

Special Session Talk Killed Off By Gov. Sanford

RALEIGH (AP)—The decision voters gave in defeating $61.6 million in bond proposals will be the final word until the 1963 general assembly meets. Gov. Sanford told a statewide television and radio audience Monday night it would not be "in keeping with the soundest principles of popular government" to call the legislature into special session to offer reduced bond proposals in a new election.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy told the Soviet people through their own government newspaper today that the root of East-West troubles is the Russian effort to "communize... the entire world."

The White House said it had received a preliminary report that the first 4 1/2 pages of the text as given out here were reproduced in the Moscow printing. It was continuing a check on the remainder.

state authorities give the school the green light. Before the bond issue's defeat, plans were to pay half the cost of a fourth large dorm for men with bond funds, with the remaining half coming from another Housing and Home Finance Agency loan.

Its completion by next fall is expected to provide at least temporary relief from a scarcity of student housing—a vice-like pinch at East Carolina, sharply accentuated by the defeat of the state-wide bond election earlier this month.

Officials at East Carolina, faced with the prospects of a worsening student housing picture, jumped to the task the day after voters denied the bond funds. Requests for approval of federal loans were filed with the State Board of Higher Education and the Advisory Budget Commission, according to Duncan.

Red Oak Choir Is Entertained

The Red Oak choir was entertained Tuesday night by Mrs. Bert Dearen at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Evans on Hooker Rd. Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Dearen. Mrs. Lila Bullock and Miss Joan Evans and invited into the den where choir rehearsal was held. An hour of recreation followed, led by Mrs. Leola Tyson. A barber shop quartet, solos, readings and monologues were the features of the evening. Rev. Howard James did his always popular "Shortening Bread".

Guests were invited into the dining area. An arrangement of fruits, grapes and autumn leaves flanked by brass candleholders with accessories of yellow candles centered the dining table. Mrs. Dearen served grape punch and guests helped themselves to turkey and ham sandwiches, assorted nuts, fruit cups and mince-meat tarts. Autumn arrangements, carrying out the Thanksgiving season were placed in the living room and den.

A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Dearen who has made this an annual affair for the choir of Red Oak.

Tyson-May Reunion Held For 41st Time

FARMVILLE — Descendants of the Tyson and May families, numbering around 100, assembled at the Major Benjamin May DAR chapter house at 10 o'clock, Friday, for their 41st annual reunion.

The meeting was opened with the singing of America and the invocation by the Rev. John T. Etoome, Episcopal rector Mrs. Ficyd Robbins, of Wilson, vice-president, a Tyson descendant and a native of the community, extended a cordial welcome to the assemblage. Mrs. Reide Ellis, of Winterville, acting secretary, read the minutes of the 1960 meeting.

The president, John B. Lewis, Farmville attorney, presided and addressed the members and guests on family problems of the current generation, reading from comments of Socrates on the youth in the year 329, which revealed convictions similar to the present, prevailing at that time. Mr. Lewis gave some humorous and serious observations in regard to juvenile and parental delinquency and praised family reunions as a source of binding the family closer. He spoke of the active participation by the Tysons and Mays in the Bicentennial celebration of the formation of Pitt County now in progress, and paid tribute to Miss Tabitha DeVisconti for her outstanding leadership and untiring efforts in this connection and in the reunion group since its organization as well.

Special and appropriate vocal selections were rendered at intervals on the program by Miss Nancy Jane Carroll and Laurence T. Tyson, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Alex Rouse.

The president presented Sam D. Bundy, superintendent of Farmville schools, and well known throughout the State as a favorite sifter dinner speaker, as guest speaker of this occasion.

Mr. Bundy prefaced and inserted in the course of his address on "Our Freedoms" humorous experiences and observations, which added spice and interest to his remarks. The Freedoms guaranteed citizens of the United States by the Constitution were listed with emphasis given to political rights and the effect that the opportunity of choosing a vocation has nationwide.

Mr. Bundy extolled the hearthstone, the flag as the "place of prayer" as four action stones for the development of character, true Americanism and good citizenship. Dangers confronting the present generation from outside the boundaries of the country were enumerated with indifference marked as chief.

The speaker concluded by suggesting a guide for American living, which included abiding by the law, service to others, productivity and faith in God and fellowman.

The Reunion gave special attention and interest to reports by Miss DeVisconti, genealogist, Miss Margaret Hardy Reunion treasurer and Mrs. A. T. St. Amand, in connection with their research for the purpose of publication of a family history. Mrs. Ellen Lewis Carroll led a round table discussion on "Ancestor Research."

Bringing the Reunion program to a close was the impressive memorial service conducted by the Rev. Mr. Broome.

During the business session, a report and recommendation by the nominating committee, submitted by John Flanagan, chairman, resulted in the unanimous election of the following officers: Mrs. Floyd Robbins, Wilson, president; Egbert Rouse, Jacksonville, vice-president; Miss Beulah Brake Rocky Mount, secretary. Miss Margaret Hardy, LaGrange, was re-elected as treasurer. Mrs. Robbins spoke briefly of plans for promoting Reunion objectives in the coming year.

Following an expression of appreciation by the president to the committees contributing to the success of the meeting, a basket lunch was enjoyed in the banquet room of the chapter house. Forest greens, red berries and chrysanthemums were used in decoration of mantels and tables.

Sec. Rusk's Hand Is Strengthened

President Kennedy's shakeup among top officials of the State Department's foreign policy high command is a move that should give the government a more positive and concise foreign policy and eliminate some of the obvious lost motion which has existed between the State Department and the White House.

The move should strengthen the hand of Secretary of State Dean Rusk and at the same time provide more clear-cut divisions of responsibility in planning and administering the foreign policy of the United States. These are things, in our opinion, which have been needed since the Kennedy administration began its operation.

In the past it has seemed that while the President obviously held the final word so far as top foreign policy was concerned, there was cumbersome chain of command which often overlapped and even bogged down between the White House and the top echelon of the State Department. In addition to the advice which Rusk had to offer, President Kennedy was surrounded by other advisers who held various positions with ambiguous responsibilities.

At least in part this awkward chain of command and uncertain division of responsibilities could have influenced the blunders which the United States made recently in connection with the abortive invasion attempt in Cuba and the Laotian crisis.

By streamlining the top foreign policy command of the State Department there should be less confusion in arriving at policies in meeting new international crises, and there should also be greater effectiveness in carrying out these policies once they are made. It will also be easier to fix responsibility for blunders if and when they occur.

The realignment in the State Department has been needed for months. Now that it has come, it should enable the United States to better cope with the changing international situation.

Opportunity Provided For State 'Dividend'

The program launched recently by Gov. Sanford to bring about greater economy in the operations of state agencies and departments is one which could provide important dividends for North Carolina's taxpayers.

To some, it may seem that Gov. Sanford's economy move is merely a sop offered to those who have been critical of the spending rate he has outlined for the state in the next few years. On the other hand, the greater sums a government is spending, the more important it is to the taxpayers to have careful controls on operations in order that waste will not eat up a greater number of tax dollars every year.

With the state government operating under a billion dollar budget for the current biennium, a very small percentage of the total amount going into inefficient operations could amount to a considerable quantity of dollars during the period. With more money being spent, it might follow that more would be wasted unless additional measures were taken to assure the most economic operations possible by various departments and agencies.

By appointing David S. Coltrane as a special consultant and member of the Advisory Budget Commission, Gov. Sanford has created a position which makes Coltrane a new watchdog of all state spending. And by naming Coltrane to the position, the governor has picked probably the one man who knows more than any other about financial operations of all the departments and agencies of the state government.

