Rayburn Family Begins Hospital Vigil; Speaker Losing Strength

Doctor Says His Patient Has Only Hours Or Days Left To Live

BONHAM, Tex. (AP)—Alarmed members of Sam Rayburn's family began a vigil Tuesday night at the hospital where the speaker of the House is losing strength to the ravages of cancer.

Dr. Joe A. Risser said Rayburn, 79, was severely weakened Tuesday morning and lost even more strength by late afternoon.

Rayburn's condition is critical. Dr. Risser said last Saturday night his patient had only "hours to days" to live.

The hospital's bulletin this morning said:

"Mr. Sam slept unusually soundly last night. Alertness diminished. No change in pulse or blood pressure. Condition still critical."

The speaker's sisters and brother—Mrs. W. A. Thomas of Dallas and Mrs. S. E. Bartley and Richard Rayburn of Bonham—visited the hospital Tuesday. They turned hurriedly—about the time Risser issued his 4:30 p.m. bulletin.

"The speaker has grown somewhat weaker since the last bulletin. Condition critical," Dr. Risser said.

The three took time out for dinner, then the sisters came back to the hospital and stayed. Richard Rayburn returned for a brief period.

Word that Rayburn was worse swept swiftly through this little north Texas town. Cars parked near the hospital. People peered at the dim light glowing through the drawn curtains of Rayburn's first-floor room at the Risser Hospital.

The pastor of the First Baptist Church, the Rev. Jack Carson, spent nearly an hour in the hospital. He said he had not been summoned but had been told by a friend of Rayburn that the speaker was worse.

As he left, the minister told reporters there apparently had been some improvement. Rayburn's administrative assistant, John Holton, told newsmen: "This is the fourth of these I've been through and he's come back each time. But he is weaker."

Pope, Protestant Leader In Talks

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John XXIII today received the presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, the Rt. Rev. Arthur Lichtenberger of New York.

The private audience later was described as "most cordial." It was the first meeting between a supreme ruler of the Roman Catholic Church and the head of the Episcopal Church in the United States.

The meeting followed the unprecedented visit of last December between the Pope and Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, then Archbishop of Canterbury and primate of the Church of England.

Both visits were described as courtesy calls. Bishop Lichtenberger is in Rome en route to New Delhi, India, to attend a meeting of the World Council of Churches.

After Pope John and Bishop Lichtenberger talked privately, members of the bishop's party were admitted to the meeting. In all it lasted 40 minutes and was described by the Vatican press office as "most cordial."

A spokesman for the bishop has said that the visit was "intended to reciprocate the attitude of good will and friendliness which the present Pope has always shown toward those who are seeking to promote the unity of all Christians."

Integration Vote Proposal Is Before Baptists

GREENSBORO (AP)—A proposal for Baptist churches of North Carolina to vote on racial integration of the denomination's colleges and churches was placed before the Baptist State Convention today.

The Rev. L. E. Dailey of Rt. 1, Ahsokie, a retired minister, put the motion before the convention as a convention committee recommended action to accept Negroes in colleges.

However, the convention put off debate and a decision until an afternoon session. The convention's Christian Life Committee recommended that the convention go on record urging churches to "seek God's will concerning our responsibility and opportunity to open the doors of worship, service and fellowship to all Christians regardless of race."

After the report was read and a motion offered that it be adopted, the Rev. Mr. Dailey made his substitute motion.

Vice President New President Of Philippines

MANILA (AP)—Vice President Diosdado Macapagal piled up an apparently insurmountable lead today in the Philippine presidential election and exultantly proclaimed, "We made it!"

With more than 60 per cent of the estimated seven million votes counted, unofficial returns gave Macapagal 2,695,110 to 2,081,667 for President Carlos P. Garcia.

Macapagal told newsmen, "The lead is such that any attempt to alter the results will fail." But he said that he would not issue a victory statement until Garcia concedes "in accordance with the usual practice."

Garcia, studying returns at his home on Bohol Island in the south central Philippines, sent word he was not conceding yet. But it seemed all but impossible for him to overtake Macapagal's lead.

Macapagal needed to take only about 800,000 more votes to win a majority and his lead was still widening.

With about 32,000 of the country's 41,000 precincts reported, Macapagal had 57 per cent of the votes to Garcia's 43 per cent.

The president's strongholds in the southern islands were generally giving him majorities but not nearly heavy enough to stem the Macapagal tide, which had been rising steadily since the first returns.

Macapagal's running mate, Emmanuel Pelaez, held a smaller lead in the vice presidential race over Sergio Osmena Jr.—1,796,928 to 1,609,038.

Garcia's running mate, Gil J. Puyat, lagged with 1,260,790.

It was the second time in two years the voters have turned thumbs down and noses up to the proposal. All but 235 of Gibsonville's 798 registered voters went to the polls.

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—The U.S. Air Force may establish a research station near Perth, western Australia, to study space disturbances and their effect on radio communications, Defense Minister Athol Townley announced today.

Clearing Site Of Industrial School

Clearing of the 30-acre site for the Pitt County industrial school to be located near Greenville on Highway 11 south, may be completed in ten more days, D. H. Conley, superintendent of Pitt County schools, said today.

Clearing of the site began about Sept. 15. So far, the undergrowth has been pushed down on four-fifths of the area and stumps have been pulled up and hauled away on one-half of the area.

In a report to the Pitt County Board of Education, S. F. Peterson of Ayden, who has been acting as agent in correlating the project, said that desirable trees have been left on the site and an east-west drive connecting Highway 11 and Secondary Road 1131 has been cleared on the north side of the land. All buildings have been removed from the site.

Conley said that on the south side of the site, where the major part of the clearing work remains to be done, agreement has been reached with Herschel Bowen to dedicate a 30-foot strip of land to be used as a road. It will be up to the architects to plan the road.

The architects planned to visit all industrial training centers now under construction in the state, as well as those already completed. They will inspect buildings, equipment, layouts, grounds, parking facilities and other facilities.

The industrial education training center in Pitt was the 20th and final one to be approved by the state for an indefinite period of time. Some 20 potential sites were reviewed before the H. L. Bowen property was selected for purchase at $1,000 an acre for 28.56 acres of land.

Big Brush Fire Is All But Out

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The second big brush fire in Southern California in a week is all but out.

Fire crews said only an occasional hot spot flares up in upper Kegel Canyon, where wind-whipped flames charred 2,365 acres and destroyed 10 structures.

The blaze was about 20 miles north of Los Angeles. Last week a fire in Bel-Air, Brentwood and Topanga Canyon areas destroyed 465 homes and blackened 14,000 acres.

December Draft Call For 16,000

WASHINGTON (AP)—A reduced draft call has been issued for December.

The Defense Department announced Tuesday that 16,000 men would be inducted for Army service next month. The total compares with 20,000 called in November, 20,000 in October and 25,000 in September.

The first half of next month's quota will report to induction stations by Dec. 8. The other half will report by Dec. 15.

Period Of Grace Is Running Out

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"The period of grace for the Communist party ends Monday," U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy says. After that, unless its leaders have a change of heart, party members will have to register as an arm of the Soviet Union, he told a news conference Tuesday.

Kennedy said the party's "leaders have announced they will defy the mandate of the Supreme Court. If they do, we will prosecute."

After 10 years, the court has sustained Section 13 of the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950 which, Kennedy said, means the party must disclose "the identity of its officers, give an accounting of where its money comes from, how it is spent and label its mailings and radio-television programs as Communist."

Two persons were being discussed as possible successors to Deane, a layman. They are the Rev. Nane Starnes of Asheville, president of the convention's General Board, and the Rev. George Simmons, pastor of the Wadesboro First Baptist Church.

During the opening session Tuesday, the Rev. Wilbur A. Hunsneycutt of Valdese called on the convention to begin implementing desegregation resolutions adopted in 1955 and 1960.

Negroes already attend the graduate school at the Baptists' Wake Forest College, and a Negro girl was admitted as a day student at Mars Hill College. She has withdrawn for private reasons, but plans to re-enter.

A resolution recommending the abolishment of capital punishment in North Carolina was sent to a committee for study Tuesday.

Military Regime Of South Korea Wins US Okay

WASHINGTON (AP)—South Korea's Gen. Chung Hee Park has President Kennedy's promise of U.S. aid "including the use of armed forces if there is a renewal of armed attack."

Kennedy assured Park that the United States would continue to extend all possible economic aid and cooperation for the further development of the nation for which U.S. troops fought a decade ago.

The pledge was also official approval for Park's military regime, which overthrew the U.S.-supported government six months ago.

The approval came Tuesday in a joint communique after Kennedy and Park held two meetings lasting about three hours.

The 44-year-old Korean leader was to confer today with three of Kennedy's Cabinet members—Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges.

The unsmiling Korean accomplished a double goal in his talks with Kennedy.

For the first time the President publicly declared "gratification at the many indications of progress" being made by Park's junta after it seized power last May 16 and ousted an elected government.

In addition, Kennedy pledged the U.S. government to "extend all possible economic aid and cooperation to the Republic of Korea in order to further long-range economic development."

Korean sources said that working groups of Korean and U.S. officials would consider detailed plans later.

Some Korean officials indicated they were disappointed that Kennedy had not committed the United States to a specific sum of money to back the new South Korean five-year economic development plan.

During their conversation, the communique said, Kennedy expressed his satisfaction with Park's promise to restore the government to civilian control as soon as possible.

Pitt Board In Ayden Meeting

AYDEN—Pitt County Development Commissioners and other county officials were scheduled to arrive here around 5 p.m. today for program preliminary to tonight's regular meeting of the economic development group here.

Town officials and Ayden's member of the Development Commission, Corey Stokes, planned to greet Ayden's guests at the local Community Building.

Before the 7:30 p.m. business session, a 6:30 dinner at the Community Building was scheduled.

Today's meeting of the commission here is the third in a recent series of meetings conducted in various communities in the county. Already visited by the 17-member industry-hunting body have been Grifton and Farmville in September and October.

Toss Rocks, Gas Over The Wall

BERLIN (AP)—East German police hurled barrages of tear gas and rocks over their wall into West Berlin during the night, West Berlin police reported today.

A bus in Bernauerstrasse, in the French sector, was damaged. West police said they didn't know what set the East Berliners off, but the West police quieted them by tossing five tear gas grenades over the wall.

West Strongly Opposing Asian-African Demand To Use Force In Congo Issue

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—An Asian-African demand for use of force to drive foreign mercenaries out of the Congo's Katanga Province was expected to run into strong Western opposition today.

The Security Council meets this afternoon to take up a resolution by Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic that would authorize acting Secretary-General U. Thant to use force if necessary to expel foreign fighting men hired by Katanga President Moise Tshombe's secessionist regime.

A new African outpost against Tshombe also was certain in the wake of a U.N. investigating committee's suggestion that former Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba was murdered last January, probably in the presence of high Katanga officials.

Britain and France were scheduled to take the floor at the outset of today's debate. They have reportedly joined the United States in opposing any council action that would direct U.N. forces to join the Congo army in an offensive against Katanga.

The West is seeking adoption of a milder resolution reaffirming support of the U.N. Congo command and urging negotiations to end the Katanga secession.

Informed sources said U. Thant is also against the use of force as a matter of principle and strongly favors using conciliation to deal with the crisis.

The three-nation resolution assailed Tshombe's insurgent stand and rapped his regime for taking armed action when U.N. forces seized key points in South Katanga last September. The resolution called on U. Thant to take necessary steps to prevent entry or return of mercenaries to Katanga and to stop the flow of arms to Tshombe's forces.

Congo Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko demanded here that the Belgian government close down its consulate in the Katanga capital of Elisabethville. He warned that henceforth his government would consider all consulate staff members as mercenaries serving Tshombe.

Bomboko demanded in a speech before the Security Council Monday that all mercenaries be turned over to the central government for trial and punishment.

The investigating commission's report on Lumumba's death was not directed to the Security Council, but it was considered certain to be brought into the council debate.

The commission said that the deaths of Lumumba and two associates probably were witnessed by Tshombe himself and two chief aides, Godofredo Munongo and Jean-Baptiste Kibwe.

