"I am hoping there will be no special session," Rep. Wayland Sermons of Beaufort said. "I haven't fully made up my mind. If the people get the right interpretation of the bond needs, I believe they would vote for them."

MERAUKE, New Guinea (AP) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller today flew a 500-mile survey along the swampy south coast of New Guinea where his son Michael was last three days ago but found no trace of the missing 23-year-old.

The group was collecting primitive artifacts from tribesmen who were active headhunters only a few years ago. Gov. The water is teeming with crocodiles.

PARIS—(WNS)—What sort of handbag goes best with a mink coat?
Why, mink, of course! Preferably an old-fashioned doctor's satchel in deepest, darkest mink with hard leather handles.
What kind of spats should you wear with a zebra-skin, after-ski skirt?
Zebra spats, natch! And a zebra-tie-on hood as well.
Parisienne this season are matching fur with more fur. It's multifur instead of conformity in furs, and designers are doing more cute tricks with the cuddly stuff than a barrel of monkeys could.
A tailored suit in beige pony skin with a gored skirt and a notched-collar jacket, has its matching handbag. The chubby satchel in overnight-bag size is made of the same beige pony skin, with ends and handles in dark-brown grained leather.

Kitchen Shower For Sue Morgan

On Saturday night, Miss Sue Morgan was guest of honor at a kitchen shower given by her sisters, Mrs. Ray Wilson and Mrs. Jimmie Hardee, at the Wilson home in Grimesland. Guests were greeted by Mrs. Hardee who also invited them to sign the guest book.
The home was decorated with mixed flowers, wedding bells and the traditional bride doll as a centerpiece carrying out a pink and white motif.
Several games were played by the group.
The party table was covered with a lace tablecloth which held pink tapers and an arrangement of pink and white chrysanthemums. Guests served themselves to party squares, salted nuts and mints. Miss Linda Morgan served the punch.
The honoree received gifts which she opened and displayed. The hostesses' gift to her was a bride's book and a red terrycloth apron. Approximately 20 guests attended. Miss Barbara Mills, November bride-elect, was also honored.

With it should be worn a peaked baseball cap and a cravate, both in dark-brown Saga mink!
To enrich and enliven a classic coat in soft black leather, the chic Frenchwoman can now choose all her accessories in giraffe. They include hat, scarf, handbag, umbrella case or handle, and shoe uppers. But they are really calf, stenciled to simulate giraffe.
To hold her evening compact and comb, there is a gigantic mink-like pouch bag of white ermine with a tortoise frame and a turquoise satin lining. It can be ordered in white mink for those who want to spend a bit more.
All these and many more are the brain children of Monsieur and Madame Chombert (Henri and Carol), the most "high style" furriers in Paris.
Mrs. Chombert, a stunning brown-eyed brunette, is the fur-designing envy of Dior, Ricci and the other great couture houses. She spurns their big financial offers, preferring to work with her husband at their salon in Rue St. Honore, between the Place Vendome and the Palais Royal.
Currently she has a passion for fur handbags and other accessories that match or contrast with fur coats and that dramatize cloth ones.
"Fur furs are wonderful for handbags, especially the satchel, big pouch and carpet bag of this season," said the lovely fourreur. "A mink chapeau and sac are both chic and snob with an all-cloth outfit."
Her second passion is to style fur coats as smartly as cloth. She is responsible for the mink trench coat (mink tabs, epaulettes and belt, leather buttons and buckle), the Persian Chesterfield, and the ermine duffel-coat.
Mrs. Chombert originated the now-famous fringed "granny's shawl" in multicolor Persian lamb. It is a three-cornered affair in Paisley-dyed Persian, edged in 4-inch black silk ball fringe.
Her pet evening stole, a vast chinchilla rectangle bordered in rich satin, has heavy bows of the satin dangling from the four corners.
A most original evening wrap is her Aurora fox hood with yard-long scarf ends to wind about you or to hand almost to your ankles. She calls it "tres pratique" (very practical) because you can also use it when you "faire du ski."
Spectator skiing, we assume, she means, and it is even more "pratique" for evening.
"Eet muss zee hair, out," she agreed. "And eet leave most of zee body in zee cold. But, oh la la! eet make zee grand entrance nobody forget."

Mrs. Welborn Home Life Department Speaker

The Home Life Department of the Woman's Club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Frank Brown, 2001 E. 5th Street. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Frank Brown, chairman, Mrs. J. D. Aman, Mrs. J. L. Evans, Mrs. Robert L. May, Mrs. R. P. Rogers, Mrs. W. S. Harris, Mrs. Banks Cozart, Mrs. H. H. Bryant.
The meeting was opened by the chairman of the Department, Mrs. J. E. Ricks, who asked the members to repeat in unison, the Collect of Club Women of America.
Mrs. R. E. Laughter, who was in charge of the program, introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Ogell Welborn. Her subject was "Christmas Workshop." She explained how gifts made at home need not be expensive. They depend on their beauty, on the love, thought and care we put into their preparation. Many of them can be made from materials at hand, around the house. Mrs. Welborn demonstrated many articles she had made from felt. Some of these were—place mats with a pocket at the left hand bottom corner, in contrasting color, to hold a napkin; covers for coat hangers; a holder for small sized Kleenex; golf club covers; a bag of the right size to hold records; bridge table covers.
A desk set could be made by covering a small can with contact paper, to make a pencil holder, and a rectangular candy box for a letter container. Cigar boxes, painted, and with addition of wheels, became wagons. Tin cans painted in different sizes, made building blocks.
Mrs. Welborn also showed Christmas trees, made of various materials, sprayed with adhesive and then decorated with glitter. Very attractive wrappings for gifts were made, by covering shoe boxes and decorating them in such a way that they should be suitable for men, women, or children.

Mrs. Frank Aycock Speaks To Club On 'This Changing World'

Mrs. Henry L. Rivers was hostess to the Clio Book Club at her home on Longmeadow Road Tuesday afternoon. Arrangements of chrysanthemums and camellias were used throughout the home.
Mrs. L. S. Picklen, president, presided over the business session at which time the club voted to buy a TB Bond.
Mrs. Rivers introduced Mrs. Frank Aycock of Fremont, mother of Dr. E. B. Aycock, her guest speaker, who talked on "This Changing World." She compared conditions of 75 years ago to our present time, bringing out the fact that there were no screens, no water works and no refrigerators. She mentioned the early cars such as the Paige, White Steamer and the Cadillac which always carried a tow line and a shovel so they could be pulled out of the mud or a ditch or deep sand. It was thought in those days that cars would never be practical because they could not pull the hills. Doctors would not own cars because they feared the wrath of their patients in scaring the horses.
She spoke of the abundance of food always on the table and recalled that eggs were three dozen for 25c, steak was 15c a pound, and board and room could be had for $12.50 per month.
She passed pictures depicting the clothing worn in those days, particularly by the women since seven underskirts was the accepted number.
She read some rules for women concerning manners which today seem rather amusing:
1. A girl should never comb her hair at the table.
2. She should always keep her hand free to hold up her skirt.
3. She must be completely dressed before leaving the house, gloves, hat, etc. Always a hat with a day dress.
4. She must take a bath every morning, no soap or washcloth necessary and one quart of water needed.
5. She must never call names in public.
6. Every girl must be protected by a chaperone, even at lunch.
7. The chaperone must never go to bed until the last man is out of the house.
8. Eyes to the front in church, no social talk and no legs crossed.
Mrs. Aycock passed several pictures depicting the styles and customs of the years gone by.
A salad plate with coffee and sweets was served by Mrs. Tom Rivers and Mrs. Charles Gaskins, guests for the afternoon, and Mrs. Jesse Moye.
Books were exchanged and the club adjourned.

Remove Wishbone First, And Get More Turkey White Meat

TORONTO (AP) — If you want to get more of those slices of white meat from your next turkey, remove the wishbone before cooking.

"It does make quite a bit of difference," says Dorothy Batchelor, home economics director for a poultry products institute in Canada. "If the wishbone isn't removed, the meat has to be hacked away as well as possible."

To remove the bone, draw back the neck skin until it exposes the wishbone area. With a sharp knife or scissors, cut the meat down to the bone and away from it. Scissors can be used to cut the shoulder bones and at the top of the breastbone. Lift out and put the skin back.

"If you're sentimental about the wishbone, dry it in the oven, decorate with holly and give to the family to wish on as usual."

If a frozen turkey is purchased, it may be thawed in the package in which it comes. To hasten thawing, put in a pan of cold water.

Remove the package containing the giblets and check the cavity to make sure it is clean. Wipe with a damp cloth or run water through the bird, then wipe dry.

Turkey does not have to be stuffed. Flavor from the dressing does not penetrate more than one-half inch into the meat and the same effect can be obtained by sprinkling the cavity with salt and poultry dressing. If you don't stuff, deduct five minutes cooking time for each pound of turkey.

When the bird is ready for the oven, rub with melted fat and cover with a tent of aluminum foil tucked at the ends but open at the sides so that the heat can circulate. Put on a rack in a shallow pan.

If you do not own a large enough pan, make one from heavy aluminum foil and set on a cookie sheet. If you do not own a rack, substitute crossed kitchen forks, jar rings or any kind of a trivet.

"Forget about the bird for the first half of the cooking time. Frequent pecking lowers the oven temperature and prolongs cooking time," explains Miss Batchelor.

Remove foil during the last half hour to allow the skin to crisp.

For a true roasted flavor, cook at 325 degrees. The turkey is done when the drumstick twists easily from side to side or when the bone slips easily inside the meat. If a meat thermometer is used, it should register 190 degrees in the meat or 165 degrees in the stuffing.

If the bird is allowed to stand in a warm place for 15 to 20 minutes the juices have a chance to redistribute themselves and carving is easier.

Largest Crowd For Homecoming

By MELBA EVERETTE BELVOIR — A record crowd turned out here Friday night to witness Belvoir-Palkland High School's largest and most elaborate homecoming program.

Climaxing the festivities after the school's basketball Eagles' clash with Chicod was the coronation of the 1961 homecoming queen, Senior Linda Clark.

Another Senior, Anna Sue McLawhorn was recognized as first runnerup. School Board Chairman Louis Gaynor made the recognitions.

The court figure performed by the contestants and their escorts prior to the coronation was under the supervision and direction of Mrs. Florence Scott. Preparations for the program were under the guidance of Mrs. Dorothy Hardy and Mrs. A. R. Cozart.

The members of the queen's court included: Seniors Anna Sue McLawhorn, Frances Stepps and Joan Windham; Juniors Sue Pierce, Beverly Gaynor and Mary Eakes; Sophomores, Linda McLawhorn, Faye Pollard, Donna Stancill and Mary Mills; Freshmen, Becky Sue Harris, Carolyn Simpkins, Carolyn Garrett and Janice Allen.

Gerald Nethercutt and his band "The Twisters" provided the entertainment for the dance which followed the coronation ceremonies. Refreshments were provided by the Student Government Association.

Several announcements were made by Principal E. N. Warren to the spectators.

Grifton PTA Will Sponsor Square Dance At School Gym Friday Night

GRIFTON—A square dance will be sponsored by the Grifton PTA Friday at the old school gym from 8 until 11 p.m., it was announced today.

Families and citizens of all ages have been invited to attend this dance. Regular social dancing, ranging from slow numbers to rock 'n roll, will be featured at intermissions, so that everyone will have the opportunity to dance his favorite steps.

Complete instructions on square dance calls will be given at 8 p.m., so that all who have never attended a square dance will have an opportunity to learn before dancing begins. This will also provide a chance for others to brush up on dance calls so they will be able to swing, allemande left, and grand right and left without hesitation as the calls are made.

Flat heels and full skirted cottons are recommended for women and girls to wear, and sport shirts for the men and boys. Admission will be charged.

A spokesman for the P.T.A. said that if a good crowd turns out for this dance, several more will be held during the year.

Farmville Planning For Big Christmas Parade

FARMVILLE—Plans for Farmville's largest and most elaborate Christmas parade—scheduled for 5 p.m. Dec. 4—are nearing completion, according to Chamber of Commerce manager Louis Williams.

Williams said the parade will feature about 20 floats with at least 15 additional units, including bands, scout groups, National Guard drill teams, clowns and miscellaneous units.

The Monday afternoon affair will be the "largest in Farmville's entire history," Williams said. Last year's traditional procession included about 10 floats with several additional units.

Vassar Fields, according to Williams, is supervising construction of more than half of the floats that will appear in the local parade.

According to plans, the parade will form on Horne Avenue before traveling south down Main Street. It will turn east on Cotton Street and proceed two blocks to George Street where it will turn north and travel the two blocks to W. Wilson Street. Turning east on Wilson Street, the parade will travel to Main Street again where it will turn north and proceed to its origin point at Horne Avenue.

In addition to floats sponsored by local merchants, Williams said, the local Negro high school plans to enter at least two floats. Greene County Central High School also has indicated it will sponsor a float, the chamber manager said. Several large corporations with business interests in Farmville will also enter floats.

Bands scheduled to appear in the parade include the Farmville High School band, the H. B. Sugg High School band, the Winterville-Ayden High School band and at least one more.

Included in the parade program is a contest among local merchants for the best-decorated display window. Williams said judging of the windows will probably take place before the parade to allow announcement of first, second and third place winners at the parade itself.

Christmas Plans Set At Meeting

The Home-School Association of St. Raphael's School last night voted to provide for a needy local family over the Christmas holidays.

