go easy on the water at the outset.

Some bottled water could be left just outside the entrance of a cramped shelter, but within easy reach. Cover it with paper or plastic film, which would hold off any fallout dust settling down—then flip off the paper or film and bring the water inside.

X-rays from the fallout will not harm the water one iota, nor make it radioactive and the same thing holds for food too.

You must not eat the dust itself but the radiation doesn't hurt the food. Wash the food or open a can and it will be safe.

If you run out of water, tap water still is safe IF your supply comes from deep wells. But if your town or city depends on open reservoirs, the water could be contaminated by dust.

If doubtful whether water from water mains is safe to drink, draw drinking water from the hot water heater. THAT water had filled the tank before the bombing and so before any fallout could have entered the water mains from reservoirs or any other way.

In time, Conelrad can pass word about safety of water in your area.

Sanitary Facilities

Do you have blankets, sleeping bags, if not room for cots or bunks? Extra blankets for cold weather? Games and toys for children? Again, sleeping pills could help combat boredom. You need toilet or sanitary facilities. A chemical toilet is best if your shelter is large enough. Otherwise, use receptacles which can be covered. Prepared plastic bags which can be placed inside the receptacles, removed later, sealed, and then placed outside the shelter probably are very good.

As for food, quick trip to your refrigerator might supply enough food to prevent hunger for 48 hours without spoiling.

But plan on having to stay 14 days, and choose your tinned and packaged foods carefully with an eye to nutrition, storage space and taste.

There are concentrated foods which need only addition of water to supply a rounded diet. Don't overlook plates, knives, forks and spoons. Just thinking of the things you do every day will remind you about essential supplies.

One essential of life is oxygen, and I am considering putting a tank of oxygen in my shelter, in case of firestorms from a bombing. That's a sub-

Murrow Fails 'Sell' Movie Men On Harmful Impact

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Edward R. Murrow has come and gone, and his mission to Hollywood was considerably less than a smash hit.

The noted newscaster, now director of the United States Information Agency, came to town to tell the film industry that it can do a better job in presenting the image of America abroad.

Murrow had two strikes against him:

1. Film producers don't like to be told what to do and will yell "censorship!" when someone in the government tries. Murrow realized this and even blunted some of the pointed remarks in his prepared speech.

2. Curiously for a onetime newscaster, he barred reporters from the dinner with producers. Federal officers reportedly enforced his dictum. His speech was delivered to news offices in a plain envelope amid mystery and turned out to be not the exact speech he delivered. It was not surprising that he got a bad press.

Murrow cited overseas reports: "From India—movies are doing a lot of harm to America." From Latin America—"Movies are a terrible influence." From Southeast Asia—"Movies misrepresent us as useless drones always smoking and drinking cocktails."

Producer Eric Johnston arose to deny Murrow's reports categorically and proclaim that American films were doing a splendid job overseas.

"The whole thing was embarrassing," a producer told me afterward. "Nobody seemed to get Murrow's message at all. They didn't want to."

To this observer, it seems a shame that Hollywood continues to neglect its responsibility to present this nation to the world.

A look at the upcoming product shows a large supply of sex-plain envelope amid mystery and turned out to be not the exact speech he delivered. It was not surprising that he got a bad press.

The American government will be pictured with "Advise and Consent" and "The Best Man," which display the use of blackmail and corruption by high figures. American fumbling abroad is treated in "Judgment at Nuremberg," "Town without Pity" and "The Ugly American."

Are there any film that show the goodness of America?

I don't see any, unless you can include a couple of musicals—"Music Man," "State Fair" and a Western—"How the West was Won." But they are scarcely a mirror of contemporary America.

"The republic is in greater danger now than during the last two wars," Ed Murrow said in asking Hollywood's help. He doesn't appear to be getting it.

Furman Comes From Behind To Down EC Pirates 29-8

PROUD HUNTERS Jack Whichard (left) and Ray Minges (right), both of Greenville, hold three of the geese which they party of eight killed near Lake Mattamuskeet on opening morning. By Saturday night after two days of hunting the group had raised the total to 16 birds.

STATISTICS table comparing East Carolina and Furman. Columns include first downs, rushing yardage, passing yardage, passes (a-c), passes intercepted, punts-av., fumbles lost, yards penalized, and score by quarters.

GREENVILLE, S. C. — East Carolina suffered its fourth loss of the season Saturday night after the Paladins of Furman University pulled ahead in the third quarter to win the game 29-8.

The Pirates gave their Southern Conference foe a scare early in the third stanza when they took the lead 8-7 after a 59 yard touchdown run by halfback Larry Rudisill. The only East Carolina score of the night started when the Bucs received the second half kickoff on their own 25 yard line.

On a second down situation fullback Nick Hilgert took a handoff from quarterback Dan Rouse on a quick opening play up the middle for 15 yards to the East Carolina 41 yard line. On the next play Rouse attempted a long pass to Tommy Matthews on the Furman 25 yard line, but it was incomplete. Then Rouse pitched out to Rudisill and the Hickory native went wide around left end and down the sideline for 59 yards and the touchdown. The two-point conversion was made when Rouse pitched out to Matthews on an apparent end sweep and then Matthews completed a pass to end Richard Huneycutt who was all alone in the end zone. This gave East Carolina the lead 8-7.

Furman Scores First

The first Furman touchdown of the game came in the early minutes of the first quarter when the Paladins took the lead after halfback Tony Carmignani went over center on a quick handoff from 11 yards out. The extra point was added by Claude Davis climaxing a 68 yard drive in 10 plays on the ground.

In the rest of the first half neither team could muster enough strength to score, but it appears as if the Pirates might return the Furman kickoff for a touchdown. Matthews received the kick and returned it to the East Carolina 41 yard line before he was stopped.