It declared that leaders of the central government also must share responsibility since they turned Lumumba and his colleagues over to Katanga authorities "knowing full well that in doing so they were throwing them into the hands of their bitterest political enemies."

Qualified sources expressed fear that the rampaging troops were acting under the direction of Lumumbist leader Antoine Gizenga and that Gizenga was turning against Lumumba, nominally his supporter and friend, and Christophe Gbenye, a former ally now in the Leopoldville central government.

These sources said Gizenga is believed to be in Kindu giving directives to the Kindu garrison. The Italian airmen were taken prisoner shortly after arriving at the Kindu Airport. The U.N. reported Congolese troops fired at them and that they were beaten. The U.N. spokesman said the men are believed to be alive but the headquarters here has no details.

Neither the U.N. nor diplomatic analysts was willing so far to assign a specific cause to the mutiny.

Lumumba 'Heir' Directing Congolese Troop Mutiny

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Antoine Gizenga, the leftist former Premier Patrice Lumumba, has emerged into open and forceful defiance of the United Nations and the central Congo government, diplomatic informants said today.

Gizenga, said the sources, is directing the mutiny of more than 2,000 Congolese troops against the central government authority in Kindu, the Kivu provincial town north of the secessionist province of Katanga.

Other mutineers were reported to have created serious disorders in the north Katanga city of Albertville.

A U.N. spokesman said it intends to put down lawlessness in the two towns by force if necessary.

Diplomatic sources said the left-wing politician set himself up in Kindu last Saturday, leaving his former stronghold at Stanleyville in Oriental Province to onetime allies who now adhere to the Leopoldville government.

Gizenga, who once accepted the post of vice premier in Premier Cyrille Adoula's central government here, made his defiance open and apparently final Tuesday when he forced two of his former allies, Gen. Victor Lundula and Christophe Gbenye, out of Kindu in fear of their lives.

Mutinous soldiers at Kindu refused to hand over 13 Italian airmen they had arrested and beaten Saturday.

Lundula and Gbenye had gone to Kindu to get the Italians freed. "The situation continues to cause grave concern," the U.N. spokesman said.

From the north Katanga town of Albertville, the United Nations reported about 100 Congolese troops entered the city and within seven hours Tuesday created an "impossible" situation.

Orders were sent to the Indian U.N. contingent at Albertville to intervene to halt "mutinous and lawless acts," by force if negotiation proved fruitless.

A U.N. spokesman said the troops in Albertville arrested Europeans and Africans, looted houses, erected a roadblock in the town and tried to extort

Action On Ayden CD Headquarters Approved

AYDEN—The mayor and town manager of Ayden were authorized this week to prepare plans and secure bids on a structure which could house the town and Civil Defense radios and help insure continuity of government in case of nuclear attack.

Officially, Ayden became the first municipality in the county to begin plans for such a fallout shelter for its town government.

The authorization came Monday night as commissioners discussed the matter at the Town Board's monthly meeting. Mayor S. F. Peterson and Town Manager Cleveland Paylor will begin work on the project immediately, it was learned.

In other business pertaining to shelters, the board agreed to waive fees in connection with building permits covering fallout shelters.

Girl Watched Murder-Suicide

JONESVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Officers say Jake Lawson, 68, of Rt. 1, Jonesville shot his 39-year-old wife to death with a .12 gauge shotgun and then killed himself Tuesday, as a 16-year-old niece looked on.

Yadkin County Sheriff Orville Brown said no motive for the shooting has been uncovered. He said the investigation is continuing.

Cyclone Left At Least 190 Dead

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP)—Beleated reports from Pacific Coast villages flattened by a cyclone brought word of at least 190 dead Tuesday night.

Authorities said the toll probably would rise still when communications are restored along a 120-mile stretch north of Acapulco when the storm roared ashore last weekend.

There were no Americans listed among the known dead.

Space Probe Is Failure Today

POINT ARGUELLO, Calif. (AP)—A four-stage rocket carrying living matter toward the earth's dangerous radiation belt failed today.

"Instrumentation indicates that the first-stage booster impacted on land about a half mile from the coastline," said a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"There was no damage to property that we can ascertain" he added.

The isolated area is mostly ranch land.

A Navy spokesman added: "We don't have the exact impact position. The rocket malfunctioned and veered off course. The flight objective was not achieved."

He said the capsule and upper three stages evidently went to sea and were lost.

The capsule was crammed with bits of living matter including fresh-drawn human blood.

The 88-pound package also included a device designed to capture and bring back to earth for the first time tiny bits of space dust known as micrometeoroids.

Plans called for the capsule, code-named BIOS for Biological Investigations of Space to shoot 1,165 miles into space and then parachute into the ocean 1,300 miles west of here.

U.S. space agency scientists expected the experiment to tell them how badly space radiation can damage living cells, and whether weightlessness has any effect on two basic life functions: eating and reproduction.

The 17-by-19-inch capsule, containing 38 small parcels, was carried on the nose of a 62-foot-tall, four-stage solid-propellant Argo D8 rocket.

Report Progress Of N.C. Harvest

RALEIGH (AP)—Good progress was made in crop harvesting in North Carolina last week, the North Carolina Crop Reporting Service said today.

Statewide, about 65 per cent of the corn crop and 90 per cent of the cotton crop has been harvested.

More than half of the state's soybean and lespedeza for seed acreages have been harvested, while better than half of the peanut crop has been threshed.

Statewide, most soils were reported dry or very dry for the week ending Saturday. Scattered showers improved soil moisture levels in mountain and some western Piedmont areas.

'Freedom, Security' Dr. Steelman's Topic

FARMVILLE — The November meeting of the Major Benjamin May chapter DAB, was held in the chapter house, Saturday with Mrs. Robert Fennell of Greenville, Mrs. E. C. Holmes and Mrs. W. E. Joyner as hostesses.

The regent, Miss Elizabeth Lang, called the meeting to order, extended a cordial welcome to members and guests, and led the assembly in repeating the American's Creed and the Pledge of Allegiance. The Star Spangled Banner was sung with Mrs. John B. Wright, Jr., as accompanist.

Mrs. G. Alex Rouse, chaplain, gave the meditation, reading as the Scriptural reference, Isaiah 2: 4, and touching on the significance of Veterans Day and Thanksgiving.

Featuring the program was a comprehensive and enlightening address on the subject of "Freedom and Security" by Dr. Lallah Steelman, a member of the faculty of East Carolina College, department of Social Studies.

The speaker compared the three choices facing mankind today—survival rather than nuclear warfare, which would amount to surrender to the enemy; nuclear warfare as preferable to loss of freedom even at the cost of extinction of human life; the difficult middle ground of co-existence with Russia, ever fraught with peril and never ending preparations militarily for global war.

Dr. Steelman discussed the reasons why freedom flourished in America during the 18th and 19th centuries under the heads—geographical situation, economics and institutional — the last two named relating to "power diffused rather than concentrated." She pointed out the changes of recent years which have necessarily brought about differences in the provision by the government of economic, internal and national security through stimulation, legislation and other measures.

In closing the speaker warned that some loss of freedom would come with the stimulation of the public sector of the economy. She declared that "people will lose their right to spend their earnings as they please." "But," she said, "we must remember that more of the family dollar may have to go to education and less to new automobiles. In other words, people may have to pay more taxes. But as Justice Holmes said, "With taxes I buy civilization." However, the loss of this right is necessary to the preservation of other and more important freedoms."

Dr. Steelman was introduced by Mrs. Fennell.

During the business session, Mrs. C. H. Mazing reported on the fall Crossnore projects; Mrs. Jack Lewis on conservation activities within the state society; Christmas cheer to be provided by the chapter for veteran hospitals was discussed; Miss Tabitha DeVisconti made announcements relating to the celebration of the Bicentennial organization of Pitt County now underway in Greenville, and the regent read chapter bylaws relating to balloting.

Mrs. Ellen Lewis Carroll, membership chairman and Miss DeVisconti conducted the balloting on new members, which resulted in the unanimous acceptance of applications by Mrs. S. C. Bradford, Mrs. Gordon Lee, of Farmville, and Mrs. Troy W. Rouse, of Greenville.

Following adjournment, the hostesses served minicent tarts topped with cream, cheese straws, salted nuts and coffee. The chapter house was artistically decorated with arrangements of hand-some chrysanthemums and roses.

Special guests were, Mrs. J. Joyner, Mrs. Arthur F. Joyner, Mrs. Jalma Bynum and Mrs. H. D. Johnson. Out-of-town members in attendance were from Norfolk, Va., Wilson and Greenville.

Girls Find Satisfaction In 'Adopting' Grandmothers

By HENRIETTE KISH
NEW YORK (WNS)—When is a granddaughter not a granddaughter? It could be when she's one of a group of Camp Fire Girls who has "adopted" you.

An adopted grandmother usually has no family, or at least any relatives close enough to pay regular visits. Often she is in an old age or nursing home. Or she may live completely alone.

Sometimes she is the only grandmother a girl has. Some-times there is a real grandmother who lives too far away to visit.

Frequently the Camp Fire Girls adopt a whole group of grandmas. These adopted relatives serve a twofold purpose. They provide older friends the girls can do things for, and with whom they can share experiences. They offer a living understanding of old age—its needs and desires, and even more important, its limitations.

This country-wide program wisely stresses the "with" rather than the "for" the teen-oldest relationships. In one city, the Camp Fire Girls joined the members of a Golden Age Club and helped make rag dolls for needy youngsters. All worked together on the project.

Oldsters often miss a little party-going. When a party comes to them it can put some fun in their lives. It can also mean they are not forgotten.

Every community has its share of older people who have been pushed aside by life. They are lonely and their days could be considerably brightened by the attention of a younger, more active person.

They like to hear about school, to talk over problems. They may cluck their tongues at some teenage slang, but secretly they enjoy it.

One group of Camp Fire Girls has adopted an 87-year-old woman. She has so little strength that only two girls can visit her at a time, and then only for a short while. The friendship and interest of these girls is the one bright spot in her life. "She always wants to hear about school," one girl said. "She makes sure I'm doing well in class."

The girls become so genuinely interested in their adopted grandmother that they write when on vacation, call up occasionally when at home, bring their friends to call. They send Christmas cards, valentines and birthday cards.

They are proving every day that the gap between age and youth is not too wide to be bridged by friendship. And that bringing happiness to their adopted grandmothers is a two-way street. They frequently get as much as they give.

Impact Of Home-Grown Industries

North Carolina's program of economic improvement over the past decade has centered around attracting new industries to move into the state, construct manufacturing plants and provide new jobs for Tar Heels.

Ask the average man how North Carolina has been able to realize its gains, and he will tell you the state has sold industrialists in other areas of the country on what North Carolina has to offer.

To a great extent this is true, but it is not the entire picture by a long shot.

Look around most communities of North Carolina that have enjoyed a part of the overall economic growth, and you will see that in addition to the industries that have been attracted from other areas, or new plants of corporations from other parts of the country, there are also many new, mostly small, home grown industries.

Although North Carolina and its communities must continue their efforts to sell outsiders on the benefits of locating new plants in this state, it seems to us that considerable more effort could be profitably spent in the development of home-grown industries within our borders.

North Carolina and other southern states no longer er have to depend upon capital from the North to finance new ventures the way they did even a couple of decades ago. We no longer have to depend entirely upon other states in other sections of the country to furnish skilled management and skilled labor to handle complex businesses and perform complicated tasks. In recent years great strides have been made in North Carolina and throughout the South not only in the development of venture capital, but likewise in the training of skilled management people and skilled workers.

It is true in most cases that the home-grown industry which begins operations is considerably smaller than the operation which may be attracted from some other area. It is also true that the financial statement of the new home-grown company may not be nearly as impressive as that of the outside corporation which is considering building a new plant. In all probability the new home-grown industry will not bring into a community as many new families as a plant of comparable size owned by some out-of-state corporation.

In the final analysis, however, the economic growth of North Carolina at the moment is primarily a matter of providing more and better jobs for the people we already have living in the various communities. It is wonderful when new families are brought in to fill new jobs, but this is the frosting on the cake.

Communities throughout the state have done a good job, on the whole, in boosting their own economic development through attracting new industries. For the most part, however, they have not placed a comparable effort on developing small industries of the home-grown variety which likewise offer significant potential.