Clothing, food and toys will be given a family selected from the Welfare Department's list.

A Christmas Party at the school is scheduled for the last school day prior to the start of the seasonal vacation. Association President Nick Simonovich reminded that mothers will be called on to assist at the affair.

Due to the lack of time to properly prepare a float, officers advised there would be no entry from the school in the city's Christmas Parade scheduled for December 5.

A film dealing with the basic problems of communication and illustrating the needs for "redundancy" to overcome natural obstacles in that field, was shown by Max Swoboda.

Refreshments were served. Parents and teachers held individual conferences prior to, and after, the meeting.

Decorations Go Up In Farmville

FARMVILLE — Town employees Tuesday began hanging Farmville's Christmas decorations along Main Street here.

Louis Williams, Chamber of Commerce manager, said the operation of installing the lights and other decorations will probably be complete before the weekend.

Decorations are being strung above five blocks of Main Street and two blocks of Wilson Street. Lights are scheduled to be turned on in time for the town's annual Christmas parade Dec. 4.

Study Of Cotton Goods Tariff Asked By JFK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says that President Kennedy has asked the Tariff Commission to determine whether this country should place a tariff on imports of cotton goods equivalent to 8 1/2 cents per pound for the cotton contents of the goods.

A request for the study, the White House said Tuesday, was contained in a letter from the President to Ben D. Dorfman, chairman of the Tariff Commission. A report on the commission's findings was asked as soon as practicable by Kennedy.

There is no tariff now on imported cotton products. An 8 1/2 cent tariff would correspond with the present export subsidy rate this country pays on cotton.

Myer Feldman, a presidential assistant, explained that imports of cotton products have tripled in the past five years. A continuation of this trend "could lead to serious problems," the Agriculture Department has told the president.

Strong competition from overseas textile manufacturers have been advanced by domestic manufacturers as a reason for a tariff on imports. Cotton goods are coming into this country, Feldman said, to such an extent at the present as to reduce the amount of products processed from cotton domestically. When less domestic cotton is used, he explained, more cotton must go under price supports.

South Carolina's Gov. Ernest F. Hollins, who conferred Tuesday with Feldman at the White House, called the action a move in the right direction. "We've been working several weeks to get this letter from the White House to the Tariff Commission," he said.

The import fee would be a "logical procedure for dealing with the problem created by the legal requirement that U.S. mills must pay substantially more for cotton, even American growth, than our foreign competitors," said R. Dave Hall, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers Institute.

The import fee would be a "restraining influence on imports of those products in which cotton costs are the major part of total manufacturing costs," Hall said.

Attendance Pins Awarded Fifteen

AYDEN — Fifteen members of the Ayden Rotary Club were recognized and given perfect attendance pins Thursday evening at the regular meeting, held at the Community Building.

Guest speaker on "Vocational Guidance" was Dr. Frank Fuller of East Carolina College. He was introduced by Program Chairman Lyman McRoy.

Those presented attendance awards and the number of years they have attended are as follows: Bill Johnson, 18 years; Corey Stokes, 18 years; Snowdie Edwards, 15 years; Mac Edwards, 12 years; Jack Quinerly, 11 years; Thelbert Worthington, 10 years; James Everett, nine years; Wayland McClendon, nine years.

Also, Warren Kinlaw, eight years; Gwynn Merritt, eight years; Lee Nance, seven years; Walter Stroud, three years; Guy Corbett, three years; Joe Sumrell, two years; and Lyman McRoy, two years.

Joe Whitakers, chairman of the attendance committee under club service activities, made the presentations.

Dr. Fuller stressed in his discussion of vocational guidance, getting along with other people and deciding what to do in earning a living. The latter is a complex question, Dr. Fuller said, since there are over 40,000 ways to earn a living. Home and school need to work together on these problems.

As for getting along with other people, Dr. Fuller stated that it is a proven fact that nine out of ten people dismissed from their jobs are dismissed because they cannot get along with others.

He cited four possible solutions to the question of "What can we do to improve the situation?": assist schools in developing better guidance programs get to know youngsters; include courses centered around understanding human behavior; have a better understanding of children in our own homes.

In getting to know youngsters better, Dr. Fuller cautioned against prodding them and comparing them with others.

An improved guidance program in the schools would help children to understand themselves, to get along better and to make better choices in occupation.

Warren Kinlaw had as his guest for the evening, Herb Matthews of Raleigh. President Gwynn Merritt presided.

New Units For Grifton Parade

GRIFTON—The Grifton Christmas parade has grown this week with inclusion of two more groups—the East Carolina College Drill Team and the Lenoir County Marching Band.

Prizes for the best floats also have been announced as $15, $10 and $5 for the first, second and third place floats respectively. A prize of $5 will be given to the girl with the best decorated bicycle and also to the boy with the best decorated bike.

Last week, Parade Chairman Jimmie Herring said the Vanceboro and South Ayden bands had accepted invitations to play in the parade. The Grifton Merchants Association sponsors the annual event, which will be Dec. 4 this year.

Optimists Talk Tree Sale Plan

Greenville Optimists in a business session Monday discussed sale of advance tickets for the club's annual Christmas tree sale and urged Greenvilleites to purchase their trees from Optimists.

Club President H. Thomas Money pointed out that proceeds from the club's annual tree sale are used for sponsorship of the Greenville Junior Rifle Club, local competition in an Optimist International oratorical contest for high school students, camps for Greenville Boy Scouts during summer months and other youth improvement and development projects.

Latest in the undertaking of the local Optimists has been adoption of another Optimist International project—the "Stay-In-School" program aimed at encouraging students on the verge of quitting school to remain enrolled in their classes.

Money urged purchase of the advance tickets, available from any member of the Optimist Club, that can be used toward the purchase of any of the 1,000 Great Northern balsam trees to be on sale at Elm Street Park about Dec. 4.

At Monday's meeting, the club expressed its appreciation to the Boys Work Committee—co-chaired by Pete Carraway and Walter Whitehurst—for its handling of last week's observance in Greenville of Youth Appreciation Week.

Gail Elliot, manager of the new Greenville bowling alley, was inducted as a new member. He will be formally installed in about two weeks.

Dr. Paul Murray Reappointed To Commission

Dr. Paul Murray of Greenville has been re-appointed by Governor Terry Sanford to the Carolina Chapter Tercentenary Commission for the biennium 1961-63, it was announced today.

The purpose of the commission is to plan the observance of the 200th anniversary of the granting of the Carolina Charter in 1663 to the eight Lords Proprietors by King Charles II of England.

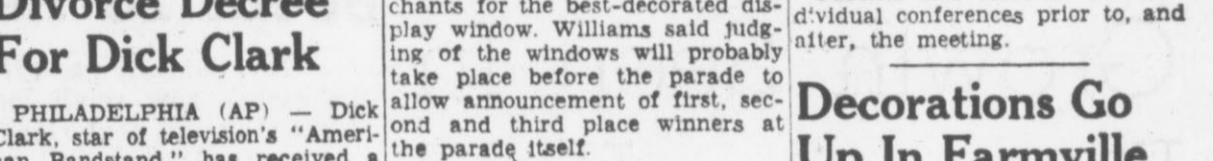

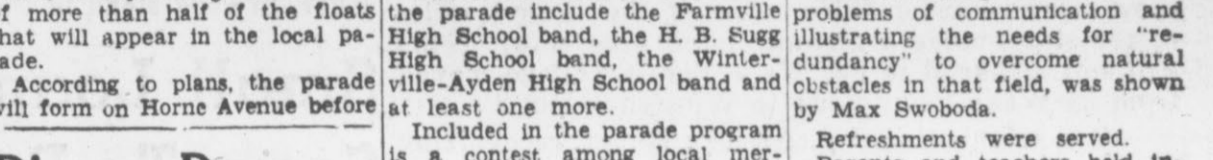

Chairman of the Commission Francis E. Winslow of Rocky Mount also was re-appointed. He has been serving as chairman since his appointment in 1959 when the commission was established by the General Assembly.

The state of Mato Grosso, Brazil, contains half a million square miles and the country's capital, Brasilia.

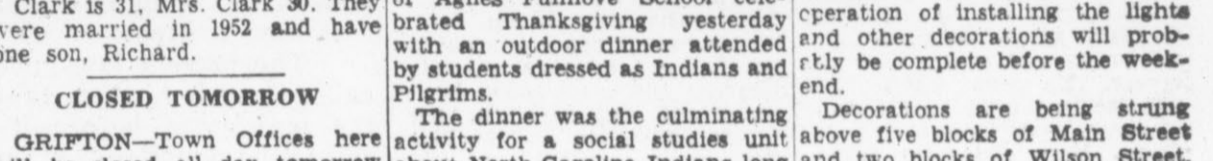

Outdoor Dinner For 3rd-Graders

Mrs. Jattie Spain's third grade of Agnes Fullove School celebrated Thanksgiving yesterday with an outdoor dinner attended by students dressed as Indians and Pilgrims.

The dinner was the culminating activity for a social studies unit about North Carolina Indians long ago and today. The unit was taught by Miss Brenda Barrett and Miss Sarah Cotten, student teachers.

More Recognizing College Values

More and more of the cities and towns of North Carolina are beginning to recognize the great economic potential—as well as other advantages—that are offered by the presence of a college in their midst.

It has not always been so in North Carolina, but in recent years there has been a decided change in the picture, or at least in the way people have seen it. Most communities which have been blessed with the presence of a college or university have more or less taken it for granted until recent years. When North Carolina's communities became conscientious of developing new industries and new payrolls, they became aware of what huge industries their educational institutions were. They likewise began to recognize more fully the growth possibilities of this particular kind of "industry".

In recent years Greenville and other communities which have the good fortune to be the sites of colleges have shown considerably more interest in putting forth an active effort to help their respective colleges. Other communities which do not have educational institutions have come to recognize the great advantages they offer. Winston-Salem, one of the largest cities of the state, made a gigantic pitch here a few years ago and managed to get Wake Forest College moved from its Wake County site to Winston-Salem.

Our neighboring city of Rocky Mount, recognizing the advantages and growth potential a college could give it, competed effectively with many other communities of this section of the state in bidding for Wesleyan College which is now a reality.

In recent months two other neighboring cities, Kinston and Goldsboro have begun to show considerable interest in trying to start community colleges in their respective communities, looking forward to the day when they will become major institutions of higher education.

The situation is a healthy one indeed for higher education in North Carolina. By helping in the growth of established institutions and providing for the establishment of new colleges, the communities of the state are giving a broader base to the potential for higher education in the state. They are putting higher education within the reach of more young people, and at the same time providing additional facilities which will help take care of the increasing demand for college training by the young people of North Carolina.

It is a trend which will stand the state, and the communities which are fortunate enough to have colleges, in good stead in the decades ahead.

Small Loan Law Does Seem To Require Study

Gov. Sanford's assertion of several days ago that the state's new small loan law should be carefully studied by the next General Assembly appears to us to be a suggestion well worth following.

It also seems to us that some study should be given between now and February, 1963 to the effect the new law has had upon the small loan business in North Carolina. Facts brought to light by such a study would furnish the next legislature considerable information to use in re-evaluating the small loan law as it is now written.

The present law governing small loan companies caused much heated debate in the recent session of the legislature before it was finally passed. There can be no doubt that many members who participated in those debates—or at least listened to them—still have some misgivings about the law as it was finally written.

The two-year period before the next legislative session should afford time for some of the effects of the new small loan law to make themselves apparent in North Carolina. Already there has been the suggestion that many of the smaller loan firms have been sold since the new law became effective; and as was the case during the heated debate, there is still the contention from some quarters that legal rates for loans from such agencies are still too high.

Consideration of the matters by the legislature in 1963 probably would be much more thorough if the legislators have the benefit of specific information on changes in the small loan situation that have occurred since the new law became effective.

Frequent Pleas To Be Patient

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—A plea for patience and reasonableness has been a more or less steady theme in President Kennedy's speeches from the day he took office.

Until last week he sandwiched the plea in among a lot of other things, depending upon what particular group he addressed. But twice last week he made his most direct attack on impatience and extremism.

It may indicate the impatience is getting under his skin. Kennedy has been criticized for not going more often to the people through TV to explain his problems and solicit support, both on foreign and domestic dilemmas. He has been aware of this complaint.

Still, he has steadily avoided the fireside chat method except for his report on his June meeting with Premier Khrushchev and his July appeal for more arms and spending.

He has used another device. He has had newsmen into the White House, singly or in groups, an oblique substitute for going to the nation himself. Ask a White House aide why and you're apt to be told he doesn't want to wear out his welcome with the public.

But what now seems to be his growing impatience with impatience is quite different from his awareness of criticism because he doesn't use TV more. While he has remained oblique in the latter, he has become more direct in the former.

He began his plea for patience in his inaugural address last Jan. 20 when he warned that there might be no solution for our foreign problems "in a hundred days" or "in our lifetime."

Last June 9 he said this country must realize the struggle with communism is not only worldwide but "is going to last with us a long time—that there are no easy and quick solutions to the difficult problems that we face."

He was talking then to a group of editors and publishers. On June 15, speaking to the National Conference on International Economic and Social Development, he said he had found in this country a "great desire 'to do something.'"

He urged those who want "to do something" to "channel their energies behind our new foreign aid program to help prevent the social injustice and economic chaos which invite subversion and revolt."