This step taken by Gov. Sanford is a positive move which is needed in the administration of the state's government. It is one which over the years could provide an appreciable savings to citizens of the state by bringing about greater efficiency and greater economy in the state's operations.

Chester Bowles Not Yet Secure

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Ever since last summer Chester Bowles, No. 2 in the State Department, has looked like a man who had been put on probation but was going to lose his job anyway.

President Kennedy seemed unable to make up his mind about his undersecretary of state. It was hardly a good or happy situation for a State Department man who had to deal with foreign governments. Bowles seemed to want to cling to the job. Now Kennedy has bounced him from the undersecretary's job, offered him another.

Sunday, in the first big shake-up of his administration Kennedy shifted around a group of White House and State Department officials, including Bowles.

All the changes were specific except the one affecting Bowles who had been an adviser to Kennedy in the 1960 presidential campaign, head of the Office of Price Administration during the war, an ambassador to India, and governor of Connecticut.

In Bowles' case Kennedy was just as vague as he had been before. The announcement made from Kennedy's headquarters at Hyannis Port said simply that Bowles would get a "high policy-making position."

Perhaps this means he'll be offered a job as roving ambassador. If so, it's the kind of job last summer when it became clear, but perhaps not to Bowles, that his days as undersecretary were numbered.

Two things are odd about this case: the way Kennedy handled the man who was next in command to Secretary Dean Rusk at the State Department; and the way Bowles took for months what amounted to a public embarrassment.

In the first place it has never been made clear — certainly not officially — why Kennedy was dissatisfied with Bowles.

Last summer for several days there were news stories predicting Bowles was going to be yanked and made a roving ambassador because he didn't get along well in the State Department and was not a good administrator.

This didn't make much sense in view of the high administrative jobs Bowles had handled: as boss of OPA during the war and, after it, of the Office of Price Stabilization, and as governor of his state.

This writer has been told by a source who ought to know that Bowles did get along well at State. It's an educated guess that Bowles and Kennedy didn't get along well.

The stories predicting Bowles, downfall indicated the information critical of his performance at State came from White House people close to Kennedy.

But the anti-Bowles outcry was followed by a story — clearly pointing to its unnamed informants as men around Bowles — which said bluntly he'd get out of the Kennedy administration if he was removed as undersecretary.

The same day the pro-Bowles story appeared, Kennedy lunched with him and the White House denied Bowles was leaving.

This inspired liberal Sen. Joseph S. Clark, Pennsylvania Democrat and supporter of liberal Bowles, to announce on the Senate floor the conflict involving Bowles was "all over." It didn't seem over to a lot of people in Washington.

Then Kennedy added to the uncertainty by saying at a news conference he had never asked Bowles for his resignation, had complete confidence in him, and always expected him to serve out the life of his administration.

But — Kennedy didn't say Bowles would not be removed as undersecretary. He said, instead, that as of then he thought Bowles should stay as undersecretary, that he had no plans to ask him to take another assignment, but that he would ask Bowles if he thought he would fit in better somewhere else.

That wasn't the same as saying he was going to remain undersecretary. Then it became a matter of waiting to see what happened to Bowles for by that time — because of Kennedy's vagueness — it was apparent that Bowles was on the chute.

Two things are odd about this case: the way Kennedy handled the man who was next in command to Secretary Dean Rusk at the State Department; and the way Bowles took for months what amounted to a public embarrassment.

In the first place it has never been made clear — certainly not officially — why Kennedy was dissatisfied with Bowles.

Oh! Redcoat Is Coming! — Oh! Redcoat Is Coming!

Busy In The Early Hours

Evans Street-traffic is right sparse when I go to work in the morning. Fact is, one could park just about where they please; or if in a stone-throwing mood, a stone thrown from Five Points might well clatter harmlessly on the pavement.

The impression is that Greenville keeps bankers' hours. But it isn't really so.

Traffic arteries leading to the schools are busy with buses, mothers driving children to school; fathers driving children to school; teachers going to school; milk trucks, bread trucks, an occasional van, taxi carrying household help or returning from such a mission.

It is a surprisingly busy time or day.

But downtown, things are only beginning to stir.

Mary Jane, the unsung heroine of countless day-to-day adventures around the house, is the most avid doll-carrier in the neighborhood.

Out-of-doors, she is either carrying her well-bundled favorite or going to get the doll where it was left but a moment before.

In the house, it is always close to hand. In bed, it is right there with her . . . as are at least two other lesser members of her "family."

And where Mary Jane goes in a car, she is prepared: a doll has been apparently assigned to strictly travel duty and is standing by for emergencies.

The approach of Christmas has made me doubly aware of all this. For when thinking of a gift for a very little girl what first comes to mind? A doll.

But with so much affection and attention lavished on those already in her possession, another seems like inviting imbalance.

It occurred to me that today's youngsters must think their parents quite mad when they recall aloud the Boris Karloff roles of monster, spooky scientists and demented doctors.

Watching and listening as the actor introduces one of a weekly series of chill-inspiring television shows, Karloff appears these days the gentlest and kindest of souls . . . only half-heartedly trying to build an atmosphere of suspense.

With this new image, our future voters are full of resistance to the pitch that in bygone days the Karloff "menace" was a byword. Only a fraction of the impact is caught by our 21-inch screens reviving one of those old horrors.

Other Editors Saying . . . Inducement For Support Opinions In Brief

(Henderson Dispatch)
Record high prices paid for flue-cured tobacco on the Middle Belt . . . and all belts, for that matter — during the season just ended offer a decided inducement to growers to continue the support program for another three years. Undoubtedly they will be overwhelmingly favorable inclined in the December 12 referendum.

The Secretary of Agriculture has announced the same quotas for 1962 as prevailed in 1961, except for the addition of a pittance of 330 acres additional to provide for so-called hardship cases. For practically all farms the acreage next year will be unchanged from the past season. That was to be expected, and permits further opportunity for the Stabilization Corporation to rid itself of larger quantities of leaf held in storage under loan.

There is no uneasiness as to the outcome of the referendum next month. Emphasis will be on inducing eligible tobacco growers to go to the polls and express their preference. Two-thirds of those voting must favor the quota system in order for it to be effective. If approved, allotments and price supports will continue. Should the decision be against the present system, there will be neither quotas nor price supports.

For a quarter century, the tobacco program has been in effect, except for a single year. No greater testimony than that is needed to prove the popularity of the system with flue-cured farmers. They will favor its continuance for another three years, a policy which is about as certain as anything in the future can be.

The program has meant tremendous improvement in the economic plight of not only producers but also whole areas which are in large degree dependent upon tobacco for their prosperity. Sufficient flexibility is permitted to raise or lower quotas in keeping with demands of the trade. In that way the market has been sustained across the years.

Always, however, there is the need for caution in holding prices to a level which will not frighten away foreign customers and thus crowd the American crop out of the world market. That could conceivably happen.

One of the healthiest developments that could come to the tobacco program generally would be for Stabilization to dispose of a large part of the surplus it now holds. Generous sales are made year after year, but unfortunately about as much tobacco is consigned to Stabilization as is able to dispose of. Its sales much go well ahead of its receipts if these huge excesses are to be worked off.

High prices the past season were a tremendous lift to producers, and the pattern can continue only if growers, by their action on December 12, elect to keep the greatest beneficial process they have ever experienced.

