To Preach War Or Surrender Is A 'Disservice', Says President

Seattle Audience Told Nation Must Be Ready To Negotiate From Strength

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—President Kennedy says the United States must be willing to negotiate cold war issues from a position of strength. To preach either war or surrender, he says, does a disservice to the nation.

As the Western Allies, including West Germany, renew efforts to unify their stand toward the Soviet Union, Kennedy Thursday made clear these views:

To encourage "appeasement or war, suicide or surrender," will divide the nation, create uncertainty among allies and inspire doubt in the Communist bloc of the West's readiness to defend its rights.

"The United States cannot impose its will on others," he said. "There cannot be an American solution for every world problem."

The United States will never negotiate merely for the sake of negotiation, nor will it ever subject freedom to negotiation. But so long as vital interests and goals are clear, "we have nothing to fear from negotiations at the appropriate time and nothing to gain by refusing to play a part in them."

Talking out East-West disputes will succeed only if each side can find success in the result. In effect, neither side can expect total victory.

Although the French and others may see weakness in taking the initiative in bargaining with Moscow, "this nation cannot abdicate to its adversaries," the setting and conditions of negotiations.

Kennedy, accused by some of failing to marshal public support for Western aims, set forth these warnings and objectives at the outset of a western tour.

Dressed in an academic robe, he addressed 11,000 faculty members, students and guests at the University of Washington's 100th anniversary convocation.

Earlier, Kennedy received a hearty welcome from thousands on the streets of Seattle, major city in a state which went for ex-Vice President Richard M. Nixon in the 1960 election. Later, he was applauded lustily by some 3,000 Democrats who spread over four hotel ballrooms and into a restaurant across the street for a $100-a-plate dinner honoring Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash. Magnuson has completed 21 years in Congress.

Tonight, the President appears at a testimonial for Sen. Carl Hayden, 84, D-Ariz., in Phoenix.

The High And The Humble Gather To Honor Rayburn

By CLAYTON HICKERSON

BONHAM, Tex. (AP) — The high and the humble began gathering in this little north Texas town today to say farewell to Sam Rayburn, speaker of the House.

He died of cancer and its complications in the modest Risser Hospital here at 6:20 Thursday.

"It was the damndest thing that ever got hold of me," the 79-year-old Rayburn had said only several days ago. But Rayburn died peacefully — "as if one asleep," said his physician, Dr. Joe Risser.

President John F. Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, a longtime friend and protege of Rayburn, headed the list of government officials who will attend the funeral Saturday.

The service will be in Bonham's First Baptist Church.

Rep. John W. McCormack, D-Mass., the man most likely to succeed Rayburn as speaker, arrived in Dallas Thursday night and was due here today.

He has designated 105 members of Congress who will fly to Bonham for the funeral of "Mr. Democrat." They include all members of the Texas delegation and the senior members, Republican and Democrat, from each state.

"Mr. Sam is gone," the banner headline in the Bonham Favorite read. "Goodbye, Mr. Sam," said the Herald in neighboring Denton. "Farewell to a great American."

And so it was all over the Fourth Congressional District of Texas, which Rayburn represented just short of a half century, and over the nation.

President Kennedy is scheduled to arrive at Perrin Air Force Base in adjacent Grayson County at 12:50 p.m. Saturday. He will take a helicopter for the 30-mile flight to Bonham, attend the service and depart from Perrin at 3:05 p.m.

The funeral service will be heard by about 1,000 people in the 700-seat brick and stained glass church. Rayburn's top administrative assistant, John Holton, said room would be provided for the extra 300 persons.

Conducting the service will be Elder H. G. Ball, pastor of the Primitive Baptist Church at nearby Tioga, Tex., which Rayburn joined a few years ago. The Rev. Bernard Braskamp, chaplain of the U.S. House of Representatives, will assist.

The body will lie in state, with the casket open, from 9 a.m. today until 9 a.m. Saturday in the white marble Sam Rayburn Library.

Burial will be at Willow Wild Cemetery, three-quarters of a mile from Bonham's county courthouse. That is where Mr. Sam's beloved "Miss Lu" and seven other Rayburns rest. Miss Lucinda Rayburn, a sister, was his hostess for many years. She died of cancer several years ago.

At Rayburn's bedside when he died were his two sisters, Mrs. S. E. Bartley and Mrs. W. A. Thomas; two nieces, Joyce Lightfoot and Judy Rayburn Lowry; a nephew, Robert Bartley, member of the Federal Communications Commission; Buck Henson, caretaker of the Rayburn ranch in North Fannin County, and members of the Risser Hospital staff.

A brother, Dick Rayburn, Mr. Sam's sidekick during weekends of relaxation at the ranch house — didn't arrive before the speaker died. He was en route from his home at nearby Ector.

"He typified much of what is finest in American life," the Denton Herald said editorially. "He was a man of simple faith and simple utterance, indignant in the presence of injustice and scornful of sham, restrained in his tastes and pleasures, determined but not dogmatic, dignified but not pompous, a fine example of our time and civilization."

Adenauer Wants Nuclear Authority In NATO Hands

By JOHN O. KOEHLER

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer says the North Atlantic Treaty Organization must be given authority to order retaliation with U.S. nuclear weapons assigned to its members — a power now held solely by President Kennedy.

Adenauer told a news conference Thursday the West must enter into any negotiations with the Soviet Union from the strongest of bargaining positions. That, he said, called for strengthening of NATO military forces to permit them to wage nuclear warfare without White House clearance.

"I base this on an expert opinion by Gen. (Adolph) Heusinger who said that one hour may decide our fate and that the President may not be reachable to make a decision," Adenauer said.

Heusinger, former chief of staff of West German armed forces, became chairman of the permanent NATO military committee last April.

At present, NATO has nuclear weapons on the European continent, but they are under exclusive U.S. control. Changes would be required in the U.S. Atomic Energy Act before the custody of the nuclear warheads could be shared with other nations.

Adenauer said that U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, NATO supreme commander, "submitted a plan in September, 1960, to the previous administration but because of the elections it was not acted upon."

"As far as I know that plan now is before Kennedy," he added.

Norstad proposed to the annual meeting of the NATO parliamentarians' conference last November that "there should be a basic pool of atomic weapons with an equal voice in control of those weapons."

The chancellor called the news conference to discuss his views on questions he said would likely come up during his Nov. 20-21 meetings with President Kennedy in Washington.

Adenauer said removal of the Communists' wall between West and East Berlin must be the first point in any Berlin agreement with the Soviets and there must be no retreat from this "non-negotiable" demand.

"First of all," Adenauer declared, "the wall must go. The freedom of Berlin must be preserved, the wall must go and the communications with Berlin and West Germany must remain secrete because without them Berlin cannot live."

Adenauer also gave West Germany's ambassador to Moscow, Hans Kroll, a public vote of confidence and said Kroll would return to his post. The ambassador had been summoned back to Bonn to report on allegations that he had made proposals contrary to West German foreign policy to Khrushchev.

"I want to state that Herr Kroll committed no indiscretions," Adenauer said. Kroll, he said, had been asked by Khrushchev to state his views on the East and West could resolve the Berlin issue and "it is obvious that he could not say he would first have to contact his foreign office for instructions."

Child To Survive Life Raft Ordeal

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Terry Jo Duperrault, 11-year-old shipwreck victim who drifted on a raft for 3½ days, suffered today from the ravages of sea and sun. Her doctor said: "I think she will make it."

Hospital attendants posted a close guard over the blonde child. Her condition was listed "between serious and critical."

"She is under constant surveillance," an attendant said.

Terry Jo, of Green Bay, Wis., was brought to Mercy Hospital Thursday by Coast Guard helicopter.

She had clung to a white cork raft, riding a sea made choppy by 16-mile an hour winds, since Sunday night. Her feet were shriveled from long exposure to the salt water and her skin was colored a deep pink from the sun. Her lips appeared to have been painted.

She wore pink corduroy slacks and a white blouse with three-quarter length sleeves.

Terry Jo previously had been reported lost with four others, including her parents and a brother, when a chartered ketch, the Blue Belle, went down in a sudden squall 50 miles northwest of Nassau, Bahamas.

But at 11:17 a.m. Thursday a message came from a merchant ship, the Captain Theo, saying a child had been picked up from a life raft. The skipper, named Couthodontis, requested medical advice from the Coast Guard.

The child was given a small amount of water and orange juice and was put to bed while a Coast Guard helicopter flew to meet the freighter 285 miles off Miami. The Captain Theo is en route to Texas City.

The 'copter was unable to land on the freighter and lifted the child in a basket. She awoke briefly.

"She went right back to sleep when we put her inside the 'copter and didn't say a thing," said Lt. Cmdr. Robert Pope, the pilot.

Dr. Franklyn Verdon said Terry Jo was suffering from exposure, loss of fluid, a heart beating too fast because of shock, and the threat of pneumonia.

"But I think she will make it. I think she will live," he said.

The skipper of the Blue Belle, Capt. Julian Harvey, 45, was found in a lifeboat with the body of Terry Jo's sister, Renee, 7, on Monday and was taken to Nassau by a passing freighter. Harvey was suffering from shock and exposure. He said he found the body of Renee floating in a lifejacket.

Also aboard the 60-foot ketch on a cruise were Terry Jo's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Duperrault and Mrs. Mary Dene Harvey, wife of the skipper.

An extensive search by Coast Guard planes and surface vessels failed to turn up any trace of them. The Coast Guard said the search will be intensified.

Portable Audiometer For Health Dept.

PORTABLE AUDIOMETER PRESENTED . . . to Pitt County Health Department by the Exchange Club of Greenville. Above, Luther Moore, president of the club, gives the device to Dr. John Futrell, health director, and Mrs. Adelaide Dunn, supervisor of nurses. The audiometer will be used in hearing clinics primarily in the school health program. (Reflector staff photo.)

The Pitt County Health Department this week acquired a portable audiometer, to be used primarily in the school health program, given by the Exchange Club of Greenville.

The audiometer was presented yesterday to Dr. John Futrell, Pitt health director, and to Mrs. Adelaide Dunn, supervisor of nurses at the department, by Exchange Club President Luther Moore.