First Down Try Fails

The Pirates failed to get a first down on the 41 yard line and freshman Gene Tesch-hour got off 45 yard punt with the ball rolling dead on the Furman seven yard line. The remainder of the half was a defensive battle between the two clubs. The statistics show that Furman carried the ball 47 times during the first half while the Pirates controlled the pigskin for only 28 plays.

After East Carolina scored in the third quarter Furman wasted no time in pulling ahead again. With about five minutes left in the stanza Carmignani scored on a halfback draw play from the East Carolina seven yard line. The two-point conversion was added when quarterback Billy Canni completed a pass to Carmignani.

Furman Recovers Buc Fumble

In the final minute of the game the Paladins scored another touchdown after they gained possession of the ball when Matthews fumbled the kickoff return on the Pirates' 33 yard line. The touchdown was made when fullback Tom Campbell plunged over from one yard out. The run for the conversion was stopped by the Pirate line.

The final touchdown of the game for the Paladins came late in the fourth stanza after Furman intercepted an East Carolina pass. The Paladins drove down to the East Carolina nine yard line and then halfback John Cooke carried the ball over for the score. The two-point conversion was good with Jerry Thomas carrying over for the extra points.

The loss gives East Carolina a 5-4 overall record going into their final game of the season next week with Wofford in Greenville.

Ayden Takes First Game Of Single A Playoff Series

STATISTICS table comparing Ayden and Camp Lejeune. Columns include first downs, yards rushing, yards passing, passes att.-compl., passes int., fumbles lost, yards penalized, and score by quarters.

By LEONARD LAO Reflector Sports Writer

KINSTON—Ayden's Tornados successfully made its first step toward a Single A State Championship Saturday night, outlasting a strong Camp Lejeune eleven by a 19-14 score in Kinston's Granger Memorial Stadium.

Coach Stuart Tripp and his undefeated Tornados, by downing the Camp Lejeune Devil Dogs, earned the right to meet Rohanen, who dropped Mt. Olive Friday night, 20-13. The Ayden and Rohanen clubs will lock horns at a time and place to be announced later.

Ayden Gets Break

After losing the coin toss, the Tornados kicked off to the Devil Dogs. Fullback Ned Paulson returned to the midfield stripe, but a jarring tackle by Carroll McLawhorn shook the ball loose, and Clem McLawhorn smothered it on the Ayden 46. All-Conference halfback William Edwards and Rudolph Cannon moved the ball to the looser's 44, and a personal foul put it on the 26.

Cannon ground out a pair of first downs to the one, then plunged over from that point with eight minutes and thirty seconds remaining in the first period. Edwards' pass intended for Cannon for the extra point failed, and the Tornados took a 6-0 lead.

The Devil Dogs, behind the running of halfback Dick Dube and Paulson, marched right gack with a 64 yard scoring drive. Quarterback Jim Barrett scored on a 12 yard run, and Dube added the extra point for a 7-6 Camp Lejeune lead.

Lejeune Spreads Lead

The losers' defense clamped down and, with the help of a clipping penalty, pushed the Tornados back to the 21. Edwards' punt went off the side of his foot and soared out of bounds on the Ayden 39.

After two running plays netted six yards, Barrett faded back and hit end Dan Paetow with a 33 yard touchdown pass. With one minute and thirty-five seconds remaining in the first period, Dube booted his second point after touchdown to give the Devil Dogs a 14-6 advantage.

Camp Lejeune bottled up the Ayden offense again in the second quarter, and forced the Tornados to punt. Starting on their own 22 yard line, the Devil Dogs fought their way to the Ayden 19, but a clipping penalty moved them back to the 31.

On the next play, Edwards intercepted Barrett's pass on the Tornado 9 and returned the pigskin to the 45.

Sustained Drive

The Tornados proceeded to eat up the clock with a 55 yard sustained drive which produced a touchdown with only thirty seconds left in the first half. Edwards and Cannon, along with Joe Harrington, carried the ball down to the Camp Lejeune five, and quarterback Tommy Dunn passed to Cannon for the touchdown from that point. Dunn tried to sneak over for the extra point, but he was stopped short of the goal line, and the Tornados still found themselves faced with a 14-12 deficit at intermission.

Following a superb halftime performance by the Ayden and Camp Lejeune marching bands, the Devil Dog defense went back to work again, this time stopping Ayden on the Camp Lejeune 43.

Edwards' kick rolled dead on the Devil Dog 21. On the first play from scrimmage, Dube fumbled and Ayden recovered the loose ball on the 20. Edwards crashed two yards to the 18, then reserve halfback Godfrey Little picked up a first down at the 10. Two more runs by Edwards placed the ball on the Camp Lejeune 2, and Harrington, behind the blocking of Edwards, plunged over for the score. Edwards ran for the extra point.

Goal Line Stand

The Tornados put together another drive in the fourth quarter that carried them down to the Camp Lejeune 7. Harrington provided the thrills in the march with a 37 yard gain, the longest of the game. However, the Camp Lejeune forward rose to the occasion with a brilliant goal line stand, and stopped the Tornados at the one with only two minutes remaining.

The losers struck back with a 10 yard aerial from Barrett to Paetow, and a holding penalty placed the ball on the 26. Clem McLawhorn put an abrupt end to any thoughts the Devil Dogs might have had of a last minute score on the next play, as he intercepted Barrett's pass on the Camp Lejeune 28.

The Tornados then ran out the clock with a series of running plays, and thereby earned their way into another playoff game.

Furman And Citadel Have Winning Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The Southern Conference, which produced five winning football teams last year, is nearing the end of its 1961 season with only two clubs sure to finish above the .500 and two more with chances to do so.

Furman's Paladins, 7-2 thus far, and The Citadel's conference champions, 6-3, are assured of winning records regardless of how they fare in their season finales this week.