On Oct. 12 at the University of North Carolina, referring to rallying cries of past generations, he said:

"It is a dangerous illusion to believe that the policies of the United States can be encompassed, stretching as they do, worldwide under varying and different conditions in one slogan or one adjective, hard or soft or otherwise, or to believe that we shall soon meet total victory or total defeat."

Last Thursday, at the University of Washington, he hit the patience theme again: "We must lend ourselves to easy or quick solutions. He banged at those 'who cannot bear the burden of a long twilight struggle.'"

He split them into two groups: those who would appease communism and those who urge the "pathway to war."

In Hollywood on Saturday night he went after what he called the "extremists" and described them as those who "have sought to escape their own responsibility by finding an 'appealing slogan or a convenient scapegoat.'"

He said they call for "a man on horseback because they do not trust the people, find treason in our finest churches, in our highest court and even in the treatment of war."

For some reason Kennedy stopped short of being completely direct. He was making an obvious attack on such groups as the John Birch Society and the militia-type men but he didn't say so.

NEED FOR ALARM

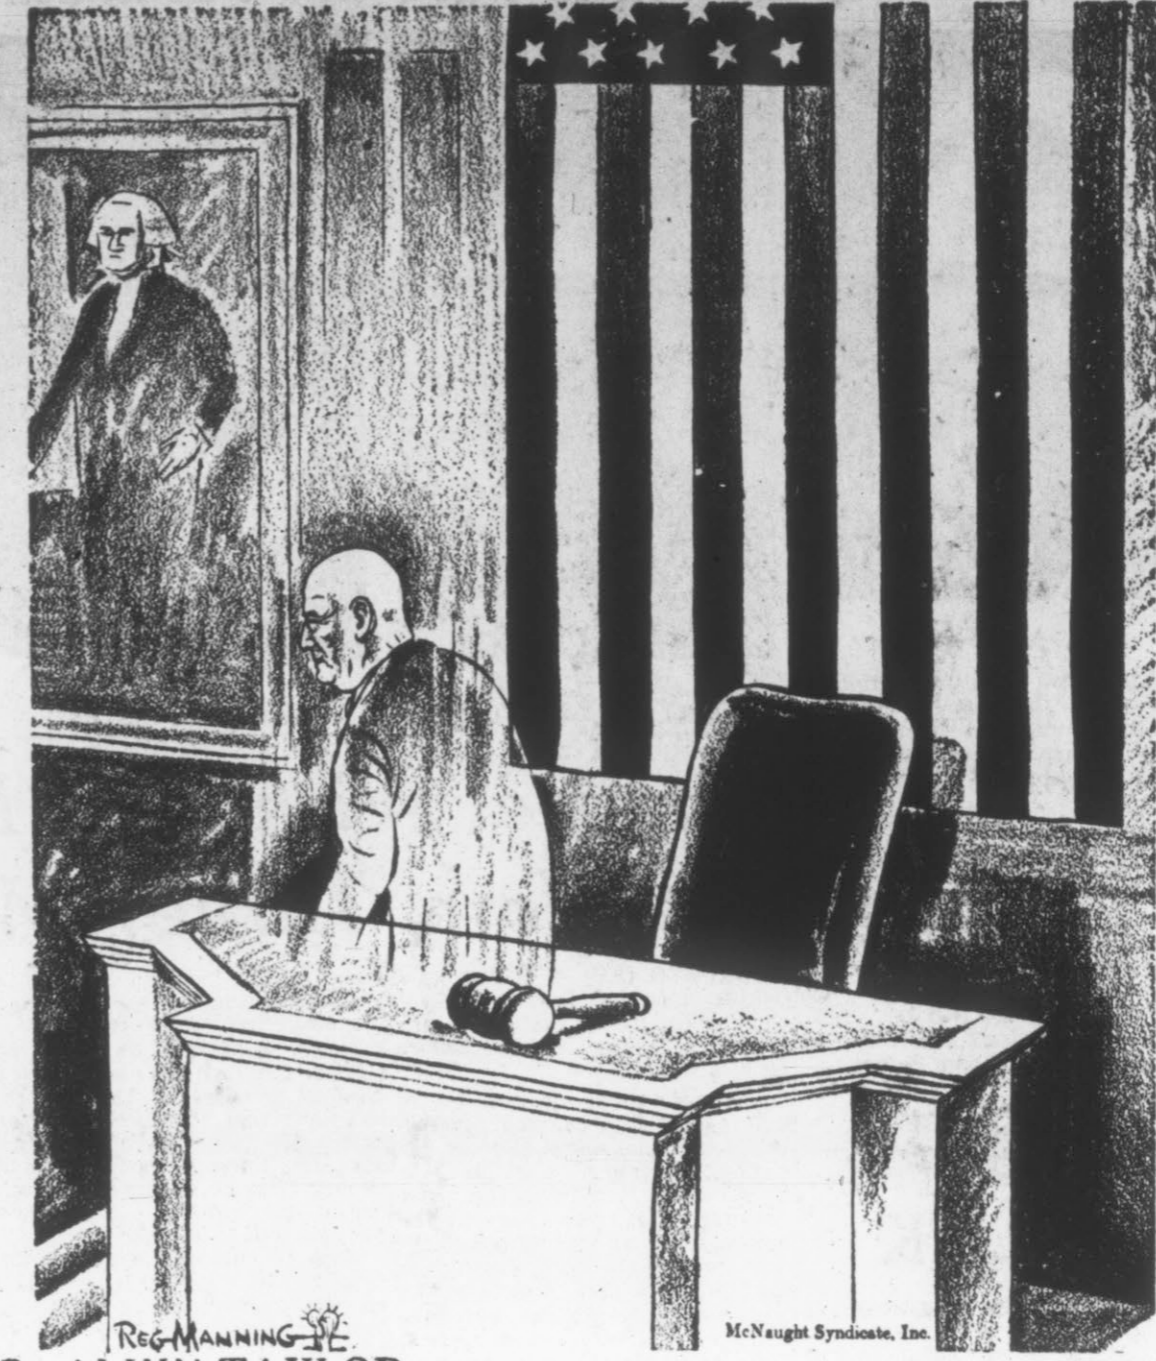

The liquor situation is a problem for every age that has confronted it. It has driven more parents into premature old age and nervous breakdowns through worry than any other evil factor in the world.

What attitude should a young person take toward liquor? Well, undoubtedly the most sensible attitude to take is that since liquor has never done anybody any good, and has caused more vice, disease, and crime than almost anything else in the world, it is not the type of thing for any young person who wants to make a success in life to tie up with. The fact that it paralyzes the inhibitions and makes people do things while under its influence that they would not think of doing under ordinary circumstances, should cause every young person who prizes good character to stop, look, and listen.

The new drinking habits of today have not made liquor a new situation. The human race has had a profound experience with this particular form of evil, and we can be sure that the customs of today which seem almost to compel young people to drink against their will, must in a few years produce such intolerable conditions that everybody, including moderate drinkers, will believe what a few people very earnestly believe today, namely that it's better to leave the stuff alone.

Most Popular Of Hymns

By far America's most popular hymn is "The Old Rugged Cross."

The famous old hymn placed first in voting through newspapers across the nation. The sponsors reported they received 6,445 ballots with 975 identified newspapers participating.

The ballots represented 48 of the 50 states with none being identified from Vermont and Hawaii.

"The Old Rugged Cross Cross" received 10,482 votes in the balloting. In second place was "How Great Thou Art" with 8,449 votes. Third was "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" with 4,167. Fourth was "In The Garden" with 3,868 votes. Fifth was "Amazing Grace" with 1,816 votes.

Others in the top ten were: "Rock of Ages," 1,511; "Sweet Hour of Prayer," 1,157; "Abide with Me," 1,112; "Beyond the Sunset," 1,050; "Whispering Hope," 741.

Three titles appear on the current list that were not in the top 50 in the 1960 poll. They are "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," "My God and I," and "Count Your Blessings."

Votes were cast for more than 1,900 favorite hymns and gospel songs. The top four titles accounted for 43.9 percent of all ballots tabulated. The same four titles, in slightly different order, appeared at the top of the Christian Herald 1960 poll results.

Installation of Christmas decorations on the downtown streets brings to mind, almost shockingly, that the Yuletide season is upon us.

It happens every year. We look forward to Thanksgiving, nearly forgetting that the Christmas shopping season really begins the first day after Thanksgiving.

Complaints are often heard about the Christmas season starting so soon. But your columnist has noticed that spirits pick up during that time of the year. Everyone has a friendly word and the world is a rosy place.

So, if Christmas lasts a full month, let's make the most of it. It's really quite hard to resist envelopment by the joyfulness of the Yuletide.

Football fans around these parts have had enough thrills the past week to last awhile. The Friday night Greenville-Roxboro was a good one by any standards. Saturday afternoon on television there was the Duke-Carolina clash, and no one needs to be told of the thrills in that one. Then Saturday night the East Carolina-Wofford game produced another such contest such as is seldom seen.

The football fan still has one more game to look forward to. That is the Greenville-Sanford game to be played in College Stadium tomorrow afternoon. A sports enthusiast could ask for little more.

Part of Chancellor Adenauer's boldness arises from the support he has enjoyed from France, which arises from anything but agreement with the aims of insurgent German nationalism.

De Gaulle, for reasons of his own, is independently convinced that the West has nothing to gain and much to lose from negotiating with the Russians about Berlin at this time. It has been a consistent position, for even in the jolliest days of summitry, before the U-2 incident, de Gaulle told Khrushchev that there could be no hope for an agreement until tensions relaxed.

The bothersome thing is that Dr. Adenauer's new demands do not at all jibe with what President Kennedy has said on the subject of central European security. More than once Mr. Kennedy has sent up smoke signals indicating that the U.S. recognizes Russia's historic worries about her western borders.

A reunified Germany, or even a West Germany devoted to revision by "peaceful means" of the Oder-Neisse line and fortified with nuclear weapons, would not quiet those worries, if they exist. Today's tensions would remain, indeed grow worse.

At home President Kennedy is faced with constant pressure against any negotiations at all over Berlin; abroad, he now faces a Germany rattling its chains more and more boldly.

Unless he can persuade Chancellor Adenauer that West Germany's best interest lies in keeping its larger visions hidden and thinking what can be done to ease the situation in Berlin, the U.S.'s choice is to sit in grumbling captivity, bomb in hand, and wait.

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

When the American people have had enough of a public figure, they defeat him. He retires to semi-public life, makes an occasional speech, writes a book and has his birthday celebrated by his family and the newspapers.

In Russia, they do it differently. When a western politician, they either murder him or declare him to be a criminal. Stalin, the greatest of the Russian revolutionists in terms of achievement, second only to Lenin in the historic memory of the Russian people, has been proclaimed a criminal. His body has been removed from the sarcophagus on the Red Square where now only the remains of Lenin rest.

Of Stalin, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, leading American Communist, wrote in April 1953, in a eulogy upon his death:

"Joseph Stalin, Communist leader, was the best loved man on earth of our time. Millions upon millions, the majority of the world's population, mourn his sudden loss. Sorrow and anxiety as to the peace of the world spread swiftly to the far corners of the earth. The plain people of the earth, the weary and heavily laden, the hungry, the poverty-stricken, the oppressed, the exploited, the segregated—those denied freedom and happiness—grieve for the passing of this heroic son of the people who gave his entire life to their emancipation. They love him for his plain words and for his shining deeds."

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn is now National Chairman of the Communist Party of the United States and attended the 22nd Congress which declared Stalin to be a criminal and ordered his body removed from the Communist sarcophagus. He undoubtedly will be buried somewhere else, perhaps in the wall of the Kremlin or in the little town whence he came in Georgia.

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, an American who, when young, belonged to the I. W. W. and who has given her years to the establishment of the Communist Party in this country, may no longer mourn Stalin in dulcet sentences. She is required by party resolution to hate him and to regard him as a criminal. A new master has spoken and she must tremble and obey.

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, who does not obey the Supreme Court of the United States, does obey Khrushchev even to the extent of declaring her former comrade to be a criminal. Of him, she said:

"With the passing of time, the world will little note nor long remember the puny attacks upon Joseph Stalin. But it can never forget his noble life and deeds. From all continents and all countries have come the words: 'Hail but not farewell, dear Comrade Joseph Stalin! He lives forever in his deeds and his imperishable written words. He lives in the strong Communist Party of the Soviet Union! He lives in the great Soviet people! He lives in the Socialist! Ever a great fighter, he lives on wherever men and women fight for an abundant life; fight for happiness.'"

Stalin no longer lives in the memory of anybody, except a small group of anti-party party Communists who themselves are being declared to be criminals and who will sooner or later be removed from the scene unless they find a way to murder Khrushchev, which they or someone else will do. This is the history of revolutions.

Russian Communists have a small memory. Spiridonov, who runs the Party in Leningrad, a junior character, could speak of the "illegalities committed by Stalin during the cult of his personality."

What about the illegalities which are now being committed by the same Communist who shivered and thrilled at the name of Stalin? I gaze upon the tomb of General Grant in this democratic city of New York and wonder how lacking we are in the absurdities of manes and hatred, the smallness of men's memories.

Khrushchev was a henchman of Stalin and committed many crimes in Stalin's name. He was picked up by Lazar Kaganovich, who then was great.

Khrushchev has set out to murder the memory of his benefactor. (Continued on Page 8)

'Instant Dividend' Plan Growing

By ELMER ROESSNER

The "instant dividend plan," first reported here on October 11, is spreading. It may sweep the United States and in so doing, put a crimp in saving stamps.