An audiometer is an instrument for gauging and recording the power of hearing. The new one can be easily transported throughout the county as needed. The department already had a larger audiometer which is to be kept at the health department for use there for speech and hearing clinics.

The speech and hearing clinics are sponsored by the Crippled Children's Section, Personal Health Services, N. C. State Board of Health, in cooperation with the Pitt County Health Department, Pitt Medical Society and East Carolina College. The clinic is also co-sponsored by the Greenville Kiwanis Club and the Pitt County Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

The purpose of the clinic, according to Dr. Futrell, is to make available services for underprivileged children with speech and hearing handicaps. The program is for the diagnosis, evaluation and treatment of those children handicapped by organic speech and hearing defects, who are of the acceptable age groups and who require financial assistance in support of special diagnostic measures and treatment.

The speech and hearing clinics are conducted at the Pitt County Health Department every first Thursday of the month.

However, the new, portable audiometer will be used primarily for the school health program and will be used throughout the county.

Sounds Off

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro said Thursday night that the United States is planning a "new invasion which 'could cost the lives of hundreds of thousands of Cubans.'"

Castro made the statement in a bitter attack on President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela who broke diplomatic relations with Cuba last week.

The Castro blast was carried on shortwave radio but was not broadcast to the Cuban public. It was not until midmorning today that the government-controlled domestic radio began carrying excerpts from the talk.

U Thant Said Considering More Troops For Congo As Slayings Inspire Anger

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)

Acting Secretary-General U Thant today considered rushing more U.N. troops to the Congo to deal with the new crisis as anger mounted over the slaying of 13 Italian airmen by mutinous Congolese soldiers.

U Thant discussed the situation with Maj. Gen. Sean McKeown, commander of the U.N. Congo force, and Conor Cruise O'Brien, chief U.N. representative in Katanga, who were ordered home to brief him on the grave turn of events.

McKeown said on arrival Thursday the U.N. needs more men and equipment to deal with the mounting crisis. He added that those responsible for the slayings would have to be apprehended but that this would be difficult since Congolese officers have little control over their troops.

The U.N. Congo force once numbered more than 22,000 men but is down to 15,400 since the withdrawal of contingents from Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Morocco, Tunisia and the United Arab Republic. It is expected to lose the Nigerian contingent of 1,711 within a few weeks.

U Thant denounced the slaying of the 13 airmen as an outrageous crime and ordered the U.N. Congo command to make sure all responsible get the punishment they deserve.

The murder sent a wave of revulsion through U.N. headquarters as details were disclosed in a report from Sture Linner, chief U.N. officer in the Congo.

Linner said the Italians were beaten and shot, then cut to pieces and parts of their dismembered bodies distributed to a crowd in the Kivu Province town of Kindu.

There were expressions of outrage from the United States, Britain, France and other members of the Security Council which met to discuss the mounting crisis in the breakaway province of Katanga.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson told the council the "revolting murder" pointed up the need for U.N. action against the mutinous force of more than 2,000 believed led by leftist leader Antoine Gizenga.

He proposed that the U.N. make available to the central regime "a small but effective air force" to deal with secessions in both Oriental and Katanga provinces.

Stevenson said the United States would present a resolution to the Council to give U Thant authority to deal with the entire Congo problem.

Soviet Delegate Valerian A. Zorin joined in the expressions of regret over the deaths of the Italian airmen but accused Stevenson of trying to divert attention from Katanga by bringing up activities of the Gizenga forces in the eastern Congo.

Minuteman Missile Silo Launching Hailed Success

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)

With a swirl of fire and smoke, an intercontinental-range Minuteman missile scored its first underground launching success today. The rocket vaulted from a 90-foot pit and raced to a target area about 3,000 miles away.

The success, announced by the Air Force, advanced the day when hundreds of Minutemen will be planted in underground silos capable of surviving nuclear attack.

A rush of fire and smoke erupted from the steel and concrete hole as the missile's powerful engines ignited.

The 58-foot projectile cleared the pit in two seconds, quickly darted through the smoke clouds and pitched toward the southeast.

The second and third stages fired as planned and propelled the nose cone into a broad bull's-eye area in the Atlantic. Pinpoint accuracy was not a goal on this first successful silo firing.

The good flight signals a stepup in the Minuteman test flight program, with several more firings scheduled before the end of the year.

The Air Force needed a successful flight to make up for time lost when a Minuteman exploded seconds after the missile's first silo launching on Aug. 30.

The August failure was traced to a spurious guidance system signal which ignited the second stage as the missile cleared the silo. The second stage is intended to fire about a minute after launching.

Analysis of data also showed the missile was affected slightly by noise ricocheting off the sides of the silo. To remedy this, the hole used today was lined with a three-inch thickness of a substance resembling acoustical tile.

Before launching, the missile rested on a hydraulically operated ring which hung suspended on metallic straps 17 feet from the bottom of the shaft.

Newcomers Party Is Host To Some 75 Families Here

"Oldtimers" officially initiated about 140 new Greenville residents as citizens of the city at the 10th annual Newcomers Party Thursday night.

Some 75 Greenville families — newcomers since a year ago — were invited to the annual party that featured refreshments, entertainment, prizes and a lion's share of handshaking and getting-acquainted for all.

Sponsored by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and aided by 13 civic organizations as hosts, the party got underway about 7:30 as a long receiving line, headed by Mayor Charles M. King, extended Greenville's hand of hospitality to the newcomers.

Jack Whichard, chairman of the Chamber's Public Relations Committee, served as toastmaster for the party. City court solicitor Eli Bloom, in his usual frolicsome way, warmed up the Newcomers group with several songs before engineering a session of distributing to the newcomers gifts donated by local business establishments.

Dan Sutton provided organ music at intervals throughout the program. He offered music for dancing at the close of the schedule of events for the party.

Whichard introduced Mayor King for his official welcome-to-Greenville address to the attending newcomers. Bloom recognized Willard T. Kzyer, the Chamber's manager, who welcomed the city's new citizens and expressed appreciation to the organizations which participated in planning, preparing and conducting the 10th annual affair.

Organizations participating in the Newcomers Party included: the Chamber of Commerce, the Business and Professional Women's Club, Credit Women's Breakfast Club, Civitan Club, Exchange Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis Club, Lions Club, Merchants Association, Optimist Club, Rotary Club, Greenville Recreation Commission and the Greenville Moose Lodge and Women of the Moose.

Held in the Moose Lodge auditorium, the party featured a number of "Oldtimers" equal to the number of "Newcomers." The "Oldtimers" — representatives of the participating organizations — spread themselves among the city's new residents for the program.

Following the talk, Mrs. Withey showed colored slides. She also had a collection of many unusual articles they had purchased in Burma which she explained to the group.

Dr. Winsberg Club Speaker

Dr. Morton D. Winsberg of East Carolina College was guest speaker for the Chatham Book Club when it met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. C. A. Bowen on Library Street.

Upon arrival of members and guests, the hostess served a salad plate with coffee and fruit cake.

Mrs. Luther Bowling, program leader for the afternoon, presented Dr. Winsberg, assistant professor in the Department of Geography at East Carolina College. Dr. Winsberg has just returned to the college this fall after a year's leave of absence to study Jewish agricultural colonies in Argentina.

"These colonies," stated Dr. Winsberg, "were created by Baron Mauricio de Hirsch." The first colonies were created in 1891, when Baron Hirsch had the idea of helping to settle the persecuted Jews of Czarist Russia in agricultural colonies in a number of countries. There are eleven in Argentina alone which are scattered over a broad area, all of which Dr. Winsberg visited and lived in for a while.

These colonies reached their maximum size in 1920, when they had a total population of about 45,000. Today they have only about 10,000 because many have abandoned the land to move into the city, a migration which affects not only the Jews, but also most rural people of Argentina.

Dr. Winsberg followed his talk by showing the slides of several of the colonies, as well as various shots of some of the resort centers of Argentina, such as Mar del Plata and Navel Huapi National Park.

With McCormack Heading House, Kennedy May Face Tough Sledding

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indications point to tougher sledding for President Kennedy's legislative program in the House next year, now that Speaker Sam Rayburn is dead.

Things may go somewhat harder for the President with the expected ascension of John McCormack of Massachusetts to the speaker's chair in January.

The main reason for this is that Rayburn, a Texan and Southerner himself, had gathered immense personal prestige and a great reservoir of respect and friendship during his long years of stewardship.

Rayburn was able to cash this coin of respect and affection when necessary to put over key proposals of the Kennedy administration, drawing enough Southern conservative votes with him to make the difference.

He did this at least three times during this year's session, before cancer forced him to go home to Bonham. He won the bitter fight to liberalize the bottleneck rules committee by adding three new members, and his margin of victory was just five votes. He also put his personal prestige on the line for the housing bill and raising the minimum wage.

It is doubtful that McCormack, a very different sort of man, can command that kind of personal power to influence voting on controversial issues that will be coming up—and certainly not among the Southerners who listened to Mr. Sam with respectful attention and often went along with him.

Since the conservative-liberal split in the House is so razor close, as was shown by vote after vote in the past year when Southern Democrats teamed up with Republicans, this could make a fuss later. Of course it is his relations with his House colleagues that will count, not with the Senate. But McCormack does not as yet have the great fund of personal devotion to draw on that Rayburn did.

There is no expectation that McCormack will be any less faithful in pushing the Kennedy program than Rayburn was, in spite of past differences with the President growing out of Massachusetts politics.

But McCormack is a party man. It is felt that he has deep respect for the historic powers of the speakership and that he would not let petty differences interfere with his new office.

Rayburn's method of running the House was as polished as the marble entrance hall on the new east front of the capitol, a project very dear to his heart. McCormack's may be somewhat rougher.

When Congress quit for the year in September, McCormack incensed the Senate by adjourning the House before the other body was ready. This left the Senate with no choice but to accept a last catchall appropriations bill which contained some things many senators didn't like. There was much wee-hours oratory about high-handed methods and lack of courtesy before the senators swallowed the bitter bill McCormack handed them.

McCormack pooh-poohed the fuss later. Of course it is his relations with his House colleagues that will count, not with the Senate. But McCormack does not as yet have the great fund of personal devotion to draw on that Rayburn did.