VMI's dethroned conference kings are ahead of the game at 5-4, but must whip arch-foe Virginia Tech at Roanoke Thanksgiving Day to give Coach John McKenna his fifth straight winning season.

Tech, now 3-4 and the lone conference team with two games left, also could win more than it loses by downing George Washington this Friday and following up with a victory over VMI.

Davidson closed out '61 business last Saturday, all square at 4-4. Break-even marks are within reach, too, of Richmond and West Virginia, each 4-5 with a game to go. GW (3-5) and William and Mary (1-8) already are doomed to losing records.

Conference clubs lost five of eight games against outside foes last Saturday. Only VMI, Davidson and Furman were winners.

VMI rocketed past Buffalo, 39-6, as Bobby Mitchell set conference records by passing for 349 yards and three touchdowns and amassing 344 yards' total offense. Stinson Jones scored four TD's for VMI.

Davidson clipped Wofford, 34-13. Furman topped East Carolina, 29-8.

West Virginia bowed to powerful Penn State, 20-6. Virginia Tech was beaten at Wake Forest, 24-15. Florida State clouted The Citadel, 44-8. William and Mary lost to Army, 48-13.

Richmond played second-ranked Alabama at Tuscaloosa and watched the Tide roll, 66-0. Bama gained an incredible 616 yards.

The 27-year-old pro from San Leandro, Calif., shot a 72 through a drizzling rain at the Mexico City Club course and finished with a 72-hole score of 280, six strokes ahead of the runnerup, host pro Antonio Cerda.

Cerda posted a 74 Sunday, giving him a 286 total. Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif., was next at 291 with a 75 and Jack Kay of Montreal took fourth, carding a 75 for a 292 total.

George Knudson of Toronto was the only one to break par over the 7,100 yard layout on the final day, shooting a 70 and winding up in a three-way tie at 293 with Ernie Vossler of Oklahoma City and Marty Furgol of Lemont, Ill. Vossler had a closing 74 and Furgol a 73.

Repeat In Sight For AFL Crown

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF Associated Press Sports Writer A repeat of last year's American Football League championship game became a stronger possibility today with San Diego already in it and Houston leading the fight for the other berth.

In the case of Houston, however, there still are some obstacles of note, the main one being San Diego itself.

Houston beat Boston 27-15 Sunday to take over the lead in the Eastern Division. It was the Oilers' fourth straight triumph in a surge that pulled them from the cellar.

San Diego won its tenth straight game as it edged Denver 19-16 and the victory wrapped up the Western Division championship for the second year. San Diego, playing as Los Angeles last season, lost to Houston for the championship.

Houston is just one-half game to the good over Boston and New York and the Oilers play the latter at Houston Sunday in the second straight showdown. Boston meets Oakland Friday night and is expected to win its game, moving back into first place if Houston should lose. In that event New York also would be tied for first.

Both Houston and Boston still have to play San Diego and that is where the Chargers' influence over which they will meet in the playoff comes in. That is, unless San Diego beats both of them. That might reach in favor of New York, which already has played San Diego twice and lost both times.

For the nonce, however, the only concern Houston has is New York, which beat Oakland 23-12 last week to hang in the race for the Eastern Division title.

San Diego plays Dallas at San Diego Sunday and it's quite a let-down. Before the season started Dallas was the favorite and was supposed to sweep through the Western Division ranks. The Texans have now lost four in a row and are out of the race by 6½ games.

Dallas took a 30-20 drubbing from Buffalo Sunday and enhanced its reputation for being able to lose more games in the last minutes than anybody. Buffalo scored twice on Texan errors in the final five minutes.

Wally Lemm, coach of Houston, is in a most fortunate position—having two quarterbacks who can go in and keep things moving. George Blanda got the Oilers away and winging as he passed for a touchdown and kicked two field goals, then Jack Lee came off the bench to guide the Oilers to the touchdown that nailed down the decision.

Denver led the mighty Chargers 9-0 at the half and an upset appeared in the making. But Jack Kemp fired up and pitched a 91-yard scoring pass to Keith Lincoln, Dick Harris of the San Diego defense brigade snared an enemy throw and ran it back 30 yards for a touchdown and the Chargers were ahead.

A Frank Tripucka pass to Al Frazier that covered 87 yards, gave Denver the lead once more, then Kemp wrapped it up with a 16-yard scoring throw to Bob Scarpito.

One other game is on schedule Sunday — Buffalo at Denver. It will mean nothing in the race.

Duke Can Win By Beating Tar Heels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Duke can win the Atlantic Coast Conference football championship by beating North Carolina next Saturday. But followers of the University of South Carolina think their Gamecocks already have won about as big a prize, beating traditional rival Clemson in a heart-stopping finish.

Behind 14-7 at the opening of the third quarter, South Carolina hit for two quick touchdowns, one on a wide-awake fumble-recovery scoring run by quarterback Jim Costen. Then, with sophomore quarterback Jim Parker directing their dangerous passing game, the Tigers moved 74 yards to the South Carolina one-yard line. But they were stopped by the clock.

As the game ended in 21-14 South Carolina victory Saturday supporters of both teams flocked on the field and a number of fist fights started.

This Saturday, the next-to-last full week of the season, South Carolina is at North Carolina State, Clemson is host to Furman, North Carolina is at Duke, Wake Forest is at Maryland, and Virginia is at Navy.

Navy was favored over Duke by a touchdown in their Oyster Bowl game in Norfolk last Saturday. But by the time the game was little more than seven minutes old, Duke led by two touchdowns and went on to a 30-9 victory.