Few if any communities in North Carolina can afford to lessen the effort being put toward attracting new industries, but most communities could well afford to invest more of their time and effort—and money too—in creating more smaller industries of their own to take their place beside larger plants moving in from other areas.

A Difference In Ideal And Reality

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Korean general who flew here to see President Kennedy is a symbol of the difference between an American ideal and the reality in the backward nations this country is trying to keep out of communism.

The ideal would be to see them spring full-blown out of the darkness of colonialism and feudalism into democratic systems like this one. The reality in many places is quite different.

Gen. Chung Hee Park, 44, heads a 28-man military junta which runs Korea as a dictatorship—for the time being, at least—after throwing out the elected government of John M. Chang.

The democratic system wasn't working. Korea was riddled with poverty, graft, corruption despite the enormous American aid it was given. The U. S. aid got largely lost in the graft and corruption.

It was only six months ago that Park's group of military officers thrust aside Chang's government. That was last May.

Chang had been elected the previous August as the successor to Syngman Rhee.

Rhee, 84, supported by this country, had been elected by so-called democratic processes.

Those processes were called something altogether different by Koreans, particularly students, when they rioted against Rhee in the spring of 1960.

They screamed that the elections were crooked. They were sick of the corruption and Rhee's repressions. They threw him out.

Park and his group felt that

Rhee's successor, Chang, after eight months had failed to improve things.

So they took over. Now they have American backing. Last August they promised to hold power only two years more before turning the government over to civilian authorities. How are they doing?

Almost a month ago The Associated Press reported out of Seoul:

Park's major problems are unchanged—factionalism within the 28-man ruling group, nationwide business stagnation and the danger of inflation. Division within the junta is deep and in olives provincial loyalties, military academy classes, and family ties.

The generals and colonels have a gigantic farm problem. Sixty per cent of the 23 million South Koreans live through farming. Most farmers exist by borrowing on next year's crop and paying interest rates of up to 100 per cent a year.

The junta is trying to correct this. The junta is anti-Communist—the United States can take some consolation from this—but communism is sitting just across the doorstep in North Korea.

If Park and his men fail to get the country on its feet—or plunge into civil war because of disputes among themselves—what then?

One of the major questions of our time is: What chance does any country, lying near a Communist stronghold, have of staying out of communism unless there is an insistence on reforms that will make it more attractive than communism?

Opinions In Brief

"How much are you paying for that loaf of bread at the supermarket? 21 cents? Or maybe you're very thrifty and buy two for 41 cents? Well, you're still getting the short end of the deal. There are 151 separate taxes on that loaf of bread. So the next time you visit the supermarket and casually lift a neatly-wrapped loaf off the shelf, just remember you're not only feeding your family, you're feeding Uncle Sam." —Metropolis (Ill.) News.

"Talking about the transportation of the nation there are some unionists suggesting the socialization of the entire transportation industry: trains, trucks, aircraft, boats, buses or what have you. That would really be fun! fun! fun! No government yet has ever made a success of anything they stuck their nose in including the utilities, transportation, mail service or any other service." —Random Lake (Wisc.) Times.

"Many a politician lives to wish he had observed the Chinese axiom: It is better to keep one's mouth closed and be thought a fool than to open it and remove all doubt." —Norwalk (Conn.) Hour.

"What this country needs is dirtier fingernails and cleaner minds." —Will Rogers.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

CONCRETE MINDS

Someone has said that too many minds are like concrete—all mixed up and permanently set.

Firmness of conviction is a virtue well to be cultivated. The wishy-washy variety of individualism is a disservice to his generation and a pestiferous influence without which the world could get along very well. But those who arrive at decisions hurriedly, who are influenced in these decisions by prejudice or background, and who take their stand whether or no, are of the variety which kills the happiness of homes, breaks up friendships, and arouses animosity.

We have had occasion often to remind ourselves that life is primarily a matter of balance.

Our planet is held on its orbit by well balanced forces. We walk erect because of physiological processes which enable us to perform this rather astonishing feat unconsciously.

William James, the philosopher, used to say that we never get enough of anything without getting too much of it. There is no virtue-in the world which cannot be overdone. There is no good policy which does not become a bad policy if pushed too far.

It would be well for all of us to cultivate the capacity for quick and firmly held decisions. But once made, these decisions, unless they are to become liabilities to us, must be capable of amendment and change.

Avoid the concrete mind which is all mixed up and permanently set. It can do you and your generation infinite harm.

Wig As Status Symbol

NEW YORK (AP) — Max Miller has a simple goal.

"I want President Kennedy to wear a fashion wig," he said.

"That would start the ball rolling, the same way it did with George IV of England and Louis XIII of France.

"The Cabinet officers would follow suit, then the lobbyists.

"Soon millions of red-blooded American men would be wearing beautiful high-fashion wigs. Their wives would fall back in love with them. The wholesome loving atmosphere in all those homes would put an end to juvenile delinquency, alcoholism and the television habit."

Miller, at 43 the owner of a flourishing mop of hair that makes him his own worst customer, is the dynamic head of one of the oldest and largest wig firms in the world.

The hairpiece business is now about a $50 million a year industry in this country, and getting bigger all the time.

The bald truth of the matter, according to Miller, is that some three million American women now wear fashion wigs and some 400,000 to 600,000 men protect their scalps from sunburn, rain, snow and ill-natured laughter with toupees, also known in the trade as "toppers."

It is his opinion—well, anyway, his hope—that the fashion wig again will become a status symbol among men, as it already is among many women.

"George Washington wore a fashion wig," he said. "So did Ben Franklin and Thomas Jefferson. Would you call them sissies?"

"Actually this is the second era of American history when the wig has been a status symbol.

"In Colonial America wigs were symbols of status—but as worn by husbands not wives. You could gauge a colonist's station in life by the repertoire of wigs he owned.

"The wealthy landowner might possess a dozen. The shopkeeper would have two—one for every day, one for Sundays. The blacksmith probably owned but one, while the indentured servant hid his hair from the contemptuous regard of their be-wigged betters."

A modern women's wig today costs from $200 to $700, a man's topper from $181 to $250. They last from two to three years, and can be sent out to be cleaned and dressed for $450.

Feminine wigs contain from 250,000 to 300,000 hairs, male toupees about 140,000.

The world hair buying center is Palermo, Sicily, and the greatest source of supply is the Italian woman peasant. The price ranges all the way from $50 a pound for straight black hair to $400 a pound for pure white or red hair, the colors in scant supply.

So far, Miller's letters to the White House suggesting that President Kennedy launch a new fashion in male wigs have gone unanswered. He is considering whether Soviet Premier Khrushchev might be a more interested prospect, and would be glad to furnish the premier with a free hairpiece as a starter.

"A nice crewcut toupee might help him get rid of his inferiority complex and give him more self-confidence," said Miller. "Anyway, it's worth a try."

Other Editors Saying... Predicting The End

(Henderson Dispatch)

Asian astrologers in Malaya are predicting the end of the world next February 2. So if you believe in their art, or ability to read the future by means of stargazing, or whatever, you needn't worry about Berlin, Khrushchev or fallout. Just prepare for the final consumption and await the doom of humanity.

"Phooey! This isn't the first time some group has come up with a pinpointed date on which everything will blow up and man and time will be no more upon the earth.

Astrology is as old as recorded history. As far back as ancient Babylon there were those who professed to super-natural knowledge about the heavenly bodies and their relation to this mundane sphere. They tried their hand at interpreting old Nebuchadnezzar's dream but couldn't. Now, in this modern era, no one will become unduly excited about what these gentry predict for the future. They could be correct in their forecast, but not because of what they profess to see in the star-studded Universe.

Some will remember that back in 1914 a religious sect said the end would come that year, and when World War I broke they thought they had a firm foundation on which to stand. But nothing happened—except the most terrifying and catastrophic struggle mankind had experienced up to that time. There were those also who thought something was in the cards at the time of the last global conflict; but mankind emerged to return to something like normal.

The people who make these forecasts may or may not rest any faith in what the Bible says in quoting Jesus himself, who came from God and spoke with authority. He said no man, not even himself, knew when affairs would be wound up upon the earth; that no one except the Almighty himself held the secret. These things could come at any moment, day or night, before the sun goes down this day—or next week or month or year, or a thousand years hence.

The Malayan astrologers base their prediction upon the fact, as they put it, that seven planets will be in conjunction on February 2, and that night the moon enters the same house of Capricorn, whatever that is. Any astrologer claims that is bad, and it might be; we wouldn't profess to any inside knowledge on the subject.

When some cataclysmic event transpires, something may come about that has never been known before and which cannot be contemplated short of stretching the imagination. That could be the night of next February 2. At least that's groundhog day, and we would as soon abide by that superstition as what the astrologers propound.

These stargazers forecast floods, earthquakes, war in the Himalayas, and collapse of the United Nations. But floods and quakes occur ever so often. War in the mountainous country of central Asia already has been carried out on a modest scale, and the U. N. is in about the most threatening status of its history. But the world, tossed about by nuclear blasts, hatred, ill will, covetousness, ambition, is still here.

The end may come on the date the astrologers have named. But if so it won't be because of what they read in the stars. It will be in the providence of Almighty God. This much we can all believe.

Rights And The Wrongs

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

All over the world, people are living longer and youth is pushing harder. The younger people want their place in the sun and the older people do not want to be relegated to porch-sitting. In fact, for most of our population, there are no porches; there are no rockers; in chair stores, there are no creaker barrels; and in the big cities, even the barber shops have been taken by young and pulchritudinous ladies who hold one's hand and with whom one more easily converses than with the barber.

The very young talk about their rights. No one takes them to the wood-shed to be spanked. Who has a wood-shed? And what parent knows how to spank so that it hurts him more than it hurts the boy?

One of the major rights of the very young, until they get bored with it, is to watch television. Perhaps one reason that our children do not know how to spell, or read, or write is because they watch television while they do their home-work and as everybody is passed to prevent him from becoming a juvenile delinquent, it is not essential to know too much to get on.

Joseph C. Brochek of San Diego has written to me learnedly on the wickedness of brats. He apparently knows the youngsters well, having suffered much at their hands. He says:

"Your insipid thought that parents could control what they want shown by throwing a coin in the slot is suggestive of the complete lack of control by parents over even the most trivial actions of their offspring. Did your old man ever have to lock himself in the bathroom so the kids would not muscle in on his can of beer? Our parents' popular after-supper sport being a game of 66 cards, did that divert me from home work, violin practice, or other tedious obligations for my parents' feeding and clothing me? And as for the little darlings, did you ever see a youngster who had been deprived from the older folks' objective in program selecting, they would, in our opinion, merely say: 'Move over dad, I can't see from here! Or, should mom or dad have the termerity to demand that they remove themselves from the premises, the kids probably, their pockets being well-lined with 'allowance,' make up T. V. parties and gang up somewhere to collectively feed the 'Tellyes' as they now do the Juke Boxes. And we, who prefer to recall the days of our youth by viewing Westerns and similar 'He-man shows' instead of the maudlin moans, groans and whining of so-called singers, could sit around and comfort ourselves with knitting."

Well said, of course. But the solution is a television in every room. The girls no longer need to watch mother cook. They can get the pre-fabricated stuff which is so well-packaged that it makes the refrigerator look like the decorations on a Christmas tree. Nobody needs to know how to make a cake; she can buy a mix. And to tell the truth—if one has no memory of what grandmother's cakes were like, the mix actually tastes better than sweetie's efforts which somehow come out wrong so often.

Brother Brochek is too optimistic about what the youngsters would do if they were not permitted to watch murders at home. The kids would not spend their allowances on television parties, figuring that the stuff is OK if free but is not to be paid for. They might go back to the good old days of the movies where one could sit in Stygian darkness in palatial surroundings and neck to one's hearts content without parental supervision. Is necking worse than murder?

The moral of my tale is really what Brochek is writing about. Parents should control children until the children can control themselves, which may be never in such a world as ours. Nowadays everybody looks to Russia for perfection in education, but the Russians have their problems, too. Their kids, having achieved international equality by throwing bombs, are becoming hooligans which makes more sense than joining the Komsomol whence comes

'Mrs. Kilroy' Just Isn't Buying

By ELMER ROESSNER

Mrs. Kilroy, won't you come out and buy something?