Church Resolution Opposes Liquor Ads

The Central Conference of the Original Free Will Baptists has made public a resolution opposing advertising of intoxicating beverages and their display in places of business.

A resolution to this effect was adopted at the Central Conference session here last week and made public yesterday.

"Whereas the various media of communications, such as radio, television, billboards, daily and weekly papers and magazines have been used as a means of advertising the sale of intoxicating beverages, and whereas grocery stores, supermarkets, service stations and eating places display beer and wine among their products for sale, be it resolved that we go on record in this 1961 session of the Central Conference as opposing and detesting such advertising."

The resolution also recommended that ministers and other community leaders inform themselves concerning literature on the subject of alcohol. Such literature might be used in local churches, schools and community organizations to "teach against the use and sale of intoxicating beverages."

"We recommend that our ministers familiarize themselves with the problem of alcoholism as a sin and as a disease, and that rehabilitation may be brought about through Christ."

The resolution recommended Hebron Colony and Grace Home in Boone, N. C. "as a good place for men and women."

"We recommend that the ministers and other church leaders of the Central Conference teach their people the principles of self-control in word and deed, as set forth in the Bible and church covenant."

The recommendations were submitted by the temperance committee composed of the Rev. C. L. Patrick, the Rev. J. C. Lynn and the Rev. Fred Powers.

The Central Conference represents more than 10,000 Free Will Baptists and consists of 54 churches with more than 60 ministers.

Sees Obligation To The Public

EDENTON, N. C. (AP) — Soil and water conservation districts are obligated to the public now for sound and workable decisions for the future, Gov. Sanford said here Thursday night.

Regional planning commissions can help in the job of anticipating what the resource needs will be in the years to come, the governor told a meeting of the Northeastern Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

Wise planning is needed, Sanford said, "so that we can use our natural resources without abusing them."

"One of the great advantages of the Soil and Water Conservation District programs is that they are in local hands," Sanford said. "The state, however, has a responsibility both in authorizing and assisting them."

Earlier, Sanford had told a conference in Durham positive action is needed to conserve North Carolina's resources. He spoke to the North Carolina Resource-use Education Conference at North Carolina College.

Sanford warned that "unless the next and succeeding generations . . . develop a new and more positive approach to the matter of resource use, then man is in trouble."

Since 1954 the United States has spent nearly $2 billion to strengthen South Viet Nam.

U Thant Actually Sought The Job!

The multitude of problems—past, present and future—inherent in the Congo, are back in the United Nations' lap; and hotter than ever.

Rebellious Katanga Province is only one of the problems, but as of today it appears the most urgent.

Observers have concluded the central government cannot function without the resources of secessionist Katanga. And Katanga won't play ball.

Question: Is it the United Nations' responsibility or that of the central government to force or cajole Katanga back into the fold?

Then, one Antoine Gizenga, leftist heir of the late Premier Patrice Lumumba, is directing a mutiny of government troops in still another provincial area. Is this, or is it not, business for the UN?

Basically, Congolese independence is largely fruit of United Nations pressure; and the fruits of independence have been anything but pleasant for the former colony and for contrivers of Congo independence who are caught up in their own handiwork.

There's another angle.

While token military units of the United Nations were asked for (by Congo) to restore order and resolve some of the chaos, the presence of this really inadequate police force has proved embarrassing to the Congo government and there have been strained relations as well as occasional clashes between UN forces and Congolese troops.

Meanwhile (back at the ranch) we find more ingredients for this witches' brew. Not everybody approves of the police force action; not all UN members qualify as a sufficiently neutral source for troops to send to the troubled area; not all of the neutrals who can qualify for this service have troops they want to dispatch; still fewer can afford the financial outlay involved; and the international organization itself has a precariously small bankroll.

Too, we cannot forget that more far-reaching problems of a highly explosive nature are also confronting United Nations membership at this time.

The governments least able to contribute to the cause of forceful UN action in the Congo are the most vociferous in demands that "something" be done. One is inclined to suspect they are counting on that organization to save their "face"; because independence of the unready Congolese natives can be traced, in a large measure, to their proddings.

Under such dismal prospects the Acting Secretary General is expected to work out a happy ending. And to think he actually sought the job!

Still A Need For Those 'Old Fashioned' Ideas

Widespread expressions of affection and regret mark the passing of Speaker Sam Rayburn; and there is no question . . . anywhere . . . but he will be sorely missed.

His long years of legislative experience, his uncanny ability to keep Democrats in Congress working in unison, his "sixth sense" of national thinking, all these served his country well.

Few men have done so much to bring respect and honor to the field of politics.

The Speaker was never known to take the power and responsibility of his office lightly. The respect he accorded it rebounded to his own honor and respect.

Rep. Rayburn was the friend and advisor of the great and near-great . . . but more than that, he was also the friend of many who were simply people. The residents of Bonham, Texas, can attest to that.

We are hearing now the oft-used words "he was a great American."

And maybe this is partly why:

He believed in personal integrity, and held a powerful personal faith in his fellow countrymen. Here, in Greenville, Rep. Rayburn departed from the text of a political address to put his faith into words: "I am an old-fashioned man. I believe in the honesty of men and the purity of women. I believe American homes are teaching their children to believe in the future and to believe in God."

This may be old fashioned . . . but it stood him in good stead. The world cannot have so changed that we no longer need such convictions.

Trying To Keep A Dream Alive

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — This is one of those very nice times when, just because it's so quiet, you begin to hope that maybe if you don't look around the boogymen will go away, although you know he won't.

Ever since the Soviet party congress began in mid-October Premier Khrushchev has been practically speechless in Berlin, which he had been building into a crisis for four months, except to say he was willing to wait a bit for a settlement.

This has truly baffled the Western Allies, although all it proves so far is that Khrushchev is such an excellent actor that he can puzzle his adversaries as much by silence as by speeches.

But he has luck on his side. The Allies seem no more ready now to sit down and discuss Berlin with him than they did last June when he began giving President Kennedy the biggest problem of his presidency by demanding a settlement.

And the reason they're not ready is that they're still not agreed, after all this time, on what to do next. Khrushchev can't lose anything by waiting. The more time the Allies have for thinking about him, the more they may disagree.

And the more they disagree the more their alliance may split, which is something he couldn't hope to achieve if he suddenly got so rough that he forced them together in self-defense.

It's not that the Allies haven't been thinking about him. They've been as busy running back and forth as the first shoppers inside a bargain basement when the doors opened. They're still doing it.

Just Wednesday the State Department announced the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany will meet in Paris next month.

Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer meets here next week with President Kennedy and French President Charles de Gaulle is going to London to talk with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

But the basic difficulty of the Allies in dealing with Russia, which dominates East Germany and Eastern Europe, is how to keep a dream from getting lost in reality without appearing to say goodbye to the dream.

Kennedy stated the problem in a paragraph—although he didn't present it as a problem at all—before he ever became president.

That was on Oct. 1, 1960, during the presidential campaign, in Chicago when he addressed a congress of Polish-Americans who, naturally, don't like to think Communist-run Poland is forever lost to communism.

Kennedy said: "We must never at the summit, in any treaty declaration, in our words or even in our minds, recognize the Soviet domination of Eastern Europe as permanent. We must never do it."

This statement was applauded but it didn't add anything to enlightenment on the question of how—short of war with Russia—the Soviets can be induced to loosen their grip on Eastern Europe.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
WAS IT UNTIMELY?

Before me as I write is an announcement sent out by an organization of which I am a member and disclosing the fact that one of our comparatively young colleagues has passed away. The doctors knew it was going to happen, so did the family and the man himself. There was nothing that could be done.

What can we say about early deaths? All we can say is that God's calendar and ours are not the same. What appears brief to us is not necessarily brief in the eyes of God. What seems like an untimely death may be the winding up of a triumphant career. Some people may be staggering along in advanced old age without ever having learned the problems of living. Others die in childhood and are mature beings at the time of death. Jesus was the greatest person ever to appear on this planet. Time is dated from his birth. His words have made an everlasting impression upon people of all races. Yet he lived to be only thirty-three years of age. Alexander the Great conquered the world and died at the same age.

Time is the greatest of all mysteries. Our little, man-made calendars furnish measurements that we can use to our advantage. But the calendar is not the ultimate measure of time. God has measuring sticks. "A thousand years in thy sight is but as yesterday when it is past." Let us not question God's management of His world. Instead let us ponder the significance of this thing called life.

Also Proved Good Emcee

By HENRY HOWARD

AYDEN—Corey Stokes, Ayden auto dealer and vice chairman of the Pitt County Development Commission, saw to it personally the other night at the commission's meeting here that there would be humor.

In the absence of the chairman, Corey was obliged to preside. And he did a good job. But what made his handling of the chore unique was that he not only adequately conducted the business session, he was a dog-gone good emcee.

Rotarians," he said. Corey himself being a member of the Ayden Rotary Club. Then he admitted that "underlying" cause that often prompts many unusual actions.

"No. You see, fellows, my wife is back there in the kitchen. She prepared the dinner."

After everybody had single-filed through the kitchen to deposit the remnants of a good chicken dinner, Corey again was on his feet.

Corey said a prospect could ask the "beatnik" questions about a town he was surveying as a possible location. And sometimes, he said, only a one-in-a-million coincidence can come to the rescue.

One particular instance, Corey said, was a prospect who had come to Ayden. Officials had fortified themselves well with data about the services and commodities Ayden could offer.

So what does the prospect do? He wants to know how many times a month do the town employees polish the glasses in the traffic lights. Naturally the answer he would have heard would have been punctuated liberally with stammering.

But the providential coincidence. At precisely the right moment a town employe had just slipped a new bulb into a nearby spotlight. Maybe never before or never since, but this time he took in hand a cotton cloth he "just happened to have" and judiciously wiped the red glass disc clean.

And lightning strikes twice in the same place, sometimes.

Another prospect grilling Ayden officials about the town wanted to know how long it took for firemen to get the truck on the road after the alarm sounded.

Corey feeling certain that his bluff would be called, answered "thoughtfully": "O-o-o-o, I'd say 'bout a minute and a half."