Terminology In N.C. Finances

By LYNN NISBET
CONFUSED — There is reason for the average citizen of North Carolina to be confused about the money situation, especially the immediate urgent need for authorization of bond issues for capital improvements.

The Legislature has submitted a bond issue of $61.6 million dollars to a vote early this month. The people voted it down. Despite the claims that this was the minimum amount that would meet the minimum needs, the Governor and other leaders now suggest a pared-down bond issue of some $25-$30 million as perhaps adequate for the most urgent needs.

While they are talking about the absolute need for bond money in an amount at least as much as $25 million, they also are suggesting ways to save some $15 million by tightening up controls over spending in general fund account areas.

Presumably the General Assembly adopted a balanced budget, since the law requires that, which means that the appropriations voted did not exceed the revenue anticipated. The appropriations included between four and five million dollars a year for debt service on the bonds which would have been issued if the people had voted for them. The people did not vote for the bonds, they will not be issued, and that four to five million dollars is available for other uses. Then if the proposed setup of a sort of overall supervisor of budget spending results, as is predicted, in a saving of $15 million during the biennium in amounts appropriated there will be the approximate $25 million which is said to be the minimum need for capital improvements — and without a bond issue.

The average citizen does not understand the terminology of government financing. — Terms deficit spending, surplus, credit balance, and such, do not mean very much. But the average citizen does understand that if you really need $25 million and you have $25 million you ought not to have to issue bonds to get the $25 million.

RESPONSIBILITY — Several efforts have been made to place a large share of responsibility for failure of the recent bond election on failure of members of the General Assembly to support the issues. The blame is properly placed, but the reasons given for placing it in many instances are wrong.

The enactment of a bill submitting a bond issue or a constitutional amendment or any other matter to a vote of the people does not necessarily commit the legislator voting for submission to support of the measure.

Times almost without number during the years he has watched legislatures in action your reporter has heard the appeal to reluctant members that they vote to submit the issue to the people, and that such a vote would not imply anything more than their willingness to let the people speak. Ardent sponsors of court reform in several sessions have pleaded for a popular vote, and proclaimed loudly that every legislator would have a right to vote as he pleased as a citizen.

A classic example is that of "Stag" Ballentine in the 1937 Senate. He had promised in his campaign for the senate that he would vote to permit an election in Wake County on the establishment of ABC stores. He resisted terrific pressure among his family and friends to renege on that promise, but said all the time that when the election came along he would vote and work against the stores. He voted in the senate to order the election, voted in the election against the stores.

That his attitude was approved by the people is attested by the fact he was three times re-elected to the senate, then as Lieutenant Governor, and four times as Commissioner of Agriculture.

Members of the General Assembly had more obligation than the rank and file citizens to take a stand on the recent bond issues, because their position imposed responsibility. The charge of indifference and inactivity can be justified against most of them, but it should not be claimed that they owed support of the bonds simply because they voted to submit them to the people.

They have been many times when legislators acted on the basis of the philosophy credited to various sources, most often to the French statesman, Francois Marie Arquet, better known as "Voltaire," who said "I hate what you have to say, but I will die in defense of your right to say it." Which is just another way of saying that legislators have submitted issues to a popular vote as a public duty when they would much rather have just voted them down in the capitol.

Two things are odd about this case: the way Kennedy handled the man who was next in command to Secretary Dean Rusk at the State Department; and the way Bowles took for months what amounted to a public embarrassment.

In the first place it has never been made clear — certainly not officially — why Kennedy was dissatisfied with Bowles.

Last summer for several days there were news stories predicting Bowles was going to be yanked and made a roving ambassador because he didn't get along well in the State Department and was not a good administrator.

This didn't make much sense in view of the high administrative jobs Bowles had handled: as boss of OPA during the war and, after it, of the Office of Price Stabilization, and as governor of his state.

This writer has been told by a source who ought to know that Bowles did get along well at State. It's an educated guess that Bowles and Kennedy didn't get along well.

The stories predicting Bowles, downfall indicated the information critical of his performance at State came from White House people close to Kennedy.

But the anti-Bowles outcry was followed by a story — clearly pointing to its unnamed informants as men around Bowles — which said bluntly he'd get out of the Kennedy administration if he was removed as undersecretary.

The same day the pro-Bowles story appeared, Kennedy lunched with him and the White House denied Bowles was leaving.

This inspired liberal Sen. Joseph S. Clark, Pennsylvania Democrat and supporter of liberal Bowles, to announce on the Senate floor the conflict involving Bowles was "all over." It didn't seem over to a lot of people in Washington.

Then Kennedy added to the uncertainty by saying at a news conference he had never asked Bowles for his resignation, had complete confidence in him, and always expected him to serve out the life of his administration.

But — Kennedy didn't say Bowles would not be removed as undersecretary. He said, instead, that as of then he thought Bowles should stay as undersecretary, that he had no plans to ask him to take another assignment, but that he would ask Bowles if he thought he would fit in better somewhere else.

That wasn't the same as saying he was going to remain undersecretary. Then it became a matter of waiting to see what happened to Bowles for by that time — because of Kennedy's vagueness — it was apparent that Bowles was on the chute.

Two things are odd about this case: the way Kennedy handled the man who was next in command to Secretary Dean Rusk at the State Department; and the way Bowles took for months what amounted to a public embarrassment.

In the first place it has never been made clear — certainly not officially — why Kennedy was dissatisfied with Bowles.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
FATH MAKING US HAPPY
"Be glad in the Lord and rejoice ye righteous." Why, oh why, do we keep on spreading the untruth that religion is a matter of gloom and denial? Religious faith indeed causes us to face life in a spirit of quiet solemnity. But such solemnity is not gloom. It is resolute purpose manifesting itself as it faces life's issues.

The fruit of true religious faith is joy. The really happy people in the world are people who have a hold on some religion and who in turn allow that religion to have a hold on them. They acknowledge the moral standards which this religion sets up. They give themselves seriously to living up to these standards. They turn from evil in the spirit of Jesus who in his encounter with Satan said, "Get thee behind me, Satan." Yes, there is plenty of seriousness about sincere religion, but the outstanding characteristic of sincere religion is joy. If you think that the happy people in the world are sinners and the unhappy people are the church members, then go to a church service and listen to a congregation singing a hymn of joy and triumph. Read the promises of joy too great for the human mind to comprehend in anticipation.

"Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice, ye righteous." Do you want to be truly happy? Then lay hold on religious faith and let it lay hold on you. There is no joy so great as the joy which such commitment produces.

That's certainly true if you are in a high income bracket.

As "Taxes and Art," a 22-page booklet prepared by Prentice-Hall for French and Co., New York, says:
"Today a valuable work of art can be complemented by the spectacular tax-saving effects of a charitable gift of that same masterpiece. The astute art collector has it in his power to drastically slice his over-all tax bill."

It was pointed out here yesterday that the Metropolitan Museum of Art's purchase of Rembrandt's "Aristotle" was not only free of taxes but offered the Erickson estate a method of reducing heavy estate taxes.

The French - Pentrice - Hall booklet adds, "Through the sophisticated use of charitable deduction, he (the astute collector) can cut his taxes by more than one-third."

"FINANCED BY GOVERNMENT"

As was the case in the Rembrandt "Aristotle" sale, the authors point out that "if your charitable deduction is measured by the current value of your gift, and (2) you are not charged with income or taxed on the difference between what you paid for the painting or other art object and its present appreciated value."