This is the plan: Supermarkets offer customers "instant dividends"; they get immediate premiums on their purchase instead of waiting until stamp books are filled.

Customers are offered major appliances with weekly payments reduced by the amount of their cash register tapes. A customer who wants a $250 appliance can agree to pay $10 a week for it, and then have the payments reduced in ratio to his purchases. Purchases of $20 a week may result in a $5-a-week reduction. Thus a family can get the $250 appliance immediately and pay for it with $5 in cash and $10 in cash register tapes each week for 26 weeks. And if cash register tapes are $30 a week, the cash payments need be only $2.50 a week.

CAUSING EXCITEMENT
That's the basic plan, although the figures may vary from city to city and store to store.

It was first tested in Ohio and Nebraska, where it appears to have caught on. Philco made a deal with the Hinky Dinky chain. While several other chains are reported to have turned it down, the large Food Fair chain is said to be negotiating with Philco for use in its large Eastern group. Other appliance manufacturers and other food chains are trying to work out deals.

In Pittsburgh, Pa., where Philco has an arrangement with Thorofore Stores and Loblaw is co-operating with Norge and Sylvania distributors, General Electric bought advertising to say "Buy a GE appliance directly saved money on food. Loblaw countered with ads asserting its plan resulted in savings on appliances."

Meanwhile, Home Furnishings Daily reported from GE headquarters in Louisville that GE dealers in Pittsburgh were dickering with A&P stores there for a cash register tape plan.

CAUSING EXCITEMENT
That's the basic plan, although

A&P has long held out against trading stamps—longer than Safeway, which succumbed some time ago. But now A&P is testing a trading stamp plan at Albany, N.Y. The stamps are plain—the basic colors of green, gold, etc., already being spoken for—and a catalog calls them the "newest, finest and most valuable ever offered." Some observers expect that A&P, having broken the stamp barrier, may go all the way and experiment with "instant premiums."

At the same time, a new trading stamp plan would make one department store in each trading area the exclusive redemption center. The store and a number of non-competitive retailers in the area—gas stations, supermarkets, amusement places, banks and services—would all issue stamps but only the department store would redeem them.

It is boasted that the plan will not take money out of the community, that the department store will be able to get a full margin on redeemed goods, that the traffic will increase the cepartment store's business, and that it will eliminate competition and redemption centers.

And because so many people are using stamps they can't use, the National Stamp Bank has been formed in Utica, N.Y., to swap stamps. Savers are invited to send in unwanted stamps and, for a modest fee, receive stamps of their heart's desire in return.

SHORT AND SIGNIFICANT NOTES IN BUSINESS
Food advertising will exceed $1 billion for the first year in history in 1961, estimates John A. McGinn, Jr., Campbell Soup vice president. Morrison Wood, nutrition expert, is urging cordials instead of dessert, pointing out that most cordials have 100 calories per serving, compared with 400 for pie. Americans spend only 30 per cent of their disposable income for food, the lowest ratio on earth, calculates Robert C. Liebenow, president of the Chicago Board of Trade. Russians spend 56 per cent, he said.

Bumper Turkey Crop Was Costly

By ROBERT A. WILLIS
MONROE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina turkey raisers, like their colleagues all over the country, are hip deep in gobblers — and over their heads in costs, despite the approach of Thanksgiving. It's the familiar story of supply chasing after demand, then outrunning it. Turkey raisers may go the reluctant way of many farmers and accept controls on production — but "self-help" controls that give the producer a larger say-so in what he'll get his efforts.

North Carolina turkey growers rejoiced—and continued producing "like a bunch of bulldogs fighting," in the words of one grower. Now the bottom has dropped out of the market all over the country, with national production up 26 per cent from last year to a record 109 million birds. North Carolina's crop is estimated at 25 million, and prices this year have been as low as 15 cents a pound. The State Department of Agriculture predicts an average price of 22 cents.

He drove his pickup truck a few hundred yards to a large penned yard where some 2,700 husky turkeys congregated. A few dozen had flapped over the low fence, but stayed companionably by. The gabbie was deafening. "These are 19 weeks old," said Brooks. He grabbed one hen by the leg and trussed her to a hand scale which showed just over 14 pounds. "These were hatched from a special type of egg and cost me about $1.14 apiece. I plan to use them for breeding, so only about 500 will go to market."

A good portion of his crop out to individual raisers. "I've never favored controls," Simpson resumed. "But this is the worst year we've ever known. It seems now we'll have to go along with some type of control. Maybe the plan they have won't be stiff enough."

named, and from that, a 19-member governing board that will oversee the three-year program. All segments of the industry will be represented. It will examine facts and figures and decide how big a turkey crop the market will bear at a fair price both to grower and consumer.

Security Director Resigns Position At Request Of Defense Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — The security director of the National Security Agency, S. Wesley Reynolds, has resigned on request of the Defense Department. He was asked to quit under a rule banning acceptance of favors from those doing business with the government. It was the second high level resignation within the supersecretary agency to come to light this week. It also came a day after James B. Cash Jr. was fired as deputy commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration. Reynolds was asked to resign under the Defense Department's "standards of conduct" directive, the department announced Tuesday. The directive prohibits employees from accepting "any favor, gratuity or entertainment" from any person or firm doing business with the government. The terse announcement gave no details. "I feel the whole thing was rather minor and doesn't warrant comment," said Reynolds, 47, a former FBI agent. "My resignation largely was voluntary. They felt and I agreed that under the circumstances, we had best part company." He didn't explain what the circumstances were. The Defense Department said it had acted "upon a lead received from the House Un-American Activities Committee" and "the investigation is continuing." It was the Un-American Activities Committee that announced Monday that NSA's personnel director, Maurice H. Klein, had been forced to resign on grounds he lied in filling out his job application 12 years ago. The committee first turned its attention to Klein last July during a closed-door inquiry into NSA's personnel policies. It was disclosed then that after two of NSA's code clerks—William H. Martin and Bernon F. Mitchell—defected to the Soviet Union, the agency fired 26 sex deviates as security risks. As personnel director for several years, Klein supervised the hiring of about 1,000 NSA employees. Estimates have numbered NSA's staff at 10,000. At the time the committee was looking into Klein's own application, Security Director Reynolds testified he had checked Klein's security clearance in 1955 and decided that errors on the application form had no security significance. Reynolds was quoted as saying, "People are very careless in filling out forms." NSA monitors electronic communications 24 hours a day for the Defense Department and is so secret the size of its staff and extent of its operation are not made public. The third high level job loss

Kennedys Gather For The Holidays

By FRANCES LEWINE
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy and his family leave today for a traditional Thanksgiving holiday gathering of their clan at Cape Cod. About 30 Kennedys will celebrate at Hyannis Port, Mass. with a Thanksgiving dinner. Over the four-day weekend they'll stage a second joint birthday celebration for the President's two children, Caroline, who'll be 4 next Monday, and John Jr., a year-old on Saturday, already have had a gala White House party featuring a live monkey, movies and two birthday cakes. The party Tuesday was for Caroline's Washington nursery school-

Little Dog Led Hunter To Body Of Dead Master

SHELL LAKE, Wis. (AP)—This is a shaggy dog story, but with a heart. Two months ago, Tory Ingebreton, 87, went for a walk in dense woods near his farm in this northern Wisconsin area. With him went his fuzzy dog, Penny, weighing at most about ten pounds. Neither returned. Washburn County authorities searched fruitlessly for them. Their fate was a mystery until Sunday when Daryl Alexander of Rice Lake, a deer hunter, worked his way through heavy brush and heard a small dog barking furiously. It was Penny. She guided him to the spot where Ingebreton had fallen and died last September. Alexander went to notify officers, who were unable to relocate the body until Monday night. Penny was still there. Sheriff L. W. Stegeman said Penny, who apparently had lived off the land during her long vigil, had been turned over to Ingebreton's niece, Mrs. Loyal Schaub of nearby Spooner.

Second Success For Nike Zeus

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP)—A Nike Zeus missile streaked high over the Pacific Tuesday in its second successful test in six days. The test was hailed jubilantly by Army officers laboring to speed up development of a defense against missile attack. "One hundred per cent successful—all goals were achieved," a spokesman said. The 48-foot solid-fuel antimissile rocket was destroyed far downrange to avoid endangering ships. Early next year, the Army will begin firing Nike Zeus rockets from Kwajalein Island at Atlas missiles launched from California.

Strike Can Cost Union $863,193

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A bitter 1959 strike by truck drivers against the Overnite Transportation Co. of Charlotte has resulted in an $863,193 judgment against the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. A Mecklenburg Superior Court jury deliberated for one hour Tuesday night before returning the judgment for Overnite. The company had sued for $1 million, half in actual damages and half in punitive. The jury, composed of 10 men and two women, allowed the full $500,000 for punitive damages, and $363,193 in actual damages, the amount itemized during the 19-day trial by Overnite Vice President P. S. Simmons of Richmond, Va. The company, which has terminals in both Carolinas, Virginia and Georgia, accused the Teamsters of effecting a secondary boycott during a six-month strike when the union was attempting to organize Overnite's employees. The attempt failed. Company attorneys said the boycott was arranged in the Teamsters headquarters in Washington, and carried out by local pickets. Attorney John S. Patton of Atlanta, Ga., one of two lawyers representing the Teamsters, argued that local unions are not agents of the international union. The Teamster attorneys declined to say whether they will appeal the decision. At least 20 countries have borrowed the tune of "God Save the Queen" for their national anthems.

PREP SCORES

Chicod Downs Grimesland 62-43

The Chicod High School Hornets won their third straight basketball game of the season last night when they defeated the Grimesland Phantoms 62-43 in a practice game at Chicod.

The Hornets took the lead in the first quarter and held it for the remainder of the game. At the end of the first half the Chicod boys were ahead 24-14. The Hornets played without the aid of starting forward Douglas Cashion who has an injured arm.

The high scorer of the night for Chicod was Ephraim Smith with 17 points. The top point gainer for the Phantoms of Grimesland was Carlton Hardee with 13 points.

Earlier in the night the Chicod girls gained their first win of the season over Grimesland 39-29 after losing the first two games. The Hornets girls have been downed by Wheat Swamp and Belvoir-Falkland.

Forward Fanny Jones scored 35 of the 39 points for the Hornets. In the last three minutes of the game Annette Smith managed to score four points for the winners. The high scorer of the night for Grimesland was Sara Tucker with 19 points. Chicod was still without the services of two of their top players because of injuries and grades.

The next game for the Hornets will be Nov. 28 at home with Wheat Swamp. The next game for the Phantoms will be at home the same night with Bear Grass.

Greenville sports fans will have a Thanksgiving Day special this year as the Phantoms of Rose High School take on the Yellow Jackets of Sanford for the Eastern District 3-A football championship at 2:30 p.m. in the East Carolina College Stadium.

The local club won the right to meet Sanford after defeating Roxboro in the first round of the playoffs last Friday night. The decision to play the final playoff game here in Greenville was made Sunday at a meeting of the coaching staffs from the two schools. It was decided that Greenville had the best facilities for fans and players.

COLLEGE STADIUM — The Elmhurst midget football team defeated the West Greenville eleven last night for the city championship 8-7 to wind up the '61 season for the league.

After a series of downs by both teams, Elmhurst managed to push the opponents over their own goal line for a safety, giving the Elmhurst boys the lead in the first quarter.

Elmhurst wasted no time in increasing their lead when they drove down to the West Greenville 17 yard line. Fullback Bob Brown made the touchdown for the winners, giving them the lead 8-0.

After the half the Elmhurst team was hindered by penalties and West Greenville began moving the ball. Late in the third quarter the West Greenville team moved down deep in their opponents' territory with quarterback Rommie Lee Tyndall going over for the score. The extra point was good, making the score 8-7.

The touchdown by Tyndall was the only one scored against Elmhurst all season. Elmhurst has managed to win all of its other games without allowing any points.

The outstanding players for the winners on offense were Bob Brown and Mike Aldridge. The defensive leaders were Dew Forbes, John Peel, Bob Brown and Mark Tipton.

The victory was the eighth of the year for the Elmhurst eleven. They have gained a total of 142 points during the season and allowed only seven.

The Clemson College Tigers will entertain the North Carolina State Wolfpack in an Atlantic Coast Conference football game Saturday that will determine the sort of season records both teams will have.

The clubs now have identical 4-5 records. And this will be the last game for both.

The clash is bound to prove earthshaking. It will bring together State's quarterback passing wizard Roman Gabriel and Clemson's ACC scoring leader, fullback Ron Scudato.

Both are seniors, and will be trying for a good show in their final college contest. The teams didn't meet last year, but Clemson won their contests both in 1958 and 1959. The Wolfpack has won only one since the series started in 1899, while Clemson has won 23 and seven games ended in ties.

This week, N.C. State, ranked fourth in the conference, is concentrating on offense, and Clemson is shaping up its defensive patterns including, of course, those fitted for Gabriel's passing.

Clemson Scout Bob Jones, who watched Gabriel as the Wolfpack trampled the University of South Carolina, 38-14, last Saturday, said the quarterback's work was "the most phenomenal" he had seen in 31 years of coaching.

Elsewhere in the ACC, Wake Forest Coach Bill Hildebrand gave his Deacons a look at University of North Carolina offensive plays, and ran the team through some defensive action. The teams meet Saturday.