Corey remembers that empty feeling when, only moments after he had secretly boasted, the wail of the town fire alarm sounded more loudly than ever before.

Immediately the prospect turned his attention to his wrist watch and began a count-down on that "minute-and-a-half." Again Corey had that empty feeling.

But again the providential coincidence: The prospect had counted 30 seconds when the fire truck roared by "Very good," he said. "Very, very good."

What he didn't know, said Corey, was that the truck driver had turned in the alarm.

Other Editors Saying ... Community Colleges

(From The Charlotte News)

The State's budding community colleges ought to waste no time crying over the split milk of Tuesday's bond election. Their building plans, it's true have been temporarily thwarted. The voters made no distinction between community and dormitory-type colleges in an across-the-board rejection of the bond package. But a vital distinction already existed and the bond election results can and ought to be used to highlight it.

The distinction is that community colleges are the most economical means of providing higher education for North Carolina youth. Even before the bond vote, qualified applicants were being turned away from the residence institutions for lack of housing space. With dormitories already over-crowded, this trend will grow. Private housing, when available and reasonably convenient, is in high demand and therefore expensive.

The meaning of all this is that the doors to higher education will continue to be slammed in the face of Tar Heel students who want, need and deserve higher education. It goes without saying that North Carolina cannot tolerate this trend very long. It goes against every economic and social goal the State has set for itself. It goes against common sense.

From the beginning the community college concept has been more suffered than supported in North Carolina. As recently as six years ago Mecklenburg representatives in the General Assembly were begging just for a smidgen of State help—enough at least to encourage the home-folks to spend their own money on community colleges.

Although State support has grown more liberal, it comes on the premise of shared responsibility. The idea is that North Carolina has an obligation to help Mecklenburg, Buncombe and New Hanover provide higher educational opportunities for deprived youth.

Grateful for that much we persist in believing (1) that the entire obligation really belongs to the State and (2) that it is in the State's best interest to shoulder the obligation. That is, the General Assembly ought as a matter of policy to construct teaching and library facilities within the financial reach of students who need them.

The university system is and obviously ought to remain the strong heart of higher education. We could not do without the quality of large libraries, an excellent faculty and extensive research facilities. But all this is of no account to the growing thousands of students who never seek or who are denied access to the residence institutions.

North Carolina voters have just denied the State money to construction additional dormitories. Obviously, the vote was not a rejection of higher education. But it most certainly was a grass roots call for economy, in all State functions.

Not only economy but education would be served by raising community colleges from their step-child status to full partnership in the mission of developing the resources of youth—and keeping them in North Carolina to produce, to build and to lead our State.

Brains and aptitudes among children are not distributed in direct proportion to the economic status of their parents. The time has come for the State to put the tools of learning within reach of all its youth—to concentrate on teachers and classrooms and to cut away the tremendous cost of building and maintaining new dormitories.

A Profit In Millions Due 2 Fads

By ELMER ROESSNER

Two fads today are spinning off millions of dollars in profits to enterprisers.

One is safflower oil, the product of the seeds of a thistle-like plant of the aster family. The other is the twist, a dance that has been popularized at the Peppermint Lounge in New York and has spread across the country.

There is no connection between safflower oil and the twist unless weight reduction is a common denominator.

FEAR OF HEART ATTACKS

Many doctors are urging patients, especially the elderly and those overweight, to substitute vegetable oils for animal fats. The latter, saturated fats are believed to create cholesterol, which is said to clog blood vessels and thereby strain the heart.

The twist—well, let's get back to safflower oil. Some doctors believe that the unsaturated vegenable oils actually help eliminate cholesterol formed by the animal fats. One group thinks that of all the available vegetable fats, safflower oil is the best. Some doctors prescribe doses of it two and three times a year. It not only prevents cholesterol, they say, but actually helps people to lose weight.

As a consequence, safflower oil is sold in many drug and grocery stores and many health food stores carry it in gelatin capsules.

The safflower was first cultivated in ancient Egypt and it spread over the world. It was not grown commercially in the United States until ten years ago when Pacific Vegetable Oil Co., requiring supplies for use in paints, encouraged farmers in California, Nebraska, Montana, North Dakota, Kansas and a few other western states to cultivate it.

BUMPER CROP

About 400,000 acres were cultivated this year. The crop is estimated at 25 per cent above last year's, and the 1962 crop, because of larger plantings, may be 50 per cent higher.

In addition to paint and dietetic globules, safflower oil is used in salad and cooking oils, margarine, baked goods and frozen desserts. Thus a commodity that has been known for thousands of years has suddenly been twisted into a health potion, enriching packagers and vendors as well as Pacific Vegetable Oil.

So is the the other twist, the dance, enriching those who were quick to move to its popularity.

Dozens of music companies are busy cutting records of twist tunes. One company, Roulette, has arranged with the Peppermint Lounge for use of its name, but others are using the word "peppermint" without royalty. There's a "Peppermint Twist," a "Peppermint Twist Time" and

GOP In Need Of Idealism

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

No political party can afford to sacrifice its birthright of principle and hope to survive. The Republican Party has been out of office so long that it has lost its sense of direction. The Eisenhower Administration did not unify the Republican Party. In fact, during the first Eisenhower Administration the Right Wing followers of Robert A. Taft and the opportunistic followers of Harold Stassen and the anti-Communist followers of Senator Joe McCarthy split the party into many subdivisions. Unity has never been restored.

The party is currently divided into groups which may be indicated as follows:

1. The Conservative followers of Barry Goldwater who include many Southern Democrats among their number;
2. The Liberal followers of Nelson Rockefeller who fear to have their candidate run in 1964;
3. The supporters of Richard Nixon who feel that he might have been elected and that he was defeated by accident and by Kennedy money;
4. Those who are weary of all these names and who want to see a new name and a new personality and some fresh ideas.

This puts the party in a bad position. No other names seem presently to be available. Nixon seems to be out of the running and Rockefeller has suffered severely from the re-election of Wagner as Mayor of New York. It is logical that Wagner should run for Governor of New York State in 1962. Should Wagner be elected Governor of New York State, Nelson Rockefeller would be out of the running as a candidate for President. As it stands today, it looks as though the only likely survivor as a candidate in 1964 is Barry Goldwater. It is very doubtful that Goldwater would have a chance against Kennedy.

Whom then will the Republicans nominate? At this moment, the Republicans have no candidate who is acceptable to enough voters to matter. Barry Goldwater has an idealistic following, young, enthusiastic, but it is doubtful whether this will be sufficient to elect a President.

The problem that faces the Republican Party, first of all, is to orientate itself ideologically. It has to mean something more than a vehicle to elect the opposition party; it must be more than an opposition party. Under President Eisenhower, the Republican Party lost intellectual cohesion, having fallen into the hands of businessmen who, while their intentions were perhaps right, failed to be able to state what they really meant.

President Eisenhower in the few speeches he has made since he left the White House, has been more articulate than when he was there. At any rate, he offers a much more certain idea of what he means. But President Eisenhower cannot run again. The Republicans require a new life and a new leadership or out of the Goldwater effort will come a totally new party, perhaps under Southern or Western leadership.

This much is evident: the Eastern States are Democratic. The shifts in population have definitely established the Democratic control even in centers which have traditionally been Republican. The few gains in New York must not be taken as signs of strength; they are rather indicative of new ideas, a movement away from Eisenhower Liberalism. Many other Republicans are standing in the way of their party's progress because they adhere to that practicality which resulted in the defeat of Landon, Wilkie and Dewey, a practicality which is often referred to as "me-tooism."

All this past needs to be wiped away. If its place, if its party is to survive, must come an idealism which can attract youth. If John Kennedy grows from a practical politician into a moral leader of men and women in a sad world, youth, who drink in the fountain of faith rather than in the salted waters of practicality, will turn to him as it has been turning to Goldwater.

This country requires two parties. It is impossible for it to function politically with only one party because the machinery of government, particularly Congress, is set up on a two party basis. If the Republican Party does not come out of its present intellectual doldrums, the Democratic Party will absorb the victory.

Growth in Self-Discipline ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 7:13-14; Luke 9:23-25; Ephesians 4:25-32; II Peter 1:2-11; I Corinthians 9:24-27.

Christ pointed out two sources in life, one through a wide gate down a broad and easy path "to destruction," the other through a narrow gate down a hard trail of self-discipline "to life." Only a few find the latter. —Matthew 7:13-14.

Christ asked, "What does it profit a man if he gains the whole world and loses or forfeits himself?" He advised His followers to take up their own crosses for His sake, "for whoever loses his life for My sake, he will save it." —Luke 9:23-25.

Paul advised the Corinthians to exercise self-control as an athlete does so he can win the laurel wreath of victory. For Christians the prize is a glorious and eternal one—a part of the "divine nature." —I Corinthians 24:25; II Peter 1:4.

Paul also said not to "let the sun go down on your anger." Self-discipline is essential to avoid petty anger and jealousy, which harms the originator more than its object.—Ephesians 4:26. GOLDEN TEXT—I Corinthians 9:25.

Growth Through Self-Discipline

THE IMPORTANCE OF A DECISION TO FOLLOW CHRIST, DESPITE ALL PERSECUTIONS AND TEMPTATIONS

Scripture—Matthew 7:13-14; Luke 9:23-25; Ephesians 4:25-32; II Peter 1:2-11; I Corinthians 9:24-27.

By N. SPEER JONES ONE OF the most sorely needed qualities in the world today is discussed in this lesson. The tensions of the cold war with its ever-threatening overtones of complete destruction, the material richness of our civilization with its ever-expanding zone of leisure time—these are conditions which make self-discipline essential for our spiritual, if not physical, survival.

The problem is then to implement that decision despite the myriad tribulations and temptations which inevitably beset us as humans. Paul exhorts the Ephesians to practice self-discipline to keep out the devilish faults of petty anger, revenge, dishonesty, gossip and slander. When Paul says to "be angry," he means to exercise righteous indignation for Christ's causes; it is the canker-like anger of our own petty rivalries he condemns, an anger which harms us more than our adversaries.

It is needed first in making the basic decision we all must face—whether we are going to live for ourselves alone and according to this world's standards, or whether we are going to live for the Lord.