Anybody who thought the North Carolina team which edged Tennessee 22-21 the week before would have a chance against national-power LSU was badly mistaken. LSU, which operates with three teams and kept throwing fresh players into the game, had a 13-0 lead in less than 11 minutes, and rolled to a 30-0 victory in its drive for another national championship.

John Hannigan's 21-yard field goal in the second quarter proved decisive as Maryland defeated North Carolina State 10-7. The field goal gave a 10-0 lead to the home club, which had scored in the first period on a seven-yard pass from sophomore quarterback Dick Shiner to end Gary Collins.

Third-string sophomore quarterback Ron Smith, who had played in only two previous games for Wake Forest, sparked an 80-yard last-period scoring drive that helped the Deacons to a 24-15 victory over Virginia Tech.

Mickey Walker kicked 31 and 34-yard field goals for Wake Forest to set a school record of four in a season.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—North Carolina defends its Atlantic Coast Conference cross-country championship here today against the twofold threat posed by Duke and Maryland.

All eight conference institutions will be represented in the meet over the University of Virginia's four-mile course, but only the Tar Heels, the Blue Devils and the Terps look like possible team titlists.

North Carolina bids for a repeat title with four of the first 10 finishers of 1960—Rett Everett, first; Jerry Stuver, second; Mike Folk fourth; and Carmine Lunetta, sixth.

Favorite Deer Evades Hunters

PRESTONSBURG, Ky. (AP)—Oswald is a deer who loves people. Hundreds of residents of this eastern Kentucky area worried themselves sick about Oswald during the four-day open season on deer when hunters stalked the colorful hill country.

They didn't take into account that Oswald was as clever as his lovable. Oswald deftly beat a strategic retreat to a remote section where there was almost no hunting.

There, said conservation officer Raymond Copley, Oswald has been living in grassy pastureland. In bad weather, he makes use of a warm barn provided by Bill Boyd, a farmer in the Calf Creek section of Floyd County.

From his birth about 21 months ago, Oswald has trusted people. For quite a while he lived with them, romping on lawns, meandering into the house, and feeding himself in neighborhood gardens.

When he added tobacco leaves to his diet, the neighbors decided to evict him. He was sent to the Dewey Lake area to become what he was born to be—a wild deer. He didn't understand. He made new friends: campers, fishermen, hunters, conservation officers in the state park. He never became gun shy.

As deer season approached, his friends began to worry. They decided to house him in a barn until it was safe again outside. This time Oswald balked. He wouldn't be caught.

Each of the four nights during the deer season which ended Saturday at sundown, one of Oswald's closest friends, Arnold Workman, checked the stations which register hunters' kills.

Oswald wasn't among the dead. Now he is free again to roam the hill country. The people who love him have stopped worrying until next year.

Championship Bout Tonight

The only world championship bout on the week's boxing schedule will be held tonight in Tokyo where Davey Moore of Columbus, Ohio, will defend his featherweight crown for the fourth time.

Moore, 28, will meet Kazuo Takayama, the Japanese titleholder, whom he defeated Aug. 29, 1960, on a unanimous decision in a 15-round championship match.

Two American officials and one Japanese will handle the contest. Moore is a strong favorite to retain the title against the No. 3 challenger who holds a slight edge in both height and reach.

Matchmaker Teddy Brenner of Madison Square Garden hopes to come up with a title challenger for Joey Brown out of lightweight bout Saturday between Carlos Ortiz of New York and Paolo Rosi, Italian-born New Yorker.

Actually, Rosi already had his chance at Brown and was stopped on cuts in Washington, June 3, 1959, after putting up a good scrap. He has beaten Tommy Tibbs and Lenny Matthews and split even in two with Jackie Donnelly this year.

Ortiz, former junior welter champ, lost that title to Dullio Lol in Milan, Italy.

Ladies Night At Touchdown Club

The Rose High Touchdown Club will hold its regular weekly meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the high school cafeteria.

Club President Wiley Forbes has announced that it will be ladies night and all mothers of the football players and other interested women are urged to attend.

Tickets for Friday night's championship game went on sale today at the following places: The Moose Lodge, the Elks Club, H. L. Hodges Company, Biggs Drug Store, Bissette's Drug Store, Hollowell's Drug Store, Larry's Shoe Store, Perkins Shoe Store, the Carolina Grill and the High School Office.

Forbes announced that all tickets for the Greenville side of the field are for reserved seats. Club members will receive tickets at the meeting tonight.

Army-Bound Hornung May Have Sewed Up Western Title Sunday

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Paul Hornung, Army-bound after another prolific point performance, may have wrapped up a second straight Western Conference title for the Green Bay Packers while Pete Previte had a hand in forging a two-way scramble for Eastern honors between New York and Philadelphia.

That's the situation in the National Football League after Sunday's showdown struggles in which Hornung led the Packers to a 31-28 triumph over Chicago and the Giants moved into a first-place tie in the Eastern sector by upending the defending league champ on Eagles 38-21.

It was Previte—not a player, scout or coach, but one of the Giants' clubhouse attendants—who devised the stunning pass maneuver that gave New York a key touchdown and went a long way toward keeping the Eagles from matching Green Bay's progress toward another title.

With the Giants leading 17-7 late in the second period, Coach Alie Sherman decided to give Previte's play, designed to get the team's fastest players downfield under a Y. A. Title pass, a try and into the game came defensive half-backs Erich Barnes and Jim Patton.

The Giants talked it over in the huddle, called for Previte's maneuver—titled with simplicity "the play that worked in practice Friday"—and Tittle arched a long one that Barnes grabbed for a 62-yard TD that gave New York an insurmountable lead.

Hornung scored 19 points as the Packers knocked the Bears into third place in the West. Detroit's Lions moved up to second place, a game and a half behind, with a 45-14 walloping of the St. Louis Cardinals while Cleveland stayed a game behind in the East by beating Washington 17-6.