As an individual's taxes go up, his cost of living goes down, the authors point out. The cost of a deductible gift to a person in the 50 per cent bracket is 50 cents for each $1 given. On the other hand, the cost to a person in the top tax bracket, is only 9 cents — he saves 91 cents on the dollar!

As a result, charitable contributors are largely financed by the government.

Police Facing A Crisis

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Two conflicting reports are available: one shows the constant increase of crime and the lowering ages of criminals; the other is the report of the Civil Rights Commission that police brutality is widespread and should be curbed. The statistical report of the FBI on criminal activities is a statement of fact; the report of the Civil Rights Commission is a statement of opinion.

Let us take New York City where I live as an example. Crime has increased so that parks are closed at night; men and women are mugged on principle streets at night; pocket-book snatching is not unusual; certain streets are unsafe for anyone not only because of individual assaults and robberies but because of gang fights.

These conditions are so in many large Northern and Eastern cities. The very kindly Father Hesburgh, President of Notre Dame who is a member of the Civil Rights Commission, writes:

"1. The actions of most policemen demonstrate that effective law enforcement is possible without the use of unlawful violence.

"2. Nonetheless, police brutality by some state and local officers presents a serious and continuing problem in many parts of the United States. Both whites and Negroes are the victims, but Negroes are the victims of such brutality far more, proportionately, than any other group in American society."

The job of a policeman is to maintain order on his beat and to prevent criminals from molesting decent citizens. The policeman should be free to beat up a hoodlum with a nightstick and to shoot to kill, if necessary. Father Hesburgh originally came from the Bronx and if he would walk through the streets of his childhood, he would be shocked by the conditions that exist there.

The confusion in this report arises from the general tendency to drag the Negro question into all discussions on any subject, as though that question alone mattered in our society. I prefer to see the Negro question treated because that is what it is. Sociologists and others prefer to hide behind fancy words, but the fact of the matter is that the discussion is about Negroes and Puerto Ricans.

It is not unusual for new immigrants to find it difficult to adjust to the new and, in many respects, novel situations in which they find themselves when they are uprooted from their traditional mores. The family structure rapidly disintegrates and youth lives in an undisciplined atmosphere. This was true of the Irish immigrants; of the Russian-Polish-Rumanian and other Jews who settled in such a section as the East Side of New York; it was true of the early Italian immigrants who organized such societies as the Black Hand and the Mafia; it was true of the Southern Negro who moved North in the hope of bettering his conditions and found that he was unwelcomed despite the Northern boast of a superior racial attitude.

There are many reasons why the newer migrant groups (and I include the Negroes in this category) become local problems. Adjustments are not easy. My youth was spent under precisely the conditions that all the reports deal with. Recently, I visited the Educational Alliance, the settlement house which was a second home to me in those days. The fellowship of older men and women included a number who are now distinguished and wealthy. One of the friends of my childhood has contributed a quarter or a half million dollars to the settlement. The amount is unimportant because he told me that he expects to give it all back before he dies and his wife said Amen to that.

But when we were boys we were poor and many of the parents engaged in marginal trades. The police were not brutal but they kept us in order. Those who did not obey their parents and the police in time joined gangs, as some others of us joined settlements. Prison For Four In Murder Case

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—One of four white youths charged with kidnapping and murdering a Negro man was sentenced to 16-20 years in prison Monday after they all pleaded guilty to lesser charges.

The sentence went to Houston Duncan, 19, who pleaded guilty to second degree murder. Officers said it was Duncan who stabbed Robert Freeman, 37, to death with a pocket knife.

The other three youths entered pleas of guilty to being accessories after the fact of murder. Edward Gause, 17, of Rt. 1, Hallsboro, was sentenced to 4-6 years. Superior Court Judge Raymond C. Mallard revoked his probation on an earlier breaking and entering conviction.

They'll Be Sure It Is Pet Skunk

VENICE, Fla. (AP)—The Joe Carney family has a pet skunk named "Posie." They found him last summer when he was just an infant. An operation removed his defense mechanism.

Last week Posie disappeared. Saturday night, the Carneys heard a familiar scratching sound under the house. Sure, they agreed, that's good old Posie. So Jimmy and Chuck Carney crawled under the house to retrieve him.

It wasn't Posie. A trap was set. Sunday, the trap caught a skunk. Surely, this was Posie. He let them pick him up and pet him. Father Joe started to put a collar on him.

It wasn't Posie. Monday another skunk was in the trap. The Carneys think it's Posie—but they decided to wait a while and try to be certain this time.

New Atmosphere For Mess Halls

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army wants its mess halls to seem more like home. So it has decided to feed its soldiers from glass dinnerware instead of institution-type trays.

The idea is aimed in part at providing "a more homelike atmosphere in enlisted men's mess halls," an Army statement said.

Another objective: to increase "appetite appeal" and thus get soldiers to waste less food.

The new dinnerware will be available in white, with either a green or burgundy band to dress it up.

It will include plates, bowls, cups and saucers, and two sizes of glass tumblers. Soldiers will be given plastic serving trays to carry the chow to their tables.

There is no target date for Army-wide conversion to the new tableware, the Army said. It will be up to individual commands to change over when they have the funds to do so.

Nat'l Winner In 4-H Program

CHICAGO (AP)—Ann Roberts, 18, of Rt. 4, Asheville, N.C., was named a national winner today in the 4-H dairy foods demonstration program.

She was awarded a $400 scholarship from the Carnation Co. at the 40th National 4-H Club Congress here.

Miss Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Roberts, was Buncombe County Health Queen in 1956 and 1958. She is majoring in home economics at the Woman's College in Greensboro.

She was chosen last year as Buncombe County's outstanding 4-H girl.

Fifty-one girls, one from each state and Puerto Rico, won trips to the Congress and a complete scissors set for their dress-making prowess. Simplicity Pattern Co. Inc. donated the awards.

South Carolina's representative was Jo Ann Jones, 18, of West Columbia.

Mavorene Byrd, 18, of Elkin was the North Carolina winner.

Bob Hope Lives On A Schedule, Still Talks About Slowing Down

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—What performer has entertained more people than any other man in history?

The nod might well go to Bob Hope, who didn't invent vaudeville, and stage, movies, radio or television—but became a top star in all those fields.

Versatile Robert this year is celebrating his 25th year in films. In the last quarter century Hope figures he made 53 movies and they brought in some $250 million.

"All but one or two got into the profit picture," he remarked.

That feat in itself is enough to win Bob a golden name forever in Hollywood annals—if not an Academy Award.

At 58, Hope's hair is thinning a bit, but he still has the fastest quip in show business. He said during a stopover here the other day that he's trying to slow down, as his doctors suggested some years ago.

The trouble is—he doesn't know how to.

"I keep a schedule on my washstand, a schedule on my desk, and a schedule in my car," he said.

"I have to lead a scheduled life. There isn't any other way."

In addition to his chores as an entertainer, Bob has multimillion-dollar business interests ranging from oil wells to dairy farms, packing plants and professional baseball and football clubs.

"But I try not to let it all get my stomach worked up," he said.

His success formula is simple. "Keep moving. Never let yourself get trapped. Try doing different things so you never feel stale," he says.

The problem of boredom that afflicts some stars who find fame chafing and wearying never has upset Hope. After more than 40 years in show business he is still in love with an audience — any audience.

"I don't have time to think about boredom," he said. "If I had my life to live over again, I couldn't—I wouldn't be able to find the time."

"You get bored only when you bore the audience—or when you get stuck doing the same thing, I try to avoid that."

"The warmest feeling I have gotten out of success is being able to sit down and write a check to help someone else. It's a great kick to anyone who ever had to fight for his bread."