Paul also advises self-discipline in language; our words can either destroy or bring new life into others. Peter reminds us that we can be "partakers of the divine nature." For this glorious goal we can be inspired to bend every effort to acquire such

The passage from Matthew makes it plain that there are only these two alternatives; there is no middle road between the difficult, narrow path and the wide, easy way of the crowd. The self-discipline required to choose and to stick to the narrow path is inspired only by the ultimate destination of the two roads—one to destruction, the other "to life."

This same basic decision is beautifully illustrated again in the famous passage from Luke, pointing out the two sets of values which exist in this world's and God's.

Wilbur Smith points out (in "Peloubet's Select Notes," p. 381) that the "cross" in this passage is not that borne by every mortal, of illness, death, poverty, etc., but that suffered for the sake of Christ.

The other passages in the lesson assume that one's decision for Christ has been made; based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches in the U.S.A., and used by permission. Distributed by King Features Syndicate virtues as self-discipline. James Iversch (in "Peloubet's Select Notes," p. 385) points out that self-control is the prerequisite to patience and to many other virtues. He urges us to be patient with ourselves in our battle against sin of all kinds. When we are patient with ourselves, we can also be patient with others; when we are patient with others we can exercise Christian love.

The reference to blindness (II Peter 1:9) means that those who do not realize these virtues are hampered by forgetting that they have been cleansed of their old sins, and are free to work positively. The citation from Corinthians reminds us that it is often easier to demand discipline from others than from ourselves.

Every man that striveth in the games exerciseth self-control in all things. Now they do it to receive a corruptible crown; but we an incorruptible.—I Corinthians 9:24-27.

Big City Fallout Defense Can Be Contrived

By PROF. WILLARD F. LIBBY

Big cities probably are prime targets of nuclear attack. Any city could be hit, with an aiming error of perhaps only a few miles in placing a rocket warhead in the heart of a metropolis.

The aiming errors, defense actions such as interceptor missiles, and other variables could keep the center of a city from being hit, with a suburb taking the full brunt. This is unpredictable.

With proper defense, most city dwellers and workers could be saved. Our cities are vulnerable right now because shamefully little has been done. City dwellers should be demanding action quickly, and taking individual steps to protect themselves.

Some cities have designated public shelters in basements or other areas of large public and office buildings, or factories. But few if any are yet stocked with necessary provisions to sit out the period of intense fallout.

Indeed, surveys to locate the best shelter areas are still being planned, rather than long ago accomplished.

Much Can Be Done
A few firms of companies have taken the initiative, and shown what is possible. For example, one company with 3,500 employees has prepared shelters in its buildings and stocked them at a cost of about $3.50 per employee.

At the University of California at Los Angeles, in two days we mapped the campus for basement areas capable of accommodating about 25,000 persons, enough room for the students and faculty and personnel.

We estimate we can stock it with all necessary supplies, including a basic powdered multi-purpose food which needs only addition of water, for $1 per person.

Many city buildings, factories and apartments have basement areas which could be quickly prepared to care for residents, workers and visitors.

Apartment dwellers, on their own or with aid of the landlord, can set up fallout shelters within their buildings.

Subways offer huge shelter areas for many thousands of persons, particularly in New York. Storm drains and any tunnels, are other possibilities.

Some countries, notably Sweden and Denmark, have been developing efficient fallout and anti-blast protection shelters for some time.

In Sweden, H-bomb shelters are required in the center of every city over 50,000 population, according to reports to the House Committee on Government Operations. In Denmark, some underground garages are prepared as shelter areas.

Evacuation Not The Answer
City residents in many blocks could band together to build and supply buried community shelters, such as were described in the previous article.

Would tall buildings and skyscrapers come tumbling down, perhaps trapping people in basement shelters? Yes, under a direct hit, or possibly for some distances beyond.

But reinforced concrete buildings such as these are strong, and many could withstand blast effects. In Hiroshima a concrete building directly underneath the A-bomb withstood the blast and was essentially intact, while frame buildings were blown down over great distances.

For fallout protection alone, tall buildings offer excellent protection in middle floors, and interior areas or corridors. There, the radiation from fallout would be blocked by the concrete structures above and below.

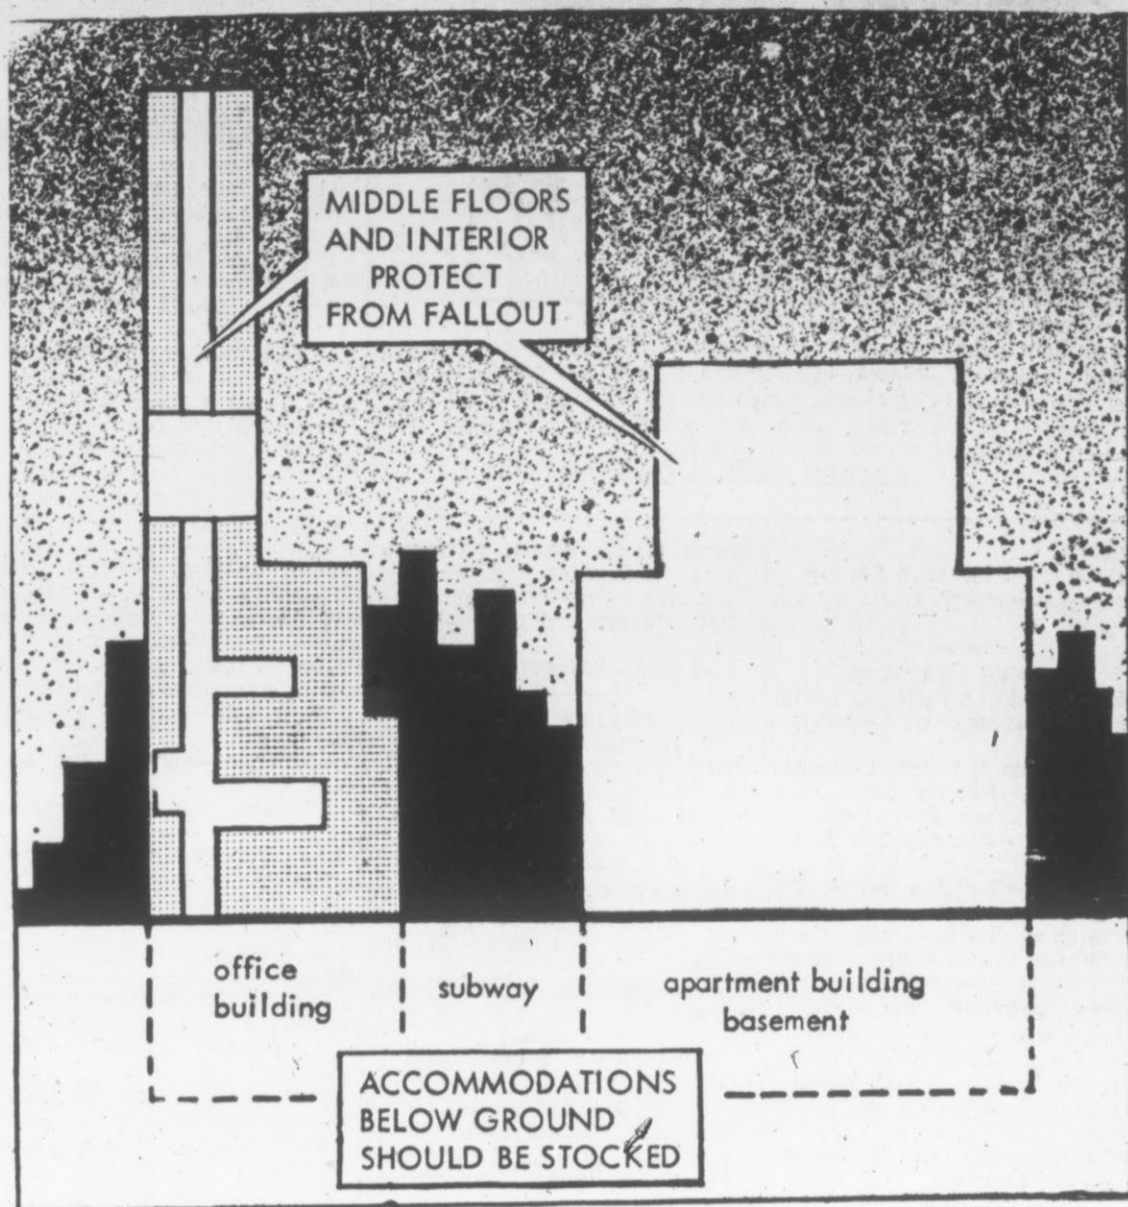

Evacuating a big city is not the answer, unless there was advance warning of a couple of days. Colossal traffic jams otherwise could lead to serious problems or loss of life.

Planning for apartment dwellers has lagged as badly as planning and preparation of shelters in schools. Tenants could take the lead in insisting on shelter provision, and might even contribute toward community shelters. The costs, run about $100 per person with fifty or more people per shelter.

Some apartments have inner corridors or spaces offering some protection due to distance and intervening walls from the exterior walls or roof. Staying there for 48 hours could reduce the exposure somewhat but such shelter is very seldom adequate.

Otherwise there seems little choice for many except closets, or improvised shelters with "walls" of books of any available material. Going to shelters in offices or public buildings might be the wiser course.

Red China Viewed As Future Menace

The greatest menace to world peace in the next generation is likely to be Red China, instead of Soviet Russia, declared Dr. George Pasti in an address to local Civitan Club members last night.

The speaker, a member of ECC's Social Studies Department, likened the continuing military and industrial expansion of Communist China to the rise of Nazi Germany during the 1930's which culminated with World War II.

Dr. Pasti discussed the reasons for the fall of Chiang Kai-shek's government and the emergence of the communist to power in China after the war's end. The Japanese attack was termed the "crucial turning point" in the defeat of Chiang and the rise of the Reds. Another factor was the failure of Chiang's government to institute needed domestic reforms in his country, Dr. Pasti said. Today in Communist China, "Political control penetrates down to the village level," stated the speaker. He stressed the importance of gaining more adequate and reliable information concerning internal happenings in China. "But this is difficult since American journalists are allowed to enter the country and the United States does not maintain diplomatic relations with their government."