In other games, Los Angeles stopped the shotgun offense and upset San Francisco 17-7, Minnesota whipped Baltimore 28-20 and Pittsburgh crushed Dallas 37-7.

Quarterback Bart Starr passed for three Green Bay touchdowns, one a 34-yard pitch to Hornung, who brought his league-leading scoring total to 130 points by adding an eight-yard scoring run, four extra points and a 51-yard field goal in what may be his last game for the Packers this season. He is scheduled to report Tuesday for active military duty.

The Packers (7-1) needed every point as the Bears (5-4) fought back from a 29-7 halftime deficit to close the gap mainly on TD passes of 15 and 29 yards from Billy Wade to Mike Ditka, who also had grabbed, a 47-yard heave from Wade in the first quarter.

The Eagles (7-2), winners of the five straight, trailed from the start when the Giants' Del Shofner pulled in a pass from Tittle, deflected by Philadelphia defenders, for a 30-yard touchdown on the first sequence of plays. New York built its lead to 28-7 before the Eagles struck back on touchdown pitches by Sonny Jurgensen and King Hill.

Tittle, who came to the Giants in a trade as did Shofner and Barnes, was the big offensive weapon, making it a three-TD day with a 12-yard loss to Kyle Rote. His toss to Barnes on the "Pete Previte special" came from the spread formation with the quarterback the only deep man in the backfield.

Jim Nowinski passed 33 yards to Gall Cogdill and 45 to Terry Barr for touchdowns while Howard Cassady and Dan Lewis each scored a pair on the ground in the Lions' (5-3-1) win. Sam Etcheverry kept the Cards (4-5) in the game with two touchdown strikes.

Jimmy Brown tossed a 37-yard touchdown pass to Ray Renfro for a 10-0 lead the Browns (6-3) never relinquished in handing the winless Redskins their ninth defeat and 17th in a row over two years. Brown, who picked up 133 yards on the ground, moved into second place on the all-time league rushing list behind Joe Perry with a total of 5,908 in five years. Perry—now with Baltimore—has 7,748 in 12 seasons, 11 with San Francisco.

Zekke Bratkowski engineered a 74-yard drive in the final quarter, cranking across himself from a yard out for the clinching touchdown in the Rams' (3-6) upset of the 49ers (4-4-1).

Fran Tarkenton's 57-yard TD aerial to Dave Middleton in the third quarter and his plunge for a score after Dean Derby's key interception in the final period gave the Vikings (2-7) their upset over the Colts (4-5).

Sub quarterback Rudy Bukich was the standout for the Steelers (4-5), connecting with Buddy Dial for touchdown passes of 73 and 13 yards in an easy victory over the Cowboys (4-5).

TRAINING TO CHOP DOWN PATTERSON—Heavyweight challenger Tom McNeely makes with the axe at training camp at Lynnfield, Mass., in preparation for the Dec. 4 title bout with champion Floyd Patterson in Toronto. McNeely, from nearby Arlington, plans 5 to 8 miles of roadwork plus six rounds in the ring each day. (AP Wirephoto)

Postseason College Bowl Scramble In Full Swing

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The annual scramble among college football's elite for postseason bowl assignments was under way in earnest today with less than a half dozen squads able to relax. Texas, riding like a prairie wind toward the national title, is one. Then there are Alabama, Louisiana State, Mississippi and Colorado. All the others still are sitting on pins and needles hopefully awaiting bids.

The Gator Bowl could wind up with Maryland (6-2) and Arkansas (6-2). That would leave the other bowls to shift for themselves for the remainder of the talent.

The rash of upsets Saturday left just three major teams undefeated and tied—Texas, Alabama and Rutgers. Texas clobbered Baylor, 33-7; Alabama crushed Richmond, 66-0, and Rutgers defeated Delaware, 27-19, for No. 7.

Besides Colorado and Georgia Tech, powerhouses like Michigan State and Missouri, along with California and Oregon where victims of upsets, Purdue edge Michigan State, 7-6, when Don Brumm blocked a conversion attempt. Oklahoma, the ex-Big Eight king, nipped Missouri, 7-0. The Air Force Academy, which had lost five of seven games, turned back California, 15-14, and Washington State dropped Oregon, 22-21.

This Saturday, Texas plays Texas Christian, Ohio State, No. 3 in the AP poll last week—and a possible Rose Bowl choice if Minnesota falls—goes against Oregon. Louisiana State while Minnesota faces dangerous Purdue. Michigan State tangles with Northwestern. Mississippi will have no sinners with Tennessee. Colorado will try to snap back against Nebraska, and Missouri meets Kansas State.

Greatest Pacer Ever Retires

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—There was a note of sadness mingled with eager anticipation around Barn O at Roosevelt Raceway today.

Adios Butler, the greatest pacer ever, is through with racing after smashing many major records as he won 37 of his 40 starts in three seasons of competition.

Ahead of the 5-year-old son of Daos lies a stud career, which his handlers fully expect will produce outstanding results.

"He sure is a great horse," said Sylvanus Henry, the Butler's 52-year-old groom. He tended the Butler through sickness and health almost ever since Paige West of Snow Hill, Md., bought the unimpressive looking yearling at the Harrisburg, Pa., sales for $6,000.

The Butler's farewell to competition was a neck victory over Apmat Saturday in the $50,000 National Pacing Derby at Roosevelt. His time of 2:31 3/5 for 1 1/4 miles matched the track record.

Louisiana State (7-1) probably will provide Alabama's opposition in a head-on meeting of SEC powers. They don't meet during the regular season and the game would be a natural. Alabama has a toughie this week in Georgia Tech, but the Crimson Tide probably can afford a defeat and still get home free.