"After you have a little luck in life, and get your annuities paid, you sit back and ask yourself, 'Now what?' The lucky people are those who learn how to do it—to give it away."

"Some people never get wise. 'It reminds me of once when I was in Texas. I was with a fellow who pointed at another man and said, 'There's a poor millionaire.'"

"What do you mean?" I asked. "He doesn't know how to give away his money," my friend said."

No one says that about Bob Hope. He learned early how to avoid being "a poor millionaire." He is as quick with his checkbook as he is with a wisecrack.

At the peak of his career he is as well-loved for his sense of charity as for his sense of humor.

Trade Policy Talk Presages Battle

WASHINGTON (AP)—A lively dialogue over foreign trade policy—should trade barriers be lowered or not?—is spreading into the far corners of Washington. It presages a bitter legislative fight next year when the present trade law expires.

Holding up the protectionist or high tariff end of the dialogue at the moment is Rep. John Dent, D-Pa. His House subcommittee is holding a week of hearings generally aimed at airing the views of segments of industry which want more protection against foreign competition as a matter of survival.

The administration is masterminding the other side, pushing for liberalization of trade as a means of increasing the economic strength of the West.

The administration is gathering powerful allies, including top leaders of the AFL-CIO. The International Association of Machinists is pounding the drums in a three-day world trade conference, with lowered trade barriers as the keynote.

Undersecretary of State George W. Ball loosed a recent administration trial balloon in a speech repudiating protectionism, and pledging efforts "to open the doors and windows of our economy to the competition we must face in world markets." The speech reportedly had the prior approval of President Kennedy.

Dent's investigation is not all one-sided. Scheduled for today is Meyer Bernstein of the United Steelworkers, who is expected to urge trade liberalization. Dent said he would schedule more rebuttal witnesses in January before his House subcommittee on the Impact of Imports and Exports on American Employment.

But most of the witnesses set for this week represent industries which are fighting to at least hold the line on tariff protection, if not gain higher walls against imports of low-wage foreign products.

Another element in the argument is the House subcommittee on Foreign Economic Policy headed by Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., which has been issuing reports generally supporting the administration's policy of freer world trade.

This is a subcommittee of the Ways and Means Committee, of which Boggs is an influential member. The group would originate any tariff legislation that comes up next year.

Dent hinted Monday that certain big American manufacturers are trying to duck testifying before his subcommittee because they have foreign subsidiaries of their own.

"The trouble with some of them is they have too many interests," Dent told reporters. "They want to protect certain domestic interests and also keep their foreign interests—they are torn between two fires (sic)."

Dent declined to make specific allegations, but said some witnesses had volunteered to testify and then withdrew.

"We feel that something is happening here that is not conducive to getting at the truth," he said.

The first witness, B. E. Smith, general manager of the Allis Chalmers hydraulic turbine division of York, Pa., said his company is suffering badly from foreign competition in low-wage countries and that thousands of American jobs are being exported because there is no adequate protection.

He said his firm has foreign subsidiaries, but their products are not imported back to the United States for sale here.

Canada's Northwest Territories covers a third the area of the United States. Yet the region has only 23,000 inhabitants.

Stasavich Speaks At Grid Banquet

KINSTON—Clarence Stasavich, East Carolina College's new head football coach, told an audience at the Kinston High School football banquet last night that "if we are going to have a good football program at ECC we will have to do it."

The veteran Lenoir Rhyne coach added, "I can't do it alone. . . . I am going to help, you folks are going to help, and the administration and the students at the college are going to help if we are going to build a program."

Stasavich was introduced at the banquet honoring the football team and cheerleaders by an old friend and classmate of his, Bob Poovey, a Kinston resident. The two played on the same Lenoir Rhyne football teams during the '30s. Poovey was a fullback and Stasavich handled one of the guard positions.

The 48-year-old coach said, "I don't know what good football is, but I hear a whole lot of talk about winning." He added, "Last week I was worried about the Lenoir Rhyne opener next year with Wofford, but now I am worried about the East Carolina opener with Richmond next year."

However, he said he was looking forward to the Richmond game and he was going to do all he could to get ready for it. "When the whistle blows we will be out there on the field to win," Stasavich noted.

Stasavich told the football players at the banquet that last night was a good time to start preparing for their opener next year. "It will be too late next August when practice begins. . . . start thinking now and getting ready," he said.

He told the group that it is important to win in anything one does. "If a young person is not interested in winning then he is not worth fooling with," he warned. Stasavich considers one of the shortcomings of our educational system is that the students are not taught to win in the classroom. "There is no end to what young people can do in the classroom or on the football field if they are properly challenged," he noted.

According to the new ECC mentor, learning is a full-time, year-round job and the student should consider himself better by attending any class he takes and built on this philosophy Stasavich felt that the student would reach his full potential by bettering himself some each day.

Stasavich also directed some comments at the adults in the audience. He said they should show an interest in the young people when they do a good job and be interested in what they do and let the young folks know they are interested.

Representing the college at the banquet last night were Dr. John Horne and Dr. John Reynolds. Also attending was Bill Gibson, athletic director at Wake Forest. Gibson congratulated East Carolina in hiring Stasavich and added that he would definitely make recruiting in the eastern part of the state harder.

Stasavich had been lined up as the guest speaker last night for some time and the fact that he will soon be a Kinston neighbor and head coach at ECC was coincidental.

Purple Team Wins Benefit Game

In last night's benefit basketball game at East Carolina College the Purple team downed the White team 63-62. Both teams were a mixture of veterans and freshmen.

The leading scorers for the White team were Bill Otte, Charles Lewis and Lacy West. For the Purple team the top point gainers were Bill Penny and Russell Knowles.

Coach Smith said that both teams were "dead on their feet" from registration and ticket selling yesterday, but it turned out to be an interesting contest toward the end because of the close score.

In the faculty game prior to the varsity game the physical education department men defeated the faculty men by a score of 36-14. The leading scorers were Assistant Basketball Coach Wendell Carr for the physical education department and Baseball Coach Jim Mallory for the faculty team.

Wagman Trial For Cage Scandal Starts

NEW YORK (AP) — Gambler Aaron Wagman, already convicted with Green, 37, facing a term of from one to 10 years and a fine of up to $10,000 on each of two counts to which he pleaded guilty. His case was the first called in the basketball scandals in which 37 players from 22 colleges were named.

Wagman, convicted on charges of attempting to fix the Florida State football game in 1960, had his case here put off Monday after his attorney said he was awaiting a bill of particulars from the district attorney.

At the same time, Wagman's associate, Joseph Green, pleaded guilty in General Sessions Court to charges of bribing Columbia University basketball player Fred Portnoy to shave points in games during the 1960-61 season. Sentencing was set for Jan. 3

East Carolina's basketball Pirates, who might be using freshmen to a greater extent than in past years, step into the limelight Friday night against Catawba in their season opener which begins one of the school's toughest seasons ever.

With Head Coach Earl Smith and his assistant Wendell Carr at the helm the Pirates this year will take on four Southern Conference teams and all four games will be away.

Smith Not Disappointed

However, Coach Smith does not seem to be a bit disappointed in the way the team has been shaping up since practice began back in October. As a matter of fact the cage boss seems to think his boys will hold up well this season even though the club will be using more freshmen than in the past.

The Pirate head coach also said his team will be "outsized" in a good many ball games this year which will hurt the Bucs when it comes to rebounding. "We are going to have to spend a lot of time working on our defense," Smith noted.