At Chapel Hill, the UNC Tar Heels alternated on offense and defense. Coach Jim Hickey said his squad is in good physical shape. The Cavaliers at the University of Virginia polished up the pass defense in anticipation of an aerial attack from the University of Maryland Saturday.

contest after trailing 19-7 at the half. In the second half they managed to score three touchdowns to Clinton's one for a 28-25 win.

This is the first year Sanford has been able to win a conference championship since 1951, according to Coach Gay. He said that Rockingham had been dominating the championships almost every year since that time. When Sanford beat Rockingham this year it was the first conference loss since 1955. This is the first year for a conference championship by a Greenville football team. Phantom Coach Bud Phillips and his team have done an outstanding job.

Two Jackets Picked For Bowl

Like Greenville, Sanford has had two boys selected to play in the Shrine Bowl game Dec. 2 in Charlotte. In addition, Coach Phillips has been appointed to the coaching staff. Phillips, halfback Alan McArthur and quarterback Billy James will leave Greenville this weekend for a week of preparation prior to the Shrine event.

The two boys selected from Sanford for the Shrine Bowl are quarterback R. D. Carson and halfback Ben Avent. However, Coach Gay said his number one quarterback has written a letter refusing the bowl offer. Gay said, "Carson did not want to risk an injury which might ruin his basketball career in high school and college. He is being considered for a basketball scholarship to Duke."

"Question Mark" Starter

In a telephone interview with the Reflector Coach Gay said that his only "question-mark" starter is halfback Bobby Payne, the team's fourth leading ground gainer. He suffered a possible concussion in the third quarter of the Clinton contest last week.

Two of the other Sanford backfield starters have been on the injured list in recent weeks, but they should be ready to go by Thursday. Both Carson and Ben Avent were injured in the Goldsboro game. Carson was held out of the final game with Dunn and Avent played very little. Last week against Clinton both played, but were slowed down.

Carson Most Trouble

Provided Carson is at full strength Thursday afternoon he will make the most trouble for the Phantoms. He leads the Yellow Jackets in ball-carrying with 633 yards in 115 attempts for a 5.5 average. He also has thrown five scoring passes, kicked 19 extra points and punted for a 34-yard average. Greenville's leading rusher, Alan McArthur, has gained 571 yards in 90 attempts for a 6.34 average.

Another Sanford backfield threat is a first year varsity boy, Bobby Wicker. The 6-foot-1-inch, 165-pounder, has gained 503 yards this season for a 4.6 yard average.

Avent, a senior, has picked up 614 yards in 96 tries for a 6.4 average.

Line Is Strong

The Yellow Jacket line will also give Greenville some trouble. It is not particularly big, but it has been outstanding on offense and defense. The linemen have held this year's opponents to 52 points. Twenty-five of these went to Clinton last week in the playoff game.

In addition to the first string linemen, Sanford has several reserves which have been prominent for the Jackets. They are ends Harvey Godfrey, a 6-foot, 185-pound junior, who has an 81-yard touchdown to his credit. Other reserves who have done outstanding jobs are Neil MacDonald, a senior end, tackle Jerry Currin, senior halfback-quarterback Jerry Stevens, halfback Ronnie Brown and linebacker-fullback Richard Williamson, a sophomore.

Sanford Ready

In commenting on the coming game, Coach Gay said that his club is ready for it. "I just hope Greenville will take it easy on us," he added. The Sanford mentor also noted that he feels Greenville has the greatest overall speed of any high school team he has ever seen. He singled out Kroghie Andresen saying that in his opinion he (Andresen) has matched Alan McArthur. Gay added that fullback Wayne Scudato could also give the Yellow Jackets some trouble.

Coach Phillips has been working the Phantoms hard all week in preparation for the Turkey Day affair. The veteran Greenville coach said that Sanford, unlike Roxboro, can score and do it fast. "The Jackets work well on offense as well as defense, whereas the biggest Roxboro threat was its defense," Phillips said.

Bruises Have Healed

The Phantom coach said today that his boys are ready to go after this one and they want to win. Most of the Greenville players will be ready to go by game time. He noted that the bruises received by Billy James and Rommie Brock last week have disappeared and both boys will be running at full strength. He also said that Burney Morris has had a touch of the virus this week, but it appears that he will be ready to run by Thursday afternoon.

Phantom Backfield

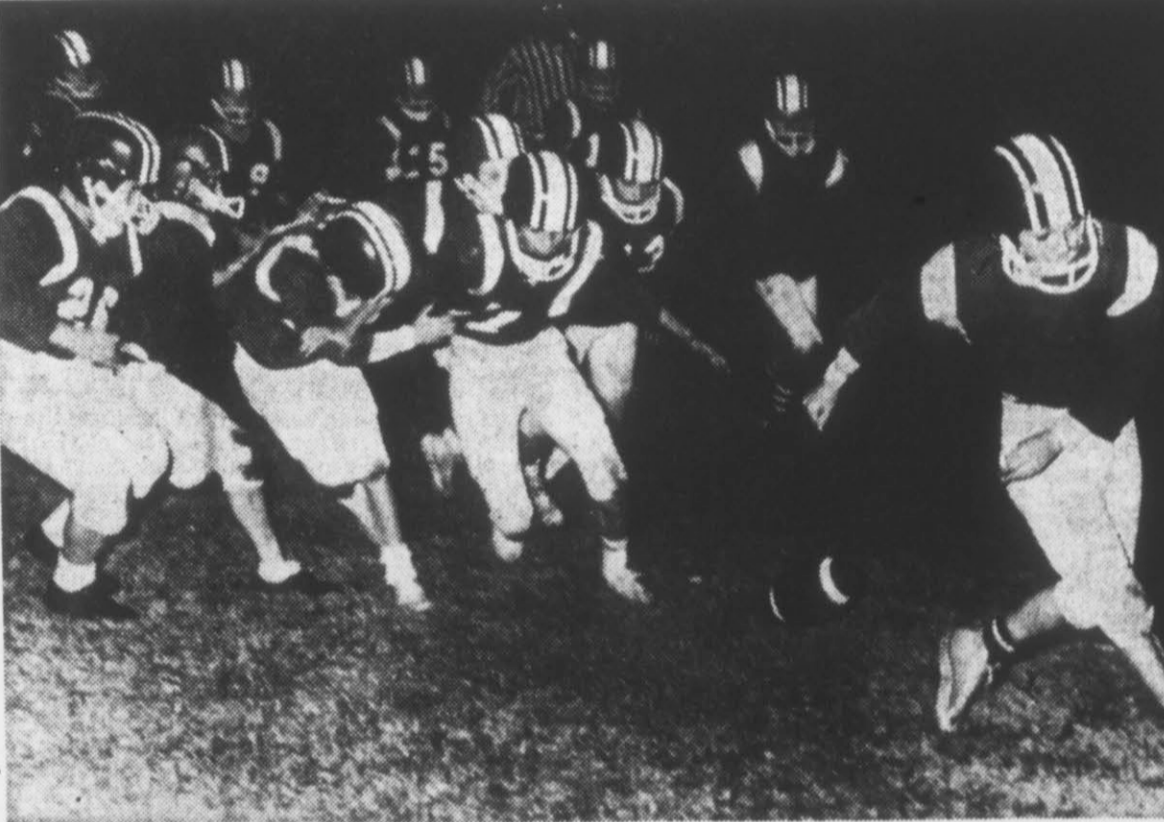

The Rose High backfield will consist of James calling the signals at quarterback, Andresen at right half, McArthur at left half and Sumrell will handle the fullback spot.

Good Crowd Expected

Indications are that College Stadium will be almost full when the two clubs meet tomorrow afternoon. The advance ticket sale has moved along well. Coach Gay said that his team will have good backing for the championship event. Being a holiday, more people can come than on any other day and the daytime schedule will keep them from driving both ways at night, the coach said.

The Yellow Jackets are scheduled to arrive in Greenville about 10:30 a.m. after the 130 mile trip from Sanford. Gay said the early arrival would enable the boys to rest up from the ride and give them plenty of time to get ready for the game.

Gov't Is Cracking Down On Union Production Curb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's chief enforcer of the laws on worker-employer relations started a move today to outlaw union fines for members who produce more than the union likes.

Stuart Rothman, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, announced he had directed a complaint against the union as a test legal case because similar charges of union-imposed production standards have recently arisen with some frequency.

Several months ago the union filed suit in Milwaukee courts seeking to force collection of fines on members who balked at paying them.

Garner Wants No Birthday 'Ruckus'

UVALDE, Tex. (AP) — Former Vice President John Nance Garner stoutly vetoed a big party for his 93rd birthday today.

Puffing on a big black cigar, Garner said Tuesday, "I don't want a fuss. I don't want anybody raising a ruckus around here."

When his visitor arrived, Garner suggested a drink of bourbon. But he couldn't find the bottle and finally gave up the search.

The former court judge, state legislator, congressman, speaker of the House and vice president said "I feel good some of the time, but I don't feel so good at other times."

"My doctor told me to spend more time in bed—and that's what I'm doing," relatives said Garner spends about 16 hours a day in bed, with frequent cat-naps.

Expecting visitors, Garner was wearing the full dress suit he wore in Washington on state occasions during his two terms as vice president under President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He seemed to be in one of the periods when he feels good. "Three years ago 'Cactus Jack' gave up cigars and bourbon. He smoked several cigars Tuesday. Since he couldn't find his bottle, it was unclear whether he had also resumed 'striking a blow for liberty' — a Garner euphemism for taking a drink.

Garner moved out of the house to a spot under a huge oak but wouldn't allow his visitor to carry his chair—"I can do it myself."

He reminisced about his years of public service which ended when President Roosevelt decided to run for a third term.

When he and FDR broke on that issue, and others, Garner retired from politics.

His last big party was on his 90th birthday. The late Speaker Sam Rayburn, former President Harry S. Truman, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, now vice president, and Gov. Price Daniel were among the hundreds who attended.

Last year the party was small, and visitors found Garner shelling pecans. This year he was looking at greeting cards.

His housekeeper, Tina Castro, reads the messages to him because his sight is failing.

Gimmick Lead To A New Career For Sultry 'Sam'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Diamond, one of TV's earliest private eyes, was the first of the convertible-driving, woman-chasing, villain-fighting, murder-solvers to use a car telephone.

The novel gimmick of the series (which never did very well) is largely responsible for the current career of Mary Tyler Moore, who plays the young wife in CBS' "The Dick Van Dyke Show."

As a sort of sub-gimmick, the producers added the role of "Sam," the telephone operator to the show. When our hero checked his answering service, it was "Sam," a sultry-voiced, leggy female operator who gave him the message. You never saw Sam's face.

"It was murder for an actress," conceded Miss Moore, "particularly since I was working for scale and my name never was listed in the credits. But even if my face was never shown, I was getting as much mail as the star. At least, I heard I was getting as much mail—they never let me see a line of it."

At any rate, after the demise of the series, Mary Tyler Moore was able to disclose her identity. Because of the success of the Sam gimmick, she started getting better acting jobs. And "The Dick Van Dyke Show" is the best one she has had to date.

Along with other members of the Van Dyke show cast, she is pleased with an impending move of the show from 8 p.m. (EST) Tuesday nights to 9:30 p.m. on Wednesday nights.

"All of us, including our sponsor, love the show," she said. "and the new time ought to help it. After all, over a third of the nation, it's only 7 o'clock when the show is seen now—and for the others, at 8, parents are busy putting the children to bed."

Television apparently is taking seriously the sweeping criticism of the quality of children's programs.

Robert Saudek, once the producer of "Ombibus," obviously believes there is a market opening up for better children's shows: he has acquired TV rights to three series of children's books which deal with history, biography and current affairs.

Shari Lewis isn't going into anything quite so lavish, but her Saturday shows on CBS for the next three weeks will include film dramatizations of "Tom Sawyer," "Huckleberry Finn" and "Alice in Wonderland."

An up-grading of kiddie shows surely is welcome. Nowadays if someone wants to put on a "quality" show for the younger viewers he invariably solves the creative problems by taking the viewers on a trip some place, usually courtesy of vintage travelogue films.

Admits Starting 8 Brush Fires

In a signed statement, Dana admitted Tuesday, setting two fires on U.S. 6 near Palmdale on Sept. 1, the Sierra Madre blaze Oct. 30, another Nov. 6 in Benedict Canyon and the Nov. 13 fire in little Tujunga-Kasei Canyon.

Dana, of Pasadena, was booked on suspicion of arson Saturday. He told investigators: "When I got all tensed up inside the only way I can get relief is to start a fire."

New Method Of Detecting Cancer

DETROIT (AP) — A new method of detecting oral cancer was explained Monday at the Detroit District Dental Society's 20th annual dental review.

Dr. Donald B. Smith, chief of oral surgery at Veterans Hospital in Dearborn, Mich., said a painless scraping of a suspected oral cancer and a quick study of the cells can determine rapidly the presence of cancer in the mouth.

Painless and easy to do, the scraping will detect mouth cancers in the very early stages, when the cure rate can range between 75 and 100 per cent, Dr. Smith said.

How You Can Deal With That Deadly Fallout

By PROF. WILLARD F. LIBBY

Fallout has been raining down. Your child, a relative, a friend, reaches your shelter to escape this rain. You know he's been dusted, contaminated. What do you do?