Colorado (7-1) looms as the Big Eight champion and should head for the Orange Bowl. The Buffaloes, beaten out of the conference by Utah, 21-12, last Saturday in one of the major upsets of the day, can still be tied for the title by Kansas. But the Buffs locked the Jayhawks earlier in the season. The Orange Bowl reserves the right to pick any Big Eight team, champion or no.

Georgia Tech (6-2) was assured a spot in the Orange Bowl until it was upended by Tennessee, 10-6, in another Saturday surprise. Tech probably still will get the call.

The Rose Bowl, granddaddy of them all—assuming it doesn't get Alabama—probably will go back to the Big Ten, although it no longer is under any obligation to do so. That might mean Minnesota (6-1). The Gophers no doubt

Scrudato Leads ACC Scoring

GREENSBORO (AP)—Clemson's Ron Scrudato failed to score Saturday against South Carolina but held on to the individual scoring lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference with 36 points.

End Gary Collins of Maryland moved into second place with 26 points on four touchdowns and four conversions. He scored one touchdown Saturday against N.C. State.

Next with 25 points each, according to ACC Service Bureau figures, are Wake Forest's Donnie Frederick and South Carolina's Billy Gambrell. Lon Armistead of Clemson and John Hanigan of Maryland, the point-after and field goal men, have 24 points each. Armstrong has 18 conversions and two field goals, and Hanigan 15 conversions and three field goals.

Others with 20 or more points are Duke's Mark Leggett with North Carolina's Bob Elliott with 22 each, and Gib Carson of North Carolina with 20.

Bears Need One More Win For 7th Straight Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lenoir Rhyne can feast both on turkey and its seventh straight Carolinas Conference football championship if it defeats Catawba in its next game, on Thanksgiving Day.

However, a loss for the Bears would give the championship to Appalachian, which is tied with them at 5-1 in conference games, and has finished its league season.

Tailback Odell White ran for three touchdowns and fullback Richard Kemp passed for two and ran for another leading Lenoir

Rhyne to a 50-16 rout of Elon Saturday night.

Appalachian ran into a stone wall Presbyterian defense and lost 21-7 to the South Carolinians. The Mountaineers could make only 14 yards rushing and 51 passing for their poorest offensive showing of the season.

Newberry got a four-touchdown effort from Carl Harris, two on runs and two on passes, and handled Western Carolina, 47-17.

Mistakes caught up with East Carolina, which was defeated 29-8 by Furman of the Southern Conference. The Pirates led 8-7 early in the third period on Larry Rudisill's 60-yard touchdown dash. Then two pass interceptions and a fumble spelled doom for them. Catawba handed winless Guilford its eighth loss of the year and sixth in the conference, 15-7.

Presbyterian is at Elon on Friday. Games on Saturday are Appalachian at Tampa, Wofford at East Carolina, Western Carolina at Guilford, and Newberry at East Tennessee.

Campbell Wins Beaumont Match

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Joe Campbell, not bothered by the greens or the sand traps that stilled other pros, shot a five-under-par 66 to win the $20,000 Beaumont Invitational Golf Tournament Sunday. His 277 for 72 holes gave him first money by a stroke.

The cigar-chewing Campbell picked up his check for $2,800, kissed his wife and announced, "We're going to Las Vegas, honey, just like I promised."

While Campbell heads west, the winter golf tour headed east to Lafayette, La., and the annual Cajun Open.

The victory was the only first-prize Campbell, a former Purdue University basketball player, has won since joining the pro tour three years ago.

His only other claim to major golf fame was the $50,000 hole-in-one he fired at Desert Springs, Calif., last year.

The Chattanooga, Tenn., golfer shot rounds of 72-71-68-66-277. One stroke behind was Bert Weaver of Beaumont, who matched Campbell's five-under-par final round and finished with a 278.

Gordon Jones of Orlando, Fla., took third with a 279 and tied with 280 were Jay Hebert of Miami; Ed Merrins of Cedar Hurst, N.Y.

Three Major Schools Unbeaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only three major schools are included in the list of four-year colleges unbeaten and untied in college football, an Associated Press check showed today.

The major teams with perfect marks are Texas and Alabama, 8-0, and Rutgers, 7-0. There are 20 small college teams in the perfect record class.

Colorado as well as Southeastern Louisiana, Arkansas Tech and Otterbein were teams which lost their first game last weekend.

Sam Boulmetis and Bill Harback both have won two runnings of the Cherry Hill Stakes, a 2-year-old sprint which is run annually at Garden State, Camden, N. J.

Ben Schwartzwalder is in his 13th season as Syracuse football coach.

THE GREEN STONE

A suspense thriller by
SUZANNE BLANC

CHAPTER 14

Luis Perez didn't hear the news broadcast concerning the Randall's until the next morning. All evening he was with Carmelita in the gardens of the Villa Serena, listening to her chatter, stroking her thick cloud of hair and wondering how to recover the jewel.

She told him a long, involved story of a quarrel with one of the other maids, and her voice, which once he had found so soothing, now interfered noisily with his concentration.

Still, since she was his entry to the Villa, he dared not offend her and he automatically answered with endearments that seemed to satisfy her.

He continued to hope that somehow luck would be with him and that the jewel would fall into his hands. He was convinced by now that the fortune it represented was rightfully his and that it would be restored to him.

He kept his eyes on the entrance to the lounge waiting for Jessie Prewitt to return to her room, but the hours passed. Other lights all over the Villa had winked out. The crickets had fallen silent. Only a few night birds still bravely called to one another from the trees. It grew colder.

Carmelita was murmuring uncomfortably. He covered her with his tan coat and she snuggled back with her head in his lap and at last fell asleep. The lounge remained lighted; the turista did not come out.

Luis toyed with the idea of speaking to her of offering his services as a guide, but it would be difficult to explain his presence on the grounds so late at night.