In a business session prior to Dr. Pasti's remarks, Jim Rodgers, presiding in the absence of club president Herbert Wilkerson, urged members to attend the Civitan Area "C" meeting in Goldsboro Saturday night. Civitan Bud Phillips, Rose High football coach, remarked on the readiness of his team for the play-off game tonight with Roxboro. John Rivers was welcomed as a new member of the club, and the following guests were recognized: Leonard Briley, L. E. Everett, Ike Riddick, Pat Taylor, Bob Myers and John McClure.

Raps Admitting Futile Students

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Too many schools are filled with students who have no interest in capacity for self-advancement, says a former president of Fordham University.

"Private schools have admitted hopeless material because of tuition or the influence of parents," The Rev. Robert I. Gannon, S.J., said Thursday at the opening of the annual convention of the Catholic Educational Association of Pennsylvania.

"Public schools have been compelled by law to keep a lot of sullen hulks around whose only definite desire is to be elsewhere," he said.

Would Keep His Car And Goatee

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Sell his sports car? Shave his goatee? Nothing doing, says James E. Young, 20.

He announced he will appeal a 90-day jail sentence and a $300 fine for speeding.

Municipal Judge William Sumner Jr. told Young Wednesday he would suspend the jail term and all but $15 of the fine if Young would sell the car, shave off his goatee, and attend driving school. Young is free on bond.

Kennedy Baby Keeps Tradition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baby John F. Kennedy Jr. shows up in his official first birthday pictures as a smiling, pug-nosed baby with plenty of brown hair in the Kennedy tradition.

It's hard to tell yet who he's going to take after, but there seems to be more resemblance to his mother, Jacqueline Kennedy, 32, than to his father, President Kennedy.

Baby John's photographs have been issued by the White House for publication Monday night — five days before his first birthday anniversary, which falls on Nov. 25.

This is the first time since his christening last December that a full-face view of the President's son will appear in a public photograph.

The baby is shown in two poses — one cuddled in his mother's arms. The other is less formal, with the child at play on a gold rug. He is tasting the red handle of a toy rooster and is sitting amidst a collection of colored balls.

In the play photo, dark-eyed John Jr. appears with his hair a little mussed. But it is carefully brushed in place for the shot in his mother's arms.

The closeup photos were taken in the White House about Nov. 10. JFK Jr. is dressed in a white playsuit with a ruffle at the collar and on the sleeves.

The White House issued some statistics about the youngster, too. He now tips the scales at 23 pounds, stands 30-inches tall and has a vocabulary that includes the words "d-da, ma-ma and other noises."

There were no special photos made of Caroline Kennedy, who will be 4 on Nov. 27. But, the public has seen photos of her often in the past year.

The Great Plains has suffered often from grasshoppers. The most spectacular invasion occurred in the 1870s.

Boston Going After AFL Tie

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Boston goes after a virtual tie for the lead in the Eastern Division of the American Football League tonight when it hosts lowly Oakland.

Coach Jack Boone's East Carolina Pirates held their last practice session of the year today in preparation for the final game of the season tomorrow with Wofford in the East Carolina Stadium.

Both East Carolina and Wofford will be after this one as they both last week. East Carolina suffered its fourth loss of the season when Furman took the lead in the third quarter to win the ball game 29-8.

Gero said after scouting two of the Wofford games that the opponents this week have a good tough team. "They are big and strong and remind me a lot of Appalachian," he said.

All a Coach Could Ask For Coach Boone described Gordon, Hilgert, Piland, Matthews and Lockerman as "all a coach could ask for."

veteran Pirate skipper noted that all of these five will probably be considered for All-Conference honors.

Elmhurst And W. Greenville In Midget Playoffs

In Greenville Midget football action this week, the Elmhurst team defeated the Wahl-Coates team 13-0 and West Greenville downed Third Street 19-0. Both games were playoff contests.

There will be a couple of games in the Western Division where San Diego is the unbeaten leader and champion.

Coach Boone said today that his team has worked hard all season and they have played consistent ball.

Seven seniors will be playing their final game of their college career for East Carolina tomorrow.

From the backfield Gero singled out Roma as being the Little All-American candidate.

Gabriel, married and the father of two sons, needs to complete 11 passes to set a new ACC record for number of completions.

Everett, a senior chemistry major from Greenville at the University of North Carolina, ended a remarkable cross country career at Carolina this week as he helped the Tar Heels win their fourth ACC championship.

California will have three 500 PGA golf tournaments early in 1962. Florida will have one.

Bowl Fever Is On Rampage For Many College FB Teams

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bowl fever, an annual malady that afflicts most of the nation's top college football teams, is on the rampage again this weekend, testing the strong and striking down the weak.

Georgia Tech and Colorado were victims last week, and while they are not dead yet, the weekend schedule is such that it could cause further trouble to them and some of the hopefuls.

Texas, the nation's top-ranked team, second-ranked Alabama and fifth-ranked Minnesota seem to be in the greatest danger, while oncoming Syracuse, ranked 10th, is by no means safe.

The Longhorns, gunning for the host spot New Year's Day in the Cotton Bowl, can clinch at least a tie for the Southwest Conference title if they beat Texas Christian Alabama, unbeaten in its last 15 games, meets Georgia Tech, which has "revenge" fever, in addition to the bowl malady. The Crimson Tide are casting a fervent eye on the Rose Bowl, while also holding on to the Southeastern Conference's lead with a 5-0 mark. Bama, 8-0 over-all, is also being coveted by the Sugar Bowl.

Minnesota, winners of six in a row after an opening game loss, pits its Big Ten lead against seventh-ranked Purdue, also on the move after a shaky start. The Gophers, tied with Ohio State for the conference lead with a 5-0 record, have beaten Michigan, Michigan State and Iowa on successive weeks.

Purdue, 5-2, has beaten Iowa and Michigan State but is saddled with a mile-long injury list. A loss would leave third-ranked Ohio State atop the Big Ten. The Buckeyes play nonconference foe Oregon.

Syracuse, back on the track after a rash of injuries, faces Notre Dame, which shook a three-game losing streak last week.

Fourth-ranked Louisiana State, 7-1 over-all and 4-0 in the SEC, plays Mississippi State. Its bowl plans will be better known if it wins, after kayoing thoughts of the Sugar Bowl earlier this week. Mississippi (No. 6), set to go to the Cotton Bowl when it receives the invitation, takes on Tennessee, upset-victor over Georgia Tech last week. Michigan State, ranked ninth, meets Northwestern in a Big Ten game that will have no relation to a bowl, while eighth-ranked Colorado still holds the Big Eight lead, and hopes for an Orange Bowl bid, as it faces conference foe Nebraska.

Rutgers, the nation's other major unbeaten at 7-0, plays Colgate. A few conference titles are up for grabs Saturday. Columbia (1-1) can clinch at least a share of the Ivy League title against Penn while runners-up Princeton and Harvard, both 4-1, play Yale and Brown, respectively.

Duke (4-1) plays North Carolina (3-1) in an Atlantic Coast Conference game that will decide the title.

Three-Way Tie In Cajun Meet

By BEN THOMAS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—Ken Still, a self-styled "golf bum" and an unknown on the touring professional circuit, went into the second round of the $15,000 Cajun Classic today tied for the lead with Doug Sanders and Dave Marr.

Still, 26, blistered the soggy, 6,534-yard Oakbourne Country Club course with a 4-under-par 33-34-67 Thursday and set the gallery buzzing: "Who's he?"

"I'm just a golf bum but I love it," exclaimed Still, a Tacoma, Wash., product who turned pro at 18 but almost left the game for the rug cleaning business until nine months ago.

"I shot some 64s and 65s on the Tacoma courses and a group of lawyers decided to sponsor me on the tour. I'll be honest, I haven't got a dime to my name as chucked the lanky, blond Still. "But those lawyers gave me the chance to do the thing I want to do most."

The 67 was Still's best score to date on the tour.

He collected five birdies—one on a 40-foot putt on the 17th green—and bogged once on No. 3 when he muffed a two-footer.

"But I sure didn't think we'd start. You should have seen the solid mass of water," he said, referring to the nearly two inches of rain which fell on the rolling Oakbourne layout Wednesday.

But early Thursday clear skies greeted the 130 pros at tee off time. A brisk northerly breeze helped dry out the course.

Sanders, 28, of Cedartown, Ga., swinger who plays out of Ojai, Calif., finished early with his 33-34 and for a while it appeared his score would stand.

Marr, 27, of Houston, Tex. and Sun City, Ariz., shot a 33-34 in quest of his second tournament victory of the year.

Sanders, who needs only $4,000 to surpass Arnold Palmer for second place in total winnings this year, is after his fifth title.

Lionel Hebert, last year's Cajun Classic victor, finished one stroke off the pace with a 34-34-68.

Grouped at 69s were Bob Goalby of Crystal River, Fla.; Jon Gustin of Gladwyne, Pa.; and Bob Brue of Milwaukee, Wis.

The field will be cut to the top 60 after today's 18 holes. The finals in the 72-hole tournament are set for Sunday.

AFL Is Developing Ahead Of Schedule

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The American Football League is ahead of schedule in its development, Commissioner Joe Foss said today.

He reported over-all attendance up 11 per cent over the league's maiden season and "what has happened this season is something we didn't quite expect—the development of a nucleus of at least three, maybe four, solid franchises."

Foss admitted that there were still problems in four of the eight cities but he pointed out that "we never looked on this as the critical year. Most of us felt the third year would be the one that gave us a good reading of what lies ahead."

The commissioner was cheered when Oakland's city farmers voted to construct a 25,000-seat stadium. He said it eliminated "the one major roadblock in the establishment of the Oakland Raiders as a solid franchise."

Foss was taking a look at the solidity of the new professional league as it heads into the final five weeks of its second season. Last year the AFL survived a red-link bath (the loss was about $2,500,000) to sign a goodly portion of the top college stars.

He said Buffalo, Houston and San Diego look definite and apparently Boston can be grouped in there. Buffalo has finished its home season with attendance up 20 per cent although the fans were seeing a team that lost 14 of its 18 home games in two years.