You have two responsibilities — to quickly end his exposure from the dust already on his clothes and body, and to make sure he doesn't bring fallout dust inside the shelter with him.

If he removes all the dust, he is safe for himself, and for all of you in the shelter.

The radiation he HAS ALREADY RECEIVED can be harmful to him alone. His past exposure does not make him radioactive so he can pass on radiation like an infectious disease. This is a vital point to remember.

Have him remove contaminated outer clothing OUTSIDE the shelter, and then dash inside. Or toss the contaminated clothing out while he's at the very entrance to the open-door shelter.

There will be fallout on his shoes, and shoe soles. He should kick off his shoes. He could walk into the shelter with his shoes if you put newspaper or other covering on the floor, then remove his shoes to be put outside, along with the newspaper. Or you could sweep out any dust he brought into that one spot.

The dusted person must wash his face, hands, hair, any part of his body which has been exposed and still has dust. He should keep washing until the radiation meter registers no radiation coming from his body or his hair.

Washing fallout out of hair, especially women's hair, can be difficult. The person caught in fallout would be wise to cover his or her hair with a hat, with any kind of covering which can be tossed away when he reaches shelter.

Water used to wash off fallout should be thrown out of the shelter.

Let me repeat: The radiation the person has received is dangerous only to him, not to any others once he removes the dust. It is like getting an X-ray—the chest X-ray does not make you radioactive. But too much exposure to the X-rays can cause damage to the human body, to bones, flesh, and blood-forming organs.

The early fallout carries two kinds of dangerous radiation. One is known as beta rays, which consist of negatively charged electrons. These are soft rays, and are stopped by such a thin barrier as two or three thicknesses of ordinary paper. But if beta rays strike the skin directly, they can cause serious burns. Dust radiating beta rays must be washed off.

The most serious radiation is gamma rays, or hard X-rays which can carry great distances in the air, and also go through solid material. This radiation must be avoided by all means, and the fallout dust removed as soon as possible if it does fall on you.

How Much You Can Stand The X-radiation from fallout soon after a bomb is detonated can reach 3,000 roentgens or more per hour. That's enough to kill a person within 15 to 20 minutes, if he is in the open with his whole body being exposed. He will not die in 15 or 20 minutes, but such an exposure will cause him to die later.

No human would survive if he received 1,000 roentgens of total body radiation in a short time, meaning 24 hours or less.

A total exposure within a 24-hour period to a total of 500 roentgens probably would kill half the persons exposed.

An exposure of 350 roentgens in a short time would kill some persons.

If you were exposed to 200 roentgens in a short time, you could expect nausea, fatigue, vomiting, and sickness, but not fatal illness.

An exposure of 50 roentgens would bring slight, temporary blood changes, which disappear in time, and you would not notice any symptoms.

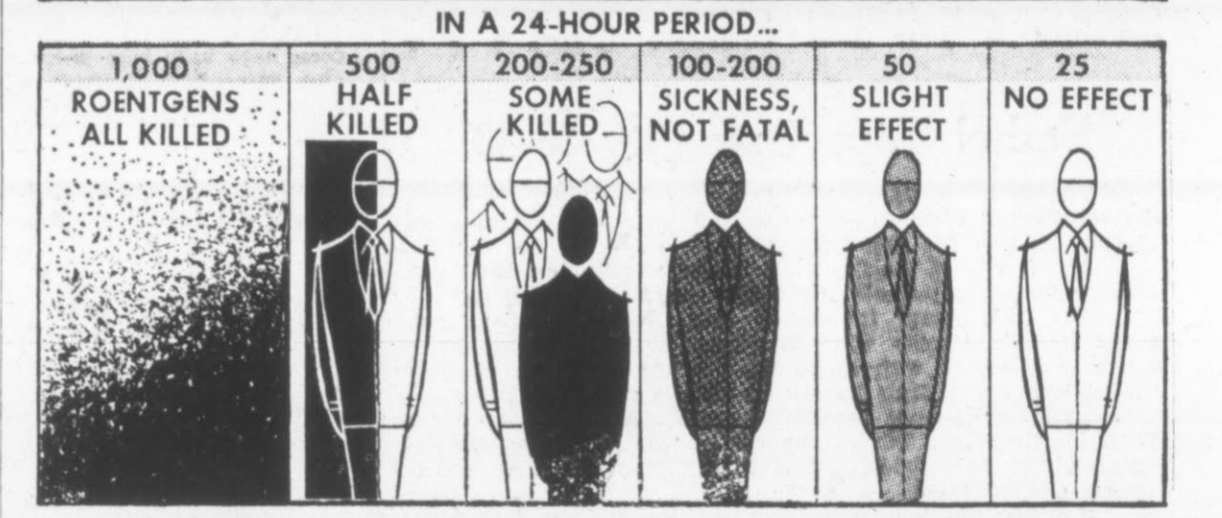

Exposure to 25 roentgens within a night and day would not produce any detectable effect at all.

That means that if the radiation intensity outside your shelter has fallen to a level of 1 roentgen per hour, you could move around outside for 24 hours and not be affected immediately.

Humans can take up to 100 roentgens over a two-week period with no observable symptoms.

The total body dosage of radiation, and how quickly you get the total, is the key.

One Factor In Mounting Prices Is Absent Today

By SAM DAWSON AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumers are still plagued by the high cost of living. But one major contributor to rising prices in the past is absent just now. That is advancing industrial prices.

Such prices, in fact, are holding remarkably steady despite the recovery of industry from the last recession. In other postwar recoveries these prices have advanced sharply.

And because of this stability there is a growing hope that the general rise in the cost of living can be held in check this time. Adding to the prospect is an increasing belief that labor cost advances will be moderate in the next few months, perhaps about in line with offsetting increases in productivity.

Some industrial prices have weakened during the recovery—aluminum and other non-ferrous metals. Steel prices haven't risen in spite of all the talk about it a few weeks ago when labor costs rose.

Prices of some building materials have dropped, with excess capacity or changing construction demands credited.

Many other industrial prices are holding in a narrow range close to recession levels.

Industrialists point to this to argue that any recent rises in consumer prices can be laid at other doors.

Services have been the most active risers in recent months. Some say this is a delayed reaction to earlier cost boosts at the manufacturing and labor levels.

In general the rise in prices during and since the recession has been traced largely to the added costs of distribution, processing and retailing. The cost of the basic materials have remained fairly steady.

Food is its own story. Its original price is influenced by weather and government supports. After that the processing and distributing costs are added. Often the store price seems far away from the farm price.

But this time at least such creeping advances in the cost of living as have shown up in recent months can't be traced to soaring industrial prices.

In the recovery from the 1949 recession the jump in industrial prices was 15 per cent. After the 1954 recession industrial prices rose by 10 per cent, and after the 1958 slump, 3 per cent.

Noting this diminishing percentage and the lack of any jump this time the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland wonders if industrial prices haven't achieved a stability that could even withstand the impact of increasing defense and other government spending.

The price stability was noted well before the recovery period. One of the major disappointments—to consumers at least—was that the cost of living continued to edge higher through most of the recession months. Prices didn't fall just because industrial activity did.

The reason given was that industrial materials might be in less demand but the cost of producing goods and services depended more on other things—labor, convenience processing, transportation, distribution outlets.

But if industrial prices should take a sudden spurt, you'd be sure to feel it in time in your monthly bills. That they are stable now is one happy factor for consumers to note.

Actor Sued For 'Libel' Of Yacht

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Gardner McKay was sued for $75,000 damages Tuesday because he allegedly said, the schooner used in his "Adventures in Paradise" TV show is wormy.

The owners of the 85-foot yacht Tiki, Harry and Margaret McGill, said McKay was quoted in a magazine as saying the ship has 300,000 worms.

The McGills asked damages from McKay and Triangle Publications for damages on grounds of libel and disparagement of property.

Marshall Library Campaign Opens

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — The George C. Marshall Research Foundation opened a drive Tuesday to raise $2.5 million for a library and research center in memory of the late secretary of state and Army chief of staff.

The plan is to erect the building near the Virginia Military Institute here. It would house thousands of personal and public papers and other possessions turned over to the foundation by Marshall or acquired through other sources.

Blaze Fatal To Family Of Five

DARIEN CENTER, N.Y. (AP) — A family of five died Tuesday night in a fire that swept through their two-story frame farm house on a rural road near this Genesee County community.

The victims were John Amedick, 46; his wife, Margaret Mary, 43, and their daughters, Noreen, 6, Patricia Ann, 5, and Jacqueline, 10 months.

In St. Jerome Hospital in nearby Batavia with serious burns are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Drilling, who lived with the Amedicks. Mrs. Drilling and Amedick were brother and sister.

The first public building in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, has been designated a National Historic Site.

John N. Garner Adopts College

UVALDE, Tex. (AP) — Palm-studded Southwest Junior College has become a pet of former Vice President John Nance Garner.

The institution, generally known as Uvalde Junior College, has received about one million dollars from the famous Uvalde residents in the past few months. Garner turned over more than $200,000 in cash and $700,000 worth of stock in 11 banks.

Why did Garner give such large sums to the school? "I think of the college as I do the people of Uvalde," he said. "These people made me principally what I am. They built me from a sick man into a successful office holder. This is my way of showing appreciation in repayment."

Garner, who served as vice president during Franklin Roosevelt's first term, came to Uvalde in 1893 suffering from tuberculosis.

He never went to college. He said his father once enrolled him in Vanderbilt University but that he never attended, adding, "I probably couldn't have gotten up the front steps."

His adopted school sprang from World War II. It opened in 1946 with 69 students as a combination public-tri-county-state-GI vocational training school. It used 10 temporary military buildings at the old Army Air Force Flying School at Garner Field.

This fall enrollment totals 285 day students who come by bus from a three-county area and 212 adult evening students who attend classes in high schools in Del Rio, Crystal City and Utopia.

There are two permanent buildings and plans for more, although most of the bank stocks will be retained for income. A science building will begin construction shortly.

Garner says he wants Southwest JC to become "the best college in the country."

Will Deliver To 'Santo Domingo'

NEW YORK (AP) — Western Union said Tuesday night telegrams addressed to Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, would be delivered promptly to the West Indies capital city that has been known for a generation as Ciudad Trujillo.

Acceptance of the old name is not official, however, and telegrams addressed to Ciudad Trujillo will be delivered just as promptly, Western Union said.

The ouster of the last of the Trujillo family dictatorship this week has accelerated a campaign to go back to Santo Domingo, the oldest place in the New World continuously inhabited by European stock since its discovery by Columbus. The Trujillo rule lasted 31 years.

WINS THIRD TERM MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Robert King High has been elected to his third two-year term as mayor.

Miami High polled 25,626 votes—more than double the combined total of four opponents—in the city's nonpartisan election Tuesday.

A suspense thriller by SUZANNE BLANC

CHAPTER 22
The light was fading over the Villa. It fell on Jessie Prewitt's book, reminding her that it was time to dress for the party. She had been sitting there without reading, thinking of the hour in the cathedral and the strange way in which new horizons of sensitivity and understanding were opening for her.

"I'll have to go back," she said aloud, her mind reluctantly traveling the routes back to the States. There was the road over which she had come, and the central one through Eagle Pass—or maybe she could take that other highway, the long one Ralph Burton had told her about, west to Morelia and Guadalajara, Mazatlan and, finally, north to Nogales.

"It's not as fast as the highway from Monterrey," he had said, "but it gives you a real idea of the grandeur of Mexico."
"I'd like to take that trip," Jessie had said, not seriously considering the possibility.

But now, thinking about it again, she knew that she wanted to return that way, that she could not bear to travel back again through Monterrey. The emptiness of the terrain had become intertwined in her relationship with Dan. For some obscure reason she felt that by taking a different, more promising road, the future, too, would be different.

"It will probably turn out the same in the end," she mused, smiling at her own wishful imaginings, "but at least the scenery along the way will be interesting."

Not certain that she could afford the longer trip, she dumped the contents of her purse on the bed and counted the remaining traveler's checks. There were fewer than she expected; and estimating the miles and the cost, she was still uncertain.

Then she noticed the tobacco pouch and recalled the guide who had sold it to her. His face was indistinct. All she could remember was his urgent voice, the film of sweat on his forehead, the absurdly warm coat, the purple stones that lay in his hand. She picked up the pouch to look inside, and touching it reminded her again of the drive from Monterrey.

"Whatever happens I have to go back a different way," she decided suddenly, not really seeing the amethyst that had torn through the tissue paper and that she picked up and held to the light, but thinking, without logical sequence, of the Randalls.

They, too, had driven along that desolate highway. On either side of them had been the same yellow hills and the unbroken azure of the sky. Malignant eyes that might have been watching for her peered out beyond the curve, waiting.

A nebulous fantasy that had been slowly building at the back of Jessie's mind became articulate. "If I had been a day earlier, it would not have been the Randalls who were murdered. My body, my car would have been found smashed against the rocks."
The macabre idea was distressingly real. She put the purple stone back into the pouch with the others and dropped it into her purse, piling traveler's checks, compact, entrance papers and wallet all back on top of it, eager to get it out of her sight as if it were responsible for her eerie thought. Once it was hidden she wondered what had possessed her the moment before and why she had bought the stones to start with.

Quickly, refusing to think any more about them or the roads or of the strange lottery of death that connected her with the Randalls, she started to change her clothes for the party, wondering what a Mexican birthday party could be like and if they would have fireworks.