That's the unuttered plea of American retailers today.

The failure of Mrs. Kilroy and other American consumers to spend more money is one of the greatest puzzles of business at the moment.

The economy is fattening. Employment is 2,520,000 more than it was last January; unemployment is 1,300,000 less. Total personal income is at an annual rate of more than $17 billion higher than at the start of the year.

and momma stores across the country, everyone is asking: "Why isn't Mrs. Kilroy buying?" Kilroy is working steadier, judging from employment figures. The family income is sweeter, judging from income statistics. But sales, although rising, are not keeping pace.

Some merchandisers profess to be unworried. The coming Christmas excitement will open purses and new installment accounts, they say. They point to the fact that there has been a rise in the purchase of autos, notably in the luxury models. Now that father has started buying, oh winds, if Christmas comes, will he be far behind?

WHERE THE MONEY GOES
Since more income is flowing in to more people, what's happening to it? Why don't retail sales escalate as income does? There are many reasons.

1. People are saving more. Bank interest rates are rising;

New York State has authorized higher returns. Saving money attracts more people at 4 or more per cent than it did at less than 3.

2. People are spending more for services, less for goods. Realization of that phenomenon has been growing for months. People are spending more for medical expenses and insurance; more for preparation of foods and less for the foods; much more for transportation; more for education; more for beauty, more for corn cure and a thousand other services—including telephones, Swedish massages, eyelash curling and racing tips.

3. People are speculating more. Buying stocks and bonds is increasing rapidly, for many reasons. Inflation, breathing down all our backs, is causing many to spend less on goods and services and more on stocks.

The overhanging threat of the atomic bomb, constantly stressed by the government, is causing ing many to strive to live it up while life is left, and to take chances on the stock market. PEOPLE ARE CANDY

4. The biggest reason of all may be the fact that Mrs. Kilroy and her husband (a veteran, of course) are becoming more sophisticated shoppers. There are no communal struggles to get scarce cars, television sets and freezers as there were a few years ago. So the Mrs. Kilroys take their time about replacements, shopping the department stores and discount houses and postponing purchases if they think prices will weaken next week.

Perhaps, merchants hope, Christmas buying will break the dollar jam.

It may. It has been written here that the Christmas sales will hit a new high and there is no reason to revise that estimate. Meanwhile, retailers face the old problem: making goods more attractive than dollars saved.

Focus On Health

Intelligence, a new technique to avoid scars from burns, and healthy executives figure in the medical news:

INTELLIGENCE ENDURES
When older people stay healthy and vigorous, there does not appear to be any decline in their intelligence with the advancing years, says Dr. Robert W. Kleemier, Washington University psychologist.

He gave intelligence tests at intervals over a 12-year period to persons aged 65 to 90. He found no evidence for the idea there is a normal and steady intellectual decline with the years. But in those who were soon to die, regardless of age, the tests revealed a sharp drop in performance.

BURNS WITHOUT SCARS
For severe burns, a Belgian plastic surgeon uses a bold new technique which he reports avoids scars and deformities.

Under anesthesia, Dr. Jean Lorthor of Brussels "sandpapers" the burned areas immediately with a high-speed abrasive drill to remove the dead tissue. A month after the scraping, the skin has been restored, and in nearly all cases it eliminates any scarring, says Medical World News.

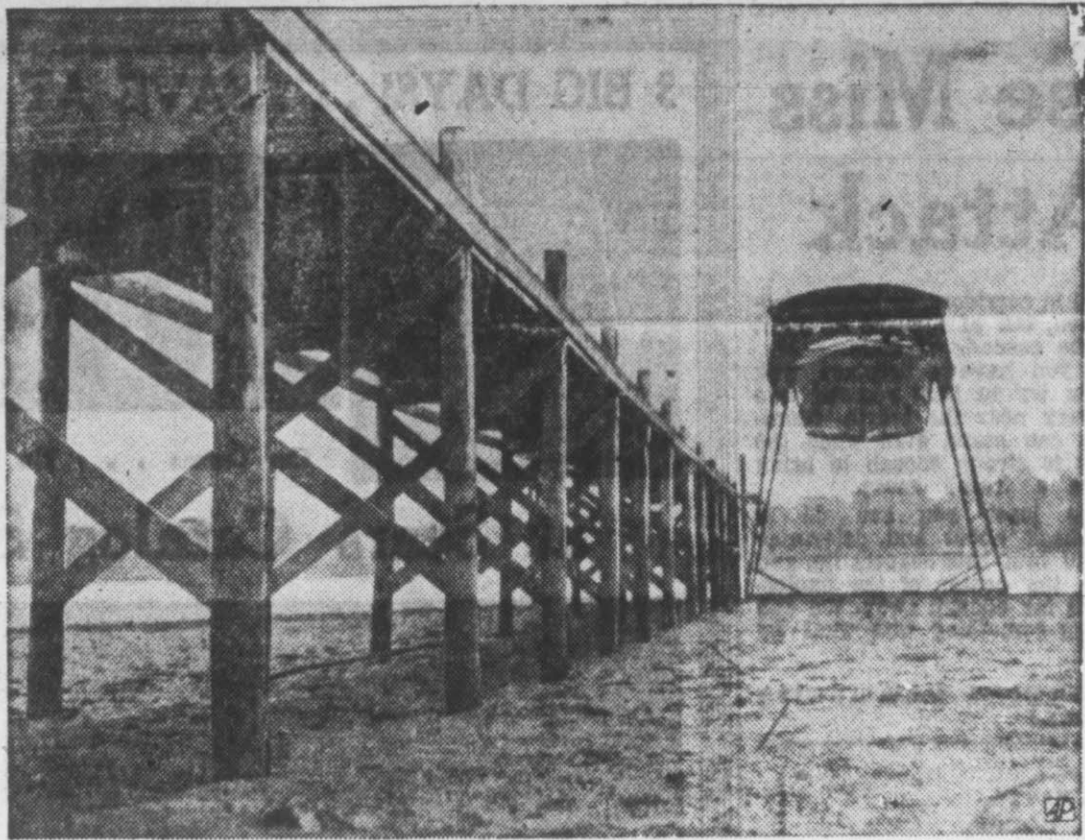

TELL-TALE HELMET
Head and neck injuries are causing an increasing percentage of the deaths occurring among football players.

causes, two Northwestern University faculty members plan to put tiny measuring instruments and a radio inside a player's helmet, to radio back data on what happens during impact, and what happens to the brain activity of a man in an actual game. The experiment is being devised by Dr. Stephen Reid, team physician and James Asgaard, assistant professor of electrical engineering.

HEALTHY EXECUTIVES
Popularly, the business executive is thought of as a "harried and hurried man driven inexorably toward an early death." But this concept is not supported by findings by Robert H. Thorne, M. P. H., and E. L. Crumpacker, M. D., of Washington, D. C., in a 10-year study of 451 male executives.

The executives had less than half the death rate expected among the general white male population of comparable age. A main cause of 11 deaths among the businessmen was heart attacks, but even their heart attack rate did not seem excessive. A high standard of living and good medical care apparently help executives live longer than the average man.

CHURCH APPOINTMENT
BOSTON (AP)—Rev. Raymond C. Hopkins, minister of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Brockton, Mass., has been named the first executive vice president of the Unitarian Universalist Association.

LEFT HIGH AND DRY—When the level of Lake Decatur in Illinois was lowered by three feet, this craft was left hanging in its hoist at end of a land-surrounded dock. Other boats were grounded by maneuver used to aid construction of a bridge.

Advise Continuing Aid To Yugoslavia

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Security Council likely will recommend that the United States continue selling surplus wheat to Communist Yugoslavia, informants said today.

But, they said, Marshal Tito didn't help his own case.

At Skopje on Monday, he criticized what he called American reactionaries and capitalists and accused them of hindering the sale of wheat to his drought-ridden country for political purposes.

Tito's speech did not surprise Yugoslav specialists here. The Yugoslav president, they said, is not the man who could bear in silence the increased U.S. criticism of various U.S.-Yugoslav deals, such as the sale to Belgrade of obsolete jets and atomic reactors.

President Kennedy has ordered a review of the U.S. aid program to Yugoslavia in the wake of the Belgrade conference of nonaligned countries last September. Washington, who professes to be independent, supported Soviet policy at the conference.

The National Security Council is expected to complete its review of the Yugoslav situation by the end of this month.

Despite its disappointment with some of Tito's public statements, the Kennedy administration feels it should continue aid to Yugoslavia, informants said.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk told a news conference in October that U.S. aid programs "are not designed to purchase agreement with us." The basic purpose of American aid is, Rusk said, "to strengthen the efforts of recipient countries to maintain their independence and national sovereignty."

In April and in July, the United States sold $64 million worth of surplus agricultural products to Yugoslavia for Yugoslav currency. About half of it was 500,000 tons of wheat which reached Yugoslavia a few weeks ago.

At the end of July Yugoslavia submitted a new request for a million tons of wheat. The request, the State department announced Tuesday, is still under consideration.

Barring A Direct Hit Or Close Miss You Can Survive An Atomic Attack

By PROF. WILLARD F. LIBBY

So far, we've been talking about protection which could save many millions of lives from fallout radiation.

What about the terrific blast loosed by H-bombs? What about the super-bomb with which Premier Khrushchev has been threatening us?

Your fallout shelter provides some protection. The stronger the shelter—and the farther from the center of the bombing—the better. Fallout shelters are especially good against marginal blast effect, at the outer area of the circle blast destructiveness.

But let no one deceive himself. If you are right under or very near the center of a bomb exploding on the ground, there is no hope. Direct ground hits will dig huge craters, perhaps collapsing all but the deepest and strongest underground shelters there. It will produce total destruction in all directions for at least two or three miles. Destructive blast waves could speed out for miles to shake or blow down houses.

You shouldn't panic unreasonably at Khrushchev's talk of a 100-megaton bomb.

Assume a one-megaton bomb. That means one equal to one million tons of TNT, or 50 times more powerful than the Hiroshima bomb.

The one-megaton bomb could wreck houses four miles away.

A 10-megaton bomb would wreck houses eight miles away, and bring down some frames houses ten miles distant. Notice it would NOT reach out 10 times farther than the one-megaton bomb.

Even a Hole Helps

A 100-megaton bomb, such as Khrushchev has mentioned would wreck houses 20 miles away—only five times as far as the one-megaton bomb.

Obviously your chances of surviving blast depend on where you are within or outside the circle of blast effects, and the size of weapon.

Shelters guaranteeing everyone against blast are impossible. Really good closeup blast shelters are very expensive, almost to the point of impracticability for most families. Even fairly near the center, you would have good protection with a buried shelter built of concrete, but it would cost $3,000 to $5,000.

An outdoor shelter consisting of a hole in the ground could provide relatively good blast protection.

Indoors, a shelter of concrete blocks in the basement could withstand blast at reasonable distances from the center of a bomb, even if your house came tumbling down.

A basement fallout shelter with walls of concrete two feet thick could resist pressure of 10 pounds per square inch which is more than enough to blow a house down. For that contingency, you need axe, pick and shovel to dig yourself out.

Plans for sturdy fallout shelters which also give some anti-blast insurance are available from your local office of Civil Defense.

Everyone Can Do Something

Once more I want to emphasize that if you are caught outdoors in a bombing, throw yourself flat. Duck into a culvert or ditch, or behind some solid protection if it is available. You can at least gamble you will be far enough from the center not to be killed by blast.

And remember, the blast effect hurries all kinds of objects about, like a tornado. If you remain standing, you could be hit and killed by such debris. If you are at home or office when a bomb exploded without any warning, duck instantly away from windows. Windows can blow in, transformed suddenly into a hail of sharp, dangerous slivers of glass. This would happen at distances beyond that at which frame houses would be knocked about or down.

Many Japanese victims were badly or fatally cut by flying glass. In Civil Defense tests with A-bombs in Nevada, mannequins sitting in a living room were actually riddled with glass. Others escaped because they were in corridors, or behind protection, out of the line of flight of the cascade of glass.