He considered again simply asking for the return of the stones. He could explain that he had made a mistake, that they were already promised to someone else. Luis' devious mind rejected this scheme as utterly impractical.

Judging by his own reactions he knew that she would immediately return them. She would immediately be certain that she would most carefully examine her purchase. Above all he didn't want the woman to examine the contents of the tobacco pouch. As long as she was unaware that she had the emerald, he had a good chance of getting it.

Finally the door of the lounge opened. He could see the woman clearly silhouetted against the light. But he was still without a plan, and he sat on the slope miserably watching as she and the tall man with her walked along the wing to her door.

In the silence he could hear their footsteps clearly on the stone walk and the man's voice as he said, "Don't forget, Jess, the Plaza, at noon." He heard her door close, the click of the man's lighter as he stopped to light a cigarette, and then his footsteps as he moved on further down the wing. The little senora's shadow flickered just once across the luminated patch of her window while Luis watched and waited, still hoping to think of a way to reach her.

Inside the cheerful room Jessie was completely unaware that anyone was watching her. She was filled with the pleasant aftertaste of the evening and anticipation of her lunch with Ralph Burton the next day. Everything at the Villa was wonderful; the room itself, warmed by the embers of a fire built in her absence, seemed to welcome her.

Momentarily the heavy scent of her perfume disturbed her and drew her to the empty bottle, but annoyance could not penetrate her mood of enchanted contentment. She dismissed the spilled perfume as a maid's careless accident, remote, and like the rest of her problems, unimportant. Quickly, sleepily, she undressed, turned out the light and went to bed.

Now the entire Villa lay in darkness. It would be easy, Luis thought, to wait another hour, until the senora fell asleep, then crawl through her windows and steal the gem. But what would he do with Carmelita?

As if his thinking about her had awakened her, she opened her large, liquid eyes and murmured sleepily, "You'll have to go, Luis, Uncle Pedro will want to lock the gate."

The gate was already locked.

Uncle Pedro was not to be found and Luis, who had never before stayed so late at the Villa, wondered uncomfortably how he would leave. But Carmelita, without difficulty, slid back the heavy bolts and the slab-oak gate swung noiselessly open on its oiled hinges.

For a brief moment Carmelita pressed her firm body against him and kissed him passionately; then he was outside and he could hear her sliding the bolts back into place.

He thought of the simple lock mechanism. It was easier to leave the Villa, he decided, than to enter it.

It wasn't until Luis was walking through the deserted streets toward his room that it occurred to him that, maybe, after all, he would not get the jewel. He felt cheated, as if someone had stolen something from him.

It was a sensation that he'd often had as a child when he went shopping with his father, to the large grocery store that lay at the edge of the California town. For a small boy even the walk there was a long one.

He could still see the store, the long shelves lined with food, the boxes of candy, the heavily iced cakes and cookies, and most enticing of all, the rack of toys: brightly painted airplanes and cars, puzzles, rubber balls, soldiers, all mysteriously packaged in cellophane and hanging from metal hooks. Every week Luis would look through all the bags, finally select one, take it down and put it in his father's shopping basket.

On the way home carrying one of the heavy packages, he would dream of playing with the toy, but when the groceries were unpacked, it was never there. He was always disappointed, like someone who is the victim of a conjuring trick, certain that the toy was there, hurt and mystified at its disappearance.

In some ways his present frustration was the same. He had been so certain when he went to the Villa that he would return with the jewel that he couldn't resign himself to failure. He reached home discouraged and depressed, yet unable to abandon his dreams of wealth.

Because he was no longer a child, Luis forced himself dispassionately to review the situation. He had failed to recover the stone because he had assumed that it would be in the senora's hands, and instead it was in the hands that were always with her. Somehow he must find a way to take it from her.

Perhaps violence would be required, but Luis was not a violent man and the thought frightened him. He preferred to rely on the shrewdness and luck that had always, in the past, worked to his advantage.

In this situation luck seemed to be running against him, but the current would change. He would stay close to the senora, close to the jewel, and an opportunity would present itself.

During the night he slept poorly, tormented by dreams in which he saw the inspector and the little senora were endlessly chasing each other. Shortly after dawn he awakened with his brain pulsing excitedly. In his dreams, during the endless chase, he had recovered the jewel. He lay for a few minutes, his eyes blinking against the soft morning light, not realizing at first that his dream had no reality.

In his dream it had all seemed so easy that he tried to recapture the sequence of events and, little by little, they returned to him. All at once he was very excited. Divorced from the exaggerated, surrealistic surroundings of the dream a very simple way of recovering his treasure presented itself.

"Within a few hours the emerald would be his," Luis thought. But will he recover it? Continue the story here tomorrow.

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOW HIGH THE SUN?

The remarkable voyage of a tuna fish, the almost human behavior of the whale, and a new estimate of the distance from earth to the sun are subjects for science at work.

HOW FAST THE TUNA

The tuna fish ranges far and wide—and apparently wastes little time en route.

A giant bluefin tuna was tagged by scientists off Cat Cay in the Bahamas on June 10 this year. It was caught off Bergen, Norway just 122 days later—some 5,300 direct miles away.

That means it covered some 33 miles a day. If it started the day it was tagged, swam the distance in a straight line without any sidetrips, and was caught the day it arrived.

The bluefin tuna, which is supposed to cruise at about three knots an hour, may have had some help from the Gulf Stream current part of the trip, say researchers at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

HOW HUMAN THE WHALE

Many whales and dolphins, besides being mammals like man, are also unusually intelligent animals—and scientists have long wanted to study them in their natural roaming area.