Rather than be late Jessie left her room a few minutes early and hurried to the parking lot where they were to meet.

"You look lovely, Jessie," Ralph Burton said as she joined the others. "Ethereal and wispy. By the way have you met the Grooms?"

Before Jessie could answer, Emily was there, breathlessly complaining. "I've lost Rose. She stopped to talk to the gatekeeper, and with my Spanish, I couldn't get a barb in edgewise."
"We're in no hurry. She'll be along," Ruth Alexander said calmly. "Which car will we take?"

Jessie suggested that Burt drive all of them over in her convertible, but after she had pressed in close beside him to allow room for the others, Ruth Alexander objected that it would be too crowded.

"I'll go ahead with Becky and Tom Groom. We'll meet you there."
While they waited for Rose, Burt turned toward the back seat to talk to Emily, casually placing his arm around Jessie's shoulder. She was conscious of his nearness and that there was now room to move away, but she liked the dry, warm touch of his hand, the soap-clean smell about him that matched his appearance.

She wanted to lay her head against his chest as she used to do with Dan. Instead she sat rigidly upright, not wishing to encourage him, yet reluctant to end the comforting physical contact. At last he said, "Here's Rose," and took his arm away.

Aware that her stiffness might have rebuffed him, Jessie would have liked to say something that would re-create an intimacy between them, but no words would come except the awkward ones to Rose. "We've been waiting for you."
And Emily added with exasperation, "I don't know why you can't ever be on time."

"I just stopped for a moment to talk with the gatekeeper and he couldn't get away. He's not happy."
"I know," Burt said, starting the car and groping blindly out of the parking lot with the dimmed headlights customary in Mexico. "His nose is out of joint because he won't get to see the fireworks."
"If he's told you about his niece,

Big Balloon Fell In Lenoir Area

LENOIR, N.C. (AP)—The capsule seen floating out of the sky under a parachute near here Tuesday was a part of an international cosmic ray experiment being conducted at the University of Chicago.

The gigantic balloon which carried the capsule, along with other scientific equipment, landed a few miles from the capsule ending a successful 38-hour coast-to-coast flight from Brawley, Calif.

After the balloon went down, in the Pisgah National Forest, two jet pilots who had trailed it across the nation landed at the Hickory airport nearby and joined sheriff's officials in a ground search for the equipment.

A spokesman for the 16-nation International Cooperative Emulsion Flights at the University of Chicago said the experiment was designed to record nature's atom-smashing by cosmic ray nuclear particles that come to earth from outer space.

He said the particles are thousands of times more powerful than any yet produced by man-made machines.

The 10-million cubic feet balloon, carrying 2,200 pounds of equipment, traveled at an altitude of 112,000 feet.

Working Safely Pays Dividends At DuPont Plant

KINSTON—Working safely: is paying double dividends to employees of Du Pont's Kinston Plant this week. In addition to enjoying four and a half years without a disabling injury on the job, Du Ponters will receive gifts in recognition of winning the Company's Board of Directors' Safety Award.

Employees qualified for this award at one minute past midnight Sunday, November 19. At that time, they had recorded 1,633 consecutive days without a major on-the-job injury, representing nearly 16 1/2 million exposure hours. This marks the second time this year employees have won this citation and the 8th time since their last disabling injury on May 31, 1957.

The personal safety of Plant employees amounts to an enormous dividend when their accident record is compared to the frequency rate of the chemical industry as a whole. Had the industry frequency rate been experienced at Kinston, employees would have suffered 61 disabling injuries during this period. Had the frequency rate of all manufacturing industry been experienced, more than 100 Du Ponters would have lost time due to work injuries.

At the instant the award was won, 60 valuable gifts were unveiled in a special display inside the Plant entrance. Each employee has his choice of one of the gifts which include such things as cookware, home furnishings, sporting goods, tools, time pieces, toys and other outdoor and indoor items. The display is now open to employee families for viewing between the hours of 8 a.m. and 10 p.m.

Plant Manager W. E. Gladding expressed his congratulations to all employees, saying that the award is a significant one since it is the highest safety recognition given by Du Pont. He pointed out that this is the 8th such award in a row, but the 10th since Plant startup in 1953.

All told, the Kinston Plant has won 28 safety citations of one kind or another since 1953. These have included Company awards and others from the Manufacturing Chemists Association, the National Safety Council, and the United States and North Carolina Departments of Labor.

Small Tremor In California Area

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—A small, local earthquake was recorded Tuesday 15 miles northeast of Berkeley in the Concord area. University of California seismologist Don Tocher said the quake "was big enough for people to feel but not big enough to do any damage."

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

FOR LIGHT AND AIR... This unusual U-shaped ranch is designed to provide good natural light and ventilation and a maximum of outdoor living. The patio, between the bedroom wing and daytime-use area, is sheltered on three sides by the house and could easily be enclosed to provide a play area for small children. Plan HA215P has 1672 square feet of living space, a 513-square-foot garage and 1326-square-foot basement. Architect is Samuel Paul, 89-30 161 St., Jamaica, N. Y.

Why so many farmers and ranchers plant money in U.S. Savings Bonds

Ever since the Savings Bond Program began, America's farmers and ranchers have been among its best customers. In fact 1/3 of all cash reserves owned by these folks is invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Bonds for Business. Bonds owned by the millions of people who run our farms work hard. They replace machinery. Pay for new land. Provide insurance against the risks of farming. They get personal assignments, too, like replacing the old homestead and sending the kids to college.

Why they keep U.S. Bonds "down on the farm." U.S. Savings Bonds are a "crop that never fails," guaranteed by the U.S. Government to grow. $18.75 becomes $25 in 7 years, 9 months. In 10 more years, it becomes $36.25. They can be cashed in anytime, with interest. And if they're lost or destroyed, the Treasury Department replaces them free.

Every U.S. Bond you buy is an investment in Peace. What better way to help your government help you enjoy the things you're saving for?

Why America's Prominent Farm Groups Support The Savings Bond Program

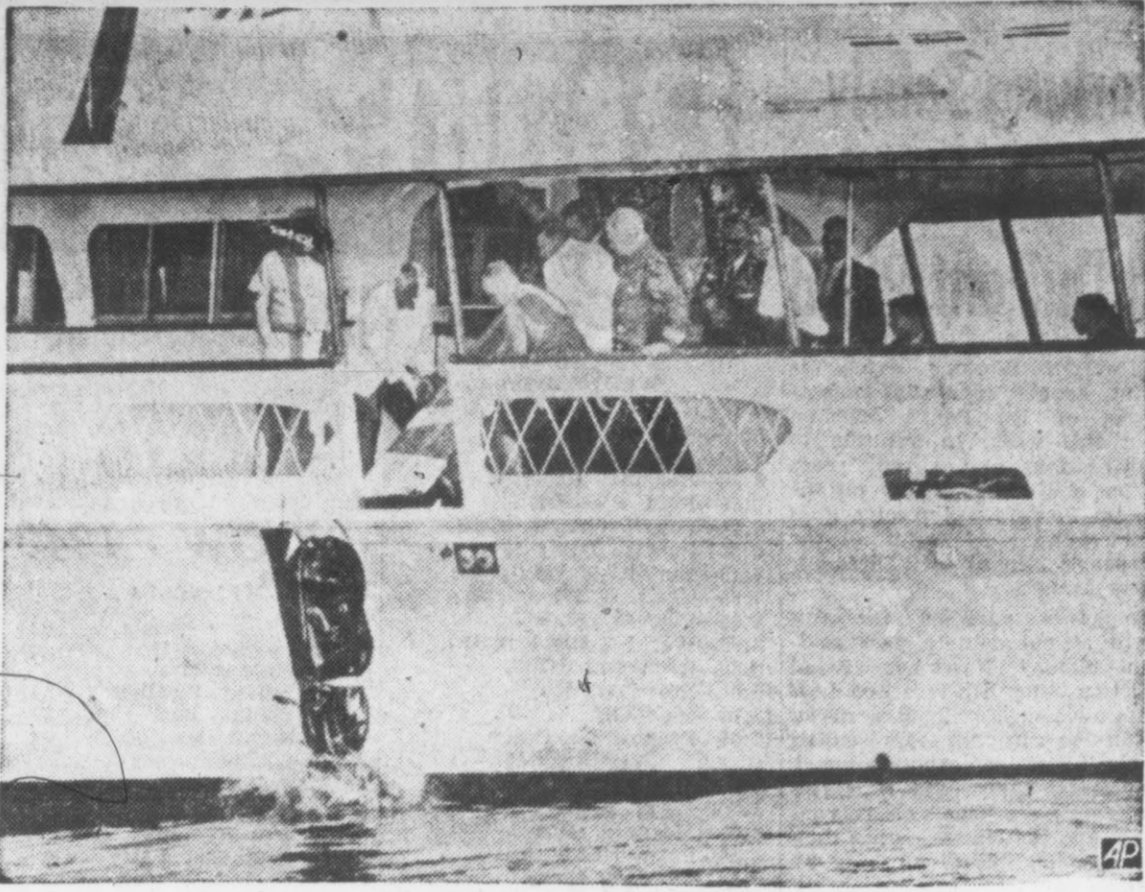

James G. Patton, President, National Farmers Union, says: "Savings Bonds are an excellent means of providing for a family's security, and will continue to be a part of our efforts toward a better agriculture and a stronger nation."

Chas. E. Shuman, President, American Farm Bureau Federation, says: "Farmers have always been strong supporters of the Savings Bond Program. Their current investment of $5 billion is a tribute both to their thrift habits and to Bonds."

Herschel D. Newsom, Manager, The National Grange, says: "Savings Bonds are an investment in America. Farmers—like all Americans—buy them, assured that they are making an indestructible investment."

You save more than money with U.S. Savings Bonds
Buy them where you work or bank

For 20 years America's newspapers have published Savings Bonds ads at no cost to the Government. The Treasury Dept. is grateful to the Advertising Council and this newspaper for their patriotic support.

SUICIDE SKIPPER BURIED AT SEA—The shrouded body of Julian A. Harvey, skipper of the ill-fated ketch Bluebelle, slides into the waters of the Atlantic Ocean about 12 miles off Miami. The burial at sea satisfied a last wish of Harvey who left a suicide note asking for such a burial so he could be with his wife who was lost with the Bluebelle. Harvey's burial took place a short time after Terry Jo Duperrault, 11, told investigators a terror-filled story which indicated Harvey killed the passengers during the Bluebelle's cruise off Bermuda. Sanford Uses Man-To-Man Talk With Farm People

By LYNN NISBET
Reflector Bureau, Assn. Afternoon
Dailies

RALEIGH — Governor Terry Sanford threw away a prepared speech on agricultural opportunities and progress, figuratively rolled up his sleeves and let his hair down, and talked to members of the N. C. Farm Bureau Federation about the plight of North Carolina's educational program in man-to-man style. It was a different kind of speech from those the people have come to expect from the Governor.

There were familiar passages. The fact that the period of national peril enhances the importance of the period of opportunity in the South, and that only by taking advantage of the opportunities can the South really help the nation solve its problems. The fundamental importance of education in the total scheme was emphasized, along with review of steps taken by his administration to improve educational standards—beginning with the painful decision to sponsor extending the sales tax to foods.

He commended the General Assembly for wisdom and courage in enacting this law, and voiced confidence that ultimately it will be accepted as the best if not the only way to finance the school program. He admitted that right now it is very unpopular.

Then the Governor waded into the matter of the ignominious defeat of the building bonds in the election two weeks ago. He said there were so many reasons contributing to their failure that it is impossible to pick out any two or three as the main causes. He accepted a large share of responsibility on two bases: His personal unpopularity because of sponsorship of unpopular legislation; and, more significant, failure of himself and his administration to do a "selling job" on the importance of the bonds.

He discounted the first point on the basis he did not think many people in North Carolina would vote against progress and the interest of their children for such a shallow reason as political antipathy for any office holder. The second reason, failure to adequately present the need for the bond money, he accepted at full value. And he promised that it would not happen again.

Where to from here? Governor Sanford admitted strong opposition to the sales tax on basic foods and the prospect of efforts to repeal it. He sees no other source for sufficient money to finance the school system, and he appealed to the Farm Bureau folks to continue their support for the program. And not only for the public schools but for the needs in higher education, hospitalization and other areas of governmental social service.

The Governor's speech was not the kind that calls for applause or cheering. It was a challenge to sober thought on part of his hearers—and perhaps as much a challenge to some of those in his own organization who had accepted too lightly the responsibilities

King Saud Flying To U.S. Hospital

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—King Saud of Saudi Arabia is to leave today by special plane for medical treatment in Boston, an authoritative medical source reported. A chartered KLM plane will fly him to the United States where the king will enter the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, the source said. The 59-year-old king may have to spend six weeks to three months in the United States, the source said.

Saud is suffering from a possible gastric ulcer.

Reason For Thanks In Face Of Tragedy

PERRY, Iowa (AP)—Floyd Chenoweth, although saddened by tragedy—has many reasons to give thanks this Thanksgiving Day. Thirteen of them, at least. The tall, lanky Perry area farmer will sit down at the dinner table Thursday with his 13 children, renewed in a faith in friends and family that often follows tragedy.

Chenoweth, 40, was widowed and his children left motherless when Mrs. Chenoweth, 35, was killed in a car crash Oct. 11. The people of Perry and nearby communities opened their hearts to the Chenoweth family. "It seems like everyone has helped," says Chenoweth. "Neighbors came and picked my corn and harvested my beans. 'Now, they're building us a home.'"