If you have a fireplace you might try to fling yourself into or very near the hearth. Chimneys can stand even when the blast is strong enough to bring down a frame house.

The least you can do is to check about and determine where your best chances lie, and hope the center of the explosion is far enough away. We can all do something with what we have.

(Tomorrow: Community shelters.)

Pitt Group To Attend Bible Training Course

Several persons from Greenville and Pitt County are leaving Friday to spend three days in Washington, N. C., attending an advanced Bible training course of Jehovah's Witnesses, November 17-19.

The course is to be held in the John Small School and is expected to draw more than 600 persons from some 20 counties in eastern Carolina.

"Education is being stressed more and more by all nations," declared W. R. Nichols, local Witness, "and Jehovah's Witnesses are no different. Since the 1870's the Watchtower Society of New York, world directive agency for Jehovah's Witnesses, has been directing an intensive educational program in the Bible."

Nichols said, "By applying Bible rules of conduct written down long before today's rise in juvenile delinquency, Jehovah's Witnesses have successfully halted any growth of delinquency in their own ranks."

He said the entire three days will be designed to follow the theme of the assembly, "Assist one another to do God's Will." Assemblies such as this one in Washington play a large part in the educational training of the Witnesses and this assembly actually is an enlargement of the weekly program held each week in the more than 21,000 Kingdom Halls throughout the world, according to Nichols.

Highlight of the Bible course comes on Sunday when Rutherford G. Sakatos, Watchtower official from New York, lectures on "Uniting Men in a Split-Up World." This course is open to the public free all three days.

Mr. Sakatos will be in Greenville Thursday, 16th, to show a movie of the huge "Divine Will International Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses" held in New York's Yankee Stadium and Polo Grounds at the same time in 1958. On the last day 253,922 assembled together. During the week 7,136 were baptized. Scenes of this gigantic assembly will be shown free at the Kingdom Hall on the Falkland Highway 2 miles from Greenville at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The public is invited to attend.

Choir Makes Its 1st Appearance

The Teenage Community Choir made their first public appearance Sunday afternoon at the first anniversary of the North Carolina Joint Council on Health and Citizenship at Eppes High School.

The choir of 60 boys and girls is a community organization that includes all the churches in Greenville, the Eppes Glee Club and Band.

Dr. Andrew A. Best recently appointed this group as the official North Carolina Joint Council Choir. The choir will accompany Dr. Best on various speaking engagements.

Officers are: Mary Knox, president; Delores Ross, vice president; Ann Lewis, secretary; Jimmy King, assistant secretary; Jean Bennett, Lauretta Teel, treasurers; Rosa Brewington, business manager; Rosa Maye, parliamentarian; and Mary Peterson, reporter.

Advisors include: Dr. Best, Joseph Godette, Ruth Staton, William Earl Myers, and Johnny Wooten, who directs the group.

Two More Denver Police Charged

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Two more policemen were suspended and named in criminal charges Tuesday, bringing to 41 the number of Denver officers accused of participating in a police burglary ring.

Patrolmen John T. Butts Jr., 40, and Randall R. McElwain, 28, were charged with burglary and conspiracy. McElwain also was accused of grand larceny and receiving stolen goods.

A dozen policemen have been sentenced to prison. Robert M. Roberts, suspended sheriff of neighboring Adams County, was convicted of burglary and conspiracy last week.

"CHRISTIANITY DIVIDED"

NEW YORK (AP)—A new book analyzing the issues dividing Protestants and Roman Catholics "Christianity Divided," has been published by Sheed and Ward. It includes sections by leading churchmen of both groups.

CHAPTER 16

Jessie Prewitt's first sight of the huge expanse of the Plaza was breathtaking. The ancient gray stone cathedral that flanked one side of the square rose massive and ornate, dwarfing everything around it so that the Plaza itself seemed merely an appendage, a private park, and the people on the walks seemed to be going either to or from the church.

Because it was not yet time to meet Burt, Jessie parked the car and explored the tiny shops in the area adjoining the Hotel Plaza. She drifted from window to window examining exquisite jewelry, delicately etched leather work, butterfly trays, weird tin masks. Then she was in front of the telegraph office and, hesitatingly, went in.

An attractive girl with broad, Oriental cheekbones nodded encouragement from behind the counter. "Permit I help you Senora."

"Can I send a telegram? In English, I mean."

"Of course, Senora."

Quickly, before she could change her mind, Jessie sent Dan a wire saying nothing more than where she was staying. Almost immediately she regretted it, as if that simple act were forcing her to a decision she was not yet able to make.

It was shortly before noon when she started across to the Plaza. A policeman at the crosswalk, standing very straight and tall in his black uniform, motioned her to cross the street.

At the corner the snow-cone vendor, who was doing a brisk business in purple, red and green cones, held one out to her. He was a small man, very dark, with a great, black, comical mustache, and when Jessie pleasantly shook her head, he returned her a delighted smile.

The benches that lined the walks leading to the fountain were crammed with people. Women in voluminous clothes were watching children who ran whooping and hollering around them. Here and there the brilliant floral skirts of the dark-skinned girls attracted attention. An old man on one of the benches was reading a newspaper with thick bifocals and the aid of a large magnifying glass.

Jessie, looking around for Ralph Burton, saw him come toward her from the fountain, moving with that purposeful manner which, in her mind, distinguished him.

At just that minute two small dogs ran across the walk in front of her, vipping as though someone had kicked them. Immediately after them raced a group of ragged boys screaming in high-pitched voices.

One of the boys bumped into Jessie as he passed and, without pausing, snatched the handbag from her arm. The boy was several yards ahead of her before she realized what had happened. He was looking back at her, with black, almond-shaped eyes in his urchin face and he ran right into Ralph Burton.

The boy, still holding onto the purse started screaming and kicking, but Burt didn't let him go. He held the youngster at arm's length and shook him as effortlessly as if he were a kitten.

A crowd collected. Within seconds the benches were deserted, the Mexicans gathering in a silent circle to watch the two North Americans and the kicking boy.

The boy dropped the pocketbook. He was screaming abusively and squirming to get away. Tears were rolling down his cheeks, leaving light streaks in the dirt. Ralph Burton continued to hold him and shake him until he was silent, then asked him something in Spanish. The boy answered in a pouring jumble of words.

"He says some man put him up to it," Burt translated.

Perversely, now that she had her pocketbook back, Jessie felt sorry for the boy. The child's obvious fright touched her. She had an image of a dank jail cell and the diminutive felon seated on a cot, staring into nothingness.

When she saw a policeman coming across the square toward them she insisted frantically, "Let him go, Burt. Please let him go. It doesn't matter. I've lost nothing."

Burt loosened his grip; and dropping to his hands and knees, the boy pushed his way through the legs of the crowd. Once away from the ring of people he started to run, a terrified little figure, heading for the rabbit warren in which he lived.

The policeman elbowed his way forward unhurried, dignified, his mustache waxed to the same leathery shine as his boots. Slowly he opened a pad and started asking questions. Burt answered in fluid Spanish.

Jessie heard her name, the Villa Serena, then the policeman started questioning people in the crowd. They all looked at him with cold, hostile eyes and shook their heads. Jessie gathered that the policeman was trying to learn the culprit's name, but apparently everyone denied knowing him.

At last, with disgust, the officer elaborately closed his notebook and barked a short command which must have been the equivalent of "Break it up" because the people started to disperse, returning to the benches that lined the walks.

"Come one, Jess," Burt said.

taking her arm. "You look as if you could use a drink."

He took her to the hotel bar across from the square. After the hot brightness of the street the bar was dim and cool with soft upholstered chairs that smelled of wax polish and new leather. There were no other customers. A large ugly parrot chained to a perch in the corner scratched his feathers, then screeched around the room, screeching in a raucous, masculine voice. "Buenas noches, Senor, Senora!"

The bartender and waiter played a noisy dice game at the end of the bar while the radio, tuned to the local station, alternated long, dramatic statements with occasional bursts of music that sounded to Jessie always like "Guadalajara."

"You should have let me turn that boy over to the police, Jessie," Burt insisted.

"I couldn't. He was so small and scared."

"Maybe, but sooner or later he'll be caught at it again. He was hired, you know, to snatch your purse."

"You mean sort of like Fagin and Oliver Twist?"

"Something like that," Burt said dryly.

"But of all the people in the park, why me?"

"Because you're an American—and all Americans are rich. Didn't you know?"

"Well, I'm not rich, but I'd have been considerably poorer if he got away. But let's not talk about it. There's no harm done and I wouldn't want it on my conscience that I sent the little monster to jail."

They ordered drinks and the bar began to fill up with tourists staying at the hotel. Several of them had apparently been to the market that morning and were talking about how dirty it was.

The couple at the next table was discussing the Randall murder, the woman insisting stubbornly: "I won't go back that way. No matter what you say, George, we're not going back that way."

When they left for lunch the room was packed. The parrot on his perch was screaming, "Buenas noches, Senor, Senora!" and above the din the radio was still playing "Guadalajara."

Even-tempered Police Inspector Menendes has good reason to lose his temper. The story continues tomorrow.

"I have nothing but sympathy for him or anyone else in that job," Hagerty said Tuesday at a news conference. "I'm for Pierre."

Lottery Kingpin Dies In Prison

GREENSBORO (AP)—Dainty, cane-carrying Francis Duval (George) Smith, 62, who was convicted as a lottery wheelhorse in Greensboro, is dead.

Death came in the Federal Prison Medical Center in Springfield, Mo. Smith was serving a two-year lottery sentence. He was convicted here in 1955.

Smith, a natty dresser and a native of San Diego, Tex., had also served time for bribing police officers and for manslaughter.

Authorities attributed Smith's death Saturday to a kidney condition. He had suffered from the condition for some time.

Lung Transplant In Dog Is Seeing Early Promise

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Homer, a sad-eyed hound, is a frisky dog five months after one of his lungs was replaced by a transplant and a research team thinks this may be a step closer to successful transplant of major organs.

One of Homer's lungs was replaced May 26 by a lung from another dog. For two weeks he received daily injections of methotrexate, a drug originally developed to fight cancer. He was very sick for a time, but recovered.

Doctors at the University of Michigan Medical Center believe methotrexate may have properties that prevent rejection of alien tissue.

Transplant of eye corneas, blood and bone fragments are fairly common, but transferring major organs is difficult because such tissues usually are rejected by the receiving body.

Dr. Paulette Szadaly, a University of Michigan veterinarian, says the five months Homer has lived may be a medical record.

The research dog is closely watched and has the services of his own physician, veterinarian and registered nurse.

Most dogs given methotrexate in experiments die, but Homer is growing and becoming stronger. He undergoes intensive examinations—X-rays, blood tests and the like.

"He's very playful," said Dr. Szadaly, "but he knows when there's work to do. He practically jumps up on the examination table by himself."

A spokesman for the research team said they don't know how or why Homer has been able to survive longer than the two or three months most dogs live after such experiments.

"We are still a long way from finding the solution," he said, "but we believe Homer will give us a big lead toward understanding the whole transplantation problem."

The research program is sponsored by grants from the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and the American Thoracic Society.

Arm Wounded In Signal Failure

DENVER, Pa. (AP)—Richard Firestone, 34, will make certain his communications system works the next time he takes his 14-year-old son, Gary, skeet shooting.

Firestone was standing behind a garage tossing out four-inch-square blocks of wood for his son to shoot at, when the release signal failed.

He extended his arm from behind the garage to toss out another block. The boy fired, showering the arm with 12-gauge buckshot.

The research program is sponsored by grants from the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and the American Thoracic Society.

Only One Blot In Car's Weird Run

SPRING BALLEY, Minn. (AP)—Mrs. John Kenning wonders if she could have done as well in the car. After she fell out on a turn, the car: crossed a highway, skidded through a lot without touching some 1962 models, slipped between a pole and guy wire and went down an alley.

Only blotch on its record—the car crashed into a garage at the end of its weird run.

Too Much Hurry To Post A Bond

COVENTRY, Conn. (AP)—Here's one the judge may not have heard yet from someone accused of speeding.