Little Time

As far as the Southern Conference games are concerned the Pirates do not have time for actual game experience before they take on one of them. The first game with a Southern Conference team comes this Saturday night with the Citadel after a tough Carolina Conference

Basketball Meet Wednesday Night

A final meeting to organize the men's basketball league will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Elm Street Park Recreation Center.

Anyone desiring to sponsor a team or desiring to play this year is invited to be at the meeting.

W. C. James has announced that three teams have already been formed, but it is necessary to have more to make up a league try Vogel and Dan Quindazzi, former Alabama basketball players. Hogan described them as contact men for Wagman.

Hogan said when the indictments were returned that Wagman allegedly paid bribes totaling $14,250 to various college players in an attempt to fix the point spread on games.

Three other cases — those of Quindazzi and Vogel, and Lou Brown, former basketball player at the University of North Carolina — also were adjourned until Wednesday. The case of Joseph Hacken, named on 17 counts of bribery, was deferred to await the outcome of a defense motion to inspect the grand jury minutes.

ence contest Friday night with Catawba. Last year against the Citadel the Pirates lost by 10 or 11 points in the last few minutes of play. Smith said his boys ran into foul trouble which hurt them a great deal right at the end of the game.

The other games with Southern Conference teams come later in the season with Richmond on Dec. 9, William and Mary in Dec. 15, and Virginia Tech on Feb. 2.

12-9 Record Last Year

Last season the Pirates had a 12-9 overall record and a 12-6 conference record. They finished second in the conference standings with Coach Billy Wells' Lenoir Rhyne cagers coming out on top.

In commenting on the personnel this year Smith said he lost two starters who played last season and one reserve who was expected to help the team out a lot this year. The two starters were Don Smith who graduated and Cotton Clayton who signed a pro-baseball contract which made him ineligible. The reserve was Floyd Wicker who also signed a baseball contract.

Clayton's Loss Hurts

Smith said the loss of Clayton was especially bad for his club as he was the team's leading scorer with a 14.9 average and was "one of the better ball players in this part of the country." Smith was also one of the leading scorers and leading rebounders. "We are just about cut in half experience wise and strength wise," Smith said.

However, the Pirates have back with them this year several boys who will be the backbone of the squad. They are Co-Capt. Charles Lewis of Kinston, 6-foot 6-inch Bill Otte of Hawthorne, N.J., and 6-foot 3-inch Lacy West. West was tied with Clayton last year for rebound honors with a 9.9 average. Along with West, Lewis and Otte were among the top scorers last season. Lewis had a 14.4 average, Otte a 12.0 and West a 10.8.

Bowes Is Back

Another boy who did a good job for the Bucs last year is Benny Bowes of Burlington who has returned to aid the Pirates in the backcourt. Bowes is co-captain along with Lewis and averaged 5.7 last season.

The East Carolina cagers have also been strengthened this year by the addition of two transfers who had to sit out last season because they were ineligible.

Both boys transferred to East Carolina from Villanova. They are Bill Penny, a 6-foot 3-inch junior forward and Dick LeFevre, a 6-foot 1-inch junior.

Fresh Led By Brogden

The freshmen this year are led by guards Billy Brogden of Wilmington and Richie Williams of Muncie, Ind. Brogden is the son of the Wilmington High School coach and was an all-state guard. Williams was the captain of the Muncie Central High Bearcats. Smith said both boys will be a real asset to the team this season. Two other freshmen expected to find jobs are Fred Selvy from Albany, Ind., and Bobby Duke of Richmond, Va.

Other freshmen out for the team are Johnny Barnes of Asheboro, Chuck Scott of Page High School in Greensboro, Roger Hedgecock of Ledford and Roddy Stanton, a transfer from Wingate Junior College.

Scholastic Difficulty

Coach Smith said that there is one freshman he had hoped to count on who ran into scholastic difficulty during this past quarter. He is 6-foot 8-inch Gary Lattimore who tops the scales at 240 pounds. The big freshman is from Balston Spa, N. Y.

In commenting on the scrimmage with Wake Forest last Friday Smith said, "We were well pleased with the session with the Deacs, Chapel and all. . . . We thought the kids did real well against them after they loosened up." The Pirate coach added, "We were out-manned, but they did not quit and kept plugging along against the big Wake Forest boys."

Smith declined to pick a winner in the Carolina Conference. "It's just not a good idea for coaches to get into this picking stuff," he said. "We feel like it will be a real good year in the league and we know all of the clubs will be strong," he noted.

'Stas' Sees Great Challenge At ECC... And Likes It

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

"This opportunity presents a big challenge for me... and I like a challenge."

Speaking was Clarence Stasavich, 48-year-old husky gentleman who has made winning football games a legend at Lenoir Rhyne College in Hickory.

He referred to his new position as successor to Jack Boone at the helm of East Carolina College's football program.

"Stas," as he is often called, was signed Monday as head football coach of the Pirates and associate professor in ECC's physical education department.

"I am very happy, very enthusiastic," he said of his appointment. He expressed anticipation of a "happy" relationship at East Carolina. However, plans for moving his family to Greenville are as yet indefinite.

Rather Sudden

In his deep, quiet voice, Stasavich confessed: "All this was rather sudden. We just haven't had time to formulate any definite plans yet." He recalled his last visit to Greenville before his conference last Saturday with ECC President Dr. Leo W. Jenkins and other school officials.

"I had no idea that things would work out this way," he remembered of his Nov. 4 trip to Greenville when his talented Bears tripped up ECC's Pirates 22-21.

The six-foot, 202-pound veteran coach—a former gridiron great himself—discussed the prospects of his new challenge as he sat in the Kingston home of a former Lenoir Rhyne teammate, Bob Poovey.

Neatly dressed in a dark, worsted suit, Stasavich's eyes sparkled under heavy eyebrows as he said of ECC officials: "I like the way they think."

The Illinois native has enjoyed 16 years of phenomenal success at the Lutheran college in Hickory. During his tenure as head coach there he has piled up 120 victories against only 26 losses and seven ties.

He has guided Lenoir Rhyne to nine conference crowns in those 16 seasons. Seven of those titles have come in the last seven years. During those seven championship seasons, his Bears have rolled to a 41-2 league record.

Stasavich has engineered an offense-minded football program at Lenoir Rhyne. He has been a strong advocate of the value of the single wing, abandoned at a host of American colleges in favor of the T-formation and its derivatives.

Continue Single Wing

Asked if he would bring his potent version of the single wing to East Carolina, Stasavich said: "As far as I know, yes. I think it's a fine offense. The single wing is an offense that can move the football. That's what the game is all about, you know."

His successful Lenoir Rhyne attack, however, has not been a power-type offense, Stasavich insists. "We've modified the single wing some. We've made some innovations. We've made changes in recent years when they seemed appropriate."

Stasavich has been boosted up the ladder of football success through the results of his talent as a coach at Lenoir Rhyne. His 1960 Bears were victorious in the Camella Bowl game to claim the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics title.

This year he is chairman of NAAIA's football committee and is scheduled to fly to the West Coast this weekend in preparation for the 1961 Camella Bowl game matching Pittsburgh (Kan.) State College and Linfield (Ore.) College for the '61 NAAIA crown.

Lenoir Rhyne is reluctant to see its football wizard leave. The 1,000-student college's president, Dr. V. R. Cromer, said: "His record speaks for itself. He has in a large measure been responsible for the national recognition Lenoir Rhyne has received in recent years."