Houston had its first sellout last week and its attendance is up 25 per cent. San Diego's average is up more than 80 per cent—the Chargers in four games have already bettered their total in Los Angeles last year for seven games—115,446 to 110,376.

"Boston had a complete sellout its last game, even turned fans away before the kickoff," Foss pointed out.

Oakland and New York have stadium problems although Oakland has cleared it up for next year and New York will move into the new Flushing Meadows stadium when it is completed—probably in 1963.

"Dallas is averaging 22,000 fans but there will be problems as long as there are two pro teams here," Foss said. "There simply isn't the population." Dallas also has a club in the National Football League.

Denver has been bitten by its second straight losing team but the intent is for a full recruiting effort for next year.

Par Golf Not Good Enough

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP)—Par golf wasn't good enough for a championship flight berth here Thursday in the qualifying round of the Carrousel Golf Tournament.

Scores were low, and it took a 3 under par 68 or better to make the championship flight. Peter Tufts of Pinehurst and Clyde Mangrum of Southern Pines had a best ball 64 to take medalist honors.

The team of Bill Harvey of Greensboro and Reid Fowler of Raleigh, defending champions, also had a 64 but were not required to qualify and thus, not eligible for the medal.

Two strokes back were Jack Carter and Bill Carter, both of Southern Pines, at 66.

Other teams making the championship flight were:

C. G. Grant, Greensboro, and Jim Collins, Southern Pines, 66; Walter Sezna and Jud Sacagnino, Wilmington, Del., 67; Keith Steiner and M. L. Siesinger, Charlotte, 67; Robert Turnbull and Tom Bumbarker, Hickory, 67.

The eighth place in the championship flight was to be decided today in a playoff between the teams of Warren Bell, Southern Pines, and Bob Davies of Gettysburg, Pa., who had a 68, and Rex Burnham and W. D. Edwards of Raleigh, who also had a 68.

3 Southern Loop Teams End Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 1961 football season comes to a close for three more Southern Conference football teams Saturday, and for two of them a happy ending doesn't seem in prospect.

Only The Citadel's conference champions, who're at home to Arkansas State, will be favored to win in the slim Saturday card that also finds Furman at Clemson and West Virginia entertaining Indiana.

The three games wind up a weekend schedule that was to begin today at Blacksburg with a 1:30 p.m. collision between two conference rivals—Virginia Tech and George Washington.

After Saturday, just two games will remain to be played—traditional Thanksgiving bouts matching Virginia Tech and VMI at Roanoke, and Richmond and William and Mary at Richmond City Stadium.

Whatever happens Saturday afternoon, The Citadel (6-3) and Furman (7-2) will enjoy winning seasons. For West Virginia (4-5), victory over Indiana (1-6) would mean a break-even record after a winless 1960 season.

Furman's chances appear most remote, even though the Paladins' big-time neighbor, Clemson (3-5) is bogged down in one of its rare losing campaigns. The Paladins in the past have won only 10 of 44 meetings with the rough, rough Tigers, and record or no record, they've been warned that Clemson is as mean as ever.

"This is one of the finest Clemson teams I have seen," says Furman coaching assistant Dixie Howell, who scouted the Tigers.

The Citadel will be playing its homecoming game against Arkansas State, a club the Bulldogs nipped 22-21 last year in an offensive whounding at Jonesboro, Ark.

Strangely enough, The Citadel has been at its best all season in other people's homecoming game. The Bulldogs have been homecoming foes for three teams — William and Mary, Xavier, and VMI—and have beaten them all.

Driver Wanted To Plead Guilty

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) "I'm going to dismiss this case unless someone wants to plead guilty," said Judge Frank Massa after he learned there were no witnesses to a reckless driving charge.

"I want to plead guilty," said Homer Sutherland, 23.

"You do?" asked the judge incredulously.

"Yes sir, I couldn't see the red light because limbs were hanging down."

"This is most refreshing," Massa said. "I'm going to suspend your case. Just don't run any more red lights."

Celtics Winning Without Coach

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With Coach Red Auerbach at the helm, the Boston Celtics have won three straight National Basketball Association titles. Without Coach Red Auerbach around, the Celtics keep on winning anyway.

Auerbach, in the midst of a three-game suspension for pushing an official, was in the Boston locker room listening to the game on radio Thursday night as the Celtics rolled over Cincinnati 127-121.

It was their second straight under Bob Cousy, acting coach.

The Royals' Jack Twyman popped in 29 points in the Cincinnati defeat, breaking into the 12,000 circle. Twyman's 10,000th point of his NBA career came on the last field goal of the first quarter and the game was held up while he received congratulations.

He is only the 13th player in the league's history to go into five figures.

Twyman's performance wasn't enough to slow the Celtics. Frank Ramsey hit on a layup to give the Celtics a 78-76 third-period lead and they stayed in front the rest of the way. It was the only game played in the league.

had been dropped from the team for failure to attend classes. He was not dropped from school.

Bosher missed the first two games of the season because of an injury, but in the last six he gained 160 yards in 36 carries for a 4.4 yard average. Besides that, he caught nine passes for 78 yards and two touchdowns. He also scored one touchdown on the ground.

The Wolfpack meets South Carolina Saturday, and closes against Clemson the following week.

Both N.C. State and South Carolina finished preparations Thursday for their 10:45 a.m. clash in Raleigh Saturday. The game was scheduled for the morning so as not to conflict with the Duke-North Carolina game Saturday afternoon.

The gamecocks were due in Raleigh this afternoon, and were expected to go through limbering up drills.

Over at Chapel Hill, North Carolina Coach Jim Hickey completed preparations for the Duke game and commented, "I hope we're ready. If we're not ready now, it's too late."

The Duke team went through a review of all phases of its game. The Blue Devils will be out to clinch the conference title, something they can do by beating North Carolina.

In other games Saturday, Clemson entertains Furman of the Southern Conference, Wake Forest plays at Maryland, and Virginia plays at Navy.

The ACC teams completed preparations Thursday for Saturday's games, except for limbering up drills.

ACC standings are certain to get a shaking up Saturday. Duke could clinch the title, but a North Carolina victory over Duke, and a victory in one of North Carolina's two remaining conference games, would give the Tar Heels the title. Duke takes a 4-1 record into Saturday's game, its last conference tilt of the season. North Carolina is 3-1 and plays Wake Forest and Virginia the next two Saturdays.

Duke is 5-3 over-all and North Carolina 4-3.

Maryland has a 2-2 ACC record, and the Terps' opponent, Wake Forest, takes a 2-3 mark into Saturday's game. The Terps are 6-2 in all games, best over-all record in the conference, and the Deacons are 3-5.

South Carolina is 3-3 in the conference, and 3-5 over-all, while N.C. State is 2-3 and 3-5.

Clemson has a 2-3 conference record and is 3-5 over-all, and Virginia is 1-3 in the ACC, and 3-4 over-all.

CHAPTER 18

Inspector Menendes' face was flushed as he picked up the telephone receiver; that was the only indication of tension.

"His voice was calm, decisive. Inspector Menendes speaking. . . Yes, sir, we have spread a net for the ring."

There was a pause during which he settled himself more comfortably in his chair. "No, that is not propaganda, we do expect to make an arrest shortly. . . I'm sorry, sir, you'll have to let me handle this my own way or put someone else in charge."

He put down the receiver, wiped his forehead with a large handkerchief and looked at the sergeant as if to say, "You see how it is." Aloud he said, "Did you put a man near the village?"

"Yes. If anyone leaves we'll know it."

"Good." The inspector lapsed again into absorbed silence. At last he said, "There's nothing we can do but wait." Then he added with a dry chuckle, "You might send a copy of that press release to the Department of Tourism in Mexico City. Put it in the form of an official report, address it to the Chief Inspector, Investigative Division, and I'll sign it."

The telephone rang again. The inspector motioned for the sergeant to wait and picked up the receiver. "Inspector Menendes here. . . Yes, Charles, I can see you at noon. . . Lunch at the Hotel Plaza? . . . Right, twelve sharp. . . The United States consul," he said to the sergeant. "Can you have the car here before noon?"

Sergeant Roberto saluted smartly. "I'll have it here by eleven forty-five."

Accustomed to seeing the inspector only in relation to the San Luis police department, the sergeant had never before fully realized his superior's importance in the world outside. He was impressed by the telephone calls, by the luncheon invitation from the consul, by the fact that in spite of the seriousness of the situation the Mexican government relied on the inspector to resolve it.

But what had the most effect on the sergeant's imagination was the inspector's resourcefulness. He seemed to have anticipated all of the exigencies and allowed none of them to deflect him from his charted course. In the midst of the confusion he moved with assurance toward his own predetermined objectives. The inspector, however, was not as self-confident as he appeared to be. Every once in a while he suffered a pang of doubt. He was waging a campaign of deception against his superiors in the capital. He was issuing misleading information to the press. He intended, deliberately, to deceive his friend, the United States consul, all because he was so certain that he was right. But what if he was wrong?

His theory that an Indian from the village was the murderer was the only one consistent with the facts. The ring would not turn up until the criminal felt free of suspicion, and therefore he must not, accidentally, be alerted.

Yet, what if by one of those unpredictable freaks of chance there was an additional factor, unknown and unweighed? Someone like the guide who had been traced and dismissed as guiltless. Could anyone else have been involved? A passing motorist, perhaps, who robbed the bodies?

It was one of the unmeasurable elements in a murder case. It seemed unlikely, yet it must be considered, and the knowledge that pawnshops throughout Mexico were watching for the ring was reassuring.

Still the inspector clung to his original theory. The ring must be hidden near the village and no rumor of suspicion must alarm the Indians, or it would remain hidden forever.

Shortly before noon the sergeant brought the car to the front of the building. There was an added respect in the way he opened the rear door and stood at rigid attention as the inspector climbed in, as if he understood the need for maintaining the inspector's impressive dignity. . . And the inspector, in the back seat, marveled at the sergeant's perception and congratulated himself on the choice of an assistant.

On the way to the hotel he again started shifting the pieces of the puzzle. He toyed with the idea of discussing the situation frankly with the consul. He imagined himself saying, "We know it's one of the Indians, but we can't arrest an entire village." But he knew he wouldn't say it.