A plan to build a new home for Chenoweth, who has known little prosperity as a tenant farmer, snowballed into a community-wide effort. A Des Moines builder promised the lumber, roofing and other materials. Local concerns con-other citizens to stand by for a call to meet the urgent needs of colleges and hospitals as they may be presented during the next few months.

tributing the labor and other work and materials. People who never knew the Chenoweths donated money.

The new home, being erected on a 37-acre tract south of Perry, is scheduled for completion about Christmas time.

All but four of the Chenoweth children attend school at nearby Rippey. Kenneth, 1, Dennis, 2, Harold, 3, and Kathy, 4, are cared for by Chenoweth's mother, Blissie Clayton, at the 80-acre farm which Chenoweth has been working on shares.

The other children are Charles, 16, Floyd Jr., 15, Donald, 14, Janet, 12, Mary, 11, Jerrold, 10, Herman, 8, Carol, 6 and David, 5. Chenoweth had been married 18 years when his wife Marguerite, a native of Pitcher, Okla., was killed.

Despite the loss of his wife, Chenoweth now counts himself a pretty lucky man. "I have my children. I have my good friends and neighbors. 'I have 13 good reasons to be thankful tomorrow. I wish I had the 14th. But that's something I'll never have again.'"

LOOK, NO HANDS—Steeplejack Walter Phillips, right, demonstrates how he can maneuver without using his arms 450 feet in the air atop one of the twin towers of the federal office building in downtown Kansas City. The roof on the 33-story building is being replaced with a covering of copper sheathing. The other two steeplejacks are Robert Cooper and Victor Phillips. A photographer climbed a radar tower to get the picture. (AP Wirephoto)

Two Giants Of Western Movies In Dollar Standoff

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Two giants of the West are fighting it out yonder in Culver City—bank accounts at 20 paces. Joel McCrea and Randolph Scott, who have starred in more Westerns than either would care to remember, have finally joined horses in a film, "Guns in the Afternoon."

A reporter could hope that there might be bad blood between them, and so I asked McCrea: "Is it true that Randy Scott is the slowest gun in the West?" "I don't know about that," McCrea replied quickly, "but I know he's the richest gun in the West."

"The guy is loaded. You know what he does? He plays golf with those Texas millionaires and in the locker room afterwards, they say, 'Randy, we're drilling a new field—like to let you in on it.'"

"Hope and Crosby do the same thing; they get in on the ground floor and make a mint. I just happened to be looking into a natural gas investment and a broker told me, 'There's a guy in your business who knows as much about it as anybody—Randolph Scott.'"

I tramped to Scott's dressing room and tried to fire him up. "McCrea says you're the richest gun in the West," I said. "Look who's talking," Scott said with a tight-lipped smile. "Why, McCrea is one of the really big cattle dealers. He got in early and made a fortune. "And look at the land he's got. He bought up 2,500 acres for a son, and now they're worth a fortune. He just sold off part of it—just a few acres—and he made something like $1.3 million. Just a few acres!"

McCrea confessed: "I've been lucky. I made some dough because I invested in the only thing I know about—land."

So it was a standoff. I couldn't even get them mad over billing. Scott's name goes on top, and he won it fair and square.

"We flipped a coin," said Scott. "Actually, I didn't even know it was happening. We were having lunch at the Brown Derby with the producer, Dick Lyons, and the director, Sam Peckinpah, and I thought they were flipping to see who got the check."

DO I HAVE TO GIVE HER BACK?—Sad eyed, 6-year-old Ruthie Ashby is on the verge of tears at Newark, N. J., as she learns she must return a prize-winning $500 pedigree dog a woman said she could keep at a dog show. Police located the child with the dog at home after its true owner reported the dog missing from the show. (AP Wirephoto)

RESPONSE!

Newspaper Advertising Brings Reader Response... through Buying Action!

More buying action results from newspaper advertising because of the atmosphere of believability. You've heard people say, "I know it's true, it's in the papers." The printed word has always been accepted as more honest and binding.

Newspapers report facts; other media offer entertainment. Your advertising in an atmosphere of believability is bound to induce more "want-to-buy" action than that framed in fiction or entertainment.

Newspapers offer another vital element—an atmosphere of timeliness and urgency. This sense of immediacy fosters "here-and-now" sales action that no other print medium can match.

If it's a question of consumer response—newspapers are the answer!

NEW YORK (AP)—Tobacco continued strong in a generally declining stock market early this afternoon. Trading was heavy. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .90 at 266.90 with industrials down 1.00, rails down .90 and utilities down .30.

Losses of key stocks went from fractions to about a point, overbalancing gainers.

While the tobacco continued to respond to investment demand, there was also buying in building materials and some of the chemicals and utilities.

An assortment of issues also made strides but profit taking and switching dragged down the average. Steels held narrowly higher. Motors were mixed. The trend was lower among rubbers, aircraft-missiles, electronics, oils and rails.

It looked to analysts like another consolidation movement in a market which shows signs of going higher, at least in the intermediate term.

American Tobacco was up around 3 points, Philip Morris and Liggett & Myers about 2 apiece.

American Telephone rose fractionally to a new high of 134 1/2, before slipping to a small net loss.

International Business Machines lost 4, Foremost Dairies 1, B&O about 2 and C&O about 1.

Great Western Financial was about 3 higher and Amerasia more than 3.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .52 at 728.30. Prices held irregularly higher on the American Stock Exchange in active trading.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were slightly higher.

Workers in the tower at Richmond's Byrd Field the night of the crash were the lead-off witnesses as the hearing goes into its second day.

If the hearing hears to its schedule, amplification is expected on an investigators' report Tuesday that rust was found in some key fuel components of the engines.

Tuesday's day-long hearing, which spilled over into a night session, produced testimony that, in effect, both the surviving pilot and a second flight captain gave orders to other crew members.

CAB investigators repeatedly returned to this line of questioning when the survivors, Capt. Ronald H. Conway of West Hollywood, Fla., and Engineer William F. Poythress were on the witness stand.

Conway and Poythress were the only survivors of the flaming crash into a marshy woodland two miles south of Byrd Field. Their craft was on a round trip from Columbia, S.C., to Newark, N.J., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and Baltimore, Md., to pick up Army recruits.

Conway said it wasn't until he boarded the plane at Columbia, S.C., prior to take-off that he learned he was to be the pilot for the flight. He testified he had filed the flight plan listing Capt. James Greenlee as pilot but that Greenlee had asked him if he (Conway) wanted to fly the flight.

Engineer Poythress said that while some commands did come from Greenlee, they were cleared with Conway.

Apparently there was one exception, however.

This related to an emergency fuel system cross-over switch located in the cabin of the plane. The manually operated switch or valve, allows fuel to flow from tanks in one wing to engines on the opposite wing.

Poythress, who said he qualified as an engineer in September, said he sent student engineer Peter Clark back to check the cross-feed valve. Clark returned, said Poythress, and asked for a screwdriver.

"Capt. Greenlee said," related Poythress, "don't open those valves; we've got good pressure on Nos. 1 and 2."

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House said today Gen. Joseph M. Swing has resigned as commissioner of immigration and naturalization, a post he has held since 1954.

Raymond F. Farrell, associate commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, has been picked to take over the top job when Swing steps out Jan. 1.

The White House gave no details. Swing last June completed 50 years of government service, including a long career in the Army. He was a West Point classmate of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Justice Department sources indicated that the selection of Farrell resulted at least in part from an administration desire to promote a career man to a top echelon post in the department.

Farrell is a former FBI agent who joined the Justice Department 20 years ago.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The first Titan missile launched by an all-Air Force crew successfully flew 5,000 miles Tuesday night and tested a phase being developed as a target for the Nike-Zeus antimissile missile.

Air Force troops manned all blockhouse positions as the 98-foot rocket blasted away from the Cape and streaked to a bullseye off Ascension Island.

Previous Titan launches here were conducted by civilian personnel of the Martin Co., which makes the missile.

Data from Tuesday's flight will be used in computing intercept patterns when Nike-Zeus is launched from Kwajalein Island in the Pacific next year in an attempt to knock down Atlas missiles launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

The Atlas nose cones—the actual Zeus targets—will be like the one which capped the Titan.

CAB Goes Over Radio Contact In Crash Probe

Conway had said earlier he would have "much rather seen that valve open."

The matter of rust in critical fuel elements was first introduced into the hearing by CAB investigator Frank T. Taylor.

Taylor said iron oxide (rust) was found in the filters of engines Nos. 3 and 4, in the fuel injection nozzles of all four engines, and in a pump on No. 2 engine.

Pilot Conway has said that engines Nos. 3 and 4 quit while the craft was about 30 miles west of Richmond—a situation he first noted when the plane yawed to the right.

Poythress said he was unable to get the engines restarted. At crash, the two engines on the left outside, was losing power fast.

Nation Pauses Thursday, Marks Thanksgiving Day

The nation pauses Thursday amid the travail of a vanishing year to mark another Thanksgiving Day—the 340th in America's history—with prayer and festive camaraderie.

The mixture of joy and solemnity surrounding the occasion was summed up in President Kennedy's annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation.

"This year, as the harvest draws near its close, and the year approaches its end, awesome perils again remain to be faced. Yet we have, as in the past, ample reason to be thankful for the abundance of our blessings," Kennedy said.

The President will spend the four-day Thanksgiving weekend on Cape Cod, devoting part of it to a conference on the military budget and part to an interview with Soviet editor Alexei I. Adzhubel, son-in-law of Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Kennedy leaves Washington today for his Hyannis Port, Mass., home, where members of the family will gather Thursday for a big Thanksgiving dinner at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy.

Elsewhere in the nation, Americans will mark the Thanksgiving holiday with church services, private gatherings, sports events and parades.

Airlines, trains and buses have stepped up service to handle thousands of college students going home for the first of the big school year holidays.

Not far from President Kennedy's Cape Cod home, descendants of the brave souls who came over on the Mayflower stole a march on the rest of the country with a celebration Tuesday.

At Provincetown, Mass., 50 persons braved a bitter wind to gather at the scene of the Pilgrims' first landing on the tip of Cape Cod in 1620. The Mayflower dropped anchor there after a stormy 66-day journey, the Pilgrims taking shelter before they sailed across the bay to settle permanently in Plymouth.

It was in the Plymouth settlement in the following year that the first Thanksgiving was held. Friendly Indians introduced the Pilgrims to the turkey, now the traditional staple of the holiday feast.

At Plymouth, there will be the customary open house ceremony with elder and doughnuts served to visitors. Costumed townspeople will reenact the Pilgrims' armed march to church on that first Thanksgiving in 1621.

In foreign lands around the world, American servicemen will be remembered with holiday feasts. The Pentagon announced that the menu will feature shrimp cocktail, roast turkey with giblet gravy, bread dressing, cranberry sauce, mashed and candied sweet potatoes, buttered peas and succotash, assorted crisp relishes, hot rolls and butter, pumpkin pie with whipped cream or mince pie, assorted fruits and candy, tea, coffee.

At Oxnard Air Force Base, Col. Louis Seith, commanding officer since last July, said Huffaker was transferred to Maxwell Air Force Base at Montgomery, Ala. in October after a normal three-year tour of duty.

Seith said that after Huffaker was criticized locally for making anti-Communist speeches at service clubs, all officers at the base were reminded of regulations against making public statements on political matters.

New York City expects 1 1/2 million children—of various ages—to line Broadway for the annual Macy's Thanksgiving parade. Millions more will watch on national television networks.

The down-and-outers on the Bowery in New York, and along the skid rows of other cities from coast to coast will be treated on the holiday with turkey dinners served by charitable groups.

Special prayers of Thanksgiving will be offered in New York at St. Patrick's Cathedral, the Episcopal Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine, the Jewish Temple Emanuel on upper Fifth Avenue, and the Salvation Army Memorial Temple on the lower West Side.

Members of the Jewish, Presbyterian and Methodist faiths will gather at the Central Synagogue at Lexington Avenue and 55th Street for the 26th annual interfaith service.

While the rest of the nation feasts on turkey with trimmings, 250 vegetarians will sit down to Thanksgiving dinner at a West 38th Street restaurant, where the menu will feature "vegetable roast."

MOSCOW (AP)—Two handsome young Germans—one a refugee from the East—today pleaded guilty to spying for the United States.

Both, speaking in firm, proud voices, insisted they were guilty only in the strict sense of the indictment read at the beginning of Moscow's first public spy trial since that of American U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers.

The men were Walter Naumann, 27, and Peter Sonntag, 22.

After their arrest the Russians had accused them, among other things, of trying to locate Soviet rocket bases. The lengthy indictment did not mention this and claimed only the men were captured trying to leave the Soviet Union with 15 rolls of film that showed radar and power stations.

Sonntag, short, with a crew cut and wearing a gray suit, told the two major generals and a colonel of the military division of the Supreme Court: "I recognize myself fully guilty in this sense."

Naumann, a tall, gangling man in a dark blue suit, said: "I recognize myself guilty in accordance with the accusation as formulated."

Both the United States and West German governments have denied that the pair were spies.

GREENVILLE'S Junior Rifle Team will not meet tomorrow night as scheduled because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Regular 7:30 p.m. Thursday meetings of the organization, sponsored by the Greenville Optimist Club, will resume at the U. S. Army Reserve Armory next week.