Stasavich has placed Lenoir

Rhyne, his alma mater, prominently on the national football map. Will he do the same for East Carolina?

"My intentions are to make East Carolina have as fine a football team as it is possible for it to have," the new Pirate coach says. "I will use my talents to the fullest extent to this end."

While football comprises a large share of the successful coach's career, education for his football players is at least equally important to him.

In addition to building championship football teams and players, Stasavich aspires to develop character and responsibility in his charges.

In terms of East Carolina, he expressed a "sincere hope that we can help the young men who are interested in football to get a real good education."

Teaching Role

He is vitally interested in his role as a professor. "One of the really great things about teaching," Stasavich says, "is to see young men and women grow up to become useful citizens in a community."

In launching his career at East Carolina, Stasavich plans to work with the present coaching staff. "As far as I know now," he says, "(Odell) Welborn, (Sal) Gero and (Ray) Pennington will be my associates. I don't believe in assistant coaches, I believe in associate coaches."

Stasavich was in Kingston Monday afternoon prior to an address to last night's Kingston High School football banquet, one of four similar appearances for the popular coach this week.

After he returns from the Dec. 9 Camella Bowl game in Sacramento, the new Buc mentor plans to spend several days in Greenville in late December. "Then it'll take a few days in Hickory to terminate my work there."

Stasavich is married to the former Helen Warlick of Hickory and they have a son and two daughters. Rebecca Ann is an English teacher in Albemarle's junior high school program. Eighteen-year-old Mary Helen is a freshman at Lenoir Rhyne and Walter Lewis, 15, is enrolled in the ninth grade in a Hickory junior high school.

The new ECC coach, a 1935 non-graduate of Lenoir Rhyne, is an honorary member of the Hickory Kiwanis Club. He is a member of the Hickory Moose and Elks Lodges.

Stasavich, a leader in his church, is an elder in the United Church of Christ in Hickory and is a Sunday school teacher.

Alabama Tops Weekly Poll

By TOM DYCARD

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Alabama goes against traditional rival Auburn here Saturday as the nation's No. 1 college football team—but only by a narrow margin.

The Crimson Tide, unbeaten and untied in nine games, sat out an open date last weekend and lost considerable ground in the Associated Press poll to Ohio State's Buckeyes, who walloped Michigan 50-20.

The semifinal poll showed Alabama slipping from 39 first-place votes last week to only 26 this week among the 49 sports writers and sportscasters on the AP panel.

The Buckeyes from the Big Ten, finishing an 8-0-1 season in strong fashion, increased their first-place draw from 6 last week to 21 this week.

Louisiana State is third, Texas fourth, Mississippi fifth and Colorado sixth, each moving up one rung.

Minnesota, third last week, dropped to seventh after losing 23-21 to Wisconsin.

Alabama, counting heavily on its awesome defense, is a strong favorite to dump Auburn and wrap up its first undefeated and untied season in 16 years, and then head into the Sugar Bowl.

The oddsmakers figure that Alabama is two touchdowns better than three-beaten Auburn, but Alabama Coach Paul Bryant, whose team has yielded only three touchdowns through nine games, figures Auburn should give his vaunted defense a stern test.

Auburn Coach Ralph Jordan, who has seen his team lose three games by a grand total of four points, says Alabama "is a wonderful football team," but he adds: "We're not conceding anything. We've got a chance to win."

In the poll, Alabama ran up a total of 459 points on the basis of 10 for a first-place vote, 9 for a second-place vote, etc. Ohio State was only seven behind with 452.

She changed her name instead of her bank!
They had a joint account for many years, she said. Now it looked like the best thing to do was change her bank—since they were separating—to avoid confusion.

"You know, it will be almost as hard to change my bank as it will be to change my name," she said, a little sadly.

Well, we showed her how to open a new account here, using her given name, and she went away happier—relatively happy, that is, everything considered.

THE GREEN STONE

A suspense-thriller by SUZANNE BLANC

CHAPTER 27

A black cloud of gnats beat against the windshield as Inspector Menendes and Sergeant Roberto passed a garbage dump, and then they were at the village, a poor village of the cornfields.

Everyone rushed to meet the car, the half-naked children followed by rangy, silent dogs, the adults, even those at the far end of the fields, hurrying through the corn carrying their tools.

Apparently the arrival of a car was an unusual event in the life of the village. The children started at themselves in the shiny chrome bumper, nudging each other and giggling. The adults stared at the inspector.

Who had ever before seen such a rich Indian in such fine city clothes? The sergeant's black uniform touched them with apprehension and they avoided him, but to the inspector they were very friendly.

It was easy to locate the old man's grandson, impossible to talk with him alone. The inspector had to adjust himself to ignore the circle of children and dogs that followed them everywhere they went, but the presence of the others did not disturb the boy, who looked at the inspector with round, intelligent eyes and answered his questions in a solemn, adult manner.

Much as the old man had told it, the child described how they had found the ring, leading the way across the arroyo to a knoll studded with dwarfed, twisted trees. Blending with the color of the ground so that it appeared at first glance to be nothing more than a pile of mammoth rocks was a weather-eroded idol, its features almost obliterated by time until only the general contour of the round head and kneeling body remained.

"It is here we found the ring," the boys said. "We left the grain and when we returned, the ring was there."

"And you saw no one bring the ring?"

"My grandfather says the god is still alive and left it for us. But my grandfather is very old."

"What do you think, boy?" the

Reminds Limit To Work Hours

RALEIGH—State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane today reminded Tar Heel employers of maximum working hours permitted for women and minors under the State Labor Laws during the business rush between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

"Employers employing nine or more persons, may select a period of one week only, any time between Thanksgiving and Christmas, during which women 18 years of age or older employed in mercantile establishments may work as much as ten hours a day but not more than six days in the week," Commissioner Crane said.

"Normally, maximum working time for these employees is nine hours a day, 48 hours a week, and six days per week."

"Women 18 or older working in establishments employing eight or fewer people are restricted to ten hours a day, 55 hours a week, and six days per week," Crane stated.

"The law does not provide any increased working time for this group during the Thanksgiving to Christmas period."

He pointed out that the law does not provide any extended working hours for minors under 18 years of age. No mercantile work is permitted for children under 14 years of age, he said.

For 14 and 15-year-old minors who have obtained employment certificates from their local Welfare Superintendents, said Crane, maximum working time is eight hours a day, 40 hours a week, and six days per week. Their work must be confined to hours between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Boys 16 and 17, after obtaining employment certificates from their Welfare Superintendents, may work nine hours a day, 48 hours a week, and six days per week, not earlier than 6 a.m. and not later than midnight, he said. Girls 16 and 17 have the same maximum hours and days of work but may be employed only between 6 a.m. and 9 p.m., Crane added.

Aiken Discounts Prospects Of GOP Clash Over Filling Posts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., discounted today reports that Republican liberals and conservatives may clash over filling party posts vacated by the death of Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H.

Aiken, who quarterbacked an unsuccessful 1958 effort of liberals to capture the GOP floor leadership which went to Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., said in a telephone interview he has given no thought to organizing a similar drive next January.

"I hope the vacancies will be filled with men who will add to the progressive impetus of the party in the 1962 election," he said. "But I doubt that we're going to have any fight about it."

Aiken said he assumes that if Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., wants it he can have the job of chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, which Bridges held. Saltonstall, who takes a middle road course, is regarded as far less conservative than Bridges.

If Saltonstall takes this job, his own chairmanship of the conference of all Republican senators would be open when GOP members meet in January to realize their forces.