Robert Carter was accused of going 56 miles an hour in a 30 m.p.h. zone while driving to the courthouse to post $100 bond in connection with an earlier speeding charge.

the car that's just right for just about everybody

You've never seen anything like it, because there's never been anything like it . . . until today. On the outside the new Ford Fairlane 500 measures a quick 197 inches from stem to stern. A good foot shorter than the cars from which it borrowed its name, it calls the snugest parking places home. At the same time, on the inside the new Fairlane 500 is every inch as big as some of the biggest Fords ever built.

The new Fairlane 500 is priced way under previous Fairlanes, well under many compacts. But Fairlane economy doesn't stop with a pretty price tag. It runs to amazing gas savings—with the world's first economy V-8 or the nickel-nursing Fairlane Six. Routine service is reduced to a minimum—30,000 miles on many items, only twice a year or 6,000 miles on the rest. And it adjusts its own brakes.

Contrive Veneer For Gold Filling

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Dentistry has solved the problem of using gold for its good filling qualities without making a patient's mouth look like a jewelry store window.

Dr. John F. Johnson of the Indiana University School of Dentistry told a dental meeting here recently that porcelain veneers baked to the gold filling surface cover the gold and closely resemble the color and surface texture of natural teeth. The new process is based on a natural binding that exists between gold and porcelain when they are baked together.

Says Peace Is Up To Russians

OTTAWA (AP)—Canadian

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker said Tuesday night it was up to the Soviet Union to determine if there will be a reasonable settlement on Berlin or an indefinite continuation of tension.

Diefenbaker, addressing the National Conference of Canadian Universities and Colleges, said that while the West must be wary of Soviet Premier Khrushchev, it must not reject out of hand any indication that he might recognize the need for an agreement with the West on the divided city.

Southwest Digs Out Today From Big Snowstorm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Parts of the Southwest began digging out of its first big snowstorm of the season today. It was labeled as the worst in 30 years at El Paso, Tex.

The storm was responsible for the death of one man in New Mexico and five in Texas.

Air and auto travel were disrupted, schools were closed, several small towns were isolated and deer hunters were stranded by the storm, which dumped as much as 30 inches of snow in some places.

Airports were closed at Santa Fe and Clovis, N.M., stranding a number of travelers.

Eastern New Mexico and west Texas were the hardest hit areas. Thirty inches fell at Ruidoso in southeastern New Mexico. A drizzling rain which turned to ice covered most of the west Texas plains.

El Paso schools and Texas Western College were closed after the city was hit by seven inches of snow which piled up in drifts four and five feet deep. At least eight New Mexico school systems—Covasa, Carrizozo, Capitan, Hondo, Ruidoso, Elda, Causey and Truth or Consequences—also closed.

New Mexico state police closed two roads Tuesday night, isolating Carrizozo. They reopened one which permitted travel into Truth or Consequences, isolated Tuesday.

At least 213 deer hunters were located in mountain hunting areas. Some 150 hunters gathered at the Dunken Community's general store, where they were reached by units from the state police and National Guard.

Groups of 31, 9 and 23 hunters were brought out of the Lincoln National Forest near Capitan. They had been marooned overnight in the high country.

The New Mexico Game Department said other hunters were stranded.

Telephone lines into four southwestern New Mexico communities were still out. The desert towns of Silver City, Deming and Lordsburg were cut off from telephone communications along with Reserve, a mountain county seat. The storm knocked down the lines Monday afternoon.

Air weather was forecast for New Mexico today but the outlook for the Texas plains area called for another three to seven inches of snow.

Torrential Rain Flooding Italy

ROME (AP)—Torrential rains lashed Italy again today for the fifth day in a row, and wide areas around Rome were flooded. Since Saturday at least six persons have died in the winter rain, wind and snow.

Both the Tiber River flowing through Rome and the mighty Po in northern Italy were close to overflowing their banks.

Compensation For Voice Loss

LONDON (AP)—Three biscuit tins fell on Queenie Fory's head at the grocer's shop where she works. She lost her voice.

Later Mrs. Fory spilled a kettle of boiling water on her foot and her voice came back.

A court awarded her 5 pounds—$14—damages against the firm Tuesday for those lost hours of talking.

Tittle Cautious About Championship For Giants

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — After 13 years of frustration, Y. A. Tittle views with caution any talk about "big money" and a possible pro football championship for the New York Giants.

"It's a long way off yet," said the 35-year-old quarterback today. "We'd be foolish to get too excited and look ahead to next Sunday's game. That Pittsburgh club can be just as tough as Philadelphia."

Tittle long has been one of the greatest passers in the National Football League. In 13 years as a pro—most with the San Francisco 49ers—he came close but never hit the jackpot with a championship team.

Chicod Defeats Wheat Swamp 45-33

The Chicod High School Hornets won their first basketball game of the season last night against Wheat Swamp 45-33...

Chicod took the lead early in the game, but Wheat Swamp managed to tie the score 17-17 in the second quarter.

The high scorer of the night for the Hornets was Talmadge Adams. The 5-foot 10-inch senior picked up 15 points for the Chicod team.

Earlier in the night the Wheat Swamp girls downed the Chicod girls by a score of 41-25. The Tigers were leading at the half 21-9 after a strong defensive team held the Hornets to two points during the first quarter.

High scorer for the Chicod girls was Pansy Jones with 12 points. Chicod played without the services of two of its first string girls.

The next game for Chicod will be Friday night at Belvoir-Falkland.

Lenoir Rhyne Is Offensive Leader

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — Lenoir Rhyne, racking up 423 yards in its victory over Elon, has broken Appalachian's monopoly as the offensive and defensive leader of the Carolinas Conference.

Taking full advantage of a night when the Mountaineers generated only 65 yards of total offense, the Bears have replaced the Apps as the No. 1 offensive team.

The Bears, however, have moved out front in all three departments of offense, adding the total offense and the pass offense leaderships to the rushing offense which they held a week ago.

With its attack apparently now reaching its peak, Lenoir Rhyne is averaging 284 yards per game, 198.9 yards on the ground and 85.1 yards through the air.

Appalachian salvaged two of its three defensive leaderships from the Presbyterian affair. The Apps are No. 1 on total defense with 176 yards per tilt and they lead in rushing defense on a 128.2 average.

The top scorer for the Bear Grass team was forward Vann Parker with 18 points. For Grimesland the high man was B. Hardee. The 5-foot 6-inch sophomore gained 16 points for Coach Henry Meares' Panthers.

The Bear Grass Girls also came out on top with a 36-19 win. The Bears took the lead in the first quarter and stayed ahead during the rest of the game.

Hornung's Recall Weakens Packers

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
Paul Hornung, most prolific scorer in National Football League history, is back in the Army and his recall may not only weaken the Green Bay Packers but force them into an unofficial deal with the rival American League.

That stormy development became a possibility Tuesday when reports from widely separated sections of the country revealed: 1. Hornung, the Packers' triple-threat halfback who holds the NFL's scoring record and is the leading point-maker this season, will not be issued weekend passes from Fort Riley, Kan., and will be unavailable for Green Bay's stretch drive toward a second straight Western Conference title.

2. The Packers, decimated by Army call-ups and a key injury to their lone remaining kicker, are trying to swing what amounts to a deal for booting Ben Agajanian, now the property of the Dallas Texans of the AFL.

3. Agajanian, 41, a veteran of the NFL, AFL and long-defunct All-America Conference, admitted he had worked out with the Packers in Green Bay last week and planned to do so again Thursday, with the full consent of the Texans.

4. It was learned that only the refusal of rookie quarterback Val Keekin, a member of the Packers' taxi squad, to join the Texans has held up the transaction.

(Actually, deals between the rival leagues are not permitted. However, one league may sign a player after he has been waived out of the other league.)

The Packers, leading the Western race with a 7-2 record, were set to start sophomore Tom Moore in Hornung's halfback post but were minus a kicking specialist because of an ankle injury that has sidelined guard Jerry Kramer.

Neither the Packers nor the Texans will admit the transaction is a trade, but it was reported the Texans are ready to obtain AFL waivers on Agajanian if they can get the player they want.

Although Eskin is carried on the Packers' payroll, he is not a member of the official 36-player roster and the NFL technically lists him as a free agent eligible to sign with any club of his choice.

Bart Starr of Green Bay, the Western Conference leader, zoomed into the lead in passing with his efforts in the Packers' 31-28 squeeze by the Chicago Bears and stepped ahead of Sonny Jurgensen of the Philadelphia Eagles, who fell into a first-place Eastern Conference tie with New York by bowing to the Giants 38-21.

Starr has completed 110 of 190 passes and Jurgensen 144 of 257. New York's Del Shofner regained the top spot among pass receivers with 46 receptions after grabbing eight against Philadelphia. Johnny Sample of Pittsburgh continued to lead the interception artists with eight.

Sammy Baugh figures that any time the New York Titans hold the opposition to three touchdowns or less, his club has a chance to triumph.

Weekend College FB Picks

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market averages keep going up and up. The college football forecasting averages keep going down and down. Will the twain ever meet? Last week's selections averaged 733 (44 correct, 16 wrong). This week's picks:

Texas over Texas Christian: It is TCU's turn to stage another of the many upsets that dot this venerable series but the 1961 Longhorns are not that complacent.

Alabama over Georgia Tech: Tech has vowed to defeat every team that whipped the Engineers last year and that includes Alabama. It won't be a cakewalk but Alabama's defense is too rugged.

Ohio State over Oregon: Bob Ferguson will make the West Coast team wish it had declined the invitation to visit the Midwest.

Louisiana State over Mississippi State: Jerry Stovall and Wendell Harris hit with the best and will decide the issue.

Minnesota over Purdue: Sandy Stephens never fires that ball until he sees the white in the eyes of his receivers. Purdue already had engineered two upsets this season and that's enough for one year.

Mississippi over Tennessee: That defeat by LSU taught the Rebels you must play football to win in the SEC.

Pittsburgh over Southern California: Jim Trafficant's passing will startle the Trojans.

Colorado over Nebraska: The Buffaloes, with their eyes on the Orange Bowl, will make amends for their startling loss to Utah.

Michigan State over Northwestern: The Spartan offense, held to six points in the last two outings, gets back into high gear with George Salinas.

Syracuse over Notre Dame: The Orangemen have made this game a crusade. Ernie Davis breaks loose with a bang.

Missouri over Kansas State: With the Orange Bowl designation still open, the Missourians will turn loose all their power.

UCLA over Washington: Washington has been the Coast Conference champion for two years. This year it will be UCLA.

Maryland over Wake Forest: Norman Sneed will be missed by the Deacons while Gary Collins will star for Maryland.

Arkansas over Southern Methodist: The Porkers have skidded but still are strong enough to handle the Mustangs.

The others without comment: Friday: Tulane over Vanderbilt (N), George Washington over Virginia Tech.

EAST: Army over Oklahoma, Boston College over Boston University, Rutgers over Colgate, Columbia over Pennsylvania, Dartmouth over Cornell, Harvard over Brown, Navy over Virginia, Penn State over Holy Cross, Princeton over Yale.

SOUTH: The Citadel over Arkansas State, Clemson over Furman, Duke over North Carolina, Florida State over Mississippi

Assistant Coach Addresses Club

Joe Hughes, former University of Tennessee football player who now assists Rose High Coach Bud Phillips with the local Phantoms, addressed the Greenville Optimist Club Monday.

Hughes, a former line standout for the Tennessee Volunteers, outlined the overall strengths and weaknesses of Greenville's 1961 Northeastern Conference champions who clash with Roxboro here Friday night for Eastern District laurels.

Hughes discussed briefly the football prowess of each member of the Phantom squad. Friday's contest, he said, "should be a real good one, because we've been an outstanding offensive ball club all season while Roxboro has been outstanding defensively."

Hughes, who helps Phillips with coaching linemen, urged Optimists to attend Friday night's game. Should Greenville defeat Roxboro, the Phantoms would advance into the Eastern finals against either Clinton or Sanford.

Prior to Hughes' discussion, E. R. (Pete) Carraway told Optimists the Boys Work Committee had initiated an active program for observance of Youth Appreciation Week. He said a banner has been hung over Evans Street and a window display has been completed in the window of radio station WOOW. Three Rose High seniors, Carraway said, are being honored during the week.

Optimist Gene Ward reported a turnout of about 25 boys at last week's meeting of the Junior Rifle Club. He said, however, there are still openings in the club and urged members to encourage others to attend.