He would give the consul the same carefully contrived fiction he had sent to his own superior. The most discreet officials had been known to make ill-advised statements, and although Inspector Menendes would have liked to protect himself by sharing his theory, he wanted more to expose the murderer. To do that, he had to have time to find the ring.

They had emerged from the shady side streets into the glare of the open Plaza. The streets were almost deserted, but in the square itself a crowd had collected. The people were pushing each other, craning their necks to see over the shoulders in front of them. A policeman was approaching from the direction of the church.

"I wonder what's happening there," the inspector said.

"Shall I stop and find out?" Without waiting for an answer the sergeant started to pull the car over toward the curb.

"No, we can't stop. We're late now. Anyway the police are already there."

From his bench on the Plaza, Luis Perez saw the police car pulling into the curb with Sergeant Roberto at the wheel and the inspector perched, like a monstrous load, on the back seat.

He had a fleeting recurrence of the feeling that the inspector's mind was able to follow him and that his presence here was not accidental. It was a sensation based partly on Luis' knowledge of his own guilt and partly on conditioning that extended back into the mists of childhood.

In California the illegal immigrants who worked in the vineyards lived under an ever-present threat of deportation. Their presence was known and tolerated only so long as there was no open conflict with the law.

Whatever the working conditions, whatever the injustices, the Mexican laborers dared not protest; and Luis' parents, like the others, lived in constant fear that they would be driven away from the place that had become their home.

When he grew older Luis rebelled against those fears and through his rebellion created the realization of them, but while he was still small the police were a faceless, all-powerful authority that controlled his parents' decisions.

When Luis stole the car his mother beat him with a broom, crying over and over, "Now you've done it! Made trouble for us with the police!" Those were the words he learned, that decided everything, "trouble with the police."

His mother's anguished, frightened voice returned to him as he sat in the Plaza wondering what had gone wrong, how he had been drawn into this dangerous situation. He had watched confidently as the boy cut in front of the little senora and grabbed her purse. He saw her stiffen with surprise, and the boy's roguish face staring back at her.

Almost as if he were in the small body he had shared the wild surge of triumph; then, as the boy collided with the tall, gray-haired man, he experienced the jarring impact, the bewilderment, even breathless fright.

Luis' troubles aren't over yet; far from it. Continue the story here tomorrow.

RISKY?

Shell reveals the risks you may be taking when you put in anti-freeze yourself—and challenges any anti-freeze to better this ironclad Shellzone guarantee:

1. All-winter protection to any temperature you specify—down to 62°F. below zero.
2. Free refills, if needed any time this winter, at any Shell station in the U. S. or Canada.

IF YOU REALLY want to save a dollar or two by putting in your own anti-freeze, there's a good chance you won't have troubles.

But Shell experts think you should know the risks you may be taking—so that you can weigh the pros and cons for yourself.

First, the risk of leakage. Do-it-yourselfers often assume that a 100 per cent watertight cooling system is 100 per cent safe for anti-freeze. An unfortunate assumption. Here's why: Virtually all major brands of anti-freeze have lower surface tension than water. Therefore they can sometimes seep out through tiny holes and cracks that seem leakproof when you've got plain water in your cooling system.

Free cooling system check
Your Shell serviceman checks your cooling system for potential leaks before he puts in any anti-freeze. This check includes hoses, clamps, plugs, drain cocks, water pump, radiator. Eleven points in all. Absolutely free.

The overdose danger
Do-it-yourselfers also assume that it's a good idea to put in extra anti-freeze—just to play safe. No harm in that—up to a point. But did you know that too much permanent-type anti-freeze can have the same effect as too little?

That's because of the nature of ethylene glycol, the major component in nearly all permanent anti-freezes. By itself, ethylene glycol freezes at about 4°F. above zero—but mix it with the proper amount of water, and it can protect you down to minus 62°F.

When you go to your Shell dealer, you'll get exactly the right amount of Shellzone to protect you down to the temperature you specify. He even includes the water capacity of your heater in his calculations. (That's a little point that do-it-yourselfers often overlook.)

NOTE: Your Shell man always double-checks his job with a hydrometer.

Ironclad Shellzone guarantee
Finally, he gives you Shellzone's ironclad guarantee. Here's what it promises:

- Shell guarantees Shellzone to protect your car against freezing all winter, to any temperature you specify down to 62°F. below zero.
- Shell guarantees free refills this winter if, for any reason, the protection you originally specify is reduced. Guarantee good to April 1, 1962, at any Shell station in the U. S. or Canada.
- Shell guarantees that Shellzone will not clog cooling system passages, will not damage any metal or rubber parts of the cooling system, will not form any new rust.

Shell challenges any anti-freeze—at any price—to better this guarantee.

Why not drive in to your Shell station now—before the frost gets on the pumpkin. You'll avoid the last minute rush. And if there should be an early cold snap, you'll avoid a bit of worry, too.

At Shell, 1997 scientists are working to make your car go better and better

TV Background Music Is Bemoaned By The Critics

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The two most frequent complaints about television, if letters from viewers to this columnist are an indication, are about stepped-up sound often used when the commercials take over the screen and sharp annoyance with much background music.

"Background music is fine," runs a typical complaint on the latter subject, "but there is too much of it and it is too loud. I don't need a lot of screeching and grinding to tell me the person I'm watching on the screen is in danger and frightened. Sometimes a quiet footfall—or no sound at all—can be twice as eerie because that's the way it would be in real life. The same for fight scenes."

The real trouble with annoying background music, obviously, is that it is handled incompetently. Just as in motion picture scoring, the test is whether the viewer is conscious of the music. If it diverts him from the plot, it is not serving its purpose. If the hero, in danger, is inching his way through the shrubbery to the climax, and the audience is thinking about the sharp bongo beat of a percussion instrument, the drama is ruined.

Jacques Belasco, the composer who wrote the background music for tonight's "Vincent Van Gogh, A Self Portrait," on NBC (as well as for NBC's religious classic, "The Way of the Cross"), estimates that, conservatively, about half of the musical scoring of TV shows is poorly handled—particularly in shows using jazz background music. Belasco also says that music is poured into TV shows with a heavy hand "when the story is poor and they think that they can cover it up by having four bongos and a lot of glist."

Churchill Joins In School Song

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill joined in singing school songs at the Harrow School speech day festivities Thursday. For his 21st visit to his old school since 1940, the former prime minister made his way into speech hall, leaning heavily on his walking stick and noticeably without the customary cigar. He will be 87 in two weeks. Among the 600 white-collared boys, he joined with Lady Churchill in the singing.

NEW YORK (AP) — Consolidation of recent gains continued in the stock market early this afternoon. Prices were mixed in moderate trading. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at 268.60, with industrials off .70, rails off .10 and utilities up .60.

Gains and losses of pivotal stocks were kept generally within a point, with most changes fractional.

A couple of prime utilities responded to special news with substantial gains, lifting the average for that group. The major steels were down moderately. Leading chemicals also took losses, depressing the industrial average.

The pattern was mixed for air-crafts, rails, drugs and airlines.

The list was irregular from the start. A few of the higher-priced or more speculative issues made gains of 2 or more points.

Consolidated Edison of New York was bought heavily at the start on news of a $10.5 million rate boost, jumping about 2 points, then halving the gain in later dealings.

Southern California Edison spurred 3 points then clipped a fraction from the rise following word of a 3-for-1 stock split proposal.

The news background for the market continued good. Industrial production for October was reported back at the record level of August. An increase in new orders received by manufacturers of durable goods was also reported. Most stock market analysts continued confident that the year-end rally would continue once the current "digestive" phase was over.

U.S. Steel fell a point to 76 on a block of 8,400 shares. The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 2.23 at 731.10. Prices advanced on the American Stock Exchange in active trading.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds were steady in slow trading.

Nike-Zeus Flies Successful Test

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP) — A Nike Zeus missile killer rocket has passed a test previously flunked by two other Nikes, for the first time demonstrating its capability of outracing liquid fuel missiles.

The rocket's purpose: To seek out and destroy incoming nuclear-tipped missiles, high in the sky. The Nike Zeus is supposed to demolish the invaders with its own nuclear warhead.

The shot down the Pacific missile range Thursday tested the launch system and the first two stages of the three-stage solid fuel rocket. Two previous tests ended — spectacularly — when the rockets veered off course and had to be blown up.

Nike Zeus is a superfast missile. Its solid fuel engine kicks it aloft 10 times faster than a liquid fuel atlas missile. Next year, the Army says, Nike Zeus missiles fired from Kwajalein Island will be hurled at Atlas missiles launched Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., over the Pacific.

But first, the third stage of the Nike Zeus must be tested with the other two. This is scheduled possibly for next month.

Attention was focused on Thursday's test because:

Power Co. Plans New Station

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Duke Power Co., already serving a 20,000-square mile area with seven steam and 31 hydro-electric plants plans to build a steam-electric generating station at Lake Norman.

The first two generating units will cost $90 million. Duke President W. B. McGuire said construction will start Aug. 1, 1962, with the first unit scheduled to begin operation March 1, 1965.

Lake Norman will be a 33,000-acre lake behind—Cowan's Ford Dam, which the power company is building on the Catawba River 16 miles northwest of here. The lake will be filled by 1963.

The generating station will be in Catawba County. The first two generating units will have a capacity of 350,000 kilowatts each. The facility will be Duke Power's third on the Catawba's chain of lakes. The others are the Riverbend Plant, near Mount Holly, and the Allen Plant near Belmont.

The new station will be called the Marshall Plant, in honor of the late Edward Carrington Marshall long-time associate of James B. Duke, and Duke Power's president from 1949 until his death in 1953.

Urges Reporting To Health Dept.

Director of the Pitt County Health Department Dr. John Purrell has urged again that diseases be reported to the department. The importance of reporting such cases was brought to his attention by an instance this week of three cases of scarlet fever in one grade in a Greenville school, Dr. Purrell stated. Upon notification of the health department, a health nurse was sent to the school for throat cultures to be taken.

Laboratory determination was made of the presence of the carrier state and in each case where a known carrier was identified, advice was given to the parents to notify the family physician in order that he could take the necessary steps to prevent the extension of the disease.