Aiken, who has been mentioned as a possible choice for the conference chairmanship, said "some mighty unusual circumstances" would have to arise for him to take the job. He said he prefers to operate as an individual, without assuming responsibilities for party policies with which he might disagree.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., who made the unsuccessful race against Dirksen in 1958, has told friends he isn't particularly interested in trying again for a leadership spot.

The policy and conference chairmanships are less attractive than they were when a GOP president was in the White House but the leadership posts carry a measure of prestige and add to the audience of any senator who holds the title. For this reason several Republican veterans may be in the bidding for them.

Among these may be Sens. Homer E. Capehart, R-Ind., Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, and Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D. All are classed as conservatives.

There is likely to be spirited bidding for some of the standing committee assignments held by Bridges, who was top Republican on the Appropriations and Space Committees and had served longer than any other GOP colleague on the Armed Services Committee.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., an Air Force reserve general, might seek a place on the Armed Services group. Goldwater, a spokesman for Republican conservatives, already heads the party's senatorial campaign committee, a position of wider audience than most of his colleagues.

There seems little doubt that Gov. Wesley Powell of New Hampshire will be a candidate in next year's election to succeed Bridges in the Senate. If the governor should resign to accept an interim appointment he would lose his chairmanship of the National Governors' Conference. There have been some suggestions that Powell might appoint Mrs. Bridges with the understanding that he would run for the job in 1962.

Nike Zeus Test Said Imminent

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP)—A full-scale test of the Nike Zeus antimissile against an actual target is imminent, although only two of its three solid-fuel stages have been fired so far.

Three-stage test came a step nearer with the Air Force announcement Monday that a target rocket—a smaller, two-stage rocket—had been fired Nov. 15 from the island of Roi-Namur, about 40 miles north of the main island of Kwajalein in the South Pacific.

Nike Zeus is still undergoing test firings of two stages at the Pacific Missile Range headquarters here. After the three-stage test here the rocket will be taken to Kwajalein atoll for the actual target test of all three stages. In these, which may come by the end of the year, Nike Zeus rockets will try to intercept targets launched from Roi-Namur.

Tests against bigger and faster targets are expected some time next year. These targets will be Atlas missiles fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

The 48-foot Nike Zeus is designed to intercept enemy missiles high in the sky and destroy or neutralize their war heads.

U.S. Population Nears 185 Million

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's population reaches 185 million this week—an increase of five million since last year's census. The exact moment won't be known but the event will be celebrated at a ceremony in the Commerce Department lobby at about 3 p.m. EST Thursday.

Young Starlet Studies Become Accountant, Too

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Should a starlet think about other figures besides her 35-19-3?

Yes, says Joan Freeman, who can handle these figures and the other kind, too. And get this: She wants to be a certified public accountant.

No C.P.A. ever looked like Joan in a bathing suit.

But if it's a publicity stunt, she is going to extremes to put it across. She is taking six hours of accounting and economics at UCLA every week.

I tracked down the budding accountant at 20th Century-Fox during a lull in filming of "Bus Stop," the ABC series.

How did Joan happen to favor financial study?

"I was taking a theater arts course at UCLA," explained the brown-haired beauty. "I realized that the requirements included lighting, set-designing and all kinds of stage craft that offered much work for few units. So I'd be working all day, then coming back to school at night to appear in plays. That was too much for so little credit.

"I looked through the catalogue and a business course seemed more practical. I figured if I did make a go of acting it would help to know what to do with money. I might not be able to keep any of it, but at least I'd know where it was going. Economics is tough, but I'm enjoying accounting."

So are the male accounting students, no doubt. Price-Waterhouse might well send its talent scouts out to see her. Can you imagine a doll like Joan handing out the envelopes at the Oscar fest?

Right now her mind is more on hopes of being on the receiving end of awards. She is off to a good start, scoring some good dramatic moments in "Bus Stop."

File No Charges In Auto Accident

No charges were made by police who investigated a collision at the intersection of Seventh and Cotanche Sts. about 11:54 a.m. yesterday.

Officers said cars operated by John Franklin Stocks, 41 of Route 2, Greenville and William Carlton Henserson, Jr., 19, of 556 Cotanche St. were involved in the mishap.

Damage to the Henserson auto was set at $350 while damage to the Stocks vehicle was estimated to be about $200.

No injuries were reported.

Minor Injuries In Traffic Crash

Four persons received minor injuries today when a car and truck collided at the intersection of Cotanche and Eighth Sts. about 7:28 a.m. causing extensive property damage.

Investigators listed drivers of the vehicles as Lynda Stricklen Rowe, 22 of 604 Ernie St. and Walter David Moore, Jr., 22 of 1210 Myrtle Ave.

Officers said the Moore truck was traveling South on Cotanche St while the Rowe auto was headed West on Eighth St. at the time of the crash.

Both Moore and Mrs. Rowe, and two others, Jimmy C. Haddock and Earl Hart, received minor injuries. All were treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital and released.

Mrs. Rowe was charged with failure to stop for a stop sign following investigation of the crash.

Damages from the collision were listed as $1,000 to the Rowe auto and an estimated $1,600 to the truck.

ECC Dorm . . .

At this point, the construction of the third south campus unit—already financed through a 1959 per cent HHPA loan and a 1959 General Assembly appropriation—will place into use the final expansion of the student housing for which concrete plans have been made.

If arrangements for more new units are not made, the fall of 1962 will mark at least a temporary terminal point for student housing growth at the college.

While many Greenville homes have been opened to the student overflow, the scarcity of housing could stunt the phenomenal growth rate at East Carolina.

May Register

Families wishing to apply for Christmas baskets and toys were asked to register at the local Salvation Army headquarters Dec. 4-18 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Capt. Earl Keagan urged all who wish to register to do so during this period. "It gives us time to clear the cases to see that we don't have duplications," he pointed out. The Salvation Army workers wouldn't have time to do this for applicants at the last minute.

Plead Guilty To Spying For U.S.

KIEV, Soviet Union (AP) — A former member of Nazi Germany's Waffen SS and his wife pleaded guilty today to charges of spying for the United States.

Adolf Werner, 51, of Karlsruhe, West Germany, acknowledged his guilt before a three-man district military court but said he had actually done almost nothing for the Americans.

Werner, who was a staff sergeant with the Waffen SS — the front-line military organization of the Nazi elite guard — was head of the shoe department in a Karlsruhe department store before his arrest near Kiev Sept. 2.

He and his wife, Hermina, 45, came to the Soviet Union as tourists. Werner acknowledged photographing sketches and making notes.

Optimists Plan Enrolling Drive

Greenville's Optimist Club Monday announced plans for a three-month-long intensive search for new club members.

Member Walter R. Whitehurst said the club would kick off its membership campaign at next Monday's regular meeting of local Optimists.

He urged attending members to "round up all of us not here tonight and get this thing started on the right foot."

Whitehurst said the three-month goal for the drive will be a total membership for the Optimists of 40. That figure would represent a total of about 15 new members.

The enrollment drive was designed around a contest among Optimist members. An award will be presented to the club's top recruiter at the end of February.

Optimist President H. Thomas Money reported the club's annual shipment of Christmas trees is scheduled to arrive either this weekend or early next week. He said the trees will go on sale immediately after arrival at the tennis courts at Elm Street Park.

Proceeds from the tree sale go into the Optimist treasury for sponsorship of local Optimist youth development projects including the Greenville Junior Rifle Club, a high school oratorical contest, campships for Boy Scouts during summer months and other programs.