Buffalo tackle Ron Luciano, beset by injuries on a number of occasions, says "just call me Unlucky Luciano."

Brown Heading For 5th Title

NEW YORK (AP)—Cleveland's Jimmy Brown seems headed for his fifth title as the top rusher in the National Football League.

The Browns' fullback, now second among the all-time NFL rushers, came up with his fourth straight game in which he's gained more than 100 yards Sunday in Cleveland's 17-6 conquest of the Washington Redskins.

The performance, his best of the campaign with 133 yards, increased his 1161 rushing total to 353 yards on 111 carries or 73 yards more than runnerup Jim Taylor of Green Bay, the NFL's weekly statistics showed today.

Brown now has collected 5,908 yards rushing during his 5-year NFL career. Only Baltimore's Joe Perry has more yards—7,748 in 12 seasons.

Bart Starr of Green Bay, the Western Conference leader, zoomed into the lead in passing with his efforts in the Packers' 31-28 squeeze by the Chicago Bears and stepped ahead of Sonny Jurgensen of the Philadelphia Eagles, who fell into a first-place Eastern Conference tie with New York by bowing to the Giants 38-21.

Starr has completed 110 of 190 passes and Jurgensen 144 of 257. New York's Del Shofner regained the top spot among pass receivers with 46 receptions after grabbing eight against Philadelphia. Johnny Sample of Pittsburgh continued to lead the interception artists with eight.

Future Calls For Better Teachers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Tomorrow's teacher must be a truly superior person with a solid foundation of knowledge and intellectual toughness, a Nebraska educator said today.

"The future calls for more and better teachers and the challenge lies squarely on our doorstep," Dean W. K. Beggs of the University of Nebraska told the American Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities.

The time is long overdue, he said, to "throw out the assortment of course patterns we are now using and start afresh" in teacher education.

"Obviously, we must start with superior material," Beggs said in a prepared address. "The professional training will be built upon a solid foundation of knowledge and intellectual toughness."

The problem of teacher education, Beggs said, is compounded by three cultural eruptions: the population explosion, the skyrocketing volume of knowledge and the freedom explosion in the emerging nations.

It is imperative, the Nebraska dean said, to find ways to teach more knowledge to more learners ranging from "a bottom of almost complete illiteracy to a summit of highly sophisticated learning capability."

In another speech prepared for today's sessions, Vice President C. C. Chambers of the University of Pennsylvania said engineering faculty members should spend more time in research than in classroom teaching.

"Without research or other experience on the frontiers of engineering," Chambers said, "teachers become incompetent."

War Hysteria In Indonesia Rising

JAKARTA (AP)—War hysteria is mounting in Indonesia as the United Nations approaches a vote on a Dutch proposal to give West New Guinea self-determination.

Led by President Sukarno, who declared that Indonesia would get West New Guinea with or without the approval of the United Nations, top government leaders have called on the people to prepare for war.

Sukarno insists that West New Guinea, as part of the prewar Dutch East Indies, is an integral part of Indonesia.

The Dutch, which retained the western half of the big island after Indonesia won independence, contend that its mostly primitive Papuan population is ethnically

Minister Talks At Rotary Meet

AYDEN — Rev. John Goff, pastor of Ayden Christian Church, presented a program on the "Four-Way Test" at the Rotary Club meeting here Thursday in the Community Building.

Leslie Stocks, vice president, presided.

The 4-way Test includes the way Rotarians say, think or do items in the test are: Is it the truth? Is it fair to all concerned? Will it build good will and better friendships? Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

Curt Cavleer had as his guest his father, Curt Cavleer of Akron, Ohio.

The annual Pancake Supper sponsored by Rotarians will be held Dec. 9 at the Elementary School Cafeteria. Tickets were passed out to members at Thursday's meeting.

Australia governs the eastern half of New Guinea. So far the Indonesians have made no claim to it.

Jakarta is tense as U.N. debate on the Dutch proposal rages. The air force has sent two bomber and fighter wings to patrol West New Guinea's borders.

The army has reinforced its garrisons in Ambon, East Indonesia.

Top military leaders are touring the country, calling on the population to "be ready to die" for West Irian, as the Indonesians call the territory.

Rule Accident Was Unavoidable

GRIFTON—Grifton police ruled as unavoidable an accident which occurred here last Thursday involving drivers George Sumrell of 514 Church St., Grifton, and Mrs. Mary Smith of Rt. 6, Box 77, Kinston.

Police Chief Luther Lewis said the accident occurred as Sumrell was proceeding south on Church Street. The brake line burst and his automobile collided with the one being driven east on Queen Street by Mrs. Smith.

No injuries were reported. Damages were estimated at about $350 to the Smith vehicle and $300 to the Sumrell automobile.

Acquits Pair In Bus-Bombing

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Superior Court Judge William Copeland, saying he didn't "wish to waste the court's time trying this case," acquitted two Indians Tuesday charged with blowing up a school bus.

The Indians, Enoch Jones and Eugene Chance, were leaders in a fight to integrate Indian and white schools in this area. The bus exploded Dec. 31, 1960, shortly before the integration row caught the public eye.

Judge Copeland ordered the acquittal after a conference with Solicitor Archie Taylor. He said there was not enough evidence for a conviction. Chance and Jones pleaded innocent.

20-Year-Old Keeping Her Family Together

By RICHARD YOUNGBLOOD

Grand Forks Herald

WARROAD, Minn. (AP)—Since September, Rita Foster, 20, has been mother and father to eight younger brothers and sisters.

Their father died from cancer in September, a year almost to the day after cancer had taken the life of their mother. Rita stepped in to keep the family together.

Several relatives live in the Warroad community. Rita says, "I suppose we could have sent the kids to live with them. But that would have meant splitting them up, and I will not have that."

Her voice had the snap of authority as she told one of the younger children to hang up her coat, another to stop teasing her sister, a third to get off the table.

"Sometimes they forget who's boss," she explained, "and I have to put a little to remind them."

But when Denise and Deanne, the 4-year-old twins who still do not understand what happened to their parents, began to cry, she swept them into her arms to comfort them.

"I'm just trying to run this household the way mom or dad would have run it," she said.

The other children are Nancy, 17, and Michael, 15, her chief helpers, Gloria, 14, Barbara, 12, Delores, 11, and Roberta 9.

Rita a 1959 graduate of Warroad High School, was on vacation from her job in Minneapolis in September 1960, when her mother died. Last August another sister, Vonnie, took a job in Minneapolis.

Both were called home by the illness of their father.

"I didn't like the big cities and Vonnie did," Rita explained, "so I decided to stay here."

Warroad is a community of 1,275 on vast Lake of the Woods in far northwestern Minnesota 300 miles from Minneapolis.

"If Donald Foster and his wife didn't leave them a whole lot of money," said an aunt, Grace Foster, who has been named legal guardian of the children, "they left them with good judgment and common sense."

Miss Foster says she's not too concerned about the children as long as Rita is in charge. Their father left a little money. Applications have been made for railroad retirement benefits and a veterans pension. Warroad citizens collected $200 for credit at a grocery store.

Rita says she has no plans for marriage.

"I've got enough troubles right now without looking for any more."

High Income Families Show Unbridled Enthusiasm for Newspapers

Nearly everyone in town reads a daily newspaper. Among the heaviest readers, according to a survey by the Psychological Corporation, are upper social-economic urban families. Another study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture found middle and high income groups were heavier newspaper readers than low income groups. This survey showed 73% of the low income group said they had read the newspaper, while the score increased to 88% for middle income groups and 95% for high income groups. No matter what service or product you sell, no matter what income group you want to reach, you reach more people through the daily newspaper.

NEW COMPACT PROJECTOR—A sealed cartridge, containing 50 feet of 8mm movie film, is slipped into rear slot, eliminating need of threading or rewinding film. The 'instant movie projector' starts and stops immediately by turning one knob.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

A radically new 8mm movie projector is at hand, so small that it looks like a table radio and so easy to run that a child can operate it.

The ease of handling is due to the fact that there are no starting and take-up reels and consequently no threading or rewinding of film. The new projector uses instead a slip-in, slip-out plastic cartridge. Sealed inside the cartridge is a 50-foot reel of 8mm movie film with the beginning and end joined together to form an endless loop. Since the film is entirely enclosed except for one small section where it emerges for projecting, it is protected from normal handling, fingerprint smudges and ever-present dust.

This unique innovation in home movies is called the Technicolor Instant Movie Projector. It weighs almost seven pounds, has a retractable electric cord and a 1.5 zoom lens with a 15mm to 25mm range. Its 150-watt lamp has a built-in reflector which gives it a lighting efficiency said to be equal to that of a normal 500-watt lamp.

After inserting a film cartridge into a slot in the rear of the projector, turning one knob is all that is required to start the movie showing immediately. It also turns out whatever room lamp is plugged into the projector and turns it back on when the movies are stopped.

The cartridge can be removed at any point in its run and replaced with another cartridge. When it slips into its groove, it comes into contact with the mechanism which propels the film around and around, automatically repeating if so wanted.

Film must be processed by Technicolor to be put into these special plastic cartridges. This presents one disadvantage: the film is sealed in without being edited, except for blank footage which is automatically removed, without destroying the cartridges are available for the projector but the company plans to make them with a 200-foot capacity next. Any previously processed film can be sealed into a 50-foot cartridge at a cost of about a dollar.

The inability to edit film properly without destroying the cartridge presents a problem. There are occasions when over or under-exposure should be eliminated when a film story can be improved by re-arranging sequences or adding titles. For good home movies then, a fan would be obliged to own a normal projector as well as the special cartridge projector. It's not an economical proposition.

It's more likely that owners of the new projector must be prepared to take pot luck with their films or make a special effort to get good movies on the first try. The cartridge projector makes another prospect likely: that of a film library with other than home movies. The company is planning a catalog of 500 educational, instructional, sport, travel and cartoon films in 50-foot cartridges. It could also become a tool in visual aid teaching in schools and industry and an economical form of store window or advertising display.

Television Responsible For Upsetting 4 Careers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Television—perhaps specifically the first "Sing Along with Mitch" show two seasons back—is responsible for the loss of an electrical engineer, a diplomat, a physician and a broadcasting executive.

Those were the professions to ward which members of a singing group called "The Brothers Four" were heading when the lightning of success struck.

The four, all from the Seattle area, were fraternity brothers, seniors at the University of Washington. John Paine, Bob Flick, Dick Foley and Mike Kirkland had made a recording, "Green Fields," which caught on. Then came the "Sing Along" date.

Occasional TV appearances have been vital to their success, the boys say. They have done guest spots on all the top network shows. As a result record sales have increased, they can demand more money, turn down jobs they don't like. (They don't like night club dates), and have become financially secure.

The disadvantages are that none has found time to finish his college education. They spend more time jetting around to their far-flung dates than they spend on the ground. In the past eight days they have played college dates (which they do like) in eight places, ranging from Florida to Michigan, from the west to the east coasts.

Their next TV appearance is on NBC's Thanksgiving night special, "Home for the Holidays."

"We like to give concerts for colleges," explained John Paine, the group baritone. "Television sure broadens our base. The college students don't watch television—they are too busy doing other things. So we hit them with our concerts, and the others see us on TV. Works out just great. Except we can't get home for the holidays ourselves."

As "Shotgun Slade" goes on and on, saving maidens in jeopardy, rounding up bank thieves and stalking villains, hero Scott Brady keeps getting stockier and fuller-faced.

All those adventures must be loaded with calories.

CBS' "Great Challenge" series, once commented by Howard K. Smith, will return Dec. 7 with a show taped in Europe and with the network's Paris staffer, David Shoeburn as host.

Perry Como will take a breather Nov. 29 with an up-dated TV version of the old "We, the People" filling in. The hour show will serve as a pilot, for a possible series next season.

Recommended tonight: "Checkmate," CBS, 8:30-9:30 (EST)—Sid Caesar is guest star; Perry Como Show, NBC, 9-10—guest stars are Tommy Sands and wife, Nancy Sinatra, and Rudy Valle.