Although the size of the ocean and the uncooperative nature of the animals makes this difficult, scientists have been able to get some strange, homey views of some, like the Pacific pilot whale. This small whale travels in hunting formations, feeding schools and even loafing groups. They have been seen to assist injured schoolmates. Mother whales even try to support the bodies of their dead young. And, like the human, the pilot whale tries to protect its young from capture.

ASK A NATIVE

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (AP)—Dr. W. J. Siemens, retired physician at nearby Dungeness Bay, has an idea for community boosters who meet many tourists. It's this: Let them wear buttons reading: "Ask ME—I Live Here."

Modernizing by CRAFTSMEN

Men have been trying for generations to do things quicker, and to do a better job at everything. In most fields of endeavor, man has succeeded.

There are a few things, though, which are better unchanged. For example, a quick kiss is no fun.

And for burping a baby, the old tried and tested way is the only remedy. You've got to put him on your lap or on your shoulder and pat him—gently, slowly. If you try to hurry him up, next thing you know you're crying over spilt milk.

For removing the grit and grime and bacteria from your clothes, there's no substitute for the hygienic and scientific treatment of a skilled professional cleaner and launderer who knows the chemical application for each individual type of stain, using modern machinery of advanced design.

We have been in this business since 1936. We know what it takes to clean clothes. Deep down between the fibres of your clothing—invisible to the naked eye—lie bacteria, pin worms, dirt, grease, and grime.

We could sponge off a few spots here and there, press it, and you probably wouldn't know the difference until your suit began to wear out and the fibres began to decay.

But we have a professional craftsman's pride in our work. We cannot and will not short cut our responsibility to give our customers quality cleaning and laundering, individually treated for each special requirement, to preserve their clothing as well as to give them a shining sharp clean look.

So, modernize your suit with a trip to College View. We will help you keep its fibres stronger longer.

Variety Of Books On Foreign Lands Are Added By Library

Though recently acquired non-fiction books at Sheppard Memorial Library are varied in subject matter, there seem to be several books about other lands and people which would enlighten the interested reader.

Others are "The Forest People" by Colin M. Turnbull, a book about the Pygmies of the Congo; "Japanese Floral Art" by Rachel E. Carr, symbolism, cult and practice; "The Politics of Totalitarianism" by John A. Armstrong, the Communist part of the Soviet Union from 1934 to the present.

A change of subject matter is to be found in several books on entertaining: "The Complete Book of Entertaining," Nata Lee's guide for every hostess with plans, charts and etiquette tips for parties from two to two hundred; "Good Housekeeping's Book of Home Entertainment" is an arsenal of fun for all people who like to entertain themselves and their friends.

Appreciative Of Support At Polls

Executive director of the N. C. Mental Health Association, Mrs. J. B. Spilman of Greenville today expressed appreciation to the more than 161,000 North Carolinians who voted for improvement of the mental hospitals program in last Tuesday's bond election.

"Our association has not yet had the time to study the matter completely," Mrs. Spilman explained, "but I do believe the volunteers leaders in our association across the state will want to continue their campaign to push for improved mental hospital facilities."

a glass of beer means many things

To those areas in the state which permit its "legal sale," beer is a symbol of relaxation at the end of a beautiful day's drive amid the scenic splendors of the dramatic Blue Ridge Mountains.

To most North Carolinians a glass of beer means a light refreshment of moderation, from the "legal sale" of which substantial tax revenues contribute to many needed and worthy county and municipal services.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market backed away from its best early gains and moved irregularly early this afternoon. Trading was active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .60 at 265.70 with industrials up .70, rails up .10 and utilities up .50.

Fractional gains or losses were general among key stocks. Some wider movements appeared.

The market's strong advance of last week was running into some technical resistance.

Although incoming orders for steel were reported improving, most steel shares were off slightly. A drop in copper prices in some world markets accompanied a generally lower trend among copper stocks.

Chemicals moved higher, some of the blue chips making substantial gains. Scattered buying boosted some electronics. Airlines drifted off while the picture was mixed for oils, rails, tobaccos, drugs, utilities and rubbers. Mail order-retail stocks were slightly higher.

Ford touched a new high with an early gain of around a point but pared the advance to a fraction. Chrysler fell about a point.

U.S. Steel dropped 3/4 to 79 on a 5,100-share transaction. Bethlehem was off about a point.

A 5-point climb by DuPont highlighted chemicals. Eastman Kodak rose 1 1/2 to 112 on 3,000 shares.

A 3-point jump by Beckman Instruments was a feature among electronics.

Thompson Co. fell 2 1/2 to 22 on 2,300 shares. General Foods gained more than 2. International Business Machines dropped 3 points.

Amerasia, up about 4, was a feature in the oils, most of which were narrowly mixed.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.38 at 726.21. This average reached a historical closing high of 726.53 on Sept. 7.

Prices were irregularly higher on the American Stock Exchange in moderately active trading.

Corporate bonds were mixed in quiet trading. U.S. government bonds eased.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Medical authorities hope to have new evidence today that will help to complete identification of the 77 victims of the crash of a flaming airliner carrying Army recruits.

Doctors at the Medical College of Virginia so far have identified 36 bodies in the temporary morgue. They include 34 of the 74 recruits killed in the crash and two of the three airplane crewmen.

Dr. H. H. Karnitschnig, acting chief medical examiner, said Army teams have been gathering additional information from the families of the Army recruits to aid in further identification.

The Imperial Airlines Constellation carrying the recruits to training at Ft. Jackson, S.C., crashed at the edge of Richmond's Byrd Airport Wednesday night. The airplane, with two engines dead and a third faltering, was attempting an emergency landing.

Seconds before the crash the pilot radioed that his third engine was going out and that he could not get his landing gear down.

Prices were irregularly higher on the American Stock Exchange in moderately active trading.

Corporate bonds were mixed in quiet trading. U.S. government bonds eased.