The first area chosen for development by Peruvian leaders is east of Lima, the capital across the mountains into the interior. There new farm and pastoral communities are to be created, new roads and railway links built and hydroelectric works installed.

FIRST AMERICANS GIVE THANKS

After the meal, Charlie Belille relaxes in a corner with a good cigar.

HOLIDAY FEAST. Anthony Wise, left, sits with his family, surrounded by his Indian guests for Thanksgiving.

Cranberries are a favorite of the youngsters, too. At the dinner, the Indians put away 80 pounds of turkey, 100 pounds of potatoes.

Many of the Chippewas could dance all night.

Nearly three and a half centuries ago a group of Indians brought maize and wild fowl for the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving.

In Hayward, Wis., Anthony Wise jokes that he is helping to pay off an old debt with a special Thanksgiving dinner for Chippewa Indians of the Lac

Court Oreilles band who live in the area.

Wise claims to be a descendant of the Pilgrims. Operator of a cookshanty during the tourist season, Wise works with many of the Chippewas. For six years now, Wise has invited his Indian friends to eat and sing and dance

Thanksgiving away. A logging museum and the shanty are cleared for the dinner. The Wise family and the Chippewas and their families sit, Indian style, on the floor. More guests find places on benches along the wall.

Some of the younger Chippewas wear their Indian regalia for the dancing which followed the Thanksgiving meal.

A guest strolls over to try his hand at beating the large drum used for the dancing.

Outside the shanty, snow blankets the ground and touches the boughs of evergreens.

Finland Rushing Elections To Head Off Soviet Parleys

By CARL O. BOLANG
HELSINKI (AP)—Finland today headed into a period of feverish political activity with three elections scheduled within a month in an effort to ward off defense talks with the Soviet Union.
 President Urho Kekkonen dissolved Parliament Tuesday and moved up the date for parliamentary elections from July 2 to Feb. 4-5 in answer to a demand by the Soviet Union for assurance that Finland would maintain their friendly relations with it.
 Three hundred electors for the presidential elections are to be chosen by voters Jan. 15-16. The electors will name a new president Feb. 15 and he will take office March 1.
 Had Kekkonen not advanced the parliamentary election date, the new president would have been faced with a four-month period of political instability until a new government with parliamentary support could take office. The government submits its resignation when a new president starts his term.

 A government communique said the Soviet Union had informed Finland that unless assurances of continued friendly relations were given, it would persist in its Oct. 30 demand for joint defense talks. The Russians had contended that West Germany posed a threat to the safety of both Finland and the Soviet Union.
 The decision by the president, made in a meeting with the Agrarian party minority Cabinet of Premier Matti Miettinen, came after Foreign Minister Ahti Kajjalainen reported on his weekend mission to Moscow to discuss the Oct. 30 Soviet note.
 A Foreign Ministry communique said Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told Kajjalainen the U.S.S.R. had "not the slightest intention of intervening in Finland's domestic position" but "the political situation in Finland had become uncertain."

 The communique said Gromyko asked for assurances of the continuation of the present Finnish foreign policy—a delicately poised neutrality between the Soviet Union and the West—in order that "military consultations might be avoided."
 Kekkonen responded with his announcement in which he said he said that the international situation demanded prompt arrival at decisions which could not await the summer elections.
 Kekkonen seeks re-election as president and is considered the strongest candidate. His chief opponent is Olavi Honka, former chancellor of justice, who is sponsored by Social Democratic leader V. Tanner. Honka's election would be certain to arouse Soviet wrath, since Tanner was foreign minister during the 1939-40 Finnish-Russian war.

Rival Union Camps Trade Barbs In AFL-CIO Feuding

By NORMAN WALKER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Rival industrial and craft union camps in the AFL-CIO traded broadsides today in a fresh outburst of organized labor's civil war.
 Walter Reuther, Auto Workers Union president and commander of the industrial union forces, charged that the six-year old AFL-CIO has united nations in name only because, he said, the federation has failed to solve traditional union rivalries. He blamed the craft unions for the impasse.
 C. J. (Neal) Haggerty, leader of the crafts as president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades, retorted that the industrial unions are ignoring agreed-upon disputes settlement machinery "making us wonder what an agreement with them is worth."
 "Mr. Reuther," said Haggerty, "apparently thinks his best defense is an all-out offense."
 The basis for the feuding is the same job rights controversy that split the old AFL into the rival AFL and CIO organizations in 1955. Since the AFL-CIO merger was agreed upon in 1955 there have been fruitless efforts to work out a binding arbitration arrangement for interunion disputes.
 Deploring this, Reuther said in a report prepared for the annual convention of the Industrial Union Department he heads that there must be some type of non-aggression pact for the AFL-CIO to survive. The convention opens Thursday and runs through Friday.
 Reuther said an agreement reached at the AFL-CIO convention at San Francisco two years ago to arbitrate internal disputes has never been implemented.

"Interunion disputes have not abated," he said. "They have increased. Jurisdictional conflicts persist. AFL-CIO unions still boycott the products of other AFL-CIO unions."
 "Affiliates still raid each other. One department of the federation continues to compete organizationally against affiliated unions. And unethical organizational literature still provides comfort for the antiunion employer."
 Reuther said the fact the government has recently established machinery to settle interunion controversies at missile base sites should be a lesson that there will be more federal intervention if the AFL-CIO fails to solve its own problems.
 Haggerty said the industrial unions were "ignoring and openly transgressing" a 1958 pact, known as the Miami agreement, between the rival union groups. This provided for a system of mediating disputes. Reuther said it was only a stopgap arrangement at best and lacked any enforcement method.

State Invests In Country Doctors

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia is investing $158,150 this year in a priceless product "country doctors" for small towns and rural areas.
 Each scholarship-loan amounts to $1,250 a year. The doctors may repay it by practicing in a rural community of 5,000 or less for one year for each $1,000 received under the plan.
 The program was started eight years ago and currently doctors are repaying past loans by practicing in 21 small towns. This year's budget covers 33 new scholarships and 94 renewals.

Found Old Oats In Fire House

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—An old fire station building was purchased by a business firm which started some remodeling. Fred J. Reineke, head of the firm, removed a piece of mounding from the ceiling and from a storage room above there came tumbling down half a bushel of oats.
 The horse-driven fire fighting equipment was motorized in 1914.

Fading Dialect Being Recorded

WARM SPRINGS, Ore., (AP)—The Warm Springs Indian dialect, closely related to that of the Yakima, Walla Walla and other Western tribes, is being recorded on tape and a dictionary is being compiled. Delbert Frank, a Warm Springs Indian, is doing the work which he says is complicated by lack of a written language. He is using phonetics in compiling the dictionary.
 Frank says there are only a hundred words in common usage but some express a complete thought. He says only the old people use the language now.

Raleigh Police Seeking Recruits

Raleigh police lieutenant H. W. Bunn will be interviewing men between the ages of 21 and 32 Thursday for positions on the Raleigh police force.

Lt. Bunn said he will be at the Greenville police station in City Hall at 12:30 Thursday to conduct the interviews. He stated he would answer questions concerning the job and those interested may bring their wives if they wish.

For those who want to apply for the force, an examination will be given in Raleigh next Tuesday night. Lt. Bunn said that salaries for patrolmen range from $312 to $420 with higher salaries on promotion.

Raleigh officers also receive social security, three retirement plans, liberal sick and vacation leave, free hospital, medical, life and disability insurance, uniforms, equipment and other benefits.

Applicants must be a minimum of five feet ten inches and 160 pounds. They must have completed their military obligation. Lt. Bunn emphasized that no applications are being accepted from local men already in law enforcement.

He reported that the Raleigh force has an authorized strength of 138 men and is now short ten.

East Carolina College To Join In 'Poetry Circuit'

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina College will be part of a "Poetry Circuit" made up of eight colleges and universities in the state, and one in Virginia, it was announced recently by Howard R. Webber, editor-in-chief of the University of North Carolina Press.

The circuit is sponsored by the University Press in conjunction with the Poetry Center of New York City. Other participating schools are the University of North Carolina, N. C. State College, Woman's College, Davidson, Wake Forest, Duke University and Hollins College in Virginia.

According to plans, each poet will make the "circuit" of the eight schools, reading his works and meeting students and faculty. The North Carolina Circuit is the second of its kind in the nation and the first in the South. The only other such operation is in Michigan where the major universities are linked together in a program that has brought wide acclaim.

Final Exams Are Now In Progress

The last round-up in fall-quarter courses at East Carolina College got under way this week as final examinations began. Testing in all classes now being taught on the campus will be concluded at noon Wednesday, November 22.

Intensive study by students preparing for examinations has quieted down the usual busy schedule of events on the campus. Few extra-curricula activities are scheduled for the next week.

Thanksgiving holidays will begin November 22 at noon. Most students will leave the campus for holidays at home or elsewhere. The winter quarter at the college will begin Monday morning, November 27, when students will register for work. The winter quarter will extend through February 28.

It is planned that two young poets per year will be brought to the member universities and colleges in the state. Member schools have agreed to pay the visiting poets a sum of $120.

One of the purposes of the circuit, Webber pointed out, is to subsidize young poets. He also regards it as a means of getting young poets and young audiences together. "The young audience is likely to be especially responsive," he said, "and the young poet is likely to be vigorous and enthusiastic. It's a perfect match but a rare one."

Plans are being made to bring the first poet to the state in early December. The University Press recently sponsored a Literary Recognition Convocation in honor of Randall Jarrell, noted North Carolina poet and winner of the 1961 National Book Award for poetry.

The interest of the Press in poetry comes from a feeling that good poetry is being written now and that the proper encouragement and attention can help to bring new poets to light and to give them the chance to go on writing and to perfect their craft." Webber said. "The new circuit will be vastly important to poetry and will give North Carolina a major role in achieving these ends," he added.

Panel Featured At Faculty Meet

AYDEN — Members of the South Ayden School faculty recently held another in a series of in-service training programs. The panelists, Mrs. M. B. Murphy, Mrs. W. H. Warren, Mrs. M. P. Hall and Mrs. M. B. Burney, used as a theme, "Techniques of Teaching Reading in the Primary Grades."

Post-War Baby Crop Is Ready To Flood Colleges

Table with columns for stock name and price. Includes Ford Motor, Gen Elec, Gen Foods, etc.

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's post-war baby crop has come of high school age and is ready to flood into colleges and the labor market.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles F. Carroll put the problem in the form of questions: "Where are the jobs into which these people can move? Are they in North Carolina or are we educating our people for other states?"

Dr. Carroll's concern arose Tuesday with the release from the State Department of Public Instruction of 1961 public school enrollment figures.

A record enrollment of 1,120,373 pupils was reported, a gain of 18,366 over last year's figure. All of the gain was in the high school segment.

Elementary school enrollment was 839,100, a drop of 16 pupils, while high schools drew 280,472, a gain of 18,362.

The figures were based on a head count of students in school during September.

The survey showed there is an immediate need for 4,026 classrooms and a projected need of 5,334 before the next school year opens next fall.

Dr. Carroll said high school enrollment has increased by 65 percent during the past 10 years. As reasons, he cited the coming of high school age of post-war babies, the fact that a high school education is thought of today as the minimum preparation for life.

WRONG BOX, SHE BROUGHT TRUCKS. BRADFORD, Pa. (AP)—A woman found an overtime parking ticket on her car and a policeman advised her to deposit the ticket and fine in one of the city's red fine boxes.

At a corner of Main and Chest street streets she found a red box and tried to slip the ticket and money into the box.

Rockefeller For Resuming Tests

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says the United States could jeopardize the safety of the free world by agreeing now to a ban on testing of nuclear weapons.

President Kennedy has said that any such agreement would have to be accompanied by safeguards to make certain there was no cheating.

The President has ordered that preparations be made for testing in the air in the event that studies of the Soviet Union's recent series of tests show that the military position of the United States has been endangered.

Rockefeller said Tuesday that existing detection systems to police any such ban are not fool-proof and would take at least three years to install.

That period, he said in a statement, could be used by the Soviet Union to prepare for new tests "while we stand still for another three years."

Rockefeller urged American resumption of full-scale nuclear testing, saying he considers testing in the atmosphere a prime factor in giving America superiority over the combined manpower of the Soviet Union and Communist China.
